Resources and Guidance on

Finding a Job in Political Science

Hundreds of academic positions are advertised each year in political science. Finding the openings is the easy part; knowing how to approach the application and interview process is a little more challenging. At APSA, we have collected resources to assist candidates in the academic job search. We would like to highlight a few of these key resources here. The complete list of job resources is available online at www.apsanet.org/jobs.

eJobs: This online resource contains comprehensive online listing of political science jobs, is updated daily with new job listings and candidate resumes, and is fully searchable by field of interest, name of employer/candidate, region, keyword, position, salary, type of institution, and most recent posts.

Data on Jobs Market: APSA gathers and releases data regarding the placement of political science Ph.Ds. View this information at www.apsanet.org/content\_7623.cfm.

Mentoring: Enroll in the APSA Mentoring Program online at www.apsanet.org/mentoring.

eJobs Placement Interview Services: The eJobs Annual Meeting Placement Interview Service provides space and facilities for employers who have eJobs posted to interview candidates at the APSA meeting. Many other conferences, such as the Northeastern and Western, also use the APSA online service to schedule placement interviews. Check the listings online in eJobs.

Ethics Guide: The APSA Guide to Professional Ethics in Political Science includes specific guidance on hiring and employment practices. Order a print copy or view online at www.apsanet.org/ethics.

Asking the Right Questions: APSA Job Candidate Questions to Ask Program

Asking the right questions provides valuable information for career decisions. As part of the APSA Job Candidate Questions to Ask (JCQ) Program participating political science departments have agreed to answer the following questions from job candidates.

Salary

1. What is the salary structure?
2. How is salary normally negotiated?
3. How are annual increases handled?
4. Is there an automatic escalator to ensure the salaries of future hires will not outpace those of existing department members?

Service Activities

1. What are the expectations of pre-tenure and tenured faculty regarding:
  - departmental and institutional committee work,
  - professional or disciplinary activities, and
  - outreach activities to communities external to institution?

Research Support

1. What departmental or institutional resources are available to support:
  - access to research materials and equipment,
  - the employment of research assistants,
  - research expenses on/off campus, and
  - travel expenses for conferences?

2. What departmental or institutional resources are available to seek external funding and to administer external funding awards?

Teaching Support

1. What departmental or institutional resources are available to support:
  - the development of teaching expertise,
  - innovations in teaching, and
  - the introduction of new courses and new technologies?
2. What are departmental expectations regarding:
  - the average course load,
  - the number of different courses taught by faculty, and
  - advising of graduate and undergraduate students?

Tenure, Renewal, and Annual Review

1. What policies and procedures govern the granting of tenure, renewal of contracts for pre-tenure faculty, and annual reviews of faculty performance?
2. What are the department's expectations for successful performance leading to the granting of tenure or renewal of contracts for pre-tenure faculty?
3. What are the department's expectations for a positive annual review?

Mentoring and Faculty Support Initiatives

1. What attention does the department give to integrating new faculty into the department, the institution, and in the profession?
2. Does the department or institution have programs that address:
  - the employment of dual-career professional couples,
  - family needs of faculty and staff, and
  - issues associated with minority faculty and staff?

Health and Life Insurance

1. What are the plans offered?
2. How are benefits disbursed?
3. What are the out-of-pocket expenses?
4. Are partners and/or children covered, and to what extent?
5. What portion of my paycheck will be deducted for these benefits?

Retirement

1. How many types of retirement plans are offered?
2. What is the matching percentage of the institution?
3. Is contribution required (and how much)?

ADMINISTRATION

Pennsylvania State University

Rank: Academic Director

The Social Science Research Institute (SSRI) invites applications for a senior (Associate/Full), tenure eligible position focused on novel approaches to accessing data on human social, psychological and/or behavioral/biobehavioral processes. This position also will serve as the Academic Director of SSRI's Survey Research Center and, in this new role, pursue novel approaches to extending/supplementing traditional survey data collection approaches. Potential research domains include, but are not limited to, active and passive data collection through mobile devices, social media, and sensors for environmental and physiological data, as well as innovative approaches to capturing population/epidemiological data. As elaborated in the Office of Behavioral and Social Science Research (OBSSR) strategic plan <https://obssr.od.nih.gov/about-us/strategic-plan/>, opportunities for novel data acquisition and measurement paradigms in the social and behavioral sciences are evolving rapidly. We seek a colleague who will develop and implement a vision for innovative approaches that spark novel questions about and insights into human bio-psycho-social and behavioral processes--as these operate in context and across the life cycle. Social and behavioral scientists are located in colleges across Penn State, are oriented to interdisciplinary and collaborative research, and have substantial expertise in traditional survey methods, quantitative analysis of human development and demographic and social change, design, implementation and evaluation of education and preventive intervention programs, real-time ambulatory assessment, and spatial and social network analysis (SSRI). Social/behavioral scientists also connect to interdisciplinary expertise such as in the measurement of the physical environment (IEE) and physiological processes (HUCK), device development (MRI), cyberscience (ICS), and clinical and translational science (CTSI). To foster innovation and capitalize on Penn State's strengths, we seek candidates with strong publication and external funding records along with demonstrated teaching and graduate mentorship proficiency. The successful candidate will hold a doctoral degree in the relevant discipline and join the faculty in the academic unit that provides the best fit to her/his research and teaching interests: Biobehavioral Health, Educational Policy Studies, Educational Psychology, Counseling and Special Education, Human Development and Family Studies, Information Science and Technology, Political Science, Psychology, and Sociology. We welcome joint appointments across departments and/or colleges. Review of applications will begin immediately, and applications will be accepted until the position is filled; we expect the position to start by August 2017. To apply, applicants must complete an online application that includes a cover letter describing research interests and experiences, curriculum vitae, names of three references and supporting materials (reprints, preprints, statement of teaching and research interests). Please direct questions to the search coordinator, Ms. Rebecca Shultz, rag212@psu.edu or to Professor Susan McHale, mchale@psu.edu, Director, Social Science Research Institute. Please include Innovative Methods Search in the subject line.

Portland State University

Rank: Director

Oregon's premier urban research university, Portland State is located on a 49-acre downtown campus in the heart of one of America's most vibrant centers of culture, business and technology. PSU is home to more than 22,000 undergraduate and 5,500 graduate students pursuing degrees in eight Schools and Colleges. PSU was recognized in U.S. News & World 2017 Report as one of the nation's "Most Innovative" universities, and has long been a recognized leader in community engagement and sustainability.

The Mark O. Hatfield School of Government (HSOG) is housed within the College of Urban and Public Affairs (CUPA), which also includes the Nohad A. Toulon School of Urban Studies and Planning, the Department of Economics and the Department of International and Global Studies. CUPA's academic units offer both undergraduate and graduate programs in a dynamic environment of cooperation, collaboration and community engagement. The College has long-standing relationships with local, state, regional and federal governments, nonprofit organizations and associations, and international organizations, allowing students to design and implement solutions to modern challenges through hands-on internships and experiential curricula.

The Departments of Criminology and Criminal Justice, Political Science, and Public Administration are located within HSOG, and offer undergraduate and graduate programs in those disciplines. HSOG offers two interdisciplinary graduate degrees: Master of Public Policy; and PhD in Public Affairs and Policy.

Several Centers and Institutes operate within HSOG, including: Criminal Justice Policy Research Institute; Center for Public Service; Nonprofit Institute; Institute for Tribal Government; National Policy Consensus Center; Center for Turkish Studies; and Center for Women's Leadership.

The Hatfield School of Government (HSOG) Director is responsible for providing intellectual leadership by fostering inquiry and collaboration among faculty and Center and Institute staff. The Director oversees and coordinates, with the chairs of HSOG's Departments, the interdisciplinary Master of Public Policy and PhD in Public Affairs and Policy programs.

The Director will typically be responsible for teaching one course per term related to those degrees, however, this expectation will be reviewed each year with the Dean and may be reduced given academic leadership and other responsibilities and initiatives in the School.

The Director also oversees all HSOG Centers' and Institutes' operations, appoints their respective Directors, provides assistance for research and outreach, and facilitates collaborative activities. This is a twelve-month position, with a five-year, renewable term, and will be offered to the candidate of choice with indefinite tenure at the rank of Professor.

Review of applications will begin 1/16/17. More information about the position can be found here: <https://jobs.hrc.pdx.edu/postings/21843>

Specializations: Foreign Policy, Criminal Justice, Health Care

The Department of Political Science & Criminal Justice at the University of South Alabama invites applications for the position of Department Chair to begin August 15, 2017. The department offers undergraduate degrees in Political Science and Criminal Justice as well as a Master's in Public Administration. Highly qualified Associate and Full Professors with a Ph.D. in Political Science, Criminal Justice, or a closely related discipline from an accredited university will be considered for this position.

The ideal candidate will be an accomplished scholar, committed to excellence in research and teaching, have exceptional organizational and interpersonal skills, and possess the vision to lead a growing department. The abilities to collaborate effectively and advocate for program faculty and students are essential. The ideal candidate will have demonstrated administrative experience, but exceptional candidates lacking such experience who have a strong desire to transition to an administrative role are also encouraged to apply.

Applicants should apply at the following link and be prepared to attach a letter of application, a one-page statement of research interests, a brief description of teaching philosophy and proficiencies, a summary statement of leadership and administrative skills, current Curriculum Vitae, names of five references, and a sample of scholarly work. <https://www.governmentjobs.com/careers/usouthal/jobs/1588869/chair-and-assoc-or-full-professor> Upon request, applicants will arrange to have official transcripts and three letters of recommendation sent to the Chair of the Search Committee. Review of applications will begin December 12, 2016, and will continue until the position is filled. Information: <http://www.southalabama.edu/colleges/artsandsci/poliscie/jobs.html>

The position of Chair is a 12-month appointment. The ideal candidate will demonstrate the ability to contribute to existing programs and help develop new offerings. An appreciation for mixed methodology is preferred. The ideal candidate will provide transparency in budget and scheduling decisions and be able to highlight faculty and student successes, advocate for program faculty at the college and university levels, seek to increase faculty, majors, and department activities, and mentor junior faculty for success in tenure and promotion and mentor associate professors for promotion to full professor.

The Department of Political Science & Criminal Justice has 10 full-time faculty and more than 300 undergraduate majors and 40 graduate students. The department offers courses for four interdisciplinary programs within the College of Arts and Sciences: African American Studies, Forensic Science, Gender Studies, and International Studies. The department is also home to the USA Polling Group, a survey research center with a 10 station CATI lab that works with a variety of internal and external clients. Additionally, the department has a sizeable Masters in Public Administration (MPA) program and an active student body.

If you have questions about this position, the department, the University, or the area, please contact the Chair of the Search Committee, Elise Labbé-Coldsmith, at ELabbe@southalabama.edu.

Institute for Religion, Culture and Public Life

Rank: Postdoctoral Research Scholar

Subfield(s): International Relations, American Government and Politics, Political Theory

Specializations: American Politics, Religion & Politics, Political Psychology

for the 2017-2018 academic year. Renewal for the 2018-2019 academic year is possible, contingent on satisfactory performance and funding. The position start date is September 1st, 2017.

IRCPL supports academic research, teaching, and scholarship on the study of religion, culture, and social difference at Columbia University. In addition, it convenes academic conferences, public forums, and collaborative programming to support and extend academic and scholarly understanding of these topics, and to disseminate and distribute such new understandings to broader publics and communities.

Candidates must have received the PhD between August 31st, 2015 and August 31st, 2017 in a discipline engaged with the interdisciplinary study of religion. The Institute is particularly interested in candidates whose research involves critical, interpretive, historical, and genealogical approaches that challenge traditional disciplinary boundaries and who are studying religion as it relates to media, populist/nationalist movements, and/or political discourse.

Under the mentorship of an IRCPL faculty member, postdoctoral research scholars are expected to develop and make progress on a collaborative research project and participate in the intellectual life of IRCPL and Columbia University. He or she may be asked to teach one or two classes during the academic year.

This is a full time salaried position with benefits. Review of applications will begin on April 10th, 2017 and will continue until the position is filled. All applications must be submitted through Columbia University's online Recruitment of Academic Personnel System (RAPS) and must include:

1. Cover Letter: Briefly situate your work in relation to the Institute and one or more of the listed thematic areas, identify a proposed departmental affiliation for teaching, and explain why Columbia University is a particularly good place to pursue your research.
2. Curriculum Vitae.
3. Dissertation Abstract: A two-page summary of your dissertation.
4. Teaching Statement (to be submitted as Other Document 1): Titles and short descriptions (one or two paragraphs each) of at least two undergraduate courses that you could teach under the auspices of your proposed departmental affiliation. Please note that we are not requesting a statement of teaching philosophy or full syllabi at this point.
5. Writing Sample: Only one sample equivalent to a single journal article, book chapter, or dissertation chapter. The writing sample may be published or unpublished. It must be in English. The maximum length is 50 pages.
6. Recommendations: Two academic references familiar with your research and work.

Columbia is an Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action employer.

PhD or equivalent and distinction in the field. The PhD need not be in religion. Applications are welcome from a broad range of disciplines (religion, political science, sociology, Arab studies, history, etc).

All applications must be made through Columbia University's online Recruitment of Academic Personnel System (RAPS).

RAPS will accommodate uploads of maximum two (2) megabytes in size.

Before uploading documents, applicants first will be asked to input a name and valid email address for each reference provider. The application to this position requires a minimum of two (2) reference letters. The applicant may enable RAPS to generate an automatic email to the reference provider, requesting a letter of reference and offering a secure link to the RAPS website where a letter can be uploaded quickly and easily.

After completing the "Provide References" screens, the applicant will come to the "Attach Documents" screen and be asked to upload into RAPS the required application materials listed above. The completion of this application process in RAPS is indicated by a confirmation number, which the applicant should retain.

Requirements:

Curriculum Vitae
Cover Letter
Dissertation Abstract

University of Central Florida

Rank: Assistant/Associate/Full Professor in Coastal Environmental Policy/Coastal Political Geography

Subfield(s): Public Policy, American Government and Politics, Comparative Politics

Applicants for a position in Coastal Environmental Policy or Coastal Political Geography, open rank, must have a Ph.D. from an accredited institution in political science, geography, or a related discipline, such as environmental policy/political geography or environmental anthropology/sociology. Preference will be given to applicants who have expertise in public policy related to coastal environments and/or experience in interdisciplinary, environmental social sciences focusing on public policy and coastal ecology. The anticipated starting date is flexible and can be as early as August 2017.

The successful applicant will be expected to bring expertise in environmental policy and politics to an interdisciplinary team in order to advance understanding of the social-ecological systems in coastal areas. They must demonstrate a strong commitment to interdisciplinary research and publication; a commitment to interdisciplinary and collaborative research, have demonstrated an ability to perform high-impact research, and be able to develop a program that will lead to strong extramurally-funded research. The successful candidate will also have, or be able to establish, a strong teaching record with the ability to teach and mentor students at both graduate and undergraduate levels.

We are bringing together a core group of faculty who work across traditional research boundaries, or are working in transdisciplinary fields, in the broad interdisciplinary area of Sustainable Coastal Systems (<http://ucf.edu/research/coastalsystems>). This new hire will join current cluster faculty, representing twelve departments and seven colleges, to lead a world-class effort to understand and assess natural and human-related impacts to coastal ecosystem health, restoration, sustainability, and mitigation; and ultimately to characterize and integrate physical, chemical, biological, and socio-economic processes impacting coastal communities and ecosystems. This individual will be expected to strengthen both their tenure home department as well as the Sustainable Coastal Systems cluster.

Candidates must apply online at <http://www.jobswithucf.com/postings/46716> (Position #38660) and attach the following materials: a cover letter, curriculum vitae, teaching statement, research statement, and contact information for three professional references. In the cover letter candidates should address their background in their discipline and should identify the department(s) for their potential tenure home. In the research statement candidates should include descriptions of any history of interdisciplinary research collaborations and how their current and future research can contribute to the cluster's overall interdisciplinary objectives.

The search committee will review applications on an ongoing basis until the position is filled.

The University of Central Florida, with more than 63,000 students, has grown in quality, diversity, and reputation in its first 50 years and is committed to being inclusive and diverse by building a faculty who are a reflection of the students they teach. ## Loyola University Maryland

Rank: Visiting Affiliate Assistant Professor or Instructor in American Politics and Constitutional Law

Specializations: American Politics, Civil Rights & Liberties, Constitutional Law & Theory

The Department of Political Science at Loyola University Maryland invites applications for a one-year, full-time, non-tenure track position as a Visiting Affiliate Assistant Professor or Instructor in American Politics and Constitutional Law.

We seek candidates displaying a strong commitment to excellence in teaching and interest in the enduring questions of politics. Candidates for Assistant Professor should have a Ph.D; candidates for Instructor should be ABD. The teaching load for the one-year position is four courses (capped at 30 students each) for both of two semesters, with two preparations in the fall and spring terms. In the fall semester, this will entail two classes of an introductory course on American Politics and two classes of Constitutional Law 1 (federalism and separation of powers). The spring load will again be two classes of introductory American Politics, plus two classes of Constitutional Law 2 (individual liberties). Service to the Department as assigned by the Chair.

Loyola University Maryland is a selective liberal arts university in the Jesuit Catholic tradition. The university is committed to intellectual excellence and social justice as it prepares students for a diverse and changing world. Recognized as a leading independent, comprehensive university in the northeastern United States, Loyola has a beautiful historic Evergreen campus in Baltimore and Graduate Centers in Timonium and Columbia. Loyola enrolls over 4,000 students in its undergraduate programs and about 2,000 students in its graduate programs.

Loyola is committed to fostering an inclusive environment and seeks applicants from all backgrounds who can contribute to its educational mission. Loyola is an Equal Employment Opportunity Employer, and welcomes applications from underrepresented groups. Additional information is available at www.loyola.edu.

To apply, please submit a C.V., three letters of reference, graduate transcripts (copies are acceptable), sample syllabi (if available), an article-length manuscript or chapter demonstrating scholarly potential, and a cover letter explaining teaching approach in relation to Loyola's educational mission. Teaching evaluations should also be submitted if available.

Please go to careers.loyola.edu to complete the online application. The completed application should be submitted by April 21 to ensure full consideration.

For any materials that are only available in hard copy or cannot otherwise be submitted through the online application (which could include letters of reference or teaching evaluations), please email files to Dr. Celia Paris (cparis@loyola.edu) or mail to Dr. Diana Schaub, Dept. of Political Science, Loyola University Maryland, 4501 N. Charles St., Baltimore, MD, 21210.

Mercyhurst College

Rank: Visiting Assistant Professor of Political Science

Subfield(s): Public Law, American Government and Politics, Political Theory

The Political Science Department invites applications for a visiting assistant professor position beginning fall 2017. This position may be renewable or converted to tenure-track contingent on excellent performance, departmental staffing and programmatic needs, and continued administrative approval. A strong commitment to excellence in undergraduate teaching at a liberal arts university is essential.

The position combines courses in constitutional law and political theory including American Political Thought, and a standard one-semester survey course that covers the full range of the history of political theory. We are especially interested in candidates who can serve as advisor to our pre-law society and our mock trial team. The ability to teach Introduction to American Government will be viewed favorably, as will the ability to develop and teach courses in the area of privacy rights. Preference will be given to candidates who have completed the Ph.D. or will complete it before the fall 2017 semester. Candidates must be currently eligible to work in the United States. Screening of applications will begin immediately and the position will remain open until filled. Applicants should submit a letter of interest, current vitae, transcripts (initial submissions may be unofficial copies), three letters of recommendation, evidence of teaching excellence, and a one-page statement summarizing their philosophy of teaching to Jennifer Verga, administrative assistant: jverga@mercyhurst.edu. Mercyhurst is a mid-sized, Catholic, liberal arts, primarily residential university, founded by the Sisters of Mercy, with an enrollment of approximately 2,500 students. Class sizes are small and the normal teaching load is 8 courses per year. For information about the political science program see the departmental website: <http://polisci.mercyhurst.edu>. Mercyhurst is an equal opportunity employer committed to a diverse faculty, staff and student body and welcomes all applicants.

Fordham University

Rank: Pre/Post-doctoral Research Associate

The Center for Electoral Politics and Democracy at Fordham University is seeking to hire a short-term, pre- or post-doctoral research associate in American Politics to assist the director, Professor Costas Panagopoulos, with a variety of research projects. The appointment is expected to begin as soon as possible and end on June 30, 2017.

The position is based in New York City but work could be completed remotely. Strong writing and research skills required as well as expertise in quantitative (survey and/or experimental) analysis. Substantive interests in campaigns and elections, campaign finance and/or political psychology preferred. Salary commensurate with experience. Please send cover letter, CV, and writing sample to cpanagopoulos@fordham.edu for consideration. The application deadline is March 31, 2017.

Fordham is an independent, Catholic University in the Jesuit tradition that welcomes applications from all backgrounds. Fordham is an equal opportunity employer.

Government Affairs Institute at Georgetown University

Rank: Senior Fellow

Specializations: Congress, American Politics, Legislative Studies

Senior Fellow: The Government Affairs Institute (GAI) at Georgetown University, affiliated with the McCourt School of Public Policy, is seeking a full-time Senior Fellow. GAI staff are employees of GAI Inc., a 501(c)(3), and not of Georgetown University.

GAI's mission is to provide education and training about congressional processes, organization, and practices, and about selected legislative policy issues. The Institute's classes are attended mostly by mid-to senior-level federal personnel. Senior fellows possess expertise in congressional processes – House, Senate, and budget – with an ability to explain those processes to agency officials. This requires blending an academic understanding of the institution with its practical operation.

Responsibilities include designing, planning and conducting speaker-based programs conducted on Capitol Hill; lecturing on congressional topics; and conducting graduate-level seminars that require supervising the writing of short research papers. GAI encourages and supports academic research, writing, and publishing by its senior fellows, as well as conference participation.

Ph.D. in Political Science or related field strongly preferred (ABDs considered); expertise in the U.S. Congress and its processes required. Applicants should have well-developed teaching, speaking and administrative skills and be comfortable working in a team environment. Washington experience is a plus, and special consideration will be given to applicants with a demonstrated expertise in defense and/or national security issues. This is a full-time, long-term, 12-month position. Salary and benefits are highly competitive.

Application materials, including cover letter, CV and writing sample, may be sent to the Director's attention at gai@georgetown.edu.

Whittier College

Rank: Visiting Professor in American Politics

Whittier College Visiting Position in Political Science

Whittier College announces Visiting Professor position in American Politics for the 2017-2018 academic year. Currently, the Department's primary needs are in the areas of Law and American Politics; we would be particularly interested in candidates who might also be able to contribute to any of the following additional areas: constitutional law and judicial systems, public administration, public policy, political theory, minority politics, environmental politics, and/or state and local politics with an emphasis on California.

Candidates should have earned a Ph.D. prior to September 2017 (ABD considered). The successful candidate will demonstrate potential for outstanding teaching and excellence in scholarship. The Political Science Department has five full-time faculty and approximately 90 majors. Visiting Faculty members teach eight courses that could be distributed over two thirteen-week semesters and a three-week January term; teaching two sections of a single course may be an option in some cases. Visiting faculty do not have advising or service responsibilities. Pending approval, the Political Science Department hopes to offer a tenure-track position in related areas for the following year, 2018-2019.

Review of completed applications will begin March 20, 2017. Please email a letter of application that includes a reference to teaching philosophy; a curriculum vitae; a summary of course evaluations or other evidence of teaching effectiveness; unofficial transcripts; and at least two confidential letters of recommendation sent by the references to dnorden@whittier.edu or through regular mail to Prof. Deborah L. Norden (Chair of Search Committee), Political Science Department; Whittier College; 13406 Philadelphia St.; Whittier, CA 90601. Please c.c. our Administrative Assistant, Olivia Solis (osolis@whittier.edu), in any emailed application materials.

Whittier College is committed to attracting and retaining a high quality, diverse faculty with a shared passion for student-centered teaching and mentoring. Whittier is distinguished by its small class sizes, high impact pedagogies, and innovative liberal arts curriculum blended with professional and pre-professional programs. It is a nationally recognized model for diversity and has no racial majority among its student body. With over 60% students of color, Whittier is designated as both an HSI and AANAPISI. Founded in 1887, it is an independent, four-year liberal arts college with about 1600 undergraduates and is ideally situated in the scenic hills 18 miles east of downtown Los Angeles. It is an AA/EEO employer. More information on the position is available at www.whittier.edu/jobs.

Colorado College

Rank: McHugh Family Chair in Family in American Institutions and Leadership

American Institutions and Leadership

The Department of Political Science at Colorado College invites applications from established scholars for the McHugh Family Chair in American Institutions and Leadership. The current holder of the chair, Thomas E. Cronin, is retiring at the end of this year. We welcome candidates with any specialty in the American field. The main goal is to complement our current faculty in the study of American politics and to bring added distinction to an already strong program. The chair offers a reduced teaching load and includes a discretionary fund available for research and the promotion of student leadership. The department seeks to hire someone with a strong commitment to the liberal arts, excellent teaching credentials, and a strong record of scholarship. The appointment will be at the associate level or above, to start in September 2018.

The College is committed to increasing the diversity of the college community. Further, Colorado College is dedicated to the development of faculty and staff who are committed to inclusive practices in teaching, learning, and working. Candidates who can contribute to that goal are particularly encouraged to apply.

The College has a unique academic system in which professors teach, and students take, one course at a time. Each block is three and a half weeks long, with an academic year of eight and a half blocks. Maximum class size is 25 or fewer students. Applicants should submit a cover letter, curriculum vitae, a statement of research and teaching interests, evidence of teaching effectiveness, sample of scholarly publications, and three letters of recommendation to: <https://employment.coloradocollege.edu/postings/2782>. The first deadline is April 17, 2017, but the search will remain open until the position is filled.

EQUAL OPPORTUNITY EMPLOYER: Colorado College is an equal opportunity employer committed to increasing the diversity of its community. We do not discriminate on the basis of race, color, national origin, gender, age, religion, gender identity or expression, disability, or sexual orientation in our educational programs and activities or our employment practices.

University of California, Davis

Rank: Lecturer

UC CENTER SACRAMENTO:

LECTURER FOR ACADEMIC YEAR 2017-2018

The UC Center Sacramento invites applications for a temporary teaching position in American Politics for the 2017-2018 academic year. Availability of this position depends upon final administrative approval and the teaching needs of the unit. UCCS seeks applicants with demonstrated research and teaching expertise. A completed Ph.D. is required. This position is covered by a Collective Bargaining Unit.

The appointee will offer up to six courses over three quarters. Compensation is commensurate with ability and experience. Candidates should electronically submit a letter of application, curriculum vitae, evidence of teaching ability, and two letters of reference to: <https://recruit.ucdavis.edu/apply/JPF01471>. To ensure review of your application, please submit all materials by April 1, 2017 but materials will be accepted until the position is filled.

In evaluating the candidates, the following criteria will be used: coursework and demonstrated knowledge of American Politics and public policy; quality of the graduate training program; demonstration of teaching ability; letters of recommendation; ability to complete degree before appointment; and interview. An acquaintance with California politics and policy making is considered advantageous.

UCCS is interested in candidates who are committed to the highest standards of scholarship and professional activities, and to the development of a campus climate that supports equality and diversity. The University of California is an affirmative action/equal opportunity employer.

The UC Center Sacramento (UCCS) is pleased to announce a one-year Visiting Assistant Professorship for 2017-2018 in American Politics and Public Policy. We welcome new or recent Ph.D. scholars with an interest in California state politics and policy. Degree must be completed by July 1, 2017.

The University of California Center, Sacramento (UCCS) is a system-wide program of the University of California. Since its inception in 2004, the program has offered UC students from across the 10-campus system opportunities to study public policy and journalism through seminars and internships in and around the state Capitol. The Center also serves as a conduit through which research-based knowledge generated on the 10 campuses is disseminated to lawmakers, legislative staff, and executive branch officials.

The Visiting Assistant Professor will be responsible for teaching Political Science undergraduate courses as well as performing administrative duties assigned as part of the UCCS leadership team. Duties include teaching four undergraduate courses per year, and in addition, to contribute materially towards the Center's mission to increase student and alumni outreach, enhance the student experience, and expand the Center's research and knowledge sharing function. The appointment will be housed at UCCS located in Sacramento, California.

The UCCS Visiting Assistant Professor salary is competitive and includes health benefits.

In evaluating the candidates, the following criteria will be used: coursework and demonstrated knowledge of American Politics and public policy; quality of the graduate training program; demonstration of teaching ability; letters of recommendation; ability to complete degree before appointment; and interview. An acquaintance with California politics and policy making is considered advantageous.

To apply, please submit a cover letter, CV, teaching evaluations, statement on teaching, writing sample, and three letters of reference through the online application form found at <https://recruit.ucdavis.edu/apply/JPF01470>. For full consideration applications must be received by April 1, 2017. The position is open until filled.

The University of California is an equal opportunity employer with a strong institutional commitment to the achievement of diversity among its faculty and staff.

High Point University

Rank: Visiting Assistant Professor

Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Comparative Politics, International Relations

High Point University invites applications for a one-year (9-month) appointment in political science to begin in August 2017. We are open with respect to sub-field specialization, but the successful applicant must be prepared to teach introductory American politics. The teaching load for a visiting assistant professor is three courses each semester. This line may be renewable, contingent on excellent performance, departmental staffing and programmatic needs, and continued administrative approval.

Competitive candidates will demonstrate a strong commitment to teaching and mentoring undergraduate students in a liberal arts setting. We prefer candidates who will have a Ph.D. completed by August 2017, but will consider otherwise competitive ABD applicants for appointment at the instructor level (which would entail teaching 4 courses each semester).

A review of applicants will begin immediately and continue until the position is filled. Application instructions are available at: https://highpoint.wd1.myworkdayjobs.com/en-US/HighPoint/job/High-Point-University/Visiting-Assistant-Professor-of-Political-Science\_R0000120

For more information regarding this position, please contact Dr. Alixandra Yanus at ayanus@highpoint.edu. Information on our department can be viewed at: <http://www.highpoint.edu/politicalscience/>

To apply, candidates will need to apply on-line, uploading their C.V. and a letter of interest that includes an overview of their teaching and scholarly interests. It will be helpful if applicants will identify in their letters any of our existing courses that align closely with these interests. After an initial screening, some candidates will be asked to provide letters of reference, copies of graduate transcripts, writing samples, and evidence of teaching effectiveness.

High Point University is located in the North Carolina's Piedmont Triad, a metropolitan area with more than 1.5 million people. The university is a selective private liberal arts college that enrolls approximately 4,500 students from across the country and dozens of foreign countries. The political science faculty offers small classes and excellent instruction from an accessible, caring group of teacher-scholars. The university is an Equal Opportunity Employer.

University of Maine

Rank: Lecturer in Leadership Studies & Public Service

The William S. Cohen Institute for Leadership & Public Service at the University of Maine is seeking qualified candidates to fill a full-time, academic year lecturing position in Leadership Studies, for a two-year appointment starting September 1, 2017, with the potential for annual reappointments thereafter. Typical hiring range for this position is $44,000 to $50,000.

Responsibilities and Duties: The primary duty of this position is teaching, with secondary responsibilities of research and service. The teaching load is 3/3, with a mix of introductory and upper-level courses at the undergraduate level in UMaine's interdisciplinary Leadership Studies Minor. The minor consists of three core courses—Foundations of Leadership, Leadership Ethics, and Advanced Leadership Theory and Practice—as well as special topics courses, electives, and an internship/practicum course. Supervise internships, independent studies, and undergraduate theses. Advise students on their course of study within the minor and aid them in the registration process, which includes maintaining regular office hours. Maintain an active research program. Perform appropriate service, which includes but is not limited to, active participation in program development and implementation in Leadership Studies and the Cohen Institute, and representing these units in interactions with the larger University and community.

Qualifications: We prefer candidates with an earned doctorate in leadership studies, organizational leadership, organizational psychology, organizational behavior, political science, or a related field. Advanced ABD candidates may be considered for the position. We are particularly interested in candidates with a track record of teaching and research in leadership studies from an interdisciplinary, liberal arts perspective, as well as experience in active learning pedagogies, service learning, and community engagement. Additional requirements include record of or demonstrated potential for success in university-level teaching, assisting with program development, and advising and supervising student internships.

Application: Applicants should submit a letter of interest in the position, a current C.V., three letters of reference, at least one sample of research related to leadership studies, copies of graduate school transcript(s), and available teaching evaluations and course syllabi. Review of applications will begin March 17, 2017 and continue until the position is filled. Incomplete applications cannot be considered. Appropriate background checks will be required. Applicants should submit application materials electronically at <https://umaine.hiretouch.com>. Specific questions may be addressed to Richard Powell, Professor of Political Science and Director of the Cohen Institute: rpowell@maine.edu, 207-581-1795. Additional details about the Cohen Institute and the Leadership Studies Minor can be found at umaine.edu/cohen.

University of South Dakota

Rank: Chair & Odeen-Swanson Distinguished Professor of Political Science

Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Public Administration, Political Theory

The University of South Dakota invites applications and seeks nominations for Chair of the Department of Political Science and Director of the W.O Farber Center for Civic Leadership. The successful candidate must have a PhD in Political Science or closely related field with evidence of excellent teaching and a dynamic research agenda. The fields of expertise are open, though the ability to teach in American Politics, Public Administration and/or Political Theory would be welcome. Preference will be given to candidates who have some administrative experience and who have demonstrated the ability to connect with alumni and other external constituencies. Candidates with a strong academic record may also qualify for an appointment as the endowed Odeen-Swanson Distinguished Professor of Political Science.

The successful candidate will be expected to cultivate a broad range of alumni contacts, develop strong relationships with public and private sector partners throughout the state, region and nation, be effective at fundraising, lead by example as a strong scholar, teacher and mentor, and represent the interests of the Department at all levels of the University. The successful candidate will administer a diverse unit with three undergraduate majors (political science, criminal justice and international studies), five graduate programs (MA, MPA, MSA, EMPA and Ph.D.), and several minors. Several programs are online with additional programs being considered for online delivery. The Department has a long and deep tradition of mentoring students, which is reflected in a strong and attentive base of alumni. That tradition has also resulted in the Department being especially well-endowed with scholarships, travel awards, and endowed professorships. The Farber Fund enables our students to study abroad, pursue language immersions, take internships, and participate in a multitude of domestic & international study tours, competitions and conferences. This is a 12 month appointment. Salary is competitive. Anticipated start date is August 22, 2017, although an earlier start date will be considered.

Applications must be submitted online at <https://yourfuture.sdbor.edu> and should include 1) a cover letter explaining interest in the position; 2) curriculum vitae, and 3) contact information for four references. Additional information may be requested of finalists for the position. Review of applications will begin March 15, 2017 and continue until the position is filled.

Saint Anselm College

Rank: Endowed Jean Chair of American History and Government

Jean Chair of American History and Government

The History and Politics Departments at Saint Anselm College invite applications for the endowed Jean Chair of American History and Government. The Chair is named in honor of Joseph Jean, a New Hampshire businessman and philanthropist, and alumnus of the College, class of 1953. The committee will consider applications from advanced assistant professors through full professors, granting appointment with tenure to tenured faculty, and appointments on the tenure track to those without tenure.

The appointment will be made in either the History Department or Politics Department depending on the candidate's Ph.D. degree. The committee encourages applications from historians working on U.S. political or constitutional history and from political scientists working on American political development in an area other than political institutions. The committee also prefers scholars who take an interdisciplinary approach to their subject matter or could foster collaboration across these two departments.

The successful candidate will be expected to teach two courses per semester. These will include both existing department course offerings and new courses to be developed for the department in the candidate's area of expertise. Since a 2/2 teaching load constitutes a reduced annual teaching load, the endowed chair must demonstrate correspondingly higher levels of scholarly productivity and leadership in public outreach activities. Other duties include advising, curriculum development, and committee service.

Applicants must submit a letter of interest, curriculum vitae, evidence of teaching ability and research potential (samples of scholarship, articles or conference papers) and academic transcripts to the attention of Dr. Beth Salerno, History Department Chair, via the college website at www.anselm.edu/hr. Three letters of recommendation are required and should be submitted in PDF format via email to the department faculty assistant, Robin Allard, at rallard@anselm.edu. Inquiries can be made to Dr. Beth Salerno at bsalerno@anselm.edu or 603-641-7049. Review of applications and supporting materials will begin October 30, 2016 and continue until the position is filled.

Required Skills

Ph.D. and record of excellence in scholarship and teaching required.

Required Experience

Candidates need a minimum of four years full-time teaching experience, and candidates for associate or full professor should be widely recognized for their distinction and professional accomplishment.

Founded in 1889, Saint Anselm College is a Catholic, liberal arts college in the Benedictine tradition. The community includes approximately 2,000 students, 150 full-time faculty members and 380 full-time staff in addition to the monks of Saint Anselm Abbey.

Successful candidates will be able to assist the college to further its strategic goals for institution-wide diversity and inclusiveness.

Monmouth College

Rank: Assistant Professor American Politics

Specializations: African American Politics, Civil Rights & Liberties, Constitutional Law & Theory

Monmouth College, a selective, private, residential liberal arts college in Illinois invites applications for a tenure-track position in American Politics beginning July 2017. A Ph.D is required for this position but ABD candidates will be considered.

Candidates must show enthusiasm for interdisciplinary teaching and for participating in general education, including Monmouth's Integrated Studies Curriculum and advancing a growing Pre-Law Program. A commitment to the liberal arts and an appreciation for the small college learning environment is essential.

Located in the welcoming community of Monmouth, Illinois, the college is a member of the prestigious Associated Colleges of the Midwest. Following the adoption and implementation of a groundbreaking interdisciplinary general education curriculum and the continuation of a bold strategic plan entitled "Think Anew, Act Anew," the college is now prepared to move confidently forward as an innovator among liberal arts colleges. The college has invested $120 Million into campus facilities since 2002 and this year Money Magazine ranked Monmouth 28th out of 736 "Best Colleges" in the Most Affordable Private Colleges category. The Princeton Review named Monmouth a "Best in the Midwest" in its 2015 Best Colleges Survey.

Send letter of application, resume and the names and telephone numbers of three references to: Farhat Haq, Chair, Political Science Search Committee, Monmouth College by e-mail to: facultysearch@monmouthcollege.edu. ## American University

Rank: Associate Dean for Undergraduate Education

Associate Dean for Undergraduate Education
AY2016-17
School of Public Affairs
American University

American University's School of Public Affairs (SPA) invites applications from accomplished scholars for the position of associate dean for undergraduate education. This position includes a faculty appointment at the rank of (advanced) associate or full professor in the Government Department or the Department of Justice, Law & Criminology beginning June 1, 2017. Depending on qualifications, the appointee to this position may be recommended for tenure at the time of hiring. The position offers the unique professional, research, social, and cultural opportunities of a top-ranked school and university located in Washington, DC. In addition, the associate dean for undergraduate education will play a critical role in formulating school policy and be part of a dynamic leadership team.

The School of Public Affairs offers four undergraduate majors, four undergraduate minors, and three highly selective enrichment programs (SPA Leadership Program, Politics, Policy and Law Scholars, and SPA Honors). SPA has approximately 1300 engaged undergraduate students who are research focused and use DC as their laboratory. The associate dean for undergraduate education will provide leadership in the area of undergraduate education and will be responsible for handling all issues that arise concerning undergraduate students in the school. The associate dean directs the activities of the assistant director of recruitment and retention, four academic advisors, enrichment program directors, and serves as the school's Academic Integrity Officer. Duties will also include teaching one course a year in one of the School's degree programs.

American University is reshaping the composition and experience of its undergraduate student body. The University is committed to diversifying the student body in terms of racial/ethnic diversity, geographic diversity, and diversity of socioeconomic status. American University received a record number of undergraduate applications for Fall 2016, resulting in an admit rate of approximately 25 percent. The number of students with SPA undergraduate majors has increased over the past several years. American University is undertaking a multi-year initiative to reinvent the student experience through reimaging service delivery, a focus on student success, and modernization of the undergraduate curriculum. We are looking for an associate dean who will embrace the opportunity to participate in this initiative and shape the future of SPA's undergraduate programs.

Qualifications

Candidates must possess a distinguished record of scholarship in one of the academic fields encompassed by the school's undergraduate programs and meet American University's standards for appointment with tenure at the associate or full professor level. Preference will be given to candidates who have held leadership positions at the university, school, department or program level and who can also provide evidence of advancing their university's academic standing, scholarship, or research productivity.

Application Process

Salary and benefits are competitive. Review of applications will begin on September 16, 2016, and continue until the position is filled, subject to ongoing budgetary approval. Please submit applications via: <http://apply.interfolio.com/35978>. Include a cover letter, curriculum vita, statement of administrative experience and contact information for three references. Electronic submissions are preferred.

American University

Rank: Director, Center for Congressional and Presidential Studies and Associate or Full Professor in American Politics

Specializations: Electoral Behavior, Presidency, Congress

Position Announcement

Director, Center for Congressional and Presidential Studies and Associate or Full Professor in American Politics

Department of Government
School of Public Affairs
American University

The School of Public Affairs at American University invites applications for a faculty position at the rank of associate or full professor to serve as the Director of the Center for Congressional and Presidential Studies (CCPS) beginning August 1, 2017. The Director is responsible for developing and facilitating high-profile research projects and creating public programming that draws on the expertise of AU faculty and leading analysts from the Washington, DC community and beyond. The Director should ensure that CCPS contributes to the national dialogue about Congress, the Presidency, campaigns, and elections. The Director must secure external funding to support CCPS work and enhance the School of Public Affairs' prominence as a venue for high impact research and policy analysis.

Since its establishment in 1979, CCPS has facilitated collaborative research projects, organized hundreds of forums and conferences related to American politics, promoted curriculum development, and connected its work to policymakers, journalists, students, and academics who put research findings into practice. The new Director will be expected to continue that legacy and position CCPS to become even more influential.

Applicants should hold a doctoral degree in political science with a focus on American political institutions – Congress or the Presidency – and related subfields including campaigns and elections. We seek to recruit candidates who are theoretically sophisticated, methodologically rigorous, and have demonstrated success in externally funded research, high impact publications, and teaching. Depending on qualifications, the candidate will be hired at the rank of either Associate or Full Professor and will be suitable for tenure at the time of hiring.

Review of applications will begin on September 15, 2016 and will continue until the position is filled, subject to ongoing budgetary approval. Please submit applications via: <http://apply.interfolio.com/35010>. Include a cover letter, curriculum vita, statement of research interests, statement of vision for CCPS, and contact information for three references. Electronic submissions are preferred.

The Center for Congressional Presidential Studies has organized over 300 conferences and academic forums since its founding. The research focus of the Center has been on Congress and the presidency, U.S. elections and issues and policies facing the two institutions. The Center staff consists of full time and part-time affiliated faculty, graduate students, and an administrative staff member. See website: american.edu/spa/ccps for details on all Center videos, programs and publications. The Center publishes the refereed journal, Congress and the Presidency, since 1984. The Center has successfully solicited funding for its research, educational activities, and student scholarships since its founding and has sponsored over thirty visiting research fellows

COMPARATIVE POLITICS

Aarhus University

Rank: Postdoctoral position with focus on the psychology of political rumors and social media

Postdoctoral position with focus on the psychology of political rumors and social media, Department of Political Science, Aarhus University 894915

A postdoctoral position with focus on the psychology of political rumors and social media is open with Professor Michael Bang Petersen, director of the Politics and Evolution Lab (www.ps.au.dk/ponelab) housed at the Department of Political Science, Aarhus University.

The research project

The position is related to a project funded by the Aarhus University Research Foundation. The project is entitled "The Politics of Rumors in the Age of Social Media: Why, How and When Hostile Political Rumors Spread and Polarize" (a short description can be found <https://www.dropbox.com/s/nuhxrew406ik0yz/Project%20Overview%20-%20The%20Psychology%20of%20Rumors%20in%20Politics.pdf?dl=0> here). The project runs from 2017 to 2019. The focus of the advertised position is to take a leading role in working with programmers to build an experimental platform that mimics the flow of information on social media and, subsequently, participate in designing, running and analyzing experiments using this platform. Research will primarily be carried out collaboratively with Professor Michael Bang Petersen, but there will also to some extent be opportunities for pursuing independent work within the focus of the project. The project includes funding for research assistants, data collection, traveling and workshops. A second postdoc will join the project at a later stage.

Your qualifications

Applicants are expected to hold – or be close to completing – a PhD in relevant areas within political psychology, social psychology or evolutionary psychology. In addition to interest in conducting collaborative research within the focus area of the project, applicants must demonstrate the ability to conduct state-of-the-art research on social behavior and attitudes, possess strong methodological skills within the domain of survey and/or laboratory experiments, excellent command of spoken and written English, and preferably experience with publishing in international, peer-reviewed journals.

The postdoc position is expected to last two years beginning September 1, 2017. In addition to the outlined research tasks, the position entails teaching equivalent to one course per year. Depending on the applicant's prior teaching experience and the need for the applicant's teaching capacity in the relevant years, a one-year extension in return for additional teaching is negotiable. This extension will be decided by the Department Chair no later than one year after employment.

Who we are

The Department of Political Science is one of the six departments at <http://bss.au.dk/en/Aarhus> BSS one of the four faculties at Aarhus University. Aarhus BSS unites the business and social science-related research fields and brings them closer together to reflect the close relationship between society and the business community. As part of a Top 100 university, Aarhus BSS – and specifically the Department of Political Science – has achieved the distinguished AACSB and AMBA accreditations.

At the Department of Political Science, we emphasise a dynamic and flexible research and teaching profile characterised by pluralism and openness. With around 90 academic staff members and 40 PhD students, we offer a lively and ambitious research and teaching environment.

The research carried out at the department not only covers a variety of political science disciplines, but also represents a variety of methodological approaches. This not only enables us to focus on new problem areas as they appear on the national and international political arenas, but also allows us to contribute actively to the development of the discipline. We also emphasise communicating our research results to the political-administrative system and to the public in general.

GIGA German Institute of Global and Area Studies

Rank: Senior Research Fellow / Research Fellow

Subfield(s): Comparative Politics, International Relations, Methodology

The GIGA German Institute of Global and Area Studies / Leibniz-Institut für Globale und Regionale Studien is an independent social-science research institute based in Hamburg. It analyses political, social and economic developments in Africa, Asia, Latin America and the Middle East, and links this knowledge to questions of global significance. It combines region-specific analysis with innovative comparative research on accountability and participation, peace and security, growth and development, and power and ideas. The GIGA seeks to appoint a Senior Research Fellow / Research Fellow.

Applications are invited for a full-time tenured / tenure-track position, preferably starting 1 January 2018. Remuneration (TV-AVH / TVöD EG14/13) and tenure status will be commensurate with experience, qualifications, and tasks.

The successful candidate will:

- conduct excellent research fitting the GIGA's research agenda and with impact in his/her field
- be an active member of one Regional Institute of the GIGA and at least one Research Programme
- pursue a targeted publication strategy, acquire third-party funding, and conduct research-based knowledge transfer

Your profile:

- Doctorate in political science, economics, or a cognate discipline
- Profound knowledge of political, economic, and/or social developments in countries of one or more of the following world regions: Africa, Asia, Latin America, Middle East and fit with the GIGA's research agenda
- Excellent academic record, demonstrated by at least three publications in renowned peer-reviewed journals and/or leading publishing houses within four years preceding the application
- Successful record in third-party funding acquisition, demonstrated by at least one approved research proposal of substantial size in a competitive procedure, with the funding decision taken within four years preceding the application
- Additional achievements (such as management experience, contributions to knowledge transfer, editorial know-how)
- English-language proficiency; additional language skills relevant to one or more of the regions researched at the GIGA are an asset

In the German context, academic tenure refers to a permanent position until the incumbent retires (or leaves the institution). The tenure-track position is designed for further professional qualification as defined in §2 WissZeitVG (Academic Fixed-Term Contract Act) and includes a tenure option after successful performance evaluation. Part-time options will be considered, if so desired by the successful candidate. The reconciliation of work and family life is of great importance to the institute. The GIGA promotes gender equality and actively encourages applications from women. Among equally qualified applicants, women will receive preferential consideration in those areas in which they are underrepresented.

Please fill out the GIGA application form (found at www.giga-hamburg.de/en/vacancies) and send it with your full application (Ref.-No. GIGA-17-07) including relevant supporting documentation (cover letter, CV, a list of publications [including submitted papers], a list of grants, certificates, names of two referees, a sample publication and a concept for your future re-search in the framework of the GIGA's overall approach) to:

University of Central Florida

Rank: Assistant/Associate/Full Professor in Coastal Environmental Policy/Coastal Political Geography

Applicants for a position in Coastal Environmental Policy or Coastal Political Geography, open rank, must have a Ph.D. from an accredited institution in political science, geography, or a related discipline, such as environmental policy/political geography or environmental anthropology/sociology. Preference will be given to applicants who have expertise in public policy related to coastal environments and/or experience in interdisciplinary, environmental social sciences focusing on public policy and coastal ecology. The anticipated starting date is flexible and can be as early as August 2017.

The successful applicant will be expected to bring expertise in environmental policy and politics to an interdisciplinary team in order to advance understanding of the social-ecological systems in coastal areas. They must demonstrate a strong commitment to interdisciplinary research and publication; a commitment to interdisciplinary and collaborative research, have demonstrated an ability to perform high-impact research, and be able to develop a program that will lead to strong extramurally-funded research. The successful candidate will also have, or be able to establish, a strong teaching record with the ability to teach and mentor students at both graduate and undergraduate levels.

We are bringing together a core group of faculty who work across traditional research boundaries, or are working in transdisciplinary fields, in the broad interdisciplinary area of Sustainable Coastal Systems (<http://ucf.edu/research/coastalsystems>). This new hire will join current cluster faculty, representing twelve departments and seven colleges, to lead a world-class effort to understand and assess natural and human-related impacts to coastal ecosystem health, restoration, sustainability, and mitigation; and ultimately to characterize and integrate physical, chemical, biological, and socio-economic processes impacting coastal communities and ecosystems. This individual will be expected to strengthen both their tenure home department as well as the Sustainable Coastal Systems cluster.

Candidates must apply online at <http://www.jobswithucf.com/postings/46716> (Position #38660) and attach the following materials: a cover letter, curriculum vitae, teaching statement, research statement, and contact information for three professional references. In the cover letter candidates should address their background in their discipline and should identify the department(s) for their potential tenure home. In the research statement candidates should include descriptions of any history of interdisciplinary research collaborations and how their current and future research can contribute to the cluster's overall interdisciplinary objectives.

The search committee will review applications on an ongoing basis until the position is filled.

The University of Central Florida, with more than 63,000 students, has grown in quality, diversity, and reputation in its first 50 years and is committed to being inclusive and diverse by building a faculty who are a reflection of the students they teach. For more information about this position please contact the Sustainable Coastal Systems Cluster search committee Chair, Dr. Graham Worthy at CoastalCluster@ucf.edu

University of Barcelona

Rank: Post-doctoral Fellowship on Comparative Politics 2017-18

Specializations: Advanced Industrial Societies, Political Economy, Quantitative Methods

The Institutions and Political Economy Research Group (located in the School of Economics at the University of Barcelona) seeks to fill up to three post-doctoral fellowships on comparative politics linked to an European Research Council-financed five-year research project on a cross-national historical comparison of electoral systems, electoral behavior and party systems in advanced democracies. The Principal Investigator is Professor Carles Boix and includes scientific collaboration with major centers of research in Europe and the United States.

The Principal Investigator is looking for young political scientists, historians, sociologists or economists – preferably with strong quantitative skills. The candidates must be in possession of the PhD by September 30, 2017. The position will have a duration of 1 year (with a possible one-year renewal for two consecutive years). The annual stipend, commensurate with those for postdoctoral researchers in Spain, will be of 34.000-37.500 euros depending on the researcher's qualifications.

The selected postdoctoral fellows will be required to be in residence for the entire 2017-18 academic year, starting October 1.

The research program is focused on the emergence of mass parties, the choice of electoral institutions, and the final crystallization of different party systems in Europe and North America during the transition to mass democracy (1850-1940). The project will combine innovative statistical, historical and geocoding techniques to explain the formation of diverse party systems as the outcome of political choices made at particular critical junctures that involved the creation of non-socialist and socialist parties, the mobilization of their corresponding electorates, and the strategic response of political elites (often through the manipulation of electoral laws and sometimes through the creation of new electoral coalitions).

Interested candidates may contact the principal investigator for more details by email: cboix@princeton.edu.

Candidates for the positions should submit: a cover letter, CV, a three-to-five page description of their research accomplishments and interests, one paper and the name of two references. All applications should be submitted before March 15 to: Ms. Gina Xifra, Institutions and Political Economy Research Group, University of Barcelona, ginaxifra@ub.edu

High Point University

Rank: Visiting Assistant Professor

Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Comparative Politics, International Relations

High Point University invites applications for a one-year (9-month) appointment in political science to begin in August 2017. We are open with respect to sub-field specialization, but the successful applicant must be prepared to teach introductory American politics. The teaching load for a visiting assistant professor is three courses each semester. This line may be renewable, contingent on excellent performance, departmental staffing and programmatic needs, and continued administrative approval.

Competitive candidates will demonstrate a strong commitment to teaching and mentoring undergraduate students in a liberal arts setting. We prefer candidates who will have a Ph.D. completed by August 2017, but will consider otherwise competitive ABD applicants for appointment at the instructor level (which would entail teaching 4 courses each semester).

A review of applicants will begin immediately and continue until the position is filled. Application instructions are available at: https://highpoint.wd1.myworkdayjobs.com/en-US/HighPoint/job/High-Point-University/Visiting-Assistant-Professor-of-Political-Science\_R0000120

For more information regarding this position, please contact Dr. Alixandra Yanus at ayanus@highpoint.edu. Information on our department can be viewed at: <http://www.highpoint.edu/politicalscience/>

To apply, candidates will need to apply on-line, uploading their C.V. and a letter of interest that includes an overview of their teaching and scholarly interests. It will be helpful if applicants will identify in their letters any of our existing courses that align closely with these interests. After an initial screening, some candidates will be asked to provide letters of reference, copies of graduate transcripts, writing samples, and evidence of teaching effectiveness.

High Point University is located in the North Carolina's Piedmont Triad, a metropolitan area with more than 1.5 million people. The university is a selective private liberal arts college that enrolls approximately 4,500 students from across the country and dozens of foreign countries. The political science faculty offers small classes and excellent instruction from an accessible, caring group of teacher-scholars. The university is an Equal Opportunity Employer.

Catholic University of America

Rank: Assistant Professor. Priority: Comparative Politics or IR.

Other: Political Theory or Open

Subfield(s): Comparative Politics, Political Theory, Other

Specializations: International Political Economy, Middle East, Post Communist Europe

The Department of Politics at the Catholic University of America invites applications for a tenure-track assistant professor position to begin in August 2017. Applicants at the associate rank may also be considered. While we encourage applications by candidates in any field, our priority is to recruit in World Politics, which comprises Comparative Politics and International Relations. Located in the nation's capital, the Department of Politics offers a popular undergraduate major and a distinguished MA and PhD program.

We seek candidates who understand, are enthusiastic about, and will make a significant contribution to the mission of the University, which reads as follows: "As the national university of the Catholic Church in the United States, founded and sponsored by the bishops of the country with the approval of the Holy See, The Catholic University of America is committed to being a comprehensive Catholic and American institution of higher learning, faithful to the teachings of Jesus Christ as handed on by the Church. Dedicated to advancing the dialogue between faith and reason, The Catholic University of America seeks to discover and impart the truth through excellence in teaching and research, all in service to the Church, the nation and the world."

Expertise in a regional area such as Latin America, the Middle East or Eastern Europe is a plus. Security studies and foreign policy are traditional strengths of the department. Beyond these fields, areas of interest include but are not limited to political theory and constitutionalism. We seek applicants who can enhance the historical, institutional and theoretical strengths of the department. Candidates who can cross field and disciplinary lines and articulate the relevance of ethical and religious concerns in their areas of specialty are particularly attractive.

Applicants should send a letter of interest, a C.V., and a writing sample to

pol-search@cua.edu and arrange for the submission of graduate transcripts and three letters of reference. In addition, applicants are asked to submit a one- to two-page statement indicating how their research, teaching, and service will make a distinctive contribution to our University's mission and to the vision of Catholic education outlined in the Apostolic Constitution on Catholic Universities Ex Corde Ecclesiae, which can be found here: http://w2.vatican.va/content/john-paul-ii/en/apost\_constitutions/documents/hf\_jp-ii\_apc\_15081990\_ex-corde-ecclesiae.html .

Questions about the position may be addressed to Dr. Dennis Coyle, department chair, at coyle@cua.edu . Review of applications will begin immediately and continue until the position is filled. The University will perform background checks on all new faculty hires prior to making the final offer of employment. The Catholic University of America is an Equal Opportunity Employer.

University of Pittsburgh

Rank: William S. Dietrich Endowed Chair in Political Science

Subfield(s): Other, Comparative Politics, International Relations

The Department of Political Science at the University of Pittsburgh invites applications from nationally prominent scholars to fill the inaugural William S. Dietrich II Endowed Chair in Political Science, with appointment to begin in the 2017-18 academic year, pending budgetary approval. The Chair is named in honor of the late Dr. William S. Dietrich II, a former chairman of the University's Board of Trustees who received his Ph.D. from the Department in 1984.

In filling this chair, and in keeping with the interests of Dr. Dietrich, the Department seeks candidates with extraordinary credentials in research, teaching, and mentorship in the fields of international relations or comparative politics, or whose interests cut across these and possibly other disciplinary subfields.

The Political Science Department at the University of Pittsburgh currently consists of 25 tenure stream faculty members with vibrant and varied research agendas. The Department's NRC ranking has improved dramatically over the past decade, and presently ranks between 20th and 30th among Ph.D. granting departments. It has long fostered collegiality and a culture of collaboration among faculty and graduate students. The Department benefits from numerous synergies with other units on campus, including the University Center for International Studies, a world renowned, multidisciplinary institute housing centers for area studies and for topical specializations in international studies, and the Graduate School of Public and International Affairs, a public administration and public policy school emphasizing international relations and political development. The City of Pittsburgh frequently tops "most livable city" rankings thanks to its numerous social and cultural offerings and low cost of living.

Please submit a detailed cover letter and C.V. electronically at <https://facultysearch.as.pitt.edu/apply/index/MTU3>. Additional information may be requested at a later date. Review of applications will begin on September 30, 2016 and will continue until the position is filled. ## INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS

GIGA German Institute of Global and Area Studies

Rank: Senior Research Fellow / Research Fellow

Subfield(s): Comparative Politics, International Relations, Methodology

The GIGA German Institute of Global and Area Studies / Leibniz-Institut für Globale und Regionale Studien is an independent social-science research institute based in Hamburg. It analyses political, social and economic developments in Africa, Asia, Latin America and the Middle East, and links this knowledge to questions of global significance. It combines region-specific analysis with innovative comparative research on accountability and participation, peace and security, growth and development, and power and ideas. The GIGA seeks to appoint a Senior Research Fellow / Research Fellow.

Applications are invited for a full-time tenured / tenure-track position, preferably starting 1 January 2018. Remuneration (TV-AVH / TVöD EG14/13) and tenure status will be commensurate with experience, qualifications, and tasks.

The successful candidate will:

- conduct excellent research fitting the GIGA's research agenda and with impact in his/her field
- be an active member of one Regional Institute of the GIGA and at least one Research Programme
- pursue a targeted publication strategy, acquire third-party funding, and conduct research-based knowledge transfer

Your profile:

- Doctorate in political science, economics, or a cognate discipline
- Profound knowledge of political, economic, and/or social developments in countries of one or more of the following world regions: Africa, Asia, Latin America, Middle East and fit with the GIGA's research agenda
- Excellent academic record, demonstrated by at least three publications in renowned peer-reviewed journals and/or leading publishing houses within four years preceding the application

- Successful record in third-party funding acquisition, demonstrated by at least one approved research proposal of substantial size in a competitive procedure, with the funding decision taken within four years preceding the application
- Additional achievements (such as management experience, contributions to knowledge transfer, editorial know-how)
- English-language proficiency; additional language skills relevant to one or more of the regions researched at the GIGA are an asset

In the German context, academic tenure refers to a permanent position until the incumbent retires (or leaves the institution). The tenure-track position is designed for further professional qualification as defined in §2 WissZeitVG (Academic Fixed-Term Contract Act) and includes a tenure option after successful performance evaluation. Part-time options will be considered, if so desired by the successful candidate. The reconciliation of work and family life is of great importance to the institute. The GIGA promotes gender equality and actively encourages applications from women. Among equally qualified applicants, women will receive preferential consideration in those areas in which they are underrepresented.

Please fill out the GIGA application form (found at www.giga-hamburg.de/en/vacancies) and send it with your full application (Ref. No. GIGA-17-07) including relevant supporting documentation (cover letter, CV, a list of publications [including submitted papers], a list of grants, certificates, names of two referees, a sample publication and a concept for your future research in the framework of the GIGA's overall approach) to:

Specializations: American Politics, Religion & Politics, Political Psychology

The Institute for Religion, Culture and Public Life (IRCPL) at Columbia University invites applications for a postdoctoral scholar position, for the 2017-2018 academic year. Renewal for the 2018-2019 academic year is possible, contingent on satisfactory performance and funding. The position start date is September 1st, 2017.

IRCPL supports academic research, teaching, and scholarship on the study of religion, culture, and social difference at Columbia University.

In addition, it convenes academic conferences, public forums, and collaborative programming to support and extend academic and scholarly understanding of these topics, and to disseminate and distribute such new understandings to broader publics and communities.

Candidates must have received the PhD between August 31st, 2015 and August 31st, 2017 in a discipline engaged with the interdisciplinary study of religion. The Institute is particularly interested in candidates whose research involves critical, interpretive, historical, and genealogical approaches that challenge traditional disciplinary boundaries and who are studying religion as it relates to media, populist/nationalist movements, and/or political discourse.

Under the mentorship of an IRCPL faculty member, postdoctoral research scholars are expected to develop and make progress on a collaborative research project and participate in the intellectual life of IRCPL and Columbia University. He or she may be asked to teach one or two classes during the academic year.

This is a full time salaried position with benefits. Review of applications will begin on April 10th, 2017 and will continue until the position is filled. All applications must be submitted through Columbia University's online Recruitment of Academic Personnel System (RAPS) and must include:

1. Cover Letter: Briefly situate your work in relation to the Institute and one or more of the listed thematic areas, identify a proposed departmental affiliation for teaching, and explain why Columbia University is a particularly good place to pursue your research.
2. Curriculum Vitae.
3. Dissertation Abstract: A two-page summary of your dissertation.
4. Teaching Statement (to be submitted as Other Document 1): Titles and short descriptions (one or two paragraphs each) of at least two undergraduate courses that you could teach under the auspices of your proposed departmental affiliation. Please note that we are not requesting a statement of teaching philosophy or full syllabi at this point.
5. Writing Sample: Only one sample equivalent to a single journal article, book chapter, or dissertation chapter. The writing sample may be published or unpublished. It must be in English. The maximum length is 50 pages.
6. Recommendations: Two academic references familiar with your research and work.

Columbia is an Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action employer.

PhD or equivalent and distinction in the field. The PhD need not be in religion. Applications are welcome from a broad range of disciplines (religion, political science, sociology, Arab studies, history, etc).

All applications must be made through Columbia University's online Recruitment of Academic Personnel System (RAPS).

RAPS will accommodate uploads of maximum two (2) megabytes in size.

Before uploading documents, applicants first will be asked to input a name and valid email address for each reference provider. The application to this position requires a minimum of two (2) reference letters. The applicant may enable RAPS to generate an automatic email to the reference provider, requesting a letter of reference and offering a secure link to the RAPS website where a letter can be uploaded quickly and easily.

After completing the "Provide References" screens, the applicant will come to the "Attach Documents" screen and be asked to upload into RAPS the required application materials listed above. The completion of this application process in RAPS is indicated by a confirmation number, which the applicant should retain.

Candidates must have a PhD or equivalent degree. The main criteria for selection are academic and teaching excellence. The successful candidate will provide evidence of high quality scholarly output that demonstrates potential for independent research leading to peer assessed publications and the securing of external research funding, as well as strong potential for outstanding teaching contributions at both the undergraduate and graduate levels, and an ongoing commitment to academic and pedagogical excellence in support of the department's programs. Candidates must provide evidence of an ability to work collaboratively in an interdisciplinary and student-centred environment. The successful candidate will be required to make substantive contributions through service to the department, the Faculty, the University, and/or the broader community. Salary will be commensurate with qualifications and experience.

The University invites applications from all qualified individuals. Queen's is committed to employment equity and diversity in the workplace and welcomes applications from women, visible minorities, Aboriginal peoples, persons with disabilities, and LGBTQ persons. All qualified candidates are encouraged to apply; however, in accordance with Canadian immigration requirements, Canadian citizens and permanent residents of Canada will be given priority.

To comply with federal laws, the University is obliged to gather statistical information as to how many applicants for each job vacancy are Canadian citizens / permanent residents of Canada. Applicants need not identify their country of origin or citizenship; however, all applications must include one of the following statements: "I am a Canadian citizen / permanent resident of Canada"; OR, "I am not a Canadian citizen / permanent resident of Canada". Applications that do not include this information will be deemed incomplete.

A complete application consists of:

- a cover letter (including one of the two statements regarding Canadian citizenship / permanent resident status specified in the previous paragraph);
- a current Curriculum Vitae (including a list of publications);
- a statement of research interests;
- a statement of teaching interests and experience (including teaching outlines and evaluations if available); and,
- Three letters of reference to be sent directly to Dr. Zsuzsa Csergo, Department Head at polshead@queensu.ca.

The deadline for applications is April 15, 2017. Applicants are encouraged to send all documents in their application package electronically as PDFs to Barb Murphy at barb.murphy@queensu.ca, although hard copy applications may be submitted to:

Tufts University

Rank: Post-doctoral Fellow - Center for Strategic Studies

Specializations: Defense, International Security, Foreign Policy

Center for Strategic Studies

Post-doctoral Fellows Program

The Center for Strategic Studies (CSS) at Tufts University's Fletcher School of Law and Diplomacy invites applications for its inaugural postdoctoral fellowship program for the 2017-2018 academic year. Established in 2017, CSS is dedicated to producing policy-relevant research on strategy, international politics, and US foreign policy. CSS serves as a hub for students, faculty, scholars and practitioners to engage with one another in a supportive, collaborative, and collegial environment. Its mission is to educate future scholars and practitioners and generate cutting-edge scholarly analysis that broadens the U.S. foreign policy debate, exploring alternative strategies that: (1) enhances US security, sovereignty, prosperity, and territory; (2) respects the realities and complexities of international conflict; including human territoriality, legitimacy, and the ethnic, cultural, and religious differences of peoples; and (3) questions the utility of military intervention given its potential perils and long-term unintended consequences; including but not limited to, the loss of life, civil liberties, and resources. CSS works closely with the Security Studies Program.

CSS is interdisciplinary; it therefore welcomes applications from anthropology, economics, history, law, political science, natural sciences, and other related disciplines.

This is a residential fellowship—fellows are expected to be on campus for the entirety of the fellowship period, which is September 1, 2017–June 30, 2018. While Fellows will spend most of their time on their own research, they are also expected to participate in the Center's programming, including presenting in research seminars, attending conferences, workshops, and center activities. By the end of their term fellows are expected to complete a significant piece of research and a shorter policy-relevant paper that will be published as part of the CSS's White Paper series.

Fellows will be provided with a $47,484 stipend, medical benefits, office space, and a computer. As members of the Tufts Fletcher community they will have access to library system and other facilities of the University. Although only a few full fellowships are available, CSS encourages applicants to apply for other sources of funding as CSS might be able to provide partial and non-stipendary appointments. Applicants should therefore indicate their needed level of support. Tufts University is an Affirmative Action/Equal Opportunity employer. We are committed to increasing the diversity of our community. Members of under-represented groups are strongly encouraged to apply.

Applications are due March 22, 2017, noon EST.

Application materials include: a cover letter, research proposal (no more than five pages), C.V., one writing sample (no more than 12,000 words); a list of three recommenders (who should submit their letters directly). These materials should be submitted to css-postdoc@tufts.edu

Tufts University

Rank: Visiting Assistant Professor - Center for Strategic Studies

Specializations: Defense, International Security, Foreign Policy

Visiting Assistant Professor

Tufts University's Fletcher School of Law and Diplomacy, in coordination with its newly-established Center for Strategic Studies (CSS), invites applications for a two-year visiting assistant professor starting September 2017.

We prefer a candidate whose teaching and research interests covers international security, strategy and/or US foreign and diplomatic policy. This is a position at the rank of visiting assistant professor (non-tenured), beginning in September 2017. It is a two-year appointment. The successful candidate will be responsible for teaching, research, and supervising graduate student research, and will contribute to various faculty service responsibilities at The Fletcher School and CSS.

The Fletcher School's faculty is multi-disciplinary with a focus on preparing tomorrow's leaders with a global perspective. The School undertakes research and prepares masters and doctoral students to use the latest political, business, economic, and legal thinking, among others, to generate pragmatic policies or make executive decisions that will successfully shape global events. In addition to a developed research program, the ideal candidate will have policy experience, as well as a background teaching in interdisciplinary programs.

The appointee will be affiliated with CSS and be expected to participate in the Center's activities. Established in 2017, CSS is dedicated to producing policy-relevant research on strategy, international politics, and US foreign policy. CSS serves as a hub for students, faculty, scholars and practitioners to engage with one another in a supportive, collaborative, and collegial environment. Its mission is to educate future scholars and practitioners and generate cutting-edge scholarly analysis that broadens the U.S. foreign policy debate, exploring alternative strategies that: (1) secure America's safety, sovereignty, prosperity, and territory; (2) respects the realities and complexities of international conflict, including human territoriality, legitimacy, and the ethnic, cultural, and religious differences of peoples; and (3) questions the necessity of military intervention given its potential perils and long-term unintended consequences, including but not limited to, the loss of life, civil liberties, and resources. CSS works closely with the Fletcher School's Security Studies Program.

Tufts University is an Equal Opportunity/ Affirmative Action Employer. We are committed to increasing the diversity of our faculty and staff and fostering their success when hired. Members of underrepresented groups are welcome and strongly encouraged to apply.

Review of applications will begin March 21, 2017 and will continue until the position is filled.

Application materials include: a cover letter, 1-2 page research statement, 1-2 page teaching statement, sample syllabus, teaching evaluations (if available, if not then other evidence of teaching effectiveness), and 3 confidential letters of recommendation. ### University of Oxford

Rank: Post-doctoral Research Fellow -The Changing Character of Conflict Platform: Understanding, Tracing and Forecasting Change across Time, Space and Cultures

Specializations: Quantitative Methods, Conflict Processes, Latin American

The Department of Politics and International Relations at the University of Oxford is looking for a Post-doctoral Research Fellow to work on an exciting new project directed by Dr Annette Idler in collaboration with Dr Robert Johnson and Prof Peter Wilson, and supported by the Arts and Humanities Research Council (AHRC).

The project “The Changing Character of Conflict Platform: Understanding, Tracing and Forecasting Change across Time, Space and Cultures” aims to produce a comprehensive knowledge platform on how and when armed conflict changes, with a view to enabling governments and international organisations to adapt their strategies and policies to address ongoing and prevent future conflict.

The successful candidate will be expected to undertake quantitative research both independently and jointly with the Project Director and the project team, and in addition s/he will be expected to participate fully in the research life of the Department and the Changing Character of War (CCW) Programme.

The post holder’s duties will include statistical analysis, model development, and the creation of interactive data visualisations. Applicants should therefore have advanced skills in research design and quantitative analysis, with excellent skills in web technologies such as JavaScript and html. They should have demonstrable ability to use advanced data analysis software. The successful candidate will hold a doctorate in Statistics, Economics and/or Political Science, or be close to completion of a PhD in a relevant subject. Experience in engaging with external stakeholders, including governments, international organisations and think tanks, is highly desirable.

The duties of the Post-doctoral Research Fellow will also include assisting the Project Director and the research team in the academic and practical organisation of two conferences on the Changing Character of Conflict Platform, to be held in Oxford in September 2018 and September 2020.

This post is offered on a full-time basis, for a fixed-term period until 30 April 2020, to commence 1 May 2017, or as soon as possible thereafter. Further duties and skills required are described in more detail in the further particulars.

Please direct enquiries about the role to Dr Annette Idler in the Politics and International Relations Department (annette.idler@politics.ox.ac.uk).

To apply for this role and for further details, please follow the link: <http://www.politics.ox.ac.uk/vacancies-and-jobs.html>.

Applications for this vacancy are to be made online, quoting reference 127405.

Closing date for applications is noon (UK time) on Monday 3 April 2017.

High Point University

Rank: Visiting Assistant Professor

Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Comparative Politics, International Relations

High Point University invites applications for a one-year (9-month) appointment in political science to begin in August 2017. We are open with respect to sub-field specialization, but the successful applicant must be prepared to teach introductory American politics. The teaching load for a visiting assistant professor is three courses each semester. This line may be renewable, contingent on excellent performance, departmental staffing and programmatic needs, and continued administrative approval.

Competitive candidates will demonstrate a strong commitment to teaching and mentoring undergraduate students in a liberal arts setting. We prefer candidates who will have a Ph.D. completed by August 2017, but will consider otherwise competitive ABD applicants for appointment at the instructor level (which would entail teaching 4 courses each semester).

A review of applicants will begin immediately and continue until the position is filled. Application instructions are available at:

https://highpoint.wd1.myworkdayjobs.com/en-US/HighPoint/job/High-Point-University/Visiting-Assistant-Professor-of-Political-Science\_R0000120

For more information regarding this position, please contact Dr. Alixandra Yanus at ayanus@highpoint.edu. Information on our department can be viewed at: <http://www.highpoint.edu/politicalscience/>

To apply, candidates will need to apply on-line, uploading their C.V. and a letter of interest that includes an overview of their teaching and scholarly interests. It will be helpful if applicants will identify in their letters any of our existing courses that align closely with these interests. After an initial screening, some candidates will be asked to provide letters of reference, copies of graduate transcripts, writing samples, and evidence of teaching effectiveness.

High Point University is located in the North Carolina's Piedmont Triad, a metropolitan area with more than 1.5 million people. The university is a selective private liberal arts college that enrolls approximately 4,500 students from across the country and dozens of foreign countries. The political science faculty offers small classes and excellent instruction from an accessible, caring group of teacher-scholars. The university is an Equal Opportunity Employer.

University of Georgia

Rank: Lecturer

The Department of International Affairs at the University of Georgia invites applications for two full time lecturer positions to begin in the fall semester of 2017. These are nine month academic year appointments that are renewable on an annual basis for up to six years. The successful candidates are expected to teach 8 courses per year and to have teaching experience in the fields of international relations or comparative politics. The candidates should be able to teach introductory courses in the fields of international relations and comparative politics as well as offer upper division courses that are specific to the expertise of the candidates. A minimum of one year of teaching experience required. A Ph.D. or near-completed PhD in political science is required at the time of hiring. If still ABD, the Ph.D. requirement will have to be completed by June 30, 2017.

Prospective candidates should submit the following in electronic form: a cover letter, a letter of interest describing their teaching philosophy, a curriculum vita, teaching evaluations, original transcripts, and three letters of recommendation in electronic form to the UGA Faculty Job site at <http://facultyjobs.uga.edu/postings/1857>. ### Johns Hopkins University

Rank: Assistant Professor of International Relations, Tenure-Track (Bologna, Italy)

Specializations: International Law & Organizations, International Security, Conflict Processes

School Background:

Founded in 1943 and a Johns Hopkins division since 1950, The Paul H. Nitze School of Advanced International Studies of the Johns Hopkins University (SAIS) has been educating global leaders for more than 70 years. As a highly selective graduate institution with a distinguished faculty, SAIS consistently ranks as one of the top schools of international relations in the world. SAIS was founded to provide a practical approach to training students in international leadership and foreign relations, and to provide mid-career educational opportunities for those already working in related fields. To learn more about SAIS, visit www.sais-jhu.edu.

Position:

SAIS is seeking to appoint a full-time, tenure-track, assistant professor in international relations (IR). Candidates who combine their work in international relations with an interest in international security would have an advantage; candidates with an interest in international law, conflict management, international development, or the foreign policy of the United States are also encouraged to apply. Candidates should be able to teach an introductory course in IR theory at the graduate level.

The position is located at the SAIS Europe campus in Bologna, Italy. The goal is to fill the position with an appointment starting on or soon after July 1, 2017. Interviews will be held in Bologna, Italy.

Qualifications:

A Ph.D. awarded by June 2017 will be a condition for employment. The ideal applicant will have strong academic credentials and a commitment to improve public policy. A record of excellence in teaching and publication record would be a distinct advantage.

Application:

Electronic submissions are preferred. A letter of application, curriculum vitae, and the names and contact details for three people who can provide letters of reference should be submitted to:

SAISEuropeIRSearch@jhu.edu
Or send to
SAIS Europe International Relations Search Committee

School of Advanced International Studies
The Johns Hopkins University
Via Belmeloro, 11
40126 Bologna, ITALY

Applications will be reviewed beginning February 15, 2017 and will be accepted until a final decision is made. Inquiries may be made to Professor Erik Jones (erik.jones@jhu.edu).

EEO Statement:

Johns Hopkins University is an equal opportunity/affirmative action employer committed to recruiting, supporting and fostering a diverse community of outstanding faculty, staff and students. All applicants who share this goal are encouraged to apply.

University of South Alabama

Rank: Chair of the Department

Subfield(s): Administration, International Relations, Public Administration

Specializations: Foreign Policy, Criminal Justice, Health Care

The Department of Political Science & Criminal Justice at the University of South Alabama invites applications for the position of Department Chair to begin August 15, 2017. The department offers undergraduate degrees in Political Science and Criminal Justice as well as a Master's in Public Administration. Highly qualified Associate and Full Professors with a Ph.D. in Political Science, Criminal Justice, or a closely related discipline from an accredited university will be considered for this position.

The ideal candidate will be an accomplished scholar, committed to excellence in research and teaching, have exceptional organizational and interpersonal skills, and possess the vision to lead a growing department. The abilities to collaborate effectively and advocate for program faculty and students are essential. The ideal candidate will have demonstrated administrative experience, but exceptional candidates lacking such experience who have a strong desire to transition to an administrative role are also encouraged to apply.

Applicants should apply at the following link and be prepared to attach a letter of application, a one-page statement of research interests, a brief description of teaching philosophy and proficiencies, a summary statement of leadership and administrative skills, current Curriculum Vitae, names of five references, and a sample of scholarly work. <https://www.governmentjobs.com/careers/usouthal/jobs/1588869/chair-and-assoc-or-full-professor> Upon request, applicants will arrange to have official transcripts and three letters of recommendation sent to the Chair of the Search Committee. Review of applications will begin December 12, 2016, and will continue until the position is filled. Information: <http://www.southalabama.edu/colleges/artsandsci/poliscie/jobs.html>

The position of Chair is a 12-month appointment. The ideal candidate will demonstrate the ability to contribute to existing programs and help develop new offerings. An appreciation for mixed methodology is preferred. The ideal candidate will provide transparency in budget and scheduling decisions and be able to highlight faculty and student successes, advocate for program faculty at the college and university levels, seek to increase faculty, majors, and department activities, and mentor junior faculty for success in tenure and promotion and mentor associate professors for promotion to full professor.

The Department of Political Science & Criminal Justice has 10 full-time faculty and more than 300 undergraduate majors and 40 graduate students. The department offers courses for four interdisciplinary programs within the College of Arts and Sciences: African American Studies, Forensic Science, Gender Studies, and International Studies. The department is also home to the USA Polling Group, a survey research center with a 10 station CATI lab that works with a variety of internal and external clients. Additionally, the department has a sizeable Masters in Public Administration (MPA) program and an active student body.

If you have questions about this position, the department, the University, or the area, please contact the Chair of the Search Committee, Elise Labbé-Coldsmith, at ELabbe@southalabama.edu.

University of Pittsburgh

Rank: William S. Dietrich Endowed Chair in Political Science

Subfield(s): Other, Comparative Politics, International Relations

The Department of Political Science at the University of Pittsburgh invites applications from nationally prominent scholars to fill the inaugural William S. Dietrich II Endowed Chair in Political Science, with appointment to begin in the 2017-18 academic year, pending budgetary approval. The Chair is named in honor of the late Dr. William S. Dietrich II, a former chairman of the University's Board of Trustees who received his Ph.D. from the Department in 1984.

In filling this chair, and in keeping with the interests of Dr. Dietrich, the Department seeks candidates with extraordinary credentials in research, teaching, and mentorship in the fields of international relations or comparative politics, or whose interests cut across these and possibly other disciplinary subfields.

The Political Science Department at the University of Pittsburgh currently consists of 25 tenure stream faculty members with vibrant and varied research agendas. The Department's NRC ranking has improved dramatically over the past decade, and presently ranks between 20th and 30th among Ph.D. granting departments. It has long fostered collegiality and a culture of collaboration among faculty and graduate students. The Department benefits from numerous synergies with other units on campus, including the University Center for International Studies, a world renowned, multidisciplinary institute housing centers for area studies and for topical specializations in international studies, and the Graduate School of Public and International Affairs, a public administration and public policy school emphasizing international relations and political development. The City of Pittsburgh frequently tops "most livable city" rankings thanks to its numerous social and cultural offerings and low cost of living.

Please submit a detailed cover letter and C.V. electronically at <https://facultysearch.as.pitt.edu/apply/index/MTU3>. Additional information may be requested at a later date. Review of applications will begin on September 30, 2016 and will continue until the position is filled. ## METHODOLOGY

GIGA German Institute of Global and Area Studies

Rank: Senior Research Fellow / Research Fellow

Subfield(s): Comparative Politics, International Relations, Methodology

The GIGA German Institute of Global and Area Studies / Leibniz-Institut für Globale und Regionale Studien is an independent social-science research institute based in Hamburg. It analyses political, social and economic developments in Africa, Asia, Latin America and the Middle East, and links this knowledge to questions of global significance. It combines region-specific analysis with innovative comparative research on accountability and participation, peace and security, growth and development, and power and ideas. The GIGA seeks to appoint a Senior Research Fellow / Research Fellow.

Applications are invited for a full-time tenured / tenure-track position, preferably starting 1 January 2018. Remuneration (TV-AVH / TVöD EG14/13) and tenure status will be commensurate with experience, qualifications, and tasks.

The successful candidate will:

- conduct excellent research fitting the GIGA's research agenda and with impact in his/her field
- be an active member of one Regional Institute of the GIGA and at least one Research Programme
- pursue a targeted publication strategy, acquire third-party funding, and conduct research-based knowledge transfer

Your profile:

- Doctorate in political science, economics, or a cognate discipline
- Profound knowledge of political, economic, and/or social developments in countries of one or more of the following world regions: Africa, Asia, Latin America, Middle East and fit with the GIGA's research agenda
- Excellent academic record, demonstrated by at least three publications in renowned peer-reviewed journals and/or leading publishing houses within four years preceding the application
- Successful record in third-party funding acquisition, demonstrated by at least one approved research proposal of substantial size in a competitive procedure, with the funding decision taken within four years preceding the application
- Additional achievements (such as management experience, contributions to knowledge transfer, editorial know-how)
- English-language proficiency; additional language skills relevant to one or more of the regions researched at the GIGA are an asset

In the German context, academic tenure refers to a permanent position until the incumbent retires (or leaves the institution). The tenure-track position is designed for further professional qualification as defined in §2 WissZeitVG (Academic Fixed-Term Contract Act) and includes a tenure option after successful performance evaluation. Part-time options will be considered, if so desired by the successful candidate. The reconciliation of work and family life is of great importance to the institute. The GIGA promotes gender equality and actively encourages applications from women. Among equally qualified applicants, women will receive preferential consideration in those areas in which they are underrepresented.

Please fill out the GIGA application form (found at www.giga-hamburg.de/en/vacancies) and send it with your full application (Ref.-No. GIGA-17-07) including relevant supporting documentation (cover letter, CV, a list of publications [including submitted papers], a list of grants, certificates, names of two referees, a sample publication and a concept for your future research in the framework of the GIGA's overall approach) to:

Applicants should demonstrate strong skills in analytic reasoning, broadly defined, which may include one or more of the following: formal theory, analytic political philosophy, modelling, and quantitative methods. Successful candidates must hold, or expect to soon complete, a PhD.

Our department is committed to academic excellence and diversity within the faculty, staff, and student body. Preferred candidates will share this commitment and be prepared to teach graduate and undergraduate students, demonstrate the highest standards of scholarship and professional activity, and contribute to a campus climate that supports equity, inclusion, and diversity. Appointment level and salary will be commensurate with qualifications and based on University of California pay scales.

To apply, candidates must provide a cover letter, vita, samples of written research, three letters of reference, and a statement summarizing past and/or potential contributions to diversity and leadership (further information about this statement is at: <http://facultyexcellence.ucsd.edu/c2d/index.html>). All materials should be submitted via UCSD AP Online RECRUIT (<https://apol-recruit.ucsd.edu/apply/JPF01163>) for position: Assistant Professor, Political Science.

Review of applications will begin September 18, 2016 and continue until the position is filled. The next application review date is April 7, 2017.

UCSD is an Affirmative Action/Equal Opportunity Employer with a strong institutional commitment to excellence through diversity.

University of Idaho

Rank: Director

Subfield(s): Public Policy, Public Administration, Methodology

The University of Idaho is hiring a new Director of the McClure Center for Public Policy Research (<http://www.uidaho.edu/class/mcclure-center>).

Applications received by March 31, 2017 will receive first consideration. To apply, please visit: jobs.uidaho.edu

The position description is available at: <http://jobelephant.com/display.php?ad=972333>

With a focus on critical issues facing Idaho and the nation, the director is responsible for:

- Conducting and overseeing nonpartisan, science-based, public policy research;
- Informing public policy dialogue through research publications, presentations, and events, with a primary emphasis on non-academic audiences including media. The Center may also contribute academic publications.
- Building relationships and interacting on a regular basis with Idaho's elected and appointed officials;
- Engaging University of Idaho students in learning about public policy making;
- Engaging with faculty from the University of Idaho to inform and participate in the research; and
- Ensuring the McClure Center's financial and organizational sustainability.

To carry out these responsibilities, the director builds relationships with state and local policy makers, agency staff, elected officials, nonprofits, and other external stakeholders. Through these relationships, the director identifies policy issues of importance to Idaho and research opportunities for the center and the broader university. In this way, the McClure Center leverages both the university's expertise and the center's strategic location in Boise to respond to critical policy issues through research and outreach.

Faculty status will be considered with appropriate qualifications and within the policy guidelines of the appropriate department.

Rank: Post Doc-Politics/Center for Data Science

Postdoctoral position

Politics Department, Center for Data Science

ARTS AND SCIENCE

New York University

The Wilf Family Department of Politics seeks qualified candidates for a post-doctoral position in International Relations and Political Methodology. The position is to run for one year (possibly renewable for one more year) from July 1, 2017 pending budgetary and administrative approval. The position will focus on analyzing “text as data” from foreign relations communication of the United States. The position is part of the Computational and Historical Resources on Nations and Organizations for the Social Sciences (CHRONOS) project, in collaboration with Columbia University, and funded by the National Science Foundation.

Candidates must possess a PhD by July 1 2017, in social science, computer science, data science or a cognate discipline. S/he will have programming skills in R and Python or equivalent languages, and be familiar with “text as data”; statistical techniques, including supervised and unsupervised learning. Experience with working with large SQL databases is a plus, as is knowledge of 20th century U.S. foreign relations.

To apply, please upload a letter of application, a curriculum vitae, three references, a sample of scholarly writing, and research statements through the NYU Department of Politics website at <http://politics.as.nyu.edu/page/home> via the “Faculty Openings” link. Applications should be received by May 25, 2017. Candidates are strongly encouraged to supply a link to their professional website; this will enhance their applications by allowing the search committee easy access to additional information that might be needed.

The Faculty of Arts and Science at NYU is at the heart of a leading research university that spans the globe. We seek scholars of the highest caliber, who embody the diversity of the United States as well as the global society in which we live. We strongly encourage applications from women, racial and ethnic minorities, and other individuals who are under-represented in the profession, across color, creed, race, ethnic and national origin, physical ability, gender and sexual identity, or any other legally protected basis. NYU affirms the value of differing perspectives on the world as we strive to build the strongest possible university with the widest reach. ## University of Barcelona

Specializations: Advanced Industrial Societies, Political Economy, Quantitative Methods

The Institutions and Political Economy Research Group (located in the School of Economics at the University of Barcelona) seeks to fill up to three post-doctoral fellowships on comparative politics linked to an European Research Council-financed five-year research project on a cross-national historical comparison of electoral systems, electoral behavior and party systems in advanced democracies. The Principal Investigator is Professor Carles Boix and includes scientific collaboration with major centers of research in Europe and the United States.

The Principal Investigator is looking for young political scientists, historians, sociologists or economists – preferably with strong quantitative skills. The candidates must be in possession of the PhD by September 30, 2017. The position will have a duration of 1 year (with a possible one-year renewal for two consecutive years). The annual stipend, commensurate with those for postdoctoral researchers in Spain, will be of 34.000-37.500 euros depending on the researcher’s qualifications.

The selected postdoctoral fellows will be required to be in residence for the entire 2017-18 academic year, starting October 1.

The research program is focused on the emergence of mass parties, the choice of electoral institutions, and the final crystallization of different party systems in Europe and North America during the transition to mass democracy (1850-1940). The project will combine innovative statistical, historical and geocoding techniques to explain the formation of diverse party systems as the outcome of political choices made at particular critical junctures that involved the creation of non-socialist and socialist parties, the mobilization of their corresponding electorates, and the strategic response of political elites (often through the manipulation of electoral laws and sometimes through the creation of new electoral coalitions).

Interested candidates may contact the principal investigator for more details by email: cboix@princeton.edu.

Candidates for the positions should submit: a cover letter, CV, a three-to-five page description of their research accomplishments and interests, one paper and the name of two references. All applications should be submitted before March 15 to: Ms. Gina Xifra, Institutions and Political Economy Research Group, University of Barcelona, ginaxifra@ub.edu

Pennsylvania State University

Rank: Academic Director

The Social Science Research Institute (SSRI) invites applications for a senior (Associate/Full), tenure eligible position focused on novel approaches to accessing data on human social, psychological and/or behavioral/biobehavioral processes. This position also will serve as the Academic Director of SSRI’s Survey Research Center and, in this new role, pursue novel approaches to extending/supplementing traditional survey data collection approaches. Potential research domains include, but are not limited to, active and passive data collection through mobile devices, social media, and sensors for environmental and physiological data, as well as innovative approaches to capturing population/epidemiological data. As elaborated in the Office of Behavioral and Social Science Research (OBSSR) strategic plan <https://obsr.od.nih.gov/about-us/strategic-plan/>, opportunities for novel data acquisition and measurement paradigms in the social and behavioral sciences are evolving rapidly. We seek a colleague who will develop and implement a vision for innovative approaches that spark novel questions about and insights into human bio-psycho-social and behavioral processes-- as these operate in context and across the life cycle. Social and behavioral scientists are located in colleges across Penn State, are oriented to interdisciplinary and collaborative research, and have substantial expertise in traditional survey methods, quantitative analysis of human development and demographic and social change, design, implementation and evaluation of education and preventive intervention programs, real-time ambulatory assessment, and spatial and social network analysis (SSRI). Social/behavioral scientists also connect to interdisciplinary expertise such as in the measurement of the physical environment (IEE) and physiological processes (HUCK), device development (MRI), cyberscience (ICS), and clinical and translational science (CTSI). To foster innovation and capitalize on Penn State's strengths, we seek candidates with strong publication and external funding records along with demonstrated teaching and graduate mentorship proficiency. The successful candidate will hold a doctoral degree in the relevant discipline and join the faculty in the academic unit that provides the best fit to her/his research and teaching interests: Biobehavioral Health, Educational Policy Studies, Educational Psychology, Counseling and Special Education, Human Development and Family Studies, Information Science and Technology, Political Science, Psychology, and Sociology. We welcome joint appointments across departments and/or colleges. Review of applications will begin immediately, and applications will be accepted until the position is filled; we expect the position to start by August 2017. To apply, applicants must complete an online application that includes a cover letter describing research interests and experiences, curriculum vitae, names of three references and supporting materials (reprints, preprints, statement of teaching and research interests). Please direct questions to the search coordinator, Ms. Rebecca Shultz, rag212@psu.edu or to Professor Susan McHale, mchale@psu.edu, Director, Social Science Research Institute. ## St. Olaf College

We are looking for candidates who will teach three sections of our required methodology course, two sections of an introductory course in international relations, and one additional course in international relations, for a total teaching load of six courses.

Applicants must submit materials online at <https://stolaf.hiretouch.com/faculty-postings>. A complete application includes:

A cover letter

A curriculum vitae

Undergrad and graduate transcripts

Statement of Teaching Philosophy

In addition, please provide the names and emails of three professional references who can speak to your abilities in teaching and scholarship (we only ask for references' names and emails; St. Olaf solicits letters directly after an initial round of screening.)

If you have questions or need assistance with the application process, please send an email to term17-18@stolaf.edu or call 507-786-3127.

Review of applications will begin on February 1, 2017 and will continue until the position is filled.

The Department of Political Science promotes the systematic and critical analysis of government, politics and public policy. Its six, full-time, faculty members conduct research that enriches understanding of political life and public affairs in a global context, not only for other scholars but for decision-makers and citizens as well. ## University of Houston

Rank: Assistant, Associate or Full Professor - Methodology

The Hobby School of Public Affairs at the University of Houston (UH) anticipates four tenure-track positions beginning in fall 2017. Two positions are at the level of Assistant Professor in the area of decision sciences. The other two positions are open rank and in the areas of (a) ethical or political theory and public policy, and (b) research methodology leveraging the NSF's Empirical Implications of Theoretical Models (EITM) initiative. Applicants for all positions are expected to demonstrate a record predictive of future scholarly productivity, potential and commitment to develop and sustain a nationally competitive program of research with implications for public policy, capability and commitment to contribute to undergraduate and graduate programs and a doctoral degree or equivalent. The Hobby School emphasizes multidisciplinary collaboration and affiliation. Individuals with cross-cutting disciplinary and/or methodological interests are particularly encouraged to apply, as are those with interest in working with diverse populations.

Decision sciences faculty — from a variety of disciplines including disciplines not usually associated with policy schools such as business, computer science, and industrial engineering — will apply state-of-the-art decision sciences theory and research to public policy, with interests including but not limited to statistical decision theory, rational expectations in economics and political science, cognitive psychology, technological change and the restructuring of decision processes, the impact of probabilistic forecasts on decision algorithms, and the micro-foundations of comparative justice systems. Research methodology faculty are expected to have familiarity with the NSF's EITM initiative (see <http://www.nsf.gov/sbe/ses/polisci/reports/pdf/eitmreport.pdf>) and serve at the Hobby School's EITM Summer Research Institute (see <http://www.uh.edu/class/hcpp/eitm/index.php>). Ethical or political theory and public policy faculty are expected to be philosophers or political theorists who continue to expand their impact beyond disciplinary boundaries into public policy and applied ethics.

With over 40,000 students on the main campus and one of the most culturally and ethnically diverse public universities in the nation, UH (www.uh.edu) is a Carnegie-Designated Tier One Public Research University. The Hobby School was recently created by the UH system and thus offers incoming faculty the opportunity to join existing faculty in building and shaping the direction and culture of the school. The Hobby School emphasizes advanced social science methodology and political philosophy in its teaching, training, and research.

The Hobby School is well-positioned for impactful research in Houston, the nation's fourth (soon to be third) most populous American city. Houston itself is a laboratory for the future, as it reflects what is happening in the United States in terms of demographic and economic trends. Moreover, Houston (www.houston.org) boasts a high quality of life with the following attributes: (a) a growing economy, including oil & gas, the Johnson Space Center, and the Texas Medical Center, the world's largest medical center, (b) rich traditions in music, theatre, art, and sports, (c) a diverse population, (d) award winning restaurants reflective of many cultures, and (e) relatively low cost/affordability among large cities.

Interested individuals are asked to apply as follows:

Assistant Professor for Decision Sciences at <http://jobs.uh.edu/postings/33130>

Assistant/Associate/Professor for Methodology at <http://jobs.uh.edu/postings/33131>

Assistant/Associate/Professor for Policy Ethics at <http://jobs.uh.edu/postings/33134>

and to include a letter of interest, statements of teaching philosophy and interests and research interests, three names and email addresses of prospective writers of letters of recommendation (i.e., referees), a curriculum vita, up to three representative papers, and evidence of excellence in teaching.

Upon receiving applications, referees may be contacted via the online application system to submit letters directly for junior applicants, but not for senior applicants. Review of applications will begin immediately and will continue until the positions are filled. Questions may be directed to the following search committee chairs: (a) Pablo Pinto (ppinto@central.uh.edu) regarding the potential research methodology position, (b) Jeffrey Church (jchurch@central.uh.edu) regarding the potential ethical/political theory and public policy position, and Alan Witt (witt@uh.edu) regarding the potential decision sciences positions.

Committed to the active recruitment of a diverse faculty and student body, UH is an Affirmative Action/Equal Opportunity Employer of women, minorities, protected veterans, and individuals with disabilities and encourages applications from these and other protected group members. Because broad diversity is essential to an inclusive climate and critical to the University's goals of achieving excellence in all areas, the search committees anticipate holistically assessing the many qualifications of each applicant and favorably consider an individual's record working with students and colleagues with broadly diverse perspectives, experiences, and backgrounds in educational, research, or other work activities. For the complete UH nondiscrimination and affirmative action policy, see the Equal Opportunity and Nondiscrimination Statement at <http://www.uh.edu/af/universityservices/policies/sam/1GenAdmin/1D5.pdf>. ## Dartmouth College

Rank: Postdoctoral Fellow in the Program in Quantitative Social Science

The Program in Quantitative Social Science (QSS) at Dartmouth College is pleased to announce that it is searching for up to three postdoctoral fellows for the 2017-18 academic year. QSS is an interdisciplinary program that integrates modern statistical, computational, and mathematical tools with social science questions. Each successful fellow should be highly motivated, collegial, and able to work independently, and the fellow's research agenda should be grounded methodologically in statistics or other computational techniques.

During the 2017-18 academic year, fellows will participate in the intellectual life of QSS by working with QSS faculty and honors students on ongoing research, attending seminars and workshops, and presenting research results. The stipend for each QSS fellow is $50,000 with a $5,000 account available for equipment, travel, and research materials. Subject to consultation with the QSS Chair, each fellow may teach a one-quarter course on a subject of his or her choosing; there is an extra stipend for teaching. The postdoctoral fellowship can be extended through the 2018-19 academic year, subject to negotiation between the fellow and the QSS Chair.

Requirements:

1. Ph.D. in any discipline or expected Ph.D. by September, 2017.
2. Substantive interest in any social science field.
3. Research interests that strongly intersect statistical or computation methods.
4. A proven ability to work both independently and collaboratively.
5. A demonstrated interest in interdisciplinary research.

Application Materials:

- 1) Curriculum vitae that includes all publications.
- 2) Statement of research interests, no longer than two pages, that includes a short description of the research the applicant would like to pursue while in residence at Dartmouth.
- 3) Names of Dartmouth faculty of interest to the applicant.
- 4) Three letters of reference.
- 5) A paper written in English, either published or unpublished.

NON-ACADEMIC

Villanova University

Rank: Post-doctoral Fellow

Subfield(s): Other, Non-Academic, Political Theory

Specializations: History & Politics, Leadership Studies, Advanced Industrial Societies

The Augustine and Culture Seminar Program seeks scholars in the Humanities to apply for the Arthur J. Ennis, O.S.A. Post-doctoral Teaching Fellowship, starting in the Fall Semester 2017. This is a one-year fellowship renewable for a 3-year terminal appointment, for a total of 4 years. We welcome applications from scholars who can both complement and broaden our current interdisciplinary faculty working in the disciplines of Literature, Theology, History, Philosophy, Political Science, and Classics. The deadline for applications is March 24, 2017.

Ennis fellows teach three courses of the Augustine and Culture Seminar each semester. ACS is a two semester writing intensive interdisciplinary seminar, required of all first year students. The students are expected to write a minimum of thirty pages a semester.

ACS 1000 focuses on texts of antiquity and the Middle Ages, including Augustine's Confessions. ACS 1001 continues the emphasis on self in the world through the lens of modernity, starting with Shakespeare and continuing to the present. The course gives attention to the Catholic intellectual tradition and its ongoing mission to defend the dignity of the human person, recognize the need for human solidarity, and serve the common good.

Fellows participate in the ACS Program's faculty development program as well as the ACS lecture series. There are no other service requirements.

Aarhus University

Rank: Assistant Professor in Political Science

Videnskabelige stillinger

Assistant Professor in Political Science 890603

The Department of Political Science at Aarhus BSS, Aarhus University, invites applications for one or more assistant professor positions in Political Science.

The assistant professorship is a full-time and fixed-term three-year position starting on September 1, 2017 or as soon as possible hereafter subject to mutual agreement.

Job description

The successful applicant is expected to contribute significantly to the department's research and teaching environment and activities. We expect you to teach and supervise students at Bachelor's and Master's level and to carry out individual and group-based research of the highest international standard, which contributes to developing the academic field in question. You are required physical attendance at the department at least three days a week and we expect active participation in the activities of the department and the relevant sub section.

Your qualifications

To qualify for the position as assistant professor in Political Science you must hold a relevant PhD or have equivalent qualifications within the fields covered by the department. You must have some teaching experience. The department will prioritize applicants who have demonstrated the ability to perform solid and original research results and whom we believe will contribute to the further development of the department's research and teaching.

Who we are

The Department of Political Science is one of the six departments at Aarhus BSS, one of the four faculties at Aarhus University. Aarhus

BSS unites the business and social science-related research fields and brings them closer together to reflect the close relationship between society and the business community.

The department covers the following sub disciplines:

- Comparative Politics
- International Relations
- Public Administration
- Political Sociology
- Political Theory
- Studies in Research/Research Policy

At the Department of Political Science, we emphasise a dynamic and flexible research and teaching profile characterised by pluralism and openness. With around 90 academic staff members and 40 PhD students, we offer a lively and ambitious research and teaching environment.

The research carried out at the department covers a variety of political science disciplines, and it represents a variety of methodological approaches. This not only enables us to focus on new problem areas as they appear on the national and international political arenas, but also allows us to contribute actively to the development of the discipline. We also emphasise communicating our research results to the political-administrative system and to the public in general.

American University-SIS

Rank: Director of the Graduate Program in U.S. Foreign Policy and National Security (USFPNS): One Full-Time Non-Tenure Track Faculty Position

The School of International Service (SIS) at American University (AU) invites applications for a full-time, non-tenure track faculty appointment for AY 17-18 and AY 18-19. Rank will be dependent on experience and stature in the field. The appointment is for a two year period commencing on July 1, 2017, with the expectation that the appointment will be renewed for subsequent academic years based on satisfactory performance and budgetary authorization. The position is intended for a person who would serve as Director of the Graduate Program in U.S. Foreign Policy and National Security (USFPNS).

We are especially interested in candidates who specialize in U.S. foreign policy and/or U.S. national security and who could provide leadership for the USFPNS Program. In addition, the person selected would teach graduate and undergraduate courses in SIS. All faculty are expected to hold office hours and participate in School and University activities and service. The ideal candidate would have a record of excellence in teaching and management. Applicants holding a Ph.D.

or the highest equivalent degree in a relevant discipline will be preferred. Salary is competitive.

Application Instructions

Review of applications will begin immediately and will continue until the position is filled. Applications must be submitted electronically via Interfolio (<https://apply.interfolio.com/41024>). Attach a letter of application, curriculum vitae, and recent teaching evaluations (when possible). You will be asked to submit the names and email addresses of three references and request that Interfolio contact them for a confidential letter of recommendation. Queries about the search may be sent to sisdeansoffice@american.edu. ## Johns Hopkins School of Advanced International Studies (SAIS)

Rank: Full or Associate Professor of South Asian Studies

Specializations: South Asia, Political Economy, Political Philosophy & Theory

School Overview

Founded in 1943 and a Johns Hopkins division since 1950, The Paul H. Nitze School of Advanced International Studies of the Johns Hopkins University (SAIS) has been educating global leaders for more than 70 years. As a highly selective graduate institution with a distinguished faculty, SAIS consistently ranks as one of the top schools of international relations in the world. SAIS was founded to provide a practical approach to training students in international leadership and foreign relations, and to provide mid-career educational opportunities for those already working in related fields. Today, SAIS offers the MA, MIPP, MAIA, MAIS, MIEF, GPP, and Ph.D. degrees and enrolls 640 full-time students in Washington, D.C., primarily in the school's two-year Master of Arts program. Nearly 40 percent of the students are non-citizens coming from more than 70 countries. About 200 students attend SAIS Europe in Bologna, Italy, while about 180 students attend the Hopkins-Nanjing Center in Nanjing, China. To learn more about SAIS, visit www.sais-jhu.edu.

The Position

The School of Advanced International Studies at Johns Hopkins University is seeking to fill a position in South Asian Studies at the rank of Full Professor or Associate Professor (with tenure) in its Washington, DC campus. Candidates must have a PhD, a distinguished publication record in the contemporary politics and/or political economy of this region, demonstrated excellence in teaching and strong interest in public policy and international relations. Salary and rank will be commensurate with qualifications and experience. Applications will be reviewed starting January 30, 2017 and will be continued until position is filled.

Application

An application letter addressed to the South Asia Search Committee, curriculum vitae, teaching evaluations, and names and contact details for three people who can provide letters of reference should be submitted electronically to saisasiasearch@jhu.edu.

Tufts University

Rank: Post-doctoral Fellow - Center for Strategic Studies
Specializations: Defense, International Security, Foreign Policy

Center for Strategic Studies
 Post-doctoral Fellows Program

The Center for Strategic Studies (CSS) at Tufts University's Fletcher School of Law and Diplomacy invites applications for its inaugural postdoctoral fellowship program for the 2017-2018 academic year. Established in 2017, CSS is dedicated to producing policy-relevant research on strategy, international politics, and US foreign policy. CSS serves as a hub for students, faculty, scholars and practitioners to engage with one another in a supportive, collaborative, and collegial environment. Its mission is to educate future scholars and practitioners and generate cutting-edge scholarly analysis that broadens the U.S. foreign policy debate, exploring alternative strategies that: (1) enhances US security, sovereignty, prosperity, and territory; (2) respects the realities and complexities of international conflict; including human territoriality, legitimacy, and the ethnic, cultural, and religious differences of peoples; and (3) questions the utility of military intervention given its potential perils and long-term unintended consequences; including but not limited to, the loss of life, civil liberties, and resources. CSS works closely with the Security Studies Program.

CSS is interdisciplinary; it therefore welcomes applications from anthropology, economics, history, law, political science, natural sciences, and other related disciplines.

This is a residential fellowship—fellows are expected to be on campus for the entirety of the fellowship period, which is September 1, 2017–June 30, 2018. While Fellows will spend most of their time on their own research, they are also expected to participate in the Center's programming, including presenting in research seminars, attending conferences, workshops, and center activities. By the end of their term fellows are expected to complete a significant piece of research and a shorter policy-relevant paper that will be published as part of the CSS's White Paper series.

Fellows will be provided with a $47,484 stipend, medical benefits, office space, and a computer. As members of the Tufts Fletcher community they will have access to library system and other facilities of the University. Although only a few full fellowships are available, CSS encourages applicants to apply for other sources of funding as CSS might be able to provide partial and non-stipendary appointments. Applicants should therefore indicate their needed level of support. Tufts University is an Affirmative Action/Equal Opportunity employer. We are committed to increasing the diversity of our community. Members of under-represented groups are strongly encouraged to apply.

Applications are due March 22, 2017, noon EST.

Application materials include: a cover letter, research proposal (no more than five pages), C.V., one writing sample (no more than 12,000 words); a list of three recommenders (who should submit their letters directly). These materials should be submitted to css-postdoc@tufts.edu

Tufts University

Rank: Visiting Assistant Professor - Center for Strategic Studies
Specializations: Defense, International Security, Foreign Policy

Visiting Assistant Professor

Tufts University's Fletcher School of Law and Diplomacy, in coordination with its newly-established Center for Strategic Studies (CSS), invites applications for a two-year visiting assistant professor starting September 2017.

We prefer a candidate whose teaching and research interests covers international security, strategy and/or US foreign and diplomatic policy. This is a position at the rank of visiting assistant professor (non-tenured), beginning in September 2017. It is a two-year appointment. The successful candidate will be responsible for teaching, research, and supervising graduate student research, and will contribute to various faculty service responsibilities at The Fletcher School and CSS.

The Fletcher School's faculty is multi-disciplinary with a focus on preparing tomorrow's leaders with a global perspective. The School undertakes research and prepares masters and doctoral students to use the latest political, business, economic, and legal thinking, among others, to generate pragmatic policies or make executive decisions that will successfully shape global events. In addition to a developed research program, the ideal candidate will have policy experience, as well as a background teaching in interdisciplinary programs.

The appointee will be affiliated with CSS and be expected to participate in the Center's activities. Established in 2017, CSS is dedicated to producing policy-relevant research on strategy, international politics, and US foreign policy. CSS serves as a hub for students, faculty, scholars and practitioners to engage with one another in a supportive, collaborative, and collegial environment. Its mission is to educate future scholars and practitioners and generate cutting-edge scholarly analysis that broadens the U.S. foreign policy debate, exploring alternative strategies that: (1) secure America's safety, sovereignty, prosperity, and territory; (2) respects the realities and complexities of international conflict, including human territoriality, legitimacy, and the ethnic, cultural, and religious differences of peoples; and (3) questions the necessity of military intervention given its potential perils and long-term unintended consequences, including but not limited to, the loss of life, civil liberties, and resources. CSS works closely with the Fletcher School's Security Studies Program.

Tufts University is an Equal Opportunity/ Affirmative Action Employer. We are committed to increasing the diversity of our faculty and staff and fostering their success when hired. Members of underrepresented groups are welcome and strongly encouraged to apply.

Review of applications will begin March 21, 2017 and will continue until the position is filled.

Application materials include: a cover letter, 1-2 page research statement, 1-2 page teaching statement, sample syllabus, teaching evaluations (if available, if not then other evidence of teaching effectiveness), and 3 confidential letters of recommendation. These materials should be submitted to <http://apply.interfolio.com/40952>

Tufts University: Tisch College

Rank: Jonathan M. Tisch College of Civic Life Postdoctoral Fellowship in Philosophy or Political Theory

Tufts University's Tisch College, in collaboration with the departments of Philosophy and of Political Science, will award a Jonathan M. Tisch College of Civic Life Postdoctoral Fellowship in the 2017-18 academic year to a junior scholar with a PhD in the field of philosophy or political theory who is not yet tenured. Candidates should submit a research proposal for scholarly work related to civic studies. Civic studies (see <http://activecitizen.tufts.edu/civic-studies/>) is an emerging interdisciplinary field that develops ideas and ways of thinking helpful to citizens, understood as co-creators of their worlds. Because civic studies emphasizes the agency of people and groups, it combines ethics, empirical work, strategies, and institutions. Tufts will hold a social ontology conference in 2018, and therefore applicants with interests in social ontology or collective agency are particularly encouraged.

Scholars are required to spend the year (September–May) in residence at Tufts University. For the 2017-18 academic year the Fellowship carries a stipend of $55,000, health insurance, and a $3,000 research fund. The Fellow will be expected to support capstone experiences with Tufts undergraduates and to teach one academic course in addition to conducting their research. The fellow will also be expected to deliver a public lecture at Tufts on the topic of their research at some point during the fellowship year.

Qualifications

Junior scholar with a PhD in the field of philosophy or political theory who is not yet tenured. Candidates should submit a research proposal for scholarly work related to civic studies.

Application Instructions

Applications must include: a cover letter, CV, writing sample, two-page research proposal, and three letters of recommendation. Applications should be submitted to <https://apply.interfolio.com/40979>.

Application deadline: April 15, 2017. Notification of award: May 8, 2017.

Specializations: History & Politics, Leadership Studies, Advanced Industrial Societies

The Augustine and Culture Seminar Program seeks scholars in the Humanities to apply for the Arthur J. Ennis, O.S.A. Post-doctoral Teaching Fellowship, starting in the Fall Semester 2017. This is a one-year fellowship renewable for a 3-year terminal appointment, for a total of 4 years. We welcome applications from scholars who can both complement and broaden our current interdisciplinary faculty working in the disciplines of Literature, Theology, History, Philosophy, Political Science, and Classics. The deadline for applications is March 24, 2017.

Ennis fellows teach three courses of the Augustine and Culture Seminar each semester. ACS is a two semester writing intensive interdisciplinary seminar, required of all first year students. The students are expected to write a minimum of thirty pages a semester.

ACS 1000 focuses on texts of antiquity and the Middle Ages, including Augustine's Confessions. ACS 1001 continues the emphasis on self in the world through the lens of modernity, starting with Shakespeare and continuing to the present. The course gives attention to the Catholic intellectual tradition and its ongoing mission to defend the dignity of the human person, recognize the need for human solidarity, and serve the common good.

Fellows participate in the ACS Program's faculty development program as well as the ACS lecture series. There are no other service requirements.

Princeton University

Rank: Emerging Scholars in Political Science (ESPS) Program Participant

The Department of Politics is seeking applicants for its Emerging Scholars in Political Science (ESPS) program. ESPS participants are hired as predoctoral research specialists on a part-time, benefits-eligible basis. The goal of the Emerging Scholars in Political Science (ESPS) program is to increase the participation of students from underrepresented groups in Ph.D. programs in political science.

Responsibilities

The ESPS program provides students who have already earned a bachelor's degree the opportunity to explore their research interests in political science and prepare for graduate school through intensive research, coursework, and mentoring.

ESPS program participants are hired as predoctoral research specialists for a period of 6 to 24 months to conduct research under the direction of a faculty mentor at an annual salary of $32,560. The nature of research conducted will vary according to the research interests of the participant. It may involve quantitative and/or qualitative research methods. Typical job duties will likely include data collection, data analysis, and reporting.

The research specialist position is part-time to allow time for participants to also enroll in 1 to 2 courses per semester in order to enhance their knowledge and skills in certain areas. Tuition for these courses is paid by the ESPS program, and program participants are eligible for all benefits associated with their status as regular University staff. The ESPS program also provides participants with a research allowance of $1,500 per year to be spent on research-related expenses, such as books and periodicals, software, and travel to scholarly conferences.

Interested applicants must submit the following:

- Resume or CV
- Writing sample
- Transcripts (official or unofficial)
- Recommendation letters from academic references (minimum of 1, maximum of 3), which should be sent directly from the letter writer to Emily Lawrence at emilyl@princeton.edu.
- Cover letter that addresses the applicant's research interests as they relate to his or her short and long term goals

Applications must be submitted at the following link: <https://research-princeton.icims.com/jobs/7111/predoctoral-research-specialist/job>.

The ESPS program strongly encourages applicants from racial/ethnic groups that are historically underrepresented in political science. For best consideration please apply by March 31, 2017.

It is anticipated that the successful candidate will begin the program in summer 2017, no later than mid-August. For more information please contact Prof. Kris Ramsay, ESPS program director, (kramsay@princeton.edu) or Amanda Kastern, Politics department manager (akastern@princeton.edu).

University of Oxford

Rank: Post-doctoral Research Fellow -The Changing Character of Conflict Platform: Understanding, Tracing and Forecasting Change across Time, Space and Cultures

Specializations: Quantitative Methods, Conflict Processes, Latin American

The Department of Politics and International Relations at the University of Oxford is looking for a Post-doctoral Research Fellow to work on an exciting new project directed by Dr Annette Idler in collaboration with Dr Robert Johnson and Prof Peter Wilson, and supported by the Arts and Humanities Research Council (AHRC).

The project "The Changing Character of Conflict Platform: Understanding, Tracing and Forecasting Change across Time, Space and Cultures" aims to produce a comprehensive knowledge platform on how and when armed conflict changes, with a view to enabling governments and international organisations to adapt their strategies and policies to address ongoing and prevent future conflict.

The successful candidate will be expected to undertake quantitative research both independently and jointly with the Project Director and the project team, and in addition s/he will be expected to participate fully in the research life of the Department and the Changing Character of War (CCW) Programme.

The post holder's duties will include statistical analysis, model development, and the creation of interactive data visualisations. Applicants should therefore have advanced skills in research design and quantitative analysis, with excellent skills in web technologies such as JavaScript and html. They should have demonstrable ability to use advanced data analysis software. The successful candidate will hold a doctorate in Statistics, Economics and/or Political Science, or be close to completion of a PhD in a relevant subject. Experience in engaging with external stakeholders, including governments, international organisations and think tanks, is highly desirable.

The duties of the Post-doctoral Research Fellow will also include assisting the Project Director and the research team in the academic and practical organisation of two conferences on the Changing Character of Conflict Platform, to be held in Oxford in September 2018 and September 2020.

This post is offered on a full-time basis, for a fixed-term period until 30 April 2020, to commence 1 May 2017, or as soon as possible thereafter. Further duties and skills required are described in more detail in the further particulars.

Please direct enquiries about the role to Dr Annette Idler in the Politics and International Relations Department (annette.idler@politics.ox.ac.uk).

University of Maine

Rank: Lecturer in Leadership Studies & Public Service

The William S. Cohen Institute for Leadership & Public Service at the University of Maine is seeking qualified candidates to fill a full-time, academic year lecturing position in Leadership Studies, for a two-year appointment starting September 1, 2017, with the potential for annual reappointments thereafter. Typical hiring range for this position is $44,000 to $50,000.

Responsibilities and Duties: The primary duty of this position is teaching, with secondary responsibilities of research and service. The teaching load is 3/3, with a mix of introductory and upper-level courses at the undergraduate level in UMaine's interdisciplinary Leadership Studies Minor. The minor consists of three core courses—Foundations of Leadership, Leadership Ethics, and Advanced Leadership Theory and Practice—as well as special topics courses, electives, and an internship/practicum course. Supervise internships, independent studies, and undergraduate theses. Advise students on their course of study within the minor and aid them in the registration process, which includes maintaining regular office hours. Maintain an active research program. Perform appropriate service, which includes but is not limited to, active participation in program development and implementation in Leadership Studies and the Cohen Institute, and representing these units in interactions with the larger University and community.

Qualifications: We prefer candidates with an earned doctorate in leadership studies, organizational leadership, organizational psychology, organizational behavior, political science, or a related field. Advanced ABD candidates may be considered for the position. We are particularly interested in candidates with a track record of teaching and research in leadership studies from an interdisciplinary, liberal arts perspective, as well as experience in active learning pedagogies, service learning, and community engagement. Additional requirements include record of or demonstrated potential for success in university-level teaching, assisting with program development, and advising and supervising student internships.

Application: Applicants should submit a letter of interest in the position, a current C.V., three letters of reference, at least one sample of research related to leadership studies, copies of graduate school transcript(s), and available teaching evaluations and course syllabi. Review of applications will begin March 17, 2017 and continue until the position is filled. Incomplete applications cannot be considered. Appropriate background checks will be required. Applicants should submit application materials electronically at <https://umaine.hiretouch.com>. Specific questions may be addressed to Richard Powell, Professor of Political Science and Director of the Cohen Institute: rpowell@maine.edu, 207-581-1795. ## University of Texas, Austin

Rank: Tenured/Tenure-Track Faculty Position in Public Management

Subfield(s): Other, Other, Other

The Lyndon B. Johnson School of Public Affairs (LBJ School) at the University of Texas at Austin seeks to hire a new professor of public management to join the tenured/tenure-track faculty at a rank commensurate with experience. The School welcomes applications from candidates at any rank.

Public management is a core subject in the LBJ master's degree programs. Public management encompasses practitioner skills and scholarly research dedicated to policy implementation by government, non-governmental organizations, or non-profit agencies. The successful candidate will work with clinical professors and tenured/tenure-track faculty to solidify and sustain public management as a core program in the School's graduate curriculum. The successful candidate will be expected to maintain a productive research program and to teach courses in the field as needed to support the School's instructional needs.

The LBJ School comprises more than 40 faculty members and approximately 300 graduate students, and offers multi-disciplinary curricula leading to the degrees of Master of Public Affairs, Master of Global Policy Studies, and Ph.D. in Public Policy.

Qualifications

Eligible candidates must have a Ph.D. in hand at the time of application and offer evidence of requisite academic qualification to teach graduate courses in public management. Published research and teaching experience will be required in the fields of: policy implementation at the national, state or local government level; public administration; management/leadership development; public acquisition and contracting; information technology management; organization development; performance measurement and management; or human resources management.

Successful candidates should offer evidence of work with diverse student and community populations. Successful candidates should demonstrate interest in, and success with, establishing dynamic, collaborative inter-disciplinary research and teaching, given the LBJ School's dedication to strengthening the field of public management by working with faculty in other University of Texas at Austin schools and institutions.

Application Instructions

Interested applicants are invited to submit a letter of interest and curriculum vitae that detail their professional accomplishments, teaching philosophy and experience, and research interests as well as three letters of recommendation to: apply.interfolio.com/40603. Screening of completed application files will begin on February 14, 2017, and continue until the position is filled.

Emerson College

Rank: Assistant Professor in Political Communication

Subfield(s): Political Theory, Other, Other

The Communication Studies department invites applications for a full-time tenure track professor (rank depending on qualifications) in political communication to begin on August 24, 2017.

Candidates must have completed a terminal degree by the time of hire. Successful candidates must also demonstrate potential for a productive scholarly research agenda, continuing professional practice, teaching experience within a diverse student community with evidence of potential for teaching excellence, and show the ability to work and collaborate effectively with faculty, students, and staff from diverse backgrounds.

The preferred candidate's teaching and research interests will be principally focused in political communication from a quantitative perspective. Preference will be given to candidates with experience in data driven analysis in opinion polling and web-based data analytics. Additional expertise in one or more of the following areas is desired: campaign management; electoral politics; social justice and politics; race and political communication; polling and demographics; civic engagement; public diplomacy; sports communication; and public affairs. Superior candidates will be those who can also complement other areas of department focus in sports communication, civic engagement, professional communication, global communication, public relations, non-profits, international relations, service-oriented teaching, and community-based learning. The successful candidate will teach both undergraduate and graduate courses that fit the his or her research and teaching interests of the candidate.

As a member of the department, the candidate will advise and mentor undergraduate and graduate students, which can include advising student organizations aligned with political communication. Supporting the theory-practice mission of the Department of Communication Studies, the candidate will have the opportunity to engage in experiential and online learning, including the Washington, D.C. Program and civic engagement projects.

The Department of Communication Studies offers undergraduate and graduate programs. At the undergraduate level, degree programs are for students who wish to pursue communication-driven careers in the corporate, political, sports, or non-profit arenas. All three programs share a core curriculum that includes courses in communication research methods, argument and advocacy, and conflict and negotiation. The Master of Arts in Communication Management provides students with the knowledge, theory, and skills necessary to design and execute strategic, integrated communication plans for public and private organizations with expertise in web-based communication.

Emerson College is committed to an active, intentional, and ongoing engagement with diversity—in people, in the curriculum, in the co-curriculum, and in the College's intellectual, social, cultural, and geographical communities. Emerson endorses a framework of inclusive excellence, which recognizes that institutional excellence comes from fully engaging with diversity in all aspects of institutional activities. Members of historically under-represented groups are encouraged to apply.

Emerson & Boston

Communication Studies, founded in 1884 as the first department in Emerson College, engages students to appreciate application of theory and practice in leadership roles in all walks of life. From your first day at Emerson, Communication Studies students are immersed in local, national and global projects through coursework, teamwork, internships, and co-curricular activities such as Emerson College Polling Society, Forensics, and the Communication, Politics, and Law Association. Communication students work with their counterparts in Barcelona, Mexico, Chile, as well as locally in Boston, with the Bird Street Civic Engagement Project and Emerson Literacy Education & Empowerment Project (eLEEP).

Emerson College is dedicated exclusively to programs in communication and the arts. Located in the center of diversity-rich Boston, Emerson is surrounded by major healthcare, technology and research centers. The College enrolls approximately 3,783 full-time undergraduates and 671 full and part-time graduate students from 71 countries and 48 states.

To Apply, please submit a cover letter indicating teaching philosophy and professional orientation, summary of teaching evaluations if applicable, curriculum vitae, and contact information for three references (not to be contacted without applicant's written approval). Application materials must be submitted through our applicant tracking system at the following link: <https://emerson.peopleadmin.com/postings/13721>.

Questions about the position should be directed to the Department Chair, Dr. Greg Payne at gregory\_payne@emerson.edu. Review of applications will begin January 2017 and continue until the position is filled.

University of Houston

Rank: Assistant Professor - Decision Sciences

The Hobby School of Public Affairs at the University of Houston (UH) anticipates four tenure-track positions beginning in fall 2017. Two positions are at the level of Assistant Professor in the area of decision sciences. The other two positions are open rank and in the areas of (a) ethical or political theory and public policy, and (b) research methodology leveraging the NSF's Empirical Implications of Theoretical Models (EITM) initiative. Applicants for all positions are expected to demonstrate a record predictive of future scholarly productivity, potential and commitment to develop and sustain a nationally competitive program of research with implications for public policy, capability and commitment to contribute to undergraduate and graduate programs and a doctoral degree or equivalent. The Hobby School emphasizes multidisciplinary collaboration and affiliation. Individuals with cross-cutting disciplinary and/or methodological interests are particularly encouraged to apply, as are those with interest in working with diverse populations.

Decision sciences faculty — from a variety of disciplines including disciplines not usually associated with policy schools such as business, computer science, and industrial engineering — will apply state-of-the-art decision sciences theory and research to public policy, with interests including but not limited to statistical decision theory, rational expectations in economics and political science, cognitive psychology, technological change and the restructuring of decision processes, the impact of probabilistic forecasts on decision algorithms, and the micro-foundations of comparative justice systems. Research methodology faculty are expected to have familiarity with the NSF's EITM initiative (see <http://www.nsf.gov/sbe/ses/polisci/reports/pdf/eitmreport.pdf>) and serve at the Hobby School's EITM Summer Research Institute (see <http://www.uh.edu/class/hcpp/eitm/index.php>). Ethical or political theory and public policy faculty are expected to be philosophers or political theorists who continue to expand their impact beyond disciplinary boundaries into public policy and applied ethics.

With over 40,000 students on the main campus and one of the most culturally and ethnically diverse public universities in the nation, UH (www.uh.edu) is a Carnegie-Designated Tier One Public Research University. The Hobby School was recently created by the UH system and thus offers incoming faculty the opportunity to join existing faculty in building and shaping the direction and culture of the school. The Hobby School emphasizes advanced social science methodology and political philosophy in its teaching, training, and research.

The Hobby School is well-positioned for impactful research in Houston, the nation's fourth (soon to be third) most populous American city. Houston itself is a laboratory for the future, as it reflects what is happening in the United States in terms of demographic and economic trends. Moreover, Houston (www.houston.org) boasts a high quality of life with the following attributes: (a) a growing economy, including oil & gas, the Johnson Space Center, and the Texas Medical Center, the world's largest medical center, (b) rich traditions in music, theatre, art, and sports, (c) a diverse population, (d) award winning restaurants reflective of many cultures, and (e) relatively low cost/affordability among large cities.

Interested individuals are asked to apply as follows:

Assistant Professor for Decision Sciences at <http://jobs.uh.edu/postings/33130>

Assistant/Associate/Professor for Methodology at <http://jobs.uh.edu/postings/33131>

Assistant/Associate/Professor for Policy Ethics at <http://jobs.uh.edu/postings/33134>

and to include a letter of interest, statements of teaching philosophy and interests and research interests, three names and email addresses of prospective writers of letters of recommendation (i.e., referees), a curriculum vita, up to three representative papers, and evidence of excellence in teaching.

Upon receiving applications, referees may be contacted via the online application system to submit letters directly for junior applicants, but not for senior applicants. Review of applications will begin immediately and will continue until the positions are filled. Questions may be directed to the following search committee chairs: (a) Pablo Pinto (ppinto@central.uh.edu) regarding the potential research methodology position, (b) Jeffrey Church (jchurch@central.uh.edu) regarding the potential ethical/political theory and public policy position, and Alan Witt (witt@uh.edu) regarding the potential decision sciences positions.

Committed to the active recruitment of a diverse faculty and student body, UH is an Affirmative Action/Equal Opportunity Employer of women, minorities, protected veterans, and individuals with disabilities and encourages applications from these and other protected group members. Because broad diversity is essential to an inclusive climate and critical to the University's goals of achieving excellence in all areas, the search committees anticipate holistically assessing the many qualifications of each applicant and favorably consider an individual's record working with students and colleagues with broadly diverse perspectives, experiences, and backgrounds in educational, research, or other work activities. For the complete UH nondiscrimination and affirmative action policy, see the Equal Opportunity and Nondiscrimination Statement at <http://www.uh.edu/af/universityservices/policies/sam/1GenAdmin/1D5.pdf>. ### Catholic University of America

Rank: Assistant Professor. Priority: Comparative Politics or IR.

Other: Political Theory or Open

Subfield(s): Comparative Politics, Political Theory, Other

The Department of Politics at the Catholic University of America invites applications for a tenure-track assistant professor position to begin in August 2017. Applicants at the associate rank may also be considered. While we encourage applications by candidates in any field, our priority is to recruit in World Politics, which comprises Comparative Politics and International Relations. Located in the nation's capital, the Department of Politics offers a popular undergraduate major and a distinguished MA and PhD program.

We seek candidates who understand, are enthusiastic about, and will make a significant contribution to the mission of the University, which reads as follows: "As the national university of the Catholic Church in the United States, founded and sponsored by the bishops of the country with the approval of the Holy See, The Catholic University of America is committed to being a comprehensive Catholic and American institution of higher learning, faithful to the teachings of Jesus Christ as handed on by the Church. Dedicated to advancing the dialogue between faith and reason, The Catholic University of America seeks to discover and impart the truth through excellence in teaching and research, all in service to the Church, the nation and the world."

Expertise in a regional area such as Latin America, the Middle East or Eastern Europe is a plus. Security studies and foreign policy are traditional strengths of the department. Beyond these fields, areas of interest include but are not limited to political theory and constitutionalism. We seek applicants who can enhance the historical, institutional and theoretical strengths of the department. Candidates who can cross field and disciplinary lines and articulate the relevance of ethical and religious concerns in their areas of specialty are particularly attractive.

Applicants should send a letter of interest, a C.V., and a writing sample to

pol-search@cua.edu and arrange for the submission of graduate transcripts and three letters of reference. In addition, applicants are asked to submit a one- to two-page statement indicating how their research, teaching, and service will make a distinctive contribution to our University's mission and to the vision of Catholic education outlined in the Apostolic Constitution on Catholic Universities Ex Corde Ecclesiae, which can be found here:

University of Central Florida

Rank: Assistant or Associate Professor in Faculty Cluster for Cyber Security and Privacy

Specializations: Science & Technology, Political Psychology, Intelligence

The University of Central Florida (UCF) has established a focus area in cyber security and privacy, as one of six interdisciplinary clusters established to strengthen its academic offerings and research mission. In support of this effort, we are recruiting faculty in the broad area of cyber security and privacy. We plan to hire four tenure-track assistant or associate professors for the cyber security and privacy cluster. These positions have a start date of August 8, 2017.

These will be interdisciplinary positions that will be expected to both contribute to the common vision of the cyber security and privacy initiative and also strengthen a chosen tenure home department (or departments, when a joint appointment is preferable). A strong advantage of this position is the ability of the candidate to choose a combination of units from the cluster for their appointment. The cluster includes core members from Computer Science, Electrical and Computer Engineering, Industrial Engineering and Management Systems, the Institute for Simulation & Training, Political Science, Psychology, and Statistics, and affiliated members from several other departments. (See <http://www.ucf.edu/research/cyber-security> for a complete list of all the units involved.) This cluster will be the focal point of the University's research and educational efforts in cyber security and privacy. Both individual and interdisciplinary infrastructure and startup support will be provided with these new positions.

The ideal junior candidates will have a strong background in cyber security and privacy, and be on an upward leadership trajectory in these areas. They will have research impact, as reflected in high-quality publications and the ability to build a well-funded research program. We are looking for team players who can help bring together current campus efforts in cyber security or privacy. In particular, we are looking for four faculty who work at the intersection of several areas, such as: (a) explaining and predicting human behavior, creating policies, studying ethics, and ensuring privacy, (b) cryptography and theory of security or privacy, (c) hardware and IoT security, or (d) tools, methods, training, and evaluation of human behavior.

Applicants must have a Ph.D., terminal degree, or foreign degree equivalent from an accredited institution in an area appropriate to the cluster, and a record of high impact research related to cyber security and privacy, demonstrated by a strong scholarly and/or funding record. A history of working with teams, especially teams that span multiple disciplines, is a strongly preferred qualification. The positions will each carry a rank commensurate with the candidate's prior experience and record.

Located in Orlando, UCF is one of the nation's most dynamic metropolitan research universities. UCF has the top-tier Carnegie Foundation designation of a "very high research activity" university, is the nation's second-largest university, and is ranked by U.S. News and World Report as among the top up-and-coming universities in terms of innovative changes in the areas of academics, faculty, and student life. UCF's Orlando location also puts it at the center of the Florida High Tech Corridor. The corridor has an excellent industrial base that includes: software, defense, space, simulation and training, and a world-renowned entertainment industry. Adjacent to UCF is a thriving research park that conducts over $2 billion in funded research, hosting more than 100 high-technology companies and UCF's Institute for Simulation and Training. The Central Florida area is designated by the State of Florida as the Center of Excellence in Modeling and Simulation. UCF also has an accredited medical school, which was established in 2006. UCF is a neighbor to large corporations, such as Disney, Harris Corporation, Lockheed Martin, Siemens, and many others, all of which have a strong interest in cyber security and privacy. Great weather, easy access to the seashore, one of the largest convention centers in the nation, and one of the world's best airports are just a few features that make Orlando an ideal location.

Candidates must apply online at <http://www.jobswithucf.com/postings/47217> and attach the following materials: a cover letter, curriculum vitae, teaching statement, research statement, and contact information for three professional references. In the cover letter candidates must address their background in cyber security and privacy, and identify the department or departments for their potential tenure home and the joint appointments they would desire. When applying, have all documents ready so they can be attached at that time, as the system does not allow resubmittal to update applications.

UCF is an Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action employer. All qualified applicants are encouraged to apply, including minorities, women, veterans and individuals with disabilities. As a Florida public university, UCF makes all application materials and selection procedures available to the public upon request.

For more information about these positions please contact the Cluster Search Chair, Gary T. Leavens, at Leavens@ucf.edu.

University of Central Florida

Rank: Associate/Full Professor in Coastal Environmental Policy/
Coastal Political Geography

Sustainable Coastal Systems Cluster: Coastal Environmental Policy/
Political Geography

Applicants for an Associate/Full Professor position in Coastal Environmental Policy or Coastal Political Geography must have a Ph.D. from an accredited institution in political science, geography, or a related discipline, such as environmental policy/political geography or environmental anthropology/sociology.

The successful applicant will become a core faculty member in the Sustainable Coastal Systems Cluster and must bring expertise in environmental policy and politics to an interdisciplinary team in order to advance understanding of the social-ecological systems in coastal areas with a focus on public policy and coastal ecology. They must demonstrate a strong commitment to interdisciplinary research and publication; a commitment to interdisciplinary and collaborative research, have demonstrated an ability to perform high-impact and high-demand research, and develop a program that will lead to strong extramurally-funded research. The successful candidate will also have a strong teaching record with the ability to teach and mentor students at both graduate and undergraduate levels.

As part of an on-going hiring campaign, UCF recently established an interdisciplinary cluster approach to strengthen its academic offerings and research mission. In support of this effort, we are searching for faculty in the broad interdisciplinary area of Sustainable Coastal Systems (<http://ucf.edu/research/coastalsystems>) and plan to bring together a core group of faculty who work across traditional research boundaries or are working in transdisciplinary fields. This new hire will join current cluster faculty, representing twelve departments and seven colleges, to lead a world-class effort to understand and assess natural and human-related impacts to coastal ecosystem health, restoration, sustainability, and mitigation; and ultimately to characterize and integrate physical, chemical, biological, and socio-economic processes impacting coastal communities and ecosystems.

Faculty in these interdisciplinary positions will be expected to strengthen both their tenure home department as well as the Sustainable Coastal Systems cluster. Both individual and interdisciplinary infrastructure and startup are expected with these five new positions. Each new faculty member will have a unique interdisciplinary mentoring team to foster intellectual breadth and to facilitate integrative capacity to strengthen the success of the cluster.

a cover letter, curriculum vitae, teaching statement, research statement, and contact information for three professional references. In the cover letter candidates should address their background in their discipline and should identify the department(s) for their potential tenure home. In the research statement candidates should include descriptions of their successful interdisciplinary research collaborations and how their current and future research can contribute to the cluster's overall interdisciplinary objectives.

The search committee will review applications on on-going basis and continue to accept applications until the position is filled. The University of Central Florida, the nation's second-largest university with more than 63,000 students, has grown in size, quality, diversity, and reputation in its first 50 years. Today, the university offers more than 200 degree programs at its main campus in Orlando and more than a dozen other locations. UCF is an economic engine attracting and supporting industries vital to the region's future while providing students with real-world experiences that help them succeed after graduation. For more information, visit <http://ucf.edu>. UCF is an Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action employer. All applicants are encouraged to apply, including minorities, women, veterans, and individuals with disabilities.

University of Pittsburgh

Rank: William S. Dietrich Endowed Chair in Political Science

Subfield(s): Other, Comparative Politics, International Relations

The Department of Political Science at the University of Pittsburgh invites applications from nationally prominent scholars to fill the inaugural William S. Dietrich II Endowed Chair in Political Science, with appointment to begin in the 2017-18 academic year, pending budgetary approval. The Chair is named in honor of the late Dr. William S. Dietrich II, a former chairman of the University's Board of Trustees who received his Ph.D. from the Department in 1984.

In filling this chair, and in keeping with the interests of Dr. Dietrich, the Department seeks candidates with extraordinary credentials in research, teaching, and mentorship in the fields of international relations or comparative politics, or whose interests cut across these and possibly other disciplinary subfields.

The Political Science Department at the University of Pittsburgh currently consists of 25 tenure stream faculty members with vibrant and varied research agendas. The Department's NRC ranking has improved dramatically over the past decade, and presently ranks between 20th and 30th among Ph.D. granting departments. It has long fostered collegiality and a culture of collaboration among faculty and graduate students. The Department benefits from numerous synergies with other units on campus, including the University Center for International Studies, a world renowned, multidisciplinary institute housing centers for area studies and for topical specializations in international studies, and the Graduate School of Public and International Affairs, a public administration and public policy school emphasizing international relations and political development. The City of Pittsburgh frequently tops "most livable city" rankings thanks to its numerous social and cultural offerings and low cost of living.

Please submit a detailed cover letter and C.V. electronically at <https://facultysearch.as.pitt.edu/apply/index/MTU3>. Additional information may be requested at a later date. Review of applications will begin on September 30, 2016 and will continue until the position is filled. ## American University

Rank: Associate Dean for Undergraduate Education

Associate Dean for Undergraduate Education
AY2016-17
School of Public Affairs
American University

American University's School of Public Affairs (SPA) invites applications from accomplished scholars for the position of associate dean for undergraduate education. This position includes a faculty appointment at the rank of (advanced) associate or full professor in the Government Department or the Department of Justice, Law & Criminology beginning June 1, 2017. Depending on qualifications, the appointee to this position may be recommended for tenure at the time of hiring. The position offers the unique professional, research, social, and cultural opportunities of a top-ranked school and university located in Washington, DC. In addition, the associate dean for undergraduate education will play a critical role in formulating school policy and be part of a dynamic leadership team.

The School of Public Affairs offers four undergraduate majors, four undergraduate minors, and three highly selective enrichment programs (SPA Leadership Program, Politics, Policy and Law Scholars, and SPA Honors). SPA has approximately 1300 engaged undergraduate students who are research focused and use DC as their laboratory. The associate dean for undergraduate education will provide leadership in the area of undergraduate education and will be responsible for handling all issues that arise concerning undergraduate students in the school. The associate dean directs the activities of the assistant director of recruitment and retention, four academic advisors, enrichment program directors, and serves as the school's Academic Integrity Officer. Duties will also include teaching one course a year in one of the School's degree programs.

American University is reshaping the composition and experience of its undergraduate student body. The University is committed to diversifying the student body in terms of racial/ethnic diversity, geographic diversity, and diversity of socioeconomic status. American University received a record number of undergraduate applications for Fall 2016, resulting in an admit rate of approximately 25 percent. The number of students with SPA undergraduate majors has increased over the past several years. American University is undertaking a multi-year initiative to reinvent the student experience through reimagining service delivery, a focus on student success, and modernization of the undergraduate curriculum. We are looking for an associate dean who will embrace the opportunity to participate in this initiative and shape the future of SPA's undergraduate programs.

Qualifications

Candidates must possess a distinguished record of scholarship in one of the academic fields encompassed by the school's undergraduate programs and meet American University's standards for appointment with tenure at the associate or full professor level. Preference will be given to candidates who have held leadership positions at the university, school, department or program level and who can also provide evidence of advancing their university's academic standing, scholarship, or research productivity.

Application Process

Salary and benefits are competitive. Review of applications will begin on September 16, 2016, and continue until the position is filled, subject to ongoing budgetary approval. Please submit applications via: <http://apply.interfolio.com/35978>. Include a cover letter, curriculum vita, statement of administrative experience and contact information for three references. Electronic submissions are preferred.

Specializations: American Politics, Religion & Politics, Political Psychology

The Institute for Religion, Culture and Public Life (IRCPL) at Columbia University invites applications for a postdoctoral scholar position, for the 2017-2018 academic year. Renewal for the 2018-2019 academic year is possible, contingent on satisfactory performance and funding. The position start date is September 1st, 2017.

IRCPL supports academic research, teaching, and scholarship on the study of religion, culture, and social difference at Columbia University. In addition, it convenes academic conferences, public forums, and collaborative programming to support and extend academic and scholarly understanding of these topics, and to disseminate and distribute such new understandings to broader publics and communities.

Candidates must have received the PhD between August 31st, 2015 and August 31st, 2017 in a discipline engaged with the interdisciplinary study of religion. The Institute is particularly interested in candidates whose research involves critical, interpretive, historical, and genealogical approaches that challenge traditional disciplinary boundaries and who are studying religion as it relates to media, populist/nationalist movements, and/or political discourse.

Under the mentorship of an IRCPL faculty member, postdoctoral research scholars are expected to develop and make progress on a collaborative research project and participate in the intellectual life of IRCPL and Columbia University. He or she may be asked to teach one or two classes during the academic year.

This is a full time salaried position with benefits. Review of applications will begin on April 10th, 2017 and will continue until the position is filled. All applications must be submitted through Columbia University's online Recruitment of Academic Personnel System (RAPS) and must include:

1. Cover Letter: Briefly situate your work in relation to the Institute and one or more of the listed thematic areas, identify a proposed departmental affiliation for teaching, and explain why Columbia University is a particularly good place to pursue your research.
2. Curriculum Vitae.
3. Dissertation Abstract: A two-page summary of your dissertation.
4. Teaching Statement (to be submitted as Other Document 1): Titles and short descriptions (one or two paragraphs each) of at least two undergraduate courses that you could teach under the auspices of your proposed departmental affiliation. Please note that we are not requesting a statement of teaching philosophy or full syllabi at this point.
5. Writing Sample: Only one sample equivalent to a single journal article, book chapter, or dissertation chapter. The writing sample may be published or unpublished. It must be in English. The maximum length is 50 pages.
6. Recommendations: Two academic references familiar with your research and work.

Columbia is an Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action employer.

PhD or equivalent and distinction in the field. The PhD need not be in religion. Applications are welcome from a broad range of disciplines (religion, political science, sociology, Arab studies, history, etc).

All applications must be made through Columbia University's online Recruitment of Academic Personnel System (RAPS).

RAPS will accommodate uploads of maximum two (2) megabytes in size.

Before uploading documents, applicants first will be asked to input a name and valid email address for each reference provider. The application to this position requires a minimum of two (2) reference letters. The applicant may enable RAPS to generate an automatic email to the reference provider, requesting a letter of reference and offering a secure link to the RAPS website where a letter can be uploaded quickly and easily.

After completing the "Provide References" screens, the applicant will come to the "Attach Documents" screen and be asked to upload into RAPS the required application materials listed above. The completion of this application process in RAPS is indicated by a confirmation number, which the applicant should retain.

University of Macau

Rank: Assistant/Associate/Full Professor of Political Science/International Relations

Assistant/Associate/Full Professor of Political Science/International Relations

The University of Macau (UMacau) is the flagship public university in Macao, which gives it a unique advantage when pursuing the goal of becoming a world-class university with regional characteristics. English is its working language. In recent years, the university has made great progress in various areas, gaining increasing international recognition for its teaching, research, and community service. To better support higher education development in Macao and to meet society's ever-increasing demand for high-quality professionals, the university relocated in August 2014 to a new campus of approximately 1.09 square kilometres. With a state-of-the-art campus, the implementation of Asia's largest residential college system, the establishment of new faculties and well-equipped laboratories, the increasing numbers of students and faculty members recruited from around the world, UMacau possesses great potential and provides exciting new possibilities for professional development.

The Department of Government and Public Administration of the Faculty of Social Sciences invites applications for a position in the area of Political Science/International Relations. The rank and specialization are open, but preference will be given to individuals with research and teaching expertise in one or more of the following: International Relations Theory; Regional Security Conflicts; China/

EU & Asian Relations; Changing Global Governance; and/or International Organizations. Applications from both established scholars and early-career academics are welcome.

Qualifications

Applicants must have a PhD in a relevant field and a proven record of publication in high caliber international journals and presses in the area of Political Science / International Relations. Applicants should demonstrate a strong commitment to quality research and scholarship and documented excellence in teaching at both the graduate and undergraduate levels.

The selected candidate is expected to assume duty in August 2017.

Position and Remuneration

Remuneration and appointment rank offered will be competitive and commensurate with the successful applicants' academic qualification, current position and professional experience. The current local maximum income tax rate is 12% but is effectively around 5% - 7% after various discretionary exemptions.

Mercyhurst College

Rank: Visiting Assistant Professor of Political Science

Subfield(s): Public Law, American Government and Politics, Political Theory

The Political Science Department invites applications for a visiting assistant professor position beginning fall 2017. This position may be renewable or converted to tenure-track contingent on excellent performance, departmental staffing and programmatic needs, and continued administrative approval. A strong commitment to excellence in undergraduate teaching at a liberal arts university is essential. The position combines courses in constitutional law and political theory including American Political Thought, and a standard one-semester survey course that covers the full range of the history of political theory. We are especially interested in candidates who can serve as advisor to our pre-law society and our mock trial team. The ability to teach Introduction to American Government will be viewed favorably, as will the ability to develop and teach courses in the area of privacy rights. Preference will be given to candidates who have completed the Ph.D. or will complete it before the fall 2017 semester. Candidates must be currently eligible to work in the United States. Screening of applications will begin immediately and the position will remain open until filled. Applicants should submit a letter of interest, current vitae, transcripts (initial submissions may be unofficial copies), three letters of recommendation, evidence of teaching excellence, and a one-page statement summarizing their philosophy of teaching to Jennifer Verga, administrative assistant: jverga@mercyhurst.edu. Mercyhurst is a mid-sized, Catholic, liberal arts, primarily residential university, founded by the Sisters of Mercy, with an enrollment of approximately 2,500 students. Class sizes are small and the normal teaching load is 8 courses per year. For information about the political science program see the departmental website: <http://polisci.mercyhurst.edu>. Mercyhurst is an equal opportunity employer committed to a diverse faculty, staff and student body and welcomes all applicants.

Tufts University: Tisch College

Rank: Jonathan M. Tisch College of Civic Life Postdoctoral Fellowship in Philosophy or Political Theory

Tufts University's Tisch College, in collaboration with the departments of Philosophy and of Political Science, will award a Jonathan M. Tisch College of Civic Life Postdoctoral Fellowship in the 2017-18 academic year to a junior scholar with a PhD in the field of philosophy or political theory who is not yet tenured. Candidates should submit a research proposal for scholarly work related to civic studies. Civic studies (see <http://activecitizen.tufts.edu/civic-studies/>) is an emerging interdisciplinary field that develops ideas and ways of thinking helpful to citizens, understood as co-creators of their worlds. Because civic studies emphasizes the agency of people and groups, it combines ethics, empirical work, strategies, and institutions. Tufts will hold a social ontology conference in 2018, and therefore applicants with interests in social ontology or collective agency are particularly encouraged.

Scholars are required to spend the year (September–May) in residence at Tufts University. For the 2017-18 academic year the Fellowship carries a stipend of $55,000, health insurance, and a $3,000 research fund. The Fellow will be expected to support capstone experiences with Tufts undergraduates and to teach one academic course in addition to conducting their research. The fellow will also be expected to deliver a public lecture at Tufts on the topic of their research at some point during the fellowship year.

Qualifications

Junior scholar with a PhD in the field of philosophy or political theory who is not yet tenured. Candidates should submit a research proposal for scholarly work related to civic studies.

Application Instructions

Applications must include: a cover letter, CV, writing sample, two-page research proposal, and three letters of recommendation. Applications should be submitted to <https://apply.interfolio.com/40979>.

Application deadline: April 15, 2017. Notification of award: May 8, 2017.

Questions about the position should be addressed to Tisch College Associate Dean of Research Peter Levine at Peter.Levine@tufts.edu.

Start Date: Fall 2017

Vanderbilt University

Rank: Visiting Assistant Professor

The Department of Political Science at Vanderbilt University invites applications from outstanding political scientists with a specialization in Political Theory for an appointment as a Visiting Assistant Professor. We are particularly interested in candidates able to offer courses in the history of political thought. The ability to offer our introductory course on Justice is a plus. Visiting Assistant Professors will be invited to teach at least one course in their area of expertise, to share work in progress in our Social and Political Thought Workshop, and to participate in the intellectual life of the department more generally. The appointment will begin Fall 2017. Salary and benefits are highly competitive. The Department will begin reviewing files as early as March 1, 2017. To assure full consideration, complete applications should be received by March 24, 2017, but earlier applications are welcomed and interviews may be scheduled at any time. The Department will accept applications until the position is filled. Among the qualifications required for hire is the Ph.D. in hand or expected by Fall 2017.

Vanderbilt is an AA/EQ employer. We particularly encourage applications from minorities and women.

All applicants can apply for this position by submitting a cover letter, curriculum vitae, a research statement, a teaching statement, a writing sample, teaching evaluations (if applicable), and three letters of reference electronically at Academic Jobs Online (<https://academicjobsonline.org/ajo/jobs/8958>).

Villanova University

Rank: Post-doctoral Fellow

Subfield(s): Other, Non-Academic, Political Theory

Specializations: History & Politics, Leadership Studies, Advanced Industrial Societies

The Augustine and Culture Seminar Program seeks scholars in the Humanities to apply for the Arthur J. Ennis, O.S.A. Post-doctoral Teaching Fellowship, starting in the Fall Semester 2017. This is a one-year fellowship renewable for a 3-year terminal appointment, for a total of 4 years. We welcome applications from scholars who can both complement and broaden our current interdisciplinary faculty working in the disciplines of Literature, Theology, History, Philosophy, Political Science, and Classics. The deadline for applications is March 24, 2017.

Ennis fellows teach three courses of the Augustine and Culture Seminar each semester. ACS is a two semester writing intensive interdisciplinary seminar, required of all first year students. The students are expected to write a minimum of thirty pages a semester.

ACS 1000 focuses on texts of antiquity and the Middle Ages, including Augustine's Confessions. ACS 1001 continues the emphasis on self in the world through the lens of modernity, starting with Shakespeare and continuing to the present. The course gives attention to the Catholic intellectual tradition and its ongoing mission to defend the dignity of the human person, recognize the need for human solidarity, and serve the common good.

Fellows participate in the ACS Program's faculty development program as well as the ACS lecture series. There are no other service requirements.

University of South Dakota

The University of South Dakota invites applications and seeks nominations for Chair of the Department of Political Science and Director of the W.O Farber Center for Civic Leadership. The successful candidate must have a PhD in Political Science or closely related field with evidence of excellent teaching and a dynamic research agenda. The fields of expertise are open, though the ability to teach in American Politics, Public Administration and/or Political Theory would be welcome. Preference will be given to candidates who have some administrative experience and who have demonstrated the ability to connect with alumni and other external constituencies. Candidates with a strong academic record may also qualify for an appointment as the endowed Odeen-Swanson Distinguished Professor of Political Science.

The successful candidate will be expected to cultivate a broad range of alumni contacts, develop strong relationships with public and private sector partners throughout the state, region and nation, be effective at fundraising, lead by example as a strong scholar, teacher and mentor, and represent the interests of the Department at all levels of the University. The successful candidate will administer a diverse unit with three undergraduate majors (political science, criminal justice and international studies), five graduate programs (MA, MPA, MSA, EMPA and Ph.D.), and several minors. Several programs are online with additional programs being considered for online delivery. The Department has a long and deep tradition of mentoring students, which is reflected in a strong and attentive base of alumni. That tradition has also resulted in the Department being especially well-endowed with scholarships, travel awards, and endowed professorships. The Farber Fund enables our students to study abroad, pursue language immersions, take internships, and participate in a multitude of domestic & international study tours, competitions and conferences. This is a 12 month appointment. Salary is competitive. Anticipated start date is August 22, 2017, although an earlier start date will be considered.

Applications must be submitted online at <https://yourfuture.sdbor.edu> and should include 1) a cover letter explaining interest in the position; 2) curriculum vitae, and 3) contact information for four references. Additional information may be requested of finalists for the position. Review of applications will begin March 15, 2017 and continue until the position is filled.

About Bucknell University

Bucknell University is a highly selective, predominately undergraduate, private university with approximately 3600 students. Apart from its excellent academic departments and programs, it boasts the Center for the Study of Race, Ethnicity, and Gender, which supports faculty teaching and scholarship in these areas; the Griot Institute for Africana Studies, which provides faculty and student intellectual and creative engagement with the cultures, histories, narratives, peoples, geographies and arts of Africa and the African diaspora; and the Bucknell Institute for Public Policy, which supports faculty research and teaching on issues of domestic, international, and comparative public policy. Bucknell also has a small but growing community of Asia scholars.

In the spring of 2014, Bucknell introduced a 5-Year Diversity Plan aimed at enhancing the diversity of the faculty, staff, student body, and curriculum of the university.

Located in Central Pennsylvania along the Susquehanna River, Bucknell is nestled in the Borough of Lewisburg, an architectural gem that has been ranked as one of America's best small towns. The Lewisburg area offers a unique combination of outdoor recreation opportunities, and appealing amenities such as art galleries, an art deco theater, historic museums, and charming independent boutiques and restaurants. In addition, the surrounding region offers outstanding schools, medical facilities, and an affordable cost of living. For those who crave the city, Bucknell is within an easy three-hour drive to Philadelphia, New York, Baltimore, and Washington, D.C.

EEO

Bucknell University, an Equal Opportunity Employer, believes that students learn best in a diverse, inclusive community and is therefore committed to academic excellence through diversity in its faculty, staff, and students. We seek candidates who are committed to Bucknell's efforts to create a climate that fosters the growth and development of a diverse student body, and we welcome applications from members of groups that have been historically underrepresented in higher education.

Emerson College

Rank: Assistant Professor in Political Communication

Subfield(s): Political Theory, Other, Other

The Communication Studies department invites applications for a full-time tenure track professor (rank depending on qualifications) in political communication to begin on August 24, 2017.

Candidates must have completed a terminal degree by the time of hire. Successful candidates must also demonstrate potential for a productive scholarly research agenda, continuing professional practice, teaching experience within a diverse student community with evidence of potential for teaching excellence, and show the ability to work and collaborate effectively with faculty, students, and staff from diverse backgrounds.

The preferred candidate's teaching and research interests will be principally focused in political communication from a quantitative perspective. Preference will be given to candidates with experience in data driven analysis in opinion polling and web-based data analytics. Additional expertise in one or more of the following areas is desired: campaign management; electoral politics; social justice and politics; race and political communication; polling and demographics; civic engagement; public diplomacy; sports communication; and public affairs. Superior candidates will be those who can also complement other areas of department focus in sports communication, civic engagement, professional communication, global communication, public relations, non-profits, international relations, service-oriented teaching, and community-based learning. The successful candidate will teach both undergraduate and graduate courses that fit the his or her research and teaching interests of the candidate.

As a member of the department, the candidate will advise and mentor undergraduate and graduate students, which can include advising student organizations aligned with political communication. Supporting the theory-practice mission of the Department of Communication Studies, the candidate will have the opportunity to engage in experiential and online learning, including the Washington, D.C. Program and civic engagement projects.

The Department of Communication Studies offers undergraduate and graduate programs. At the undergraduate level, degree programs are for students who wish to pursue communication-driven careers in the corporate, political, sports, or non-profit arenas. All three programs share a core curriculum that includes courses in communication research methods, argument and advocacy, and conflict and negotiation. The Master of Arts in Communication Management provides students with the knowledge, theory, and skills necessary to design and execute strategic, integrated communication plans for public and private organizations with expertise in web-based communication.

Emerson College is committed to an active, intentional, and ongoing engagement with diversity—in people, in the curriculum, in the co-curriculum, and in the College's intellectual, social, cultural, and geographical communities. Emerson endorses a framework of inclusive excellence, which recognizes that institutional excellence comes from fully engaging with diversity in all aspects of institutional activities. Members of historically under-represented groups are encouraged to apply.

Emerson & Boston

Communication Studies, founded in 1884 as the first department in Emerson College, engages students to appreciate application of theory and practice in leadership roles in all walks of life. From your first day at Emerson, Communication Studies students are immersed in local, national and global projects through coursework, teamwork, internships, and co-curricular activities such as Emerson College Polling Society, Forensics, and the Communication, Politics, and Law Association. Communication students work with their counterparts in Barcelona, Mexico, Chile, as well as locally in Boston, with the Bird Street Civic Engagement Project and Emerson Literacy Education & Empowerment Project (eLEEP).

Emerson College is dedicated exclusively to programs in communication and the arts. Located in the center of diversity-rich Boston, Emerson is surrounded by major healthcare, technology and research centers. The College enrolls approximately 3,783 full-time undergraduates and 671 full and part-time graduate students from 71 countries and 48 states.

To Apply, please submit a cover letter indicating teaching philosophy and professional orientation, summary of teaching evaluations if applicable, curriculum vitae, and contact information for three references (not to be contacted without applicant's written approval). Application materials must be submitted through our applicant tracking system at the following link: <https://emerson.peopleadmin.com/postings/13721>.

Questions about the position should be directed to the Department Chair, Dr. Greg Payne at gregory\_payne@emerson.edu. Review of applications will begin January 2017 and continue until the position is filled.

University of Houston

Rank: Assistant, Associate or Full Professor - Policy Ethics

The Hobby School of Public Affairs at the University of Houston (UH) anticipates four tenure-track positions beginning in fall 2017. Two positions are at the level of Assistant Professor in the area of decision sciences. The other two positions are open rank and in the areas of (a) ethical or political theory and public policy, and (b) research methodology leveraging the NSF's Empirical Implications of Theoretical Models (EITM) initiative. Applicants for all positions are expected to demonstrate a record predictive of future scholarly productivity, potential and commitment to develop and sustain a nationally competitive program of research with implications for public policy, capability and commitment to contribute to undergraduate and graduate programs and a doctoral degree or equivalent. The Hobby School emphasizes multidisciplinary collaboration and affiliation. Individuals with cross-cutting disciplinary and/or methodological interests are particularly encouraged to apply, as are those with interest in working with diverse populations.

Decision sciences faculty — from a variety of disciplines including disciplines not usually associated with policy schools such as business, computer science, and industrial engineering — will apply state-of-the-art decision sciences theory and research to public policy, with interests including but not limited to statistical decision theory, rational expectations in economics and political science, cognitive psychology, technological change and the restructuring of decision processes, the impact of probabilistic forecasts on decision algorithms, and the micro-foundations of comparative justice systems. Research methodology faculty are expected to have familiarity with the NSF's EITM initiative (see <http://www.nsf.gov/sbe/ses/polisci/reports/pdf/eitmreport.pdf>) and serve at the Hobby School's EITM Summer

Research Institute (see <http://www.uh.edu/class/hcpp/eitm/index.php>). Ethical or political theory and public policy faculty are expected to be philosophers or political theorists who continue to expand their impact beyond disciplinary boundaries into public policy and applied ethics.

With over 40,000 students on the main campus and one of the most culturally and ethnically diverse public universities in the nation, UH (www.uh.edu) is a Carnegie-Designated Tier One Public Research University. The Hobby School was recently created by the UH system and thus offers incoming faculty the opportunity to join existing faculty in building and shaping the direction and culture of the school. The Hobby School emphasizes advanced social science methodology and political philosophy in its teaching, training, and research.

The Hobby School is well-positioned for impactful research in Houston, the nation's fourth (soon to be third) most populous American city. Houston itself is a laboratory for the future, as it reflects what is happening in the United States in terms of demographic and economic trends. Moreover, Houston (www.houston.org) boasts a high quality of life with the following attributes: (a) a growing economy, including oil & gas, the Johnson Space Center, and the Texas Medical Center, the world's largest medical center, (b) rich traditions in music, theatre, art, and sports, (c) a diverse population, (d) award winning restaurants reflective of many cultures, and (e) relatively low cost/affordability among large cities.

Interested individuals are asked to apply as follows:

Assistant Professor for Decision Sciences at <http://jobs.uh.edu/postings/33130>

Assistant/Associate/Professor for Methodology at <http://jobs.uh.edu/postings/33131>

Assistant/Associate/Professor for Policy Ethics at <http://jobs.uh.edu/postings/33134>

and to include a letter of interest, statements of teaching philosophy and interests and research interests, three names and email addresses of prospective writers of letters of recommendation (i.e., referees), a curriculum vita, up to three representative papers, and evidence of excellence in teaching.

Upon receiving applications, referees may be contacted via the online application system to submit letters directly for junior applicants, but not for senior applicants. Review of applications will begin immediately and will continue until the positions are filled. Questions may be directed to the following search committee chairs: (a) Pablo Pinto (ppinto@central.uh.edu) regarding the potential research methodology position, (b) Jeffrey Church (jchurch@central.uh.edu) regarding the potential ethical/political theory and public policy position, and Alan Witt (witt@uh.edu) regarding the potential decision sciences positions.

Committed to the active recruitment of a diverse faculty and student body, UH is an Affirmative Action/Equal Opportunity Employer of women, minorities, protected veterans, and individuals with disabilities and encourages applications from these and other protected group members. Because broad diversity is essential to an inclusive climate and critical to the University's goals of achieving excellence in all areas, the search committees anticipate holistically assessing the many qualifications of each applicant and favorably consider an individual's record working with students and colleagues with broadly diverse perspectives, experiences, and backgrounds in educational, research, or other work activities. For the complete UH nondiscrimination and affirmative action policy, see the Equal Opportunity and Nondiscrimination Statement at <http://www.uh.edu/af/universityservices/policies/sam/1GenAdmin/1D5.pdf>. The positions are also subject to the University of Houston's background check policy.

Catholic University of America

Rank: Assistant Professor. Priority: Comparative Politics or IR.
Other: Political Theory or Open
Subfield(s): Comparative Politics, Political Theory, Other
Specializations: International Political Economy, Middle East, Post Communist Europe

The Department of Politics at the Catholic University of America invites applications for a tenure-track assistant professor position to begin in August 2017. Applicants at the associate rank may also be considered. While we encourage applications by candidates in any field, our priority is to recruit in World Politics, which comprises Comparative Politics and International Relations. Located in the nation's capital, the Department of Politics offers a popular undergraduate major and a distinguished MA and PhD program.

We seek candidates who understand, are enthusiastic about, and will make a significant contribution to the mission of the University, which reads as follows: "As the national university of the Catholic Church in the United States, founded and sponsored by the bishops of the country with the approval of the Holy See, The Catholic University of America is committed to being a comprehensive Catholic and American institution of higher learning, faithful to the teachings of Jesus Christ as handed on by the Church. Dedicated to advancing the dialogue between faith and reason, The Catholic University of America seeks to discover and impart the truth through excellence in teaching and research, all in service to the Church, the nation and the world."

Expertise in a regional area such as Latin America, the Middle East or Eastern Europe is a plus. Security studies and foreign policy are traditional strengths of the department. Beyond these fields, areas of interest include but are not limited to political theory and constitutionalism. We seek applicants who can enhance the historical, institutional and theoretical strengths of the department. Candidates who can cross field and disciplinary lines and articulate the relevance of ethical and religious concerns in their areas of specialty are particularly attractive.

Applicants should send a letter of interest, a C.V., and a writing sample to pol-search@cua.edu and arrange for the submission of graduate transcripts and three letters of reference. In addition, applicants are asked to submit a one- to two-page statement indicating how their research, teaching, and service will make a distinctive contribution to our University's mission and to the vision of Catholic education outlined in the Apostolic Constitution on Catholic Universities Ex Corde Ecclesiae, which can be found here: http://w2.vatican.va/content/john-paul-ii/en/apost\_constitutions/documents/hf\_jp-ii\_apc\_15081990\_ex-corde-ecclesiae.html .

Questions about the position may be addressed to Dr. Dennis Coyle, department chair, at coyle@cua.edu . Review of applications will begin immediately and continue until the position is filled. The University will perform background checks on all new faculty hires prior to making the final offer of employment. The Catholic University of America is an Equal Opportunity Employer.

Stanford University

Rank: Postdoctoral Fellowship
Specializations: Political Philosophy & Theory, Political Theory, Normative Political Theory

For 2017-2018, the McCoy Family Center for Ethics in Society at Stanford seeks to appoint up to four new postdoctoral fellows. Selected fellows will be designated as either Interdisciplinary Ethics Fellows or General Ethics Fellows. The two types of fellows have some distinct training opportunities and responsibilities as described below, but they form a common community at the Center and participate together in the Center's intellectual life. The programs are described in detail below.

We aim to appoint fellows in both programs (four total across the two programs). All applicants will be considered for both types of fellowships, and finalists will be consulted as to their designation as Interdisciplinary Ethics or General Ethics fellows.

Interdisciplinary Ethics Fellowship

2017-18 will be the second year of this new fellowship program at the Center. The program is rooted in the Center's commitment to bring ethical reflection to bear on pressing social problems. Addressing many of these social problems involves knowledge of the work of social science, law, and the life sciences. The premise of this program is that the normative scholarship of our fellows will be enhanced by engagement with empirically-oriented scholars. To that end, each fellow in the program will be matched with a partner research center at Stanford that is dedicated to interdisciplinary research. The partner centers will be determined based upon selected fellows' interests. For the 2016-17 year, the partner centers included the Stanford Center for Biomedical Ethics, the Stanford Center on Poverty and Inequality, the Immigration Policy Lab, and the Stanford Center for Philanthropy and Civil Society. To be considered for this fellowship, applicants must have normative training and hold a PhD in Philosophy or Political Science. Scholars with a JD are also eligible so long as their research interests focus on ethical dimensions of public policy or law. Fellows will participate in the regular intellectual life of the partner center and the Center for Ethics in Society (e.g., attend weekly workshops; events; professional training opportunities), interact with undergraduates in the Ethics in Society Program, and contribute to an interdisciplinary ethics community across campus.

General Ethics Fellowship

Some selected fellows will be part of our longstanding postdoctoral program that is more broadly open to candidates with substantial normative research in any area within philosophy or political science. For 2017-18, we are especially interested in candidates with research interests in inequality, global justice, environmental ethics, biomedical ethics, and ethics and technology, but we welcome all applicants with strong normative interests. Applicants must have a PhD in philosophy or political science. Scholars with a JD are also eligible so long as their research interests focus on ethical dimensions of public policy or law. General Ethics Fellows participate in the intellectual life of the Center for Ethics in Society (attend weekly workshops; events; professional training opportunities), teach one class per year, interact with undergraduates in the Ethics in Society Program, and contribute to an interdisciplinary ethics community across the campus.

Appointment Requirements and Application Details

For both types of fellowships, the appointment term is September 1, 2017 - August 31, 2018. The initial term may be renewed for an additional year. Applicants must have completed all requirements for their PhD by June 30, 2017. Candidates must also be no more than 3 years from the awarding of their degree (i.e., September 2014).

The application deadline is December 12, 2016 (5:00 pm Pacific Standard Time).

Stanford University is an equal opportunity employer and is committed to increasing the diversity of its scholarly community. We welcome applications from women and members of minority groups, as well as others who would bring additional dimensions to the university's research and teaching missions. Salary is competitive.

Applicants should submit a cover letter, CV, a writing sample (no more than 25 pages double-spaced), three letters of recommendation, a one-page research statement (single spaced), and a teaching portfolio. Additional materials will not be considered. All applicants will be considered for both types of fellowships, and finalists will be consulted about whether they may be designated as Interdisciplinary Ethics or General Ethics fellows.

Applications will be collected via Interfolio. Please refer to the Center's website for information about how to submit your materials: <https://ethicsinsociety.stanford.edu/postdoc-fellows/application-process>

If you have questions, please contact Anne Newman (arneman@stanford.edu).

University of Idaho

Rank: Director

Subfield(s): Public Policy, Public Administration, Methodology

The University of Idaho is hiring a new Director of the McClure Center for Public Policy Research (<http://www.uidaho.edu/class/mcclure-center>).

Applications received by March 31, 2017 will receive first consideration. To apply, please visit: jobs.uidaho.edu

The position description is available at: <http://jolephant.com/display.php?ad=972333>

With a focus on critical issues facing Idaho and the nation, the director is responsible for:

- Conducting and overseeing nonpartisan, science-based, public policy research;
- Informing public policy dialogue through research publications, presentations, and events, with a primary emphasis on non-academic audiences including media. The Center may also contribute academic publications.
- Building relationships and interacting on a regular basis with Idaho's elected and appointed officials;
- Engaging University of Idaho students in learning about public policy making;
- Engaging with faculty from the University of Idaho to inform and participate in the research; and

- Ensuring the McClure Center's financial and organizational sustainability.

To carry out these responsibilities, the director builds relationships with state and local policy makers, agency staff, elected officials, nonprofits, and other external stakeholders. Through these relationships, the director identifies policy issues of importance to Idaho and research opportunities for the center and the broader university. In this way, the McClure Center leverages both the university's expertise and the center's strategic location in Boise to respond to critical policy issues through research and outreach.

Faculty status will be considered with appropriate qualifications and within the policy guidelines of the appropriate department.

Start Date: Spring 2017

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

University of North Dakota

Rank: Visiting Assistant Professor, Public Policy/Public Administration

The Department of Political Science & Public Administration at the University of North Dakota invites applications for a one-year appointment as a Visiting Assistant Professor position in Public Policy/Public Administration, beginning August 16, 2017 for AY 2017-2018. The position entails a 3/3 teaching assignment that will include one course on policy analysis and one course on public budgeting in our NASPAA-accredited MPA program. The successful candidate will also contribute courses to our undergraduate programming, which includes research methods, administrative processes (budgeting emphasis), and a public policy course in an area of expertise. Applicants whose scholarly activity focuses on areas of critical importance to the state of North Dakota and the region, such as energy, rural health, or public policy addressing technological advances (e.g. UAS or carbon capture) will receive preference.

ABD with some scholarly activity is the minimum required; PhD is preferred. Teaching experience is strongly desired. Interested individuals should submit electronically a letter of interest, vita, evidence of teaching excellence, a writing sample, and contact information for three references through the AppliTrack system located on the UND Human Resources website at <https://und.edu/finance-operations/human-resources-payroll/careers/secure/job-openings-external.cfm>. Review of applications will begin April 2017. We offer a competitive salary.

The University of North Dakota is an Affirmative Action/Equal Opportunity Employer. All qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to race, color, religion, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, or national origin. Women, minorities, veterans, and individuals with disabilities are encouraged to apply. Applicants are invited to provide information regarding their gender, race, and/or ethnicity, veteran's status, and disability status on the form found at <http://und.edu/affirmative-action/apcontrolcard.cfm>. This information will remain confidential and separate from your application.

This position is subject to a criminal history record check.

In compliance with the Jeanne Clery Disclosure of Campus Security Policy and Campus Crime Statistics Act, the University of North Dakota publishes an Annual Security and Fire Safety Report. The report includes the university's policies, procedures, and programs concerning safety and security, as well as three years' of crime statistics for our campus. As a prospective employee, you are entitled to a copy of this report. The report and statistical data can be found online at http://und.edu/discover/\_files/docs/annual-security-report.pdf. You may also request a paper copy of the report from the UND Police Department located at 3851 Campus Road, Grand Forks, ND, 58202.

North Dakota veterans claiming preference must submit all proof of eligibility by the closing date. Proof of eligibility includes a DD-214 and if claiming disabled status, a current letter of disability (less than one year old) from the Veterans' Administration. Please upload the DD-214 and other veterans' preference qualifying documentation through the form found at <http://und.edu/affirmative-action/apcontrolcard.cfm>.

University of South Dakota

Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Public Administration, Political Theory

The University of South Dakota invites applications and seeks nominations for Chair of the Department of Political Science and Director of the W.O Farber Center for Civic Leadership. The successful candidate must have a PhD in Political Science or closely related field with evidence of excellent teaching and a dynamic research agenda. The fields of expertise are open, though the ability to teach in American Politics, Public Administration and/or Political Theory would be welcome. Preference will be given to candidates who have some administrative experience and who have demonstrated the ability to connect with alumni and other external constituencies. Candidates with a strong academic record may also qualify for an appointment as the endowed Odeen-Swanson Distinguished Professor of Political Science.

The successful candidate will be expected to cultivate a broad range of alumni contacts, develop strong relationships with public and private sector partners throughout the state, region and nation, be effective at fundraising, lead by example as a strong scholar, teacher and mentor, and represent the interests of the Department at all levels of the University. The successful candidate will administer a diverse unit with three undergraduate majors (political science, criminal justice and international studies), five graduate programs (MA, MPA, MSA, EMPA and Ph.D.), and several minors. Several programs are online with additional programs being considered for online delivery. The Department has a long and deep tradition of mentoring students, which is reflected in a strong and attentive base of alumni. That tradition has also resulted in the Department being especially well-endowed with scholarships, travel awards, and endowed professorships. The Farber Fund enables our students to study abroad, pursue language immersions, take internships, and participate in a multitude of domestic & international study tours, competitions and conferences. This is a 12 month appointment. Salary is competitive. Anticipated start date is August 22, 2017, although an earlier start date will be considered.

Applications must be submitted online at <https://yourfuture.sdbor.edu> and should include 1) a cover letter explaining interest in the position; 2) curriculum vitae, and 3) contact information for four references. Additional information may be requested of finalists for the position. Review of applications will begin March 15, 2017 and continue until the position is filled.

PUBLIC LAW

Loyola University Maryland

Rank: Visiting Affiliate Assistant Professor or Instructor in American Politics and Constitutional Law

Specializations: American Politics, Civil Rights & Liberties, Constitutional Law & Theory

The Department of Political Science at Loyola University Maryland invites applications for a one-year, full-time, non-tenure track position as a Visiting Affiliate Assistant Professor or Instructor in American Politics and Constitutional Law.

We seek candidates displaying a strong commitment to excellence in teaching and interest in the enduring questions of politics. Candidates for Assistant Professor should have a Ph.D.; candidates for Instructor should be ABD. The teaching load for the one-year position is four courses (capped at 30 students each) for both of two semesters, with two preparations in the fall and spring terms. In the fall semester, this will entail two classes of an introductory course on American Politics and two classes of Constitutional Law 1 (federalism and separation of powers). The spring load will again be two classes of introductory American Politics, plus two classes of Constitutional Law 2 (individual liberties). Service to the Department as assigned by the Chair.

Loyola University Maryland is a selective liberal arts university in the Jesuit Catholic tradition. The university is committed to intellectual excellence and social justice as it prepares students for a diverse and changing world. Recognized as a leading independent, comprehensive university in the northeastern United States, Loyola has a beautiful historic Evergreen campus in Baltimore and Graduate Centers in Timonium and Columbia. Loyola enrolls over 4,000 students in its undergraduate programs and about 2,000 students in its graduate programs.

Loyola is committed to fostering an inclusive environment and seeks applicants from all backgrounds who can contribute to its educational mission. Loyola is an Equal Employment Opportunity Employer, and welcomes applications from underrepresented groups. Additional information is available at www.loyola.edu.

To apply, please submit a C.V., three letters of reference, graduate transcripts (copies are acceptable), sample syllabi (if available), an article-length manuscript or chapter demonstrating scholarly potential, and a cover letter explaining teaching approach in relation to Loyola's educational mission. Teaching evaluations should also be submitted if available.

Please go to careers.loyola.edu to complete the online application. The completed application should be submitted by April 21 to ensure full consideration.

Mercyhurst College

Rank: Visiting Assistant Professor of Political Science
Subfield(s): Public Law, American Government and Politics, Political Theory

The Political Science Department invites applications for a visiting assistant professor position beginning fall 2017. This position may be renewable or converted to tenure-track contingent on excellent performance, departmental staffing and programmatic needs, and continued administrative approval. A strong commitment to excellence in undergraduate teaching at a liberal arts university is essential. The position combines courses in constitutional law and political theory including American Political Thought, and a standard one-semester survey course that covers the full range of the history of political theory. We are especially interested in candidates who can serve as advisor to our pre-law society and our mock trial team. The ability to teach Introduction to American Government will be viewed favorably, as will the ability to develop and teach courses in the area of privacy rights. Preference will be given to candidates who have completed the Ph.D. or will complete it before the fall 2017 semester. Candidates must be currently eligible to work in the United States. Screening of applications will begin immediately and the position will remain open until filled. Applicants should submit a letter of interest, current vitae, transcripts (initial submissions may be unofficial copies), three letters of recommendation, evidence of teaching excellence, and a one-page statement summarizing their philosophy of teaching to Jennifer Verga, administrative assistant: jverga@mercyhurst.edu. Mercyhurst is a mid-sized, Catholic, liberal arts, primarily residential university, founded by the Sisters of Mercy, with an enrollment of approximately 2,500 students. Class sizes are small and the normal teaching load is 8 courses per year. For information about the political science program see the departmental website: <http://polisci.mercyhurst.edu>. Mercyhurst is an equal opportunity employer committed to a diverse faculty, staff and student body and welcomes all applicants.

Georgia State University

Rank: Lecturer
Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Political Theory, Public Law

The Department of Political Science at Georgia State University invites applications for three full-time Lecturer positions to begin Fall 2017, pending budgetary approval. Lecturers at Georgia State University are full-time non-tenure track faculty with both teaching and service requirements, as well as the opportunity for promotion. Successful candidates will have experience at delivering high quality instruction to undergraduates. They will also have experience and interest in working closely with students of varied backgrounds to promote excellence in undergraduate learning. Enrolling one of the most diverse student bodies in the nation, Georgia State University has been recognized for providing an outstanding education and exceptional support for students from all backgrounds. Women and minorities are especially encouraged to apply.

Position 1: Candidates for this position should be able to teach Intro to American Government, both online and in large in-person sections. Additional expertise and interest in teaching Intro to Research Methods is preferred.

Position 2: Candidates for this position should be able to teach Intro to American Government as well as Classical to Early Modern Political Thought and Modern Political Thought. In addition, ability to teach Global Issues will be viewed favorably.

Position 3: Candidates for this position should be able to teach courses in our pre-law concentration, including Judicial Process, Civil Liberties and Rights, Intro to American Law, and American Constitutional Law. Additional expertise and interest in teaching Intro to Research Methods is preferred. Candidates able to serve as pre-law advisor are preferred.

Candidates must have a Ph.D. in hand by August 2017. Review of applications will begin immediately and will continue until the position is filled. Georgia State University is a unit of the University System of Georgia, is an equal opportunity institution, and an EEO/AA employer. An offer of employment will be conditional on background verification. Applicants should send a letter of application, curriculum vitae, three letters of recommendation, student evaluations, statement of teaching philosophy, sample syllabi, sample teaching materials, any additional evidence of teaching effectiveness, and original transcript(s). Please submit all materials electronically to pols-search@gsu.edu. Please be sure to identify for which of the three positions you wish to apply.

University of Central Florida

Rank: Assistant/Associate/Full Professor in Coastal Environmental Policy/Coastal Political Geography

Applicants for a position in Coastal Environmental Policy or Coastal Political Geography, open rank, must have a Ph.D. from an accredited institution in political science, geography, or a related discipline, such as environmental policy/political geography or environmental anthropology/sociology. Preference will be given to applicants who have expertise in public policy related to coastal environments and/or experience in interdisciplinary, environmental social sciences focusing on public policy and coastal ecology. The anticipated starting date is flexible and can be as early as August 2017.

The successful applicant will be expected to bring expertise in environmental policy and politics to an interdisciplinary team in order to advance understanding of the social-ecological systems in coastal areas. They must demonstrate a strong commitment to interdisciplinary research and publication; a commitment to interdisciplinary and collaborative research, have demonstrated an ability to perform high-impact research, and be able to develop a program that will lead to strong extramurally-funded research. The successful candidate will also have, or be able to establish, a strong teaching record with the ability to teach and mentor students at both graduate and undergraduate levels.

We are bringing together a core group of faculty who work across traditional research boundaries, or are working in transdisciplinary fields, in the broad interdisciplinary area of Sustainable Coastal Systems (<http://ucf.edu/research/coastalsystems>). This new hire will join current cluster faculty, representing twelve departments and seven colleges, to lead a world-class effort to understand and assess natural and human-related impacts to coastal ecosystem health, restoration, sustainability, and mitigation; and ultimately to characterize and integrate physical, chemical, biological, and socio-economic processes impacting coastal communities and ecosystems. This individual will be expected to strengthen both their tenure home department as well as the Sustainable Coastal Systems cluster.

Candidates must apply online at <http://www.jobswithucf.com/postings/46716> (Position #38660) and attach the following materials: a cover letter, curriculum vitae, teaching statement, research statement, and contact information for three professional references. In the cover letter candidates should address their background in their discipline and should identify the department(s) for their potential tenure home. In the research statement candidates should include descriptions of any history of interdisciplinary research collaborations and how their current and future research can contribute to the cluster's overall interdisciplinary objectives.

The search committee will review applications on an ongoing basis until the position is filled.

The University of Central Florida, with more than 63,000 students, has grown in quality, diversity, and reputation in its first 50 years and is committed to being inclusive and diverse by building a faculty who are a reflection of the students they teach. For more information about this position please contact the Sustainable Coastal Systems Cluster search committee Chair, Dr. Graham Worthy at CoastalCluster@ucf.edu

Claremont Graduate University
Rank: Tenured Position in Public Policy Analysis

Division of Politics & Economics
 School of Social Science, Policy & Evaluation

Claremont Graduate University

Tenured Position in Public Policy Analysis

Location: Claremont, California 91711

Claremont Graduate University's School of Social Science, Policy and Evaluation invites applications for a tenured position in Public Policy, scheduled to begin Fall of 2017. CGU's Department of Politics and Policy offers only graduate level degrees such as the PhD in Political Science (one PhD field is Policy) and several MA degrees including the MA in Public Policy, the MA in Public Policy and Evaluation, the MA in Politics, Economics & Business, the MA in Politics (with emphases in American and in Political Philosophy), and the MA in Religion and Politics. CGU's Department of Politics and Policy is an Institutional Member of the Association for Public Policy Analysis and Management (APPAM).

In keeping with CGU's graduateonly focus, we seek a nationally renowned scholar in the area of Public Policy. The specific policy focus is open, but the Department of Politics and Policy has linkages with CGU's division of Community and Global Health, and an interest in Health Policy is welcome. We also have links with the Division of Behavioral and Organizational Sciences, home to a nationally recognized program in Evaluation. Faculty who are able to cross the Policy Evaluation boundary would also be welcome. We also seek a scholar who can show successful experience working with doctoral students to complete their dissertations in a timely way and to assist them in publication. The successful candidate will demonstrate experience and/or capacity for advising a diverse student body. The standard teaching load is two courses per semester, and the successful candidate should be prepared to teach graduatelevel core Policy courses such as Policy Design and Implementation, the Policy Process, CostBenefit Analysis, Policy Evaluation, etc. We expect that the successful candidate will be expert in the use of appropriate research methods such as multivariate statistics, computational analytics, Geographic Information Systems (GIS), etc. CGU is also an Esri Partner in GIS Research and Education.

The School is also interested in scholars and teachers whose work enhances CGU's diversity goals. Current members of Political Science and Public Policy at CGU are interested in diversity issues; for example, our senior Policy Analysis scholar is currently doing work on environmental justice, and our senior Political Scientist is doing work on American Indian voting rights. CGU is a small university with a focus on transdisciplinarity, and therefore applicants with interests beyond one field are appreciated.

CGU is affiliated with five undergraduate colleges via the Claremont University Consortium. Joint research opportunities and teaching with the Claremont colleges may be possible.

Applicants should submit a letter discussing their interest in the position and how they could contribute to Public Policy at CGU, a CV, a diversity statement (see below), and the names of four references to dpesearch@cgu.edu. Consideration of applications will begin April 15, 2017 and continue until the position is filled. Any questions should be directed to Eliana Leon, Eliana.leon@cgu.edu.

CGU is an equal opportunity employer and does not discriminate on the basis of race, color, creed, national or ethnic origin, religion, ancestry, sex, gender identity and expression, age, sexual orientation, physical or mental disability, marital status, pregnancy status, or any other basis protected by applicable laws in its employment or hiring practices.

Claremont Graduate University is committed to increasing the diversity of the campus community and the curriculum. Candidates who can contribute to that goal are encouraged to identify their strengths and experiences in this area via their diversity statements. Applicants who have a demonstrated commitment to issues of diversity and inclusion are particularly encouraged to apply as are individuals who have membership in one or more of the following groups whose underrepresentation in the American professoriate has been severe and longstanding: Alaska Natives, Black/African Americans, Mexican Americans/Chicanas/Chicanos, Native American Indians, Native Pacific Islanders (Hawaiian/Polynesian/Micronesian), and Puerto Ricans.

University of Idaho

Rank: Director

Subfield(s): Public Policy, Public Administration, Methodology

The University of Idaho is hiring a new Director of the McClure Center for Public Policy Research (<http://www.uidaho.edu/class/mcclure-center>).

Applications received by March 31, 2017 will receive first consideration. To apply, please visit: jobs.uidaho.edu

The position description is available at: <http://jobelephant.com/display.php?ad=972333>

With a focus on critical issues facing Idaho and the nation, the director is responsible for:

- Conducting and overseeing nonpartisan, science-based, public policy research;
- Informing public policy dialogue through research publications, presentations, and events, with a primary emphasis on non-academic audiences including media. The Center may also contribute academic publications.
- Building relationships and interacting on a regular basis with Idaho's elected and appointed officials;
- Engaging University of Idaho students in learning about public policy making;
- Engaging with faculty from the University of Idaho to inform and participate in the research; and

- Ensuring the McClure Center's financial and organizational sustainability.

To carry out these responsibilities, the director builds relationships with state and local policy makers, agency staff, elected officials, nonprofits, and other external stakeholders. Through these relationships, the director identifies policy issues of importance to Idaho and research opportunities for the center and the broader university. In this way, the McClure Center leverages both the university's expertise and the center's strategic location in Boise to respond to critical policy issues through research and outreach.

Faculty status will be considered with appropriate qualifications and within the policy guidelines of the appropriate department.

University of California, Davis

Rank: Visiting Assistant Professor

UC CENTER SACRAMENTO:
2017-2018

The UC Center Sacramento (UCCS) is pleased to announce a one-year Visiting Assistant Professorship for 2017-2018 in American Politics and Public Policy. We welcome new or recent Ph.D. scholars with an interest in California state politics and policy. Degree must be completed by July 1, 2017.

The University of California Center, Sacramento (UCCS) is a system-wide program of the University of California. Since its inception in 2004, the program has offered UC students from across the 10-campus system opportunities to study public policy and journalism through seminars and internships in and around the state Capitol. The Center also serves as a conduit through which research-based knowledge generated on the 10 campuses is disseminated to lawmakers, legislative staff, and executive branch officials.

The Visiting Assistant Professor will be responsible for teaching Political Science undergraduate courses as well as performing administrative duties assigned as part of the UCCS leadership team. Duties include teaching four undergraduate courses per year, and in addition, to contribute materially towards the Center's mission to increase student and alumni outreach, enhance the student experience, and expand the Center's research and knowledge sharing function. The appointment will be housed at UCCS located in Sacramento, California.

The UCCS Visiting Assistant Professor salary is competitive and includes health benefits.

In evaluating the candidates, the following criteria will be used: coursework and demonstrated knowledge of American Politics and public policy; quality of the graduate training program; demonstration of teaching ability; letters of recommendation; ability to complete degree before appointment; and interview. An acquaintance with California politics and policy making is considered advantageous.

To apply, please submit a cover letter, CV, teaching evaluations, statement on teaching, writing sample, and three letters of reference through the online application form found at <https://recruit.ucdavis.edu/apply/JPF01470>. For full consideration applications must be received by April 1, 2017. The position is open until filled.

The University of California is an equal opportunity employer with a strong institutional commitment to the achievement of diversity among its faculty and staff.

University of Houston

Rank: Assistant, Associate or Full Professor - Policy Ethics

The Hobby School of Public Affairs at the University of Houston (UH) anticipates four tenure-track positions beginning in fall 2017. Two positions are at the level of Assistant Professor in the area of decision sciences. The other two positions are open rank and in the areas of (a) ethical or political theory and public policy, and (b) research methodology leveraging the NSF's Empirical Implications of Theoretical Models (EITM) initiative. Applicants for all positions are expected to demonstrate a record predictive of future scholarly productivity, potential and commitment to develop and sustain a nationally competitive program of research with implications for public policy, capability and commitment to contribute to undergraduate and graduate programs and a doctoral degree or equivalent. The Hobby School emphasizes multidisciplinary collaboration and affiliation. Individuals with cross-cutting disciplinary and/or methodological interests are particularly encouraged to apply, as are those with interest in working with diverse populations.

Decision sciences faculty — from a variety of disciplines including disciplines not usually associated with policy schools such as business, computer science, and industrial engineering — will apply state-of-the-art decision sciences theory and research to public policy, with interests including but not limited to statistical decision theory, rational expectations in economics and political science, cognitive psychology, technological change and the restructuring of decision processes, the impact of probabilistic forecasts on decision algorithms, and the micro-foundations of comparative justice systems. Research methodology faculty are expected to have familiarity with the NSF's EITM initiative (see <http://www.nsf.gov/sbe/ses/polisci/reports/pdf/eitmreport.pdf>) and serve at the Hobby School's EITM Summer Research Institute (see <http://www.uh.edu/class/hcpp/eitm/index.php>). Ethical or political theory and public policy faculty are expected to be philosophers or political theorists who continue to expand their impact beyond disciplinary boundaries into public policy and applied ethics.

With over 40,000 students on the main campus and one of the most culturally and ethnically diverse public universities in the nation, UH (www.uh.edu) is a Carnegie-Designated Tier One Public Research University. The Hobby School was recently created by the UH system and thus offers incoming faculty the opportunity to join existing faculty in building and shaping the direction and culture of the school. The Hobby School emphasizes advanced social science methodology and political philosophy in its teaching, training, and research.

The Hobby School is well-positioned for impactful research in Houston, the nation's fourth (soon to be third) most populous American city. Houston itself is a laboratory for the future, as it reflects what is happening in the United States in terms of demographic and economic trends. Moreover, Houston (www.houston.org) boasts a high quality of life with the following attributes: (a) a growing economy, including oil & gas, the Johnson Space Center, and the Texas Medical Center, the world's largest medical center, (b) rich traditions in music, theatre, art, and sports, (c) a diverse population, (d) award winning restaurants reflective of many cultures, and (e) relatively low cost/affordability among large cities.

Interested individuals are asked to apply as follows:

Assistant Professor for Decision Sciences at <http://jobs.uh.edu/postings/33130>

Assistant/Associate/Professor for Methodology at <http://jobs.uh.edu/postings/33131>

Assistant/Associate/Professor for Policy Ethics at <http://jobs.uh.edu/postings/33134>

and to include a letter of interest, statements of teaching philosophy and interests and research interests, three names and email addresses of prospective writers of letters of recommendation (i.e., referees), a curriculum vita, up to three representative papers, and evidence of excellence in teaching.

Upon receiving applications, referees may be contacted via the online application system to submit letters directly for junior applicants, but not for senior applicants. Review of applications will begin immediately and will continue until the positions are filled. Questions may be directed to the following search committee chairs: (a) Pablo Pinto (ppinto@central.uh.edu) regarding the potential research methodology position, (b) Jeffrey Church (jchurch@central.uh.edu) regarding the potential ethical/political theory and public policy position, and Alan Witt (witt@uh.edu) regarding the potential decision sciences positions.

Committed to the active recruitment of a diverse faculty and student body, UH is an Affirmative Action/Equal Opportunity Employer of women, minorities, protected veterans, and individuals with disabilities and encourages applications from these and other protected group members. Because broad diversity is essential to an inclusive climate and critical to the University's goals of achieving excellence in all areas, the search committees anticipate holistically assessing the many qualifications of each applicant and favorably consider an individual's record working with students and colleagues with broadly diverse perspectives, experiences, and backgrounds in educational, research, or other work activities. For the complete UH nondiscrimination and affirmative action policy, see the Equal Opportunity and Nondiscrimination Statement at <http://www.uh.edu/af/universityservices/policies/sam/1GenAdmin/1D5.pdf>. The positions are also subject to the University of Houston's background check policy.

University of Central Florida

Rank: Associate/Full Professor in Coastal Environmental Policy/Coastal Political Geography

Sustainable Coastal Systems Cluster: Coastal Environmental Policy/Political Geography

Applicants for an Associate/Full Professor position in Coastal Environmental Policy or Coastal Political Geography must have a Ph.D. from an accredited institution in political science, geography, or a related discipline, such as environmental policy/political geography or environmental anthropology/sociology.

The successful applicant will become a core faculty member in the Sustainable Coastal Systems Cluster and must bring expertise in environmental policy and politics to an interdisciplinary team in order to advance understanding of the social-ecological systems in coastal areas with a focus on public policy and coastal ecology. They must demonstrate a strong commitment to interdisciplinary research and publication; a commitment to interdisciplinary and collaborative research, have demonstrated an ability to perform high-impact and high-demand research, and develop a program that will lead to strong extramurally-funded research. The successful candidate will also have a strong teaching record with the ability to teach and mentor students at both graduate and undergraduate levels.

As part of an on-going hiring campaign, UCF recently established an interdisciplinary cluster approach to strengthen its academic offerings and research mission. In support of this effort, we are searching for faculty in the broad interdisciplinary area of Sustainable Coastal Systems (<http://ucf.edu/research/coastalsystems>) and plan to bring together a core group of faculty who work across traditional research boundaries or are working in transdisciplinary fields. This new hire will join current cluster faculty, representing twelve departments and seven colleges, to lead a world-class effort to understand and assess natural and human-related impacts to coastal ecosystem health, restoration, sustainability, and mitigation; and ultimately to characterize and integrate physical, chemical, biological, and socio-economic processes impacting coastal communities and ecosystems.

Faculty in these interdisciplinary positions will be expected to strengthen both their tenure home department as well as the Sustainable Coastal Systems cluster. Both individual and interdisciplinary infrastructure and startup are expected with these five new positions. Each new faculty member will have a unique interdisciplinary mentoring team to foster intellectual breadth and to facilitate integrative capacity to strengthen the success of the cluster.

Candidates must apply on-line at <http://www.jobswithucf.com/postings/43915> (Position #38869) and attach the following materials: a cover letter, curriculum vitae, teaching statement, research statement, and contact information for three professional references. In the cover letter candidates should address their background in their discipline and should identify the department(s) for their potential tenure home. In the research statement candidates should include descriptions of their successful interdisciplinary research collaborations and how their current and future research can contribute to the cluster's overall interdisciplinary objectives.

The search committee will review applications on on-going basis and continue to accept applications until the position is filled. The University of Central Florida, the nation's second-largest university with more than 63,000 students, has grown in size, quality, diversity, and reputation in its first 50 years. Today, the university offers more than 200 degree programs at its main campus in Orlando and more than a dozen other locations. UCF is an economic engine attracting and supporting industries vital to the region's future while providing students with real-world experiences that help them succeed after graduation. For more information, visit <http://ucf.edu>. UCF is an Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action employer. All applicants are encouraged to apply, including minorities, women, veterans, and individuals with disabilities.

For more information about these positions please contact the Sustainable Coastal Systems Cluster Search Chair, Dr. Graham Worthy at CoastalCluster@ucf.edu.

Hendrix College

Rank: Assistant Professor of Politics

Hendrix College invites applications for a tenure track position for an Assistant Professor of Politics to begin in August 2017. The College seeks to extend its tradition of excellence in teaching and scholarship by attracting faculty who combine mastery of their disciplines with broad intellectual interests and commitment to the aims of a liberal arts college. The successful applicant will teach the basic public policy course; one or two upper level, policy specific courses, and generally contribute to the department's American politics offerings. The successful applicant also will teach a section of Research Methods and participate in the Department's undergraduate research seminar, as well as the college's program in engaged learning. Training that would allow the development of a course in some aspect of political behavior is also a plus. Doctorate is expected by the start date; ABD will be considered.

Applications should include a cover letter addressing the candidate's interest in teaching in a demanding liberal arts environment, a curriculum vitae, statement of teaching interests, evidence of teaching effectiveness, graduate and undergraduate transcripts, as well as a statement of scholarly interest. In addition, three letters of recommendation should be requested sent via e-mail to facultyrecs@hendrix.edu. Address cover letter to Dr. Kimberly Maslin, Politics/IR Department Chair. Review of materials will begin October 15, 2016 and will continue until the position is filled.

Electronic submissions are strongly encouraged and can be submitted at <https://goo.gl/PcAgQE>. Hendrix is a distinguished liberal arts college located in Conway, Arkansas, thirty miles from Little Rock at the foothills of the Ozark Mountains. The College, affiliated with the United Methodist Church, has a strong commitment to excellence in teaching liberal arts. Hendrix College strives to maintain an environment free from discrimination and harassment, where employees treat each other with respect, dignity and courtesy. The College adheres to the principle of equal educational and employment opportunity without regard to age, race, color, religion, gender, disability, sexual orientation, gender identity or expression, genetic information, or national origin.
