

POLITICAL SCIENCE JOBS

Online journal from the American Political Science Association

November 2018 | Volume 7, Issue 11

ISSN 2167-8332

In this Issue

Career Resources

Finding a Job in Political Science 3

Job Listings

Administration 4

American Government and Politics 7

Comparative Politics 61

International Relations 112

Methodology 174

Non-Academic 188

Other 188

Political Theory 229

Public Administration 255

Public Law 275

Public Policy 286

About the Journal

Published monthly by the American Political Science Association, Political Science Jobs is an online journal containing all active jobs in political science as listed in the APSA online job board eJobs. The combined resource of the Political Science Jobs journal and the daily updated and fully searchable eJobs platform provides a comprehensive employment resource for political science and supports a transparent, efficient, and ethically-grounded labor market for the discipline.

Access to the journal is made freely accessible to APSA's over 14,000 individual and departmental members within the US and around the world.

Submissions

Job listings may be submitted to the journal via the online eJobs platform at www.apsanet.org/jobs and applicable fees may apply.

Online Access: www.apsanet.org/jobs

The core content in this journal draws upon active listings within eJobs, linkages to association programs and career resources. Readers are encouraged to visit the eJobs website for daily updates on new job listings and candidate resumes, and use the online features including search tool to locate listings by field of interest, employer or candidate name, region, keyword, position, salary, institution type, and most recent submissions.

Copyright © 2012
American Political Science Association
All rights reserved

APSA does not grant permission to any individual or party to republish or otherwise distribute this journal or any portion therein in any print or electronic form.

POLITICAL SCIENCE JOBS

November 2018 | Volume 7, Issue 11

ISSN 2167-8332

Online journal from the American Political Science Association

In this Issue

Career Resources

Finding a Job in Political Science 3

Job Listings

Administration 4 (5 listings)

American Government and Politics 7 (111 listings)

Comparative Politics 61 (95 listings)

International Relations 112 (126 listings)

Methodology 174 (25 listings)

Non-Academic 188 (83 listings)

Other 188 (47 listings)

Political Theory 229 (36 listings)

Public Administration 255 (19 listings)

Public Law 275 (75 listings)

Public Policy 286 (listings)

Total listings this issue 622

Resources and Guidance on

Finding a Job in Political Science

Hundreds of academic positions are advertised each year in political science. Finding the openings is the easy part; knowing how to approach the application and interview process is a little more challenging. At APSA, we have collected resources to assist candidates in the academic job search. We would like to highlight a few of these key resources here. The complete list of job resources is available online at www.apsanet.org/jobs.

eJobs: This online resource contains comprehensive online listing of political science jobs, is updated daily with new job listings and candidate resumes, and is fully searchable by field of interest, name of employer/candidate, region, keyword, position, salary, type of institution, and most recent posts.

Data on Jobs Market: APSA gathers and releases data regarding the placement of political science Ph.Ds. View this information at www.apsanet.org/content_7623.cfm.

Mentoring: Enroll in the APSA Mentoring Program online at www.apsanet.org/mentoring.

eJobs Placement Interview Services: The eJobs Annual Meeting Placement Interview Service provides space and facilities for employers who have eJobs posted to interview candidates at the APSA meeting. Many other conferences, such as the Northeastern and Western, also use the APSA online service to schedule placement interviews. Check the listings online in eJobs.

Ethics Guide: The APSA Guide to Professional Ethics in Political Science includes specific guidance on hiring and employment practices. Order a print copy or view online at www.apsanet.org/ethics.

Asking the Right Questions: APSA Job Candidate Questions to Ask Program

Asking the right questions provides valuable information for career decisions. As part of the APSA Job Candidate Questions to Ask (JCQ) Program participating political science departments have agreed to answer the following questions from job candidates.

Salary

1. What is the salary structure?
2. How is salary normally negotiated?
3. How are annual increases handled?
4. Is there an automatic escalator to ensure the salaries of future hires will not outpace those of existing department members?

Service Activities

1. What are the expectations of pre-tenure and tenured faculty regarding:
 - departmental and institutional committee work,
 - professional or disciplinary activities, and
 - outreach activities to communities external to institution?

Research Support

1. What departmental or institutional resources are available to support:
 - access to research materials and equipment,
 - the employment of research assistants,
 - research expenses on/off campus, and
 - travel expenses for conferences?

2. What departmental or institutional resources are available to seek external funding and to administer external funding awards?

Teaching Support

1. What departmental or institutional resources are available to support:
 - the development of teaching expertise,
 - innovations in teaching, and
 - the introduction of new courses and new technologies?
2. What are departmental expectations regarding:
 - the average course load,
 - the number of different courses taught by faculty, and
 - advising of graduate and undergraduate students?

Tenure, Renewal, and Annual Review

1. What policies and procedures govern the granting of tenure, renewal of contracts for pre-tenure faculty, and annual reviews of faculty performance?
2. What are the department's expectations for successful performance leading to the granting of tenure or renewal of contracts for pre-tenure faculty?
3. What are the department's expectations for a positive annual review?

Mentoring and Faculty Support Initiatives

1. What attention does the department give to integrating new faculty into the department, the institution, and in the profession?
2. Does the department or institution have programs that address:
 - the employment of dual-career professional couples,
 - family needs of faculty and staff, and
 - issues associated with minority faculty and staff?

Health and Life Insurance

1. What are the plans offered?
2. How are benefits disbursed?
3. What are the out-of-pocket expenses?
4. Are partners and/or children covered, and to what extent?
5. What portion of my paycheck will be deducted for these benefits?

Retirement

1. How many types of retirement plans are offered?
2. What is the matching percentage of the institution?
3. Is contribution required (and how much)?

More on the APSA Job Candidate Questions to Ask (JCQ) Program

For more information about the JCQ program and to view the departments who agreed to answer these questions at www.apsanet.org/JCQ.

Political Science Jobs for November

ADMINISTRATION

University of Minnesota, Duluth

Rank: Dean

The University of Minnesota Duluth (UMD) is seeking qualified candidates for the position of Dean of the College of Liberal Arts (CLA) to commence on July 1, 2019.

UMD is a midsized, comprehensive land and sea grant university with a small-campus feel and large-campus opportunities. UMD offers baccalaureate, masters, and selected doctoral degrees across a broad range of disciplinary and interdisciplinary fields (<http://www.d.umn.edu/>). As the second largest research university in the state, we are dedicated to integrating liberal education, research, creative activity, and public engagement to prepare students to thrive as lifelong learners and globally engaged citizens. UMD recently received ten-year re-accreditation from the Higher Learning Commission and updated our strategic plan (<http://www.d.umn.edu/strategic-planning/strategic-plans>).

The successful candidate will have a record of distinguished administrative leadership, teaching, and scholarship appropriate for a senior faculty appointment within an academic discipline represented in the College of Liberal Arts. The Dean will be committed to creating a vibrant academic and intellectual climate in the College, foster and champion a collective vision for the liberal arts, exercise creative and consultative leadership, have experience with budgeting and strategic planning, and work effectively with a multidisciplinary faculty, staff, student body, and other units of the University. The successful candidate will also have a proven record of developing external and internal relations, a successful record of fund-raising, and a sustained record of advancing diversity and inclusion.

Required qualifications include an earned doctorate from a regionally accredited university in a field within the CLA; a minimum of three years of administrative experience at least at the department head or equivalent level; a record of teaching, research, and service that meets the qualifications necessary to be tenured at the rank of Professor in one of the departments within the College; a strong record of administrative leadership and personnel and budgetary management; effective written communication skills; a record of developing external relations with public and private sectors; and a record of commitment to enhancing and maintaining diversity among students, staff, and faculty.

Situated at the western tip of Lake Superior, the international port city of Duluth, winner of Outside Magazine's Best Town 2014 Tournament, offers an enticing selection of adventures for four season outdoor enthusiasts as well as a rich variety of cultural opportunities, including ballet, theatre, symphony, and art galleries. Metropolitan Minneapolis/St. Paul is less than three hours south of Duluth.

Further information is available at: <https://humanresources.umn.edu/jobs>. Applicants must apply online via the employment system at: <https://humanresources.umn.edu/jobs>, job ID number 327283. Individuals from underrepresented groups and US Military veterans are strongly encouraged to apply. Applicants in need of disability accommodations need simply contact the search committee chair with those requests. Inquiries may be directed to the Chair of the Search Committee: Dr. Jerry Pepper, Associate Vice Chancellor for Academic Affairs, by email at gpepper@d.umn.edu or by phone at (218) 726-7274.

The search committee will begin review of completed applications December 3, 2018, and will continue until the position is filled. The anticipated start date is July 1, 2019.

The University of Minnesota is an equal opportunity employer and educator.

Start Date: Summer 2019

Application Deadline: 11/30/2018

Date Posted: 10/31/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 5078

University of Delaware

Rank: Assistant or Associate Professor & Faculty Coordinator

The Associate in Arts Program (AAP) at the University of Delaware seeks to hire a continuing track faculty member at the rank of Assistant or Associate Professor to serve as Faculty Coordinator of the Wilmington Campus. We welcome applicants with disciplinary or interdisciplinary specialization in any of the academic departments housed within the College of Arts & Sciences.

The Faculty Coordinator will provide leadership for the UD-AAP Wilmington Campus, home to more than 400 students; serve as administrator for nine full time and more than thirty part time faculty; and report to the AAP Director. Candidates for this position must possess a doctoral degree and should demonstrate experience and expertise in administration, skill at leading faculty, and proficiency at empowering students from historically underrepresented groups as they work to achieve their fullest potential in higher education. The successful candidate will have an excellent record as an instructor and be expected to teach two classes per semester in their discipline, including introductory courses and possibly higher level courses where appropriate. The faculty coordinator will also be responsible for hiring adjunct instructors; collaborating with faculty and staff members to schedule courses; leading campus events, including recruitment, orientation, campus welcome and convocation; and liaising with university wide entities, advisement, community partners and city leaders. Administrative responsibilities and compensation will extend into the summer.

The UD AAP offers an associate degree curriculum on campuses in Wilmington, Dover and Georgetown, Delaware. Its faculty teach coursework in humanities, history, the social and behavioral sciences, natural sciences, and languages. AAP students constitute a racially and socioeconomically diverse body of learners, the majority of whom go on to pursue majors in all seven colleges on the University of Delaware's main campus in Newark. AAP students enjoy an uninterrupted transition from the AAP to a bachelor's degree program in the junior year. AAP faculty commit a majority of their time and effort to preparing students to succeed in their transition to bachelor's degree programs or to the workforce. Continuing track faculty have opportunities to pursue research, are eligible for promotion and sabbaticals, and receive full and generous benefits as part of their compensation package.

Applicants must submit: (1) a current curriculum vita; (2) a cover letter summarizing their interest, qualifications and leadership philosophy; (3) a teaching statement, including a description of future teaching interests; (4) a statement on diversity and inclusion; (5) graduate transcripts; and (6) contact information for three references (references will not be contacted prior to notifying the candidate). Candidates should ensure that their materials address the qualifications stated above. Review of applications will begin on November 30, 2018 and will continue until the position is filled. Those interested should apply through Interfolio at: <http://www.udel.edu/faculty-staff/human-resources/careers/faculty-jobs/>. Please direct questions, but not application materials, to Dr. David Teague, Search Committee Chair (teague@udel.edu).

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 10/19/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 5033

University of New Orleans

Rank: Chair and Professor, Department of Planning and Urban Studies

Subfield(s): Administration, Public Administration, Public Policy

Specializations: Urban Politics, Environmental Policy, Energy Policy

POSITION SUMMARY

The University of New Orleans and the College of Liberal Arts, Education and Human Development seeks candidates for Chair of the Department of Planning and Urban Studies at rank of full-professor with tenure. Chairs are appointed on an initial three-year term and are subject to evaluation and renewal. The successful candidate will have prior academic leadership experience, preferably as a department chair or associate chair. The candidate will need to manage a small but diverse department, in the areas of fiscal responsibility, personnel management, curricular and program oversight, outreach and recruitment, and assessment. The successful candidate will be a collaborative and innovative leader, reporting to the dean and working closely with other chairs in the college, especially those in Anthropology/Sociology and Political Science/Public Administration. Discussions are underway about the college structure, whether a move to a School is warranted for this department, alone or combined with other departments. The successful candidate will be open to other structures that will strengthen and grow the programs in Planning and Urban Studies.

Candidates must possess an earned doctorate in urban/regional planning, or a related field (e.g. social ecology, urban studies/design, applied ecology), which is required for the successful candidate to have demonstrated credentials and to ensure the granting of tenure. The candidate must also have a record suitable for hiring at the rank of full professor, preferably by earning that rank at a previous regionally accredited university. Research in the areas of Environment & Energy, Coastal Zone Planning, and/or Environmental Planning is preferred. Documented success at securing outside funding is strongly preferred as well. The Planning and Urban Studies department offers five degrees: a Bachelor of Science in urban studies and planning (both face-to-face and online), a Master of Science in Transportation, an accredited Master of Urban and Regional Planning, and a Master of Science and a Ph.D. in Urban Studies. Additionally, the department offers three certificates: Geographic Information Systems, Historic and Cultural Preservation, and Disaster Management and Community Resilience. PLUS houses the University of New Orleans Transportation Institute and the Center for Hazards, Assessment and Technology.

RESPONSIBILITIES

50% of effort as department chair; 50% as teaching and research. The assigned time and stipend for department chair changes annually, depending on numbers of majors, SCH generated, and fulltime faculty.

REQUIRED QUALIFICATIONS

PhD from regionally accredited university in the field of urban planning or a closely related field; earned tenure at current institution or qualifications that would allow the candidate to be hired as full professor with tenure.

DESIRED QUALIFICATIONS

Significant leadership experience; discipline specialty areas of Environment & Energy, Coastal Zone Planning, and/or Environmental Planning; documented success at securing outside funding.

POSITION NUMBER 1978

To apply: <http://new.uno.edu/careers/1978>

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 10/9/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4986

Arizona State University

Rank: Assistant Professor

Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Administration, Public Administration

Specializations: American Politics, Congress, Bureaucracy & Organizational Behavior

Assistant Professor (JOB#12544)

School of Politics and Global Studies

Arizona State University

The School of Politics and Global Studies at Arizona State University (Tempe) invites applications for a full-time, tenure-track assistant professor beginning August 2019. We are interested in candidates whose research and teaching focus is on American institutions, broadly defined. Candidates with expertise in the U.S. Congress, the presidency, interest groups, institutional interactions, representation or opinion-policy linkages are encouraged to apply.

We are open with respect to theoretical orientation, substantive focus, and methodological approaches. Position duties include teaching courses in the American politics curriculum at both the undergraduate and graduate levels, including an upper-division undergraduate course; advising and mentoring graduate and undergraduate students; developing an active research agenda; and providing service to the department, college, and university.

Minimum Qualifications: candidates must hold a Ph.D. in Political Science or related discipline by the time of appointment; demonstrated excellence in research commensurate with appointment at the level of assistant professor; and evidence of promise in and commitment to undergraduate and graduate teaching.

Desired qualifications: demonstrated success meeting the needs of diverse student populations and/or reaching out to diverse communities; the ability to teach advanced statistical methods, particularly at the graduate level; a clear record of, or clear potential for, publishing in top journals and/or top university presses, demonstrated potential to establish a strong, externally-funded research program.

The application deadline is November 2, 2018; if not filled, then every two weeks thereafter until the search is closed. A complete application must include the following: a letter of application stating qualifications, experience, research plans, and teaching interests; a complete curriculum vita; a writing sample, and contact information for three references. Candidates are expected to have a Ph.D. degree completed by August 1, 2019.

All application materials must be received by the deadline and sent to <https://academicjobsonline.org/ajo/jobs/12022>. We will not accept any mailed applicant material, including reference letters; this is an online, paperless search. A background check is required for employment. Questions about the position or search should be directed to the search committee chair at kahn@asu.edu.

The School of Politics and Global Studies (SPGS) values interdisciplinary scholarship, and the successful candidates will have the opportunity to affiliate and collaborate with other schools and centers at Arizona State University. Candidates who can make use of our experimental laboratories are particularly encouraged to apply.

Arizona State University is a VEVRAA Federal Contractor and an Equal Opportunity/ Affirmative Action Employer. All qualified applicants will be considered without regard to race, color, sex, religion, national origin, disability, protected veteran status, or any other basis protected by law. ASU's full non-discrimination statement (ACD 401) is located on the ASU website at <https://www.asu.edu/aad/manuals/acd/acd401.html> and <https://www.asu.edu/titleIX>.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: 11/2/2018

Date Posted: 9/18/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4855

University of Georgia

Rank: IA Faculty and Director of the Center for International Trade & Security

Subfield(s): Comparative Politics, International Relations, Administration

Specializations: International Security, Trade, Regulatory Policy

The University of Georgia's School of Public and International Affairs (SPIA) seeks applications for the Director of the Center for International Trade and Security (CITS) and faculty member in the Department of International Affairs (DIA). The successful candidate must have a strong record of grant and contract acquisition and have a scholarly record appropriate for an academic appointment at a research university. The ideal candidate will also have policy relevant experience or expertise, fundraising experience, and previous management responsibilities. The Director of the Center reports to the Dean of SPIA. The position is open rank, tenured or tenure-track.

CITS was established in 1987 with the support of former U.S. Secretary of State Dean Rusk. It has a distinguished record of policy-relevant research, training, and public service, focusing primarily on security issues related to the trade, transfer, and use of materials and technology associated with weapons of mass destruction (WMD), nuclear security culture, and nonproliferation policy. CITS is fortifying its connections to DIA and to other UGA academic units by broadening its scope to include human security, counterterrorism, counterinsurgency, cybersecurity, and energy security. While strategic trade management and nonproliferation remain central to CITS' mission, outstanding candidates with research and policy experience outside this area are also encouraged to apply.

The Center's programs are sustained by corporate and government contracts, private foundation grants, and individual and corporate gifts. For more than three decades, these sources of support have enabled the Center to design and implement training and outreach programs to U.S. and foreign policymakers and industry representatives. The Center also engages these communities, educators, students, and the general public via international colloquia on emerging security issues. CITS's Security and Strategic Trade Management Academy alone has trained more than 1,000 government officials, academics and industry representatives from 70 countries on the establishment, implementation, and enforcement of export controls.

CITS contributes to SPIA's Master of International Policy (MIP) Program that prepares graduate students for careers in international security and nonproliferation. CITS experts serve as instructors in the MIP Program, whose graduates have been placed in prestigious educational and government institutions. In addition, CITS experts administer the year-long Richard B. Russell Security Leadership Program which prepares undergraduates for careers in nonproliferation and national security. SLP Fellows have earned distinguished national and international scholarships and have been hired by US government agencies, international organizations, corporations, and consulting firms. For more information, visit: <http://spia.uga.edu/departments-centers/center-for-international-trade-and-security-cits/>.

DIA is a vibrant and extremely research-active department of twenty-two faculty members that specialize in a wide array of topics, including international conflict, human rights, human security, political institutions, extremism, political economy, and environmental governance. The faculty are leading scholars in their fields, have earned distinguished national and international honors, oversee externally-funded research projects, and serve in editorial positions at top peer-reviewed journals. Members of the faculty have also won prestigious teaching awards at the school and university levels. The department has an undergraduate degree program and contributes to multiple graduate degree programs, including the Ph.D. program in Political Science and International Affairs. Both DIA and CITS are housed within SPIA, one of the fastest growing public affairs schools in the world. SPIA ranks sixth among graduate schools of public affairs, according to the most recent U.S. News and World Report rankings.

The University of Georgia, located in Athens, Georgia, approximately 75 miles northeast of Atlanta, is a Research I institution in the University System of Georgia. Founded in 1785, the University is the largest and most comprehensive educational institution in the state. UGA (www.uga.edu) is a land/sea grant institution. Georgia is well known for its quality of life, with both outdoor and urban activities (www.georgia.gov).

Prospective candidates must apply for the position through the UGA Jobs site at: <http://www.ugajobsearch.com/postings/30612>. To complete the application, candidates will need to submit a cover letter indicating interest and qualifications, a current curriculum vitae, and the contact information for three individuals who can provide reference letters. A Ph.D. is required. The position is open until filled. Applications received by November 1, 2018 will be assured full consideration. For questions concerning the position, please contact Amanda Murdie, Head, Department of International Affairs, University of Georgia, Candler Hall 327, Athens, GA 30602 (telephone: 706-542-9659, email: murdie@uga.edu)

SPIA is committed to enhancing the diversity of the School and the curriculum. Candidates who can contribute to these goals are encouraged to apply and to identify their strengths and experiences in this area in their cover letter. The University of Georgia is an Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action employer. All qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to race, color, religion, sex, national origin, ethnicity, age, genetic information, disability, gender identity, sexual orientation or protected veteran status. Persons needing accommodations or assistance with the accessibility of materials related to this search are encouraged to contact Central HR (hrweb@uga.edu). Please do not contact the department or search committee with such requests.

Start Date: Fall 2019
Date Posted: 8/31/2018
Salary: Competitive
eJobs ID: 4747

AMERICAN GOVERNMENT AND POLITICS

Harvard University

Rank: Inequality in America Initiative Postdoctoral Fellowship
Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Public Administration, Public Policy

Organization: Harvard University
 Unit: Division of Social Science | Faculty of Arts and Sciences
 Position: Inequality in America Initiative Postdoctoral Fellowship
 Deadline: 3 December 2018
 Description:

The Inequality in America Initiative seeks applications from recent doctoral degree recipients interested in joining a multidisciplinary network of Harvard researchers working to address the manifold challenges of inequality. This program is intended to seed new research directions; facilitate collaboration and mentorship across disciplines; develop new leaders in the study of inequality; and deepen teaching expertise on the subject.

The fellowship is a two-year postdoctoral training program, with an optional third year conditional on program director approval and independent funding. The award includes $65,000/year plus fringe; office space; $2500 for computer equipment; a $10,000 research account; up to $2500/yr for research travel; up to $3000 for relocation.

The program director will pair each fellow with two Harvard faculty mentors (including one from outside the fellow's primary discipline), participating in one or more of five major research clusters:

- Mobility and Migration
- Science, Technology, Education, and Health
- Work, Family, and Opportunity
- Governance, Citizenship, and Social Justice
- America Inequality, Globally

Applicants to the 2019-20 program must have received a doctorate or equivalent terminal degree in May 2016 or later; applicants without a terminal degree must demonstrate that they will receive one by August 2019.

See full details at <https://inequalityinamerica.fas.harvard.edu/postdoctoral-program>

Start Date:
Application Deadline: 12/3/2018
Date Posted: 10/31/2018

Salary: $60,000 - $69,999
eJobs ID: 5085

Texas A&M University, Corpus Christi

Rank: Assistant Professor of Political Science
Specializations: Electoral Behavior, Political Behavior, Political Parties & Organizations

The College of Liberal Arts is seeking an Assistant Professor of Political Science in American Politics. The successful candidate will teach American Government and State and Local Government as part of a collaborative teaching team working in the university's nationally recognized First-Year Learning Communities Program. In addition the candidate will contribute to the teaching needs of the Political Science major with a special focus in introduction to political science. The candidate should have a primary academic field of American politics with fields of interest in one or more of the following: electoral behavior, political behavior, political parties and organizations, the presidency.

A strong commitment to excellence in teaching, research, and service is expected. This is a tenure-track faculty position. The appointment will begin fall 2019. The normal teaching load will be 3-3.

The Department of Social Sciences (DSOC) is a multi-disciplinary department in the College of Liberal Arts that offers undergraduate degrees in Political Science and Criminal Justice and the graduate degree of Masters of Public Administration. Because of its contribution to the core curriculum, Political Science generates some of the highest levels of student credit hours in the University. The Criminal Justice program is one of the largest undergraduate majors on campus. The MPA program is the largest graduate program in the College of Liberal Arts. DSOC faculty are leaders on campus, in the community and in their disciplines. We value excellence and work daily to support the University's Momentum 2020 Overarching Goal to become an emerging research university with an unparalleled commitment to every student's success, closing gaps in achievement and delivering a robust campus experience.

First-Year Learning Communities Program

Texas A&M University-Corpus Christi's First-Year Learning Communities Program (FYLCP) is an innovative nationally recognized program which helps students to make successful academic and social transitions from high school to the University. For more information, visit the FYLCP webpage at <http://dugs.tamucc.edu/fylcp/index.html>.

Required Qualifications:

- * Ph.D. in Political Science. ABDs will be considered; degree must be conferred by September 1, 2019.
- * Meet the appropriate credentialing requirements for the Southern Association for Colleges and Schools (SACS).
- * Be available to accept teaching assignments that may include classroom, hybrid, and online classes.

Preferred Qualifications:

- * Demonstrate the ability to teach majors courses in electoral behavior, political behavior, political parties and organizations, the presidency;
- * A desire for or experience in a team teaching environment;
- * Have classroom and online teaching experience; and
- * Can demonstrate teaching effectiveness through student evaluations, peer reviews, and/or self-evaluation, as well as demonstrate an active research program agenda that has resulted in or the potential to result in published scholarly works or peer-reviewed products.

* A student-centered, critical thinking method of teaching.

* Experience with learning communities or teaching first year students in higher education.

* An understanding/appreciation of the University's student population and campus mission.

TO APPLY: http://hr.tamucc.edu/Job_Opportunities/index.html

To be considered for the position, all required documentation must be submitted.

A completed application will include:

1. A letter of application addressing qualifications listed including a statement of teaching/research philosophy,
2. A curriculum vitae,
3. Three professional references including name, address, title, telephone number, and email addresses, and
4. Copies of transcripts of graduate coursework.

Review of applications will begin January 25, 2019. The posting will remain open until a finalist is selected.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 10/31/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 5083

Clarkson University

Rank: Assistant Professor of Political Science

Clarkson University's Department of Humanities and Social Sciences invites applications for a renewable, full-time teaching-track appointment in American Politics to begin in August 2019 with a focus on institutions (Congress, the Presidency) at the rank of Assistant Professor. The committee will prioritize candidates with a record of successful teaching of introductory level courses in American Politics, and the ability to teach courses on U.S. Foreign Policy or Peace Studies. The committee would consider additional teaching expertise in Healthcare Politics or Policy a plus.

The teaching load for this teaching-track appointment is four courses in the fall and three in the spring. In addition to offering several political science electives throughout the year, this faculty member will also teach three sections (only one prep) of Clarkson's required, writing-intensive course each fall for incoming students. The selected candidate will be offered an initial three-year contract with the opportunity for regular renewals. There are no research expectations for contract renewal.

Interested applicants should submit a letter of interest, curriculum vitae, statement of teaching philosophy, diversity statement, prior teaching evaluations, and a detailed description of the courses they might teach. Applications should be submitted online: <https://www.higheredjobs.com/clickthru/redirect.cfm?JobCode=176848230>

The search committee will begin reviewing applications immediately, but will give full consideration to any applicant who submits their materials by December 1, 2018. The search committee will continue to accept applications until the department fills the position. The committee will consider doctoral candidates. Applicants are required to submit contact information for three references. References will be contacted at the phone interview stage of the process.

All offers of employment are subject to the applicant successfully passing a background check (including, but not limited to, employment verification, educational and other credential verification, and criminal records).

Located in the Saint Lawrence River Valley, between the Adirondack high peaks and Ottawa and Montreal, Clarkson University provides easy access to both outdoor recreation and international social and cultural opportunities.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: 12/1/2018

Date Posted: 10/29/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 5076

Colorado Mesa University

Rank: Visiting Professor of History or Political Science

Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, International Relations, Other

Distinguished scholars in History or Political Science are invited to apply for the Wayne N. Aspinall Chair at Colorado Mesa University. For a $10,000 stipend, the visiting professor will spend three weeks on the Colorado Mesa University campus from late March-to mid-April 2020, teach a one credit course, give a major public lecture, and make any other invited appearances. Applications must include a vitae, a brief outline of a course proposal and a topic for the major public lecture. Submit application by January 21, 2019 to: Dr. Justin Gollob, Department of Social and Behavioral Sciences, Colorado Mesa University, 1100 North Ave., Grand Junction, CO 81501. Feel free to direct any inquiries to jjollob@coloradomesa.edu or 970 248-1279.

Start Date:

Application Deadline: 1/21/2019

Date Posted: 10/29/2018

Salary: Below $20,000

eJobs ID: 5077

Berry College

Rank: Tenure-Track Assistant Professor of Government and International Studies

Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Comparative Politics, Public Policy

The Department of Government and International Studies at Berry College invites applications for a Tenure Track Assistant Professor to begin in August 2019. The successful candidate will be a scholar-teacher-mentor with the following teaching responsibilities: a department Foundations (general education) course in American or comparative government, Social Science Research Methods for majors, and upper-level courses on health politics/policy or environmental politics/policy, with opportunities to teach in our Honors Program. Preference will be given to those with interdisciplinary interests that complement related college programs. The department is committed to offering an excellent undergraduate education that emphasizes the development of strong writing and critical thinking skills that will prepare students for entry into the workforce or for advanced study. We are especially interested in candidates whose teaching and scholarship will add diversity to the college curriculum and engage the community, including by cultivating internship opportunities. Candidates from historically underrepresented groups are especially encouraged to apply. All applicants should describe in their cover letter how they would help recruit and support students from underrepresented groups.

Minimum Qualifications: PhD required by May 2019. An active research agenda, an interest in encouraging and mentoring undergraduate research, and a demonstrated commitment to teaching undergraduates is essential.

Located on more than 26,000 acres in northwest Georgia in a setting of great natural beauty, Berry College has an enrollment of about 2,000 undergraduate students. The college is located 65 miles northwest of Atlanta, Georgia, and 65 miles south of Chattanooga, Tennessee. As a comprehensive liberal-arts college, Berry provides an integrated education that unites a challenging academic program with opportunities for spiritual and moral growth, work experience, and significant service to others.

Candidates should submit a letter of application, along with a current CV, copies of transcripts, statements of teaching philosophy, and three letters of reference to Darla Fox, Department of Government and International Studies, Berry College, P.O. Box 405010, Mt. Berry, GA 30149. Email inquiries: esands@berry.edu. For more information on our program, please visit our website at: www.berry.edu/academics/humanities/government/

Review of applications will begin December 1, 2018 and materials must be received by that date to receive full consideration.

Persons applying for employment with Berry College may be required to submit a full national background check. Berry College is an Equal Opportunity Employer.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 10/25/2018

Salary: $50,000 - $59,999

eJobs ID: 5066

Berry College

Rank: Tenure-Track Assistant Professor of Government and International Studies

Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Comparative Politics, Public Policy

The Department of Government and International Studies at Berry College invites applications for a Tenure Track Assistant Professor to begin in August 2019. The successful candidate will be a scholar-teacher-mentor with the following teaching responsibilities: a department Foundations (general education) course in American or comparative government, Social Science Research Methods for majors, and upper-level courses on health politics/policy or environmental politics/policy, with opportunities to teach in our Honors Program. Preference will be given to those with interdisciplinary interests that complement related college programs. The department is committed to offering an excellent undergraduate education that emphasizes the development of strong writing and critical thinking skills that will prepare students for entry into the workforce or for advanced study. We are especially interested in candidates whose teaching and scholarship will add diversity to the college curriculum and engage the community, including by cultivating internship opportunities. Candidates from historically underrepresented groups are especially encouraged to apply. All applicants should describe in their cover letter how they would help recruit and support students from underrepresented groups.

Minimum Qualifications: PhD required by May 2019. An active research agenda, an interest in encouraging and mentoring undergraduate research, and a demonstrated commitment to teaching undergraduates is essential.

Located on more than 26,000 acres in northwest Georgia in a setting of great natural beauty, Berry College has an enrollment of about 2,000 undergraduate students. The college is located 65 miles northwest of Atlanta, Georgia, and 65 miles south of Chattanooga, Tennessee. As a comprehensive liberal-arts college, Berry provides an integrated education that unites a challenging academic program with opportunities for spiritual and moral growth, work experience, and significant service to others.

Candidates should submit a letter of application, along with a current CV, copies of transcripts, statements of teaching philosophy, and three letters of reference to Darla Fox, Department of Government and International Studies, Berry College, P.O. Box 405010, Mt. Berry, GA 30149. Email inquiries: esands@berry.edu. For more information on our program, please visit our website at: www.berry.edu/academics/humanities/government/

Review of applications will begin December 1, 2018 and materials must be received by that date to receive full consideration.

Persons applying for employment with Berry College may be required to submit a full national background check. Berry College is an Equal Opportunity Employer.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 10/25/2018

Salary: $50,000 - $59,999

eJobs ID: 5067

University of Alabama, Tuscaloosa

Rank: Assistant Professor of American Politics

The Department of Political Science invites applications for a tenure-track position at the Assistant Professor level in American politics beginning August 16, 2019. The successful candidate should have a strong research agenda that will lead to a body of quality peer-reviewed published work in political science. We are looking for candidates whose research and teaching focus is on individual political attitudes and behavior among the general public. Specific research and teaching specialties can include some combination of public opinion, political participation, ideology, race and gender politics, political psychology, partisanship, political socialization, and/or vote choice. In addition to their specific substantive concerns, we are interested in candidates who are prepared to teach graduate courses in research methods, including statistics, experimental methods, and/or survey methodology. A completed Ph.D. in political science is required for appointment at the level of Assistant Professor. The University of Alabama is the flagship campus of the University of Alabama system, and the Department offers the B.A., M.A., MPA and PhD degrees. To apply, go to <https://facultyjobs.ua.edu/postings/44115> and complete the online application. Attach a letter of application, curriculum vitae, research statement, sample publications or papers and teaching evaluations (if available), and a transcript of graduate work (upload to other document 1 tab). Send three letters of recommendation directly to American Politics Search Committee, Department of Political Science, University of Alabama, PO Box 870213, Tuscaloosa AL 35487-0213, or via email at apatruck@ua.edu (please state position in email). For more information, contact Stephen Borrelli, at sborrelli@ua.edu. We will begin reviewing applications on November 30, 2018 and will continue reviewing applications until the position is filled. The University of Alabama is an Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action employer, and actively seeks diversity among its employees. Women and minorities are encouraged to apply.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 10/25/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 5070

Alfred University

Rank: Assistant Professor of Political Science

The Division of Social Sciences at Alfred University announces the availability of a tenure-track position at the level of Assistant Professor. The position will begin in August, 2019.

The teaching load is 12 hours per semester (typically three courses at 4 credit hours each). Area of specialization is open but could include rural politics, public policy, representation, judicial processes, the politics of race and ethnicity, the politics of gender and/or sexuality, the politics of religion, and social justice.

A Ph.D. in political science with expertise in American politics is required.

Send letter of interest, curriculum vitae, graduate transcripts, and three letters of recommendation to humanresources@alfred.edu. Please put "Political Science" in the subject line.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 10/23/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 5053

CUNY Queens College

Rank: Lecturer – Political Science

Lecturer – Political Science

Job ID: 19200

The Department of Political Science invites applications for a position as Lecturer to begin in the Fall 2019 semester. Lectureships at the College are defined as primarily teaching positions, carrying a 27 hour per year teaching load. Responsibilities include teaching, curricular development, advisement, and participation in departmental and College governance. Although lectureships are not tenure-track positions, lecturers who complete five years of service may apply for a Certificate of Continuous Employment, which provides job protection comparable to tenure. We are looking for individuals with a commitment to excellence in teaching in an extraordinarily diverse environment and who can offer courses across several subfields. We are particularly interested in candidates who can teach courses in Political Theory, International Relations, and Civic Engagement. The Ph.D. is required by the date of appointment. Candidates should send a letter of interest, evidence of teaching effectiveness, a graduate school transcript, three letters of recommendation, and curriculum vitae to: Professor John Bowman, Department of Political Science, Queens College, 65-30 Kissena Blvd., Flushing, NY 11367.

Applications must be received by October 15, 2018. In addition, in order for their application to be considered complete, applicants must upload a CV to CUNYFirst, the City University's resources and service system. To do so, go to www.cuny.edu and click on "Employment;" click on "Search job postings;" then, in the box under "What," enter "19200"; click on "Lecturer – Political Science;" click on "Apply Now," and follow instructions.

CUNY encourages people with disabilities, minorities, veterans and women to apply. At CUNY, Italian-Americans are also included among our protected groups. Applicants and employees will not be discriminated against on the basis of any legally protected category, including sexual orientation or gender identity. EEO/AA/Vet/Disability Employer.

Start Date:

Date Posted: 10/23/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 5051

Arizona State University

Rank: Assistant Professor Political Psychology

Assistant Professor (Job#12631)

School of Politics and Global Studies

Arizona State University

The School of Politics and Global Studies at Arizona State University (Tempe) invites applications for a full-time, tenure-track assistant professor beginning August 2019. We are interested in candidates whose research and teaching focus is on political psychology, broadly defined. Candidates with expertise in the intersection of politics and psychology from any subfield of political science or from other disciplines, such as psychology, are encouraged to apply.

We are open with respect to theoretical orientation, substantive focus, and methodological approaches. Position duties include teaching courses in political psychology at both the undergraduate and graduate levels; advising and mentoring graduate and undergraduate students; developing an active research agenda; and providing service to the department, college, and university. In particular, we see this position contributing to the development of a new online MA in Political Psychology in conjunction with the Department of Psychology.

Minimum Qualifications: candidates must hold a Ph.D. in Political Science or related discipline by time of appointment; have published in refereed outlets; evidence of promise in and commitment to undergraduate and graduate teaching, including online delivery.

Desired qualifications: demonstrated success meeting the needs of diverse student populations and/or reaching out to diverse communities; the ability to teach advanced statistical methods, particularly at the graduate level; a clear record of publishing in top journals and/or top university presses, demonstrated potential to establish a strong, externally-funded research program.

The application deadline is December 10, 2018; if not filled, then every two weeks thereafter until the search is closed. A complete application must include the following: a letter of application stating qualifications, experience, research plans, and teaching interests; a complete curriculum vita; a writing sample, and contact information for three references. Candidates are expected to have a Ph.D. degree completed by August 1, 2019.

All application materials must be received by the deadline and sent to <https://academicjobsonline.org/ajo/jobs/12501>. We will not accept any mailed applicant material, including reference letters; this is an online, paperless search. A background check is required for employment. Please contact Richard Herrera, richard.herrera@asu.edu, if you have any questions about the search.

The School of Politics and Global Studies (SPGS) values interdisciplinary scholarship, and the successful candidate will have the opportunity to affiliate and collaborate with other departments, schools and centers at Arizona State University. Candidates who can make use of our experimental laboratories are particularly encouraged to apply.

Arizona State University is a VEVRAA Federal Contractor and an Equal Opportunity/ Affirmative Action Employer. All qualified applicants will be considered without regard to race, color, sex, religion, national origin, disability, protected veteran status, or any other basis protected by law. ASU's full non-discrimination statement (ACD 401) is located on the ASU website at <https://www.asu.edu/aad/manuals/acd/acd401html> and <https://www.asu.edu/titleIX>.

Start Date:

Application Deadline: 12/10/2018

Date Posted: 10/22/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 5047

Harvard University

Rank: Harvard University Environmental Fellows Program

Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Public Law, Public Policy

APPLICATION DEADLINE: JANUARY 16, 2019

The Harvard University Center for the Environment created the Environmental Fellows program to enable recent doctorate recipients to use and expand Harvard's extraordinary resources to tackle complex environmental problems. The Environmental Fellows will work for two years with Harvard faculty members in any school or department while also strengthening connections across the University's academic disciplines.

The Award:

The fellowship includes a salary of $68,000 per year, employee health insurance eligibility, up to $2,500 reimbursement for relocation expenses, and a $2,500 annual allowance for travel and other professional expenses.

The Harvard University Center for the Environment expects to award approximately six fellowships for the 2019 cohort. The Center will organize a co-curricular program to ensure that the fellows get to know each other and each other's work. All fellows will attend biweekly dinners with their colleagues, faculty members, and guests.

Program Requirements:

- Candidates for 2019 Environmental Fellowships should have received their terminal degree between May 2015 and August 2019.

(Fellows must have filed their dissertation before starting their appointment in September 2019.)

- Candidates with a doctorate or equivalent in any field are eligible, and they may propose research projects in any discipline. Applicants without a Ph.D. may apply if they have studied in fields where the Ph.D. is not the typical terminal degree. All successful candidates will be able to demonstrate experience performing scholarly research.
- Each candidate must secure a commitment from one or more Harvard faculty members to serve as a mentor and to provide office or lab space for the two-year fellowship.
- Candidates may have received their degrees at any university in the world. Foreign nationals are eligible for fellowships, though study at Harvard requires proficiency in English.
- Candidates who received terminal degrees from Harvard, and post-docs currently working at Harvard are eligible for the fellowship provided their research and host arrangements take them in new directions and forge new connections within the University. Harvard candidates should not propose to continue to work with the same professors or lab groups with whom they are currently associated. No candidate should propose to work extensively with his or her thesis advisor.
- Harvard is an affirmative action, equal opportunity employer.
- Successful candidates should be prepared to commit to work at Harvard for the full two years of the fellowship. This fellowship requires residency in the Cambridge area and any fieldwork trip must be scheduled for the summer or January recess.

Application Requirements:

1. Please complete the online application form found at <http://environment.harvard.edu/environmental-fellows-program >; by January 16, 2019 and attach the relevant supporting documents as PDFs:
 - a. curriculum vitae including list of publications;
 - b. detailed research proposal where applicants should explain their specific reasons for applying to a Harvard residential environmental fellowship (maximum of five pages, references counted separately). Note: While applicants should discuss the proposal with their potential faculty hosts, the final product should clearly be the work of the applicant; and
 - c. up to three publications/writing samples.
2. Three letters of reference, including one from the applicant's dissertation adviser.
3. A letter of support is also required from the applicant's host committing to serve as a mentor and explaining his or her commitment to the proposed research, including the provision of office or lab space. Hosts should send their letters directly to the attention of James Clem at the Center at environmental_fellows@harvard.edu.

If you have questions about the fellowship or application process, please contact:

James Clem
Harvard University Center for the Environment
26 Oxford Street, 4th Floor
Cambridge MA 02138
617-495-0368
james_clem@harvard.edu

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: 1/16/2019

Date Posted: 10/19/2018

Salary: $60,000 - $69,999
eJobs ID: 5039

Washington University

Rank: Assistant Professor

The John C. Danforth Center on Religion and Politics at Washington University in St. Louis invites applications at the rank of assistant professor, especially from candidates with an expertise on Islam in North America. The position will begin July 1, 2019. The search committee welcomes applications from scholars from a variety of disciplines including, but not limited to, Anthropology, Gender/Women Studies, History, Law, Literature, Philosophy, Political Science, Religious Studies, Security Studies, Sociology, and Theology.

Candidates should possess a promising profile of scholarly publication on religion and politics in the United States with a focus on Islamic traditions in North America, other traditions in the U.S. beyond Christianity, or an area that significantly augments existing faculty strengths. Candidates should also have a record of effective teaching in a diverse campus community. A PhD, received no later than July 1, 2019, is required. Duties for the position will include undergraduate teaching, conducting and publishing research, and participating in Center governance and wider university service. We particularly welcome candidates with a demonstrated interest in writing for broader audiences and engaging the public beyond the university. Applications from women and members of underrepresented groups are especially encouraged. Washington University is an equal opportunity employer committed to affirmative action. To apply, send a letter of application, along with a curriculum vitae, to the following e-mail address: rap@wustl.edu. Three letters of recommendation should also be submitted, along with a scholarly writing sample. Nominations may be sent to the same address. The search committee will begin reviewing applications as early as December 1, 2018, and will continue doing so until the search is complete. For more information, see <http://rap.wustl.edu/>.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Date Posted: 10/17/2018

Salary: Any

eJobs ID: 5029

Framingham State University

Rank: Part-Time Faculty - Political Science Department

Company Description:

Framingham State University is a vibrant comprehensive liberal arts institution located just 20 miles west of Boston, which integrates an academically challenging liberal arts education with workforce preparation programs.

Our founding motto, "Live to the Truth," was said at the end of each class by beloved first principal, Cyrus Peirce, who sought to discover and teach "the truth" - "truth in theory and principle, ... truth in spirit and motive, ... truth in manner and form, ... truth intellectual and truth moral." Principal Bagnall found this motto "speaks of sincerity of spirit, ... of intensity of effort, of resolution to succeed, of joy in achievement." "Live to the Truth" continues to guide our institution in practice and endeavor. FSU seeks students and employees who share in this quest for truth and commit to living it fully.

Framingham State University is committed to Inclusive Excellence through collaborative and sustainable partnerships with faculty, staff, students and the greater community. At FSU, we encourage a supportive, diverse and collaborative environment in which we learn from each other through informed and open communication, institutional practices and community engagement. FSU provides a culturally relevant education that includes a beautiful campus with 35 bachelor's degrees with 80 concentrations and 70 minors, 24 master degree programs, a highly personalized teaching environment, and unparalleled commitment to excellence in diversity and inclusion.

Framingham State University is honored to be a four-time recipient of the prestigious INSIGHT into Diversity Higher Education Excellence in Diversity (HEED) award. The HEED award is the only national recognition honoring colleges and universities that exhibit outstanding efforts and success in the area of diversity and inclusion throughout their campuses.

Framingham State University was recently named as one of the top 10 universities in the U.S. for Black students based on the equity index scoring system developed by the University of Southern California Race and Equity Center. The University was also recently designed as a Howard Hughes Medical Institute (HHMI) Inclusive Excellence campus.

Visit <http://www.framingham.edu/careers> to learn more about employment opportunities at Framingham State University.

Job Description:

PLEASE NOTE THAT THERE MAY BE NO CURRENT OPENINGS IN THIS AREA, BUT APPLICATIONS SUBMITTED HERE WILL BE HELD THROUGH FEBRUARY 1, 2019 AND WILL BE REVIEWED AS OPENINGS OCCUR DURING THE 2018-2019 ACADEMIC YEAR.

A specific need has been identified for one or more Visiting Lecturers for courses in the areas of American Politics, Public Law, and International Politics to begin January 2019.

The first course is POSC 2XX Race, Ethnicity and American Politics TR 8:30-10:20am. This course will examine the role of race in American politics and its contemporary significance to the nation's citizens, politicians, and governmental institutions. We will ask large social science questions about race in America: What divides the races in American politics? How do the structures and processes of American political institutions affect the efforts of minority groups to secure political influence? What is the nature of prejudice and how does it affect public opinion in the contemporary context?

The second course is POSC 315 Judicial Politics and Policy T10:30am-12:20pm and F 8:30-10:20am. This course introduces students to the law and legal systems of the United States. Topics covered include Federal and State courts, criminal and civil trials, judges, juries, the appellate process and the U.S. Supreme Court. A short way of describing this semester's journey is that we will look at different understandings of law and justice and then examine how they are applied in civil, criminal, and appellate law.

The third course is POSC 120 World Politics M W 2:30-4:20. This course is an introduction to the field of international relations and the debates and dilemmas surrounding our global system as we enter the twenty-first century. Concentration is on the importance of the nation-state in global issues. Focus is also on emerging actors and alternative perspectives. Issues such as nationalism, globalization, power structure, economic development, and sustainability are examined.

EXAMPLES OF DUTIES FOR ALL VL POSITIONS:

- Teach course(s) in Political Science.
- Develop syllabi and instructional materials.
- Assess student performance.
- Provide assistance and mentorship to students.

MINIMUM QUALIFICATIONS:

- Master's degree in a related field.
- Evidence of expertise, scholarly activity or creative work appropriate to the discipline.

PREFERRED QUALIFICATIONS:

- PhD or other terminal degree in related field.
- Successful college teaching experience.
- A demonstrated commitment to diversity and inclusion in the curriculum and the classroom.

Additional Information:

This posting is for potential part-time, non-benefited, visiting lecturer positions during the 2018-2019 academic year.

Framingham State University conducts criminal history and sexual offender record checks on recommended finalists prior to final employment for all positions.

Framingham State University is an equal opportunity/affirmative action employer.

Members of underrepresented groups, minorities, women, veterans, persons with disabilities, and all persons committed to diversity and inclusive excellence are strongly encouraged to apply.

Application Instructions:

Candidates must apply online by submitting (1) a cover letter addressing teaching philosophy and any areas of specialization/expertise, (2) a CV/resume, and (3) the names and contact information for three professional references.

Review of applications is ongoing through February 1, 2019, as dictated by need. Official transcripts must be submitted upon appointment. Applicants are invited to reapply each year.

Framingham State University only accepts application materials through our online application system. We are unable to accept application materials through mail, email, fax, or hand delivery. If you experience technical issues with the online application process, please submit a helpdesk (<https://framingham.interviewexchange.com/iecreatemodifyticket.jsp>) ticket.

Framingham State University understands that persons with specific disabilities may need assistance with the job application process and/or with the interview process. For confidential assistance, please contact the Human Resources Office at 508-626-4530 or humanresources@framingham.edu.

Apply here: <http://www.Click2Apply.net/4jdyz7drpmpg9zfg>

PI104897752

Start Date:

Date Posted: 10/15/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 5013

University of Cincinnati

Rank: Assistant Professor in Cyber Strategy and Policy

Subfield(s): International Relations, Comparative Politics, American Government and Politics

The Department of Political Science at the University of Cincinnati seeks a tenure-track Assistant Professor in the area of cyber security strategy and policy. The successful candidate will be expected to teach within a new multidisciplinary undergraduate major in Cyber Strategy and Policy. This major will be housed in Political Science but includes computing sciences requirements. The successful candidate will be expected to teach core courses on Cyber Strategy and Policy and Cyber Conflict and develop further courses that advance the Cyber Strategy and Policy major and count toward our other undergraduate programs including BAs in Political Science and International Affairs, Certificate in Security Studies, Certificate in International Human Rights and our Political Science PhD program. The teaching load is 2-2.

The University of Cincinnati is one of only 18 institutions nationally designated as a National Security Agency (NSA) Center of Academic Excellence in both cyber defense and cyber operations and has been selected by the State of Ohio to host and support a state-wide cyber range to promote research, education, workforce and economic development in cyber security.

Candidates should have expertise in international security studies and/or American national security studies along with general field competency in international relations, comparative politics, and/or American government. Successful candidates will have demonstrated research focus on issues related to technology and global/national security (for example, cyber security; organizational and bureaucratic structures; authorities/law or privacy and civil liberties related to cyber security).

Candidates must have a PhD in Political Science or relevant field. ABDs will be considered, but the dissertation must be defended before the appointment starts on August 15, 2019.

Interested and qualified applicants must complete our online application at <https://jobs.uc.edu> (search Requisition #34122). In addition to the online application, please provide a cover letter indicating fit with the job description, full CV, list of three references and a writing sample. A one-page statement addressing the candidate's intended contributions to the University's goals of diversity and inclusion, through teaching, research and mentoring, is also required. Review of applications will begin November 12, 2018 with additional applications accepted until the position is filled.

Finalists for the position will be required to submit three letters of reference to be addressed to Dr. Richard Harknett, Search Committee Chair. Questions should be directed to Dr. Richard Harknett, Department Head, at richard.harknett@uc.edu.

The University of Cincinnati is an urban, public, comprehensive Research I institution committed to attracting, supporting, and retaining an academically and culturally diverse faculty. The University of Cincinnati is an equal opportunity/affirmative action employer. In a continuing effort to foster diversity on our campus, we actively encourage applications from women, people of color, people with disabilities, veterans, people of diverse sexual orientations/identities, and others who may make a positive contribution to the diversification of ideas and perspectives. Faculty and staff are supported through various groups including the Black Faculty Association, Latino Faculty Association, and LGBTQ Faculty and Staff Association.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 10/15/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 5008

University of Florida

Rank: Assistant Professor in Political Behavior (American-Comparative)

University of Florida: College of Liberal Arts & Sciences: POLITICAL SCIENCE

Location:Gainesville, FL

Description

The Department of Political Science at the University of Florida, College of Liberal Arts and Sciences, invites applications for a full-time, nine-month, and tenure track Assistant Professor in Political Behavior (American/Comparative) to begin August 16, 2019. The Department hopes to hire faculty broadly engaged in research that is field-bridging, adding to our Department's tradition of intellectual diversity and pluralism, as well as to better reflect the interests of our diverse undergraduate and graduate students.

We are particularly interested in candidates who combine rigorous and original scholarship in keeping with the cluster hire themes of race and ethnicity, representation and justice, gender and other categories of identity, and the politics of inequality. Substantive research fields and methodological approaches are open. For example, how do race, ethnicity, and gender influence the behavior of citizens, such as the formation of public opinion and voting behavior? The ideal candidate will have strong methodological skills in survey methods, experimental design (field or lab), and/or the use of big data in understanding public opinion or political behavior. This position is open to candidates specializing in either the United States or any other region, or to those with cross-national research interests.

Successful applicants are expected to teach two courses per fall and two courses per spring semester, with a mix of introductory and advanced undergraduate courses and graduate seminars. The ability to develop experiential learning opportunities for undergraduates and excel in mentoring undergraduate research in the Department's Honors and Junior Fellows programs is a plus. Salary is competitive and commensurate with qualifications and experience, and includes a full benefits package. More information about the Department of Political Science can be found at: <http://www.polisci.ufl.edu>.

Qualifications

A Ph.D is required.

Application Instructions

For full consideration, applications must be submitted online at <http://apply.interfolio.com/56362> and must include:

- 1.Cover letter
- 2.Curriculum vitae
- 3.Statement of research interests/plans
- 4.Statement of teaching interests/philosophy

5.Statement on a commitment to diversity in research, teaching, and mentoring

6.One article reprint or pre-print

7.Three confidential letters of recommendation.

Review of applications will begin November 1, 2018, and continue until the position is filled. All candidates for employment are subject to a pre-employment screening which includes a review of criminal records, reference checks, and verification of education.

The selected candidate will be required to provide an official transcript to the hiring department upon hire. A transcript will not be considered "official" if a designation of "Issued to Student" is visible. Degrees earned from an educational institution outside of the United States require evaluation by a professional credentialing service provider approved by the National Association of Credential Evaluation Services (NACES), which can be found at <http://www.naces.org/>.

As articulated in the goals of the university, the college values faculty who embrace diversity and inclusion in research, teaching, and service. The University of Florida is an Equal Opportunity Institution dedicated to building a broadly diverse and inclusive faculty and staff. Minorities, women, and individuals from other under-represented groups are strongly encouraged to apply. The selection process will be conducted in accordance with the provisions of Florida's Government in the Sunshine and Public Records Laws. If an accommodation due to disability is needed to apply for this position, please call (352) 392-2477 or the Florida Relay System at (800) 955-8771 (TDD).

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 10/15/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 5012

College of Southern Nevada

Rank: Political Science Instructor - Fall 2019

Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Comparative Politics, International Relations

Political Science Instructor - Fall 2019

The College of Southern Nevada appreciates your interest in employment at our growing institution. We want your application process to go smoothly and quickly. We ask that you keep in mind the following when completing your application:

Once you start the application process you cannot save your work. Please ensure you have all required attachment(s) available to complete your application before you begin the process.

Required attachments are listed below on the posting. Your application will not be considered without the required attachments.

Please note that applications must be submitted prior to the close of the recruitment. Once a recruitment has closed, applications will no longer be accepted.

If you are unable to attach the required documents to your ONLINE application, you may send them to Human Resources via email <mailto:hr.recruitment@csn.edu> or fax to (702) 651-5778.

Job Description

This position will be open until filled. Application review will begin 01/15/2019. For full consideration all application related material should be submitted by 01/14/2019.

The College of Southern Nevada (CSN) is currently seeking one (1) full-time tenure track political science instructor to begin Fall semester 2019. The primary teaching assignment involves the following:

Teaching a core course (“Introduction to American Politics,” a 4-credit course that includes a Nevada politics component).

Additional teaching responsibilities might include “Introduction to Comparative Politics,” “Introduction to International Relations,” “Survey of Political Theory” and/or other courses as determined by department needs.

Required to teach a minimum of 15 credit hours per semester and hold five office hours per week.

Expected to participate in department and division (school) meetings, participate in college and department committees, and engage in participatory governance activities and other service activities.

Expected to assume leadership roles both within the assigned department and at the institution level.

Expected to engage in ongoing professional development.

Teaching assignments may be multi-campus with the possibility of day, evening, weekend, or online classes in accord with department needs.

Required Qualifications

Master's degree in political science from a regionally accredited college or university.

Minimum of one year (two semesters) experience teaching college level introductory political science courses within the last three (3) years.

Preferred Qualifications

Ph.D. in political science from a regionally accredited college or university.

Evidence of research in political science within the last three (3) years, which includes conference paper presentations or publications.

Evidence of an understanding and appreciation of the community college mission, and ability to design curriculum and learning activities that address diverse learning levels.

Background and experience in web-based and computer-aided instruction.

Demonstrated ability to work effectively with a culturally and educationally diverse student population.

Salary Range

Initial salary placement is based on educational level and total years of full-time equivalent teaching experience. A maximum of 10 years of experience will be considered for initial salary placement purposes.

Exempt

Yes

Full-Time Equivalent

100.0%

Required Attachment(s)

To be considered for this position, please upload the following documents to your application:

Resume

Cover Letter

Unofficial Academic Transcripts

Contact information for three professional references

Syllabus (or sample syllabus) for an introductory American government course

Applicants should fully describe their qualifications and experience with specific reference to each of the minimum and preferred qualifications. The search committee will use this information during the initial review of application materials.

National Search

Out of Area/State Candidates may be offered travel reimbursement with original itemized receipts and in accordance with GSA rates at time of travel.

NSHE - INTERNAL APPLICANTS PLEASE NOTE

CSN employees or employees within the Nevada System of Higher Education (NSHE) MUST use the “Find Jobs” process within Workday to find and apply for jobs at CSN and other NSHE Institutions. Once you log into Workday, type “Find Jobs” in the search box which will navigate to the internal job posting site. Locate this specific job posting by typing the requisition number in the search box. If you complete an application outside of the internal application process and apply as an external candidate, your application will no longer be considered at the time of minimum qualification review. In order to prevent the disqualification of your application, you will need to reapply as an internal candidate before 11:59 pm the day prior to the position close date.

Posting Close Date

01/15/2019

Note to Applicant

Applicants should fully describe their qualifications and experience with specific reference to each of the minimum and preferred qualifications. The search committee will use this information during the initial review of application materials.

All document(s) must be received by 11:59 p.m. the day prior to the closing date posted on the job announcement.

This position may require that a criminal background check be conducted on the candidate(s) selected for hire.

As part of the hiring process, applicants for positions in the Nevada System of Higher Education may be required to demonstrate the ability to perform job-related tasks.

Schedules are subject to change based on organizational needs.

CSN is responsive to serving the educational needs of a diverse and ever-changing community. CSN employs only U.S. citizens and aliens authorized to work in the U.S. CSN does not sponsor aliens applying for faculty, professional staff, or management positions (H-1B Visas) in the absence of exceptional circumstances as defined by the USCIS.

To apply, visit <http://apptrkr.com/1311350>

About Us

The College of Southern Nevada (CSN) creates opportunities and changes lives through access to quality teaching, services, and experiences that enrich our diverse community. CSN has three main campuses in Las Vegas, North Las Vegas and Henderson and multiple sites and centers.

The Nevada System of Higher Education (NSHE) is committed to providing a place of work and learning free of discrimination on the basis of a person's age, disability, whether actual or perceived by others (including service-connected disabilities), gender (including pregnancy related conditions), military status or military obligations, sexual orientation, gender identity or expression, genetic information, national origin, race, or religion.

Copyright ©2017 Jobelephant.com Inc. All rights reserved.

<https://www.jobelephant.com/jeid-5c6f2f9ddf4f4d4caf8358ca665066af>

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 10/11/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4997

Georgia State University

Rank: Lecturer

The Department of Political Science at Georgia State University invites applications for a full-time Lecturer position to begin Fall 2019, pending budgetary approval. Lecturers at Georgia State University are full-time non-tenure track faculty with both teaching and service requirements, as well as the opportunity for promotion. We welcome candidates who have a demonstrated commitment to delivering high quality instruction to undergraduates. Successful candidates will also have a demonstrated interest in helping develop innovative approaches to content delivery, and contributing to the scholarship on teaching and learning. They will also have experience and interest in working closely with students of varied backgrounds to promote excellence in undergraduate learning. Enrolling one of the most diverse student bodies in the nation, Georgia State University has been recognized for providing an outstanding education and exceptional support for students from all backgrounds. We encourage women, minorities, and individuals with a commitment to mentoring underrepresented groups to apply.

Candidates must have a Ph.D. in hand by August 2019. Review of applications will begin on October 26, 2018, and will continue until the position is filled. Georgia State University is a unit of the University System of Georgia, is an Equal Opportunity Employer and does not discriminate against applicants due to race, ethnicity, gender, veteran status, or on the basis of disability or any other federal, state or local protected class. An offer of employment will be conditional on background verification. Applicants should send a letter of application, curriculum vitae, statement of teaching philosophy, diversity statement, student evaluations, sample syllabi, sample teaching materials, and any additional evidence of teaching effectiveness, as well as original transcript(s). Please submit all materials electronically to polsearch@gsu.edu.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 10/11/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4998

Michigan State University

Rank: Research Associate (Postdoc)- Fixed Term

The Political Science Department at Michigan State University (MSU) invites outstanding candidates from political science disciplines to apply to a Research Associate/Postdoctoral Fellowship. The purpose of this position is to support promising scholars who are committed to diversity in the academy. The initial appointment will be for one year, with an option for reappointment for another year.

The position begins on January 1, 2019. Individuals without a doctoral degree may be appointed with the rank of Research Associate for nine months. Any reappointment beyond nine months requires proof of a degree or a statement from the Dean of the Graduate School, or other appropriate University official, that the requirements have been completed.

Special consideration will be given to those with research interest in race, ethnicity, gender, inequality or the intersection of gender with minority politics in the United States. The successful applicant will be housed in the Department of Political Science. They must be in residence at Michigan State University during the academic year and are expected to participate in the Political Science Department's seminars and research seminars, as well as occasional lectures, conferences, and other events. Successful candidates should also demonstrate evidence of securing external research funding, a record of publishing high quality research, advanced methodological research interests, and a strong future research agenda. Research support money will be available to access. There is no teaching requirement for this position.

The successful candidate will be expected to work with Eric Gonzalez Juenke and Nazita Lajevardi to enhance the department's research agenda in Minority Politics, through the publication of co-authored work with minority politics faculty and graduate students.

Applicants must apply for this position via the Michigan State University Applicant Tracking System at: <https://careers.msu.edu>, job number 538119.

Start Date: Spring 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 10/11/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4995

Rider UniversityRank: Assistant Professor

Tenure Track – Constitutional Law

The Political Science Department at Rider University is accepting applications for a tenure-track position in Constitutional Law to start in the fall of 2019. The successful candidate will offer a range of courses, including civil liberties and civil rights, and judges and courts. Area of specialization is open. Teaching responsibilities will include courses in our undergraduate program in Political Science, as well as our undergraduate minor and graduate program in Homeland Security Studies, and may include topical courses such as (for instance) cyber law or national security. This candidate may also contribute to our new B.A. in Health Care Policy.

Our ideal candidate will hold either a Ph.D. in political science or a related discipline and/or a J.D. This candidate will be excited to be in the classroom and will enjoy teaching in a medium sized, collegial department in which students and instructors work closely together. Housed in the College of Liberal Arts, this department prizes critical inquiry and student-centered teaching practices. The department faculty also maintain active scholarly agendas and will look for the same quality in this candidate. In addition to quality research and teaching, the successful candidate will also provide pre-law advising and may be asked to develop a more formal pre-law program for the college.

The Political Science Department is deeply committed to diversifying its faculty and strongly encourages applications from a wide range of candidates.

While applications will be reviewed on a rolling basis, interested applications are invited to apply directly to our website at <http://rider.peopleadmin.com/postings/5445> by November 30, 2018. Applications for Position No. 312256 should include a cover letter which describes teaching philosophy and experience, as well as scholarly accomplishments and an ongoing research agenda. Experience in the practice of law should also be described, if applicable. Please also include a C.V., writing sample, three letters of references, and a statement outlining your commitment to diversity, including evidence of your experience working with and teaching diverse students.

Rider University is an Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action employer dedicated to excellence through diversity and does not discriminate on the basis of age, race, color, religion, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, handicap/disability, Vietnam-era/disabled veteran status, gender identity or expression, or any other non-job related criteria.

Start Date: Fall 2019Application Deadline: Open until FilledDate Posted: 10/11/2018Salary: $60,000 - $69,999eJobs ID: 5002Stanford University*Rank: Hoover Fellow*Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, International Relations, Public PolicySpecializations: Economic Policy, International Security, Political Economy

Hoover Institution - Hoover Fellows

A new path for early-career scholars

The Hoover Institution at Stanford University seeks outstanding scholars for appointments at the newly created rank of Hoover Fellows. The term of the appointment is 5 years and may be renewed. The position is located at the Hoover Institution, Stanford, CA.

The academic activities of the Hoover Institution generally fall into the areas of Economic Policy, Politics & Governance, and National Security. Candidates' work should fit into at least one of these categories. A candidate must have completed a PhD or equivalent degree in economics, history, international relations, political science, public policy, computer science, electrical engineering, physics or other related fields.

Hoover Fellows are expected to maintain a vibrant and productive scholarly research agenda, and achieve a considerable publication record and scholarly impact during their time at Hoover, through the pursuit of topics that also have implications for public policy.

Hoover Fellows are expected to contribute to the intellectual life of the Hoover Institution. There will be no teaching or formal administrative responsibilities during the appointment. Salary and benefits are highly competitive.

To apply, please submit:

- A cover letter or statement of interest that includes a description of academic background and experience
- A recent publication and a current working paper or draft book chapter
- A curriculum vitae
- A future research statement (2 pages maximum)
- Three letters of recommendation that focus on the candidate's research and research potential

Successful applicants will have a proven record of scholarly excellence. Applicants must have completed a PhD or equivalent degree by September 1, 2019, though preference will be given to candidates with post-graduate experience.

Completed applications must be submitted online by December 1, 2018 at <https://academicjobsonline.org/ajo/jobs/12287>.

Please direct questions to Pam Widrin (pwidrin@stanford.edu). Candidates under consideration will be contacted mid-January, 2019. Offer decisions are expected mid-March, 2019.

The Hoover Institution is an equal employment opportunity and affirmative action employer. All qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to race, color, religion, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, national origin, disability, protected veteran status, or any other characteristic protected by law. The Hoover Institution welcomes applications from those who would bring additional dimensions to the University's research mission.

Start Date: Fall 2019Application Deadline: 12/1/2018Date Posted: 10/11/2018Salary: CompetitiveeJobs ID: 5000

California State University, Chico

Rank: Assistant Professor of Political Science

Position Information

The Department of Political Science and Criminal Justice at California State University, Chico invites applications for a tenure-track position in American Politics with a focus on Latino politics at the Assistant Professor level. The position begins August 21, 2019.

Minimum Education and Experience

The minimum education requirement for appointment to this position is a Ph.D. or comparable degree in Political Science or other related discipline. Candidates nearing completion of the doctorate may be considered; however, all requirements for conferral of the degree must be met no later than August 21, 2019. The Department seeks candidates with expertise and preparation in American politics, specializing in Latino politics and political behavior. The successful candidate must be able to serve an ethnically and culturally diverse student body and participate in both our undergraduate and graduate programs.

Additional Requirements and Responsibilities for this Position

This tenure-track position carries responsibilities in the areas of teaching, scholarship, and service to the Department and University. Teaching assignments are based upon qualifications of the individual and the needs of the department.

The person holding this position is considered a "mandated reporter" under the California Child Abuse and Neglect Reporting Act and is required to comply with the requirements set forth in CSU Executive Order 1083 (revised July 21, 2017) as a condition of employment.

Recruitment Preferences

The ideal candidate will develop and teach a course in Latino politics in the United States and should also be able to teach other courses, such as interest groups and social movements, politics of race and ethnicity, Introduction to American Politics, and research methods, among others. Please see our current Course Catalog for a list of the department's course offerings. <http://catalog.csuchico.edu/viewer/18/POLS/offers.html>

Contact & Special Recruitment Information

Job-related questions should be directed to:
Dr. Diana Dwyre, Search Committee Chair
530-898-5734
ddwyre@csuchico.edu

All applicants must apply online at: <http://jobs.csuchico.edu/postings/5095>. Applicants must provide a cover letter, a current curriculum vitae, complete set of transcripts (unofficial acceptable), writing sample, teaching evaluations (if available), and a statement regarding the role of diversity in the Academy and how you have addressed, or plan to address teaching diverse student groups.

Applications must be submitted online using the link provided. However: three letters of recommendation MUST be submitted directly to the Search Committee Chair, Dr. Diana Dwyre, at ddwyre@csuchico.edu.

A background check (including a criminal records check) must be completed satisfactorily before any candidate can be offered a position with the CSU. Failure to satisfactorily complete the background check may affect the application status of applicants or continued employment of current CSU employees who apply for the position.

Benefits

CSU, Chico offers a number of benefits to its employees (e.g., sick leave, health, dental and vision insurance). CSU, Chico offers a defined benefit retirement plan through the California Public Employee Retirement System (CalPERS). See retirement plan benefits information here. This position qualifies for additional benefits including a tuition fee waiver (if eligible).

About the University, Hiring Department and Community

The Department of Political Science and Criminal Justice offers undergraduate degrees in political science (including an option in legal studies), criminal justice, international relations, and public administration, as well as Master's degrees in political science and public administration. We have an exciting curriculum, with numerous options to meet a host of academic interests, and an active and productive faculty committed to excellence in teaching and scholarship. Over 1,100 students major in our programs. Additional information about our Department is available at the Department of Political Science and Criminal Justice website. <http://www.csuchico.edu/pols/> Additional information about the college is available at the College of Behavioral and Social Sciences website. <http://www.csuchico.edu/bss/index.shtml>

Detailed information about the university is available here: <http://www.csuchico.edu/about/chico-facts.shtml> As a university that educates students of various ethnic and cultural backgrounds, we value a diverse faculty and staff. CSU, Chico welcomes applicants who are knowledgeable about and interested in working within a cross-cultural learning environment. We strive to establish a climate that welcomes, celebrates and promotes respect for the contributions of all students, faculty and staff. We also welcome those who share a passion for and commitment to the University's 6th Strategic Priority, which focuses on sustainability, stewardship, and the environment, and to our 7th Strategic Priority, encouraging civic engagement. <http://www.csuchico.edu/sustainability/index.shtml>
<http://www.csuchico.edu/civic/>

CSU, Chico is an Equal Opportunity Employer. We consider qualified applicants for employment without regard to race, religion, color, national origin, ancestry, age, sex, gender, gender identity, gender expression, sexual orientation, genetic information, medical condition, disability, marital status, or protected veteran status and only employ individuals authorized to work in the U.S.

For disability related accommodations please call ADA Coordinator at (530) 898-5959.

An annual security report disclosing crime statistics for California State University, Chico can be obtained by contacting the Chico State University Police Department (530-898-5555) or by visiting the Chico State UPD website. http://www.csuchico.edu/up/clery_report.shtml

All positions are contingent on funding.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: 11/9/2018

Date Posted: 10/9/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4984

Old Dominion University

Rank: American Politics/Public Law - Assistant Professor

Old Dominion University's Department of Political Science and Geography invites applications for a tenure-track position at the assistant professor level in American Politics/Public Law to begin August 2019. Candidates will be expected to teach courses in constitutional law and judicial politics. The ability to teach the politics of identity (e.g., African American Politics, Women and Politics, or Latino/a American Politics), and political theory is an asset. The successful applicant will also serve as ODU's pre-law advisor. Candidates are expected to pursue an active research agenda. The successful candidate will have a demonstrable commitment to promoting and enhancing diversity. A Ph.D. in Political Science is required at the time of appointment.

Old Dominion University is a residential and research-extensive public institution with a student enrollment of 25,000, including approximately 5,000 graduate students, and a full-time equivalent diverse and multicultural faculty of over 850. The university's primary campus is located in Norfolk, VA, one of the seven cities that make up the historic Hampton Roads region of Virginia, a major recreational area with a population of 1.7 million near the Atlantic Ocean and Chesapeake Bay.

To apply, submit a cover letter, curriculum vitae, brief statement of research and teaching interests, sample of scholarly writing, evidence of teaching effectiveness, unofficial graduate transcripts, and three letters of recommendation to Dr. Michael L. Clemons, Chair, American Politics/Public Law Search Committee at <https://jobs.odu.edu/>. The system will solicit the letters of recommendation from the references listed in your application. Review of applications will begin October 29, 2018 and continue until the position is filled. Inquiries regarding the position should be directed to the search committee chair at MClemons@odu.edu. More information about the political science program can be found at <https://www.odu.edu/pols-geog/political>.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: 10/29/2018

Date Posted: 10/8/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4974

University of Illinois, Springfield

Rank: Research Director

Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Methodology, Public Policy

Specializations: Public Opinion, State Politics, Research Methods

The Center for State Policy and Leadership at the University of Illinois Springfield seeks a dynamic, skilled professional with substantial research experience to serve as the Research Director overseeing the Center's Institute for Legal, Legislative, and Policy Studies and Survey Research Office. The Institute and Survey Research Office conduct applied research studies and policy and program evaluations for public and nonprofit organizations, with a strong focus on Illinois government. Going forward, these two research organizations will operate as one with an explicit purpose to generate knowledge that can be useful in fostering "good government" in Illinois. A capable leader is needed to guide this effort at a critical time in the history of the state.

Minimum required qualifications: A terminal degree in public administration, political science, law, or related field. Consideration will be given to a relevant master's degree combined with extensive funded public affairs research experience. Minimum of 3 years' experience administering grant/contract funded activities. Successful history securing funding. Must have knowledge of how state and local governments operate. A record of scholarship and publication activity.

Preferred qualifications: Experience conducting funded research, evaluation, and/or technical assistance involving use of both quantitative and qualitative methods. Practical experience working with political processes and government at the state level. Experience successfully communicating research findings to scholarly, professional, and general audiences. Ability to lead, work with, and gain the respect and confidence of faculty, staff, administrators and external constituencies.

Salary range for position is $90,000 - $100,000 annually. Starting salary depends on experience and qualifications. UIS benefits package. Anticipated starting date is January 16, 2019. For a full position description and to apply, please visit: <https://jobs.uis.edu/>

UIS is an affirmative action/equal opportunity employer with a strong institutional commitment to recruitment and retention of a diverse and inclusive campus community. Persons with disabilities, women and minorities are encouraged to apply.

Start Date: Spring 2019

Application Deadline: 10/26/2018

Date Posted: 10/8/2018

Salary: $90,000 - $99,999

eJobs ID: 4975

University of Texas at Dallas

Rank: Visiting Assistant Professor

Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Public Policy, Political Theory

The School of Economic, Political, and Policy Sciences at the University of Texas at Dallas (UTD) invites applications for a full-time, Visiting Assistant Professor position beginning in January of 2019 in the Political Science Program. UTD is a fast-growing, suburban research university with undergraduate, Master's, and PhD programs in Political Science. We currently have approximately 60 graduate students and 250 undergraduate majors.

The University of Texas at Dallas has the highest freshman SAT scores of any public University in Texas and was recently ranked 24th among the 100 best universities in the world under 50 years old by Times Higher Education magazine. UT Dallas is one of the youngest universities to achieve the Carnegie Commission's highest research classification of "Doctoral Universities – Highest Research Activity."

The teaching load for this position is 3 courses per long semester and the standard pay rate is $20,000 per long semester. The position is renewable for up to 4 long semesters. Ideal candidates will demonstrate their ability to contribute to existing program strengths in teaching excellence. Topics of interest include American politics, international relations, or comparative politics. The successful candidate will be expected to teach the introductory state politics course and the introductory American national government course, as well as more specialized upper-level undergraduate courses. PhD by time of employment is expected.

Applicants should submit letter of application, current curriculum vitae and three letters of recommendation to the Program Head, Banks Miller (millerbp@utdallas.edu). Review will begin immediately and continue until the position is filled.

The University of Texas at Dallas is an Equal Opportunity / Equal Access / Affirmative Action Employer and strongly encourages applications from candidates who would enhance the diversity of the University's faculty and administration

Start Date: Spring 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 10/8/2018

Salary: $40,000 - $49,999

eJobs ID: 4977

East Tennessee State University

Rank: Assistant Professor

Subfield(s): Public Law, Public Administration, American Government and Politics

The Department of Political Science, International Affairs and Public Administration at East Tennessee State University invites applications for the position of Assistant Professor beginning August 15, 2019. The position carries a 3/3 teaching load, shared between the undergraduate Political Science program and the graduate Public Administration program. The Department expects the successful applicant to maintain an active research program and to participate in service to the department, university, profession, and community.

Applicants must have a Ph.D in Political Science with either a subfield in Public Administration or an MPA degree.

Strong background in quantitative research methods is preferred.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: 11/15/2018

Date Posted: 10/5/2018

Salary: $50,000 - $59,999

eJobs ID: 4962

East Tennessee State University

Rank: Associate Professor and Director of Master of Public Administration Program (MPA)

The Department of Political Science, International Affairs and Public Administration at East Tennessee State University invites applications for the position of Associate Professor and Director of the MPA Program beginning August 15, 2019. The position carries a 2/2 teaching load, shared between the MPA program and the undergraduate Political Science program. The Department expects the successful applicant to guide the MPA program to accreditation and expand its enrollment and to maintain a reasonable level of research activity.

NASPAA accreditation standards and process; online teaching and course development; program evaluation.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: 12/15/2018

Date Posted: 10/5/2018

Salary: $70,000 - $79,999

eJobs ID: 4963

University of South Alabama

Rank: Assistant Professor of Public Administration

Subfield(s): Public Administration, Public Policy, American Government and Politics

The Department of Political Science and Criminal Justice at the University of South Alabama invites applications for a full-time (9 month), tenure-track Assistant Professor position in Public Administration to begin August 15, 2019. An earned Ph.D. in Political Science, Public Administration, or Public Policy is required at the time of appointment. ABDs currently near the completion of the degree are welcome to apply.

The Department of Political Science and Criminal Justice is recognized for its research active faculty, award-winning teaching, and for its collegiality. The Department offers the Master of Public Administration degree at the graduate level, and a Bachelor of Arts in Political Science and a Bachelor of Arts in Criminal Justice. Our growing and dynamic graduate program currently offers two concentrations:

Health Administration and Geographic Information Technology, with anticipated development of new concentrations in the future. More information regarding the MPA program can be found here: <https://www.southalabama.edu/colleges/artsandsci/pscj/mpa.html>

Applicants must have teaching and research interests in the area of Public Administration or Political Science and must show a history or willingness to publish in public administration or public policy outlets. The successful candidate will be expected to teach courses principally in the MPA program, as well as offer undergraduate courses. In addition to research and teaching, the successful candidate will be expected to advise a diverse student body, including many students of color and first-generation students, and to contribute appropriate service. Our Department is committed to increasing the diversity of its faculty and highly encourages female, minority, and candidates from other historically underrepresented groups to apply.

Prospective candidates may be asked to participate first in a digital interview. Candidates selected for a digital interview will need to arrange for the submission of their official transcripts from all institutions of higher learning from which a degree was earned as well as to arrange for the submission of three signed professional letters of reference. Letters of reference must include addresses, phone numbers, and e-mail addresses of the letter writers. Candidates selected for an on-campus interview will also need to complete a biographical data form: <https://www.southalabama.edu/departments/eforms/academicaffairs/biographicaldataform.pdf>

Consideration of applications will begin Thursday, November 1, 2018, and will continue until the position is filled.

To apply, please send a letter of application; curriculum vitae; unofficial transcripts; and if ABD or recent PhD, a writing sample to Dr. Thomas Shaw, Chair of Search Committee and MPA Director; at either Department of Political Science and Criminal Justice; The University of South Alabama; 5991 USA Dr N; HUMB 226; Mobile, AL 36688-0002 or tshaw@southalabama.edu. Informal inquiries regarding the position should be sent to the Search Chair at tshaw@southalabama.edu.

The University of South Alabama is an EO/AA employer and does not discriminate on the basis of race, color, national origin, sex (including pregnancy, sexual orientation, gender identity and gender expression), religion, age, genetic information, disability, or protected veteran status and does not discriminate on the basis of race, color, national origin, sex (including pregnancy, sexual orientation, gender identity and gender expression), religion, age, genetic information, disability, or protected veteran status.

Start Date: Fall 2019
Application Deadline: 11/1/2018
Date Posted: 10/5/2018
Salary: Competitive
eJobs ID: 4965

Princeton University

Rank: Postdoctoral Research Associate/CSDP
Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Comparative Politics, Other

Princeton University's Center for the Study of Democratic Politics (CSDP) seeks postdoctoral or more senior research associates for the ten-month 2019-2020 academic year. The Center supports empirical research on democratic political processes and institutions. PhD required.

Each research associate will pursue research and contribute to the intellectual life of the Center, the Department of Politics, and the Woodrow Wilson School of Public and International Affairs. CSDP scholars must be in residence at Princeton during the academic terms, and are expected to participate in the weekly CSDP seminars and related weekly research seminars in the Department of Politics, as well as occasional lectures, conferences, and other events. Successful candidates will receive a competitive salary and applicable Princeton University benefits in accordance with university guidelines, a taxable moving allowance, and a research allowance.

Applicants for this 2019-2020 postdoctoral research associate position must apply online to position req number D-19-WWS-00017 <https://www.princeton.edu/acad-positions/position/9022> and submit a CV, a 3-5 page (double-spaced) statement of research interest/research proposal, a writing sample, and the names of two (and not more than two) references. A cover letter is optional. The deadline for receipt of complete applications is Friday, November 30, 2018 at 11:59 p.m. EST (including letters of recommendation from the two references). This position is subject to the University's background check policy.

Start Date: Fall 2019
Application Deadline: 11/30/2018
Date Posted: 10/4/2018
Salary: Competitive
eJobs ID: 4952

Princeton University

Rank: Postdoctoral Research Associate/CSDP Fellowship
Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Comparative Politics, Other

Princeton University's Center for the Study of Democratic Politics (CSDP) seeks postdoctoral or more senior research associates for the ten-month 2019-2020 academic year. The Center supports empirical research on democratic political processes and institutions. PhD required.

Each research associate will pursue research and contribute to the intellectual life of the Center, the Department of Politics, and the Woodrow Wilson School of Public and International Affairs. CSDP scholars must be in residence at Princeton during the academic terms, and are expected to participate in the weekly CSDP seminars and related weekly research seminars in the Department of Politics, as well as occasional lectures, conferences, and other events. Successful candidates will receive a competitive salary and applicable Princeton University benefits in accordance with university guidelines, a taxable moving allowance, and a research allowance.

Applicants for this 2019-2020 postdoctoral research associate position must apply online to position req number D-19-WWS-00017 <https://www.princeton.edu/acad-positions/position/9022> and submit a CV, a 3-5 page (double-spaced) statement of research interest/research proposal, a writing sample, and the names of two (and not more than two) references. A cover letter is optional. The deadline for receipt of complete applications is Friday, November 30, 2018 at 11:59 p.m. EST (including letters of recommendation from the two references). This position is subject to the University's background check policy.

Start Date: Fall 2019
Date Posted: 10/4/2018
Salary: Competitive
eJobs ID: 4953

Princeton University

Rank: Visiting Research Scholar/CSDP Fellowship
Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Comparative Politics, Other

Princeton University's Center for the Study of Democratic Politics (CSDP) seeks visiting scholars for the 2019-2020 academic year. The Center supports empirical research on democratic political processes and institutions. Applications are welcome from political scientists and scholars in related social science disciplines. CSDP visiting scholar positions are restricted to employed scholars on leave who are expected to return to their position.

Each scholar will pursue research and contribute to the intellectual life of the Center, the Department of Politics, and the Woodrow Wilson School of Public and International Affairs. CSDP scholars must be in residence at Princeton during the academic terms, and are expected to participate in the weekly CSDP seminars and related weekly research seminars in the Department of Politics, as well as occasional lectures, conferences, and other events. Successful candidates will receive a competitive salary (those who hold faculty appointments at other academic institutions normally receive one-half their academic-year salaries for the appointment period, but this may vary depending on level of support from the home institution), applicable benefits, a taxable moving allowance, and a research allowance.

Verification of employment and salary will be requested prior to approval by the Dean of the Faculty. PhD or equivalent doctoral degree required. Applicants for this 2019-2020 Visiting Scholar position must apply online and submit a CV, a 3-5 page (double-spaced) statement of research interest/research proposal, a writing sample, a brief statement of anticipated (estimated) salary support from the home institution for the 2019-2020 academic year, and statement of the home institution's leave policy. A cover letter is optional.

Applicants for this Visiting Research Scholar position for 2019-2020 should apply to D-19-WWS-00016. <https://www.princeton.edu/>

acad-positions/position/9021. The deadline for receipt of complete applications is Friday, November 30, 2018 at 11:59 p.m. EST.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: 11/30/2018

Date Posted: 10/4/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4954

Washburn University

Rank: Assistant Professor in Political Science

Assistant Professor

(Recruitment No. 18-000105)

Washburn University invites applications for the position of Assistant Professor in Political Science to begin Fall 2019. This is a full-time, 9-month, tenure track position. The position requires the teaching of introductory courses in American Politics, but upper division courses can be tailored to meet the interests and expertise of the new faculty member. The Department is interested in the subfields of race, ethnicity and gender politics; political institutions; political participation; public leadership; or state and local governance, but candidates excited about the mission of Washburn are welcome to apply from any subfield. The selected candidate will have a demonstrated commitment to students from diverse backgrounds and a dedication to the development of inclusive pedagogies that support equity and student success.

Required Qualifications

- Ph.D. in Political Science; ABD applicants will also be considered.
- Experience teaching university-level courses in American government and evidence demonstrating ability to teach introductory courses in American politics and government, Introduction to U.S. government, may also include State and Local government.
- Documented active research agenda

Preferred Qualifications

- Experience as the sole instructor for courses in American politics.
- Documentation of teaching excellence at the undergraduate level.
- Experience mentoring undergraduate students in scholarly activity, research, and internships. Preference will be given to candidates interested in helping and supporting students in their academic development.
- Interest in assisting in departmental and student assessment.
- Documented department and/or university service work.

Responsibilities

- Teach 12 credit hours per semester, typically two lower-division general education courses (generally includes Introduction to American Government), and two upper division courses.
- Maintain an active scholarly research agenda.
- Advise and mentor political science undergraduate students.
- Perform department, university and community service.
- A strong commitment to teaching undergraduate students in a liberal arts environment.
- A demonstrated commitment to collegiality in the workplace.

Application Procedures

Application review will begin November 30, 2018 and continue until the position is filled. Send a letter of interest, vitae, copies of transcripts, evidence of teaching experience, evidence of advising/mentoring excellence, and the names and contact information of three professional references to Mrs. Cathy Tunnell at cathy.tunnell@washburn.edu. Please use "PO Position" in the subject line. Only electronic application materials will be accepted. Questions may be sent to Dr. Linsey Modellbog, Political Science Search Committee Chair, at linsey.moddelmog@washburn.edu. The successful candidate will be required to provide official transcripts and submit to a background check prior to hire.

Washburn is an EOE and dedicated to providing a student-centered and teaching focused academic environment and a curriculum that engages the diversity of human experience across the globe. We seek candidates who are committed to Washburn's efforts to create a climate that fosters the growth and development of a diverse student body, and we encourage applications from members of groups that have been historically underrepresented in higher education. Application materials should clearly articulate how the candidate will contribute to the University's commitment to diversity and inclusion through their teaching, research, and/or service.

Washburn University provides equal access to and opportunity in its programs, facilities, and employment without regard to race, color, religion, age, national origin, ancestry, disability, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, genetic information, veteran status, or marital or parental status.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 10/4/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4959

University of Texas, San Antonio

Rank: Department Chair (COPP-Department of Public Administration)

Subfield(s): Public Administration, Public Policy, American Government and Politics

Department Chair

Department of Public Administration

The University of Texas at San Antonio

The Department of Public Administration at the University of Texas at San Antonio (UTSA) invites applications for a Department Chair position beginning in Fall 2019. The Department is comprised of nine tenured/tenure-track faculty, two full-time lecturers, and several adjunct instructors. The Department serves over 180 graduate and 120 undergraduate students enrolled in the Master's (NASPAA accredited) and Bachelor's degrees in Public Administration. The Department also offers a graduate certificate in Nonprofit Management.

UTSA is a Hispanic-Serving Institution (HSI) with a 53% Latino student population, and one of the fastest growing public universities in Texas. UTSA is gaining momentum in its quest to become the state's next premier Tier 1 university. As a dynamic research urban-serving university, it has a diverse and growing student population of more than 30,000 students with more than 67% coming from groups underrepresented in higher education. UTSA serves the San Antonio metropolitan area, the seventh largest U.S. city, and the broader region of South Texas through programs offered on three campuses. The Department of Public Administration is based on the expanding Downtown Campus. San Antonio has a thriving urban culture, attractive neighborhoods and extensive recreational opportunities. It is one of the fastest growing regional economies - and the fastest growing city - in the US, with numerous industries, job opportunities, and excellent school districts. The low cost of living and the mild winters further make it a highly desirable place to work and live in.

Responsibilities: The Chair reports to the Dean of the College of Public Policy and is responsible for providing vision, leadership, and inclusive excellence for the research, teaching, and service activities of the Department. The Chair supports diversity and inclusion with the faculty in their duties, and advocates for the Department before the College and the University. He or she promotes the program internally and externally, oversees its continued growth (including the planned addition of a Bachelor's in Public Policy degree program), and continuously pursues student success at both the graduate and the undergraduate levels. In addition to his or her administrative responsibilities, the Chair continues to pursue research projects and collaborations locally and nationally. The position is a 10.5-month appointment with a competitive salary, excellent benefits, and reduced teaching responsibilities.

Required qualifications: A Ph.D. in Public Administration, Public Policy, Public Affairs, Political Science, or related discipline. Candidates must demonstrate excellence in leadership, service, research, and teaching, with an established research agenda and a strong publication record.

Preferred qualifications: Specialization in areas such as public policy, urban politics and policy, policy analysis, public budgeting.

To apply: Submit a letter of application, Curriculum Vitae, and the names, addresses, and telephone numbers of five references at <https://jobs.utsa.edu/>. Review of applications will begin on October 8, 2018 and will continue until the position is filled.

All questions regarding the position should be directed to:
Amy Chanmugam, Ph.D.
Chair, Faculty Recruitment Committee
Chair, Department of Social Work, University of Texas at San Antonio
amy.chanmugam@utsa.edu
210-458-3003

For questions concerning the submission of materials, please contact:
Blane Walter
Administrative Analyst
College of Public Policy, office of the Dean,
University of Texas at San Antonio
blane.walter@utsa.edu
210-458-2013

CC: Amy Chanmugam, Ph.D.
Chair, Faculty Recruitment Committee
Chair, Department of Social Work, University of Texas at San Antonio
amy.chanmugam@utsa.edu
210-458-3003

Start Date:
Date Posted: 10/3/2018
Salary: Negotiable
eJobs ID: 4948

Colby College

Rank: Two-year Faculty Fellow

Specializations: Congress, Legislative Studies, Presidency

The Department of Government at Colby College seeks applicants for a two-year Faculty Fellow to teach American government and politics, commencing September 1, 2019. We seek highly qualified candidates who have demonstrated excellence in teaching and who are committed to working with an increasingly diverse student body. We are open to sub-fields within the broad field of American government and politics; our preference would be someone with expertise in American political institutions and who integrates issues of diversity and representation into their courses. The successful applicant will teach at least one section of Introduction to American Government and Politics, one section of an introductory course in multi-methods research, and additional sections in the candidate's area of expertise, chosen in consultation with the department chair. The teaching load is 4 courses a year, with the possibility of a repeat preparation.

Applicants should send a letter of application, a curriculum vitae, a statement describing the candidate's teaching experience, three letters of recommendation, and evidence of teaching excellence to: <https://apply.interfolio.com/54630>. We will begin reviewing applications November 1 and accept applications until the position is filled. Questions about this position should be directed to: governmentsearch@colby.edu

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 10/2/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4940

University of North Carolina Wilmington

Rank: Assistant Professor - Public & International Affairs (Political Science - Behavior)

Specializations: Political Behavior, Electoral Behavior, Public Opinion

To see the complete job posting and to apply, please visit:

<https://jobs.uncw.edu/postings/12446>

Position Title - Assistant Professor - Public & International Affairs

Department - Public & International Affairs - 32421

Vacancy Number - 16F-193

Position Number - 4719

Location of Workplace - Main UNCW Campus

Brief Summary of Work for this Position

The Department of Public and International Affairs is seeking a Tenure Track Assistant Professor of Political Science with training in American Politics and Political Behavior. This position requires an active research program and carries a 3-3 teaching load.

Minimum Requirements

We expect the successful candidate to begin in August 2019; the candidate must have a PhD in hand by the time of appointment. Candidates must be capable of excellent/dynamic teaching in introductory courses in American Government and courses in Political Behavior as well as assist in the delivery of our Campaign Management Minor. The successful candidate is expected to maintain a productive and active research agenda producing peer reviewed research, and to participate as a department citizen through service such as academic advising, departmental committee participation, and other obligations as needed.

Preferred Qualifications

Specialization in quantitative research methods is preferred. The focus of this hire is on research and undergraduate teaching; however, the candidate may also have an opportunity to contribute to one of our three graduate programs.

Primary Function of Organizational Unit

The Department of Public and International Affairs supports the Bachelor of Arts in Political Science and several minors: International Affairs, Nonprofit Management and Leadership, Political Science, Pre-Law, Public Administration, and Security Studies. At the graduate level, faculty support courses in the Master of Public Administration, Master of Arts in Conflict Management and Resolution, and Master of Coastal and Ocean Policy.

College/School Information

The College of Arts and Sciences is UNCW's largest academic unit, employing 450 full-time and 150 part-time faculty members and awarding approximately three quarters of the university's academic credits. Ours is a comprehensive arts & sciences college comprising the arts, the humanities, the mathematical and natural sciences, and the social and behavioral sciences.

The College's twenty-two departments offer a variety of undergraduate majors leading to the Bachelor of Arts, the Bachelor of Fine Arts, the Bachelor of Music, and the Bachelor of Science. The College also offers a full complement of minors, including interdisciplinary minors such as African-American studies, Asian studies, forensic science, Latin American studies, Native American studies, and women's studies, among others.

Applied learning is a hallmark of the student experience in the College of Arts and Sciences. Each of the College's departments requires an applied learning experience as a part of the curriculum for its undergraduate majors. Examples include faculty-directed research, internships, service learning, and capstone courses and projects, all of which challenge students to integrate various stands of knowledge and to apply that knowledge to broader, real-world or real disciplinary situations. Through applied learning, students in the college gain direct hands-on experience with the skills of their major fields as an essential part of their preparation for life and career. For more information, please visit the College's Applied Learning web page.

In addition to its undergraduate major and minor programs, the College is chiefly responsible for the curriculum that comprises the university's University Studies Program, through which all UNCW undergraduates gain a foundation in the liberal arts and develop the transferable skills essential for life in the twenty-first century. The College strives in its undergraduate programs and in its University Study offerings to nurture creative thinking, intellectual curiosity, and academic integrity in students while providing them with a solid foundation of knowledge in their chosen fields. Upon completion of their undergraduate studies, College of Arts and Sciences students will have the necessary preparation for rewarding careers, advanced study, effective citizenship, and meaningful lives.

Graduate programs in the college are designed to develop intellectual competence and to prepare the student for careers in business, industry, government, teaching, or for further study at the doctoral level.

University Information

The University of North Carolina Wilmington, the state's coastal university, is dedicated to learning through the integration of teaching and mentoring with research and service. A public institution with nearly 16,500 students, the university is known for its superb faculty and staff and powerful academic experience. With an array of high-quality programs at the baccalaureate and master's levels, and doctoral programs in marine biology, educational leadership, psychology and nursing practice. UNCW is consistently recognized at a national level for academic excellence and affordability by publications like U.S. News & World Report, Kiplinger's Personal Finance and The Business Journals. UNCW also recently earned the 2015 Community Engagement Classification from the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching, bestowed to higher education institutions dedicated to community involvement.

EEO Statement

UNC Wilmington actively fosters a diverse and inclusive working and learning environment and is an equal opportunity employer. Qualified persons from all racial, ethnic or other minority groups, protected veterans, and individuals with disabilities are strongly encouraged to apply.

Applicant Instructions

All interested applicants should apply online at <https://jobs.uncw.edu/postings/12446>. Applications received by the priority consideration date will be assured full consideration. The following materials are required:

1. Cover letter describing research and teaching interests,
2. Curriculum Vitae,
3. Unofficial graduate transcripts (official ones will be required before hire),
4. Teaching portfolio (1-page teaching statement, list of courses that the applicant is interested to teach, student teaching evaluations, and 1 sample syllabus)
5. One writing sample (published paper or manuscript)
6. Names and email addresses for at least three references who are prepared to provide letters of recommendation.

Position Type Permanent

Anticipated Ending Date if Time-Limited Positions

Job Posting Date 10/02/2018

Priority Consideration Date 11/02/2018

Priority Consideration Information

Priority consideration will be given to applications received by the Priority Date; however, applications will be accepted until the position is filled.

Applicant Documents / Required Documents

Cover Letter

Curriculum Vita

Writing Sample

Combined Unofficial Graduate Transcripts

Portfolio/Work Sample

List of 3 Professional References

Start Date: Fall 2019

Date Posted: 10/2/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4932

University of California, Berkeley

Rank: Lecturer Pool - Department of Political Science/College of Letters and Science

Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Comparative Politics, International Relations

Lecturer Pool - Department of Political Science/College of Letters and Science

RECRUITMENT PERIOD

Open date: September 25th, 2018

Next review date: October 12th, 2018

Apply by this date to ensure full consideration by the committee.

Final date: September 13th, 2019

Applications will continue to be accepted until this date, but those received after the review date will only be considered if the position has not yet been filled.

DESCRIPTION

The Charles and Louise Travers Department of Political Science in the College of Letters and Science at the University of California, Berkeley invites applications for a pool of qualified temporary lecturers to teach courses as needed in the areas of American Politics, California Politics, Comparative Politics, International Relations, Methodology & Formal Theory, Political Theory & Philosophy, Models & Politics, Political Behavior, Public Law & Jurisprudence, and Public Policy & Organization.

The number of positions varies from semester to semester, depending on the needs of the department. Positions may range from 33% to 100%, depending on the number of classes being taught. Appointments typically start at the beginning of the semester and may be renewed based on need, funding, and performance.

General Duties: In addition to teaching responsibilities, general duties include holding office hours, assigning grades, advising students, preparing course materials (e.g. syllabus), and maintaining a course website.

Basic Qualifications: The minimum qualifications required to be an applicant is a Completion of Bachelor's degree (or equivalent international degree) is required at the time of application.

Preferred Qualifications: Completion of all Ph.D. (or equivalent) degree requirements except dissertation at the time of application or, full-time paid political experience of at least 4 years within the last 10 years.

Salary: Salary will be based on applicant's teaching experience, appointment % FTE, and current campus salary scales in place at time of appointment. The current minimum salary for this position would be based on a full-time annual salary of $54,738. Lecturers teaching one course per semesters are typically appointed at a 33% rate.

The department is interested in candidates who will contribute to diversity and equal opportunity in higher education through their teaching. UC Berkeley has a number of policies and programs in place to support employees as they balance work and family.

To apply, please go to the following link:

<http://apptrkr.com/1301633>

Applicants must submit their most recently updated C.V.

The department may later request contact information for 3-5 references, teaching statements, evidence of teaching effectiveness, such as past course syllabi, teaching evaluations, etc., but they are not required at the time of application.

When and if the department contacts references, all letters will be treated as confidential per University of California policy and California state law. Please refer potential referees, including when letters are provided via a third party (i.e., dossier service or career center), to the UC Berkeley statement of confidentiality (<http://apo.berkeley.edu/evalltr.html>) prior to submitting their letters.

Applications will be accepted and reviewed for department needs through September 13, 2019. The department typically reviews applications for fall course needs in April/May, for spring course needs in October/November, and for summer course needs in February/March. Those interested in remaining in the pool after September 13, 2019 will need to reapply.

Please note: The use of a lecturer pool does not guarantee that an open position exists. See the review date specified in AP Recruit to learn whether the department is currently reviewing applications for a specific position. If there is no future review date specified, your application may not be considered at this time.

Please direct questions to Serena Groen at serena_groen@berkeley.edu

The University of California is an Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action Employer. All qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to race, color, religion, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, national origin, disability, age or protected veteran status. For the complete University of California nondiscrimination and affirmative action policy see: <http://policy.ucop.edu/doc/4000376/NondiscrimAffirmAct>

JOB LOCATION

Berkeley, CA

REQUIREMENTS

Document requirements

- Curriculum Vitae - Your most recently updated C.V.
- Teaching Statement (Optional)
- Evidence of Teaching Effectiveness - i.e. past course syllabi, teaching evaluations, etc. (Optional)

Reference requirements

- 0-5 required (contact information only)

Start Date: Summer 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 10/1/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4933

University of Oxford

Rank: Edward Orsborn Professor of US Politics and Political History, and Director of the Rothermere American Institute

Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, American Government and Politics, American Government and Politics

The University of Oxford is seeking to appoint an outstanding academic and leader to the Edward Orsborn Professorship and Directorship of the Rothermere American Institute.

The successful candidate will be a scholar with an outstanding international reputation in the field of US Politics and Political History since independence and demonstrable leadership ability at a senior level. They will provide the intellectual vision and strategic leadership for the Rothermere American Institute, and develop its activities as a major international centre for research and teaching in American history, culture and politics. They will offer teaching in US politics and/or political history at both undergraduate and graduate level.

The post is offered in association with University College. The closing date for applications is 12.00 noon on Monday 29 October 2018.

Applications are particularly welcome from women and black and minority ethnic candidates, who are under-represented in academic posts in Oxford.

The interviews are expected to be held on Friday 14 December 2018.

All applications must be received by 12.00 noon on Monday 29 October.

For any informal inquiries please contact: professorships@admin.ox.ac.uk

To apply for this role and for further details including the job description and selection criteria, please visit: www.ox.ac.uk/about/jobs/academic/index/, quoting reference 137016

Start Date:

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 10/1/2018

Salary: Negotiable

eJobs ID: 4996

Wake Forest University

Rank: Worrell Chair in Anglo-American Studies

Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Comparative Politics, International Relations

WAKE FOREST UNIVERSITY

WORRELL CHAIR IN ANGLO-AMERICAN STUDIES

The Department of Politics and International Affairs at Wake Forest University is seeking an outstanding scholar and teacher to fill a named chair in the area of Anglo-American studies as it relates to politics, ideally at the Full or Associate Professor level.

The Department understands Anglo-America broadly to include Britain as well as regions of the Americas in which English is spoken widely and where the British colonial legacy is reflected in present-day culture and politics. This includes the United States, Canada and the Anglophone Caribbean. Similarly, scholars of Anglo-American studies with research interests that add unique contributions to those of current Wake Forest Politics and International Affairs faculty are encouraged to apply. These might include but are not limited to the examination of shared issues including immigration, environmental, and social welfare policies; party and electoral systems; labor politics and political economy; postcolonial and critical legal studies; and the social and political inequalities associated with race, class, and gender. The Department of Politics and International Affairs includes faculty who are both dedicated teachers and active researchers. Candidates should have a strong commitment to excellence in undergraduate teaching and an outstanding record of research. Salary will be commensurate with the rank and stature of the selected applicant.

Founded in 1834, Wake Forest University is presently ranked among the top 30 national universities in the United States. The university is located in Winston-Salem, North Carolina, a vibrant, small city with a thriving arts community. At Wake Forest and in Winston-Salem there are many opportunities for multi-disciplinary collaboration and community-engaged research, supported by the Pro Humanitate Institute, the Anna Julia Cooper Center, and other affiliated centers. Wake Forest University and Winston-Salem also houses one of the fastest growing urban technology innovation districts in the United States, Wake Forest Innovation Quarter.

Wake Forest University and the Department of Politics and International Affairs welcome diversity and encourage inclusivity. We therefore seek applicants with demonstrated success in engaging diverse populations. Wake Forest University is an AA/EO employer and values an inclusive and diverse learning community and campus climate.

Applications will be reviewed as they are received and accepted until the Professorship is filled. Inquiries and questions about the position should be directed to the Chair of the Search Committee: Katy Harriger at harriger@wfu.edu subject line: "Worrell Chair." Applications accepted on line www.wfu.edu/careers. A complete application includes a letter of interest and a C.V. Additional information and references will be requested from finalists. Technical questions may be directed to wakejobs@wfu.edu.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 9/28/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4921

Loyola University Maryland

Rank: Visiting Affiliate Assistant Professor or Instructor in American Politics and Constitutional Law

Specializations: American Politics, Civil Rights & Liberties, Constitutional Law & Theory

We seek candidates displaying a strong commitment to excellence in teaching and interest in the enduring questions of American Politics and Constitutional Law for a Spring 2019 position.

Candidates for Visiting Affiliate Assistant Professor should have a Ph.D.; candidates for Instructor should be ABD. The teaching load for the one-semester Spring 2019 position is four courses with three preparations. The four courses will include: two sections of an introductory American Politics course (each capped at 30 students); one section of a Mock Trial course (capped at 20 students); and one section of a Constitutional Law course (capped at 30 students). Service duties will be assigned by Chair.

Loyola University Maryland is a selective liberal arts university in the Jesuit Catholic tradition. The university is committed to intellectual excellence and social justice as it prepares students for a diverse and changing world. Recognized as a leading independent, comprehensive university in the northeastern United States, Loyola has a beautiful historic Evergreen campus in Baltimore and Graduate Centers in Timonium and Columbia. Loyola enrolls over 4,000 students in its undergraduate programs and about 2,000 students in its graduate programs.

Loyola seeks a broad spectrum of candidates, including women, people of color, people with disabilities, and members of sexual minority groups, who understand, respect, and can actively contribute to the University's Jesuit mission and values (see <http://www.loyola.edu/about.aspx> to learn more about Loyola and its educational mission).

Please go to www.loyola.edu/careers to complete the online application. Using the link above, electronically submit a curriculum vita, evidence of teaching effectiveness (such as teaching evaluations, if available), sample syllabi for proposed courses, if available (use Other 1), a list of three references who could comment on teaching abilities, and a cover letter that explicitly incorporates a clear understanding of the mission of Jesuit higher education and how one will contribute to this mission.

If materials cannot be electronically uploaded to the website, please email to: Dr. Kevin Hula (khula@loyola.edu) or, if unable to send electronically, mail to him at Dept. of Political Science, Loyola University Maryland, 4501 N. Charles St., Baltimore, MD, 21210.

Reviews of applications will begin November 1.

Start Date: Spring 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 9/26/2018

Salary: Any

eJobs ID: 4901

SUNY, Oswego State

Rank: Assistant Professor - American Politics

The Assistant Professor of American Politics is a broadly trained political scientist, well versed in historical, interpretive, and critical approaches, who can teach a range of courses in American politics. The Assistant Professor will teach an introductory survey of American politics and other courses determined by area of research and interests.

The Assistant Professor of American Politics will demonstrate potential for excellence in teaching and scholarship and a commitment to undergraduate education, and must possess communication and interpersonal skills sufficient to work effectively with an increasingly diverse array of students and colleagues.

A commitment to interdisciplinarity, the ability to contribute to departmental offerings in political theory, a strong interest and desire to work with students from diverse backgrounds, and ability to promote students' ability to succeed in a global community is preferred.

For additional details and to submit an application, visit www.oswego.edu/vacancies

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 9/26/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4908

Duquesne University

Rank: Full-time, tenure-track assistant professor of American politics

Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Public Law, Public Policy

AMERICAN POLITICS

Assistant Professor of Political Science, McAnulty College and Graduate School of Liberal Arts, Duquesne University

The Department of Political Science at Duquesne University invites applications for a full-time, tenure-track assistant professor position in American politics. We are open to methodological approach and scholarly interests in any aspect of American politics, policy, and law. The ability to teach Constitutional law to undergraduates would be welcome. Candidates will be expected to continue the Department's tradition of excellence in scholarship and undergraduate teaching to a diverse and dynamic student body. Duquesne is located in downtown Pittsburgh, PA. The city, frequently ranked as America's most livable according to Places Rated Almanac, enjoys rich educational, cultural, and recreational resources.

The Search Committee will begin its review of applications on November 1, 2018 and will continue reviewing applications until the position is filled. Ph.D. by start date is strongly preferred. Applications from female and minority candidates are strongly encouraged. Applicants should submit (1) a detailed cover letter describing research interests and teaching experience; (2) a curriculum vitae; (3) a single best piece of scholarship no longer than 40 pages; (4) teaching evaluations, if available; and (5) three letters of recommendation to be submitted directly from references. Additional information may be required at a later date. All materials must be submitted directly to <http://apply.interfolio.com/54864>. Start date is August 15, 2019. Contracts are nine months in duration. For additional information, please contact Ms. Cheri Cunningham at cunningc@duq.edu.

Founded in 1878 by its sponsoring religious community, the Congregation of the Holy Spirit, Duquesne University is Catholic in mission and ecumenical in spirit. Its Mission Statement commits the University to "serving God by serving students – through commitment to excellence in liberal and professional education, through profound concern for moral and spiritual values, through the maintenance of an ecumenical atmosphere open to diversity, and through service to the Church, the community, the nation and the world." We invite applicants for this position to learn more about our university and its Spiritan heritage by visiting <http://www.duq.edu/about/mission-and-identity/mission-statement>. Those invited to campus for an interview may be asked about ways in which they see their talents contributing to the continued growth of our community and furthering its mission.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: 11/1/2018

Date Posted: 9/25/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4887

Duquesne University

Rank: Full-time, tenure-track assistant professor of American politics

Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Public Law, Public Policy

AMERICAN POLITICS

Assistant Professor of Political Science, McAnulty College and Graduate School of Liberal Arts, Duquesne University

The Department of Political Science at Duquesne University invites applications for a full-time, tenure-track assistant professor position in American politics. We are open to methodological approach and scholarly interests in any aspect of American politics, policy, and law. The ability to teach Constitutional law to undergraduates would be welcome. Candidates will be expected to continue the Department's tradition of excellence in scholarship and undergraduate teaching to a diverse and dynamic student body. Duquesne is located in downtown Pittsburgh, PA. The city, frequently ranked as America's most livable according to Places Rated Almanac, enjoys rich educational, cultural, and recreational resources.

The Search Committee will begin its review of applications on November 1, 2018 and will continue reviewing applications until the position is filled. Ph.D. by start date is strongly preferred. Applications from female and minority candidates are strongly encouraged. Applicants should submit (1) a detailed cover letter describing research interests and teaching experience; (2) a curriculum vitae; (3) a single best piece of scholarship no longer than 40 pages; (4) teaching evaluations, if available; and (5) three letters of recommendation to be submitted directly from references. Additional information may be required at a later date. All materials must be submitted directly to <http://apply.interfolio.com/54864>. Start date is August 15, 2019. Contracts are nine months in duration. For additional information, please contact Ms. Cheri Cunningham at cunningc@duq.edu.

Founded in 1878 by its sponsoring religious community, the Congregation of the Holy Spirit, Duquesne University is Catholic in mission and ecumenical in spirit. Its Mission Statement commits the University to "serving God by serving students – through commitment to excellence in liberal and professional education, through profound concern for moral and spiritual values, through the maintenance of an ecumenical atmosphere open to diversity, and through service to the Church, the community, the nation and the world." We invite applicants for this position to learn more about our university and its Spiritan heritage by visiting <http://www.duq.edu/about/mission-and-identity/mission-statement>. Those invited to campus for an interview may be asked about ways in which they see their talents contributing to the continued growth of our community and furthering its mission.

Duquesne University values equality of opportunity as an educational institution and as an employer. We aspire to attract and sustain a diverse faculty and staff that reflects contemporary society, serves our academic goals and enriches our campus community. We particularly encourage applications from members of underrepresented groups and support dual-career couples through our charter membership in this region's HERC (<http://www.hercjobs.org/oh-western-pa-wv/>).

Start Date: Fall 2019
Date Posted: 9/25/2018
Salary: Competitive
eJobs ID: 4888

Indiana State University

Rank: Assistant Professor of Political Science

The Department of Political Science at Indiana State University (www.indstate.edu) invites applications for an American politics position at the assistant professor rank to begin in August 2019. The department's mission is tied to community engagement and experiential learning, and the successful candidate must demonstrate a willingness to promote those aims via teaching, research, and activities outside the classroom. Indiana State University is a comprehensive institution of higher learning with approximately 14,000 students.

The candidate selected will become the ninth full-time faculty member of the Department of Political Science, which offers undergraduate degrees in Political Science and Legal Studies. We also offer an online MPA program that draws students from Indiana and across the United States. Applicants should demonstrate the potential for both productive scholarship and effective teaching. We seek a new colleague trained in American politics, with an emphasis in public policy formation, implementation, and/or analysis. The successful candidate will be able to contribute introductory and upper division courses to the department's political science undergraduate program. The successful candidate will also offer courses in ISU's Foundational Studies curriculum the instructions of which would include, among other topics, ethics and social responsibility in a political context. Furthermore, the ability to contribute courses to the Master of Public Administration in the areas of public policy, nonprofit management, community development, and/or public-private partnerships is desired.

The typical teaching load for assistant professors in the department is 3 courses per semester, with an active research agenda and service responsibilities also expected. Review of applications will begin on October 25, 2018 and will continue until the position is filled. Applications completed by October 25 will be given full consideration. A Ph.D. at the time of the appointment in Political Science or in a closely related field is preferred. We will consider advanced ABDs who are able to demonstrate that they will have the Ph.D. in hand at that time.

Indiana State University is an Equal Opportunity Employer and conducts its recruitment and hiring based solely upon job-related qualifications, without regard to race, color, religion, age, sex, national origin, sexual orientation, disability, veteran status or citizenship status. The College of Arts and Sciences welcomes all faculty, staff, and students, regardless of identity or affiliation. The College values the contribution of all individuals in the execution of its primary mission, which is to educate undergraduate and graduate students. To that end, we will strive to attract representative staff and faculty. The College will actively support endeavors that embrace and explore human differences and global awareness. View the diversity plan at <https://www.indstate.edu/cas/diversity-plan>. Questions may be addressed to polisci@indstate.edu. Applicants must apply online at <https://jobs.indstate.edu>. Please include a letter of application, curriculum vitae, unofficial graduate transcripts, evidence of teaching effectiveness (including sample syllabi, teaching evaluations, and a teaching philosophy statement), three letters of recommendation, and a writing sample.

Start Date: Fall 2019
Application Deadline: Open until Filled
Date Posted: 9/25/2018
Salary: Competitive
eJobs ID: 4891

Princeton University

Rank: Senior Research Specialist I - CSDP

The Center for the Study of Democratic Politics (CSDP) in the Woodrow Wilson School of Public and International Affairs, Princeton University, is seeking an advanced PhD student or PhD for a half-time to full-time Research Specialist I position, to start as soon as possible. The research specialist will work with a multi-investigator team of Princeton University politics professors on CSDP's Project on Economic Inequality in the U.S. The position provides university staff benefits including health insurance, and the opportunity to co-author.

The successful candidate will have excellent statistical skills, good writing skills, experience designing and fielding surveys and experiments, and excellent attention to detail and conscientiousness. At least two years' experience conducting independent, doctoral-level research on individual-level political behavior is preferred. The candidate should be well organized, flexible, and be able to meet deadlines.

Preference will be given to candidates who can be in-residence and working on campus, but a remote work arrangement will be considered, with availability for some meetings in Princeton.

This position is a one-year term position, with the possibility of extension for a second year depending on funding and performance.

Preferred start date of November 1, 2018, but a somewhat later start may be possible.

ESSENTIAL QUALIFICATIONS:

- *Excellent research and writing skills
- *Proficiency in survey design and analysis of survey data, preferably on individual-level political behavior
- *Background in quantitative, experimental research and statistical methods
- *Knowledge of statistical packages including STATA or R
- *Detail-oriented, flexible, able to meet deadlines

EDUCATION REQUIRED:

- *Completed PhD coursework and masters-level research in political science required. Ph.D. in political science strongly preferred

PREFERRED QUALIFICATIONS:

- *At least two years' experience conducting independent, doctoral-level research on individual-level political behavior

This position is subject to the University's background check policy.

Apply online on the Princeton University Careers site (careers.princeton.edu), position number 00008232 (Senior Research Specialist I - CSDP),

Start Date: Fall 2018

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 9/25/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4898

University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill

Rank: Joel R. Williamson Distinguished Professor

Joel R. Williamson Distinguished Professorship

The College of Arts & Sciences of the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill seeks to recruit a senior scholar to serve as the Joel R. Williamson Distinguished Professor. This professorship is a prestigious University chair representing the institution's enduring engagement with the study of the American South. Candidates considered for this position should have a consequential record of achievement and a demonstrable commitment to teaching. Additionally, the holder of the Williamson Distinguished Professorship would be expected to provide intellectual and visionary leadership in the area of Southern Studies, collaborate with colleagues across relevant fields and units, and materially assist in the further integration of the campus's significant resources related to the American South.

The successful candidate will be appointed at the rank of full professor and will have a tenured appointment in one of the departments of the College of Arts & Sciences. The Williamson Distinguished Professorship provides generous annual support for the holder's research-related activities.

Applicants should submit their letter of application, curriculum vitae, and a list of three references, who can speak to their qualifications for this position. The search committee will begin reviewing applications by December 15, 2018

Williamson Distinguished Professorship search committee
Attn.: Ms. Yulia Strizheus
College of Art & Sciences, University of North Carolina
Campus Box 3100
205 South Building
Chapel Hill, NC 27599-3100.

We will begin reviewing applications by December 15, 2018.

UNC is an equal opportunity employer committed to a diverse faculty, staff, and student body and welcomes all applicants. We invite applications from underrepresented groups and those who have academic experiences with diverse populations.

<https://unc.peopleadmin.com/postings/148153>

Start Date: Summer 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 9/24/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4882

Boise State University

Rank: Assistant Professor

Assistant Professor
Political Science Program – School of Public Service
Requisition #181170

Boise State University's School of Public Service is dedicated to excellence in innovative teaching, cutting-edge scholarship and meaningful community outreach, serving the State of Idaho, the region, nation, and global communities. The school is comprised of rich and diverse academic programs, including Criminal Justice, Political Science, and Public Policy and Administration, as well as interdisciplinary programs such as Environmental Studies, Global Studies, and Urban Studies and Community Development. The mission of the school is supported by a variety of centers and institutes that facilitate research and public engagement.

The School of Public Service invites applications for a tenure-track, Assistant Professor position to begin in August of 2019. The area of specialization for this position is American politics with a focus on political institutions. Those studying how institutions intersect with class, race, and ethnicity are especially encouraged to apply.

Boise State University is committed to increasing the diversity of its faculty, staff, students, and academic program offerings and to strengthening sensitivity to diversity throughout the institution. Boise State University is an affirmative action/equal opportunity employer, and applications from members of historically underrepresented groups are especially encouraged to apply. We are a welcoming campus that supports diversity and inclusion.

Position Overview:

- 1 vacancy

Duties and Responsibilities:

- Teaching undergraduate American Politics courses in Political Science with an emphasis on institutions.
- Opportunities to teach and contribute to interdisciplinary programs and the Ph.D. in Public Policy.

Minimum Qualifications:

- Doctoral degree in Political Science or a related field (ABD will be considered).

Preferred Qualifications:

- Specialization in American politics with an emphasis on political institutions.
- Focus on areas of class, race, and ethnicity.

The successful candidate will possess the following knowledge, skills, and abilities:

- Interest and potential in building a strong research record in American political institutions.
- Research record demonstrating theoretical or empirical contributions to the field while utilizing quantitative, qualitative or mixed methods.
- Interest and potential in producing high-quality, peer-reviewed and public service scholarship.
- Interest, experience, and/or ability to promote cultural competency and/or diversity.

Salary and benefits: Competitive salary, plus an excellent benefits package is available for eligible employees, for more information visit: <http://hrs.boisestate.edu/careers/benefits/>.

Required Application Materials: Please attach a cover letter (indicating your interest and qualifications for this position), curriculum vita, summary of recent teaching evaluations, and written sample of your research, transcripts and three letters of recommendation. Please submit application materials using the following link: <https://boisestate.taleo.net/careersection/exfac/jobdetail.ftl?job=181170&tz=GMT-06%3A00>

Please submit Letters of Recommendation to Dr. Lori Hausegger: lorihausegger@boisestate.edu
1910 University Drive
Boise, ID 83725-1935

Closing Date: October 19, 2018, 11:59PM MST

About the Boise: <http://boisechamber.org>

About the University: <https://www.boisestate.edu/about/>

About the School: <http://sps.boisestate.edu>

Start Date: Fall 2018

Application Deadline: 10/19/2018

Date Posted: 9/21/2018

Salary: $50,000 - $59,999

eJobs ID: 4880

Princeton University

Rank: Visiting Fellow, James Madison Program, Princeton University

Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Political Theory, Comparative Politics

Specializations: American Politics, Constitutional Law & Theory, Political Theory

Invitation for Visiting Fellow Applications

The James Madison Program in American Ideals and Institutions at Princeton University is dedicated to the pursuit of scholarly excellence in the fields of constitutional law and political thought. Sponsored by Princeton's Department of Politics, the Program seeks to enrich the intellectual life of Princeton students and faculty by exploring American constitutional principles and structures through research and public discussion.

The Program invites college and university professors and other professionals with established records of scholarship to apply for appointments as Visiting Fellows for the academic year running from September 1, 2019 to June 30, 2020. One-semester appointments are possible but not preferred. Depending on the needs of the University, teaching opportunities may be available, subject to sufficient enrollment and approval of the Dean of the Faculty.

All James Madison Program Visiting Fellows will spend an academic year (10-month term) in residence at Princeton University. They enjoy access to Firestone Library and a wide range of other facilities and activities throughout the University.

Visiting Fellows are expected to devote full time to their proposed research. They are encouraged, however, to attend or participate in various activities of the Program, including faculty-student seminars, colloquia, and public lectures.

All James Madison Program Fellows must have a doctorate or equivalent degree. Positions are open to all regardless of citizenship. Fellows normally receive a stipend of one-half their academic-year salary plus a living allowance. The fellows' home institutions are expected to provide at least half of their academic-year salaries in addition to all benefits.

How to apply: For full consideration, applicants are required to submit an online application at <https://dof.princeton.edu/academicjobs>. To apply for a Visiting Fellow position please go to requisition D-19-POL-00004.

A complete application must include the following:

- * a curriculum vitae;
- * a scholarly paper written in the past three years;
- * a statement (no more than 1,500 words) describing the proposed research;
- * contact information for two references;
- * a confidential statement from home institution that indicates the applicant's salary for the current academic year, financial support their home institution and other sources are likely to provide, and what support they are likely to need from the Program.

The deadline for application materials is 11:59 p.m. EST on December 1, 2018 for appointments beginning in September 2019. Awards will be announced in March 2019 or before.

Please address any inquiries to:

Bradford P. Wilson, Ph.D., Executive Director
James Madison Program in American Ideals and Institutions
Princeton University
83 Prospect Avenue
Princeton, NJ 08540
E-mail: bpwilson@princeton.edu
Web address: jmp.princeton.edu

Start Date: Fall

Application Deadline: 12/1/2018

Date Posted: 9/20/2018

Salary: Any

eJobs ID: 4866

Eastern Illinois University

Rank: American Politics/Research Methods

The Department of Political Science at Eastern Illinois University invites applicants for a tenure-track position in Political Science at the rank of Assistant Professor. The successful candidate will be qualified to teach undergraduate and graduate courses in American Politics and Research Methods. The position begins August 15, 2019.

Candidates must have a Ph.D. in Political Science or ABD status with evidence of substantial progress toward degree completion. Commitment to excellence in teaching and mentoring, an active research agenda, and a commitment to service are essential. Primary courses include an introductory American government course, a rotation of undergraduate American politics courses (e.g. Presidency, Congress, and American Foreign Policy), undergraduate and graduate level research methods, and graduate seminars. Some graduate classes will be taught online. The position also includes directing undergraduate and graduate research. Ideal candidates will be committed to mentoring, applied learning, diversity, and promoting inclusive excellence.

Applicants should submit a letter of application, a curriculum vitae, three references (including reference phone numbers and emails), three recent professional recommendation letters, and graduate school transcripts via Interfolio at <http://apply.interfolio.com/55077>. Application review begins October 8 and will continue until the position is filled.

The Department of Political Science at Eastern Illinois University offers three undergraduate majors, including Political Science, an International Studies option, and a Civic and Nonprofit Leadership option. At the graduate level, the department offers an M.A. in Political Science and an online M.A. in Political Science with a Public Administration and Public Policy option. Questions about the search may be directed to the department chair, Dr. Melinda Mueller (mamueller@eiu.edu).

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 9/19/2018

Salary: $60,000 - $69,999

eJobs ID: 4857

Princeton University

Rank: Postdoctoral Research Associate, James Madison Program, Princeton University

Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Political Theory, Comparative Politics

Specializations: American Politics, Constitutional Law & Theory, Political Philosophy & Theory

Invitation for Postdoctoral Research Associate Applications

The James Madison Program in American Ideals and Institutions at Princeton University is dedicated to the pursuit of scholarly excellence in the fields of constitutional law and political thought. Sponsored by Princeton's Department of Politics, the Program seeks to enrich the intellectual life of Princeton students and faculty by exploring American constitutional principles and structures through research and public discussion.

The Program invites recent Ph.D. recipients to apply for appointments as Postdoctoral Research Associates or more senior researchers for the year from September 1, 2019 to September 1, 2020, with the possibility of renewal for an additional year, contingent on good performance. All James Madison Program postdocs are expected to be in residence at Princeton University for the duration of the appointment. They may not be employed by another institution during the term of their Princeton appointment. They enjoy access to Firestone Library and a wide range of other facilities and activities throughout the University. Depending on the needs of the University, teaching opportunities may be available, subject to the approval of the Dean of the Faculty. Postdoctoral Research Associates are expected to devote full time to their proposed research. They are, however, encouraged to attend or participate in various activities of the Program, including faculty-student seminars, colloquia, and public lectures.

The position is a fully funded, 12-month postdoctoral research associate appointment with benefits. All James Madison Program Postdoctoral Research Associates must have a Ph.D. degree. Applications are evaluated on the basis of (1) the significance of the proposed research; (2) the quality of the applicant's past research; and (3) the future contribution the applicant is likely to make to higher education. Positions are open to all regardless of citizenship. This position is subject to the University's background check policy.

How to apply:

For full consideration, applicants should submit an online application at <https://dof.princeton.edu/academicjobs> by December 1, 2018; applications will continue to be reviewed until positions are filled. Awards will be announced in March 2019 or before. To apply for a Postdoctoral Research Associate position, go directly to the link. A complete application must include the following:

- * a curriculum vitae;
- * a scholarly paper written in the past three years;
- * a statement (no more than 1,500 words) describing the proposed research;
- * contact information for two references.

Please address any inquiries to:

Bradford P. Wilson, Ph.D.
Executive Director
James Madison Program in American Ideals and Institutions
Princeton University
83 Prospect Avenue
Princeton, NJ 08540
E-mail: bpwilson@princeton.edu
Web address: jmp.princeton.edu

Start Date: Fall

Application Deadline: 12/1/2018

Date Posted: 9/19/2018

Salary: $50,000 - $59,999

eJobs ID: 4863

Purdue University, Northwest

Rank: Assistant Professor of Politics and Public Policy

The Department of Political Science, Economics, and World Languages and Cultures at Purdue University Northwest in Hammond and Westville, Indiana, invites applications for a Tenure Track Assistant Professor of Politics and Public Policy position starting on August 12, 2019.

The Department of Political Science, Economics, and World Languages and Cultures brings together scholars in political science, economics and foreign languages, creating unique synergies between its faculty, particularly with respect to public policy within political science and economics. With undergraduate majors and minors in Foreign Languages and Political Science, as well as a new minor in Economics, the department seeks to expand its public policy and state and local government focus.

Purdue University Northwest is an academically comprehensive regional university and part of the internationally respected Purdue University system. The campuses are located in the northwest Indiana cities of Hammond, less than 25 miles southeast of downtown Chicago, and Westville, near the shores of Lake Michigan. Purdue University Northwest offers baccalaureate and master's degrees in such Purdue academic strengths as engineering; technologies; behavioral and social sciences; liberal arts; as well as professional programs consisting of nursing, business, education, and hospitality & tourism management. More than 12,000 students attend Purdue University Northwest. Adding to the unique character of the institution is a richly diverse student body including more than seven percent international students.

Essential Duties:

- Teaching multiple sections of the introductory courses in American Politics, as well as public policy courses in area of specialization.
- Teaching load will be three courses per semester.
- Participation in professional, university, and community service is expected.
- Opportunities for interacting with regional organizations and businesses are excellent and encouraged.
- Candidates with the ability to teach: introduction to international relations; introduction to public policy, state and local politics or immigration politics are strongly encouraged to apply.

Qualifications

A doctoral degree in Political Science or a related field is required. Applications from ABD candidates will be accepted with the expectation that the dissertation must be successfully defended by no later than January 1, 2019. Proficiency in English, written and spoken, is required.

Additional Information:

This position begins August 12, 2019. Interested applicants should submit a letter of application, vita with references, Letters of recommendation, and a statement of teaching philosophy to the address listed below. Electronic submission preferred. Review of applications will begin immediately and will continue until the position is filled with a preferred date of Oct. 15, 2018.

Purdue University Northwest is committed to advancing diversity in all areas of faculty effort, including scholarship, instruction, and engagement. Candidates should address at least one of these areas in their cover letter, indicating their experiences, current interests or activities, and/or future goals to promote a climate that values diversity and inclusion.

Political Science Search Committee
College of Humanities, Education and Social Sciences
Purdue University Northwest
2200 169th Street
Hammond, IN 46323
poljobs@pnw.edu

Purdue University Northwest offers an attractive salary and an excellent benefits package. For information regarding our excellent benefits package, please visit: www.purdue.edu/benefits

Professional references will be verified prior to any offer of employment. Employment is contingent upon completion of successful background check.

Purdue University Northwest is committed to advancing diversity in all areas of faculty effort, including scholarship, instruction, and engagement. Candidates should address at least one of these areas in their cover letter, indicating their experiences, current interests or activities, and/or future goals to promote a climate that values diversity and inclusion.

Purdue University is an equal opportunity/equal access/affirmative action employer fully committed to achieving a diverse workforce. All individuals, including minorities, women, individuals with disabilities, and protected veterans are encouraged to apply.

www.purdue.edu/ethics/policies/FosteringRespect_accessible.pdf

Start Date: Summer 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 9/19/2018

Salary: $60,000 - $69,999

eJobs ID: 4861

Arizona State University

Rank: Assistant Professor

Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Administration, Public Administration

Specializations: American Politics, Congress, Bureaucracy & Organizational Behavior

Assistant Professor (JOB#12544)
School of Politics and Global Studies
Arizona State University

The School of Politics and Global Studies at Arizona State University (Tempe) invites applications for a full-time, tenure-track assistant professor beginning August 2019. We are interested in candidates whose research and teaching focus is on American institutions, broadly defined. Candidates with expertise in the U.S. Congress, the presidency, interest groups, institutional interactions, representation or opinion-policy linkages are encouraged to apply.

We are open with respect to theoretical orientation, substantive focus, and methodological approaches. Position duties include teaching courses in the American politics curriculum at both the undergraduate and graduate levels, including an upper-division undergraduate course; advising and mentoring graduate and undergraduate students; developing an active research agenda; and providing service to the department, college, and university.

Minimum Qualifications: candidates must hold a Ph.D. in Political Science or related discipline by the time of appointment; demonstrated excellence in research commensurate with appointment at the level of assistant professor; and evidence of promise in and commitment to undergraduate and graduate teaching.

Desired qualifications: demonstrated success meeting the needs of diverse student populations and/or reaching out to diverse communities; the ability to teach advanced statistical methods, particularly at the graduate level; a clear record of, or clear potential for, publishing in top journals and/or top university presses, demonstrated potential to establish a strong, externally-funded research program.

The application deadline is November 2, 2018; if not filled, then every two weeks thereafter until the search is closed. A complete application must include the following: a letter of application stating qualifications, experience, research plans, and teaching interests; a complete curriculum vita; a writing sample, and contact information for three references. Candidates are expected to have a Ph.D. degree completed by August 1, 2019.

All application materials must be received by the deadline and sent to <https://academicjobsonline.org/ajo/jobs/12022>. We will not accept any mailed applicant material, including reference letters; this is an online, paperless search. A background check is required for employment. Questions about the position or search should be directed to the search committee chair at kahn@asu.edu.

The School of Politics and Global Studies (SPGS) values interdisciplinary scholarship, and the successful candidates will have the opportunity to affiliate and collaborate with other schools and centers at Arizona State University. Candidates who can make use of our experimental laboratories are particularly encouraged to apply.

Arizona State University is a VEVRAA Federal Contractor and an Equal Opportunity/ Affirmative Action Employer. All qualified applicants will be considered without regard to race, color, sex, religion, national origin, disability, protected veteran status, or any other basis protected by law. ASU's full non-discrimination statement (ACD 401) is located on the ASU website at <https://www.asu.edu/aad/manuals/acd/acd401.html> and <https://www.asu.edu/titleIX>.

Start Date: Fall 2019
Application Deadline: 11/2/2018
Date Posted: 9/18/2018
Salary: Competitive
eJobs ID: 4855

Pennsylvania State University

Rank: Open Rank Professor of Political Science
Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Comparative Politics, International Relations

The Department of Political Science at The Pennsylvania State University invites applications for a tenured or tenure-track position focused on race and ethnicity in any subfield of political science, with particular emphasis on American, Comparative or International Politics. This is an open-rank search that is part of a cluster hire within the College of the Liberal Arts at Penn State (<http://la.psu.edu/about/diversity-and-inclusion/faculty>). The department particularly seeks individuals who build on the strengths of the department. Note that this position is separate and in addition to a simultaneous search being conducted by the Department of African American Studies, and interested candidates may apply to both positions (posting available at posting available at <https://www.apsanet.org/CAREERS/eJobs/eJobs-Online/JBctl/ViewJob/JobID/4665>). Faculty positions at Penn State involve substantial research support; in addition, junior positions offer significant release time. Tenure track candidates should have a record that demonstrates potential to build a strong publication record, to secure external funding, and to serve as an excellent teacher and mentor. Tenured applicants should already have developed a strong record in each of these three areas. Candidates must have their Ph.D. in hand by appointment date. Applications must be submitted online, and should include as attachments a cover letter explaining their research and teaching experience, a current CV, samples of scholarly writing, and teaching evaluations (with a key). All candidates for the rank of assistant professor should request letters from three references to be sent directly to plscapplications@psu.edu; candidates seeking a tenured appointment should e-mail the names and contact information for three individuals who have agreed to serve as a reference to that address. Application review will begin on October 10, 2018 and continue until the position is filled.

To review the Annual Security Report which contains information about crime statistics and other safety and security matters and policies, please go to <https://police.psu.edu/annual-security-reports>, which will also explain how to request a paper copy of the Annual Security Report. Job URL: <https://psu.jobs/job/83036>

Start Date: Fall 2019
Application Deadline: Open until Filled
Date Posted: 9/14/2018
Salary: Competitive
eJobs ID: 4838

Pennsylvania State University

Rank: Open Rank Professor of Political Science
Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Comparative Politics, International Relations

The Department of Political Science at The Pennsylvania State University invites applications for a tenured or tenure-track position focused on race and ethnicity in any subfield of political science, with particular emphasis on American, Comparative or International Politics. This is an open-rank search that is part of a cluster hire within the College of the Liberal Arts at Penn State (<http://la.psu.edu/about/diversity-and-inclusion/faculty>). The department particularly seeks individuals who build on the strengths of the department. Note that this position is separate and in addition to a simultaneous search being conducted by the Department of African American Studies, and interested candidates may apply to both positions (posting available at posting available at <https://www.apsanet.org/CAREERS/eJobs/eJobs-Online/JBctl/ViewJob/JobID/4665>). Faculty positions at Penn State involve substantial research support; in addition, junior positions offer significant release time. Tenure track candidates should have a record that demonstrates potential to build a strong publication record, to secure external funding, and to serve as an excellent teacher and mentor. Tenured applicants should already have developed a strong record in each of these three areas. Candidates must have their Ph.D. in hand by appointment date. Applications must be submitted online, and should include as attachments a cover letter explaining their research and teaching experience, a current CV, samples of scholarly writing, and teaching evaluations (with a key). All candidates for the rank of assistant professor should request letters from three references to be sent directly to plscapplications@psu.edu; candidates seeking a tenured appointment should e-mail the names and contact information for three individuals who have agreed to serve as a reference to that address. Application review will begin on October 10, 2018 and continue until the position is filled.

To review the Annual Security Report which contains information about crime statistics and other safety and security matters and policies, please go to <https://police.psu.edu/annual-security-reports>, which will also explain how to request a paper copy of the Annual Security Report.

Penn State is an equal opportunity, affirmative action employer, and is committed to providing employment opportunities to all qualified applicants without regard to race, color, religion, age, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, national origin, disability or protected veteran status.

Job URL: <https://psu.jobs/job/83036>

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 9/14/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4839

Knox College

Rank: Assistant Professor, Public Law

Subfield(s): Public Law, Political Theory, American Government and Politics

Assistant Professor, Public Law

The Department of Political Science and International Relations at Knox College invites applications for a full time, tenure track assistant professor in the area of Public Law beginning September 1, 2019.

We seek an energetic and creative scholar who adopts innovative approaches to teaching and research in a residential, liberal arts setting. Candidates should be prepared to teach courses in constitutional law and other courses in the area of law and politics. Possibilities include: civil liberties, medical law, immigration law, race and the legal system, international law, and environmental law. Ability to teach political theory a plus. Knox College operates on a trimester system with three ten week terms. The candidate hired for this position will teach five courses a year over those three terms and serve as Knox's pre-law adviser. Knox is particularly interested in qualified candidates who can contribute to the intellectual diversity and inclusivity of our academic community through their research, teaching, and service.

Qualifications: Ph.D. in Political Science or a closely related field expected at time of appointment; exceptional ABD candidates considered.

Interested applicants should submit:

Cover letter addressing undergraduate liberal arts teaching philosophy and research agenda,

Curriculum Vitae,

Three letters of reference, with at least one addressing teaching potential,

Teaching evaluations and any other evidence of teaching excellence, Unofficial graduate transcripts,

An example of recent scholarship such as an article, book chapter, or conference paper.

Please submit applications electronically (PDF format preferred) to Barbara Schulze at politicalscienceseach@knox.edu.

Review of applications will begin October 12, 2018 and continue until the position is filled. Questions may be directed to Duane Oldfield, Department Chair, doldfiel@knox.edu or 309-341-7156.

Notice of Non-Discrimination

Knox College does not discriminate on the basis of sex, pregnancy, gender identity or expression, race, color, creed, national or ethnic origin, religion or religious affiliation, sexual orientation or preference, age, marital or family status, disability, veteran status, or other status protected by applicable federal, state, or local law in admission, financial aid, employment, athletics, or any other aspect of its educational programs or activities. Any inquiries regarding Title IX or the College's policies that prohibit discrimination should be directed to the Title IX Coordinator or the Department of Education Office for Civil Rights.

Start Date:

Date Posted: 9/13/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4835

New College of Florida

Rank: Assistant Professor in Constitutional Law and Political Theory

Subfield(s): Political Theory, American Government and Politics, Public Law

Specializations: Constitutional Law & Theory, Political Philosophy & Theory, Political Theory

Constitutional Law and Political Theory

New College of Florida invites applications for a tenure-track position as Assistant Professor focusing on Constitutional Law and Political Theory. Candidates should have a Ph.D. in Political Science, Philosophy, or related field, teaching experience and career interest in liberal arts teaching, and a vibrant research agenda. The successful candidate will offer a constitutional law sequence of courses in addition to contributions elsewhere in the curriculum. While we are open with regard to research and teaching interests in constitutional law and related areas, we would look especially favorably on candidates who focus on civil rights and civil liberties. The ability to teach courses in jurisprudence, gender and politics, or race and ethnic politics is strongly preferred as well. The candidate must have completed the Ph.D. by the start of employment in August 2019.

Situated on the Gulf Coast of Florida and Sarasota Bay, New College is a nationally recognized, highly selective public honors college with an 10:1 student/faculty ratio. Students are intellectually independent and highly motivated. Undergraduate research has a central role in the curriculum, and a senior thesis or project is required of all students. Students receive narrative evaluations in lieu of grades. We are committed to excellence in undergraduate teaching and research and encourage collaborative student-faculty scholarship. The teaching load is two courses per semester plus sponsoring individual and group tutorials. Faculty members also provide academic advising, supervise independent study projects, sponsor senior theses, and serve on baccalaureate committees. Professors are expected to maintain a program of research or creative work. We are particularly interested in candidates with a commitment to innovative undergraduate liberal arts teaching.

Candidates should apply on-line at <https://www.ncf.edu/employment> and upload the following: a cover letter; c.v.; statements regarding teaching philosophy, the candidate's contributions or approaches to supporting an inclusive culture and learning environment, and research interests; syllabi; teaching evaluations; one writing sample (article or chapter length); and unofficial graduate transcript(s). In addition, please ask at least three references to send signed letters on letterhead electronically to ConLawSearch@ncf.edu or in hard copy to: Constitutional Law Search, Division of Social Sciences, New College of Florida, 5800 Bay Shore Rd, Sarasota, FL 34243. According to Florida law, applications and meetings regarding applications are open to the public upon request. Applicants who need accommodations in order to participate in the selection process must notify the chair of the search committee 48 hours in advance of a meeting. For questions about the application process, please contact Ms. Kristi Fecteau at kfecteau@ncf.edu. Review of applications will begin on October 1, 2018 and continue until the position is filled.

Start Date: Summer 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 9/12/2018

Salary: Negotiable

eJobs ID: 4824

Temple University

Rank: Assistant Professor in State/Local/Urban Policy and Politics

The Department of Political Science at Temple University invites applications for a tenure-track position at the level of Assistant Professor in American politics focusing on state, local, or urban policy, politics, and governance. We are interested in candidates whose research and teaching engages any policy area. Candidates must demonstrate a strong commitment to excellence in both research and teaching. Evidence of external grant/fellowship support is desirable. Teaching a survey course in state and local politics and policy on a regular basis is expected. Temple University is a state-related Carnegie Research University (highest research activity) located in Philadelphia. The College of Liberal Arts is home to 32 undergraduate majors, 32 minors, 23 certificate programs and 15 graduate degree programs. With its vibrant and diverse array of educational programs, the College of Liberal Arts plays a tremendous role in Temple University's academic success and its mission mirrors both the historical importance of the liberal arts in society and the principles on which the university was founded. Candidates are expected to have completed a Ph.D. by the beginning of their appointment. Please send a cover letter; curriculum vitae; a sample of written or published scholarly work; teaching portfolio (e.g., sample syllabi, student and/or peer evaluations); graduate school transcript; and three letters of reference to: <http://apply.interfolio.com/54756>. Applications received by October 15, 2018 will receive best consideration. Temple University is an Affirmative Action equal opportunity employer and particularly encourages applications from women, persons of color, veterans and persons with disabilities

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: 10/16/2018

Date Posted: 9/12/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4825

Drake University

Rank: Assistant Professor

Drake University seeks a full-time tenure-track Assistant Professor of Political Science in American Politics, focusing on public policy and policy analysis. Applicants should possess a Ph.D. in Political Science (ABDs with solid evidence of completion by the start of the Fall 2019 semester will be considered) and demonstrated commitment to teaching excellence. Teaching responsibilities include the introductory American Politics course and upper level courses covering domestic public policy (process and theory), policy analysis, and topics consistent with the individual's research specialization. Located in the fastest growing city in the Midwest and the state capital of Des Moines, Iowa, Drake is a hub of political activity during the Iowa caucuses and offers exceptional opportunities for experiential learning, student engagement, and scholarship on policy formulation and discourse in local, state, and national contexts. Salary is competitive with peer schools and dependent on qualifications and experience. Review of applications will begin October 1, 2018. To apply, go to <https://drake.hiretouch.com> and submit a cover letter, current curriculum vitae, three letters of reference, evidence of teaching effectiveness (including sample syllabi, teaching evaluations, and a statement on teaching philosophy), and a writing sample. Questions may be directed to the search committee chair at Rachel.caufield@drake.edu.

<https://drake.hiretouch.com/job-details?jobID=50547&job=assistant-professor-of-politics-998795><https://drake.hiretouch.com/job-details?jobID=50547&job=assistant-professor-of-politics-998795>

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: 10/15/2018

Date Posted: 9/11/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4806

University of Nevada, Las Vegas

Rank: American Politics, Assistant/Associate Professor, Department of Political Science

Specializations: American Politics, Quantitative Methods, Research Methods

https://nshe.wd1.myworkdayjobs.com/UNLV-External/job/UNLV1-Maryland-Campus/American-Politics--Assistant-Associate-Professor--Department-of-Political-Science--R0112048-_R0112048

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 9/11/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4813

University of North Carolina, Asheville

Rank: Assistant Professor of Political Science, American Politics

The University of North Carolina Asheville Department of Political Science invites applications for a tenure-track Assistant Professor position to begin Fall 2019. An earned Ph.D. in Political Science or a closely related field is required for a tenure-track position; however, candidates nearing completion of their doctorate (ABD) with a defense expected prior to August 2019 may be considered. Candidates should be broadly trained in Political Science but specifically prepared to teach a variety of classes in American Politics, while also sharing teaching responsibilities in the department's research methods and/or undergraduate research sequence. Priority will be given to candidates with expertise or teaching experience in the politics of race and ethnicity or in state, local, or urban politics. Candidates whose teaching, scholarship, and service contribute to the department's human rights and civil rights emphases are especially welcome, and the successful candidate will have the opportunity to contribute to related university programs such as Africana Studies; U.S. Ethnic Studies; American Indian and Indigenous Studies; Women, Gender, and Sexuality Studies; and Human Rights Studies.

The person selected for this position will be expected to teach 12 contact hours per semester, establish a research program that involves undergraduates, and engage in service to the institution, the community and the profession. Individuals with a passion for undergraduate teaching and interest in a career at an institution focused on the liberal arts are strongly encouraged to apply. In addition to having a passion for undergraduate teaching, research and mentorship, the UNC Asheville faculty is committed to disciplinary teaching through an inter- and multi-disciplinary lens and providing a premier liberal arts education. Faculty members are expected to teach across the University's Liberal Arts Core (LAC) program, our required interdisciplinary liberal arts curriculum, in courses that include, but are not limited to: introductory (freshman) colloquia; diversity intensives; courses that satisfy the Scientific Perspectives, Social Science courses, and Arts and Ideas requirements; courses within the Humanities Program; and LAC Senior Capstone courses.

UNC Asheville has been a national leader in undergraduate research for more than 30 years, and over 60% of our students graduate each year having been involved in this important learning experience. The University fully embraces the idea of mentored undergraduate research being one of the highest forms of teaching, and the institution values success in this facet of a faculty member's work.

The University of North Carolina at Asheville is committed to fostering a diverse and inclusive academic and educational community, welcoming and supportive of faculty and staff from all racial, ethnic, economic, religious, gender, and gender-identity backgrounds. We encourage applications from individuals whose backgrounds and interests align with this commitment. The successful candidate will be expected to engage students from among under-represented groups and to assist in the development of pedagogies and experiences appropriate for diverse learning styles and perspectives. We expect applicants to each write a 1-2 page Diversity Statement describing: (a) their experience in advancing diversity in teaching, scholarship and/or service; (b) examples of demonstrated leadership potential in the area of equity and inclusion; and (c) their understanding of the importance of diversity and inclusion to the mission of a liberal art university.

Applications for this position should be submitted electronically at <https://jobs.unca.edu>. Complete applications should include a cover letter, curriculum vitae, statement of teaching philosophy that addresses Political Science pedagogy in the context of the liberal arts, a diversity statement (described above), copies of teaching evaluations, a scholarly writing sample, statement of research interest and plans, and copies of undergraduate and graduate transcripts. The applicant should provide names and contact information for three references from whom we will request letters of reference to be sent separately; these references should address the candidate's written, verbal and interpersonal skills; ability to teach and mentor undergraduate students; and potential to develop and maintain a successful research program.

Priority will be given to applications received before October 1. Review of applications will begin immediately and continue until the position is filled. Inquiries may be directed to Dr. Linda Cornett at lcornett@unca.edu.

For more information, see: <https://jobs.unca.edu/postings/3430>

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 9/11/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4807

Johns Hopkins University

Rank: Professor/Assistant Professor/Associate Professor

Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Comparative Politics, International Relations

The Department of Political Science and the Stavros Niarchos Foundation Agora Institute at Johns Hopkins University seek nominations and applications of interest to appoint three or more distinguished scholars to establish a cluster of excellence in research and teaching on the challenges of contemporary democracy. We are especially interested in colleagues with an established record of scholarship examining the root causes and consequences of polarization, including its global and transnational dynamics. Successful candidates will join the Agora Institute's core faculty and will serve as full members of the Department of Political Science. We invite qualified candidates from all subfields of the discipline whose work connects with the core mission of the Institute. By conducting a broad and inclusive search, we are committed to identifying candidates who, through their research, teaching, and service, will contribute to the diversity and excellence of our academic community.

Political Science at Johns Hopkins is a methodologically diverse and pluralistic department open to a variety of research methods and intellectual approaches. We also will consider applications for potential cross-disciplinary appointments from scholars in fields such as History, Sociology, Psychology, and Philosophy as well as cross-divisional appointments.

Jointly conceived by the University and the Stavros Niarchos Foundation (SNF), the $150M SNF Agora Institute was founded to address the deterioration of civic engagement in democracies worldwide and facilitate the restoration of open and inclusive discourse that is the cornerstone of healthy democracies. Housed in the University's Krieger School of Arts and Sciences, the SNF Agora Institute at JHU will serve as a leading academic and public forum bringing together experts from a range of fields—including but not limited to political science, sociology, history, neuroscience, psychology, philosophy, and ethics—to examine the dynamics of civic strife and design and test mechanisms for improving dialogue, social engagement, and democratic governance (<http://agora.jhu.edu/>).

Applicants for Tenured Associate or Full Professor should submit a cover letter, research statement, and curriculum vitae using Interfolio <http://apply.interfolio.com/54486>. Candidates applying at the level of advanced assistant professor should include the above as well as a writing sample and three letters of recommendation. Nominations of potential candidates should be sent directly to Professor Adam Sheingate (adam.sheingate@jhu.edu). Review of applications will begin on October 15, 2018 and continue until the positions are filled. Appointments will commence on July 1, 2019.

Start Date: Fall 2019
Application Deadline: Open until Filled
Date Posted: 9/10/2018
Salary: Competitive
eJobs ID: 4804

University of Illinois, Chicago

Rank: Assistant Professor-Political Science-American/Urban Politics

The Department of Political Science in the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences (LAS) at the University of Illinois at Chicago (UIC) invites applications for the position of tenure track Assistant Professor in American and Urban Politics with a specialization in Hispanic/Latinx Politics, beginning in the 2019-2020 academic year subject to budgetary approval.

Research focus might include but is not limited to: 1) voting behavior and descriptive representation, 2) political engagement and participation, including youth, 3) minority social movements and political mobilization; 4) racialized policy regimes at the subnational level (e.g., policing; education; health/welfare; refugee & immigrant integration). Final authorization of the position is subject to availability of funding. We welcome candidates with additional skills and specializations, such as quantitative and/or qualitative methodology, comparative politics, or political theory.

We seek candidates with PhD in Political Science or a cognate discipline in hand, or very near completion, proof of ability to maintain a research agenda, and a demonstrated commitment to excellence in teaching. Evidence of the candidate's research performance or promise and appropriate teaching skills should be provided.

Assistant professors are expected to teach two (2) courses per semester at the undergraduate or graduate level, as assigned by the department head. They are also expected to maintain a consistent record of research and publication, provide service to the department and the profession, and contribute to the intellectual life of the department.

To apply, complete an on-line application, including the names and email addresses for three or more references, and upload full curriculum vitae and a cover letter that summarizes candidate's research and teaching qualifications at <https://jobs.uic.edu/job-board/job-details?jobID=100519>. Questions about the position can be directed to Prof. Alexandra Filindra at 312-413-2186 or aleka@uic.edu, the chair of the search committee. For fullest consideration, applications should be completed by October 8, 2018.

UIC is a Carnegie Doctoral/Research I institution (Highest Research Activity), located in the heart of the City of Chicago and one of the nation's largest metropolitan areas. It is a comprehensive public university with a diverse student body of more than 30,000 undergraduate, graduate, and professional students. UIC is federally recognized as a Minority Serving Institution (MSI) through its status as a Hispanic Serving Institution (HSI) and an Asian American and Native American Pacific Islander Serving Institution (AANAPISI), fully funded by the US Department of Education.

The University of Illinois at Chicago is an affirmative action, equal opportunity employer, dedicated to the goal of building a culturally diverse and pluralistic faculty and staff committed to teaching and working in a multicultural environment. We strongly encourage applications from women, minorities, individuals with disabilities, and covered veterans. The University of Illinois may conduct background checks on all job candidates upon acceptance of a contingent offer. Background checks will be performed in compliance with the Fair Credit Reporting Act.

Start Date: Fall 2019
Application Deadline: 10/31/2018
Date Posted: 9/6/2018
Salary: $80,000 - $89,999
eJobs ID: 4786

Clemson University

Rank: Assistant Professor / Public Law

Subfield(s): Public Law, American Government and Politics, Comparative Politics

Specializations: Constitutional Law & Theory, Civil Rights & Liberties, Judicial Politics

CLEMSON UNIVERSITY: Assistant Professor

Public Law. The Department of Political Science at Clemson University invites applications for a tenure-track position at the assistant professor level to begin in August 2019. We seek a broadly trained political scientist with a specialization in public law (constitutional law and/or judicial politics). Research emphasis may be in either the American or comparative context. In addition to maintaining an active research agenda, the successful candidate will reflect the Department's commitment to quality undergraduate and graduate teaching. The successful candidate will be expected to teach courses in American constitutional law and in his/her other areas of expertise.

Clemson University is the Land Grant University for the State of South Carolina and is located within the foothills of the Blue Ridge Mountains 30 miles southwest of Greenville. The Department offers a BA and BS in Political Science and a Ph.D. in Policy Studies.

A Ph.D. in Political Science by the time of employment is required. Salary is competitive. Applications should include a letter of interest, CV, transcripts of graduate work, three letters of recommendation, a writing sample, and evidence of teaching performance. Interested candidates should apply via Interfolio at the following job position: <https://apply.interfolio.com/54178>. To ensure full consideration, please submit materials by October 16, 2018.

Start Date: Fall 2019
Application Deadline: 10/16/2018
Date Posted: 9/5/2018
Salary: Competitive
eJobs ID: 4766

University of Minnesota, Duluth

Rank: Assistant Professor – American Politics Tenure-Track

The Political Science & International Studies Program at University of Minnesota Duluth seeks to hire a tenure-track Assistant Professor specializing in American Politics with a start date of Aug. 19, 2019. We are open to exact area of teaching and research specialization, including both political institutions and behavior. Special attention will be given applicants willing to offer the department's research methods course. Competitive candidates will be capable of outstanding teaching and research.

A Ph.D. in hand is required by the time of appointment. The program offers two undergraduate majors: Political Science and an interdisciplinary degree in International Studies. Faculty offer courses in four subfields of Political Science – American Politics (including Public Law), Comparative Politics, International Relations, and Political Theory.

Political Science & International Studies Faculty are methodologically diverse and globally recognized scholars. University of Minnesota Duluth is part of the University of Minnesota system. Faculty are offered generous start-up packages and successfully compete for internal and external funding.

The University of Minnesota Duluth is an affirmative action, equal opportunity employer committed to diversity. The university encourages applications from women, minorities, veterans, LGBT individuals, and individuals with disabilities.

Applicants should include a cover letter that includes a statement of research and teaching interests; curriculum vitae; evidence of teaching effectiveness; a writing sample; and three letters of recommendation.

The University of Minnesota requires that you apply online for this position at <http://employment.umn.edu> (Search for job requisition # 326238). To begin the application process, you must fill out the online application form. Except for letters of reference, all other required or optional documents, e.g. vita, letter of intent, etc., must be submitted online at this site. Have letters of reference sent to:

Dr. Cindy Rugeley, Chair American Politics Search Committee
crugeley@d.umn.edu

To ensure consideration, all required application materials must be received by Oct. 15, 2018, and review of completed applications will begin on this date and continue until the positions are filled.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 9/5/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4768

University of Memphis

Rank: Assistant Professor

The Department of Political Science at The University of Memphis invites applications for a tenure track position in American Politics at the level of Assistant Professor. The position will start in the fall 2019 pending the availability of funds. Candidates must have the Ph.D. in hand by August 2019. We seek applications from candidates in all areas of American Politics. Candidates must be able to teach undergraduate and graduate classes in American Politics and must show promise of excellence in research and teaching. Salary is competitive and commensurate with qualifications and experience.

Please submit a letter detailing current research interests and teaching experience, a curriculum vitae, a graduate transcript, a writing sample (dissertation chapter, published article or conference paper), evidence of teaching potential, and email addresses for three professional references on-line at <https://workforum.memphis.edu>. For all other inquiries, please contact: American Politics Search Committee, Department of Political Science, The University of Memphis, TN 38152. Review of applications will begin on October 15, 2018 pending availability of funds. The University of Memphis is a Research II University with an enrollment of approximately 20,000 students.

Please apply at: <https://workforum.memphis.edu/postings/19944>

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: 10/15/2018

Date Posted: 9/4/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4762

Texas A&M University

Rank: Assistant Professor

Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Comparative Politics, International Relations

The Department of Political Science at Texas A&M University is recruiting for two tenure-track (Assistant Professor) positions that are open with respect to subfield. We welcome applications from clusters of scholars who would find it attractive to join our faculty together. Successful candidates will be expected to carry out a vigorous program of research and actively contribute to undergraduate and graduate teaching. Strong research and teaching interests that cut across traditional subfields of political science would be highly valued. Ph.D. required. The starting date for these positions is Fall 2019.

The department offers Ph.D., MA, BA, and BS degrees and has 34 tenured/tenure track faculty members, 50 graduate students, and approximately 1000 undergraduate majors. Further information about the department is available at <http://pols.tamu.edu>. Texas A&M is a research-intensive flagship university with more than 60,000 students including 10,000 graduate students making it the sixth largest university in the United States. The student body includes 26% African American, Hispanic, Asian or Pacific Islander, and American Indian or Alaskan Native students, as well as approximately 5,000 international students from 130 countries. We seek candidates who can teach effectively in a diverse and global classroom. Texas A&M ranks among the top universities nationally in total research expenditures (with more than $800 million dollars per year). Texas A&M University is an equal opportunity, affirmative action employer that is deeply committed to enhancing the diversity and excellence of its faculty and is responsive to the needs of dual-career couples.

Applicants should apply through Workday as instructed below. Applicants should submit the following material online through workday using the links below: a letter of interest (referencing research agenda and teaching interests), a curriculum vitae, graduate school transcripts, any available teaching evaluations, and a writing sample. Applicants should also have three letters of reference submitted electronically to Professor William Clark, Head, Department of Political Science at poliscijobs@tamu.edu. Salary is competitive and will be commensurate with qualifications and experience. Our review of applications will begin on October 3, 2018 and will continue until the positions are filled. The Texas A&M System is an Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action/Veterans/Disability Employer committed to diversity.

EXTERNAL APPLICANTS If you currently are NOT a Texas A&M System employee please click below to go to our external career site to view our jobs. Go to External Career Site – https://tamus.wd1.myworkdayjobs.com/en-US/TAMU_External/job/College-Station-TAMU/Assistant-Professor_R-011658

INTERNAL APPLICANTS If you currently ARE a Texas A&M System employee: Go to Internal Career Site – <https://jobs.tamu.edu/internal-applicants/>

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled
Date Posted: 9/3/2018
Salary: Competitive
eJobs ID: 4758

University of Richmond

Rank: Tyler Haynes Professorship of Interdisciplinary Studies
Subfield(s): Public Law, American Government and Politics, Political Theory
Specializations: Civil Rights & Liberties, Constitutional Law & Theory, Judicial Politics

The University of Richmond Jepson School of Leadership Studies and School of Law invite nominations and applications for an endowed professorship to be shared between the two schools. We seek candidates with a distinguished record of scholarship and teaching, or a similarly distinguished record of public service, and we anticipate an appointment at the full professor level. The ideal candidate will have earned J.D. and Ph.D. degrees, although we are open to considering candidates who have one or the other. Our vision is for the Tyler Haynes Professor to conduct interdisciplinary research and teach in an interdisciplinary environment. To complement current strengths, we are especially interested in candidates whose research interests lie in the criminal justice system, the Supreme Court, healthcare, housing, immigration, social welfare, education policy, or institutional design and analysis, although any area of interest with crossover appeal to law and leadership will be considered. Successful candidates will teach courses in the Jepson School of Leadership Studies and the School of Law.

Applications and inquiries may be directed to Sandra Peart and Jessica Erickson at hayneschair@richmond.edu. Candidates should attach a cover letter and curriculum vitae. In their cover letters, candidates should address how their scholarly and teaching interests, or record of public service, connect to the study of leadership and law. Cover letters should also specify how the applicant might contribute to the imperatives of diversity and inclusion in the classroom.

The University of Richmond is a nationally ranked liberal arts university offering a unique combination of undergraduate and graduate degree programs in arts and sciences, business, leadership studies, law, and continuing studies. The Jepson School of Leadership Studies offers students the opportunity to major or minor in Leadership Studies and provides a challenging liberal arts curriculum designed to educate students for, and about, leadership. The Law School offers a curriculum that combines sophisticated legal theory with opportunities to put theory into practice, equipping students with the knowledge and skills they need to make valuable contributions to the legal system. For additional information about the two schools, see <http://jepson.richmond.edu/> and <https://law.richmond.edu/>.

The University of Richmond is committed to developing a diverse workforce and student body, and to modeling an inclusive campus community which values the expression of difference in ways that promote excellence in teaching, learning, personal development, and institutional success. Our academic community strongly encourages applications that are in keeping with this commitment.

Start Date: Fall 2019
Application Deadline: Open until Filled
Date Posted: 9/3/2018

Salary: Competitive
eJobs ID: 4750

University of Tennessee, Chattanooga

Rank: Lecturer

The Department of Political Science and Public Service at the University of Tennessee at Chattanooga College of Arts and Sciences invites applications for a lecturer in Political Science beginning Fall 2019.

The successful candidate must hold an M.A., M.S., or Ph.D. degree in Political Science and have proven experience effectively teaching general education courses in political science at the collegiate level. The successful candidate will teach general education courses in the discipline as well as some elective courses in their fields of expertise, advise students, and engage in the life of the department. This position is renewable and has the potential for multi-year contracts. Information about the Department of Political Science and Public Service is available at <http://www.utc.edu/psps>.

Qualifications:

Successful candidates will possess the following requirements:

- Master's, ABD, or Ph.D. in Political Science
- Ability to teach introductory courses in American politics and comparative politics, ideally with an emphasis on non-western states.
- Candidates should also be willing to engage in a variety of instructional modalities, including online instruction.
- Willingness to engage in assisting the UTC campus in its ability to reach additional goals as specified in UTC's Strategic Plan, including a demonstrable commitment to diversity and inclusion.

Application Procedures:

Applicants should prepare to submit the following information within our online application system for consideration:

- Cover letter/letter of interest
- CV, including up-to-date, personal contact information (email, phone, etc.)
- Unofficial transcripts
- Teaching Statement
- Syllabi of related courses

Additionally, candidates will need to include names, titles, and email addresses for three (3) references for confidential letters of recommendation to be requested.

Review of applicants will begin on October 1, 2018. Preference will be given to those qualified candidates who apply before October 1, 2018.

Applications must be submitted electronically through the UTC Faculty Career Site by visiting: https://ut.taleo.net/careersection/utc_faculty/jobdetail.ftl?job=180000019V&tz=GMT-04%3A00

The University of Tennessee at Chattanooga is the second largest school in the University of Tennessee System, serving a diverse student body of more than 11,000 undergraduate and graduate students through five academic colleges. UTC offers a unique blend of private and public school traditions and is a driving force for achieving excellence, embracing diversity, inspiring positive change, and enriching the community. Since its founding as Chattanooga University in 1886, UTC has developed a reputation for excellence built on an unusual blend of the private and public traditions of American higher education. For more than 83 years, the university was a private school. In 1969, UTC became part of the state university system. Chattanooga, the fourth largest city in the state, is located in Southeast Tennessee near the border of Georgia at the junction of four interstate highways. The city has received national recognition for the renaissance of its beautiful downtown and redevelopment of its riverfront.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 8/31/2018

Salary: $30,000 - $39,999

eJobs ID: 4754

University of South Carolina

Rank: Assistant Professor of American Politics

The Department of Political Science at the University of South Carolina seeks applications for a tenure-track Assistant Professor position in American Politics to begin August 16, 2019. The position is open with regard to substantive specialization. We seek candidates with well-conceived, theoretically-informed research agendas who have published in or demonstrate the promise of publishing in leading outlets. Successful candidates will be able to teach substantive courses in American Politics and contribute to the department's graduate and undergraduate programs in quantitative methods. A Ph.D. is required by the start date of appointment.

Applicants should submit a cover letter, curriculum vitae, a writing sample, statements of research and teaching interests, graduate transcript, and contact information, including telephone number and email address, for three references. References will be contacted directly for letters of recommendation. Applications received by September 30, 2018 are assured full consideration. All applicants must fill out an online application at USC Jobs: <https://uscjobs.sc.edu/>.

Please contact the search committee chair, David Darmofal (darmofal@mailbox.sc.edu), with any questions. Information regarding the Department of Political Science can be found at the department's website: <http://artsandsciences.sc.edu/poli/welcome>.

The University of South Carolina System (www.sc.edu) is comprised of the state's flagship university in Columbia (founded in 1801 and currently one of the top 50 "Best Colleges" according to U.S. News and World Report), three regional comprehensive universities (USC Aiken, USC Beaufort and USC Upstate), and Palmetto College consisting of four two-year campuses (USC Lancaster, USC Salkehatchie, USC Sumter, USC Union and Fort Jackson/Extended University). Together, the USC System institutions offer more than 450 degree programs on campus and online and are uniquely positioned to meet the state's educational, cultural, health and research needs. The System employs nearly 14,000 people who work daily to improve the lives of students, fellow South Carolinians and the world. Our diverse engaged faculty and staff enjoy a dynamic and intellectually stimulating work environment

Start Date: Summer 2019

Application Deadline: 9/30/2018

Date Posted: 8/29/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4731

North Dakota State University

Rank: Tenure Track Assistant Professor of Political Science

Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Comparative Politics, Public Law

Specializations: Judicial Politics, Constitutional Law & Theory, Criminal Justice

The department of Criminal Justice & Political Science at NDSU is recruiting for a 9-month tenure-track position, at the rank of assistant professor, starting Fall 2019. We seek candidates with expertise in judicial politics and constitutional law, broadly construed. Successful applicants should be versed in American public law, but could conduct research in a broad variety of related areas, such as, but not limited to, the role of race, ethnicity, sexualities, and/or gender in justice systems, comparative judicial politics, international courts and legal structures, or the politics of policing in the US or abroad. This is a 45% research, 45% teaching, 10% service position. The teaching load is 2-2, with a course release in the first three years. Successful applicants will be prepared to teach core undergraduate pre-law courses on American judicial politics, such as judicial process and constitutional law, but will also have ample opportunity to teach specialized courses of their choosing. Tenure-track political science faculty advise undergraduate students and may have opportunities to contribute to the supervision of MA and PhD students in criminal justice. The department has minimal service expectations for pre-tenure faculty.

Minimum Qualifications

The minimum qualifications for the position are: 1) a Ph.D. degree in Political Science, or a related discipline, conferred no later than August, 2019, 2) evidence of research productivity, or potential to publish scholarship in peer reviewed journals, presses, and other outlets appropriate to one's field, 3) competence to teach American judicial process and constitutional law, and 4) effective written and oral communication skills.

Preferred Qualifications

We will give priority to candidates who 1) can provide substantial evidence of (potential) research productivity and quality, 2) have experience teaching American judicial process and/or constitutional law, 3) can provide substantial evidence of teaching effectiveness, and/or 4) have experience pursuing or obtaining external funding.

The Department

The Department of Criminal Justice & Political Science has 11 tenure-track faculty members and serves roughly 100 undergraduate majors in political science, and 200 undergraduate and 20 graduate students in criminal justice. Faculty in the department teach four classes per year. The NDSU community and national organizations have regularly recognized department faculty for excellence in research, teaching, and mentorship. While faculty contribute primarily to teaching, curriculum development, and advising within their respective programs, the department provides opportunities for interdisciplinary collaboration across fields, both in research and teaching. The college provides faculty with computing resources and tenure-track faculty within the department receive a yearly research and professionalization budget that covers travel to 1-2 conferences, and which faculty routinely supplement with College and University travel grants.

The University

North Dakota State University is a comprehensive, student-focused, land-grant, research university with more than 14,000 students from 47 states and 79 countries. NDSU was the first university in North Dakota to be named to the most research-intensive category by the Carnegie Commission on Higher Education and is listed in the National Science Foundation's top 100 in several areas, including agricultural sciences, social sciences, physical sciences, chemistry, psychology, and computer sciences.

NDSU values faculty members' work-life balance and the needs of dual-career couples. The College of Arts, Humanities, & Social Sciences' guidelines on family-related reassignment of duties are available at <https://www.ndsu.edu/fileadmin/ahss/family2010.pdf> and University policy on extension of the probationary period for personal or family reasons is available at <https://www.ndsu.edu/fileadmin/policy/352.pdf>. NDSU is an ADVANCE institution and has an a Focus on Resources for Women's Advancement, Recruitment/Retention, and Development (FORWARD) program, that, as part of its efforts, has developed procedures and funding streams for dual career hiring at NDSU: <https://www.ndsu.edu/forward/>.

Applicants can find more information about NDSU at <http://www.ndsu.edu>.

The Community

NDSU is located in Fargo-Moorhead (F-M), a pleasant, safe, diversifying, and growing community of approximately 240,000 people. As the largest population center in the region, F-M is a hub of entertainment, finance, information technology, and medical services for a large geographic area including the state of North Dakota, and western Minnesota. Two universities (NDSU and Minnesota State University Moorhead) and one private liberal arts college (Concordia College) are located in F-M. The F-M area has a healthy economy: ND has one of the lowest unemployment rates in the U.S., good public schools, low crime rates, ample shopping, local theatre and music companies, several art galleries, semi-professional baseball and hockey, and Division I intercollegiate athletics. Hector International Airport in Fargo is convenient and is served by several major airlines. Sun, clear skies, and clean air predominate year round. Visiting nearby northern Minnesota lakes, canoeing, camping, cycling, softball, and soccer are popular in summer; winter pastimes include cross-country skiing, skating, and snowmobiling. The city has an excellent park system that includes several quality golf courses and bicycle/running/ski paths along the Red River, which divides Fargo-Moorhead. Fargo is an hour drive from a major resort area in the Minnesota "lakes country" and two hours from scenic Itasca State Park, where you will find the headwaters of the Mississippi river. Central and western North Dakota offer beautiful hiking, camping, fishing, hunting, and related opportunities in the Badlands, national grasslands, and numerous river valleys. Winnipeg, Manitoba is less than a four-hour drive to the north and Minneapolis-St. Paul is an equal distance to the south-east.

Application

Applicants must submit a cover letter, curriculum vitae, statement of research interests, writing sample, statement of teaching philosophy, evidence of teaching effectiveness (e.g., syllabi, course materials, evidence of participation in teaching professionalization activities, and, if available, evaluations by peers and/or mentors; please do not include student evaluations of teaching), and contact information for 3 professional references. All application materials must be submitted online at <https://jobs.ndsu.edu/postings/9576>.

NDSU especially encourages applications from women and members of underrepresented groups.

We will begin reviewing applications on October 1, and will continue to accept and review applications until the position is filled. The department will provide search updates through APSA eJobs' update capability, and on Twitter, using the #PSJMInfo hashtag.

Potential applicants may direct questions about the search to Dan Pemstein, the search committee chair, at daniel.pemstein@ndsu.edu.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 8/27/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4706

U.S. Naval Academy

Rank: Assistant Professor of American Politics

Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Public Policy, Political Theory

The Political Science Department of the United States Naval Academy invites applications for tenure-track Assistant Professor positions in American Politics beginning August 2019. Application review will begin on 01 October 2018 and will continue until the position is filled.

The U.S. Naval Academy is a service academy and top tier liberal arts college with a commitment to excellence in faculty teaching, research, and service. American Politics scholars with expertise in public policy; race, gender, and ethnicity; or political philosophy are encouraged to apply. A strong commitment to undergraduate teaching is essential. Candidates should have a robust research agenda and demonstrate potential for research excellence, as well as a strong commitment to student advising and institutional service.

For more information about this position and how to apply please visit the USNA position announcement at <https://www.usna.edu/HRO/jobinfo/AsstProfessor-PolSciAY19.php>

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 8/27/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4715

University of North Florida

Rank: Assistant Professor

University of North Florida: Assistant Professor-American Politics

The Department of Political Science and Public Administration at the University of North Florida seeks candidates for a tenure-track appointment as an assistant professor in American politics and government beginning in August 2019. The field in American Politics is open, although the department does have curricular needs in research methods. There are also opportunities to teach in the Masters of Public Administration Program. The department welcomes the use of innovative teaching technologies including distance learning and hybrid classes. Candidates should demonstrate the potential for excellence in teaching and research. The teaching load is three courses per semester. A Ph.D in Political Science, Government, or a related discipline is required by August 2019.

UNF enrolls about 17,000 students and is located in Jacksonville, Florida, a rapidly growing metropolitan area with a population of over one million. Jacksonville is part of northeastern Florida's historic "First Coast" and there are significant historical, cultural, and recreational resources in the immediate area including access to rivers and beaches. Further information is available at www.unf.edu/coas/pspa.

Applicants MUST complete an application ONLINE in OASys at <http://www.unfjobs.org/postings/8118>
Please use the above website above to upload the following materials:
(1) a letter of interest stating teaching interests and research plans
(2) a complete curriculum vitae
(3) graduate school transcripts*
(4) three current professional letters of recommendation
(5) one sample of research and writing
(6) evidence of teaching effectiveness to:

Review of applications is anticipated to begin October 19, 2018. This position will be considered open until filled.

For further information, please contact Dr. Michael Binder (m.binder@unf.edu).

*Official transcripts are required by the time of employment. The University of North Florida is an Equal Opportunity/Equal Access/Affirmative Action Institution.

Start Date: Fall 2019
Application Deadline: 10/19/2018
Date Posted: 8/27/2018
Salary: Competitive
eJobs ID: 4704

Virginia Commonwealth University

Rank: Assistant Professor

The Department of Political Science at Virginia Commonwealth University is seeking applications for a tenure eligible faculty position at the Assistant Professor rank to begin August 2019 to support the Department's teaching and research mission in the area of American Politics with expertise in American political behavior, broadly defined. The ideal candidate will make use of new and emerging "big data" sources and innovative data collection techniques and analysis. Such methods might include, but are not limited to, survey data, geo-spatial data, network data, text analysis, machine learning, statistical and computer programming, and data visualization.

Candidates who are proficient in statistical science operations research, who develop cutting-edge solutions, and who collaborate across disciplines are particularly desirable, as are candidates with proven track records of grant funding. Though not required, we seek a scholar who can contribute to the University's mission to address problems of underrepresented and/or urban communities.

Successful candidates will be required to teach undergraduate Research Methods, Introduction to American Politics, and/or the Political Science Senior Seminar capstone course.

It is preferred that candidates be able to contribute to the existing curriculum, or offer new courses, according to area of expertise. Potential course offerings may include: Media & Politics, Social Movements, Political Parties & Elections, Public Opinion, Urban Politics, Latino Politics, or Politics of Race, Ethnicity, Class & Gender.

Virginia Commonwealth University is an equal opportunity, affirmative action university providing access to education and employment without regard to age, race, color, national origin, gender, religion, sexual orientation, veteran's status, political affiliation or disability.

We will be at the APSA Annual Meeting; to schedule an interview please contact polistaff@vcu.edu

For more detailed information and to apply, please visit: www.vcujobs.com

Start Date: Fall 2019
Application Deadline: 10/1/2018
Date Posted: 8/24/2018
Salary: $70,000 - $79,999
eJobs ID: 4695

Northern Illinois University

Rank: Assistant Professor

Subfield(s): Political Theory, American Government and Politics, Other

Specializations: African American Politics, Constitutional Law & Theory, Political Behavior

The Center for Black Studies and the Department of Political Science at Northern Illinois University anticipate hiring a tenure-track assistant professor in political science. Employment will begin August 2019. The position is open to applicants from any subfield of political science. Political Theory scholars, in particular, are encouraged to apply. Reflecting NIU's commitment to interdisciplinary collaboration in education and scholarship, the position will hold joint appointment status, but the tenure home will be the Department of Political Science.

The successful candidate will demonstrate a strong record of, or potential for, scholarly research and teaching excellence at both the undergraduate and graduate level. The successful candidate will be expected to teach courses that will contribute to the Black Studies Minor. An earned PhD in political science is required by the start date of the appointment. A demonstrated ability to serve a diverse student population is strongly preferred.

In particular, we seek faculty and staff who embrace NIU's mission of providing opportunity to a diverse student body by providing them with access to high quality education and hands-on involvement in research and community engagement. Experience teaching and mentoring students of diverse backgrounds is highly preferred.

The Department of Political Science has 12 faculty members and offers B.A., B.S., M.A., and Ph.D. degrees. The Center has 13 faculty associates and faculty affiliates that work with the Black Studies Minor. For more information, please visit <http://polisci.niu.edu/> and <https://www.cbs.niu.edu/blackstudies/>. NIU is located in DeKalb, a welcoming and growing city 65 miles west of downtown Chicago. It has an enrollment of more than 18,000 students, including a graduate student body of over 4,000.

Salary will be competitive and commensurate with qualifications and experience. Applicants must send a cover letter, which describes how their scholarship will contribute to the missions of both the Center for Black Studies and the Department of Political Science. In addition, a curriculum vitae, writing samples, evidence of teaching effectiveness, appropriate transcripts, and list of references should be submitted online at <http://employment.niu.edu/postings/36965>.

NIU is an AA/EEO institution and strongly encourages applications from women and minority candidates. A pre-employment criminal background check is required.

Review of completed applications will begin on November 1, 2018 and will continue until the position is filled.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 8/22/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4662

Northern Illinois University

Rank: Assistant Professor

Subfield(s): Political Theory, American Government and Politics, Other

Specializations: African American Politics, Constitutional Law & Theory, Political Behavior

The Center for Black Studies and the Department of Political Science at Northern Illinois University anticipate hiring a tenure-track assistant professor in political science. Employment will begin August 2019. The position is open to applicants from any subfield of political science. Political Theory scholars, in particular, are encouraged to apply. Reflecting NIU's commitment to interdisciplinary collaboration in education and scholarship, the position will hold joint appointment status, but the tenure home will be the Department of Political Science.

The successful candidate will demonstrate a strong record of, or potential for, scholarly research and teaching excellence at both the undergraduate and graduate level. The successful candidate will be expected to teach courses that will contribute to the Black Studies Minor. An earned PhD in political science is required by the start date of the appointment. A demonstrated ability to serve a diverse student population is strongly preferred.

In particular, we seek faculty and staff who embrace NIU's mission of providing opportunity to a diverse student body by providing them with access to high quality education and hands-on involvement in research and community engagement. Experience teaching and mentoring students of diverse backgrounds is highly preferred.

The Department of Political Science has 12 faculty members and offers B.A., B.S., M.A., and Ph.D. degrees. The Center has 13 faculty associates and faculty affiliates that work with the Black Studies Minor. For more information, please visit <http://polisci.niu.edu/> and <https://www.cbs.niu.edu/blackstudies/>. NIU is located in DeKalb, a welcoming and growing city 65 miles west of downtown Chicago. It has an enrollment of more than 18,000 students, including a graduate student body of over 4,000.

Salary will be competitive and commensurate with qualifications and experience. Applicants must send a cover letter, which describes how their scholarship will contribute to the missions of both the Center for Black Studies and the Department of Political Science. In addition, a curriculum vitae, writing samples, evidence of teaching effectiveness, appropriate transcripts, and list of references should be submitted online at <http://employment.niu.edu/postings/36965>.

NIU is an AA/EEO institution and strongly encourages applications from women and minority candidates. A pre-employment criminal background check is required.

Review of completed applications will begin on November 1, 2018 and will continue until the position is filled.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 8/22/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4663

Northern Illinois University

Rank: Assistant Professor

Subfield(s): Political Theory, American Government and Politics, Other

Specializations: African American Politics, Constitutional Law & Theory, Political Behavior

The Center for Black Studies and the Department of Political Science at Northern Illinois University anticipate hiring a tenure-track assistant professor in political science. Employment will begin August 2019. The position is open to applicants from any subfield of political science. Political Theory scholars, in particular, are encouraged to apply. Reflecting NIU's commitment to interdisciplinary collaboration in education and scholarship, the position will hold joint appointment status, but the tenure home will be the Department of Political Science.

The successful candidate will demonstrate a strong record of, or potential for, scholarly research and teaching excellence at both the undergraduate and graduate level. The successful candidate will be expected to teach courses that will contribute to the Black Studies Minor. An earned PhD in political science is required by the start date of the appointment. A demonstrated ability to serve a diverse student population is strongly preferred.

In particular, we seek faculty and staff who embrace NIU's mission of providing opportunity to a diverse student body by providing them with access to high quality education and hands-on involvement in research and community engagement. Experience teaching and mentoring students of diverse backgrounds is highly preferred.

The Department of Political Science has 12 faculty members and offers B.A., B.S., M.A., and Ph.D. degrees. The Center has 13 faculty associates and faculty affiliates that work with the Black Studies Minor. For more information, please visit <http://polisci.niu.edu/> and <https://www.cbs.niu.edu/blackstudies/>. NIU is located in DeKalb, a welcoming and growing city 65 miles west of downtown Chicago. It has an enrollment of more than 18,000 students, including a graduate student body of over 4,000.

Salary will be competitive and commensurate with qualifications and experience. Applicants must send a cover letter, which describes how their scholarship will contribute to the missions of both the Center for Black Studies and the Department of Political Science. In addition, a curriculum vitae, writing samples, evidence of teaching effectiveness, appropriate transcripts, and list of references should be submitted online at <http://employment.niu.edu/postings/36965>.

NIU is an AA/EEO institution and strongly encourages applications from women and minority candidates. A pre-employment criminal background check is required.

Review of completed applications will begin on November 1, 2018 and will continue until the position is filled.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 8/22/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4664

California State Polytechnic University, Pomona

Rank: Assistant Professor in Public Administration

Subfield(s): Public Administration, Public Policy, American Government and Politics

Assistant Professor – Public Administration in Political Science

The Political Science Department in the College of Letters, Arts, and Social Sciences at California State Polytechnic University, Pomona (Cal Poly Pomona) invites applications for a tenure-track position at the rank of Assistant Professor to begin Fall 2019. Candidates with specializations in public administration and public policy are especially welcome to apply.

At Cal Poly Pomona, we cultivate success through a diverse culture of experiential learning, discovery, and innovation. We demonstrate academic quality, relevance, and excellence through our teaching, learning, scholarship, and creative activities with student-centered faculty in an evidence-based culture. Cal Poly Pomona is committed to being the model for an inclusive polytechnic university that inspires creativity and innovation, embraces local and global challenges, and transforms lives.

The Position

The faculty member will be part of a small, collegial Political Science Department and will contribute to a Master's of Public Administration Program. The faculty member will teach and advise in both the graduate and undergraduate program. As part of the political science undergraduate program, the faculty member will be expected to teach courses in one or more of our subfields in accordance to the faculty member's expertise: American politics, public administration, international relations, comparative politics, public law, and/or political theory. The position requires excellence in teaching and advising, professional and scholarly achievements, and a commitment to service to the university. Applicants whose work incorporates a global perspective and a commitment to diversity in higher education are particularly encouraged to apply. Cal Poly Pomona is a Hispanic-serving institution and the faculty member will be an advisor to many under-represented minorities and first-generation college students.

Minimum Qualifications

- Ph.D. in Political Science, Public Administration, or related disciplines such as Public Policy from an accredited university by August 1, 2019
- University teaching experience
- Evidence of scholarly potential (conference presentations, publications, grant development, etc.)
- Evidence of demonstrated ability to contribute to the diversity and excellence of the academic community through research, teaching, and/or service and work as well as experience working in an inclusive environment

Preferred/Desired Qualifications

Preference will be given to those candidates who have the expertise to work with graduate students on a range of thesis projects in public administration, as well as the ability to teach political science undergraduates. Expertise and work experience in areas such as public policy/program evaluation, urban politics and administration, community development/sustainability, and qualitative methods will be given careful consideration. Preference will also be given to candidates with research interests related to social or racial justice and who can demonstrate the ability to mentor and advise African-American, Hispanic, and Native American students.

Application Procedure

The position is open until filled. First consideration will be given to completed applications submitted by November 16, 2018. Early response is encouraged. Electronic submissions of all application materials must be submitted online via Interfolio at <https://apply.interfolio.com/53291>

A completed application will consist of:

- A cover letter that describes the candidate's teaching performance, research experience and interests, and that addresses the duties and qualifications articulated in the position description;
- A curriculum vitae comprising at least those elements specified on the application form and including the names, titles, addresses, email addresses, and telephone numbers of at least five individuals who can speak to the candidate's potential for success in this position;
- A 'Student Success Statement' about your teaching, or other experiences, successes, and challenges in working with a diverse student population (approximately one page, single-spaced);
- Three recent letters of reference (on letterhead, signed and dated within the past two years). Applicants will provide contact information for recommenders during the application process and the system will contact recommenders and provide a method for uploading letters;
- A completed application form available on the application website;
- An unofficial transcript showing then highest degree earned from an accredited education institution. Finalists will be required to submit an official transcript; and
- Recent teaching evaluation summaries and sample syllabi, if available.
- Please submit all electronic documents in PDF format.

For further information or clarification, please contact:

Faculty Search Committee

Dr. Mario Guerrero, Faculty Search Chair

Political Science Department

California State Polytechnic University, Pomona

Phone: 909.869.3887

Fax: 909.869.6995

Email: kmalm@cpp.edu (Kim Alm, Administrative Coordinator)

APSA Interviews

Representatives of the department will be available to meet at APSA's Placement Services. Please send a CV to mag@cpp.edu if you are interested in meeting with department representatives at APSA.

The University: Cal Poly Pomona is one of two polytechnic universities in the 23-campus California State University system. Our ethnically diverse student population of approximately 22,000 enrolls in 52 baccalaureate, 26 master's degree programs, 11 credential and certificate programs, and a doctorate in Educational Leadership, presented by 1,200 faculty. We recruit students increasingly from throughout California and beyond. The students are success and career focused and extremely diverse. We are proud of our status as a Hispanic Serving Institution. We have a strong commitment to supporting scholarship, research, and student achievement. Our scenic and historic 1,400-acre campus, once the winter ranch of cereal magnate W. K. Kellogg, is located about 30 miles east of downtown Los Angeles in one of the most dynamic economic and cultural regions in the country, and within an hour's drive of beaches, mountains, and desert. The university is committed to diversifying its faculty and staff and has made educational equity one of its highest priorities. The mission of the university is to advance learning and knowledge by linking theory and practice in all disciplines, and to prepare students for lifelong learning, leadership, and careers in a changing, multicultural world.

The College: The College of Letters, Arts, and Social Sciences fosters intellectual and ethical development and helps students become individuals who value and apply critical thinking in our complex, diverse and technological world. The College offers introductory and advanced course work in numerous degree and certificate programs across the humanities, social sciences, and performing arts. The General Education program offered to all students enrolled in the University is also central to the mission of the College. The College embraces its role in providing courses and curricula in support of multiple and single-subject teaching credential students. The University's mission to "cultivate success through a diverse culture of experiential learning, discovery, and innovation" lies at the heart of the College's commitment to offer programs that educate the whole person. Additional information is available at: <http://www.cpp.edu/~class/>.

The Department: The Department of Political Science has over three hundred and fifty undergraduate political science majors and approximately fifty students in our NASPAA-accredited MPA program. We also offer a Political Science minor and participate significantly in the university's General Education offerings. The Department sponsors a Model United Nations program and a Mock Trial Team, both with a history of national recognition. Members of the Department have traditionally been actively involved across campus and in the community.

California State Polytechnic University, Pomona is an Equal Opportunity, Affirmative Action Employer. The University seeks to recruit and retain a diverse workforce as a reflection of our commitment to serve the people of California, to maintain the excellence of the University, and to offer our students richly varied disciplines, perspectives and ways of knowing and learning. Cal Poly Pomona subscribes to all state and federal regulations and prohibits discrimination based on race, color, religion, national origin, sex, gender identity/gender expression, sexual orientation, marital status, pregnancy, age, disability, genetic information, medical condition, and covered veteran status. The University hires only individuals lawfully authorized to work in the United States. As required by the Clery Disclosure Act, the university's annual security report is available at <http://www.cpp.edu/annual-security-report.shtml>. The person holding this position is considered a 'mandated reporter' under the California Child Abuse and Neglect Reporting Act and is required to comply with the requirements set forth in CSU Executive Order 1083 as a condition of employment.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: 11/16/2018

Date Posted: 8/20/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4647

Hamilton College

Rank: Visiting Professor

Subfield(s): Political Theory, American Government and Politics, Public Policy

The Government Department at Hamilton College invites applications for a two-year visiting position with possibility for renewal for an additional two years, at the rank of Visiting Assistant Professor. Teaching load is four courses per year for the first year and five courses per year after. This position covers American politics, public policy, and political theory. Candidates may be from any field but must be able to teach courses from at least two of the three areas listed. Applicants who research the impact of digital technologies or incorporate innovative digital technologies into their research and teaching are especially encouraged to apply. We are seeking candidates who can demonstrate their experience in teaching or working with diverse student populations. Your cover letter should address the ways in which you would further the College's goal of building a diverse educational environment.

Appointment begins July 1, 2019. ABD or Ph.D. required Please submit a curriculum vitae, graduate transcripts, a list of courses you are prepared to teach, evidence of teaching performance, and arrange for submission of three letters of recommendation to Interfolio at <https://apply.interfolio.com/53422>. We will begin consideration of applications on December 1. Applicants with questions or wishing to be interviewed at the APSA should contact Philip Klinkner, Chair, Government Department, Hamilton College (govsrch@hamilton.edu).

Hamilton (www.hamilton.edu) is a residential liberal arts college located in upstate New York. Applicants with dual-career considerations can find other Hamilton and nearby academic job listings at www.higheredcareers.com, as well as additional information at <https://www.hamilton.edu/offices/dof/faculty-support-resources/resources-for-prospective-or-newfaculty/opportunities-for-spouses-or-partners> (Opportunities for Spouses or Partners). Hamilton College is an affirmative action, equal opportunity employer and is committed to diversity in all areas of the campus community. Hamilton provides domestic partner benefits. Candidates from underrepresented groups in higher education are especially encouraged to apply.

Qualifications

ABD or Ph.D. required.

Start Date: Summer 2019

Application Deadline: 12/1/2018

Date Posted: 8/15/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4601

Cornell College

Rank: Tenure-Track Assistant Professor of American Politics

The Department of Politics invites applications for a tenure-track position in American politics at the assistant professor level, beginning Fall 2019. Candidates should be prepared to teach the introductory course in American politics as well as upper-division courses on Congress & the Presidency and Campaigns & Elections. Candidates should have expertise in American institutions, American public policy, and/or American constitutional law. Second subfield training in political philosophy will be especially welcome, but any second subfield might work. Additionally, ability to contribute to a sophomore-level research design class, a senior-level capstone class, or both, depending on interest and expertise, will be expected. The teaching load is six courses (typically five preparations) per year. A Ph.D. in Political Science and a commitment to undergraduate education of a diverse student population in a residential liberal arts college are required. A.B.D. candidates will be considered only if the Ph.D. is expected to have been defended prior to Fall 2019.

Cornell College is an undergraduate liberal arts college that has attracted national attention for its distinctive academic calendar under which faculty teach and students take one course at a time in month-long terms. Academic immersion and unparalleled flexibility attract an ambitious student body from 45 states and 18 foreign countries. External endorsements include selection as one of the Colleges That Change Lives, a U.S. News Top 100 liberal arts college, and a Fiske Guide to Colleges Best Buy. Founded in 1853, Cornell's picturesque hilltop campus contains a mix of historic and modern facilities, ranging from the majestic King Chapel to the newly renovated Thomas Commons. It is located in Mount Vernon, Iowa, an urban fringe community recognized by Frommer's as one of "America's Coolest Small Towns" and located in the heart of Iowa's Creative Corridor.

The Department seeks individuals who are committed to building a creative, dynamic and diverse workplace that celebrates the uniqueness of our faculty, staff and students. The College is committed to excellence in teaching and encourages interdisciplinary interests among its faculty.

Submit letter of application, vita, statements of teaching approach and research interests, graduate transcript(s), research sample, and three letters of reference through Cornell's online employment application.

Sample teaching materials may also be included.

Full consideration will be given to applications received by November 1, 2018, but applications may be considered after that date until the position is filled.

For more information about the Politics program, please visit the website at <https://www.cornellcollege.edu/politics/index.shtml>

Cornell College is an AA/EQ employer and encourages applications from women and minorities. Cornell complies with Iowa's smoke free air act. Cornell utilizes E-Verify and requires satisfactory completion of a background check.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 8/14/2018

Salary: Any

eJobs ID: 4585

Cornell College

Rank: Tenure-Track Assistant Professor of American Politics

The Department of Politics invites applications for a tenure-track position in American politics at the assistant professor level, beginning Fall 2019. Candidates should be prepared to teach the introductory course in American politics as well as upper-division courses on Congress & the Presidency and Campaigns & Elections. Candidates should have expertise in American institutions, American public policy, and/

or American constitutional law. Second subfield training in political philosophy will be especially welcome, but any second subfield might work. Additionally, ability to contribute to a sophomore-level research design class, a senior-level capstone class, or both, depending on interest and expertise, will be expected. The teaching load is six courses (typically five preparations) per year. A Ph.D. in Political Science and a commitment to undergraduate education of a diverse student population in a residential liberal arts college are required. A.B.D. candidates will be considered only if the Ph.D. is expected to have been defended prior to Fall 2019.

Cornell College is an undergraduate liberal arts college that has attracted national attention for its distinctive academic calendar under which faculty teach and students take one course at a time in month-long terms. Academic immersion and unparalleled flexibility attract an ambitious student body from 45 states and 18 foreign countries. External endorsements include selection as one of the Colleges That Change Lives, a U.S. News Top 100 liberal arts college, and a Fiske Guide to Colleges Best Buy. Founded in 1853, Cornell's picturesque hilltop campus contains a mix of historic and modern facilities, ranging from the majestic King Chapel to the newly renovated Thomas Commons. It is located in Mount Vernon, Iowa, an urban fringe community recognized by Frommer's as one of "America's Coolest Small Towns" and located in the heart of Iowa's Creative Corridor.

The Department seeks individuals who are committed to building a creative, dynamic and diverse workplace that celebrates the uniqueness of our faculty, staff and students. The College is committed to excellence in teaching and encourages interdisciplinary interests among its faculty.

Submit letter of application, vita, statements of teaching approach and research interests, graduate transcript(s), research sample, and three letters of reference through Cornell's online employment application: <https://cornellcollege.applicantpro.com/jobs/845220.html>

Sample teaching materials may also be included.

Full consideration will be given to applications received by November 1, 2018, but applications may be considered after that date until the position is filled.

For more information about the Politics program, please visit the website at <https://www.cornellcollege.edu/politics/index.shtml>

Cornell College is an AA/EQ employer and encourages applications from women and minorities. Cornell complies with Iowa's smoke free air act. Cornell utilizes E-Verify and requires satisfactory completion of a background check.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 8/14/2018

Salary: Negotiable

eJobs ID: 4587

Cornell College

Rank: Tenure-Track Assistant Professor of American Politics

The Department of Politics invites applications for a tenure-track position in American politics at the assistant professor level, beginning Fall 2019. Candidates should be prepared to teach the introductory course in American politics as well as upper-division courses on Congress & the Presidency and Campaigns & Elections. Candidates should have expertise in American institutions, American public policy, and/or American constitutional law. Second subfield training in political philosophy will be especially welcome, but any second subfield might work. Additionally, ability to contribute to a sophomore-level research design class, a senior-level capstone class, or both, depending on interest and expertise, will be expected. The teaching load is six courses (typically five preparations) per year. A Ph.D. in Political Science and a commitment to undergraduate education of a diverse student population in a residential liberal arts college are required. A.B.D. candidates will be considered only if the Ph.D. is expected to have been defended prior to Fall 2019.

Cornell College is an undergraduate liberal arts college that has attracted national attention for its distinctive academic calendar under which faculty teach and students take one course at a time in month-long terms. Academic immersion and unparalleled flexibility attract an ambitious student body from 45 states and 18 foreign countries. External endorsements include selection as one of the Colleges That Change Lives, a U.S. News Top 100 liberal arts college, and a Fiske Guide to Colleges Best Buy. Founded in 1853, Cornell's picturesque hilltop campus contains a mix of historic and modern facilities, ranging from the majestic King Chapel to the newly renovated Thomas Commons. It is located in Mount Vernon, Iowa, an urban fringe community recognized by Frommer's as one of "America's Coolest Small Towns" and located in the heart of Iowa's Creative Corridor.

The Department seeks individuals who are committed to building a creative, dynamic and diverse workplace that celebrates the uniqueness of our faculty, staff and students. The College is committed to excellence in teaching and encourages interdisciplinary interests among its faculty.

Submit letter of application, vita, statements of teaching approach and research interests, graduate transcript(s), research sample, and three letters of reference through Cornell's online employment application: <https://cornellcollege.applicantpro.com/jobs/845220.html>

Sample teaching materials may also be included.

Full consideration will be given to applications received by November 1, 2018, but applications may be considered after that date until the position is filled.

For more information about the Politics program, please visit the website at <https://www.cornellcollege.edu/politics/index.shtml>

Cornell College is an AA/EO employer and encourages applications from women and minorities. Cornell complies with Iowa's smoke free air act. Cornell utilizes E-Verify and requires satisfactory completion of a background check.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 8/14/2018

Salary: Negotiable

eJobs ID: 4588

University of Chicago

Rank: Assistant Professor

The Harris School of Public Policy at the University of Chicago invites applications for junior faculty positions in Political Science. The search is open with respect to subfield. Applicants are expected to complete a Ph.D. by July 31, 2019 and demonstrate strong promise for a scholarly career. Applicants are required to submit a CV, at least two letters of recommendation (three preferred), and up to two writing samples online at: <https://tinyurl.com/y7avs6af>. Review of applications will begin on September 15, 2018. No applications will be accepted after May 15, 2019.

The University of Chicago is an Affirmative Action/Equal Opportunity/Disabled/Veterans Employer and does not discriminate on the basis of race, color, religion, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, national or ethnic origin, age, status as an individual with a disability, protected veteran status, genetic information, or other protected classes under the law. For additional information please see the University's Notice of Nondiscrimination at http://www.uchicago.edu/about/non_discrimination_statement/. Job seekers in need of a reasonable accommodation to complete the application process should call 773-702-0287 or email ACOppAdministrator@uchicago.edu with their request.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Date Posted: 8/14/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4592

University of North Carolina, Asheville

Rank: Lecturer/Visiting Professor in American Politics

The University of North Carolina Asheville Department of Political Science invites applications for an 18-month Lecturer or Visiting Assistant Professor position for Spring 2019 and the 2019-20 academic year. An earned M.A. in Political Science or closely related field is required. Political Science ABDs are particularly encouraged to apply; however, a Ph.D. is required for appointment at the rank of Visiting Assistant Professor. Candidates should be broadly trained in Political Science but specifically prepared to teach a variety of classes in American Politics, including Intro to American Politics and at least one course related to the politics of race and ethnicity.

The person selected for this position will be expected to teach 12 contact hours per semester. Individuals with a passion for undergraduate teaching and interest in a career at an institution focused on the liberal arts are strongly encouraged to apply. In addition to having a passion for undergraduate teaching, research and mentorship, the UNC Asheville faculty is committed to disciplinary teaching through an inter- and multi-disciplinary lens and providing a premier liberal arts education. Faculty members are expected to teach across the University's Liberal Arts Core (LAC) program, our required interdisciplinary liberal arts curriculum, in courses that include, but are not limited to: introductory (freshman) colloquia; diversity intensives; courses that satisfy the Scientific Perspectives, Social Science courses and Arts and Ideas requirements; courses within the Humanities Program; and LAC Senior Capstone courses.

UNC Asheville has been a national leader in undergraduate research for more than 30 years, and over 60% of our students graduate each year having been involved in this important learning experience. The University fully embraces the idea of mentored undergraduate research being one of the highest forms of teaching, and the institution values success in this facet of a faculty member's work.

The University of North Carolina at Asheville is committed to fostering a diverse and inclusive academic and educational community, welcoming and supportive of faculty and staff from all racial, ethnic, economic, religious, gender, and gender-identity backgrounds. We encourage applications from individuals whose backgrounds and interests align with this commitment. The successful candidate will be expected to engage students from among under-represented groups and to assist in the development of pedagogies and experiences appropriate for diverse learning styles and perspectives. We expect applicants to each write a 1-2 page Diversity Statement describing: (a) their experience in advancing diversity in teaching, scholarship and/or service; (b) examples of demonstrated leadership potential in the area of equity and inclusion; and (c) their understanding of the importance of diversity and inclusion to the mission of a liberal art university.

Applications for this position should be submitted electronically at <https://jobs.unca.edu>. Complete applications should include a cover letter, curriculum vitae, statement of teaching philosophy that addresses Political Science pedagogy in the context of the liberal arts, a diversity statement (described above), copies of syllabi and teaching evaluations (if available), and copies of undergraduate and graduate transcripts. The applicant should provide names and contact information for three references from whom we will request letters of reference to be sent separately; these references should address the candidate's written, verbal and interpersonal skills; ability to teach and mentor undergraduate students; and potential to develop and maintain a successful research program. Review of applications will begin immediately and continue until the position is filled. Inquiries may be directed to Dr. Linda Cornett at lcornett@unca.edu.

Priority will be given to applications received by October 1.

More information about the position can be found here: <https://jobs.unca.edu/postings/3468>

Start Date: Spring 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 8/14/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4595

Winthrop University

Rank: Assistant Professor of Political Science

Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Public Administration, Public Law

Specializations: American Politics, Judicial Politics, Constitutional Law & Theory

The Department of Political Science is seeking engaging teachers and active scholars to join our diverse scholarly community by applying for a full-time, tenure-track Assistant Professor position in American Politics, specifically in the areas of Public Administration/Public Policy and National Institutions. Strong preference will be given to candidates who can teach the Judiciary and/or Constitutional Law. We are seeking a dedicated and experienced teacher with demonstrated scholarly achievement to join our distinguished department. The Winthrop Department of Political Science boasts award-winning faculty who are recognized for the quality of their teaching, research, and service. The department also has three affiliated programs: (1) the 43-year old Model UN Program; (2) the Center for Public Opinion and Policy Research, which is home to the nationally renowned Winthrop Poll; and (3) the John C. West Forum on Politics and Policy, a major civic engagement initiative at the University. The department also collaborates with the Master of Liberal Arts program to provide a graduate Concentration in Political and Civic Engagement. Winthrop University is an Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action employer. Women, minorities, persons with disabilities, and veterans are encouraged to apply.

Major Responsibilities:

- Teach a variety of courses in American Politics, including Public Administration, Public Policy, The Judiciary, Constitutional Law: Federalism, and/or Constitutional Law: Civil Rights and Civil Liberties. Strong preference will be given to candidates with teaching and/or research expertise in multiple areas of need, including Media and Politics and Women and US Politics.
- Teach both introductory and advanced courses in your areas of specialization, including graduate courses in our Political and Civic Engagement Concentration within the Master of Liberal Arts Program
- Teach a team-taught senior capstone course in Political Science
- Ability to conduct media interviews on commentary about campaigns and elections and analysis of American political institutions
- Ability to collaborate with the Center for Public Opinion and Policy Research a plus
- Teach courses in Winthrop University's innovative General Education Program, including American Government, which fulfills the Constitution Requirement
- Participate in departmental, college, and university service, including student advising
- Undertake research in the discipline and promote undergraduate research
- Be an interested and energetic participant in an active department
- Other duties as assigned

Required Qualifications:

- The Ph.D. in Political Science, Public Administration, Public Policy, or a related field is required for appointment at the assistant professor level. A successful candidate who is ABD at the time of employment will be appointed to a non-tenure track position as an instructor. The successful candidate will also be required to undergo a background check prior to hiring
- Specialization in areas among those listed above
- Evidence in the area of Student Intellectual Development, including teaching excellence and commitment to student learning
- Evidence in the area of Scholarly Activity, including an ongoing program of research and publication
- Evidence in the area of Professional Stewardship, including engagement with the discipline, profession, campus, and community
- Preference is given to candidates with experience teaching the courses listed above

Work Environment: This position requires regular contact with students, faculty, and staff on campus. Additionally, the successful candidate will be required to have the ability to work with the outside community, local public schools, the media, other universities, and international schools/companies/partners.

Background Check Statement: Winthrop University is committed to providing a safe campus community. Winthrop conducts background investigations for applicants being considered for employment. Background investigations include reference checks, a criminal history record check, and when appropriate, a financial (credit) report or driving history check.

Employment Conditions: A nine-month, full-time tenure track appointment with faculty rank. Salary is competitive and dependent on academic qualifications.

Position Availability: August 16, 2019

Application Timeline and Procedures:

- Apply Here Now: apply.interfolio.com/53603
- Review of applicants will begin on October 1, 2018 and will continue until the position is filled.
- For more information about the position, please see <http://www.winthrop.edu/hr/>.

Required Materials for Online Application When Available:

- Application letter, with evidence of major responsibilities and required qualifications
- Curriculum vitae, including names, titles, addresses, phone numbers, and e-mail addresses, if available, of at least three persons who know the candidate professionally
- Sample of representative written work (article- or chapter-length)
- Statement of “teaching philosophy, including evidence of excellence in teaching and commitment to student learning
- Three professional letters of reference
- All graduate transcripts and evidence of highest degree achieved (unofficial transcripts are acceptable for initial review; official transcripts are required prior to final appointment)

Interfolio Application Link: apply.interfolio.com/53603

Founded in 1886, Winthrop University in Rock Hill, South Carolina, offers its 6,000-plus undergraduate and graduate students an educational experience that blends liberal arts, professional programs, global awareness, and civic engagement. In its colleges of Arts and Sciences, Business Administration, Education, and Visual and Performing Arts, Winthrop embraces only those programs and activities that can be delivered at an exemplary level. Winthrop is well known for its inclusive and supportive campus environment, with University College supporting programs in both academic and student affairs. Winthrop University is achieving national stature as a competitive and distinctive co-educational, public, residential, comprehensive, values-oriented institution. The values of service, excellence, diversity, community, and leadership provide the foundation for Winthrop’s continuing development and shape Winthrop’s continuing success. Numerous national accolades reflect the sustained high quality and value of the Winthrop Experience, including the most recent U.S. News & World Report’s ranking of Winthrop as one of the top-10 public comprehensive universities in the South. Winthrop is an active member of the Rock Hill community and recognized as a key component of the region’s economic resurgence. In addition, Winthrop is located just 30 minutes south of Charlotte, North Carolina, ranked by U.S. News & World Report in 2018 as one of the top 25 best places to live in the country. For more information, visit us at www.winthrop.edu.

Winthrop University is an Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action employer and does not discriminate against any individual or group of individuals on the basis of age, color, disability, gender, national origin, race, religion, sexual orientation, gender identity, or veteran status. Women, minorities, and persons with disabilities are encouraged to apply.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 8/14/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4584

Vanderbilt UniversityRank: Assistant Professor in American Political Behavior

The Department of Political Science at Vanderbilt University invites applications from outstanding political scientists with a specialization in American political behavior for a tenure-track appointment as Assistant Professor. The department is committed to building an intellectually vibrant, culturally inclusive, and academically diverse community of exceptional faculty. The appointment is open with respect to empirical approach. We will give priority to important research that builds synergies within the department. Candidates able to assist in graduate training in quantitative methods or formal theory should indicate those competencies. The appointment will begin Fall 2019. Salary and benefits are highly competitive. The Committee will begin reviewing files as early as September 1, 2018. To ensure full consideration, applicants should submit complete applications by September 15, 2018, but we welcome earlier applications and we may schedule formal interviews at any time. We will accept applications until we fill the position.

Application Instructions

Interested applicants should submit a cover letter, curriculum vitae, a research statement, a teaching statement, a writing sample, teaching evaluations (if applicable), and three letters of reference electronically via Interfolio at this link: <http://apply.interfolio.com/53090>

Qualifications

Among the qualifications required for hire is the Ph.D. in hand or expected by August, 2019.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 8/10/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4563

Vanderbilt UniversityRank: Open Rank Search in American Politics

The Department of Political Science at Vanderbilt University invites applications from outstanding political scientists specializing in the study of American Politics for a tenure-track appointment as Assistant Professor or a tenured appointment at the Associate or Full Professor rank. The department is committed to building an intellectually vibrant, culturally inclusive, and academically diverse community of exceptional faculty. The appointment is open with respect to empirical approach and area of expertise. We will give priority to important research that builds synergies within the department. Candidates able to assist in graduate training in quantitative methods or formal theory should indicate those competencies. The appointment will begin Fall 2019. Salary and benefits are highly competitive. The Committee will begin reviewing files as early as September 1, 2018. To ensure full consideration, applicants should submit complete applications by September 15, 2018, but we welcome earlier applications and we may schedule formal interviews at any time. We will accept applications until we fill the position.

Application Instructions

Interested applicants should submit a cover letter, curriculum vitae, a research statement, a teaching statement, a writing sample, and teaching evaluations (if applicable). Applicants for a non-tenured position should submit three letters of reference electronically via Interfolio at this link: <http://apply.interfolio.com/53095>

Qualifications

Among the qualifications required for hire is the Ph.D. in hand or expected by August, 2019.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 8/10/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4562

University of Miami

Rank: Open Rank Search in American Politics or International Relations

The Department of Political Science at the University of Miami invites applications for an associate professor or full professor. The proposed start date is August 15, 2019. This is an endowed position providing a competitive salary and annual research budget. We seek candidates in the subfields of American politics or international relations who have developed a national or international reputation for their scholarship.

All applications can be submitted online via the Faculty Career Opportunities website (<https://umiami.wd1.myworkdayjobs.com/UMFaculty>) and all documents (CV, letters of nomination, and a list of three references) can be uploaded via this site. Applications will be considered until the position is filled. For further information about the position, please contact the Department Chair (jwest@miami.edu). Additional information about the Department is available at www.as.miami.edu/politicalscience/.

The University of Miami is an Equal Opportunity Employer - Females/Minorities/Protected Veterans/Individuals with Disabilities are encouraged to apply. Applicants and employees are protected from discrimination based on certain categories protected by Federal law.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 8/9/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4542

University of Houston

Rank: Assistant Professor

The Department of Political Science at the University of Houston invites applications for a tenure-track assistant professor position to begin in Fall of 2019. We seek applicants whose research and teaching interests focus on American Politics, especially those interested in political behavior. Successful candidates should have extensive methodological training, demonstrated excellence in scholarly research and publication, and a clear commitment to undergraduate and graduate teaching. Review of applications will begin October 1 and continue until the position is filled.

The University of Houston, a Carnegie Tier-1 research university with one of the most diverse student bodies in the nation, seeks to recruit and retain a diverse community of scholars.

The Department of Political Science provides high-quality undergraduate and graduate education, with over 700 majors and 75 M.A. and Ph.D. students. The Department capitalizes on the strengths of our city, offering students and faculty opportunities to research the politics of the future in a dynamic hub of international commerce, and in a region which is on the leading edge of national demographic and economic trends.

Applications should be submitted through the University's online job site, <http://www.uh.edu/human-resources/uh-careers/>. The position number keyword is FAC000646. To apply please submit a letter of application, CV, short writing sample, statement of research and teaching interests, and contact information for three professional references. Listed references will be asked to provide a letter of recommendation.

For further information please contact Professor Brandon Rottinghaus, Department of Political Science, University of Houston, at bjrottin@central.uh.edu.

The University of Houston is an Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action employer. Minorities, veterans, women and persons with disabilities are encouraged to apply. The University of Houston is responsive to the needs of dual career couples.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 8/8/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4511

University of Miami

Rank: Tenure-track International Relations or American Politics

Department of Political Science invites applications for a full-time tenure-track position at the rank of Assistant or Associate Professor in the field of international relations or American politics. Although the position is open as to these two subfields, preference will be given to international relations candidates who specialize in international security and preference will be given to American politics to candidates who complement our existing strengths. Candidates should have over their PhD by August 15, 2019 and show promise of high-quality research in top scholarly outlets as well as excellence in teaching. The expected teaching assignment is 2-2, and the position will involve teaching in the field of international relations or American politics, including an introductory course.

All application packages can be submitted online via the Faculty Career Opportunities website (<https://umiami.wd1.myworkdayjobs.com/UMFaculty>) and all documents (CV, letters of nomination, and a list of three references) can be uploaded via this site. Applicants applying for the rank of assistant professor should upload documents including a CV, a letter of interest, teaching evaluations if available, PhD transcript (unofficial is acceptable for initial application), and a single-authored writing sample. More senior scholars applying for the rank of associate professor should upload documents including a CV, a letter of interest, and a list of three references. Applications received on or before Monday, October 15, 2018, will be given full consideration. For further information about the position, please contact the Department Chair (jwest@miami.edu). Additional information about the Department is available at www.as.miami.edu/politicalscience/. The University of Miami is an Equal Opportunity Employer — Females/Minorities/Protected Veterans/Individuals with Disabilities are encouraged to apply. Applicants and employees are protected from discrimination based on certain categories protected by Federal law.

Start Date: Fall 2019
Application Deadline: 10/15/2018
Date Posted: 8/8/2018
Salary: Competitive
eJobs ID: 4532

Dartmouth College

Rank: Assistant Professor - American Politics
Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Methodology, Public Administration

The Department of Government at Dartmouth College seeks applicants for a tenure-track position in American politics at the rank of assistant professor. The position is open with respect to substantive research focus and methodological approach. The position requires excellence in research and classroom teaching. We are especially interested in applicants with a record of successful teaching and mentoring of students from all backgrounds (including first-generation college students, low-income students, racial and ethnic minorities, women, LGBTQ, etc.). Applicants are encouraged to state in their cover letter how they will enhance the diversity of offerings and educational experiences in the department.

Applicants must have a Ph.D. or be ABD with PhD expected by the time of appointment. Applicants should submit a letter of interest, curriculum vitae, writing sample, and letters of recommendation from at least three references. Application materials should be submitted electronically at: <http://apply.interfolio.com/53055>. The review of applications will begin on September 17, 2018 and will continue until the position is filled. Questions may be sent to: michael.herron@dartmouth.edu

Dartmouth College is an equal opportunity/affirmative action employer with a strong commitment to diversity and inclusion. We prohibit discrimination on the basis of race, color, religion, sex, age, national origin, sexual orientation, gender identity or expression, disability, veteran status, marital status, or any other legally protected status. Applications by members of all underrepresented groups are encouraged.

Start Date: Spring 2019
Application Deadline: 9/17/2018
Date Posted: 8/7/2018
Salary: Competitive
eJobs ID: 4512

George Washington University

Rank: Assistant Professor

The Department of Political Science invites applications for a tenure-track position in American Politics at the rank of assistant professor. This position is pending final budgetary approval.

Basic Qualifications: Applicants must have an active, theoretically-oriented research agenda as evidenced by working papers or publications, and be able to teach graduate and undergraduate courses as indicated by research presentations and/or teaching assessments. The Department expects applicants to have strong substantive and methodological training, as demonstrated by completed coursework, but has no preferred methodological approach. Applicants must hold a Ph.D. or doctoral degree in Political Science or a related field. ABDs will be considered but must have completed all requirements for the Ph.D. by the date of appointment.

Application Procedure: To apply please complete an online faculty application at <http://www.gwu.jobs/postings/55187> and upload a cover letter, curriculum vitae, statement of teaching/research interest (including a summary of teaching evaluations, if available), and sample publications. In addition, please send at least three letters of recommendation to pscjobs@gwu.edu. Review of applications will begin on 9/17/2018, and will continue until the position is filled. Only complete applications will be considered.

Start Date: Fall 2019
Application Deadline: Open until Filled
Date Posted: 8/6/2018
Salary: Competitive
eJobs ID: 4494

University of California, Irvine

Rank: 2018-19 Political Science Lecturer Pool (American Focus)

The Department of Political Science is seeking applicants for temporary part-time lecturer positions to teach in the field of American Political Institutions such as Congress, Judicial Behavior, and the Presidency. These positions will replace faculty on leave during the 2018-19 academic year and thus are based on departmental need.

Requirements - We are seeking candidates with strong teaching credentials who might contribute to our undergraduate program in American Politics.

These part-time positions are based on an annual salary range beginning at $54,738 and the number of courses could vary.

Service Period Dates for 2018-2019 Academic Year:
 Fall Quarter: 9/24/18 – 12/14/18
 Winter Quarter: 1/2/19 - 3/22/19
 Spring Quarter: 3/27/19 – 6/14/19

Application Procedure - Interested applicants should submit a letter of application, vita, three letters of reference, evidence of teaching performance, and a Statement of Contributions to Diversity via our online recruit system: <https://recruit.ap.uci.edu/apply/JPF04842>

Priority for positions will be given to applications completed by October 1st, 2018. Please note this is a continuous recruitment to fill classes on an as-needed basis. The department will refer to the pool of applications on file to fill assignments as necessary.

Start Date: Fall 2018
Application Deadline: 3/17/2019
Date Posted: 8/6/2018
Salary: $50,000 - $59,999
eJobs ID: 4501

Oberlin College

Rank: Visiting Assistant Professor of Politics/ Quantitative Policy Analysis Post-Doctoral Fellow

The Politics Department at Oberlin College invites applications for a post-doctoral faculty position in quantitative policy analysis in the College of Arts and Sciences. Appointment is for the 2019-20 academic year. This is a non-continuing position.

The incumbent will pursue teaching responsibilities for one class per semester in the quantitative analysis of public policy. The incumbent will also engage in sustained scholarly research and/or other creative work appropriate to the position, help direct a series of guest scholars/policy practitioners, and participate in a range of mentoring responsibilities for students interested in policy analysis.

To apply, candidates should visit the online application site found at <https://jobs.oberlin.edu>. A complete application will be comprised of 1) a cover letter that includes an articulation of the applicant's teaching philosophy and scholarship / artistic interests; 2) a curriculum vitae; 3) unofficial transcript; 4) evidence of teaching effectiveness; 5) a writing sample; and 6) letters of reference from three (3) recommenders.* All application materials must be submitted electronically through Oberlin College and Conservatory's online application process at: <https://jobs.oberlin.edu/>

*By providing three (3) Professional References (names and email addresses), you agree that we may contact them through our applicant web portal. Reference writers will be asked to submit an electronic letter of recommendation. Please note: at this time we are unable to accept letters of recommendation from an Interfolio email address. Completed applications received by the October 29, 2018 deadline will be guaranteed full consideration. Questions about the position can be addressed to: Stephen Crowley, Professor and Chair of the Politics Department, at scrowley@oberlin.edu.

Start Date: Summer 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 8/3/2018

Salary: $50,000 - $59,999

eJobs ID: 4492

Yale University

Rank: Assistant Professor in American Politics

Specializations: American Politics, Political Psychology, Political Behavior

The Department of Political Science at Yale University invites applications for a tenure track Assistant Professor position in American Politics. We are interested in candidates with expertise in legislatures, institutions, behavior, and political psychology. The appointment will begin on July 1, 2019.

Ph.D. or equivalent degree required at the time of hire. Applications including a cover letter, CV, three letters of recommendation, and a writing sample should be uploaded to <https://apply.interfolio.com/53018>.

Review of applications and nominations will begin September 15, 2018, and to guarantee full consideration your file should be complete by this date.

Please contact Lani Colianna (lani.colianna@yale.edu or 203-432-5238), Sr. Administrative Assistant for the Political Science Department, if you have questions about the application process.

Yale is an affirmative action/equal opportunity employer. Yale University values diversity among its staff, students, and faculty and strongly encourages applications from and nominations for women and underrepresented minorities, protected veterans, and persons with disabilities.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Date Posted: 8/3/2018

Salary: Negotiable

eJobs ID: 4488

Yale University

Rank: Assistant Professor in Race, Ethnicity and Migration

Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Comparative Politics, International Relations

The Department of Political Science at Yale University invites applications for an Assistant Professor position in Race, Ethnicity, and Migration. We are particularly interested in outstanding candidates who work on American Politics, and also candidates who work on these issues in Comparative Politics and International Relations. This search is part of a cluster of hires, at multiple levels, the department is making over the next few years. The appointment will begin on July 1, 2019.

Ph.D. or equivalent degree required at the time of hire. Applications including a cover letter, CV, three letters of recommendation, and a writing sample should be uploaded to <https://apply.interfolio.com/53016>.

Review of applications and nominations will begin September 15, 2018, and to guarantee full consideration your file should be complete by this date.

Please contact Lani Colianna (lani.colianna@yale.edu or 203-432-5238), Sr. Administrative Assistant for the Political Science Department, if you have questions about the application process.

Yale is an affirmative action/equal opportunity employer. Yale University values diversity among its staff, students, and faculty and strongly encourages applications from and nominations for women and underrepresented minorities, protected veterans, and persons with disabilities.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Date Posted: 8/3/2018

Salary: Negotiable

eJobs ID: 4489

Saint Mary's College

Rank: Visiting Assistant Professor — Research Methods and American Politics

SAINT MARY'S COLLEGE

Visiting Assistant Professor – Political Science

The Program in Political Science invites applications for a Visiting Assistant Professor beginning August 2019. The position is for one year; there is a possibility of conversion to a tenure-track position if circumstances and funding permit. The Department seeks a scholar in Research Methods and American Politics who has a strong commitment to teaching in an undergraduate liberal arts environment. The candidate's primary responsibility will be to teach a 3-3 load, which in addition to the Research Methods course required of all Political Science majors may include such courses as Public Opinion, Political Parties and Interest Groups, and Gender and Politics. Ability to teach Foreign Policy and/or Security Studies is a plus. A strong commitment to diversity and inclusion, undergraduate education of women, liberal arts education, and service to the department and the College is expected.

PhD required. ABD considered if PhD to be completed within one year. Teaching experience required. Starting date is August 19, 2019. Classes begin on August 26, 2019.

Please send the following to Dr. Amy Cavender, chair, at posc+search@saintmarys.edu (PDF format preferred):

Letter of application
Curriculum vitae
Statement of teaching philosophy/research activity
Statement on diversity
Evidence of teaching excellence
Three letters of reference

Review of applications will begin October 15, 2018 and continue until the position is filled. Applicants invited to progress to the next round will also be asked to provide all official transcripts of undergraduate and graduate work.

Established in 1844, Saint Mary's College, the nation's premier Catholic Women's college, was founded and is sponsored by the Sisters of the Holy Cross. As a Catholic institution of higher learning, Saint Mary's College has a mission-driven responsibility to be diverse, inclusive, and equitable. The College encourages candidates from underrepresented backgrounds to apply. (See our full value statement on diversity and inclusion: <https://www.saintmarys.edu/about/president/presidents-council-inclusivity-multicultural-diversity>.) Saint Mary's College is a liberal arts college for women with a strong commitment to education of undergraduate women and graduate women and men. All faith traditions are welcome among our administrators, faculty, staff, and students.

Saint Mary's College is an Equal Opportunity Employer. In keeping with the College's mission, Saint Mary's is committed to increasing its diversity at all levels — students, faculty, and staff — and seeks applications from candidates who share this commitment.

Start Date: Fall 2019
Application Deadline: 10/15/2018
Date Posted: 8/1/2018
Salary: Any
eJobs ID: 4471

College of William & Mary

Rank: Assistant Professor of Government (American politics, political behavior)

Position summary: The Department of Government at William & Mary seeks applications for a tenure track position at the Assistant Professor level in American politics with specialty in political behavior. We are especially interested in candidates with interests in racial or ethnic politics, or the politics of inclusion. The successful candidate will have excellent preparation; will possess a demonstrated commitment to producing high-level scholarship and outstanding classroom teaching; will help the Department bring new perspectives to its research profile and curricular offerings; and will be interested in mentoring student research or conducting collaborative research with students. Teaching will include a mix of lecture and seminar courses at the undergraduate level.

Required qualifications: Applicants must hold a Ph.D. in political science or a cognate discipline at the time of appointment (August 10, 2019).

Preferred qualifications: Demonstrated interest or previous experience teaching racial or ethnic politics, the politics of inclusion, or research methods (qualitative or quantitative methods, including political polling and survey methods) is preferred.

Application instructions: Applicants must apply online at <https://jobs.wm.edu>. Submit a curriculum vitae, a cover letter including statement of research and teaching interests, evidence of teaching effectiveness, transcript (unofficial is acceptable for initial application), a writing sample, and a statement describing previous professional experiences or future plans (or both) that demonstrate a commitment to diversity and inclusion. You will be prompted to submit online the names and email addresses of three references who will be contacted by the system with instructions for how to submit a letter of reference. For full consideration, submit application materials by the review date, September 17, 2018. Applications received after the review date will be considered if needed.

Additional information: Information on the Department of Government is at <http://www.wm.edu/as/government/>. We are one of the largest majors on campus and our faculty participate in and receive support from various research centers on campus as well. Our faculty also contribute to interdisciplinary programs such as Africana Studies, Data Science, Environmental Science and Policy, Gender Sexuality and Women's Studies, Global Studies, International Relations, Public Health, and Public Policy. William & Mary is located in Williamsburg, Virginia, convenient to Richmond (the state capital) and Washington, DC. William & Mary values diversity and invites applications from underrepresented groups who will enrich the research, teaching and service missions of the university. The College is an Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action employer and encourages applications from women, minorities, protected veterans, and individuals with disabilities. The College conducts background checks on applicants for employment.

Start Date: Fall 2019
Date Posted: 7/30/2018
Salary: Competitive
eJobs ID: 4459

Georgetown University

Rank: Senior Tenured Scholar - McDonough School of Business and the Walsh School of Foreign Service

Subfield(s): International Relations, American Government and Politics, Public Policy

Georgetown University's McDonough School of Business (MSB) and the Walsh School of Foreign Service (SFS) invite applications and nominations for a senior tenured scholar to hold a joint appointment in both schools. We seek scholars who work at the intersection of business and international affairs in fields such as international political economy, international trade, and international business and public policy. We expect to make this appointment at the level of Full Professor, though we welcome applications from accomplished associate professors. We also welcome applications from and nominations of senior scholars with extensive policymaking experience.

This joint position is one of a number of new interdisciplinary positions at Georgetown intended to foster scholarship and teaching on some of the important problems of our times. Because of our location in Washington, DC, extensive linkages to the international policy and business communities, and strong tradition of scholarship and teaching in business, international affairs, and political economy, Georgetown has a unique opportunity to pursue integrative opportunities in scholarship and educational programs at the intersection of these fields, and the person appointed to the joint position will play an important role in these initiatives.

The MSB and SFS are currently undertaking a transformative cooperation to create a new joint undergraduate degree, the first in Georgetown's history, and plans are also underway for joint centers and research initiatives. This cooperation builds on the success of several joint graduate degrees, as well as a jointly administered Global Business Fellows program for undergraduates. The successful candidate will help provide leadership in deepening and broadening the linkages between the schools.

The SFS is a preeminent international affairs school with deep expertise in international political economy, regional studies, and security studies. The MSB has strengths in core business disciplines as well as international business, public policy, and international political economy. Both the MSB and the SFS are collegial and multi-disciplinary.

ABOUT GEORGETOWN UNIVERSITY: Georgetown University is one of the world's leading academic and research institutions, offering a unique educational experience that prepares the next generation of global citizens to lead and make a difference in the world. We are a vibrant community of exceptional students, faculty, alumni and professionals dedicated to real-world applications of our research, scholarship, faith and service.

Established in 1789, Georgetown is the nation's oldest Catholic and Jesuit university. Drawing upon the 450-year-old legacy of Jesuit education, we provide students with a world-class learning experience focused on educating the whole person through exposure to different faiths, cultures and beliefs. More information can be found here: <https://www.georgetown.edu/>.

ABOUT THE MCDONOUGH SCHOOL OF BUSINESS: Georgetown University's McDonough School of Business attracts faculty and students from around the world. We are committed to developing principled leaders capable of making complex business decisions in a global environment and who are dedicated to serving both business and society. Georgetown McDonough offers undergraduate, MBA, Executive MBA, and specialized programs. More information can be found here: <https://msb.georgetown.edu/>.

ABOUT THE WALSH SCHOOL OF FOREIGN SERVICE: The Walsh School of Foreign Service (SFS), founded in 1919, is a premier school of international affairs. At Georgetown's Washington, D.C., and Qatar campuses, SFS provides a rigorous education grounded in both theory and practice while instilling the Jesuit values of service. SFS hosts top-ranked undergraduate and graduate studies which feature an interdisciplinary core curriculum that focuses on international affairs, government, economics, history, theology, philosophy, geography, and language. SFS faculty are scholars in political science, economics, history, and cultural studies, as well as professionals with backgrounds in business, government, and the nonprofit sector.

APPLICATION PROCEDURE: Interested applicants should send a cover letter and curriculum vitae to apply.interfolio.com/52848. Please send nominations to the same address. We will begin consideration of applications and nominations on 1 November 2018, but will accept applications and nominations until the position is filled. Professors Dennis P. Quinn of MSB and Erik Voeten of SFS will co-chair the search.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 7/30/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4455

Muhlenberg College

Rank: Assistant Professor

Subfield(s): Public Law, American Government and Politics, Other

The Department of Political Science at Muhlenberg College invites applications for a tenure-track, Assistant Professor to begin August 2019. The successful candidate will be broadly trained in political science with a primary interest in American public law. We are open to candidates with a variety of substantive teaching and research interests, for example, constitutional law and theory; judicial politics; urban politics, civil rights; law and society; criminal justice politics; democracy, law, and race; feminist legal studies; global legal studies; immigration. We are especially interested in candidates who desire to work across subfield and disciplinary boundaries and welcome a variety of methodological approaches. Teaching responsibilities include three courses per semester to include one or two classes in American constitutional law or constitutional theory.

Ideal candidates will hold a PhD in Political Science by August 2019. Successful candidates will demonstrate a commitment to excellence in liberal arts undergraduate teaching and mentoring students from all backgrounds (including first-generation students, low-income students, racial and ethnic minorities, women, LGBTQ, etc.), the potential for scholarly publications, and effective written and oral communication. We are especially interested in candidates who have a long-term interest in helping to develop and advise students in Muhlenberg's pre-law program.

Interested candidates should submit a cover letter describing their teaching and research interests, a curriculum vitae, sample teaching materials (e.g. sample syllabi, a statement describing potential courses, and/or a statement of teaching philosophy), graduate transcripts, and contact information for three references. Candidates should also submit a separate statement describing how they will enhance the diversity of offerings and educational experiences in our department as well as contribute to the College's efforts to become a more diverse and inclusive community.

An equal opportunity employer, Muhlenberg College is committed to recruiting and retaining outstanding faculty and staff from racial and ethnic groups that have been traditionally underrepresented in higher education. For additional information about Muhlenberg's commitment to diversity and inclusion, applicants can find the latest updates to the College's Diversity Strategic Plan at: <http://www.muhlenberg.edu/main/aboutus/president/initiatives/diversityatmuhlenberg/>.

Complete applications should be sent via email as a single PDF document, addressed to Lanethea Mathews-Schultz, Political Science Department Chair to: pscsearch@muhlenberg.edu. In order to receive full consideration, applications must be received by September 17, 2018.

Founded in 1848, Muhlenberg College is an independent, coeducational residential college of liberal arts and sciences located in eastern Pennsylvania's Lehigh Valley. Allentown is a diverse city of 116,000, and along with Bethlehem and Easton, anchors the third-largest metropolitan area in Pennsylvania. The region is home to a vibrant arts scene, a nationally unique parks system, and a rich blend of cuisine and diverse restaurants. In addition, Allentown is within close proximity to both New York City and Philadelphia.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 7/30/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4457

Whittier College

Rank: Assistant Professor of Political Science

Subfield(s): Public Policy, American Government and Politics, Public Administration

Assistant Professor of Political Science

Whittier College

Whittier College announces a tenure-track Assistant Professor of Political Science position beginning Fall 2019. The Department seeks candidates specializing in Public Policy and American Politics, and capable of teaching a core course in Public Administration. We would be particularly interested in candidates who might also be able to contribute to any of the following additional areas: race and politics, minority politics, environmental politics, state and local politics with an emphasis on California, and/or political theory.

Candidates should have earned a Ph.D. in Political Science prior to September 2019. The successful candidate will demonstrate potential for outstanding teaching and excellence in scholarship. The Political Science Department has five full-time faculty and approximately 90 majors. Faculty members teach 20 units each year and are expected to teach college-wide courses such as First-year Writing Seminars and/or courses paired with faculty in other disciplines as part of our general education program. In addition, all faculty must be fully engaged in committee service and advisement of students.

Preliminary review of materials will begin September 10, and will continue until the appointment is made. If you plan to attend the American Political Science Association conference, please let us know, and send your c.v. and letter of application by August 1. We plan to meet with a limited number of applicants during the conference; however, all applicants will have equal consideration, regardless of attendance. Full applications should include: a letter of application, including discussion of teaching philosophy and research interests; a curriculum vitae; a summary of course evaluations or other evidence of teaching effectiveness; unofficial transcripts; and at least three confidential letters of recommendation, sent by your references. Please email (PDFs preferred) materials to Prof. Deborah Norden, Department Chair, at <mailto:dnorden@whittier.edu>. Paper application and reference letters can be sent to Prof. Deborah Norden, Political Science Department; Whittier College; 13406 Philadelphia St.; Whittier, CA 90601.

Whittier College is committed to attracting and retaining a high quality, diverse faculty with a shared passion for student-centered teaching and mentoring. It is distinguished by its small class sizes, high-impact pedagogies, and innovative liberal arts curriculum blended with professional and pre-professional programs. It is a nationally recognized model for diversity and has no racial majority among its student body. With over 60% students of color, Whittier is designated as both a Hispanic Serving Institution (HSI) and Asian American Native American Pacific Islander-Serving Institution (AANAPISI).

Founded in 1887, it is an independent, four-year liberal arts college with about 1,650 undergraduates and is ideally situated in the scenic hills 18 miles east of downtown Los Angeles. It is an AA/EOE employer. More information on the position is available at www.whittier.edu/jobs.

Copyright ©2017 Jobelephant.com Inc. All rights reserved.

<https://www.jobelephant.com/>

jeid-4289f6e1d352e841a207bc2342f12ec7

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 7/20/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4413

Boston University

Rank: Assistant Professor - American Politics

The Department of Political Science at Boston University seeks to hire a tenure-track Assistant Professor specializing in American Politics. The position is open with respect to substantive focus within American Politics. The start day is 1 July 2019, pending final budgetary approval. The successful candidate will teach four courses a year, variously geared to undergraduates and Ph.D. students.

Please submit a letter of application including research and teaching statements, curriculum vitae, writing sample, and three references to <https://academicjobsonline.org/ajol/jobs/11463>.

Completed applications are due on 15 September 2018. We are an equal opportunity employer and all qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to race, color, religion, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, national origin, disability status, protected veteran status, or any other characteristic protected by law. We are a VEVRAA Federal Contractor.

The Department of Political Science at Boston University will be holding an informational session at APSA on Friday, August 31st from 1:00 to 4:00 pm. Candidates who are attending the conference and are interested in the position are welcome to stop by.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: 9/15/2018

Date Posted: 7/19/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4407

DePaul University

Rank: Latinx Politics and Urban Politics

Latinx Politics and Urban Politics

DePaul University

The Department of Political Science (PSC) at DePaul University invites applications for a tenure track position at the rank of Assistant Professor to begin September 2019 (6 courses in three academic quarters — 2-2-2). The Department seeks candidates with expertise and preparation in American Politics, specializing in Latinx Politics and Urban Politics.

Applicants who are qualified to teach in both fields will receive preference, although applicants who teach in one of two fields will receive full consideration. The successful candidate will also have opportunities to teach courses in the University's general education program and various interdisciplinary programs. DePaul University is committed to recruiting a diverse faculty to complement the diversity of its student body and Chicago area communities.

Candidates should submit a letter of application [cover letter], CV, sample syllabus, course evaluations, and reference contact information online to our Faculty Recruiting site-- <http://facultyopportunities.depaul.edu/postings/2042> . For more information, email polisci@depaul.edu or visit the department's web site at <http://las.depaul.edu/psc>.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 7/18/2018

Salary: $60,000 - $69,999

eJobs ID: 4401

Brandeis University

Rank: Assistant Professor

The Department of Politics at Brandeis University invites applications for a full-time tenure-track position at the assistant professor level in American Politics. The successful candidate's term will begin in the Fall of 2019. We seek applicants whose research and teaching interests focus on American Politics, open as to subfield. We are especially interested in candidates working on campaigns and elections, state and local politics, or public policy, particularly as these areas intersect with race, ethnicity, and gender. We prefer candidates who will have a Ph.D. in Political Science in hand by August of 2019. Candidates should show evidence of teaching and research excellence to qualify for consideration. The course load is 2/2, and candidates will have the opportunity to teach at both the undergraduate and graduate levels. Applicants should submit a cover letter, curriculum vitae, a statement of research and teaching interests that includes potential course offerings, a chapter or article length writing sample, and three letters of reference. Brandeis University is committed to advancing diversity, equity, and inclusion in faculty scholarship, teaching, and service. Applicants are encouraged to address these goals in their cover letter or in their teaching and research statement. These materials can be submitted electronically at: <https://academicjobsonline.org/ajo/jobs/11383>. First consideration will be given to applications received by October 1, 2018. Questions about the position can be directed to: Jill Greenlee (greenlee@brandeis.edu) and Daniel Kryder (kryder@brandeis.edu), Co-Chairs, Search Committee on American Politics. Brandeis University is an affirmative action, equal opportunity employer that is committed to creating equitable access and opportunities for applicants for all employment positions. We value and are seeking candidates that represent a variety of social identities, including those what have been underrepresented in higher education. Diversity in its student body, staff and faculty is important to Brandeis' primary mission. The search committee is therefore particularly interested in candidates who, through their creative endeavors, teaching and/or service experiences, will increase Brandeis' reputation for academic excellence and better prepare its students to participate within a pluralistic society.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 7/16/2018

Salary: Negotiable

eJobs ID: 4391

University of Delaware

Rank: Assistant Professor of American Politics

Specializations: American Politics, Political Behavior, Political Psychology

THE UNIVERSITY OF DELAWARE
DEPARTMENT OF POLITICAL SCIENCE AND INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS
ASSISTANT PROFESSOR OF AMERICAN POLITICS

The University of Delaware's academic leadership has identified the Department Political Science and International Relations (<http://www.poscir.udel.edu/>) (POSCIR) as a priority for academic growth and prominence. We invite applications for a position in American politics at the rank of assistant professor (tenure track) beginning September 1, 2019. We seek a scholar studying American politics who has strong methodological skills and exhibits exemplary potential. Ideal candidates will have a record of publishing, evident interest in securing research funding, and experience teaching courses in American politics. The successful applicant must have a Ph.D. in hand by August 31, 2019.

We are especially interested in scholars engaging generally with inequality in the American political context. This could include research related to race and ethnicity, economic or educational inequality, or gender politics, but is not limited to these areas. We encourage scholars working on inequality from either institutional or behavioral perspectives including but not limited to the study of political parties, interest groups, social groups and movements, to apply.

The Department has 26 faculty, nearly 1,000 undergraduate majors and minors, and 45 graduate (mostly doctoral) students. We offer two undergraduate majors (Political Science and International Relations) and two undergraduate minors (Political Science and Political Communication) as well as a Ph.D. in Political Science. The department faculty covers four subfields of political science: American politics (including public law), comparative politics, international relations, and political theory. The faculty is a methodologically diverse and collegial group of research-intensive and nationally and internationally known scholars. They are outstanding teachers, mentors, advisers and public servants.

Using the Interfolio® online system at UD, <http://apply.interfolio.com/52194> applicants should submit a cover letter outlining interest in the position, curriculum vitae, teaching statement, teaching evaluations, one article-length writing sample, and three letters of reference. Questions, but not application materials, should be e-mailed to Professor Jason Mycoff (mycoff@udel.edu), Chair, American Politics Search Committee. Review of applications will begin October 1, 2018 and will continue until the position is filled.

Founded in 1743, the University of Delaware (www.udel.edu) combines tradition and innovation, offering students a rich heritage along with the latest in instructional and research technology. Located in scenic Newark, Delaware, within 2 hours of New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, and Washington, D.C., the University is one of the oldest land-grant institutions in the nation, one of 19 sea-grant institutions, and one of only 13 space-grant institutions. With external funding exceeding $200 million, the University ranks among the top 100 universities in federal R&D support for science and engineering and has nationally recognized research (Carnegie rated, very high research activity). With 23 academic departments, 27 interdisciplinary programs and centers, and more than 10,000 students, the College of Arts and Sciences is the largest college on campus (www.cas.udel.edu).

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 7/12/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4382

Rowan University

Rank: Assistant Professor of Political Science

The Department of Political Science and Economics at Rowan University invites applications for a tenure-track Assistant Professor of Political Science position beginning in Fall 2019. The Department seeks candidates with expertise in public policy and American politics, including judicial and/or state and local politics. Applicants are encouraged to discuss their ability to contribute to the Department's emphasis in Race, Class, and Gender. Applicants must demonstrate a commitment to excellence in both research and teaching, as well as the potential to secure external grant/fellowship support. Teaching responsibilities include introductory and advanced courses in public policy and American politics, as well as a course in quantitative methods. A 3/3 teaching load is guaranteed for the first two years and can be renewed annually with evidence of continuing scholarship. Female candidates and candidates of color are strongly encouraged to apply. Rowan University is an equal opportunity and affirmative action employer.

If you plan to attend the American Political Science Association (APSA) conference in Boston and would like to meet, please send your CV and a letter of application by August 1 to pluta@rowan.edu. We plan to meet with a limited number of applicants during the conference; however, all applicants will have equal consideration, regardless of attendance at APSA. Full applications should be submitted through the online applicant tracking system as discussed below.

Rowan University is a Carnegie-classified Doctoral University (Moderate Research Activity) with approximately 17,300 students. Its main campus is located in Glassboro, N.J., 20 miles southeast of Philadelphia, with additional campuses in Camden and Stratford. The University comprises seven academic colleges and five schools—the William G. Rohrer College of Business; the Henry M. Rowan College of Engineering; the Colleges of Communication and Creative Arts, Education, Humanities and Social Sciences, Performing Arts, and Science and Mathematics; the Cooper Medical School of Rowan University; the Rowan University School of Osteopathic Medicine; the Graduate School of Biomedical Sciences; the School of Health Professions; and the School of Earth and Environment—with an Honors College that spans across disciplines. Rowan is one of two public universities in the country to offer M.D. and D.O. medical degree programs. The institution is also home to the South Jersey Technology Park, which fosters the translation of applied research into commercial products and processes. Rowan has been recognized as one of the top 100 public universities in the nation and is ranked third among public institutions in the North by U.S. News & World Report.

Candidates should have an earned doctorate in Political Science (or related field) by August 1, 2019. To assure full consideration, completed applications must be received by October 12, 2018. Applications must be submitted through our online applicant tracking system at <http://jobs.rowan.edu/cw/en-us/job/492980/assistant-professor-of-political-science>. Submit a cover letter, a CV, unofficial transcripts, a writing sample, and teaching portfolio (including a statement of teaching philosophy, courses taught, teaching evaluations, etc.). Please do not submit letters of reference at this time.

Candidates must be legally authorized to work in the US, and the university will not sponsor an applicant for a work visa for this position.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: 10/12/2018

Date Posted: 7/9/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4356

Rowan University

Rank: Assistant Professor of Political Science

The Department of Political Science and Economics at Rowan University invites applications for a tenure-track Assistant Professor of Political Science position beginning in Fall 2019. The Department seeks candidates with expertise in public policy and American politics, including judicial and/or state and local politics. Applicants are encouraged to discuss their ability to contribute to the Department's emphasis in Race, Class, and Gender. Applicants must demonstrate a commitment to excellence in both research and teaching, as well as the potential to secure external grant/fellowship support. Teaching responsibilities include introductory and advanced courses in public policy and American politics, as well as a course in quantitative methods. A 3/3 teaching load is guaranteed for the first two years and can be renewed annually with evidence of continuing scholarship. Female candidates and candidates of color are strongly encouraged to apply. Rowan University is an equal opportunity and affirmative action employer.

If you plan to attend the American Political Science Association (APSA) conference in Boston and would like to meet, please send your CV and a letter of application by August 1 to pluta@rowan.edu. We plan to meet with a limited number of applicants during the conference; however, all applicants will have equal consideration, regardless of attendance at APSA. Full applications should be submitted through the online applicant tracking system as discussed below.

Rowan University is a Carnegie-classified Doctoral University (Moderate Research Activity) with approximately 17,300 students. Its main campus is located in Glassboro, N.J., 20 miles southeast of Philadelphia, with additional campuses in Camden and Stratford. The University comprises seven academic colleges and five schools—the William G. Rohrer College of Business; the Henry M. Rowan College of Engineering; the Colleges of Communication and Creative Arts, Education, Humanities and Social Sciences, Performing Arts, and Science and Mathematics; the Cooper Medical School of Rowan University; the Rowan University School of Osteopathic Medicine; the Graduate School of Biomedical Sciences; the School of Health Professions; and the School of Earth and Environment—with an Honors College that spans across disciplines. Rowan is one of two public universities in the country to offer M.D. and D.O. medical degree programs. The institution is also home to the South Jersey Technology Park, which fosters the translation of applied research into commercial products and processes. Rowan has been recognized as one of the top 100 public universities in the nation and is ranked third among public institutions in the North by U.S. News & World Report.

Candidates should have an earned doctorate in Political Science (or related field) by August 1, 2019. To assure full consideration, completed applications must be received by October 12, 2018. Applications must be submitted through our online applicant tracking system at <http://jobs.rowan.edu/cw/en-us/job/492980/assistant-professor-of-political-science>. Submit a cover letter, a CV, unofficial transcripts, a writing sample, and teaching portfolio (including a statement of teaching philosophy, courses taught, teaching evaluations, etc.). Please do not submit letters of reference at this time.

Candidates must be legally authorized to work in the US, and the university will not sponsor an applicant for a work visa for this position.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: 10/12/2018

Date Posted: 7/9/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4357

Rowan University

Rank: Assistant Professor of Political Science

The Department of Political Science and Economics at Rowan University invites applications for a tenure-track Assistant Professor of Political Science position beginning in Fall 2019. The Department seeks candidates with expertise in public policy and American politics, including judicial and/or state and local politics. Applicants are encouraged to discuss their ability to contribute to the Department's emphasis in Race, Class, and Gender. Applicants must demonstrate a commitment to excellence in both research and teaching, as well as the potential to secure external grant/fellowship support. Teaching responsibilities include introductory and advanced courses in public policy and American politics, as well as a course in quantitative methods. A 3/3 teaching load is guaranteed for the first two years and can be renewed annually with evidence of continuing scholarship. Female candidates and candidates of color are strongly encouraged to apply. Rowan University is an equal opportunity and affirmative action employer.

If you plan to attend the American Political Science Association (APSA) conference in Boston and would like to meet, please send your CV and a letter of application by August 1 to pluta@rowan.edu. We plan to meet with a limited number of applicants during the conference; however, all applicants will have equal consideration, regardless of attendance at APSA. Full applications should be submitted through the online applicant tracking system as discussed below.

Rowan University is a Carnegie-classified Doctoral University (Moderate Research Activity) with approximately 17,300 students. Its main campus is located in Glassboro, N.J., 20 miles southeast of Philadelphia, with additional campuses in Camden and Stratford. The University comprises seven academic colleges and five schools—the William G. Rohrer College of Business; the Henry M. Rowan College of Engineering; the Colleges of Communication and Creative Arts, Education, Humanities and Social Sciences, Performing Arts, and Science and Mathematics; the Cooper Medical School of Rowan University; the Rowan University School of Osteopathic Medicine; the Graduate School of Biomedical Sciences; the School of Health Professions; and the School of Earth and Environment—with an Honors College that spans across disciplines. Rowan is one of two public universities in the country to offer M.D. and D.O. medical degree programs. The institution is also home to the South Jersey Technology Park, which fosters the translation of applied research into commercial products and processes. Rowan has been recognized as one of the top 100 public universities in the nation and is ranked third among public institutions in the North by U.S. News & World Report.

Candidates should have an earned doctorate in Political Science (or related field) by August 1, 2019. To assure full consideration, completed applications must be received by October 12, 2018. Applications must be submitted through our online applicant tracking system at <http://jobs.rowan.edu/cw/en-us/job/492980/assistant-professor-of-political-science>. Submit a cover letter, a CV, unofficial transcripts, a writing sample, and teaching portfolio (including a statement of teaching philosophy, courses taught, teaching evaluations, etc.). Please do not submit letters of reference at this time.

Candidates must be legally authorized to work in the US, and the university will not sponsor an applicant for a work visa for this position.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: 10/12/2018

Date Posted: 7/9/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4358

Towson University

Rank: Assistant Professor of State and Local Government and Public Policy

Subfield(s): Public Policy, American Government and Politics, American Government and Politics

Specializations: State Politics, Urban Politics, Housing

ASSISTANT PROFESSOR TENURE TRACK SEARCH
DEPARTMENT OF POLITICAL SCIENCE – TOWSON UNIVERSITY
ACADEMIC YEAR 2019-2020

Areas of Specialization: State and Local Government and Public Policy

The Department of Political Science at Towson University invites applications for a tenure-track position at the Assistant Professor level. The position entails teaching general survey courses in metropolitan studies and state and local government and upper-level courses focusing on state governance and metropolitan development. Background in public policy preferred. Applicants with Ph.D. in hand at the time of application will receive preference, although ABDs may be considered if the degree will be completed by the spring of 2019. Applicants must possess a strong commitment to excellence in teaching and show a solid potential for a productive scholarly program. Interest in pursuing external funding is desirable. The teaching load is six courses during the first year, but will rise to seven courses thereafter. Applicants should send: letter of intent; curriculum vitae; one sample of written work; syllabi of any courses taught; evidence of teaching effectiveness; official transcripts of all graduate and undergraduate work; and three letters of recommendation to Dr. Donn Worgs, Department of Political Science, Towson University, 8000 York Road, Towson, MD 21252. Please reference search: CLA-N-3203.

Application review will begin in October. Initial committee review will end on December 15, 2018.

Towson University is the second largest institution in the University System of Maryland. It is located just outside Baltimore and is only an hour from Washington, D.C. by car or train. Towson is an equal opportunity employer and has a strong institutional commitment to diversity.

Start Date: Fall 2019
Application Deadline: 12/15/2018
Date Posted: 6/27/2018
Salary: $60,000 - $69,999
eJobs ID: 4335

Texas A&M University

Rank: Tenure-Track, Assistant Professor in National Security & Diplomacy
Subfield(s): Public Policy, International Relations, American Government and Politics

The Department of International Affairs in the Bush School of Government and Public Service at Texas A&M University invites applications and nominations for a tenure-track, assistant professor position in the broad area of National Security and Diplomacy. The Bush School of Government and Public Service has built an outstanding faculty who are looking to hire a collegial Assistant Professor. We are broadly open to a candidate's regional/topical area of international affairs specialization. Bush School faculty exclusively teach master's degree graduate students in international affairs in a standard 2-2 load. The successful candidate will be expected to teach at least one section of the required course in introductory-level empirical methods. We have a preference for candidates who would also be able to teach U.S. foreign policy. Additional information about the Bush School and department is available at <http://bush.tamu.edu>.

Applicants must have a Ph.D. in Political Science, History, International Relations, Economics or a related discipline by September 2019. The individual selected will have demonstrated a strong commitment to teaching and research in the context of a public policy graduate school environment. The start date for this position will be September 1, 2019.

Applications must be made through the Texas A&M Workday website. The job number for this position is R-008268.

Applicants who currently are not a Texas A&M System employee please go to our external career site at https://tamus.wd1.myworkdayjobs.com/en-US/TAMU_External/job/College-Station-TAMU/Tenure-Track--Assistant-Professor-in-National-Security---Diplomacy---International-Affairs_R-008268

Applicants who currently are a Texas A&M System employee please go to our internal career site at https://www.myworkday.com/tamus/d/inst/15\$158872/9925\$10485.html

Applicants should upload a formal letter of interest that includes reference to the position, a curriculum vitae and a sample of written work.

Additionally, please have three letters of recommendation sent to:

Professor Gregory Gause
 c/o Ms. Janeen Wood (preferably as electronic attachments to bushschoolinta-facultysearch@tamu.edu)
 The Bush School of Government & Public Service
 Texas A&M University
 4220 TAMU
 College Station, TX 77843-4220

The review of applications will begin September 20, 2018, and will continue until the position is filled.

Start Date: Spring 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled
Date Posted: 6/22/2018
Salary: Competitive
eJobs ID: 4323

Florida State University

Rank: Assistant professor

The Department of Political Science (<http://coss.fsu.edu/polisci/home>) seeks applications for a tenure track assistant professor to begin in Fall 2019. We seek candidates whose research focuses on American politics and policy. We are especially interested in candidates with interests in political institutions. Priority will be given to candidates who can add to the department's strengths in rigorous empirical, formal, and/or experimental analysis. Successful candidates are expected to pursue an active program of research and contribute to the department's undergraduate and graduate teaching.

Florida State University is committed to broadening the gender, racial, and ethnic diversity of its faculty, and the Department of Political Science shares that goal. The university statement of commitment to increasing the diversity of the faculty and students can be found at http://hr.fsu.edu/?page=diversity/diversity_home.

Florida State University is a Carnegie Foundation-classified Research I institution. Among its 42,000 students are 7,500 graduate students pursuing over 200 programs of study. Tallahassee is Florida's capital and has a metropolitan population of over 375,000. Its principal employers are state government and three higher education institutions.

Applicants should submit (1) a letter of application indicating research and teaching interests, (2) a curriculum vitae, (3) writing samples, (4) three letters of recommendation, and (5) a graduate school transcript. All items must be submitted electronically. Send these files as separate email attachments (pdf's are expected) to polisci@fsu.edu. Review of applications will begin September 15, 2018 and continue until the position is filled. Florida State University is an EO employer. Members of underrepresented groups are strongly encouraged to apply.

Florida State University is an Affirmative Action/Equal Opportunity Employer and racial/ethnic minority applicants are particularly encouraged to apply (http://hr.fsu.edu/?page=eoc/eo/eo_home).

Start Date: Fall 2019
Application Deadline: 9/17/2018
Date Posted: 6/15/2018
Salary: Competitive
eJobs ID: 4308

Florida State University

Rank: Assistant professor

Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, International Relations, Comparative Politics

The Department of Political Science (<http://coss.fsu.edu/polisci/home>) seeks applications for a tenure track assistant professor to begin in Fall 2019. We seek candidates whose research focuses on institutions and political economy. The search is open with respect to the substantive subfield, and priority will be given to candidates who can add to the department's strength in formal theory and rigorous empirical analysis. Successful candidates are expected to pursue an active program of research and to contribute to the department's undergraduate and graduate game theory sequences.

Florida State University is committed to broadening the gender, racial and ethnic diversity of its faculty, and the Department of Political Science shares that goal. The university statement of commitment to increasing the diversity of the faculty and students can be found at http://hr.fsu.edu/?page=diversity/diversity_home.

Florida State University is a Carnegie Foundation-classified Research I institution. Among its 42,000 students are 7,500 graduate students pursuing over 200 programs of study. Tallahassee is Florida's capital and has a metropolitan population of over 375,000. Its principal employers are state government and three higher education institutions.

Applicants should submit (1) a letter of application indicating research and teaching interests, (2) a curriculum vitae, (3) writing samples, (4) three letters of recommendation, and (5) a graduate school transcript. All items must be submitted electronically. Send these files as separate email attachments (pdfs are expected) to polisci@fsu.edu. Review of applications will begin September 17, 2018 and continue until the position is filled. Florida State University is an EO employer. Members of underrepresented groups are strongly encouraged to apply.

Florida State University is an Affirmative Action/Equal Opportunity Employer and racial/ethnic minority applicants are particularly encouraged to apply (http://hr.fsu.edu/?page=eoc/eo/ceo_home).

Start Date: Fall 2019
Application Deadline: 9/17/2018
Date Posted: 6/14/2018
Salary: Competitive
eJobs ID: 4304

Hobart & William Smith Colleges

Rank: Assistant Professor of Political Science
Specializations: American Politics, Political Development, Presidency

The Department of Political Science invites applications for a tenure-track position in American politics and American political thought at the rank of Assistant Professor beginning July 1, 2019. Ph.D. preferred, advanced ABD considered. The teaching load is five courses over two semesters.

The ideal candidate will be able to teach introductory classes in both American politics and political theory. We are interested in candidates who can teach upper-level courses in American political thought and American political development. Additional teaching and research areas might include power and the American presidency; religion and religious movements in US politics; fear and authoritarianism in US politics; and rural and/or labor politics. The successful candidate's work will be informed by theoretical and historical perspectives on questions important to the understanding of power and politics in the United States.

Research and teaching in our department is not confined within the conventional subfields. The department values intellectual diversity and supports a wide range of critical and theoretical approaches that help bring people together across subfields as they address questions of power of ever-pressing importance. The department also supports interdisciplinarity in teaching and research in keeping with the Colleges' longstanding emphasis on interdisciplinary liberal arts education. We encourage the creative development of new questions, lines of inquiry, and vectors of critique. The department seeks candidates that have demonstrated a commitment to diversity and inclusion.

APPLICATION INSTRUCTIONS

Applications received by September 15, 2018, will be given first consideration, but we will continue to review applications until the position is filled.

Please send a letter of application, curriculum vitae, writing sample, graduate transcripts, a statement of teaching philosophy, and a statement explaining how your skills and experience support the campus' commitment to diversity. Please arrange to have three letters of reference sent via Interfolio. Additional inquiries can be directed to Professor Jodi Dean, Search Chair, at jdean@hws.edu.

Start Date: Fall 2019
Application Deadline: Open until Filled
Date Posted: 5/24/2018
Salary: Competitive
eJobs ID: 4266

Virginia Commonwealth University

Rank: ASSISTANT PROFESSOR - AMERICAN POLITICS (CONGRESS)/POLITICAL THEORY
Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Political Theory, Methodology
Specializations: Congress, Ethnic & Feminist Theory, Research Methods

Assistant Professor: (Tenure-Eligible, Political Science)

The Department of Political Science at Virginia Commonwealth University is seeking applications for a tenure eligible faculty position at the Assistant Professor rank to begin August 2018 to support the Department's teaching and research mission in the area of American Politics with expertise in American Institutions (especially, Congress), and Contemporary Political Theory. In addition to subfield expertise in Congress, specialization(s) in gender, race, sexuality, class, and/or ethnicity politics is preferred. The successful candidate will also be able to teach our undergraduate and graduate level research methods.

RESEARCH

The faculty member will be central to the political science department's concentrations in U.S. Government, Civil and Human Rights, Politics and Government, Policy and Administration, Political Theory & Methodology, among others. We are seeking active researchers who study issues related to the U.S. Congress and/or American Political Theory.

TEACHING

In addition to the faculty member's research responsibilities, the teaching responsibilities will include courses at the undergraduate level in her/his areas of specialization, as well as providing support to the Department's core curriculum and general education requirements, including Introduction to American Politics, Introduction to Political Theory, and Senior Seminar, a 400-level Capstone course. Specifically, this candidate will teach courses in legislative politics, advanced research methods, and political theory. The ability to teach courses in Contemporary Political Theory (e.g., Black Political Thought, Feminist Theory, Queer Political Theory) is preferred, but not required. This position also includes an expectation of service to the Department.

SERVICE

The faculty member will serve on departmental, College, and/or University committees as necessary, as well as in a professional capacity in their field, e.g., reviewer, conference organizer, etc.

REQUIRED QUALIFICATIONS

- PhD in political science or closely related field at the time of employment
- Demonstrated expertise and potential for publication in the faculty area of research
- Demonstrated experience working in and fostering a diverse faculty, staff, and student environment or commitment to do so as a faculty member at VCU

REQUIRED DOCUMENTS

1. Cover Letter
2. Three Letters of Recommendation
3. CV/Resume
4. Statement of Teaching Interests
5. Statement of Research Interests
6. Teaching Evaluations (Evidence of Teaching Effectiveness)
7. Graduate Transcript (unofficial is accepted)
8. Writing Sample
9. Statement on Commitment to Diversity and Inclusion

Only electronic applications will be accepted. Please apply online at www.vcujobs.com. Please submit the required documents with your online application. Letters of Reference should be sent to the search committee under separate cover directly via the automated email system at the application site. Questions should be directed to Dr. Alexandra Reckendorf at anreckendorf@vcu.edu. Application deadline is December 15, 2017. Start date will be August 16, 2018.

Start Date: Fall 2018

Application Deadline: 12/15/2017

Date Posted: 11/1/2017

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 3725

COMPARATIVE POLITICS

Yale University

Rank: Post Doctoral Fellowship in Political Economy

Subfield(s): International Relations, Political Theory, Comparative Politics

The Leitner Program in International and Comparative Political Economy at Yale invites applications for a post-doctoral position for AY 2019-2020. Candidates must have a robust research program in political economy, broadly construed, and must have completed their Ph.D. by the time of appointment.

The post-doctoral fellow will teach one course during the year, either in the Fall or the Spring semester, pursue their own research, and participate in the activities of the Leitner program. Fellows are expected to be in residence from August 2019 to May 2020. Compensation is competitive, and includes benefits and health coverage.

To apply, send a cover letter, CV, research statement and a draft of a syllabus of a course you propose to teach at Yale. You'll also need to have three letters of recommendation submitted on your behalf.

All information from the applicant should be submitted electronically through Interfolio: apply.interfolio.com/55450

For questions, please contact Ms. Hira Jafri, Assistant Director of Global Programs, Leitner Program in International and Comparative Political Economy, The Whitney and Betty MacMillan Center for International and Area Studies, 34 Hillhouse Avenue, P.O. Box 208206 New Haven, CT 06520-8206 USA. Email: leitner@yale.edu

For details on the Leitner program, please consult the website: <https://leitner.yale.edu/>

We will begin accepting applications immediately with review beginning on Thursday, December 13, 2018 and continuing until the selections are final.

Start Date: Summer 2019

Application Deadline: 12/13/2018

Date Posted: 10/26/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 5075

Berry College

Rank: Tenure-Track Assistant Professor of Government and International Studies

Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Comparative Politics, Public Policy

The Department of Government and International Studies at Berry College invites applications for a Tenure Track Assistant Professor to begin in August 2019. The successful candidate will be a scholar-teacher-mentor with the following teaching responsibilities: a department Foundations (general education) course in American or comparative government, Social Science Research Methods for majors, and upper-level courses on health politics/policy or environmental politics/policy, with opportunities to teach in our Honors Program. Preference will be given to those with interdisciplinary interests that complement related college programs. The department is committed to offering an excellent undergraduate education that emphasizes the development of strong writing and critical thinking skills that will prepare students for entry into the workforce or for advanced study. We are especially interested in candidates whose teaching and scholarship will add diversity to the college curriculum and engage the community, including by cultivating internship opportunities. Candidates from historically underrepresented groups are especially encouraged to apply. All applicants should describe in their cover letter how they would help recruit and support students from underrepresented groups.

Minimum Qualifications: PhD required by May 2019. An active research agenda, an interest in encouraging and mentoring undergraduate research, and a demonstrated commitment to teaching undergraduates is essential.

Located on more than 26,000 acres in northwest Georgia in a setting of great natural beauty, Berry College has an enrollment of about 2,000 undergraduate students. The college is located 65 miles northwest of Atlanta, Georgia, and 65 miles south of Chattanooga, Tennessee. As a comprehensive liberal-arts college, Berry provides an integrated education that unites a challenging academic program with opportunities for spiritual and moral growth, work experience, and significant service to others.

Candidates should submit a letter of application, along with a current CV, copies of transcripts, statements of teaching philosophy, and three letters of reference to Darla Fox, Department of Government and International Studies, Berry College, P.O. Box 405010, Mt. Berry, GA 30149. Email inquiries: esands@berry.edu. For more information on our program, please visit our website at: www.berry.edu/academics/humanities/government/

Review of applications will begin December 1, 2018 and materials must be received by that date to receive full consideration.

Persons applying for employment with Berry College may be required to submit a full national background check. Berry College is an Equal Opportunity Employer.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 10/25/2018

Salary: $50,000 - $59,999

eJobs ID: 5066

Berry College

Rank: Tenure-Track Assistant Professor of Government and International Studies

Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Comparative Politics, Public Policy

The Department of Government and International Studies at Berry College invites applications for a Tenure Track Assistant Professor to begin in August 2019. The successful candidate will be a scholar-teacher-mentor with the following teaching responsibilities: a department Foundations (general education) course in American or comparative government, Social Science Research Methods for majors, and upper-level courses on health politics/policy or environmental politics/policy, with opportunities to teach in our Honors Program. Preference will be given to those with interdisciplinary interests that complement related college programs. The department is committed to offering an excellent undergraduate education that emphasizes the development of strong writing and critical thinking skills that will prepare students for entry into the workforce or for advanced study. We are especially interested in candidates whose teaching and scholarship will add diversity to the college curriculum and engage the community, including by cultivating internship opportunities. Candidates from historically underrepresented groups are especially encouraged to apply. All applicants should describe in their cover letter how they would help recruit and support students from underrepresented groups.

Minimum Qualifications: PhD required by May 2019. An active research agenda, an interest in encouraging and mentoring undergraduate research, and a demonstrated commitment to teaching undergraduates is essential.

Located on more than 26,000 acres in northwest Georgia in a setting of great natural beauty, Berry College has an enrollment of about 2,000 undergraduate students. The college is located 65 miles northwest of Atlanta, Georgia, and 65 miles south of Chattanooga, Tennessee. As a comprehensive liberal-arts college, Berry provides an integrated education that unites a challenging academic program with opportunities for spiritual and moral growth, work experience, and significant service to others.

Candidates should submit a letter of application, along with a current CV, copies of transcripts, statements of teaching philosophy, and three letters of reference to Darla Fox, Department of Government and International Studies, Berry College, P.O. Box 405010, Mt. Berry, GA 30149. Email inquiries: esands@berry.edu. For more information on our program, please visit our website at: www.berry.edu/academics/humanities/government/

Review of applications will begin December 1, 2018 and materials must be received by that date to receive full consideration.

Persons applying for employment with Berry College may be required to submit a full national background check. Berry College is an Equal Opportunity Employer.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 10/25/2018

Salary: $50,000 - $59,999

eJobs ID: 5067

George Washington University

Rank: Assistant or Associate Professor of Ethics and International Affairs

Subfield(s): International Relations, Political Theory, Comparative Politics

The Elliott School of International Affairs at the George Washington University invites applications for a tenure track appointment to begin as early as Fall 2019. The successful applicant will teach graduate and undergraduate courses on ethics and international affairs, including discussions of practical events and ethical challenges as they unfold in a broad range of substantive areas of international affairs; conduct research, produce scholarship and policy analysis in ethics and international affairs; and engage with the broader academic and policy communities. This appointment is at the assistant or associate professor level and will be affiliated with the Elliott School's Leadership, Ethics and Practice initiative. The successful candidate will also have an appointment either in the Political Science or Philosophy Department. Salary and rank are commensurate with experience.

Minimum qualifications: Applicants must have a doctorate in philosophy or political science (or a relevant disciplinary or interdisciplinary field) at time of appointment. Applicants should have a promising research agenda as demonstrated by publications, presentations or works in progress; promise of excellence in teaching as demonstrated by student evaluations, peer reviews, or supervisor's comments; and an interest in policy issues demonstrated by a teaching and research statement, publications or presentations that will support the mission of the Leadership, Ethics and Practice initiative and the Elliott School.

Application procedure: To apply, please complete an online faculty application at <https://www.gwu.edu/jobs/postings/57049>, upload a cover letter that explains how your qualifications and experiences satisfy the basic qualifications for this position, a CV, sample publication (if available), teaching evaluations or assessments (if available), and course syllabi (to be included in the 'Other Documents' section, if available). In addition, please send at least three letters of recommendation to esiafac@gwu.edu or Faculty Affairs, 1957 E Street NW, Suite 401, Washington, DC 20052. Review of applications will begin November 26, 2018 and will continue until the position is filled. Only completed applications will be considered.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled
Date Posted: 10/25/2018
Salary: Competitive
eJobs ID: 5072

University of Connecticut

Rank: Assistant Professor, Middle East Politics and Culture

The Department of Political Science and the Department of Literatures, Cultures, and Languages at the University of Connecticut seek to hire a tenure-track assistant professor specializing in the comparative politics of the Middle East. This joint appointment will contribute to the Comparative Politics program within the Political Science Department by developing graduate and undergraduate courses on themes in comparative politics, as well as the national institutions and politics of the Middle East. The candidate will also contribute to UConn's brand new Arabic and Islamic Civilizations major by developing courses on contemporary Arab culture.

The University of Connecticut (UConn) is in the midst of a transformational period of growth supported by the $1.7B Next Generation Connecticut (<http://nextgenct.uconn.edu/>) and the $1B Bioscience Connecticut (<http://biosciencect.uhc.edu/>) investments and a bold new Academic Plan: Path to Excellence (http://issuu.com/uconnprovost/docs/academic-plan-single-hi-optimized_1). We are pleased to continue these investments by inviting applications for this faculty position.

The Department of Political Science has 36 faculty members, over 600 undergraduate students and 55 graduate students, and actively engages in research in American Politics, Comparative Politics, International Relations, Political Theory, and Public Law. Our faculty have enjoyed recognition for their scholarship both nationally and internationally. The department has traditionally featured an active Colloquia series that highlights scholars from UConn and other universities, as well as opportunities for collaboration with the Human Rights Institute, Africana Studies Institute, Asian and Asian American Studies Institute, Women's, Gender, and Sexuality Studies Program, El Instituto, and many others. For more information about the Department, please visit www.polisci.uconn.edu.

The Department of Literatures, Cultures, and Languages has over 40 full-time faculty members and offers major and minor programs in Arabic, Chinese, Classics and Ancient Mediterranean Studies, French, German, Hebrew and Judaic Studies, Italian Literary and Cultural Studies, Spanish, Film Studies, and Literary Translation, as well as MA and PhD programs in Literatures, Cultures, and Languages with areas of concentration in Applied Linguistics and Discourse Studies, Comparative Literary and Cultural Studies, French and Francophone Studies, German Studies, Hebrew and Judaic Studies, Italian Literary and Cultural Studies, and Spanish Studies. Many of our faculty and students are actively involved in multidisciplinary work with a number of departments, institutes, and programs throughout the university. For more information about the department, please visit www.languages.uconn.edu.

The successful candidate will be expected to contribute to research and scholarship through extramural funding, high quality publications, and generate impact as measured through citations, as well as aspire to gain national recognition as through honorific awards. In the area of teaching, the successful candidate will share a deep commitment to effective instruction at the undergraduate and graduate levels, development of innovative courses and mentoring of students in research, and outreach and professional development. Newly hired faculty will also be expected to broaden participation among members of under-represented groups; demonstrate through their research, teaching, and/or public engagement the richness of diversity in the learning experience; and integrate multicultural experiences into instructional methods and research tools.

MINIMUM QUALIFICATIONS

Near-native fluency in Modern Standard Arabic; holding a Ph.D. in Political Science or a related field completed by August 2019; evidence or promise of a strong research/publication record in the field of Middle Eastern politics; and the ability to teach standard and specialized comparative politics courses at both the graduate and undergraduate levels. Successful candidates will be expected to develop some undergraduate courses on contemporary Arab culture where the mode of instruction is in Modern Standard Arabic. Candidates from a wide range of methodological and conceptual perspectives will be considered for the position, but all must demonstrate strong promise in their research program. Equivalent foreign degrees are acceptable.

PREFERRED QUALIFICATIONS

Preference will be given to candidates with a Ph.D. in Political Science who demonstrate an empirically-driven research agenda that may employ qualitative, quantitative, or multimethod approaches and can contribute to the Department of Political Science's undergraduate and graduate curricula in Comparative Politics.

APPOINTMENT TERMS

This is a full-time, 9-month, tenure-track position with an anticipated start date of August 23, 2019. The successful candidate's academic appointment will be at the Storrs campus. Review of applications will begin on December 7, and will continue until the position is filled. Salary is competitive based on experience and qualifications.

TO APPLY

Please navigate to <https://academicjobsonline.org/ajo/jobs/12530> to complete your application. Please submit curriculum vitae, a letter of application, graduate school transcripts, a statement describing teaching and research interests, writing samples, and (if available) course syllabi and teaching evaluations. The letter of application should include a statement indicating the candidate's commitment to diversity (including broadening participation, integrating multicultural experiences in instruction and research and pedagogical techniques to meet the needs of diverse learning styles, etc.). Additionally, please follow the instructions on Academic Jobs Online to direct three references to submit letters on your behalf.

Employment of the successful candidate will be contingent upon the successful completion of a pre-employment criminal background check. (Search 2019171)

This position will be filled subject to budgetary approval.

All employees are subject to adherence to the State Code of Ethics, which may be found at <http://www.ct.gov/ethics/site/default.asp>.

The University of Connecticut is committed to building and supporting a multicultural and diverse community of students, faculty, and staff. The diversity of students, faculty, and staff continues to increase, as does the number of honors students, valedictorians and salutatorians who consistently make UConn their top choice. More than 100 research centers and institutes serve the University's teaching, research, diversity, and outreach missions, leading to UConn's ranking as one of the nation's top research universities. UConn's faculty and staff are the critical link to fostering and expanding our vibrant, multicultural, and diverse community. As an Affirmative Action/Equal Employment Opportunity employer, UConn encourages applications from women, veterans, people with disabilities, and members of traditionally underrepresented populations.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: 12/7/2018

Date Posted: 10/25/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 5065

University of Texas at Dallas

Rank: Assistant Professor

The School of Economic, Political, and Policy Sciences at The University of Texas at Dallas (UTD) invites applications for a tenure-track assistant professor position beginning in August of 2019 in the Political Science Program. The scholarly topic of interest is civil conflict. The successful candidate will be expected to teach both undergraduate and graduate courses. Possible specializations might include: nationalism, political violence, ethnic conflict, state violence, terrorism, civil war, and related phenomena. PhD by the time of employment is expected.

UTD is a fast-growing, suburban research university with undergraduate, Master's and PhD programs in Political Science. We have approximately 60 graduate students and 250 undergraduate majors. The University of Texas at Dallas has the highest freshman SAT scores of any public University in Texas and was recently ranked 1st among the 100 best universities in the world under 50 years old by Times Higher Education magazine. Further, UT Dallas is now considered an R1 university by the Carnegie Commission on Higher Education.

Faculty typically teach two courses per semester, and opportunities for leave become available after a successful third-year review.

Ideal candidates will demonstrate their ability to contribute to existing program strengths in quantitative methods and teaching excellence. Review of applications will begin November 1st and continue until the position is filled. Applicants should upload a cover letter, curriculum vitae, evidence of teaching effectiveness, and the full contact information for at least three professional references.

Go here to apply: <http://jobs.utdallas.edu/postings/11072>

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 10/25/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 5064

Adelphi University

Rank: Assistant Professor

Assistant Professor

College of Arts & Sciences

Department of Political Science

ABOUT ADELPHI:

Adelphi University, New York, is a highly awarded, nationally ranked, powerfully connected doctoral research university dedicated to transforming students' lives through small classes with world-class faculty, hands-on learning and innovative ways to support academic and career success. Adelphi offers exceptional liberal arts and sciences programs and professional training, with particular strength in our Core Four—Arts and Humanities, STEM and Social Sciences, the Business and Education Professions, and Health and Wellness. Recognized as a Best College by U.S. News & World Report, Adelphi is Long Island's oldest private coeducational university, serving more than 8,100 students at its beautiful main campus in Garden City, at learning hubs in Manhattan, the Hudson Valley and Suffolk County, and online. The University offers students more than 50 undergraduate majors and 70 graduate programs in the liberal arts, the sciences and professional training. With powerful partnerships throughout the New York area, more than 115,000 graduates across the country, a growing enrollment of students from 41 states and 58 countries, and rising rankings from top publications and organizations, Adelphi is a dynamic community that plays a leadership role on Long Island and in the region.

JOB SUMMARY:

The Department of Political Science invites applications for a tenure-track assistant professorship in comparative politics to begin in Fall, 2019. The department is looking for a comparativist with expertise in comparative development, comparative political economy, and/or security. Non-European regional expertise is welcomed. Candidates must also have the ability to teach a 200-level research design and methods course that includes some quantitative methods. The successful applicant will join an active, engaged, and collegial undergraduate department. For more information about the political science department, visit <https://political-science.adelphi.edu/>. The usual teaching load is 18 credits per academic year. Adelphi University is committed to encouraging faculty research by offering opportunities for research reductions and summer grants.

RESPONSIBILITIES:

- Teaching courses mainly in comparative politics as well as a course in research design and methods.
- Commitment to teaching students from diverse cultural backgrounds and excellent potential as a teacher.
- Commitment to developing a high-quality research program involving students from diverse cultural backgrounds.
- Service on departmental and university-wide committees.

QUALIFICATIONS:

- Ph.D. in political science is required.
- Demonstrated record of scholarship in comparative politics.
- Teaching experience.

APPLICATION:

- Applicants must apply online by submitting the following (merged into one document): cover letter, CV, statement of teaching interests and philosophy, research statement and three letters of recommendation which can be included in your applicant materials or sent separately to facultyreference@adelphi.edu
- Application deadline is November 14, 2018 to receive full consideration.

DIVERSITY:

Adelphi University is an equal opportunity/affirmative action employer committed to building a diverse workforce and strongly encourages applications from women, under-represented groups, members of the LGBT community, people with disabilities and veterans.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 10/24/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 5062

RISD

Rank: Assistant Professor in Environmental Studies

Subfield(s): International Relations, Comparative Politics, Public Policy

Position Description

The Department of History, Philosophy and the Social Sciences (HPSS) at the Rhode Island School of Design (RISD) invites applications for a full-time Assistant Professor in Environmental Studies starting in the fall of 2019.

Rhode Island School of Design recognizes diversity and inclusivity as fundamental to its learning community and integral to an art and design education. We welcome candidates whose experience in teaching, scholarship, or service has prepared them to contribute to our commitment to diversity and excellence.

We are seeking a scholar whose work speaks to the social dynamics inherent in environmental and sustainability issues, and has an interest in the ways that art and design intersect with socio-environmental issues. The ideal candidate has specialty in political ecology, environmental racism and environmental justice, environmental ethics, technology and nature, philosophy of nature, and/or possible expertise in GIS and other forms of mapping. We welcome colleagues whose work engages with historically underrepresented communities. All candidates should demonstrate evidence of quality teaching. The successful candidate will be expected to contribute to the undergraduate Nature-Culture-Sustainability Studies (NCSS) concentration and to the newly developed Nature-Culture-Sustainability Studies Master's degree.

Department /RISD Description

RISD is an undergraduate and graduate college of art and design with approximately 2,400 students, 2000 of whom are undergraduates. HPSS is a multidisciplinary department within the Division of Liberal Arts. Our students are art and design majors who take one third of their courses in the Liberal Arts. RISD offers unique opportunities for collaborative research and teaching with faculty and students in art and design disciplines (e.g., industrial design, apparel, textiles, architecture, film, etc.).

RISD supports faculty professional practice with sabbaticals, pre-critical review leave, conference funds, and professional development grants. RISD has a critical review process, which is very similar to the tenure process. For more information about RISD and to apply online, please visit www.risd.edu/jobs.

Faculty Responsibilities

Full-time faculty in the HPSS Department teach 6 courses a year, including both undergraduate and graduate seminars (capped at 15), lecture courses (capped at 30), and first year seminar courses (capped at 21). In addition to teaching, fulltime faculty are expected to serve on college committees, advise students, participate in curriculum development and other departmental activities and projects, and contribute to the vibrancy of the intellectual life of the college. We seek candidates who demonstrate quality undergraduate teaching, can teach broadly in their field, and represent various aspects of their discipline within the department.

Union Yes Pre-employment Requirement

The successful candidate will be required to meet our pre-employment background screening requirements.

Special Instructions to Applicants

Please attach the following to the appropriate links and the section labeled "Documents Needed to Apply":

- 1) a cover letter including an expression of interest
- 2) curriculum vitae
- 3) a research statement (attach to tab labeled "Other 1")
- 4) an example of scholarly work (attach to tab labeled "Writing Sample")
- 5) a statement of teaching philosophy (that speaks to how you attend to diversity and inclusivity as fundamental to a learning community and provides evidence of teaching excellence)
- 6) a list of potential course descriptions (attach to tab labeled "Course Proposal")
- 7) at least one example syllabus

If you are selected as a semi-finalist, we will require letters of recommendation from your three references.

Review of applications will begin immediately and continue until the position is filled. Candidates who submit their materials by November 18, 2018 are assured full consideration.

EEO Statement

RISD is an Equal Opportunity Employer. Employment decisions are made without regard to race, color, religion, sex, age, national origin, disability, veteran status, sexual orientation, gender identity or expression, genetics, or any other protected characteristic as established by law.

Required Qualifications

The suitable candidate will have undergraduate teaching experience and a broad background in environmental social sciences and/or humanities. Candidates should have completed a Ph.D. in an appropriate field of the environmental social sciences or humanities (e.g., environmental studies, geography, sociology, philosophy, psychology, or other relevant disciplines) by July 1, 2019.

Apply Here: <http://www.Click2Apply.net/swv7hhrcn98hn4xm>

PI105004090

Start Date: Fall 2019

Date Posted: 10/23/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 5052

University of Texas, Rio Grande Valley

Rank: Latin American Politics/Political Economy (Open Rank)

Specializations: Latin American, Mexico, Political Economy

The Department of Political Science at the University of Texas Rio Grande Valley invites applications for a full-time tenured or tenure-track faculty member in Latin American politics and/or Latin American political economy to begin September 1, 2019. The department is particularly interested in applicants with teaching interests and a research agenda in any of the following areas: Government & Politics of Mexico, US-Mexico border relations, and the politics or political economy of various Latin American nations/regions. The department is open to a wide variety of approaches, including qualitative, quantitative, comparative, institutional, and historical methods. The position continues the department's effort to build an undergraduate and graduate program that develops interdisciplinary strength anchored in the concepts and methods of political science, while simultaneously crossing disciplinary boundaries to incorporate topics, concepts, and methods utilized outside of political science. The successful candidate will teach upper-division and graduate level courses in their areas of substantive specialization and required lower-division courses in U.S. Federal Government & Politics and/or Texas Government and Politics. The successful candidate will contribute to the vision of creating a bilingual, bicultural institution on the Texas-Mexico border that serves as a gateway to the Americas.

To apply, go to: <https://careers.utrgv.edu/postings/search>

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: 1/14/2019

Date Posted: 10/23/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 5040

SUNY, Geneseo

Rank: Assistant Professor of Political Science

Specializations: International Political Economy, Quantitative Methods, International Political Economy

The Department of Political Science and International Relations at SUNY Geneseo invites applicants for a tenure-track, assistant professor position, to begin August of 2019.

Our priority is teaching excellence. We seek someone with a strong commitment to teaching in a liberal arts setting, a scholar who is prepared to teach undergraduate courses on International Political Economy, Social Science Research Methods, an introductory course in either International Politics or Comparative Politics, and upper division courses in Comparative Politics or International Politics. Responsibilities include academic advising and mentoring of students, establishing and completing a program of research and publication in Political Science, service to college, community and discipline. Candidates should hold a Ph.D. in Political Science by the time of appointment in August 2019. Candidates must possess the demonstrated expertise necessary to teach International Political Economy and social science research methods, and other undergraduate courses in political science. Candidates should also have the potential for scholarly contributions in political science. Finally, candidates should possess a commitment and ability to work effectively with a diverse group of students, faculty, staff, and constituents in support of campus and department mission.

Applicants should be prepared to upload a cover letter, a CV, and additional materials that speak to their teaching effectiveness. The cover letter should address teaching philosophy, interests and plans for establishing a research program. In addition, applicants should be prepared to supply contact information (email address) for three references. References will be contacted and invited to submit letters of recommendation at the time of application.

Please submit materials at <https://jobs.geneseo.edu/postings/2380>

Review of completed applications will begin upon receipt. To be guaranteed consideration, applications must be completed by November 22, 2018. The search committee anticipates conducting initial interviews by telephone/Skype in January or February 2019.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 10/22/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 5046

The American University in Cairo

Rank: POLS Comparative Politics - Middle East(103946)

Company Description:

Founded in 1919, AUC moved to a new 270-acre state-of-the-art campus in New Cairo in 2008. The University also operates in its historic downtown facilities, offering cultural events, graduate classes, and continuing education. Student housing is available in New Cairo. Among the premier universities in the region, AUC is Middle States accredited; its Engineering programs are accredited by ABET, its Chemistry program is accredited by the Canadian Society for Chemistry, and the School of Business is accredited by AACSB, AMBA and EQUIS. The AUC Libraries contain the largest English-language research collection in the region and are an active and integral part of the University's pursuit of excellence in all academic and scholarly programs. AUC is an English-medium institution; eighty-five percent of the students are Egyptian and the rest include students from nearly ninety countries, principally from the Middle East, Africa and North America. Faculty salary and rank are based on qualifications and professional experience. According to AUC policies and procedures, faculty are entitled to generous benefits.

Job Description:

The Department of Political Science invites applications for a position in Comparative Politics with emphasis on the Middle East starting Fall 2019. The position is on a five-year fixed-term contract. Teaching responsibilities will include a combination of courses at the BA and MA levels in comparative politics of the Middle East, introduction to political science, research methods, and comparative theory. Responsibilities will also include administering the Joint MA program in Comparative and Middle East Politics and Society (CMEPS) between AUC and the Institute of Political Science at the University of Tubingen in Germany. The search committee is eager to review applications of individuals with demonstrated excellence in teaching, an accomplished and active research agenda, and an interest in living and working in the Middle East.

Requirements:

PhD is required at the time of appointment. Successful candidates should have an ongoing program of research and publication. Teaching experience is required. Responsibilities include undergraduate as well as graduate teaching, an active program of research and publications, and service to the Department and the University.

Additional Information:

Priority will be given to applications received by November 30, 2018. Position is open until filled.

Application Instructions:

All applicants must submit the following documents online:

a) a current CV; b) a letter of interest; c) a statement of teaching philosophy; d) a completed AUC Personnel Information Form (PIF);

e) a copy of a recently published article or manuscript chapter in progress. f) Please ask three referees familiar with your professional background to send reference letters directly to hussref@aucegypt.edu

For more information, e-mail Dr. Rabab El Mahdi, Chair, (relmahdi@aucegypt.edu); Ms. Gehan Wissa, Executive Assistant to the Chair, (gehanwm@aucegypt.edu) or visit the department's website at <http://www.aucegypt.edu/huss/pols/pages/default.aspx>

All applications should be uploaded online:

<https://www.aucegypt.edu/about/jobs/faculty-vacancies>

Apply Here: <http://www.Click2Apply.net/g9t78px5s2993mm7>

PI104992657

Start Date:

Date Posted: 10/22/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 5049

Princeton University

Rank: Fung Global Fellows Program - Early Career Scholar Fellowship

Subfield(s): Comparative Politics, International Relations, Other

Princeton University is pleased to announce the call for applications to the Fung Global Fellows Program at the Princeton Institute for International and Regional Studies (PIIRS). The program will select early-career scholars from around the world to be in residence at Princeton for an academic year and to engage in research and discussion around a common theme. The number of candidates hired at this rank will depend on the qualifications of the overall applicant pools. The fellowships will be awarded to scholars employed outside the United States who have a faculty appointment, a professional research appointment, or are an established independent scholar. They will also be expected to return to their positions at the conclusion of the fellowship. Lastly, they must have demonstrated outstanding scholarly achievement and unusual intellectual promise.

During the academic year 2019-20, the Fung Global Fellows Program theme will be "Thinking Globally." How people have thought about the planet has informed the institutions, norms, and policies that have pulled it together and torn it apart. For centuries, ideas of free trade, human rights or global governance have framed cooperation and competition, order and disorder. Such ideas have also spawned border-crossing movements, from campaigns to end slavery to commitments to reduce carbon emissions. In turn, global thinking and action have often reinforced commitments to national ideas and efforts to curb global exchange. The goal of this research theme is to explore how ideas framed the understanding of interests and the making of institutions that have yielded commonness and conflict across and within borders. We also want to understand how these ideas and practices came into being through scientific networks, foundations, and think tanks. The Program will also examine rival world ideas that have challenged prevailing orthodoxies. Nowadays, with cooperative norms under challenge, global institutions under stress, and a century of guiding ideas about global convergence in doubt, we want to take a broad look at where these ideas came from, their effects, and the prospects for intellectual renewal or rethinking. The goal of the 2019-20 Fung Global Fellows cohort will be to explore the ways people learned to rely on or to reject strangers far away, as well as to imagine how global relationships came to be and could be different. We welcome applicants from all disciplinary and inter-disciplinary fields from the sciences to the humanities whose work addresses this set of themes in any historical period or world region.

Applicants must apply online at <https://www.princeton.edu/acad-positions/position/9481>.

Applications are due by November 20, 2018 (11:59 p.m. EST). To be eligible, applicants must have received their Ph.D. or equivalent no earlier than September 1, 2009. Fellowships will be awarded on the strength of a candidate's proposed research project, the relationship of the project to the program theme, the candidate's scholarly record and ability to contribute to the intellectual life of the program. For more information on eligibility requirements and the Fung Global Fellows Program see <http://piirs.princeton.edu/funggf/>.

The following items will need to be submitted by the applicant, in English:

- Cover letter (1.5 pages maximum)
- Curriculum Vitae (including publications)
- Research proposal (maximum of 3 pages, single spaced)
- One writing sample (article or book chapter, maximum of 50 pages)
- An official letter from the applicant's current employer affirming that, should an offer be made, the applicant would be permitted to accept it and to spend the academic year 2019-2020 at Princeton University
- The names and email addresses for three referees, who will be contacted with an invitation to upload their letter of recommendation to the online application system

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: 11/20/2018

Date Posted: 10/19/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 5042

Princeton University

Rank: Fung Global Fellows Program – Senior Scholar Fellowship

Subfield(s): Comparative Politics, International Relations, Other

Princeton University is pleased to announce the call for applications to the Fung Global Fellows Program at the Princeton Institute for International and Regional Studies (PIIRS). The program will select senior scholars from around the world to be in residence at Princeton between three to ten months during the 2019-2020 academic year to engage in research and discussion around a common theme. The number of candidates hired at this rank will depend on the qualifications of the overall applicant pools. The fellowship will be awarded to senior scholars employed outside the United States who have received their doctorate before 2009. They must have a faculty appointment, a professional research appointment, or be an established independent scholar in the designated theme of the program, and have exhibited unusual intellectual promise. Senior candidates will be expected to return to their position after the conclusion of the fellowship.

During the academic year 2019-20, the Fung Global Fellows Program theme will be "Thinking Globally." How people have thought about the planet has informed the institutions, norms, and policies that have pulled it together and torn it apart. For centuries, ideas of free trade, human rights or global governance have framed cooperation and competition, order and disorder. Such ideas have also spawned border-crossing movements, from campaigns to end slavery to commitments to reduce carbon emissions. In turn, global thinking and action have often reinforced commitments to national ideas and efforts to curb global exchange. The goal of this research theme is to explore how ideas framed the understanding of interests and the making of institutions that have yielded commonness and conflict across and within borders. We also want to understand how these ideas and practices came into being through scientific networks, foundations, and think tanks. The Program will also examine rival world ideas that have challenged prevailing orthodoxies. Nowadays, with cooperative norms under challenge, global institutions under stress, and a century of guiding ideas about global convergence in doubt, we want to take a broad look at where these ideas came from, their effects, and the prospects for intellectual renewal or rethinking. The goal of the 2019-20 Fung Global Fellows cohort will be to explore the ways people learned to rely on or to reject strangers far away, as well as to imagine how global relationships came to be and could be different. We welcome applicants from all disciplinary and inter-disciplinary fields from the sciences to the humanities whose work addresses this set of themes in any historical period or world region.

Applications are due by November 20, 2018 (11:59 p.m. EST). Fellowships will be awarded on the strength of a candidate's proposed research project, the relationship of the project to the program theme, the candidate's scholarly record and ability to contribute to the intellectual life of the program.

To apply please visit: <https://www.princeton.edu/acad-positions/position/9482>.

The following items will need to be submitted by the applicant, in English:

- Cover letter (1.5 pages maximum)
- Curriculum Vitae (including publications)
- Research proposal (maximum of 3 pages, single spaced)
- One writing sample (article or book chapter, maximum of 50 pages)
- An official letter from the applicant's current employer affirming that, should an offer be made, the applicant would be permitted to accept it and spend between three to ten months during the 2019-2020 academic year at Princeton University
- The names and email addresses for three referees, who will be contacted with an invitation to upload their letter of recommendation to the online application system

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: 11/20/2018

Date Posted: 10/19/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 5041

York University

Rank: Tenure-Stream Appointment - Open Rank, Open Field

Subfield(s): Comparative Politics, International Relations, Other

The Department of Politics, Faculty of Liberal Arts & Professional Studies invites applications for a tenure-track professorial-stream appointment in the critical study of politics at any professorial rank (Assistant Professor, Associate Professor, or Professor), to commence July 1, 2019.

A PhD in Political Science or a related discipline is required. Candidates must have significant professional experience, demonstrated excellence in teaching and in scholarly research, and have produced publications appropriate to their stage of career.

The Department of Politics is internationally recognized as one of the world's leading sites of political scholarship informed by a diverse range of critical intellectual approaches, and is seeking a dynamic intellectual leader to help advance that reputation and the scholarly excellence on which it is based. The successful candidate will be establishing, or already have established, an international reputation for the excellence of their contribution to the critical study of politics. Applicants should have an ongoing program of research and specialize in or, reflecting the interdisciplinary nature of the Department of Politics, across the five fields into which the Department is organized: Canadian Politics, Comparative Politics, International Relations (both International Political Economy and Security Studies), Political Theory, and Women and Politics. Their research should complement the present scholarly profile of the Department, and develop it in new and innovative ways. Candidates who would be competitive for nomination to the York Research Chairs program are encouraged to apply.

The successful candidate must be suitable for prompt appointment to the Faculty of Graduate Studies. The position will involve graduate teaching and supervision, as well as undergraduate teaching. The successful candidate should demonstrate an ability to attract high quality graduate students to work with them. Pedagogical innovation in high priority areas such as experiential education and technology enhanced learning is an asset.

Applicants should submit a signed letter of application outlining their professional experience and research interests, an up-to-date curriculum vitae, a sample of their scholarly writing (maximum 50 pp.), and a teaching dossier, and arrange for three signed confidential letters of recommendation to be sent to: Professor David Mutimer, Chair, Department of Politics, Email: polsjobs@yorku.ca (Subject line: Open Rank Search in Politics).

Self-Identification and Work Status Declaration forms may be found at: <http://acadjobs.info.yorku.ca/affirmative-action/>. Applicants wishing to self-identify can do so by downloading, completing and submitting the form. A declaration of work status is required.

The deadline for receipt of completed applications is November 12, 2018. Salary will be commensurate with qualifications and experience. All York University positions are subject to budgetary approval.

York University is an Affirmative Action (AA) employer and strongly values diversity, including gender and sexual diversity, within its community. The AA Program, which applies to Aboriginal people, visible minorities, people with disabilities, and women, can be found at <http://acadjobs.info.yorku.ca/> or by calling the AA office at 416-736-5713. All qualified candidates are encouraged to apply; however, Canadian citizens, Permanent Residents, and Indigenous peoples in Canada will be given priority.

Posting End Date: November 12, 2018

Start Date: Summer 2019

Application Deadline: 11/12/2018

Date Posted: 10/19/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 5036

Columbia University

Rank: Istvan Deak Visiting Professor in East Central European Studies

Columbia University invites applications for István Deák Visiting Professorship(s) in East Central European Studies for one or two semester (fall and/or spring) in the academic year 2019-2020. The professorship, commemorating Professor Deák's legacy of excellence in research and teaching, is open to scholars who have active interest and accomplishments in East and Central European studies. Appointment(s) will be open-rank, to be filled at any level from Visiting Assistant to Visiting Full Professor.

The visiting professor(s) will be appointed in one of the Humanities or Social Science departments of the Faculty of Arts and Sciences. The visitors will teach two courses, one a lecture course of broad interest for undergraduates, the other a seminar for upper-level undergraduates and graduate students. The visitors are expected to give one public lecture and participate in the academic life of the University, whose interests in East and Central European studies are well represented on campus by the East Central European Center, the European Institute, and the Harriman Institute.

Please provide a letter of application, curriculum vitae, the names of three persons who may be asked to provide a letter of reference, and a modest sample (article or book chapter) of scholarship. The letter of application should include a statement of which semester the applicant prefers, a list with titles and brief (one-paragraph long) descriptions of two courses which the applicant might teach, and a description of the applicant's current research interests.

All applications must be made through Columbia's online Recruitment of Academic Personnel System (RAPS) at: <http://pa334.peopleadmin.com/postings/1617>

Review of applications will begin November 19, 2018, and will continue until the positions are filled.

Start Date: Fall 2019
Date Posted: 10/18/2018
Salary: Competitive
eJobs ID: 5030

University of Colorado, Denver

Rank: Assistant Professor Comparative Politics
Specializations: Political Economy, Developing Nations, Labor Politics

The Political Science Department at the University of Colorado Denver invites applications from innovative and versatile candidates for the tenure-track position of Assistant Professor, starting August 2019.

Applicants should have areas of expertise in the political-economy of the "Global South. Particular geographic areas of interest are: South Asia, Sub-Saharan Africa, and Latin/South America. Particular sub-fields of interest are: International Development, Public Health, Gender, Labor and Migration.

The successful candidate will be rostered as a tenure-track assistant professor. This position comes with responsibilities in teaching (40% of time), research (40% of time), and service (20% of time). The teaching load is 2/2 (four courses an academic year), at both the undergraduate and graduate level. This position will be responsible for teaching foundational courses in comparative politics as well as courses within the candidate's particular subfield.

The CU Denver Political Science Department seeks to sensitize students to the essential questions of politics and life, and to catalyze informed and creative civic engagement in pursuit of a more just and humane world. Beyond its teaching mission, the Department seeks to create, discover, and apply knowledge to improve the health and well-being of Colorado, the nation, and the world. In advancing these teaching, research, and creative activities, the department seeks to build mutually beneficial partnerships that engage local, national, and global communities. Our Political Science Department values interdisciplinarity, and welcomes creative candidates from diverse fields who meet the qualifications below.

REQUIRED QUALIFICATIONS:

Ph.D. from an accredited university; track record of engaging and innovative teaching; record of scholarly achievement or promise of future scholarly achievement; areas of expertise in one or more of the following fields: Political-Economy of the "Global South" (Area expertise in Africa, Asia or Latin/South America), International Development, Public Health, Gender, Labor and Migration.

GENERAL QUALITIES DESIRED:

The Political Science Department seeks candidates who expand our understanding of how colonialism, settler colonialism, neocolonialism, neoliberalism, globalization and/or militarism affect daily life across the world, and who can highlight the innovative solutions to global and local challenges that are emerging out of traditionally marginalized communities. Candidates with a commitment to innovative pedagogies, including openness to online teaching and robust online pedagogies, are encouraged to apply. The Department values candidates with a record of, or interest in, community engagement and/or international development experience.

To Apply: Apply online at: <https://cu.taleo.net/careersection/2/jobdetail.ftl?job=14811&lang=en>

Reference Job Number: 14811

For questions, contact Search Chair Dr. Christoph Stefes at: Christoph.stefes@ucdenver.edu

Start Date: Fall 2019
Application Deadline: 12/15/2018
Date Posted: 10/17/2018
Salary: Competitive
eJobs ID: 5025

Albright College

Rank: Assistant Professor of Political Science

The Department of Political Science at Albright College invites applicants for a full-time, tenure-track Assistant Professor of Political Science beginning in fall 2019. Applicants must also be able to teach introductory courses in research methods. Ph.D. in Political Science or a closely related field at the time of appointment is expected. Teaching responsibilities include introductory and advanced courses in comparative politics, as well as entry level research methods courses. The successful candidate will also have the opportunity to develop and teach courses in the general studies program. Commitment to teaching excellence, the liberal arts, mentoring undergraduate scholarship, an active program of research, and service to the college and department is required.

Application review will begin on November 1, 2018 and will continue until the position is filled. Qualified applicants should fill out the application form at www.albright.edu/hr/employment.html and forward required materials to hr@albright.edu. Applications should include: 1) cover letter; 2) curriculum vitae; 3) graduate transcripts (unofficial is acceptable); 4) sample of scholarly or creative work; 5) statement of teaching philosophy; 6) statement of current and future research; 7) evidence of teaching effectiveness (i.e., student/peer evaluations of teaching, sample syllabi of courses taught); and 8) a statement about commitment to inclusivity and equity. Please arrange to have at least two reference letters submitted, one of which addresses teaching effectiveness. For more information: about the position see www.albright.edu/hr/employment.html; about Albright College: www.albright.edu.

Start Date:

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 10/15/2018

Salary: Negotiable

eJobs ID: 5014

University of Cincinnati

Rank: Assistant Professor in Cyber Strategy and Policy

Subfield(s): International Relations, Comparative Politics, American Government and Politics

The Department of Political Science at the University of Cincinnati seeks a tenure-track Assistant Professor in the area of cyber security strategy and policy. The successful candidate will be expected to teach within a new multidisciplinary undergraduate major in Cyber Strategy and Policy. This major will be housed in Political Science but includes computing sciences requirements. The successful candidate will be expected to teach core courses on Cyber Strategy and Policy and Cyber Conflict and develop further courses that advance the Cyber Strategy and Policy major and count toward our other undergraduate programs including BAs in Political Science and International Affairs, Certificate in Security Studies, Certificate in International Human Rights and our Political Science PhD program. The teaching load is 2-2.

The University of Cincinnati is one of only 18 institutions nationally designated as a National Security Agency (NSA) Center of Academic Excellence in both cyber defense and cyber operations and has been selected by the State of Ohio to host and support a state-wide cyber range to promote research, education, workforce and economic development in cyber security.

Candidates should have expertise in international security studies and/or American national security studies along with general field competency in international relations, comparative politics, and/or American government. Successful candidates will have demonstrated research focus on issues related to technology and global/national security (for example, cyber security; organizational and bureaucratic structures; authorities/law or privacy and civil liberties related to cyber security).

Candidates must have a PhD in Political Science or relevant field. ABDs will be considered, but the dissertation must be defended before the appointment starts on August 15, 2019.

Interested and qualified applicants must complete our online application at <https://jobs.uc.edu> (search Requisition #34122). In addition to the online application, please provide a cover letter indicating fit with the job description, full CV, list of three references and a writing sample. A one-page statement addressing the candidate's intended contributions to the University's goals of diversity and inclusion, through teaching, research and mentoring, is also required. Review of applications will begin November 12, 2018 with additional applications accepted until the position is filled.

Finalists for the position will be required to submit three letters of reference to be addressed to Dr. Richard Harknett, Search Committee Chair. Questions should be directed to Dr. Richard Harknett, Department Head, at richard.harknett@uc.edu.

The University of Cincinnati is an urban, public, comprehensive Research I institution committed to attracting, supporting, and retaining an academically and culturally diverse faculty. The University of Cincinnati is an equal opportunity/affirmative action employer. In a continuing effort to foster diversity on our campus, we actively encourage applications from women, people of color, people with disabilities, veterans, people of diverse sexual orientations/identities, and others who may make a positive contribution to the diversification of ideas and perspectives. Faculty and staff are supported through various groups including the Black Faculty Association, Latino Faculty Association, and LGBTQ Faculty and Staff Association.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 10/15/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 5008

University of Cologne

Rank: Assistant Professorship in Empirical Democratic Theory

Assistant Professorship (W1) in Political Science with Tenure Track (W2)

The University of Cologne, Germany, invites applications for one faculty position at the Assistant Professor (W1) level with Tenure Track (W2)

This call is part of the Federal Tenure Track Programme. It addresses researchers at an early career stage.

The University of Cologne is one of Germany's leading research universities and part of the Excellence Initiative. Its Faculty of Management, Economics, and Social Sciences is consistently ranked among the top schools in research and teaching. The Faculty counts more than 100 professors and 250 researchers.

The research profile of the professorship is in empirical democratic theory. Candidates should have a focus on theory-building based on empirical research of democracies. Competences in positive political theory are an advantage. The professorship will be part of the Cologne Center for Comparative Politics.

The position is available as of April 2019 or based on mutual agreement.

The position is located in a dynamic and collaborative international environment, which includes the Cologne Graduate School, the Key Research Profile Area of the faculty Markets and Governments and the Max-Planck-Institute for the Study of Societies.

Candidates should hold a Ph.D. degree in Political Science, demonstrate a track record of international publications, potential for grant applications, participation in international scientific networks, and the willingness to cooperate with the indicated institutions. International experience, such as a Ph.D. from a leading international university or other international teaching or research experience, is highly appreciated. We expect that candidates are able to teach in English.

Applicants will be hired in accordance with § 36 of the University Law of the State of North-Rhine Westphalia. In the third year after entering into office, an interim evaluation is held. This serves as the basis for the decision as to whether an extension for a further three years will be granted to the candidate. At the latest, a final evaluation is held in the sixth year after entering into office. On this basis, a decision will be reached as to whether the candidate will be given tenure at W2 level. Both evaluations are carried out according to the Regulations for Quality Assurance in Tenure Track Procedures at the University of Cologne. W1 professorships comprise a teaching load of four hours per week (i.e., two 90-minute courses per semester) in the first qualification phase and five hours per week in the second qualification phase. W2 professorships comprise a teaching load of nine semester hours per week.

The University of Cologne is committed to increase the share of women in research and teaching. Applications of women are specifically invited. In the case of equal qualifications, competence and specific achievements, women will be considered on preferential terms within the framework of the legal possibilities. The University of Cologne is an equal opportunity employer in compliance with the German disabilities laws. Persons with disabilities are therefore strongly encouraged to apply.

The application should consist of the following documents: cover letter, curriculum vitae including publication list and teaching record, research and teaching statement, transcripts, two references, and teaching evaluations. Applications should be submitted via the Academic Job Portal of the University of Cologne (<https://berufungen.uni-koeln.de>) no later than November 19th, 2018 addressing the Dean of the Faculty of Management, Economics and Social Sciences.

For further information, please contact Professor Sven-Oliver Proksch (so.proksch@uni-koeln.de).

Start Date: Spring 2019

Application Deadline: 11/19/2018

Date Posted: 10/15/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 5010

University of Florida

Rank: Assistant Professor in Political Behavior (American-Comparative)

University of Florida: College of Liberal Arts & Sciences: POLITICAL SCIENCE

Location: Gainesville, FL

Description

The Department of Political Science at the University of Florida, College of Liberal Arts and Sciences, invites applications for a full-time, nine-month, and tenure track Assistant Professor in Political Behavior (American/Comparative) to begin August 16, 2019. The Department hopes to hire faculty broadly engaged in research that is field-bridging, adding to our Department's tradition of intellectual diversity and pluralism, as well as to better reflect the interests of our diverse undergraduate and graduate students.

We are particularly interested in candidates who combine rigorous and original scholarship in keeping with the cluster hire themes of race and ethnicity, representation and justice, gender and other categories of identity, and the politics of inequality. Substantive research fields and methodological approaches are open. For example, how do race, ethnicity, and gender influence the behavior of citizens, such as the formation of public opinion and voting behavior? The ideal candidate will have strong methodological skills in survey methods, experimental design (field or lab), and/or the use of big data in understanding public opinion or political behavior. This position is open to candidates specializing in either the United States or any other region, or to those with cross-national research interests.

Successful applicants are expected to teach two courses per fall and two courses per spring semester, with a mix of introductory and advanced undergraduate courses and graduate seminars. The ability to develop experiential learning opportunities for undergraduates and excel in mentoring undergraduate research in the Department's Honors and Junior Fellows programs is a plus. Salary is competitive and commensurate with qualifications and experience, and includes a full benefits package. More information about the Department of Political Science can be found at: <http://www.polisci.ufl.edu>.

Qualifications

A Ph.D is required.

Application Instructions

For full consideration, applications must be submitted online at <http://apply.interfolio.com/56362> and must include:

1. Cover letter
2. Curriculum vitae
3. Statement of research interests/plans
4. Statement of teaching interests/philosophy
5. Statement on a commitment to diversity in research, teaching, and mentoring
6. One article reprint or pre-print
7. Three confidential letters of recommendation.

Review of applications will begin November 1, 2018, and continue until the position is filled. All candidates for employment are subject to a pre-employment screening which includes a review of criminal records, reference checks, and verification of education.

The selected candidate will be required to provide an official transcript to the hiring department upon hire. A transcript will not be considered "official" if a designation of "Issued to Student" is visible. Degrees earned from an educational institution outside of the United States require evaluation by a professional credentialing service provider approved by the National Association of Credential Evaluation Services (NACES), which can be found at <http://www.naces.org/>.

As articulated in the goals of the university, the college values faculty who embrace diversity and inclusion in research, teaching, and service.

The University of Florida is an Equal Opportunity Institution dedicated to building a broadly diverse and inclusive faculty and staff. Minorities, women, and individuals from other under-represented groups are strongly encouraged to apply. The selection process will be conducted in accordance with the provisions of Florida's Government in the Sunshine and Public Records Laws. If an accommodation due to disability is needed to apply for this position, please call (352) 392-2477 or the Florida Relay System at (800) 955-8771 (TDD).

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 10/15/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 5012

University of Nebraska, Omaha

Rank: Assistant Professor, Politics of East Asia

The University of Nebraska at Omaha seeks applicants for a tenure-track Assistant Professor in Political Science. The anticipated start date is August 19, 2019. The successful candidate for this position will possess a Ph.D. in Political Science or a related field. Excellent ABD candidates may also be considered. Candidates seeking to fill the position should have interests and demonstrated capacity to teach comparative politics and/or international relations of East Asia. Our new colleague will have opportunities to teach courses in his/her area of specialization. A willingness to teach introductory courses and to teach courses online is also required. The position offers a teaching load of three courses per semester and a nine-month contract with the possibility to teach in the summer, contingent upon resources. The successful candidate will be expected to build a record of excellence in research, teaching and service as required for tenure and promotion.

Interested candidates must submit an application online at <https://unomaha.peopleadmin.com/postings/7439>

Please include cover letter, current curriculum vitae and three letters of recommendations electronically. For any questions regarding this position, please contact Dr. Gregory Petrow, Chair of Search Committee at gpetrow@unomaha.edu. We will begin reviewing applications after October 30th. Applicants will be reviewed as they arrive and will be accepted until the position is filled.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 10/14/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 5007

College of Southern Nevada

Rank: Political Science Instructor - Fall 2019

Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Comparative Politics, International Relations

Political Science Instructor - Fall 2019

The College of Southern Nevada appreciates your interest in employment at our growing institution. We want your application process to go smoothly and quickly. We ask that you keep in mind the following when completing your application:

Once you start the application process you cannot save your work. Please ensure you have all required attachment(s) available to complete your application before you begin the process.

Required attachments are listed below on the posting. Your application will not be considered without the required attachments.

Please note that applications must be submitted prior to the close of the recruitment. Once a recruitment has closed, applications will no longer be accepted.

If you are unable to attach the required documents to your ONLINE application, you may send them to Human Resources via email <mailto:hr.recruitment@csn.edu> or fax to (702) 651-5778.

Job Description

This position will be open until filled. Application review will begin 01/15/2019. For full consideration all application related material should be submitted by 01/14/2019.

The College of Southern Nevada (CSN) is currently seeking one (1) full-time tenure track political science instructor to begin Fall semester 2019. The primary teaching assignment involves the following:

Teaching a core course ("Introduction to American Politics," a 4-credit course that includes a Nevada politics component).

Additional teaching responsibilities might include "Introduction to Comparative Politics," "Introduction to International Relations," "Survey of Political Theory" and/or other courses as determined by department needs.

Required to teach a minimum of 15 credit hours per semester and hold five office hours per week.

Expected to participate in department and division (school) meetings, participate in college and department committees, and engage in participatory governance activities and other service activities.

Expected to assume leadership roles both within the assigned department and at the institution level.

Expected to engage in ongoing professional development.

Teaching assignments may be multi-campus with the possibility of day, evening, weekend, or online classes in accord with department needs.

Required Qualifications

Master's degree in political science from a regionally accredited college or university.

Minimum of one year (two semesters) experience teaching college level introductory political science courses within the last three (3) years.

Preferred Qualifications

Ph.D. in political science from a regionally accredited college or university.

Evidence of research in political science within the last three (3) years, which includes conference paper presentations or publications.

Evidence of an understanding and appreciation of the community college mission, and ability to design curriculum and learning activities that address diverse learning levels.

Background and experience in web-based and computer-aided instruction.

Demonstrated ability to work effectively with a culturally and educationally diverse student population.

Salary Range

Initial salary placement is based on educational level and total years of full-time equivalent teaching experience. A maximum of 10 years of experience will be considered for initial salary placement purposes.

Exempt

Yes

Full-Time Equivalent

100.0%

Required Attachment(s)

To be considered for this position, please upload the following documents to your application:

Resume

Cover Letter

Unofficial Academic Transcripts

Contact information for three professional references

Syllabus (or sample syllabus) for an introductory American government course

Applicants should fully describe their qualifications and experience with specific reference to each of the minimum and preferred qualifications. The search committee will use this information during the initial review of application materials.

National Search

Out of Area/State Candidates may be offered travel reimbursement with original itemized receipts and in accordance with GSA rates at time of travel.

NSHE - INTERNAL APPLICANTS PLEASE NOTE

CSN employees or employees within the Nevada System of Higher Education (NSHE) MUST use the "Find Jobs" process within Workday to find and apply for jobs at CSN and other NSHE Institutions. Once you log into Workday, type "Find Jobs" in the search box which will navigate to the internal job posting site. Locate this specific job posting by typing the requisition number in the search box. If you complete an application outside of the internal application process and apply as an external candidate, your application will no longer be considered at the time of minimum qualification review. In order to prevent the disqualification of your application, you will need to reapply as an internal candidate before 11:59 pm the day prior to the position close date.

Posting Close Date

01/15/2019

Note to Applicant

Applicants should fully describe their qualifications and experience with specific reference to each of the minimum and preferred qualifications. The search committee will use this information during the initial review of application materials.

All document(s) must be received by 11:59 p.m. the day prior to the closing date posted on the job announcement.

This position may require that a criminal background check be conducted on the candidate(s) selected for hire.

As part of the hiring process, applicants for positions in the Nevada System of Higher Education may be required to demonstrate the ability to perform job-related tasks.

Schedules are subject to change based on organizational needs.

CSN is responsive to serving the educational needs of a diverse and ever-changing community. CSN employs only U.S. citizens and aliens authorized to work in the U.S. CSN does not sponsor aliens applying for faculty, professional staff, or management positions (H-1B Visas) in the absence of exceptional circumstances as defined by the USCIS.

To apply, visit <http://apptrkr.com/1311350>

About Us

The College of Southern Nevada (CSN) creates opportunities and changes lives through access to quality teaching, services, and experiences that enrich our diverse community. CSN has three main campuses in Las Vegas, North Las Vegas and Henderson and multiple sites and centers.

The Nevada System of Higher Education (NSHE) is committed to providing a place of work and learning free of discrimination on the basis of a person's age, disability, whether actual or perceived by others (including service-connected disabilities), gender (including pregnancy related conditions), military status or military obligations, sexual orientation, gender identity or expression, genetic information, national origin, race, or religion.

Copyright ©2017 Jobelephant.com Inc. All rights reserved.

<https://www.jobelephant.com/jeid-5c6f29ddf4f4d4caf8358ca665066af>

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 10/11/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4997

Troy University

Rank: Assistant/Associate Professor

Subfield(s): Public Administration, Comparative Politics, International Relations

The Department of Political Science invites applicants for an open rank tenure track position in political science with a concentration in comparative public administration beginning on August 1, 2019. This is a ten-month tenure-track position at our Troy, Alabama location. The minimum qualifications are a Ph.D. in Public Administration/International Relations/Comparative Politics/Political Science, or related field by August 1, 2019 with a research specialization in comparative public administration. The teaching will be in our master's degree (MPA) in public administration as well as undergraduate political science courses, which will be delivered in person as well as online. The job requires that the hire may be asked to teach courses at another Troy location depending on departmental needs. Preferred candidates will have a secondary specialization (such as research methods, or a regional specialization) that can complement our existing faculty strengths. The candidate needs to demonstrate excellence in research and teaching. For best consideration, please submit application documents by October 31, 2019. The position will remain open until filled.

The Department of Political Science at Troy University currently employs twenty-five faculty members who work in three programs: undergraduate political science, graduate international relations, and graduate public administration.

Applicants need to electronically submit a cover letter, CV, writing sample, teaching philosophy, research statement, and arrange to have three reference letters uploaded. Please direct all questions to Dr Terry Anderson at tanderson@troy.edu.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 10/5/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4971

Princeton University

Rank: Postdoctoral Research Associate/CSDP

Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Comparative Politics, Other

Princeton University's Center for the Study of Democratic Politics (CSDP) seeks postdoctoral or more senior research associates for the ten-month 2019-2020 academic year. The Center supports empirical research on democratic political processes and institutions. PhD required.

Each research associate will pursue research and contribute to the intellectual life of the Center, the Department of Politics, and the Woodrow Wilson School of Public and International Affairs. CSDP scholars must be in residence at Princeton during the academic terms, and are expected to participate in the weekly CSDP seminars and related weekly research seminars in the Department of Politics, as well as occasional lectures, conferences, and other events. Successful candidates will receive a competitive salary and applicable Princeton University benefits in accordance with university guidelines, a taxable moving allowance, and a research allowance.

Applicants for this 2019-2020 postdoctoral research associate position must apply online to position req number D-19-WWS-00017 <https://www.princeton.edu/acad-positions/position/9022> and submit a CV, a 3-5 page (double-spaced) statement of research interest/research proposal, a writing sample, and the names of two (and not more than two) references. A cover letter is optional. The deadline for receipt of complete applications is Friday, November 30, 2018 at 11:59 p.m. EST (including letters of recommendation from the two references). This position is subject to the University's background check policy.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: 11/30/2018

Date Posted: 10/4/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4952

Princeton University

Rank: Postdoctoral Research Associate/CSDP Fellowship

Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Comparative Politics, Other

Princeton University's Center for the Study of Democratic Politics (CSDP) seeks postdoctoral or more senior research associates for the ten-month 2019-2020 academic year. The Center supports empirical research on democratic political processes and institutions. PhD required.

Each research associate will pursue research and contribute to the intellectual life of the Center, the Department of Politics, and the Woodrow Wilson School of Public and International Affairs. CSDP scholars must be in residence at Princeton during the academic terms, and are expected to participate in the weekly CSDP seminars and related weekly research seminars in the Department of Politics, as well as occasional lectures, conferences, and other events. Successful candidates will receive a competitive salary and applicable Princeton University benefits in accordance with university guidelines, a taxable moving allowance, and a research allowance.

Applicants for this 2019-2020 postdoctoral research associate position must apply online to position req number D-19-WWS-00017 <https://www.princeton.edu/acad-positions/position/9022> and submit a CV, a 3-5 page (double-spaced) statement of research interest/research proposal, a writing sample, and the names of two (and not more than two) references. A cover letter is optional. The deadline for receipt of complete applications is Friday, November 30, 2018 at 11:59 p.m. EST (including letters of recommendation from the two references). This position is subject to the University's background check policy.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Date Posted: 10/4/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4953

Princeton University

Rank: Visiting Research Scholar/CSDP Fellowship

Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Comparative Politics, Other

Princeton University's Center for the Study of Democratic Politics (CSDP) seeks visiting scholars for the 2019-2020 academic year. The Center supports empirical research on democratic political processes and institutions. Applications are welcome from political scientists and scholars in related social science disciplines. CSDP visiting scholar positions are restricted to employed scholars on leave who are expected to return to their position.

Each scholar will pursue research and contribute to the intellectual life of the Center, the Department of Politics, and the Woodrow Wilson School of Public and International Affairs. CSDP scholars must be in residence at Princeton during the academic terms, and are expected to participate in the weekly CSDP seminars and related weekly research seminars in the Department of Politics, as well as occasional lectures, conferences, and other events. Successful candidates will receive a competitive salary (those who hold faculty appointments at other academic institutions normally receive one-half their academic-year salaries for the appointment period, but this may vary depending on level of support from the home institution), applicable benefits, a taxable moving allowance, and a research allowance.

Verification of employment and salary will be requested prior to approval by the Dean of the Faculty. PhD or equivalent doctoral degree required. Applicants for this 2019-2020 Visiting Scholar position must apply online and submit a CV, a 3-5 page (double-spaced) statement of research interest/research proposal, a writing sample, a brief statement of anticipated (estimated) salary support from the home institution for the 2019-2020 academic year, and statement of the home institution's leave policy. A cover letter is optional.

Applicants for this Visiting Research Scholar position for 2019-2020 should apply to D-19-WWS-00016. <https://www.princeton.edu/acad-positions/position/9021>. The deadline for receipt of complete applications is Friday, November 30, 2018 at 11:59 p.m. EST.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: 11/30/2018

Date Posted: 10/4/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4954

University of California, Los Angeles

Rank: Faculty Position in Metropolitan and Urban Studies in the Global South

Subfield(s): Comparative Politics, Political Theory, International Relations

University of California, Los Angeles

Department of Urban Planning

Faculty Position in Metropolitan and Urban Studies in the Global South

UCLA's Department of Urban Planning invites applicants for a tenure-track faculty position in Metropolitan and Urban Studies in the Global South, which we consider to include Asia, Africa, and Latin America. We encourage applicants with a broad range of research topics, which might include urban and peri-urban politics and governance, corruption and state capacity, city building and land development, the development industry, global capital flows and urban transformations, violence and policing, displacement and refugee populations, metropolitan infrastructure development and management, urban social movements, and comparative work, especially South-South comparison. We not only welcome scholars from urban studies and planning, but also those trained in other theoretical and methodological approaches, and from multidisciplinary backgrounds.

We expect our new colleague to take the lead in advancing collaborative and interdisciplinary research on cities and metropolitan regions in the Global South with colleagues at UCLA and beyond, in addition to teaching courses in our professional Masters in Urban and Regional Planning program and our new undergraduate major in Public Affairs.

To apply, please submit a brief cover letter, a research statement of less than 500 words highlighting scholarly contributions of recent research and plans for the near future, at least one publication or writing sample, a teaching statement of less than 300 words outlining the content of a class you would like to teach, and three letters of recommendation.

The Department of Urban Planning, in the Luskin School of Public Affairs, currently hosts 16 tenured/tenure-track planning faculty, seven affiliated tenured/tenure-track faculty, four visiting practice faculty, five active professors emeriti, 38 Ph.D. students, 148 master's students, and 60 undergraduate minors across its large, diverse, and highly selective Ph.D., master's, and undergraduate programs. We have a tradition of intellectual leadership in urban and regional studies and design, and our faculty, students, and alumni are committed to social justice and progressive planning ideals.

Los Angeles is a global city renowned for its dynamism, robust economy, rich cultural diversity, spectacular climate, as well as high levels of inequality, poverty and homelessness, residential segregation, and traffic. The UCLA Luskin School of Public Affairs is an interdisciplinary school with highly ranked departments of Social Welfare and Public Policy. All faculty in the Luskin School of Public Affairs (including the departments of Social Welfare, Urban Planning, and Public Policy) have opportunities to participate in current school initiatives in global affairs, digital technologies, the environment, democracy and inequality, global development, Latin American cities, and social justice, equity, and opportunity.

UCLA offers competitive salary and attractive benefits packages, including a housing assistance program for new faculty members. The University of California seeks to recruit and retain a diverse workforce as a reflection of our commitment to serve the people of California, to maintain the excellence of the University, and to offer our students richly varied disciplines, perspectives, and ways of knowing and learning. The Department of Urban Planning in particular is committed to diversity and excellence in our faculty, students, and scholarship, and we especially encourage candidates who share and can contribute to this commitment. A separate statement that addresses past and/or potential contributions to equity, diversity, and inclusion must also be included in the application materials.

The University of California is an Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action Employer. All qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to race, color, religion, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, national origin, disability, age or protected veteran status. For the complete University of California nondiscrimination and affirmative action policy, see: UC Nondiscrimination & Affirmative Action Policy.

While we expect to appoint at the rank of Assistant Professor, we will consider applicants and appointments at all levels. We expect candidates to hold a Ph.D. in urban planning or a related discipline. The expected start date is July 1, 2019. All materials must be submitted via UCLA Academic Recruit by Thursday, November 1, 2018, to be guaranteed full consideration.

To Apply, visit:

<http://aptrkr.com/1306872>

Start Date: Spring 2019

Application Deadline: 11/1/2018

Date Posted: 10/4/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4957

University of Kansas

Rank: Assistant Professor of Political Science

U of Kansas, Political Science Lawrence, KS 66045-3177

Assistant Professor of Political Science

The University of Kansas (KU) Department of Political Science of the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences, invites applications for an assistant professor faculty position in International Relations or Comparative Politics with focus on East Asia beginning August 18, 2019. Successful candidates will be able to demonstrate methodological training that is appropriate with their theoretical approaches as well as provide evidence of the capacity to publish in major journals or presses in political science and areas studies. Applicants with a research and/or teaching specialty in national and international security with the capacity to teach courses in one or more of the following areas are encouraged to apply: international security, intelligence, diplomacy, international politics, East Asian politics and comparative foreign policy.

Duties: Teach a regular course load to include undergraduate and/or graduate courses and mentorship of students. Establish a research program leading to scholarly activity and publications. Participate in school, university and community service activities. Required Qualifications: A doctorate in Political Science. If ABD, the dissertation must be successfully defended by the position start date. Demonstrated commitment to excellence in teaching at the undergraduate and graduate level. Demonstrated ability to develop an innovative body of research and scholarship as evidenced by scholarly publications, presentations, and/or other scholarly activities.

For further details, see full position description at application website: <https://employment.ku.edu/academic/12935BR>. A complete application package includes: an online application, a cover letter, curriculum vitae, a list of three professional references, evidence of teaching ability and research potential (samples of published work or conference papers). ABD candidates need to include advisor contact information. For more information, please contact John Kennedy, Search Committee Chair: kennedy1@ku.edu. Initial review of applications begins on October 26, 2018 and will continue until no longer needed.

The University of Kansas prohibits discrimination on the basis of race, color, ethnicity, religion, sex, national origin, age, ancestry, disability, status as a veteran, sexual orientation, marital status, parental status, retaliation, gender identity, gender expression and genetic information in the University's programs and activities. The following person has been designated to handle inquiries regarding the non-discrimination policies and is the University's Title IX Coordinator: the Executive Director of the Office of Institutional Opportunity and Access, IOA@ku.edu, 1246 W. Campus Road, Room 153A, Lawrence, KS, 66045, (785) 864-6414, 711 TTY.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 10/4/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4960

Northeastern University

Rank: Urban Studies - Open Rank

Subfield(s): International Relations, Comparative Politics, Public Policy

The International Affairs Program in the College of Social Sciences and Humanities (CSSH) at Northeastern University seeks nominations and applications from leading scholars for an open rank position with an expected start date of Fall 2019. The International Affairs Program, with one of the largest majors in the College of Social Sciences and Humanities, supports undergraduate majors, minors, and a Master's program.

We seek a scholar of urban studies whose interests reach across disciplines, and we are particularly interested in candidates with expertise in urban politics, urban and political geography, urban sociology, urban anthropology and urban ethnography. Candidates whose research complements those topics as well as those who would enhance faculty diversity, are especially encouraged to apply. The successful candidate will have a distinguished scholarly record and demonstrated potential for excellence in leadership. The successful candidate will be cross-appointed in the International Affairs Program and a tenure home within the college appropriate to their field. The position will support the university, college and International Affairs Program's commitment to producing interdisciplinary scholarship and innovative teaching on contested cities, urban politics and/or urban immigrants across the globe. Areas of strategic focus in the College include resilience, sustainability and digital humanities. Candidates should have demonstrated commitment to fostering diverse and inclusive environments as well as to promoting experiential learning, which are central to a Northeastern University education. Review of applications will begin November 1 and will continue until the position is filled.

Qualifications

A PhD in a related field required.

Additional Information

The College of Social Sciences and Humanities is a leader in the Experiential Liberal Arts (www.northeastern.edu/cssh/about/deans-welcome). Founded in 1898, Northeastern University is a dynamic and highly selective urban research university in the center of Boston. Grounded in its signature co-op program, Northeastern provides unprecedented global experiential learning opportunities. The College is strongly committed to fostering excellence through diversity and enthusiastically welcomes nominations and applications from members of groups that have been, and continue to be, underrepresented in academia.

through diversity and enthusiastically welcomes nominations and applications from members of groups that have been, and continue to be, underrepresented in academia.

Equal Employment Opportunity

Northeastern University is an Equal Opportunity, Affirmative Action Educational Institution and Employer, Title IX University. Northeastern University particularly welcomes applications from minorities, women and persons with disabilities. Northeastern University is an E-Verify Employer.

How to Apply

Applicants should submit a CV and letter of interest along with the names of three references. Candidates will be notified before their references are contacted.

To apply, please go to <http://www.northeastern.edu/cssh/faculty-positions> and click on the link for full-time positions or full-time interdisciplinary positions or if viewing this description on the Northeastern University website, click "Apply to this job." Please address nominations and inquiries about the position to Berna Turam at b.turam@neu.edu. Review of applications will begin November 1 and will continue until the position is filled.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 10/3/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4944

Arizona State University, West Campus

Rank: Assistant or Associate Professor in Social Justice and Human Rights

Specializations: International Law & Organizations, Gender Politics & Policy, Immigration Policy

The School of Social and Behavioral Sciences in the New College of Interdisciplinary Arts and Sciences at Arizona State University invites applications for a full-time, tenure track Assistant Professor or a full-time, tenure-eligible Associate Professor of Sociology or Political Science with expertise in Social Justice and Human Rights (SJHR). The current position is part of emerging Social Justice and Human Rights initiatives at ASU, which include the possible development of a Global Human Rights Center and the potential creation of a Ph.D. program. The School is presently home to very successful campus-based undergraduate and Masters programs in Social Justice and Human Rights. And, now it is pursuing the ability to offer digital immersion graduate programs in this same field. This scholar will be expected to (1) conduct her or his own independent program of research, (2) teach, supervise and mentor B.A. and M.A. students in SJHR, and (3) engage in service at the unit, college and university levels. Preference will be given to candidates who can collaborate with existing Social Justice and Human Rights faculty, whose research and teaching is centered around the following themes— Migration and Refugees, Gender in Comparative Context, and International Law.

The School of Social and Behavioral Sciences is presently in a period of expansion and innovation around new initiatives and new programs. Since Fall 2017, the School has added seven new tenure-track faculty, two new postdoctoral scholars, four new lecturers and a new School Director. This academic year, the School will be conducting searches for two additional tenure-track faculty as well as two postdoctoral scholars, one of which will be in Social Justice and Human Rights.

Required Qualifications: The successful candidate must a) have a doctoral degree in sociology, or political science, or related field by the time of appointment; and, b) demonstrate excellence in research with a focus on social justice and human rights commensurate with appointment at the level of Assistant or Associate Professor with tenure at ASU.

Desired Qualifications: a) empirical and normative research experience and interests that align with current faculty expertise in migration and refugees, gender in a comparative context, and/or international law and organizations; b) demonstrated potential to establish a strong, externally-funded research program; c) evidence of promise in and commitment to undergraduate and graduate teaching and mentoring; d) an interest in promoting interdisciplinary collaborations in research; e) a record of or potential for university and professional service; f) interest in leadership in developing new initiatives, programs, and curriculum and, g) demonstrated commitment to working successfully with a diverse student population, including first generation students.

More information about ASU's School of Social and Behavioral Sciences can be found at <https://newcollege.asu.edu/directory/sbs>; more information about ASU's New College of Interdisciplinary Arts and Sciences can be found at <http://newcollege.asu.edu>; for information about the M.A. in Social Justice and Human Rights can be found at <https://newcollege.asu.edu/social-justice-and-human-rights-ma>.

ASU has a strong commitment to a racially diverse faculty; one that is reflective of the contemporary United States.

Deadline: November 15, if not filled, every two weeks thereafter until search is closed.

Application procedure: Applications will only be accepted electronically via Academic Jobs Online. <https://academicjobsonline.org/ajol/jobs/12112>

Requested material will include: 1) a letter of application; 2) a current curriculum vitae with contact information; 3) a research statement; 4) writing sample; 5) teaching statement; and, 6) the names and contact information for three references (references will not be contacted during initial review and will only be contacted after candidate notification).

ASU conducts pre-employment screening for all positions which includes a criminal background check, verification of work history, academic credentials, licenses, and certifications. Employment is contingent upon successful passing of the background check.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: 11/15/2018

Date Posted: 10/2/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4942

Arizona State University, West Campus

Rank: Postdoctoral Scholar in Social Justice and Human Rights

Specializations: International Law & Organizations, Gender Politics & Policy, Immigration Policy

The School of Social and Behavioral Sciences in the New College of Interdisciplinary Arts and Sciences at Arizona State University is seeking a Postdoctoral Research Scholar with expertise in Social Justice and Human Rights (SJHR) for the Academic Year 2019-2020, with a possibility of a second year based on availability of funds. There is the possibility of a start date as early as Spring 2019. This scholar will be expected to conduct his or her own independent program of research, teach 1 SJHR course per academic year, and mentor B.A. and M.A. students. Preference will be given to candidates who can collaborate with existing Social Justice and Human Rights faculty, whose research and teaching is centered around the following themes—Migration and Refugees, Gender in Comparative Context, and International Law.

The School of Social and Behavioral Sciences is presently in a period of expansion and innovation around new initiatives and new programs. Since Fall 2017, the School has added eight new tenure-track faculty, two new postdoctoral scholars, four new lecturers and a new School Director. The current position is part of emerging Social Justice and Human Rights initiatives at ASU, which include the possible development of a Global Human Rights Center and the potential creation of a Ph.D. program. The School is presently home to very successful campus-based undergraduate and Masters programs in Social Justice and Human Rights. And, now it is pursuing the ability to offer digital immersion graduate programs in this same field.

Required Qualifications: The successful candidate must a) have a doctoral degree in sociology, political science, anthropology or related field by the time of appointment; and, b) a record reflecting training and experience relevant to the field of social justice and human rights.

Desired Qualifications: a) empirical and normative research experience and interests that align with current faculty expertise in migration and refugees, gender in a comparative context, and/or international law and organizations; b) prior evidence of rigorous research activities fitting for the postdoctoral level; c) a demonstrated ability to teach B.A.

and/or M.A. students in this field; and, d) an interest in promoting interdisciplinary collaborations in research.

More information about ASU's School of Social and Behavioral Sciences can be found at <https://newcollege.asu.edu/directory/sbs>; more information about ASU's New College of Interdisciplinary Arts and Sciences can be found at <http://newcollege.asu.edu>.

ASU has a strong commitment to a racially diverse faculty; one that is reflective of contemporary America.

Deadline: November 15, if not filled, every two weeks thereafter until search is closed.

Application procedure: Applications will only be accepted electronically via Academic Jobs Online. <https://academicjobsonline.org/ajo/jobs/11958>

Requested material will include: 1) a letter of application; 2) a current curriculum vitae with contact information; 3) a research statement; and, 4) the names and contact information for three references (references will not be contacted during initial review and will only be contacted after candidate notification).

ASU conducts pre-employment screening for all positions which includes a criminal background check, verification of work history, academic credentials, licenses, and certifications. Employment is contingent upon successful passing of the background check.

Start Date: Spring 2019

Application Deadline: 11/15/2018

Date Posted: 10/2/2018

Salary: $50,000 - $59,999

eJobs ID: 4943

Stanford University

Rank: 2019-20 Shorenstein Postdoctoral Fellow in Contemporary Asia

Subfield(s): International Relations, Comparative Politics, Public Policy

Specializations: East Asia, Southeast Asia, South Asia

Stanford University: 2019–2020 Postdoctoral Fellowships in Contemporary Asia

The Walter H. Shorenstein Asia-Pacific Research Center at Stanford University is pleased to announce its search for two 2019–20 Shorenstein Postdoctoral Fellows in Contemporary Asia-Pacific Studies. Made possible through the generosity of Walter H. Shorenstein, awards will be made to two junior scholars (recent PhDs must have degree conferral and approval by June 30, 2019) for research and writing on Asia.

The primary focus of the fellowship is on contemporary political, economic, or social change in the Asia-Pacific region (including North-east, Southeast, and South Asia), or topics in international relations and international political economy. The postdoctoral fellowship is a 10-month appointment with a salary rate of $52,000, or commensurate with Stanford policy, plus $2,000 for research expenses. Appointments will begin in the fall quarter of the 2019-2020 academic year.

Applications must be received by January 7, 2019.

For additional information and to apply, visit <https://aparc.fsi.stanford.edu/education/fellowship-and-training-opportunities/shorenstein-postdoctoral-fellowship>

Start Date: Fall

Application Deadline: 1/7/2019

Date Posted: 10/2/2018

Salary: $50,000 - $59,999

eJobs ID: 4926

University of Gothenburg

Rank: Researcher, (one or more) in Political Science, with focus on Varieties of Democracy

Varieties of Democracy (V-Dem) is a large-scale data collection and research-program headquartered at the V-Dem Institute, Directed by Staffan I. Lindberg. To learn more about V-Dem visit: <https://www.v-dem.net/en/>

Job assignments

The Postdoctoral Research Fellow is expected to conduct research with a focus on one or several of the main questions of the research programs Varieties of Democracy (V-Dem), Varieties of Autocracy (V-Aut), or Failing and Successful Sequences of Democratization (FASDEM). Project descriptions can be downloaded here:

<https://pol.gu.se/english/varieties-of-democracy--v-dem->

One of V-Dem's strengths is the flexibility and collaborative spirit of everyone at the institute, and we assume a willingness to contribute to coding of data, quality control, data management and/or teaching during peak periods. The Postdoctoral Research Fellow may be asked to perform such tasks up to one-third of full time employment (FTE).

Qualifications

The position is open to candidates who (at the time of assuming the position) have a PhD in political science or related field.

We will hire one or more candidates depending on funding situation. Applications will be evaluated primarily on research excellence in areas of relevance to one of the projects listed above. Research at high international level in the field of comparative democratization, autocratization, regime breakdown, authoritarian regimes, and/or political development, is required. Beyond those areas, we may also employ a candidate with a strong record in Bayesian IRT-modelling. Excellence in English (orally and written) is a requirement.

Excellence in one or more of the following areas are meritorious:

Explicit interest in further extending on the research agenda and sequencing methods developed in the FASDEM program; the research objectives of the V-Aut program on autocracies and autocratization; or one of the subprojects of the V-Dem program.

Demonstrated experience designing, implementing and analyzing surveys in an international context. Work on survey experiments is especially meritorious.

Competence in advanced time-series, cross-sectional regression techniques and panel analysis, Vector Auto-Regression (VAR), sequencing algorithms, optimal matching methods, Monte Carlo chains, and/or Dynamic treatment regimes.

Extensive demonstrated experience with Bayesian IRT-modeling in the cross-national expert-coded data context. R, JAGS and STAN programming skills.

We will also consider:

Demonstrated resourcefulness, flexibility, and very good ability to do teamwork in different configurations.

Experience working collaboratively on a large-scale research project. Prior use of V-Dem data in applied research or similar evidence of familiarity with the project.

Documented experience with service to the profession; collaboration with the surrounding community and policy practitioners in particular with regards to writing texts tailored to reach non-academic audiences.

We will make an overall assessment of the applicants' qualifications and select one or more judged to complement the rest of the team in the best way possible for the needs of the research programs. Personal qualities relevant for the position are of great importance.

Appointment procedure

Applicants are expected to visit the website <https://pol.gu.se/english/varieties-of-democracy--v-dem-> and download program documents. The application should clearly relate to one or more of the research programs.

The letter of application should include a self-evaluation of how the applicant's proposed research agenda would contribute to one of the above listed research programs, and in which ways the applicant meets the requirements.

Attach to the application: a CV, an excerpt of citation count from Google scholar (including H-index), and one writing sample. The application should also include a list of at least three references from whom letters of recommendation can be solicited.

Applications are submitted online at: https://www.gu.se/english/about_the_university/job-opportunities/vacancies-details/?id=3122

Employment

Fixed-term employment, 23 months, full time in residence
Extent: 100 %
Location: V-Dem Institute, Department of Political Science at University of Gothenburg
First day of employment: Spring 2019 or latest by September 1st, 2019.

About the University

The Department of political science, University of Gothenburg, is one of the leading Political Science departments in the Nordic countries. The vibrant department houses several large research institutes such as the Varieties of Democracy (V-Dem), The Quality of Government (QoG) Institute, the Multidisciplinary Opinion & Democracy Research Group (MOD), the National Election Studies, and the Program on Governance and Local Development at Gothenburg (GLD-G). The department is also leading partner in the SOM Institute. The department hosts 140 employees, out of which more than 70 are faculty and researchers, and 1,400 students.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: 11/15/2018

Date Posted: 10/2/2018

Salary: Negotiable

eJobs ID: 4938

Hertie School of Governance

Rank: Professor of International Political Economy

Subfield(s): Comparative Politics, Public Policy, Public Administration

The Hertie School of Governance, Berlin
A European Professional School for Public Policy is recruiting a

Professor of International Political Economy

Assistant Professor or Professor

The Hertie School is recruiting an Assistant Professor or Professor of International Political Economy. We are looking for a candidate with a research agenda in the politics and/or governance of international finance, foreign direct investment, and/or trade. This candidate will play an important role in our "Finance and Trade" track of our Masters of International Affairs (MIA).

Applicants for this position must have a doctoral degree relevant for the position, or expect to have this degree by the start of employment. We are interested in early career scholars in particular, although more advanced candidates will be considered. An early career candidate will be appointed as tenure-track Assistant Professor with a six-year clock (two three-year contracts). A more advanced candidate would initially be on a fixed contract of negotiable length prior to a tenure review. In highly exceptional circumstances, a particularly outstanding candidate may be appointed with tenure.

The expected start date is 1 September 2019.

The Hertie School seeks faculty with demonstrated capacity for research, teaching, and outreach at the highest levels in their discipline. We recruit faculty who will create a climate that embraces excellence and diversity with a commitment to teaching and innovative research of interest to the international scholarly community and policy-makers.

Candidates are expected to work well in an interdisciplinary, international environment with English as the language of instruction and operation. The successful candidate will teach courses in the School's Master, Executive, and PhD programmes.

As a private university, the Hertie School offers an internationally competitive salary as well as a paid sabbatical after every five semesters. We provide excellent working conditions with outstanding financial and administrative support for research. The Hertie School is fully embedded in Germany's vibrant research landscape and has close ties to the top institutions of the European and international teaching and research community as well as to the policy world.

The Hertie School is a diverse, international and lively community located in the heart of Berlin. It takes a family friendly workplace seriously.

The deadline for the submission of applications is 31 October. The Hertie School will review applications that include a letter of motivation, a current curriculum vitae (publication list, degrees earned, if applicable: positions held, teaching experience, research projects, awards received), two writing samples and, if applicable, teaching evaluations. Early career candidates should include three letters of recommendation from professors familiar with their work.

To submit your application, please upload the requested documents <https://hertie-school.dvinci-easy.com/en/p/en/jobs/57/form>.

For information about the Hertie School visit www.hertie-school.org.

For questions about the position, please contact Dean of Research and Faculty Mark Hallerberg (hallerberg@hertie-school.org).

Strict confidentiality in the application process is assured. The Hertie School is an equal opportunity employer.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: 10/31/2018

Date Posted: 10/1/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4925

University of California, Berkeley

Rank: Lecturer Pool - Department of Political Science/College of Letters and Science

Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Comparative Politics, International Relations

Lecturer Pool - Department of Political Science/College of Letters and Science

RECRUITMENT PERIOD

Open date: September 25th, 2018

Next review date: October 12th, 2018

Apply by this date to ensure full consideration by the committee.

Final date: September 13th, 2019

Applications will continue to be accepted until this date, but those received after the review date will only be considered if the position has not yet been filled.

DESCRIPTION

The Charles and Louise Travers Department of Political Science in the College of Letters and Science at the University of California, Berkeley invites applications for a pool of qualified temporary lecturers to teach courses as needed in the areas of American Politics, California Politics, Comparative Politics, International Relations, Methodology & Formal Theory, Political Theory & Philosophy, Models & Politics, Political Behavior, Public Law & Jurisprudence, and Public Policy & Organization.

The number of positions varies from semester to semester, depending on the needs of the department. Positions may range from 33% to 100%, depending on the number of classes being taught. Appointments typically start at the beginning of the semester and may be renewed based on need, funding, and performance.

General Duties: In addition to teaching responsibilities, general duties include holding office hours, assigning grades, advising students, preparing course materials (e.g. syllabus), and maintaining a course website.

Basic Qualifications: The minimum qualifications required to be an applicant is a Completion of Bachelor's degree (or equivalent international degree) is required at the time of application.

Preferred Qualifications: Completion of all Ph.D. (or equivalent) degree requirements except dissertation at the time of application or, full-time paid political experience of at least 4 years within the last 10 years.

Salary: Salary will be based on applicant's teaching experience, appointment % FTE, and current campus salary scales in place at time of appointment. The current minimum salary for this position would be based on a full-time annual salary of $54,738. Lecturers teaching one course per semesters are typically appointed at a 33% rate.

The department is interested in candidates who will contribute to diversity and equal opportunity in higher education through their teaching. UC Berkeley has a number of policies and programs in place to support employees as they balance work and family.

To apply, please go to the following link:

<http://apptrkr.com/1301633>

Applicants must submit their most recently updated C.V.

The department may later request contact information for 3-5 references, teaching statements, evidence of teaching effectiveness, such as past course syllabi, teaching evaluations, etc., but they are not required at the time of application.

When and if the department contacts references, all letters will be treated as confidential per University of California policy and California state law. Please refer potential referees, including when letters are provided via a third party (i.e., dossier service or career center), to the UC Berkeley statement of confidentiality (<http://apo.berkeley.edu/evaltr.html>) prior to submitting their letters.

Applications will be accepted and reviewed for department needs through September 13, 2019. The department typically reviews applications for fall course needs in April/May, for spring course needs in October/November, and for summer course needs in February/March. Those interested in remaining in the pool after September 13, 2019 will need to reapply.

Please note: The use of a lecturer pool does not guarantee that an open position exists. See the review date specified in AP Recruit to learn whether the department is currently reviewing applications for a specific position. If there is no future review date specified, your application may not be considered at this time.

Please direct questions to Serena Groen at serena_groen@berkeley.edu

The University of California is an Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action Employer. All qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to race, color, religion, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, national origin, disability, age or protected veteran status. For the complete University of California nondiscrimination and affirmative action policy see: <http://policy.ucop.edu/doc/4000376/NondiscrimAffirmAct>

JOB LOCATION

Berkeley, CA

REQUIREMENTS

Document requirements

- Curriculum Vitae - Your most recently updated C.V.
- Teaching Statement (Optional)
- Evidence of Teaching Effectiveness - i.e. past course syllabi, teaching evaluations, etc. (Optional)

Reference requirements

- 0-5 required (contact information only)

Start Date: Summer 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 10/1/2018

Salary: Competitive
eJobs ID: 4933

Victoria University of Wellington

Rank: New Zealand Prime Minister's ANZSOG Chair in Public Service Ethics and Integrity

Subfield(s): Other, Comparative Politics, Political Theory

ANZSOG

Wellington, New Zealand

- Inaugural ANZSOG Chair in New Zealand's only School of Government
- Highly accredited Business School located in capital city
- New Zealand's first ranked university for research quality (PBRF 2012)

About ANZSOG

The Australia and New Zealand School of Government (ANZSOG) is recognised globally as a leading provider of executive-level education and high quality research for and about the public sector. ANZSOG was created by government for government, with the active collaboration of its member universities.

ANZSOG delivers the following:

- Postgraduate education incorporating the core disciplines that inform effective public administration
- Executive education led by academics from the world's leading education providers and senior officials from among ANZSOG's ten member governments and other jurisdictions
- International programs and exchanges for senior public servants in the Indo-Pacific region
- Safe places for senior practitioners to discuss and draw practical learnings from theory, research and case studies, to inform policy debates and service delivery reform
- Supportive environments for senior practitioners across Australia and New Zealand to learn from one another and build lasting professional networks, benefiting governments, communities and citizens
- Research that addresses key contemporary issues in public administration, policy development and management
- Capability building for not-for-profit organisations, which deliver services with and on behalf of government

At the core of our ethos is a deep and genuine care for good public administration, reflecting the aspirations of and our close relationship to our government owners. For further information: <https://www.anzsog.edu.au/>

About Victoria University of Wellington

Victoria University of Wellington (VUW) is New Zealand's globally ranked capital city university, located in the vibrant cultural centre of the country. The University draws on the distinctive nature of Wellington as the seat of government, and the financial centre of New Zealand. VUW has a proud tradition of fostering international links in teaching and research, delivering a student experience second to none and offering programmes of national and international significance. Thinking about a future in a culture where innovation and diversity are highly valued? Think Victoria.

Situated directly opposite the Parliament of New Zealand, the Victoria Business School holds the 'triple crown' (AACSB, EQUIS and AMBA)

of international accreditations and is seeking to appoint an outstanding candidate to the newly established New Zealand Prime Minister's ANZSOG Chair in Public Service Ethics and Integrity.

The Chair

The Chair will give priority to improving New Zealand's public sector leadership, and its impact on economic and social performance, particularly in the areas of integrity and ethical conduct.

The Chair's activities will cover teaching, executive education, research, outreach and stakeholder engagement.

The Chair will:

- consult with government stakeholders, particularly in New Zealand, and establish new executive education courses for public officials (and public-purpose and private sector participants where appropriate) for delivery in New Zealand, and as required in Australia and the Asia Pacific region
- conduct research in own field/s, with emphasis on topics relevant to ANZSOG's mission, including public administration, strategic public management and public policy
- assist the Dean and Deputy Deans of ANZSOG, and The Dean of Victoria Business School at Victoria, in dealings with government and stakeholder organisations to promote ANZSOG's and Victoria's reputation and deliverables
- contribute significantly to academic service, engagement, management and collegiality within Victoria and ANZSOG.

For more information about the Chair, please see attached Position Description or contact Girol Karacaoglu at Girol.Karacaoglu@vuw.ac.nz or 04 463 6850.

For more information about the University, please visit www.victoria.ac.nz

Applications close Tuesday, 30 October 2018.

For more information and to apply online visit <http://www.victoria.ac.nz/about/careers/current-vacancies>

Reference 2428.

Start Date:

Date Posted: 10/1/2018

Salary: $80,000 - $89,999

eJobs ID: 4937

Leiden University

Rank: Assistant Professor of Political Science

Subfield(s): International Relations, Comparative Politics, Political Theory

Specializations: Environmental Policy, China, International Security

The Institute of Political Science of Leiden University's Faculty of Social and Behavioural Sciences invites applicants for the position of Assistant Professor of Political Science (1.0 FTE, 5 positions)

Vacancy number 5901

Key responsibilities

Due to the growth of our programme, we are looking to hire 5 assistant professors of political science. The appointment includes teaching introductory and advanced courses reflecting the candidate's expertise, supervising MSc and BSc theses, conducting scholarly research, acquiring external research funding, and participating in the intellectual and administrative life of the Institute (i.e., department). It could also include teaching general introductory courses, working groups, and/or co-supervising PhD theses.

All applicants should be well trained in one or more of the major sub-disciplines (e.g., comparative politics, international relations, political philosophy) and in research methods appropriate to their field and interests. All specialisations will be considered, but we are especially interested in applicants working on Asian and Chinese politics and foreign policy, US politics and foreign policy, international environmental politics, international conflict resolution, politics of international law, international political economy, comparative public policy, and political behavior. Applicants who are prepared to teach research design, qualitative and/or quantitative research methods should outline their relevant training and/or teaching experience in their applications.

Selection criteria

- Applicants must hold (or be near to completing) a PhD in Political Science or a cognate discipline;
- Applicants must have a promising research agenda, some scholarly publications, teaching experience and good teaching evaluations;
- Applicants must be able to teach in English; ability to teach in Dutch is a plus. Staff who do not speak Dutch are required to progress steadily toward Dutch competence through training financed by the institute;
- Leiden University requires teaching staff to obtain the University Teaching Qualification (BKO). If the successful applicant does not already possess this qualification or its equivalent, s/he must obtain this qualification within two years.

Research at our Faculty/Institute

Leiden University's Faculty of Social and Behavioural Sciences comprises four institutes: Education and Child Studies, Political Science, Psychology and Cultural Anthropology & Development Sociology. The Faculty also includes the Centre for Science and Technology Studies. The Faculty is home to 5,000 students and 600 members of staff. Its teaching and research programmes cover diverse topics varying from adoption to political behaviour. For more information, see <http://www.universiteitleiden.nl/en/social-behavioural-sciences>.

The Institute of Political Science has a strong research tradition in various areas of comparative, Dutch and international politics, as well as political theory. The Institute has around 80 academic staff, including many non-Dutch scholars, and houses a number of editorships of international refereed journals and book series. Members of the institute are also involved in a number of the university's multi-disciplinary research centres, including Central and East European Studies, International Relations, Parties and Representation, and Political Philosophy. The Institute is based in Leiden but a large and growing part of the teaching is done nearby in The Hague.

The Institute offers a range of taught programmes at the Bachelor and Master levels and also trains PhD students in political science. The BSc programmes include general Political Science (in Dutch & English, in Leiden), International Politics (in Dutch & English, in Leiden), and International Relations and Organisations (in English, in The Hague). The one-year MSc programme (taught mostly in English) includes four specialisations in Leiden and two in The Hague. Terms and conditions may be possible during or after the term of the initial contract, depending upon performance (in teaching, research and administration) and the budgetary situation of the Institute. Salary range from 3,545 to 4,852 gross per month (pay scale 11 in accordance with the Collective Labour Agreement for Dutch Universities).

The position starts as soon as possible, preferably in January 2019. The appointment will be made on a temporary contract of up to 3 years depending upon prior experience. A permanent appointment

Leiden University offers an attractive benefits package with additional holiday (8%) and end-of-year bonuses (8.3%), training and career development. Our individual choices model gives you some freedom to assemble your own set of terms and conditions. Candidates from outside the Netherlands may be eligible for a substantial tax break. More at <https://www.universiteitleiden.nl/en/working-at/job-application-procedure-and-employment-conditions>.

Diversity

Leiden University is strongly committed to diversity within its community and especially welcomes applications from members of under-represented groups.

Information

Further enquiries can be directed to Professor Arjen Boin, chair of the selection committee, email: boin@fsw.leidenuniv.nl

Applications

Please submit online your application no later than 31 October 2018 via the blue button of our application system. Applicants should submit online a letter of interest, a CV (with list of publications), a research statement covering their current and future research agenda, a sample paper or article, and a statement of teaching interests and experience including sample syllabi and/or teaching evaluations. Applicants should also ask two people to submit recommendation letters commenting on their professional qualifications and suitability for the position directly (i.e. not through the applicant) to vacature_powe@fsw.leidenuniv.nl.

The selection procedure will take place in November-December 2018. Selected candidates will first be invited for an online pre-interview; some will then be invited for in-person interview and research talk. You are kindly requested to be available in this period. Enquiries from agencies are not appreciated.

Start Date: Winter 2019

Application Deadline: 10/31/2018

Date Posted: 9/28/2018

Salary: $90,000 - $99,999

eJobs ID: 4918

Wake Forest University

Rank: Worrell Chair in Anglo-American Studies

Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Comparative Politics, International Relations

WAKE FOREST UNIVERSITY

WORRELL CHAIR IN ANGLO-AMERICAN STUDIES

The Department of Politics and International Affairs at Wake Forest University is seeking an outstanding scholar and teacher to fill a named chair in the area of Anglo-American studies as it relates to politics, ideally at the Full or Associate Professor level.

The Department understands Anglo-America broadly to include Britain as well as regions of the Americas in which English is spoken widely and where the British colonial legacy is reflected in present-day culture and politics. This includes the United States, Canada and the Anglophone Caribbean. Similarly, scholars of Anglo-American studies with research interests that add unique contributions to those of current Wake Forest Politics and International Affairs faculty are encouraged to apply. These might include but are not limited to the examination of shared issues including immigration, environmental, and social welfare policies; party and electoral systems; labor politics and political economy; postcolonial and critical legal studies; and the social and political inequalities associated with race, class, and gender. The Department of Politics and International Affairs includes faculty who are both dedicated teachers and active researchers. Candidates should have a strong commitment to excellence in undergraduate teaching and an outstanding record of research. Salary will be commensurate with the rank and stature of the selected applicant.

Founded in 1834, Wake Forest University is presently ranked among the top 30 national universities in the United States. The university is located in Winston-Salem, North Carolina, a vibrant, small city with a thriving arts community. At Wake Forest and in Winston-Salem there are many opportunities for multi-disciplinary collaboration and community-engaged research, supported by the Pro Humanitate Institute, the Anna Julia Cooper Center, and other affiliated centers. Wake Forest University and Winston-Salem also houses one of the fastest growing urban technology innovation districts in the United States, Wake Forest Innovation Quarter.

Wake Forest University and the Department of Politics and International Affairs welcome diversity and encourage inclusivity. We therefore seek applicants with demonstrated success in engaging diverse populations. Wake Forest University is an AA/EO employer and values an inclusive and diverse learning community and campus climate.

Applications will be reviewed as they are received and accepted until the Professorship is filled. Inquiries and questions about the position should be directed to the Chair of the Search Committee: Katy Harriger at harriger@wfu.edu subject line: "Worrell Chair." Applications accepted on line www.wfu.careers. A complete application includes a letter of interest and a C.V. Additional information and references will be requested from finalists. Technical questions may be directed to wakejobs@wfu.edu.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 9/28/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4921

New York University Abu Dhabi

Rank: Political Science Professor - Armed Conflict and Violence - Open Rank

The Social Science Division at New York University Abu Dhabi invites applications from scholars of armed conflict and violence for full-time open-rank appointments. The search is open as to substantive area—scholars working on civil conflict, micro dynamics of conflict, and inter-state conflict are all encouraged to apply. The search is also open with regards to disciplinary and methodological approaches. We expect successful candidates to commence their appointment on September 1, 2019, subject to final budget approval.

You may visit the Political Science programs website for a description of its innovative curriculum: <https://nyuad.nyu.edu/en/academics/undergraduate/majors-and-minors/political-science-major.html>

The review of applications will begin September 8, and will continue on a rolling basis until the positions are filled. The excellent terms of employment are competitive and include generous start-up and on-going research funds, as well as housing subsidies and educational subsidies for children. Faculty may also spend an occasional semester at NYU New York and other sites of the global network, engaging in both research and teaching opportunities.

To ensure full consideration by the search committee, applicants must submit a curriculum vitae, a statement of research plans, a statement of teaching interests and three representative writing samples. To complete the online process, early career applicants will be prompted to enter the names and email addresses of at least three referees. Each referee will be contacted to upload their reference letter. Senior candidates should provide a list of three references in PDF format.

Please visit <https://apply.interfolio.com/52967> to apply.

If you have any questions, please e-mail nyuad.socialscience@nyu.edu.

About NYUAD:

New York University has established itself as a Global Network University. The network has three foundational degree-granting campuses: New York, Abu Dhabi, and Shanghai, complemented by a network of eleven research and study-away sites across five continents. Our students are drawn from around the world and surpass all traditional recruitment benchmarks, both US and global. Our goal is to develop a cohort of international students attuned to and educated for an inclusive global society. Students and Faculty will circulate within the global network in pursuit of common research interests and the promotion of cross-cultural and interdisciplinary solutions for problems both local and global.

Entering its ninth year, NYU Abu Dhabi has recruited a cohort of faculty who are distinguished in their research and teaching. NYU Abu Dhabi's highly selective liberal arts enterprise is complemented by an institute for advanced research, sponsoring cutting-edge projects across the Arts, Humanities, Social Sciences, Sciences, and Engineering.

For more information please visit our website at <http://nyuad.nyu.edu/en/about/careers.html>

UAE Nationals are encouraged to apply.

The University is an equal opportunity employer committed to equity, diversity and social inclusion.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 9/27/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4916

New York University Abu Dhabi

Rank: Political Science Professor - Middle East/Asia - Open Rank

The Social Science Division at New York University Abu Dhabi invites applications from scholars working on politics in the Middle East or Asia for full-time open-rank appointments. We expect successful candidates to commence their appointment on September 1, 2019, subject to final budget approval.

You may visit the Political Science programs website for a description of its innovative curriculum: <https://nyuad.nyu.edu/en/academics/undergraduate/majors-and-minors/political-science-major.html>

The review of applications will begin September 8, and will continue on a rolling basis until the positions are filled. The excellent terms of employment are competitive and include generous start-up and on-going research funds, as well as housing subsidies and educational subsidies for children. Faculty may also spend an occasional semester at NYU New York and other sites of the global network, engaging in both research and teaching opportunities.

To ensure full consideration by the search committee, applicants must submit a curriculum vitae, a statement of research plans, a statement of teaching interests and three representative writing samples. To complete the online process, early career applicants will be prompted to enter the names and email addresses of at least three referees. Each referee will be contacted to upload their reference letter. Senior candidates should provide a list of three references in PDF format.

Please visit <https://apply.interfolio.com/52973> to apply.

If you have any questions, please e-mail nyuad.socialscience@nyu.edu.

About NYUAD:

New York University has established itself as a Global Network University. The network has three foundational degree-granting campuses: New York, Abu Dhabi, and Shanghai, complemented by a network of eleven research and study-away sites across five continents. Our students are drawn from around the world and surpass all traditional recruitment benchmarks, both US and global. Our goal is to develop a cohort of international students attuned to and educated for an inclusive global society. Students and Faculty will circulate within the global network in pursuit of common research interests and the promotion of cross-cultural and interdisciplinary solutions for problems both local and global.

Entering its ninth year, NYU Abu Dhabi has recruited a cohort of faculty who are distinguished in their research and teaching. NYU Abu Dhabi's highly selective liberal arts enterprise is complemented by an institute for advanced research, sponsoring cutting-edge projects across the Arts, Humanities, Social Sciences, Sciences, and Engineering.

For more information please visit our website at <http://nyuad.nyu.edu/en/about/careers.html>

UAE Nationals are encouraged to apply.

The University is an equal opportunity employer committed to equity, diversity and social inclusion.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 9/27/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4917

New York University Abu Dhabi

Rank: Political Science Professor - Open Rank

Subfield(s): Comparative Politics, Political Theory, International Relations

New York University Abu Dhabi invites applications for full-time tenure/track appointments in Political Science. The open-rank search is open to all fields and methodologies. Applications from senior scholars (associate and full professor) are especially welcome. We expect successful candidates to commence their appointment September 1, 2019, subject to final budget approval. You may visit the Political Science programs website for a description of its innovative curriculum:

<https://nyuad.nyu.edu/en/academics/undergraduate/majors-and-minors/political-science-major.html>

The review of applications will begin September 1, and will continue on a rolling basis until the positions are filled. The excellent terms of employment are competitive and include generous start-up and on-going research funds, as well as housing subsidies and educational subsidies for children. Faculty may also spend an occasional semester at NYU New York and other sites of the global network, engaging in both research and teaching opportunities.

To ensure full consideration by the search committee, applicants must submit a curriculum vitae, a statement of research plans, a statement of teaching interests and three representative writing samples. To complete the online process, early career applicants will be prompted to enter the names and email addresses of at least three referees. Each referee will be contacted to upload their reference letter. Senior candidates should provide a list of three references in PDF format.

Please visit <https://apply.interfolio.com/52969> to apply.

If you have any questions, please e-mail nyuad.socialscience@nyu.edu.

About NYUAD:

New York University has established itself as a Global Network University. The network has three foundational degree-granting campuses: New York, Abu Dhabi, and Shanghai, complemented by a network of eleven research and study-away sites across five continents. Our students are drawn from around the world and surpass all traditional recruitment benchmarks, both US and global. Our goal is to develop a cohort of international students attuned to and educated for an inclusive global society. Students and Faculty will circulate within the global network in pursuit of common research interests and the promotion of cross-cultural and interdisciplinary solutions for problems both local and global.

Entering its ninth year, NYU Abu Dhabi has recruited a cohort of faculty who are distinguished in their research and teaching. NYU Abu Dhabi's highly selective liberal arts enterprise is complemented by an institute for advanced research, sponsoring cutting-edge projects across the Arts, Humanities, Social Sciences, Sciences, and Engineering.

For more information please visit our website at <http://nyuad.nyu.edu/en/about/careers.html>

UAE Nationals are encouraged to apply.

The University is an equal opportunity employer committed to equity, diversity and social inclusion.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 9/27/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4915

Providence College

Rank: Adjunct Faculty in Political Science (Part-time)

The Department of Political Science at Providence College seeks applications for two part-time adjunct faculty positions for the Spring 2019 semester which commences on January 14, 2019. One position is to teach one section of Introduction to International Relations scheduled for 2:30 – 3:45 Tuesdays and Thursdays. The second position is to teach one section of African Politics scheduled for 4 – 5:15 Tuesdays and Thursdays. We are open to considering applicants, with expertise in both subjects, who wish to teach both courses. Applicants should possess either a PhD in Political Science or related field (candidates ABD will be considered). Prior college teaching experience preferred.

Interested candidates should submit on-line a statement of interest, current curriculum vitae, and copies of official graduate transcript(s). Applicants will be prompted to submit the names and email addresses of three reference providers who will receive an email from our on-line career site with a link and instructions on how to submit a letter recommendation that speaks primarily to the applicant's teaching. Application instructions are available at the following website: <https://careers.providence.edu>

The application deadline is November 1, 2018. Questions should be referred to Dr. William E. Hudson, department chair, at bhudson@providence.edu

Providence College is a Roman Catholic four-year liberal arts institution conducted under the auspices of the Dominican Friars and seeks candidates who can affirm and contribute to its mission. Providence College is committed to upholding an academic culture and campus community that attracts and supports the development of a diverse faculty reflecting the global environment in which we live and work. An AA/EOE, the College especially encourages the applications of women and persons of color.

Start Date: Spring 2019

Application Deadline: 11/1/2018

Date Posted: 9/27/2018

Salary: Below $20,000

eJobs ID: 4911

Loyola University Maryland

Rank: Visiting Affiliate Assistant Professor or Instructor in Comparative Politics/International Relations

We seek candidates displaying a strong commitment to excellence in teaching and interest in the enduring questions of comparative politics and international relations for a one-semester Spring 2019 position. Candidates for Visiting Affiliate Assistant Professor should have a Ph.D.; candidates for Instructor should be ABD.

The teaching load for the one-semester Spring 2019 position is four courses in the spring (capped at 30 students each), with two or three preparations. The four courses will include two sections of an introductory Comparative Politics course and two sections in the specialty of the applicant. Depending on the course, this could be two sections of the same course or two distinct courses, with possible courses in Nationalism, courses related to Globalization, or another Comparative or International Relations course proposed by the candidate. Service duties will be assigned by Chair.

Loyola University Maryland is a selective liberal arts university in the Jesuit Catholic tradition. The university is committed to intellectual excellence and social justice as it prepares students for a diverse and changing world. Recognized as a leading independent, comprehensive university in the northeastern United States, Loyola has a beautiful historic Evergreen campus in Baltimore and Graduate Centers in Timonium and Columbia. Loyola enrolls over 4,000 students in its undergraduate programs and about 2,000 students in its graduate programs.

Loyola seeks a broad spectrum of candidates, including women, people of color, people with disabilities, and members of sexual minority groups, who understand, respect, and can actively contribute to the University's Jesuit mission and values (see <http://www.loyola.edu/about.aspx> to learn more about Loyola and its educational mission).

Please go to www.loyola.edu/careers to complete the online application. Using the link above, electronically submit a curriculum vita, evidence of teaching effectiveness (such as teaching evaluations, if available), sample syllabi for proposed courses (use Other 1), a list of three references who could comment on teaching abilities, and a cover letter that explicitly incorporates a clear understanding of the mission of Jesuit higher education and how one will contribute to this mission.

If materials cannot be electronically uploaded to the website, please email to: Dr. Carsten Vala (cvala@loyola.edu) or, if unable to send electronically, mail to him at Dept. of Political Science, Loyola University Maryland, 4501 N. Charles St., Baltimore, MD, 21210.

Reviews of applications will begin November 1.

Start Date: Spring 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 9/26/2018

Salary: Any

eJobs ID: 4900

Midwestern State University

Rank: Assistant Professor

Specializations: Western Europe, International Political Economy, Developing Nations

The Department of Political Science seeks applications for a tenure-track, assistant professor position to begin in fall 2019. We seek a candidate whose primary teaching interest is comparative politics with a specialization in European politics, as well as an additional ability to teach courses on International Political Economy, International Organizations, and/or Development. The applicant should hold a Ph.D. in Political Science (an ABD candidate would be required to have a Ph.D. by August 2020), and should contribute to the teaching and research mission of the university.

The Department of Political Science offers a B.A. Political Science, a B.A. Global Studies, and an M.A. in Political Science. It also houses the interdisciplinary minor in Women's and Gender Studies and a successful Model United Nations program.

The teaching load is 12 hours per semester, with a course reduction when teaching graduate seminars. Salary is competitive, depending on experience.

Midwestern State University is a public liberal arts university with an enrollment of approximately 6,000 students located in Wichita Falls, a city of 106,000 about 2 hours northwest of Dallas/Fort Worth (www.msutexas.edu). As a Council of Public Liberal Arts Colleges (COPLAC) member institution, Midwestern State University is particularly committed to excellence in teaching and seeks applicants that will contribute to this mission. This position is designated as security sensitive and requires the finalist to complete a criminal background check. EEO/ADAAA compliance employer.

Please send a 1) letter of application, 2) curriculum vitae, 3) teaching evaluations, 4) one example of scholarly work, and 5) three letters of recommendation to:

Dr. Linda Veazey,
Interim Chair
Department of Political Science
Midwestern State University
3410 Taft Boulevard
Wichita Falls, TX 76308
linda.veazey@msutexas.edu

The initial review of complete applications will begin January 10, 2019 and will continue until the position is filled.

Start Date: Fall 2019
Application Deadline: 1/10/2019
Date Posted: 9/26/2018
Salary: Competitive
eJobs ID: 4903

Princeton University

Rank: Postdoctoral Research Associate

The Program in Latin American Studies (PLAS) is seeking candidates from any discipline who are engaged in scholarly or creative work on topics related to Latin American Studies to fill one to two Postdoctoral Research Associate or more senior positions. Candidates will be expected to devote themselves to research and writing, and may teach not more than one course per semester. When teaching, successful candidates will hold the secondary rank of Lecturer, and any teaching opportunities are subject to sufficient enrollments and the approval of the Dean of the Faculty. They also will be invited to participate regularly in the scholarly activities of the PLAS intellectual community.

Appointments are for a 12-month term, starting September 1, 2019, with the possibility of renewal, contingent on satisfactory performance and continued funding.

A competitive salary commensurate with experience and excellent benefits will be offered.

This position is subject to the University's background check policy.

How to Apply

For full consideration, applications should be submitted by January 6, 2019, 11:59 p.m. EST.

All candidates must apply online and submit the below materials at <https://www.princeton.edu/acad-positions/position/8901>.

- 1) Cover letter
- 2) Curriculum vitae
- 3) Statement of research interests (1,000 – 1,500 words)
- 4) A representative sample of recent work (under 30 written pages or equivalent in the candidate's professional medium; for artistic work, links within a PDF preferred).
- 5) Names and contact information for three references (the Program will contact them, if needed, at a later date)

Required Qualifications: Doctoral degree (within the last 5 years). Academic excellence, potential to bring new ideas and approaches to Princeton University and to interact successfully with a broad range of faculty and students.

Princeton University is an Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action Employer, and all qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to age, race, color, religion, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity or expression, national origin, disability status, protected veteran status, or any other characteristic protected by law.

Start Date: Fall 2019
Date Posted: 9/25/2018
Salary: Competitive
eJobs ID: 4894

Tulane University

Rank: Post Doctoral Fellow

Subfield(s): Comparative Politics, International Relations, Political Theory

The Center for Inter-American Policy and Research (CIPR) invites applications for four (4) research fellowships for the Academic Year of 2019-2020, two with program administration duties and two with light teaching. Applications from the social sciences in the fields of international relations, international political economy, comparative politics, political sociology, and policy studies are encouraged. Latin American expertise and Spanish or Portuguese fluency required. Fellows will be selected based on intellectual merit, experience, the potential impact of their planned research for CIPR programs, and teaching needs of the host department.

Fellowships are one-year, residential, full-time appointments with a stipend of $48,450 plus benefits. Travel and moving expenses are not supported. In addition to their planned research, applicants must be prepared to carry out either program administration or adjunct teaching responsibilities. In the program administration track, fellows will be expected to work with CIPR's director in the Commitment to Equity Project and/or Research Group MEGA: Mobilization, Extractivism, and Government Action, and/or to develop programmatic content and projects in Inter-American relations, comparative political economy, citizenship rights, human development, and others. The other fellowship carries a one course per semester adjunct teaching load in the department of the fellow's primary discipline and in the candidate's major subfields, without administrative responsibilities. In both cases, specific responsibilities will be defined jointly during the initial phase of the appointment. Applicants must plan to complete their Ph.D. no later than May 2019. Recent graduates with no longer than three years since receiving their Ph.D. are especially encouraged to apply.

Application must be submitted via Interfolio by visiting apply.interfolio.com/53827 and must include (1) a curriculum vitae; (2) a cover letter describing research interests and intended research at CIPR if selected, fit to the program and teaching experience; (3) a graduate transcript; (4) two recommendation letters; (5) a writing sample; and (6) teaching evaluations if available. For further information please contact Ludovico Feoli, Director, Center for Inter-American Policy Research. Applications will be reviewed starting December 31, 2018 until the positions are filled.

Tulane University is an equal opportunity/affirmative action employer committed to excellence through diversity. All eligible candidates are invited to apply for position vacancies as appropriate.

Start Date: Summer 2019

Application Deadline: 12/31/2018

Date Posted: 9/24/2018

Salary: $40,000 - $49,999

eJobs ID: 4881

Humboldt State University

Rank: Assistant Professor, Global Politics

Faculty Tenure-Track Position Starting August 2019

Department of Politics

JOB #1920-11

Humboldt State University is committed to achieving the goals of equal opportunity and endeavors to employ faculty, staff, and administrators of the highest quality reflecting the ethnic and cultural diversity of the state.

DESCRIPTION: Humboldt State University's Department of Politics invites applications for an academic year, tenure-track faculty position. We seek a broadly trained teacher and scholar of global politics.

RANK, SALARY AND BENEFITS: We seek to fill this position at the Assistant Professor rank; however, rank and salary are dependent on the appointee's qualifications and experience. The current California State University Salary Schedule is available at: <http://www.humboldt.edu/aps/docs/salary/Salary-Schedule.pdf>.

Humboldt State University provides an excellent benefits package for faculty. Information about benefits plans can be found at: <http://www.humboldt.edu/forms/node/934>.

PROFESSIONAL QUALIFICATIONS: An earned Ph.D. or equivalent in Political Science or related field from an accredited college or university is preferred at the time of appointment. Applicants with considerable progress towards terminal degree completion by appointment date will be considered. Completion of terminal degree is required prior to the start of the second probationary year following initial appointment.

The successful candidate must demonstrate the following:

- Evidence of, or potential for, effective teaching using a variety of methodologies;
- Commitment to and/or experience fostering a learning environment that supports individuals from diverse backgrounds;
- Evidence of, or potential for, commitment to equity and inclusion in pedagogy and curricula;
- Evidence of, or potential for, scholarly productivity in the field of global politics;
- Record of, or potential for, involving students in research and scholarly activity;
- Interest and ability to teach a broad range of courses (major, general education, etc.) and willingness to participate in the development of online learning experiences.

Experience with first year student learning communities or other first year initiatives is preferred.

At the time of appointment, the successful candidate, if not a U.S. citizen, must have authorization from the Bureau of Citizenship and Immigration Services to work in the United States. For information on the University policy on support for non-immigrant probationary faculty visa acquisition, please visit the Faculty Immigration Resources page: <https://extended.humboldt.edu/international-programs/immigration/faculty>.

Evidence of degree(s) is required at time of hire.

PROFESSIONAL DUTIES: At HSU, teaching effectiveness is essential for faculty retention, tenure, and promotion. Candidates should be committed to teaching excellence and to building a strong record of scholarship. Instructional assignments are expected to include introductory courses in comparative politics and international relations. We anticipate that candidates will also teach some combination of upper-division courses in our Global Politics concentration, on the following topics: ethnicity and nationalism, international law, global governance, political economy, foreign policy, or a course focused on a world region. The successful candidate will have the opportunity to develop courses within their area of expertise. Instructional assignments will be consistent with the programmatic needs of the department and students. Candidates with interdisciplinary interests are encouraged and there is opportunity to engage with the International Studies program and other interdisciplinary programs on campus.

The primary professional responsibilities of instructional faculty members are: teaching; scholarship; and service to the University, profession and to the community. Related responsibilities include: advising students, participation in campus and system-wide committees, maintaining office hours, working collaboratively and productively with colleagues, and participation in traditional academic functions including assessment of learning. Probationary faculty are typically provided ongoing mentorship to be a successful member of the faculty. During the first two years of the probationary period, teaching responsibilities will be reduced by approximately one course each semester (6 weighted teaching units per academic year). The reduced teaching load supports the establishment of research, scholarship and/or creative activities required for retention, tenure and promotion.

GENERAL INFORMATION: The Department of Politics is strongly committed to student-centered education, diversity, and inclusion. We offer our majors three distinctive concentrations in "Law and Policy," "Politics of Environment and Sustainability," and "Global Politics." For more information, please visit: politics.humboldt.edu

APPLICATION: Qualified candidates should submit the following materials through Interfolio:

Click here to apply: <http://apply.interfolio.com/55194>

- Letter of application;
- Curriculum vitae;
- Sample of scholarly work, such as a journal article, book chapter, or dissertation chapter;
- Statement of teaching philosophy;
- Sample syllabi;
- Teaching evaluations (if available);
- Graduate transcripts (unofficial copies are sufficient for initial review); and
- Three letters of recommendation.

Signed letters of recommendation may be e-mailed or mailed separately from the other application materials. In letter of application, please refer to Job #1920-11.

Additional application materials may be requested at a later time.

Please direct any questions pertaining to this position, the Department of Politics, or Humboldt State University to:

Dr. Noah Zerbe, Search Committee Chair
Department of Politics
Humboldt State University
One Harpst Street
Arcata, California 95521-8299
Phone (707) 826-4494
Email: globalpoliticssearch@humboldt.edu

APPLICATION DEADLINE: This position is open until filled. First consideration will be given to completed applications received no later than October 31, 2018. Early response is encouraged.

It is the responsibility of the applicant to provide complete and accurate employment information. Evidence of required degree(s), certifications(s), or licenses(s) will be required prior to the appointment date. A background check (including a criminal records check, employment verification, and education verification) must be completed satisfactorily as a condition of employment with the CSU. Certain positions may also require a credit check, motor vehicle report, and/or fingerprinting through Live Scan service. Adverse findings from a background check may affect the application status of applicants or continued employment of current CSU employees who apply for the position. All CSU employees are obligated to respond to and report incidents of sexual harassment and sexual violence. The successful candidate for this position will be mandated to receive relevant training on an annual basis. The person holding this position is considered a 'limited reporter' under the California Child Abuse and Neglect Reporting Act and is required to comply with the requirements set forth in CSU Executive Order 1083 as a condition of employment.

New employees hired by the CSU for the first time who first become CalPERS members on or after July 1, 2017 are subject to a 10 year vesting period for retiree health and dental benefits.

Humboldt State University is a Title IX/Affirmative Action/Equal Opportunity Employer. We consider qualified applicants for employment without regard to race, religion, color, national origin, ancestry, age, sex, gender, gender identity, gender expression, sexual orientation, genetic information, medical condition, disability, marital status, protected veteran status, or any other legally protected status. If accommodations need to be made during the recruitment and interview process, please contact Human Resources at (707) 826-3626 or hshuhr@humboldt.edu.

Humboldt State University is part of the 23-campus California State University system. The University has a comprehensive arts and sciences curriculum, which is recognized nationally for its high academic quality. Founded in 1913, HSU is one of the premier public institutions in the western United States; it is a residential and rural campus with an enrollment of approximately 8,000 students. The main campus is located in Arcata, California, in the northwestern part of the state along the coast, situated among redwood trees in an area that offers unmatched scenic beauty, moderate climate and opportunities for outdoor activities. The surrounding Humboldt County locale has a population of around 130,000. The community offers an excellent range of businesses, services and cultural activities/performances. The local schools are ranked in the top performance percentiles, both nationally and in the state. Additional information about Humboldt State University can be found at: <http://www.humboldt.edu>.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled
Date Posted: 9/20/2018
Salary: Competitive
eJobs ID: 4868

Princeton University

Rank: Visiting Fellow, James Madison Program, Princeton University
Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Political Theory, Comparative Politics
Specializations: American Politics, Constitutional Law & Theory, Political Theory

Invitation for Visiting Fellow Applications

The James Madison Program in American Ideals and Institutions at Princeton University is dedicated to the pursuit of scholarly excellence in the fields of constitutional law and political thought. Sponsored by Princeton's Department of Politics, the Program seeks to enrich the intellectual life of Princeton students and faculty by exploring American constitutional principles and structures through research and public discussion.

The Program invites college and university professors and other professionals with established records of scholarship to apply for appointments as Visiting Fellows for the academic year running from September 1, 2019 to June 30, 2020. One-semester appointments are possible but not preferred. Depending on the needs of the University, teaching opportunities may be available, subject to sufficient enrollment and approval of the Dean of the Faculty.

All James Madison Program Visiting Fellows will spend an academic year (10-month term) in residence at Princeton University. They enjoy access to Firestone Library and a wide range of other facilities and activities throughout the University.

Visiting Fellows are expected to devote full time to their proposed research. They are encouraged, however, to attend or participate in various activities of the Program, including faculty-student seminars, colloquia, and public lectures.

All James Madison Program Fellows must have a doctorate or equivalent degree. Positions are open to all regardless of citizenship. Fellows normally receive a stipend of one-half their academic-year salary plus a living allowance. The fellows' home institutions are expected to provide at least half of their academic-year salaries in addition to all benefits.

How to apply: For full consideration, applicants are required to submit an online application at <https://dof.princeton.edu/academicjobs>. To apply for a Visiting Fellow position please go to requisition D-19-POL-00004.

A complete application must include the following:

- * a curriculum vitae;
- * a scholarly paper written in the past three years;
- * a statement (no more than 1,500 words) describing the proposed research;
- * contact information for two references;
- * a confidential statement from home institution that indicates the applicant's salary for the current academic year, financial support their home institution and other sources are likely to provide, and what support they are likely to need from the Program.

The deadline for application materials is 11:59 p.m. EST on December 1, 2018 for appointments beginning in September 2019. Awards will be announced in March 2019 or before.

Please address any inquiries to:
 Bradford P. Wilson, Ph.D., Executive Director
 James Madison Program in American Ideals and Institutions
 Princeton University
 83 Prospect Avenue
 Princeton, NJ 08540
 E-mail: bpwilson@princeton.edu
 Web address: jmp.princeton.edu

Start Date: Fall

Application Deadline: 12/1/2018

Date Posted: 9/20/2018

Salary: Any

eJobs ID: 4866

Princeton University

Rank: Postdoctoral Research Associate, James Madison Program, Princeton University

Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Political Theory, Comparative Politics

Specializations: American Politics, Constitutional Law & Theory, Political Philosophy & Theory

Invitation for Postdoctoral Research Associate Applications

The James Madison Program in American Ideals and Institutions at Princeton University is dedicated to the pursuit of scholarly excellence in the fields of constitutional law and political thought. Sponsored by Princeton's Department of Politics, the Program seeks to enrich the intellectual life of Princeton students and faculty by exploring American constitutional principles and structures through research and public discussion.

The Program invites recent Ph.D. recipients to apply for appointments as Postdoctoral Research Associates or more senior researchers for the year from September 1, 2019 to September 1, 2020, with the possibility of renewal for an additional year, contingent on good performance. All James Madison Program postdocs are expected to be in residence at Princeton University for the duration of the appointment. They may not be employed by another institution during the term of their Princeton appointment. They enjoy access to Firestone Library and a wide range of other facilities and activities throughout the University. Depending on the needs of the University, teaching opportunities may be available, subject to the approval of the Dean of the Faculty. Postdoctoral Research Associates are expected to devote full time to their proposed research. They are, however, encouraged to attend or participate in various activities of the Program, including faculty-student seminars, colloquia, and public lectures.

The position is a fully funded, 12-month postdoctoral research associate appointment with benefits. All James Madison Program Postdoctoral Research Associates must have a Ph.D. degree. Applications are evaluated on the basis of (1) the significance of the proposed research; (2) the quality of the applicant's past research; and (3) the future contribution the applicant is likely to make to higher education. Positions are open to all regardless of citizenship. This position is subject to the University's background check policy.

How to apply:

For full consideration, applicants should submit an online application at <https://dof.princeton.edu/academicjobs> by December 1, 2018; applications will continue to be reviewed until positions are filled. Awards will be announced in March 2019 or before. To apply for a Postdoctoral Research Associate position, go directly to the link. A complete application must include the following:

* a curriculum vitae;

* a scholarly paper written in the past three years;

* a statement (no more than 1,500 words) describing the proposed research;

* contact information for two references.

Please address any inquiries to:

Bradford P. Wilson, Ph.D.
 Executive Director
 James Madison Program in American Ideals and Institutions
 Princeton University
 83 Prospect Avenue
 Princeton, NJ 08540
 E-mail: bpwilson@princeton.edu
 Web address: jmp.princeton.edu

Start Date: Fall

Application Deadline: 12/1/2018

Date Posted: 9/19/2018

Salary: $50,000 - $59,999

eJobs ID: 4863

University of Massachusetts, Lowell

Rank: Assistant Professor of Political Science with focus in Human Rights or IPE

Specializations: International Political Economy, Quantitative Methods, Civil Rights & Liberties

The University of Massachusetts Lowell (UML) invites applications for a tenure-track position at the rank of Assistant Professor in Political Science, with a specialization International Relations and a focus in either human rights or political economy and development. Candidates must also have the capacity to develop and teach quantitative research methods courses for our Global Studies PhD program. Applicants should also be prepared to offer undergraduate Political Science courses and Global Studies PhD courses. The appointment is expected to begin in the fall of 2019.

A Ph.D. in Political Science is required. Current ABD candidates are encouraged to apply, although the Ph.D. must be in hand by the appointment date. Recommendation letters for ABD applicants should address when the applicant is expected to defend his or her dissertation.

The new hire would join a collegial and ambitious department and university where research productive faculty teach a 2/2 course load. UML is committed to increasing diversity in its faculty, staff, and student populations, as well as curriculum and support programs, while promoting an inclusive environment. We seek candidates who can contribute to that goal.

The Political Science Department is housed within the University's College of Fine Arts, Humanities, and Social Sciences (FAHSS). The College is the largest unit of the University, with 11 academic departments and over 180 full time faculty. FAHSS has experienced significant growth in recent years, including hiring more than 50 new faculty members, achieving 70% growth in funded research expenditures, and the addition of several new interdisciplinary graduate programs. The Political Science Department currently has 12 tenured and tenure track faculty members, 3 visiting positions, and 3 adjunct faculty members. The Political Science Department is also home to UML's interdisciplinary Global Studies Ph.D. Program (<https://www.uml.edu/FAHSS/Global-Studies/>). In addition, our faculty are also engaged in the teaching and design of the interdisciplinary Peace and Conflict Studies Program (which offers undergraduate and master's degrees) and the newly established Master's in Public Administration. For more information, please visit our homepage: <https://www.uml.edu/FAHSS/Political-Science/>

Applicants should submit:

1. Cover letter delineating the applicants research and scholarship agenda
2. Writing sample (ideally a published paper or one in preparation for submission)
3. Teaching philosophy statement
4. CV
5. Name and contact information of three professional references

Minimum Qualifications:

- Ph.D. in Political Science
- Evidence of expertise in international relations with a focus in human rights or international political economy and development
- Evidence of strong statistical skills and ability to teach quantitative methods at the doctoral level
- Evidence of ability to develop and teach graduate and undergraduate political science courses in either human rights or political economy and development

Review of applications will begin on October 10, 2018 and will continue until the position is filled, but the position may close when an adequate number of applications are received.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 9/17/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4843

University of Massachusetts, Lowell

Rank: Assistant Professor of Political Science with focus in Human Rights or IPE

Specializations: International Political Economy, Quantitative Methods, Civil Rights & Liberties

The University of Massachusetts Lowell (UML) invites applications for a tenure-track position at the rank of Assistant Professor in Political Science, with a specialization International Relations and a focus in either human rights or political economy and development. Candidates must also have the capacity to develop and teach quantitative research methods courses for our Global Studies PhD program. Applicants should also be prepared to offer undergraduate Political Science courses and Global Studies PhD courses. The appointment is expected to begin in the fall of 2019.

A Ph.D. in Political Science is required. Current ABD candidates are encouraged to apply, although the Ph.D. must be in hand by the appointment date. Recommendation letters for ABD applicants should address when the applicant is expected to defend his or her dissertation.

The new hire would join a collegial and ambitious department and university where research productive faculty teach a 2/2 course load. UML is committed to increasing diversity in its faculty, staff, and student populations, as well as curriculum and support programs, while promoting an inclusive environment. We seek candidates who can contribute to that goal.

The Political Science Department is housed within the University's College of Fine Arts, Humanities, and Social Sciences (FAHSS). The College is the largest unit of the University, with 11 academic departments and over 180 full time faculty. FAHSS has experienced significant growth in recent years, including hiring more than 50 new faculty members, achieving 70% growth in funded research expenditures, and the addition of several new interdisciplinary graduate programs. The Political Science Department currently has 12 tenured and tenure track faculty members, 3 visiting positions, and 3 adjunct faculty members. The Political Science Department is also home to UML's interdisciplinary Global Studies Ph.D. Program (<https://www.uml.edu/FAHSS/Global-Studies/>). In addition, our faculty are also engaged in the teaching and design of the interdisciplinary Peace and Conflict Studies Program (which offers undergraduate and master's degrees) and the newly established Master's in Public Administration. For more information, please visit our homepage: <https://www.uml.edu/FAHSS/Political-Science/>

Applicants should submit using the following link: <http://explorejobs.uml.edu/lowell/en-us/job/495651/assistant-professor-in-international-relations>

1. Cover letter delineating the applicants research and scholarship agenda
2. Writing sample (ideally a published paper or one in preparation for submission)
3. Teaching philosophy statement
4. CV
5. Name and contact information of three professional references

Minimum Qualifications:

- Ph.D. in Political Science
- Evidence of expertise in international relations with a focus in human rights or international political economy and development
- Evidence of strong statistical skills and ability to teach quantitative methods at the doctoral level
- Evidence of ability to develop and teach graduate and undergraduate political science courses in either human rights or political economy and development

Review of applications will begin on October 10, 2018 and will continue until the position is filled, but the position may close when an adequate number of applications are received.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 9/17/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4844

Pennsylvania State University

Rank: Open Rank Professor of Political Science

Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Comparative Politics, International Relations

The Department of Political Science at The Pennsylvania State University invites applications for a tenured or tenure-track position focused on race and ethnicity in any subfield of political science, with particular emphasis on American, Comparative or International Politics. This is an open-rank search that is part of a cluster hire within the College of the Liberal Arts at Penn State (<http://la.psu.edu/>)

about/diversity-and-inclusion/faculty). The department particularly seeks individuals who build on the strengths of the department. Note that this position is separate and in addition to a simultaneous search being conducted by the Department of African American Studies, and interested candidates may apply to both positions (posting available at <https://www.apsanet.org/CAREERS/eJobs/eJobs-Online/JBctl/ViewJob/JobID/4665>). Faculty positions at Penn State involve substantial research support; in addition, junior positions offer significant release time. Tenure track candidates should have a record that demonstrates potential to build a strong publication record, to secure external funding, and to serve as an excellent teacher and mentor. Tenured applicants should already have developed a strong record in each of these three areas. Candidates must have their Ph.D. in hand by appointment date. Applications must be submitted online, and should include as attachments a cover letter explaining their research and teaching experience, a current CV, samples of scholarly writing, and teaching evaluations (with a key). All candidates for the rank of assistant professor should request letters from three references to be sent directly to plscapplications@psu.edu; candidates seeking a tenured appointment should e-mail the names and contact information for three individuals who have agreed to serve as a reference to that address. Application review will begin on October 10, 2018 and continue until the position is filled.

To review the Annual Security Report which contains information about crime statistics and other safety and security matters and policies, please go to <https://police.psu.edu/annual-security-reports>, which will also explain how to request a paper copy of the Annual Security Report. Job URL: <https://psu.jobs/job/83036>

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 9/14/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4838

Pennsylvania State University

Rank: Open Rank Professor of Political Science

Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Comparative Politics, International Relations

The Department of Political Science at The Pennsylvania State University invites applications for a tenured or tenure-track position focused on race and ethnicity in any subfield of political science, with particular emphasis on American, Comparative or International Politics. This is an open-rank search that is part of a cluster hire within the College of the Liberal Arts at Penn State (<http://la.psu.edu/about/diversity-and-inclusion/faculty>). The department particularly seeks individuals who build on the strengths of the department. Note that this position is separate and in addition to a simultaneous search being conducted by the Department of African American Studies, and interested candidates may apply to both positions (posting available at <https://www.apsanet.org/CAREERS/eJobs/eJobs-Online/JBctl/ViewJob/JobID/4665>). Faculty positions at Penn State involve substantial research support; in addition, junior positions offer significant release time. Tenure track candidates should have a record that demonstrates potential to build a strong publication record, to secure external funding, and to serve as an excellent teacher and mentor. Tenured applicants should already have developed a strong record in each of these three areas. Candidates must have their Ph.D. in hand by appointment date. Applications must be submitted online, and should include as attachments a cover letter explaining their research and teaching experience, a current CV, samples of scholarly writing, and teaching evaluations (with a key). All candidates for the rank of assistant professor should request letters from three references to be sent directly to plscapplications@psu.edu; candidates seeking a tenured appointment should e-mail the names and contact information for three individuals who have agreed to serve as a reference to that address. Application review will begin on October 10, 2018 and continue until the position is filled.

To review the Annual Security Report which contains information about crime statistics and other safety and security matters and policies, please go to <https://police.psu.edu/annual-security-reports>, which will also explain how to request a paper copy of the Annual Security Report.

Penn State is an equal opportunity, affirmative action employer, and is committed to providing employment opportunities to all qualified applicants without regard to race, color, religion, age, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, national origin, disability or protected veteran status.

Job URL: <https://psu.jobs/job/83036>

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 9/14/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4839

University of Wisconsin, Madison

Rank: ASSISTANT PROFESSOR, POLITICS AND POLICY OF CHINA - CLUSTER HIRE

The University of Wisconsin-Madison seeks to hire a faculty member with research and teaching interests in comparative politics or international relations, with a primary focus on China and a secondary focus on East Asia and the Pacific Rim. Potential areas of substantive expertise in the politics and policy of China include: political and economic development, human rights, environmental politics and policy, international political economy, international security, or international organizations/governance.

The successful candidate will have a primary appointment in either the Department of Political Science or the La Follette School of Public Affairs, with preference given to candidates interested in both political science and public affairs/public policy. Expectations include a commitment to the important functions of research, instruction, and outreach, as well as professional and university service as appropriate to faculty rank. Teaching will include courses to undergraduates as well as graduates. Teaching and research will primarily focus on the successful candidate's area of expertise. This position is part of a research cluster proposed by the Title VI-funded National Resource Center, the Center for East Asian Studies, for the University's Cluster Hiring Initiative (<https://facstaff.provost.wisc.edu/cluster-hiring-initiative/>) to enhance cross-disciplinary expertise on contemporary East Asia. Candidates should have an interest in collaborating with the Cluster and with colleagues affiliated with the Center for East Asian Studies. Three candidates will be recruited in this Cluster: 1) Assistant Professor, Sociology of Contemporary Korea [PVL# 95849]; 2) Assistant Professor, Chinese Politics and Policy [PVL# 95952]; and 3) Assistant Professor, Educational Policy Studies in East Asia [PVL # TBD].

Responsibilities include conducting research and teaching at all levels required with service at the professional and university level.

ADDITIONAL INFORMATION:

UW-Madison is seeking a diverse set of faculty candidates who will deepen our university's interdisciplinary research strength in key areas of current and future research promise, as well as faculty candidates who will approach their work in a manner that advances our commitment to research excellence.

A criminal background check will be conducted prior to hiring.

TO APPLY:

To apply, go to <http://jobs.wisc.edu> and search for PVL 95952. To begin the application process please click on the 'Apply Now' button. You will be asked to create a profile and upload a C.V., cover letter, a research statement, a teaching statement, and 2 samples of written work (please upload these 2 samples together). You will also be asked to provide contact information for three (3) references as part of your online application.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: 10/18/2018

Date Posted: 9/14/2018

Salary: Negotiable

eJobs ID: 4837

Luther College

Rank: Assistant Professor of Political Science

Luther College is an undergraduate liberal arts college with a population of two thousand students located in Decorah, IA. Our faculty and students are highly engaged in academics and research, music programs, athletics, sustainability, and service. Founded in 1861 by Norwegian immigrants, Luther values its heritage, just as it values the diversity of its students, staff, and faculty, who hail from many faith backgrounds and heritages. Coming from 39 states and 74 countries, 12% of our students are domestic students of color and 9% are international students.

Our location in the beautiful driftless region of northeast Iowa offers a wealth of opportunities not often found in small towns. The economic vitality of the Decorah area is attributable to being a regional hub for outdoor recreation, two nationally recognized healthcare systems, top ranked schools, business, agriculture, specialty retail, dining and tourism. In a scenic rural setting, we are an easy 70 mile drive to three urban cities including Rochester, MN, home of Mayo Clinic and an IBM major campus.

Luther College is committed to increasing the diversity of our faculty, with a focus on mentoring and providing development opportunities and support to new faculty cohorts. This support includes new faculty workshops, development and research funding, faculty mentoring groups, providing membership to the National Center for Faculty Development and Diversity (NCFDD), and opportunities through the Associated Colleges of the Midwest (ACM). Luther College is participating in the ACM-Big Ten Academic Alliance Faculty Fellows Program for a Diverse Professoriate funded by the Mellon Foundation; candidates from backgrounds underrepresented in higher education and with doctoral degrees from "Big Ten" institutions are especially encouraged to apply.

Position and Qualifications: Luther College seeks an Assistant Professor of Political Science, with expertise in the field of Comparative Politics. This is a tenure-eligible position to begin in August 2019. Ph.D. preferred; exceptional candidates who are advanced ABD will be considered at Instructor rank. Demonstrated teaching excellence and evidence of scholarly promise are required. Teaching responsibilities will include Global Politics, Comparative Politics, and courses in the candidate's geographic (outside the US) or thematic area of expertise: for example, Latin American politics or the politics of development. The successful candidate will also be prepared to contribute to teaching in Luther College's interdisciplinary International Studies program. The teaching load is 6 courses, spread over the fall, January, and spring terms. Additional duties include student advising, committee and departmental work, scholarship and meeting with prospective students.

Apply: Review of applications begins October 19, 2018 and continues until the position is filled. Apply at <https://luthercollege.hiretouch.com>. Applicant's dossier will include:

- letter of application (outline your qualifications, summarize your teaching and research interests, and briefly highlight strengths that align with strengths of Luther College)
- curriculum vitae
- unofficial graduate and undergraduate transcripts
- three letters of recommendation from professional references who can address your abilities in teaching and scholarship (the college will send an email to each letter writer identified in the application process with a link to upload their letter)

Inquiries about the position may be directed to Dr. Carly Hayden Foster, Political Science Search Committee Chair, Department of Political Science, Luther College at email: fosterc@luther.edu. Additional information about the college is available on the college website www.luther.edu. Questions regarding the application process should be directed to facultysearch@luther.edu.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 9/13/2018

Salary: $50,000 - $59,999

eJobs ID: 4834

Glendon College, York University

Rank: Assistant Lecturer (tenure-track)

Subfield(s): Comparative Politics, International Relations, Other

The Department of Political Science, Glendon College, York University, invites applications for a teaching stream (alternate stream) tenure-track position in any area of political science at the rank of Assistant Lecturer, to commence July 1, 2019. The successful candidate will teach large undergraduate courses as well as upper-year undergraduate seminars across subfields and may also teach graduate courses. The candidate will provide leadership in enhancing teaching and learning through curricular and pedagogical innovation. A Ph.D. in political science in hand or near completion by July 1, 2019 is required. The successful candidate must be fluent in English and French and be able to teach in both languages in a multicultural context.

The successful candidate will demonstrate excellence or clear potential for excellence in teaching university-level courses, a strong commitment to pedagogy and student success, and the capacity to bring a theoretical and practical orientation to teaching, learning, and program design. The successful candidate will demonstrate capacity to teach large undergraduate courses as well as upper-year undergraduate seminars across subfields. A record of pedagogical innovation in high priority areas such as experiential education, technology enhanced learning, and community-based learning is preferred as is experience with curriculum development and universal design approaches to teaching and assessment. Evidence of service contributions or potential to contribute to service in administrative and committee work is preferred.

Salary will be commensurate with qualifications and experience. All York University positions are subject to budgetary approval.

York U's bilingual Glendon Campus is home to Southern Ontario's Centre of Excellence for French Language and Bilingual Postsecondary Education. Glendon comprises about 2,700 students on a scenic campus in the heart of the cosmopolitan city of Toronto. Glendon is committed to high-quality teaching in the tradition of the liberal arts and offers a unique undergraduate academic experience for students within one of Canada's largest research universities. For information about Glendon and its programs, please consult the Faculty webpage at <http://www.glendon.yorku.ca/>.

York University is an Affirmative Action (AA) employer and strongly values diversity, including gender and sexual diversity, within its community. The AA program, which applies to Aboriginal people, visible minorities, people with disabilities, and women, can be found at <http://acadjobs.info.yorku.ca/> or by calling the AA office at 416-736-5713. Applicants wishing to self-identify can do so by downloading, completing and submitting the forms found at: <http://acadjobs.info.yorku.ca/>. Please select the 'Affirmative Action' tab under which forms pertaining to Citizenship and AA can be found. All qualified candidates are encouraged to apply; however, Canadian citizens, permanent residents and Indigenous peoples in Canada will be given priority.

The deadline for receipt of applications is November 18, 2018. An application letter outlining professional experience, a curriculum vitae, a teaching dossier which supports excellence and innovation in teaching, evidence of research activity, and three signed confidential letters of recommendation should be sent to Professor Willem Maas, Chair, Political Science, Glendon College, York University, via email to polisci@glendon.yorku.ca with the subject heading "Teaching stream position". Referees should be advised to address the candidate's qualifications and experience in relation to this position.

**

Le Département de science politique du Collège universitaire Glendon de l'Université York sollicite des candidatures pour un poste menant à la permanence (volet enseignement) dans n'importe quel domaine de la science politique au rang de chargé d'enseignement, débutant le 1er juillet 2019. La personne sélectionnée devra enseigner de grands cours et séminaires au 1er cycle dans différents sous-domaines et pourra également enseigner des cours de 2e et 3e cycles. La personne sélectionnée devra contribuer de façon proactive à l'amélioration de l'enseignement et de l'apprentissage au sein de l'établissement, notamment à travers des initiatives et des pratiques innovantes en matière de curriculum et de pédagogie. Les candidat.e.s doivent être titulaires d'un doctorat en science politique ou ce dernier doit être en voie d'achèvement au plus tard le 1er juillet 2019. La personne retenue devra être bilingue en français et en anglais, et capable d'enseigner dans ces deux langues dans un environnement multiculturel.

La personne retenue devra faire preuve d'excellence, ou montrer des aptitudes prometteuses dans l'enseignement de cours universitaires et s'investir activement dans la pédagogie et en faveur de la réussite des étudiants. La capacité du candidat à intégrer une approche à la fois théorique et pratique à l'enseignement, l'apprentissage et la création de cours sera considérée comme un atout. La personne retenue devra démontrer sa capacité d'enseigner de grands cours ainsi que des petits séminaires à travers les sous-domaines de science politique. L'innovation pédagogique dans des domaines hautement prioritaires, tels que l'éducation expérientielle, l'apprentissage assisté par les technologies et l'apprentissage communautaire, sera considérée comme un atout, ainsi que l'expérience dans l'élaboration de programmes d'études avec une conception universelle en matière d'enseignement et d'évaluation. La personne retenue devra aussi fournir des preuves de ses services passés ou montrer des aptitudes prometteuses dans le service à l'administration et aux comités.

Le salaire sera établi en fonction de la convention collective et de l'expérience. Toutes les offres de poste à York sont sujettes à autorisation budgétaire de l'Université.

Le Collège universitaire Glendon de l'Université York a été désigné comme Centre d'excellence pour les études postsecondaires en français et bilingues dans le sud de l'Ontario. Glendon, Faculté bilingue (français-anglais), accueille environ 2 700 étudiants sur un campus pittoresque situé au cœur de la ville cosmopolite de Toronto. Glendon s'inscrit dans la tradition des arts libéraux et offre une expérience académique de 1er cycle unique dans une des plus grandes universités au Canada. Pour de plus amples renseignements sur ses programmes d'études, veuillez consulter le site Web de Glendon à <http://www.glendon.yorku.ca/>.

L'Université York est un employeur qui a adopté un programme d'action affirmative, et préconise la diversité dans sa communauté, notamment celle de sexe. Le programme d'action affirmative s'applique aux autochtones, aux minorités visibles, aux personnes en situation de handicap et aux femmes. Pour plus de renseignements sur ce programme, veuillez consulter le site Web de York à l'adresse : <http://acadjobs.info.yorku.ca/>, ou vous adresser Bureau d'action affirmative au (416) 736 5713. Toutes les personnes qualifiées sont encouragées à poser leur candidature ; toutefois, la priorité sera accordée aux personnes de citoyenneté canadienne ou détenant le statut de résident permanent, et aux populations autochtones du Canada.

La date limite de soumission des candidatures est le 18 novembre 2018. Les personnes intéressées doivent faire parvenir une lettre de motivation mettant en évidence leur expérience professionnelle, un curriculum vitae, un dossier d'enseignement qui démontre l'excellence et l'innovation en enseignement, preuve de l'activité de recherche, et faire envoyer directement trois lettres de recommandation confidentielles à Willem Maas, Directeur, Département de science politique, Collège universitaire Glendon, Université York, par courriel à polisci@glendon.yorku.ca avec sujet « Poste volet enseignement ». Les personnes rédigeant des lettres de recommandation doivent aborder dans celles-ci les qualifications et l'expérience du candidat ou de la candidate en rapport avec le poste.

Les candidat.e.s qui souhaitent déclarer leur appartenance à un groupe désigné peuvent le faire en téléchargeant et en soumettant le formulaire disponible sur le site : <http://acadjobs.info.yorku.ca/>. Prière de sélectionner l'onglet « Affirmative Action » pour accéder aux formulaires relatifs à la citoyenneté et à l'action affirmative.

Start Date: Summer 2019

Application Deadline: 11/18/2018

Date Posted: 9/12/2018

Salary: Competitive
eJobs ID: 4822

Princeton University

Rank: Postdoctoral Fellowship in Regional Political Economy
Niehaus Center for Globalization and Governance

Subfield(s): International Relations, Public Policy, Comparative Politics

Specializations: Middle East, Southeast Asia, Africa

The Niehaus Center for Globalization and Governance (NCGG) at Princeton University's Woodrow Wilson School of Public and International Affairs invite applications for a postdoctoral or more senior research associate position from individuals with a Ph.D. degree or who expect to receive a Ph.D. degree by September 1, 2019 for the Postdoctoral Fellowship Program in regional political economy for the 2019-2020 academic year. This fellows program is targeted at developing a generation of scholars able to analyze and make policy recommendations about the regional political economy in the Middle East, East, South, or Southeast Asia, Africa and Latin America. The Center invites candidates with a background in economics, political science, contemporary history, sociology, law, business, and other disciplines bearing on the study of markets, politics, and economic development, focusing on the regions of the Middle East, East, South, or Southeast Asia, Africa and Latin America to apply. Scholarly work should explore the ways in which the politics within and between a set of countries intersect with natural resource endowments, market conditions, technological and physical infrastructure, and cultural biases to explain existing patterns of economic development and to promote higher levels of development more effectively. Selected candidates will be required to be in residence for the duration of the fellowship (September 1, 2019 - July 1, 2020).

Application Deadline – Applicants should apply by Monday, December 3, 2018 (11:59pm EST), for full consideration, however; posting will remain open until filled.

Application Process - All candidates must use the online application process to submit materials at: <http://www.princeton.edu/acad-positions/position/8571>.

Applicants are required to hold a Ph.D. or expect to receive a Ph.D. degree by September 1, 2019 in one of the above mentioned disciplines. To apply, please provide the following:

- Cover letter explaining the candidate's scholarly career, prospective or actual doctoral defense date, and academic interests;
- Current curriculum vitae including publications;
- 2,000-word description of the proposed research project, including its specific objectives, importance, and research design;
- One writing sample (limit of 100 pages);
- Contact information for three references, who will be asked to comment specifically on the applicant's qualifications for the proposed research project. Referees will be contacted directly by email with instructions for submitting a confidential recommendation on your behalf. Letters of reference are to be submitted by the end of business day on Thursday, December 6, 2018. Complete your application well before the deadline so that references can be submitted in a timely manner.

Salary – Rank and salary will be contingent on qualifications. NCGG Fellows will receive applicable Princeton University benefits, a taxable moving allowance, and a $5,000 research fund.

Successful applicants will be notified of the outcome of their application in February 2019. This position is subject to the University's background check policy.

For more information about the Niehaus Center for Globalization and Governance fellowship program, please contact Patricia Trinity, Assistant Director at ptrinity@princeton.edu.

Start Date: Fall

Application Deadline: 12/3/2018

Date Posted: 9/11/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4801

Princeton University

Rank: Postdoctoral Research Associate
Niehaus Center for Globalization and Governance

Subfield(s): International Relations, Public Policy, Comparative Politics

Specializations: International Political Economy, Economic Policy, Political Economy

The Niehaus Center for Globalization and Governance (NCGG) at Princeton University's Woodrow Wilson School of Public and International Affairs invite applications for a postdoctoral or more senior research associate position from individuals with a Ph.D. degree or who expect to receive a Ph.D. degree by September 1, 2019 for the 2019-2020 academic year. These awards are designed to promote basic research in the broad areas of international and comparative political economy, international organization and global governance, and globalization. Research on the causes and consequences of globalization, the political economy of foreign trade, monetary and regulatory policies, the sources of international cooperation at the global and regional level, the domestic and international politics of economic development, the political economy of human security issues, the evolution and impact of international institutions, and the politics of international law and human rights policies is of relevance.

Outstanding scholars anywhere in the world are eligible to apply. The Center invites candidates with a background in political science, economics, modern history, sociology, anthropology, law, business, and other disciplines bearing on the study of globalization to apply. Selected candidates will be required to be in residence for the duration of the fellowship (September 1, 2019 – July 1, 2020).

Application Deadline: Applicants should apply by Friday, November 30, 2018 (11:59pm EST), for full consideration, however; posting will remain open until filled.

Application Process – All candidates must use the online application process to submit materials at: <http://www.princeton.edu/acad-positions/position/8569>.

Applicants are required to hold a Ph.D. or who expect to receive a Ph.D. degree by September 1, 2019 in one of the above mentioned disciplines. To apply, please provide the following:

- Cover letter explaining the candidate's scholarly career, prospective or actual doctoral defense date, and academic interests;
- Current curriculum vitae including publications;
- 2,000-word description of the proposed research project, including its specific objectives, importance, and research design;
- One writing sample (limit of 100 pages);
- Contact information for three references, who will be asked to comment specifically on the applicant's qualifications for the proposed research project. Referees will be contacted directly by email with instructions for submitting a confidential recommendation on your behalf. Letters of reference are to be submitted by the end of business day on Wednesday, December 5, 2018. Complete your application well before the deadline so that references can be submitted in a timely manner.

Salary – Rank and salary will be contingent on qualifications. NCGG Fellows will receive applicable Princeton University benefits, a taxable moving allowance, and a $5,000 research fund.

Successful applicants will be notified of the outcome of their application in February 2019. These positions are subject to the University's background check policy.

For more information about the Niehaus Center for Globalization and Governance fellowship program, please contact Patricia Trinity, Assistant Director at ptrinity@princeton.edu.

Start Date: Fall

Application Deadline: 11/30/2018

Date Posted: 9/11/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4800

Princeton University

Rank: Visiting Fellowship in Regional Political Economy Niehaus Center for Globalization and Governanxe

Subfield(s): International Relations, Public Policy, Comparative Politics

Specializations: Southeast Asia, Middle East, Africa

The Niehaus Center for Globalization and Governance (NCGG) at Princeton University's Woodrow Wilson School of Public and International Affairs seeks two visitors or more candidates for the Visiting Fellowship Program in regional political economy for the 2019-2020 academic year. This fellows program is targeted at developing a generation of scholars able to analyze and make policy recommendations about the regional political economy in the Middle East, East, South, or Southeast Asia, Africa and Latin America. The Center invites candidates with a background in economics, political science, contemporary history, sociology, law, business, and other disciplines bearing on the study of markets, politics, and economic development, focusing on the regions of the Middle East, East, South, or Southeast Asia, Africa and Latin America to apply. Scholarly work should explore the ways in which the politics within and between a set of countries intersect with natural resource endowments, market conditions, technological and physical infrastructure, and cultural biases to explain existing patterns of economic development and to promote higher levels of development more effectively. Selected candidates will be required to be in residence for the duration of the fellowship (September 1, 2018 2019 - July 1, 2020).

Application Deadline – Applicants should apply by Monday, December 3, 2018 (11:59pm EST), for full consideration, however; posting will remain open until filled.

Application Process – All candidates must use the online application process to submit materials at: <http://www.princeton.edu/acad-positions/position/8581>.

Applicants are required to hold a Ph.D. in one of the above mentioned disciplines. To apply, please provide the following:

- Cover letter explaining the candidate's scholarly career, prospective or actual doctoral defense date, and academic interests;

- Current curriculum vitae including publications;
- 2,000-word description of the proposed research project, including its specific objectives, importance, and research design;
- One writing sample (limit of 100 pages);
- Contact information for three references, who will be asked to comment specifically on the applicant's qualifications for the proposed research project. Referees will be contacted directly by email with instructions for submitting a confidential recommendation on your behalf. Letters of reference are to be submitted by the end of business day on Thursday, December 6, 2018. Complete your application well before the deadline so that references can be submitted in a timely manner.

Candidates who hold positions at academic institutions may also be required to submit:

- Home institution policy with regard to sabbatical pay;
- A confidential statement indicating salary for the current academic year (September 2018 - July 1, 2019).

Salary – Rank and salary will be contingent on qualifications. NCGG Fellows will receive applicable Princeton University benefits, a taxable moving allowance, and a $5,000 research fund.

Successful applicants will be notified of the outcome of their application in February 2019. This position is subject to the University's background check policy.

For more information about the Niehaus Center for Globalization and Governance fellowship program, please contact Patricia Trinity, Assistant Director at ptrinity@princeton.edu.

Start Date: Fall

Application Deadline: 12/3/2018

Date Posted: 9/11/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4803

Princeton University

Rank: Visiting Fellowship Niehaus Center for Globalization and Governanxe

Subfield(s): International Relations, Public Policy, Comparative Politics

Specializations: International Political Economy, Economic Policy, Political Economy

The Niehaus Center for Globalization and Governance (NCGG) at Princeton University's Woodrow Wilson School of Public and International Affairs seeks up to eight visitors for the 2019-2020 academic year Visiting Fellowship Program. These awards are designed to promote basic research in the broad areas of international and comparative political economy, international organization and global governance, and globalization. Research on the causes and consequences of globalization, the political economy of foreign trade, monetary and regulatory policies, the sources of international cooperation at the global and regional level, the domestic and international politics of economic development, the political economy of human security issues, the evolution and impact of international institutions, and the politics of international law and human rights policies is of relevance.

Outstanding scholars anywhere in the world are eligible to apply. The Center invites candidates with a background in political science, economics, modern history, sociology, anthropology, law, business, and other disciplines bearing on the study of globalization to apply.

Selected candidates will be required to be in residence for the duration of the fellowship (September 1, 2019 - July 1, 2020).

Application Deadline – Applicants should apply by Friday, November 30, 2018 (11:59pm EST), for full consideration, however; posting will remain open until filled.

Application Process – All candidates must use the online application process to submit materials at: <http://www.princeton.edu/acad-positions/position/8570>.

Applicants are required to hold a Ph.D. in one of the above mentioned disciplines. To apply, please provide the following:

- Cover letter explaining the candidate's scholarly career, prospective or actual doctoral defense date, and academic interests;
- Current curriculum vitae including publications;
- 2,000-word description of the proposed research project, including its specific objectives, importance, and research design;
- One writing sample (limit of 100 pages);
- Contact information for three references, who will be asked to comment specifically on the applicant's qualifications for the proposed research project. Referees will be contacted directly by email with instructions for submitting a confidential recommendation on your behalf. Letters of reference are to be submitted by the end of business day on Wednesday, December 5, 2018. Complete your application well before the deadline so that references can be submitted in a timely manner.

Candidates who hold positions at academic institutions may also be required to submit:

- Home institution policy with regard to sabbatical pay;
- A confidential statement indicating salary for the current academic year (September 2018 - July 1, 2019).

Salary – Rank and salary will be contingent on qualifications. NCGG Fellows will receive applicable Princeton University benefits, a taxable moving allowance, and a $5,000 research fund.

Successful applicants will be notified of the outcome of their application in February 2019. These positions are subject to the University's background check policy.

For more information about the Niehaus Center for Globalization and Governance fellowship program, please contact Patricia Trinity, Assistant Director at ptrinity@princeton.edu.

Start Date: Fall 2018

Application Deadline: 11/30/2018

Date Posted: 9/11/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4799

University of Notre Dame

Rank: Faculty Position in Global Education

Subfield(s): Comparative Politics, International Relations, Other

The University of Notre Dame's Keough School of Global Affairs invites applications for a faculty position in global education, with a preference for scholars whose work and interests include a focus on the intersection of education and development or international and comparative education policy. Scholars engaged in rigorous social science research from a variety of disciplines – economics, political science, sociology, education, and others – will be considered. Applicants should have an interest in interdisciplinary cooperation. Applicants attracted to a university with a Catholic identity are especially encouraged to apply. While priority will be given to consideration of junior candidates (ABD, postdoc, assistant professors or non-tenured associate professors), senior applicants may also be considered. Ph.D. or equivalent terminal degree required at the time of hire.

Qualifications

The successful hire will be based in the Keough School of Global Affairs, with affiliations in the Kellogg Institute for International Studies and in Notre Dame's Institute for Educational Initiatives. Oriented toward research, teaching, and service dedicated to the advancement of integral human development, the Keough School (<http://keough.nd.edu/>) promotes interdisciplinary research on critical issues in global affairs, offers a master's degree, and supports undergraduate and doctoral programs. The Kellogg Institute for International Studies (<http://kellogg.nd.edu/>) has for over 35 years been a leading center for interdisciplinary research and programming on issues of democracy and human development. The Institute for Educational Initiatives (<http://iei.nd.edu/>) provides a home for nearly one hundred faculty fellows from across the University whose research and teaching interests focus on K-12 education, with a particular interest in Catholic education. Joint or concurrent appointments in the appropriate departments are also possible. Applicants should have an affirmative interest in contributing to the joint Kellogg Institute/Institute for Educational Initiative Research Cluster in International Education (<https://kellogg.nd.edu/research-cluster-international-education>).

Application Instructions

All applicants are required to submit a letter of interest and a C.V. Junior candidates (ABD, postdoc, assistant or non-tenured associate professors) should also arrange for the submission of three confidential letters of reference. Apply here: <https://apply.interfolio.com/54487>

Nominations and inquiries may be sent via email to:

Prof. Paolo Carozza

Chair, Global Education Search Committee

Keough School of Global Affairs

University of Notre Dame

pcarozza@nd.edu

Applications must be submitted by January 15, 2019. Review of applications will begin November 15, 2018, and will continue until the position is filled.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: 1/15/2019

Date Posted: 9/11/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4811

University of Wisconsin, Whitewater

Rank: Assistant Professor

Subfield(s): Public Law, Comparative Politics, International Relations

Specializations: International Law & Organizations, Civil Rights & Liberties, Constitutional Law & Theory

The Department of Political Science at the University of Wisconsin-Whitewater anticipates a tenure-track opening at the Assistant Professor level in public law beginning August 22, 2019. The position is open to candidates with teaching and research interests in comparative legal systems and/or international law. In addition, candidates who can expand course offerings in gender and law are highly desirable.

Candidates will be expected to contribute to the department's general education curriculum, and experience in the use of online instructional technology is desirable. Criminal Background Check Required.

Qualifications:

Ph.D. in Political Science is required. ABD candidates may apply but must have their degree completed by the contract start date in August 2019; if not, they will be hired on a one-year contract with the understanding that their degree will be completed before January 2020 in advance of their first scheduled review. Demonstrated excellence in or commitment to teaching with an emphasis on promoting the success of undergraduate students, clear evidence of scholarly potential, commitment to working with diverse populations and serving as active member of the university community. Salary is commensurate with academic preparation and experience.

Complete applications received by October 14, 2018 are ensured full consideration. Applications received after that date may be given consideration at the discretion of the search committee. Application materials will be evaluated and the most qualified applicants will be invited to participate in phone and/or online screening interviews and/or on campus interviews.

For questions regarding this position, please contact:

Edward Gimbel
Associate Professor
Department of Political Science
Phone: 262-472-1532
email: gimbele@uww.edu

To Apply:

Complete applications will include online submission of the following materials:

- a letter of application addressing your qualifications for the position
 - curriculum vitae
 - evidence of teaching effectiveness
 - all undergraduate and graduate transcripts
 - three (3) letters of recommendation
- (letters of recommendation may also be sent separately to POL-ISCIPL@uww.edu)

To apply and submit these documents online, please visit <http://www.uww.edu/employment>, and then follow the "Faculty and Instructional Staff" link on the next page. The Job ID is 14707, listed under "Tenure Track Faculty – College of Letters & Sciences."

If you have questions regarding this recruitment, or if you are not able to complete the application online due to a disability or system problem, please contact us at 262/472-1024 or hrstudent@uww.edu.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: 10/14/2018

Date Posted: 9/11/2018

Salary: Negotiable

eJobs ID: 4809

Johns Hopkins University

Rank: Professor/Assistant Professor/Associate Professor

Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Comparative Politics, International Relations

The Department of Political Science and the Stavros Niarchos Foundation Agora Institute at Johns Hopkins University seek nominations and applications of interest to appoint three or more distinguished scholars to establish a cluster of excellence in research and teaching on the challenges of contemporary democracy. We are especially interested in colleagues with an established record of scholarship examining the root causes and consequences of polarization, including its global and transnational dynamics. Successful candidates will join the Agora Institute's core faculty and will serve as full members of the Department of Political Science. We invite qualified candidates from all subfields of the discipline whose work connects with the core mission of the Institute. By conducting a broad and inclusive search, we are committed to identifying candidates who, through their research, teaching, and service, will contribute to the diversity and excellence of our academic community.

Political Science at Johns Hopkins is a methodologically diverse and pluralistic department open to a variety of research methods and intellectual approaches. We also will consider applications for potential cross-disciplinary appointments from scholars in fields such as History, Sociology, Psychology, and Philosophy as well as cross-divisional appointments.

Jointly conceived by the University and the Stavros Niarchos Foundation (SNF), the $150M SNF Agora Institute was founded to address the deterioration of civic engagement in democracies worldwide and facilitate the restoration of open and inclusive discourse that is the cornerstone of healthy democracies. Housed in the University's Krieger School of Arts and Sciences, the SNF Agora Institute at JHU will serve as a leading academic and public forum bringing together experts from a range of fields—including but not limited to political science, sociology, history, neuroscience, psychology, philosophy, and ethics—to examine the dynamics of civic strife and design and test mechanisms for improving dialogue, social engagement, and democratic governance (<http://agora.jhu.edu/>).

Applicants for Tenured Associate or Full Professor should submit a cover letter, research statement, and curriculum vitae using Interfolio <http://apply.interfolio.com/54486>. Candidates applying at the level of advanced assistant professor should include the above as well as a writing sample and three letters of recommendation. Nominations of potential candidates should be sent directly to Professor Adam Sheingate (adam.sheingate@jhu.edu). Review of applications will begin on October 15, 2018 and continue until the positions are filled. Appointments will commence on July 1, 2019.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 9/10/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4804

Clemson University

Rank: Assistant Professor / Public Law

Subfield(s): Public Law, American Government and Politics, Comparative Politics

Specializations: Constitutional Law & Theory, Civil Rights & Liberties, Judicial Politics

CLEMSON UNIVERSITY: Assistant Professor

Public Law. The Department of Political Science at Clemson University invites applications for a tenure-track position at the assistant professor level to begin in August 2019. We seek a broadly trained political scientist with a specialization in public law (constitutional law and/or judicial politics). Research emphasis may be in either the American or comparative context. In addition to maintaining an active research agenda, the successful candidate will reflect the Department's commitment to quality undergraduate and graduate teaching. The successful candidate will be expected to teach courses in American constitutional law and in his/her other areas of expertise.

Clemson University is the Land Grant University for the State of South Carolina and is located within the foothills of the Blue Ridge Mountains 30 miles southwest of Greenville. The Department offers a BA and BS in Political Science and a Ph.D. in Policy Studies.

A Ph.D. in Political Science by the time of employment is required. Salary is competitive. Applications should include a letter of interest, CV, transcripts of graduate work, three letters of recommendation, a writing sample, and evidence of teaching performance. Interested candidates should apply via Interfolio at the following job position: <https://apply.interfolio.com/54178>. To ensure full consideration, please submit materials by October 16, 2018.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: 10/16/2018

Date Posted: 9/5/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4766

Columbia University

Rank: Assistant Professor

Columbia University's Department of Political Science invites applications for a tenure-track position in Comparative Politics at the Assistant Professor level to begin July 1, 2019. Ph.D. required at the time of appointment. Candidates will be expected to sustain an active research and publication agenda and teach in undergraduate and graduate programs. All candidates must have excellent scholarship and excellent promise for future development as scholars and teachers. Applicants should send a cover letter, curriculum vitae, a list of three references, and a writing sample. The Search Committee will begin reviewing applications on October 5, 2018, and will continue to consider applications until the position is filled.

Columbia University is an Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action employer and encourages applications from women and under-represented minorities.

Please visit our online application site at academicjobs.columbia.edu/applicants/Central?quickFind=66920

Start Date: Summer 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 9/5/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4772

University of Pittsburgh

Rank: Assistant Professor in Comparative Politics

The Department of Political Science at the University of Pittsburgh invites applications for a tenure-stream position at the level of Assistant Professor in comparative politics, pending budgetary approval. We are open to a variety of methodological approaches. We are especially interested in scholars whose work complements and builds on departmental strengths.

Applicants should have a Ph.D. in hand or expected by the end of the summer 2019. Applications should include a cover letter, curriculum vitae, statement of research and teaching interests, two or three writing samples, teaching evaluations (if available), a brief description of how your research, teaching or service demonstrates a commitment to diversity and inclusion, and a minimum of three letters of reference; references will receive email notification with instructions about submitting their letters. Please apply online at: <https://facultysearch.as.pitt.edu/apply/index/MjM4>. Review of applications will begin on September 26, 2018, and will continue until the position is filled. The Political Science Department telephone number is (412) 648-7290; the contact e-mail address is wynn2@pitt.edu. The University of Pittsburgh is an Affirmative Action/Equal Opportunity Employer and values equality of opportunity, human dignity and diversity. EEO/AA/M/F/Vets/Disabled.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: 12/26/2018

Date Posted: 9/5/2018

Salary: Negotiable

eJobs ID: 4767

Texas A&M University

Rank: Assistant Professor

Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Comparative Politics, International Relations

The Department of Political Science at Texas A&M University is recruiting for two tenure-track (Assistant Professor) positions that are open with respect to subfield. We welcome applications from clusters of scholars who would find it attractive to join our faculty together. Successful candidates will be expected to carry out a vigorous program of research and actively contribute to undergraduate and graduate teaching. Strong research and teaching interests that cut across traditional subfields of political science would be highly valued. Ph.D. required. The starting date for these positions is Fall 2019.

The department offers Ph.D., MA, BA, and BS degrees and has 34 tenured/tenure track faculty members, 50 graduate students, and approximately 1000 undergraduate majors. Further information about the department is available at <http://pols.tamu.edu>. Texas A&M is a research-intensive flagship university with more than 60,000 students including 10,000 graduate students making it the sixth largest university in the United States. The student body includes 26% African American, Hispanic, Asian or Pacific Islander, and American Indian or Alaskan Native students, as well as approximately 5,000 international students from 130 countries. We seek candidates who can teach effectively in a diverse and global classroom. Texas A&M ranks among the top universities nationally in total research expenditures (with more than $800 million dollars per year). Texas A&M University is an equal opportunity, affirmative action employer that is deeply committed to enhancing the diversity and excellence of its faculty and is responsive to the needs of dual-career couples.

Applicants should apply through Workday as instructed below. Applicants should submit the following material online through workday using the links below: a letter of interest (referencing research agenda and teaching interests), a curriculum vitae, graduate school transcripts, any available teaching evaluations, and a writing sample. Applicants should also have three letters of reference submitted electronically to Professor William Clark, Head, Department of Political Science at poliscijobs@tamu.edu. Salary is competitive and will be commensurate with qualifications and experience. Our review of applications will begin on October 3, 2018 and will continue until the positions are filled. The Texas A&M System is an Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action/Veterans/Disability Employer committed to diversity.

EXTERNAL APPLICANTS If you currently are NOT a Texas A&M System employee please click below to go to our external career site to view our jobs. Go to External Career Site – https://tamus.wd1.myworkdayjobs.com/en-US/TAMU_External/job/College-Station-TAMU/Assistant-Professor_R-011658

INTERNAL APPLICANTS If you currently ARE a Texas A&M System employee: Go to Internal Career Site – <https://jobs.tamu.edu/internal-applicants/>

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 9/3/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4758

Stanford University

Rank: Postdoctoral Fellow

Subfield(s): Comparative Politics, International Relations, Public Policy

The Stanford Center on Global Poverty and Development Postdoctoral Fellows program offers one-year (and will consider two-year) fellowships to outstanding new PhDs who have a demonstrated ability to generate high-quality, policy-relevant research on critical issues related to global development and poverty alleviation. The multi-disciplinary program offers a competitive stipend, as well as support for travel and research expenses. Postdoctoral Fellows have no teaching responsibilities and minimal administrative duties.

Application Details

The Stanford Center on Global Poverty and Development invites applications for multi-disciplinary postdoctoral fellowships to start summer/fall 2019 for one year (and will consider two years). The Center's postdoctoral fellows program is intended for promising new and recent PhD recipients—coming from fields such as computer science, earth systems science, economics, engineering, health policy, political science, and sociology—to pursue policy-relevant research on topics related to critical issues for international development and poverty alleviation.

The Center's postdoctoral fellows will be active members of the community of development researchers at Stanford University. The Center provides a competitive salary plus support for travel and research expenses.

For information, please visit <https://globalpoverty.stanford.edu/research/postdoctoral-fellows-program>

For full consideration, please submit all materials by December 1, 2018 via the online application form here: <https://globalpoverty.stanford.edu/postdoctoral-fellow-application-form>

Application Instructions:

Please apply online with the following materials: (1) Cover Letter, (2) Curriculum Vitae, (3) Job Market Paper or Writing Sample, and (4) Three Letters of Recommendation. Please submit items 1-3 in one PDF document through the online application form here: <https://globalpoverty.stanford.edu/postdoctoral-fellow-application-form>

Recommenders can submit letters directly to globalpoverty@stanford.edu.

Start Date: Summer 2019

Application Deadline: 12/1/2018

Date Posted: 9/1/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4639

University of Georgia

Rank: IA Faculty and Director of the Center for International Trade & Security

Subfield(s): Comparative Politics, International Relations, Administration

Specializations: International Security, Trade, Regulatory Policy

The University of Georgia's School of Public and International Affairs (SPIA) seeks applications for the Director of the Center for International Trade and Security (CITS) and faculty member in the Department of International Affairs (DIA). The successful candidate must have a strong record of grant and contract acquisition and have a scholarly record appropriate for an academic appointment at a research university. The ideal candidate will also have policy relevant experience or expertise, fundraising experience, and previous management responsibilities. The Director of the Center reports to the Dean of SPIA. The position is open rank, tenured or tenure-track.

CITS was established in 1987 with the support of former U.S. Secretary of State Dean Rusk. It has a distinguished record of policy-relevant research, training, and public service, focusing primarily on security issues related to the trade, transfer, and use of materials and technology associated with weapons of mass destruction (WMD), nuclear security culture, and nonproliferation policy. CITS is fortifying its connections to DIA and to other UGA academic units by broadening its scope to include human security, counterterrorism, counterinsurgency, cybersecurity, and energy security. While strategic trade management and nonproliferation remain central to CITS' mission, outstanding candidates with research and policy experience outside this area are also encouraged to apply.

The Center's programs are sustained by corporate and government contracts, private foundation grants, and individual and corporate gifts. For more than three decades, these sources of support have enabled the Center to design and implement training and outreach programs to U.S. and foreign policymakers and industry representatives. The Center also engages these communities, educators, students, and the general public via international colloquia on emerging security issues. CITS's Security and Strategic Trade Management Academy alone has trained more than 1,000 government officials, academics and industry representatives from 70 countries on the establishment, implementation, and enforcement of export controls.

CITS contributes to SPIA's Master of International Policy (MIP) Program that prepares graduate students for careers in international security and nonproliferation. CITS experts serve as instructors in the MIP Program, whose graduates have been placed in prestigious educational and government institutions. In addition, CITS experts administer the year-long Richard B. Russell Security Leadership Program which prepares undergraduates for careers in nonproliferation and national security. SLP Fellows have earned distinguished national and international scholarships and have been hired by US government agencies, international organizations, corporations, and consulting firms. For more information, visit: <http://spia.uga.edu/departments-centers/center-for-international-trade-and-security-cits/>.

DIA is a vibrant and extremely research-active department of twenty-two faculty members that specialize in a wide array of topics, including international conflict, human rights, human security, political institutions, extremism, political economy, and environmental governance. The faculty are leading scholars in their fields, have earned distinguished national and international honors, oversee externally-funded research projects, and serve in editorial positions at top peer-reviewed journals. Members of the faculty have also won prestigious teaching awards at the school and university levels. The department has an undergraduate degree program and contributes to multiple graduate degree programs, including the Ph.D. program in Political Science and International Affairs. Both DIA and CITS are housed within SPIA, one of the fastest growing public affairs schools in the world. SPIA ranks sixth among graduate schools of public affairs, according to the most recent U.S. News and World Report rankings.

The University of Georgia, located in Athens, Georgia, approximately 75 miles northeast of Atlanta, is a Research I institution in the University System of Georgia. Founded in 1785, the University is the largest and most comprehensive educational institution in the state. UGA (www.uga.edu) is a land/sea grant institution. Georgia is well known for its quality of life, with both outdoor and urban activities (www.georgia.gov).

Prospective candidates must apply for the position through the UGA Jobs site at: <http://www.ugajobsearch.com/postings/30612>. To complete the application, candidates will need to submit a cover letter indicating interest and qualifications, a current curriculum vitae, and the contact information for three individuals who can provide reference letters. A Ph.D. is required. The position is open until filled. Applications received by November 1, 2018 will be assured full consideration. For questions concerning the position, please contact Amanda Murdie, Head, Department of International Affairs, University of Georgia, Candler Hall 327, Athens, GA 30602 (telephone: 706-542-9659, email: murdie@uga.edu)

SPIA is committed to enhancing the diversity of the School and the curriculum. Candidates who can contribute to these goals are encouraged to apply and to identify their strengths and experiences in this area in their cover letter. The University of Georgia is an Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action employer. All qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to race, color, religion, sex, national origin, ethnicity, age, genetic information, disability, gender identity, sexual orientation or protected veteran status. Persons needing accommodations or assistance with the accessibility of materials related to this search are encouraged to contact Central HR (hrweb@uga.edu). Please do not contact the department or search committee with such requests.

Start Date: Fall 2019
Date Posted: 8/31/2018
Salary: Competitive
eJobs ID: 4747

University of Tennessee, Chattanooga Rank: Lecturer

The Department of Political Science and Public Service at the University of Tennessee at Chattanooga College of Arts and Sciences invites applications for a lecturer in Political Science beginning Fall 2019.

The successful candidate must hold an M.A., M.S., or Ph.D. degree in Political Science and have proven experience effectively teaching general education courses in political science at the collegiate level. The successful candidate will teach general education courses in the discipline as well as some elective courses in their fields of expertise, advise students, and engage in the life of the department. This position is renewable and has the potential for multi-year contracts. Information about the Department of Political Science and Public Service is available at <http://www.utc.edu/psps>.

Qualifications:

Successful candidates will possess the following requirements:

- Master's, ABD, or Ph.D. in Political Science
- Ability to teach introductory courses in American politics and comparative politics, ideally with an emphasis on non-western states.
- Candidates should also be willing to engage in a variety of instructional modalities, including online instruction.
- Willingness to engage in assisting the UTC campus in its ability to reach additional goals as specified in UTC's Strategic Plan, including a demonstrable commitment to diversity and inclusion.

Application Procedures:

Applicants should prepare to submit the following information within our online application system for consideration:

- Cover letter/letter of interest
- CV, including up-to-date, personal contact information (email, phone, etc.)
- Unofficial transcripts
- Teaching Statement
- Syllabi of related courses

Additionally, candidates will need to include names, titles, and email addresses for three (3) references for confidential letters of recommendation to be requested.

Review of applicants will begin on October 1, 2018. Preference will be given to those qualified candidates who apply before October 1, 2018.

Applications must be submitted electronically through the UTC Faculty Career Site by visiting: https://ut.taleo.net/careersection/utc_faculty/jobdetail.ftl?job=180000019V&tz=GMT-04%3A00

The University of Tennessee at Chattanooga is the second largest school in the University of Tennessee System, serving a diverse student body of more than 11,000 undergraduate and graduate students through five academic colleges. UTC offers a unique blend of private and public school traditions and is a driving force for achieving excellence, embracing diversity, inspiring positive change, and enriching the community. Since its founding as Chattanooga University in 1886, UTC has developed a reputation for excellence built on an unusual blend of the private and public traditions of American higher education. For more than 83 years, the university was a private school. In 1969, UTC became part of the state university system. Chattanooga, the fourth largest city in the state, is located in Southeast Tennessee near the border of Georgia at the junction of four interstate highways. The city has received national recognition for the renaissance of its beautiful downtown and redevelopment of its riverfront.

Start Date: Fall 2019
Application Deadline: Open until Filled
Date Posted: 8/31/2018
Salary: $30,000 - $39,999
eJobs ID: 4754

Harvard University

Rank: China Public Policy Postdoctoral Fellow

Specializations: China, Political Economy, History & Politics

Harvard Kennedy School China Public Policy Postdoctoral Fellowships AY 2019-21

The Ash Center for Democratic Governance and Innovation at the Harvard Kennedy School will offer two postdoctoral fellowships in the field of contemporary Chinese public policy to recent Ph.D.s of exceptional promise.

Applicants must have received their Ph.D. within five years of the start of the fellowship in a relevant discipline in the social sciences or history. Preference will be given to those working in the areas of domestic politics, political economy, business-government relations, state-society relations, environmental/energy governance, and social development in China, with a focus on public policy challenges. Knowledge of Chinese is required, specifically the ability to work with original Chinese language sources.

Residence in the Cambridge area and participation in the activities of the Center (such as our biweekly doctoral fellows workshop series) is required. It is expected that the successful applicant will give at least one research presentation or public talk during the fellowship period. Foreign nationals must be eligible for J-1 visa sponsorship.

Knowledge of Chinese is required, as well as the ability to work with original sources.

Those who are chosen to receive fellowships must have completed ALL requirements for the Ph.D. degree (including the dissertation defense) by June 1, 2019. Preference will be given to applicants with no previous postdoctoral fellowships.

Each fellowship will run for a period of up to two years. The recipient will receive an annual stipend of $60,000, health insurance, and a work space. Some research/travel funds may also be available.

The next fellowship will begin August 1, 2019. To submit an application for the AY 2019-21 fellowship, please refer to <https://ash.harvard.edu/china-public-policy-postdoctoral-fellowships>. Email the completed application form, research proposal, current CV, 2 writing samples, and 2 letters of recommendation by December 3, 2018 (Monday) at 11:59PM EST to Ash_Fellowships@hks.harvard.edu with "Postdoctoral Fellowships in China Public Policy" in the SUBJECT line. Recommendation letters should be emailed directly to the Ash Center from the referees.

Further inquiries should be directed to: Dr. Kaori Urayama
Ash Center Fellows Program Manager
Harvard Kennedy School
E-mail: Kaori_Urayama@hks.harvard.edu

Please note that we do not provide critique/feedback on unsuccessful applications.

Start Date: Fall 2019
Application Deadline: 12/3/2018
Date Posted: 8/30/2018
Salary: $60,000 - $69,999
eJobs ID: 4744

Temple University

Rank: Professor of Integrative Knowledge in Russian, Soviet, and Post-Soviet Studies

Specializations: Russia, History & Politics, Post Soviet Region

The Departments of Political Science and History at Temple University invite applications for the position of Professor of Integrative Knowledge in Russian, Soviet, and Post-Soviet Studies. We seek an established interdisciplinary scholar whose research and teaching address both Russian and/or Soviet history as well as the legacies of these earlier eras in the post-Soviet era, including topics such as the persistence of authoritarian rule as well as the important roles of the Soviet Union and Russia in world politics. This joint appointment in the Departments of History and Political Science is part of a broader initiative in the College of Liberal Arts to recruit senior faculty studying important questions across disciplinary boundaries. We seek someone who can be tenured at the level of either Associate or Full Professor in either (or both) Political Science and History.

Temple University is a state-related Carnegie Research University (highest research activity) located in Philadelphia. The College of Liberal Arts is home of 32 undergraduate majors, 32 minors, 23 certificate programs and 15 graduate degree programs. With its vibrant and diverse array of educational programs, the College of Liberal Arts plays, and its missions mirrors, both the historical importance of the liberal arts in society and the principles on which the university was founded.

Interested applicants should send a cover letter and curriculum vitae to <http://apply.interfolio.com/53872>. We will begin consideration of applications and nominations on October 15th. Professors Mark Pollack of Political Science and Alan McPherson of History will co-chair the search.

Start Date: Fall 2019
Application Deadline: 10/15/2018
Date Posted: 8/30/2018
Salary: Competitive
eJobs ID: 4736

University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill

Rank: Assistant or Associate Professor

The College of Arts and Sciences at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill is recruiting five tenure-track faculty at the assistant or associate professor rank. We seek scholars who will make transformative contributions to Carolina's new Environment, Ecology and Energy Program (E3P). Candidates from the social and natural sciences are encouraged to apply. Faculty will hold an appointment in an appropriate home academic department. Candidates must have a demonstrated capacity and interest to stimulate interdisciplinary collaborations.

These cluster positions include:

Cities and Critical Infrastructure: sustainable cities and infrastructure needs for cities of the future.

Energy and Energy Analytics: emergent renewable energy resources or technologies, including modeling and data analytics.

Environment, Development and Economics: public policy and/or applied economics of environment and development or environment and inequality, especially related to energy, environment or water.

Inequality and the Environment: social and environmental issues related to inequality, vulnerability, and the growing need to address gaps in knowledge and uneven access to resources or services.

Water Resources and Hydrology: the impacts of climate, pollution, and land use to the hydrologic cycle.

For more information and application instructions, see <http://unc.peopleadmin.com/postings/143098>. Review of applications will begin October 1, 2018.

The University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill is an equal opportunity and affirmative action employer. All qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to age, color, disability, gender, gender expression, gender identity, genetic information, national origin, race, religion, sex, sexual orientation, or status as a protected veteran.

Start Date: Summer 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 8/29/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4729

University of South Carolina

Rank: Assistant Professor of Comparative Politics

The Department of Political Science at the University of South Carolina seeks applications for a tenure-track Assistant Professor position in Comparative Politics to begin August 16, 2019. The substantive specialization is open to any research area of broad interest. We seek candidates with rigorous research agendas who have published in or demonstrate the promise of publishing in leading outlets. Successful candidates will demonstrate the ability to teach substantive courses in Comparative Politics and contribute to methods teaching at the undergraduate and graduate levels.

Applicants should submit a letter describing their interests and credentials, curriculum vitae, graduate transcript, statements of research and teaching interests, samples of published and unpublished research, and contact information, including telephone number and email address, for three references. References will be contacted directly for letters of recommendation. All applicants must fill out an online application at USC Jobs: <https://uscjobs.sc.edu/>. Applications received by September 30, 2018 are assured full consideration. A Ph.D. is required by the start date of appointment.

Please contact the search committee chair, John Hsieh (Hsieh@sc.edu), with any questions. Information regarding the Department of Political Science can be found at the department's website: <http://artsandsciences.sc.edu/poli/welcome>.

The University of South Carolina System (www.sc.edu) is comprised of the state's flagship university in Columbia (founded in 1801 and currently one of the top 50 "Best Colleges" according to U.S. News and World Report), three regional comprehensive universities (USC Aiken, USC Beaufort and USC Upstate), and Palmetto College consisting of four two-year campuses (USC Lancaster, USC Salkehatchie, USC Sumter, USC Union and Fort Jackson/Extended University). Together, the USC System institutions offer more than 450 degree programs on campus and online and are uniquely positioned to meet the state's educational, cultural, health and research needs. The System employs nearly 14,000 people who work daily to improve the lives of students, fellow South Carolinians and the world. Our diverse engaged faculty and staff enjoy a dynamic and intellectually stimulating work environment.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: 9/30/2018

Date Posted: 8/29/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4733

University of Virginia

Rank: Assistant Professor in Politics

Assistant Professorship in Good Government
University of Virginia

The University of Virginia was founded in order to prepare citizens for participation in representative government. Building upon this unique inheritance, the University's College of Arts & Sciences recently launched the Democracy Initiative, an interdisciplinary research and teaching enterprise designed to enhance understanding of the challenges faced by democracies around the world. The Initiative is composed of a series of laboratories, one of which focuses on corruption and governance. For more details on the Initiative, please see <http://as.virginia.edu/democracy-initiative>.

To help catalyze the activities of the Democracy Initiative, we are seeking candidates for a tenure track faculty position at the level of Assistant Professor specializing in the political economy of good government. The position is open to candidates with a PhD in either Political Science or Economics. The search will be jointly conducted by faculty in the Departments of Politics and Economics, with the tenure home of the successful candidate located in one of these Departments. This position is part of series of cluster hires the University of Virginia has embarked on to enhance interdisciplinary scholarship.

We seek candidates with a strong research and publication record in the politics and economics of corruption, or in related areas such as the study of clientelism and the rule of law. Broader fields of specialization might include development, public choice, or institutional design. Candidates with experience conducting experiments and/or observational research based on best practices in program evaluation are particularly encouraged to apply. We will consider candidates with a geographical focus in any area of the world. The successful candidate will be expected to contribute to the teaching, research, and public engagement missions of the Democracy Initiative.

Review of applications will begin October 1, 2018. This posting will remain open until filled.

The anticipated appointment start date will begin August 25, 2019. Applicants must hold a PhD at the time of appointment.

To apply, visit Jobs@UVa (<https://jobs.virginia.edu>) and search on posting number 0623821. Complete a candidate profile online that includes a cover letter, curriculum vitae, writing sample, and contact information for three references.

For questions about the application process, please contact Savanna Galambos at skh7b@virginia.edu.

The University of Virginia assists UVA faculty spouses and partners seeking employment in the Charlottesville area. To learn more about these services, please see <http://provost.virginia.edu/dual-career>.

Applicants may also wish to consult the Faculty & Candidate Guide to UVA & Charlottesville <http://uvacharge.virginia.edu/guide.html>, which offers a wide range of resources on working at UVA and living in and near Charlottesville.

The University of Virginia is an equal opportunity and affirmative action employer. Women, minorities, veterans, and persons with disabilities are encouraged to apply.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 8/28/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4725

North Dakota State University

Rank: Tenure Track Assistant Professor of Political Science

Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Comparative Politics, Public Law

Specializations: Judicial Politics, Constitutional Law & Theory, Criminal Justice

The department of Criminal Justice & Political Science at NDSU is recruiting for a 9-month tenure-track position, at the rank of assistant professor, starting Fall 2019. We seek candidates with expertise in judicial politics and constitutional law, broadly construed. Successful applicants should be versed in American public law, but could conduct research in a broad variety of related areas, such as, but not limited to, the role of race, ethnicity, sexualities, and/or gender in justice systems, comparative judicial politics, international courts and legal structures, or the politics of policing in the US or abroad. This is a 45% research, 45% teaching, 10% service position. The teaching load is 2-2, with a course release in the first three years. Successful applicants will be prepared to teach core undergraduate pre-law courses on American judicial politics, such as judicial process and constitutional law, but will also have ample opportunity to teach specialized courses of their choosing. Tenure-track political science faculty advise undergraduate students and may have opportunities to contribute to the supervision of MA and PhD students in criminal justice. The department has minimal service expectations for pre-tenure faculty.

Minimum Qualifications

The minimum qualifications for the position are: 1) a Ph.D. degree in Political Science, or a related discipline, conferred no later than August, 2019, 2) evidence of research productivity, or potential to publish scholarship in peer reviewed journals, presses, and other outlets appropriate to one's field, 3) competence to teach American judicial process and constitutional law, and 4) effective written and oral communication skills.

Preferred Qualifications

We will give priority to candidates who 1) can provide substantial evidence of (potential) research productivity and quality, 2) have experience teaching American judicial process and/or constitutional law, 3) can provide substantial evidence of teaching effectiveness, and/or 4) have experience pursuing or obtaining external funding.

The Department

The Department of Criminal Justice & Political Science has 11 tenure-track faculty members and serves roughly 100 undergraduate majors in political science, and 200 undergraduate and 20 graduate students in criminal justice. Faculty in the department teach four classes per year. The NDSU community and national organizations have regularly recognized department faculty for excellence in research, teaching, and mentorship. While faculty contribute primarily to teaching, curriculum development, and advising within their respective programs, the department provides opportunities for interdisciplinary collaboration across fields, both in research and teaching. The college provides faculty with computing resources and tenure-track faculty within the department receive a yearly research and professionalization budget that covers travel to 1-2 conferences, and which faculty routinely supplement with College and University travel grants.

The University

North Dakota State University is a comprehensive, student-focused, land-grant, research university with more than 14,000 students from 47 states and 79 countries. NDSU was the first university in North Dakota to be named to the most research-intensive category by the Carnegie Commission on Higher Education and is listed in the National Science Foundation's top 100 in several areas, including agricultural sciences, social sciences, physical sciences, chemistry, psychology, and computer sciences.

NDSU values faculty members' work-life balance and the needs of dual-career couples. The College of Arts, Humanities, & Social Sciences' guidelines on family-related reassignment of duties are available at <https://www.ndsu.edu/fileadmin/ahss/family2010.pdf> and University policy on extension of the probationary period for personal or family reasons is available at <https://www.ndsu.edu/fileadmin/policy/352.pdf>. NDSU is an ADVANCE institution and has an a Focus on Resources for Women's Advancement, Recruitment/Retention, and Development (FORWARD) program, that, as part of its efforts, has developed procedures and funding streams for dual career hiring at NDSU: <https://www.ndsu.edu/forward/>.

Applicants can find more information about NDSU at <http://www.ndsu.edu>.

The Community

NDSU is located in Fargo-Moorhead (F-M), a pleasant, safe, diversifying, and growing community of approximately 240,000 people. As the largest population center in the region, F-M is a hub of entertainment, finance, information technology, and medical services for a large geographic area including the state of North Dakota, and western Minnesota. Two universities (NDSU and Minnesota State University Moorhead) and one private liberal arts college (Concordia College) are located in F-M. The F-M area has a healthy economy: ND has one of the lowest unemployment rates in the U.S., good public schools, low crime rates, ample shopping, local theatre and music companies, several art galleries, semi-professional baseball and hockey, and Division I intercollegiate athletics. Hector International Airport in Fargo is convenient and is served by several major airlines. Sun, clear skies, and clean air predominate year round. Visiting nearby northern Minnesota lakes, canoeing, camping, cycling, softball, and soccer are popular in summer; winter pastimes include cross-country skiing, skating, and snowmobiling. The city has an excellent park system that includes several quality golf courses and bicycle/running/ski paths along the Red River, which divides Fargo-Moorhead. Fargo is an hour drive from a major resort area in the Minnesota "lakes country" and two hours from scenic Itasca State Park, where you will find the headwaters of the Mississippi river. Central and western North Dakota offer beautiful hiking, camping, fishing, hunting, and related opportunities in the Badlands, national grasslands, and numerous river valleys. Winnipeg, Manitoba is less than a four-hour drive to the north and Minneapolis-St. Paul is an equal distance to the south-east.

Application

Applicants must submit a cover letter, curriculum vitae, statement of research interests, writing sample, statement of teaching philosophy, evidence of teaching effectiveness (e.g., syllabi, course materials, evidence of participation in teaching professionalization activities, and, if available, evaluations by peers and/or mentors; please do not include student evaluations of teaching), and contact information for 3 professional references. All application materials must be submitted online at <https://jobs.ndsu.edu/postings/9576>.

NDSU especially encourages applications from women and members of underrepresented groups.

We will begin reviewing applications on October 1, and will continue to accept and review applications until the position is filled. The department will provide search updates through APSA eJobs' update capability, and on Twitter, using the #PSJInfo hashtag.

Potential applicants may direct questions about the search to Dan Pemstein, the search committee chair, at daniel.pemstein@ndsu.edu.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 8/27/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4706

Rutgers University, New Brunswick

Rank: GENDER AND COMPARATIVE POLITICS/INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS

The Political Science Department at Rutgers University New Brunswick seeks applicants for a Tenure-track Assistant Professor to begin September 1, 2019, in the broad area of Gender and Comparative Politics/International Relations. Responsibilities include teaching and advising graduate students, including those in our PhD subfield of Women and Politics whose research interests span a broad range of subjects, approaches, and geographic areas. Candidate must be able to teach standard undergraduate survey courses in comparative politics or IR. Strong familiarity with interdisciplinary feminist scholarship is preferred. PhD required in Political Science or related field.

As one of 34 public US institutions that belong to the Association of American Universities, Rutgers is among the leading research universities in the US and Canada. Rutgers University is an Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action employer, with a historic commitment to diversity. The Political Science Department is strongly committed to increasing the diversity of our faculty. Women, minorities, and members of under-represented groups are encouraged to apply. All qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to race, color, religion, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity or expression, national origin, disability, protected veteran status or any other classification protected by law.

Applicants should submit a cover letter, curriculum vitae, writing sample, and a list of three references to: <https://jobs.rutgers.edu/postings/73156> Review of applicants will begin on October 1 and continue until the job is filled.

Confidential letters of recommendation should be emailed directly by the referee to wsilverman@polisci.rutgers.edu – the applicant's name should appear in the subject line.

All job offers are contingent upon successful pre-employment background screening prior to commencement of employment.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 8/21/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4658

ITAM

Rank: Professor (tenure-track or tenured), open rank

The Department of Political Science at ITAM invites applications for a full-time faculty position in Political Economy / Comparative Politics, to begin in the Fall of 2019. Candidates of all ranks are welcome to apply. The Department is especially interested in candidates whose research focuses on issues of direct relevance to middle- and low-income countries.

ITAM is an academic institution in Mexico City committed to scientific excellence and oriented to the international academic community. Salary, teaching load, and publication expectations are in line with US research universities. All classes can be taught in English or Spanish.

All candidates should submit: (1) A brief cover letter describing research completed and planned, (2) a writing sample such as an article or dissertation chapter, (3) a CV, and (4) a one-page summary of teaching experience. Senior candidates should provide the names of four references whom the hiring committee might contact. Junior candidates should provide three confidential letters of recommendation. All application materials should be submitted via email to marta-cebollada@itam.mx. Letters of recommendation should be emailed directly to this address by the referees. Applications will be accepted until October 1 2018.

Applicants are encouraged, but not required, to interview at the 2018 APSA Meeting in Boston. Selected applicants will be flown out for a formal job talk. If you have any questions, or to schedule an interview during the APSA Meeting, please contact: Marta Cebollada, Academic Coordinator, email: marta.cebollada@itam.mx, phone: +52(55)5628-4000 ext. 3788.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: 10/1/2018

Date Posted: 8/14/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4576

University of Toronto

Rank: Indigenous Politics at the rank of Assistant Professor

The Department of Political Science at the University of Toronto invites applications for a tenure stream position in Indigenous Politics, at the rank of Assistant Professor. This position will be held on the St. George campus and will begin on July 1, 2019.

Candidates must have a PhD or be near completing a PhD in Political Science or a related social sciences or humanities discipline, with a focus on Indigenous politics, and with demonstrated excellence in teaching, research, and Indigenous community engagement. We are seeking a scholar with a strong record in Indigenous research methodologies and ethical engagement and collaboration with Indigenous communities, organizations, and institutions, whose work focuses on Indigenous feminist research, Indigenous governance and practices, related policies, and/or colonialism and decolonization. Long term ethical engagement with Indigenous communities, organizations, and institutions, and competence to instruct and engage in research from an Indigenous perspective, using Indigenous methodologies, knowledge systems, and epistemologies is required. Preference will be given to Indigenous Peoples of North America or Peoples of Turtle Island, including those who identify as First Nations (status, non-status, treaty or non-treaty), Metis, Inuit, Alaskan Native, Native American, and Native Hawaiian Peoples.

The Department of Political Science is a leading research-intensive department with large undergraduate and graduate programs. Responsibilities of the position include teaching undergraduate and graduate courses (specific assignments to be negotiated), regular participation in departmental and university activities, maintaining a productive research agenda, supervising students at the undergraduate, MA and PhD levels, and student mentoring.

Excellence in research should be demonstrated through publications in high quality field relevant peer reviewed journals or forthcoming high quality publications, awards and accolades, presentations at significant conferences, and strong endorsements by referees of high standing, including a letter of support commenting on Indigenous community engagement. Excellence in teaching should be demonstrated by the teaching dossier outlining experience and accomplishments, the teaching statement, demonstrated knowledge and experience in Indigenous-based teaching methods, and strong letters of reference. The successful candidate will play an important role in growing and shaping the Political Science department's commitment to Indigenous Studies in the next few years.

Salary will be commensurate with qualifications and experience.

Established in 1827, the University of Toronto is Canada's largest and most research-intensive university and the only Canadian university to be named in the top 25 in the Times Higher Education World University Rankings. Located in and around Toronto, one of the world's most diverse cities, the University of Toronto's vibrant academic life is enhanced by the cultural diversity in its community. In response to the Final Report of the Canadian Truth and Reconciliation Commission, U of T established a TRC Steering Committee to guide the University's response to the 94 Calls to Action. The University recently established an office of Indigenous Initiatives that works in close collaboration with the Centre for Indigenous Studies, First Nations House and other Indigenous facets of the University of Toronto (such as Indigenous Medical Education, Waakebiness-Bryce, and the Indigenous Education Network) to motivate initiatives designed to recruit and retain Indigenous students. This office supports the intellectual and communal life of Indigenous students and scholars on campus, including Indigenous Staff and Faculty Gatherings, an Elders Symposium, organizing and hosting Indigenous Education Week, and various conference initiatives (such as sending individuals to the World Indigenous Peoples Conference on Education (WIPCE) and hosting the Native American and Indigenous Studies Association (NAISA) meetings in 2020). The office includes a large staff and Faculty advisory and collaboration committee. The University has also earmarked funding to host Indigenous scholars and Distinguished Visiting Faculty Fellows. This work complements a major recruitment drive to hire Indigenous faculty across the University.

All qualified candidates are invited to apply by clicking on the link below. Applications should include a cover letter, curriculum vitae, writing sample, teaching dossier (including a statement of teaching philosophy), and a statement outlining current and future research interests. Candidates must also arrange to have three confidential academic reference letters signed and on letterhead sent directly to the Chair of the Political Science department, Antoinette Handley, via email to chair.polisci@utoronto.ca. Candidates should also arrange to have a letter of support commenting on their Indigenous community engagement sent to the same address. All application materials must be submitted through the University of Toronto's online application system by the closing date. Please combine attachments into one or two files in PDF or MS Word format. Submission guidelines can be found at: <http://uoft.me/how-to-apply>.

The closing date for applications is October 15, 2018. If you have questions about this position, please contact Professor Antoinette Handley at chair.polisci@utoronto.ca.

The University of Toronto is strongly committed to diversity within its community and especially welcomes applications from racialized persons / persons of colour, women, Indigenous People of North America, persons with disabilities, LGBTQ persons, and others who may contribute to the further diversification of ideas.

As part of your application, you will be asked to complete a brief Diversity Survey. This survey is voluntary. Any information directly related to you is confidential and cannot be accessed by search committees or human resources staff. Results will be aggregated for institutional planning purposes. For more information, please see <http://uoft.me/UP>.

All qualified candidates are encouraged to apply; however, Canadians and permanent residents will be given priority.

Start Date: Summer 2019

Application Deadline: 10/15/2018

Date Posted: 8/13/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4571

University of Toronto

Rank: Indigenous Politics at the rank of Associate Professor or Professor

The Department of Political Science at the University of Toronto invites applications for a tenure stream position in Indigenous Politics, at the rank of Associate Professor or Professor. This position will be held on the St. George campus and will begin on July 1, 2019.

Candidates must have a PhD in Political Science or a related social sciences or humanities discipline, with a focus on Indigenous politics, and with demonstrated excellence in teaching, research, and Indigenous community engagement. We are seeking a scholar with a strong record in Indigenous research methodologies and ethical engagement and collaboration with Indigenous communities, organizations, and institutions, whose work focuses on Indigenous feminist research, Indigenous governance and practices, related policies, and/or colonialism and decolonization. Long term ethical engagement with Indigenous communities, organizations, and institutions, and competence to instruct and engage in research from an Indigenous perspective, using Indigenous methodologies, knowledge systems, and epistemologies is required. Preference will be given to Indigenous Peoples of North America or Peoples of Turtle Island, including those who identify as First Nations (status, non-status, treaty or non-treaty), Metis, Inuit, Alaskan Native, Native American, and Native Hawaiian Peoples.

The Department of Political Science is a leading research-intensive department with large undergraduate and graduate programs. Responsibilities of the position include teaching undergraduate and graduate courses (specific assignments to be negotiated), regular participation in departmental and university activities, maintaining a productive research agenda, supervising students at the undergraduate, MA and PhD levels, and student mentoring.

Excellence in research should be evidenced through a demonstrated ability to attract external research funding; a record of sustained impactful publications in top-ranked field relevant peer reviewed academic journals; presentations at significant conferences; distinguished awards and accolades; and strong endorsements by referees of high standing, including a letter of support commenting on Indigenous community engagement. Excellence in teaching should be demonstrated by the teaching dossier outlining experience and accomplishments, the teaching statement, demonstrated knowledge and experience in Indigenous-based teaching methods, and strong letters of reference. The successful candidate will play an important role in growing and shaping the Political Science department's commitment to Indigenous Studies in the next few years.

The appointment will be contingent upon a successful tenure review. Salary and rank will be commensurate with qualifications and experience.

Established in 1827, the University of Toronto is Canada's largest and most research-intensive university and the only Canadian university to be named in the top 25 in the Times Higher Education World University Rankings. Located in and around Toronto, one of the world's most diverse cities, the University of Toronto's vibrant academic life is enhanced by the cultural diversity in its community. In response to the Final Report of the Canadian Truth and Reconciliation Commission, U of T established a TRC Steering Committee to guide the University's response to the 94 Calls to Action. The University recently established an office of Indigenous Initiatives that works in close collaboration with the Centre for Indigenous Studies, First Nations House and other Indigenous facets of the University of Toronto (such as Indigenous Medical Education, Waakebiness-Bryce, and the Indigenous Education Network) to motivate initiatives designed to recruit and retain Indigenous students. This office supports the intellectual and communal life of Indigenous students and scholars on campus, including Indigenous Staff and Faculty Gatherings, an Elders Symposium, organizing and hosting Indigenous Education Week, and various conference initiatives (such as sending individuals to the World Indigenous Peoples Conference on Education (WIPCE) and hosting the Native American and Indigenous Studies Association (NAISA) meetings in 2020). The office includes a large staff and Faculty advisory and collaboration committee. The University has also earmarked funding to host Indigenous scholars and Distinguished Visiting Faculty Fellows. This work complements a major recruitment drive to hire Indigenous faculty across the University.

All qualified candidates are invited to apply by clicking on the link below. Applications should include a cover letter, curriculum vitae, writing sample, teaching dossier (including a statement of teaching philosophy), and a statement outlining current and future research interests. Candidates must also arrange to have three confidential academic reference letters signed and on letterhead sent directly to the Chair of the Political Science department, Antoinette Handley, via email to chair.polisci@utoronto.ca. Candidates should also arrange to have a letter of support commenting on their Indigenous community engagement sent to the same address. All application materials must be submitted through the University of Toronto's online application system by the closing date. Please combine attachments into one or two files in PDF or MS Word format. Submission guidelines can be found at: <http://uoft.me/how-to-apply>.

The closing date for applications is October 15, 2018. If you have questions about this position, please contact Professor Antoinette Handley at chair.polisci@utoronto.ca.

The University of Toronto is strongly committed to diversity within its community and especially welcomes applications from racialized persons / persons of colour, women, Indigenous People of North America, persons with disabilities, LGBTQ persons, and others who may contribute to the further diversification of ideas.

As part of your application, you will be asked to complete a brief Diversity Survey. This survey is voluntary. Any information directly related to you is confidential and cannot be accessed by search committees or human resources staff. Results will be aggregated for institutional planning purposes. For more information, please see <http://uoft.me/UP>.

All qualified candidates are encouraged to apply; however, Canadians and permanent residents will be given priority.

Start Date: Summer 2019

Application Deadline: 10/15/2018

Date Posted: 8/13/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4570

Saint Louis University

Rank: Assistant Professor In Comparative Politics or International Relations

Saint Louis University, a Catholic, Jesuit institution dedicated to student learning, research, health care, and service, seeks applicants for a tenure track position in international relations or comparative politics starting in August 2019. Previous teaching experience, evidence of research capacity, and a PhD in Political Science in hand by August 2019 are required. ABD candidates are encouraged to apply. The department has a preference for candidates able to teach undergraduate and graduate courses in European politics and policy and contribute classes to the department's International Studies program. The appointment will be at the level of Assistant Professor. The normal teaching assignment for this position is 2/2. The department offers a B.A. in Political Science, a B.A. in International Studies, an M.A. in Political Science and, in conjunction with the Sociology and Anthropology department, a Ph.D. in Public and Social Policy.

All applications must be made online at <https://jobs.slu.edu/postings/18703> and must include the applicant's curriculum vitae; a cover letter that includes research plans and teaching interests; at least one single-authored writing sample; research and teaching statements; a summary of recent teaching evaluations (if possible, officially produced); and syllabi of classes taught (if available). Please have three current letters of recommendation and official graduate transcripts sent to Ms. Sharilyn Bazile at sharilyn.bazile@slu.edu or Department of Political Science, Saint Louis University, 3750 Lindell Boulevard, St. Louis, MO 63108. For questions about the position, please contact Ms. Bazile or call the department office, 314-977-3035. Review of applications will begin immediately and will continue until the position is filled. Incomplete applications or applications received after October 15, 2018 cannot be assured full consideration.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: 10/15/2018

Date Posted: 8/8/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4535

University of California, Irvine

Rank: 2018-19 Political Science Lecturer Pool (Comparative Politics Focus)

The Department of Political Science is seeking applicants for temporary part-time lecturer positions to teach in the field of Comparative Politics contingent on departmental need. These positions will replace faculty on leave during the 2018-19 academic year.

Requirements - We are seeking candidates with strong teaching credentials who might contribute to our undergraduate program in Comparative Politics. Candidates should have a Ph.D.

These part-time positions are based on an annual salary range beginning at $54,738 and the number of courses could vary.

Service Period Dates for 2018-2019 Academic Year:

Fall Quarter: 9/24/18 – 12/14/18

Winter Quarter: 1/2/19 - 3/22/19

Spring Quarter: 3/27/19 – 6/14/19

Application Procedure - Interested applicants should submit a letter of application, vita, three letters of reference, evidence of teaching performance, and a Statement of Contributions to Diversity via our online recruit system: <https://recruit.ap.uci.edu/apply/JPF04847>

Priority for positions will be given to applications completed by October 1st, 2018. Please note this is a continuous recruitment to fill classes on an as-needed basis. The department will refer to the pool of applications on file to fill assignments as necessary.

Start Date: Fall 2018

Application Deadline: 3/17/2019

Date Posted: 8/7/2018

Salary: $50,000 - $59,999

eJobs ID: 4517

George Washington University

Rank: Assistant Professor

The Department of Political Science invites applications for a tenure-track position in Comparative Politics at the rank of assistant professor. This position is pending final budgetary approval.

Basic Qualifications: Applicants must have an active, theoretically-oriented research agenda as evidenced by working papers or publications, and be able to teach graduate and undergraduate courses as indicated by research presentations and/or teaching assessments. The Department expects applicants to have strong substantive and methodological training, as demonstrated by completed coursework, but has no preferred methodological approach. Applicants must hold a Ph.D. or doctoral degree in Political Science or a related field. ABDs will be considered but must have completed all requirements for the Ph.D. by the date of appointment.

Application Procedure: To apply please complete an online faculty application at <http://www.gwu.jobs/postings/55192> and upload a cover letter, curriculum vitae, statement of teaching/research interest (including a summary of teaching evaluations, if available), and sample publications. In addition, please send at least three letters of recommendation to pscjobs@gwu.edu. Review of applications will begin on 9/17/2018, and will continue until the position is filled. Only complete applications will be considered.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 8/6/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4495

Rice University

Rank: Assistant Professor of Political Science

The Department of Political Science at Rice University, located in Houston, Texas, invites applications for a tenure-track position to begin July 1, 2019. The appointment will be made at the rank of assistant professor. Assistant professors are expected to teach undergraduate and graduate courses and perform research in their specialized area. Therefore, successful candidates will have a promising research agenda and strong analytical and empirical skills as well as aspire to the highest standards of scholarship, professional activity, and commitment to graduate and undergraduate education. We are particularly interested in candidates whose research interests and expertise lie in the areas of political violence, civil war, ethnic conflict, terrorism, and/or human rights. Candidates must currently have a Ph.D. or complete the Ph.D. by July 1, 2019.

The application deadline is September 15, 2018. A complete application must include a letter of application, a curriculum vitae, graduate school transcripts, two writing samples, and three letters of recommendation (applicants must provide contact information for three references who will be contacted automatically for letters of recommendation). All applications should be submitted electronically at <http://jobs.rice.edu/postings/16200>.

Equal Opportunity Employer - Females/Minorities/Veterans/Disabled/Sexual Orientation/Gender Identity

Start Date: Summer 2019

Application Deadline: 9/15/2018

Date Posted: 8/3/2018

Salary: Negotiable

eJobs ID: 4485

Yale University

Rank: Assistant Professor in Race, Ethnicity and Migration

Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Comparative Politics, International Relations

The Department of Political Science at Yale University invites applications for an Assistant Professor position in Race, Ethnicity, and Migration. We are particularly interested in outstanding candidates who work on American Politics, and also candidates who work on these issues in Comparative Politics and International Relations. This search is part of a cluster of hires, at multiple levels, the department is making over the next few years. The appointment will begin on July 1, 2019.

Ph.D. or equivalent degree required at the time of hire. Applications including a cover letter, CV, three letters of recommendation, and a writing sample should be uploaded to <https://apply.interfolio.com/53016>.

Review of applications and nominations will begin September 15, 2018, and to guarantee full consideration your file should be complete by this date.

Please contact Lani Colianna (lani.colianna@yale.edu or 203-432-5238), Sr. Administrative Assistant for the Political Science Department, if you have questions about the application process.

Yale is an affirmative action/equal opportunity employer. Yale University values diversity among its staff, students, and faculty and strongly encourages applications from and nominations for women and under-represented minorities, protected veterans, and persons with disabilities.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Date Posted: 8/3/2018

Salary: Negotiable

eJobs ID: 4489

Yale University

Rank: Open Rank Search in Comparative Political Economy/Comparative Politics

The Department of Political Science at Yale University invites applications for an open rank search in Comparative Political Economy and Comparative Politics. The appointment will begin on July 1, 2019.

Ph.D. or equivalent degree required at the time of hire. Applications including a cover letter, CV, three letters of recommendation (if untenured), and a writing sample should be uploaded to <https://apply.interfolio.com/53011>.

Review of applications and nominations will begin September 15, 2018, and to guarantee full consideration your file should be complete by this date.

Please contact Lani Colianna (lani.colianna@yale.edu or 203-432-5238), Sr. Administrative Assistant for the Political Science Department, if you have questions about the application process.

Yale is an affirmative action/equal opportunity employer. Yale University values diversity among its staff, students, and faculty and strongly encourages applications from and nominations for women and under-represented minorities, protected veterans, and persons with disabilities.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Date Posted: 8/3/2018

Salary: Negotiable

eJobs ID: 4491

University of Richmond

Rank: Assistant Professor of Asian Politics

The Department of Political Science in the School of Arts and Sciences at the University of Richmond invites applications for a tenure-track assistant professor position in comparative politics, to begin in August 2019. The department seeks to hire a teacher-scholar with expertise in Asian politics, broadly defined, who will meet and expand curricular goals within the major and broaden the department's research expertise. We welcome applicants to join an interdisciplinary community of scholars with interests in Asia. The position carries a 3-2 teaching load consisting of a regular offering of a survey course on Asian politics, an upper-division course in the candidate's area of research interest, courses contributing to the department's ongoing offerings of introductory-level comparative politics and research methods courses, and possibly other service courses related to the individual's areas of expertise.

Applicants must either hold a Ph.D. in Political Science or show credible evidence that they will complete the dissertation by August 1, 2019. Applicants should apply online at <http://jobs.richmond.edu>. The application should include the following: a cover letter containing a brief summary of the candidate's research and teaching interests; separate statements on research interests/plans and on teaching philosophy/experience; current curriculum vitae; copies of graduate transcripts; and three letters of recommendation, at least one of which should also speak to the candidate's record of or potential for excellence in teaching. The teaching statement should articulate the candidate's teaching philosophy, interests, and goals as well as involvement and commitment to inclusive pedagogy.

Please address any questions about the application to Dr. Richard Dagger rdagger@richmond.edu, Chair, Department of Political Science, University of Richmond, Richmond, VA 23173. Review of applications will begin on October 1, 2018.

The School of Arts and Sciences, the liberal arts core of the University, is a thriving and inclusive community of 230 faculty, twenty-two departments, and ten interdisciplinary programs. We offer distinctive and engaging learning opportunities to students and outstanding resources to support the scholarly, creative, and pedagogical activities of the faculty. For information about the foundations, goals, and initiatives of the School of Arts and Sciences, see the Concept 30 Strategic Plan at: <https://as.richmond.edu/concept30/index.html>

The University of Richmond is a private, highly selective, predominantly liberal arts institution. The University is committed to developing a diverse workforce and student body, and to modeling an inclusive campus community that values the expression of difference in ways that promote excellence in teaching, learning, personal development, and institutional success. Our academic community strongly encourages applications in keeping with this commitment. For more information on the department, see <http://polisci.richmond.edu>.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 8/2/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4478

Cornell University

Rank: Tenure-track Assistant Professor in Comparative Politics

The Department of Government at Cornell University welcomes applications for two full-time, tenure-track positions in Comparative Politics at the rank of assistant professor. The department has special interest in candidates whose research and teaching interests include the Middle East, South Asia, Eastern Europe/Russia, and/or big data topics, but the search is not limited to these areas, and candidates in all areas of Comparative Politics are encouraged to apply. A PhD is required no later than July 1, 2019.

Applicants should apply online at: <https://academicjobsonline.org/ajo/jobs/11491>. Interested candidates should submit a letter of application, curriculum vitae, samples of written work, and three letters of recommendation, as well as teaching evaluations and materials if available. We will begin to review applications starting September 15, 2018, and will continue until the search is complete. Diversity and inclusion have been and continue to be a part of our heritage. The Department of Government, and the College of Arts and Sciences at Cornell embrace diversity and seek candidates who will create a climate that attracts students and faculty of all races, nationalities, and genders. We strongly encourage women and underrepresented minorities to apply. Cornell University is a recognized EEO/AA employer and educator, valuing AA/EEO, Protected Veterans, and Individuals with Disabilities.

Start Date: Summer 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 7/24/2018

Salary: Negotiable

eJobs ID: 4424

Wheaton College

Rank: Assistant Professor, Political Science

Specializations: International Political Economy, Foreign Policy, International Security

APPLY ONLINE AT: <http://jobs.wheatoncollege.edu/postings/2423>

The Department of Political Science at Wheaton College in Norton, Massachusetts invites applications for a tenure-track Assistant Professor position in International Relations to begin in the Fall of 2019. The ideal candidate will possess the ability to teach introductory and upper-level courses in International Relations, as well as to extend departmental coverage in Comparative Politics in regions including South Asian, South-East Asian, East Asian, or Central and Eastern European (including Russia) politics. The Political Science Department is home to both a political science major and an interdisciplinary international relations major, and the successful candidate will collaborate with colleagues in the management of the international relations major program.

All International Relations subfield specializations will be considered, including, but not limited to, the following areas:

- international political economy
- comparative foreign policy
- security studies
- intra or inter-state conflict
- peace studies
- conflict resolution.

We are especially interested in the ability to develop and teach courses at the intersections of traditional discipline and subfield specializations. We are committed to providing our students with excellent educational and co-curricular opportunities, and our faculty has significant mentoring experience with new teachers in postdoctoral and junior faculty appointments. For example, we offer regular programming in professional development and all tenure-track faculty are entitled to a fully paid pre-tenure sabbatical and research funds to support scholarship.

MINIMUM QUALIFICATIONS:

- A PhD at the onset of the appointment (August 2019) is required.
- A commitment to excellence in teaching and scholarship.
- For full consideration, the following are to be submitted via Wheaton's online application system: letter of application; curriculum vitae; statement of teaching philosophy; statement of research philosophy; evidence of teaching effectiveness (materials on your teaching history, including sample syllabi and course evaluations); and at least one scholarly writing sample.

- Wheaton strives to be a community supportive of diverse perspectives and identities. Candidates should describe in their letter of application how their teaching and scholarship might support the College's commitment to diversity and inclusion. In addition, the letter of application should also include areas of specialty, as well as explain the candidate's interest in teaching in a liberal arts environment.
- Applications will be reviewed beginning October 1, 2018. The position will remain open until filled.

PREFERRED QUALIFICATIONS:

- Prior teaching experience; classroom experience is highly desirable.
- Dedication to scholarly achievement.
- Commitment to the liberal arts environment.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 7/14/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4388

Bucknell University

Rank: Assistant Professor of Political Science (Comparative)

Bucknell University's Department of Political Science invites applications for a tenure-track position in the comparative politics of Europe beginning in the fall semester of 2019. We expect to hire at the Assistant Professor level but are open to considering outstanding candidates at other ranks. The successful candidate will be prepared to teach a core course in comparative politics, a course in European politics, a course in either quantitative or qualitative research methods, and other courses in the candidate's field of specialization.

The Department of Political Science has a strong record of hiring diverse faculty whose courses expose students to a variety of racial, ethnic, and cultural perspectives, and we are especially interested in candidates whose teaching and research will contribute to the department's commitment to both diversity and academic excellence. Evidence of teaching experience and excellence, as well as the promise of being a productive scholar, are critically important. The teaching load is five courses over two semesters. By the start date of the position, candidates are expected to have a Ph.D. in Political Science with a sub-field specialization in Comparative Politics, but ABD candidates will also be considered with the understanding that the Ph.D. must be completed before the beginning of the second year.

For additional information and to apply, please go to careers.bucknell.edu. The application should include a cover letter, C.V., statement of teaching philosophy, statement of commitment to diversity, three letters of recommendation, graduate transcripts, sample publications or papers, syllabi, and teaching evaluations (if available), along with any other relevant materials. Questions about the position should be addressed by email to Professor Scott Meinke at smeinke@bucknell.edu. The review of applications will begin on September 24, 2018.

About Bucknell University

Bucknell University is a highly selective, predominately undergraduate, private university with approximately 3600 students. Along with its excellent academic departments and programs, it boasts the Center for the Study of Race, Ethnicity, and Gender, which supports faculty teaching and scholarship in these areas, and the Griot Institute for Africana Studies, which provides faculty and student intellectual and creative engagement with the interdisciplinary investigation of the cultures, histories, narratives, peoples, geographies and arts of Africa and the African diaspora; and the Bucknell Institute for Public Policy, which supports faculty research and teaching on issues of domestic, international, and comparative public policy. In 2014, Bucknell introduced a 5-Year Diversity Plan aimed at enhancing the diversity of the faculty, staff, student body, and curriculum of the university.

Located in Central Pennsylvania along the Susquehanna River, Bucknell is nestled in the Borough of Lewisburg, an architectural gem that has been ranked as one of America's best small towns. The Lewisburg area offers a unique combination of outdoor recreation opportunities, and appealing amenities such as art galleries, an art deco theater, historic museums, and charming independent boutiques and restaurants. In addition, the surrounding region offers outstanding schools, medical facilities, and an affordable cost of living. Bucknell is within an easy three-hour drive to Philadelphia, New York, Baltimore, and Washington, D.C.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 7/10/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4364

Texas Woman's University

Rank: Assistant Professor of Government

Specializations: Middle East, East Asia, International Law & Organizations

The Department of History and Government at Texas Woman's University invites applicants for a tenure-track Assistant Professor position beginning fall 2019. The successful applicant will be broadly trained in Political Science with a primary field of International Relations and a secondary field in Comparative Politics. A geographical expertise in Asia or the Middle East in the secondary field is highly desirable. Candidates should hold a Ph.D. in Political Science or a related field at the time of appointment and demonstrate a commitment to excellence in undergraduate and graduate teaching and an active record of research. The successful candidate will teach the introductory International Relations course and alternate teaching the introductory Comparative Politics course, as well as teaching advanced undergraduate courses and Master's level courses in International Relations and Comparative Politics. Candidates will also advise students and serve the department, university, and profession.

Required qualifications:

- Earned doctorate in Political Science or related field at the time of appointment
- Demonstrated potential for teaching excellence
- Demonstrated potential for research and publication

Preferred qualifications:

- Prior teaching experience

The History and Government Department offers a Bachelor and Masters as well as the Bachelors in Criminal Justice (co-administered with the Department of Sociology and Social Work). The department has 5 full-time Political Science faculty members (plus 5 full-time History faculty) offering degrees to approximately 100 undergraduate Political Science majors and 20 Master's students.

Send a cover letter, graduate transcripts, CV, evidence of teaching effectiveness, a sample of scholarly work, and three letters of reference to facultyjobs@twu.edu. Review of applications will begin on October 8, 2018.

Start Date:

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 7/5/2018

Salary: $50,000 - $59,999

eJobs ID: 4349

Dickinson College

Rank: Assistant Professor of Political Science and International Studies

The departments of International Studies and Political Science at Dickinson College are seeking qualified applicants for a full-time, tenure-track assistant professor position beginning in academic year 2019-20. A completed or nearly-completed Ph.D. in Political Science, International Relations, or related discipline is required.

Applicants should have a research and teaching focus on Africa, South Asia, or Southeast Asia. The specific sub-field of research can be comparative politics, international relations, security studies (including human security), or other related fields. In addition to teaching upper-level courses in that research area, the successful candidate must demonstrate ability and interest in teaching introductory International Relations and upper-level American Foreign Policy on a regular basis. Candidates should identify in their application letter courses they are prepared to teach and should have a strong commitment to teaching undergraduate students in an interdisciplinary liberal arts environment. The yearly teaching load is five courses. The successful candidate is expected to participate fully in the intellectual life of the departments, including serving as one of the oral examiners for the International Studies exams at the end of the academic year. The ability to create inclusive learning environments for an increasingly diverse student body will be an important characteristic of the successful candidate.

Dickinson College is a private, four-year liberal arts college with 2,400 students. It is located 20 minutes west of Harrisburg and is a two-hour drive from Baltimore, Washington DC, and Philadelphia.

Interested candidates should apply for this position electronically, online application system at <https://jobs.dickinson.edu>.

Please submit the following materials:

- * a letter of application;
- * curriculum vitae;
- * graduate transcript;
- * names and email addresses for three letters of recommendation;
- * writing sample;
- * teaching statement;
- * sample syllabi – preferably for one or more of the above listed courses.
- * teaching evaluations or other evidence of teaching effectiveness

Review of applications will begin October 1 and will continue until the position is filled.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 7/3/2018

Salary: Competitive
eJobs ID: 4347

Tulane University

Rank: The Scott and Marjorie Cowen Chair in Latin American Social Sciences based in the Political Science Department, Tulane University

The Political Science Department at Tulane University invites applications for the Scott and Marjorie Cowen Chair in Latin American Social Sciences. We seek an accomplished full professor with an international reputation who has helped to shape the contemporary understanding of Latin American politics through research that has been published in university press books and peer-reviewed journals. The candidate's work should be empirically grounded, sensitive to context, and primarily focused on Latin America. It should contribute to new forms of description, concept formation, causal inference, and theoretical innovations on socially relevant phenomena in the region. Methods of research and analysis should be a function of the problem to be studied rather than the reverse. Preferred areas of specialization include state-society relations, political regimes, state building, state erosion, and citizen rights; institutional analysis, change, and development, including questions of political representation and the politics of social and economic development and economic inequality; and policy making, including both general policy-making processes and particular policy areas crucial to economic development and sustainability, such as environmental, economic, and social policy.

Applications received by November 1, 2018 are guaranteed full consideration; however, the position will remain open until filled. The appointment will begin July 2019.

Applicants should submit a letter of interest, describing research and teaching strengths, current Curriculum Vitae and three letters of recommendation online at apply.interfolio.com/52071. Queries may be addressed to Professor Eduardo Silva, Friezo Family Foundation Chair in Political Science (gesilva@tulane.edu) or to Professor Nancy Maveety (nance@tulane.edu), Political Science Department Chair.

Start Date: Fall 2019
Application Deadline: 11/1/2018
Date Posted: 7/2/2018
Salary: Competitive
eJobs ID: 4342

Trinity College

Rank: Assistant Professor of Political Science and International Studies

The Department of Political Science and the International Studies Program at Trinity College invite applications for a joint, tenure-track position at the rank of Assistant Professor in the Comparative Politics of the Global South commencing with the 2019-2020 academic year. We especially welcome applications from candidates whose research intersects the subjects of comparative urban politics, ethnic politics, and/or contentious politics. The successful applicant will be expected to design courses that contribute to both Political Science and International Studies. The candidate should demonstrate the potential for becoming an outstanding scholar and teacher. The Ph.D. should be in hand or expected by the end of August, 2019.

To ensure full consideration please submit a letter of application (including statement of research and teaching interests), CV, graduate transcript, sample of scholarly writing, course syllabi and evaluations (if available) and at least three letters of reference on <https://trincoll.peopleadmin.com> by October 1, 2018.

Trinity College is coeducational independent, nonsectarian liberal arts college with approximately 2,200 undergraduate students and 200 faculty members, located in Hartford, Connecticut. Candidates should have a strong commitment to undergraduate and interdisciplinary teaching in a liberal arts context, and a well-articulated plan for sustained research. The College is an Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action Employer committed to attracting and supporting a faculty of women and men who fully represent the racial, ethnic, and cultural diversity of the United States. We seek applications from minorities, women, and other under-represented groups.

Start Date: Fall 2019
Application Deadline: Open until Filled
Date Posted: 7/1/2018
Salary: Competitive
eJobs ID: 4327

Florida State University

Rank: Assistant professor
Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, International Relations, Comparative Politics

The Department of Political Science (<http://coss.fsu.edu/polisci/home>) seeks applications for a tenure track assistant professor to begin in Fall 2019. We seek candidates whose research focuses on institutions and political economy. The search is open with respect to the substantive subfield, and priority will be given to candidates who can add to the department's strength in formal theory and rigorous empirical analysis. Successful candidates are expected to pursue an active program of research and to contribute to the department's undergraduate and graduate game theory sequences.

Florida State University is committed to broadening the gender, racial and ethnic diversity of its faculty, and the Department of Political Science shares that goal. The university statement of commitment to increasing the diversity of the faculty and students can be found at http://hr.fsu.edu/?page=diversity/diversity_home.

Florida State University is a Carnegie Foundation-classified Research I institution. Among its 42,000 students are 7,500 graduate students pursuing over 200 programs of study. Tallahassee is Florida's capital and has a metropolitan population of over 375,000. Its principal employers are state government and three higher education institutions.

Applicants should submit (1) a letter of application indicating research and teaching interests, (2) a curriculum vitae, (3) writing samples, (4) three letters of recommendation, and (5) a graduate school transcript. All items must be submitted electronically. Send these files as separate email attachments (pdf's are expected) to polisci@fsu.edu. Review of applications will begin September 17, 2018 and continue until the position is filled. Florida State University is an EO employer. Members of underrepresented groups are strongly encouraged to apply.

Florida State University is an Affirmative Action/Equal Opportunity Employer and racial/ethnic minority applicants are particularly encouraged to apply (http://hr.fsu.edu/?page=eoc/eo/eo_home).

Start Date: Fall 2019
Application Deadline: 9/17/2018
Date Posted: 6/14/2018
Salary: Competitive
eJobs ID: 4304

INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS

University of Southern California

Rank: Teaching Postdoctoral Fellow
Specializations: International Security, International Political Economy, East Asia

Teaching Postdoctoral Fellowship AY 19-20
 School of International Relations Los Angeles, California
 University of Southern California

The School of International Relations in the Dornsife College of Letters, Arts and Sciences at the University of Southern California (USC; Los Angeles, California) invites applications for postdoctoral positions with two-course teaching for AY2019–20. The fall semester starts in the third week of August 2019. We seek applicants with expertise in quantitative methods, international security, international political economy and international relations of Asia with focus on China. The successful candidates will join the Center for International Studies (CIS) at USC as postdoctoral fellows and are expected to teach one 15-week course per semester for two semesters, with the possibility of renewal of the appointment. We also look for candidates with a strong research profile with emphasis on academic publications and an interest in engaging in the vibrant research community of the School of International Relations and the CIS. A PhD is required by time of the appointment.

Applications should be complete by January 31, 2019, to receive fullest consideration. Applicants are required to complete the online application process (with few exceptions—such as published books—materials submitted by regular post will not be accepted). Follow this link or paste it in a browser: <https://usccareers.usc.edu/job/los-angeles/postdoctoral-scholar-teaching-fellow/1209/9778991> Required materials include a letter of interest, curriculum vitae, research sample, a list of proposed courses to teach, evidence of teaching effectiveness, the three reference letters, and official graduate transcripts. Inquiries may be sent to cis@dornsife.usc.edu.

Start Date: Fall 2019
Application Deadline: Open until Filled
Date Posted: 11/1/2018
Salary: Competitive
eJobs ID: 5081

Cleveland State University

Rank: Assistant Professor

Cleveland State University is searching for active, culturally and academically diverse faculty of the highest caliber. The Department of Political Science at Cleveland State University invites applications for a tenure track position in International Relations to begin August 22, 2019. Primary teaching duties include introductory and advanced undergraduate courses and graduate courses in International Relations. The successful candidate may also teach other courses based upon his or her qualifications.

The successful candidate's minimum qualifications are A.B.D. in Political Science with appropriate progress on the dissertation in the field of International Relations. Completion of all requirements for the Ph.D. by July 1, 2019 for appointment as Assistant Professor; ABDs will be considered for appointment as Instructor.

The successful candidate's preferred qualifications are Ph.D. in Political Science by July 1, 2019, with a specialization in International Relations other than the area of International Political Economy and the ability to contribute through teaching, research, and/or service to the diversity, cultural sensitivity and excellence of the academic community. Individuals with an interest or background in teaching causes of war and global governance are especially encouraged to apply. Candidates concentrating on Africa, Eastern Europe, Latin America, or Russia are encouraged to apply.

Applicants should apply online at <http://hrjobs.csuohio.edu/postings/9867>. You will be asked to complete your name and contact information, and upload the following documents: Letter of application describing research agenda and teaching interest; curriculum vitae; one writing sample no more than 30 pages; teaching evaluations if available; unofficial transcripts and three letters of recommendation. Additionally, Cleveland State University is an urban campus serving a racially, cultural, and economically diverse study body. Diversity is extremely important to CSU. Explain your experience serving diverse students and how will you make a positive contribution to CSU's diverse community.

For questions please contact Charles Hersch, Chair of the Department of Political Science at c.hersch@csuohio.edu or 216-687-4541. Preference will be given to applications received by December 1, 2018. Hiring is contingent on maintaining existing levels of funding from the state of Ohio. Offer of employment is contingent on satisfactory completion of the University's verification of credentials and other information required by law and/or University policies or practices, including but not limited to a criminal background check.

It is the policy of Cleveland State University to provide equal opportunity to all qualified applicants and employees without regard to race, color, religion, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity and/or expression, national origin, age, protected veteran or disabled status, or genetic information.

Apply Here: <http://www.Click2Apply.net/4ghzf4dgcks729wn>

PI105196608
Start Date:
Date Posted: 10/30/2018
Salary: Competitive
eJobs ID: 5082

Georgia Southern University

Rank: Lecturer in International Studies
Specializations: Africa, East Asia, Developing Nations

Lecturer of International Studies—Search 67638
 College of Behavioral and Social Sciences
 Department of Political Science and International Studies

The Department of Political Science and International Studies in the College of Behavioral and Social Sciences invites applications and nominations for the position of Lecturer of International Studies. This position will be located on the Statesboro campus, but may require teaching on the other campuses.

Georgia Southern University is the state's largest and most comprehensive center of higher education south of Atlanta. With 141 degree programs at the associate's, bachelor's, master's, and doctoral levels, Georgia Southern is designated a Carnegie Doctoral/Research university and serves more than 27,000 students on three vibrant campuses—the Armstrong campus in Savannah, the Statesboro campus, and the Liberty campus in Hinesville. Georgia Southern offers an attractive campus environment that encourages learning, discovery, and personal growth. Nationally accredited academic programs prepare diverse scholars for leadership and service as working citizens.

Since 1906, the University's hallmark has been a culture of engagement that bridges theory with practice, extends the learning environment beyond the classroom, and promotes student growth and life success. Central to the University's mission is the faculty's dedication to excellence in teaching and the development of a fertile learning environment exemplified by a free exchange of ideas, high academic expectations, and individual responsibility for academic achievement. Faculty, staff, and students embrace core values expressed through integrity, civility, kindness, collaboration, and a commitment to lifelong learning, wellness, and social responsibility.

Within this setting, the successful applicant will join a department of more than 25 faculty and staff dedicated to excellence in teaching, research, and service. The department is committed to providing students with significant educational opportunities offering an international perspective. Through the Department's academic and extracurricular activities, Georgia Southern students develop international perspectives and an understanding of global issues and contemporary world cultures. The Department's philosophy of education embraces International Studies as a practical interdisciplinary field of studies devoted to finding solutions to global problems and advancement of the global well-being. With that, the Department focuses on providing students with practical and competitive skills and career prospects in an increasingly globalized economic reality. The prospective hire is expected to sustain and expand this vision.

Position Description

Reporting to the Department Chair, the Lecturer of International Studies position requires teaching, and some limited service responsibilities as well as a terminal degree. The Lecturer will assume a 4-4 teaching load in the thriving Department of Political Science and International Studies, which features two interdisciplinary majors (International Studies and International Trade) in addition to Political Science. Teaching assignments may include Introduction to International Studies, Research Methods in International Studies, and upper-division courses in the Instructor's areas of expertise. The position is a 9-month, non-tenure track appointment, and the salary is competitive and commensurate with qualifications and experience.

Required Qualifications:

- Earned doctorate in International Studies, Political Science, Sociology, Geography, or Economics with documented evidence of a global perspective completed by August 1, 2019
- University-level teaching experience in International Studies or related disciplines, backed by evidence
- Evidence of effective communication skills (in English)
- Evidence of commitment to international education with regard to curricular development, student mentoring, and experience or interest in the development of study abroad programs
- Regional specialization that complements the department's existing strengths in Latin America, Caribbean, and the Middle East

- Must be authorized to work in the United States for the duration of employment without assistance from the institution

Preferred Qualifications:

- University-level successful experience in leading study abroad courses in International Studies or related disciplines, backed by evidence
- Documented teaching experience in world cultures, global issues, economic and political development
- Specialization in economic or political development or other humanitarian or development-oriented field of interest, such as human security and sustainability
- Global focus outside of mainstream "International Relations" scholarship
- Evidence of web-based teaching experience
- Ability to teach and guide undergraduate students in successful pursuit of careers in international studies
- Experience working with a diverse student body
- Evidence of collegiality and ability to work on a team on projects involving international education

Screening of applications begins December 1, 2018, and continues until the position is filled. The preferred position starting date is August 1, 2019. A complete application consists of a letter addressing the qualifications cited above; a curriculum vitae, evidence regarding teaching excellence (student evaluations, etc.), three letters of recommendation, and a copy of unofficial graduate transcripts. Other documentation may be requested. Only complete applications submitted electronically will be considered. Finalists will be required to submit to a background investigation. Applications and nominations should be sent to:

Christopher M. Brown, Search Chair, Search # 67638
 Department of Political Science and International Studies
 Georgia Southern University
 P. O. Box 8106
 Statesboro GA 30460
 Electronic mail: cmbrown@georgiasouthern.edu
 Telephone: 912-478-0746

More information about the institution is available through <http://www.georgiasouthern.edu> or <https://cbss.georgiasouthern.edu/points/>. Georgia Southern University seeks to recruit individuals who are committed to working in diverse academic and professional communities and who are committed to excellence in teaching, scholarship, and professional service within the University and beyond. The names of applicants and nominees, vitae, and other non-evaluative information may be subject to public inspection under the Georgia Open Records Act. Georgia Southern University is an Affirmative Action, Equal Opportunity institution. Individuals who need reasonable accommodations under the ADA to participate in the search process should contact the Vice Provost.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 10/30/2018

Salary: $40,000 - $49,999

eJobs ID: 5079

Colorado Mesa University

Rank: Visiting Professor of History or Political Science

Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, International Relations, Other

Distinguished scholars in History or Political Science are invited to apply for the Wayne N. Aspinall Chair at Colorado Mesa University. For a $10,000 stipend, the visiting professor will spend three weeks on the Colorado Mesa University campus from late March to mid-April 2020, teach a one credit course, give a major public lecture, and make any other invited appearances. Applications must include a vitae, a brief outline of a course proposal and a topic for the major public lecture. Submit application by January 21, 2019 to: Dr. Justin Gollob, Department of Social and Behavioral Sciences, Colorado Mesa University, 1100 North Ave., Grand Junction, CO 81501. Feel free to direct any inquiries to jpgollob@coloradomesa.edu or 970 248-1279.

Start Date:

Application Deadline: 1/21/2019

Date Posted: 10/29/2018

Salary: Below $20,000

eJobs ID: 5077

University of Wisconsin, Madison

Rank: Wisconsin International Relations Fellowship

The Wisconsin International Relations Fellowship is a one year, non-renewable, post-doctoral fellowship. Candidates should have defended their dissertation by September 1, 2019. The fellowship is open to all subfields of international relations, including conflict and security, international political economy, institutions and global social issues such as migration and the environment. The Fellow would be expected to teach one course for graduate students related to their dissertation or broader area of expertise, and participate in the intellectual life of the department by attending the International Relations Colloquium and other events.

To apply, please send a cover letter, research statement, current CV, chapter or article length writing sample, and three letters of recommendation to the contact address below.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: 1/1/2019

Date Posted: 10/26/2018

Salary: $40,000 - $49,999

eJobs ID: 5073

Yale University

Rank: Post Doctoral Fellowship in Political Economy

Subfield(s): International Relations, Political Theory, Comparative Politics

The Leitner Program in International and Comparative Political Economy at Yale invites applications for a post-doctoral position for AY 2019-2020. Candidates must have a robust research program in political economy, broadly construed, and must have completed their Ph.D. by the time of appointment.

The post-doctoral fellow will teach one course during the year, either in the Fall or the Spring semester, pursue their own research, and participate in the activities of the Leitner program. Fellows are expected to be in residence from August 2019 to May 2020. Compensation is competitive, and includes benefits and health coverage.

To apply, send a cover letter, CV, research statement and a draft of a syllabus of a course you propose to teach at Yale. You'll also need to have three letters of recommendation submitted on your behalf.

All information from the applicant should be submitted electronically through Interfolio: apply.interfolio.com/55450

For questions, please contact Ms. Hira Jafri, Assistant Director of Global Programs, Leitner Program in International and Comparative Political Economy, The Whitney and Betty MacMillan Center for International and Area Studies, 34 Hillhouse Avenue, P.O. Box 208206 New Haven, CT 06520-8206 USA. Email: leitner@yale.edu

For details on the Leitner program, please consult the website: <https://leitner.yale.edu/>

We will begin accepting applications immediately with review beginning on Thursday, December 13, 2018 and continuing until the selections are final.

Start Date: Summer 2019

Application Deadline: 12/13/2018

Date Posted: 10/26/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 5075

George Washington University

Rank: Assistant or Associate Professor of Ethics and International Affairs

Subfield(s): International Relations, Political Theory, Comparative Politics

The Elliott School of International Affairs at the George Washington University invites applications for a tenure track appointment to begin as early as Fall 2019. The successful applicant will teach graduate and undergraduate courses on ethics and international affairs, including discussions of practical events and ethical challenges as they unfold in a broad range of substantive areas of international affairs; conduct research, produce scholarship and policy analysis in ethics and international affairs; and engage with the broader academic and policy communities. This appointment is at the assistant or associate professor level and will be affiliated with the Elliott School's Leadership, Ethics and Practice initiative. The successful candidate will also have an appointment either in the Political Science or Philosophy Department. Salary and rank are commensurate with experience.

Minimum qualifications: Applicants must have a doctorate in philosophy or political science (or a relevant disciplinary or interdisciplinary field) at time of appointment. Applicants should have a promising research agenda as demonstrated by publications, presentations or works in progress; promise of excellence in teaching as demonstrated by student evaluations, peer reviews, or supervisor's comments; and an interest in policy issues demonstrated by a teaching and research statement, publications or presentations that will support the mission of the Leadership, Ethics and Practice initiative and the Elliott School.

Application procedure: To apply, please complete an online faculty application at <https://www.gwu.jobs/postings/57049>, upload a cover letter that explains how your qualifications and experiences satisfy the basic qualifications for this position, a CV, sample publication (if available), teaching evaluations or assessments (if available), and course syllabi (to be included in the 'Other Documents' section, if available). In addition, please send at least three letters of recommendation to esiafac@gwu.edu or Faculty Affairs, 1957 E Street NW, Suite 401, Washington, DC 20052. Review of applications will begin November 26, 2018 and will continue until the position is filled. Only completed applications will be considered.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 10/25/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 5072

Georgetown University

Rank: Twentieth-Century History of Southeast and/or South Asian History (open rank)

The Edmund A. Walsh School of Foreign Service at Georgetown University invites applications for an open-rank, tenure-line position in the history of twentieth-century Southeast Asia and/or South Asia. Research and teaching interests may focus on any geographical area within Southeast or South Asia but specialization within the long twentieth century (roughly 1850-present) is preferred. The search committee welcomes applications from candidates at the full or associate professor rank as well as recent Ph.D.s and those who expect their Ph.D. by time of appointment. The teaching load is two courses per semester, and the successful candidate may teach at the undergraduate and graduate (M.A. and Ph.D.) levels.

To apply, please submit a cover letter, curriculum vitae, a representative writing sample, three letters of recommendation, and if possible, evidence of teaching record (syllabi, course evaluations, etc.). All applications and supporting materials must be submitted through the following link <https://academicjobsonline.org/ajo/jobs/11883>. Faxed, emailed, or mailed applications will not be accepted.

Applications accepted immediately with review beginning on November 15, and preliminary interviews will be held at the annual meeting of the American Historical Association in Chicago in January 2019.

Questions about the online application should be directed to Sarah Albro Nebbeling, Manager of Faculty Affairs at ska60@georgetown.edu. Questions about the position should be directed to Dr. Carol A. Benedict, Dr. Sun Yat-Sen Professor of China Studies at benedicc@georgetown.edu.

Georgetown University is an Equal Opportunity, Affirmative Action Employer fully dedicated to achieving a diverse faculty and staff. All qualified candidates are encouraged to apply and will receive consideration for employment without regard to race, sex, sexual orientation, age, religion, national origin, marital status, veteran status, disability or other categories protected by law.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: 11/15/2018

Date Posted: 10/25/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 5068

University of Alabama, Tuscaloosa

Rank: Assistant Professor of International Relations

The Department of Political Science invites applications at the Assistant Professor (tenure-track) level in International Relations beginning August 16, 2019 with a focus in international law. We welcome applications from scholars using any combination of positivist, normative, critical, formal, or interpretive methods and working on topics on global governance, such as international humanitarian law, human rights, law of armed conflict, environmental issues, international legal history, and indigenous sovereignty.

A completed Ph.D. in political science is required for appointment at the level of Assistant Professor. The successful candidate should have a strong research agenda with a clear plan for peer-reviewed scholarly publications. The candidate would also be expected to take an active role in the department's graduate program. The University of Alabama is a student-centered research university and the flagship campus of the University of Alabama system. B.A., M.A., and Ph.D. degrees are offered in Political Science. To apply, go to <https://facultyjobs.ua.edu/postings/44111> and complete the online application. Attach a letter of application, curriculum vitae, research statement, samples of publications and papers, and teaching evaluations, if available. Applicants should also upload a transcript of graduate work and send three letters of recommendation directly to: International Relations Search Committee, Department of Political Science, The University of Alabama, Box 870213, Tuscaloosa, AL 35487-0213, or via email at apatrack@ua.edu (please state position in email). For more information, contact Karl DeRouen, Jr., Search Committee Chair, at kderouen@ua.edu. We will begin reviewing applications on November 30, 2018, and will continue until the position is filled. The University of Alabama is an Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action employer, and actively seeks diversity among its employees. Women and minorities are encouraged to apply.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 10/25/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 5071

University of Texas at Dallas

Rank: Assistant Professor

The School of Economic, Political, and Policy Sciences at The University of Texas at Dallas (UTD) invites applications for a tenure-track assistant professor position beginning in August of 2019 in the Political Science Program. The scholarly topic of interest is civil conflict. The successful candidate will be expected to teach both undergraduate and graduate courses. Possible specializations might include: nationalism, political violence, ethnic conflict, state violence, terrorism, civil war, and related phenomena. PhD by the time of employment is expected.

UTD is a fast-growing, suburban research university with undergraduate, Master's and PhD programs in Political Science. We have approximately 60 graduate students and 250 undergraduate majors. The University of Texas at Dallas has the highest freshman SAT scores of any public University in Texas and was recently ranked 1st among the 100 best universities in the world under 50 years old by Times Higher Education magazine. Further, UT Dallas is now considered an R1 university by the Carnegie Commission on Higher Education.

Faculty typically teach two courses per semester, and opportunities for leave become available after a successful third-year review.

Ideal candidates will demonstrate their ability to contribute to existing program strengths in quantitative methods and teaching excellence. Review of applications will begin November 1st and continue until the position is filled. Applicants should upload a cover letter, curriculum vitae, evidence of teaching effectiveness, and the full contact information for at least three professional references.

Go here to apply: <http://jobs.utdallas.edu/postings/11072>

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 10/25/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 5064

KDI School of Public Policy and Management

Rank: Job Openings for Tenure-track Professor (Open Rank)

About the KDI School

The KDI School of Public Policy and Management is a graduate school of policy studies founded in 1997 with the support of the Korean government and the educational arm of the KDI, the nation's most respected economic think tank. KDI has consistently contributed to the government's policy making and implementation, and based on KDI's four decade long research and development consulting experience, our school has been educating public officials and private sector managers from around the globe by providing strategic tools to deal with the growing complexities of the modern world.

As part of the government's policy, the KDI School relocated its campus to Sejong City, the new administrative center. With this new proximity to government agencies and research institutes in the area, we expect to enjoy various benefits ranging from the calm, pleasant living environment to the great synergies achieved through interdisciplinary collaborations.

The KDI School is committed to establishing a dynamic framework for knowledge-sharing, where outstanding teaching and research can directly support the balanced, sustainable growth in the developing world. To this aim we provide a work environment conducive to academic creativity, offering financial support for research and subsidizing trips to overseas conferences. The school provides relocation assistance and faculty housings on a request and availability basis. All Courses are taught in English.

Position Description

The KDI School of Public Policy and Management seeks applications for a tenure-track faculty position from those with expertise in the areas of either, Innovation / Technology Policy and Management, Environmental Policy and Sustainable Development, Regional Development, International Political Economy / International Relations. Candidates from economics, public policy, political science, or other closely related fields are invited to apply. Successful candidates should demonstrate a strong potential for research and teaching performance, and can contribute to and benefit from an interdisciplinary environment and interact with colleagues of other fields of social science in our school.

Available Fields

- Innovation / Technology Policy and Management
- Environmental Policy and Sustainable Development

- Regional Development
- International Political Economy / International Relations

Job Qualifications

An applicant must have a Ph.D. or should be expecting to receive one by September 2019 or 2020 in one of the above-mentioned academic fields.

Application Deadline

All application materials must arrive by December 10, 2018(Korean Standard Time).

Application Requirements

Submit applications electronically to recruit@kdis.ac.kr. Please include;

1. Curriculum vitae
2. Cover letter (specify field you're applying for)
3. Research papers (one or two recent working papers or publications)
4. Three letters of recommendation should be sent directly to the School by the referees.

Contact Information

Mr. Dongwan Kang, Personnel Division, KDI School of Public Policy and Management

Address: 263 Namsejong-ro, Sejong, 30149, Korea

(E-mail: dw_kang@kdischool.ac.kr, Tel: 82-44-550-1255, Fax: 82-44-550-1231)

Start Date:

Application Deadline: 12/10/2018

Date Posted: 10/24/2018

Salary: Any

eJobs ID: 5060

University of Baltimore

Rank: Assistant Professor (Tenure-Track) Global Affairs and Human Security

Assistant Professor (Tenure-Track) Global Affairs and Human Security

College of Public Affairs

University of Baltimore

Vacancy Number 300916

Faculty position with benefits package

Salary: Commensurate with qualifications

Application review begins on January 29, 2019, and the position is open until filled. Electronic applications are required. Before applying, please save all of the documents the academic team requires so your documents can be attached to your application before it is submitted. Document requirements are shown below.

The School of Public and International Affairs, in the College of Public Affairs, invites applications for a tenure-track assistant professor faculty position to begin in August 2019 (contingent on final budget approval). The successful candidate will be expected to teach in the M.A. program in Global Affairs and Human Security. There will also be the possibility of teaching in the undergraduate program in Policy, Politics, and International Affairs.

Competitive applicants will be able to contribute expertise related to international organizations, human security and/or sustainable development. A faculty hire whose work focuses on the developing world (particularly, Africa or Latin America) will be given preference, particularly if she/he has experience in one or more of the above content areas. Experience mentoring students through their master's thesis or capstone will also be considered highly valuable. Evidence of teaching effectiveness and/ or course development related to international organizations or human security will be viewed favorably. The position is contingent upon final budget approval.

Candidates for this position must hold a Ph.D. or equivalent degree at the time of appointment in international development, international relations, political science, economics, public administration, public policy, or a related field of study.

Applicants should have a record of scholarly achievement that merits appointment at the assistant professor level, a record of scholarly achievement appropriate to success on the tenure-track, and demonstrate the potential for quality instruction. The position requires traditional classroom instruction at the graduate level and may also involve some undergraduate and/or online instruction. Salary is competitive and commensurate with experience.

The successful candidate will be joining growing graduate programs in Global Affairs and Human Security, an applied cross-disciplinary masters program in the School of Public and International Affairs.

The 36-credit cross-disciplinary M.A. in Global Affairs and Human Security is designed to give students an opportunity to explore international issues related to good governance, sustainable development, transnational problem-solving and the promotion of human security. The program is designed to prepare students for careers in the non-profit and public sectors and with supranational organizations.

The School of Public and International Affairs (SPIA), within which the program is housed, has twenty full-time faculty members with advanced degrees from an array of distinguished universities, including Harvard, Johns Hopkins, Syracuse, UC-Berkley, Columbia, and George Washington University, and George Mason University. Three faculty members are Fellows in the National Academy of Public Administration and one is a Fulbright Scholar. The School is home to a nationally accredited Master of Public Administration (MPA) program.

The University of Baltimore, located in downtown Baltimore, is part of the University System of Maryland. The School of Public and International Affairs at the University of Baltimore offers Bachelor's degrees in Policy, Politics, and International Affairs, the Master and Doctor of Public Administration degrees, the Masters degree in Negotiation and Conflict Management, and the Masters Degree in Global Affairs and Human Security. Interested applicants are encouraged to visit our web site for more information about the College of Public Affairs and the School of Public and International Affairs at www.ubalt.edu/cpa.

Applicants are asked to submit a letter of interest, curriculum vita, and a list of three references who may be asked for letters of recommendation. Review of applicant materials will begin on January 28, 2019 and will continue until the search is completed. Visit <http://www.ubalt.edu/about-ub/offices-and-services/human-resources/jobs-at-ub.cfm?type=fac&posting=1356> to access our electronic application and instructions for attaching all required documents to your application.

Start Date:Application Deadline: Open until FilledDate Posted: 10/24/2018Salary: CompetitiveeJobs ID: 5061Georgia State University*Rank: Assistant/Associate Professor

Georgia State University anticipates hiring a tenure-track hire at the assistant/associate rank in cyber security to begin Fall 2019, pending budgetary approval. Ph.D. required. Recognizing that non-state and state sponsored actors now seek to destroy, incapacitate, or exploit infrastructures to threaten national security, we are seeking a faculty member with an active research program in the means and methodologies of how such groups expand their power and influence through attacks in and through the online environment. The targeted hire should bring expertise in discerning patterns in malevolent hacker behavior, identifying sources of online propaganda, and/or detecting and developing profiles for insider threat. Competitive candidates should ideally be able to demonstrate evidence of effort in attracting grant, contract or other extramural funding.

The hire will join an interdisciplinary team of Georgia State scholars working on Transcultural Conflict and Violent Extremism (TCVE), with their home department negotiable. TCVE brings together scholars from Anthropology, Communication Studies, Computer Science, Global Studies, Political Science, Psychology, and Religious Studies, and a dozen, competitively selected, Presidential Ph.D. Fellows to better understand the causes and solutions regarding conflict and violent extremism happening around the globe. Our team has received support for its research program from DOJ, DHS, the British Foreign Council, NSF, NIJ, and the Department of Defense, among others.

To apply, candidates should send a letter of interest, curriculum vita, and three letters of reference to Carol Winkler, Chair of the Cyber Security Search Committee, Department of Communication, P.O. Box 5060, Georgia State University, Atlanta, GA 30302-5060. Materials sent to cwinkler@gsu.edu will also be accepted. Candidate review will begin November 15, 2018 and remain open until position is filled. Georgia State University, a Title III and Title V institution located in downtown Atlanta, GA, is an Equal Opportunity Employer and does not discriminate against applicants due to race, ethnicity, gender, veteran status, or on the basis of disability or any other federal, state or local protected class.

Start Date: Fall 2019Application Deadline: Open until FilledDate Posted: 10/23/2018Salary: CompetitiveeJobs ID: 5056Randolph College*Rank: Assistant Professor of Political Science

The Political Science Department at Randolph College invites applications for a full time, tenure track assistant professor of political science with a primary focus in international relations and a secondary focus in a subfield other than American politics or public law. The position currently carries a 3-3 teaching load and includes responsibility for the college's Model UN course and program. Date of employment is July 1, 2019; report date is in mid-August.

The hired candidate will be expected to teach a range of introductory through advanced undergraduate courses in international relations as well as a course in research methods. The ideal candidate would also be able to offer specialized courses in security studies and/or focusing on a region other than East Asia.

Located in the shadow of the Blue Ridge Mountains in Lynchburg, Virginia, Randolph College, founded in 1891 as Randolph-Macon Woman's College, is a traditional small liberal arts college with a longstanding reputation for excellence in teaching and an appreciation for and commitment to diversity. The successful applicant must be committed to excellent undergraduate teaching in the liberal arts tradition and hold a PhD at the time of appointment or be ABD with an impending date of defense. Randolph is an EOE M/F/D/V employer.

Please submit: (1) cover letter; (2) cv; (3) graduate transcripts; (4) writing sample; (5) evidence of teaching effectiveness (evaluations, materials, and/or statement of teaching philosophy); and (6) three letters of recommendation. Applications are due November 30. Email materials to polisci@randolphcollege.edu.

Start Date: Summer 2019

Application Deadline: 11/30/2018

Date Posted: 10/23/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 5054

RISD

Rank: Assistant Professor in Environmental Studies

Subfield(s): International Relations, Comparative Politics, Public Policy

Position Description

The Department of History, Philosophy and the Social Sciences (HPSS) at the Rhode Island School of Design (RISD) invites applications for a full-time Assistant Professor in Environmental Studies starting in the fall of 2019.

Rhode Island School of Design recognizes diversity and inclusivity as fundamental to its learning community and integral to an art and design education. We welcome candidates whose experience in teaching, scholarship, or service has prepared them to contribute to our commitment to diversity and excellence.

We are seeking a scholar whose work speaks to the social dynamics inherent in environmental and sustainability issues, and has an interest in the ways that art and design intersect with socio-environmental issues. The ideal candidate has specialty in political ecology, environmental racism and environmental justice, environmental ethics, technology and nature, philosophy of nature, and/or possible expertise in GIS and other forms of mapping. We welcome colleagues whose work engages with historically underrepresented communities. All candidates should demonstrate evidence of quality teaching. The successful candidate will be expected to contribute to the undergraduate Nature-Culture-Sustainability Studies (NCSS) concentration and to the newly developed Nature-Culture-Sustainability Studies Master's degree.

Department /RISD Description

RISD is an undergraduate and graduate college of art and design with approximately 2,400 students, 2000 of whom are undergraduates. HPSS is a multidisciplinary department within the Division of Liberal Arts. Our students are art and design majors who take one third of their courses in the Liberal Arts. RISD offers unique opportunities for collaborative research and teaching with faculty and students in art and design disciplines (e.g., industrial design, apparel, textiles, architecture, film, etc.).

RISD supports faculty professional practice with sabbaticals, pre-critical review leave, conference funds, and professional development grants. RISD has a critical review process, which is very similar to the tenure process. For more information about RISD and to apply online, please visit www.risd.edu/jobs.

Faculty Responsibilities

Full-time faculty in the HPSS Department teach 6 courses a year, including both undergraduate and graduate seminars (capped at 15), lecture courses (capped at 30), and first year seminar courses (capped at 21). In addition to teaching, fulltime faculty are expected to serve on college committees, advise students, participate in curriculum development and other departmental activities and projects, and contribute to the vibrancy of the intellectual life of the college. We seek candidates who demonstrate quality undergraduate teaching, can teach broadly in their field, and represent various aspects of their discipline within the department.

Union Yes Pre-employment Requirement

The successful candidate will be required to meet our pre-employment background screening requirements.

Special Instructions to Applicants

Please attach the following to the appropriate links and the section labeled "Documents Needed to Apply":

- 1) a cover letter including an expression of interest
- 2) curriculum vitae
- 3) a research statement (attach to tab labeled "Other 1")
- 4) an example of scholarly work (attach to tab labeled "Writing Sample")
- 5) a statement of teaching philosophy (that speaks to how you attend to diversity and inclusivity as fundamental to a learning community and provides evidence of teaching excellence)
- 6) a list of potential course descriptions (attach to tab labeled "Course Proposal")
- 7) at least one example syllabus

If you are selected as a semi-finalist, we will require letters of recommendation from your three references.

Review of applications will begin immediately and continue until the position is filled. Candidates who submit their materials by November 18, 2018 are assured full consideration.

EEO Statement

RISD is an Equal Opportunity Employer. Employment decisions are made without regard to race, color, religion, sex, age, national origin, disability, veteran status, sexual orientation, gender identity or expression, genetics, or any other protected characteristic as established by law.

Required Qualifications

The suitable candidate will have undergraduate teaching experience and a broad background in environmental social sciences and/or humanities. Candidates should have completed a Ph.D. in an appropriate field of the environmental social sciences or humanities (e.g., environmental studies, geography, sociology, philosophy, psychology, or other relevant disciplines) by July 1, 2019.

Apply Here: <http://www.Click2Apply.net/swv7hhrcn98hn4xm>

PI105004090

Start Date: Fall 2019

Date Posted: 10/23/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 5052

University of Texas, Rio Grande Valley

Rank: Latin American Politics/Political Economy (Open Rank)

Specializations: Latin American, Mexico, Political Economy

The Department of Political Science at the University of Texas Rio Grande Valley invites applications for a full-time tenured or tenure-track faculty member in Latin American politics and/or Latin American political economy to begin September 1, 2019. The department is particularly interested in applicants with teaching interests and a research agenda in any of the following areas: Government & Politics of Mexico, US-Mexico border relations, and the politics or political economy of various Latin American nations/regions. The department is open to a wide variety of approaches, including qualitative, quantitative, comparative, institutional, and historical methods. The position continues the department's effort to build an undergraduate and graduate program that develops interdisciplinary strength anchored in the concepts and methods of political science, while simultaneously crossing disciplinary boundaries to incorporate topics, concepts, and methods utilized outside of political science. The successful candidate will teach upper-division and graduate level courses in their areas of substantive specialization and required lower-division courses in U.S. Federal Government & Politics and/or Texas Government and Politics. The successful candidate will contribute to the vision of creating a bilingual, bicultural institution on the Texas-Mexico border that serves as a gateway to the Americas.

To apply, go to: <https://careers.utrgv.edu/postings/search>

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: 1/14/2019

Date Posted: 10/23/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 5040

Arizona State University

Rank: Assistant Professor Political Psychology

Assistant Professor (Job#12631)

School of Politics and Global Studies

Arizona State University

The School of Politics and Global Studies at Arizona State University (Tempe) invites applications for a full-time, tenure-track assistant professor beginning August 2019. We are interested in candidates whose research and teaching focus is on political psychology, broadly defined. Candidates with expertise in the intersection of politics and psychology from any subfield of political science or from other disciplines, such as psychology, are encouraged to apply.

We are open with respect to theoretical orientation, substantive focus, and methodological approaches. Position duties include teaching courses in political psychology at both the undergraduate and graduate levels; advising and mentoring graduate and undergraduate students; developing an active research agenda; and providing service to the department, college, and university. In particular, we see this position contributing to the development of a new online MA in Political Psychology in conjunction with the Department of Psychology.

Minimum Qualifications: candidates must hold a Ph.D. in Political Science or related discipline by time of appointment; have published in refereed outlets; evidence of promise in and commitment to undergraduate and graduate teaching, including online delivery.

Desired qualifications: demonstrated success meeting the needs of diverse student populations and/or reaching out to diverse communities; the ability to teach advanced statistical methods, particularly at the graduate level; a clear record of publishing in top journals and/or top university presses, demonstrated potential to establish a strong, externally-funded research program.

The application deadline is December 10, 2018; if not filled, then every two weeks thereafter until the search is closed. A complete application must include the following: a letter of application stating qualifications, experience, research plans, and teaching interests; a complete curriculum vita; a writing sample, and contact information for three references. Candidates are expected to have a Ph.D. degree completed by August 1, 2019.

All application materials must be received by the deadline and sent to <https://academicjobsonline.org/ajo/jobs/12501>. We will not accept any mailed applicant material, including reference letters; this is an online, paperless search. A background check is required for employment. Please contact Richard Herrera, richard.herrera@asu.edu, if you have any questions about the search.

The School of Politics and Global Studies (SPGS) values interdisciplinary scholarship, and the successful candidate will have the opportunity to affiliate and collaborate with other departments, schools and centers at Arizona State University. Candidates who can make use of our experimental laboratories are particularly encouraged to apply.

Arizona State University is a VEVRAA Federal Contractor and an Equal Opportunity/ Affirmative Action Employer. All qualified applicants will be considered without regard to race, color, sex, religion, national origin, disability, protected veteran status, or any other basis protected by law. ASU's full non-discrimination statement (ACD 401) is located on the ASU website at <https://www.asu.edu/aad/manuals/acd/acd401html> and <https://www.asu.edu/titleIX>.

Start Date:

Application Deadline: 12/10/2018

Date Posted: 10/22/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 5047

Embry-Riddle Aeronautical University

Rank: Assistant or Associate Professor of Intelligence Studies

Assistant or Associate Professor of Intelligence Studies, Fall 2019

Embry-Riddle's College of Security and Intelligence, in Prescott, Arizona, invites applications for a tenure-track assistant or associate professor of intelligence studies, pending final budgetary approval and beginning on August 15, 2019. The search is open to candidates of any topical, regional, or functional expertise. The successful candidate will teach three (3) courses per semester, including introductory courses and upper-level undergraduate and graduate courses in his or her area of specialization. In addition to teaching, the successful candidate will maintain a active record of scholarly and/or applied research, mentor student research (such as undergraduate and graduate theses), and serve on academic governance committees.

Required: Doctoral degree in hand by time of appointment in a discipline related to intelligence studies, including but not limited to history, anthropology, political science, government, sociology, economics, public policy, or legal studies.

Review of applications will begin the week November 19 and will continue until the position is filled. For further information or to apply, please submit a cover letter, CV, list of three (3) references, and one article- or chapter-length writing sample to

Dr. Thomas C. Field Jr.
Chair, Department of Intelligence Studies and Global Affairs
Embry-Riddle College of Security and Intelligence
3700 Willow Creek Road
Prescott, AZ 86301
(928) 777-6978
thomas.field@erau.edu

Home of Embry-Riddle's degree programs in security and intelligence studies, the College of Security and Intelligence houses fifteen faculty members from a wide array of academic disciplines and professional backgrounds. Currently educating over five hundred (500) security and intelligence students at both the undergraduate and graduate levels, the College boasts high placement rates, with alumni now working in security and intelligence organizations across private sector, in government, and in the military. Balancing research and teaching excellence, the College maintains low student/faculty ratios. It is located in mile-high Prescott, Arizona, two hours north of (and twenty degrees cooler than) metropolitan Phoenix.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 10/22/2018

Salary: Any

eJobs ID: 5050

International Crisis Group / Princeton University Rank: Postdoctoral Fellowship on the Economics of Conflict

The International Crisis Group (Crisis Group) and the Empirical Studies of Conflict Project (ESOC) seek applicants for a Postdoctoral Fellowship position. This position provides the opportunity to work closely with Crisis Group experts and ESOC academic researchers. The fellowship will entail policy research and analysis, and engagement with policymakers and other conflict actors to prevent, resolve or better manage deadly conflict; it also will involve long-term empirical research on the economic and political drivers of conflict. The fellow will contribute directly to Crisis Group reports. We are particularly interested in how conflict relates to natural resource extraction, though we will consider a focus on other thematic issues as well. We are open to geographic focuses on the countries/regions Crisis Group covers across Africa, Asia, Europe, Latin America and the Middle East (see www.crisisgroup.org).

The fellow will be primarily based in one of Crisis Group's offices in New York, DC or London - with travel as needed for the field research -- or in a Crisis Group regional office as appropriate based on geographic focus area. In addition, the fellow will regularly visit ESOC members relevant to their research and actively collaborate with a multi-university team of scholars who are conducting cutting edge research on the causes and consequences of politically motivated conflict through the production, aggregation, and dissemination of high-resolution data on historical and current conflicts.

Requirements

We seek candidates with exceptional potential to thrive in a demanding policy role while advancing their own cutting edge research. Candidates should be on track to complete a PhD in economics, political science, public policy or a related discipline by June 2019, or have recently completed their PhD. Preference will be given to scholars with a successful track record of international field research and econometric analysis in the areas of political violence, governance, or development, and demonstrated experience and interest in policy analysis. Relevant language skills and regional experience will be taken into account. Past fellowship recipients include Mica Sviatschi (Assistant Professor, Princeton Economics), Renard Sexton (Assistant Professor, Emory Political Science - 2019) and Ceren Baysan (Assistant Professor, Essex Economics - 2019).

Applications should include a letter of introduction of no more than 3 pages, a CV, and contact information for three references. The cover letter should address both regional and thematic interests.

A competitive salary, commensurate with experience, and excellent benefits will be offered. The start date is negotiable but no sooner than 1 April 2019.

Applicants can apply online at <http://jobs.crisisgroup.org/o/international-crisis-group-and-empirical-studies-of-conflict-project-postdoctoral-fellowship-on-the-economics-of-conflict>.

Screening of applications will begin on November 1 and continue on a rolling basis until the position is filled. All applications must be received by 1 February 2019.

Potential applicants unfamiliar with ESOC's research program are welcome to contact Assistant Professor Tarek Ghani (tghani@wustl.edu) or Professor Jacob N. Shapiro (jns@princeton.edu) with questions and to visit <http://esoc.princeton.edu/> to learn more.

Start Date: Spring 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 10/22/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 5048

Massachusetts Institute of Technology

Rank: Stanton Nuclear Security Fellow

NUCLEAR SECURITY FELLOWS PROGRAM

The Security Studies Program at MIT invites applications for fellows in the field of nuclear security. Fellowships are available for pre-doctoral and post-doctoral scholars and for junior faculty. Fellows are expected to produce policy-relevant research, including book manuscripts, draft articles, dissertations, chapters in edited volumes, or reports. Nuclear security is defined broadly to include nuclear terrorism, nuclear proliferation and nonproliferation, nuclear weapons, nuclear doctrine and force structure, nuclear energy as it relates to nuclear security, and other topics that involve nuclear security. The deadline for applications is 10 January 2019. Application forms (and further information about eligibility requirements) are available at <https://ssp.mit.edu/about/nuclear-security-fellows-program>. Applications, along with any further questions should be submitted by post or email to: Fellowship Coordinator, Security Studies Program, MIT, Bldg. E40, 4th Floor, 77 Massachusetts Ave, Cambridge, MA 02139

(email: ssp-fellowships@mit.edu). MIT is an AA/EO employer and encourages applications from women and minority candidates.

Start Date: Summer 2019
Application Deadline: 1/10/2019
Date Posted: 10/22/2018
Salary: Competitive
eJobs ID: 5043

Massachusetts Institute of Technology

Rank: Stanton Nuclear Security Fellow

NUCLEAR SECURITY FELLOWS PROGRAM

The Security Studies Program at MIT invites applications for fellows in the field of nuclear security. Fellowships are available for pre-doctoral and post-doctoral scholars and for junior faculty. Fellows are expected to produce policy-relevant research, including book manuscripts, draft articles, dissertations, chapters in edited volumes, or reports. Nuclear security is defined broadly to include nuclear terrorism, nuclear proliferation and nonproliferation, nuclear weapons, nuclear doctrine and force structure, nuclear energy as it relates to nuclear security, and other topics that involve nuclear security. The deadline for applications is 10 January 2019. Application forms (and further information about eligibility requirements) are available at <https://ssp.mit.edu/about/nuclear-security-fellows-program>. Applications, along with any further questions should be submitted by post or email to: Fellowship Coordinator, Security Studies Program, MIT, Bldg. E40, 4th Floor, 77 Massachusetts Ave, Cambridge, MA 02139 (email: ssp-fellowships@mit.edu). MIT is an AA/EO employer and encourages applications from women and minority candidates.

Start Date: Fall 2019
Date Posted: 10/22/2018
Salary: Competitive
eJobs ID: 5044

SUNY, Geneseo

Rank: Assistant Professor of Political Science

Specializations: International Political Economy, Quantitative Methods, International Political Economy

The Department of Political Science and International Relations at SUNY Geneseo invites applicants for a tenure-track, assistant professor position, to begin August of 2019.

Our priority is teaching excellence. We seek someone with a strong commitment to teaching in a liberal arts setting, a scholar who is prepared to teach undergraduate courses on International Political Economy, Social Science Research Methods, an introductory course in either International Politics or Comparative Politics, and upper division courses in Comparative Politics or International Politics. Responsibilities include academic advising and mentoring of students, establishing and completing a program of research and publication in Political Science, service to college, community and discipline. Candidates should hold a Ph.D. in Political Science by the time of appointment in August 2019. Candidates must possess the demonstrated expertise necessary to teach International Political Economy and social science research methods, and other undergraduate courses in political science. Candidates should also have the potential for scholarly contributions in political science. Finally, candidates should possess a commitment and ability to work effectively with a diverse group of students, faculty, staff, and constituents in support of campus and department mission.

Applicants should be prepared to upload a cover letter, a CV, and additional materials that speak to their teaching effectiveness. The cover letter should address teaching philosophy, interests and plans for establishing a research program. In addition, applicants should be prepared to supply contact information (email address) for three references. References will be contacted and invited to submit letters of recommendation at the time of application. Please submit materials at <https://jobs.geneseo.edu/postings/2380>

Review of completed applications will begin upon receipt. To be guaranteed consideration, applications must be completed by November 22, 2018. The search committee anticipates conducting initial interviews by telephone/Skype in January or February 2019.

Start Date: Fall 2019
Application Deadline: Open until Filled
Date Posted: 10/22/2018
Salary: Competitive
eJobs ID: 5046

Princeton University

Rank: Fung Global Fellows Program - Early Career Scholar Fellowship

Subfield(s): Comparative Politics, International Relations, Other

Princeton University is pleased to announce the call for applications to the Fung Global Fellows Program at the Princeton Institute for International and Regional Studies (PIIRS). The program will select early-career scholars from around the world to be in residence at Princeton for an academic year and to engage in research and discussion around a common theme. The number of candidates hired at this rank will depend on the qualifications of the overall applicant pools. The fellowships will be awarded to scholars employed outside the United States who have a faculty appointment, a professional research appointment, or are an established independent scholar. They will also be expected to return to their positions at the conclusion of the fellowship. Lastly, they must have demonstrated outstanding scholarly achievement and unusual intellectual promise.

During the academic year 2019-20, the Fung Global Fellows Program theme will be "Thinking Globally." How people have thought about the planet has informed the institutions, norms, and policies that have pulled it together and torn it apart. For centuries, ideas of free trade, human rights or global governance have framed cooperation and competition, order and disorder. Such ideas have also spawned border-crossing movements, from campaigns to end slavery to commitments to reduce carbon emissions. In turn, global thinking and action have often reinforced commitments to national ideas and efforts to curb global exchange. The goal of this research theme is to explore how ideas framed the understanding of interests and the making of institutions that have yielded commonness and conflict across and within borders. We also want to understand how these ideas and practices came into being through scientific networks, foundations, and think tanks. The Program will also examine rival world ideas that have challenged prevailing orthodoxies. Nowadays, with cooperative norms under challenge, global institutions under stress, and a century of guiding ideas about global convergence in doubt, we want to take a broad look at where these ideas came from, their effects, and the prospects for intellectual renewal or rethinking. The goal of the 2019-20 Fung Global Fellows cohort will be to explore the ways people learned to rely on or to reject strangers far away, as well as to imagine how global relationships came to be and could be different. We welcome applicants from all disciplinary and inter-disciplinary fields from the sciences to the humanities whose work addresses this set of themes in any historical period or world region.

Applicants must apply online at <https://www.princeton.edu/acad-positions/position/9481>.

Applications are due by November 20, 2018 (11:59 p.m. EST). To be eligible, applicants must have received their Ph.D. or equivalent no earlier than September 1, 2009. Fellowships will be awarded on the strength of a candidate's proposed research project, the relationship of the project to the program theme, the candidate's scholarly record and ability to contribute to the intellectual life of the program. For more information on eligibility requirements and the Fung Global Fellows Program see <http://piirs.princeton.edu/funggf/>.

The following items will need to be submitted by the applicant, in English:

- Cover letter (1.5 pages maximum)
- Curriculum Vitae (including publications)
- Research proposal (maximum of 3 pages, single spaced)
- One writing sample (article or book chapter, maximum of 50 pages)
- An official letter from the applicant's current employer affirming that, should an offer be made, the applicant would be permitted to accept it and to spend the academic year 2019-2020 at Princeton University
- The names and email addresses for three referees, who will be contacted with an invitation to upload their letter of recommendation to the online application system

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: 11/20/2018

Date Posted: 10/19/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 5042

Princeton University

Rank: Fung Global Fellows Program – Senior Scholar Fellowship
Subfield(s): Comparative Politics, International Relations, Other

Princeton University is pleased to announce the call for applications to the Fung Global Fellows Program at the Princeton Institute for International and Regional Studies (PIIRS). The program will select senior scholars from around the world to be in residence at Princeton between three to ten months during the 2019-2020 academic year to engage in research and discussion around a common theme. The number of candidates hired at this rank will depend on the qualifications of the overall applicant pools. The fellowship will be awarded to senior scholars employed outside the United States who have received their doctorate before 2009. They must have a faculty appointment, a professional research appointment, or be an established independent scholar in the designated theme of the program, and have exhibited unusual intellectual promise. Senior candidates will be expected to return to their position after the conclusion of the fellowship.

During the academic year 2019-20, the Fung Global Fellows Program theme will be "Thinking Globally." How people have thought about the planet has informed the institutions, norms, and policies that have pulled it together and torn it apart. For centuries, ideas of free trade, human rights or global governance have framed cooperation and competition, order and disorder. Such ideas have also spawned border-crossing movements, from campaigns to end slavery to commitments to reduce carbon emissions. In turn, global thinking and action have often reinforced commitments to national ideas and efforts to curb global exchange. The goal of this research theme is to explore how ideas framed the understanding of interests and the making of institutions that have yielded commonness and conflict across and within borders. We also want to understand how these ideas and practices came into being through scientific networks, foundations, and think tanks. The Program will also examine rival world ideas that have challenged prevailing orthodoxies. Nowadays, with cooperative norms under challenge, global institutions under stress, and a century of guiding ideas about global convergence in doubt, we want to take a broad look at where these ideas came from, their effects, and the prospects for intellectual renewal or rethinking. The goal of the 2019-20 Fung Global Fellows cohort will be to explore the ways people learned to rely on or to reject strangers far away, as well as to imagine how global relationships came to be and could be different. We welcome applicants from all disciplinary and inter-disciplinary fields from the sciences to the humanities whose work addresses this set of themes in any historical period or world region.

Applications are due by November 20, 2018 (11:59 p.m. EST). Fellowships will be awarded on the strength of a candidate's proposed research project, the relationship of the project to the program theme, the candidate's scholarly record and ability to contribute to the intellectual life of the program.

To apply please visit: <https://www.princeton.edu/acad-positions/position/9482>.

The following items will need to be submitted by the applicant, in English:

- Cover letter (1.5 pages maximum)
- Curriculum Vitae (including publications)
- Research proposal (maximum of 3 pages, single spaced)
- One writing sample (article or book chapter, maximum of 50 pages)
- An official letter from the applicant's current employer affirming that, should an offer be made, the applicant would be permitted to accept it and spend between three to ten months during the 2019-2020 academic year at Princeton University
- The names and email addresses for three referees, who will be contacted with an invitation to upload their letter of recommendation to the online application system

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: 11/20/2018

Date Posted: 10/19/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 5041

York University

Rank: Tenure-Stream Appointment - Open Rank, Open Field
Subfield(s): Comparative Politics, International Relations, Other

The Department of Politics, Faculty of Liberal Arts & Professional Studies invites applications for a tenure-track professorial-stream appointment in the critical study of politics at any professorial rank (Assistant Professor, Associate Professor, or Professor), to commence July 1, 2019.

A PhD in Political Science or a related discipline is required. Candidates must have significant professional experience, demonstrated excellence in teaching and in scholarly research, and have produced publications appropriate to their stage of career.

The Department of Politics is internationally recognized as one of the world's leading sites of political scholarship informed by a diverse range of critical intellectual approaches, and is seeking a dynamic intellectual leader to help advance that reputation and the scholarly excellence on which it is based. The successful candidate will be establishing, or already have established, an international reputation for the excellence of their contribution to the critical study of politics. Applicants should have an ongoing program of research and specialize in or, reflecting the interdisciplinary nature of the Department of Politics, across the five fields into which the Department is organized: Canadian Politics, Comparative Politics, International Relations (both International Political Economy and Security Studies), Political Theory, and Women and Politics. Their research should complement the present scholarly profile of the Department, and develop it in new and innovative ways. Candidates who would be competitive for nomination to the York Research Chairs program are encouraged to apply.

The successful candidate must be suitable for prompt appointment to the Faculty of Graduate Studies. The position will involve graduate teaching and supervision, as well as undergraduate teaching. The successful candidate should demonstrate an ability to attract high quality graduate students to work with them. Pedagogical innovation in high priority areas such as experiential education and technology enhanced learning is an asset.

Applicants should submit a signed letter of application outlining their professional experience and research interests, an up-to-date curriculum vitae, a sample of their scholarly writing (maximum 50 pp.), and a teaching dossier, and arrange for three signed confidential letters of recommendation to be sent to: Professor David Mutimer, Chair, Department of Politics, Email: polsjobs@yorku.ca (Subject line: Open Rank Search in Politics).

Self-Identification and Work Status Declaration forms may be found at: <http://acadjobs.info.yorku.ca/affirmative-action/>. Applicants wishing to self-identify can do so by downloading, completing and submitting the form. A declaration of work status is required.

The deadline for receipt of completed applications is November 12, 2018. Salary will be commensurate with qualifications and experience. All York University positions are subject to budgetary approval.

York University is an Affirmative Action (AA) employer and strongly values diversity, including gender and sexual diversity, within its community. The AA Program, which applies to Aboriginal people, visible minorities, people with disabilities, and women, can be found at <http://acadjobs.info.yorku.ca/> or by calling the AA office at 416-736-5713. All qualified candidates are encouraged to apply; however, Canadian citizens, Permanent Residents, and Indigenous peoples in Canada will be given priority.

Posting End Date: November 12, 2018

Start Date: Summer 2019

Application Deadline: 11/12/2018

Date Posted: 10/19/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 5036

The University of Texas at Austin

Rank: Postdoctoral Fellowship

The Clements Center for National Security at the University of Texas at Austin seeks applications from recent PhD recipients for its Postdoctoral Fellowship Program.

Consistent with the Clements Center's mission areas of history, strategy, and statecraft, applicants from all disciplines whose research bears directly on foreign and defense policy, intelligence, or international security are welcome to apply. However, strong preference will be given to applicants with a doctorate in history or whose research has a strong historical component (ancient or modern). Successful applicants will be able to spend the substantial portion of their time working on their own research and writing projects, while taking advantage of the many academic resources available at the University of Texas-Austin. Additionally, Fellows will be required to play an active role in the Clements Center's programs and activities; any specific responsibilities will be by mutual agreement between the Fellow and the Clements Center leadership. Fellows accepted to the program will be offered a competitive stipend, full use of UT facilities, and office space at the Clements Center. In some cases Fellows will be welcome to teach a course at the University of Texas. Each appointment is for one year, and in exceptional cases may be considered for renewal for a second year.

Applicants should submit a current c.v., a letter of application, graduate school transcripts, a brief (no more than two-page, single-spaced) statement of proposed research, and three letters of recommendation. Applications are due no later than February 4, 2019. Note that applicants are required to have received their doctorate by August 2019, the date the Postdoctoral Fellowship will commence. Please direct any questions to Alex Foggett, the Clements Center's Programs Manager, at alex.foggett@austin.utexas.edu.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: 2/4/2019

Date Posted: 10/17/2018

Salary: $50,000 - $59,999

eJobs ID: 5023

The University of Texas at Austin

Rank: Predoctoral Fellowship

The Clements Center for National Security at the University of Texas at Austin seeks applications from current PhD candidates for its Predoctoral Fellowship Program.

Consistent with the Clements Center's mission areas of history, strategy, and statecraft, applicants from all disciplines whose research bears directly on foreign and defense policy, intelligence, or international security are welcome to apply. However, strong preference will be given to applicants pursuing a doctorate in history or whose research has a strong historical component (ancient or modern). This fellowship is designed to help expedite dissertation completion, so applicants should be in the dissertation writing phase and within one year (or in exceptional cases two years) of anticipated dissertation submission. Successful applicants will be able to spend the substantial portion of their time working on their own research and writing projects, while taking advantage of the many academic resources available at the University of Texas-Austin. Additionally, Fellows will be required to play an active role in the Clements Center's programs and activities; any specific responsibilities will be by mutual agreement between the Fellow and the Clements Center leadership. Fellows accepted to the program will be offered a competitive stipend, full use of UT facilities, and office space at the Clements Center. Each appointment is for one year.

Applicants should submit a current c.v., a personal statement, graduate school transcripts, a brief (no more than two-page, single-spaced) research statement, and three letters of recommendation. Applications are due no later than February 4, 2019. Please direct any questions to Alex Foggett, the Clements Center's Programs Manager, at alex.foggett@austin.utexas.edu.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: 2/4/2019

Date Posted: 10/17/2018

Salary: $30,000 - $39,999

eJobs ID: 5024

American University-SIS

Rank: Two Non-Tenure Track Professorial Lecturer Positions

Description

The School of International Service (SIS) at American University (AU) invites applications for two full-time, non-tenure track faculty appointments for Spring 2019. Rank will be dependent on experience and stature in the field. This appointment is a 5-month term position and will commence January 14, 2019 through May 31, 2019.

American University is a private institution within easy reach of the many centers of government, business, research, and the arts located within the nation's capital. For more information about American University, visit www.american.edu.

Established in 1957, American University's School of International Service (SIS) is a top-ten school of international affairs located in Washington, D.C. SIS faculty produce transformational research and prepare our students for global careers in government, nonprofits, and business. SIS's prime location provides opportunities for research, professional training, public service, and internships in the nation's capital and around the world.

Housed in a beautiful LEED-Gold certified building which reflects our commitment to sustainability and ecological stewardship, SIS is a diverse and inclusive community of 3,000 students, 120+ full-time faculty and more than 20,000 alumni worldwide. Our offerings feature a comprehensive liberal arts program for undergraduates, professional education in international affairs for Master's students, and a multidisciplinary program for Doctoral students. Learn more about SIS at <https://www.american.edu/sis/>.

Qualifications

Applicants should hold a PhD or the highest equivalent degree in a relevant discipline. The position will require the incumbent to teach the equivalent of three undergraduate and/ or graduate courses per semester. All faculty are expected to hold office hours and participate in School and University activities and service. Applicants should share the School's commitment to diversity and inclusion.

We are seeking candidates who specialize in one or more of the following thematic areas:

- Cross Cultural Communication
- Identity Race, Gender, and Culture

- Peace, Global Security, and Conflict Resolution

Application Instructions

Salary is competitive. Review of applications will begin immediately and will continue until the position is filled. Applications must be submitted electronically via Interfolio: <https://apply.interfolio.com/56385>. Attach a letter of recommendation, curriculum vitae, and recent teaching evaluations (when possible). Please also attach a statement of your past or future contributions to diversity and inclusion in teaching research, or service. You will be asked to submit the names and email addresses of three references and request that Interfolio contact them for a confidential letter of recommendation. Queries about the search may be sent to sisfacultyaffairs@american.edu. Queries about the online application system may be sent to help@interfolio.com.

American University is an equal opportunity, affirmative action institution that operates in compliance with applicable laws and regulations. The university does not discriminate on the basis of race, color, national origin, religion, sex (including pregnancy, age, sexual orientation, disability, marital status, personal appearance, gender identity and expression, family responsibilities, political affiliation, source of income, veteran status, an individual's genetic information or any other bases under federal or local laws (collectively Protected Bases) in its programs and activities. American University is a tobacco and smoke free campus.

Start Date: Spring 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 10/16/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 5021

University of Cincinnati

Rank: Assistant Professor in Cyber Strategy and Policy

Subfield(s): International Relations, Comparative Politics, American Government and Politics

The Department of Political Science at the University of Cincinnati seeks a tenure-track Assistant Professor in the area of cyber security strategy and policy. The successful candidate will be expected to teach within a new multidisciplinary undergraduate major in Cyber Strategy and Policy. This major will be housed in Political Science but includes computing sciences requirements. The successful candidate will be expected to teach core courses on Cyber Strategy and Policy and Cyber Conflict and develop further courses that advance the Cyber Strategy and Policy major and count toward our other undergraduate programs including BAs in Political Science and International Affairs, Certificate in Security Studies, Certificate in International Human Rights and our Political Science PhD program. The teaching load is 2-2.

The University of Cincinnati is one of only 18 institutions nationally designated as a National Security Agency (NSA) Center of Academic Excellence in both cyber defense and cyber operations and has been selected by the State of Ohio to host and support a state-wide cyber range to promote research, education, workforce and economic development in cyber security.

Candidates should have expertise in international security studies and/or American national security studies along with general field competency in international relations, comparative politics, and/or American government. Successful candidates will have demonstrated research focus on issues related to technology and global/national security (for example, cyber security; organizational and bureaucratic structures; authorities/law or privacy and civil liberties related to cyber security).

Candidates must have a PhD in Political Science or relevant field. ABDs will be considered, but the dissertation must be defended before the appointment starts on August 15, 2019.

Interested and qualified applicants must complete our online application at <https://jobs.uc.edu> (search Requisition #34122). In addition to the online application, please provide a cover letter indicating fit with the job description, full CV, list of three references and a writing sample. A one-page statement addressing the candidate's intended contributions to the University's goals of diversity and inclusion, through teaching, research and mentoring, is also required. Review of applications will begin November 12, 2018 with additional applications accepted until the position is filled.

Finalists for the position will be required to submit three letters of reference to be addressed to Dr. Richard Harknett, Search Committee Chair. Questions should be directed to Dr. Richard Harknett, Department Head, at richard.harknett@uc.edu.

The University of Cincinnati is an urban, public, comprehensive Research I institution committed to attracting, supporting, and retaining an academically and culturally diverse faculty. The University of Cincinnati is an equal opportunity/affirmative action employer. In a continuing effort to foster diversity on our campus, we actively encourage applications from women, people of color, people with disabilities, veterans, people of diverse sexual orientations/identities, and others who may make a positive contribution to the diversification of ideas and perspectives. Faculty and staff are supported through various groups including the Black Faculty Association, Latino Faculty Association, and LGBTQ Faculty and Staff Association.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 10/15/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 5008

University of Nebraska, Omaha

Rank: Assistant Professor, Politics of East Asia

The University of Nebraska at Omaha seeks applicants for a tenure-track Assistant Professor in Political Science. The anticipated start date is August 19, 2019. The successful candidate for this position will possess a Ph.D. in Political Science or a related field. Excellent ABD candidates may also be considered. Candidates seeking to fill the position should have interests and demonstrated capacity to teach comparative politics and/or international relations of East Asia. Our new colleague will have opportunities to teach courses in his/her area of specialization. A willingness to teach introductory courses and to teach courses online is also required. The position offers a teaching load of three courses per semester and a nine-month contract with the possibility to teach in the summer, contingent upon resources. The successful candidate will be expected to build a record of excellence in research, teaching and service as required for tenure and promotion.

Interested candidates must submit an application online at <https://unomaha.peopleadmin.com/postings/7439>

Please include cover letter, current curriculum vitae and three letters of recommendations electronically. For any questions regarding this position, please contact Dr. Gregory Petrow, Chair of Search Committee at gpetrow@unomaha.edu. We will begin reviewing applications after October 30th. Applicants will be reviewed as they arrive and will be accepted until the position is filled.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 10/14/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 5007

Rice University

Rank: Fellow for the Middle East

The Fellow, funded through the Kelly Day Endowment, will lead a research program within the Baker Institute's Center for the Middle East focusing on women, human rights and refugee issues within the region. The position will be responsible for producing original, substantive, policy-relevant research to bring together diverse viewpoints addressing the issues of women, human rights and displaced people in the Middle East. Applications will begin being reviewed on November 15, 2018 but will be accepted until November 30, 2018. PhD or other Doctoral Degree required, preferable in a field related to the study of the Middle East, gender issues, or human rights issues such as political science, policy studies, gender studies or sociology. Experience working in academic, policy or government research institutions or with international nongovernmental organizations in the Middle East region is preferred. For more details and to apply please visit <https://jobs.rice.edu/postings/16664>.

Start Date: Winter 2019

Application Deadline: 11/30/2018

Date Posted: 10/12/2018

Salary: Negotiable

eJobs ID: 5004

Chapman University

Rank: Assistant Professor of Peace Studies, Tenure-track

Specializations: Conflict Processes, Foreign Policy, Social Movements

Chapman University seeks applications for a tenure track Assistant Professor of Peace Studies in the Department of Peace Studies within Wilkinson College of Arts, Humanities, and Social Science, beginning August 1, 2019.

Chapman University, located in the heart of Orange County, California, offers traditional undergraduate programs in the arts and sciences and select pre-professional and graduate programs. Ranked in the top tier of western universities by U.S. News and World Report, Chapman has gained national recognition with its commitment to excellence through research and innovative teaching.

The Peace Studies Department at Chapman University offers an undergraduate major and a minor, and builds upon a long tradition of offering education related to peace and justice at Chapman University. Faculty in Peace Studies may also affiliate with Chapman's related departments, including Sociology, Political Science, Religious Studies, or LatinX & Latin American Studies and MA programs, such as War & Society and International Studies, depending on their areas of training, as well as Attallah College of Educational Studies.

Qualifications: Preferred candidates will have a Ph.D. in Peace Studies or a specialization in peace and conflict studies and a Ph.D. from an associated discipline, and will show evidence of excellent teaching and research.

We seek candidates who can contribute to department foci in Mediation & Conflict Resolution and/or Intercultural Dialogue. Candidates with teaching and research experience in these areas are encouraged to apply. Previous work in peacebuilding, conflict resolution, and various social justice fields will be considered useful.

Information on submitting applications and more information on the position can be found here: <https://webfarm.chapman.edu/jobs/job.aspx?id=985>

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: 12/1/2018

Date Posted: 10/11/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 5003

College of Southern Nevada

Rank: Political Science Instructor - Fall 2019

Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Comparative Politics, International Relations

Political Science Instructor - Fall 2019

The College of Southern Nevada appreciates your interest in employment at our growing institution. We want your application process to go smoothly and quickly. We ask that you keep in mind the following when completing your application:

Once you start the application process you cannot save your work. Please ensure you have all required attachment(s) available to complete your application before you begin the process.

Required attachments are listed below on the posting. Your application will not be considered without the required attachments.

Please note that applications must be submitted prior to the close of the recruitment. Once a recruitment has closed, applications will no longer be accepted.

If you are unable to attach the required documents to your ONLINE application, you may send them to Human Resources via email <mailto:hr.recruitment@csn.edu> or fax to (702) 651-5778.

Job Description

This position will be open until filled. Application review will begin 01/15/2019. For full consideration all application related material should be submitted by 01/14/2019.

The College of Southern Nevada (CSN) is currently seeking one (1) full-time tenure track political science instructor to begin Fall semester 2019. The primary teaching assignment involves the following:

Teaching a core course ("Introduction to American Politics," a 4-credit course that includes a Nevada politics component).

Additional teaching responsibilities might include "Introduction to Comparative Politics," "Introduction to International Relations," "Survey of Political Theory" and/or other courses as determined by department needs.

Required to teach a minimum of 15 credit hours per semester and hold five office hours per week.

Expected to participate in department and division (school) meetings, participate in college and department committees, and engage in participatory governance activities and other service activities.

Expected to assume leadership roles both within the assigned department and at the institution level.

Expected to engage in ongoing professional development.

Teaching assignments may be multi-campus with the possibility of day, evening, weekend, or online classes in accord with department needs.

Required Qualifications

Master's degree in political science from a regionally accredited college or university.

Minimum of one year (two semesters) experience teaching college level introductory political science courses within the last three (3) years.

Preferred Qualifications

Ph.D. in political science from a regionally accredited college or university.

Evidence of research in political science within the last three (3) years, which includes conference paper presentations or publications.

Evidence of an understanding and appreciation of the community college mission, and ability to design curriculum and learning activities that address diverse learning levels.

Background and experience in web-based and computer-aided instruction.

Demonstrated ability to work effectively with a culturally and educationally diverse student population.

Salary Range

Initial salary placement is based on educational level and total years of full-time equivalent teaching experience. A maximum of 10 years of experience will be considered for initial salary placement purposes.

Exempt

Yes

Full-Time Equivalent

100.0%

Required Attachment(s)

To be considered for this position, please upload the following documents to your application:

Resume

Cover Letter

Unofficial Academic Transcripts

Contact information for three professional references

Syllabus (or sample syllabus) for an introductory American government course

Applicants should fully describe their qualifications and experience with specific reference to each of the minimum and preferred qualifications. The search committee will use this information during the initial review of application materials.

National Search

Out of Area/State Candidates may be offered travel reimbursement with original itemized receipts and in accordance with GSA rates at time of travel.

NSHE - INTERNAL APPLICANTS PLEASE NOTE

CSN employees or employees within the Nevada System of Higher Education (NSHE) MUST use the "Find Jobs" process within Workday to find and apply for jobs at CSN and other NSHE Institutions. Once you log into Workday, type "Find Jobs" in the search box which will navigate to the internal job posting site. Locate this specific job posting by typing the requisition number in the search box. If you complete an application outside of the internal application process and apply as an external candidate, your application will no longer be considered at the time of minimum qualification review. In order to prevent the disqualification of your application, you will need to reapply as an internal candidate before 11:59 pm the day prior to the position close date.

Posting Close Date

01/15/2019

Note to Applicant

Applicants should fully describe their qualifications and experience with specific reference to each of the minimum and preferred qualifications. The search committee will use this information during the initial review of application materials.

All document(s) must be received by 11:59 p.m. the day prior to the closing date posted on the job announcement.

This position may require that a criminal background check be conducted on the candidate(s) selected for hire.

As part of the hiring process, applicants for positions in the Nevada System of Higher Education may be required to demonstrate the ability to perform job-related tasks.

Schedules are subject to change based on organizational needs.

CSN is responsive to serving the educational needs of a diverse and ever-changing community. CSN employs only U.S. citizens and aliens authorized to work in the U.S. CSN does not sponsor aliens applying for faculty, professional staff, or management positions (H-1B Visas) in the absence of exceptional circumstances as defined by the USCIS.

To apply, visit <http://apptrkr.com/1311350>

About Us

The College of Southern Nevada (CSN) creates opportunities and changes lives through access to quality teaching, services, and experiences that enrich our diverse community. CSN has three main campuses in Las Vegas, North Las Vegas and Henderson and multiple sites and centers.

The Nevada System of Higher Education (NSHE) is committed to providing a place of work and learning free of discrimination on the basis of a person's age, disability, whether actual or perceived by others (including service-connected disabilities), gender (including pregnancy related conditions), military status or military obligations, sexual orientation, gender identity or expression, genetic information, national origin, race, or religion.

Copyright ©2017 Jobelephant.com Inc. All rights reserved.

<https://www.jobelephant.com/jeid-5c6f2f9ddf4f4d4caf8358ca665066af>

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 10/11/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4997

Stanford University

Rank: Hoover Fellow

Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, International Relations, Public Policy

Specializations: Economic Policy, International Security, Political Economy

Hoover Institution - Hoover Fellows

A new path for early-career scholars

The Hoover Institution at Stanford University seeks outstanding scholars for appointments at the newly created rank of Hoover Fellows. The term of the appointment is 5 years and may be renewed. The position is located at the Hoover Institution, Stanford, CA.

The academic activities of the Hoover Institution generally fall into the areas of Economic Policy, Politics & Governance, and National Security. Candidates' work should fit into at least one of these categories. A candidate must have completed a PhD or equivalent degree in economics, history, international relations, political science, public policy, computer science, electrical engineering, physics or other related fields.

Hoover Fellows are expected to maintain a vibrant and productive scholarly research agenda, and achieve a considerable publication record and scholarly impact during their time at Hoover, through the pursuit of topics that also have implications for public policy.

Hoover Fellows are expected to contribute to the intellectual life of the Hoover Institution. There will be no teaching or formal administrative responsibilities during the appointment. Salary and benefits are highly competitive.

To apply, please submit:

- A cover letter or statement of interest that includes a description of academic background and experience
- A recent publication and a current working paper or draft book chapter
- A curriculum vitae
- A future research statement (2 pages maximum)
- Three letters of recommendation that focus on the candidate's research and research potential

Successful applicants will have a proven record of scholarly excellence. Applicants must have completed a PhD or equivalent degree by September 1, 2019, though preference will be given to candidates with post-graduate experience.

Completed applications must be submitted online by December 1, 2018 at <https://academicjobsonline.org/ajojobs/12287>.

Please direct questions to Pam Widrin (pwidrin@stanford.edu). Candidates under consideration will be contacted mid-January, 2019. Offer decisions are expected mid-March, 2019.

The Hoover Institution is an equal employment opportunity and affirmative action employer. All qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to race, color, religion, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, national origin, disability, protected veteran status, or any other characteristic protected by law. The Hoover Institution welcomes applications from those who would bring additional dimensions to the University's research mission.

Start Date: Fall 2019
Application Deadline: 12/1/2018
Date Posted: 10/11/2018
Salary: Competitive
eJobs ID: 5000

Old Dominion University

Rank: Associate Professor in Political Science/International Studies

The Department of Political Science and Geography and the Graduate Program in International Studies (GPIS) at Old Dominion University invite applications for an Associate Professor position in Political Science and International Studies to begin July 25, 2019. The department and program seek a specialist in Middle Eastern Politics. We also seek a scholar who specializes in one or more of the following subfields: International Relations Theory, Transnationalism, and the Politics of Energy.

Candidates must have a Ph.D. in Political Science, International Studies, or a closely related field and a record of excellence in research and teaching. Preference will be given to candidates whose scholarly profile complements existing coverage in the department and GPIS. The successful candidate will have a demonstrable commitment to promoting and enhancing diversity.

Old Dominion University is a residential and research-extensive public institution with a student enrollment of 25,000 including approximately 5,000 graduate students, and a full time equivalent diverse and multicultural faculty of over 850. The university's primary campus is located in Norfolk, VA, one of the seven cities that make up the historic Hampton Roads region of Virginia, a major recreational area with a population of 1.7 million near the Atlantic Ocean and Chesapeake Bay. More information about the Political Science program can be found at <https://www.odu.edu/pols-geog/political> and more information about the Graduate Program in International Studies can be found at <https://www.odu.edu/gpis>

Applicants should submit a cover letter which outlines research and teaching interests, curriculum vitae, three samples of scholarly writing, evidence of teaching excellence, and unofficial graduate transcripts to Dr. Francis Adams, Chair, Political Science/GPIS Search Committee at <https://jobs.odu.edu/> The application system will solicit three letters of recommendation from the references listed in your application.

The review of applications will commence November 1, 2018 and continue until the position is filled.

Start Date: Fall 2019
Application Deadline: 11/1/2018
Date Posted: 10/10/2018
Salary: Competitive
eJobs ID: 4992

Stetson University

Rank: Assistant Professor of Political Science (International Relations)

Stetson University seeks an individual with broad interests and training in International Relations who has a desire to teach and conduct research in a liberal arts setting. Besides teaching introductory and upper-level undergraduate courses in International Relations and offering innovative First Year and/or Junior Seminars, the candidate will develop courses to complement existing strengths in the Department and in one or more related programs (e.g. International Studies, Africana Studies, Asian Studies, Gender Studies, Global Development, Latin American Studies, and Russian, East European and Eurasian Studies).

QUALIFICATIONS:

A Ph.D. in Political Science is preferred, but applicants who are ABD will be considered if they are at the final stage of the dissertation process. Teaching experience beyond typical teaching assistant duties in graduate school is an advantage but not required. Candidates should have a strong commitment to innovative teaching, a creative approach to pedagogical design and implementation, and a strong commitment to all aspects of diversity in our learning-centered community.

RESPONSIBILITIES:

The teacher-scholar model at Stetson requires that tenure-track faculty teach three courses each semester complemented with quality scholarship and service. Primary teaching responsibilities include introductory and upper-level courses in International Relations and related sub-disciplines (e.g. migration studies, international diplomacy, international law, security studies, etc.). Other courses will be based on the candidate's expertise and may include offerings for the University's requirements in General Education, including First Year Seminars and Junior Seminars. The faculty member is also expected to mentor students academically and professionally.

Candidates should demonstrate a passion for quality of teaching, combined with the ability to produce rigorous peer-reviewed academic scholarship. Scholarly activity leading to publication in peer-reviewed journals and service to the Department, the College of Arts and Sciences, the University, and the profession are required. For more information on our expectations in teaching and scholarship, our tenure policies, and our support for faculty professional development, please see the Office of the Provost and Academic Affairs website: <http://www.stetson.edu/administration/provost/index.php>.

THE DEPARTMENT:

The Department of Political Science (<http://www.stetson.edu/artsci/political-science/>) offers academically rigorous majors in both Political Science and Public Management. Departmental faculty contribute regularly to interdisciplinary programs such as International Studies, Russian, Eastern European and Eurasian Studies, Latin American Studies, Africana Studies, the Honors Program, Environmental Science and Studies, and Public Health. We have had considerable success placing students in high-quality graduate programs in Political Science, International Affairs, and Public Administration and in prominent law schools. Faculty in the Department are committed to the teacher-scholar model, which involves teaching within a traditional liberal arts environment where the primary focus is extensive interaction with undergraduate students in a small class environment, while also maintaining an active research agenda.

THE COLLEGE OF ARTS AND SCIENCES:

Stetson's College of Arts and Sciences (<http://www.stetson.edu/portal/artsci/>) is the largest and most diverse of the University's colleges and schools; it includes the humanities, social sciences, natural sciences, education, and creative arts. With nineteen academic departments and eight interdisciplinary programs, the College is the liberal arts core of the University. A great strength of the College is its faculty of approximately 140 full-time teacher-scholars. The College offers 31 undergraduate majors and 34 undergraduate minors; six graduate degrees are offered in Education, Counselor Education, and Creative Writing. Every undergraduate major requires a senior research project, giving students the opportunity to design and carry out independent research under faculty mentorship. Our academic programs are shaped by the values of social justice and civic responsibility. All of our courses and programs of study promote engaged learning, whereby students create connections between the classroom or lab and the local, regional, and global community. The academic programs of the College of Arts and Sciences prepare students to live significant lives, to interact with and positively affect the world around them.

THE UNIVERSITY:

Founded in 1883, Stetson University (<http://www.stetson.edu>) is a private, selective university comprised of a rich array of liberal arts and professional academic programs. Collectively, Stetson's faculty works with nearly 4000 students in undergraduate, graduate, and professional programs. The University's historic main campus, located in DeLand, enrolls more than 2,800 students in undergraduate programs in the College of Arts & Sciences, the School of Business Administration, and the School of Music. Stetson University College of Law, Florida's first law school, moved from the main campus to Gulfport in 1954, and, with the addition of the Tampa Law Center, serves approximately 1,000 students working full-time or part-time toward J.D. or LL.M. degrees. Graduate programs offered at the main campus and at Stetson University Center in Celebration include Business, Accounting, Elementary Education – Education for Social Justice, Educational Leadership, Counseling, and Creative Writing. Florida's oldest private institution of higher learning, Stetson has regularly been ranked among the best regional universities in the Southeast and was the first private college in Florida to be granted a chapter of Phi Beta Kappa.

Stetson University provides an inspiring education that engages students with rigorous academic and creative study grounded in liberal learning and promotes civic values of personal and social responsibility. Working closely with faculty and with one another, students cultivate abilities to explore issues deeply, think critically, reason empirically, speak persuasively, and connect ideas creatively. Firmly committed to inclusive excellence, our vibrant community of teacher-scholars nurtures the potential of individual students to lead lives of significance and prepares each to meet the challenges of shaping the future—locally, nationally, and globally.

THE COMMUNITY:

DeLand is a picturesque residential community of 32,000 located 20 miles west of Daytona Beach and 35 miles northeast of Orlando. The area offers extensive cultural as well as recreational activities.

SALARY: Salary is competitive.

STARTING DATE: August 15, 2019

APPLICATION:

Applicants must send the following materials for consideration: 1) a cover letter summarizing the candidate's interest in the position and qualifications, 2) a statement of the candidate's teaching philosophy, a representative sample of teaching evaluations, and other relevant teaching materials (e.g. syllabi, assignments, etc.), 3) a curriculum vitae, 4) copies of undergraduate and graduate transcripts, 5) three letters of recommendation sent under separate cover by the recommenders via e-mail or mail (at least one of which should include an evaluation of teaching ability), and 6) a statement of research interests and a description of how undergraduate students might participate in that research. Candidates are encouraged to highlight skills and experiences that demonstrate a commitment to social justice, diversity, and inclusion.

Review of applications will begin on November 10 and continue until the position is filled.

Application materials may be submitted electronically to the search committee at polisearch@stetson.edu or mailed to the following address:

Dr. David Hill
Chair, International Relations Search Committee
Department of Political Science
Stetson University
421 N. Woodland Blvd. Unit 8301
DeLand, FL 32723

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 10/10/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4988

Ozyegin University

Rank: Assistant Professor

Specializations: International Security, International Law & Organizations, History & Politics

The Department of International Relations at Özyegin University is searching for an Assistant Professor of International Relations beginning in the 2019-2020 academic year. We are looking for a candidate who will offer a range of introductory and advanced level courses in international relations, depending on the candidate's interest and expertise. Specialization in the study of international conflict (security studies or peace science), or the study of international organizations is considered an advantage. We expect the prospective candidate to teach a service course in Diplomatic History, and International Organizations. Teaching load is two courses a semester and the prospective candidate is expected to contribute to the continued development of our department, including the establishment of an interdisciplinary MA program.

Özyegin University is a private, non-profit Turkish institution of higher education located in Çekmeköy, Istanbul. The University is committed to the pursuit of excellence in both research and teaching. The medium of instruction is English. The normal teaching load consists of two to three courses per semester. Salary and benefits are competitive. You may learn more about our department at <https://www.ozyegin.edu.tr/en/international-relations>

Interested Candidates should send the following material as one combined pdf file to ozuinternationalrelations@gmail.com with subject line: "OZU IR Hire Application <Your Last Name>".

- 1) Cover letter explaining their research and teaching experience
- 2) Curriculum vitae including names and contacts of two references

- 3) One sample publication/working paper
 4) A teaching portfolio with one sample syllabus and a summary of teaching evaluations.

Applications must be received before January 30, 2019

For any questions please contact: ozuinternationalrelations@gmail.com

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: 1/30/2019

Date Posted: 10/9/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4978

CUNY Baruch College

Rank: Associate or Full Professor – Austin W Marxe Chair of International Affairs

Associate or Full Professor – Austin W Marxe Chair of International Affairs

Job ID: 19415

Location: Baruch College

Full/Part Time: Full-Time

Regular/Temporary: Regular

CLOSING DATE

The search is open until the position is filled and review of applications will start on November 15, 2018. To ensure full consideration, please apply by December 15, 2018.

FACULTY VACANCY ANNOUNCEMENT:

The Austin W. Marxe School of Public and International Affairs at Baruch College invites nominations and applications for appointment as the Austin W. Marxe Chair of International Affairs. The position has tenure or accelerated tenure-track status at the rank of Associate Professor or Professor, depending on qualifications. The endowed position comes with a reduced teaching load, discretionary research funds, and an annual stipend.

The successful candidate will have a strong record of scholarship in an area of International Affairs. The area of International Affairs is open, however preference will be given to candidates with specialization in one or more of these areas: Global Health; Climate and Environment; Terrorism and Security; Democratization and Civil Society; Migration and Refugees; Information Technology, Internet and Cyber Security Policy; or Development. The search committee will consider candidates who have made their careers in the academy as well as those who have worked at senior levels of government, intergovernmental organizations, or policy research institutions. Candidates must have a doctorate in a relevant discipline.

The candidate will teach courses primarily for the School's new Master of International Affairs (MIA) program, launched in Fall 2017, including courses in the core curriculum along with those in the candidate's areas of expertise. Additionally, the candidate may be asked to teach courses in the School's Master of Public Administration (MPA) program in the area of their specialization.

The successful candidate will be expected to raise the visibility of the School in the area of International Affairs. The Chair will help shape the strategic direction of the MIA degree, with the potential opportunity to develop new MIA concentration areas. The Chair will also advise students. Along with Marxe School colleagues, she/he will share responsibility for committee and School assignments including administrative, supervisory, and other functions.

Baruch College is a public, urban institution with an enrollment of approximately 17,500 students. It is one of 23 CUNY colleges. The Marxe School delivers undergraduate and graduate degrees in public policy and administration. The College houses a wide range of cutting-edge policy and research programs including the the CUNY Institute for Demographic Research, the New York Federal Statistical Research Data Center, the Baruch Survey Research Center, and the Center for Nonprofit Strategy and Management. The College is committed to attracting and retaining a diverse faculty. We encourage applications from underrepresented minority groups and women.

QUALIFICATIONS:

Candidates must have a doctorate in a relevant discipline. The successful candidate will have a record of scholarship that merits appointment at the rank of either Professor or Associate Professor. Candidates should have a substantial and demonstrated research program and evidence of, or high promise for, external funding. Also required are the ability to teach successfully and a strong interest in shaping the MIA program as a member of an interdisciplinary faculty.

COMPENSATION:

CUNY offers faculty a competitive compensation and benefits package covering health insurance, pension and retirement benefits, paid parental leave, and savings programs. We also provide mentoring and support for research, scholarship, and publication as part of our commitment to ongoing faculty professional development.

HOW TO APPLY:

STEP ONE -

To be considered for this position, please submit your application online by clicking on "Apply Now" through this link https://home.cunyfirst.cuny.edu/psp/cnyepprd/GUEST/HRMS/c/HRS_HRAM.HRS_CE.GBL?Page=HRS_CE_JOB_DTL&Action=A&JobOpeningId=19415&SiteId=1&PostingSeq=1

Candidates should provide a cover letter addressed to the search chair, Professor Deborah Balk, a CV, statement of one's research agenda, and three representative publications.

STEP TWO - Go to <https://www.baruch.cuny.edu/hrref/>

All applicants are required to have three confidential letters of recommendation submitted electronically by their references as described below.

Please go to <https://www.baruch.cuny.edu/hrref/> and enter the contact information for three (3) references. The online system will automatically send your references a request to submit a letter via the system. Full instructions will be provided.

Emailed or hard copy applications will not be considered.

Inquiries about the position may be made to Professor Balk by email at Deborah.Balk@baruch.cuny.edu or by phone at 646-660-6762. Do not send application materials or references directly to her.

EQUAL EMPLOYMENT OPPORTUNITY:

We are committed to enhancing our diverse academic community by actively encouraging people with disabilities, minorities, veterans, and women to apply. We take pride in our pluralistic community and continue to seek excellence through diversity and inclusion. EO/AA Employer.

Start Date:

Date Posted: 10/5/2018

Salary: Competitive
eJobs ID: 4964

Troy University

Rank: Assistant/Associate Professor

Subfield(s): Public Administration, Comparative Politics, International Relations

The Department of Political Science invites applicants for an open rank tenure track position in political science with a concentration in comparative public administration beginning on August 1, 2019. This is a ten-month tenure-track position at our Troy, Alabama location. The minimum qualifications are a Ph.D. in Public Administration/International Relations/Comparative Politics/Political Science, or related field by August 1, 2019 with a research specialization in comparative public administration. The teaching will be in our master's degree (MPA) in public administration as well as undergraduate political science courses, which will be delivered in person as well as online. The job requires that the hire may be asked to teach courses at another Troy location depending on departmental needs. Preferred candidates will have a secondary specialization (such as research methods, or a regional specialization) that can complement our existing faculty strengths. The candidate needs to demonstrate excellence in research and teaching. For best consideration, please submit application documents by October 31, 2019. The position will remain open until filled.

The Department of Political Science at Troy University currently employs twenty-five faculty members who work in three programs: undergraduate political science, graduate international relations, and graduate public administration.

Applicants need to electronically submit a cover letter, CV, writing sample, teaching philosophy, research statement, and arrange to have three reference letters uploaded. Please direct all questions to Dr Terry Anderson at tanderson@troy.edu.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 10/5/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4971

University of California, Los Angeles

Rank: Faculty Position in Metropolitan and Urban Studies in the Global South

Subfield(s): Comparative Politics, Political Theory, International Relations

University of California, Los Angeles

Department of Urban Planning

Faculty Position in Metropolitan and Urban Studies in the Global South

UCLA's Department of Urban Planning invites applicants for a tenure-track faculty position in Metropolitan and Urban Studies in the Global South, which we consider to include Asia, Africa, and Latin America. We encourage applicants with a broad range of research topics, which might include urban and peri-urban politics and governance, corruption and state capacity, city building and land development, the development industry, global capital flows and urban transformations, violence and policing, displacement and refugee populations, metropolitan infrastructure development and management, urban social movements, and comparative work, especially South-South comparison. We not only welcome scholars from urban studies and planning, but also those trained in other theoretical and methodological approaches, and from multidisciplinary backgrounds.

We expect our new colleague to take the lead in advancing collaborative and interdisciplinary research on cities and metropolitan regions in the Global South with colleagues at UCLA and beyond, in addition to teaching courses in our professional Masters in Urban and Regional Planning program and our new undergraduate major in Public Affairs.

To apply, please submit a brief cover letter, a research statement of less than 500 words highlighting scholarly contributions of recent research and plans for the near future, at least one publication or writing sample, a teaching statement of less than 300 words outlining the content of a class you would like to teach, and three letters of recommendation.

The Department of Urban Planning, in the Luskin School of Public Affairs, currently hosts 16 tenured/tenure-track planning faculty, seven affiliated tenured/tenure-track faculty, four visiting practice faculty, five active professors emeriti, 38 Ph.D. students, 148 master's students, and 60 undergraduate minors across its large, diverse, and highly selective Ph.D., master's, and undergraduate programs. We have a tradition of intellectual leadership in urban and regional studies and design, and our faculty, students, and alumni are committed to social justice and progressive planning ideals.

Los Angeles is a global city renowned for its dynamism, robust economy, rich cultural diversity, spectacular climate, as well as high levels of inequality, poverty and homelessness, residential segregation, and traffic. The UCLA Luskin School of Public Affairs is an interdisciplinary school with highly ranked departments of Social Welfare and Public Policy. All faculty in the Luskin School of Public Affairs (including the departments of Social Welfare, Urban Planning, and Public Policy) have opportunities to participate in current school initiatives in global affairs, digital technologies, the environment, democracy and inequality, global development, Latin American cities, and social justice, equity, and opportunity.

UCLA offers competitive salary and attractive benefits packages, including a housing assistance program for new faculty members. The University of California seeks to recruit and retain a diverse workforce as a reflection of our commitment to serve the people of California, to maintain the excellence of the University, and to offer our students richly varied disciplines, perspectives, and ways of knowing and learning. The Department of Urban Planning in particular is committed to diversity and excellence in our faculty, students, and scholarship, and we especially encourage candidates who share and can contribute to this commitment. A separate statement that addresses past and/or potential contributions to equity, diversity, and inclusion must also be included in the application materials.

The University of California is an Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action Employer. All qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to race, color, religion, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, national origin, disability, age or protected veteran status. For the complete University of California nondiscrimination and affirmative action policy, see: UC Nondiscrimination & Affirmative Action Policy.

While we expect to appoint at the rank of Assistant Professor, we will consider applicants and appointments at all levels. We expect candidates to hold a Ph.D. in urban planning or a related discipline.

The expected start date is July 1, 2019. All materials must be submitted via UCLA Academic Recruit by Thursday, November 1, 2018, to be guaranteed full consideration.

To Apply, visit:

<http://apptrkr.com/1306872>

Start Date: Spring 2019

Application Deadline: 11/1/2018

Date Posted: 10/4/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4957

University of Kansas

Rank: Assistant Professor of Political Science

U of Kansas, Political Science Lawrence, KS 66045-3177

Assistant Professor of Political Science

The University of Kansas (KU) Department of Political Science of the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences, invites applications for an assistant professor faculty position in International Relations or Comparative Politics with focus on East Asia beginning August 18, 2019. Successful candidates will be able to demonstrate methodological training that is appropriate with their theoretical approaches as well as provide evidence of the capacity to publish in major journals or presses in political science and areas studies. Applicants with a research and/or teaching specialty in national and international security with the capacity to teach courses in one or more of the following areas are encouraged to apply: international security, intelligence, diplomacy, international politics, East Asian politics and comparative foreign policy.

Duties: Teach a regular course load to include undergraduate and/or graduate courses and mentorship of students. Establish a research program leading to scholarly activity and publications. Participate in school, university and community service activities. Required Qualifications: A doctorate in Political Science. If ABD, the dissertation must be successfully defended by the position start date. Demonstrated commitment to excellence in teaching at the undergraduate and graduate level. Demonstrated ability to develop an innovative body of research and scholarship as evidenced by scholarly publications, presentations, and/or other scholarly activities.

For further details, see full position description at application website: <https://employment.ku.edu/academic/12935BR>. A complete application package includes: an online application, a cover letter, curriculum vitae, a list of three professional references, evidence of teaching ability and research potential (samples of published work or conference papers). ABD candidates need to include advisor contact information. For more information, please contact John Kennedy, Search Committee Chair: kennedy1@ku.edu. Initial review of applications begins on October 26, 2018 and will continue until no longer needed.

The University of Kansas prohibits discrimination on the basis of race, color, ethnicity, religion, sex, national origin, age, ancestry, disability, status as a veteran, sexual orientation, marital status, parental status, retaliation, gender identity, gender expression and genetic information in the University's programs and activities. The following person has been designated to handle inquiries regarding the non-discrimination policies and is the University's Title IX Coordinator:

the Executive Director of the Office of Institutional Opportunity and Access, IOA@ku.edu, 1246 W. Campus Road, Room 153A, Lawrence, KS, 66045, (785) 864-6414, 711 TTY.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 10/4/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4960

Northeastern University

Rank: Urban Studies - Open Rank

Subfield(s): International Relations, Comparative Politics, Public Policy

The International Affairs Program in the College of Social Sciences and Humanities (CSSH) at Northeastern University seeks nominations and applications from leading scholars for an open rank position with an expected start date of Fall 2019. The International Affairs Program, with one of the largest majors in the College of Social Sciences and Humanities, supports undergraduate majors, minors, and a Master's program.

We seek a scholar of urban studies whose interests reach across disciplines, and we are particularly interested in candidates with expertise in urban politics, urban and political geography, urban sociology, urban anthropology and urban ethnography. Candidates whose research complements those topics as well as those who would enhance faculty diversity, are especially encouraged to apply. The successful candidate will have a distinguished scholarly record and demonstrated potential for excellence in leadership. The successful candidate will be cross-appointed in the International Affairs Program and a tenure home within the college appropriate to their field. The position will support the university, college and International Affairs Program's commitment to producing interdisciplinary scholarship and innovative teaching on contested cities, urban politics and/or urban immigrants across the globe. Areas of strategic focus in the College include resilience, sustainability and digital humanities. Candidates should have demonstrated commitment to fostering diverse and inclusive environments as well as to promoting experiential learning, which are central to a Northeastern University education. Review of applications will begin November 1 and will continue until the position is filled.

Qualifications

A PhD in a related field required.

Additional Information

The College of Social Sciences and Humanities is a leader in the Experiential Liberal Arts (www.northeastern.edu/cssh/about/deans-welcome). Founded in 1898, Northeastern University is a dynamic and highly selective urban research university in the center of Boston. Grounded in its signature co-op program, Northeastern provides unprecedented global experiential learning opportunities. The College is strongly committed to fostering excellence through diversity and enthusiastically welcomes nominations and applications from members of groups that have been, and continue to be, underrepresented in academia.

through diversity and enthusiastically welcomes nominations and applications from members of groups that have been, and continue to be, underrepresented in academia.

Equal Employment Opportunity

Northeastern University is an Equal Opportunity, Affirmative Action Educational Institution and Employer, Title IX University. Northeastern University particularly welcomes applications from minorities, women and persons with disabilities. Northeastern University is an E-Verify Employer.

How to Apply

Applicants should submit a CV and letter of interest along with the names of three references. Candidates will be notified before their references are contacted.

To apply, please go to <http://www.northeastern.edu/cssh/faculty-positions> and click on the link for full-time positions or full-time interdisciplinary positions or if viewing this description on the Northeastern University website, click "Apply to this job." Please address nominations and inquiries about the position to Berna Turam at b.turam@neu.edu. Review of applications will begin November 1 and will continue until the position is filled.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 10/3/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4944

Arizona State University, West Campus

Rank: Assistant or Associate Professor in Social Justice and Human Rights

Specializations: International Law & Organizations, Gender Politics & Policy, Immigration Policy

The School of Social and Behavioral Sciences in the New College of Interdisciplinary Arts and Sciences at Arizona State University invites applications for a full-time, tenure track Assistant Professor or a full-time, tenure-eligible Associate Professor of Sociology or Political Science with expertise in Social Justice and Human Rights (SJHR). The current position is part of emerging Social Justice and Human Rights initiatives at ASU, which include the possible development of a Global Human Rights Center and the potential creation of a Ph.D. program. The School is presently home to very successful campus-based undergraduate and Masters programs in Social Justice and Human Rights. And, now it is pursuing the ability to offer digital immersion graduate programs in this same field. This scholar will be expected to (1) conduct her or his own independent program of research, (2) teach, supervise and mentor B.A. and M.A students in SJHR, and (3) engage in service at the unit, college and university levels. Preference will be given to candidates who can collaborate with existing Social Justice and Human Rights faculty, whose research and teaching is centered around the following themes— Migration and Refugees, Gender in Comparative Context, and International Law.

The School of Social and Behavioral Sciences is presently in a period of expansion and innovation around new initiatives and new programs. Since Fall 2017, the School has added seven new tenure-track faculty, two new postdoctoral scholars, four new lecturers and a new School Director. This academic year, the School will be conducting searches for two additional tenure-track faculty as well as two postdoctoral scholars, one of which will be in Social Justice and Human Rights.

Required Qualifications: The successful candidate must a) have a doctoral degree in sociology, or political science, or related field by the time of appointment; and, b) demonstrate excellence in research with a focus on social justice and human rights commensurate with appointment at the level of Assistant or Associate Professor with tenure at ASU.

Desired Qualifications: a) empirical and normative research experience and interests that align with current faculty expertise in migration and refugees, gender in a comparative context, and/or international law and organizations; b) demonstrated potential to establish a strong, externally-funded research program; c) evidence of promise in and commitment to undergraduate and graduate teaching and mentoring; d) an interest in promoting interdisciplinary collaborations in research; e) a record of or potential for university and professional service; f) interest in leadership in developing new initiatives, programs, and curriculum and, g) demonstrated commitment to working successfully with a diverse student population, including first generation students.

More information about ASU's School of Social and Behavioral Sciences can be found at <https://newcollege.asu.edu/directory/sbs>; more information about ASU's New College of Interdisciplinary Arts and Sciences can be found at <http://newcollege.asu.edu>; for information about the M.A. in Social Justice and Human Rights can be found at <https://newcollege.asu.edu/social-justice-and-human-rights-ma>.

ASU has a strong commitment to a racially diverse faculty; one that is reflective of the contemporary United States.

Deadline: November 15, if not filled, every two weeks thereafter until search is closed.

Application procedure: Applications will only be accepted electronically via Academic Jobs Online. <https://academicjobsonline.org/ajo/jobs/12112>

Requested material will include: 1) a letter of application; 2) a current curriculum vitae with contact information; 3) a research statement; 4) writing sample; 5) teaching statement; and, 6) the names and contact information for three references (references will not be contacted during initial review and will only be contacted after candidate notification).

ASU conducts pre-employment screening for all positions which includes a criminal background check, verification of work history, academic credentials, licenses, and certifications. Employment is contingent upon successful passing of the background check.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: 11/15/2018

Date Posted: 10/2/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4942

Arizona State University, West Campus

Rank: Postdoctoral Scholar in Social Justice and Human Rights

Specializations: International Law & Organizations, Gender Politics & Policy, Immigration Policy

The School of Social and Behavioral Sciences in the New College of Interdisciplinary Arts and Sciences at Arizona State University is seeking a Postdoctoral Research Scholar with expertise in Social Justice and Human Rights (SJHR) for the Academic Year 2019-2020, with a possibility of a second year based on availability of funds. There is the possibility of a start date as early as Spring 2019. This scholar will be expected to conduct his or her own independent program of research, teach 1 SJHR course per academic year, and mentor B.A. and M.A. students. Preference will be given to candidates who can collaborate with existing Social Justice and Human Rights faculty, whose research and teaching is centered around the following themes—Migration and Refugees, Gender in Comparative Context, and International Law.

The School of Social and Behavioral Sciences is presently in a period of expansion and innovation around new initiatives and new programs. Since Fall 2017, the School has added eight new tenure-track faculty, two new postdoctoral scholars, four new lecturers and a new School Director. The current position is part of emerging Social Justice and Human Rights initiatives at ASU, which include the possible development of a Global Human Rights Center and the potential creation of a Ph.D. program. The School is presently home to very successful campus-based undergraduate and Masters programs in Social Justice and Human Rights. And, now it is pursuing the ability to offer digital immersion graduate programs in this same field.

Required Qualifications: The successful candidate must a) have a doctoral degree in sociology, political science, anthropology or related field by the time of appointment; and, b) a record reflecting training and experience relevant to the field of social justice and human rights.

Desired Qualifications: a) empirical and normative research experience and interests that align with current faculty expertise in migration and refugees, gender in a comparative context, and/or international law and organizations; b) prior evidence of rigorous research activities fitting for the postdoctoral level; c) a demonstrated ability to teach B.A. and/or M.A. students in this field; and, d) an interest in promoting interdisciplinary collaborations in research.

More information about ASU's School of Social and Behavioral Sciences can be found at <https://newcollege.asu.edu/directory/sbs>; more information about ASU's New College of Interdisciplinary Arts and Sciences can be found at <http://newcollege.asu.edu>.

ASU has a strong commitment to a racially diverse faculty; one that is reflective of contemporary America.

Deadline: November 15, if not filled, every two weeks thereafter until search is closed.

Application procedure: Applications will only be accepted electronically via Academic Jobs Online. <https://academicjobsonline.org/ajo/jobs/11958>

Requested material will include: 1) a letter of application; 2) a current curriculum vitae with contact information; 3) a research statement; and, 4) the names and contact information for three references (references will not be contacted during initial review and will only be contacted after candidate notification).

ASU conducts pre-employment screening for all positions which includes a criminal background check, verification of work history, academic credentials, licenses, and certifications. Employment is contingent upon successful passing of the background check.

Start Date: Spring 2019

Application Deadline: 11/15/2018

Date Posted: 10/2/2018

Salary: $50,000 - $59,999

eJobs ID: 4943

Pepperdine University

Rank: Adjunct Professor

Adjunct Professor – International Communication & Negotiation (Pepperdine University, Washington, D.C. campus)

About the Job

The Washington, D.C. campus of Pepperdine University invites applicants for a non-tenure-track, part time adjunct professor position to teach “International Communication & Negotiation” (INTS 514). Minimum qualifications are a M.A./M.S. degree in a relevant field and 3 years of professional experience, and the highly preferred qualification is a Ph.D. in a relevant field. The successful candidate will teach one semester-long course in Spring 2019.

Course Description

This course is an introduction to the academic study of international diplomatic interaction, negotiation, and communication, particularly as it pertains to situations of crisis and conflict. Questions we will examine include: Do material realities or ideas and culture drive international politics? What has changed or stayed the same in diplomatic practice over the course of history? Do structural features or individual decision-making explain more of the conflict outcomes we observe? Does reputation matter in negotiation? How does culture shape the negotiating process? Do democracies and autocracies negotiate differently? Why are there incentives to misrepresent during negotiations? Can international institutions like the UN play a role in resolving conflict? Should we treat terrorists as strategic actors?

The course is a core requirement for all International Studies majors at Pepperdine University, as well as an elective for Communications.

Course Schedule

The 4-unit course will be taught one evening per week (specific day to-be-determined) from January 14 to April 19.

About the University and the Washington, D.C. Campus

Pepperdine University is a nationally recognized, highly-selective university with a 12:1 student:faculty ratio. The vision of Pepperdine is to be a preeminent, global, Christian university, known for the integration of faith and learning, whose graduates lead purposeful lives as servant-minded leaders throughout the world.

Pepperdine's main campus is in southern California, but more than 86% of Pepperdine students study abroad on 7 global campuses. Among these off-campus programs, the purpose of the Washington, D.C. campus is to professional development and global leadership training for select undergraduate students. In Washington, D.C. students engage in professional internships and participate in an international study tour, in addition to attending classes.

Application Details

Applications should be sent to the Program Director, Brian Swarts at: brian.swarts@pepperdine.edu. A complete application will include a cover letter, curriculum vita, and contact information for three references. Review of applications will start October 10 and continue until the position is filled.

Start Date: Spring 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 10/2/2018

Salary: Below $20,000

eJobs ID: 4941

Stanford University

Rank: 2019-20 Shorenstein Postdoctoral Fellow in Contemporary Asia

Subfield(s): International Relations, Comparative Politics, Public Policy

Specializations: East Asia, Southeast Asia, South Asia

Stanford University: 2019–2020 Postdoctoral Fellowships in Contemporary Asia

The Walter H. Shorenstein Asia-Pacific Research Center at Stanford University is pleased to announce its search for two 2019–20 Shorenstein Postdoctoral Fellows in Contemporary Asia-Pacific Studies. Made possible through the generosity of Walter H. Shorenstein, awards will be made to two junior scholars (recent PhDs must have degree conferral and approval by June 30, 2019) for research and writing on Asia.

The primary focus of the fellowship is on contemporary political, economic, or social change in the Asia-Pacific region (including Northeast, Southeast, and South Asia), or topics in international relations and international political economy. The postdoctoral fellowship is a 10-month appointment with a salary rate of $52,000, or commensurate with Stanford policy, plus $2,000 for research expenses. Appointments will begin in the fall quarter of the 2019-2020 academic year.

Applications must be received by January 7, 2019.

For additional information and to apply, visit <https://aparc.fsi.stanford.edu/education/fellowship-and-training-opportunities/shorenstein-postdoctoral-fellowship>

Start Date: Fall

Application Deadline: 1/7/2019

Date Posted: 10/2/2018

Salary: $50,000 - $59,999

eJobs ID: 4926

Naval War College

Rank: Assistant/Associate/Full Professor, Strategic Studies

U.S. NAVAL WAR COLLEGE SEEKS Assistant/Associate/Full Professor Strategic Studies Strategic and Operational Research Department Center for Naval Warfare Studies AD-1701-03/05/07

The President, U.S. Naval War College, invites applications for an open-rank position of professor in the Russia Maritime Studies Institute, the Strategic and Operational Research Department, in the Center for Naval Warfare Studies.

The U.S. Naval War College is a Professional Military Education institution serving the nation, the Department of Defense, and the U.S. Navy. The student body consists of members of all the Services, interagency civilians, and international officers. The College is accredited by the New England Association of Schools and Colleges to award a Master of Arts Degree in Defense and Strategic Studies for the College of Naval Command and Staff and a Master of Arts Degree in National Security and Strategic Studies for the College of Naval Warfare. The College is also accredited by the Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff to award certification in Joint Professional Military Education Phase I & II.

Strategic and Operational Research Department: The Strategic and Operational Research Department produces innovative research and analysis for the U.S. Navy, the U.S. Department of Defense, the U.S.

interagency, and the broader national security community. It also generates new scholarship and actively participates in the broader community of scholars. The department is one of two in the Center for Naval Warfare Studies at the Naval War College, the other being the War Gaming Department. The department is home to a number of specialized centers, institutes, and advanced research groups that foster deeper levels of research, analysis, and teaching on subjects of critical interest for the Navy: the China Maritime Studies Institute, the Cyber Innovation and Policy Institute, the Russia Maritime Studies Institute, Institute for Future Warfare Studies, and the Gravelly, Halsey, Hollway, and Mahan advanced research groups. The department's faculty employ varied and multi-disciplinary approaches to national security issues, generating new knowledge for the Navy and the Department of Defense. The department's faculty are educated in a range of social sciences, the humanities, sciences and critical languages, and the faculty consists of civilians and retired and active-duty military officers. For more information, see the department's webpage: <https://usnwc.edu/Faculty-andDepartments/Academic-Departments/Strategic-and-Operational-Research-Department>

Responsibilities: Duties include conducting independent and collaborative open-source, Russian-language, scholarly research on policy, strategic, military, maritime, nuclear, and other security issues related to Russia; support to and participation in exercises and war games as appropriate; and supporting student research.

Qualifications: Qualified candidates must have an advanced degree from an accredited university in an appropriate field. A research-oriented Ph.D. is preferred but not required. Evidence of extensive experience researching Russian security issues may be substituted for a Ph.D. Russian language expertise is required. A research agenda focusing on Russian strategy, policy, military, maritime, and/or deterrence issues is highly desirable.

Candidates must be U.S. citizens and capable of obtaining a Department of Defense TOP SECRET/SCI security clearance. The selected candidate will be subject to a pre-employment drug screening test and to random drug testing thereafter.

Appointment: The appointment is governed by provisions of 10 USC 7478 as delegated by the Secretary of the Navy, and the regulations of the U.S. Office of Personnel Management that apply to "Excepted" appointments under Schedule A.

Salary Considerations: Salary is competitive and is accompanied by a generous federal benefit package that includes health insurance and retirement saving plans (with employer matching contributions), paid vacation and sick leave, and other benefits. Rank and salary are commensurate with experience and credentials in accordance with Department of the Navy Faculty Schedule.

Applications: Applicants must reference VA#NWC-18-16 and submit their application package to: hro-sord-18-16@usnwc.edu. The application package must include: (1) cover letter, (2) curriculum vitae, and (3) names and contact information for three references. Applications will be accepted until 9 November 2018.

Active duty members may apply under this announcement but are subject to eligibility requirements of the Veterans Opportunity to Work Act (VOW). Active duty members must submit a statement of service printed on command letterhead and signed by the command. The statement of service must provide branch, rate/rank, all dates of service, the expected date of discharge and anticipated character of service (Honorable, General, etc.). Please note: you will be ineligible for consideration if your statement of service is not submitted with your application or it shows an expected discharge or release date greater than 120 days after being submitted with your application.

Within the Department of Defense (DoD), the appointment of retired military members within 180 days immediately following retirement dated to a civilian position is subject to the provisions of 5 United States Code 3326.

Questions should be directed to the search committee chair, Dr. Michael Petersen at: michael.petersen@usnwc.edu. The Naval War College is an Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action Employer.

Start Date:

Application Deadline: 11/9/2018

Date Posted: 10/1/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4929

Naval War College

Rank: Chair of Strategic and Operational Research Department (SORD)

U.S. NAVAL WAR COLLEGE SEEKS
CHAIR OF STRATEGIC AND OPERATIONAL RESEARCH DEPARTMENT
AD-1701-09

The President, U.S. Naval War College, invites applications for the position of Chair, Strategic and Operational Research Department in the Center for Naval Warfare Studies.

The U.S. Naval War College is a Professional Military Education institution serving the nation, the Department of Defense, and the U.S. Navy. The student body consists of members of all the Services, interagency civilians, and international officers. The College is accredited by the New England Association of Schools and Colleges to award a Master of Arts Degree in Defense and Strategic Studies for the College of Naval Command and Staff and a Master of Arts Degree in National Security and Strategic Studies for the College of Naval Warfare. The College is also accredited by the Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff to award certification in Joint Professional Military Education Phase I & II.

Strategic and Operational Research Department: The Strategic and Operational Research Department produces innovative research and analysis for the U.S. Navy, the U.S. Department of Defense, the U.S. interagency, and the broader national security community. It also generates new scholarship and actively participates in the broader community of scholars. The department is one of two in the Center for Naval Warfare Studies at the Naval War College, the other being the War Gaming Department. The department is home to a number of specialized centers, institutes, and advanced research groups that foster deeper levels of research, analysis, and teaching on subjects of critical interest for the Navy: the China Maritime Studies Institute, the Cyber and Innovation Policy Institute, the Russia Maritime Studies Institute, Institute for Future Warfare Studies, and the Gravelly, Halsey, and Mahan advanced research programs. The department's faculty employ varied and multi-disciplinary approaches to national security issues, generating new knowledge for the Navy and the Department of Defense. The department's faculty are educated in a range of social sciences, humanities, sciences, and critical languages, and the faculty consists of civilians and retired and active-duty military officers. For more information, see the department's webpage: <https://usnwc.edu/Faculty-and-Departments/Academic-Departments/Strategic-and-OperationalResearch-Department>

Responsibilities: The Chair of the Strategic and Operational Research Department, working under the supervision of the Dean of the Center for Naval Warfare Studies, provides leadership for all aspects of the Department's operations including: setting research priorities; engagement with Navy, Joint, DoD, and USG leadership, analytic and academic engagement and outreach; and faculty recruitment, retention, and development. The Chair oversees the preparation, review, management, and execution of the Department's annual research and operations budget. The Chair works closely with the College's leadership, fostering and maintaining cooperative relationships with other departments and programs, and encouraging integration across College departments.

Qualifications: The President seeks candidates who are successful, proven leaders in the academic or analytic world. Qualified candidates must have a research-oriented Ph.D. in an appropriate field and a record of research and/or analytic work in national security issues. The successful candidate must have excellent communication and interpersonal skills and demonstrated experience leading and managing a diverse group of professionals. A candidate's accomplishments must merit appointment as a full professor at the College. Familiarity with naval/maritime strategies, operational concepts, and capabilities is highly desirable. A highly desirable candidate should also have strong team building skills and experience in developing innovative approaches to research and analysis.

Candidates must be U.S. citizens and capable of obtaining a Department of Defense TOP SECRET/SCI security clearance. The selected candidate will be subject to a pre-employment drug screening test and to random drug testing thereafter.

Appointment: The appointment is governed by provisions of 10 USC 7478 as delegated by the Secretary of the Navy, and the regulations of the U.S. Office of Personnel Management that apply to "Excepted" appointments under Schedule A. For the successful candidate, the initial term of appointment is expected to be four years in length with provision for renewal dependent on performance. Expected start date is no later than summer 2019.

Salary Considerations: Salary is competitive and is accompanied by a generous federal benefit package that includes health insurance and retirement saving plans (with employer matching contributions), paid vacation and sick leave, and other benefits. Rank and salary are commensurate with experience and credentials in accordance with Department of the Navy Faculty Schedule.

Applications: Applicants must reference VA#NWC-18-17 and submit their application package to: hro-sord-18-17@usnwc.edu. The application package must include: (1) cover letter, (2) curriculum vitae, and (3) names and contact information for three references. Applications will be accepted until 14 November 2018.

Active duty members may apply under this announcement but are subject to eligibility requirements of the Veterans Opportunity to Work Act (VOW). Active duty members must submit a statement of service printed on command letterhead and signed by the command. The statement of service must provide branch, rate/rank, all dates of service, the expected date of discharge and anticipated character of service (Honorable, General, etc.). Please note: you will be ineligible for consideration if your statement of service is not submitted with your application or it shows an expected discharge or release date greater than 120 days after being submitted with your application.

Within the Department of Defense (DoD), the appointment of retired military members within 180 days immediately following retirement dated to a civilian position is subject to the provisions of 5 United States Code 3326.

Questions should be directed to the search committee point of contact, Dr. Peter Dombrowski at: dombrowp@usnwc.edu. The Naval War College is an Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action Employer.

Start Date:

Application Deadline: 11/14/2018

Date Posted: 10/1/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4930

Naval War College

Rank: Director, Cyber and Innovation Policy Institute (CIPI)

U.S. NAVAL WAR COLLEGE SEEKS
Director, Cyber and Innovation Policy Institute
Strategic and Operational Research Department
Center for Naval Warfare Studies
AD-1701-07

The President, U.S. Naval War College, invites applications for director of the newly-created

Cyber and Innovation Policy Institute, part of the Strategic and Operational Research Department in the Center for Naval Warfare Studies.

The U.S. Naval War College is a Professional Military Education institution serving the nation, the Department of Defense, and the U.S. Navy. The student body consists of members of all the Services, interagency civilians, and international officers. The College is accredited by the New England Association of Schools and Colleges to award a Master of Arts Degree in Defense and Strategic Studies for the College of Naval Command and Staff and a Master of Arts Degree in National Security and Strategic Studies for the College of Naval Warfare. The College is also accredited by the Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff to award certification in Joint Professional Military Education Phase I & II.

Strategic and Operational Research Department: The Strategic and Operational Research Department produces innovative research and analysis for the U.S. Navy, the U.S. Department of Defense, the U.S. interagency, and the broader national security community. It also generates new scholarship and actively participates in the broader community of scholars. The department is one of two in the Center for Naval Warfare Studies at the Naval War College, the other being the War Gaming Department. The department is home to a number of specialized centers, institutes, and advanced research groups that foster deeper levels of research, analysis, and teaching on subjects of critical interest for the Navy: the China Maritime Studies Institute, the Cyber and Innovation Policy Institute, the Russia Maritime Studies Institute, Institute for Future Warfare Studies, and the Gravelly, Halsey, and Mahan advanced research projects. The department's faculty employ varied and multi-disciplinary approaches to national security issues, generating new knowledge for the Navy and the Department of Defense. The department's faculty are educated in a range of social sciences, humanities, sciences, and critical languages, and the faculty consists of civilians and retired and active-duty military officers. For more information, see the department's webpage: <https://usnwc.edu/Faculty-andDepartments/Academic-Departments/Strategic-and-Operational-Research-Department>

Cyber and Innovation Policy Institute:

The Cyber and Innovation Policy Institute (CIPI) is a new initiative to take research at the Naval War College on cyber to the next level at the policy, strategic, and operational levels. Specifically, it will focus on innovation in the cyber domain and actionable policy options for senior leaders. CIPI activities will help shape Navy, as well as joint and national cyber policy and operations. It will also support joint education at the Naval War College and other naval institutions. The Institute is the successor to and an outgrowth of the highly successful community of interest at the Naval War College – the Center for Cyber Conflict Studies (C3S). The Institute consists of a newly enlarged core of research faculty in the Strategic and Operational Research Department as well as a large number of affiliated faculty in departments across the Naval War College.

Responsibilities: The Director, working under the supervision of the Chair of the Strategic and Operational Research Department, will provide leadership for the Institute's research and operations including: setting research priorities; supporting Institute faculty, engaging Navy, Joint, DoD, and USG leadership, analytic and academic engagement and outreach; and setting the future direction of the Institute. The Director works closely with the Center and College's leadership to foster and maintain cooperative relationships with other departments, institutes, center, and programs, and encourages integration across College departments. The Director also maintains and advances a research portfolio of her or his own.

Qualifications: Qualified candidates must have an advanced degree and experience in the cyber security field. A candidate's accomplishments must merit appointment as a full professor at the College. Preferred qualifications that will make candidates especially competitive possess a research-oriented PhD; evidence of extensive experience researching and/or analyzing cyber security issues and developing innovative approaches to research and analysis. Demonstrated experience leading and managing a diverse group of individuals and strong team building skills is also highly desired.

Candidates must be U.S. citizens and capable of obtaining a Department of Defense TOP SECRET/SCI security clearance. The selected candidate will be subject to a pre-employment drug screening test and to random drug testing thereafter.

Appointment: The appointment is governed by provisions of 10 USC 7478 as delegated by the Secretary of the Navy, and the regulations of the U.S. Office of Personnel Management that apply to "Excepted" appointments under Schedule A.

Salary Considerations: Salary is competitive and is accompanied by a generous federal benefit package that includes health insurance and retirement saving plans (with employer matching contributions), paid vacation and sick leave, and other benefits. Rank and salary are commensurate with experience and credentials in accordance with Department of the Navy Faculty Schedule.

Applications: Applicants must reference VA#NWC-18-18 and submit their application package to: hro-sord-18-18@usnwc.edu. The application package must include: (1) cover letter, (2) curriculum vitae, and (3) names and contact information for three references. Applications will be accepted until 14 November 2018.

Active duty members may apply under this announcement but are subject to eligibility requirements of the Veterans Opportunity to Work Act (VOW). Active duty members must submit a statement of service printed on command letterhead and signed by the command. The statement of service must provide branch, rate/rank, all dates of service, the expected date of discharge and anticipated character of service (Honorable, General, etc.). Please note: you will be ineligible for consideration if your statement of service is not submitted with your application or it shows an expected discharge or release date greater than 120 days after being submitted with your application.

Within the Department of Defense (DoD), the appointment of retired military members within 180 days immediately following retirement dated to a civilian position is subject to the provisions of 5 United States Code 3326.

Questions should be directed to the search committee chair, Dr. Montgomery McFate at: montgomery.mcfate@usnwc.edu. The Naval War College is an Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action Employer.

Start Date:

Application Deadline: 11/14/2018

Date Posted: 10/1/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4931

University of California, Berkeley

Rank: Lecturer Pool - Department of Political Science/College of Letters and Science

Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Comparative Politics, International Relations

Lecturer Pool - Department of Political Science/College of Letters and Science

RECRUITMENT PERIOD

Open date: September 25th, 2018

Next review date: October 12th, 2018

Apply by this date to ensure full consideration by the committee.

Final date: September 13th, 2019

Applications will continue to be accepted until this date, but those received after the review date will only be considered if the position has not yet been filled.

DESCRIPTION

The Charles and Louise Travers Department of Political Science in the College of Letters and Science at the University of California, Berkeley invites applications for a pool of qualified temporary lecturers to teach courses as needed in the areas of American Politics, California Politics, Comparative Politics, International Relations, Methodology & Formal Theory, Political Theory & Philosophy, Models & Politics, Political Behavior, Public Law & Jurisprudence, and Public Policy & Organization.

The number of positions varies from semester to semester, depending on the needs of the department. Positions may range from 33% to 100%, depending on the number of classes being taught. Appointments typically start at the beginning of the semester and may be renewed based on need, funding, and performance.

General Duties: In addition to teaching responsibilities, general duties include holding office hours, assigning grades, advising students, preparing course materials (e.g. syllabus), and maintaining a course website.

Basic Qualifications: The minimum qualifications required to be an applicant is a Completion of Bachelor's degree (or equivalent international degree) is required at the time of application.

Preferred Qualifications: Completion of all Ph.D. (or equivalent) degree requirements except dissertation at the time of application or, full-time paid political experience of at least 4 years within the last 10 years.

Salary: Salary will be based on applicant's teaching experience, appointment % FTE, and current campus salary scales in place at time of appointment. The current minimum salary for this position would be based on a full-time annual salary of $54,738. Lecturers teaching one course per semesters are typically appointed at a 33% rate.

The department is interested in candidates who will contribute to diversity and equal opportunity in higher education through their teaching. UC Berkeley has a number of policies and programs in place to support employees as they balance work and family.

To apply, please go to the following link:

<http://apptrkr.com/1301633>

Applicants must submit their most recently updated C.V.

The department may later request contact information for 3-5 references, teaching statements, evidence of teaching effectiveness, such as past course syllabi, teaching evaluations, etc., but they are not required at the time of application.

When and if the department contacts references, all letters will be treated as confidential per University of California policy and California state law. Please refer potential referees, including when letters are provided via a third party (i.e., dossier service or career center), to the UC Berkeley statement of confidentiality (<http://apo.berkeley.edu/evaltr.html>) prior to submitting their letters.

Applications will be accepted and reviewed for department needs through September 13, 2019. The department typically reviews applications for fall course needs in April/May, for spring course needs in October/November, and for summer course needs in February/March. Those interested in remaining in the pool after September 13, 2019 will need to reapply.

Please note: The use of a lecturer pool does not guarantee that an open position exists. See the review date specified in AP Recruit to learn whether the department is currently reviewing applications for a specific position. If there is no future review date specified, your application may not be considered at this time.

Please direct questions to Serena Groen at serena_groen@berkeley.edu

The University of California is an Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action Employer. All qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to race, color, religion, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, national origin, disability, age or protected veteran status. For the complete University of California nondiscrimination and affirmative action policy see: <http://policy.ucop.edu/doc/4000376/NondiscrimAffirmAct>

JOB LOCATION

Berkeley, CA

REQUIREMENTS

Document requirements

- Curriculum Vitae - Your most recently updated C.V.
- Teaching Statement (Optional)

- Evidence of Teaching Effectiveness - i.e. past course syllabi, teaching evaluations, etc.
(Optional)

Reference requirements

- 0-5 required (contact information only)

Start Date: Summer 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 10/1/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4933

Leiden University

Rank: Assistant Professor of Political Science

Subfield(s): International Relations, Comparative Politics, Political Theory

Specializations: Environmental Policy, China, International Security

The Institute of Political Science of Leiden University's Faculty of Social and Behavioural Sciences invites applicants for the position of Assistant Professor of Political Science (1.0 FTE, 5 positions)

Vacancy number 5901

Key responsibilities

Due to the growth of our programme, we are looking to hire 5 assistant professors of political science. The appointment includes teaching introductory and advanced courses reflecting the candidate's expertise, supervising MSc and BSc theses, conducting scholarly research, acquiring external research funding, and participating in the intellectual and administrative life of the Institute (i.e., department). It could also include teaching general introductory courses, working groups, and/or co-supervising PhD theses.

All applicants should be well trained in one or more of the major sub-disciplines (e.g., comparative politics, international relations, political philosophy) and in research methods appropriate to their field and interests. All specialisations will be considered, but we are especially interested in applicants working on Asian and Chinese politics and foreign policy, US politics and foreign policy, international environmental politics, international conflict resolution, politics of international law, international political economy, comparative public policy, and political behavior. Applicants who are prepared to teach research design, qualitative and/or quantitative research methods should outline their relevant training and/or teaching experience in their applications.

Selection criteria

- Applicants must hold (or be near to completing) a PhD in Political Science or a cognate discipline;
- Applicants must have a promising research agenda, some scholarly publications, teaching experience and good teaching evaluations;
- Applicants must be able to teach in English; ability to teach in Dutch is a plus. Staff who do not speak Dutch are required to progress steadily toward Dutch competence through training financed by the institute;
- Leiden University requires teaching staff to obtain the University Teaching Qualification (BKO). If the successful applicant does not already possess this qualification or its equivalent, s/he must obtain this qualification within two years.

Research at our Faculty/Institute

Leiden University's Faculty of Social and Behavioural Sciences comprises four institutes: Education and Child Studies, Political Science,

Psychology and Cultural Anthropology & Development Sociology. The Faculty also includes the Centre for Science and Technology Studies. The Faculty is home to 5,000 students and 600 members of staff. Its teaching and research programmes cover diverse topics varying from adoption to political behaviour. For more information, see <http://www.universiteitleiden.nl/en/social-behavioural-sciences>.

The Institute of Political Science has a strong research tradition in various areas of comparative, Dutch and international politics, as well as political theory. The Institute has around 80 academic staff, including many non-Dutch scholars, and houses a number of editorships of international refereed journals and book series. Members of the institute are also involved in a number of the university's multi-disciplinary research centres, including Central and East European Studies, International Relations, Parties and Representation, and Political Philosophy. The Institute is based in Leiden but a large and growing part of the teaching is done nearby in The Hague.

The Institute offers a range of taught programmes at the Bachelor and Master levels and also trains PhD students in political science. The BSc programmes include general Political Science (in Dutch & English, in Leiden), International Politics (in Dutch & English, in Leiden), and International Relations and Organisations (in English, in The Hague). The one-year MSc programme (taught mostly in English) includes four specialisations in Leiden and two in The Hague. Terms and conditions

The position starts as soon as possible, preferably in January 2019. The appointment will be made on a temporary contract of up to 3 years depending upon prior experience. A permanent appointment may be possible during or after the term of the initial contract, depending upon performance (in teaching, research and administration) and the budgetary situation of the Institute. Salary range from 3,545 to 4,852 gross per month (pay scale 11 in accordance with the Collective Labour Agreement for Dutch Universities).

Leiden University offers an attractive benefits package with additional holiday (8%) and end-of-year bonuses (8.3%), training and career development. Our individual choices model gives you some freedom to assemble your own set of terms and conditions. Candidates from outside the Netherlands may be eligible for a substantial tax break. More at <https://www.universiteitleiden.nl/en/working-at/job-application-procedure-and-employment-conditions>.

Diversity

Leiden University is strongly committed to diversity within its community and especially welcomes applications from members of under-represented groups.

Information

Further enquiries can be directed to Professor Arjen Boin, chair of the selection committee, email: boin@fsw.leidenuniv.nl

Applications

Please submit online your application no later than 31 October 2018 via the blue button of our application system. Applicants should submit online a letter of interest, a CV (with list of publications), a research statement covering their current and future research agenda, a sample paper or article, and a statement of teaching interests and experience including sample syllabi and/or teaching evaluations. Applicants should also ask two people to submit recommendation letters commenting on their professional qualifications and suitability for the position directly (i.e. not through the applicant) to vacature_powe@fsw.leidenuniv.nl.

The selection procedure will take place in November-December 2018. Selected candidates will first be invited for an online pre-interview; some will then be invited for in-person interview and research talk. You are kindly requested to be available in this period.

Enquiries from agencies are not appreciated.

Start Date: Winter 2019

Application Deadline: 10/31/2018

Date Posted: 9/28/2018

Salary: $90,000 - $99,999

eJobs ID: 4918

Wake Forest University

Rank: Worrell Chair in Anglo-American Studies

Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Comparative Politics, International Relations

WAKE FOREST UNIVERSITY

WORRELL CHAIR IN ANGLO-AMERICAN STUDIES

The Department of Politics and International Affairs at Wake Forest University is seeking an outstanding scholar and teacher to fill a named chair in the area of Anglo-American studies as it relates to politics, ideally at the Full or Associate Professor level.

The Department understands Anglo-America broadly to include Britain as well as regions of the Americas in which English is spoken widely and where the British colonial legacy is reflected in present-day culture and politics. This includes the United States, Canada and the Anglophone Caribbean. Similarly, scholars of Anglo-American studies with research interests that add unique contributions to those of current Wake Forest Politics and International Affairs faculty are encouraged to apply. These might include but are not limited to the examination of shared issues including immigration, environmental, and social welfare policies; party and electoral systems; labor politics and political economy; postcolonial and critical legal studies; and the social and political inequalities associated with race, class, and gender. The Department of Politics and International Affairs includes faculty who are both dedicated teachers and active researchers. Candidates should have a strong commitment to excellence in undergraduate teaching and an outstanding record of research. Salary will be commensurate with the rank and stature of the selected applicant.

Founded in 1834, Wake Forest University is presently ranked among the top 30 national universities in the United States. The university is located in Winston-Salem, North Carolina, a vibrant, small city with a thriving arts community. At Wake Forest and in Winston-Salem there are many opportunities for multi-disciplinary collaboration and community-engaged research, supported by the Pro Humanitate Institute, the Anna Julia Cooper Center, and other affiliated centers. Wake Forest University and Winston-Salem also houses one of the fastest growing urban technology innovation districts in the United States, Wake Forest Innovation Quarter.

Wake Forest University and the Department of Politics and International Affairs welcome diversity and encourage inclusivity. We therefore seek applicants with demonstrated success in engaging diverse populations. Wake Forest University is an AA/EO employer and values an inclusive and diverse learning community and campus climate.

Applications will be reviewed as they are received and accepted until the Professorship is filled. Inquiries and questions about the position should be directed to the Chair of the Search Committee: Katy Harriger at harriger@wfu.edu subject line: "Worrell Chair." Applications accepted on line www.wfu.careers. A complete application includes a letter of interest and a C.V. Additional information and references will be requested from finalists. Technical questions may be directed to wakejobs@wfu.edu.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 9/28/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4921

New York University Abu Dhabi

Rank: Political Science Professor - Armed Conflict and Violence - Open Rank

The Social Science Division at New York University Abu Dhabi invites applications from scholars of armed conflict and violence for full-time open-rank appointments. The search is open as to substantive area—scholars working on civil conflict, micro dynamics of conflict, and inter-state conflict are all encouraged to apply. The search is also open with regards to disciplinary and methodological approaches. We expect successful candidates to commence their appointment on September 1, 2019, subject to final budget approval.

You may visit the Political Science programs website for a description of its innovative curriculum: <https://nyuad.nyu.edu/en/academics/undergraduate/majors-and-minors/political-science-major.html>

The review of applications will begin September 8, and will continue on a rolling basis until the positions are filled. The excellent terms of employment are competitive and include generous start-up and on-going research funds, as well as housing subsidies and educational subsidies for children. Faculty may also spend an occasional semester at NYU New York and other sites of the global network, engaging in both research and teaching opportunities.

To ensure full consideration by the search committee, applicants must submit a curriculum vitae, a statement of research plans, a statement of teaching interests and three representative writing samples. To complete the online process, early career applicants will be prompted to enter the names and email addresses of at least three referees. Each referee will be contacted to upload their reference letter. Senior candidates should provide a list of three references in PDF format.

Please visit <https://apply.interfolio.com/52967> to apply.

If you have any questions, please e-mail nyuad.socialscience@nyu.edu.

About NYUAD:

New York University has established itself as a Global Network University. The network has three foundational degree-granting campuses: New York, Abu Dhabi, and Shanghai, complemented by a network of eleven research and study-away sites across five continents. Our students are drawn from around the world and surpass all traditional recruitment benchmarks, both US and global. Our goal is to develop a cohort of international students attuned to and educated for an inclusive global society. Students and Faculty will circulate within the global network in pursuit of common research interests and the promotion of cross-cultural and interdisciplinary solutions for problems both local and global.

Entering its ninth year, NYU Abu Dhabi has recruited a cohort of faculty who are distinguished in their research and teaching. NYU Abu Dhabi's highly selective liberal arts enterprise is complemented by an institute for advanced research, sponsoring cutting-edge projects across the Arts, Humanities, Social Sciences, Sciences, and Engineering.

For more information please visit our website at <http://nyuad.nyu.edu/en/about/careers.html>

UAE Nationals are encouraged to apply.

The University is an equal opportunity employer committed to equity, diversity and social inclusion.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 9/27/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4916

New York University Abu Dhabi

Rank: Political Science Professor - Middle East/Asia - Open Rank

The Social Science Division at New York University Abu Dhabi invites applications from scholars working on politics in the Middle East or Asia for full-time open-rank appointments. We expect successful candidates to commence their appointment on September 1, 2019, subject to final budget approval.

You may visit the Political Science programs website for a description of its innovative curriculum: <https://nyuad.nyu.edu/en/academics/undergraduate/majors-and-minors/political-science-major.html>

The review of applications will begin September 8, and will continue on a rolling basis until the positions are filled. The excellent terms of employment are competitive and include generous start-up and on-going research funds, as well as housing subsidies and educational subsidies for children. Faculty may also spend an occasional semester at NYU New York and other sites of the global network, engaging in both research and teaching opportunities.

To ensure full consideration by the search committee, applicants must submit a curriculum vitae, a statement of research plans, a statement of teaching interests and three representative writing samples. To complete the online process, early career applicants will be prompted to enter the names and email addresses of at least three referees. Each referee will be contacted to upload their reference letter. Senior candidates should provide a list of three references in PDF format.

Please visit <https://apply.interfolio.com/52973> to apply.

If you have any questions, please e-mail nyuad.socialscience@nyu.edu.

About NYUAD:

New York University has established itself as a Global Network University. The network has three foundational degree-granting campuses: New York, Abu Dhabi, and Shanghai, complemented by a network of eleven research and study-away sites across five continents. Our students are drawn from around the world and surpass all traditional recruitment benchmarks, both US and global. Our goal is to develop a cohort of international students attuned to and educated for an inclusive global society. Students and Faculty will circulate within the global network in pursuit of common research interests and the promotion of cross-cultural and interdisciplinary solutions for problems both local and global.

Entering its ninth year, NYU Abu Dhabi has recruited a cohort of faculty who are distinguished in their research and teaching. NYU Abu Dhabi's highly selective liberal arts enterprise is complemented by an institute for advanced research, sponsoring cutting-edge projects across the Arts, Humanities, Social Sciences, Sciences, and Engineering.

For more information please visit our website at <http://nyuad.nyu.edu/en/about/careers.html>

UAE Nationals are encouraged to apply.

The University is an equal opportunity employer committed to equity, diversity and social inclusion.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 9/27/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4917

New York University Abu Dhabi

Rank: Political Science Professor - Open Rank

Subfield(s): Comparative Politics, Political Theory, International Relations

New York University Abu Dhabi invites applications for full-time tenure/track appointments in Political Science. The open-rank search is open to all fields and methodologies. Applications from senior scholars (associate and full professor) are especially welcome. We expect successful candidates to commence their appointment September 1, 2019, subject to final budget approval. You may visit the Political Science programs website for a description of its innovative curriculum:

<https://nyuad.nyu.edu/en/academics/undergraduate/majors-and-minors/political-science-major.html>

The review of applications will begin September 1, and will continue on a rolling basis until the positions are filled. The excellent terms of employment are competitive and include generous start-up and on-going research funds, as well as housing subsidies and educational subsidies for children. Faculty may also spend an occasional semester at NYU New York and other sites of the global network, engaging in both research and teaching opportunities.

To ensure full consideration by the search committee, applicants must submit a curriculum vitae, a statement of research plans, a statement of teaching interests and three representative writing samples. To complete the online process, early career applicants will be prompted to enter the names and email addresses of at least three referees. Each referee will be contacted to upload their reference letter. Senior candidates should provide a list of three references in PDF format.

Please visit <https://apply.interfolio.com/52969> to apply.

If you have any questions, please e-mail nyuad.socialscience@nyu.edu.

About NYUAD:

New York University has established itself as a Global Network University. The network has three foundational degree-granting campuses: New York, Abu Dhabi, and Shanghai, complemented by a network of eleven research and study-away sites across five continents. Our students are drawn from around the world and surpass all traditional recruitment benchmarks, both US and global. Our goal is to develop a cohort of international students attuned to and educated for an inclusive global society. Students and Faculty will circulate within the global network in pursuit of common research interests and the promotion of cross-cultural and interdisciplinary solutions for problems both local and global.

Entering its ninth year, NYU Abu Dhabi has recruited a cohort of faculty who are distinguished in their research and teaching. NYU Abu Dhabi's highly selective liberal arts enterprise is complemented by an institute for advanced research, sponsoring cutting-edge projects across the Arts, Humanities, Social Sciences, Sciences, and Engineering.

For more information please visit our website at <http://nyuad.nyu.edu/en/about/careers.html>

UAE Nationals are encouraged to apply.

The University is an equal opportunity employer committed to equity, diversity and social inclusion.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 9/27/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4915

Providence College

Rank: Adjunct Faculty in Political Science (Part-time)

The Department of Political Science at Providence College seeks applications for two part-time adjunct faculty positions for the Spring 2019 semester which commences on January 14, 2019. One position is to teach one section of Introduction to International Relations scheduled for 2:30 – 3:45 Tuesdays and Thursdays. The second position is to teach one section of African Politics scheduled for 4 – 5:15 Tuesdays and Thursdays. We are open to considering applicants, with expertise in both subjects, who wish to teach both courses. Applicants should possess either a PhD in Political Science or related field (candidates ABD will be considered). Prior college teaching experience preferred.

Interested candidates should submit on-line a statement of interest, current curriculum vitae, and copies of official graduate transcript(s). Applicants will be prompted to submit the names and email addresses of three reference providers who will receive an email from our on-line career site with a link and instructions on how to submit a letter recommendation that speaks primarily to the applicant's teaching. Application instructions are available at the following website: <https://careers.providence.edu>

The application deadline is November 1, 2018. Questions should be referred to Dr. William E. Hudson, department chair, at bhudson@providence.edu

Providence College is a Roman Catholic four-year liberal arts institution conducted under the auspices of the Dominican Friars and seeks candidates who can affirm and contribute to its mission. Providence College is committed to upholding an academic culture and campus community that attracts and supports the development of a diverse faculty reflecting the global environment in which we live and work. An AA/EOE, the College especially encourages the applications of women and persons of color.

Start Date: Spring 2019

Application Deadline: 11/1/2018

Date Posted: 9/27/2018

Salary: Below $20,000

eJobs ID: 4911

Yale University

Rank: Henry A. Kissinger Postdoctoral Fellowship

Subfield(s): International Relations, Methodology, Other

The Henry A. Kissinger Visiting Scholars Program awards one post-doctoral fellowship, funded by the Johnson Center for the Study of American Diplomacy for one year and renewable for one additional year. Postdoctoral Kissinger Visiting Scholars must have completed their Ph.D. degree to begin the fellowship.

Kissinger Visiting Scholars are expected to use the time to conduct original research and write manuscripts for publication, focused on the role of the United States in global affairs from World War II to the present, including the conduct of U.S. statecraft, diplomacy, and grand strategy. Kissinger Visiting Scholars fellowships will be awarded to candidates with outstanding proposals that require access to the Henry A. Kissinger Papers or other archival holdings related to American diplomacy at Yale. (<http://web.library.yale.edu/digital-collections/kissinger-collection>; <http://guides.library.yale.edu/american-diplomacy-primary-sources>).

Kissinger Visiting Scholars will also work with an active academic community of post-doctoral fellows and pre-doctoral fellows, as well as Yale faculty in history, political science, and other disciplines.

Postdoctoral Kissinger Visiting Scholars may teach small seminars if desired on subjects relevant to grand strategy, participate regularly in research colloquia on campus, and are granted opportunities to present their work. Postdoctoral fellows are expected to remain in residence through the duration of their fellowship and contribute to the intellectual life of the Program in Grand Strategy, International Security Studies, and the Jackson Institute for Global Affairs by participating in their activities and development. Offices are located on Yale's campus.

The Johnson Center for the Study of American Diplomacy was founded upon the 2011 donation of Dr. Henry Kissinger's papers to Yale related to his pre-government, government, and post-government careers (<http://news.yale.edu/2011/06/14/yale-receive-kissinger-papers-and-establish-johnson-center-study-american-diplomacy>). A program of the Jackson Institute for Global Affairs, in conjunction with International Security Studies and the Brady-Johnson Program in Grand Strategy, the Center brings academics and practitioners to Yale as Kissinger Visiting Scholars and Kissinger Senior Fellows, as well as hosts an annual conference a range of other activities relating to international affairs.

Qualifications

Recent Ph.D. in relevant field. Ph.D. must be in hand by September 1, 2019.

APPLICATION INSTRUCTIONS

A complete application includes:

1. C.V.
2. 100-word research proposal abstract.
3. 1000-word research proposal, to include an explanation of how access to the Kissinger Papers or other archival holdings related to diplomatic history at Yale would help achieve the goals of your project.
4. Three letters of recommendation.
5. Two writing samples, e.g., dissertation chapters or journal articles.

Applications are due through Interfolio (<https://apply.interfolio.com/54775>) by November 12th.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: 11/12/2018

Date Posted: 9/27/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4913

Yale University

Rank: Henry Chauncey Postdoctoral Fellowship

Subfield(s): International Relations, Methodology, Other

Henry Chauncey Postdoctoral Fellowship

The Chauncey Postdoctoral Fellowships are up to three positions funded by the Brady-Johnson Program in Grand Strategy for one year renewable for one additional year. We seek to attract outstanding junior scholars from around the globe whose work addresses questions of statecraft and grand strategy, broadly defined, and demonstrates excellence in one of a range of academic disciplines and methodologies. Postdoctoral fellows must have completed their PhD degree to begin the fellowship. They are expected to use their time at Yale to conduct original research and prepare manuscripts for publication. Fellows will work with an active academic community of postdoctoral and predoctoral fellows, as well as Yale faculty in history, political science, and other disciplines. Postdoctoral fellows may teach small seminars if desired. They participate regularly in research colloquia on campus and are granted opportunities to present their work. Postdoctoral fellows are expected to remain in residence through the duration of their fellowship and contribute to the intellectual life of the Brady-Johnson Program in Grand Strategy and to International Security Studies by participating in their activities and development. Offices are located on Yale's campus.

Qualifications

Recent Ph.D. in relevant field. Ph.D. must be in hand by September 1, 2019.

Application Instructions

A complete application consists of:

1. CV
2. A 100-word research proposal abstract.
3. A 1000-word research proposal.
4. Three letters of recommendation.
5. Two writing samples, e.g. dissertation chapters or journal articles.

Applications are due through Interfolio (<https://apply.interfolio.com/55016>) by December 3rd.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: 12/3/2018

Date Posted: 9/27/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4912

Loyola University Maryland

Rank: Visiting Affiliate Assistant Professor or Instructor in Comparative Politics/International Relations

We seek candidates displaying a strong commitment to excellence in teaching and interest in the enduring questions of comparative politics and international relations for a one-semester Spring 2019 position. Candidates for Visiting Affiliate Assistant Professor should have a Ph.D.; candidates for Instructor should be ABD.

The teaching load for the one-semester Spring 2019 position is four courses in the spring (capped at 30 students each), with two or three preparations. The four courses will include two sections of an introductory Comparative Politics course and two sections in the specialty of the applicant. Depending on the course, this could be two sections of the same course or two distinct courses, with possible courses in Nationalism, courses related to Globalization, or another Comparative or International Relations course proposed by the candidate. Service duties will be assigned by Chair.

Loyola University Maryland is a selective liberal arts university in the Jesuit Catholic tradition. The university is committed to intellectual excellence and social justice as it prepares students for a diverse and changing world. Recognized as a leading independent, comprehensive university in the northeastern United States, Loyola has a beautiful historic Evergreen campus in Baltimore and Graduate Centers in Timonium and Columbia. Loyola enrolls over 4,000 students in its undergraduate programs and about 2,000 students in its graduate programs.

Loyola seeks a broad spectrum of candidates, including women, people of color, people with disabilities, and members of sexual minority groups, who understand, respect, and can actively contribute to the University's Jesuit mission and values (see <http://www.loyola.edu/about.aspx> to learn more about Loyola and its educational mission).

Please go to www.loyola.edu/careers to complete the online application. Using the link above, electronically submit a curriculum vita, evidence of teaching effectiveness (such as teaching evaluations, if available), sample syllabi for proposed courses (use Other 1), a list of three references who could comment on teaching abilities, and a cover letter that explicitly incorporates a clear understanding of the mission of Jesuit higher education and how one will contribute to this mission.

If materials cannot be electronically uploaded to the website, please email to: Dr. Carsten Vala (cvala@loyola.edu) or, if unable to send electronically, mail to him at Dept. of Political Science, Loyola University Maryland, 4501 N. Charles St., Baltimore, MD, 21210.

Reviews of applications will begin November 1.

Start Date: Spring 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 9/26/2018

Salary: Any

eJobs ID: 4900

Midwestern State University

Rank: Assistant Professor

Specializations: Western Europe, International Political Economy, Developing Nations

The Department of Political Science seeks applications for a tenure-track, assistant professor position to begin in fall 2019. We seek a candidate whose primary teaching interest is comparative politics with a specialization in European politics, as well as an additional ability to teach courses on International Political Economy, International Organizations, and/or Development. The applicant should hold a Ph.D. in Political Science (an ABD candidate would be required to have a Ph.D. by August 2020), and should contribute to the teaching and research mission of the university.

The Department of Political Science offers a B.A. Political Science, a B.A. Global Studies, and an M.A. in Political Science. It also houses

the interdisciplinary minor in Women's and Gender Studies and a successful Model United Nations program.

The teaching load is 12 hours per semester, with a course reduction when teaching graduate seminars. Salary is competitive, depending on experience.

Midwestern State University is a public liberal arts university with an enrollment of approximately 6,000 students located in Wichita Falls, a city of 106,000 about 2 hours northwest of Dallas/Fort Worth (www.msutexas.edu). As a Council of Public Liberal Arts Colleges (COPLAC) member institution, Midwestern State University is particularly committed to excellence in teaching and seeks applicants that will contribute to this mission. This position is designated as security sensitive and requires the finalist to complete a criminal background check. EEO/ADAAA compliance employer.

Please send a 1) letter of application, 2) curriculum vitae, 3) teaching evaluations, 4) one example of scholarly work, and 5) three letters of recommendation to:

Dr. Linda Veazey,
Interim Chair
Department of Political Science
Midwestern State University
3410 Taft Boulevard
Wichita Falls, TX 76308
linda.veazey@msutexas.edu

The initial review of complete applications will begin January 10, 2019 and will continue until the position is filled.

Start Date: Fall 2019
Application Deadline: 1/10/2019
Date Posted: 9/26/2018
Salary: Competitive
eJobs ID: 4903

Princeton University

Rank: Postdoctoral Research Associate

The Program in Latin American Studies (PLAS) is seeking candidates from any discipline who are engaged in scholarly or creative work on topics related to Latin American Studies to fill one to two Postdoctoral Research Associate or more senior positions. Candidates will be expected to devote themselves to research and writing, and may teach not more than one course per semester. When teaching, successful candidates will hold the secondary rank of Lecturer, and any teaching opportunities are subject to sufficient enrollments and the approval of the Dean of the Faculty. They also will be invited to participate regularly in the scholarly activities of the PLAS intellectual community.

Appointments are for a 12-month term, starting September 1, 2019, with the possibility of renewal, contingent on satisfactory performance and continued funding.

A competitive salary commensurate with experience and excellent benefits will be offered.

This position is subject to the University's background check policy.

How to Apply

For full consideration, applications should be submitted by January 6, 2019, 11:59 p.m. EST.

All candidates must apply online and submit the below materials at <https://www.princeton.edu/acad-positions/position/8901>.

- 1) Cover letter
- 2) Curriculum vitae
- 3) Statement of research interests (1,000 – 1,500 words)
- 4) A representative sample of recent work (under 30 written pages or equivalent in the candidate's professional medium; for artistic work, links within a PDF preferred).
- 5) Names and contact information for three references (the Program will contact them, if needed, at a later date)

Required Qualifications: Doctoral degree (within the last 5 years). Academic excellence, potential to bring new ideas and approaches to Princeton University and to interact successfully with a broad range of faculty and students.

Princeton University is an Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action Employer, and all qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to age, race, color, religion, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity or expression, national origin, disability status, protected veteran status, or any other characteristic protected by law.

Start Date: Fall 2019
Date Posted: 9/25/2018
Salary: Competitive
eJobs ID: 4894

Tulane University

Rank: Post Doctoral Fellow

Subfield(s): Comparative Politics, International Relations, Political Theory

The Center for Inter-American Policy and Research (CIPR) invites applications for four (4) research fellowships for the Academic Year of 2019-2020, two with program administration duties and two with light teaching. Applications from the social sciences in the fields of international relations, international political economy, comparative politics, political sociology, and policy studies are encouraged. Latin American expertise and Spanish or Portuguese fluency required. Fellows will be selected based on intellectual merit, experience, the potential impact of their planned research for CIPR programs, and teaching needs of the host department.

Fellowships are one-year, residential, full-time appointments with a stipend of $48,450 plus benefits. Travel and moving expenses are not supported. In addition to their planned research, applicants must be prepared to carry out either program administration or adjunct teaching responsibilities. In the program administration track, fellows will be expected to work with CIPR's director in the Commitment to Equity Project and/or Research Group MEGA: Mobilization, Extractivism, and Government Action, and/or to develop programmatic content and projects in Inter-American relations, comparative political economy, citizenship rights, human development, and others. The other fellowship carries a one course per semester adjunct teaching load in the department of the fellow's primary discipline and in the candidate's major subfields, without administrative responsibilities. In both cases, specific responsibilities will be defined jointly during the initial phase of the appointment. Applicants must plan to complete their Ph.D. no later than May 2019. Recent graduates with no longer than three years since receiving their Ph.D. are especially encouraged to apply.

Application must be submitted via Interfolio by visiting apply.interfolio.com/53827 and must include (1) a curriculum vitae; (2) a cover letter describing research interests and intended research at CIPR if selected, fit to the program and teaching experience; (3) a graduate transcript; (4) two recommendation letters; (5) a writing sample; and (6) teaching evaluations if available. For further information please contact Ludovico Feoli, Director, Center for Inter-American Policy Research. Applications will be reviewed starting December 31, 2018 until the positions are filled.

Tulane University is an equal opportunity/affirmative action employer committed to excellence through diversity. All eligible candidates are invited to apply for position vacancies as appropriate.

Start Date: Summer 2019

Application Deadline: 12/31/2018

Date Posted: 9/24/2018

Salary: $40,000 - $49,999

eJobs ID: 4881

Humboldt State University

Rank: Assistant Professor, Global Politics

Faculty Tenure-Track Position Starting August 2019

Department of Politics

JOB #1920-11

Humboldt State University is committed to achieving the goals of equal opportunity and endeavors to employ faculty, staff, and administrators of the highest quality reflecting the ethnic and cultural diversity of the state.

DESCRIPTION: Humboldt State University's Department of Politics invites applications for an academic year, tenure-track faculty position. We seek a broadly trained teacher and scholar of global politics.

RANK, SALARY AND BENEFITS: We seek to fill this position at the Assistant Professor rank; however, rank and salary are dependent on the appointee's qualifications and experience. The current California State University Salary Schedule is available at: <http://www.humboldt.edu/aps/docs/salary/Salary-Schedule.pdf>.

Humboldt State University provides an excellent benefits package for faculty. Information about benefits plans can be found at: <http://www.humboldt.edu/forms/node/934>.

PROFESSIONAL QUALIFICATIONS: An earned Ph.D. or equivalent in Political Science or related field from an accredited college or university is preferred at the time of appointment. Applicants with considerable progress towards terminal degree completion by appointment date will be considered. Completion of terminal degree is required prior to the start of the second probationary year following initial appointment.

The successful candidate must demonstrate the following:

- Evidence of, or potential for, effective teaching using a variety of methodologies;
- Commitment to and/or experience fostering a learning environment that supports individuals from diverse backgrounds;
- Evidence of, or potential for, commitment to equity and inclusion in pedagogy and curricula;
- Evidence of, or potential for, scholarly productivity in the field of global politics;

- Record of, or potential for, involving students in research and scholarly activity;
- Interest and ability to teach a broad range of courses (major, general education, etc.) and willingness to participate in the development of online learning experiences.

Experience with first year student learning communities or other first year initiatives is preferred.

At the time of appointment, the successful candidate, if not a U.S. citizen, must have authorization from the Bureau of Citizenship and Immigration Services to work in the United States. For information on the University policy on support for non-immigrant probationary faculty visa acquisition, please visit the Faculty Immigration Resources page: <https://extended.humboldt.edu/international-programs/immigration/faculty>.

Evidence of degree(s) is required at time of hire.

PROFESSIONAL DUTIES: At HSU, teaching effectiveness is essential for faculty retention, tenure, and promotion. Candidates should be committed to teaching excellence and to building a strong record of scholarship. Instructional assignments are expected to include introductory courses in comparative politics and international relations. We anticipate that candidates will also teach some combination of upper-division courses in our Global Politics concentration, on the following topics: ethnicity and nationalism, international law, global governance, political economy, foreign policy, or a course focused on a world region. The successful candidate will have the opportunity to develop courses within their area of expertise. Instructional assignments will be consistent with the programmatic needs of the department and students. Candidates with interdisciplinary interests are encouraged and there is opportunity to engage with the International Studies program and other interdisciplinary programs on campus.

The primary professional responsibilities of instructional faculty members are: teaching; scholarship; and service to the University, profession and to the community. Related responsibilities include: advising students, participation in campus and system-wide committees, maintaining office hours, working collaboratively and productively with colleagues, and participation in traditional academic functions including assessment of learning. Probationary faculty are typically provided ongoing mentorship to be a successful member of the faculty. During the first two years of the probationary period, teaching responsibilities will be reduced by approximately one course each semester (6 weighted teaching units per academic year). The reduced teaching load supports the establishment of research, scholarship and/or creative activities required for retention, tenure and promotion.

GENERAL INFORMATION: The Department of Politics is strongly committed to student-centered education, diversity, and inclusion. We offer our majors three distinctive concentrations in "Law and Policy," "Politics of Environment and Sustainability," and "Global Politics." For more information, please visit: politics.humboldt.edu

APPLICATION: Qualified candidates should submit the following materials through Interfolio:

Click here to apply: <http://apply.interfolio.com/55194>

- Letter of application;
- Curriculum vitae;
- Sample of scholarly work, such as a journal article, book chapter, or dissertation chapter;
- Statement of teaching philosophy;
- Sample syllabi;

- Teaching evaluations (if available);
- Graduate transcripts (unofficial copies are sufficient for initial review); and
- Three letters of recommendation.

Signed letters of recommendation may be e-mailed or mailed separately from the other application materials. In letter of application, please refer to Job #1920-11.

Additional application materials may be requested at a later time.

Please direct any questions pertaining to this position, the Department of Politics, or Humboldt State University to:

Dr. Noah Zerbe, Search Committee Chair
 Department of Politics
 Humboldt State University
 One Harpst Street
 Arcata, California 95521-8299
 Phone (707) 826-4494
 Email: globalpoliticssearch@humboldt.edu

APPLICATION DEADLINE: This position is open until filled. First consideration will be given to completed applications received no later than October 31, 2018. Early response is encouraged.

It is the responsibility of the applicant to provide complete and accurate employment information. Evidence of required degree(s), certifications(s), or licenses(s) will be required prior to the appointment date. A background check (including a criminal records check, employment verification, and education verification) must be completed satisfactorily as a condition of employment with the CSU. Certain positions may also require a credit check, motor vehicle report, and/or fingerprinting through Live Scan service. Adverse findings from a background check may affect the application status of applicants or continued employment of current CSU employees who apply for the position. All CSU employees are obligated to respond to and report incidents of sexual harassment and sexual violence. The successful candidate for this position will be mandated to receive relevant training on an annual basis. The person holding this position is considered a 'limited reporter' under the California Child Abuse and Neglect Reporting Act and is required to comply with the requirements set forth in CSU Executive Order 1083 as a condition of employment.

New employees hired by the CSU for the first time who first become CalPERS members on or after July 1, 2017 are subject to a 10 year vesting period for retiree health and dental benefits.

Humboldt State University is a Title IX/Affirmative Action/Equal Opportunity Employer. We consider qualified applicants for employment without regard to race, religion, color, national origin, ancestry, age, sex, gender, gender identity, gender expression, sexual orientation, genetic information, medical condition, disability, marital status, protected veteran status, or any other legally protected status. If accommodations need to be made during the recruitment and interview process, please contact Human Resources at (707) 826-3626 or hsuhr@humboldt.edu.

Humboldt State University is part of the 23-campus California State University system. The University has a comprehensive arts and sciences curriculum, which is recognized nationally for its high academic quality. Founded in 1913, HSU is one of the premier public institutions in the western United States; it is a residential and rural campus with an enrollment of approximately 8,000 students. The main campus is located in Arcata, California, in the northwestern part of the state along the coast, situated among redwood trees in an area that offers unmatched scenic beauty, moderate climate and opportunities for outdoor activities. The surrounding Humboldt County locale has a population of around 130,000. The community offers an excellent range of businesses, services and cultural activities/performances. The local schools are ranked in the top performance percentiles, both nationally and in the state. Additional information about Humboldt State University can be found at: <http://www.humboldt.edu>.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 9/20/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4868

Fordham University

Rank: Assistant Professor of International Politics

Specializations: International Security, Foreign Policy, Intelligence

The Department of Political Science invites applications for a tenure track position in International Politics at the Assistant Professor level, beginning Fall 2019. The position is located at Fordham's Rose Hill (Bronx) campus.

We are particularly interested in candidates specializing in US Foreign Policy and International Security who can teach courses on interstate conflict or interstate war, nuclear proliferation, cybersecurity, diplomacy, and/or terrorism. The successful candidate will be expected to contribute to undergraduate and graduate curricular needs in political science, as well as the interdisciplinary Master's Program in International Political Economy and Development. We encourage candidates to apply who will deepen our engagement with institutions within New York City, such as the United Nations, and contribute to our University and department's commitment to quality teaching and research.

Consistent with our Jesuit and Catholic mission, we believe that cultural and intellectual diversity is central to the excellence of our academic program and we strive to create an academic community and campus culture that attracts and facilitates the development of promising and diverse teacher-scholars. As our student body becomes increasingly diverse, we are especially interested in candidates with substantive experience and commitment to teaching and mentoring students from a range of social, cultural and economic backgrounds.

Review of applications will begin on October 18. Interested applicants must submit the following documents in electronic format (PDF or Microsoft Word) to Professor Ida Bastiaens, Committee Chair, via Interfolio (<https://apply.interfolio.com/54759>): cover letter, curriculum vitae, writing sample, course syllabi, evidence of teaching effectiveness, and three letters of reference. Application materials should also address how the candidate's teaching, mentoring, scholarship, and/or community service supports Fordham University's commitment to diversity. Ph.D. at the time of appointment is required.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: 10/18/2018

Date Posted: 9/17/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4846

Miami University

Rank: Assistant Professor in International Studies

The Department of Global and Intercultural Studies invites applications for a tenure-track assistant professor to teach in International Studies, to include Critical Security Studies of the Middle East; maintain an active research agenda; advise students; and provide service to the institution.

Require: A Ph.D. in Anthropology, Economics, Geography, History, International Studies, Political Science or interdisciplinary work within these or related, cognate fields by date of appointment in August 2019. Candidates should have Middle East regional expertise, relevant language ability, and field work experience. Applicant must be a U.S. citizen, a lawful permanent resident, admitted for residence as an applicant under the 1986 immigration amnesty law, refugee or asylee.

Consideration may be given to candidates with interdisciplinary conceptual and methodological perspectives in both critical and applied analyses of the complex social, political, and economic changes shaping the contemporary Middle East; those whose scholarship may include but is not limited to: critical political economies; environmental and human security; international and civil conflict; migration; as well as the cultural, gender, sexuality, race, and class dimensions of these issues.

Consideration may also be given to candidates with demonstrated potential for interdisciplinary teaching that engages the International Studies curriculum and other of the academic majors and minors offered by the Department of Global and Intercultural Studies: Asian/Asian-American Studies; American Studies; Black World Studies; Latin American, Latino/a, and Caribbean Studies; Middle East and Islamic Studies; and Women's, Gender, and Sexuality Studies.

Submit a letter of interest, curriculum vitae, a writing sample (one chapter or journal article in length), and statement of teaching philosophy to <https://miamioh.hiretouch.com/job-details?jobID=6314>. Screening of applications will begin on October 8, 2018 and will continue until the position is filled. Direct queries about the search to Dr. Carl Dahlman at dahlmac@miamioh.edu or Dr. Nathan French at frenchns@miamioh.edu. Department will request letters of reference.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 9/17/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4842

University of Massachusetts, Lowell

Rank: Assistant Professor of Political Science with focus in Human Rights or IPE

Specializations: International Political Economy, Quantitative Methods, Civil Rights & Liberties

The University of Massachusetts Lowell (UML) invites applications for a tenure-track position at the rank of Assistant Professor in Political Science, with a specialization International Relations and a focus in either human rights or political economy and development. Candidates must also have the capacity to develop and teach quantitative research methods courses for our Global Studies PhD program. Applicants should also be prepared to offer undergraduate Political Science courses and Global Studies PhD courses. The appointment is expected to begin in the fall of 2019.

A Ph.D. in Political Science is required. Current ABD candidates are encouraged to apply, although the Ph.D. must be in hand by the appointment date. Recommendation letters for ABD applicants should address when the applicant is expected to defend his or her dissertation.

The new hire would join a collegial and ambitious department and university where research productive faculty teach a 2/2 course load. UML is committed to increasing diversity in its faculty, staff, and student populations, as well as curriculum and support programs, while promoting an inclusive environment. We seek candidates who can contribute to that goal.

The Political Science Department is housed within the University's College of Fine Arts, Humanities, and Social Sciences (FAHSS). The College is the largest unit of the University, with 11 academic departments and over 180 full time faculty. FAHSS has experienced significant growth in recent years, including hiring more than 50 new faculty members, achieving 70% growth in funded research expenditures, and the addition of several new interdisciplinary graduate programs. The Political Science Department currently has 12 tenured and tenure track faculty members, 3 visiting positions, and 3 adjunct faculty members. The Political Science Department is also home to UML's interdisciplinary Global Studies Ph.D. Program (<https://www.uml.edu/FAHSS/Global-Studies/>). In addition, our faculty are also engaged in the teaching and design of the interdisciplinary Peace and Conflict Studies Program (which offers undergraduate and master's degrees) and the newly established Master's in Public Administration. For more information, please visit our homepage: <https://www.uml.edu/FAHSS/Political-Science/>

Applicants should submit:

1. Cover letter delineating the applicants research and scholarship agenda
2. Writing sample (ideally a published paper or one in preparation for submission)
3. Teaching philosophy statement
4. CV
5. Name and contact information of three professional references

Minimum Qualifications:

- Ph.D. in Political Science
- Evidence of expertise in international relations with a focus in human rights or international political economy and development
- Evidence of strong statistical skills and ability to teach quantitative methods at the doctoral level
- Evidence of ability to develop and teach graduate and undergraduate political science courses in either human rights or political economy and development

Review of applications will begin on October 10, 2018 and will continue until the position is filled, but the position may close when an adequate number of applications are received.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 9/17/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4843

University of Massachusetts, Lowell

Rank: Assistant Professor of Political Science with focus in Human Rights or IPE

Specializations: International Political Economy, Quantitative Methods, Civil Rights & Liberties

The University of Massachusetts Lowell (UML) invites applications for a tenure-track position at the rank of Assistant Professor in Political Science, with a specialization International Relations and a focus in either human rights or political economy and development. Candidates must also have the capacity to develop and teach quantitative research methods courses for our Global Studies PhD program. Applicants should also be prepared to offer undergraduate Political Science courses and Global Studies PhD courses. The appointment is expected to begin in the fall of 2019.

A Ph.D. in Political Science is required. Current ABD candidates are encouraged to apply, although the Ph.D. must be in hand by the appointment date. Recommendation letters for ABD applicants should address when the applicant is expected to defend his or her dissertation.

The new hire would join a collegial and ambitious department and university where research productive faculty teach a 2/2 course load. UML is committed to increasing diversity in its faculty, staff, and student populations, as well as curriculum and support programs, while promoting an inclusive environment. We seek candidates who can contribute to that goal.

The Political Science Department is housed within the University's College of Fine Arts, Humanities, and Social Sciences (FAHSS). The College is the largest unit of the University, with 11 academic departments and over 180 full time faculty. FAHSS has experienced significant growth in recent years, including hiring more than 50 new faculty members, achieving 70% growth in funded research expenditures, and the addition of several new interdisciplinary graduate programs. The Political Science Department currently has 12 tenured and tenure track faculty members, 3 visiting positions, and 3 adjunct faculty members. The Political Science Department is also home to UML's interdisciplinary Global Studies Ph.D. Program (<https://www.uml.edu/FAHSS/Global-Studies/>). In addition, our faculty are also engaged in the teaching and design of the interdisciplinary Peace and Conflict Studies Program (which offers undergraduate and master's degrees) and the newly established Master's in Public Administration. For more information, please visit our homepage: <https://www.uml.edu/FAHSS/Political-Science/>

Applicants should submit using the following link: <http://explorejobs.uml.edu/lowell/en-us/job/495651/assistant-professor-in-international-relations>

1. Cover letter delineating the applicants research and scholarship agenda
2. Writing sample (ideally a published paper or one in preparation for submission)
3. Teaching philosophy statement
4. CV
5. Name and contact information of three professional references

Minimum Qualifications:

- Ph.D. in Political Science
- Evidence of expertise in international relations with a focus in human rights or international political economy and development
- Evidence of strong statistical skills and ability to teach quantitative methods at the doctoral level

- Evidence of ability to develop and teach graduate and undergraduate political science courses in either human rights or political economy and development

Review of applications will begin on October 10, 2018 and will continue until the position is filled, but the position may close when an adequate number of applications are received.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 9/17/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4844

Pennsylvania State University

Rank: Open Rank Professor of Political Science

Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Comparative Politics, International Relations

The Department of Political Science at The Pennsylvania State University invites applications for a tenured or tenure-track position focused on race and ethnicity in any subfield of political science, with particular emphasis on American, Comparative or International Politics. This is an open-rank search that is part of a cluster hire within the College of the Liberal Arts at Penn State (<http://la.psu.edu/about/diversity-and-inclusion/faculty>). The department particularly seeks individuals who build on the strengths of the department. Note that this position is separate and in addition to a simultaneous search being conducted by the Department of African American Studies, and interested candidates may apply to both positions (posting available at <https://www.apsanet.org/CAREERS/eJobs/eJobs-Online/JBctl/ViewJob/JobID/4665>). Faculty positions at Penn State involve substantial research support; in addition, junior positions offer significant release time. Tenure track candidates should have a record that demonstrates potential to build a strong publication record, to secure external funding, and to serve as an excellent teacher and mentor. Tenured applicants should already have developed a strong record in each of these three areas. Candidates must have their Ph.D. in hand by appointment date. Applications must be submitted online, and should include as attachments a cover letter explaining their research and teaching experience, a current CV, samples of scholarly writing, and teaching evaluations (with a key). All candidates for the rank of assistant professor should request letters from three references to be sent directly to plscapplications@psu.edu; candidates seeking a tenured appointment should e-mail the names and contact information for three individuals who have agreed to serve as a reference to that address. Application review will begin on October 10, 2018 and continue until the position is filled.

To review the Annual Security Report which contains information about crime statistics and other safety and security matters and policies, please go to <https://police.psu.edu/annual-security-reports>, which will also explain how to request a paper copy of the Annual Security Report. Job URL: <https://psu.jobs/job/83036>

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 9/14/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4838

Pennsylvania State University

Rank: Open Rank Professor of Political Science

Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Comparative Politics, International Relations

The Department of Political Science at The Pennsylvania State University invites applications for a tenured or tenure-track position focused on race and ethnicity in any subfield of political science, with particular emphasis on American, Comparative or International Politics. This is an open-rank search that is part of a cluster hire within the College of the Liberal Arts at Penn State (<http://la.psu.edu/about/diversity-and-inclusion/faculty>). The department particularly seeks individuals who build on the strengths of the department. Note that this position is separate and in addition to a simultaneous search being conducted by the Department of African American Studies, and interested candidates may apply to both positions (posting available at <https://www.apsanet.org/CAREERS/eJobs/eJobs-Online/JBctl/ViewJob/JobID/4665>). Faculty positions at Penn State involve substantial research support; in addition, junior positions offer significant release time. Tenure track candidates should have a record that demonstrates potential to build a strong publication record, to secure external funding, and to serve as an excellent teacher and mentor. Tenured applicants should already have developed a strong record in each of these three areas. Candidates must have their Ph.D. in hand by appointment date. Applications must be submitted online, and should include as attachments a cover letter explaining their research and teaching experience, a current CV, samples of scholarly writing, and teaching evaluations (with a key). All candidates for the rank of assistant professor should request letters from three references to be sent directly to plscapplications@psu.edu; candidates seeking a tenured appointment should e-mail the names and contact information for three individuals who have agreed to serve as a reference to that address. Application review will begin on October 10, 2018 and continue until the position is filled.

To review the Annual Security Report which contains information about crime statistics and other safety and security matters and policies, please go to <https://police.psu.edu/annual-security-reports>, which will also explain how to request a paper copy of the Annual Security Report.

Penn State is an equal opportunity, affirmative action employer, and is committed to providing employment opportunities to all qualified applicants without regard to race, color, religion, age, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, national origin, disability or protected veteran status.

Job URL: <https://psu.jobs/job/83036>

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 9/14/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4839

University of Wisconsin, Madison

Rank: ASSISTANT PROFESSOR, POLITICS AND POLICY OF CHINA - CLUSTER HIRE

The University of Wisconsin-Madison seeks to hire a faculty member with research and teaching interests in comparative politics or international relations, with a primary focus on China and a secondary focus on East Asia and the Pacific Rim. Potential areas of substantive expertise in the politics and policy of China include: political and economic development, human rights, environmental politics and policy, international political economy, international security, or international organizations/governance.

The successful candidate will have a primary appointment in either the Department of Political Science or the La Follette School of Public Affairs, with preference given to candidates interested in both political science and public affairs/public policy. Expectations include a commitment to the important functions of research, instruction, and outreach, as well as professional and university service as appropriate to faculty rank. Teaching will include courses to undergraduates as well as graduates. Teaching and research will primarily focus on the successful candidate's area of expertise. This position is part of a research cluster proposed by the Title VI-funded National Resource Center, the Center for East Asian Studies, for the University's Cluster Hiring Initiative (<https://facstaff.provost.wisc.edu/cluster-hiring-initiative/>) to enhance cross-disciplinary expertise on contemporary East Asia. Candidates should have an interest in collaborating with the Cluster and with colleagues affiliated with the Center for East Asian Studies. Three candidates will be recruited in this Cluster: 1) Assistant Professor, Sociology of Contemporary Korea [PVL# 95849]; 2) Assistant Professor, Chinese Politics and Policy [PVL# 95952]; and 3) Assistant Professor, Educational Policy Studies in East Asia [PVL # TBD].

Responsibilities include conducting research and teaching at all levels required with service at the professional and university level.

ADDITIONAL INFORMATION:

UW-Madison is seeking a diverse set of faculty candidates who will deepen our university's interdisciplinary research strength in key areas of current and future research promise, as well as faculty candidates who will approach their work in a manner that advances our commitment to research excellence.

A criminal background check will be conducted prior to hiring.

TO APPLY:

To apply, go to <http://jobs.wisc.edu> and search for PVL 95952. To begin the application process please click on the 'Apply Now' button. You will be asked to create a profile and upload a C.V., cover letter, a research statement, a teaching statement, and 2 samples of written work (please upload these 2 samples together). You will also be asked to provide contact information for three (3) references as part of your online application.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: 10/18/2018

Date Posted: 9/14/2018

Salary: Negotiable

eJobs ID: 4837

Glendon College, York University

Rank: Assistant Lecturer (tenure-track)

Subfield(s): Comparative Politics, International Relations, Other

The Department of Political Science, Glendon College, York University, invites applications for a teaching stream (alternate stream) tenure-track position in any area of political science at the rank of Assistant Lecturer, to commence July 1, 2019. The successful candidate will teach large undergraduate courses as well as upper-year undergraduate seminars across subfields and may also teach graduate courses. The candidate will provide leadership in enhancing teaching and learning through curricular and pedagogical innovation. A Ph.D. in political science in hand or near completion by July 1, 2019 is required. The successful candidate must be fluent in English and French and be able to teach in both languages in a multicultural context.

The successful candidate will demonstrate excellence or clear potential for excellence in teaching university-level courses, a strong commitment to pedagogy and student success, and the capacity to bring a theoretical and practical orientation to teaching, learning, and program design. The successful candidate will demonstrate capacity to teach large undergraduate courses as well as upper-year undergraduate seminars across subfields. A record of pedagogical innovation in high priority areas such as experiential education, technology enhanced learning, and community-based learning is preferred as is experience with curriculum development and universal design approaches to teaching and assessment. Evidence of service contributions or potential to contribute to service in administrative and committee work is preferred.

Salary will be commensurate with qualifications and experience. All York University positions are subject to budgetary approval.

York U's bilingual Glendon Campus is home to Southern Ontario's Centre of Excellence for French Language and Bilingual Postsecondary Education. Glendon comprises about 2,700 students on a scenic campus in the heart of the cosmopolitan city of Toronto. Glendon is committed to high-quality teaching in the tradition of the liberal arts and offers a unique undergraduate academic experience for students within one of Canada's largest research universities. For information about Glendon and its programs, please consult the Faculty webpage at <http://www.glendon.yorku.ca/>.

York University is an Affirmative Action (AA) employer and strongly values diversity, including gender and sexual diversity, within its community. The AA program, which applies to Aboriginal people, visible minorities, people with disabilities, and women, can be found at <http://acadjobs.info.yorku.ca/> or by calling the AA office at 416-736-5713. Applicants wishing to self-identify can do so by downloading, completing and submitting the forms found at: <http://acadjobs.info.yorku.ca/>. Please select the 'Affirmative Action' tab under which forms pertaining to Citizenship and AA can be found. All qualified candidates are encouraged to apply; however, Canadian citizens, permanent residents and Indigenous peoples in Canada will be given priority.

The deadline for receipt of applications is November 18, 2018. An application letter outlining professional experience, a curriculum vitae, a teaching dossier which supports excellence and innovation in teaching, evidence of research activity, and three signed confidential letters of recommendation should be sent to Professor Willem Maas, Chair, Political Science, Glendon College, York University, via email to polisci@glendon.yorku.ca with the subject heading "Teaching stream position". Referees should be advised to address the candidate's qualifications and experience in relation to this position.

**

Le Département de science politique du Collège universitaire Glendon de l'Université York sollicite des candidatures pour un poste menant à la permanence (volet enseignement) dans n'importe quel domaine de la science politique au rang de chargé d'enseignement, débutant le 1er juillet 2019. La personne sélectionnée devra enseigner de grands cours et séminaires au 1er cycle dans différents sous-domaines et pourra également enseigner des cours de 2e et 3e cycles. La personne sélectionnée devra contribuer de façon proactive à l'amélioration de l'enseignement et de l'apprentissage au sein de l'établissement, notamment à travers des initiatives et des pratiques innovantes en matière de curriculum et de pédagogie. Les candidat.e.s doivent être titulaires d'un doctorat en science politique ou ce dernier doit être en voie d'achèvement au plus tard le 1er juillet 2019. La personne retenue devra être bilingue en français et en anglais, et capable d'enseigner dans ces deux langues dans un environnement multiculturel.

La personne retenue devra faire preuve d'excellence, ou montrer des aptitudes prometteuses dans l'enseignement de cours universitaires et s'investir activement dans la pédagogie et en faveur de la réussite des étudiants. La capacité du candidat à intégrer une approche à la fois théorique et pratique à l'enseignement, l'apprentissage et la création de cours sera considérée comme un atout. La personne retenue devra démontrer sa capacité d'enseigner de grands cours ainsi que des petits séminaires à travers les sous-domaines de science politique. L'innovation pédagogique dans des domaines hautement prioritaires, tels que l'éducation expérientielle, l'apprentissage assisté par les technologies et l'apprentissage communautaire, sera considérée comme un atout, ainsi que l'expérience dans l'élaboration de programmes d'études avec une conception universelle en matière d'enseignement et d'évaluation. La personne retenue devra aussi fournir des preuves de ses services passés ou montrer des aptitudes prometteuses dans le service à l'administration et aux comités.

Le salaire sera établi en fonction de la convention collective et de l'expérience. Toutes les offres de poste à York sont sujettes à autorisation budgétaire de l'Université.

Le Collège universitaire Glendon de l'Université York a été désigné comme Centre d'excellence pour les études postsecondaires en français et bilingues dans le sud de l'Ontario. Glendon, Faculté bilingue (français-anglais), accueille environ 2 700 étudiants sur un campus pittoresque situé au cœur de la ville cosmopolite de Toronto. Glendon s'inscrit dans la tradition des arts libéraux et offre une expérience académique de 1er cycle unique dans une des plus grandes universités au Canada. Pour de plus amples renseignements sur ses programmes d'études, veuillez consulter le site Web de Glendon à <http://www.glendon.yorku.ca/>.

L'Université York est un employeur qui a adopté un programme d'action affirmative, et préconise la diversité dans sa communauté, notamment celle de sexe. Le programme d'action affirmative s'applique aux autochtones, aux minorités visibles, aux personnes en situation de handicap et aux femmes. Pour plus de renseignements sur ce programme, veuillez consulter le site Web de York à l'adresse : <http://acadjobs.info.yorku.ca/>, ou vous adresser Bureau d'action affirmative au (416) 736 5713. Toutes les personnes qualifiées sont encouragées à poser leur candidature ; toutefois, la priorité sera accordée aux personnes de citoyenneté canadienne ou détenant le statut de résident permanent, et aux populations autochtones du Canada.

La date limite de soumission des candidatures est le 18 novembre 2018. Les personnes intéressées doivent faire parvenir une lettre de motivation mettant en évidence leur expérience professionnelle, un curriculum vitae, un dossier d'enseignement qui démontre l'excellence et l'innovation en enseignement, preuve de l'activité de recherche, et faire envoyer directement trois lettres de recommandation confidentielles à Willem Maas, Directeur, Département de science politique, Collège universitaire Glendon, Université York, par courriel à polisci@glendon.yorku.ca avec sujet « Poste volet enseignement ». Les personnes rédigeant des lettres de recommandation doivent aborder dans celles-ci les qualifications et l'expérience du candidat ou de la candidate en rapport avec le poste.

Les candidat.e.s qui souhaitent déclarer leur appartenance à un groupe désigné peuvent le faire en téléchargeant et en soumettant le formulaire disponible sur le site : <http://acadjobs.info.yorku.ca/>. Prière de sélectionner l'onglet « Affirmative Action » pour accéder aux formulaires relatifs à la citoyenneté et à l'action affirmative.

Start Date: Summer 2019

Application Deadline: 11/18/2018

Date Posted: 9/12/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4822

Georgetown University

Rank: Assistant Professor of Teaching in African Studies

The African Studies program in Georgetown University's Edmund A. Walsh School of Foreign Service invites applications for a three-year, non-tenure track appointment as an Assistant Professor of Teaching whose research and teaching focus on religion or related themes, including the political and security dimensions of religion, in Africa. The African Studies Program is an interdisciplinary academic program established in 1980.

Applicants from a range of disciplines—including Religious Studies, History, Political Science, and Anthropology—will be considered. Strong preference will be given to those whose work is interdisciplinary and broadly comparative. We are particularly interested in scholars whose work explores the growth and representation of religious beliefs and identity in Africa, and the intersection between religious life and domestic and international politics. Applicants with a regional expertise in West Africa are especially welcome. The successful applicant will demonstrate a strong record of teaching and scholarship. ABDs are welcome to apply but must have degree in hand by August 2019.

Review of applications will begin December 15, 2018, although we will accept applications until the position is filled. Interested applicants should submit the following: a cover letter, curriculum vitae, a sample of scholarly writing, brief statement of teaching and research interests, copies of teaching evaluations, if available, and three (3) letters of recommendation.

Applications for this position must be submitted online at <https://academicjobsonline.org/ajojobs/11694>. Faxed, mailed, or emailed applications will not be accepted.

Questions about the online application system should be directed to Sarah Nebbeling, Assistant Director of Faculty Affairs at ska60@georgetown.edu. Queries about the position should be directed to Dr. Scott Taylor, Professor and Director of the African Studies Program, at sdt@georgetown.edu.

Georgetown University is an Equal Opportunity, Affirmative Action Employer fully dedicated to achieving a diverse faculty and staff. All qualified candidates are encouraged to apply and will receive consideration for employment without regard to race, sex, sexual orientation, age, religion, national origin, marital status, veteran status, disability or other categories protected by law.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: 12/15/2018

Date Posted: 9/11/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4810

Princeton University

Rank: Postdoctoral Fellowship in Regional Political Economy Niehaus Center for Globalization and Governance

Subfield(s): International Relations, Public Policy, Comparative Politics

Specializations: Middle East, Southeast Asia, Africa

The Niehaus Center for Globalization and Governance (NCGG) at Princeton University's Woodrow Wilson School of Public and International Affairs invite applications for a postdoctoral or more senior research associate position from individuals with a Ph.D. degree or who expect to receive a Ph.D. degree by September 1, 2019 for the Postdoctoral Fellowship Program in regional political economy for the 2019-2020 academic year. This fellows program is targeted at developing a generation of scholars able to analyze and make policy recommendations about the regional political economy in the Middle East, East, South, or Southeast Asia, Africa and Latin America. The Center invites candidates with a background in economics, political science, contemporary history, sociology, law, business, and other disciplines bearing on the study of markets, politics, and economic development, focusing on the regions of the Middle East, East, South, or Southeast Asia, Africa and Latin America to apply. Scholarly work should explore the ways in which the politics within and between a set of countries intersect with natural resource endowments, market conditions, technological and physical infrastructure, and cultural biases to explain existing patterns of economic development and to promote higher levels of development more effectively. Selected candidates will be required to be in residence for the duration of the fellowship (September 1, 2019 - July 1, 2020).

Application Deadline – Applicants should apply by Monday, December 3, 2018 (11:59pm EST), for full consideration, however; posting will remain open until filled.

Application Process - All candidates must use the online application process to submit materials at: <http://www.princeton.edu/acadpositions/position/8571>.

Applicants are required to hold a Ph.D. or expect to receive a Ph.D. degree by September 1, 2019 in one of the above mentioned disciplines. To apply, please provide the following:

- Cover letter explaining the candidate's scholarly career, prospective or actual doctoral defense date, and academic interests;
- Current curriculum vitae including publications;
- 2,000-word description of the proposed research project, including its specific objectives, importance, and research design;
- One writing sample (limit of 100 pages);
- Contact information for three references, who will be asked to comment specifically on the applicant's qualifications for the proposed research project. Referees will be contacted directly by email with instructions for submitting a confidential recommendation on your behalf. Letters of reference are to be submitted by the end of business day on Thursday, December 6, 2018. Complete your application well before the deadline so that references can be submitted in a timely manner.

Salary – Rank and salary will be contingent on qualifications. NCGG Fellows will receive applicable Princeton University benefits, a taxable moving allowance, and a $5,000 research fund.

Successful applicants will be notified of the outcome of their application in February 2019. This position is subject to the University's background check policy.

For more information about the Niehaus Center for Globalization and Governance fellowship program, please contact Patricia Trinity, Assistant Director at ptrinity@princeton.edu.

Start Date: Fall

Application Deadline: 12/3/2018

Date Posted: 9/11/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4801

Princeton University

Rank: Postdoctoral Research Associate Niehaus Center for Globalization and Governance

Subfield(s): International Relations, Public Policy, Comparative Politics

Specializations: International Political Economy, Economic Policy, Political Economy

The Niehaus Center for Globalization and Governance (NCGG) at Princeton University's Woodrow Wilson School of Public and International Affairs invite applications for a postdoctoral or more senior research associate position from individuals with a Ph.D. degree or who expect to receive a Ph.D. degree by September 1, 2019 for the 2019-2020 academic year. These awards are designed to promote basic research in the broad areas of international and comparative political economy, international organization and global governance, and globalization. Research on the causes and consequences of globalization, the political economy of foreign trade, monetary and regulatory policies, the sources of international cooperation at the global and regional level, the domestic and international politics of economic development, the political economy of human security issues, the evolution and impact of international institutions, and the politics of international law and human rights policies is of relevance.

Outstanding scholars anywhere in the world are eligible to apply. The Center invites candidates with a background in political science, economics, modern history, sociology, anthropology, law, business, and other disciplines bearing on the study of globalization to apply. Selected candidates will be required to be in residence for the duration of the fellowship (September 1, 2019 – July 1, 2020).

Application Deadline: Applicants should apply by Friday, November 30, 2018 (11:59pm EST), for full consideration, however; posting will remain open until filled.

Application Process – All candidates must use the online application process to submit materials at: <http://www.princeton.edu/acad-positions/position/8569>.

Applicants are required to hold a Ph.D. or who expect to receive a Ph.D. degree by September 1, 2019 in one of the above mentioned disciplines. To apply, please provide the following:

- Cover letter explaining the candidate's scholarly career, prospective or actual doctoral defense date, and academic interests;
- Current curriculum vitae including publications;
- 2,000-word description of the proposed research project, including its specific objectives, importance, and research design;
- One writing sample (limit of 100 pages);
- Contact information for three references, who will be asked to comment specifically on the applicant's qualifications for the proposed research project. Referees will be contacted directly by email with instructions for submitting a confidential recommendation on your behalf. Letters of reference are to be submitted by the end of business day on Wednesday, December 5, 2018. Complete your application well before the deadline so that references can be submitted in a timely manner.

Salary – Rank and salary will be contingent on qualifications. NCGG Fellows will receive applicable Princeton University benefits, a taxable moving allowance, and a $5,000 research fund.

Successful applicants will be notified of the outcome of their application in February 2019. These positions are subject to the University's background check policy.

For more information about the Niehaus Center for Globalization and Governance fellowship program, please contact Patricia Trinity, Assistant Director at ptrinity@princeton.edu.

Start Date: Fall

Application Deadline: 11/30/2018

Date Posted: 9/11/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4800

Princeton University

Rank: Visiting Fellowship in Regional Political Economy Niehaus Center for Globalization and Governance

Subfield(s): International Relations, Public Policy, Comparative Politics

Specializations: Southeast Asia, Middle East, Africa

The Niehaus Center for Globalization and Governance (NCGG) at Princeton University's Woodrow Wilson School of Public and International Affairs seeks two visitors or more candidates for the Visiting Fellowship Program in regional political economy for the 2019-2020 academic year. This fellows program is targeted at developing a generation of scholars able to analyze and make policy recommendations about the regional political economy in the Middle East, East, South, or Southeast Asia, Africa and Latin America. The Center invites candidates with a background in economics, political science, contemporary history, sociology, law, business, and other disciplines bearing on the study of markets, politics, and economic development, focusing on the regions of the Middle East, East, South, or Southeast Asia, Africa and Latin America to apply. Scholarly work should explore the ways in which the politics within and between a set of countries intersect with natural resource endowments, market conditions, technological and physical infrastructure, and cultural biases to explain existing patterns of economic development and to promote higher levels of development more effectively. Selected candidates will be required to be in residence for the duration of the fellowship (September 1, 2018 2019 - July 1, 2020).

Application Deadline – Applicants should apply by Monday, December 3, 2018 (11:59pm EST), for full consideration, however; posting will remain open until filled.

Application Process – All candidates must use the online application process to submit materials at: <http://www.princeton.edu/acad-positions/position/8581>.

Applicants are required to hold a Ph.D. in one of the above mentioned disciplines. To apply, please provide the following:

- Cover letter explaining the candidate's scholarly career, prospective or actual doctoral defense date, and academic interests;

- Current curriculum vitae including publications;
- 2,000-word description of the proposed research project, including its specific objectives, importance, and research design;
- One writing sample (limit of 100 pages);
- Contact information for three references, who will be asked to comment specifically on the applicant's qualifications for the proposed research project. Referees will be contacted directly by email with instructions for submitting a confidential recommendation on your behalf. Letters of reference are to be submitted by the end of business day on Thursday, December 6, 2018. Complete your application well before the deadline so that references can be submitted in a timely manner.

Candidates who hold positions at academic institutions may also be required to submit:

- Home institution policy with regard to sabbatical pay;
- A confidential statement indicating salary for the current academic year (September 2018 - July 1, 2019).

Salary – Rank and salary will be contingent on qualifications. NCGG Fellows will receive applicable Princeton University benefits, a taxable moving allowance, and a $5,000 research fund.

Successful applicants will be notified of the outcome of their application in February 2019. This position is subject to the University's background check policy.

For more information about the Niehaus Center for Globalization and Governance fellowship program, please contact Patricia Trinity, Assistant Director at pтрinity@princeton.edu.

Start Date: Fall

Application Deadline: 12/3/2018

Date Posted: 9/11/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4803

Princeton University

Rank: Visiting Fellowship Niehaus Center for Globalization and Governanxe

Subfield(s): International Relations, Public Policy, Comparative Politics

Specializations: International Political Economy, Economic Policy, Political Economy

The Niehaus Center for Globalization and Governance (NCGG) at Princeton University's Woodrow Wilson School of Public and International Affairs seeks up to eight visitors for the 2019-2020 academic year Visiting Fellowship Program. These awards are designed to promote basic research in the broad areas of international and comparative political economy, international organization and global governance, and globalization. Research on the causes and consequences of globalization, the political economy of foreign trade, monetary and regulatory policies, the sources of international cooperation at the global and regional level, the domestic and international politics of economic development, the political economy of human security issues, the evolution and impact of international institutions, and the politics of international law and human rights policies is of relevance.

Outstanding scholars anywhere in the world are eligible to apply. The Center invites candidates with a background in political science, economics, modern history, sociology, anthropology, law, business, and other disciplines bearing on the study of globalization to apply.

Selected candidates will be required to be in residence for the duration of the fellowship (September 1, 2019 - July 1, 2020).

Application Deadline – Applicants should apply by Friday, November 30, 2018 (11:59pm EST), for full consideration, however; posting will remain open until filled.

Application Process – All candidates must use the online application process to submit materials at: <http://www.princeton.edu/acad-positions/position/8570>.

Applicants are required to hold a Ph.D. in one of the above mentioned disciplines. To apply, please provide the following:

- Cover letter explaining the candidate's scholarly career, prospective or actual doctoral defense date, and academic interests;
- Current curriculum vitae including publications;
- 2,000-word description of the proposed research project, including its specific objectives, importance, and research design;
- One writing sample (limit of 100 pages);
- Contact information for three references, who will be asked to comment specifically on the applicant's qualifications for the proposed research project. Referees will be contacted directly by email with instructions for submitting a confidential recommendation on your behalf. Letters of reference are to be submitted by the end of business day on Wednesday, December 5, 2018. Complete your application well before the deadline so that references can be submitted in a timely manner.

Candidates who hold positions at academic institutions may also be required to submit:

- Home institution policy with regard to sabbatical pay;
- A confidential statement indicating salary for the current academic year (September 2018 - July 1, 2019).

Salary – Rank and salary will be contingent on qualifications. NCGG Fellows will receive applicable Princeton University benefits, a taxable moving allowance, and a $5,000 research fund.

Successful applicants will be notified of the outcome of their application in February 2019. These positions are subject to the University's background check policy.

For more information about the Niehaus Center for Globalization and Governance fellowship program, please contact Patricia Trinity, Assistant Director at pтрinity@princeton.edu.

Start Date: Fall 2018

Application Deadline: 11/30/2018

Date Posted: 9/11/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4799

University of Notre Dame

Rank: Faculty Position in Global Education

Subfield(s): Comparative Politics, International Relations, Other

The University of Notre Dame's Keough School of Global Affairs invites applications for a faculty position in global education, with a preference for scholars whose work and interests include a focus on the intersection of education and development or international and comparative education policy. Scholars engaged in rigorous social science research from a variety of disciplines – economics, political science, sociology, education, and others – will be considered. Applicants should have an interest in interdisciplinary cooperation. Applicants attracted to a university with a Catholic identity are especially encouraged to apply. While priority will be given to consideration of junior candidates (ABD, postdoc, assistant professors or non-tenured associate professors), senior applicants may also be considered. Ph.D. or equivalent terminal degree required at the time of hire.

Qualifications

The successful hire will be based in the Keough School of Global Affairs, with affiliations in the Kellogg Institute for International Studies and in Notre Dame's Institute for Educational Initiatives. Oriented toward research, teaching, and service dedicated to the advancement of integral human development, the Keough School (<http://keough.nd.edu/>) promotes interdisciplinary research on critical issues in global affairs, offers a master's degree, and supports undergraduate and doctoral programs. The Kellogg Institute for International Studies (<http://kellogg.nd.edu/>) has for over 35 years been a leading center for interdisciplinary research and programming on issues of democracy and human development. The Institute for Educational Initiatives (<http://iei.nd.edu/>) provides a home for nearly one hundred faculty fellows from across the University whose research and teaching interests focus on K-12 education, with a particular interest in Catholic education. Joint or concurrent appointments in the appropriate departments are also possible. Applicants should have an affirmative interest in contributing to the joint Kellogg Institute/Institute for Educational Initiative Research Cluster in International Education (<https://kellogg.nd.edu/research-cluster-international-education>).

Application Instructions

All applicants are required to submit a letter of interest and a C.V. Junior candidates (ABD, postdoc, assistant or non-tenured associate professors) should also arrange for the submission of three confidential letters of reference. Apply here: <https://apply.interfolio.com/54487>

Nominations and inquiries may be sent via email to:

Prof. Paolo Carozza
Chair, Global Education Search Committee
Keough School of Global Affairs
University of Notre Dame
pcarozza@nd.edu

Applications must be submitted by January 15, 2019. Review of applications will begin November 15, 2018, and will continue until the position is filled.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: 1/15/2019

Date Posted: 9/11/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4811

University of Wisconsin, Whitewater

Rank: Assistant Professor

Subfield(s): Public Law, Comparative Politics, International Relations

Specializations: International Law & Organizations, Civil Rights & Liberties, Constitutional Law & Theory

The Department of Political Science at the University of Wisconsin-Whitewater anticipates a tenure-track opening at the Assistant Professor level in public law beginning August 22, 2019. The position is open to candidates with teaching and research interests in comparative legal systems and/or international law. In addition, candidates who can expand course offerings in gender and law are highly desirable.

Candidates will be expected to contribute to the department's general education curriculum, and experience in the use of online instructional technology is desirable. Criminal Background Check Required.

Qualifications:

Ph.D. in Political Science is required. ABD candidates may apply but must have their degree completed by the contract start date in August 2019; if not, they will be hired on a one-year contract with the understanding that their degree will be completed before January 2020 in advance of their first scheduled review. Demonstrated excellence in or commitment to teaching with an emphasis on promoting the success of undergraduate students, clear evidence of scholarly potential, commitment to working with diverse populations and serving as active member of the university community. Salary is commensurate with academic preparation and experience.

Complete applications received by October 14, 2018 are ensured full consideration. Applications received after that date may be given consideration at the discretion of the search committee. Application materials will be evaluated and the most qualified applicants will be invited to participate in phone and/or online screening interviews and/or on campus interviews.

For questions regarding this position, please contact:

Edward Gimbel
Associate Professor
Department of Political Science
Phone: 262-472-1532
email: gimbele@uww.edu

To Apply:

Complete applications will include online submission of the following materials:

- a letter of application addressing your qualifications for the position
 - curriculum vitae
 - evidence of teaching effectiveness
 - all undergraduate and graduate transcripts
 - three (3) letters of recommendation
- (letters of recommendation may also be sent separately to POL-ISCIP@uww.edu)

To apply and submit these documents online, please visit <http://www.uww.edu/employment>, and then follow the "Faculty and Instructional Staff" link on the next page. The Job ID is 14707, listed under "Tenure Track Faculty – College of Letters & Sciences."

If you have questions regarding this recruitment, or if you are not able to complete the application online due to a disability or system problem, please contact us at 262/472-1024 or hrstudent@uww.edu.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: 10/14/2018

Date Posted: 9/11/2018

Salary: Negotiable

eJobs ID: 4809

Johns Hopkins University

Rank: Professor/Assistant Professor/Associate Professor

Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Comparative Politics, International Relations

The Department of Political Science and the Stavros Niarchos Foundation Agora Institute at Johns Hopkins University seek nominations and applications of interest to appoint three or more distinguished scholars to establish a cluster of excellence in research and teaching on the challenges of contemporary democracy. We are especially interested in colleagues with an established record of scholarship examining the root causes and consequences of polarization, including its global and transnational dynamics. Successful candidates will join the Agora Institute's core faculty and will serve as full members of the Department of Political Science. We invite qualified candidates from all subfields of the discipline whose work connects with the core mission of the Institute. By conducting a broad and inclusive search, we are committed to identifying candidates who, through their research, teaching, and service, will contribute to the diversity and excellence of our academic community.

Political Science at Johns Hopkins is a methodologically diverse and pluralistic department open to a variety of research methods and intellectual approaches. We also will consider applications for potential cross-disciplinary appointments from scholars in fields such as History, Sociology, Psychology, and Philosophy as well as cross-divisional appointments.

Jointly conceived by the University and the Stavros Niarchos Foundation (SNF), the $150M SNF Agora Institute was founded to address the deterioration of civic engagement in democracies worldwide and facilitate the restoration of open and inclusive discourse that is the cornerstone of healthy democracies. Housed in the University's Krieger School of Arts and Sciences, the SNF Agora Institute at JHU will serve as a leading academic and public forum bringing together experts from a range of fields—including but not limited to political science, sociology, history, neuroscience, psychology, philosophy, and ethics—to examine the dynamics of civic strife and design and test mechanisms for improving dialogue, social engagement, and democratic governance (<http://agora.jhu.edu/>).

Applicants for Tenured Associate or Full Professor should submit a cover letter, research statement, and curriculum vitae using Interfolio <http://apply.interfolio.com/54486>. Candidates applying at the level of advanced assistant professor should include the above as well as a writing sample and three letters of recommendation. Nominations of potential candidates should be sent directly to Professor Adam Sheingate (adam.sheingate@jhu.edu). Review of applications will begin on October 15, 2018 and continue until the positions are filled. Appointments will commence on July 1, 2019.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 9/10/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4804

University of North Carolina, Charlotte

Rank: International Relations Tenure Track Faculty Position

University of North Carolina at Charlotte
Department of Political Science and Public Administration
International Relations Tenure Track Faculty Position
(#007128POLS)

The University of North Carolina at Charlotte Department of Political Science and Public Administration invites applications for a tenure track Assistant Professor position in international relations. Required qualifications include: Ph.D. in Political Science, International Relations, or a related field by August 15, 2019, with a primary focus on peace and conflict; demonstrated excellence or strong potential in research, including the ability to secure external funding; teaching experience at the college level; and a commitment to teaching in a diverse environment. The ability to teach substantive or methodological courses in the Ph.D. program in Public Policy is also valuable. The nine-month tenure track position begins Fall 2019.

Finalists will be asked during their screening interview to discuss how the topics of diversity and inclusion are incorporated into their teaching and research.

The Department of Political Science and Public Administration offers an M.P.A., B.A., and a minor. It has 24 full-time faculty members. Many participate in one or more interdisciplinary programs, including the Public Policy Ph.D. program, Latin American Studies, Women's and Gender Studies, and Africana Studies.

UNC Charlotte is a rapidly growing doctoral-granting urban university located in the largest metropolitan area between Washington DC, and Atlanta. The University is a Carnegie Foundation Community Engagement campus. Over 29,000 culturally diverse students currently are enrolled at the University. As the largest college at UNC Charlotte, the College of Liberal Arts & Sciences houses 20 departments in the humanities, social and behavioral sciences, natural sciences and military sciences, as well as 25 applied research centers and interdisciplinary programs. It offers eight doctoral degrees, 24 master's degrees, 12 graduate certificates, and 32 undergraduate degrees.

Review of applications will begin October 12, 2018, and will continue until the position is filled. Applications must be submitted electronically to <https://jobs.uncc.edu>. Please include the following documents with your electronic application: (1) letter of application outlining your scholarly interests and agenda, including experience with securing external funding and with teaching, related to the qualifications outlined above; (2) curriculum vitae; (3) a copy of graduate transcript; (4) one sample of professional writing; and (5) evidence of teaching effectiveness. In addition, three letters of recommendation should be sent either in PDF format or by regular mail. All letters must be addressed to James Igoe Walsh, International Relations Search Committee Chair, UNC Charlotte, 9201 University City Blvd, Fretwell 440, Charlotte, NC 28223 or jwalsh@uncc.edu. Direct questions to Dr. Walsh.

As an EOE/AA employer and an ADVANCE Institution that strives to create an academic climate in which the dignity of all individuals is respected and maintained, the University of North Carolina at Charlotte encourages applications from all underrepresented groups.

The candidate chosen for this position will be required to provide an official transcript of their highest earned degree and submit to a criminal background check.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 9/7/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4793

Virginia Military Institute

Rank: Assistant Professor of International Studies and Political Science

Assistant Professor of International Studies and Political Science (tenure-track)

The Virginia Military Institute's Department of International Studies and Political Science (IS) announces a full-time, tenure-track assistant professor position in the subfield of international relations, beginning

1 August 2019. The position entails the instruction of three course sections per academic semester. The successful candidate will demonstrate a capacity to teach undergraduate-level courses on American Foreign and/or National Security Policy. In addition, the ideal candidate will possess a substantive and/or geographic specialization that complements the existing strengths of the department's faculty. Strong preference will be given to those candidates who provide evidence of their potential to develop and maintain a vibrant research agenda and to apply their research in the undergraduate classroom. These endeavors are highly valued and well-supported at VMI. Information on the IS department and curriculum can be found at <https://www.vmi.edu/academics/departments/international-studies-and-political-science/>.

Qualifications: A Ph.D. in Political Science or International Relations must be completed prior to 1 August 2019. Teaching experience at the undergraduate level is required.

Applicants should complete an application and submit a cover letter summarizing their interest in the position and qualifications, a curriculum vitae, and graduate transcripts online at: <http://virginiajobs.peopleadmin.com/postings/123588>.

Separately, applicants should submit three letters of recommendation via e-mail to the VMI International Studies Department Head, Dennis Foster, at fosterdm@vmi.edu.

To receive full consideration, all application materials should be submitted by 15 October 2018. Review of applications will begin immediately, and continue until the position is filled.

Virginia Military Institute is a state-supported four-year undergraduate military college of liberal arts, engineering, and the sciences. It is located in the southern Shenandoah Valley of Virginia. Lexington, population 7,000, is also home to Washington and Lee University and offers a stimulating cultural atmosphere in a pleasant, rural setting. In a continuing effort to enrich its academic environment and provide equal educational and employment opportunities, VMI encourages women, minorities, disabled individuals and veterans to apply. AmeriCorps, Peace Corps and other national service alumni are also encouraged to apply.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 9/7/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4791

Boston University

Rank: Assistant Professor in the field of Gender and Global Affairs

The Pardee School of Global Studies at Boston University invites applications for a tenure-track Assistant Professor position. We seek applicants who have done substantial empirical work on the role of gender in international relations, international development, or global affairs. Among the issue-areas in which we have particular interest are human development, human security, and human rights. We welcome applications from scholars in any relevant discipline, including international relations, sociology, political science, economics, geography, anthropology, and history, and are open to all methodological approaches and regional specializations. The Pardee School of Global Studies is committed to multidisciplinary, policy-relevant research and teaching. Candidates who have demonstrated policy expertise are especially encouraged to apply.

Please submit 1) a letter of application describing your teaching and research interests and professional experience, 2) curriculum vitae, and 3) three letters of recommendation electronically at <https://academicjobsonline.org/ajo/jobs/11809>. Questions about the position or the Pardee School may be directed to Ms. Elaine Bidianos at elaineb@bu.edu. Review of applications will begin on October 1, 2018 and will continue until the position is filled. The expected starting date for employment is July 1, 2019. The Pardee School of Global Studies offers B.A. and M.A. degrees and is committed to multidisciplinary, policy-relevant research and teaching.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 9/6/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4785

Dartmouth College

Rank: Wright Chair in Transnational Politics

The Department of Government at Dartmouth College seeks applicants for appointment to the newly endowed James Wright Professorship. The person appointed to this chair is expected to be a tenured associate or full professor who holds a Ph.D. and has established a distinguished record of policy-relevant scholarship on international relations. We especially welcome applications from scholars whose research focuses on foreign policy and diplomacy. It is anticipated that the holder of the Wright Chair will have an association or affiliation with the John Sloan Dickey Center for International Understanding. The recipient of the professorship will have a distinguished academic record in both teaching and scholarship that will contribute significantly to the advancement of interdisciplinary knowledge and to the enduring liberal arts mission of Dartmouth. Dartmouth student populations are diverse by many measures. We are especially interested in applicants with a record of successful teaching and mentoring of students from all backgrounds (including first-generation college students, low-income students, racial and ethnic minorities, women, LGBTQ, etc.). Applicants are encouraged to state in their cover letter how they will enhance the diversity of offerings and educational experiences in the department.

Qualifications

Applicants must have a Ph.D. by the time of appointment.

Application Instructions

Applicants should submit a letter of interest and CV. The review of applications will begin on October 15, 2018, and will continue until the position is filled. Questions may be sent to: William.Wohlforth@Dartmouth.edu. Applications must be submitted electronically at: apply.interfolio.com/53882

Start Date:

Application Deadline: 10/15/2018

Date Posted: 9/6/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4783

Duke University

Rank: Pre/Postdoc

Specializations: Economic Policy, Developing Nations, Quantitative Methods

The DevLab@Duke has two openings for Pre/Post-Doctoral fellows working on an innovative project that combines machine learning and forecasting with coordinated, cross-country field experiments.

The project aims to understand and forecast democratic breakdowns with an eye toward defending civil society against repression.

One pre/postdoc will focus on collecting, managing and analyzing field data from local partners and interventions aimed at promoting robust civil societies. Excellent data skills, a field experimental orientation, and capacity to work with partners in the international development industry are a must.

The other pre/postdoc will focus on scraping data, natural language processing, and building machine learning models to predict regime backsliding. Additional experience with visualization would be desirable, as would a background in both python and R.

Prospective candidates are expected to have done graduate work in one or more of these areas:

- International Development
- Economics
- Political Science
- Statistics
- Computer Science

Successful candidates will collaborate with Professors Scott de Marchi and Erik Wibbels, as well other members of the DevLab in an interdisciplinary environment. They will be expected to work with lab associates to provide timely input to development practitioners affiliated with the DevLab—including donors, implementers and evaluators—at all stages of project conceptualization, design, implementation and evaluation. DevLab activities will leave considerable time for independent research, and the position offers ample opportunity for developing new research projects in conjunction with DevLab members.

There is no deadline for applying to the opening, but applications will be considered on a rolling basis starting immediately, and we are eager for the right applicant to join us. The position comes with competitive salary and benefits. The initial appointment is for one year, with options of renewal for another one or two years. Applications (including a statement of research interests, a curriculum vitae, a sample of research, and three letters of recommendation) should be submitted electronically using the following site: <https://academicjobsonline.org/ajo/jobs/11836>. For questions/information, please email david.dow@duke.edu.

Duke University is located in Durham, North Carolina and is an Affirmative Action/Equal Opportunity Employer committed to providing employment opportunity without regard to an individual's age, color, disability, genetic information, gender, gender identity, national origin, race, religion, sexual orientation, or veteran status.

Start Date: Fall 2018

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 9/5/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4771

University of Mississippi

Rank: Assistant Professor

The Department of Political Science at the University of Mississippi invites applications to fill a tenure-track position at the level of Assistant Professor in International Relations, starting Fall 2019. The Department is foremost interested in hiring an excellent candidate, with all areas of specialization invited to apply. Successful candidates should add to the Department's strength in quantitative methods. We welcome applications from members of groups traditionally underrepresented in the field. Candidates must complete an online application at <https://careers.olemiss.edu>.

Requirements include at least ABD standing with the expectation of completion by Fall 2019, as well as a potential for or record of excellence in teaching and research. The online application should include a cover letter indicating research and teaching interests, curriculum vitae, writing samples, graduate transcript, and three letters of recommendation. Review of all applications will begin immediately and continue until the position is filled or until an adequate applicant pool is established.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 9/4/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4763

Texas A&M University

Rank: Assistant Professor

Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Comparative Politics, International Relations

The Department of Political Science at Texas A&M University is recruiting for two tenure-track (Assistant Professor) positions that are open with respect to subfield. We welcome applications from clusters of scholars who would find it attractive to join our faculty together. Successful candidates will be expected to carry out a vigorous program of research and actively contribute to undergraduate and graduate teaching. Strong research and teaching interests that cut across traditional subfields of political science would be highly valued. Ph.D. required. The starting date for these positions is Fall 2019.

The department offers Ph.D., MA, BA, and BS degrees and has 34 tenured/tenure track faculty members, 50 graduate students, and approximately 1000 undergraduate majors. Further information about the department is available at <http://pols.tamu.edu>. Texas A&M is a research-intensive flagship university with more than 60,000 students including 10,000 graduate students making it the sixth largest university in the United States. The student body includes 26% African American, Hispanic, Asian or Pacific Islander, and American Indian or Alaskan Native students, as well as approximately 5,000 international students from 130 countries. We seek candidates who can teach effectively in a diverse and global classroom. Texas A&M ranks among the top universities nationally in total research expenditures (with more than $800 million dollars per year). Texas A&M University is an equal opportunity, affirmative action employer that is deeply committed to enhancing the diversity and excellence of its faculty and is responsive to the needs of dual-career couples.

Applicants should apply through Workday as instructed below. Applicants should submit the following material online through workday using the links below: a letter of interest (referencing research agenda and teaching interests), a curriculum vitae, graduate school transcripts, any available teaching evaluations, and a writing sample. Applicants should also have three letters of reference submitted electronically to Professor William Clark, Head, Department of Political Science at poliscijobs@tamu.edu. Salary is competitive and will be commensurate with qualifications and experience. Our review of applications will begin on October 3, 2018 and will continue until the positions are filled. The Texas A&M System is an Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action/Veterans/Disability Employer committed to diversity.

EXTERNAL APPLICANTS If you currently are NOT a Texas A&M System employee please click below to go to our external career site to view our jobs. Go to External Career Site – https://tamus.wd1.myworkdayjobs.com/en-US/TAMU_External/job/College-Station-TAMU/Assistant-Professor_R-011658

INTERNAL APPLICANTS If you currently ARE a Texas A&M System employee: Go to Internal Career Site – <https://jobs.tamu.edu/internal-applicants/>

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 9/3/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4758

Stanford University

Rank: Postdoctoral Fellow

Subfield(s): Comparative Politics, International Relations, Public Policy

The Stanford Center on Global Poverty and Development Postdoctoral Fellows program offers one-year (and will consider two-year) fellowships to outstanding new PhDs who have a demonstrated ability to generate high-quality, policy-relevant research on critical issues related to global development and poverty alleviation. The multi-disciplinary program offers a competitive stipend, as well as support for travel and research expenses. Postdoctoral Fellows have no teaching responsibilities and minimal administrative duties.

Application Details

The Stanford Center on Global Poverty and Development invites applications for multi-disciplinary postdoctoral fellowships to start summer/fall 2019 for one year (and will consider two years). The Center's postdoctoral fellows program is intended for promising new and recent PhD recipients—coming from fields such as computer science, earth systems science, economics, engineering, health policy, political science, and sociology—to pursue policy-relevant research on topics related to critical issues for international development and poverty alleviation.

The Center's postdoctoral fellows will be active members of the community of development researchers at Stanford University. The Center provides a competitive salary plus support for travel and research expenses.

For information, please visit <https://globalpoverty.stanford.edu/research/postdoctoral-fellows-program>

For full consideration, please submit all materials by December 1, 2018 via the online application form here: <https://globalpoverty.stanford.edu/postdoctoral-fellow-application-form>

Application Instructions:

Please apply online with the following materials: (1) Cover Letter, (2) Curriculum Vitae, (3) Job Market Paper or Writing Sample, and (4) Three Letters of Recommendation. Please submit items 1-3 in one PDF document through the online application form here: <https://globalpoverty.stanford.edu/postdoctoral-fellow-application-form>

Recommenders can submit letters directly to globalpoverty@stanford.edu.

Start Date: Summer 2019

Application Deadline: 12/1/2018

Date Posted: 9/1/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4639

University of California, San Diego

Rank: Associate or Full Professor, and Endowed Chair Innovation, Science, Technology, and Policy

The School of Global Policy and Strategy at UC San Diego invites applications for a tenured Endowed Chair of Innovation, Science, Technology, and Policy at the rank of Associate or Full Professor, to begin July 1st, 2019.

The faculty at the School of Global Policy and Strategy (gps.ucsd.edu) represents a broad range of academic backgrounds, including both social and physical sciences. We are united by a desire to understand, design, and rigorously test solutions to promote human advancement and mitigate against pressing challenges to human welfare and global issues.

We anticipate that the Endowed Chair of Innovation, Science, Technology, and Policy will expand our leadership at the interface of STEM fields and policy. We are looking for candidates with an outstanding record of research and leadership both within their field of training, and in the intersection of that field with questions of policy, welfare, or justice. Domains of interest include, but are not limited to: climate and the environment, critical infrastructure, cybersecurity, data and privacy, development engineering, digital technology and automation, energy, health, and technological innovation.

Applicants should be PhD graduates (or equivalent terminal degree in a research discipline) with proven leadership and scholarship records. The School of Global Policy and Strategy is committed to academic excellence and diversity within the faculty, staff, and student body. Preferred candidates should demonstrate the highest standards of professional research, teaching, and service, and contribute to -- and participate in -- our commitment to diversity, equity, and inclusion in higher education. We welcome applications from both STEM and social science scholars who can develop rich links to other UC San Diego units, including the Jacobs School of Engineering, Scripps Institution of Oceanography, Health Sciences, and the Halicioglu Data Science Institute.

Salary is commensurate with qualifications and based on University of California pay scales.

Application review will begin on November 25, 2018.

To apply:

Candidates should submit the following materials to UC San Diego Academic Personnel On-Line at <https://apol-recruit.ucsd.edu/apply/JPF01863>:

Curriculum Vitae

Two writing samples

A personal statement that includes a description of research, training, and teaching

Three (3) contacts for reference

A summary of past and potential contributions to diversity (see <http://facultyequity.ucsd.edu/Faculty-Applicant-C2D-Info.asp>).

The University of California is an Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action Employer. All qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to race, color, religion, sex, national origin, disability, age or protected veteran status.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 9/1/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4743

John Cabot University

Rank: Visiting Assistant Professor of International Affairs

Visiting Assistant Professor of International Affairs

John Cabot University, a four year, fully-accredited American liberal arts college in Rome, Italy, invites applications for a visiting faculty position in political science and international affairs at the assistant professor rank. We seek candidates with a Ph.D. in Political Science, demonstrated excellence in teaching and research, and commitment to academic service. The candidate will be expected to teach introductory and advanced undergraduate courses in international relations. The ideal candidate should be a graduate of an American university or have experience in the American liberal arts educational tradition. The appointment is for one year, beginning January 1st, 2019, and with possibility of renewal. Candidates are expected to be fluent in English, which is the language of instruction, and have permission to work in the EU. Applicants should send a letter of interest, curriculum vitae, letters of recommendation, one or two research papers or journal publications, and evidence of teaching excellence to: plsearch-visiting@johncabot.edu. Review of applications will begin September 15th, 2018 and remain open until filled. Only short-listed applicants will be notified.

Start Date: Spring 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 8/31/2018

Salary: $40,000 - $49,999

eJobs ID: 4746

University of Georgia

Rank: IA Faculty and Director of the Center for International Trade & Security

Subfield(s): Comparative Politics, International Relations, Administration

Specializations: International Security, Trade, Regulatory Policy

The University of Georgia's School of Public and International Affairs (SPIA) seeks applications for the Director of the Center for International Trade and Security (CITS) and faculty member in the Department of International Affairs (DIA). The successful candidate must have a strong record of grant and contract acquisition and have a scholarly record appropriate for an academic appointment at a research university. The ideal candidate will also have policy relevant experience or expertise, fundraising experience, and previous management responsibilities. The Director of the Center reports to the Dean of SPIA. The position is open rank, tenured or tenure-track.

CITS was established in 1987 with the support of former U.S. Secretary of State Dean Rusk. It has a distinguished record of policy-relevant research, training, and public service, focusing primarily on security issues related to the trade, transfer, and use of materials and technology associated with weapons of mass destruction (WMD), nuclear security culture, and nonproliferation policy. CITS is fortifying its connections to DIA and to other UGA academic units by broadening its scope to include human security, counterterrorism, counterinsurgency, cybersecurity, and energy security. While strategic trade management and nonproliferation remain central to CITS' mission, outstanding candidates with research and policy experience outside this area are also encouraged to apply.

The Center's programs are sustained by corporate and government contracts, private foundation grants, and individual and corporate gifts. For more than three decades, these sources of support have enabled the Center to design and implement training and outreach programs to U.S. and foreign policymakers and industry representatives. The Center also engages these communities, educators, students, and the general public via international colloquia on emerging security issues. CITS's Security and Strategic Trade Management Academy alone has trained more than 1,000 government officials, academics and industry representatives from 70 countries on the establishment, implementation, and enforcement of export controls.

CITS contributes to SPIA's Master of International Policy (MIP) Program that prepares graduate students for careers in international security and nonproliferation. CITS experts serve as instructors in the MIP Program, whose graduates have been placed in prestigious educational and government institutions. In addition, CITS experts administer the year-long Richard B. Russell Security Leadership Program which prepares undergraduates for careers in nonproliferation and national security. SLP Fellows have earned distinguished national and international scholarships and have been hired by US government agencies, international organizations, corporations, and consulting firms. For more information, visit: <http://spia.uga.edu/departments-centers/center-for-international-trade-and-security-cits/>.

DIA is a vibrant and extremely research-active department of twenty-two faculty members that specialize in a wide array of topics, including international conflict, human rights, human security, political institutions, extremism, political economy, and environmental governance. The faculty are leading scholars in their fields, have earned distinguished national and international honors, oversee externally-funded research projects, and serve in editorial positions at top peer-reviewed journals. Members of the faculty have also won prestigious teaching awards at the school and university levels. The department has an undergraduate degree program and contributes to multiple graduate degree programs, including the Ph.D. program in Political Science and International Affairs. Both DIA and CITS are housed within SPIA, one of the fastest growing public affairs schools in the world. SPIA ranks sixth among graduate schools of public affairs, according to the most recent U.S. News and World Report rankings.

The University of Georgia, located in Athens, Georgia, approximately 75 miles northeast of Atlanta, is a Research I institution in the University System of Georgia. Founded in 1785, the University is the largest and most comprehensive educational institution in the state. UGA (www.uga.edu) is a land/sea grant institution. Georgia is well known for its quality of life, with both outdoor and urban activities (www.georgia.gov).

Prospective candidates must apply for the position through the UGA Jobs site at: <http://www.ugajobsearch.com/postings/30612>. To complete the application, candidates will need to submit a cover letter indicating interest and qualifications, a current curriculum vitae, and the contact information for three individuals who can provide reference letters. A Ph.D. is required. The position is open until filled. Applications received by November 1, 2018 will be assured full consideration. For questions concerning the position, please contact Amanda

Murdie, Head, Department of International Affairs, University of Georgia, Candler Hall 327, Athens, GA 30602 (telephone: 706-542-9659, email: murdie@uga.edu)

SPIA is committed to enhancing the diversity of the School and the curriculum. Candidates who can contribute to these goals are encouraged to apply and to identify their strengths and experiences in this area in their cover letter. The University of Georgia is an Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action employer. All qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to race, color, religion, sex, national origin, ethnicity, age, genetic information, disability, gender identity, sexual orientation or protected veteran status. Persons needing accommodations or assistance with the accessibility of materials related to this search are encouraged to contact Central HR (hrweb@uga.edu). Please do not contact the department or search committee with such requests.

Start Date: Fall 2019
Date Posted: 8/31/2018
Salary: Competitive
eJobs ID: 4747

Temple University

Rank: Professor of Integrative Knowledge in Russian, Soviet, and Post-Soviet Studies
Specializations: Russia, History & Politics, Post Soviet Region

The Departments of Political Science and History at Temple University invite applications for the position of Professor of Integrative Knowledge in Russian, Soviet, and Post-Soviet Studies. We seek an established interdisciplinary scholar whose research and teaching address both Russian and/or Soviet history as well as the legacies of these earlier eras in the post-Soviet era, including topics such as the persistence of authoritarian rule as well as the important roles of the Soviet Union and Russia in world politics. This joint appointment in the Departments of History and Political Science is part of a broader initiative in the College of Liberal Arts to recruit senior faculty studying important questions across disciplinary boundaries. We seek someone who can be tenured at the level of either Associate or Full Professor in either (or both) Political Science and History.

Temple University is a state-related Carnegie Research University (highest research activity) located in Philadelphia. The College of Liberal Arts is home of 32 undergraduate majors, 32 minors, 23 certificate programs and 15 graduate degree programs. With its vibrant and diverse array of educational programs, the College of Liberal Arts plays, and its missions mirrors, both the historical importance of the liberal arts in society and the principles on which the university was founded.

Interested applicants should send a cover letter and curriculum vitae to <http://apply.interfolio.com/53872>. We will begin consideration of applications and nominations on October 15th. Professors Mark Pollack of Political Science and Alan McPherson of History will co-chair the search.

Start Date: Fall 2019
Application Deadline: 10/15/2018
Date Posted: 8/30/2018
Salary: Competitive
eJobs ID: 4736

University of New England

Rank: Assistant Professor, International Relations and Global Studies

The Department of Political Science at the University of New England is searching for tenure-track Assistant Professor in International Relations and Global Studies beginning in the 2019-2020 academic year.

The ideal candidate will offer a range of introductory and advanced level courses in international relations, depending on the candidate's interest and expertise. The candidate will also teach Introduction to Global Studies and help guide students interested in the Global Studies major. The ability to teach in another sub-field, especially American or Comparative Politics, would be of additional value to the department. Political science courses at UNE are generally taught in a seminar style, with an emphasis on high-engagement with students.

We seek a well-rounded teacher-scholar with a promising research agenda. The department values research that crosses traditional disciplinary boundaries to address original and important questions. Service to the University and a strong commitment to academic advising and student mentorship is expected.

Candidates must have a Ph.D. in Political Sciences or related field at the time of appointment.

Review of applications will begin September 25, 2018 and will continue until the position is filled. To apply for the position, please visit <https://une.peopleadmin.com/postings/4912>

UNE has a beautiful campus ocean-side in Biddeford, Maine. It is 20 minutes away from Portland, one of the country's most livable cities. The political science department is small, but vibrant. We value great teachers and scholars.

Start Date: Fall 2019
Application Deadline: 9/25/2018
Date Posted: 8/30/2018
Salary: Any
eJobs ID: 4737

University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill

Rank: Assistant or Associate Professor

The College of Arts and Sciences at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill is recruiting five tenure-track faculty at the assistant or associate professor rank. We seek scholars who will make transformative contributions to Carolina's new Environment, Ecology and Energy Program (E3P). Candidates from the social and natural sciences are encouraged to apply. Faculty will hold an appointment in an appropriate home academic department. Candidates must have a demonstrated capacity and interest to stimulate interdisciplinary collaborations.

These cluster positions include:

Cities and Critical Infrastructure: sustainable cities and infrastructure needs for cities of the future.

Energy and Energy Analytics: emergent renewable energy resources or technologies, including modeling and data analytics.

Environment, Development and Economics: public policy and/or applied economics of environment and development or environment and inequality, especially related to energy, environment or water.

Inequality and the Environment: social and environmental issues related to inequality, vulnerability, and the growing need to address gaps in knowledge and uneven access to resources or services.

Water Resources and Hydrology: the impacts of climate, pollution, and land use to the hydrologic cycle.

For more information and application instructions, see <http://unc.peopleadmin.com/postings/143098>. Review of applications will begin October 1, 2018.

The University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill is an equal opportunity and affirmative action employer. All qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to age, color, disability, gender, gender expression, gender identity, genetic information, national origin, race, religion, sex, sexual orientation, or status as a protected veteran.

Start Date: Summer 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 8/29/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4729

Trinity University

Rank: Visiting Assistant Professor

The Department of Political Science invites applications for a visiting assistant professor position beginning January 2019. Candidates should be ABD or have PhD completed.

The successful candidate is expected to teach three courses per semester: the lower division introductory course in international politics, and upper division courses in any subfield other than human rights and international law, with a preference for those who can focus on international politics in Asia.

Trinity University is an equal opportunity employer and as such provides equal opportunity for employment and advancement of all employees without regard to race, color, religion, sex, age, national origin, disability, military/veteran status, sexual orientation, gender identity, gender expression, or any status protected by federal, state, or local laws.

Applicants must submit a letter of application, CV, three letters of recommendation, evidence of teaching effectiveness, and transcripts to David Crockett, Department of Political Science, Trinity University, One Trinity Place, San Antonio, TX 78212. Phone: (210) 999-8344. Email: dcrocket@trinity.edu.

The position will remain open until filled. Deadline for receipt of applications is October 11, 2018.

Start Date: Spring 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 8/28/2018

Salary: $40,000 - $49,999

eJobs ID: 4721

Saint Lawrence University

Rank: Tenure-Track Assistant Professor in International Relations

The Government Department at St. Lawrence University invites applications for a tenure-track assistant professor position in international relations. The successful candidate will teach introductory courses in international relations and upper-level courses that do not overlap with the department's existing strengths in the subfield, which are foreign policy, international conflict, and international security. The teaching load is three courses per semester. Ph.D. in Political Science or related field must be completed before the appointment begins in August 2019.

We welcome applications from candidates who bring diverse cultural, ethnic and national perspectives to their scholarship and teaching.

Minimum Qualifications: Candidates with Ph.D. in hand preferred, though ABD candidates may be considered.

To apply, please visit: <https://employment.stlawu.edu/postings/1614>

Interested candidates should submit a cover letter indicating teaching and research interests, curriculum vita, graduate school transcript, writing sample, and evidence of teaching effectiveness. Applicants should also submit a separate document with a statement indicating how they can contribute in tangible ways to St. Lawrence University's commitment to cultivating a diverse and inclusive community and classrooms. These documents can be uploaded in the "Applicant Documents" section of your application.

Additionally, three confidential references are required [the required information input in the reference contact information section of your application will be utilized to send a system-derived email requesting a recommendation letter from each reference].

Review of applications will begin on October 15, 2018. Questions about the position may be sent to Dr. Grace Huang (ghuang@stlawu.edu), Search Chair, International Relations Search.

All offers of employment are contingent upon the finalist successfully passing a background (including criminal records) check.

Located at 23 Romoda Drive in Canton, NY, St. Lawrence University is a coeducational, private, independent liberal arts institution of about 2,400 students from more than 40 states and 40 nations. The educational opportunities at St. Lawrence inspire students and prepare them to be critical and creative thinkers, to find a compass for their lives and careers, and to pursue knowledge and understanding for the benefit of themselves, humanity and the planet. Through its focus on active engagement with ideas in and beyond the classroom, a St. Lawrence education leads students to make connections that transform lives and communities, from the local to the global.

For additional information about St. Lawrence, please visit <http://www.stlawu.edu>.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 8/22/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4666

Rutgers University, New Brunswick

Rank: GENDER AND COMPARATIVE POLITICS/INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS

The Political Science Department at Rutgers University New Brunswick seeks applicants for a Tenure-track Assistant Professor to begin September 1, 2019, in the broad area of Gender and Comparative Politics/International Relations. Responsibilities include teaching and advising graduate students, including those in our PhD subfield of Women and Politics whose research interests span a broad range of subjects, approaches, and geographic areas. Candidate must be able to teach standard undergraduate survey courses in comparative politics or IR. Strong familiarity with interdisciplinary feminist scholarship is preferred. PhD required in Political Science or related field.

As one of 34 public US institutions that belong to the Association of American Universities, Rutgers is among the leading research universities in the US and Canada. Rutgers University is an Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action employer, with a historic commitment to diversity. The Political Science Department is strongly committed to increasing the diversity of our faculty. Women, minorities, and members of under-represented groups are encouraged to apply. All qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to race, color, religion, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity or expression, national origin, disability, protected veteran status or any other classification protected by law.

Applicants should submit a cover letter, curriculum vitae, writing sample, and a list of three references to: <https://jobs.rutgers.edu/postings/73156> Review of applicants will begin on October 1 and continue until the job is filled.

Confidential letters of recommendation should be emailed directly by the referee to wsilverman@polisci.rutgers.edu – the applicant's name should appear in the subject line.

All job offers are contingent upon successful pre-employment background screening prior to commencement of employment.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 8/21/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4658

Rutgers University, New Brunswick

Rank: International Relations

The Political Science Department at Rutgers University New Brunswick seeks applicants for a fulltime, tenure track position in International Relations, beginning September 1, 2019, at the Assistant Professor level. We are particularly interested in candidates whose research focuses on Civil War, International Security/Terrorism, and/or American Foreign Policy, although other substantive interests in IR will also be considered. Strong preference for statistical, formal, and/or experimental methods. Candidate must be able to teach standard undergraduate survey courses in IR. PhD required in Political Science or related field.

As one of 34 public US institutions that belong to the Association of American Universities, Rutgers is among the leading research universities in the US and Canada. Rutgers University is an Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action employer, with a historic commitment to diversity. The Political Science Department is strongly committed to increasing the diversity of our faculty. Women, minorities, and members of under-represented groups are encouraged to apply. All qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to race, color, religion, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity or expression, national origin, disability, protected veteran status or any other classification protected by law.

Applicants should submit a cover letter, curriculum vitae, writing sample, and a list of three references to: <https://jobs.rutgers.edu/>

postings/73157 Review of applicants will begin on October 1 and continue until the job is filled.

Confidential letters of recommendation should be emailed directly by the referee to wsilverman@polisci.rutgers.edu – the applicant's name should appear in the subject line.

All job offers are contingent upon successful pre-employment background screening prior to commencement of employment.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 8/21/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4657

Purdue University

Rank: Assistant Professor of Political Science - International Relations

Assistant Professor of Political Science – International Relations

The Department of Political Science at Purdue University is seeking applications for a tenure-track assistant professor in International Relations starting in August 2019. The area of specialization is open, and candidates may take any methodological or theoretical approach. The successful candidate will have an active research agenda and be able to teach the introductory undergraduate class in international relations, the graduate level survey of the field, courses in his or her area of expertise, and courses that are part of the College of Liberal Arts' Integrated Cornerstone first-year curriculum. Required qualifications include an active research agenda, the ability to attract external funding, interest in contributing to university-wide initiatives to tackle grand challenges, the potential for teaching excellence, and a commitment to diversity and inclusion. A Ph.D. in Political Science or a related discipline is required.

Founded in 1869, Purdue is a research-intensive institution and a public land-grant university. Purdue is a member of the American Association of Universities and a top five public research university according to the Wall Street Journal. Faculty members in Political Science are actively involved with several interdisciplinary programs and centers, including the Advanced Methodology cluster, the Building Sustainable Communities initiative, the Center for the Environment, the Center for Research on Diversity and Inclusion, Peace Studies, the Human Rights Program, Asian Studies, the Purdue Systems Collaboratory, the Center for C-SPAN Scholarship & Engagement, and the Purdue Policy Research Institute. The department is also home to Politics, Groups, and Identities, an official journal of the Western Political Science Association. The department offers graduate certificates in Social Policy and Environmental Policy to students across campus.

Application materials should be submitted electronically as pdf attachments to Annie Wheeldon at polisci@purdue.edu. Applications should include curriculum vitae, graduate transcript, three letters of reference, a sample of written work, instructional materials such as syllabi and course evaluations, and a cover letter discussing the applicant's qualifications for the position. Review of applications will begin October 1, 2018, and will continue until the position is filled. Interviews will begin in January 2019. Questions should be addressed to search committee chair Professor Keith Shimko (kshimko@purdue.edu). A background check will be required for employment in this position.

Applicants should share Purdue University's commitment to principles of diversity and inclusion and the department's commitment to increasing the diversity of the campus community and the curriculum. Candidates who can contribute to these goals are encouraged to apply and identify their strengths and experiences in these areas.

Purdue University's Department of Political Science is committed to advancing diversity in all areas of faculty effort, including scholarship, instruction, and engagement. Candidates should address at least one of these areas in their cover letter, indicating their past experiences, current interests or activities, and/or future goals to promote a climate that values diversity and inclusion. Purdue University is an EOE/AA employer. All individuals, including minorities, women, individuals with disabilities, and veterans are encouraged to apply.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 8/20/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4641

Syracuse University

Rank: Associate Professor, International Relations/International Affairs

Associate Professor with Tenure Position
International Relations/International Affairs
Department of Public Administration and International Affairs
Maxwell School of Citizenship
Syracuse University

The Department of Public Administration and International Affairs (PAIA) seeks to hire an Associate Professor (with tenure) in International Relations/International Affairs beginning in fall 2019.

We are interested in attracting a leading scholar in the areas of international political economy, development or security studies. The successful candidate will primarily support our professional Master of Arts in International Relations (MAIR) program. This individual would hold a joint appointment with the department of Political Science. Successful candidates also may affiliate with one of Maxwell's Centers.

The PAIA and Political Science departments are located within the Maxwell School of Citizenship and Public Affairs. We are committed to citizenship education at the undergraduate level and to graduate education in public affairs and the social sciences. The MAIR program seeks candidates who complement the broader Maxwell mission, have interdisciplinary interests and are interested in training future leaders in international affairs.

Applicants should have a Ph.D. in political science or a related field. Rank and salary commensurate with experience and professional accomplishments.

For consideration, candidates must complete an online faculty application (available at <http://www.sujobopps.com/>) and attach: a letter of interest, a CV, a sample of professional writing, a statement of teaching philosophy, names and complete contact information for 3 references and evidence of quality teaching. Files may be no larger than 5MB, but you may submit an external link to a larger file if needed.

Applications will be reviewed as they arrive with full consideration given to those received by October 1. However, applications will be considered until the position is filled.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 8/20/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4643

Auburn University Montgomery

Rank: Associate/Full Professor of Political Science

The Department of Political Science and Public Administration at Auburn University at Montgomery invites applications for a tenured position in international relations starting in January or August 2019. The position is open with respect to expertise in international relations; teaching expectations include undergraduate and graduate courses in international relations, and at least one course in the master's degree program in public administration in a relevant area of international policy. Supervision of students in the doctoral program is expected.

The successful candidate will hold the endowed Khaled Chair in Political Science and International Policy, which comes with a stipend, research support, and a reduction in teaching load for a three-year term (renewable upon a satisfactory review). We welcome applications from candidates at any rank. Appointment will be made at the associate or full professor level depending on the applicant's credentials. Applicants must be a specialist in international relations or international affairs with a Ph.D. in political science, international affairs, international relations, or public policy.

Review of applications will begin October 15, 2018. To apply, complete an online application at <http://www.jobs.aum.edu/postings/3034> and upload the following materials: 1) a letter of application to include specification of training, current and future research agenda, teaching areas and teaching philosophy, and most significant professional service; 2) curriculum vitae; 3) one recent writing sample; 4) graduate transcript (official transcript will be needed at time of hire); and 5) contact information for three professional references. Three confidential letters of reference are required and must be sent by email to politicalscience@aum.edu by the application deadline.

The Department of Political Science and Public Administration includes nine tenure-track faculty and offers an undergraduate and master's degree in political science and a nationally ranked, NASPAA-accredited master's degree in public administration. It also offers a Ph.D. in Public Administration and Public Policy jointly with Auburn University's Department of Political Science.

Auburn University at Montgomery (AUM) is the metropolitan campus of Auburn University. Located in the state capital, AUM enrolls approximately 5000 undergraduate and graduate students and attracts a diverse student body. AUM is ranked by U.S. News and World Report as one of the top Comprehensive Regional Universities in the South. Montgomery offers diverse cultural and recreational opportunities including the Alabama Shakespeare Festival, world-class museums and memorials including the new Legacy Museum and the National Memorial for Peace and Justice, a ballet company, a natural habitat zoo, a chamber music society, an independent film theater, and the Montgomery Biscuits Double-A baseball team; it is home to Maxwell-Gunter Air Force Base and Air University, Hyundai Motor's first U.S. production facility, and the headquarters of leading non-profits including Equal Justice Initiative and the Southern Poverty Law Center.

Auburn University at Montgomery is an Equal Opportunity Employer committed to achieving excellence through diversity; therefore, we encourage applications from historically underrepresented groups, veterans, and individuals with disabilities.

While this position is open until filled, Auburn University at Montgomery reserves the right once interviewing has begun to stop accepting applications.

If you have questions or want to talk with someone about the position at the APSA meeting, please contact Prof. Andrew Cortell, Department Head, at acortell@aum.edu

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 8/18/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4640

Miami University

Rank: Assistant Professor in International Relations, Security/Cybersecurity

Assistant Professor in International Relations, Security/Cybersecurity for an appointment as a tenure-track Assistant Professor to teach undergraduate courses in international relations, advanced courses in cybersecurity and/or national cyber policy or cyber-law, and courses for the MA program; advise students; conduct relevant research leading to a record of published scholarship; provide institutional and professional service. The position will begin in the 2019-20 academic year.

Require: PhD in political science, public policy, or related field by the date of appointment.

Consideration may be given to candidates with substantive expertise in an area of cybersecurity and/or national cyber policy.

Submit letter of interest, curriculum vitae, evidence of teaching effectiveness, teaching philosophy, statement of research plans, transcripts and writing sample to <https://miamioh.hiretouch.com/job-details?jobID=6188>. The department will solicit reference letters from references provided in application. For inquiries about posting, contact Dr. Patrick Haney at haneypj@miamioh.edu. Screening of applications will begin September 10, 2018 and will continue until the position is filled.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 8/16/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4617

Miami University

Rank: Assistant Professor in International Relations, Security/Cybersecurity

Assistant Professor in International Relations, Security/Cybersecurity for an appointment as a tenure-track Assistant Professor to teach undergraduate courses in international relations, advanced courses in cybersecurity and/or national cyber policy or cyber-law, and courses for the MA program; advise students; conduct relevant research leading to a record of published scholarship; provide institutional and professional service. The position will begin in the 2019-20 academic year.

Require: PhD in political science, public policy, or related field by the date of appointment.

Consideration may be given to candidates with substantive expertise in an area of cybersecurity and/or national cyber policy.

Submit letter of interest, curriculum vitae, evidence of teaching effectiveness, teaching philosophy, statement of research plans, transcripts and writing sample to <https://miamioh.hiretouch.com/job-details?jobID=6188>. The department will solicit reference letters from references provided in application. For inquiries about posting, contact Dr. Patrick Haney at haneypj@miamioh.edu. Screening of applications will begin September 10, 2018 and will continue until the position is filled.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 8/16/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4618

University of Texas, Austin

Rank: Professor-International Relations

The Government Department at the University of Texas at Austin is seeking to hire leading scholars in international relations for two tenured positions at the rank of Full Professor to begin in Fall 2019. The search is open to scholars working in any specialty within the field of international relations, broadly defined.

Duties will include both undergraduate and graduate teaching, research, and service to the Department, College of Liberal Arts, and the University. The successful candidates will have a highly distinguished scholarly record of publication, a record of teaching excellence, and demonstrated excellence in intellectual and institutional leadership. Applicants must have a Ph.D. in hand at the time of appointment. Salary is highly competitive and commensurate with rank, experience, and qualifications.

Applicants should upload a vitae, examples of scholarly work, and teaching materials. The department will begin reviewing applications immediately and continue receiving applications until the positions are filled. Applicants should apply online at: <https://apply.interfolio.com/53197>.

Position funding is pending budgetary approval. A background check will be conducted for successful applicants. AA/EEO employer.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 8/14/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4594

University of Southern California

Rank: Assistant Professor of International Relations (Tenure Track)

Assistant Professor of International Relations (Tenure Track)

The School of International Relations at the University of Southern California in Los Angeles, California seeks to hire a tenure-track assistant professor to begin in August 2019. We are especially interested in candidates with training in advanced methods, such as formal modeling. The successful candidate should also have the interest and capacity to teach PhD level methods courses. The successful applicant will teach at both the graduate and undergraduate levels depending on substantive or regional specialization. The Ph.D. is required by the time of appointment.

The School of International Relations is a department in USC Dornsife College of Letters, Arts and Sciences. It offers the B.A. in International Relations and the Ph.D. in Political Science and International Relations jointly with the Department of Political Science. Please see www.usc.edu/sir and www.usc.edu/poir for more information.

The applicant should send a CV, a sample research paper, a statement of research interests, evidence of teaching effectiveness, three letters of recommendation, and official graduate transcripts to sirsearch@dornsife.usc.edu, or

SIR Junior Search Committee
USC School of International Relations
3518 Trousdale Parkway, VKC 330
Los Angeles, CA 90089-0043

In order to be considered for this position, applicants are also required to submit an electronic USC application; follow this job link or paste in a browser: <https://usccareers.usc.edu/job/los-angeles/assistant-professor-of-international-relations/1209/8973703>.

Review of applications will begin starting September 15, but applications will be accepted until the position is filled.

USC is an equal opportunity, affirmative action employer. All qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to race, color, religion, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, national origin, protected veteran status, disability, or any other characteristic protected by law or USC policy. USC will consider for employment all qualified applicants with criminal histories in a manner consistent with the requirements of the Los Angeles Fair Chance Initiative for Hiring ordinance.

Start Date: Fall 2019
Application Deadline: Open until Filled
Date Posted: 8/13/2018
Salary: Competitive
eJobs ID: 4575

University of Miami

Rank: Open Rank Search in American Politics or International Relations

The Department of Political Science at the University of Miami invites applications for an associate professor or full professor. The proposed start date is August 15, 2019. This is an endowed position providing a competitive salary and annual research budget. We seek candidates in the subfields of American politics or international relations who have developed a national or international reputation for their scholarship.

All applications can be submitted online via the Faculty Career Opportunities website (<https://umiami.wd1.myworkdayjobs.com/UMFaculty>) and all documents (CV, letters of nomination, and a list of three references) can be uploaded via this site. Applications will be considered until the position is filled. For further information about the position, please contact the Department Chair ([\[miami.edu\]\(http://miami.edu\)\). Additional information about the Department is available at \[www.as.miami.edu/politicalscience/\]\(http://www.as.miami.edu/politicalscience/\).](mailto:jwest@

<div data-bbox=)

The University of Miami is an Equal Opportunity Employer - Females/Minorities/Protected Veterans/Individuals with Disabilities are encouraged to apply. Applicants and employees are protected from discrimination based on certain categories protected by Federal law.

Start Date: Fall 2019
Application Deadline: Open until Filled
Date Posted: 8/9/2018
Salary: Competitive
eJobs ID: 4542

Saint Louis University

Rank: Assistant Professor In Comparative Politics or International Relations

Saint Louis University, a Catholic, Jesuit institution dedicated to student learning, research, health care, and service, seeks applicants for a tenure track position in international relations or comparative politics starting in August 2019. Previous teaching experience, evidence of research capacity, and a PhD in Political Science in hand by August 2019 are required. ABD candidates are encouraged to apply. The department has a preference for candidates able to teach undergraduate and graduate courses in European politics and policy and contribute classes to the department's International Studies program. The appointment will be at the level of Assistant Professor. The normal teaching assignment for this position is 2/2. The department offers a B.A. in Political Science, a B.A. in International Studies, an M.A. in Political Science and, in conjunction with the Sociology and Anthropology department, a Ph.D. in Public and Social Policy.

All applications must be made online at <https://jobs.slu.edu/postings/18703> and must include the applicant's curriculum vitae; a cover letter that includes research plans and teaching interests; at least one single-authored writing sample; research and teaching statements; a summary of recent teaching evaluations (if possible, officially produced); and syllabi of classes taught (if available). Please have three current letters of recommendation and official graduate transcripts sent to Ms. Sharilyn Bazile at sharilyn.bazile@slu.edu or Department of Political Science, Saint Louis University, 3750 Lindell Boulevard, St. Louis, MO 63108. For questions about the position, please contact Ms. Bazile or call the department office, 314-977-3035. Review of applications will begin immediately and will continue until the position is filled. Incomplete applications or applications received after October 15, 2018 cannot be assured full consideration.

Start Date: Fall 2019
Application Deadline: 10/15/2018
Date Posted: 8/8/2018
Salary: Competitive
eJobs ID: 4535

Saint Louis University

Rank: Assistant Professor In International Political Economy

Saint Louis University, a Catholic, Jesuit institution dedicated to student learning, research, health care, and service, seeks applicants for a tenure track position in international relations starting in August 2019. Previous teaching experience, evidence of research capacity, and a PhD in Political Science in hand by August 2019 are required. ABD candidates are encouraged to apply. The candidate must be able to teach undergraduate and graduate courses in International Political Economy, an undergraduate Introduction to International Relations class, and classes in the department's International Studies program. The appointment will be at the level of Assistant Professor. The normal teaching assignment for this position is 2/2. The department offers a B.A. in Political Science, a B.A. in International Studies, an M.A. in Political Science and, in conjunction with the Sociology and Anthropology department, a Ph.D. in Public and Social Policy.

All applications must be made online at <https://jobs.slu.edu/postings/18655> and must include the applicant's curriculum vitae; a cover letter that includes research plans and teaching interests; at least one single-authored writing sample; research and teaching statements; a summary of recent teaching evaluations (if possible, officially produced); and syllabi of classes taught (if available). Please have three current letters of recommendation and official graduate transcripts sent to Ms. Sharilyn Bazile at sharilyn.bazile@slu.edu or Department of Political Science, Saint Louis University, 3750 Lindell Boulevard, St. Louis, MO 63108. For questions about the position, please contact Ms. Bazile or call the department office, 314-977-3035. Review of applications will begin immediately and will continue until the position is filled. Incomplete applications or applications received after September 15, 2018 cannot be assured full consideration.

Start Date: Fall 2019
Application Deadline: 9/15/2018
Date Posted: 8/8/2018
Salary: Competitive
eJobs ID: 4534

University of Miami

Rank: Tenure-track International Relations or American Politics

Department of Political Science invites applications for a full-time tenure-track position at the rank of Assistant or Associate Professor in the field of international relations or American politics. Although the position is open as to these two subfields, preference will be given to international relations candidates who specialize in international security and preference will be given to American politics to candidates who complement our existing strengths. Candidates should have over their PhD by August 15, 2019 and show promise of high-quality research in top scholarly outlets as well as excellence in teaching. The expected teaching assignment is 2-2, and the position will involve teaching in the field of international relations or American politics, including an introductory course.

All application packages can be submitted online via the Faculty Career Opportunities website (<https://umiami.wd1.myworkdayjobs.com/UMFaculty>) and all documents (CV, letters of nomination, and a list of three references) can be uploaded via this site. Applicants applying for the rank of assistant professor should upload documents including a CV, a letter of interest, teaching evaluations if available, PhD transcript (unofficial is acceptable for initial application), and a single-authored writing sample. More senior scholars applying for the rank of associate professor should upload documents including a CV, a letter of interest, and a list of three references. Applications received on or before Monday, October 15, 2018, will be given full consideration. For further information about the position, please contact the Department Chair (jwest@miami.edu). Additional information about the Department is available at www.as.miami.edu/politicalscience/. The University of Miami is an Equal Opportunity Employer — Females/Minorities/Protected Veterans/Individuals with Disabilities are encouraged to apply. Applicants and employees are protected from discrimination based on certain categories protected by Federal law.

Start Date: Fall 2019
Application Deadline: 10/15/2018
Date Posted: 8/8/2018
Salary: Competitive
eJobs ID: 4532

University of California, Irvine

Rank: 2018-19 Political Science Lecturer Pool (International Relations Focus)

The Department of Political Science is seeking applicants for temporary part-time lecturer positions to teach in the field of International Relations contingent on departmental need. These positions will replace faculty on leave during the 2018-19 academic year.

Requirements - We are seeking candidates with strong teaching credentials who might contribute to our undergraduate program in International Relations. Candidates should have a Ph.D.

These part-time positions are based on an annual salary range beginning at $54,738 and the number of courses could vary.

Service Period Dates for 2018-2019 Academic Year:
 Fall Quarter: 9/24/18 – 12/14/18
 Winter Quarter: 1/2/19 - 3/22/19
 Spring Quarter: 3/27/19 – 6/14/19

Application Procedure - Interested applicants should submit a letter of application, vita, three letters of reference, evidence of teaching performance, and a Statement of Contributions to Diversity via our online recruit system: <https://recruit.ap.uci.edu/apply/JPF04844>

Priority for positions will be given to applications completed by October 1st, 2018. Please note this is a continuous recruitment to fill classes on an as-needed basis. The department will refer to the pool of applications on file to fill assignments as necessary.

Start Date: Fall 2018
Application Deadline: 3/17/2019
Date Posted: 8/7/2018
Salary: $50,000 - $59,999
eJobs ID: 4515

George Washington University

Rank: Assistant Professor

The Department of Political Science invites applications for a tenure-track position in International Relations at the rank of assistant professor. This position is pending final budgetary approval.

Basic Qualifications: Applicants must have an active, theoretically-oriented research agenda as evidenced by working papers or publications, and be able to teach graduate and undergraduate courses as indicated by research presentations and/or teaching assessments. The Department expects applicants to have strong substantive and methodological training, as demonstrated by completed coursework, but has no preferred methodological approach. Applicants must hold a Ph.D. or doctoral degree in Political Science or a related field. ABDs will be considered but must have completed all requirements for the Ph.D. by the date of appointment.

Application Procedure: To apply please complete an online faculty application at <http://www.gwu.jobs/postings/55199> and upload a cover letter, curriculum vitae, statement of teaching/research interest (including a summary of teaching evaluations, if available), and sample publications. In addition, please send at least three letters of recommendation to pscjobs@gwu.edu. Review of applications will begin on 9/17/2018, and will continue until the position is filled. Only complete applications will be considered.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 8/6/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4496

Rice University

Rank: Assistant Professor of Political Science

The Department of Political Science at Rice University, located in Houston, Texas, invites applications for a tenure-track position to begin July 1, 2019. The appointment will be made at the rank of assistant professor. Assistant professors are expected to teach undergraduate and graduate courses and perform research in their specialized area. Therefore, successful candidates will have a promising research agenda and strong analytical and empirical skills as well as aspire to the highest standards of scholarship, professional activity, and commitment to graduate and undergraduate education. We are particularly interested in candidates whose research interests and expertise lie in the areas of political violence, civil war, ethnic conflict, terrorism, and/or human rights. Candidates must currently have a Ph.D. or complete the Ph.D. by July 1, 2019.

The application deadline is September 15, 2018. A complete application must include a letter of application, a curriculum vitae, graduate school transcripts, two writing samples, and three letters of recommendation (applicants must provide contact information for three references who will be contacted automatically for letters of recommendation). All applications should be submitted electronically at <http://jobs.rice.edu/postings/16200>.

Equal Opportunity Employer - Females/Minorities/Veterans/Disabled/Sexual Orientation/Gender Identity

Start Date: Summer 2019

Application Deadline: 9/15/2018

Date Posted: 8/3/2018

Salary: Negotiable

eJobs ID: 4485

Yale University

Rank: Assistant Professor in Race, Ethnicity and Migration

Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Comparative Politics, International Relations

The Department of Political Science at Yale University invites applications for an Assistant Professor position in Race, Ethnicity, and Migration. We are particularly interested in outstanding candidates who work on American Politics, and also candidates who work on these issues in Comparative Politics and International Relations. This search is part of a cluster of hires, at multiple levels, the department is making over the next few years. The appointment will begin on July 1, 2019.

Ph.D. or equivalent degree required at the time of hire. Applications including a cover letter, CV, three letters of recommendation, and a writing sample should be uploaded to <https://apply.interfolio.com/53016>.

Review of applications and nominations will begin September 15, 2018, and to guarantee full consideration your file should be complete by this date.

Please contact Lani Colianna (lani.colianna@yale.edu or 203-432-5238), Sr. Administrative Assistant for the Political Science Department, if you have questions about the application process.

Yale is an affirmative action/equal opportunity employer. Yale University values diversity among its staff, students, and faculty and strongly encourages applications from and nominations for women and under-represented minorities, protected veterans, and persons with disabilities.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Date Posted: 8/3/2018

Salary: Negotiable

eJobs ID: 4489

Yale University

Rank: Open Rank Position in International Relations

Yale University's Department of Political Science invites applications for an open rank search in International Relations. We are interested in candidates from all areas of International Relations, though we have a particular interest in those with expertise in International Political Economy and International Organization. The appointment will begin on July 1, 2019.

Ph.D. or equivalent degree required at the time of hire. Applications including a cover letter, CV, three letters of recommendation (if untenured), and a writing sample should be uploaded to <https://apply.interfolio.com/53014>.

Review of applications and nominations will begin September 15, 2018, and to guarantee full consideration your file should be complete by this date.

Please contact Lani Colianna (lani.colianna@yale.edu or 203-432-5238), Sr. Administrative Assistant for the Political Science Department, if you have questions about the application process.

Yale is an affirmative action/equal opportunity employer. Yale University values diversity among its staff, students, and faculty and strongly encourages applications from and nominations for women and under-represented minorities, protected veterans, and persons with disabilities.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Date Posted: 8/3/2018

Salary: Negotiable

eJobs ID: 4490

Occidental College

Rank: Assistant Professor in Global Political Economy

Specializations: International Political Economy, Political Economy, Economic Policy

A search at the Assistant Professor level in Global Political Economy. We are particularly interested in applicants whose research explicitly connects the study of Global Political Economy to other major sub-fields in International Relations, such as security, transnationalism/migration, international organizations and/or human rights. The successful candidate will be expected to teach Introduction to Global Political Economy (DWA103) and at least one other DWA core course, which includes Introduction to International Relations and/or International Organizations. Priority will be given to applicants who are developing a research agenda that shows promise in terms of leveraging substantial field work with international or regional organizations, transnational NGOs, and/or entities working on challenges that face major urban centers or particular regions. Consideration will be given to a candidate whose teaching and research are interdisciplinary, can contribute to the College's Core / Cultural Studies Programs, and advance the College's Mission and its commitment to the Liberal Arts. An expectation will be that an eventual hire will continue the DWA department, Young Initiative on the Global Political Economy, and Occidental College's engagement with on-the-ground work in international affairs, at the local/Los Angeles, transnational, and/or global levels. An additional priority is the ability to advance the College's mission, past evidence of and future plans for creating equitable opportunities in learning and mentoring for underrepresented students, and an understanding of the distinctiveness of the Liberal Arts culture. Further, we expect the new faculty member will augment and invigorate the DWA department by collaborating with its existing faculty, ongoing initiatives, and continued curricular innovations.

Occidental College is a highly-selective, urban liberal arts college recognized for its diverse student body, its commitment to academic excellence and equity, and its undergraduate research programs. Named one of America's most beautiful campuses, the College is situated in the vibrant neighborhoods of Eagle Rock and Highland Park in Northeast Los Angeles. As one of the few urban liberal arts colleges in the country, Occidental affords students and faculty unique engagement with communities, cultural institutions, and academic resources throughout Los Angeles.

Candidates should send their application as an electronic file to Ms. Romy Corona at oxysearches@oxy.edu. A complete application will include the following materials: (1) a cover letter that details the candidate's interest in teaching at Occidental, the Department of Diplomacy & World Affairs, and the goals of the Young Initiative on the Global Political Economy; (2) potential initiatives as part of the Young Initiative committee; (3) a discussion of the applicant's academic research, field practice, teaching experience, and program development; (4) a statement of teaching philosophy that includes a discussion of demonstrated commitment to, past evidence of, and future plans for creating equitable opportunities for learning and mentoring especially for underrepresented students; (5) a list and brief descriptions of courses the applicant could teach at Oxy; (6) scholarly work sample; (7) Curriculum Vitae; and (8) three confidential letters of recommendation, with at least one attesting to your teaching; letters must be sent by recommenders. All materials are due no later than October 19, 2018; applications received after the deadline will not be reviewed. Interviews of semi-finalists will be held via videoconference.

For information on the Department of Diplomacy & World Affairs, including current course offerings, please visit our website at: <http://www.oxy.edu/diplomacy-world-affairs>. For information on the John Parke Young Initiative on the Global Political Economy, please visit our website at: <https://www.oxy.edu/john-parke-young-initiative-global-political-economy>. For inquiries about the position, the DWA department, and/or the Young Initiative on the Global Political Economy please direct questions to Sophal Ear, Associate Professor of Diplomacy & World Affairs: ear@oxy.edu

Start Date: Fall 2019
Application Deadline: 10/19/2018
Date Posted: 8/1/2018
Salary: Competitive
eJobs ID: 4474

Princeton University

Rank: Fellowship

Fung Global Fellows Program

Princeton University is pleased to announce the call for applications to the Fung Global Fellows Program at the Princeton Institute for International and Regional Studies (PIRS). Each year the program selects six scholars from around the world to be in residence at Princeton for an academic year and to engage in research and discussion around a common theme. Candidates will be considered in three categories: (1) Four of the fellowships will be awarded to early-career scholars employed in the equivalent of tenure-track positions who are expected to return to their position. (2) One fellowship is set aside for a postdoctoral research associate who at the time of application does not have a tenure-track faculty appointment. (3) In addition, one fellowship will be awarded to a senior scholar. All candidates must be based outside the United States.

During the academic year 2019-20, the Fung Global Fellows Program theme will be "Thinking Globally." How people have thought about the planet has informed the institutions, norms, and policies that have pulled it together and torn it apart. For centuries, ideas of free trade, human rights or global governance have framed cooperation and competition, order and disorder. Such ideas have also spawned border-crossing movements, from campaigns to end slavery to commitments to reduce carbon emissions. In turn, global thinking and action have often reinforced commitments to national ideas and efforts to curb global exchange. The goal of this research theme is to explore how ideas framed the understanding of interests and the making of institutions that have yielded commonness and conflict across and within borders. We also want to understand how these ideas and practices came into being through scientific networks, foundations, and think tanks. The Program will also examine rival world ideas that have challenged prevailing orthodoxies. Nowadays, with cooperative norms under challenge, global institutions under stress, and a century of guiding ideas about global convergence in doubt, we want to take a broad look at where these ideas came from, their effects, and the prospects for intellectual renewal or rethinking. The goal of the 2019-20 Fung Global Fellows cohort will be to explore the ways people learned to rely on or to reject strangers far away, as well as to imagine how global relationships came to be and could be different. We welcome applicants from all disciplinary and inter-disciplinary fields from the sciences to the humanities whose work addresses this set of themes in any historical period or world region.

Applications are due on November 9, 2018. All candidates must reside outside the United States. To be eligible, postdoctoral applicants must have completed all requirements for their Ph.D. before August 1, 2019 but cannot have received their degrees more than three years prior to the start of the appointment on September 1, 2019. Early-career fellows must have received their Ph.D. or equivalent no earlier than September 1, 2009. Senior scholars, who have received their doctorates before 2009, must have faculty appointments and a record of scholarly accomplishment in the designated theme of the program. Fellowships will be awarded on the strength of a candidate's proposed research project, the relationship of the project to the program theme, the candidate's scholarly record, and the ability to contribute to the intellectual life of the program.

Start Date: Summer 2018

Application Deadline: 11/8/2019

Date Posted: 8/1/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4322

Georgetown University

Rank: Senior Tenured Scholar - McDonough School of Business and the Walsh School of Foreign Service

Subfield(s): International Relations, American Government and Politics, Public Policy

Georgetown University's McDonough School of Business (MSB) and the Walsh School of Foreign Service (SFS) invite applications and nominations for a senior tenured scholar to hold a joint appointment in both schools. We seek scholars who work at the intersection of business and international affairs in fields such as international political economy, international trade, and international business and public policy. We expect to make this appointment at the level of Full Professor, though we welcome applications from accomplished associate professors. We also welcome applications from and nominations of senior scholars with extensive policymaking experience.

This joint position is one of a number of new interdisciplinary positions at Georgetown intended to foster scholarship and teaching on some of the important problems of our times. Because of our location in Washington, DC, extensive linkages to the international policy and business communities, and strong tradition of scholarship and teaching in business, international affairs, and political economy, Georgetown has a unique opportunity to pursue integrative opportunities in scholarship and educational programs at the intersection of these fields, and the person appointed to the joint position will play an important role in these initiatives.

The MSB and SFS are currently undertaking a transformative cooperation to create a new joint undergraduate degree, the first in Georgetown's history, and plans are also underway for joint centers and research initiatives. This cooperation builds on the success of several joint graduate degrees, as well as a jointly administered Global Business Fellows program for undergraduates. The successful candidate will help provide leadership in deepening and broadening the linkages between the schools.

The SFS is a preeminent international affairs school with deep expertise in international political economy, regional studies, and security studies. The MSB has strengths in core business disciplines as well as international business, public policy, and international political economy. Both the MSB and the SFS are collegial and multi-disciplinary.

ABOUT GEORGETOWN UNIVERSITY: Georgetown University is one of the world's leading academic and research institutions, offering a unique educational experience that prepares the next generation of global citizens to lead and make a difference in the world. We are a vibrant community of exceptional students, faculty, alumni and professionals dedicated to real-world applications of our research, scholarship, faith and service.

Established in 1789, Georgetown is the nation's oldest Catholic and Jesuit university. Drawing upon the 450-year-old legacy of Jesuit education, we provide students with a world-class learning experience focused on educating the whole person through exposure to different faiths, cultures and beliefs. More information can be found here: <https://www.georgetown.edu/>.

ABOUT THE MCDONOUGH SCHOOL OF BUSINESS: Georgetown University's McDonough School of Business attracts faculty and students from around the world. We are committed to developing principled leaders capable of making complex business decisions in a global environment and who are dedicated to serving both business and society. Georgetown McDonough offers undergraduate, MBA, Executive MBA, and specialized programs. More information can be found here: <https://msb.georgetown.edu/>

ABOUT THE WALSH SCHOOL OF FOREIGN SERVICE: The Walsh School of Foreign Service (SFS), founded in 1919, is a premier school of international affairs. At Georgetown's Washington, D.C., and Qatar campuses, SFS provides a rigorous education grounded in both theory and practice while instilling the Jesuit values of service. SFS hosts top-ranked undergraduate and graduate studies which feature an interdisciplinary core curriculum that focuses on international affairs, government, economics, history, theology, philosophy, geography, and language. SFS faculty are scholars in political science, economics, history, and cultural studies, as well as professionals with backgrounds in business, government, and the nonprofit sector.

APPLICATION PROCEDURE: Interested applicants should send a cover letter and curriculum vitae to apply.interfolio.com/52848. Please send nominations to the same address. We will begin consideration of applications and nominations on 1 November 2018, but will accept applications and nominations until the position is filled. Professors Dennis P. Quinn of MSB and Erik Voeten of SFS will co-chair the search.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 7/30/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4455

Wheaton College

Rank: Assistant Professor, Political Science

Specializations: International Political Economy, Foreign Policy, International Security

APPLY ONLINE AT: <http://jobs.wheatoncollege.edu/postings/2423>

The Department of Political Science at Wheaton College in Norton, Massachusetts invites applications for a tenure-track Assistant Professor position in International Relations to begin in the Fall of 2019. The ideal candidate will possess the ability to teach introductory and upper-level courses in International Relations, as well as to extend departmental coverage in Comparative Politics in regions including South Asian, South-East Asian, East Asian, or Central and Eastern European (including Russia) politics. The Political Science Department is home to both a political science major and an interdisciplinary international relations major, and the successful candidate will collaborate with colleagues in the management of the international relations major program.

All International Relations subfield specializations will be considered, including, but not limited to, the following areas:

- international political economy

- comparative foreign policy
- security studies
- intra or inter-state conflict
- peace studies
- conflict resolution.

We are especially interested in the ability to develop and teach courses at the intersections of traditional discipline and subfield specializations. We are committed to providing our students with excellent educational and co-curricular opportunities, and our faculty has significant mentoring experience with new teachers in postdoctoral and junior faculty appointments. For example, we offer regular programming in professional development and all tenure-track faculty are entitled to a fully paid pre-tenure sabbatical and research funds to support scholarship.

MINIMUM QUALIFICATIONS:

- A PhD at the onset of the appointment (August 2019) is required.
- A commitment to excellence in teaching and scholarship.
- For full consideration, the following are to be submitted via Wheaton's online application system: letter of application; curriculum vitae; statement of teaching philosophy; statement of research philosophy; evidence of teaching effectiveness (materials on your teaching history, including sample syllabi and course evaluations); and at least one scholarly writing sample.
- Wheaton strives to be a community supportive of diverse perspectives and identities. Candidates should describe in their letter of application how their teaching and scholarship might support the College's commitment to diversity and inclusion. In addition, the letter of application should also include areas of specialty, as well as explain the candidate's interest in teaching in a liberal arts environment.
- Applications will be reviewed beginning October 1, 2018. The position will remain open until filled.

PREFERRED QUALIFICATIONS:

- Prior teaching experience; classroom experience is highly desirable.
- Dedication to scholarly achievement.
- Commitment to the liberal arts environment.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 7/14/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4388

University of Toronto

Rank: Endowed Chair, Japanese Politics and Global Affairs

The University of Toronto invites applications for a joint tenure-stream, endowed chair appointment in the Department of Political Science (51%) and the Munk School of Global Affairs and Public Policy (49%) in the area of Japanese Politics and Global Affairs. The appointment will be at the rank of Associate or Full Professor and will commence July 1, 2019.

The successful candidate must have a PhD in politics, government, international relations, or a closely related discipline at the time of appointment and be able to provide evidence of innovative research excellence of an internationally competitive calibre, as evidenced by a record of publications in leading outlets in the field, presentations at significant conferences, accolades or awards, and strong endorsements by referees of high standing.

Candidates should have an established international reputation based on a scholarly record of excellence appropriate to their career stage. Evidence of excellence in teaching and a demonstrated commitment to graduate education and mentorship are required. Evidence of excellence in teaching will be demonstrated by strong letters of reference, teaching evaluations, graduate supervision, dossier and/or syllabi submitted as part of the application. The ideal candidate will focus on Japanese politics (including political history) in comparative and international perspective, Japanese policy in global and regional context, or international relations and contemporary Japan.

The appointment will be contingent upon a successful tenure review. Salary will be commensurate with qualifications and experience.

We seek applications from candidates whose research program fits well with the Department and with the global focus of the Munk School. The appointee will contribute to the education and training of undergraduate and graduate students in both the Department and the School. The opportunity is also available to direct a new Centre for the Study of Global Japan established in the School to stimulate collaborative scholarship and public outreach.

We encourage applicants to review both academic units' research and teaching profiles prior to applying. Please visit our home pages: Department of Political Science <http://politics.utoronto.ca/>; Munk School of Global Affairs and Public Policy <http://www.munkschool.utoronto.ca/>.

All qualified candidates are invited to apply by clicking on the link below. Applications should include a cover letter, curriculum vitae, writing sample, teaching dossier (including a statement of teaching philosophy), and a statement outlining current and future research interests. Equity and diversity are essential to academic excellence. We seek candidates who value diversity and whose research, teaching and service bear out our commitment to equity. Candidates are therefore also asked to submit a 1-2 page statement of contributions to equity and diversity, which might cover topics such as (but not limited to): research or teaching that incorporates a focus on underrepresented communities, the development of inclusive pedagogies, or the mentoring of students from underrepresented groups.

If you have questions about this position, please contact Sari Sherman at chair.polisci@utoronto.ca. All application materials should be submitted through the University of Toronto's online application system. Submission guidelines can be found at: <http://uoft.me/how-to-apply>.

Applicants should also ask three referees to send letters (on letterhead, signed and scanned) directly to the Chair of the search committee in the Department of Political Science, Professor Antoinette Handley, via e-mail at chair.polisci@utoronto.ca by the closing date, October 9, 2018.

The University of Toronto is strongly committed to diversity within its community and especially welcomes applications from racialized persons / persons of colour, women, Indigenous / Aboriginal People of North America, persons with disabilities, LGBTQ persons, and others who may contribute to the further diversification of ideas.

As part of your application, you will be asked to complete a brief Diversity Survey. This survey is voluntary. Any information directly related to you is confidential and cannot be accessed by search committees or human resources staff. Results will be aggregated for institutional planning purposes. For more information, please see <http://uoft.me/UP>

All qualified candidates are encouraged to apply; however, Canadians and permanent residents will be given priority.

Start Date: Fall 2019
Application Deadline: 10/9/2018
Date Posted: 7/11/2018
Salary: Competitive
eJobs ID: 4373

Bucknell University

Rank: Assistant Professor of Political Science (International Politics)

Bucknell University's Department of Political Science invites applications for a tenure-track position in international relations beginning in the fall semester of 2019. We expect to hire at the Assistant Professor level but are open to considering outstanding candidates at other ranks. The successful candidate will be prepared to teach the core course in international relations, courses in global security and/or conflict resolution, a course in either quantitative or qualitative research methods, and other courses in the candidate's field of specialization. We welcome applications from qualified candidates who approach international relations from a variety of theoretical perspectives.

The Department of Political Science has a strong record of hiring diverse faculty whose courses expose students to a variety of racial, ethnic, and cultural perspectives, and we are especially interested in candidates whose teaching and research will contribute to the department's commitment to both diversity and academic excellence. Evidence of teaching experience and excellence, as well as the promise of being a productive scholar, are critically important. The teaching load is five courses over two semesters. By the start date of the position, candidates are expected to have a Ph.D. in Political Science with a sub-field specialization in international relations, but ABD candidates will also be considered with the understanding that the Ph.D. must be completed before the beginning of the second year.

For additional information and to apply, please go to careers.bucknell.edu. The application should include a cover letter, C.V., statement of teaching philosophy, statement of commitment to diversity, three letters of recommendation, graduate transcripts, sample publications or papers, syllabi, and teaching evaluations (if available). Questions about the position should be addressed by email to Professor Scott Meinke at smeinke@bucknell.edu. The review of applications will begin on September 24, 2018.

About Bucknell University

Bucknell University is a highly selective, predominately undergraduate, private university with approximately 3600 students. Along with its excellent academic departments and programs, it boasts the Center for the Study of Race, Ethnicity, and Gender, which supports faculty teaching and scholarship in these areas, and the Griot Institute for Africana Studies, which provides faculty and student intellectual and creative engagement with the interdisciplinary investigation of the cultures, histories, narratives, peoples, geographies and arts of Africa and the African diaspora; and the Bucknell Institute for Public Policy, which supports faculty research and teaching on issues of domestic, international, and comparative public policy. In 2014, Bucknell introduced a 5-Year Diversity Plan aimed at enhancing the diversity of the faculty, staff, student body, and curriculum of the university.

Located in Central Pennsylvania along the Susquehanna River, Bucknell is nestled in the Borough of Lewisburg, an architectural gem that has been ranked as one of America's best small towns. The Lewisburg area offers a unique combination of outdoor recreation opportunities, and appealing amenities such as art galleries, an art deco theater, historic museums, and charming independent boutiques and restaurants. In addition, the surrounding region offers outstanding schools, medical facilities, and an affordable cost of living. Bucknell is within an easy three-hour drive to Philadelphia, New York, Baltimore, and Washington, D.C.

Start Date: Fall 2019
Application Deadline: Open until Filled
Date Posted: 7/10/2018
Salary: Competitive
eJobs ID: 4365

Texas Woman's University

Rank: Assistant Professor of Government

Specializations: Middle East, East Asia, International Law & Organizations

The Department of History and Government at Texas Woman's University invites applicants for a tenure-track Assistant Professor position beginning fall 2019. The successful applicant will be broadly trained in Political Science with a primary field of International Relations and a secondary field in Comparative Politics. A geographical expertise in Asia or the Middle East in the secondary field is highly desirable. Candidates should hold a Ph.D. in Political Science or a related field at the time of appointment and demonstrate a commitment to excellence in undergraduate and graduate teaching and an active record of research. The successful candidate will teach the introductory International Relations course and alternate teaching the introductory Comparative Politics course, as well as teaching advanced undergraduate courses and Master's level courses in International Relations and Comparative Politics. Candidates will also advise students and serve the department, university, and profession.

Required qualifications:

- Earned doctorate in Political Science or related field at the time of appointment
- Demonstrated potential for teaching excellence
- Demonstrated potential for research and publication

Preferred qualifications:

- Prior teaching experience

The History and Government Department offers a Bachelor and Masters as well as the Bachelors in Criminal Justice (co-administered with the Department of Sociology and Social Work). The department has 5 full-time Political Science faculty members (plus 5 full-time History faculty) offering degrees to approximately 100 undergraduate Political Science majors and 20 Master's students.

Send a cover letter, graduate transcripts, CV, evidence of teaching effectiveness, a sample of scholarly work, and three letters of reference to facultyjobs@twu.edu. Review of applications will begin on October 8, 2018.

Start Date:
Application Deadline: Open until Filled
Date Posted: 7/5/2018
Salary: $50,000 - $59,999
eJobs ID: 4349

Claremont McKenna College

Rank: Assistant Professor of Government

The Department of Government of Claremont McKenna College (CMC) invites applications for an entry-level tenure-track position at the rank of assistant professor, in the areas of international law and/or human rights, beginning July 1, 2019. A qualified candidate, with PhD in political science in hand or a nearly completed doctoral dissertation, would have research experience in one or more of these areas, and the capacity to teach core courses in international relations as well as courses of his or her specialization(s).

The candidate must have demonstrated ability to maintain an active, high quality research program and the highest standards of excellence in teaching. The teaching load at CMC is two courses per semester.

CMC is a highly selective undergraduate institution ranked among the top liberal arts colleges nationally. It is part of The Claremont Colleges, which also includes Pomona College, Scripps College, Harvey Mudd College, Pitzer College, Claremont Graduate University, and Keck Graduate Institute. Combined, the members of The Claremont Colleges have more than 6,000 students. Claremont is located 35 miles east of downtown Los Angeles.

Given our commitment to cultivating a challenging and inclusive educational environment, we seek candidates who can demonstrate a commitment to teaching, mentoring, and inspiring students representing a broad range of socioeconomic backgrounds, political opinion, genders, races, ethnicities, nationalities, sexual orientations, and religions.

Claremont McKenna College is an Equal Opportunity Employer, strongly committed to diversity, and encourages applications from the broadest range of individuals.

All applications must include a cover letter, curriculum vitae, detailed research statement, and a statement regarding teaching philosophy. Letters of recommendation are required from three or more references and should evaluate the candidate's research and teaching. Applications must be submitted electronically at https://webapps.cmc.edu/jobs/faculty/faculty_opening.php

The review of applications will begin August 1, 2018, and will continue until the position is filled.

Start Date: Summer 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 7/3/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4348

Dickinson College

Rank: Assistant Professor of Political Science and International Studies

The departments of International Studies and Political Science at Dickinson College are seeking qualified applicants for a full-time, tenure-track assistant professor position beginning in academic year 2019-20. A completed or nearly-completed Ph.D. in Political Science, International Relations, or related discipline is required.

Applicants should have a research and teaching focus on Africa, South Asia, or Southeast Asia. The specific sub-field of research can be comparative politics, international relations, security studies (including human security), or other related fields. In addition to teaching upper-level courses in that research area, the successful candidate must demonstrate ability and interest in teaching introductory International Relations and upper-level American Foreign Policy on a regular basis. Candidates should identify in their application letter courses they are prepared to teach and should have a strong commitment to teaching undergraduate students in an interdisciplinary liberal arts environment. The yearly teaching load is five courses. The successful candidate is expected to participate fully in the intellectual life of the departments, including serving as one of the oral examiners for the International Studies exams at the end of the academic year. The ability to create inclusive learning environments for an increasingly diverse student body will be an important characteristic of the successful candidate.

Dickinson College is a private, four-year liberal arts college with 2,400 students. It is located 20 minutes west of Harrisburg and is a two-hour drive from Baltimore, Washington DC, and Philadelphia.

Interested candidates should apply for this position electronically, online application system at <https://jobs.dickinson.edu>.

Please submit the following materials:

- * a letter of application;
- * curriculum vitae;
- * graduate transcript;
- * names and email addresses for three letters of recommendation;
- * writing sample;
- * teaching statement;
- * sample syllabi – preferably for one or more of the above listed courses.
- * teaching evaluations or other evidence of teaching effectiveness

Review of applications will begin October 1 and will continue until the position is filled.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 7/3/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4347

Texas A&M University

Rank: Tenure-Track, Assistant Professor in National Security & Diplomacy

Subfield(s): Public Policy, International Relations, American Government and Politics

The Department of International Affairs in the Bush School of Government and Public Service at Texas A&M University invites applications and nominations for a tenure-track, assistant professor position in the broad area of National Security and Diplomacy. The Bush School of Government and Public Service has built an outstanding faculty who are looking to hire a collegial Assistant Professor. We are broadly open to a candidate's regional/topical area of international affairs specialization. Bush School faculty exclusively teach master's degree graduate students in international affairs in a standard 2-2 load. The successful candidate will be expected to teach at least one section of the required course in introductory-level empirical methods. We have a preference for candidates who would also be able to teach U.S. foreign policy. Additional information about the Bush School and department is available at <http://bush.tamu.edu>.

Applicants must have a Ph.D. in Political Science, History, International Relations, Economics or a related discipline by September 2019. The individual selected will have demonstrated a strong commitment to teaching and research in the context of a public policy graduate school environment. The start date for this position will be September 1, 2019.

Applications must be made through the Texas A&M Workday website. The job number for this position is R-008268.

Applicants who currently are not a Texas A&M System employee please go to our external career site at https://tamus.wd1.myworkdayjobs.com/en-US/TAMU_External/job/College-Station-TAMU/Tenure-Track--Assistant-Professor-in-National-Security---Diplomacy---International-Affairs_R-008268

Applicants who currently are a Texas A&M System employee please go to our internal career site at https://www.myworkday.com/tamus/d/inst/15\$158872/9925\$10485.html

Applicants should upload a formal letter of interest that includes reference to the position, a curriculum vitae and a sample of written work.

Additionally, please have three letters of recommendation sent to:

Professor Gregory Gause
c/o Ms. Janeen Wood (preferably as electronic attachments to bushschoolinta-facultysearch@tamu.edu)
The Bush School of Government & Public Service
Texas A&M University
4220 TAMU
College Station, TX 77843-4220

The review of applications will begin September 20, 2018, and will continue until the position is filled.

Start Date: Spring 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 6/22/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4323

Connecticut College

Rank: Assistant Professor in International Relations with a focus on US Foreign Policy

International Relations with a focus on US Foreign Policy
The Department of Government and International Relations at Connecticut College invites applicants for a tenure-track position as an Assistant Professor in the subfield of International Relations with a specialization in U.S. Foreign Policy. The ability to teach Comparative Foreign Policy and the ability to offer courses in a region of global interest would be an asset. The department already have strengths in Europe, the Middle East and East Asia. The successful candidate must demonstrate an ability to teach an introductory International Politics course and intermediate- and advanced-level courses on foreign policy, at least one of which would be on US Foreign Policy. Required: ABD in Political Science or International Relations with a Foreign Policy focus. Candidates must have the Ph.D. in hand at the time of appointment to be hired as an Assistant Professor; a candidate may be hired as an Instructor if the candidate does not have a Ph.D. in hand at the time of appointment, but will complete the Ph.D. within one year of hire.

Salary is competitive. In addition to providing ongoing support for teaching and research, the College offers the following resources for pre-tenured faculty: a 2-2 teaching load in the first year, a research fund in the first two years, and a semester's sabbatical (at full salary) after a successful third-year review.

The College's Board of Trustees, President, administration, faculty and staff share a commitment to diversity. To this end, the College, located in New London, CT is continuing what has been a very successful initiative to diversify its faculty, staff, and student body. We encourage applications from candidates who share this understanding and will contribute to the diversity of our college community, including members of historically underrepresented groups. The College is an Affirmative Action/Equal Opportunity Employer. Please visit our website, <http://www.conncoll.edu>, for more information about the College and our faculty searches.

Offering two popular majors (a government major and an interdisciplinary international relations major), Government and International Relations is a collegial department with 11 full-time faculty members. There are also opportunities for collaboration with interdisciplinary programs on campus. Moreover, the College's general education program, Connections, provides ample opportunity for collaborative and interdisciplinary teaching. For an overview of this innovative curriculum, please visit <http://www.conncoll.edu/connections/>

Applicants should upload a letter of application, a C.V., teaching evaluations, a writing sample, graduate transcripts, and at least three letters of recommendation to <https://apply.interfolio.com/51489>. E-mail inquiries should be sent to Tristan Anne Borer, Chair of the Department of Government and International Relations, at tabor@conncoll.edu. Applications received by October 5th will receive full consideration.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 6/18/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4309

Florida State University

Rank: Assistant professor

Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, International Relations, Comparative Politics

The Department of Political Science (<http://coss.fsu.edu/polisci/home>) seeks applications for a tenure track assistant professor to begin in Fall 2019. We seek candidates whose research focuses on institutions and political economy. The search is open with respect to the substantive subfield, and priority will be given to candidates who can add to the department's strength in formal theory and rigorous empirical analysis. Successful candidates are expected to pursue an active program of research and to contribute to the department's undergraduate and graduate game theory sequences.

Florida State University is committed to broadening the gender, racial and ethnic diversity of its faculty, and the Department of Political Science shares that goal. The university statement of commitment to increasing the diversity of the faculty and students can be found at http://hr.fsu.edu/?page=diversity/diversity_home.

Florida State University is a Carnegie Foundation-classified Research I institution. Among its 42,000 students are 7,500 graduate students pursuing over 200 programs of study. Tallahassee is Florida's capital and has a metropolitan population of over 375,000. Its principal employers are state government and three higher education institutions.

Applicants should submit (1) a letter of application indicating research and teaching interests, (2) a curriculum vitae, (3) writing samples, (4) three letters of recommendation, and (5) a graduate school transcript. All items must be submitted electronically. Send these files as separate email attachments (pdfs are expected) to polisci@fsu.edu. Review of applications will begin September 17, 2018 and continue until the position is filled. Florida State University is an EO employer. Members of underrepresented groups are strongly encouraged to apply.

Florida State University is an Affirmative Action/Equal Opportunity Employer and racial/ethnic minority applicants are particularly encouraged to apply (http://hr.fsu.edu/?page=eoc/eo/eeo_home).

Start Date: Fall 2019
Application Deadline: 9/17/2018
Date Posted: 6/14/2018
Salary: Competitive
eJobs ID: 4304

University of California, San Diego

Rank: Postdoctoral Fellow
Subfield(s): International Relations, Methodology, Other

The Center for Peace and Security Studies (cPASS - <http://cpass.ucsd.edu/>) has two postdoctoral positions available for the 2018-2019 academic year. Each position is also renewable at the discretion of the cPASS Director. Research at cPASS targets new and emerging security issues such as emerging modes of conflict and new modes of deterrence. cPASS is devoted to applying innovative thinking and diverse methodologies (experiments, deductive modeling, statistical analysis, case studies, archival research and "big data") to traditional security issues made more dynamic and difficult by the increased complexity of interstate competition and conflict. We emphasize a team-based, multi-method approach to research that combines qualitative and quantitative perspectives.

Postdocs will work closely with the Center Director in conducting cPASS research activities such as data collection, analysis, preparing project reports and manuscripts for peer-reviewed journals, preparing and delivering oral presentations to diverse audiences, overseeing qualitative research or supervising project labs, and mentoring graduate and undergraduate research activities.

Applicants are required to have a PhD in hand at the time of appointment. A degree in Political Science, History, International Relations, Economics, or allied field is anticipated but other specialties may be appropriate, depending on an applicant's interests and skills. Candidates will be assessed based on their expertise and knowledge of different key aspects of security studies and their ability to contribute to a diversified, integrated research team.

The initial period of appointment will be for 12 months from the date of appointment. Renewal is possible with the approval of the Center Director. Some flexibility exists as to start date, but candidates should expect to be in residence in San Diego throughout the appointment. Salary will be commensurate with qualifications and experience.

Interested applicants should provide a letter describing their qualifications and the reasons for interest in the position. A printed copy of a curriculum vitae is also required. Additional materials may be requested after initial review. Please send all materials to the following email address (jml110@ucsd.edu). Please ensure to include the phrase "cPASS Postdoc Fellow" in the subject heading. Review of applications will be ongoing.

Start Date: Fall 2018
Application Deadline: Open until Filled
Date Posted: 4/2/2018
Salary: Competitive
eJobs ID: 4173

METHODOLOGY

New York University

Rank: Assistant Professor of Public Service
Subfield(s): Public Policy, Public Administration, Methodology
Specializations: Environmental Policy, Economic Policy, Research Methods

Description:

The Robert F. Wagner Graduate School of Public Service at New York University invites applications for a tenure-track assistant professor position with appointment to begin September 1, 2019. We are particularly interested in candidates with expertise and a record of research in political science with application to the environment. Successful candidates will teach in our Master of Public Administration program and will have demonstrated excellence in research.

NYU Wagner is a multidisciplinary school that prepares public service leaders to translate ideas into actions that have an effective and lasting impact on the public good. Wagner's nearly 40 full-time faculty members are trained in a wide variety of disciplines and share a commitment to addressing issues of public importance in their teaching and research. Wagner faculty members collaborate with other schools and departments across the university, including the Departments of Politics, Economics, and Sociology in Arts & Science; School of Law; Stern School of Business; Tandon School of Engineering; and the College of Global Public Health.

Qualifications:

A Ph.D. in political science, public policy, economics, public administration, or a related field is required and must be conferred by August 31, 2019.

Application Instructions:

To apply, visit the following link: apply.interfolio.com/55519. Candidates should submit a cover letter, curriculum vitae, two completed research papers, and three letters of reference. Because diversity is an important part of the mission at Wagner and the University, candidates should also describe how they would address issues of diversity, equity, and inclusion in their teaching.

Start Date: Fall 2019
Application Deadline: Open until Filled
Date Posted: 10/12/2018
Salary: Competitive
eJobs ID: 5005

University of Michigan, Ann Arbor

Rank: Education Policy Postdoctoral Research Fellow

Subfield(s): Public Policy, Methodology, Public Administration

Specializations: Education Policy, Quantitative Methods, Research Methods

Postdoctoral Training Program in Quantitative Methods for Education Policy Research

Education Policy Postdoctoral Research Fellow
2019 – 2021

Summary

The Education Policy Initiative (EPI) seeks candidates interested in deepening their knowledge of rigorous, applied quantitative education policy research for a two-year postdoctoral fellowship.

Up to two fellows will be trained to estimate the causal effects of education policies and practices on student outcomes, emphasizing the use of state and district longitudinal data. Fellows will participate in all aspects of the research process, including design, IRB administration, analysis, and presentation. They will collect, compile and analyze data; design surveys; participate in research planning; write papers; present results at seminars and professional meetings; and supervise research assistants. Fellows will have the unique opportunity to leverage EPI's role in the Michigan Education Research Institute (MERI) to develop research partnerships with public agencies and practitioners and to communicate results to non-technical audiences, including policymakers.

The fellows will also have the opportunity to develop and lead additional education research projects. They should expect to spend about a third of their time completing research related to their dissertation, a third of their time working on ongoing research projects at the Ford School, and the remaining third of their time building new collaborations at the university. The fellows will not have any teaching responsibilities.

The fellows will receive close mentorship from professors Susan Dynarski, Brian Jacob and Christina Weiland and will have the opportunity to work with cross-disciplinary UM faculty, including John Bound, Stephen Desjardins, Mathew Ronfeldt and Kevin Stange. UM is home to a dynamic community of researchers, with ample opportunity for professional development – via participation in seminars and trainings, as well as through exposure to high-profile speakers.

This is a 2-year fellowship beginning in the summer of 2019 with competitive salary and benefits plus funds for research expenses and related travel. Funding for the fellowships is provided by the Institute of Education Sciences postdoctoral training grant R305B170015.

Qualifications

Applicants must have completed their PhD in a relevant social science discipline prior to August 31, 2019 and have academic research experience in public policy, economics, education, quantitative methodology, or other similar fields. Applicants must be citizens or permanent residents of the United States. Applicants should not have been supported previously by either a predoctoral or postdoctoral training grant through the United States Department of Education's Institute of Education Sciences.

Application Process and Deadline

We will accept applications submitted online. Please visit our website for instructions. Complete applications include a 2-3 page statement of interest, writing sample (job market paper or recent publication authored / co-authored by the applicant), CV, and three confidential letters of recommendation. We will begin reviewing applications on November 1 and will continue until the positions are filled.

U-M EEO/AA Statement

The University of Michigan is an equal opportunity/affirmative action employer.

Start Date: Summer 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 10/12/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 5006

London School of Economics & Political Science

Rank: Assistant Professors in International Social and Public Policy (2 posts)

Subfield(s): Public Policy, Public Administration, Methodology

LSE is committed to building a diverse, equitable and truly inclusive university

For these posts, we particularly welcome applications by women and ethnic minorities

Department of Social Policy

Assistant Professors in International Social and Public Policy (2 posts)

Salary is competitive with Departments at our peer institutions worldwide and not less than £53,905 pa inclusive

Following the retirement of several faculty members, and consolidation of its BSc and MSc degree programmes, the Department seeks talented individuals keen to help it further develop its renowned strengths in social and public policy.

Candidates should have expertise and research interests in social and public policy analysis, and a completed PhD (or be close to obtaining one) in social and public policy or a related area by the post start date. They must have a track record or trajectory of internationally excellent publications, plus proven ability or potential to publish in top journals or with leading book publishers. Also required is a clear, well developed and viable strategy for future outstanding research that has the potential to result in world-leading publications, together with the ability to establish an international reputation. Candidates must have the ability to teach core and specialist courses in international social and public policy at BSc, MSc, and PhD levels, and also have a commitment to high quality teaching and fostering a positive learning environment for students, including pastoral care.

The other criteria that will be used when shortlisting candidates for this post can be found in the person specification, which is attached to this vacancy on the LSE's online recruitment system.

In addition to a competitive salary the benefits that come with this job include an occupational pension scheme, a research incentive scheme with personal reward options, generous research leave (sabbatical) entitlement, a collegial faculty environment and excellent support, training and development opportunities.

For further information about the post, please see the how to apply document, job description and the person specification, as well as the further information document.

To apply for this post, please go to www.lse.ac.uk/LSEJobs. If you have any technical queries with applying on the online system, please use the “contact us” links at the bottom of the LSE Jobs page. Should you have any queries about the role, please email socialpolicy.recruitment@lse.ac.uk in the first instance.

The closing date for receipt of applications is Sunday 11 November 2018 (23.59 UK time). We are unable to accept any late applications. We expect to interview short-listed candidates in March 2019.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: 11/11/2018

Date Posted: 10/11/2018

Salary: $70,000 - $79,999

eJobs ID: 4980

University of Illinois, Springfield

Rank: Research Director

Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Methodology, Public Policy

Specializations: Public Opinion, State Politics, Research Methods

The Center for State Policy and Leadership at the University of Illinois Springfield seeks a dynamic, skilled professional with substantial research experience to serve as the Research Director overseeing the Center’s Institute for Legal, Legislative, and Policy Studies and Survey Research Office. The Institute and Survey Research Office conduct applied research studies and policy and program evaluations for public and nonprofit organizations, with a strong focus on Illinois government. Going forward, these two research organizations will operate as one with an explicit purpose to generate knowledge that can be useful in fostering “good government” in Illinois. A capable leader is needed to guide this effort at a critical time in the history of the state.

Minimum required qualifications: A terminal degree in public administration, political science, law, or related field. Consideration will be given to a relevant master’s degree combined with extensive funded public affairs research experience. Minimum of 3 years’ experience administering grant/contract funded activities. Successful history securing funding. Must have knowledge of how state and local governments operate. A record of scholarship and publication activity.

Preferred qualifications: Experience conducting funded research, evaluation, and/or technical assistance involving use of both quantitative and qualitative methods. Practical experience working with political processes and government at the state level. Experience successfully communicating research findings to scholarly, professional, and general audiences. Ability to lead, work with, and gain the respect and confidence of faculty, staff, administrators and external constituencies.

Salary range for position is $90,000 - $100,000 annually. Starting salary depends on experience and qualifications. UIS benefits package. Anticipated starting date is January 16, 2019. For a full position description and to apply, please visit: <https://jobs.uis.edu/>

UIS is an affirmative action/equal opportunity employer with a strong institutional commitment to recruitment and retention of a diverse and inclusive campus community. Persons with disabilities, women and minorities are encouraged to apply.

Start Date: Spring 2019

Application Deadline: 10/26/2018

Date Posted: 10/8/2018

Salary: $90,000 - $99,999

eJobs ID: 4975

University of Gothenburg

Rank: Researcher, (one or more) in Political Science, with focus on Varieties of Democracy

Varieties of Democracy (V-Dem) is a large-scale data collection and research-program headquartered at the V-Dem Institute, Directed by Staffan I. Lindberg. To learn more about V-Dem visit: <https://www.v-dem.net/en/>

Job assignments

The Postdoctoral Research Fellow is expected to conduct research with a focus on one or several of the main questions of the research programs Varieties of Democracy (V-Dem), Varieties of Autocracy (V-Aut), or Failing and Successful Sequences of Democratization (FASDEM). Project descriptions can be downloaded here:

<https://pol.gu.se/english/varieties-of-democracy--v-dem->

One of V-Dem’s strengths is the flexibility and collaborative spirit of everyone at the institute, and we assume a willingness to contribute to coding of data, quality control, data management and/or teaching during peak periods. The Postdoctoral Research Fellow may be asked to perform such tasks up to one-third of full time employment (FTE).

Qualifications

The position is open to candidates who (at the time of assuming the position) have a PhD in political science or related field.

We will hire one or more candidates depending on funding situation. Applications will be evaluated primarily on research excellence in areas of relevance to one of the projects listed above. Research at high international level in the field of comparative democratization, autocratization, regime breakdown, authoritarian regimes, and/or political development, is required. Beyond those areas, we may also employ a candidate with a strong record in Bayesian IRT-modelling. Excellence in English (orally and written) is a requirement.

Excellence in one or more of the following areas are meritorious:

Explicit interest in further extending on the research agenda and sequencing methods developed in the FASDEM program; the research objectives of the V-Aut program on autocracies and autocratization; or one of the subprojects of the V-Dem program.

Demonstrated experience designing, implementing and analyzing surveys in an international context. Work on survey experiments is especially meritorious.

Competence in advanced time-series, cross-sectional regression techniques and panel analysis, Vector Auto-Regression (VAR), sequencing algorithms, optimal matching methods, Monte Carlo chains, and/or Dynamic treatment regimes.

Extensive demonstrated experience with Bayesian IRT-modeling in the cross-national expert-coded data context. R, JAGS and STAN programming skills.

We will also consider:

Demonstrated resourcefulness, flexibility, and very good ability to do teamwork in different configurations.

Experience working collaboratively on a large-scale research project. Prior use of V-Dem data in applied research or similar evidence of familiarity with the project.

Documented experience with service to the profession; collaboration with the surrounding community and policy practitioners in particular with regards to writing texts tailored to reach non-academic audiences.

We will make an overall assessment of the applicants' qualifications and select one or more judged to complement the rest of the team in the best way possible for the needs of the research programs. Personal qualities relevant for the position are of great importance.

Appointment procedure

Applicants are expected to visit the website <https://pol.gu.se/english/varieties-of-democracy--v-dem-> and download program documents. The application should clearly relate to one or more of the research programs.

The letter of application should include a self-evaluation of how the applicant's proposed research agenda would contribute to one of the above listed research programs, and in which ways the applicant meets the requirements.

Attach to the application: a CV, an excerpt of citation count from Google scholar (including H-index), and one writing sample. The application should also include a list of at least three references from whom letters of recommendation can be solicited.

Applications are submitted online at: https://www.gu.se/english/about_the_university/job-opportunities/vacancies-details/?id=3122

Employment

Fixed-term employment, 23 months, full time in residence
Extent: 100 %
Location: V-Dem Institute, Department of Political Science at University of Gothenburg
First day of employment: Spring 2019 or latest by September 1st, 2019.

About the University

The Department of political science, University of Gothenburg, is one of the leading Political Science departments in the Nordic countries. The vibrant department houses several large research institutes such as the Varieties of Democracy (V-Dem), The Quality of Government (QoG) Institute, the Multidisciplinary Opinion & Democracy Research Group (MOD), the National Election Studies, and the Program on Governance and Local Development at Gothenburg (GLD-G). The department is also leading partner in the SOM Institute. The department hosts 140 employees, out of which more than 70 are faculty and researchers, and 1,400 students.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: 11/15/2018

Date Posted: 10/2/2018

Salary: Negotiable

eJobs ID: 4938

Yale University

Rank: Henry A. Kissinger Postdoctoral Fellowship

Subfield(s): International Relations, Methodology, Other

The Henry A. Kissinger Visiting Scholars Program awards one post-doctoral fellowship, funded by the Johnson Center for the Study of American Diplomacy for one year and renewable for one additional year. Postdoctoral Kissinger Visiting Scholars must have completed their Ph.D. degree to begin the fellowship.

Kissinger Visiting Scholars are expected to use the time to conduct original research and write manuscripts for publication, focused on the role of the United States in global affairs from World War II to the present, including the conduct of U.S. statecraft, diplomacy, and grand strategy. Kissinger Visiting Scholars fellowships will be awarded to candidates with outstanding proposals that require access to the Henry A. Kissinger Papers or other archival holdings related to American diplomacy at Yale. (<http://web.library.yale.edu/digital-collections/kissinger-collection>; <http://guides.library.yale.edu/american-diplomacy-primary-sources>).

Kissinger Visiting Scholars will also work with an active academic community of post-doctoral fellows and pre-doctoral fellows, as well as Yale faculty in history, political science, and other disciplines.

Postdoctoral Kissinger Visiting Scholars may teach small seminars if desired on subjects relevant to grand strategy, participate regularly in research colloquia on campus, and are granted opportunities to present their work. Postdoctoral fellows are expected to remain in residence through the duration of their fellowship and contribute to the intellectual life of the Program in Grand Strategy, International Security Studies, and the Jackson Institute for Global Affairs by participating in their activities and development. Offices are located on Yale's campus.

The Johnson Center for the Study of American Diplomacy was founded upon the 2011 donation of Dr. Henry Kissinger's papers to Yale related to his pre-government, government, and post-government careers (<http://news.yale.edu/2011/06/14/yale-receive-kissinger-papers-and-establish-johnson-center-study-american-diplomacy>). A program of the Jackson Institute for Global Affairs, in conjunction with International Security Studies and the Brady-Johnson Program in Grand Strategy, the Center brings academics and practitioners to Yale as Kissinger Visiting Scholars and Kissinger Senior Fellows, as well as hosts an annual conference a range of other activities relating to international affairs.

Qualifications

Recent Ph.D. in relevant field. Ph.D. must be in hand by September 1, 2019.

APPLICATION INSTRUCTIONS

A complete application includes:

1. C.V.
2. 100-word research proposal abstract.
3. 1000-word research proposal, to include an explanation of how access to the Kissinger Papers or other archival holdings related to diplomatic history at Yale would help achieve the goals of your project.
4. Three letters of recommendation.
5. Two writing samples, e.g., dissertation chapters or journal articles.

Applications are due through Interfolio (<https://apply.interfolio.com/54775>) by November 12th.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: 11/12/2018
Date Posted: 9/27/2018
Salary: Competitive
eJobs ID: 4913

Yale University

Rank: Henry Chauncey Postdoctoral Fellowship
Subfield(s): International Relations, Methodology, Other

Henry Chauncey Postdoctoral Fellowship

The Chauncey Postdoctoral Fellowships are up to three positions funded by the Brady-Johnson Program in Grand Strategy for one year renewable for one additional year. We seek to attract outstanding junior scholars from around the globe whose work addresses questions of statecraft and grand strategy, broadly defined, and demonstrates excellence in one of a range of academic disciplines and methodologies. Postdoctoral fellows must have completed their PhD degree to begin the fellowship. They are expected to use their time at Yale to conduct original research and prepare manuscripts for publication. Fellows will work with an active academic community of postdoctoral and predoctoral fellows, as well as Yale faculty in history, political science, and other disciplines. Postdoctoral fellows may teach small seminars if desired. They participate regularly in research colloquia on campus and are granted opportunities to present their work. Postdoctoral fellows are expected to remain in residence through the duration of their fellowship and contribute to the intellectual life of the Brady-Johnson Program in Grand Strategy and to International Security Studies by participating in their activities and development. Offices are located on Yale's campus.

Qualifications

Recent Ph.D. in relevant field. Ph.D. must be in hand by September 1, 2019.

Application Instructions

A complete application consists of:

1. CV
2. A 100-word research proposal abstract.
3. A 1000-word research proposal.
4. Three letters of recommendation.
5. Two writing samples, e.g. dissertation chapters or journal articles.

Applications are due through Interfolio (<https://apply.interfolio.com/55016>) by December 3rd.

Start Date: Fall 2019
Application Deadline: 12/3/2018
Date Posted: 9/27/2018
Salary: Competitive
eJobs ID: 4912

Princeton University

Rank: Senior Research Specialist I - CSDP

The Center for the Study of Democratic Politics (CSDP) in the Woodrow Wilson School of Public and International Affairs, Princeton University, is seeking an advanced PhD student or PhD for a half-time to full-time Research Specialist I position, to start as soon as possible. The research specialist will work with a multi-investigator team of Princeton University politics professors on CSDP's Project on Economic Inequality in the U.S. The position provides university staff benefits including health insurance, and the opportunity to co-author.

The successful candidate will have excellent statistical skills, good writing skills, experience designing and fielding surveys and experiments, and excellent attention to detail and conscientiousness. At least two years' experience conducting independent, doctoral-level research on individual-level political behavior is preferred. The candidate should be well organized, flexible, and be able to meet deadlines.

Preference will be given to candidates who can be in-residence and working on campus, but a remote work arrangement will be considered, with availability for some meetings in Princeton.

This position is a one-year term position, with the possibility of extension for a second year depending on funding and performance.

Preferred start date of November 1, 2018, but a somewhat later start may be possible.

ESSENTIAL QUALIFICATIONS:

- *Excellent research and writing skills
- *Proficiency in survey design and analysis of survey data, preferably on individual-level political behavior
- *Background in quantitative, experimental research and statistical methods
- *Knowledge of statistical packages including STATA or R
- *Detail-oriented, flexible, able to meet deadlines

EDUCATION REQUIRED:

*Completed PhD coursework and masters-level research in political science required. Ph.D. in political science strongly preferred

PREFERRED QUALIFICATIONS:

*At least two years' experience conducting independent, doctoral-level research on individual-level political behavior

This position is subject to the University's background check policy.

Apply online on the Princeton University Careers site (careers.princeton.edu), position number 00008232 (Senior Research Specialist I - CSDP),

Start Date: Fall 2018
Application Deadline: Open until Filled
Date Posted: 9/25/2018
Salary: Competitive
eJobs ID: 4898

Eastern Illinois University

Rank: American Politics/Research Methods

The Department of Political Science at Eastern Illinois University invites applicants for a tenure-track position in Political Science at the rank of Assistant Professor. The successful candidate will be qualified to teach undergraduate and graduate courses in American Politics and Research Methods. The position begins August 15, 2019.

Candidates must have a Ph.D. in Political Science or ABD status with evidence of substantial progress toward degree completion. Commitment to excellence in teaching and mentoring, an active research agenda, and a commitment to service are essential. Primary courses include an introductory American government course, a rotation of undergraduate American politics courses (e.g. Presidency, Congress, and American Foreign Policy), undergraduate and graduate level research methods, and graduate seminars. Some graduate classes will be taught online. The position also includes directing undergraduate and graduate research. Ideal candidates will be committed to mentoring, applied learning, diversity, and promoting inclusive excellence.

Applicants should submit a letter of application, a curriculum vitae, three references (including reference phone numbers and emails), three recent professional recommendation letters, and graduate school transcripts via Interfolio at <http://apply.interfolio.com/55077>. Application review begins October 8 and will continue until the position is filled.

The Department of Political Science at Eastern Illinois University offers three undergraduate majors, including Political Science, an International Studies option, and a Civic and Nonprofit Leadership option. At the graduate level, the department offers an M.A. in Political Science and an online M.A. in Political Science with a Public Administration and Public Policy option. Questions about the search may be directed to the department chair, Dr. Melinda Mueller (mamueller@eiu.edu).

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 9/19/2018

Salary: $60,000 - $69,999

eJobs ID: 4857

Vanderbilt University

Rank: Professor of Education Policy in Equity and Inclusion

Subfield(s): Other, Methodology, Public Policy

The Department of Leadership, Policy, and Organizations at Peabody College of Education and Human Development at Vanderbilt University invites applications for the position of Professor of Education Policy in Equity and Inclusion. We seek distinguished applicants trained in the social sciences who study the ways in which education creates advantages and disadvantages for different individuals and groups in the United States. We are interested in a scholar whose work addresses the effectiveness of the nation's K-16 education system as a site for civic empowerment and social and economic mobility, and whose research critically examines fundamental questions around the role of schools and/or colleges in the achievement of an equitable, inclusive, and diverse society.

Candidates should possess an exemplary record of scholarly accomplishment and a demonstrated capacity to work collaboratively with colleagues commensurate with the rank of full professor. A successful record of external funding is expected. The successful candidate will have experience mentoring and training doctoral students for careers in academia and closely allied research organizations, and commitments to teaching undergraduate and professional degree students.

The mission of the Department of Leadership, Policy, and Organizations is to understand and improve the political, economic, organizational, and social contexts in which human learning takes place. The department embraces a range of disciplinary traditions and encourages multiple methodological approaches in the study of education policy and practice.

The department operates highly regarded programs and degrees at the undergraduate, master's, and doctoral level, including professional master's degree programs; an on-campus Ed.D. program in K-12 and in higher education leadership and policy; an online Ed.D. in leadership and learning in organizations; a Ph.D. program in K-12 and in higher education leadership and policy; and an undergraduate degree in Human and Organizational Development. For more information on the department, visit our website: <http://peabody.vanderbilt.edu/departments/lpo/index.php>

Applications

Review of formal applications will begin December 1, 2018, and continue until the position is filled. The anticipated start date is August 2019. Applicants should submit a letter addressing their qualifications and interests, a full curriculum vitae, three recent peer-reviewed publications, and the names and contact information of three references. Please apply at the following link: <https://apply.interfolio.com/53826>

For questions about the position, please contact:

Ellen Goldring

Patricia and Rodes Hart Chair

Professor of Education Policy and Leadership

Chair, Department of Leadership, Policy, and Organizations

Peabody #414, 230 Appleton Place

Nashville, TN 37203

ellen.goldring@vanderbilt.edu

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: 12/1/2018

Date Posted: 9/18/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4849

Columbia University

Rank: Professor (Open Rank)

Columbia University, Department of Political Science invites applications for an open rank position in Political Methodology to begin July 1, 2019. Applications at both the junior and senior level are welcome. Ph.D. required at the time of appointment. Candidates will be expected to sustain an active research and publication agenda and teach in undergraduate and graduate programs. All candidates must have excellent scholarship and excellent promise for future development as scholars and teachers. Non-tenured applicants should submit a cover letter, curriculum vitae, three letters of reference, and at least two brief writing samples. Tenured applicants should submit a curriculum vitae and letter of interest detailing current and future research plans. The Search Committee will begin reviewing applications on October 5, 2018, and the search will remain open until filled.

Columbia University is an Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action employer and encourages applications from women and under-represented minorities.

Please visit our online application site at academicjobs.columbia.edu/applicants/Central?quickFind=66923 to submit an application.

Start Date: Summer 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 9/5/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4773

University of Delaware

Rank: Assistant/Associate Professor Positions in Disaster Science

Subfield(s): Public Policy, Methodology, Public Administration

The University of Delaware (UD) (<http://www.udel.edu/>) invites applications from talented scholars pursuing interesting questions related to disasters, hazards, and crisis. We are looking to fill multiple tenure-track/tenured positions in Disaster Science at the Assistant or Associate Professor level beginning September 1, 2019. This search is the first stage of an exciting university-wide, interdisciplinary cluster recruitment effort to expand research in disaster science, a major emphasis of the University, with hiring planned over the next two years. In this first stage, we are seeking exceptional candidates with interdisciplinary interests in a wide range of topics broadly construed as social perspectives on risk, hazards and disasters.

Faculty will have a tenure-track/tenured home in a department at the University of Delaware and join, as core faculty, the world-renowned Disaster Research Center (DRC) (www.drc.udel.edu), the world's oldest center focused on the social science and management aspects of disaster. UD has several environment- and disaster-oriented programs and research streams in its various colleges. DRC houses the flagship institution of the William A. Anderson Fund (BAF), an initiative devoted to increasing the participation of students from historically underrepresented populations in disaster science and practice.

QUALIFICATIONS

We seek scholars who are committed to interdisciplinary research and teaching, diversity and inclusion, and community engagement. Candidates should show experience or potential for securing external funding. The candidate should hold an earned Ph.D. or other relevant doctoral degree at the time of appointment. We will consider a broad range of research foci related to social perspectives on risk, hazards, and disasters. Possible, but not exclusive, areas of interest might include: individual and household preparedness for disaster; social determinants of disaster health outcomes and recovery; food security and connection of food delivery to health outcomes in disaster-affected settings; institutional systems for service delivery, such as for disaster behavioral health; functional and access needs, including elder populations and others requiring medical-support care in hospitals and nursing homes; environmental and social justice; risk perception/communication; environmental planning; hazard mitigation; and decision-making and social change. Researchers with strong methodological skills (one or more approaches, such as statistics, spatial analysis, social network analysis, GIS, participatory action research, qualitative methods, or mixed methods) are encouraged to apply.

APPLICATION PROCESS

Applicants should submit: (1) a current curriculum vita; (2) a cover letter summarizing their interest, qualifications, likely department(s) they wish to be considered for their tenure/tenure-track home, and a description of progress on the dissertation, if not yet complete; (3) a research statement; (4) a teaching statement; (5) contact information for three references (references will not be contacted prior to notifying the candidate). Candidates should ensure that their materials address the qualifications stated above. Review of applications will begin on October 1, 2018 and will continue until the positions are filled. This institution is using Interfolio's Faculty Search to conduct this search. Those interested should apply through <http://www.udel.edu/faculty-staff/human-resources/careers/faculty-jobs/>.

Please direct questions, but not application materials, to Tricia Wachendorf or James Kendra, Search Committee Co-Chairs (twachten@udel.edu or jmkendra@udel.edu).

Located in Newark, Delaware, within 2 hours of New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, and Washington, D.C., UD is a Land Grant, Sea Grant, Space Grant, and Carnegie Research University (highest research activity; and a Carnegie public engagement designation), with external funding exceeding $200 million. A state-assisted, privately governed institution, the University enrolls approximately 19,000 undergraduates and 4,000 graduate students

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: 10/1/2018

Date Posted: 9/4/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4761

Texas A&M University

Rank: Assistant Professor

The Department of Political Science at Texas A&M University is recruiting for two tenure-track (Assistant Professor) positions that are open with respect to subfield. We welcome applications from clusters of scholars who would find it attractive to join our faculty together. Successful candidates will be expected to carry out a vigorous program of research and actively contribute to undergraduate and graduate teaching. Strong research and teaching interests that cut across traditional subfields of political science would be highly valued. Ph.D. required. The starting date for these positions is Fall 2019.

The department offers Ph.D., MA, BA, and BS degrees and has 34 tenured/tenure track faculty members, 50 graduate students, and approximately 1000 undergraduate majors. Further information about the department is available at <http://pols.tamu.edu>. Texas A&M is a research-intensive flagship university with more than 60,000 students including 10,000 graduate students making it the sixth largest university in the United States. The student body includes 26% African American, Hispanic, Asian or Pacific Islander, and American Indian or Alaskan Native students, as well as approximately 5,000 international students from 130 countries. We seek candidates who can teach effectively in a diverse and global classroom. Texas A&M ranks among the top universities nationally in total research expenditures (with more than $800 million dollars per year). Texas A&M University is an equal opportunity, affirmative action employer that is deeply committed to enhancing the diversity and excellence of its faculty and is responsive to the needs of dual-career couples.

Applicants should apply through Workday as instructed below. Applicants should submit the following material online through workday using the links below: a letter of interest (referencing research agenda and teaching interests), a curriculum vitae, graduate school transcripts, any available teaching evaluations, and a writing sample. Applicants should also have three letters of reference submitted electronically to

Professor William Clark, Head, Department of Political Science at poliscijobs@tamu.edu. Salary is competitive and will be commensurate with qualifications and experience. Our review of applications will begin on October 3, 2018 and will continue until the positions are filled. The Texas A&M System is an Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action/Veterans/Disability Employer committed to diversity.

EXTERNAL APPLICANTS If you currently are NOT a Texas A&M System employee please click below to go to our external career site to view our jobs. Go to External Career Site – https://tamus.wd1.myworkdayjobs.com/en-US/TAMU_External/job/College-Station-TAMU/Assistant-Professor_R-011658

INTERNAL APPLICANTS If you currently ARE a Texas A&M System employee: Go to Internal Career Site – <https://jobs.tamu.edu/internal-applicants/>

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 9/3/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4759

University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill

Rank: Assistant Professor of Political Methodology

Political Methodology. The Department of Political Science at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill invites applications for a tenure-track position at the rank of Assistant Professor, beginning July 1, 2019. We seek a scholar doing innovative research in any area of quantitative political methodology, broadly defined. We welcome applications from scholars whose work crosses traditional subfield or disciplinary boundaries. Please submit a letter of application describing research and teaching interests, curriculum vitae, a sample of current research, and four letters of recommendation. Review of applications will begin October 15, 2018, and will continue until the position is filled. Applications from women and minorities are particularly welcome. The University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill is an equal opportunity employer that welcomes all to apply, including protected veterans and individuals with disabilities. To apply for the position, please follow this link: <http://unc.peopleadmin.com/postings/147151>. Please attach your cover letter, curriculum vitae, and sample of current research on this site. At the time of application, candidates will be required to identify the names, titles, and email addresses of professional references (four are required). References must be at level of tenure-track assistant professor or higher. Recommenders identified by the applicant will be contacted via email with instructions for uploading their letters of support. Alternatively, applicants may list Interfolio as a reference and the application system will solicit recommendations directly from Interfolio. Applicants may also list the email of a Graduate Coordinator who will upload their references instead of the referring faculty. Departmental contact person is Shannon Eubanks; the department address is Department of Political Science, University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, CB# 3265, Chapel Hill, NC 27599-3265; and the web address is <http://politicalscience.unc.edu>.

Start Date: Summer 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 8/29/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4730

New York University Abu Dhabi

Rank: Computational Social Science Professor - Open Rank

The Social Science Division at New York University Abu Dhabi (NYUAD) is inviting applications for full time faculty positions in Computational Social Sciences, from senior scholars – at the rank of associate and full professors - and exceptional early career scholars.

We encourage applications from all excellent candidates in any field answering social-science questions, as long as they have a strong focus on (big) data collection and visualization; data management and analysis techniques such as machine learning, text analysis, network science/analysis, spatial data analysis/GIS.

All candidates should demonstrate important contributions to their area of research as evidenced e.g. by significant publications in top international academic journals and a history of acquiring third party funding, as well as the ability to mentor and collaborate with a group of junior social scientists.

NYUAD expects successful candidates to continue to publish in high quality internationally refereed journals. The position features a standard teaching load of three courses per year. The terms of employment are very competitive and include generous start-up and on-going research funds, as well as housing subsidies and educational subsidies for children. Faculty may also spend an occasional semester at NYU New York and other sites of the Global Network, engaging in both research and teaching activities.

The review of applications will occur on a rolling basis. Shortlisted candidates will be invited for campus visits to NYU Abu Dhabi throughout the 18/19 Academic Year. We anticipate that successful candidates will start employment on August 15, 2019, subject to final budget approval.

Applicants should submit a curriculum vitae, a statement of research plans, a statement of teaching interests and three representative publications. To complete the online process, early career applicants will be prompted to enter the names and email addresses of at least three referees. Each referee will be contacted to upload their reference letter. Senior candidates should provide a list of three references in PDF format.

You may start an application here: <https://apply.interfolio.com/52984>

If you have any questions, please e-mail nyuad.socialscience@nyu.edu.

You may find further information about our group at: <https://nyuad.nyu.edu/en/academics/divisions/social-science/faculty.html>

About NYUAD

New York University has established itself as a Global Network University. The network has three foundational degree-granting campuses: New York, Abu Dhabi, and Shanghai, complemented by a network of eleven research and study-away sites across five continents. Our students are drawn from around the world and surpass all traditional recruitment benchmarks, both US and global. Our goal is to develop a cohort of international students attuned to and educated for an inclusive global society. Students and Faculty will circulate within the global network in pursuit of common research interests and the promotion of cross-cultural and interdisciplinary solutions for problems both local and global.

Since its inception NYU Abu Dhabi has recruited a cohort of faculty who are distinguished in their research and teaching. NYU Abu Dhabi's highly selective liberal arts enterprise is complemented by an institute for advanced research, sponsoring cutting-edge projects across the Arts, Humanities, Social Sciences, Sciences, and Engineering. The Institute will invest significant funds in creating a hub for research related to social, economic, and political development in the broader region; applications from candidates with an ambition to contribute to this agenda are especially welcome.

UAE Nationals are encouraged to apply.

Qualifications

This position is not located in the United States. You must be willing to relocate to Abu Dhabi, United Arab Emirates.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 8/15/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4606

New York University Abu Dhabi

Rank: Social Neuroscience Professor - Open Rank

The Division of Social Science at NYUAD is seeking to hire a faculty member in the area of Social Neuroscience. This tenure/tenure-track appointment is open rank. Although the specific area of research is open, the focus should be human research explicitly linked to social processes. Individuals from all academic backgrounds are encouraged to apply (e.g., biology, psychology, economics, political science or sociology). Preference will be given to applicants who use fMRI, EEG, or process tracing methods, whose research reflects the interdisciplinary nature of social science and who can forge linkages to other areas of study both within the Division (i.e., with economists, political scientists and sociologists) and outside the Division.

The facilities available include a state-of-the-art brain-imaging center housing a Siemens Prisma 3T MRI, MEG, EEG, eye tracking and behavioral testing facilities. The successful candidates will also have access to state of the art core facilities that include High Performance Computing facilities with more than 6,400 computing cores and a peak performance of 70 TFLOPS.

NYUAD expects successful candidates to publish in high quality internationally refereed journals. The terms of employment are very competitive and include generous start-up and on-going research funds, as well as housing subsidies and educational subsidies for children. Faculty may also spend an occasional semester at NYU New York and other sites of the global network, engaging in both research and teaching activities.

Applicants should submit a curriculum vitae, a statement of research plans, a statement of teaching interests and three representative publications. To complete the online process, early career applicants will be prompted to enter the names and email addresses of at least three referees. Each referee will be contacted to upload their reference letter. Senior candidates should provide a list of three references in PDF format. We will begin consideration of applications October 1st, although review of applications will continue until the position is filled.

You can start an application here: <https://apply.interfolio.com/52983>

You may find further information about our group at: <https://nyuad.nyu.edu/en/academics/divisions/social-science/faculty.html>

About NYUAD

New York University has established itself as a Global Network University. The network has three foundational degree-granting campuses: New York, Abu Dhabi, and Shanghai, complemented by a network of eleven research and study-away sites across five continents. Our students are drawn from around the world and surpass all traditional recruitment benchmarks, both US and global. Our goal is to develop a cohort of international students attuned to and educated for an inclusive global society. Students and Faculty will circulate within the global network in pursuit of common research interests and the promotion of cross-cultural and interdisciplinary solutions for problems both local and global.

Since its inception, NYU Abu Dhabi has recruited a cohort of faculty who are distinguished in their research and teaching. NYU Abu Dhabi's highly selective liberal arts enterprise is complemented by an institute for advanced research, sponsoring cutting-edge projects across the Arts, Humanities, Social Sciences, Sciences, and Engineering. The Institute will invest significant funds in creating a hub for research related to social, economic, and political development in the broader region; applications from candidates with an ambition to contribute to this agenda are especially welcome.

UAE Nationals are encouraged to apply.

Qualifications

This position is not located in the United States. You must be willing to relocate to Abu Dhabi, United Arab Emirates.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 8/15/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4603

New York University Abu Dhabi

Rank: Social Neuroscience Professor - Open Rank

The Division of Social Science at NYUAD is seeking to hire a faculty member in the area of Social Neuroscience. This tenure/tenure-track appointment is open rank. Although the specific area of research is open, the focus should be human research explicitly linked to social processes. Individuals from all academic backgrounds are encouraged to apply (e.g., biology, psychology, economics, political science or sociology). Preference will be given to applicants who use fMRI, EEG, or process tracing methods, whose research reflects the interdisciplinary nature of social science and who can forge linkages to other areas of study both within the Division (i.e., with economists, political scientists and sociologists) and outside the Division.

The facilities available include a state-of-the-art brain-imaging center housing a Siemens Prisma 3T MRI, MEG, EEG, eye tracking and behavioral testing facilities. The successful candidates will also have access to state of the art core facilities that include High Performance Computing facilities with more than 6,400 computing cores and a peak performance of 70 TFLOPS.

NYUAD expects successful candidates to publish in high quality internationally refereed journals. The terms of employment are very competitive and include generous start-up and on-going research funds, as well as housing subsidies and educational subsidies for children. Faculty may also spend an occasional semester at NYU New York and other sites of the global network, engaging in both research and teaching activities.

Applicants should submit a curriculum vitae, a statement of research plans, a statement of teaching interests and three representative publications. To complete the online process, early career applicants will be prompted to enter the names and email addresses of at least three referees. Each referee will be contacted to upload their reference letter. Senior candidates should provide a list of three references in PDF format. We will begin consideration of applications October 1st, although review of applications will continue until the position is filled.

You can start an application here: <https://apply.interfolio.com/52983>

You may find further information about our group at: <https://nyuad.nyu.edu/en/academics/divisions/social-science/faculty.html>

About NYUAD

New York University has established itself as a Global Network University. The network has three foundational degree-granting campuses: New York, Abu Dhabi, and Shanghai, complemented by a network of eleven research and study-away sites across five continents. Our students are drawn from around the world and surpass all traditional recruitment benchmarks, both US and global. Our goal is to develop a cohort of international students attuned to and educated for an inclusive global society. Students and Faculty will circulate within the global network in pursuit of common research interests and the promotion of cross-cultural and interdisciplinary solutions for problems both local and global.

Since its inception, NYU Abu Dhabi has recruited a cohort of faculty who are distinguished in their research and teaching. NYU Abu Dhabi's highly selective liberal arts enterprise is complemented by an institute for advanced research, sponsoring cutting-edge projects across the Arts, Humanities, Social Sciences, Sciences, and Engineering. The Institute will invest significant funds in creating a hub for research related to social, economic, and political development in the broader region; applications from candidates with an ambition to contribute to this agenda are especially welcome.

UAE Nationals are encouraged to apply.

Qualifications

This position is not located in the United States. You must be willing to relocate to Abu Dhabi, United Arab Emirates.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 8/15/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4604

New York University Abu Dhabi

Rank: Social Science and Genetics Professor - Open Rank

The Social Science Division at New York University Abu Dhabi (NYUAD) invites applications for full time faculty positions in New York University Abu Dhabi from scholars working at the intersection of genetics and social sciences. This tenure/tenure-track appointment is open rank. We will consider applicants from across social science or social science related disciplines (e.g. sociology, economics, political science, psychology, biological anthropology, psychology and human genetics) with active and cutting-edge research agendas that include, but are not limited to, population genetics and social identity, genetics and human behaviour, critical and historical approaches to the use of genetics in social science and public policy, and bioethics in relation to human genetics.

Successful candidates will benefit from resources at NYUAD that support work at the intersection of genetics and the social sciences by providing access to cohorts, populations, collaborations and research programs. These include the Center for Genomics and Systems Biology (<http://as.nyu.edu/biology/research/gsb/cgsb.html>), the Public Health Research Center (<https://nyuad.nyu.edu/en/research/centers-labs-and-projects/public-health-research-center.html>), and seminars and colloquia that bring together faculty from biology and the social sciences.

NYUAD expects successful candidates to publish in high quality internationally refereed journals or books. The terms of employment are very competitive and include generous start-up and on-going research funds, as well as housing subsidies and educational subsidies for children. Faculty may also spend an occasional semester at NYU New York and other sites of the global network, engaging in both research and teaching activities.

The review of applications will begin on October 15 and continue until the position is filled. Shortlisted candidates will be invited for campus visits to NYU Abu Dhabi throughout the 18/19 Academic Year. We anticipate that successful candidates will start employment on August 15, 2019, subject to final budget approval.

To ensure full consideration by the search committee, applicants should submit a curriculum vitae, a statement of research plans, a statement of teaching interests and three representative publications. To complete the online process, early career applicants will be prompted to enter the names and email addresses of at least three referees. Each referee will be contacted to upload their reference letter. Senior candidates should provide a list of three references in PDF format. If you have any questions, please e-mail nyuad.socialscience@nyu.edu.

You may start an application here: <https://apply.interfolio.com/52985>

You may find further information about our group at: <https://nyuad.nyu.edu/en/academics/divisions/social-science/faculty.html>

About NYUAD

New York University has established itself as a Global Network University. The network has three foundational degree-granting campuses: New York, Abu Dhabi, and Shanghai, complemented by a network of eleven research and study-away sites across five continents. Our students are drawn from around the world and surpass all traditional recruitment benchmarks, both US and global. Our goal is to develop a cohort of international students attuned to and educated for an inclusive global society. Students and Faculty will circulate within the global network in pursuit of common research interests and the promotion of cross-cultural and interdisciplinary solutions for problems both local and global.

Since its inception NYU Abu Dhabi has recruited a cohort of faculty who are distinguished in their research and teaching. NYU Abu Dhabi's highly selective liberal arts enterprise is complemented by an institute for advanced research, sponsoring cutting-edge projects across the Arts, Humanities, Social Sciences, Sciences, and Engineering. The Institute will invest significant funds in creating a hub for research related to social, economic, and political development in the broader region; applications from candidates with an ambition to contribute to this agenda are especially welcome.

UAE Nationals are encouraged to apply.

Qualifications

This position is not located in the United States. You must be willing to relocate to Abu Dhabi, United Arab Emirates.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 8/15/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4605

University of Southern California

Rank: Assistant Professor of International Relations (Tenure Track)

Assistant Professor of International Relations (Tenure Track)

The School of International Relations at the University of Southern California in Los Angeles, California seeks to hire a tenure-track assistant professor to begin in August 2019. We are especially interested in candidates with training in advanced methods, such as formal modeling. The successful candidate should also have the interest and capacity to teach PhD level methods courses. The successful applicant will teach at both the graduate and undergraduate levels depending on substantive or regional specialization. The Ph.D. is required by the time of appointment.

The School of International Relations is a department in USC Dornsife College of Letters, Arts and Sciences. It offers the B.A. in International Relations and the Ph.D. in Political Science and International Relations jointly with the Department of Political Science. Please see www.usc.edu/sir and www.usc.edu/poir for more information.

The applicant should send a CV, a sample research paper, a statement of research interests, evidence of teaching effectiveness, three letters of recommendation, and official graduate transcripts to sirsearch@dornsife.usc.edu, or

SIR Junior Search Committee
USC School of International Relations
3518 Trousdale Parkway, VKC 330
Los Angeles, CA 90089-0043

In order to be considered for this position, applicants are also required to submit an electronic USC application; follow this job link or paste in a browser: <https://usccareers.usc.edu/job/los-angeles/assistant-professor-of-international-relations/1209/8973703>.

Review of applications will begin starting September 15, but applications will be accepted until the position is filled.

USC is an equal opportunity, affirmative action employer. All qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to race, color, religion, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, national origin, protected veteran status, disability, or any other characteristic protected by law or USC policy. USC will consider for employment all qualified applicants with criminal histories in a manner consistent with the requirements of the Los Angeles Fair Chance Initiative for Hiring ordinance.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 8/13/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4575

University of Toronto

Rank: Indigenous Politics at the rank of Assistant Professor

The Department of Political Science at the University of Toronto invites applications for a tenure stream position in Indigenous Politics, at the rank of Assistant Professor. This position will be held on the St. George campus and will begin on July 1, 2019.

Candidates must have a PhD or be near completing a PhD in Political Science or a related social sciences or humanities discipline, with a focus on Indigenous politics, and with demonstrated excellence in teaching, research, and Indigenous community engagement. We are seeking a scholar with a strong record in Indigenous research methodologies and ethical engagement and collaboration with Indigenous communities, organizations, and institutions, whose work focuses on Indigenous feminist research, Indigenous governance and practices, related policies, and/or colonialism and decolonization. Long term ethical engagement with Indigenous communities, organizations, and institutions, and competence to instruct and engage in research from an Indigenous perspective, using Indigenous methodologies, knowledge systems, and epistemologies is required. Preference will be given to Indigenous Peoples of North America or Peoples of Turtle Island, including those who identify as First Nations (status, non-status, treaty or non-treaty), Metis, Inuit, Alaskan Native, Native American, and Native Hawaiian Peoples.

The Department of Political Science is a leading research-intensive department with large undergraduate and graduate programs. Responsibilities of the position include teaching undergraduate and graduate courses (specific assignments to be negotiated), regular participation in departmental and university activities, maintaining a productive research agenda, supervising students at the undergraduate, MA and PhD levels, and student mentoring.

Excellence in research should be demonstrated through publications in high quality field relevant peer reviewed journals or forthcoming high quality publications, awards and accolades, presentations at significant conferences, and strong endorsements by referees of high standing, including a letter of support commenting on Indigenous community engagement. Excellence in teaching should be demonstrated by the teaching dossier outlining experience and accomplishments, the teaching statement, demonstrated knowledge and experience in Indigenous-based teaching methods, and strong letters of reference. The successful candidate will play an important role in growing and shaping the Political Science department's commitment to Indigenous Studies in the next few years.

Salary will be commensurate with qualifications and experience.

Established in 1827, the University of Toronto is Canada's largest and most research-intensive university and the only Canadian university to be named in the top 25 in the Times Higher Education World University Rankings. Located in and around Toronto, one of the world's most diverse cities, the University of Toronto's vibrant academic life is enhanced by the cultural diversity in its community. In response to the Final Report of the Canadian Truth and Reconciliation Commission, U of T established a TRC Steering Committee to guide the University's response to the 94 Calls to Action. The University recently established an office of Indigenous Initiatives that works in close collaboration with the Centre for Indigenous Studies, First Nations House and other Indigenous facets of the University of Toronto (such as Indigenous Medical Education, Waakebiness-Bryce, and the Indigenous Education Network) to motivate initiatives designed to recruit and retain Indigenous students. This office supports the intellectual and communal life of Indigenous students and scholars on campus, including Indigenous Staff and Faculty Gatherings, an Elders Symposium, organizing and hosting Indigenous Education Week, and various conference initiatives (such as sending individuals to the World Indigenous Peoples Conference on Education (WIPCE) and hosting the Native American and Indigenous Studies Association (NAISA) meetings in 2020). The office includes a large staff and Faculty advisory and collaboration committee. The University has also earmarked funding to host Indigenous scholars and Distinguished Visiting Faculty Fellows. This work complements a major recruitment drive to hire Indigenous faculty across the University.

All qualified candidates are invited to apply by clicking on the link below. Applications should include a cover letter, curriculum vitae, writing sample, teaching dossier (including a statement of teaching philosophy), and a statement outlining current and future research interests. Candidates must also arrange to have three confidential academic reference letters signed and on letterhead sent directly to the Chair of the Political Science department, Antoinette Handley, via email to chair.polisci@utoronto.ca. Candidates should also arrange to have a letter of support commenting on their Indigenous community engagement sent to the same address. All application materials must be submitted through the University of Toronto's online application system by the closing date. Please combine attachments into one or two files in PDF or MS Word format. Submission guidelines can be found at: <http://uoft.me/how-to-apply>.

The closing date for applications is October 15, 2018. If you have questions about this position, please contact Professor Antoinette Handley at chair.polisci@utoronto.ca.

The University of Toronto is strongly committed to diversity within its community and especially welcomes applications from racialized persons / persons of colour, women, Indigenous People of North America, persons with disabilities, LGBTQ persons, and others who may contribute to the further diversification of ideas.

As part of your application, you will be asked to complete a brief Diversity Survey. This survey is voluntary. Any information directly related to you is confidential and cannot be accessed by search committees or human resources staff. Results will be aggregated for institutional planning purposes. For more information, please see <http://uoft.me/UP>.

All qualified candidates are encouraged to apply; however, Canadians and permanent residents will be given priority.

Start Date: Summer 2019

Application Deadline: 10/15/2018

Date Posted: 8/13/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4571

University of Toronto

Rank: Indigenous Politics at the rank of Associate Professor or Professor

The Department of Political Science at the University of Toronto invites applications for a tenure stream position in Indigenous Politics, at the rank of Associate Professor or Professor. This position will be held on the St. George campus and will begin on July 1, 2019.

Candidates must have a PhD in Political Science or a related social sciences or humanities discipline, with a focus on Indigenous politics, and with demonstrated excellence in teaching, research, and Indigenous community engagement. We are seeking a scholar with a strong record in Indigenous research methodologies and ethical engagement and collaboration with Indigenous communities, organizations, and institutions, whose work focuses on Indigenous feminist research, Indigenous governance and practices, related policies, and/or colonialism and decolonization. Long term ethical engagement with Indigenous communities, organizations, and institutions, and competence to instruct and engage in research from an Indigenous perspective, using Indigenous methodologies, knowledge systems, and epistemologies is required. Preference will be given to Indigenous Peoples of North America or Peoples of Turtle Island, including those who identify as First Nations (status, non-status, treaty or non-treaty), Metis, Inuit, Alaskan Native, Native American, and Native Hawaiian Peoples.

The Department of Political Science is a leading research-intensive department with large undergraduate and graduate programs. Responsibilities of the position include teaching undergraduate and graduate courses (specific assignments to be negotiated), regular participation in departmental and university activities, maintaining a productive research agenda, supervising students at the undergraduate, MA and PhD levels, and student mentoring.

Excellence in research should be evidenced through a demonstrated ability to attract external research funding; a record of sustained impactful publications in top-ranked field relevant peer reviewed academic journals; presentations at significant conferences; distinguished awards and accolades; and strong endorsements by referees of high standing, including a letter of support commenting on Indigenous community engagement. Excellence in teaching should be demonstrated by the teaching dossier outlining experience and accomplishments, the teaching statement, demonstrated knowledge and experience in Indigenous-based teaching methods, and strong letters of reference. The successful candidate will play an important role in growing and shaping the Political Science department's commitment to Indigenous Studies in the next few years.

The appointment will be contingent upon a successful tenure review. Salary and rank will be commensurate with qualifications and experience.

Established in 1827, the University of Toronto is Canada's largest and most research-intensive university and the only Canadian university to be named in the top 25 in the Times Higher Education World University Rankings. Located in and around Toronto, one of the world's most diverse cities, the University of Toronto's vibrant academic life is enhanced by the cultural diversity in its community. In response to the Final Report of the Canadian Truth and Reconciliation Commission, U of T established a TRC Steering Committee to guide the University's response to the 94 Calls to Action. The University recently established an office of Indigenous Initiatives that works in close collaboration with the Centre for Indigenous Studies, First Nations House and other Indigenous facets of the University of Toronto (such as Indigenous Medical Education, Waakebiness-Bryce, and the Indigenous Education Network) to motivate initiatives designed to recruit and retain Indigenous students. This office supports the intellectual and communal life of Indigenous students and scholars on campus, including Indigenous Staff and Faculty Gatherings, an Elders Symposium, organizing and hosting Indigenous Education Week, and various conference initiatives (such as sending individuals to the World Indigenous Peoples Conference on Education (WIPCE) and hosting the Native American and Indigenous Studies Association (NAISA) meetings in 2020). The office includes a large staff and Faculty advisory and collaboration committee. The University has also earmarked funding to host Indigenous scholars and Distinguished Visiting Faculty Fellows. This work complements a major recruitment drive to hire Indigenous faculty across the University.

All qualified candidates are invited to apply by clicking on the link below. Applications should include a cover letter, curriculum vitae, writing sample, teaching dossier (including a statement of teaching philosophy), and a statement outlining current and future research interests. Candidates must also arrange to have three confidential academic reference letters signed and on letterhead sent directly to the Chair of the Political Science department, Antoinette Handley, via email to chair.polisci@utoronto.ca. Candidates should also arrange to have a letter of support commenting on their Indigenous community engagement sent to the same address. All application materials must be submitted through the University of Toronto's online application system by the closing date. Please combine attachments into one or two files in PDF or MS Word format. Submission guidelines can be found at: <http://uoft.me/how-to-apply>.

The closing date for applications is October 15, 2018. If you have questions about this position, please contact Professor Antoinette Handley at chair.polisci@utoronto.ca.

The University of Toronto is strongly committed to diversity within its community and especially welcomes applications from racialized persons / persons of colour, women, Indigenous People of North America, persons with disabilities, LGBTQ persons, and others who may contribute to the further diversification of ideas.

As part of your application, you will be asked to complete a brief Diversity Survey. This survey is voluntary. Any information directly related to you is confidential and cannot be accessed by search committees or human resources staff. Results will be aggregated for institutional planning purposes. For more information, please see <http://uoft.me/UP>.

All qualified candidates are encouraged to apply; however, Canadians and permanent residents will be given priority.

Start Date: Summer 2019

Application Deadline: 10/15/2018

Date Posted: 8/13/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4570

Dartmouth College

Rank: Assistant Professor - American Politics

Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Methodology, Public Administration

The Department of Government at Dartmouth College seeks applicants for a tenure-track position in American politics at the rank of assistant professor. The position is open with respect to substantive research focus and methodological approach. The position requires excellence in research and classroom teaching. We are especially interested in applicants with a record of successful teaching and mentoring of students from all backgrounds (including first-generation college students, low-income students, racial and ethnic minorities, women, LGBTQ, etc.). Applicants are encouraged to state in their cover letter how they will enhance the diversity of offerings and educational experiences in the department.

Applicants must have a Ph.D. or be ABD with PhD expected by the time of appointment. Applicants should submit a letter of interest, curriculum vitae, writing sample, and letters of recommendation from at least three references. Application materials should be submitted electronically at: <http://apply.interfolio.com/53055>. The review of applications will begin on September 17, 2018 and will continue until the position is filled. Questions may be sent to: michael.herron@dartmouth.edu

Dartmouth College is an equal opportunity/affirmative action employer with a strong commitment to diversity and inclusion. We prohibit discrimination on the basis of race, color, religion, sex, age, national origin, sexual orientation, gender identity or expression, disability, veteran status, marital status, or any other legally protected status. Applications by members of all underrepresented groups are encouraged.

Start Date: Spring 2019

Application Deadline: 9/17/2018

Date Posted: 8/7/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4512

Saint Mary's College

Rank: Visiting Assistant Professor — Research Methods and American Politics

SAINT MARY'S COLLEGE

Visiting Assistant Professor – Political Science

The Program in Political Science invites applications for a Visiting Assistant Professor beginning August 2019. The position is for one year; there is a possibility of conversion to a tenure-track position if circumstances and funding permit. The Department seeks a scholar in Research Methods and American Politics who has a strong commitment to teaching in an undergraduate liberal arts environment. The candidate's primary responsibility will be to teach a 3-3 load, which in addition to the Research Methods course required of all Political Science majors may include such courses as Public Opinion, Political Parties and Interest Groups, and Gender and Politics. Ability to teach Foreign Policy and/or Security Studies is a plus. A strong commitment to diversity and inclusion, undergraduate education of women, liberal arts education, and service to the department and the College is expected.

PhD required. ABD considered if PhD to be completed within one year. Teaching experience required. Starting date is August 19, 2019. Classes begin on August 26, 2019.

Please send the following to Dr. Amy Cavender, chair, at posc+search@saintmarys.edu (PDF format preferred):

Letter of application
Curriculum vitae
Statement of teaching philosophy/research activity
Statement on diversity
Evidence of teaching excellence
Three letters of reference

Review of applications will begin October 15, 2018 and continue until the position is filled. Applicants invited to progress to the next round will also be asked to provide all official transcripts of undergraduate and graduate work.

Established in 1844, Saint Mary's College, the nation's premier Catholic Women's college, was founded and is sponsored by the Sisters of the Holy Cross. As a Catholic institution of higher learning, Saint Mary's College has a mission-driven responsibility to be diverse, inclusive, and equitable. The College encourages candidates from underrepresented backgrounds to apply. (See our full value statement on diversity and inclusion: <https://www.saintmarys.edu/about/president/presidents-council-inclusivity-multicultural-diversity>.) Saint Mary's College is a liberal arts college for women with a strong commitment to education of undergraduate women and graduate women and men. All faith traditions are welcome among our administrators, faculty, staff, and students.

Saint Mary's College is an Equal Opportunity Employer. In keeping with the College's mission, Saint Mary's is committed to increasing its diversity at all levels — students, faculty, and staff — and seeks applications from candidates who share this commitment.

Start Date: Fall 2019
Application Deadline: 10/15/2018
Date Posted: 8/1/2018
Salary: Any
eJobs ID: 4471

University of California, San Diego

Rank: Postdoctoral Fellow

Subfield(s): International Relations, Methodology, Other

The Center for Peace and Security Studies (cPASS - <http://cpass.ucsd.edu/>) has two postdoctoral positions available for the 2018-2019 academic year. Each position is also renewable at the discretion of the cPASS Director. Research at cPASS targets new and emerging security issues such as emerging modes of conflict and new modes of deterrence. cPASS is devoted to applying innovative thinking and diverse methodologies (experiments, deductive modeling, statistical analysis, case studies, archival research and "big data") to traditional security issues made more dynamic and difficult by the increased complexity of interstate competition and conflict. We emphasize a team-based, multi-method approach to research that combines qualitative and quantitative perspectives.

Postdocs will work closely with the Center Director in conducting cPASS research activities such as data collection, analysis, preparing project reports and manuscripts for peer-reviewed journals, preparing and delivering oral presentations to diverse audiences, overseeing qualitative research or supervising project labs, and mentoring graduate and undergraduate research activities.

Applicants are required to have a PhD in hand at the time of appointment. A degree in Political Science, History, International Relations, Economics, or allied field is anticipated but other specialties may be appropriate, depending on an applicant's interests and skills. Candidates will be assessed based on their expertise and knowledge of different key aspects of security studies and their ability to contribute to a diversified, integrated research team.

The initial period of appointment will be for 12 months from the date of appointment. Renewal is possible with the approval of the Center Director. Some flexibility exists as to start date, but candidates should expect to be in residence in San Diego throughout the appointment. Salary will be commensurate with qualifications and experience.

Interested applicants should provide a letter describing their qualifications and the reasons for interest in the position. A printed copy of a curriculum vitae is also required. Additional materials may be requested after initial review. Please send all materials to the following email address (jml110@ucsd.edu). Please ensure to include the phrase "cPASS Postdoc Fellow" in the subject heading. Review of applications will be ongoing.

Start Date: Fall 2018
Application Deadline: Open until Filled
Date Posted: 4/2/2018
Salary: Competitive
eJobs ID: 4173

Virginia Commonwealth University

Rank: ASSISTANT PROFESSOR - AMERICAN POLITICS (CONGRESS)/POLITICAL THEORY

Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Political Theory, Methodology

Specializations: Congress, Ethnic & Feminist Theory, Research Methods

Assistant Professor: (Tenure-Eligible, Political Science)

The Department of Political Science at Virginia Commonwealth University is seeking applications for a tenure eligible faculty position at the Assistant Professor rank to begin August 2018 to support the Department's teaching and research mission in the area of American Politics with expertise in American Institutions (especially, Congress), and Contemporary Political Theory. In addition to subfield expertise in Congress, specialization(s) in gender, race, sexuality, class, and/or ethnicity politics is preferred. The successful candidate will also be able to teach our undergraduate and graduate level research methods.

RESEARCH

The faculty member will be central to the political science department's concentrations in U.S. Government, Civil and Human Rights, Politics and Government, Policy and Administration, Political Theory & Methodology, among others. We are seeking active researchers who study issues related to the U.S. Congress and/or American Political Theory.

TEACHING

In addition to the faculty member's research responsibilities, the teaching responsibilities will include courses at the undergraduate level in her/his areas of specialization, as well as providing support to the Department's core curriculum and general education requirements, including Introduction to American Politics, Introduction to Political Theory, and Senior Seminar, a 400-level Capstone course. Specifically, this candidate will teach courses in legislative politics, advanced research methods, and political theory. The ability to teach courses in Contemporary Political Theory (e.g., Black Political Thought, Feminist Theory, Queer Political Theory) is preferred, but not required. This position also includes an expectation of service to the Department.

SERVICE

The faculty member will serve on departmental, College, and/or University committees as necessary, as well as in a professional capacity in their field, e.g., reviewer, conference organizer, etc.

REQUIRED QUALIFICATIONS

- PhD in political science or closely related field at the time of employment
- Demonstrated expertise and potential for publication in the faculty area of research
- Demonstrated experience working in and fostering a diverse faculty, staff, and student environment or commitment to do so as a faculty member at VCU

REQUIRED DOCUMENTS

1. Cover Letter
2. Three Letters of Recommendation
3. CV/Resume
4. Statement of Teaching Interests
5. Statement of Research Interests
6. Teaching Evaluations (Evidence of Teaching Effectiveness)
7. Graduate Transcript (unofficial is accepted)
8. Writing Sample
9. Statement on Commitment to Diversity and Inclusion

Only electronic applications will be accepted. Please apply online at www.vcujobs.com. Please submit the required documents with your online application. Letters of Reference should be sent to the search committee under separate cover directly via the automated email system at the application site. Questions should be directed to Dr. Alexandra Reckendorf at areckendorf@vcu.edu. Application deadline is December 15, 2017. Start date will be August 16, 2018.

Start Date: Fall 2018

Application Deadline: 12/15/2017

Date Posted: 11/1/2017

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 3725

NON-ACADEMIC

OTHER

University of Toronto

Rank: Associate Professor, Migration Studies

Associate Professor – Tenure Stream

Migration Studies

Munk School of Global Affairs and Public Policy, University of Toronto

Closing Date: December 6, 2018

The Munk School of Global Affairs and Public Policy in the Faculty of Arts and Science at the University of Toronto invites applications for a full-time tenure-stream appointment in the area of Migration

Studies. The appointment will be at the rank of Associate Professor and will commence on July 1, 2019, or shortly thereafter. The appointment is contingent upon a successful tenure review. The successful candidate will also be eligible to be appointed as the newly established endowed Munk Chair in Immigration.

Applicants must have earned a PhD in any relevant field, including but not limited to: migration studies, political science, sociology, economics, law, anthropology, geography, or contemporary history. The School seeks a scholar with a strong background in migration studies. We are particularly interested in candidates who attend to issues of public policy in their teaching and research. Regional specialization is open, as is disciplinary background. Preference will be given to candidates whose research focuses on more than one country. A demonstrated exceptional record of excellence in research and teaching is required. We seek candidates whose research and teaching interests complement and strengthen our existing departmental strengths: <https://munkschool.utoronto.ca/>. Candidates should have an established international reputation based on a scholarly record of excellence appropriate to their career stage and will be expected to sustain and lead innovative and independent research at the highest international level and to maintain an outstanding, competitive, and externally funded research program.

Candidates must provide evidence of research excellence as demonstrated by a record of sustained high-impact contributions and publications in top-ranked and field-relevant journals, the submitted research statement, presentations at significant conferences, distinguished awards and accolades, and other noteworthy activities that contribute to the visibility and prominence of the discipline, as well as strong endorsements from referees of high standing.

Evidence of excellence in teaching will be demonstrated through teaching accomplishments, the teaching dossier submitted as part of the application including a strong teaching statement, sample course syllabi, teaching evaluations, graduate supervisions, as well as strong letters of reference. A demonstrated commitment to graduate education and mentorship are required. The successful candidate will teach full-time in the Master of Global Affairs and Master of Public Policy programs. In addition, they will be part of the Global Migration Lab: <https://munkschool.utoronto.ca/program/global-migration-lab/>. Collaboration with colleagues in disciplinary departments of the University of Toronto is encouraged and the successful candidate may apply for a non-budgetary cross-appointment to their disciplinary department.

Salary will be commensurate with qualifications and experience.

The University of Toronto is a preeminent research university and located at the center of one of North America's largest and the world's most cosmopolitan and immigration-intensive cities, and offers the opportunity to teach, conduct research and live in one of the most vibrant intellectual and cultural settings in the world. For more information about the Munk School of Global Affairs and Public Policy and our research and teaching profiles, please visit our home page at <https://munkschool.utoronto.ca/>.

All qualified candidates are invited to apply online by clicking on the link below. Applicants must submit a cover letter, a current curriculum vitae, a research statement outlining current and future research interests, a writing sample (of no more than 30 pages), and a teaching dossier to include a teaching statement, sample course syllabi, and teaching evaluations.

In addition to the online submission, applicants must also arrange for at least three referees to e-mail letters (PDF format, signed, on letterhead) directly to Professor Randall Hansen, Interim Director, Munk School of Global Affairs and Public Policy at the University of Toronto, at munkschool.director@utoronto.ca. Letters must be submitted by the closing date.

Submission guidelines can be found at <http://uoft.me/how-to-apply>. We recommend combining attached documents into one or two files in PDF/MS Word format. If you have questions about this position, please contact munkschool.director@utoronto.ca.

All application materials, including reference letters, must be received by December 6th, 2018.

The University of Toronto is strongly committed to diversity within its community and especially welcomes applications from racialized persons / persons of colour, women, Indigenous / Aboriginal People of North America, persons with disabilities, LGBTQ persons, and others who may contribute to the further diversification of ideas.

As part of your application, you will be asked to complete a brief Diversity Survey. This survey is voluntary. Any information directly related to you is confidential and cannot be accessed by search committees or human resources staff. Results will be aggregated for institutional planning purposes. For more information, please see <http://uoft.me/UP>.

All qualified candidates are encouraged to apply; however, Canadians and permanent residents will be given priority.

All qualified candidates are invited to apply online

Start Date: Summer 2019

Application Deadline: 12/6/2018

Date Posted: 10/31/2018

Salary: Negotiable

eJobs ID: 5086

The Ohio State University

Rank: Saul and Sonia Schottenstein Chair in Israel Studies

Department: Melton Center for Jewish Studies

Position: The Saul and Sonia Schottenstein Chair in Israel Studies

Rank: Open

Description: The Melton Center for Jewish Studies at The Ohio State University invites applications for the Saul and Sonia Schottenstein Chair in Israel Studies. Candidates may be of any rank. Specialization is open and may include, but is not limited to, areas such as: History, Philosophy, Political Science, Music, English, Economics and Comparative Studies. The academic unit of appointment will be based on the candidate's area of expertise. The chair appointee will be expected to teach courses on the history of modern Zionism and Israel and provide scholarly mentoring to students in the study of modern Israel. Duties will also include the development and communication of study abroad and internship opportunities for students related to Israel and the area of Israel Studies. The successful applicant will also serve as a community and university resource for Israel Studies.

Qualifications: Specialization is open and may include, but is not limited to, areas such as: History, Philosophy, Political Science, Music, English, Economics and Comparative Studies. The academic unit of appointment will be based on the candidate's area of expertise. Qualified applicants should possess fluency in Hebrew, be knowledgeable about contemporary Israeli society and culture, and hold a Ph.D. or terminal degree in their field of expertise. Appointment is contingent on the university's verification of credentials and other information required by law and/or university policies, including but not limited to a criminal background check.

About Columbus:

The Ohio State University campus is located in Columbus, the capital city of Ohio. Columbus is the center of a rapidly growing and diverse metropolitan area with a population of over 1.5 million. The area offers a wide range of affordable housing, many cultural and recreational opportunities, excellent schools, and a strong economy based on government as well as service, transportation and technology industries. Columbus has consistently been rated as one of the Top U.S. cities for quality of life, and was selected as one of the Top 10 cities for African Americans to live, work, and play by Black Enterprise magazine. Additional information about the Columbus area is available at <http://www.columbus.org>.

Application Instructions:

Apply to Academic Jobs Online at: <https://academicjobsonline.org/ajo/jobs/12543>

A complete application consists of a cover letter, curriculum vitae, research and teaching statements, writing sample, and three letters of reference. Review of applications will begin on November 26, 2018 and will continue until the position is filled. Inquiries may be directed to Lori Fireman at fireman.2@osu.edu.

The Ohio State University is committed to establishing a culturally and intellectually diverse environment, encouraging all members of our learning community to reach their full potential. We are responsive to dual-career families and strongly promote work-life balance to support our community members through a suite of institutionalized policies. We are an NSF Advance Institution and a member of the Ohio/Western Pennsylvania/West Virginia Higher Education Recruitment Consortium (HERC).

The Ohio State University is an equal opportunity employer. All qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to race, color, religion, sex, sexual orientation or identity, national origin, disability status, or protected veteran status.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 10/30/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 5080

Colorado Mesa University

Rank: Visiting Professor of History or Political Science

Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, International Relations, Other

Distinguished scholars in History or Political Science are invited to apply for the Wayne N. Aspinall Chair at Colorado Mesa University. For a $10,000 stipend, the visiting professor will spend three weeks on the Colorado Mesa University campus from late March to mid-April 2020, teach a one credit course, give a major public lecture, and make any other invited appearances. Applications must include a vitae, a brief outline of a course proposal and a topic for the major public lecture. Submit application by January 21, 2019 to: Dr. Justin Gollob, Department of Social and Behavioral Sciences, Colorado Mesa University, 1100 North Ave., Grand Junction, CO 81501. Feel free to direct any inquiries to jgollob@coloradomesa.edu or 970 248-1279.

Start Date:

Application Deadline: 1/21/2019

Date Posted: 10/29/2018

Salary: Below $20,000

eJobs ID: 5077

University of California, Santa Barbara

Rank: Assistant Professor in Political Communication

The Department of Communication invites applications for a tenure-track faculty position in the area of political communication at the level of Assistant Professor. Candidates should have a Ph.D. in communication or a related field by the time of appointment. The appointment is expected to begin July 1, 2019. Candidates should have a strong social science background with a record of publishing innovative, empirical research.

The department is interested in candidates who examine political communication from local, international, and/or global perspectives. Areas of study might include such topics as electoral campaigns, news and public opinion, collective action and advocacy, political socialization, and digital media and politics as well as empirical analyses of global socio-political issues, such as communication and democracy; issues regarding race/ethnicity; comparative/cross-national political communication; and other problems at the intersection of our department's core areas in media, organizational, and interpersonal communication.

UCSB is ranked in the top 5 public universities in the U.S. and places great value on interdisciplinary research collaboration across campus. The University also offers several programs to support the transition of incoming faculty, including housing assistance (<http://www.housing.ucsb.edu/faculty-housing>) and various grant support mechanisms.

Applicants should submit a cover letter highlighting qualifications, a curriculum vitae, evidence of teaching effectiveness, three samples of published or completed research, and the names and contact information for three references (a link will be automatically sent to them to upload their letters to our recruiting system) to the appropriate sections of the job search website: <https://recruit.ap.ucsb.edu/apply/JPF01352>. Questions should be directed to the Search Committee Co-Chairs, Dr. Miriam Metzger (metzger@ucsb.edu) and Dr. Robin Nabi (nabi@ucsb.edu) or (805) 893-4517. This position will remain open until filled. For primary consideration, all application materials must be received by November 12, 2018. Reference letter submissions will be encouraged by this date.

The University is especially interested in candidates who can contribute to the diversity and excellence of the academic community through research, teaching, and service as appropriate for the position.

The University of California is an Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action Employer. All qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to race, color, religion, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, national origin, disability status, protected veteran status, or any other characteristic protected by law.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Date Posted: 10/26/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 5074

University of California, Riverside

Rank: Chair of Social Medicine, Population and Public Health Full Professor Tenured

Position: Chair of Social Medicine, Population and Public Health Full Professor Tenured

The University of California, Riverside (UCR) School of Medicine is seeking to hire tenured faculty member in Social Medicine, Population and Public Health at the rank of Full Professor for the position of Chair of Social Medicine, Population and Public Health Department in the Division of Clinical Sciences. We seek to hire a leader in the field of health disparities, community-based participatory research, population health, or other areas related to social sciences and social determinants of health. The UCR School of Medicine is a community-based medical school with a mission of serving the medically underserved region of Inland Southern California. UCR is the fastest growing campus in the University of California system and is committed to academic excellence and diversity within the faculty, staff, and student body. UC Riverside seeks candidates whose experience, teaching, research, and/or community service has prepared them to contribute to our commitment to diversity and excellence as UCR is a world-class research university with an exceptionally diverse student body. Its mission is explicitly linked to providing routes to educational success for underrepresented and first-generation college students. A commitment to this mission is a preferred qualification. Advancement through the faculty ranks at the University of California is through a series of structured, merit-based evaluations, occurring every 2-3 years, each of which includes substantial peer input.

The successful candidate must possess an M.D. or Ph.D. degree. The successful candidate should demonstrate notable scientific contributions, evidenced by high quality peer reviewed publications and a stellar record of sustained extramural funding. The candidate's research interest should focus on health disparities, community-based participatory research, population and public health, or areas related to social sciences and social determinants of health. The candidate should also have methodological experience with community partnered and mixed methods research. The successful candidate will also be expected to show a strong commitment to the education of medical students and residents. Finally, the candidate must demonstrate appropriate administrative experience and a proven record of academic, and administrative leadership qualities. The successful candidate will be responsible for the overall management, academic planning, budget, personnel, resource allocation and program development for Department of Social Medicine, Population and Public Health in the School of Medicine. The candidate will be expected to engage in research and seek extramural funding, and will also play a prominent role in active engagement with the community. This position will also provide leadership and direction in meeting the mission of the School of Medicine. Salary commensurate with qualifications and experience.

TO APPLY: <http://apptrkr.com/1321057>

Initial review of applications will begin on January 2, 2018, and applicants will be considered until the position is filled.

Cejka Executive search has been exclusively retained by the University of California - Riverside School of Medicine to assist in the recruitment of the Chair of the Department of Social Medicine, Population and Public Health.

The University of California is an Equal Opportunity / Affirmative Action Employer with a strong institutional commitment to the achievement of excellence and diversity among its faculty and staff. All qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to race, color, religion, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, national origin, age, disability, protected veteran status, or any other characteristic protected by law.

Start Date:

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 10/25/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 5069

Boise State University

Rank: Assistant Professor

Assistant Professor
School of Public Service
Requisition #181289

Boise State Introduction

Boise State University, powered by creativity and innovation, stands uniquely positioned in the Northwest as a metropolitan research university of distinction. Learn more about Boise State and the City of Boise at <https://go.boisestate.edu/join-our-team/>.

Boise State University's School of Public Service is dedicated to excellence in innovative teaching, cutting-edge scholarship and meaningful community outreach, serving the State of Idaho, region, nation, and global communities. The school is comprised of rich and diverse academic programs, including Criminal Justice, Political Science, and Public Policy and Administration, as well as interdisciplinary programs such as Environmental Studies, Global Studies, and Urban Studies and Community Development. The mission of the school is supported by a variety of centers and institutes that facilitate research and public engagement.

The School of Public Service seeks to hire two (2) tenure-track Assistant Professors to contribute to a new research and teaching cluster organized around the theme of "Governance and Well-being in Sustainable Communities." These new faculty members will support the growth of the interdisciplinary programs, Environmental Studies, Global Studies, and Urban Studies and Community Development within the School of Public Service, as well as the existing MA, MPA, and Ph.D. graduate programs.

Candidates' areas of focus may include the following:

- Processes of social, environmental, energy and economic systems change, including global environmental change and climate change.
- Social movements and community engagement.
- Population change, including migration and refugee resettlement.
- Risk and resilience studies.
- Smart Cities and Big Data.

Position Overview:

- 2 vacancies.

Duties and Responsibilities:

- Teach undergraduate courses in Environmental Studies, Global Studies and/or Urban Studies and Community Development.
- Opportunities to teach and contribute to the School of Public Service's graduate programs.
- Engage in academic and public service scholarship.
- Engage in professional, university and public service.

Minimum Qualifications:

- Ph.D. in a social science field. ABD candidates will be considered.

Preferred Qualifications:

- Interdisciplinary scholarship.
- Specialization in areas at the intersection of governance, well-being and/or sustainable community development.
- Experience and training in GIS and/or qualitative methods.
- May specialize in any geographic region and may work at any scale (micro, meso, or macro).

The successful candidate will possess the following knowledge, skills, and abilities:

- Interest and potential in building a strong research record in the social sciences.
- Interest and potential in producing high-quality peer-reviewed and public service scholarship.

Salary and benefits: Competitive salary, plus an excellent benefits package is available for eligible employees, for more information visit: <http://hrs.boisestate.edu/careers/benefits/>.

Required Application Materials: Please submit a cover letter indicating your interest and qualifications for this position, curriculum vita, summary of recent teaching evaluations, a written sample of your research, transcripts (unofficial are acceptable) and three letters of recommendation. Please submit application materials using the following link:

<https://boisestate.taleo.net/careersection/exfac/jobdetail.ftl?job=181289&tz=GMT-06%3A00>

Any inquiries regarding the position may be sent to Dr. Kathleen Araujo at kathleenaraujo@boisestate.edu.

Letters of recommendation may be sent by letter writers to schoolof-publicservice@boisestate.edu.

Closing Date: The deadline for applications is November 17th, 12:59 AM MST.

About Boise: <http://boisechamber.org>

About the University: <https://www.boisestate.edu/about/>

About the School: <http://sps.boisestate.edu>

Start Date:

Application Deadline: 11/17/2018

Date Posted: 10/23/2018

Salary: $50,000 - $59,999

eJobs ID: 5057

Boise State University

Rank: Assistant Professor

Assistant Professor
School of Public Service
Requisition #181289

Boise State Introduction

Boise State University, powered by creativity and innovation, stands uniquely positioned in the Northwest as a metropolitan research university of distinction. Learn more about Boise State and the City of Boise at <https://go.boisestate.edu/join-our-team/>.

Boise State University's School of Public Service is dedicated to excellence in innovative teaching, cutting-edge scholarship and meaningful community outreach, serving the State of Idaho, region, nation, and global communities. The school is comprised of rich and diverse academic programs, including Criminal Justice, Political Science, and Public Policy and Administration, as well as interdisciplinary programs such as Environmental Studies, Global Studies, and Urban Studies and Community Development. The mission of the school is supported by a variety of centers and institutes that facilitate research and public engagement.

The School of Public Service seeks to hire two (2) tenure-track Assistant Professors to contribute to a new research and teaching cluster organized around the theme of "Governance and Well-being in Sustainable Communities." These new faculty members will support the growth of the interdisciplinary programs, Environmental Studies, Global Studies, and Urban Studies and Community Development within the School of Public Service, as well as the existing MA, MPA, and Ph.D. graduate programs.

Candidates' areas of focus may include the following:

- Processes of social, environmental, energy and economic systems change, including global environmental change and climate change.
- Social movements and community engagement.
- Population change, including migration and refugee resettlement.
- Risk and resilience studies.
- Smart Cities and Big Data.

Position Overview:

- 2 vacancies.

Duties and Responsibilities:

- Teach undergraduate courses in Environmental Studies, Global Studies and/or Urban Studies and Community Development.
- Opportunities to teach and contribute to the School of Public Service's graduate programs.
- Engage in academic and public service scholarship.
- Engage in professional, university and public service.

Minimum Qualifications:

- Ph.D. in a social science field. ABD candidates will be considered.

Preferred Qualifications:

- Interdisciplinary scholarship.
- Specialization in areas at the intersection of governance, well-being and/or sustainable community development.
- Experience and training in GIS and/or qualitative methods.
- May specialize in any geographic region and may work at any scale (micro, meso, or macro).

The successful candidate will possess the following knowledge, skills, and abilities:

- Interest and potential in building a strong research record in the social sciences.
- Interest and potential in producing high-quality peer-reviewed and public service scholarship.

Salary and benefits: Competitive salary, plus an excellent benefits package is available for eligible employees, for more information visit: <https://hrs.boisestate.edu/careers/benefits/>.

Required Application Materials: Please submit a cover letter indicating your interest and qualifications for this position, curriculum vita, summary of recent teaching evaluations, a written sample of your research, transcripts (unofficial are acceptable) and three letters of recommendation. Please submit application materials using the following link:

<https://boisestate.taleo.net/careersection/xfac/jobdetail.ftl?job=181289&tz=GMT-06%3A00>

Any inquiries regarding the position may be sent to Dr. Kathleen Araujo at kathleenaraujo@boisestate.edu.

Letters of recommendation may be sent by letter writers to schoolof-publicservice@boisestate.edu.

Closing Date: The deadline for applications is November 17th, 12:59 AM MST.

About Boise: <http://boisechamber.org>

About the University: <https://www.boisestate.edu/about/>

About the School: <http://sps.boisestate.edu>

Start Date:

Date Posted: 10/23/2018

Salary: $50,000 - $59,999

eJobs ID: 5058

Duke University

Rank: Professor

Duke University seeks applicants for a faculty position (tenured or tenure-track at any rank, Assistant, Associate, or Full Professor) in one of the Departments of Philosophy, Political Science, or Economics. The position will begin in July 2019. Applicants must have the PhD in hand no later than June 30, 2019. The successful applicant will possess a research and teaching interest in the history of economics, as well as in either philosophy or political science or another field in economics. A willingness to be substantially engaged with the mission of Duke's Center for the History of Political Economy is an indispensable requirement for the position. The Center is an active research group that sponsors pre-doctoral and post-doctoral fellows, and visiting senior scholars. Its program includes an active seminar and workshop series, an annual conference, and annual summer schools in the history of economics. The Center works closely with the Rubenstein Library in the maintenance and development of the Economists' Papers Archive. The Center is the editorial home of the journal History of Political Economy, and it supports a working paper series. (Further information is available at <https://hope.econ.duke.edu/>) Applications may be submitted online at <https://academicjobsonline.org/ajo/jobs/12498>. No paper applications will be accepted unless specifically solicited. Applications must include a CV, cover letter, and the names of at least three references (but no letters of reference). Applications submitted by 1 December 2018 will be guaranteed full consideration.

Duke University, located in Durham, North Carolina, is committed to encouraging and sustaining work and learning environments that are free from harassment and prohibited discrimination. Duke prohibits discrimination and harassment in the administration of both its employment and educational policies. Duke University is an Affirmative Action/Equal Opportunity Employer committed to providing employment opportunity without regard to an individual's age, color, disability, genetic information, gender, gender expression, gender identity, national origin, race, religion, sex, sexual orientation, or veteran status. Duke also makes good faith efforts to recruit, hire, and promote qualified women, minorities, individuals with disabilities, and veterans.

Start Date: Fall 2019
Date Posted: 10/22/2018
Salary: Competitive
eJobs ID: 5045

George Washington University

Rank: Assistant or Associate Professor

The School of Media and Public Affairs at George Washington University invites applications for a tenure-track Assistant or Associate Professor position to begin as early as August 2019.

Responsibilities include teaching at both the undergraduate and graduate level, including courses in political communication; conducting a successful program of research; advising students; and performing department and university service.

Basic Qualifications: Applicants must have: a Ph.D. in field related to media and public affairs such as political science, communication, sociology or closely related field by date of appointment. Applicants must be able to demonstrate a publication record, professional recognition and leadership, as well as teaching record.

Application Procedure: Complete an online faculty application at <http://www.gwu.jobs/postings/56572> and upload a cover letter, curriculum vita, sample publications (or works in progress), a statement of current and future research interests, a statement of teaching philosophy, and include contact information for three (3) professional references. Review of applications will begin on November 19, 2018 and will continue until the position is filled. Only complete applications will be considered. Employment offers are contingent on the satisfactory outcome of a standard background screening.

The George Washington University is an Equal Employment Opportunity/Affirmative Action Employer that does not unlawfully discriminate in any of its programs or activities on the basis of race, color, religion, sex, national origin, age, disability, veteran status, sexual orientation, gender identity or expression, or on any other basis prohibited by applicable law.

The university and department have a strong commitment to achieving diversity among the faculty. We strongly encourage underrepresented groups including women and persons of color to apply.

Start Date: Fall 2019
Application Deadline: Open until Filled
Date Posted: 10/19/2018
Salary: Competitive
eJobs ID: 5038

Princeton University

Rank: Fung Global Fellows Program - Early Career Scholar Fellowship

Subfield(s): Comparative Politics, International Relations, Other

Princeton University is pleased to announce the call for applications to the Fung Global Fellows Program at the Princeton Institute for International and Regional Studies (PIIRS). The program will select early-career scholars from around the world to be in residence at Princeton for an academic year and to engage in research and discussion around a common theme. The number of candidates hired at this rank will depend on the qualifications of the overall applicant pools. The fellowships will be awarded to scholars employed outside the United States who have a faculty appointment, a professional research appointment, or are an established independent scholar. They will also be expected to return to their positions at the conclusion of the fellowship. Lastly, they must have demonstrated outstanding scholarly achievement and unusual intellectual promise.

During the academic year 2019-20, the Fung Global Fellows Program theme will be "Thinking Globally: How people have thought about the planet has informed the institutions, norms, and policies that have pulled it together and torn it apart. For centuries, ideas of free trade, human rights or global governance have framed cooperation and competition, order and disorder. Such ideas have also spawned border-crossing movements, from campaigns to end slavery to commitments to reduce carbon emissions. In turn, global thinking and action have often reinforced commitments to national ideas and efforts to curb global exchange. The goal of this research theme is to explore how ideas framed the understanding of interests and the making of institutions that have yielded commonness and conflict across and within borders. We also want to understand how these ideas and practices came into being through scientific networks, foundations, and think tanks. The Program will also examine rival world ideas that have challenged prevailing orthodoxies. Nowadays, with cooperative norms under challenge, global institutions under stress, and a century of guiding ideas about global convergence in doubt, we want to take a broad look at where these ideas came from, their effects, and the prospects for intellectual renewal or rethinking. The goal of the 2019-20 Fung Global Fellows cohort will be to explore the ways people learned to rely on or to reject strangers far away, as well as to imagine how global relationships came to be and could be different. We welcome applicants from all disciplinary and inter-disciplinary fields from the sciences to the humanities whose work addresses this set of themes in any historical period or world region.

Applicants must apply online at <https://www.princeton.edu/acad-positions/position/9481>.

Applications are due by November 20, 2018 (11:59 p.m. EST). To be eligible, applicants must have received their Ph.D. or equivalent no earlier than September 1, 2009. Fellowships will be awarded on the strength of a candidate's proposed research project, the relationship of the project to the program theme, the candidate's scholarly record and ability to contribute to the intellectual life of the program. For more information on eligibility requirements and the Fung Global Fellows Program see <http://piirs.princeton.edu/funggfp/>.

The following items will need to be submitted by the applicant, in English:

- Cover letter (1.5 pages maximum)
- Curriculum Vitae (including publications)
- Research proposal (maximum of 3 pages, single spaced)
- One writing sample (article or book chapter, maximum of 50 pages)
- An official letter from the applicant's current employer affirming that, should an offer be made, the applicant would be permitted to accept it and to spend the academic year 2019-2020 at Princeton University
- The names and email addresses for three referees, who will be contacted with an invitation to upload their letter of recommendation to the online application system

Start Date: Fall 2019
Application Deadline: 11/20/2018
Date Posted: 10/19/2018
Salary: Competitive
eJobs ID: 5042

Princeton University

Rank: Fung Global Fellows Program – Senior Scholar Fellowship
Subfield(s): Comparative Politics, International Relations, Other

Princeton University is pleased to announce the call for applications to the Fung Global Fellows Program at the Princeton Institute for International and Regional Studies (PIIRS). The program will select senior scholars from around the world to be in residence at Princeton between three to ten months during the 2019-2020 academic year to engage in research and discussion around a common theme. The number of candidates hired at this rank will depend on the qualifications of the overall applicant pools. The fellowship will be awarded to senior scholars employed outside the United States who have received their doctorate before 2009. They must have a faculty appointment, a professional research appointment, or be an established independent scholar in the designated theme of the program, and have exhibited unusual intellectual promise. Senior candidates will be expected to return to their position after the conclusion of the fellowship.

During the academic year 2019-20, the Fung Global Fellows Program theme will be “Thinking Globally.” How people have thought about the planet has informed the institutions, norms, and policies that have pulled it together and torn it apart. For centuries, ideas of free trade, human rights or global governance have framed cooperation and competition, order and disorder. Such ideas have also spawned border-crossing movements, from campaigns to end slavery to commitments to reduce carbon emissions. In turn, global thinking and action have often reinforced commitments to national ideas and efforts to curb global exchange. The goal of this research theme is to explore how ideas framed the understanding of interests and the making of institutions that have yielded commonness and conflict across and within borders. We also want to understand how these ideas and practices came into being through scientific networks, foundations, and think tanks. The Program will also examine rival world ideas that have challenged prevailing orthodoxies. Nowadays, with cooperative norms under challenge, global institutions under stress, and a century of guiding ideas about global convergence in doubt, we want to take a broad look at where these ideas came from, their effects, and the prospects for intellectual renewal or rethinking. The goal of the 2019-20 Fung Global Fellows cohort will be to explore the ways people learned to rely on or to reject strangers far away, as well as to imagine how global relationships came to be and could be different. We welcome applicants from all disciplinary and inter-disciplinary fields from the sciences to the humanities whose work addresses this set of themes in any historical period or world region.

Applications are due by November 20, 2018 (11:59 p.m. EST). Fellowships will be awarded on the strength of a candidate's proposed research project, the relationship of the project to the program theme, the candidate's scholarly record and ability to contribute to the intellectual life of the program.

To apply please visit: <https://www.princeton.edu/acad-positions/position/9482>.

The following items will need to be submitted by the applicant, in English:

- Cover letter (1.5 pages maximum)
- Curriculum Vitae (including publications)
- Research proposal (maximum of 3 pages, single spaced)
- One writing sample (article or book chapter, maximum of 50 pages)
- An official letter from the applicant's current employer affirming that, should an offer be made, the applicant would be permitted to accept it and spend between three to ten months during the 2019-2020 academic year at Princeton University
- The names and email addresses for three referees, who will be contacted with an invitation to upload their letter of recommendation to the online application system

Start Date: Fall 2019
Application Deadline: 11/20/2018
Date Posted: 10/19/2018
Salary: Competitive
eJobs ID: 5041

University of Delaware

Rank: Assistant or Associate Professor & Faculty Coordinator

The Associate in Arts Program (AAP) at the University of Delaware seeks to hire a continuing track faculty member at the rank of Assistant or Associate Professor to serve as Faculty Coordinator of the Wilmington Campus. We welcome applicants with disciplinary or interdisciplinary specialization in any of the academic departments housed within the College of Arts & Sciences.

The Faculty Coordinator will provide leadership for the UD-AAP Wilmington Campus, home to more than 400 students; serve as administrator for nine full time and more than thirty part time faculty; and report to the AAP Director. Candidates for this position must possess a doctoral degree and should demonstrate experience and expertise in administration, skill at leading faculty, and proficiency at empowering students from historically underrepresented groups as they work to achieve their fullest potential in higher education. The successful candidate will have an excellent record as an instructor and be expected to teach two classes per semester in their discipline, including introductory courses and possibly higher level courses where appropriate. The faculty coordinator will also be responsible for hiring adjunct instructors; collaborating with faculty and staff members to schedule courses; leading campus events, including recruitment, orientation, campus welcome and convocation; and liaising with university wide entities, advisement, community partners and city leaders. Administrative responsibilities and compensation will extend into the summer.

The UD AAP offers an associate degree curriculum on campuses in Wilmington, Dover and Georgetown, Delaware. Its faculty teach coursework in humanities, history, the social and behavioral sciences, natural sciences, and languages. AAP students constitute a racially and socioeconomically diverse body of learners, the majority of whom go on to pursue majors in all seven colleges on the University of Delaware's main campus in Newark. AAP students enjoy an uninterrupted transition from the AAP to a bachelor's degree program in the junior year. AAP faculty commit a majority of their time and effort to preparing students to succeed in their transition to bachelor's degree programs or to the workforce. Continuing track faculty have opportunities to pursue research, are eligible for promotion and sabbaticals, and receive full and generous benefits as part of their compensation package.

Applicants must submit: (1) a current curriculum vita; (2) a cover letter summarizing their interest, qualifications and leadership philosophy; (3) a teaching statement, including a description of future teaching interests; (4) a statement on diversity and inclusion; (5) graduate transcripts; and (6) contact information for three references (references will not be contacted prior to notifying the candidate). Candidates should ensure that their materials address the qualifications stated above. Review of applications will begin on November 30, 2018 and will continue until the position is filled. Those interested should apply through Interfolio at: <http://www.udel.edu/faculty-staff/human-resources/careers/faculty-jobs/>. Please direct questions, but not application materials, to Dr. David Teague, Search Committee Chair (teague@udel.edu).

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 10/19/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 5033

York University

Rank: Tenure-Stream Appointment - Open Rank, Open Field
Subfield(s): Comparative Politics, International Relations, Other

The Department of Politics, Faculty of Liberal Arts & Professional Studies invites applications for a tenure-track professorial-stream appointment in the critical study of politics at any professorial rank (Assistant Professor, Associate Professor, or Professor), to commence July 1, 2019.

A PhD in Political Science or a related discipline is required. Candidates must have significant professional experience, demonstrated excellence in teaching and in scholarly research, and have produced publications appropriate to their stage of career.

The Department of Politics is internationally recognized as one of the world's leading sites of political scholarship informed by a diverse range of critical intellectual approaches, and is seeking a dynamic intellectual leader to help advance that reputation and the scholarly excellence on which it is based. The successful candidate will be establishing, or already have established, an international reputation for the excellence of their contribution to the critical study of politics. Applicants should have an ongoing program of research and specialize in or, reflecting the interdisciplinary nature of the Department of Politics, across the five fields into which the Department is organized: Canadian Politics, Comparative Politics, International Relations (both International Political Economy and Security Studies), Political Theory, and Women and Politics. Their research should complement the present scholarly profile of the Department, and develop it in new and innovative ways. Candidates who would be competitive for nomination to the York Research Chairs program are encouraged to apply.

The successful candidate must be suitable for prompt appointment to the Faculty of Graduate Studies. The position will involve graduate teaching and supervision, as well as undergraduate teaching. The successful candidate should demonstrate an ability to attract high quality graduate students to work with them. Pedagogical innovation in high priority areas such as experiential education and technology enhanced learning is an asset.

Applicants should submit a signed letter of application outlining their professional experience and research interests, an up-to-date curriculum vitae, a sample of their scholarly writing (maximum 50 pp.), and a teaching dossier, and arrange for three signed confidential letters of recommendation to be sent to: Professor David Mutimer, Chair, Department of Politics, Email: polsjobs@yorku.ca (Subject line: Open Rank Search in Politics).

Self-Identification and Work Status Declaration forms may be found at: <http://acadjobs.info.yorku.ca/affirmative-action/>. Applicants wishing to self-identify can do so by downloading, completing and submitting the form. A declaration of work status is required.

The deadline for receipt of completed applications is November 12, 2018. Salary will be commensurate with qualifications and experience. All York University positions are subject to budgetary approval.

York University is an Affirmative Action (AA) employer and strongly values diversity, including gender and sexual diversity, within its community. The AA Program, which applies to Aboriginal people, visible minorities, people with disabilities, and women, can be found at <http://acadjobs.info.yorku.ca/> or by calling the AA office at 416-736-5713. All qualified candidates are encouraged to apply; however, Canadian citizens, Permanent Residents, and Indigenous peoples in Canada will be given priority.

Posting End Date: November 12, 2018

Start Date: Summer 2019

Application Deadline: 11/12/2018

Date Posted: 10/19/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 5036

Columbia University

Rank: Assistant Professor

Columbia University's Department of Political Science invites applications for a tenure-track position in Latinx Politics. Strong candidates will also make broader contributions to the study of race and ethnicity. The position is at the Assistant Professor level and will begin July 1, 2019. Ph.D. required at the time of appointment. Candidates will be expected to sustain an active research and publication agenda and teaching in undergraduate and graduate programs. A joint position with the School of International and Public Affairs is possible.

For more information and to apply, please go to:
<http://pa334.peopleadmin.com/postings/1539>

Applicants should send a cover letter, curriculum vitae, three letters of recommendation, and a writing sample. The search committee will begin reviewing applications November 5, 2018, and will continue to consider applications until the position is filled.

Start Date: Summer 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 10/17/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 5026

Columbia University

Rank: Assistant Professor

Columbia University's Department of Political Science invites applications for a tenure-track position in Latinx Politics. Strong candidates will also make broader contributions to the study of race and ethnicity. The position is at the Assistant Professor level and will begin July 1, 2019. Ph.D. required at the time of appointment. Candidates will be expected to sustain an active research and publication agenda and teaching in undergraduate and graduate programs. A joint position with the School of International and Public Affairs is possible.

For more information and to apply, please go to:
<http://pa334.peopleadmin.com/postings/1539>

Applicants should send a cover letter, curriculum vitae, three letters of recommendation, and a writing sample. The search committee will begin reviewing applications November 5, 2018, and will continue to consider applications until the position is filled.

Start Date: Summer 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 10/17/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 5027

Stanford University

Rank: Associate Professor/Professor

Subfield(s): Public Policy, Other, Other

Stanford University invites applications for an associate or full professor position affiliated with the Program in Feminist, Gender and Sexuality Studies (FGSS) and located within a humanities or social science department to begin September 1, 2019. The successful candidate will teach two of their four courses within, and contribute to the leadership of, FGSS. We are particularly interested in candidates whose research and teaching consider the ways race, gender, class, and sexuality intersect and who have experience with interdisciplinary programs. Appointing departments include but are not limited to History, English, Philosophy, Political Science, and Sociology.

Applicants must post a cover letter, a curriculum vitae that includes a list of publications, a teaching statement and a statement of current and future research interests. All materials must be submitted electronically to Academic Jobs Online. The committee will begin reading applications on November 30, 2018, but may consider files received after this date. Interested individuals should apply online to:

AcademicJobsOnline <https://academicjobsonline.org/ajo/jobs/12392>

Email inquiries and questions may be directed to Monica Moore (mpmoore@stanford.edu) or by mail to:

Faculty Search Program in Feminist, Gender, and Sexuality Studies
 450 Serra Mall, Bldg. 460 Stanford, CA 94305

Stanford is an equal employment opportunity and affirmative action employer. All qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to race, color, religion, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, national origin, disability, protected veteran status, or any other characteristic protected by law. Stanford also welcomes applications from others who would bring additional dimensions to the University's research, teaching and clinical missions.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: 11/30/2018

Date Posted: 10/16/2018

Salary: Negotiable

eJobs ID: 5017

The University of Hong Kong

Rank: Lecturer in Political Theory in the Department of Politics and Public Administration

The University of Hong Kong

Lecturer in Political Theory in the Department of Politics and Public Administration (Ref.: 201801586)

Applications are invited for appointment as Lecturer in Political Theory in the Department of Politics and Public Administration, to commence on August 15, 2019 or as soon as possible thereafter, on a three-year fixed-term basis, with the possibility of renewal.

Applicants should possess a Master's degree in relevant disciplines, preferably with a Ph.D. degree. They should have at least 3 years' teaching experience at tertiary level, particularly in contemporary political theory such as democratic theory and practice, theories of justice, and global political theory. Experience in teaching applied ethics, the history of Western political thought or comparative political thought would be an advantage. The appointee is also expected to take up administrative duties. Information about the Department can be obtained at <http://ppa.hku.hk>.

A globally competitive remuneration package commensurate with the appointee's qualifications and experience will be offered. At current rates, salaries tax does not exceed 15% of gross income. The appointment will attract a contract-end gratuity and University contribution to a retirement benefits scheme, totalling up to 15% of basic salary, as well as leave, and medical benefits. Please note that the University will not offer a relocation assistance package (including temporary University housing accommodation and a passage and baggage allowance) to the successful candidate recruited from overseas.

Applicants should send a completed application form together with an up-to-date C.V., a letter of interest, graduate transcripts, a teaching statement and teaching evaluations to the Department at ppahr@hku.hk. They should also arrange for three confidential references (quoting the job reference number) to be sent directly by the referees to ppahr@hku.hk. Please quote the job reference no. and post title in the e-mail subject. Application forms (341/1111) can be downloaded at <http://www.hr.hku.hk/apptunit/form-ext.doc>. Further particulars can be obtained at <http://jobs.hku.hk/>. Review of applications will start from November 15, 2018 and continue until November 30, 2018, or until the post is filled, whichever is earlier.

The University thanks applicants for their interest, but advises that only candidates shortlisted for interviews will be notified of the application result.

The University is an equal opportunities employer and is committed to equality, ethics, inclusivity, diversity and transparency

Start Date:

Application Deadline: 11/30/2018

Date Posted: 10/16/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 5015

Princeton University

Rank: The Harold T. Shapiro Postdoctoral Fellowship in Bioethics

The Princeton University Center for Human Values invites applications for the Harold T. Shapiro Postdoctoral Fellowship in Bioethics for a possible opening in September 2019. The Shapiro Fellowship supports outstanding scholars studying ethical issues arising from developments in medicine, the biological sciences, or population health. We particularly encourage proposals focusing on problems of practical importance that have broader theoretical interest.

The Shapiro Fellow will spend from one to three years at Princeton conducting research and teaching the equivalent of one course each year (subject to sufficient enrollments and approval by the Dean of the Faculty). He or she will participate in the Ira W. DeCamp Seminar in Bioethics and will be invited to participate in other activities of the University Center for Human Values including a year-long research seminar for visiting fellows and Center faculty.

Qualifications

Applicants must have completed all the requirements for the Ph.D., M.D., or other equivalent doctoral degree by September 1, 2019, and should not have held the degree for more than three years by that date. An applicant may have a background in any area of ethical studies, not necessarily in bioethics. However, the proposed research plan should be related to the field of bioethics.

Applications will be evaluated on the basis of the applicant's previous accomplishments and the promise of the proposed research project in bioethics. The capacity to contribute to the University's teaching program will also be taken into account.

Term of Appointment

The term of the fellowship is one year, beginning September 1, 2019, with the possibility of renewal for up to two additional years pending satisfactory performance. Appointment will be made to the rank of Postdoctoral Research Associate; the Shapiro Fellow will also carry the title of Lecturer when teaching. Princeton University offers competitive salary and employee benefits.

How to Apply

Candidates must submit an online application at <https://www.princeton.edu/acadpositions/position/7301>

A complete application will include the following supporting materials:

1. A curriculum vitae;
2. A research proposal (not to exceed 1,500 words). Please provide an indicative title in the heading;
3. A scholarly paper (not to exceed 50 pages) representing the applicant's scholarly achievement or potential;
4. Contact information for two referees, who should be prepared to comment specifically about the applicant's qualifications for the proposed research project. Referees will be contacted directly with instructions for uploading letters of reference.

These materials must be submitted online by the application deadline of Thursday, December 6, 2018, 11:59 p.m. EST. We do not accept application materials by any other method. Letters of reference are to be submitted by December 10. If a vacancy for this position is confirmed, the selection committee may begin reviewing applications immediately and incomplete applications may be at a disadvantage. We hope to announce our decision in April 2019.

This position is subject to the University's background check policy.

Princeton University is an Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action Employer and all qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to age, race, color, religion, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity or expression, national origin, disability status, protected veteran status, or any other characteristic protected by law.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: 12/6/2018

Date Posted: 10/15/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 5011

Rice University

Rank: Fellow for the Middle East

The Fellow, funded through the Kelly Day Endowment, will lead a research program within the Baker Institute's Center for the Middle East focusing on women, human rights and refugee issues within the region. The position will be responsible for producing original, substantive, policy-relevant research to bring together diverse viewpoints addressing the issues of women, human rights and displaced people in the Middle East. Applications will begin being reviewed on November 15, 2018 but will be accepted until November 30, 2018. PhD or other Doctoral Degree required, preferable in a field related to the study of the Middle East, gender issues, or human rights issues such as political science, policy studies, gender studies or sociology. Experience working in academic, policy or government research institutions or with international nongovernmental organizations in the Middle East region is preferred. For more details and to apply please visit <https://jobs.rice.edu/postings/16664>.

Start Date: Winter 2019

Application Deadline: 11/30/2018

Date Posted: 10/12/2018

Salary: Negotiable

eJobs ID: 5004

Chapman University

Rank: Assistant Professor of Peace Studies, Tenure-track

Specializations: Conflict Processes, Foreign Policy, Social Movements

Chapman University seeks applications for a tenure track Assistant Professor of Peace Studies in the Department of Peace Studies within Wilkinson College of Arts, Humanities, and Social Science, beginning August 1, 2019.

Chapman University, located in the heart of Orange County, California, offers traditional undergraduate programs in the arts and sciences and select pre-professional and graduate programs. Ranked in the top tier of western universities by U.S. News and World Report, Chapman has gained national recognition with its commitment to excellence through research and innovative teaching.

The Peace Studies Department at Chapman University offers an undergraduate major and a minor, and builds upon a long tradition of offering education related to peace and justice at Chapman University. Faculty in Peace Studies may also affiliate with Chapman's related departments, including Sociology, Political Science, Religious Studies, or LatinX & Latin American Studies and MA programs, such as War & Society and International Studies, depending on their areas of training, as well as Attallah College of Educational Studies.

Qualifications: Preferred candidates will have a Ph.D. in Peace Studies or a specialization in peace and conflict studies and a Ph.D. from an associated discipline, and will show evidence of excellent teaching and research.

We seek candidates who can contribute to department foci in Mediation & Conflict Resolution and/or Intercultural Dialogue. Candidates with teaching and research experience in these areas are encouraged to apply. Previous work in peacebuilding, conflict resolution, and various social justice fields will be considered useful.

Information on submitting applications and more information on the position can be found here: <https://webfarm.chapman.edu/jobs/job.aspx?id=985>

Start Date: Fall 2019
Application Deadline: 12/1/2018
Date Posted: 10/11/2018
Salary: Competitive
eJobs ID: 5003

Rider University

Rank: Assistant Professor

Tenure Track – Constitutional Law

The Political Science Department at Rider University is accepting applications for a tenure-track position in Constitutional Law to start in the fall of 2019. The successful candidate will offer a range of courses, including civil liberties and civil rights, and judges and courts. Area of specialization is open. Teaching responsibilities will include courses in our undergraduate program in Political Science, as well as our undergraduate minor and graduate program in Homeland Security Studies, and may include topical courses such as (for instance) cyber law or national security. This candidate may also contribute to our new B.A. in Health Care Policy.

Our ideal candidate will hold either a Ph.D. in political science or a related discipline and/or a J.D. This candidate will be excited to be in the classroom and will enjoy teaching in a medium sized, collegial department in which students and instructors work closely together. Housed in the College of Liberal Arts, this department prizes critical inquiry and student-centered teaching practices. The department faculty also maintain active scholarly agendas and will look for the same quality in this candidate. In addition to quality research and teaching, the successful candidate will also provide pre-law advising and may be asked to develop a more formal pre-law program for the college.

The Political Science Department is deeply committed to diversifying its faculty and strongly encourages applications from a wide range of candidates.

While applications will be reviewed on a rolling basis, interested applications are invited to apply directly to our website at <http://rider.peopleadmin.com/postings/5445> by November 30, 2018. Applications for Position No. 312256 should include a cover letter which describes teaching philosophy and experience, as well as scholarly accomplishments and an ongoing research agenda. Experience in the practice of law should also be described, if applicable. Please also include a C.V., writing sample, three letters of references, and a statement outlining your commitment to diversity, including evidence of your experience working with and teaching diverse students.

Rider University is an Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action employer dedicated to excellence through diversity and does not discriminate on the basis of age, race, color, religion, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, handicap/disability, Vietnam-era/disabled veteran status, gender identity or expression, or any other non-job related criteria.

Start Date: Fall 2019
Application Deadline: Open until Filled
Date Posted: 10/11/2018
Salary: $60,000 - $69,999
eJobs ID: 5002

Michigan State University

Rank: Research Associate (Postdoc)- Fixed Term

The Institute for Public Policy and Social Research seeks a full-time post-doctoral Research Associate to serve a fixed term position (one year renewable for a second year) to oversee research on the Correlates of State Policy Project (ippsr.msu.edu/public-policy/correlates-state-policy). The Project aims to compile, disseminate, and encourage the use of data relevant to U.S. state policy research, tracking policy differences across and change over time in the 50 states as well as their causes and consequences. We have gathered more than 1,500 variables from various sources and assembled them into one large, useful dataset to serve as a “one-stop shop” for academics, policy analysts, students, and researchers. The Research Associate will be responsible for upkeep and expansion of the dataset, encouragement of its wide use, and use of these data to produce peer-reviewed academic research and policy-relevant public reports. Appropriate candidates will demonstrate their familiarity and use of these data and their success in using data for scholarly and public communication. We welcome applicants from political science, sociology, economics, public policy, and related fields. Applicants must apply for this position via the Michigan State Applicant Tracking System at <https://careers.msu.edu>, Job number 537750

Start Date: Summer 2019
Application Deadline: Open until Filled
Date Posted: 10/10/2018
Salary: Competitive
eJobs ID: 4987

University of British Columbia Okanagan

Rank: Tenure-Track Assistant Professor

Specializations: Central Asia, South Asia, Japan

The Irving K. Barber School of Arts and Sciences (IKBSAS) at the University of British Columbia, Okanagan Campus, invites applications for a tenure-track appointment in Political Science at the rank of Assistant Professor. The position will be held in the Department of Economics, Philosophy, and Political Science (<http://epp.ok.ubc.ca/welcome.html>) and is expected to start on July 1, 2019.

We are seeking candidates with scholarly interest and expertise in Asian Politics. Preference will be given to a specialist in Chinese politics, with the ability to teach additional courses in Asian politics (especially the Koreas, Japan, and Indo-Asia). Candidates must have a PhD in Political Science or related field, a strong record of research productivity, and proven ability to attract external funding. They must demonstrate a commitment to student mentoring and supervision; an established record of excellence in undergraduate teaching and learning; and evidence of, or interest in, effective graduate teaching appropriate to career stage. They are also expected to show evidence of commitment to equity, diversity, inclusion, and the promotion of a respectful, collegial, and conducive learning and working environment.

The successful candidate is expected to develop and maintain an outstanding research program that enhances existing expertise in the department, complements established and emerging research strengths within the Faculty, and is well-integrated into the campus' areas of strategic research focus. Teaching duties will normally include two courses per term, enthusiasm for teaching in an interdisciplinary Philosophy, Politics, and Economics (PPE) program is expected. Service expectations will be commensurate with rank.

Supported by over 20 active researchers, the Department of Economics, Philosophy, and Political Science, at UBC's Okanagan campus, offers a vibrant and interdisciplinary learning environment for students wanting to understand today's complex world from a variety of perspectives. Faculty in Political Science provide the lead for 3 undergraduate majors: Political Science, International Relations, and PPE. It is also the lead Department for the new Interdisciplinary Graduate Program in Global Studies (MA and PhD).

The Department is housed in the Irving K. Barber School of Arts and Sciences. The Faculty offers both discipline-based and interdisciplinary programs at the undergraduate and graduate levels. The collegial learning environment in the Faculty focuses on effective teaching, critical and creative scholarship, and the integration of scholarship and teaching. We are committed to an ethos of local involvement, global engagement, and intercultural awareness, and we provide a positive, inclusive, and mutually supportive working and learning environment for all our students, faculty, and staff. To learn about the Irving K. Barber School of Arts and Science, go to <http://www.ubc.ca/okanagan/ikbarberschool/welcome.html>.

UBC is one of the world's leading universities, and is consistently ranked in the top 40. The university has two distinct campuses, one in Vancouver and one in Kelowna. UBC's Okanagan campus, located in the city of Kelowna on unceded Syilx Okanagan territory, has strong undergraduate and graduate programs, with over 9,000 students in seven faculties. Situated in the heart of the Okanagan Valley, one of the most scenic regions in Canada, it offers an intimate learning environment and excellent opportunities for regional, national, and international scholarly activities. For more information about UBC resources and opportunities, please visit <http://www.hr.ubc.ca/faculty-staff-resources/>. Information about the surrounding community can be found at: <http://www.hr.ubc.ca/worklife-relocation/>.

How to Apply:

Applications are to be submitted online at <http://www.hr.ubc.ca/careers-postings/faculty.php> (see appropriate Job Opening ID# 31436) and should include:

- i) a cover letter,
- ii) a curriculum vitae,
- iii) a research statement,
- iv) a statement of teaching philosophy,
- v) evidence of teaching effectiveness (e.g. teaching/course evaluations), and
- vi) the names of three referees who have been asked to submit letters of reference.

Applicants should also arrange to have their referees submit letters of recommendation directly to Tiffany Clarke by the deadline, at: tiffany.clarke@ubc.ca

Please direct any inquiries regarding the posting to Department Head, at okb8depthhead.ubco@ubc.ca. All correspondence, including referees' letters, must indicate the competition title (Political Science Assistant Professor) in the subject line of the e-mail.

The deadline for applications is November 22, 2018. All appointments are subject to budgetary approval. All qualified candidates are encouraged to apply; however, Canadians and permanent residents will be given priority.

Start Date: Summer 2019

Application Deadline: 11/22/2018

Date Posted: 10/10/2018

Salary: Any

eJobs ID: 4990

University of Central Florida

Rank: Post-doctoral Researcher - Automated Policy and Multilayer Network Analysis in Coastal Systems

Post-Doctoral Research Position - Automated Policy and Multilayer Network Analysis in Coastal Systems

The Department of Political Science, together with the National Center for Integrated Coastal Research, and the Sustainable Coastal System Cluster, at the University of Central Florida is offering a post-doctoral research position for a research project under the supervision of Dr. Jacopo Baggio. The project broadly consists of identifying and analyzing key policies and regulations affecting the food-water-energy nexus as well as the coastal systems of the United States and beyond. The ideal candidate will be interested in the relationship between the policy process, policy outcomes and their effect on coastal sustainability and the sustainability of the food-water-energy nexus. Methodologically, the ideal candidate should possess knowledge of machine-learning algorithms applied to text-mining, being able to build web-crawlers / scrapers and being familiar with linear algebra and/or network and multilayer network analysis.

The position includes a competitive salary plus benefits. This position is funded for two years. However, renewal for the second year is contingent to satisfactory performance during the first year.

Expectations

- Actively engage with colleagues at the National Center for Integrated Coastal Research at the University of Central Florida.
- Building a database of laws, regulation and policies related to coastal systems as well as the food-energy-water nexus.
- Contribute to computational models and data analysis
- Lead and contribute to peer-reviewed publications and conference presentations as well as potential non-academic publications (e.g., websites or web-services)

Qualifications

A PhD in computational social science (or a social science discipline with strong computational training and qualifications), complex systems science or related field (i.e. computer science, physics, computational ecology etc.) is preferred. Prior experience in working in a highly interdisciplinary research environment is a plus.

Application Process

To apply, send 1) a cover letter, 2) a current CV, 3) a 1-page statement of research and 4) 3 letters of recommendation that clearly identify 5 strengths and 5 weaknesses of the by January 15, 2019 (to start August 2019) to:

Jacopo A. Baggio, PhD
Assistant Professor,
Department of Political Science
National Center for Integrated Coastal Research

Core member of the Sustainable Coastal Systems Cluster
University of Central Florida

Email: jacopo.baggio@ucf.edu webpage: <https://sites.google.com/site/jacopobaggio/>
Research Gate: https://www.researchgate.net/profile/Jacopo_Baggio

Start Date: Fall 2019
Application Deadline: 1/15/2019
Date Posted: 10/10/2018
Salary: Competitive
eJobs ID: 4991

University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill

Rank: Director

Director, Institute for the Arts & Humanities
The College of Arts & Sciences invites applications and nominations for the position of Director of the Institute for the Arts and Humanities (IAH). The IAH Director holds the Ruel W. Tyson, Jr. Distinguished Professorship and will be appointed for a term of up to five years. Founded in 1987, Carolina's IAH is one of the crown jewels of the University. Its many programs support faculty at all stages of their careers, helping outstanding professors advance their research, inspire UNC students, and serve the greater North Carolina community. The Director provides intellectual leadership for the diverse programs of the IAH supporting comprehensive faculty development. Collaborating with colleagues who include the IAH Director of Operations and the IAH Faculty Associate Directors, the Director ensures that the IAH will remain responsive to changing faculty needs and interests through new initiatives, events, interdisciplinary collaborations, and a continued focus on equity and inclusion. The Director meets regularly with the Institute Advisory Board and the Faculty Advisory Board, and works closely with the IAH Director of Development to meet with donors and help raise funds for new programs and initiatives. The IAH is supported by the College, by its endowments, and annual giving. Additional information is available on the Institute's website: <http://www.iah.unc.edu>
Qualified applicants should review application requirements and further details via: <https://unc.peopleadmin.com/postings/147568>

Start Date: Summer 2019
Application Deadline: Open until Filled
Date Posted: 10/10/2018
Salary: Competitive
eJobs ID: 4993

Arizona State University

Rank: Data Analytics in Public Policy and Management
Subfield(s): Public Policy, Public Administration, Other

The Arizona State University School of Public Affairs (SPA) invites applications for a tenure track faculty position at the Assistant or Associate level specializing in data analytics. Hiring will focus on active, entrepreneurial emerging scholars desiring to work collaboratively across disciplines as they establish themselves as a leader in public administration and policy. This nine-month position begins August 16, 2019.

The successful candidate will have research and teaching focused on applying data analytic skills to understand and find solutions to important public policy problems. The successful applicant will have demonstrated ability to apply one or more data analytic approaches to public policy or public management problems, such as predictive analytics and artificial intelligence, big data and cloud computing, open data, visualization, text analysis, decision-support, and computational simulation and modeling. A Ph.D. in public policy, public administration, economics, political science, data science, mathematics, statistics, computer science, engineering or related fields is expected at the time of appointment. All applicants should demonstrate interest and experience in one or more applied areas of public policy.

The School's program is ranked #9 in the nation (#4 in information technology). It is home to a number of applied research centers that focus on areas such as e-government, urban innovation, citizen participation, organizational design, public policy, and science policy. ASU is home to a number of data science initiatives including the Decision Theatre, the Data Science and Analytics Lab, the Institute for Social Science Research, a program in data journalism, and a new college-level Master's degree in Program Evaluation and Data Analytics. The university is ranked as #1 in the nation for innovation, according to US News and World Report.

SPA attracts a growing and diverse array of students motivated by the promise of public service and drawn to the unique opportunity of an interdisciplinary public affairs education. We offer Bachelor degrees in Public Service and Public Policy and Urban and Metropolitan Studies, the Master of Public Administration, the Master of Public Policy, and the Ph.D. in Public Administration and Policy. Faculty members have been successful in attracting external funding from national scientific agencies, federal departments, foundations, and the private sector. SPA is also a research partner with the Alliance for Innovation, housed at the School. For more information about the School of Public Affairs and the Watts College of Public Service and Community Solutions, please visit <https://spa.asu.edu> and <https://publicservice.asu.edu>. Candidates from historically underrepresented groups in the academy are especially encouraged to apply.

Required qualifications:

- A Ph.D. in public policy, public administration, economics, political science, data science, mathematics, statistics, computer science, engineering or related fields is expected at the time of appointment.

Desired qualifications:

- Strong primary research and teaching interests in data analytics and their applications in public policy and management, and civic and urban affairs.
- Demonstrated commitment to teaching in-person and online courses and mentoring students in a diverse environment.
- Demonstrated excellence or strong potential in research that will contribute to and enhance the School's national and international reputation.
- Evidence of the ability to pursue external funding to support research.

Job Responsibilities:

- Teach undergraduate, graduate, and doctoral courses in person and online
- Conduct research, pursue external funding
- Service contributions to the school, college, university and profession

Application procedure:

To apply, please visit <https://publicservice.asu.edu/content/jobs> and upload your application materials which include the following:

- Cover letter describing your research and teaching interests
- Curriculum vitae
- One writing sample (single author or leading author preferred)
- Information for three professional references (name, title, organization, email address, phone number)
- Applicants on the short list will be asked to submit (3) letters of recommendation

The application deadline is November 18, 2018 at 5:00p.m. Arizona time; and if not filled, then every other Friday until the search is closed.

Please direct any questions about the position to Dr. Karen Mossberger, the Search Committee Chair, at Karen.Mossberger@asu.edu.

Arizona State University is a VEVRAA Federal Contractor and an Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action Employer. All qualified applicants will be considered without regard to race, color, sex, religion, national origin, age, disability, veteran status, sexual orientation, gender identity, or any other basis protected by law. For a complete statement on ASU's non-discrimination policies, please refer to: <http://www.asu.edu/aad/manuals/acd/acd401.html> and <https://www.asu.edu/titleIX/>

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 10/8/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4976

Emory University

Rank: Contemporary LatinX Studies Cluster Hires

Contemporary LatinX Studies Cluster Hires 10/08/18

Emory College of Arts and Sciences in Atlanta, Georgia announces a special initiative to recruit and support several tenure-track and tenured faculty (advanced assistant and/or associate/full professors) in the area of contemporary LatinX studies in the humanities and social sciences. Faculty whose research advances this emerging field of scholarship, who bring a demonstrated commitment to mentoring a diverse student body, and who are eager to contribute to the University's ambitious goals of scholarly excellence, diversity and inclusivity, and interdisciplinarity are encouraged to apply. This search will complement Emory's growing distinction in the scholarship of race and the African American experience, recent faculty appointments in the departments of Spanish and Portuguese and Religion, our exceptional archival holdings and special collections in the Rose Library, partnerships with Atlanta-based institutions, and a commitment to interdisciplinary scholarship and collaboration. Departments participating in this multi-field search include: African American Studies, Anthropology, Art History, Economics, English, Film and Media Studies, Philosophy, Political Science, Religion, Sociology, Women's, Gender, and Sexuality Studies. Research and teaching expertise including but not limited to the following fields are of particular interest: LatinX and Afro LatinX literature, art, and culture, philosophy, citizenship, race, gender, sexuality, religion, political economy of migration, labor, and health. All applicants must have a demonstrated commitment to teaching and mentoring a diverse student body. Candidates must hold a Ph.D. in a relevant discipline/field.

Review of applications will begin October 8, 2018. Full consideration will be given to all applications received within 30 days. Review will continue until positions are filled. At this stage, we ask applicants to submit a cover letter, names and contact information of three references, and a CV. Candidates' cover letters should include a discussion of their experience and vision regarding the teaching and mentorship of students of diverse backgrounds.

Emory University is an equal employment opportunity and affirmative action employer. Women, minorities, people with disabilities and veterans are strongly encouraged to apply.

Application Instructions:

Applicants are asked to submit a cover letter and CV only during this phase of the recruitment using the following link: <https://apply.interfolio.com/56210>. Candidates will be asked to submit additional supporting materials if selected to participate in future phases of recruitment. Questions may be sent to: Carla Freeman, Senior Associate Dean of Faculty: Dean_of_Faculty@emory.edu

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 10/8/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4973

Vanderbilt University

Rank: Assistant Professor in Political Science

The Department of Political Science at Vanderbilt University invites applications from outstanding political scientists specializing in any subfield within political science for a tenure-track appointment as Assistant Professor. This position is part of a broader multi-year faculty hiring initiative in the data sciences. Candidates will be core members of Vanderbilt's recently established Data Science Institute, and will be expected to contribute to the research and teaching mission of the institute, and ideally to foster research collaborations with existing faculty across academic departments working on data science related topics. The political science department is committed to building an intellectually vibrant, culturally inclusive, and academically diverse community of exceptional faculty. The appointment will begin Fall 2019. Salary and benefits are highly competitive. The Committee will begin reviewing files as early as October 10, 2018. To ensure full consideration, applicants should submit complete applications by October 31, 2018, but we welcome earlier applications and we may schedule formal interviews at any time. We will accept applications until we fill the position. Among the qualifications required for hire is the Ph.D. in hand or expected by August, 2019.

Application Instructions:

Interested applicants should submit a cover letter, curriculum vitae, a research statement, a teaching statement, a writing sample, teaching evaluations (if applicable), and three letters of reference electronically via Interfolio at this link: <http://apply.interfolio.com/56264>.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 10/8/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4972

Columbia University

Rank: Visiting Associate Professor/Professor in the Core Curriculum

Columbia University invites applications for Visiting Professorships in the Core Curriculum for one academic year. The professorships are open to tenured faculty who have an active interest and accomplishments in liberal arts teaching and curricular development.

The visiting professors will be appointed in one of the Humanities or Social Science departments of the Faculty of Arts and Sciences. The visitors will each teach one year-long course in the Core Curriculum and possibly an additional course in their area of specialization. Visiting Professors will also pursue a scholarly project and develop a curricular plan for implementation at their home institution.

Review of applications will begin December 15, 2018 and will continue until the positions are filled.

For more information about the position and about required application materials, go to: <https://www.college.columbia.edu/core/center/visiting-prof>.

Ph.D. required. All candidates must be tenured at their home institution and have excellent record of liberal arts teaching and commitment to curricular development. Candidates for Visiting Professor should be widely recognized for their distinction and professional accomplishment. Candidates for Visiting Associate Professor should possess a demonstrated record of professional achievement and show great promise for attaining distinction in their fields of specialization. Interest or experience in academic administration preferred.

All applications must be made through Columbia University's online Recruitment of Academic Personnel System (RAPS) at: <http://pa334.peopleadmin.com/postings/1525>.

Applicants should provide: a letter of application, curriculum vitae, the names of two persons who may be asked to provide a letter of reference, a proposal for a scholarly project, and a curriculum development plan with an attached letter of support for the curricular plan from the relevant senior academic officer at the home institution.

Start Date: Summer 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 10/5/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4961

University of Alabama at Birmingham

Rank: Assistant or Associate Professor - Political Science and Public Administration

Assistant or Associate Professor
Department of Political Science and Public Administration
College of Arts and Sciences
The University of Alabama at Birmingham (UAB)

The Master of Public Administration (MPA) Program in the Department of Political Science and Public Administration at UAB invites nominations and applications for a tenure-track or tenured faculty position in Public Administration (at the advanced Assistant or Associate Professor level). While the area of research specialization is open, the MPA program is particularly interested in applicants with research interest in the area of nonprofit management and/or public-private partnerships. The position will begin in Fall 2019.

The MPA Program is NASPAA-accredited, and according to US News and World Report, a nationally ranked MPA Program; it is also one of the four top MPA Programs in the Southeastern US. The MPA Program has both in-service and pre-service students, and enjoys the steady support of organized MPA alumni with strong local and national membership. UAB is a premier, comprehensive research university, ranked as one of the top 15 research universities in the nation. Metro Birmingham (pop. 1 million) is an ethnically diverse and cosmopolitan setting with exciting neighborhoods, excellent cultural institutions, and a very high quality of life.

To ensure full consideration, submit a letter of interest, curriculum vitae, graduate transcripts, and at least three letters of recommendation. Review will begin November 1, 2018 and will continue until the position is filled. Interested applicants please follow this link to apply: <http://uab.peopleadmin.com/postings/4431>.

UAB is an Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action Employer committed to fostering a diverse, equitable and family-friendly environment in which all faculty and staff can excel and achieve work/life balance irrespective of race, national origin, age, genetic or family medical history, gender, faith, gender identity and expression as well as sexual orientation. UAB also encourages applications from individuals with disabilities and veterans.

A pre-employment background investigation is performed on candidates selected for employment.

Apply Here: <http://www.Click2Apply.net/y47cq3yb2qykzpd3>

PI104694388

Start Date:

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 10/5/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4969

Harvard University

Rank: Tenure-Track Professor in African Studies

The Department of African and African American Studies seeks to appoint a tenure-track professor in African Studies, specializing in the social sciences, with a preference in areas of sociology, political science/ government, or economics and economic development. The appointment is expected to begin on July 1, 2019. The tenure-track professor is expected to teach at the undergraduate and graduate levels.

Basic Qualifications: Doctoral degree required by the time the appointment begins.

Additional Qualifications: Demonstrated excellence in teaching and research is expected.

Special Instructions: Please submit the following materials through the ARIeS portal (<https://academicpositions.harvard.edu/postings/8488>). Applications must be submitted no later than November 15, 2018.

- 1) Cover Letter
- 2) Curriculum Vitae

- 3) Research Statement
- 4) Teaching Statement
- 5) Names and contact information of 3-5 referees who will be asked by a system-generated email to upload a letter of recommendation once the candidate's application has been submitted. Three letters of recommendation are required, and the application is considered complete only when at least three letters have been received.
- 6) Publications, if applicable

Contact Information: Jacob Olupona, Chair of Search Committee, Department of African and African American Studies, Faculty of Arts and Sciences, Harvard University, Cambridge, MA. 02138

Contact Email: Jacob Olupona, c/o Giovanna Micconi (micconi@fas.harvard.edu)

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: 11/15/2018

Date Posted: 10/4/2018

Salary: Any

eJobs ID: 4951

Princeton University

Rank: Postdoctoral Research Associate/CSDP

Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Comparative Politics, Other

Princeton University's Center for the Study of Democratic Politics (CSDP) seeks postdoctoral or more senior research associates for the ten-month 2019-2020 academic year. The Center supports empirical research on democratic political processes and institutions. PhD required.

Each research associate will pursue research and contribute to the intellectual life of the Center, the Department of Politics, and the Woodrow Wilson School of Public and International Affairs. CSDP scholars must be in residence at Princeton during the academic terms, and are expected to participate in the weekly CSDP seminars and related weekly research seminars in the Department of Politics, as well as occasional lectures, conferences, and other events. Successful candidates will receive a competitive salary and applicable Princeton University benefits in accordance with university guidelines, a taxable moving allowance, and a research allowance.

Applicants for this 2019-2020 postdoctoral research associate position must apply online to position req number D-19-WWS-00017 <https://www.princeton.edu/acad-positions/position/9022> and submit a CV, a 3-5 page (double-spaced) statement of research interest/research proposal, a writing sample, and the names of two (and not more than two) references. A cover letter is optional. The deadline for receipt of complete applications is Friday, November 30, 2018 at 11:59 p.m. EST (including letters of recommendation from the two references). This position is subject to the University's background check policy.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: 11/30/2018

Date Posted: 10/4/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4952

Princeton University

Rank: Postdoctoral Research Associate/CSDP Fellowship

Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Comparative Politics, Other

Princeton University's Center for the Study of Democratic Politics (CSDP) seeks postdoctoral or more senior research associates for the ten-month 2019-2020 academic year. The Center supports empirical research on democratic political processes and institutions. PhD required.

Each research associate will pursue research and contribute to the intellectual life of the Center, the Department of Politics, and the Woodrow Wilson School of Public and International Affairs. CSDP scholars must be in residence at Princeton during the academic terms, and are expected to participate in the weekly CSDP seminars and related weekly research seminars in the Department of Politics, as well as occasional lectures, conferences, and other events. Successful candidates will receive a competitive salary and applicable Princeton University benefits in accordance with university guidelines, a taxable moving allowance, and a research allowance.

Applicants for this 2019-2020 postdoctoral research associate position must apply online to position req number D-19-WWS-00017 <https://www.princeton.edu/acad-positions/position/9022> and submit a CV, a 3-5 page (double-spaced) statement of research interest/research proposal, a writing sample, and the names of two (and not more than two) references. A cover letter is optional. The deadline for receipt of complete applications is Friday, November 30, 2018 at 11:59 p.m. EST (including letters of recommendation from the two references). This position is subject to the University's background check policy.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Date Posted: 10/4/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4953

Princeton University

Rank: Visiting Research Scholar/CSDP Fellowship

Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Comparative Politics, Other

Princeton University's Center for the Study of Democratic Politics (CSDP) seeks visiting scholars for the 2019-2020 academic year. The Center supports empirical research on democratic political processes and institutions. Applications are welcome from political scientists and scholars in related social science disciplines. CSDP visiting scholar positions are restricted to employed scholars on leave who are expected to return to their position.

Each scholar will pursue research and contribute to the intellectual life of the Center, the Department of Politics, and the Woodrow Wilson School of Public and International Affairs. CSDP scholars must be in residence at Princeton during the academic terms, and are expected to participate in the weekly CSDP seminars and related weekly research seminars in the Department of Politics, as well as occasional lectures, conferences, and other events. Successful candidates will receive a competitive salary (those who hold faculty appointments at other academic institutions normally receive one-half their academic-year salaries for the appointment period, but this may vary depending on level of support from the home institution), applicable benefits, a taxable moving allowance, and a research allowance.

Verification of employment and salary will be requested prior to approval by the Dean of the Faculty. PhD or equivalent doctoral degree required. Applicants for this 2019-2020 Visiting Scholar position must apply online and submit a CV, a 3-5 page (double-spaced) statement of research interest/research proposal, a writing sample, a brief statement of anticipated (estimated) salary support from the home institution for the 2019-2020 academic year, and statement of the home institution's leave policy. A cover letter is optional.

Applicants for this Visiting Research Scholar position for 2019-2020 should apply to D-19-WWS-00016. <https://www.princeton.edu/acad-positions/position/9021>. The deadline for receipt of complete applications is Friday, November 30, 2018 at 11:59 p.m. EST.

Start Date: Fall 2019
Application Deadline: 11/30/2018
Date Posted: 10/4/2018
Salary: Competitive
eJobs ID: 4954

University of Chicago

Rank: Instructor in Human Rights

The Social Sciences Collegiate Division at the University of Chicago invites applications for a one-year, renewable post-doctoral instructor in Human Rights, beginning September 1, 2019. Responsibilities include the design and teaching of three courses over three quarters, participation in the activities of the Pozen Center for Human Rights, and advising a small number of BA or MA theses. The salary is competitive, and the instructor will receive applicable University benefits, a professional development fund, and a relocation allowance.

We seek to attract an outstanding scholar whose work in the humanities or social sciences demonstrates excellence and addresses questions of lasting importance for the study of human rights. Candidates whose work is informed by comparative and global perspectives are preferred. Prior experience teaching undergraduates is preferred. The position is open to applicants who will have completed all requirements for their doctoral degree no later than August 31, 2019.

Review of applications will begin on December 14, 2018, and continue until the position is filled; early submission is encouraged. Applications must be submitted online through the University of Chicago's Academic Career Opportunities website, requisition #03917. Applications must include 1) a cover letter; 2) a curriculum vitae; 3) a research statement addressing current and future research plans; 4) a teaching statement addressing teaching experience and philosophy; 5) a sample syllabus for an undergraduate human rights course; 6) one sample of scholarly writing (a published article or unpublished paper or chapter); and 7) the names and contact information of three references whose recommendation letters will be solicited automatically by the application system. Only complete applications will be considered.

The University of Chicago is an Affirmative Action/Equal Opportunity/Disabled/Veterans Employer and does not discriminate on the basis of race, color, religion, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, national or ethnic origin, age, status as an individual with a disability, protected veteran status, genetic information, or other protected classes under the law. For additional information please see the University's Notice of Nondiscrimination at http://www.uchicago.edu/about/non_discrimination_statement/. Job seekers in need of a reasonable accommodation to complete the application process should call 773-702-0287 or email ACOppAdministrator@uchicago.edu with their request.

Start Date: Fall 2019
Application Deadline: Open until Filled
Date Posted: 10/3/2018
Salary: Competitive
eJobs ID: 4945

University of Chicago

Rank: Instructor in Human Rights

The Social Sciences Collegiate Division at the University of Chicago invites applications for a one-year, renewable post-doctoral instructor in Human Rights, beginning September 1, 2019. Responsibilities include the design and teaching of three courses over three quarters, participation in the activities of the Pozen Center for Human Rights, and advising a small number of BA or MA theses. The salary is competitive, and the instructor will receive applicable University benefits, a professional development fund, and a relocation allowance.

We seek to attract an outstanding scholar whose work in the humanities or social sciences demonstrates excellence and addresses questions of lasting importance for the study of human rights. Candidates whose work is informed by comparative and global perspectives are preferred. Prior experience teaching undergraduates is preferred. The position is open to applicants who will have completed all requirements for their doctoral degree no later than August 31, 2019.

Review of applications will begin on December 14, 2018, and continue until the position is filled; early submission is encouraged. Applications must be submitted online through the University of Chicago's Academic Career Opportunities website, requisition #03917: <https://academiccareers.uchicago.edu>. Applications must include 1) a cover letter; 2) a curriculum vitae; 3) a research statement addressing current and future research plans; 4) a teaching statement addressing teaching experience and philosophy; 5) a sample syllabus for an undergraduate human rights course; 6) one sample of scholarly writing (a published article or unpublished paper or chapter); and 7) the names and contact information of three references whose recommendation letters will be solicited automatically by the application system. Only complete applications will be considered.

The University of Chicago is an Affirmative Action/Equal Opportunity/Disabled/Veterans Employer and does not discriminate on the basis of race, color, religion, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, national or ethnic origin, age, status as an individual with a disability, protected veteran status, genetic information, or other protected classes under the law. For additional information please see the University's Notice of Nondiscrimination at http://www.uchicago.edu/about/non_discrimination_statement/. Job seekers in need of a reasonable accommodation to complete the application process should call 773-702-0287 or email ACOppAdministrator@uchicago.edu with their request.

Start Date: Fall 2019
Application Deadline: Open until Filled
Date Posted: 10/3/2018
Salary: Competitive
eJobs ID: 4946

Hunter College, Urban Affairs and PlanningRank: Job Title: Faculty Open Rank - Public Policy (Urban Policy and Planning) Job ID:19432

FACULTY VACANCY ANNOUNCEMENT

The Urban Policy and Planning Department (UPP) at Hunter College is holding an open rank search for an Assistant, Associate or Full Professor to enhance its research and teaching profile in public policy. We especially welcome applications from candidates whose research and writing focuses on social policy related to the problems of poverty and inequality; however, we will consider applications from scholars in other areas of policy expertise as well. UPP is an interdisciplinary department with two graduate programs (MS in Urban Policy and Leadership, Master of Urban Planning [MUP]), and an undergraduate Urban Studies program. The successful candidate will be expected to teach basic courses in public policy processes and methods, as well as advanced courses in their area of expertise. These teaching responsibilities will be divided between UPP and the Roosevelt House Public Policy Institute at Hunter College.

Hunter is committed to active engagement with students and the community at large, and embraces equity, inclusiveness, and global awareness in all dimensions of our work.

QUALIFICATIONS

Ph.D. degree in public policy or related discipline, demonstrated ability to teach at the graduate and undergraduate levels, a record of scholarship commensurate with academic rank sought, and a record of professional and institutional service.

COMPENSATION

CUNY offers faculty a competitive compensation and benefits package covering health insurance, pension and retirement benefits, paid parental leave, and savings programs. We also provide mentoring and support for research, scholarship, and publication as part of our commitment to ongoing faculty professional development.

HOW TO APPLY

Click on the "Apply Now" button and follow the application instructions. Please have your curriculum vitae/ resume and scholarly interest or cover letter with names and contact information of 3 references available to attach into the application before you begin. Please note that the required material must be uploaded as ONE document. The document must be in .doc, .docx, .pdf, .rtf, or text format- and name of file should not exceed ten (10) characters. Incomplete application packages will not be considered.

CLOSING DATE

Open until filled with review of applications to begin October 25, 2018.

JOB SEARCH CATEGORY

CUNY Job Posting: Faculty

EQUAL EMPLOYMENT OPPORTUNITY

CUNY encourages people with disabilities, minorities, veterans and women to apply. At CUNY, Italian Americans are also included among our protected groups. Applicants and employees will not be discriminated against on the basis of any legally protected category, including sexual orientation or gender identity. EEO/AA/Vet/Disability Employer.

Start Date: Fall 2018

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 10/1/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4922

Naval War CollegeRank: Admin Asst

U.S. NAVAL WAR COLLEGE-AT-NAVAL POSTGRADUATE SCHOOL
MONTEREY, CALIFORNIA SEEKS
PROFESSOR OF JOINT MARITIME OPERATIONS
COLLEGE OF DISTANCE EDUCATION
ASSISTANT/ASSOCIATE (AD-1701-03/05)

The United States Naval War College, Newport, Rhode Island, invites applications for one position of Professor of Joint Maritime Operations (JMO) in its College of Distance Education (CDE), Naval War College-at-Naval Postgraduate School (NWC-at-NPS) Program in Monterey, CA. The position is full-time with rank and salary commensurate with experience and credentials.

The Naval War College is a Professional Military Education (PME) institution serving the nation, the Department of Defense, and the U.S. Navy. The CDE conducts its courses in the NWC-at-NPS Program in a classroom seminar format. For more information, see the department's webpage: <https://usnwc.edu/college-of-distance-education>.

Responsibilities: Incumbents teach the "Joint Maritime Operations" (JMO) course at the Intermediate Service College level with duties including: conducting classroom instruction; reviewing and evaluating student essays, examinations, and other written and verbal assessments; developing curricula; performing various types of service to the College; traveling to, and lecturing at, nonresident seminars around the country as required; and performing educational administrative functions as required.

The JMO course prepares students for the operational arena by emphasizing operational planning and joint force application to achieve military objectives. It examines joint operations from the standpoint of the Combatant Commander (COCOM) and Joint Task Force (JTF) Commander with a particular emphasis on maritime operations. It further develops joint attitudes and perspectives and increases understanding of service cultures.

Qualifications: Required qualifications include an advanced degree in at least one of the following areas: National Security, Strategic Studies, International Affairs, International Relations, or a related field; current, relevant, and proven expertise in joint or maritime operational level warfare and US Navy roles and missions; and demonstrated experience working in the national security and defense environments.

Preferred qualifications that will make candidates especially competitive include graduation from a U.S. military senior- or intermediate-level Service College with JPME-I and/or II certification, and/or U.S. military Service College teaching experience at the graduate level.

Candidates should ideally have teaching and administrative/program management experience at the graduate level. Experience and competence in internet-based instruction and distance learning experience at the graduate level are also highly desired.

This position requires that candidates must be capable of obtaining and maintaining a Department of Defense SECRET security clearance.

Salary Considerations: Salary is competitive and is accompanied by a generous federal civil service package that includes health insurance, pension and retirement savings plans (with employer matching contributions), paid vacation and sick leave, and other benefits. Rank and salary are commensurate with experience and credentials in accordance with the Department of the Navy Faculty Schedule.

Application Process: Applications will be accepted through October 26, 2018 and must reference VA#NWC-18-15. Applications must include: 1) a detailed cover letter of introduction that addresses the qualifications listed above; 2) a comprehensive Curriculum Vitae/Resume; and 3) contact information for three professional references.

Active duty members may apply under this announcement but are subject to eligibility requirements of the Veterans Opportunity to Work Act (VOW). Active duty members MUST submit a statement of service printed on command letterhead and signed by the command. The statement of service MUST provide the branch, rate/rank, all dates of service, the expected date of discharge, and anticipated character of service (Honorable, General, etc.). Please note: you will be ineligible for consideration if your statement of service is not submitted with your application or if it shows an expected discharge or release date greater than 120 days after being submitted with your application.

Within the Department of Defense (DoD), the appointment of retired military members within 180 days immediately following retirement date to a civilian position is subject to the provisions of 5 United States Code 3326.

Applications must be submitted by email to hro-cde-18-15@usnwc.edu and must reference VA#NWC-18-15.

Questions about this position should be directed via email to Professor Fred Drake at fpdrake@nps.edu. The Naval War College is an Equal Opportunity Employer.

Start Date: Winter 2018

Application Deadline: 10/26/2018

Date Posted: 10/1/2018

Salary: Negotiable

eJobs ID: 4927

University of California, San Diego

Rank: Postdoctoral Scholar

The Institute for Practical Ethics, a newly founded interdisciplinary research unit at the University of California, San Diego, is dedicated to the pursuit of socially responsible science. Forming connections among ethicists, social scientists, natural scientists, health professionals, and the community, it seeks to address ethical and social issues facing society, from ethical issues in clinical trials, environmental conservation, stem cell research, engineering and big data, and much more. Further information about the Institute can be found at ipe.ucsd.edu.

Thanks to a generous grant from the Tata Foundation, one of the Institute's projects over the next few years will be focused on the Ethics and Social Implications of Active Genetics. "Active genetics" refers to new advances in genetic engineering, advances associated with more precise editing methods (e.g., through CRISPR-CAS9) combined with faster and more powerful ways of driving mutations through populations (commonly called a gene-drive). This emerging ability aspires to make progress in disease reduction, agriculture, and cancer research. For example, scientists are working on modifying a species of mosquito so that it cannot transmit malaria, along with a gene drive to ensure that this new mosquito quickly replaces the wild one. This technology's power to transform raises ethical issues and questions about social impact. The goal of this project is to anticipate and study these new issues. We are particularly interested in projects that will focus upon this technology's possible use in India.

To this end, the Institute has assembled an interdisciplinary research team of dissertation fellows, PhD candidates, postdoctoral scholars, and UC San Diego faculty who work in this area. Members of the research team plan and participate in a monthly meeting devoted to the science and ethics of active genetics; organize lectures, colloquia, round-tables, or other public events exploring the topic; and convene at least one major international conference. Postdoctoral scholars are also expected to be working on their own major project that concerns active genetics. While there is no existing field of gene drive studies per se, we anticipate that scholars with expertise in related questions will be especially competitive. We anticipate successful applicants being from, but not limited to, the fields of philosophy, ethics, bioethics, sociology, science studies and anthropology.

The Institute for Practical Ethics at the University of California, San Diego, invites applications for the position of postdoctoral scholar for the academic years 2019-2020 and 2020-2021. Applicants must possess a PhD granted from an accredited university before the position begins.

The postdoctoral scholar positions are two-year appointments, with the second year contingent upon acceptable performance in the first year. Salary, as based on UC's salary scales and candidate qualifications, will be provided in exchange for active participation in the Institute's program of activities and in particular its research project in Ethical Issues and Social Implications in Active Genetics. Postdoctoral scholars will be expected to lead monthly meetings on active genetics and ethics, attend a monthly meeting on scientific issues within active genetics, and assist with project activities (which may include writing grant proposals, organizing workshops, and research in the area). Duties will be decided through consultation between the postdoctoral scholar and Institute Co-Directors. Postdoctoral scholars are required to be in residence for the entirety of the academic years. The postdoctoral scholar position is open to international applicants. The Institute is especially interested in candidates who can contribute to the diversity and excellence of the academic community through research and service.

Primary consideration will be given to applications submitted by December 1, 2018, but all applications will be considered until positions are filled. Applications should be submitted to Tara Nadeau (tnadeau@ucsd.edu) and should include:

- Cover letter
- Curriculum vitae
- Brief statement (1000 words maximum) summarizing the applicant's intellectual interests, scholarly training, and research agenda as these relate to Ethics and Implications of Active Genetics

- Copies of no more than two representative publications or dissertation chapters
- Two letters of recommendation

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: 12/1/2018

Date Posted: 10/1/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4914

Victoria University of Wellington

Rank: New Zealand Prime Minister's ANZSOG Chair in Public Service Ethics and Integrity

Subfield(s): Other, Comparative Politics, Political Theory

ANZSOG

Wellington, New Zealand

- Inaugural ANZSOG Chair in New Zealand's only School of Government
- Highly accredited Business School located in capital city
- New Zealand's first ranked university for research quality (PBRF 2012)

About ANZSOG

The Australia and New Zealand School of Government (ANZSOG) is recognised globally as a leading provider of executive-level education and high quality research for and about the public sector. ANZSOG was created by government for government, with the active collaboration of its member universities.

ANZSOG delivers the following:

- Postgraduate education incorporating the core disciplines that inform effective public administration
- Executive education led by academics from the world's leading education providers and senior officials from among ANZSOG's ten member governments and other jurisdictions
- International programs and exchanges for senior public servants in the Indo-Pacific region
- Safe places for senior practitioners to discuss and draw practical learnings from theory, research and case studies, to inform policy debates and service delivery reform
- Supportive environments for senior practitioners across Australia and New Zealand to learn from one another and build lasting professional networks, benefiting governments, communities and citizens
- Research that addresses key contemporary issues in public administration, policy development and management
- Capability building for not-for-profit organisations, which deliver services with and on behalf of government

At the core of our ethos is a deep and genuine care for good public administration, reflecting the aspirations of and our close relationship to our government owners. For further information: <https://www.anzsog.edu.au/>

About Victoria University of Wellington

Victoria University of Wellington (VUW) is New Zealand's globally ranked capital city university, located in the vibrant cultural centre of the country. The University draws on the distinctive nature of Wellington as the seat of government, and the financial centre of New Zealand. VUW has a proud tradition of fostering international links in teaching and research, delivering a student experience second to none and offering programmes of national and international significance. Thinking about a future in a culture where innovation and diversity are highly valued? Think Victoria.

Situated directly opposite the Parliament of New Zealand, the Victoria Business School holds the 'triple crown' (AACSB, EQUIS and AMBA) of international accreditations and is seeking to appoint an outstanding candidate to the newly established New Zealand Prime Minister's ANZSOG Chair in Public Service Ethics and Integrity.

The Chair

The Chair will give priority to improving New Zealand's public sector leadership, and its impact on economic and social performance, particularly in the areas of integrity and ethical conduct.

The Chair's activities will cover teaching, executive education, research, outreach and stakeholder engagement.

The Chair will:

- consult with government stakeholders, particularly in New Zealand, and establish new executive education courses for public officials (and public-purpose and private sector participants where appropriate) for delivery in New Zealand, and as required in Australia and the Asia Pacific region
- conduct research in own field/s, with emphasis on topics relevant to ANZSOG's mission, including public administration, strategic public management and public policy
- assist the Dean and Deputy Deans of ANZSOG, and The Dean of Victoria Business School at Victoria, in dealings with government and stakeholder organisations to promote ANZSOG's and Victoria's reputation and deliverables
- contribute significantly to academic service, engagement, management and collegiality within Victoria and ANZSOG.

For more information about the Chair, please see attached Position Description or contact Girol Karacaoglu at Girol.Karacaoglu@vuw.ac.nz or 04 463 6850.

For more information about the University, please visit www.victoria.ac.nz

Applications close Tuesday, 30 October 2018.

For more information and to apply online visit <http://www.victoria.ac.nz/about/careers/current-vacancies>

Reference 2428.

Start Date:

Date Posted: 10/1/2018

Salary: $80,000 - $89,999

eJobs ID: 4937

Yale University

Rank: Henry A. Kissinger Postdoctoral Fellowship

Subfield(s): International Relations, Methodology, Other

The Henry A. Kissinger Visiting Scholars Program awards one postdoctoral fellowship, funded by the Johnson Center for the Study of American Diplomacy for one year and renewable for one additional year. Postdoctoral Kissinger Visiting Scholars must have completed their Ph.D. degree to begin the fellowship.

Kissinger Visiting Scholars are expected to use the time to conduct original research and write manuscripts for publication, focused on the role of the United States in global affairs from World War II to the present, including the conduct of U.S. statecraft, diplomacy, and grand strategy. Kissinger Visiting Scholars fellowships will be awarded to candidates with outstanding proposals that require access to the Henry A. Kissinger Papers or other archival holdings related to American diplomacy at Yale. (<http://web.library.yale.edu/digital-collections/kissinger-collection>; <http://guides.library.yale.edu/american-diplomacy-primary-sources>).

Kissinger Visiting Scholars will also work with an active academic community of post-doctoral fellows and pre-doctoral fellows, as well as Yale faculty in history, political science, and other disciplines.

Postdoctoral Kissinger Visiting Scholars may teach small seminars if desired on subjects relevant to grand strategy, participate regularly in research colloquia on campus, and are granted opportunities to present their work. Postdoctoral fellows are expected to remain in residence through the duration of their fellowship and contribute to the intellectual life of the Program in Grand Strategy, International Security Studies, and the Jackson Institute for Global Affairs by participating in their activities and development. Offices are located on Yale's campus.

The Johnson Center for the Study of American Diplomacy was founded upon the 2011 donation of Dr. Henry Kissinger's papers to Yale related to his pre-government, government, and post-government careers (<http://news.yale.edu/2011/06/14/yale-receive-kissinger-papers-and-establish-johnson-center-study-american-diplomacy>). A program of the Jackson Institute for Global Affairs, in conjunction with International Security Studies and the Brady-Johnson Program in Grand Strategy, the Center brings academics and practitioners to Yale as Kissinger Visiting Scholars and Kissinger Senior Fellows, as well as hosts an annual conference a range of other activities relating to international affairs.

Qualifications

Recent Ph.D. in relevant field. Ph.D. must be in hand by September 1, 2019.

APPLICATION INSTRUCTIONS

A complete application includes:

1. C.V.
2. 100-word research proposal abstract.
3. 1000-word research proposal, to include an explanation of how access to the Kissinger Papers or other archival holdings related to diplomatic history at Yale would help achieve the goals of your project.
4. Three letters of recommendation.
5. Two writing samples, e.g., dissertation chapters or journal articles.

Applications are due through Interfolio (<https://apply.interfolio.com/54775>) by November 12th.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: 11/12/2018

Date Posted: 9/27/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4913

Yale University

Rank: Henry Chauncey Postdoctoral Fellowship

Subfield(s): International Relations, Methodology, Other

Henry Chauncey Postdoctoral Fellowship

The Chauncey Postdoctoral Fellowships are up to three positions funded by the Brady-Johnson Program in Grand Strategy for one year renewable for one additional year. We seek to attract outstanding junior scholars from around the globe whose work addresses questions of statecraft and grand strategy, broadly defined, and demonstrates excellence in one of a range of academic disciplines and methodologies. Postdoctoral fellows must have completed their PhD degree to begin the fellowship. They are expected to use their time at Yale to conduct original research and prepare manuscripts for publication. Fellows will work with an active academic community of postdoctoral and predoctoral fellows, as well as Yale faculty in history, political science, and other disciplines. Postdoctoral fellows may teach small seminars if desired. They participate regularly in research colloquia on campus and are granted opportunities to present their work. Postdoctoral fellows are expected to remain in residence through the duration of their fellowship and contribute to the intellectual life of the Brady-Johnson Program in Grand Strategy and to International Security Studies by participating in their activities and development. Offices are located on Yale's campus.

Qualifications

Recent Ph.D. in relevant field. Ph.D. must be in hand by September 1, 2019.

Application Instructions

A complete application consists of:

1. CV
2. A 100-word research proposal abstract.
3. A 1000-word research proposal.
4. Three letters of recommendation.
5. Two writing samples, e.g. dissertation chapters or journal articles.

Applications are due through Interfolio (<https://apply.interfolio.com/55016>) by December 3rd.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: 12/3/2018

Date Posted: 9/27/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4912

National Science Foundation

Rank: Division Director for the Division of Social and Economic Sciences

Summary:

Become a part of our mission to maintain and strengthen the vitality of the US science and engineering enterprise. For over 70 years, the http://www.nsf.gov/about/National Science Foundation (NSF) has remained the premier Federal agency supporting basic research at the frontiers of discovery across all fields, as well as science and engineering education at all levels

Responsibilities:

Serves as a member of the SBE Directorate leadership team and as a principal spokesperson in social and economic sciences for the Foundation. Provides leadership and direction to the NSF Division responsible for funding research and education activities, both nationally and internationally, to develop and advance scientific knowledge and methods focusing on our understanding of individuals, social and organizational behavior by creating and sustaining social science infrastructure, and by supporting disciplinary and interdisciplinary research that advances knowledge in the social and economic sciences. The incumbent has managerial and oversight responsibilities for the effective use of division staff and resources in meeting organizational goals and objectives (e.g., broadening participation). Assesses needs and trends involving the social and economic sciences, implements overall strategic planning and policy setting for the Division, provides leadership and guidance to Division staff members, determines funding requirements, prepares and justifies budget estimates, balances program needs, allocates resources, oversees the evaluation of proposals and recommendations for awards and declinations, and represents NSF to relevant external groups. Supervises and provides leadership and guidance to senior staff (Deputy Division Director), program officers, administrative and support personnel. Fosters partnerships with other Divisions, Directorates, Federal agencies, scientific organizations, and the academic community.

The complete job listing can be found at: <https://www.usajobs.gov/GetJob/ViewDetails/509838100https://www.usajobs.gov/GetJob/ViewDetails/509838100g>>

Start Date:

Application Deadline: 10/31/2018

Date Posted: 9/26/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4884

The University of Arizona

Rank: Assistant/Associate/Full Professor (Multiple Positions), Political Economy & Moral Science

The University of Arizona Department of Political Economy and Moral Science anticipates appointing tenure track faculty members, with appointments beginning in the Fall of 2019. The positions are contingent upon funding. Expected rank: Assistant, Associate, or Full Professor. A record of distinguished research in political economy broadly construed (analytic, experimental, or historical) or “PPE,” and a Ph.D. in a relevant field are required. The successful candidates will contribute to the Department’s undergraduate major in Philosophy, Politics, Economics, and Law and to the Department’s development, including planning for a masters degree.

The Department of Political Economy and Moral Science emphatically welcomes applications from scholars with diverse perspectives and methods who are eager to work in an interdisciplinary setting. Applications should include a letter of application along with a current curriculum vitae, evidence of teaching experience in political economy/ppe, a statement of research plans, and at least three letters of reference. Application materials must be submitted on the university website <https://uacareers.com>.

Duties & Responsibilities

Contribute to the Department’s undergraduate major in Philosophy, Politics, Economics, and Law and to the Department’s development, including planning for a masters degree.

Teach one or two courses per semester.

Conduct research.

Provide service to the unit, college, university, profession, and community.

Knowledge, Skills, & Abilities

Minimum Qualifications

A Ph.D. in a relevant field (including but not limited to, Philosophy, Political Science and Economics) is required.

Preferred Qualifications

A record of distinguished research in political economy broadly construed (analytic, experimental, or historical) or “PPE.”

Applications must be submitted online. [<https://uacareers.com/>]. Reference job posting F21572

In addition, it is requested that a hard copy of application materials be sent to David Schmitz, Search Committee Chair, Department of Political Economy and Moral Science at schmitz@email.arizona.edu. Nominations may also be sent to this address: 213 Social Sciences, University of Arizona, Tucson, AZ 85721-0027.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 9/21/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4872

Cornell University

Rank: Tenure Track Assistant Professor

The Center for the Study of Inequality (CSI) at Cornell, in collaboration with the Departments of Economics, Government, and Sociology, welcomes applications for two full-time, tenure track positions at the rank of assistant professor. Positions will begin July 1, 2019. Successful candidates will be appointed in one of the three disciplinary departments, which will serve as their tenure home, but also participate in and contribute to the rich intellectual life and vibrant multidisciplinary community of inequality scholars affiliated with CSI. We seek scholars who have demonstrated excellence in research and teaching. Candidates in Government will be considered from any subfield of political science, with a thematic focus on class, racial, ethnic, or international inequalities, or other inequalities in democratic citizenship and representation. Candidates in Sociology may focus on any area of inequality, broadly defined, and use any method in their work; we especially encourage applications from scholars who combine inequality with a cognate subfield (e.g., computational sociology, political sociology, race and ethnicity, theory). Candidates in Economics may focus on any area of inequality. All candidates are required to have earned a PhD by July 1, 2019.

Interested candidates should submit a letter of application, curriculum vitae, up to three writing samples, three letters of recommendation, and teaching evaluations and materials if they are available. Electronic application materials should be sent to: <https://academicjobsonline.org/ajo/jobs/12370>. Candidates in economics can submit academic references instead of letters of recommendation if letters are not available. We will begin to review applications starting October 21st and continue until the search is complete.

Start Date: Summer 2019

Application Deadline: 11/16/2018

Date Posted: 9/20/2018

Salary: Negotiable

eJobs ID: 4865

Dartmouth College

Rank: Assistant Professor in Quantitative Social Science

Position Description

The Program in Quantitative Social Science (QSS) at Dartmouth College seeks a scholar for a tenure-track appointment as Assistant Professor, to be appointed as early as July 1, 2019. QSS is an interdisciplinary program that integrates modern statistical, computational, and mathematical tools with social science. We welcome applications from scholars working in applied methods whose work advances knowledge in social science broadly construed. Applicants should demonstrate strong, applied skills in quantitative methods and should be highly motivated and qualified to teach undergraduate courses in methodology. The successful candidate will demonstrate a promise of a strong research agenda, and is expected to foster cross-disciplinary connections at Dartmouth around quantitative approaches in social science research.

Dartmouth has a strong focus on undergraduate research, and the successful candidate will have the opportunity to participate in programs sponsored by the College's Office of Undergraduate Advising and Research, including the Women in Science Project and the E.E. Just Program. QSS students are highly motivated and engaged with the program's curriculum, and the successful candidate will be able to work with and mentor young people who seek to apply quantitative and computational methods to contemporary problems and challenges in society.

To learn more about Dartmouth College and QSS, visit <http://qss.dartmouth.edu>

Qualifications

Applicants should have doctorate completed by the appointment date.

Application Instructions

Applicants should submit a letter of interest, a current curriculum vitae, a writing sample that demonstrates strong applied skills in quantitative or computational methods, and letters of recommendation from three references. Applications will be administered via Interfolio (<https://apply.interfolio.com/54305>). Review of applications will begin on November 20, 2018, and will continue until the position is filled. Questions may be sent to the search committee chair, John Carey, at John.M.Carey@Dartmouth.edu

Start Date: Summer 2019

Application Deadline: 11/20/2018

Date Posted: 9/20/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4869

Princeton University

Rank: 2019-2020 LAPA Fellowships

The Program in Law and Public Affairs (LAPA) at Princeton University invites outstanding faculty members of any discipline, independent scholars, lawyers, and judges to apply for a residential research fellowship for the academic year 2019–2020. LAPA Fellows devote the major portion of their time to their own research and writing on law-related subjects of empirical, interpretive, doctrinal and/or normative significance. All applicants must have received a doctorate, juris doctor, or an equivalent professional degree at the time of submission of the fellowship application. Successful LAPA applicants should demonstrate substantial expertise in law-related matters. The program does not support, as a primary activity, off-site fieldwork or work in remote archives, development of course materials, work in legal practice, or residence elsewhere.

Candidates must submit an online application at <https://www.princeton.edu/acad-positions/position/7981>

THE DEADLINE FOR SUBMISSION IS 11:59 PM (EST) NOVEMBER 14, 2018.

For additional information see: <http://lapa.princeton.edu/fellowships>

LAPA is cosponsored by the Woodrow Wilson School of Public and International Affairs, the University Center for Human Values and Princeton University.

Start Date: Fall 2018

Application Deadline: 11/14/2018

Date Posted: 9/19/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4859

Princeton University

Rank: Postdoctoral Positions in Values and Public Policy

Subfield(s): Other, Public Policy, Political Theory

Specializations: American Politics, Civil Rights & Liberties, Constitutional Law & Theory

The University Center for Human Values and the Woodrow Wilson School of Public and International Affairs invite applications for postdoctoral or more senior research positions in Values and Public Policy. We aim to support highly promising scholars trained in moral and political philosophy, political theory, normative economics and related areas, in developing a research agenda in the ethical dimensions of public policy.

Candidates selected will undertake a research project exploring a normative problem arising in an area of public policy in which the Woodrow Wilson School conducts research. They will be affiliated with a unit of the School that can inform and support their work. They will also be invited to participate in programs of the University Center for Human Values. Candidates will be expected to contribute the equivalent of one course each year to the undergraduate or graduate programs of the School or the University Center. This contribution may be fulfilled by teaching a course on a topic related to ethical issues in public policy, subject to sufficient enrollment and approval by Program/Center Directors and the Dean of the Faculty, or service to the School or Center, subject to approval by Program/Center/School Directors or Chairs.

Qualifications

Applications are welcome from candidates who have or expect to have a Ph.D. by the start date, September 1, 2019. Applicants should not have held the degree for more than three years by the date of appointment. They may not be employed by another institution during the term of their Princeton appointment.

Applicants' dissertation research need not be specifically in values and public policy, but they will be expected to demonstrate a commitment to working on a research project in this area during their time at Princeton. Projects must be related to an area in which the School has a Center or Program (such as science and environmental policy, health and well-being, democratic institutions and processes, information technology policy or globalization and governance). For more information about these and other areas, please consult <http://wws.princeton.edu/centers-programs>.

Applications will be evaluated on the basis of the applicant's previous accomplishments, the promise of the proposed research project in values and public policy, and the likelihood that the project will be enhanced by being carried out at the Woodrow Wilson School. The capacity to contribute to the University's teaching program will also be taken into account.

Term of Appointment

The term of appointment is one year, normally beginning September 1, 2019, with the expectation of renewal for one further year assuming good performance. Applicants are expected to be in residence for the duration of the appointment. Princeton offers competitive salary and employee benefits.

How to Apply

Candidates must submit an online application:

A complete application will include the following materials: <https://www.princeton.edu/acad-positions/position/7461>

1. A current curriculum vitae;
2. A research proposal (not to exceed 1,500 words), conforming to the expectations stated above. Please identify the Woodrow Wilson School center or program with which you wish to be associated and briefly describe what you hope to gain from carrying out the project there. Also please supply an indicative title for the project at the beginning of the proposal;
3. A scholarly paper or dissertation chapter (not to exceed 12,000 words) representing your scholarly achievement or potential;
4. Contact information for two referees, who will be asked to comment specifically on your qualifications for the proposed research project. Referees will be contacted directly by email with instructions for uploading letters of reference.

These materials must be submitted online by the application deadline of Monday, November 12, 2018, 11:59 p.m. EST. We cannot accept application materials by any other method. Letters of reference are to be submitted by end of business day on Thursday, November 15, 2018. The selection committee will begin reviewing applications immediately and applications lacking any of the elements listed above may be at a disadvantage. Decisions will be announced in March 2019.

This position is subject to the University's background check policy.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: 11/12/2018

Date Posted: 9/18/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4853

Vanderbilt University

Rank: Professor of Education Policy in Equity and Inclusion

Subfield(s): Other, Methodology, Public Policy

The Department of Leadership, Policy, and Organizations at Peabody College of Education and Human Development at Vanderbilt University invites applications for the position of Professor of Education Policy in Equity and Inclusion. We seek distinguished applicants trained in the social sciences who study the ways in which education creates advantages and disadvantages for different individuals and groups in the United States. We are interested in a scholar whose work addresses the effectiveness of the nation's K-16 education system as a site for civic empowerment and social and economic mobility, and whose research critically examines fundamental questions around the role of schools and/or colleges in the achievement of an equitable, inclusive, and diverse society.

Candidates should possess an exemplary record of scholarly accomplishment and a demonstrated capacity to work collaboratively with colleagues commensurate with the rank of full professor. A successful record of external funding is expected. The successful candidate will have experience mentoring and training doctoral students for careers in academia and closely allied research organizations, and commitments to teaching undergraduate and professional degree students.

The mission of the Department of Leadership, Policy, and Organizations is to understand and improve the political, economic, organizational, and social contexts in which human learning takes place. The department embraces a range of disciplinary traditions and encourages multiple methodological approaches in the study of education policy and practice.

The department operates highly regarded programs and degrees at the undergraduate, master's, and doctoral level, including professional master's degree programs; an on-campus Ed.D. program in K-12 and in higher education leadership and policy; an online Ed.D. in leadership and learning in organizations; a Ph.D. program in K-12 and in higher education leadership and policy; and an undergraduate degree in Human and Organizational Development. For more information on the department, visit our website: <http://peabody.vanderbilt.edu/departments/lpo/index.php>

Applications

Review of formal applications will begin December 1, 2018, and continue until the position is filled. The anticipated start date is August 2019. Applicants should submit a letter addressing their qualifications and interests, a full curriculum vitae, three recent peer-reviewed publications, and the names and contact information of three references. Please apply at the following link: <https://apply.interfolio.com/53826>

For questions about the position, please contact:

Ellen Goldring

Patricia and Rodes Hart Chair

Professor of Education Policy and Leadership

Chair, Department of Leadership, Policy, and Organizations

Peabody #414, 230 Appleton Place

Nashville, TN 37203

ellen.goldring@vanderbilt.edu

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: 12/1/2018

Date Posted: 9/18/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4849

Glendon College, York University

Rank: Assistant Lecturer (tenure-track)

Subfield(s): Comparative Politics, International Relations, Other

The Department of Political Science, Glendon College, York University, invites applications for a teaching stream (alternate stream) tenure-track position in any area of political science at the rank of Assistant Lecturer, to commence July 1, 2019. The successful candidate will teach large undergraduate courses as well as upper-year undergraduate seminars across subfields and may also teach graduate courses. The candidate will provide leadership in enhancing teaching and learning through curricular and pedagogical innovation. A Ph.D. in political science in hand or near completion by July 1, 2019 is required. The successful candidate must be fluent in English and French and be able to teach in both languages in a multicultural context.

The successful candidate will demonstrate excellence or clear potential for excellence in teaching university-level courses, a strong commitment to pedagogy and student success, and the capacity to bring a theoretical and practical orientation to teaching, learning, and program design. The successful candidate will demonstrate capacity to teach large undergraduate courses as well as upper-year undergraduate seminars across subfields. A record of pedagogical innovation in high priority areas such as experiential education, technology enhanced learning, and community-based learning is preferred as is experience with curriculum development and universal design approaches to teaching and assessment. Evidence of service contributions or potential to contribute to service in administrative and committee work is preferred.

Salary will be commensurate with qualifications and experience. All York University positions are subject to budgetary approval.

York U's bilingual Glendon Campus is home to Southern Ontario's Centre of Excellence for French Language and Bilingual Postsecondary Education. Glendon comprises about 2,700 students on a scenic campus in the heart of the cosmopolitan city of Toronto. Glendon is committed to high-quality teaching in the tradition of the liberal arts and offers a unique undergraduate academic experience for students within one of Canada's largest research universities. For information about Glendon and its programs, please consult the Faculty webpage at <http://www.glendon.yorku.ca/>.

York University is an Affirmative Action (AA) employer and strongly values diversity, including gender and sexual diversity, within its community. The AA program, which applies to Aboriginal people, visible minorities, people with disabilities, and women, can be found at <http://acadjobs.info.yorku.ca/> or by calling the AA office at 416-736-5713. Applicants wishing to self-identify can do so by downloading, completing and submitting the forms found at: <http://acadjobs.info.yorku.ca/>. Please select the 'Affirmative Action' tab under which forms pertaining to Citizenship and AA can be found. All qualified candidates are encouraged to apply; however, Canadian citizens, permanent residents and Indigenous peoples in Canada will be given priority.

The deadline for receipt of applications is November 18, 2018. An application letter outlining professional experience, a curriculum vitae, a teaching dossier which supports excellence and innovation in teaching, evidence of research activity, and three signed confidential letters of recommendation should be sent to Professor Willem Maas, Chair, Political Science, Glendon College, York University, via email to polisci@glendon.yorku.ca with the subject heading "Teaching stream position". Referees should be advised to address the candidate's qualifications and experience in relation to this position.

**

Le Département de science politique du Collège universitaire Glendon de l'Université York sollicite des candidatures pour un poste menant à la permanence (volet enseignement) dans n'importe quel domaine de la science politique au rang de chargé d'enseignement, débutant

le 1er juillet 2019. La personne sélectionnée devra enseigner de grands cours et séminaires au 1er cycle dans différents sous-domaines et pourra également enseigner des cours de 2e et 3e cycles. La personne sélectionnée devra contribuer de façon proactive à l'amélioration de l'enseignement et de l'apprentissage au sein de l'établissement, notamment à travers des initiatives et des pratiques innovantes en matière de curriculum et de pédagogie. Les candidat.e.s doivent être titulaires d'un doctorat en science politique ou ce dernier doit être en voie d'achèvement au plus tard le 1er juillet 2019. La personne retenue devra être bilingue en français et en anglais, et capable d'enseigner dans ces deux langues dans un environnement multiculturel.

La personne retenue devra faire preuve d'excellence, ou montrer des aptitudes prometteuses dans l'enseignement de cours universitaires et s'investir activement dans la pédagogie et en faveur de la réussite des étudiants. La capacité du candidat à intégrer une approche à la fois théorique et pratique à l'enseignement, l'apprentissage et la création de cours sera considérée comme un atout. La personne retenue devra démontrer sa capacité d'enseigner de grands cours ainsi que des petits séminaires à travers les sous-domaines de science politique. L'innovation pédagogique dans des domaines hautement prioritaires, tels que l'éducation expérientielle, l'apprentissage assisté par les technologies et l'apprentissage communautaire, sera considérée comme un atout, ainsi que l'expérience dans l'élaboration de programmes d'études avec une conception universelle en matière d'enseignement et d'évaluation. La personne retenue devra aussi fournir des preuves de ses services passés ou montrer des aptitudes prometteuses dans le service à l'administration et aux comités.

Le salaire sera établi en fonction de la convention collective et de l'expérience. Toutes les offres de poste à York sont sujettes à autorisation budgétaire de l'Université.

Le Collège universitaire Glendon de l'Université York a été désigné comme Centre d'excellence pour les études postsecondaires en français et bilingues dans le sud de l'Ontario. Glendon, Faculté bilingue (français-anglais), accueille environ 2 700 étudiants sur un campus pittoresque situé au cœur de la ville cosmopolite de Toronto. Glendon s'inscrit dans la tradition des arts libéraux et offre une expérience académique de 1er cycle unique dans une des plus grandes universités au Canada. Pour de plus amples renseignements sur ses programmes d'études, veuillez consulter le site Web de Glendon à <http://www.glendon.yorku.ca/>.

L'Université York est un employeur qui a adopté un programme d'action affirmative, et préconise la diversité dans sa communauté, notamment celle de sexe. Le programme d'action affirmative s'applique aux autochtones, aux minorités visibles, aux personnes en situation de handicap et aux femmes. Pour plus de renseignements sur ce programme, veuillez consulter le site Web de York à l'adresse : <http://acadjobs.info.yorku.ca/>, ou vous adresser Bureau d'action affirmative au (416) 736 5713. Toutes les personnes qualifiées sont encouragées à poser leur candidature ; toutefois, la priorité sera accordée aux personnes de citoyenneté canadienne ou détenant le statut de résident permanent, et aux populations autochtones du Canada.

La date limite de soumission des candidatures est le 18 novembre 2018. Les personnes intéressées doivent faire parvenir une lettre de motivation mettant en évidence leur expérience professionnelle, un curriculum vitae, un dossier d'enseignement qui démontre l'excellence et l'innovation en enseignement, preuve de l'activité de recherche, et faire envoyer directement trois lettres de recommandation confidentielles à Willem Maas, Directeur, Département de science politique, Collège universitaire Glendon, Université York, par courriel à polisci@glendon.yorku.ca avec sujet « Poste volet enseignement ». Les personnes rédigeant des lettres de recommandation doivent aborder dans celles-ci les qualifications et l'expérience du candidat ou de la candidate en rapport avec le poste.

Les candidat.e.s qui souhaitent déclarer leur appartenance à un groupe désigné peuvent le faire en téléchargeant et en soumettant le formulaire disponible sur le site : <http://acadjobs.info.yorku.ca/>. Prière de sélectionner l'onglet « Affirmative Action » pour accéder aux formulaires relatifs à la citoyenneté et à l'action affirmative.

Start Date: Summer 2019

Application Deadline: 11/18/2018

Date Posted: 9/12/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4822

University of Notre Dame

Rank: Faculty Position in Global Education

Subfield(s): Comparative Politics, International Relations, Other

The University of Notre Dame's Keough School of Global Affairs invites applications for a faculty position in global education, with a preference for scholars whose work and interests include a focus on the intersection of education and development or international and comparative education policy. Scholars engaged in rigorous social science research from a variety of disciplines – economics, political science, sociology, education, and others – will be considered. Applicants should have an interest in interdisciplinary cooperation. Applicants attracted to a university with a Catholic identity are especially encouraged to apply. While priority will be given to consideration of junior candidates (ABD, postdoc, assistant professors or non-tenured associate professors), senior applicants may also be considered. Ph.D. or equivalent terminal degree required at the time of hire.

Qualifications

The successful hire will be based in the Keough School of Global Affairs, with affiliations in the Kellogg Institute for International Studies and in Notre Dame's Institute for Educational Initiatives. Oriented toward research, teaching, and service dedicated to the advancement of integral human development, the Keough School (<http://keough.nd.edu/>) promotes interdisciplinary research on critical issues in global affairs, offers a master's degree, and supports undergraduate and doctoral programs. The Kellogg Institute for International Studies (<http://kellogg.nd.edu/>) has for over 35 years been a leading center for interdisciplinary research and programming on issues of democracy and human development. The Institute for Educational Initiatives (<http://iei.nd.edu/>) provides a home for nearly one hundred faculty fellows from across the University whose research and teaching interests focus on K-12 education, with a particular interest in Catholic education. Joint or concurrent appointments in the appropriate departments are also possible. Applicants should have an affirmative interest in contributing to the joint Kellogg Institute/Institute for Educational Initiative Research Cluster in International Education (<https://kellogg.nd.edu/research-cluster-international-education>).

Application Instructions

All applicants are required to submit a letter of interest and a C.V. Junior candidates (ABD, postdoc, assistant or non-tenured associate professors) should also arrange for the submission of three confidential letters of reference. Apply here: <https://apply.interfolio.com/54487>

Nominations and inquiries may be sent via email to:

Prof. Paolo Carozza

Chair, Global Education Search Committee

Keough School of Global Affairs

University of Notre Dame

pcarozza@nd.edu

Applications must be submitted by January 15, 2019. Review of applications will begin November 15, 2018, and will continue until the position is filled.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: 1/15/2019

Date Posted: 9/11/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4811

University of Virginia

Rank: Assistant Professor

Assistant Professor, General Faculty

Department of Women Gender & Sexuality

The Women Gender & Sexuality Department at the University of Virginia seeks applications to fill a full-time Assistant Professor position on the Academic General Faculty. This is a teaching-oriented position that involves teaching 3 courses in the Fall semester and 3 courses in the Spring semester each year. The successful candidate will be expected to teach and advise students, and to perform service to the Department, the College & Graduate School of Arts & Sciences, the University, and the profession. Teaching areas of particular need include Introduction to Gender and Sexuality Studies, Feminist Theory, and/or Queer Theory; the successful candidate will also offer courses and seminars in his or her fields of specialization.

Applicants must hold a PhD at the time of appointment, and must demonstrate strong commitment to high quality teaching and advising at the college level. Previous teaching experience in a Women Gender & Sexuality (or similar) department or program is required.

Review of applications will begin on September 18, 2018, and will continue until the position is filled. The appointment is expected to start in July, 2019 with classroom teaching to begin in Fall semester, 2019.

To apply, visit jobs.virginia.edu/applicants/Central?quickFind=85376. Complete an a Candidate Profile online and attach the following: a cover letter of interest describing teaching experience and listing proposed courses, a curriculum vitae, and contact information for three references. In addition, please have reference letter writers email letters directly to wgsuva@virginia.edu.

For questions about the application process, please contact Savanna Galambos, Faculty Search Advisor, skh7b@virginia.edu.

UVA assists faculty spouses and partners seeking employment in the Charlottesville area. To learn more please visit <http://provost.virginia.edu/dual-career>.

For more information about UVA and the surrounding area, please visit <http://uvacharge.virginia.edu/guide.html>.

The University of Virginia is an equal opportunity/affirmative action employer. Women, minorities, veterans and persons with disabilities are encouraged to apply.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 9/10/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4797

Princeton University

Rank: Laurance S. Rockefeller Visiting Faculty Fellowships

The University Center for Human Values at Princeton University invites applications for Laurance S. Rockefeller Visiting Faculty Fellowships for the academic year 2019-20. Fellows devote an academic year in residence at Princeton to research and writing about topics involving human values in public and private life. This full-time visiting program is open to scholars in all disciplines provided their research plans qualify. In recent years fellows have been drawn from fields including philosophy, political theory, literature, history, classics, economics and law, but this list is not meant to be exhaustive.

Fellows are expected to reside in or around Princeton and to be active contributors to the intellectual life of the Center. This includes participating in a weekly seminar attended by fellows and Center faculty to discuss work in progress and in various other seminars, colloquia and lectures sponsored by the Center. Fellows enjoy access to Firestone Library and to a wide range of activities throughout the University.

Candidates must have a doctorate or equivalent professional degree and a strong record of research publications appropriate to their career stage. Typically Fellows hold faculty positions at other universities or colleges; in exceptional cases we consider applications from independent scholars when there is a high level of scholarly achievement. This is not a postdoctoral fellowship program and we do not generally consider candidates who will have held the Ph.D. for less than two years at the time of appointment.

The fellowship period extends from September 1 to July 1. Fellows normally receive stipends of up to one-half their academic-year salaries (subject to a minimum and maximum set each fall). Ordinarily their home institutions provide a portion of their salaries in addition to all benefits, although this is not a requirement for appointment. Stipends for independent scholars will not exceed the maximum for fellows holding appointments elsewhere.

The main considerations in the evaluation of applications are the following:

- The significance of the proposed research and its relevance to the purposes of the University Center for Human Values (see <http://uchv.princeton.edu/> for more information);
- The quality of a candidate's previous research and the contribution the candidate is likely to make in the future through teaching and writing;
- The likelihood that the research would benefit from being conducted in the University Center environment.

HOW TO APPLY

Candidates must submit an online application at <https://www.princeton.edu/acad-positions/position/7421>

The following materials will be required:

1. A curriculum vitae;

2. A scholarly paper (of no more than about 12,000 words) written in the past three years;
3. A statement (of no more than 1,500 words) describing the proposed research project and including a brief working title for the project; and
4. Contact information for three referees, including at least one who was not a graduate advisor. Referees will be contacted directly with instructions for uploading letters of reference.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: 11/5/2018

Date Posted: 9/7/2018

Salary: Negotiable

eJobs ID: 4792

Texas Christian University

Rank: Assistant or Associate Professor

Two Tenure-Track Positions, in African American Studies and U.S. Latina/o Studies (Assistant or Associate Professor)

Comparative Race and Ethnic Studies, Texas Christian University
The Department of Comparative Race and Ethnic Studies (CRES) at Texas Christian University invites applications for two tenure-track faculty positions: one in African American Studies and one in U.S. Latina/o Studies. One of the two appointments can be made at the Associate level; the other will be an Assistant Professor. Both will begin in fall 2019.

Successful candidates will demonstrate evidence of an ambitious research agenda centered on race/ethnicity. Candidates who wish to be considered at the Associate level must be tenured in their current institutions and exhibit an existing record of scholarship, teaching, and service commensurate with the requirements for tenure and promotion in the Department of CRES.

We especially seek scholars who apply comparative or relational approaches to the study of race/ethnicity and/or scholars who meaningfully integrate the intersectional study of women, gender, and sexuality.

Faculty in these positions will be expected to incorporate community-engaged pedagogy into their teaching and to take part in the wider Fort Worth and Texas communities as civic-minded scholars. Additionally, the faculty will serve as campus leaders in the development of CRES and larger university initiatives surrounding diversity, equity, and inclusion.

Required qualifications:

- A Ph.D. completed by August 15, 2019, in an interdisciplinary field or a traditional humanities or social science discipline with significant demonstrated background and experience related to race and ethnicity.
- Ability to teach undergraduate and graduate courses on critical theoretical approaches to race and ethnicity and/or courses on applied inquiry, methods, and activism.

Preferred qualifications:

- A Ph.D. in Ethnic Studies, African American or Africana or Black Studies, Latina/o Studies, American Studies, Women and Gender Studies, with a primary focus on the United States
- Experience in community-based participatory research or creative activity

- Experience in activism, community engagement, or critical service learning
- Experience in curriculum development, strategic planning, and/or academic leadership roles

To apply, upload a letter of application, complete CV, syllabus for one proposed upper-division CRES course (junior- or senior-level), and a 1-page statement explaining how the applicant will contribute to diversity and inclusion in CRES and at TCU to https://tcu.igreentree.com/CSS_faculty. Three confidential letters of recommendation should be sent by recommenders or dossier service to hrtalentacquisition@tcu.edu. Candidates for terminal degrees must submit one of their letters from their primary advisor. All questions regarding the application process may be directed to Human Resources at hrtalentacquisition@tcu.edu or 817-257-7790. Questions about the Department of CRES and its curriculum may be directed to cres@tcu.edu. Review of applications begins October 1, 2018, and will continue until the position is filled. The position start date is in August 2019.

A highly selective teaching and research university with 10,000 students, TCU is an independent, nonsectarian, coeducational institution committed to academic freedom located in Fort Worth, Texas, the 16th largest city in the United States and part of the nation's fourth-largest metropolitan area. TCU has been recognized for eight consecutive years as one of the "Great Colleges to Work For" by The Chronicle of Higher Education. As an AA/EEO employer, TCU recruits, hires, and promotes qualified persons in all job classifications without regard to age, race, color, religion, sex, sexual orientation, gender, gender identity, gender expression, national origin, ethnic origin, disability, genetic information, covered veteran status, or any other basis protected by law.

Start Date: Fall 2019
Application Deadline: 10/1/2018
Date Posted: 9/7/2018
Salary: Any
eJobs ID: 4794

Dartmouth College

Rank: Endowed Chair in Comparative Politics/Globalization

Position Description

The Department of Government at Dartmouth College invites applications and nominations for appointment to a newly-endowed chair in globalization. This position is one of three positions in a cluster hire in the study of globalization. The other two positions are in the Tuck School of Business and the Department of Economics. We are particularly interested in scholars who study democracy, capitalism, and/or human rights and the rule of law. We seek a scholar who will help lead, initiate, and participate in collaborative research projects within the Department of Government, the Department of Economics, the Tuck School of Business, and beyond, including Dartmouth researchers from other Arts & Sciences departments, the Nelson A. Rockefeller Center for Public Policy and the Social Sciences, the Arthur L. Irving Institute for Energy and Society, and the John Sloan Dickey Center for International Understanding.

Qualifications

Candidates must have a Ph.D. in Political Science or a related field. Dartmouth undergraduate and graduate student populations are diverse by many measures. We are especially interested in applicants with a record of successful teaching and mentoring of students from all backgrounds (including first-generation college students, low-income students, racial and ethnic minorities, women, LGBTQ, etc.). Applicants are encouraged to discuss relevant skills and experiences in their cover letter.

Application Instructions

Applicants should submit a letter of interest and CV. The review of applications will begin on October 1, 2018, and will continue until the position is filled. Questions may be sent to: John.Carey@Dartmouth.edu. Application materials should be submitted electronically to: apply.interfolio.com/53804

Start Date:
Application Deadline: Open until Filled
Date Posted: 9/6/2018
Salary: Competitive
eJobs ID: 4784

University of Illinois, Chicago

Rank: Assistant Professor-Political Science-American/Urban Politics

The Department of Political Science in the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences (LAS) at the University of Illinois at Chicago (UIC) invites applications for the position of tenure track Assistant Professor in American and Urban Politics with a specialization in Hispanic/Latinx Politics, beginning in the 2019-2020 academic year subject to budgetary approval.

Research focus might include but is not limited to: 1) voting behavior and descriptive representation, 2) political engagement and participation, including youth, 3) minority social movements and political mobilization; 4) racialized policy regimes at the subnational level (e.g., policing; education; health/welfare; refugee & immigrant integration). Final authorization of the position is subject to availability of funding. We welcome candidates with additional skills and specializations, such as quantitative and/or qualitative methodology, comparative politics, or political theory.

We seek candidates with PhD in Political Science or a cognate discipline in hand, or very near completion, proof of ability to maintain a research agenda, and a demonstrated commitment to excellence in teaching. Evidence of the candidate's research performance or promise and appropriate teaching skills should be provided.

Assistant professors are expected to teach two (2) courses per semester at the undergraduate or graduate level, as assigned by the department head. They are also expected to maintain a consistent record of research and publication, provide service to the department and the profession, and contribute to the intellectual life of the department.

To apply, complete an on-line application, including the names and email addresses for three or more references, and upload full curriculum vitae and a cover letter that summarizes candidate's research and teaching qualifications at <https://jobs.uic.edu/job-board/job-details?jobID=100519>. Questions about the position can be directed to Prof. Alexandra Filindra at 312-413-2186 or aleka@uic.edu, the chair of the search committee. For fullest consideration, applications should be completed by October 8, 2018.

UIC is a Carnegie Doctoral/Research I institution (Highest Research Activity), located in the heart of the City of Chicago and one of the nation's largest metropolitan areas. It is a comprehensive public university with a diverse student body of more than 30,000 undergraduate, graduate, and professional students. UIC is federally recognized as a Minority Serving Institution (MSI) through its status as a Hispanic Serving Institution (HSI) and an Asian American and Native American Pacific Islander Serving Institution (AANAPISI), fully funded by the US Department of Education.

The University of Illinois at Chicago is an affirmative action, equal opportunity employer, dedicated to the goal of building a culturally diverse and pluralistic faculty and staff committed to teaching and working in a multicultural environment. We strongly encourage applications from women, minorities, individuals with disabilities, and covered veterans. The University of Illinois may conduct background checks on all job candidates upon acceptance of a contingent offer. Background checks will be performed in compliance with the Fair Credit Reporting Act.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: 10/31/2018

Date Posted: 9/6/2018

Salary: $80,000 - $89,999

eJobs ID: 4786

University of Michigan

Rank: Emerging Democracies Postdoctoral Fellow

Fellowship period: September 2019 - August 2021

Application deadline: January 15, 2019

The Weiser Center for Emerging Democracies (WCED) at the University of Michigan invites scholars who have received their Ph.D. since 2017 to apply for the WCED Postdoctoral Fellowship. This two-year fellowship supports multidisciplinary research on the broad historical, political, economic, and societal conditions under which democracy and autocracy either emerge and endure or falter and fail.

Up to two awards are available for the 2019-21 fellowship. WCED Postdoctoral Fellows are expected to focus on their own research, participate in occasional WCED workshops and events, and present at least one public lecture during their two-year fellowship, while in full-time residence at the University of Michigan, Ann Arbor. A teaching opportunity may be possible during the second year of the fellowship, if desired.

We welcome applicants from all disciplines, though the majority of past applicants and Fellows have come from political science, sociology, and history. Fellows must have successfully defended and filed their dissertation before beginning the fellowship. Eligibility is restricted to those who have received their Ph.D. after January 1, 2017.

Fellowships carry an annual salary of $50,000 and up to $7,000 in research funds during the post-doctoral appointment. Fellowship recipients will be eligible for U-M health, dental, and life insurance options (beginning September 1, 2019 through August 31, 2021). Fellows have full access to U-M library resources.

Candidates will be required to submit:

- A two-page research plan that outlines the research project and how the fellow will spend his/her time during the fellowship year.
- Curriculum Vitae.
- A scholarly writing sample, such as a dissertation chapter, conference paper, or journal article.
- Two letters of recommendation.

Fellowship applications must be received by January 15, 2019, 11:59 pm EST. Applicants will be notified in March 2019.

Application link available at <https://www.ii.umich.edu/wced/postdoctoral-fellows.html>.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Date Posted: 9/1/2018

Salary: $50,000 - $59,999

eJobs ID: 4677

University of New England

Rank: Assistant Professor, International Relations and Global Studies

The Department of Political Science at the University of New England is searching for tenure-track Assistant Professor in International Relations and Global Studies beginning in the 2019-2020 academic year.

The ideal candidate will offer a range of introductory and advanced level courses in international relations, depending on the candidate's interest and expertise. The candidate will also teach Introduction to Global Studies and help guide students interested in the Global Studies major. The ability to teach in another sub-field, especially American or Comparative Politics, would be of additional value to the department. Political science courses at UNE are generally taught in a seminar style, with an emphasis on high-engagement with students.

We seek a well-rounded teacher-scholar with a promising research agenda. The department values research that crosses traditional disciplinary boundaries to address original and important questions. Service to the University and a strong commitment to academic advising and student mentorship is expected.

Candidates must have a Ph.D. in Political Sciences or related field at the time of appointment.

Review of applications will begin September 25, 2018 and will continue until the position is filled. To apply for the position, please visit <https://une.peopleadmin.com/postings/4912>

UNE has a beautiful campus ocean-side in Biddeford, Maine. It is 20 minutes away from Portland, one of the country's most livable cities. The political science department is small, but vibrant. We value great teachers and scholars.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: 9/25/2018

Date Posted: 8/30/2018

Salary: Any

eJobs ID: 4737

University of Houston

Rank: Assistant Professor Political Communication

Assistant Professor – Political Communications

The Department of Political Science and the Jack J. Valenti School of Communication, both housed in the College of Liberal Arts and Social Sciences at the University of Houston invite applications for a dual-appointment tenure-track assistant professor position in Political Communication to begin in Fall of 2019. Successful candidates should have extensive methodological training, demonstrated excellence in scholarly research and publication, and a clear commitment to undergraduate teaching. Applicants with doctoral training in political science or communication are encouraged to apply. Successful candidates will teach undergraduate and graduate courses in the field of political communications, equally dividing their teaching between the two units. Review of applications will begin October 1 and continue until the position is filled.

The University of Houston, a Carnegie Tier-1 research university with one of the most diverse student bodies in the nation, seeks to recruit and retain a diverse community of scholars.

Both the Department of Political Science, with over 700 majors and 75 M.A. and Ph.D. students, and the Valenti School of Communication, with over 1,800 majors and over 50 M.A. students, provide high-quality undergraduate and graduate education. We capitalize on the strengths of our city, offering students and faculty opportunities to research the politics of the future in a dynamic hub of international commerce, and in a region which is on the leading edge of national demographic and economic trends.

Applications should be submitted through the University's online job site, <http://www.uh.edu/human-resources/uh-careers/>. The position number keyword is FAC000645. To apply please submit a letter of application, CV, short writing sample, statement of research and teaching interests, and contact information for three professional references. Listed references will be asked to provide a letter of recommendation.

For further information please contact Associate Professor Jason Casellas, Department of Political Science, at jcasella@central.uh.edu, or Associate Professor Dr. Lindita Camaj, Valenti School of Communication, at lcamaj@central.uh.edu.

The University of Houston is an Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action employer. Minorities, veterans, women and persons with disabilities are encouraged to apply. The University of Houston is responsive to the needs of dual career couples.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 8/24/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4692

University of Houston

Rank: Assistant Professor Political Communication

Assistant Professor – Political Communication

The Department of Political Science and the Jack J. Valenti School of Communication, both housed in the College of Liberal Arts and Social Sciences at the University of Houston invite applications for a dual-appointment tenure-track assistant professor position in Political Communication to begin in Fall of 2019. Successful candidates should have extensive methodological training, demonstrated excellence in scholarly research and publication, and a clear commitment to undergraduate teaching. Applicants with doctoral training in political science or communication are encouraged to apply. Successful candidates will teach undergraduate and graduate courses in the field of political communications, equally dividing their teaching between the two units. Review of applications will begin October 1 and continue until the position is filled.

The University of Houston, a Carnegie Tier-1 research university with one of the most diverse student bodies in the nation, seeks to recruit and retain a diverse community of scholars.

Both the Department of Political Science, with over 700 majors and 75 M.A. and Ph.D. students, and the Valenti School of Communication, with over 1,800 majors and over 50 M.A. students, provide high-quality undergraduate and graduate education. We capitalize on the strengths of our city, offering students and faculty opportunities to research the politics of the future in a dynamic hub of international commerce, and in a region which is on the leading edge of national demographic and economic trends.

Applications should be submitted through the University's online job site, <http://www.uh.edu/human-resources/uh-careers/>. The position number keyword is FAC000645. To apply please submit a letter of application, CV, short writing sample, statement of research and teaching interests, and contact information for three professional references. Listed references will be asked to provide a letter of recommendation.

For further information please contact Associate Professor Jason Casellas, Department of Political Science, at jcasella@central.uh.edu, or Associate Professor Dr. Lindita Camaj, Valenti School of Communication, at lcamaj@central.uh.edu.

The University of Houston is an Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action employer. Minorities, veterans, women and persons with disabilities are encouraged to apply. The University of Houston is responsive to the needs of dual career couples.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 8/24/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4693

University of Houston

Rank: Assistant Professor Political Communications

Assistant Professor – Political Communications

The Department of Political Science and the Jack J. Valenti School of Communication, both housed in the College of Liberal Arts and Social Sciences at the University of Houston invite applications for a dual-appointment tenure-track assistant professor position in Political Communication to begin in Fall of 2019. Successful candidates should have extensive methodological training, demonstrated excellence in scholarly research and publication, and a clear commitment to undergraduate teaching. Applicants with doctoral training in political science or communication are encouraged to apply. Successful candidates will teach undergraduate and graduate courses in the field of political communications, equally dividing their teaching between the two units. Review of applications will begin October 1 and continue until the position is filled.

The University of Houston, a Carnegie Tier-1 research university with one of the most diverse student bodies in the nation, seeks to recruit and retain a diverse community of scholars.

Both the Department of Political Science, with over 700 majors and 75 M.A. and Ph.D. students, and the Valenti School of Communication, with over 1,800 majors and over 50 M.A. students, provide high-quality undergraduate and graduate education. We capitalize on the strengths of our city, offering students and faculty opportunities to research the politics of the future in a dynamic hub of international commerce, and in a region which is on the leading edge of national demographic and economic trends.

Applications should be submitted through the University's online job site, <http://www.uh.edu/human-resources/uh-careers/>. The position number keyword is FAC000645. To apply please submit a letter of application, CV, short writing sample, statement of research and teaching interests, and contact information for three professional references. Listed references will be asked to provide a letter of recommendation.

For further information please contact Associate Professor Jason Casellas, Department of Political Science, at jcasella@central.uh.edu, or Associate Professor Dr. Lindita Camaj, Valenti School of Communication, at lcamaj@central.uh.edu.

The University of Houston is an Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action employer. Minorities, veterans, women and persons with disabilities are encouraged to apply. The University of Houston is responsive to the needs of dual career couples.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 8/24/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4691

Northern Illinois University

Rank: Assistant Professor

Subfield(s): Political Theory, American Government and Politics, Other

Specializations: African American Politics, Constitutional Law & Theory, Political Behavior

The Center for Black Studies and the Department of Political Science at Northern Illinois University anticipate hiring a tenure-track assistant professor in political science. Employment will begin August 2019. The position is open to applicants from any subfield of political science. Political Theory scholars, in particular, are encouraged to apply. Reflecting NIU's commitment to interdisciplinary collaboration in education and scholarship, the position will hold joint appointment status, but the tenure home will be the Department of Political Science.

The successful candidate will demonstrate a strong record of, or potential for, scholarly research and teaching excellence at both the undergraduate and graduate level. The successful candidate will be expected to teach courses that will contribute to the Black Studies Minor. An earned PhD in political science is required by the start date of the appointment. A demonstrated ability to serve a diverse student population is strongly preferred.

In particular, we seek faculty and staff who embrace NIU's mission of providing opportunity to a diverse student body by providing them with access to high quality education and hands-on involvement in research and community engagement. Experience teaching and mentoring students of diverse backgrounds is highly preferred.

The Department of Political Science has 12 faculty members and offers B.A., B.S., M.A., and Ph.D. degrees. The Center has 13 faculty associates and faculty affiliates that work with the Black Studies Minor. For more information, please visit <http://polisci.niu.edu/> and <https://www.cbs.niu.edu/blackstudies/>. NIU is located in DeKalb, a welcoming and growing city 65 miles west of downtown Chicago. It has an enrollment of more than 18,000 students, including a graduate student body of over 4,000.

Salary will be competitive and commensurate with qualifications and experience. Applicants must send a cover letter, which describes how their scholarship will contribute to the missions of both the Center for Black Studies and the Department of Political Science. In addition, a curriculum vitae, writing samples, evidence of teaching effectiveness, appropriate transcripts, and list of references should be submitted online at <http://employment.niu.edu/postings/36965>.

NIU is an AA/EEO institution and strongly encourages applications from women and minority candidates. A pre-employment criminal background check is required.

Review of completed applications will begin on November 1, 2018 and will continue until the position is filled.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 8/22/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4662

Northern Illinois University

Rank: Assistant Professor

Subfield(s): Political Theory, American Government and Politics, Other

Specializations: African American Politics, Constitutional Law & Theory, Political Behavior

The Center for Black Studies and the Department of Political Science at Northern Illinois University anticipate hiring a tenure-track assistant professor in political science. Employment will begin August 2019. The position is open to applicants from any subfield of political science. Political Theory scholars, in particular, are encouraged to apply. Reflecting NIU's commitment to interdisciplinary collaboration in education and scholarship, the position will hold joint appointment status, but the tenure home will be the Department of Political Science.

The successful candidate will demonstrate a strong record of, or potential for, scholarly research and teaching excellence at both the undergraduate and graduate level. The successful candidate will be expected to teach courses that will contribute to the Black Studies Minor. An earned PhD in political science is required by the start date of the appointment. A demonstrated ability to serve a diverse student population is strongly preferred.

In particular, we seek faculty and staff who embrace NIU's mission of providing opportunity to a diverse student body by providing them with access to high quality education and hands-on involvement in research and community engagement. Experience teaching and mentoring students of diverse backgrounds is highly preferred.

The Department of Political Science has 12 faculty members and offers B.A., B.S., M.A., and Ph.D. degrees. The Center has 13 faculty associates and faculty affiliates that work with the Black Studies Minor. For more information, please visit <http://polisci.niu.edu/> and <https://www.cbs.niu.edu/blackstudies/>. NIU is located in DeKalb, a welcoming and growing city 65 miles west of downtown Chicago. It has an enrollment of more than 18,000 students, including a graduate student body of over 4,000.

Salary will be competitive and commensurate with qualifications and experience. Applicants must send a cover letter, which describes how their scholarship will contribute to the missions of both the Center for Black Studies and the Department of Political Science. In addition, a curriculum vitae, writing samples, evidence of teaching effectiveness, appropriate transcripts, and list of references should be submitted online at <http://employment.niu.edu/postings/36965>.

NIU is an AA/EEO institution and strongly encourages applications from women and minority candidates. A pre-employment criminal background check is required.

Review of completed applications will begin on November 1, 2018 and will continue until the position is filled.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 8/22/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4663

Northern Illinois University

Rank: Assistant Professor

Subfield(s): Political Theory, American Government and Politics, Other

Specializations: African American Politics, Constitutional Law & Theory, Political Behavior

The Center for Black Studies and the Department of Political Science at Northern Illinois University anticipate hiring a tenure-track assistant professor in political science. Employment will begin August 2019. The position is open to applicants from any subfield of political science. Political Theory scholars, in particular, are encouraged to apply. Reflecting NIU's commitment to interdisciplinary collaboration in education and scholarship, the position will hold joint appointment status, but the tenure home will be the Department of Political Science.

The successful candidate will demonstrate a strong record of, or potential for, scholarly research and teaching excellence at both the undergraduate and graduate level. The successful candidate will be expected to teach courses that will contribute to the Black Studies Minor. An earned PhD in political science is required by the start date of the appointment. A demonstrated ability to serve a diverse student population is strongly preferred.

In particular, we seek faculty and staff who embrace NIU's mission of providing opportunity to a diverse student body by providing them with access to high quality education and hands-on involvement in research and community engagement. Experience teaching and mentoring students of diverse backgrounds is highly preferred.

The Department of Political Science has 12 faculty members and offers B.A., B.S., M.A., and Ph.D. degrees. The Center has 13 faculty associates and faculty affiliates that work with the Black Studies Minor. For more information, please visit <http://polisci.niu.edu/> and <https://www.cbs.niu.edu/blackstudies/>. NIU is located in DeKalb, a welcoming and growing city 65 miles west of downtown Chicago. It has an enrollment of more than 18,000 students, including a graduate student body of over 4,000.

Salary will be competitive and commensurate with qualifications and experience. Applicants must send a cover letter, which describes how their scholarship will contribute to the missions of both the Center for Black Studies and the Department of Political Science. In addition, a curriculum vitae, writing samples, evidence of teaching effectiveness, appropriate transcripts, and list of references should be submitted online at <http://employment.niu.edu/postings/36965>.

NIU is an AA/EEO institution and strongly encourages applications from women and minority candidates. A pre-employment criminal background check is required.

Review of completed applications will begin on November 1, 2018 and will continue until the position is filled.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 8/22/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4664

Purdue University

Rank: Head of the Department of Political Science

Search for the Head of the Department of Political Science

The Department of Political Science in the College of Liberal Arts at Purdue University seeks applicants for the position of Head. The position will be available July 1, 2019, with a five-year renewable term reporting to the Dean of the College of Liberal Arts.

Applicants must have a PhD in Political Science or a related field and scholarly credentials commensurate with the rank of Professor. The field of specialization is open. The successful applicant will have an excellent record of research and teaching, experience attracting external support, and a commitment to diversity and inclusion. Candidates must also have demonstrated abilities in leadership and administration.

Duties include providing vision and leadership in discovery, learning, and engagement; managing and generating departmental resources; recruiting and retaining faculty, staff, and students; fostering excellence in teaching; mentoring faculty who are working toward tenure and/or promotion; advocating on behalf of the department's mission; interacting with alumni and fundraising; and representing the department to administrative offices and on the Council of Department Heads.

Founded in 1869, Purdue is a research-intensive institution and a public land-grant university. Purdue is a member of the American Association of Universities and a top five public research university according to the Wall Street Journal. Faculty members in Political Science are actively involved with several interdisciplinary programs and centers, including the Advanced Methodology cluster, the Building Sustainable Communities initiative, the Center for the Environment, the Center for Research on Diversity and Inclusion, Peace Studies, the Human Rights Program, Asian Studies, the Purdue Systems Collaboratory, the Center for C-SPAN Scholarship & Engagement, and the Purdue Policy Research Institute. The department is also home to Politics, Groups, and Identities, an official journal of the Western Political Science Association. The department offers graduate certificates in Social Policy and Environmental Policy to students across campus.

Application materials should be submitted electronically as .pdf attachments to PolSciHeadSearch@purdue.edu. Applications should include a curriculum vitae and a letter of interest. This letter should outline approaches to departmental leadership, a vision for advancement of the department, as well as the candidate's scholarly interests. Purdue University's Department of Political Science is committed to advancing diversity in all areas of faculty effort, including scholarship, instruction, and engagement. Candidates should address at least one of these areas in their letter of interest, indicating their past experiences, current interests or activities, and/or future goals to promote a climate that values diversity and inclusion.

Review of applications will begin on October 1, 2018, but applications received after this date will be accepted until the position is filled. Names of references will be requested from finalists. Please address questions to search committee chair Dr. Linda Renzulli, renzulli@purdue.edu. A background check will be required for employment in this position.

Purdue University is an EOE/AA employer. All individuals, including minorities, women, individuals with disabilities, and veterans are encouraged to apply.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 8/20/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4642

University of Wisconsin, Madison

Rank: Visiting Scholar

The Center for the Study of Liberal Democracy at the University of Wisconsin invites college and university professors and other professionals with established records of scholarship to apply for appointments as Visiting Scholars for the academic year running from August 20, 2019 to June 30, 2020.

All Visiting Scholars will spend an academic year in residence at UW-Madison. They enjoy access to the Memorial Union and a wide range of other facilities and activities throughout the University. Visiting Scholars are expected to devote full time to their proposed research. They are, however, expected to attend or to participate in various activities of the Center, including faculty-graduate student seminars, colloquia, and public lectures. All CSLD Visiting Scholars must have a doctorate or equivalent degree. Fellowships are open to all regardless of citizenship. Visiting Scholars normally receive a stipend of up to one-half their academic-year salary. The fellows' home institutions are expected to provide at least half of their academic-year salaries in addition to all benefits.

To apply please go to <https://csl.d.wisc.edu/visiting-fellows/>

Applications are evaluated on the basis of (1) the significance of the proposed research; (2) the quality of the applicant's past research; (3) the contribution the applicant is likely to make to higher education in the future; and (4) the contribution the applicant is likely to make to intellectual life of the Center.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: 1/15/2019

Date Posted: 8/20/2018

Salary: Negotiable

eJobs ID: 4644

Cornell University

Rank: Assistant, Associate, or Full Professor - Social & Behavioral Science in Nutrition

Assistant, Associate, or Full Professor
Social & Behavioral Science in Nutrition
Division of Nutritional Sciences

The Division of Nutritional Sciences (DNS) at Cornell University is seeking candidates for two 9-month, full-salaried, tenure-track positions. We seek candidates with demonstrated research excellence in areas including, but not limited to, maternal and child nutrition, obesity and chronic disease prevention, application of behavioral theory in nutrition interventions and evaluation, food insecurity, and nutrition disparities in the U.S. Candidates may have disciplinary expertise in public health nutrition, community nutrition, nutrition intervention and policy, sociology, social psychology, cultural anthropology or a related field. Scholarship related to nutrition and human health, in the broadest sense, in the context of U.S. community or public health settings should be central to the candidate's research interests.

The qualifications of the candidate will determine the rank of the tenured/tenure-track appointment at the level of an Assistant, Associate or Full Professor. Candidates are expected to be leaders in their discipline and interested in advancing the understanding of the connection between nutrition and health. Commensurate with rank, research excellence should be demonstrated by an active, externally-funded research program as well as by a substantial record of publication in recognized peer-reviewed journals and books.

The successful candidate will teach in the Division's undergraduate and/or graduate program, bring unique expertise and perspectives to the Cornell curriculum, and mentor graduate students within and outside of the Division of Nutritional Sciences.

Responsibilities

The primary responsibility is to establish and maintain an independent and extramurally funded research program. Distribution of professional effort will be approximately 50% research, 50% instruction.

Please visit <http://www.human.cornell.edu/dns> for more information on the Division of Nutritional Sciences and to review the full position description.

Applicants must apply through Academic Jobs Online at <https://academicjobsonline.org/ajo/jobs/11566> and upload a cover letter, CV, research statement and a teaching statement. Applicants must also arrange to have three confidential letters of recommendation submitted through Academic Jobs Online.

Review of applications will begin in September 15, 2018 and will continue until these positions have been filled.

Cornell University is an innovative Ivy League university and a great place to work. Our inclusive community of scholars, students and staff impart an uncommon sense of larger purpose and contribute creative ideas to further the university's mission of teaching, discovery and engagement. With our main campus located in Ithaca, NY Cornell's far-flung global presence includes the medical college's campuses in Manhattan and Doha, Qatar, as well as the new Cornell Tech campus located on Roosevelt Island in the heart of New York City. Diversity and Inclusion are a part of Cornell University's heritage. We are a recognized employer and educator valuing AA/EEO, Protected Veterans, and Individuals with Disabilities.

Apply Here: <http://www.Click2apply.net/fjh3n2xhx62c4t5h>

PI103920302

Start Date:

Date Posted: 8/17/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4633

New York University Abu Dhabi

Rank: Computational Social Science Professor - Open Rank

The Social Science Division at New York University Abu Dhabi (NYUAD) is inviting applications for full time faculty positions in Computational Social Sciences, from senior scholars – at the rank of associate and full professors - and exceptional early career scholars.

We encourage applications from all excellent candidates in any field answering social-science questions, as long as they have a strong focus on (big) data collection and visualization; data management and analysis techniques such as machine learning, text analysis, network science/analysis, spatial data analysis/GIS.

All candidates should demonstrate important contributions to their area of research as evidenced e.g. by significant publications in top international academic journals and a history of acquiring third party funding, as well as the ability to mentor and collaborate with a group of junior social scientists.

NYUAD expects successful candidates to continue to publish in high quality internationally refereed journals. The position features a standard teaching load of three courses per year. The terms of employment are very competitive and include generous start-up and on-going research funds, as well as housing subsidies and educational subsidies for children. Faculty may also spend an occasional semester at NYU New York and other sites of the Global Network, engaging in both research and teaching activities.

The review of applications will occur on a rolling basis. Shortlisted candidates will be invited for campus visits to NYU Abu Dhabi throughout the 18/19 Academic Year. We anticipate that successful candidates will start employment on August 15, 2019, subject to final budget approval.

Applicants should submit a curriculum vitae, a statement of research plans, a statement of teaching interests and three representative publications. To complete the online process, early career applicants will be prompted to enter the names and email addresses of at least three referees. Each referee will be contacted to upload their reference letter. Senior candidates should provide a list of three references in PDF format.

You may start an application here: <https://apply.interfolio.com/52984>

If you have any questions, please e-mail nyuad.socialscience@nyu.edu.

You may find further information about our group at: <https://nyuad.nyu.edu/en/academics/divisions/social-science/faculty.html>

About NYUAD

New York University has established itself as a Global Network University. The network has three foundational degree-granting campuses: New York, Abu Dhabi, and Shanghai, complemented by a network of eleven research and study-away sites across five continents. Our students are drawn from around the world and surpass all traditional recruitment benchmarks, both US and global. Our goal is to develop a cohort of international students attuned to and educated for an inclusive global society. Students and Faculty will circulate within the global network in pursuit of common research interests and the promotion of cross-cultural and interdisciplinary solutions for problems both local and global.

Since its inception NYU Abu Dhabi has recruited a cohort of faculty who are distinguished in their research and teaching. NYU Abu Dhabi's highly selective liberal arts enterprise is complemented by an institute for advanced research, sponsoring cutting-edge projects across the Arts, Humanities, Social Sciences, Sciences, and Engineering. The Institute will invest significant funds in creating a hub for research related to social, economic, and political development in the broader region; applications from candidates with an ambition to contribute to this agenda are especially welcome.

UAE Nationals are encouraged to apply.

Qualifications

This position is not located in the United States. You must be willing to relocate to Abu Dhabi, United Arab Emirates.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 8/15/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4606

New York University Abu Dhabi

Rank: Postdoctoral Researcher - Division of Social Science

The Division of Social Science at New York University Abu Dhabi seeks to appoint several Post-Doctoral Researchers starting September 2019. Applicants must have received a Ph.D. in the last three years or be within a few months from completion. Appointments will be for two academic years, renewable for one additional academic year, conditional on a satisfactory evaluation of performance.

We encourage applications from very promising candidates with a capacity to conduct innovative, high-quality scholarly research in the fields of Economics, Political Science, Sociology and Public Policy. Successful candidates are expected to develop a well-defined research program and to forge productive collaborations with faculty at NYUAD. The terms of employment are competitive.

Applications are now open and we will consider candidates on a rolling basis. To be considered, all applicants need to submit a curriculum vitae, statement of research interests, and a research sample. To complete the online process, applicants will be prompted to enter the names and email addresses of three referees. Each referee will be contacted to upload their reference letter. The Social Science Division is keen on increasing diversity among faculty and postdoctoral fellows and especially encourages women and underrepresented minorities to apply. Please visit our website at <https://nyuad.nyu.edu/en/about/careers/postdoctoral-and-research.html> for instructions and information on how to apply. If you have any questions, please e-mail nyuad-socialscience@nyu.edu.

Note: We will begin considering applicants from political science from September 15, 2018, sociology applicants from October 15, 2018, and economics applicants from December 1, 2018. However, we will continue to consider applicants until all positions are filled.

You may start an application here: <https://apply.interfolio.com/51369>

About NYUAD:

New York University has established itself as a Global Network University, a multi-site, organically connected network encompassing key global cities and idea capitals. The network has three foundational degree-granting campuses: New York, Abu Dhabi, and Shanghai, complimented by a network of eleven research and study-away sites across five continents. Our students are drawn from around the world and surpass all traditional recruitment benchmarks, both US and global. Faculty and students will circulate within this global network in pursuit of common research interests and the promotion of cross-cultural and interdisciplinary solutions for problems both local and global.

Entering its ninth year, NYU Abu Dhabi has recruited a cohort of faculty who are distinguished in their research and teaching. NYU Abu Dhabi's highly selective liberal arts enterprise is complemented by an institute for advanced research, sponsoring cutting-edge projects across the Arts, Humanities, Social Sciences, Sciences, and Engineering.

Qualifications

This position is not located in the United States. You must be willing to relocate to Abu Dhabi, United Arab Emirates.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 8/15/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4607

New York University Abu Dhabi

Rank: Social Neuroscience Professor - Open Rank

The Division of Social Science at NYUAD is seeking to hire a faculty member in the area of Social Neuroscience. This tenure/tenure-track appointment is open rank. Although the specific area of research is open, the focus should be human research explicitly linked to social processes. Individuals from all academic backgrounds are encouraged to apply (e.g., biology, psychology, economics, political science or sociology). Preference will be given to applicants who use fMRI, EEG, or process tracing methods, whose research reflects the interdisciplinary nature of social science and who can forge linkages to other areas of study both within the Division (i.e., with economists, political scientists and sociologists) and outside the Division.

The facilities available include a state-of-the-art brain- imaging center housing a Siemens Prisma 3T MRI, MEG, EEG, eye tracking and behavioral testing facilities. The successful candidates will also have access to state of the art core facilities that include High Performance Computing facilities with more than 6,400 computing cores and a peak performance of 70 TFLOPS.

NYUAD expects successful candidates to publish in high quality internationally refereed journals. The terms of employment are very competitive and include generous start-up and on-going research funds, as well as housing subsidies and educational subsidies for children. Faculty may also spend an occasional semester at NYU New York and other sites of the global network, engaging in both research and teaching activities.

Applicants should submit a curriculum vitae, a statement of research plans, a statement of teaching interests and three representative publications. To complete the online process, early career applicants will be prompted to enter the names and email addresses of at least three referees. Each referee will be contacted to upload their reference letter. Senior candidates should provide a list of three references in PDF format. We will begin consideration of applications October 1st, although review of applications will continue until the position is filled.

You can start an application here: <https://apply.interfolio.com/52983>

You may find further information about our group at: <https://nyuad.nyu.edu/en/academics/divisions/social-science/faculty.html>

About NYUAD

New York University has established itself as a Global Network University. The network has three foundational degree-granting campuses: New York, Abu Dhabi, and Shanghai, complemented by a network of eleven research and study-away sites across five continents. Our students are drawn from around the world and surpass all traditional recruitment benchmarks, both US and global. Our goal is to develop a cohort of international students attuned to and educated for an inclusive global society. Students and Faculty will circulate within the global network in pursuit of common research interests and the promotion of cross-cultural and interdisciplinary solutions for problems both local and global.

Since its inception, NYU Abu Dhabi has recruited a cohort of faculty who are distinguished in their research and teaching. NYU Abu Dhabi's highly selective liberal arts enterprise is complemented by an institute for advanced research, sponsoring cutting-edge projects across the Arts, Humanities, Social Sciences, Sciences, and Engineering. The Institute will invest significant funds in creating a hub for research related to social, economic, and political development in the broader region; applications from candidates with an ambition to contribute to this agenda are especially welcome.

UAE Nationals are encouraged to apply.

Qualifications

This position is not located in the United States. You must be willing to relocate to Abu Dhabi, United Arab Emirates.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 8/15/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4603

New York University Abu Dhabi

Rank: Social Neuroscience Professor - Open Rank

The Division of Social Science at NYUAD is seeking to hire a faculty member in the area of Social Neuroscience. This tenure/tenure-track appointment is open rank. Although the specific area of research is open, the focus should be human research explicitly linked to social processes. Individuals from all academic backgrounds are encouraged to apply (e.g., biology, psychology, economics, political science or sociology). Preference will be given to applicants who use fMRI, EEG, or process tracing methods, whose research reflects the interdisciplinary nature of social science and who can forge linkages to other areas of study both within the Division (i.e., with economists, political scientists and sociologists) and outside the Division.

The facilities available include a state-of-the-art brain- imaging center housing a Siemens Prisma 3T MRI, MEG, EEG, eye tracking and behavioral testing facilities. The successful candidates will also have access to state of the art core facilities that include High Performance Computing facilities with more than 6,400 computing cores and a peak performance of 70 TFLOPS.

NYUAD expects successful candidates to publish in high quality internationally refereed journals. The terms of employment are very competitive and include generous start-up and on-going research funds, as well as housing subsidies and educational subsidies for children. Faculty may also spend an occasional semester at NYU New York and other sites of the global network, engaging in both research and teaching activities.

Applicants should submit a curriculum vitae, a statement of research plans, a statement of teaching interests and three representative publications. To complete the online process, early career applicants will be prompted to enter the names and email addresses of at least three referees. Each referee will be contacted to upload their reference letter. Senior candidates should provide a list of three references in PDF format. We will begin consideration of applications October 1st, although review of applications will continue until the position is filled.

You can start an application here: <https://apply.interfolio.com/52983>

You may find further information about our group at: <https://nyuad.nyu.edu/en/academics/divisions/social-science/faculty.html>

About NYUAD

New York University has established itself as a Global Network University. The network has three foundational degree-granting campuses: New York, Abu Dhabi, and Shanghai, complemented by a network of eleven research and study-away sites across five continents. Our students are drawn from around the world and surpass all traditional recruitment benchmarks, both US and global. Our goal is to develop a cohort of international students attuned to and educated for an inclusive global society. Students and Faculty will circulate within the global network in pursuit of common research interests and the promotion of cross-cultural and interdisciplinary solutions for problems both local and global.

Since its inception, NYU Abu Dhabi has recruited a cohort of faculty who are distinguished in their research and teaching. NYU Abu Dhabi's highly selective liberal arts enterprise is complemented by an institute for advanced research, sponsoring cutting-edge projects across the Arts, Humanities, Social Sciences, Sciences, and Engineering. The Institute will invest significant funds in creating a hub for research related to social, economic, and political development in the broader region; applications from candidates with an ambition to contribute to this agenda are especially welcome.

UAE Nationals are encouraged to apply.

Qualifications

This position is not located in the United States. You must be willing to relocate to Abu Dhabi, United Arab Emirates.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 8/15/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4604

New York University Abu Dhabi

Rank: Social Science and Genetics Professor - Open Rank

The Social Science Division at New York University Abu Dhabi (NYUAD) invites applications for full time faculty positions in New York University Abu Dhabi from scholars working at the intersection of genetics and social sciences. This tenure/tenure-track appointment is open rank. We will consider applicants from across social science or social science related disciplines (e.g. sociology, economics, political science, psychology, biological anthropology, psychology and human genetics) with active and cutting-edge research agendas that include, but are not limited to, population genetics and social identity, genetics and human behaviour, critical and historical approaches to the use of genetics in social science and public policy, and bioethics in relation to human genetics.

Successful candidates will benefit from resources at NYUAD that support work at the intersection of genetics and the social sciences by providing access to cohorts, populations, collaborations and research programs. These include the Center for Genomics and Systems Biology (<http://as.nyu.edu/biology/research/gsb/cgsb.html>), the Public Health Research Center (<https://nyuad.nyu.edu/en/research/centers-labs-and-projects/public-health-research-center.html>), and seminars and colloquia that bring together faculty from biology and the social sciences.

NYUAD expects successful candidates to publish in high quality internationally refereed journals or books. The terms of employment are very competitive and include generous start-up and on-going research funds, as well as housing subsidies and educational subsidies for children. Faculty may also spend an occasional semester at NYU New York and other sites of the global network, engaging in both research and teaching activities.

The review of applications will begin on October 15 and continue until the position is filled. Shortlisted candidates will be invited for campus visits to NYU Abu Dhabi throughout the 18/19 Academic Year. We anticipate that successful candidates will start employment on August 15, 2019, subject to final budget approval.

To ensure full consideration by the search committee, applicants should submit a curriculum vitae, a statement of research plans, a statement of teaching interests and three representative publications. To complete the online process, early career applicants will be prompted to enter the names and email addresses of at least three referees. Each referee will be contacted to upload their reference letter. Senior candidates should provide a list of three references in PDF format. If you have any questions, please e-mail nyuad.socialscience@nyu.edu.

You may start an application here: <https://apply.interfolio.com/52985>

You may find further information about our group at: <https://nyuad.nyu.edu/en/academics/divisions/social-science/faculty.html>

About NYUAD

New York University has established itself as a Global Network University. The network has three foundational degree-granting campuses: New York, Abu Dhabi, and Shanghai, complemented by a network of eleven research and study-away sites across five continents. Our students are drawn from around the world and surpass all traditional recruitment benchmarks, both US and global. Our goal is to develop a cohort of international students attuned to and educated for an inclusive global society. Students and Faculty will circulate within the global network in pursuit of common research interests and the promotion of cross-cultural and interdisciplinary solutions for problems both local and global.

Since its inception NYU Abu Dhabi has recruited a cohort of faculty who are distinguished in their research and teaching. NYU Abu Dhabi's highly selective liberal arts enterprise is complemented by an institute for advanced research, sponsoring cutting-edge projects across the Arts, Humanities, Social Sciences, Sciences, and Engineering. The Institute will invest significant funds in creating a hub for research related to social, economic, and political development in the broader region; applications from candidates with an ambition to contribute to this agenda are especially welcome.

UAE Nationals are encouraged to apply.

Qualifications

This position is not located in the United States. You must be willing to relocate to Abu Dhabi, United Arab Emirates.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 8/15/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4605

Princeton University

Rank: Fellowship

Fung Global Fellows Program

Princeton University is pleased to announce the call for applications to the Fung Global Fellows Program at the Princeton Institute for International and Regional Studies (PIIRS). Each year the program selects six scholars from around the world to be in residence at Princeton for an academic year and to engage in research and discussion around a common theme. Candidates will be considered in three categories: (1) Four of the fellowships will be awarded to early-career scholars employed in the equivalent of tenure-track positions who are expected to return to their position. (2) One fellowship is set aside for a postdoctoral research associate who at the time of application does not have a tenure-track faculty appointment. (3) In addition, one fellowship will be awarded to a senior scholar. All candidates must be based outside the United States.

During the academic year 2019-20, the Fung Global Fellows Program theme will be "Thinking Globally." How people have thought about the planet has informed the institutions, norms, and policies that have pulled it together and torn it apart. For centuries, ideas of free trade, human rights or global governance have framed cooperation and competition, order and disorder. Such ideas have also spawned border-crossing movements, from campaigns to end slavery to commitments to reduce carbon emissions. In turn, global thinking and action have often reinforced commitments to national ideas and efforts to curb global exchange. The goal of this research theme is to explore how ideas framed the understanding of interests and the making of institutions that have yielded commonness and conflict across and within borders. We also want to understand how these ideas and practices came into being through scientific networks, foundations, and think tanks. The Program will also examine rival world ideas that have challenged prevailing orthodoxies. Nowadays, with cooperative norms under challenge, global institutions under stress, and a century of guiding ideas about global convergence in doubt, we want to take a broad look at where these ideas came from, their effects, and the prospects for intellectual renewal or rethinking. The goal of the 2019-20 Fung Global Fellows cohort will be to explore the ways people learned to rely on or to reject strangers far away, as well as to imagine how global relationships came to be and could be different. We welcome applicants from all disciplinary and inter-disciplinary fields from the sciences to the humanities whose work addresses this set of themes in any historical period or world region.

Applications are due on November 9, 2018. All candidates must reside outside the United States. To be eligible, postdoctoral applicants must have completed all requirements for their Ph.D. before August 1, 2019 but cannot have received their degrees more than three years prior to the start of the appointment on September 1, 2019. Early-career fellows must have received their Ph.D. or equivalent no earlier than September 1, 2009. Senior scholars, who have received their doctorates before 2009, must have faculty appointments and a record of scholarly accomplishment in the designated theme of the program. Fellowships will be awarded on the strength of a candidate's proposed research project, the relationship of the project to the program theme, the candidate's scholarly record, and the ability to contribute to the intellectual life of the program.

Start Date: Summer 2018

Application Deadline: 11/8/2019

Date Posted: 8/1/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4322

Princeton University

Rank: Professor, Contemporary East Asia

Princeton University seeks qualified candidates for a tenured full professorship in any discipline in the humanities, social sciences, engineering and the natural sciences. In addition to their core disciplinary specialization, candidates are required to have regional competence on China, Japan, or Korea, and knowledge of relevant foreign languages. Field of specialization is open.

Applicants should apply online at: <https://www.princeton.edu/acad-positions/position/7781>.

Applicants must have a Ph.D. or equivalent degree. Senior scholars should submit a brief letter of interest along with a curriculum vitae and a list of references. No publications, letters of recommendation or writing samples are required at this time. For fullest consideration, please apply by October 3, 2018.

Essential Qualifications: Excellence in a recognized discipline. Regional expertise and linguistic competence in Contemporary East Asia.

Further questions about this position may be directed to Nicole Bergman at nbergman@princeton.edu.

This position is subject to the University's background check policy.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 7/31/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4462

Princeton University

Rank: Professor, Contemporary India

Princeton University seeks qualified candidates for a tenured professorship in any discipline, including the arts, the humanities, the social sciences, engineering and the natural sciences. Candidates are required to have regional expertise on India, knowledge of relevant foreign languages, and significant experience managing a center or program.

In addition to contributing to their respective disciplinary department and to the wider research community of the Princeton Institute for International and Regional Studies (PIIRS, <http://piirs.princeton.edu>), they are expected to strengthen regional course offerings at the University and, vitally, to broaden Princeton's international networks. Field of specialization is open.

Applicants should apply online at: <https://www.princeton.edu/acad-positions/position/7801>

Applicants must have a Ph.D. or equivalent degree. Senior scholars should submit a brief letter of interest along with a curriculum vitae and a list of references, but no publications, letters of recommendation or writing samples at this time. For fullest consideration, please apply by November 15, 2018.

Essential Qualifications: Excellence in a recognized field or discipline. Regional expertise on India.

Further questions about this position may be directed to Nicole Bergman at nbergman@princeton.edu.

This position is subject to the University's background check policy.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 7/31/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4461

Muhlenberg College

Rank: Assistant Professor

Subfield(s): Public Law, American Government and Politics, Other

The Department of Political Science at Muhlenberg College invites applications for a tenure-track, Assistant Professor to begin August 2019. The successful candidate will be broadly trained in political science with a primary interest in American public law. We are open to candidates with a variety of substantive teaching and research interests, for example, constitutional law and theory; judicial politics; urban politics, civil rights; law and society; criminal justice politics; democracy, law, and race; feminist legal studies; global legal studies; immigration. We are especially interested in candidates who desire to work across subfield and disciplinary boundaries and welcome a variety of methodological approaches. Teaching responsibilities include three courses per semester to include one or two classes in American constitutional law or constitutional theory.

Ideal candidates will hold a PhD in Political Science by August 2019. Successful candidates will demonstrate a commitment to excellence in liberal arts undergraduate teaching and mentoring students from all backgrounds (including first-generation students, low-income students, racial and ethnic minorities, women, LGBTQ, etc.), the potential for scholarly publications, and effective written and oral communication. We are especially interested in candidates who have a long-term interest in helping to develop and advise students in Muhlenberg's pre-law program.

Interested candidates should submit a cover letter describing their teaching and research interests, a curriculum vitae, sample teaching materials (e.g. sample syllabi, a statement describing potential courses, and/or a statement of teaching philosophy), graduate transcripts, and contact information for three references. Candidates should also submit a separate statement describing how they will enhance the diversity of offerings and educational experiences in our department as well as contribute to the College's efforts to become a more diverse and inclusive community.

An equal opportunity employer, Muhlenberg College is committed to recruiting and retaining outstanding faculty and staff from racial and ethnic groups that have been traditionally underrepresented in higher education. For additional information about Muhlenberg's commitment to diversity and inclusion, applicants can find the latest updates to the College's Diversity Strategic Plan at: <http://www.muhlenberg.edu/main/aboutus/president/initiatives/diversityatmuhlenberg/>.

Complete applications should be sent via email as a single PDF document, addressed to Lanethea Mathews-Schultz, Political Science Department Chair to: pscsearch@muhlenberg.edu. In order to receive full consideration, applications must be received by September 17, 2018.

Founded in 1848, Muhlenberg College is an independent, coeducational residential college of liberal arts and sciences located in eastern Pennsylvania's Lehigh Valley. Allentown is a diverse city of 116,000, and along with Bethlehem and Easton, anchors the third-largest metropolitan area in Pennsylvania. The region is home to a vibrant arts scene, a nationally unique parks system, and a rich blend of cuisine and diverse restaurants. In addition, Allentown is within close proximity to both New York City and Philadelphia.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 7/30/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4457

Denison University

Rank: Tenure Track Faculty Position in Global Commerce

Specializations: International Political Economy, International Law & Organizations, Trade

The Global Commerce program at Denison University invites applications for a tenure track position at the assistant professor or senior level beginning in Fall 2019. Global Commerce is a new interdisciplinary major (started in 2016) that trains students to think critically and creatively, in the liberal arts tradition, about global processes and structures of exchange by examining how factors including culture, history, politics, financial practices, and social structures shape both for-profit and non-profit activity in different contexts around the globe. Field of specialization for this position is open, but research and teaching experience must be related to international business, international financial institutions, global political economy, institutions of commerce (including non-profits or NGOs), or liberal market economies. Teaching responsibilities will include some combination of the core Global Commerce courses (Commerce and Society; Elements of Commerce; Global Financial Markets; and possibly a future applied statistics course for Global Commerce majors), as well as rotating responsibilities for the senior capstone course. (For details on our Global Commerce curriculum and course descriptions, please see: <https://denison.edu/academics/global-commerce>.) The successful candidate will also have regular opportunities to teach topical seminars investigating the structures, strategies, cultures, and contexts of global business and non-profit organizations and must be prepared to mentor undergraduate scholarship and research. The teaching load is 5 courses per year, including both introductory and upper-level courses, the largest of which is capped at 28 students.

Possible disciplinary backgrounds include political science, economic history, sociology, economics, industrial and organizational psychology, or international management. Regardless of discipline, applicants must have superior teaching skills, a commitment to a liberal arts approach to education, and the clearly articulated desire to contribute to the development of this innovative program, as well as an active research agenda related to some aspect of global commerce. Additional work experience in the business or non-profit sectors, as well as a willingness to help foster connections between our Global Commerce program and outside practitioners, are preferred.

Denison University is located just 25 miles east of Columbus, OH, the state capital. We are an increasingly diverse, highly-selective, residential liberal arts college enrolling approximately 2200 students from across the nation and around the world. Our college and the Global Commerce program are committed to attracting and supporting an academically and culturally diverse faculty who are successful and effective teachers, who develop active and productive research programs, and who are involved in the life of the college.

We will begin reviewing applications on October 1, 2018, and will continue to accept applications until the position is filled. We will conduct Skype interviews with prospective candidates in early November 2018. We will consider both ABD and Ph.D.-in-hand candidates, but degree must be conferred within a year of appointment at Denison in order for contract to be renewed.

Applicants should submit the following electronic application materials on-line at employment.denison.edu: a cover letter that includes discussion of commitment to liberal arts teaching, a brief description of the candidate's research agenda, mention of relevant non-academic work experience in the business or non-profit sectors, and a statement addressing the potential to foster and support diversity among our students, faculty, and community; curriculum vitae; two proposed syllabi for Global Commerce courses that reflect the candidate's area of expertise and interests; three letters of recommendation from academic references; and other supporting documents.

Denison University is an Affirmative Action, Equal Opportunity Employer. To achieve our mission as a liberal arts college, we continually strive to foster a diverse campus community, which recognizes the value of all persons regardless of religion, race, ethnicity, gender, sexual orientation, disability, or socioeconomic background. For additional information and resources about diversity at Denison please see our Diversity Guide at www.denison.edu/forms/diversity-guide.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 7/24/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4422

Harvard University

Rank: Tenure-Track Professor of Government - Open Field

The Department of Government seeks to appoint a tenure-track professor. The position is open with respect to subfields of political science, with special interest in research focusing on democratic dysfunction, international insecurity, unequal development, or collective action problems in any area of the world or without a specific area focus. The appointment is expected to begin on July 1, 2019. The tenure-track professor will be responsible for teaching at the undergraduate and graduate levels.

Doctorate or terminal degree in Political Science or related disciplines required by the time the appointment begins.

Demonstrated excellence in teaching is desired.

Please submit the following materials through the ARIeS portal (<https://academicpositions.harvard.edu>). The Committee will begin reviewing applications on September 15, 2018.

1. Cover letter
2. Curriculum Vitae
3. Teaching statement (describing teaching approach and philosophy)
4. Research statement
5. Names and contact information of 3-5 referees, who will be asked by a system-generated email to upload a letter of recommendation once the candidate's application has been submitted. Three letters of recommendation are required, and the application is considered complete only when at least three letters have been received.
6. Writing samples and publications, if applicable.

Harvard is an equal opportunity employer and all qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to race, color, religion, sex, national origin, disability status, protected veteran status, gender identity, sexual orientation, pregnancy and pregnancy-related conditions, or any other characteristic protected by law.

Start Date: Summer 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 7/11/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4370

University of Toronto

Rank: Endowed Chair, Japanese Politics and Global Affairs

The University of Toronto invites applications for a joint tenure-stream, endowed chair appointment in the Department of Political Science (51%) and the Munk School of Global Affairs and Public Policy (49%) in the area of Japanese Politics and Global Affairs. The appointment will be at the rank of Associate or Full Professor and will commence July 1, 2019.

The successful candidate must have a PhD in politics, government, international relations, or a closely related discipline at the time of appointment and be able to provide evidence of innovative research excellence of an internationally competitive calibre, as evidenced by a record of publications in leading outlets in the field, presentations at significant conferences, accolades or awards, and strong endorsements by referees of high standing.

Candidates should have an established international reputation based on a scholarly record of excellence appropriate to their career stage. Evidence of excellence in teaching and a demonstrated commitment to graduate education and mentorship are required. Evidence of excellence in teaching will be demonstrated by strong letters of reference, teaching evaluations, graduate supervision, dossier and/or syllabi submitted as part of the application. The ideal candidate will focus on Japanese politics (including political history) in comparative and international perspective, Japanese policy in global and regional context, or international relations and contemporary Japan.

The appointment will be contingent upon a successful tenure review. Salary will be commensurate with qualifications and experience.

We seek applications from candidates whose research program fits well with the Department and with the global focus of the Munk School. The appointee will contribute to the education and training of undergraduate and graduate students in both the Department and the School. The opportunity is also available to direct a new Centre for the Study of Global Japan established in the School to stimulate collaborative scholarship and public outreach.

We encourage applicants to review both academic units' research and teaching profiles prior to applying. Please visit our home pages: Department of Political Science <http://politics.utoronto.ca/>; Munk School of Global Affairs and Public Policy <http://www.munkschool.utoronto.ca/>.

All qualified candidates are invited to apply by clicking on the link below. Applications should include a cover letter, curriculum vitae, writing sample, teaching dossier (including a statement of teaching philosophy), and a statement outlining current and future research interests. Equity and diversity are essential to academic excellence. We seek candidates who value diversity and whose research, teaching and service bear out our commitment to equity. Candidates are therefore also asked to submit a 1-2 page statement of contributions to equity and diversity, which might cover topics such as (but not limited to): research or teaching that incorporates a focus on underrepresented communities, the development of inclusive pedagogies, or the mentoring of students from underrepresented groups.

If you have questions about this position, please contact Sari Sherman at chair.polisci@utoronto.ca. All application materials should be submitted through the University of Toronto's online application system. Submission guidelines can be found at: <http://uoft.me/how-to-apply>.

Applicants should also ask three referees to send letters (on letterhead, signed and scanned) directly to the Chair of the search committee in the Department of Political Science, Professor Antoinette Handley, via e-mail at chair.polisci@utoronto.ca by the closing date, October 9, 2018.

The University of Toronto is strongly committed to diversity within its community and especially welcomes applications from racialized persons / persons of colour, women, Indigenous / Aboriginal People of North America, persons with disabilities, LGBTQ persons, and others who may contribute to the further diversification of ideas.

As part of your application, you will be asked to complete a brief Diversity Survey. This survey is voluntary. Any information directly related to you is confidential and cannot be accessed by search committees or human resources staff. Results will be aggregated for institutional planning purposes. For more information, please see <http://uoft.me/UP>

All qualified candidates are encouraged to apply; however, Canadians and permanent residents will be given priority.

Start Date: Fall 2019
Application Deadline: 10/9/2018
Date Posted: 7/11/2018
Salary: Competitive
eJobs ID: 4373

Furman University

Rank: Professor in American Politics

Specializations: Civil Rights & Liberties, American Politics, Judicial Politics

The Department of Politics and International Affairs at Furman University invites applications for a tenure-track appointment at the Assistant, Associate, or Full rank in American politics to begin August 1, 2019. The candidate's teaching responsibilities will include introductory courses in American government and upper level courses in the area of constitutional law. The ability to offer classes in policy, jurisprudence, legal theory, criminology, and other related areas would be particularly welcome. S/he must demonstrate the potential for superb teaching and excellence in scholarship. The teaching load is typically five courses in a semester system. A Ph.D. is required by August 1, 2019. The department has a preference for a person who possesses or is a candidate for a Ph.D./J.D. and those licensed in the practice of law from any of the 50 states in the United States of America

We will begin reviewing applications on October 1, 2018 and continue until the position is filled. We will also meet with interested and qualified candidates at the American Political Science Association convention in Boston, MA. To apply please go to <https://jobs.furman.edu/postings/5738>. Applicants should submit a letter of interest, CV, three letters of recommendation, sample course syllabi, teaching evaluations, copy of graduate transcript(s), and a sample(s) of professional writing (published work preferred). Candidates should also include a statement describing how their teaching, scholarship, mentoring and/or service might contribute to a liberal arts college community that includes a commitment to diversity as one of its core values. For any questions please contact the chairperson of the search committee Teresa Cosby at Teresa.cosby@furman.edu.

Furman University is a selective private liberal arts and sciences college committed to helping students develop intellectually, personally, and interpersonally and providing the practical skills necessary to succeed in a rapidly-changing world. Furman professors are exceptional teacher-scholars who mentor undergraduate students within a campus community that values and encourages diverse ideas and perspectives. Our recently-launched strategic vision, The Furman Advantage, promises students an individualized four-year pathway facilitated by team of mentors and infused with a rich and varied set of high impact experiences outside the classroom that include undergraduate research, study away, internships, community-focused learning, and opportunities to engage across differences.

Furman is located in Greenville, South Carolina, which is one of the fastest growing cities in the Southeast and is ranked among "America's Ten Best" by Forbes Magazine. The charming downtown features excellent restaurants, in-town parks, shops, museums, galleries, music venues, and theaters. The city also has excellent public and private schools and a vibrant international community. A 20-mile bike and running trail connects the university to Greenville and to Travelers Rest, which was named "one of America's coolest small towns." The surrounding area abounds with outdoor recreational activities and has some of the most beautiful lakes, rivers, and mountains in the country. Greenville is within easy reach of the Blue Ridge Mountains and Atlantic Beaches. The newly renovated Greenville-Spartanburg Airport, located just 25 minutes from downtown, runs daily flights to major cities and airline hubs. Greenville is 2 1/2 hours from Atlanta and only one hour from Asheville, North Carolina. It is an ideal place to live and work.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled
Date Posted: 6/1/2018
Salary: Competitive
eJobs ID: 4280

Furman University

Rank: Professor in American Politics

Specializations: Constitutional Law & Theory, Civil Rights & Liberties, American Politics

The Department of Politics and International Affairs at Furman University invites applications for a tenure-track appointment at the Assistant, Associate, or Full rank in American politics to begin August 1, 2019. The candidate's teaching responsibilities will include introductory courses in American government and upper level courses in the area of constitutional law. The ability to offer classes in policy, jurisprudence, legal theory, criminology, and other related areas would be particularly welcome. S/he must demonstrate the potential for superb teaching and excellence in scholarship. The teaching load is typically five courses in a semester system. A Ph.D. is required by August 1, 2019. The department has a preference for a person who possesses or is a candidate for a Ph.D./J.D. and those licensed in the practice of law from any of the 50 states in the United States of America

We will begin reviewing applications on October 1, 2018 and continue until the position is filled. We will also meet with interested and qualified candidates at the American Political Science Association convention in Boston, MA. To apply please go to <https://jobs.furman.edu/postings/5738>. Applicants should submit a letter of interest, CV, three letters of recommendation, sample course syllabi, teaching evaluations, copy of graduate transcript(s), and a sample(s) of professional writing (published work preferred). Candidates should also include a statement describing how their teaching, scholarship, mentoring and/or service might contribute to a liberal arts college community that includes a commitment to diversity as one of its core values. For any questions please contact the chairperson of the search committee Teresa Cosby at Teresa.cosby@furman.edu.

Furman University is a selective private liberal arts and sciences college committed to helping students develop intellectually, personally, and interpersonally and providing the practical skills necessary to succeed in a rapidly-changing world. Furman professors are exceptional teacher-scholars who mentor undergraduate students within a campus community that values and encourages diverse ideas and perspectives. Our recently-launched strategic vision, The Furman Advantage, promises students an individualized four-year pathway facilitated by team of mentors and infused with a rich and varied set of high impact experiences outside the classroom that include undergraduate research, study away, internships, community-focused learning, and opportunities to engage across differences.

Furman is located in Greenville, South Carolina, which is one of the fastest growing cities in the Southeast and is ranked among "America's Ten Best" by Forbes Magazine. The charming downtown features excellent restaurants, in-town parks, shops, museums, galleries, music venues, and theaters. The city also has excellent public and private schools and a vibrant international community. A 20-mile bike and running trail connects the university to Greenville and to Travelers Rest, which was named "one of America's coolest small towns." The surrounding area abounds with outdoor recreational activities and has some of the most beautiful lakes, rivers, and mountains in the country. Greenville is within easy reach of the Blue Ridge Mountains and Atlantic Beaches. The newly renovated Greenville-Spartanburg Airport, located just 25 minutes from downtown, runs daily flights to major cities and airline hubs. Greenville is 2 1/2 hours from Atlanta and only one hour from Asheville, North Carolina. It is an ideal place to live and work.

Start Date: Fall 2019
Application Deadline: Open until Filled
Date Posted: 6/1/2018
Salary: Competitive
eJobs ID: 4281

University of California, San Diego

Rank: Postdoctoral Fellow

Subfield(s): International Relations, Methodology, Other

The Center for Peace and Security Studies (cPASS - <http://cpass.ucsd.edu/>) has two postdoctoral positions available for the 2018-2019 academic year. Each position is also renewable at the discretion of the cPASS Director. Research at cPASS targets new and emerging security issues such as emerging modes of conflict and new modes of deterrence. cPASS is devoted to applying innovative thinking and diverse methodologies (experiments, deductive modeling, statistical analysis, case studies, archival research and "big data") to traditional security issues made more dynamic and difficult by the increased complexity of interstate competition and conflict. We emphasize a team-based, multi-method approach to research that combines qualitative and quantitative perspectives.

Postdocs will work closely with the Center Director in conducting cPASS research activities such as data collection, analysis, preparing project reports and manuscripts for peer-reviewed journals, preparing and delivering oral presentations to diverse audiences, overseeing qualitative research or supervising project labs, and mentoring graduate and undergraduate research activities.

Applicants are required to have a PhD in hand at the time of appointment. A degree in Political Science, History, International Relations, Economics, or allied field is anticipated but other specialties may be appropriate, depending on an applicant's interests and skills. Candidates will be assessed based on their expertise and knowledge of different key aspects of security studies and their ability to contribute to a diversified, integrated research team.

The initial period of appointment will be for 12 months from the date of appointment. Renewal is possible with the approval of the Center Director. Some flexibility exists as to start date, but candidates should expect to be in residence in San Diego throughout the appointment. Salary will be commensurate with qualifications and experience.

Interested applicants should provide a letter describing their qualifications and the reasons for interest in the position. A printed copy of a curriculum vitae is also required. Additional materials may be requested after initial review. Please send all materials to the following email address (jml110@ucsd.edu). Please ensure to include the phrase "cPASS Postdoc Fellow" in the subject heading. Review of applications will be ongoing.

Start Date: Fall 2018
Application Deadline: Open until Filled
Date Posted: 4/2/2018
Salary: Competitive
eJobs ID: 4173

Yale University

Rank: Mars Fellow in Business Ethics

Yale University's Mars Brothers Interdisciplinary Program on Business Ethics seeks postdoctoral fellows for 2018-2019 from relevant disciplines (philosophy, business, economics, political science, sociology, psychology). Fellowships are for one year, renewable to two at a salary of $60,000 with health benefits. In addition to performing research under the supervision of Program faculty, Fellows will teach one seminar, be available to meet undergraduates of the Ethics, Politics, and Economics major, assist with senior essays, and help to organize and run a workshop series of 4-6 visitors a year. Applicants should have completed PhD requirements by September 2018. Mentoring of the fellows will draw on the established strengths of Yale's interdisciplinary faculty, beginning with the faculty of the Ethics, Politics, and Economics interdisciplinary undergraduate major.

Please submit a cover letter, current C.V., copy of graduate transcripts, draft syllabus, and the names of two recommenders whom we will contact separately, online at <http://apply.interfolio.com/47996>.

The review process will begin February 1, 2018. Please submit your materials before that date to receive full consideration, although we will continue to accept applications until the position has been filled. Please direct inquiries to Frances Rosenbluth, Director of Ethics, Politics and Economics, frances.rosenbluth@yale.edu.

Yale is an affirmative action/equal opportunity employer. Applications from women, persons with disabilities, protected veterans, and under-represented minorities are particularly welcome.

Start Date: Fall 2018

Date Posted: 12/19/2017

Salary: $60,000 - $69,999

eJobs ID: 3897

POLITICAL THEORY

Yale University

Rank: Post Doctoral Fellowship in Political Economy

Subfield(s): International Relations, Political Theory, Comparative Politics

The Leitner Program in International and Comparative Political Economy at Yale invites applications for a post-doctoral position for AY 2019-2020. Candidates must have a robust research program in political economy, broadly construed, and must have completed their Ph.D. by the time of appointment.

The post-doctoral fellow will teach one course during the year, either in the Fall or the Spring semester, pursue their own research, and participate in the activities of the Leitner program. Fellows are expected to be in residence from August 2019 to May 2020. Compensation is competitive, and includes benefits and health coverage.

To apply, send a cover letter, CV, research statement and a draft of a syllabus of a course you propose to teach at Yale. You'll also need to have three letters of recommendation submitted on your behalf.

All information from the applicant should be submitted electronically through Interfolio: apply.interfolio.com/55450

For questions, please contact Ms. Hira Jafri, Assistant Director of Global Programs, Leitner Program in International and Comparative

Political Economy, The Whitney and Betty MacMillan Center for International and Area Studies, 34 Hillhouse Avenue, P.O. Box 208206 New Haven, CT 06520-8206 USA. Email: leitner@yale.edu

For details on the Leitner program, please consult the website: <https://leitner.yale.edu/>

We will begin accepting applications immediately with review beginning on Thursday, December 13, 2018 and continuing until the selections are final.

Start Date: Summer 2019

Application Deadline: 12/13/2018

Date Posted: 10/26/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 5075

George Washington University

Rank: Assistant or Associate Professor of Ethics and International Affairs

Subfield(s): International Relations, Political Theory, Comparative Politics

The Elliott School of International Affairs at the George Washington University invites applications for a tenure track appointment to begin as early as Fall 2019. The successful applicant will teach graduate and undergraduate courses on ethics and international affairs, including discussions of practical events and ethical challenges as they unfold in a broad range of substantive areas of international affairs; conduct research, produce scholarship and policy analysis in ethics and international affairs; and engage with the broader academic and policy communities. This appointment is at the assistant or associate professor level and will be affiliated with the Elliott School's Leadership, Ethics and Practice initiative. The successful candidate will also have an appointment either in the Political Science or Philosophy Department. Salary and rank are commensurate with experience.

Minimum qualifications: Applicants must have a doctorate in philosophy or political science (or a relevant disciplinary or interdisciplinary field) at time of appointment. Applicants should have a promising research agenda as demonstrated by publications, presentations or works in progress; promise of excellence in teaching as demonstrated by student evaluations, peer reviews, or supervisor's comments; and an interest in policy issues demonstrated by a teaching and research statement, publications or presentations that will support the mission of the Leadership, Ethics and Practice initiative and the Elliott School.

Application procedure: To apply, please complete an online faculty application at <https://www.gwu.jobs/postings/57049>, upload a cover letter that explains how your qualifications and experiences satisfy the basic qualifications for this position, a CV, sample publication (if available), teaching evaluations or assessments (if available), and course syllabi (to be included in the 'Other Documents' section, if available). In addition, please send at least three letters of recommendation to esiafac@gwu.edu or Faculty Affairs, 1957 E Street NW, Suite 401, Washington, DC 20052. Review of applications will begin November 26, 2018 and will continue until the position is filled. Only completed applications will be considered.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 10/25/2018

Salary: Competitive
eJobs ID: 5072

Tulane University

Rank: Faculty Fellowship/Visiting Research Professor

The Center for Ethics and Public Affairs at the Murphy Institute at Tulane University invites applications for three Visiting Research Professorships/Faculty Fellowships for the 2019-2020 academic year.

These fellowships are available to support outstanding faculty whose teaching and research focus on ethics, political philosophy, philosophy of law, moral psychology, agency and responsibility, political theory, or questions of moral choice in areas such as, but not restricted to, business, government, law, economics, and medicine.

While fellows will participate in conferences and seminars organized by the Murphy Institute, they will be expected to devote most of their time to conducting their own research. Faculty Fellows are normally appointed as Visiting Research Professors, receive a salary of $65,000, and are eligible for Tulane faculty benefits, including health insurance.

The application deadline is December 30, 2018.

Qualifications

Applicants should hold a doctorate or equivalent research degree in philosophy, political theory, or a related discipline at the time of application. Applicants should also have a full-time college or university appointment at the time of application. Faculty Fellowships are open to full-time faculty at all ranks.

Application Instructions

Required application materials include a cover letter, a curriculum vitae, a project description of approximately 1500 words accompanied by one-page bibliography, a scholarly paper, and two confidential letters of recommendation.

To apply for the fellowship, visit Interfolio at <https://apply.interfolio.com/56465>.

Please contact the Murphy Institute's Assistant Director Margaret Keenan at mkeen@tulane.edu with any questions about the application process.

Start Date: Spring 2019
Application Deadline: 12/30/2018
Date Posted: 10/24/2018
Salary: $60,000 - $69,999
eJobs ID: 5063

Stanford University

Rank: Research Scholar

Specializations: Political Economy, Economic Policy, Japan

Research Scholar

The Japan Program at the Walter H. Shorenstein Asia Pacific Research Center is seeking a research scholar with a Ph.D. in political science, economics, or related areas to conduct research on Japanese politics or economy and to assist in teaching a course on Contemporary Japan.

The position is one-year fixed-term. Start date September 1, 2019.

The research scholar will assist faculty members of the Japan Program in teaching a course on contemporary Japan:

- Lecture and lead class discussions
- Schedule guest instructors
- Hold office hours for students
- Maintain the course website on canvas
- Develop topics for short papers and assist faculty instructors with evaluation process
- Promote student awareness of course related seminars and panel discussions that are occurring within APARC and other centers at FSI

The research scholar may help the Japan Program organize academic conferences that will be scheduled during the academic year 2019-2020:

- Invite speakers and communicate agenda and logistics
 - Participate in the conferences
 - Author, write and publish a detailed report on the conferences
 - Publish the report on the Japan Program website
- The research scholar will contribute to the Japan Program:
- Conduct his/her own research related to Japan
 - Present his/her own research at Japan Program colloquium
- Interact with other researchers at the Japan Program

Qualifications

- Working in a capacity which ordinarily requires a Ph.D. or its equivalent in research skill and subject knowledge, a Research Scholar is involved directly in the execution, and frequently the design, of a PI's research activities.
- For consideration and job details, please submit curriculum vitae, cover letter, two writing samples on relevant topics, and three reference letters by December 01, 2018.
- A background check will be required for the final candidate

To Apply please go to link below and look for requisition ID: 80910

<https://careerssearch.stanford.edu/>

Job: Academic
Location: Dean of Research
Schedule: Full-time
Classification Level: R99
Job Code 6784 - Social Science Research Scholar

Start Date: Fall 2019
Application Deadline: 12/1/2018
Date Posted: 10/23/2018
Salary: Competitive
eJobs ID: 5059

California State University Dominguez Hills

Rank: Assistant Professor of Political Theory

The Department of Political Science at California State University Dominguez Hills invites applications for a Tenure-track position at the rank of Assistant Professor with the appointment starting in fall 2019.

At CSUDH we celebrate and respect diversity in all forms that includes every race, religion, gender, ethnicity, veterans, people with varied abilities, and members of the LGBTQ+ community. CSUDH is seeking applications from candidates who can demonstrate experience in teaching and working with individuals from diverse backgrounds and contribute to the University's mission, vision, and core values. <https://www.csudh.edu/president/strategic-planning/mission-vision-and-core-values/>

Political Science

The Political Science Department is located in the College of Natural and Behavioral Sciences. The current faculty is comprised of five tenured and tenure-track faculty joined by four to five part-time faculty each term. The department provides excellent opportunities for the study of governments, politics, Political Theory, the Constitution, and pre-law. Over 40 courses cover all the major aspects of the discipline. Students develop an understanding of human behavior as it relates to politics. They learn to discuss and analyze critically current philosophical questions and public policy issues facing the United States and the world. They are taught how to critically observe and understand world affairs and comparative politics. They are trained in appropriate research techniques for the study of political processes.

The department currently offers a general major composed of core courses in Quantitative Research Methods, History of Political Thought, American Politics, Comparative Politics, and International Relations. Additionally, majors select breadth courses in American Politics, Comparative Politics, and International Relations along with five elective courses selected from departmental offerings. Majors must complete the Capstone Research Exercise (comprised of a major research paper) in one of the elective courses. The department offers internship opportunities at the national, California government and local government levels. The department sponsors an active student organization (APSS, the Association of Political Science Students), houses a faculty advisor to the on-campus Pre-law Society and hosts successful Model United Nations (MUN) and Mock Trial programs for students.

For more information see: <https://www.csudh.edu/political-science/>

The Position

The Department of Political Science intends to hire a Political Theorist with an ability and willingness to teach classes in both Political Theory and American Politics. The successful candidate will begin a tenure-track position in the department as of fall 2019, as an Assistant Professor.

The Ideal Candidate

The ideal candidate will have a promising record of effective teaching, scholarly writing and service, will be innovative in his or her thinking in a department strongly committed to academic excellence, community outreach and the development of partnerships with local and federal government institutions and businesses to enhance the learning experience of political science students and to help prepare them for success in the job market, legal careers or graduate school.

Responsibilities

The selected candidate will be responsible for teaching, performing service on departmental and university-wide bases, publishing in peer-reviewed academic journals relevant to the discipline of Political Science/the subfield of Political Theory, maintaining office hours, providing advising for our majors and minors, and participating with colleagues in curricular development.

Qualifications

Minimum Qualifications

- A PhD or ABD in Political Science from an accredited institution of higher education, with emphasis in Political Theory.
- Teaching experience or training in teaching techniques.
- A strong interest in developing new courses to reflect the changing nature of and the developments in the discipline of Political Science and Political Theory.
- Ability and willingness to teach classes in both Political Theory and American Politics.
- Experience or interest in teaching undergraduates from diverse age, socioeconomic, cultural, and academic backgrounds.

Preferred /Desired Qualifications

- Expertise in one or more of the following fields: American Political Thought, Modern Political Thought, Democratic Theory, Political Thought of the Enlightenment Era, the History of Political Thought, Environmental Political Theory, Normative Political Theory, Contractarian Political Theory, Integral Political Theory.
- Strong preference will be given to applicants with a first emphasis of degree in Political Theory and a subfield degree or comprehensive exams in American Politics.
- An interest in student-involved research, theory development, or analysis of works by famous political theorists.

Employment Requirement – Background Check

Satisfactory completion of a background check (including a criminal records check) is required for employment. CSU will make a conditional offer of employment, which may be rescinded if the background check reveals disqualifying information, and/or it is discovered that the candidate knowingly withheld or falsified information. Failure to satisfactorily complete the background check may affect the continued employment of a current CSU employee who was conditionally offered the position.

How to Apply

The position is open until filled. Review of applications will begin in October 2018. For full consideration please submit your completed application no later than November 25, 2018.

Register your online application at New & Returning Applicants at <https://www.csudh.edu/hr/job-opportunities/index> and submit the following in a single pdf file:

- Current Curriculum Vitae with contact information
- Cover letter
- List of 3 references with contact information
- Unofficial transcripts (an official transcript will be required for the finalist)
- A Statement on Teaching
- A Statement on Research
- Sample Publications or Evidence of Creative/Scholarly Activity
- Teaching Evaluations (if available)
- A one page statement explaining your views about diversity and inclusion

For finalist with International transcripts, a United States Equivalency certification will be required.

Applicants that are selected to move forward in the recruitment process will be notified by the Search Committee when to submit their 3 letters of recommendation directly to the email address of awilson@csudh.edu or you may mail directly to:

E. Annie Wilson Whetmore

CSU, Dominguez Hills
1000 East Victoria Street, SBS G 321
Carson, CA 90747

CSU Dominguez Hills

On April 29, 1960, Gov. Edmund G. "Pat" Brown Sr. signed a bill into law authorizing the formation of a state college to serve the growing southwestern region of Los Angeles County. From its humble beginnings in a bank building in Rolling Hills Estates, CSU Dominguez Hills has evolved into a thriving and nationally recognized comprehensive university, providing an innovative liberal arts education to a diverse student body.

For more information see: <https://www.csudh.edu/campus-history/>

Mission Statement

CSU Dominguez Hills provides education, scholarship and service that are, by design, accessible and transformative. We welcome students who seek academic achievement, personal fulfillment, and preparation for the work of today and tomorrow.

Vision

A vital educational and economic resource for the South Bay, CSU Dominguez Hills will be recognized as a top-performing Comprehensive Model Urban University in America. We will be known as a campus community and gathering place where:

- Diversity in all its forms is explored, understood, and transformed into knowledge and practice that benefits the world.
- Technology is embraced and leveraged to transcend educational boundaries as we reach out to students, both locally and globally.
- Sustainable environmental, social and economic practices are a way of life.
- Students from our community who aspire to complete a college degree are provided the pathway and guidance to succeed.
- Faculty and staff across the University are engaged in serving the dynamic needs of the surrounding communities.
- Student life is meaningful and vibrant.
- Our accomplishments and those of our alumni are recognized nationally and internationally.
- Ultimately, our students graduate with an exemplary academic education, a highly respected degree, and a genuine commitment to justice and social responsibility.

About the University

CSU Dominguez Hills holds the Carnegie classification of Master's L and is a federally recognized Hispanic-Serving Institution. Class sizes are small as compared with large research universities and classes are taught by the faculty, not by teaching assistants. Many of the university's students are the first in their families to earn a university degree. While the university enrolls traditional full-time students, many students enroll part-time and attend late afternoon, evening and weekend classes because of work and family responsibilities.

CSU Dominguez Hills offers 44 undergraduate majors, 22 master's degrees, and a number of certificate and credential programs. Enrollment exceeds 14,600 students, and the student population is among the most ethnically and culturally rich in the nation: 64.3% Hispanic/Latino, 13.4% Black/African-American, 8.5% White, 10.2% Asian or Pacific Islander, 0.1% American Indian, and 3.1% two or more races.

The University is accredited by the Western Association of Schools and Colleges (WASC), the accrediting body for institutions of higher learning in the West. In the 2018 WASC Educational Effectiveness Review, CSUDH was reaffirmed for a full 10 years. Twelve programs hold accreditations from national professional associations: business administration, clinical sciences, computer science, education, health science, music, nursing, occupational therapy, public administration, special education, theatre arts, and social work.

The academic programs of the university are organized under the Colleges of Arts and Humanities, Business Administration and Public Policy, Extended and International Education, Natural and Behavioral Sciences, Education, and Health, Human Services, and Nursing. While continuing to emphasize the liberal arts and sciences, professional programs offered at the undergraduate and graduate level, developed to serve the region's workforce needs, are of great interest to students and prepare them for professions in a variety of industries.

Faculty

A tradition of teaching excellence lies at the heart of the university experience for Dominguez Hills' students. Most of the faculty have earned doctoral degrees from prestigious universities across the nation. The faculty strives to sustain a dynamic teaching and learning environment in a multicultural setting. The Academic Senate provides a forum for faculty, administration, students and others to be represented and consulted regarding such vital issues as budget priorities, academic standards, curriculum and instruction, and student affairs.

Student Life

At CSU Dominguez Hills, there's more to student life than the classroom. The university offers a dynamic, interactive and enriching community of learners, teachers and peers sharing diverse points of view. There are multitudes of ways for students to pursue interests, get involved, and get the most from their academic experience.

An office of student life enhances student development by coordinating a variety of co-curricular activities, including 60 student organizations. Students are encouraged to perform community service and participate in leadership development. The Multicultural Center on campus promotes the exploration of diverse heritages, values and cultural experiences by offering a wide range of activities and programs throughout the academic year.

CSU Dominguez Hills is a National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA) Division II institution that competes in the California Collegiate Athletic Association (CCAA). CSU Dominguez Hills is one of the most athletically competitive and honored schools in the CCAA, with 23 conference titles and four national championships to date, including the 2008 NCAA D-II Men's Soccer National Championship. CSU Dominguez Hills sponsors 11 intercollegiate athletic teams.

The Location

The university is located in Carson, California, in the South Bay region of Los Angeles County. Its 346-acre park-like campus is situated in the historic Rancho San Pedro, the oldest Spanish land grant in the Los Angeles area. The site remained in the continuous possession of the Dominguez family for seven generations - from its inception in 1794 to its acquisition by the state of California.

The Region

The South Bay is one of the most culturally, economically, and ethnically diverse areas in the United States, with a largely even distribution of the population with African, Asian/Pacific Islander, European, and Latino ancestry. The university is located in the city of Carson, a city of 93,000 residents and one of the many municipalities that border the city of Los Angeles. Cultural, performance and sports venues in downtown Los Angeles are about 15 minutes away and the South Bay beach communities are a few minutes away to the west and south. The StubHub, a 125-acre sports center developed by AEG and home to LA Galaxy of Major League Soccer and Los Angeles Chargers, is located on the CSUDH campus.

The campus is strategically located in the heart of a major technological, industrial and transportation complex in Southern California. This area includes the massive Port of Long Beach and the Port of Los Angeles – Southern California's gateway to international commerce. The South Bay region is also home to aerospace, oil refinery, healthcare and automotive industries.

Employee Benefits

CSU Dominguez Hills offers a comprehensive and attractive benefits program to its employees. Further information on benefits offered can be found at <https://www.csudh.edu/payroll-benefits/faculty-benefits/>

Closing Statement

California State University, Dominguez Hills, is an Affirmative Action/Equal Opportunity Employer. We consider qualified applicants for employment without regard to race, religion, color, national origin, ancestry, age, sex, gender, gender identity, gender expression, sexual orientation, genetic information, medical condition, disability, marital status, or protected veteran status.

Individuals with disabilities requesting accommodations under the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA) may call the CSU Dominguez Hills Human Resources Office (310) 243-3771 or the Academic Affairs Personnel Services Office at (310) 243-3766.

Clery Act crime statistics for CSUDH are available at <http://www.csudh.edu/dhpd/>, or by calling University Police at (310) 243-3693.

Upon appointment all candidates must furnish proof of eligibility to work in the U.S.

The California State University is Smoke and Tobacco Free. Smoking, Vaping and other Tobacco use are Not Permitted anywhere on University property. Education Code 42356, CCR Title 5, Article 9

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 10/18/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 5032

Stanford University

Rank: Postdoctoral Fellow

Specializations: Political Philosophy & Theory, Political Theory, Normative Political Theory

For 2019-20, the McCoy Family Center for Ethics in Society seeks to appoint up to four postdoctoral fellows. Selected fellows will be designated as either General Ethics Fellows or Interdisciplinary Ethics Fellows. The two types of fellows have some distinct training opportunities and responsibilities, but they form a common community at the Center and participate together in the Center's intellectual life. The programs are described in detail below. All applicants will be considered for both types of fellowships and do not need to tailor their application for one or the other fellowship.

General Ethics Fellowship

Some selected fellows will be part of our longstanding postdoctoral program that is open to candidates with substantial normative research in any area within philosophy or political science. For 2019-20, we are especially interested in candidates with research interests in technology, inequality, global justice and environmental ethics, but we welcome all applicants with strong normative interests. Applicants must have normative training and hold a PhD in philosophy or political science. Scholars with a Ph.D. in Law will also be considered so long as their work focuses on ethical dimensions of public policy or law. General Ethics Fellows participate in the intellectual life of the Center for Ethics in Society (attend weekly workshops; events; professional training opportunities), teach one class per year, interact with undergraduates in the Ethics in Society Program, and contribute to an interdisciplinary ethics community across the campus.

Interdisciplinary Ethics Fellowship

2019-20 will be the fourth year of this fellowship program at the Center, and for the first time, the Stanford Human-Centered Artificial Intelligence (HAI) Initiative will join as a partner center (<https://hai.stanford.edu>). The program is rooted in the commitment of the Center for Ethics in Society to bringing ethical reflection to bear on pressing social problems. Addressing many of these social problems involves knowledge of the work of social science, law, engineering, and the life sciences. The premise of this program is that the normative scholarship of our fellows will be enhanced by engagement with empirically-oriented scholars. To that end, each fellow in the program will be matched with a partner research center at Stanford that is dedicated to interdisciplinary research, including the HAI initiative and other campus centers depending on applicants' interests. For 2019-20, we are especially interested in candidates with research interests in artificial intelligence, computer science, or biomedical ethics, but all applicants whose work may intersect with empirically-oriented scholarship will be considered. Applicants need not name a possible partner center on campus or tailor their materials for this type of fellowship. The Interdisciplinary Ethics Fellows and partner centers will be selected based on the natural match between their work.

Applicants must have normative training and hold a Ph.D. in Philosophy or Political Science. Scholars with a Ph.D. in Law will also be considered so long as their work focuses on ethical dimensions of public policy or law. Fellows will participate in the regular intellectual life of the partner center and the Center for Ethics in Society (e.g., attend weekly workshops; events; professional training opportunities), interact with undergraduates in the Ethics in Society Program, and contribute to an interdisciplinary ethics community across campus.

Appointment Requirements and Application Details

For both types of fellowships, the appointment term is Sept. 1, 2019 to Aug. 31, 2020. The initial term may be renewed for an additional year. Applicants must have completed all requirements for their Ph.D. by June 30, 2019. Candidates must also be no more than three years from the awarding of their degree (i.e., September 2016).

Stanford University is an equal opportunity employer and is committed to increasing the diversity of its scholarly community. We welcome applications from women and members of minority groups, as well as others who would bring additional dimensions to the university's research and teaching missions. Salary is competitive.

Applicants should submit a cover letter, CV, a writing sample (no more than 25 pages double-spaced), three letters of recommendation, a one-page research statement (single spaced), and list of classes they have taught and/or are prepared to teach. Additional materials will not be considered. All applicants will be considered for both types of fellowships, and finalists will be consulted about whether they may be designated as Interdisciplinary Ethics or General Ethics fellows.

Applications will be collected via Interfolio. Applications will not be accepted by email. Please visit the Center's website for information about how to submit your materials: <https://ethicsinsociety.stanford.edu/postdocs/application-process>

If you have questions, please email ethics_submissions@stanford.edu. Application Due Date: December 10, 2018.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: 12/10/2018

Date Posted: 10/17/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 5028

Washington University

Rank: Assistant Professor

The John C. Danforth Center on Religion and Politics at Washington University in St. Louis invites applications at the rank of assistant professor, especially from candidates with an expertise on Islam in North America. The position will begin July 1, 2019. The search committee welcomes applications from scholars from a variety of disciplines including, but not limited to, Anthropology, Gender/Women Studies, History, Law, Literature, Philosophy, Political Science, Religious Studies, Security Studies, Sociology, and Theology.

Candidates should possess a promising profile of scholarly publication on religion and politics in the United States with a focus on Islamic traditions in North America, other traditions in the U.S. beyond Christianity, or an area that significantly augments existing faculty strengths. Candidates should also have a record of effective teaching in a diverse campus community. A PhD, received no later than July 1, 2019, is required. Duties for the position will include undergraduate teaching, conducting and publishing research, and participating in Center governance and wider university service. We particularly welcome candidates with a demonstrated interest in writing for broader audiences and engaging the public beyond the university. Applications from women and members of underrepresented groups are especially encouraged. Washington University is an equal opportunity employer committed to affirmative action. To apply, send a letter of application, along with a curriculum vitae, to the following e-mail address: rap@wustl.edu. Three letters of recommendation should also be submitted, along with a scholarly writing sample. Nominations may be sent to the same address. The search committee will begin reviewing applications as early as December 1, 2018, and will continue doing so until the search is complete. For more information, see <http://rap.wustl.edu/>.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Date Posted: 10/17/2018

Salary: Any

eJobs ID: 5029

Campion College at The University of Regina

Rank: Assistant Professor Political Science

Specializations: Women & Politics, Environmental Policy, Immigration Policy

Campion College, a Jesuit liberal arts college federated with the University of Regina, invites applications for a probationary tenure-track appointment at the rank of Assistant Professor in Political Science, specializing in Political Theory, to begin July 1, 2019. The College seeks an applicant with a strong commitment to excellence in undergraduate teaching, and a demonstrated record of excellence in research. The successful candidate will teach regularly an introductory course in Political Science and a second-year course on the History of Political Thought, with opportunities to develop advanced undergraduate courses. The College would be particularly interested in areas of teaching and research including one or more of the following categories: gender, feminisms, and women in politics; international justice and immigration; human rights; environmental policy. A Ph.D., at or near completion, evidence of teaching effectiveness, and an active research program are required.

Campion College is a Jesuit Catholic community of learning dedicated to the development of the whole person – intellectually, spiritually, and socially – for service within society. Located in Regina's scenic Wascana Park, Campion College offers courses in the humanities, social and natural sciences, and fine arts within the framework of the University of Regina. The College is a fully accredited member of the Association of Universities and Colleges of Canada and its graduates receive University of Regina degrees. Campion faculty are voting members of their respective Faculties (i.e., Arts; Science; Media, Art, and Performance).

Interested candidates should forward an application (including a letter of application, curriculum vitae, graduate transcripts, evidence of teaching of effectiveness, sample of scholarly work) in a single PDF file to Dr. Allison Fizzard, Dean of Campion College, at campion.dean@uregina.ca. Candidates should also arrange for the submission of three confidential letters of reference, either to be sent separately in PDF format to campion.dean@uregina.ca, or a part of a package by those using Interfolio or a similar service.

Review of applications will begin December 1, 2018 and will continue until suitable candidates have been identified. Salary is commensurate with qualifications and experience. All qualified candidates are encouraged to apply; however, Canadians and permanent residents will be given priority.

Start Date: Summer 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 10/16/2018

Salary: $60,000 - $69,999

eJobs ID: 5020

University of Cologne

Rank: Assistant Professorship in Empirical Democratic Theory

Assistant Professorship (W1) in Political Science with Tenure Track (W2)

The University of Cologne, Germany, invites applications for one faculty position at the Assistant Professor (W1) level with Tenure Track (W2)

This call is part of the Federal Tenure Track Programme. It addresses researchers at an early career stage.

The University of Cologne is one of Germany's leading research universities and part of the Excellence Initiative. Its Faculty of Management, Economics, and Social Sciences is consistently ranked among the top schools in research and teaching. The Faculty counts more than 100 professors and 250 researchers.

The research profile of the professorship is in empirical democratic theory. Candidates should have a focus on theory-building based on empirical research of democracies. Competences in positive political theory are an advantage. The professorship will be part of the Cologne Center for Comparative Politics.

The position is available as of April 2019 or based on mutual agreement.

The position is located in a dynamic and collaborative international environment, which includes the Cologne Graduate School, the Key Research Profile Area of the faculty Markets and Governments and the Max-Planck-Institute for the Study of Societies.

Candidates should hold a Ph.D. degree in Political Science, demonstrate a track record of international publications, potential for grant applications, participation in international scientific networks, and the willingness to cooperate with the indicated institutions. International experience, such as a Ph.D. from a leading international university or other international teaching or research experience, is highly appreciated. We expect that candidates are able to teach in English.

Applicants will be hired in accordance with § 36 of the University Law of the State of North-Rhine Westphalia. In the third year after entering into office, an interim evaluation is held. This serves as the basis for the decision as to whether an extension for a further three years will be granted to the candidate. At the latest, a final evaluation is held in the sixth year after entering into office. On this basis, a decision will be reached as to whether the candidate will be given tenure at W2 level. Both evaluations are carried out according to the Regulations for Quality Assurance in Tenure Track Procedures at the University of Cologne. W1 professorships comprise a teaching load of four hours per week (i.e., two 90-minute courses per semester) in the first qualification phase and five hours per week in the second qualification phase. W2 professorships comprise a teaching load of nine semester hours per week.

The University of Cologne is committed to increase the share of women in research and teaching. Applications of women are specifically invited. In the case of equal qualifications, competence and specific achievements, women will be considered on preferential terms within the framework of the legal possibilities. The University of Cologne is an equal opportunity employer in compliance with the German disabilities laws. Persons with disabilities are therefore strongly encouraged to apply.

The application should consist of the following documents: cover letter, curriculum vitae including publication list and teaching record, research and teaching statement, transcripts, two references, and teaching evaluations. Applications should be submitted via the Academic Job Portal of the University of Cologne (<https://berufungen.uni-koeln.de>) no later than November 19th, 2018 addressing the Dean of the Faculty of Management, Economics and Social Sciences.

For further information, please contact Professor Sven-Oliver Proksch (so.proksch@uni-koeln.de).

Start Date: Spring 2019
Application Deadline: 11/19/2018
Date Posted: 10/15/2018
Salary: Competitive
eJobs ID: 5010

University of Texas at Dallas

Rank: Visiting Assistant Professor

Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Public Policy, Political Theory

The School of Economic, Political, and Policy Sciences at the University of Texas at Dallas (UTD) invites applications for a full-time, Visiting Assistant Professor position beginning in January of 2019 in the Political Science Program. UTD is a fast-growing, suburban research university with undergraduate, Master's, and PhD programs in Political Science. We currently have approximately 60 graduate students and 250 undergraduate majors.

The University of Texas at Dallas has the highest freshman SAT scores of any public University in Texas and was recently ranked 24th among the 100 best universities in the world under 50 years old by Times Higher Education magazine. UT Dallas is one of the youngest universities to achieve the Carnegie Commission's highest research classification of "Doctoral Universities – Highest Research Activity."

The teaching load for this position is 3 courses per long semester and the standard pay rate is $20,000 per long semester. The position is renewable for up to 4 long semesters. Ideal candidates will demonstrate their ability to contribute to existing program strengths in teaching excellence. Topics of interest include American politics, international relations, or comparative politics. The successful candidate will be expected to teach the introductory state politics course and the introductory American national government course, as well as more specialized upper-level undergraduate courses. PhD by time of employment is expected.

Applicants should submit letter of application, current curriculum vitae and three letters of recommendation to the Program Head, Banks Miller (millerbp@utdallas.edu). Review will begin immediately and continue until the position is filled.

The University of Texas at Dallas is an Equal Opportunity / Equal Access / Affirmative Action Employer and strongly encourages applications from candidates who would enhance the diversity of the University's faculty and administration

Start Date: Spring 2019
Application Deadline: Open until Filled
Date Posted: 10/8/2018
Salary: $40,000 - $49,999
eJobs ID: 4977

University of Colorado, Denver

Rank: Visiting Assistant Professor

Specializations: Political Theory, Ethnic & Feminist Theory, Normative Political Theory

The Political Science Department at the University of Colorado Denver invites applications from innovative and versatile teachers for the position of Visiting Assistant Professor, starting August 2019 and lasting two years. Depending on the individual's performance and college resource availability, longer-term renewals of this position are possible

Applicants should have areas of expertise in Political Theory, with specialization in Race, Ethnicity, Inequality and/or Social Justice. Preferred subfields: Black political thought, Indigenous political thought, Latinx political thought, or non-western/comparative political thought.

The successful candidate will be rostered as a visiting assistant professor. This position comes with responsibilities in teaching (60% of time), research (30% of time), and service (10% of time). The teaching load is 3/3 (six courses an academic year), at both the undergraduate and graduate level. This position will be responsible for teaching basic survey courses in political theory as well as courses within the candidate's particular subfield.

The CU Denver Political Science Department seeks to sensitize students to the essential questions of politics and life, and to catalyze informed and creative civic engagement in pursuit of a more just and humane world. Beyond its teaching mission, the Department seeks to create, discover, and apply knowledge to improve the health and well-being of Colorado, the nation, and the world. In advancing these teaching, research, and creative activities, the department seeks to build mutually beneficial partnerships that engage local, national, and global communities. Our Political Science Department values interdisciplinarity, and welcomes creative candidates from diverse fields who meet the qualifications below.

REQUIRED QUALIFICATIONS: Ph.D. from an accredited university; track record of engaging and innovative teaching; record of scholarly achievement or promise of future scholarly achievement; areas of expertise in the field of Political Theory, and critical approach to such issues as race, ethnicity and inequality.

GENERAL QUALITIES DESIRED: The Political Science Department is interested in candidates who can create innovative Political Theory courses, with particular strengths in teaching beyond the "canon," such as Black political thought, Indigenous political thought, Latinx political thought, or non-western/comparative political thought. Candidates able to teach political theory in conversation with historical and current socio-political context are desired. Candidates with a commitment to innovative pedagogies, including openness to online teaching and robust online pedagogies, are encouraged to apply. The Department values candidates with a record of, or interest in, community engagement.

To apply for this position go to <http://www.cu.edu/cu-careers>. Reference job posting 14736.

Start Date: Fall 2019
Application Deadline: 11/1/2018
Date Posted: 10/5/2018
Salary: $60,000 - $69,999
eJobs ID: 4970

University of Memphis

Rank: Assistant Professor

The Department of Political Science at The University of Memphis invites applications for a tenure track position in Political Theory at the level of Assistant Professor. The position will start in the fall of 2019 pending the availability of funds. Candidates must have the Ph.D. in hand by August 2019. We seek applications from candidates in all areas of political theory. The department has particular interests in race, gender, post-colonialism, political economy, and environmental theory. An emphasis on comparative or non-Western political thought would be especially valuable. Candidates must be able to teach undergraduate and graduate classes in political theory and must show promise of excellence in research and teaching. Salary is competitive and commensurate with qualifications and experience.

Please submit a letter detailing current research interests and teaching experience, a curriculum vitae, a graduate transcript, a writing sample (dissertation chapter, published article or conference paper), evidence of teaching potential, and three letters of recommendation on-line at <https://workforum.memphis.edu>. For all other inquiries please contact: Political Theory Search Committee, Department of Political Science, The University of Memphis, TN 38152. Review of applications will begin on December 15, 2018 and may continue until the position is filled, pending the availability of funds. The University of Memphis is a Research II University with an enrollment of approximately 20,000 students.

Start Date: Fall 2019
Application Deadline: 12/15/2018
Date Posted: 10/5/2018
Salary: Competitive
eJobs ID: 4956

Institute for Advanced Study in Toulouse

Rank: Research Fellowship multidisciplinary, social sciences
Subfield(s): Political Theory, Public Administration, Public Policy

We welcome applications from researchers within a large range of disciplines in the social, behavioral and life sciences: anthropology, evolutionary biology, economics, genetics, history, law, mathematics, neuroscience, philosophy, political science, psychology and sociology; however, motivated applications from outside these disciplines will be given full consideration. Successful applicants will have to demonstrate an interest in, and a commitment to, at least one of the other disciplines of IAST.

We seek candidates with a strong research background in their own discipline, but willing and able to develop research projects drawing on IAST's substantial interdisciplinary resources, including particularly the proximity of strong groups in economics (Toulouse School of Economics, TSE).

We are open to a variety of research methods, including theory, field and laboratory experiments, observational field work, and the analysis of large secondary data sets.

All research interests relevant to the broad study of human behavior are welcome, but interests that complement and / or enhance those already developed at IAST will be given special consideration. These include, to cite only a few:

In history: quantitative economic history (cliometrics), empirical political economy in history, qualitative economic or social history.

In evolutionary biology: theoretical models of evolution (applied to family structure, strategic interactions, plasticity, cognition, learning, cultural evolution); related empirical work.

In anthropology: human biology, life history theory, human development and plasticity, health and infectious disease, aging, demography, host-parasite co-evolution, diet and nutrition, global health, evolutionary medicine and genetics.

In political science: public opinion and public policies, comparative studies of democratic institutions, democracy and development, experimental political science, studies of networks and their impact on individual and collective action.

In law: law and economics, corporate governance, criminology.

In psychology: cognition, the emotions, social trust, gender, group decision-making.

In sociology: network formation, the impact of networks on social outcomes, sociology of religion.

Apply here: <https://www.iast.fr/research-fellowships>

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: 11/30/2018

Date Posted: 10/4/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4949

University of California, Los Angeles

Rank: Faculty Position in Metropolitan and Urban Studies in the Global South

Subfield(s): Comparative Politics, Political Theory, International Relations

University of California, Los Angeles

Department of Urban Planning

Faculty Position in Metropolitan and Urban Studies in the Global South

UCLA's Department of Urban Planning invites applicants for a tenure-track faculty position in Metropolitan and Urban Studies in the Global South, which we consider to include Asia, Africa, and Latin America. We encourage applicants with a broad range of research topics, which might include urban and peri-urban politics and governance, corruption and state capacity, city building and land development, the development industry, global capital flows and urban transformations, violence and policing, displacement and refugee populations, metropolitan infrastructure development and management, urban social movements, and comparative work, especially South-South comparison. We not only welcome scholars from urban studies and planning, but also those trained in other theoretical and methodological approaches, and from multidisciplinary backgrounds.

We expect our new colleague to take the lead in advancing collaborative and interdisciplinary research on cities and metropolitan regions in the Global South with colleagues at UCLA and beyond, in addition to teaching courses in our professional Masters in Urban and Regional Planning program and our new undergraduate major in Public Affairs.

To apply, please submit a brief cover letter, a research statement of less than 500 words highlighting scholarly contributions of recent research and plans for the near future, at least one publication or writing sample, a teaching statement of less than 300 words outlining the content of a class you would like to teach, and three letters of recommendation.

The Department of Urban Planning, in the Luskin School of Public Affairs, currently hosts 16 tenured/tenure-track planning faculty, seven affiliated tenured/tenure-track faculty, four visiting practice faculty, five active professors emeriti, 38 Ph.D. students, 148 master's students, and 60 undergraduate minors across its large, diverse, and highly selective Ph.D., master's, and undergraduate programs. We have a tradition of intellectual leadership in urban and regional studies and design, and our faculty, students, and alumni are committed to social justice and progressive planning ideals.

Los Angeles is a global city renowned for its dynamism, robust economy, rich cultural diversity, spectacular climate, as well as high levels of inequality, poverty and homelessness, residential segregation, and traffic. The UCLA Luskin School of Public Affairs is an interdisciplinary school with highly ranked departments of Social Welfare and Public Policy. All faculty in the Luskin School of Public Affairs (including the departments of Social Welfare, Urban Planning, and Public Policy) have opportunities to participate in current school initiatives in global affairs, digital technologies, the environment, democracy and inequality, global development, Latin American cities, and social justice, equity, and opportunity.

UCLA offers competitive salary and attractive benefits packages, including a housing assistance program for new faculty members. The University of California seeks to recruit and retain a diverse workforce as a reflection of our commitment to serve the people of California, to maintain the excellence of the University, and to offer our students richly varied disciplines, perspectives, and ways of knowing and learning. The Department of Urban Planning in particular is committed to diversity and excellence in our faculty, students, and scholarship, and we especially encourage candidates who share and can contribute to this commitment. A separate statement that addresses past and/or potential contributions to equity, diversity, and inclusion must also be included in the application materials.

The University of California is an Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action Employer. All qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to race, color, religion, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, national origin, disability, age or protected veteran status. For the complete University of California nondiscrimination and affirmative action policy, see: UC Nondiscrimination & Affirmative Action Policy.

While we expect to appoint at the rank of Assistant Professor, we will consider applicants and appointments at all levels. We expect candidates to hold a Ph.D. in urban planning or a related discipline. The expected start date is July 1, 2019. All materials must be submitted via UCLA Academic Recruit by Thursday, November 1, 2018, to be guaranteed full consideration.

To Apply, visit:

<http://apptrkr.com/1306872>

Start Date: Spring 2019

Application Deadline: 11/1/2018

Date Posted: 10/4/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4957

University of California, Berkeley

Rank: Associate Professor - Political Theory - Department of Political Science/College of Letters and Science

Associate Professor - Political Theory - Department of Political Science/College of Letters and Science

RECRUITMENT PERIOD

Open October 1st, 2018 through October 31st, 2018

DESCRIPTION

The Charles & Louise Travers Department of Political Science at the University of California, Berkeley invites applications for a faculty appointment in Political Theory at either the Assistant or Associate Professor rank with an expected start date of July 1, 2019. Rank will be determined based on qualifications and experience. The Department welcomes applications from candidates specializing in all topics, approaches, historical periods, and areas in the subfield of Political Theory.

The University of California acknowledges the need to remove barriers to the recruitment, retention, and advancement of faculty from historically excluded populations who are currently underrepresented. Qualified women and members of underrepresented minority groups are strongly encouraged to apply.

Associate Professor applicants (individuals currently holding a tenured or equivalent position): Applicants for appointment at the rank of Associate Professor must hold a completed Ph.D., or equivalent international degree, at the time of application. To apply, please complete and submit an online application through Academic Personnel Recruit (AP Recruit) on the University of California, Berkeley website:

<http://apptrkr.com/1302298>

Submit a cover letter, curriculum vitae, a statement outlining the candidate's current and future research, one to three published or unpublished scholarly works ready for examination (such as articles or chapters from a book or book manuscript), the names and contact information of three references, and a statement addressing past and/or potential contributions to diversity through research, teaching, and service. Further information on preparing a diversity statement is available on the website of the Berkeley Office for Faculty Equity and Welfare: <https://ofew.berkeley.edu/recruitment/contributions-diversity/support-faculty-candidates>. Letters may be solicited for candidates under serious consideration (the committee will seek candidates' permission before soliciting letters of recommendation from references).

Assistant Professor applicants (including current advanced Assistant Professors): Applicants for appointment at the rank of Assistant Professor must have completed all degree requirements for the Ph.D. or equivalent international degree, with the exception of the dissertation, at the time of application. To apply, please complete and submit an online application through Academic Personnel Recruit (AP Recruit) on the University of California, Berkeley website: <https://aprecruit.berkeley.edu/apply/JPF01870>. Submit a cover letter, curriculum vitae, a statement outlining the candidate's current and future research, one to three published or unpublished scholarly works ready for examination (such as articles, dissertation chapters, or chapters from a book or book manuscript), three letters of reference, and a statement addressing past and/or potential contributions to diversity through research, teaching, and service. Further information on preparing a diversity statement is available on the website of the Berkeley Office for Faculty Equity and Welfare: <https://ofew.berkeley.edu/recruitment/contributions-diversity/support-faculty-candidates>.

All letters will be treated as confidential per University of California policy and California state law. Please refer potential referees, including when letters are provided via a third party (i.e., dossier service or career center), to the UC Berkeley statement of confidentiality (<http://apo.berkeley.edu/evalltr.html>) prior to submitting their letters.

Applications must be received by October 31, 2018 to be eligible for consideration. Please direct questions regarding the application process to Serena Groen, Director of Administration for Political Science.

The Charles and Louise Travers Department of Political Science is committed to addressing the family needs of faculty, including dual career couples and single parents. For information about potential relocation to Berkeley, or career needs of accompanying partners and spouses, please visit <http://ofew.berkeley.edu/new-faculty>.

The University of California is an Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action Employer. All qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to race, color, religion, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, national origin, disability, age, or protected veteran status.

For the complete University of California nondiscrimination policy and affirmative action policy see <http://policy.ucop.edu/doc/4000376/NondiscrimAffirmAct>.

JOB LOCATION

Berkeley, CA

REQUIREMENTS

Document requirements

- Cover Letter
- Curriculum Vitae
- Statement of Research - Statement outlining the candidate's current and future research
- Scholarly Work - One to three published or unpublished scholarly works ready for examination (such as articles, dissertation chapters, or chapters from a book or book manuscript)
- Scholarly Work - One to three published or unpublished scholarly works ready for examination (such as articles, dissertation chapters, or chapters from a book or book manuscript)

(Optional)

- Scholarly Work - One to three published or unpublished scholarly works ready for examination (such as articles, dissertation chapters, or chapters from a book or book manuscript)

(Optional)

- Statement of Contributions to Diversity - Statement addressing past and/or potential contributions to diversity through research, teaching, and/or service.

Further information on preparing a diversity statement is available on the website of the Berkeley Office for Faculty Equity and Welfare: <https://ofew.berkeley.edu/recruitment/contributions-diversity/support-faculty-candidates>.

Reference requirements

- 3 required (contact information only)

Copyright ©2017 Jobelephant.com Inc. All rights reserved.

<https://www.jobelephant.com/jeid-19a78ae63442ec44a376c58a8688eed9>

Start Date: Summer 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 10/1/2018

Salary: Competitive
eJobs ID: 4934

Victoria University of Wellington

Rank: New Zealand Prime Minister's ANZSOG Chair in Public Service Ethics and Integrity

Subfield(s): Other, Comparative Politics, Political Theory

ANZSOG
 Wellington, New Zealand

- Inaugural ANZSOG Chair in New Zealand's only School of Government
- Highly accredited Business School located in capital city
- New Zealand's first ranked university for research quality (PBRF 2012)

About ANZSOG

The Australia and New Zealand School of Government (ANZSOG) is recognised globally as a leading provider of executive-level education and high quality research for and about the public sector. ANZSOG was created by government for government, with the active collaboration of its member universities.

ANZSOG delivers the following:

- Postgraduate education incorporating the core disciplines that inform effective public administration
- Executive education led by academics from the world's leading education providers and senior officials from among ANZSOG's ten member governments and other jurisdictions
- International programs and exchanges for senior public servants in the Indo-Pacific region
- Safe places for senior practitioners to discuss and draw practical learnings from theory, research and case studies, to inform policy debates and service delivery reform
- Supportive environments for senior practitioners across Australia and New Zealand to learn from one another and build lasting professional networks, benefiting governments, communities and citizens
- Research that addresses key contemporary issues in public administration, policy development and management
- Capability building for not-for-profit organisations, which deliver services with and on behalf of government

At the core of our ethos is a deep and genuine care for good public administration, reflecting the aspirations of and our close relationship to our government owners. For further information: <https://www.anzsog.edu.au/>

About Victoria University of Wellington

Victoria University of Wellington (VUW) is New Zealand's globally ranked capital city university, located in the vibrant cultural centre of the country. The University draws on the distinctive nature of Wellington as the seat of government, and the financial centre of New Zealand. VUW has a proud tradition of fostering international links in teaching and research, delivering a student experience second to none and offering programmes of national and international significance. Thinking about a future in a culture where innovation and diversity are highly valued? Think Victoria.

Situated directly opposite the Parliament of New Zealand, the Victoria Business School holds the 'triple crown' (AACSB, EQUIS and AMBA)

of international accreditations and is seeking to appoint an outstanding candidate to the newly established New Zealand Prime Minister's ANZSOG Chair in Public Service Ethics and Integrity.

The Chair

The Chair will give priority to improving New Zealand's public sector leadership, and its impact on economic and social performance, particularly in the areas of integrity and ethical conduct.

The Chair's activities will cover teaching, executive education, research, outreach and stakeholder engagement.

The Chair will:

- consult with government stakeholders, particularly in New Zealand, and establish new executive education courses for public officials (and public-purpose and private sector participants where appropriate) for delivery in New Zealand, and as required in Australia and the Asia Pacific region
- conduct research in own field/s, with emphasis on topics relevant to ANZSOG's mission, including public administration, strategic public management and public policy
- assist the Dean and Deputy Deans of ANZSOG, and The Dean of Victoria Business School at Victoria, in dealings with government and stakeholder organisations to promote ANZSOG's and Victoria's reputation and deliverables
- contribute significantly to academic service, engagement, management and collegiality within Victoria and ANZSOG.

For more information about the Chair, please see attached Position Description or contact Girol Karacaoglu at Girol.Karacaoglu@vuw.ac.nz or 04 463 6850.

For more information about the University, please visit www.victoria.ac.nz

Applications close Tuesday, 30 October 2018.

For more information and to apply online visit <http://www.victoria.ac.nz/about/careers/current-vacancies>

Reference 2428.

Start Date:
Date Posted: 10/1/2018
Salary: $80,000 - $89,999
eJobs ID: 4937

Harvard University

Rank: Fellow-in-Residence

The Edmond J. Safra Center for Ethics at Harvard University invites applications from a broad range of researchers and practitioners who will work over the course of the year on pressing issues in ethics. Faculty in arts and sciences and professional schools, postdoctoral scholars, practitioners, and researchers from industry, government, and NGOs are eligible to apply.

For the 2019-20 academic year, the theme at the Edmond J. Safra Center for Ethics will be the Ethics of Technological and Biomedical Innovation.

Priority will be given to early career scholars and practitioners whose work closely aligns with this theme, but we reserve some "open& quot; slots for senior scholars and practitioners, and for exceptionally competitive applicants whose work in ethics falls outside this scope. The goal will be to craft a cohort in which "thematic" fellows and "open" fellows will all find valuable intellectual partnerships to support and spur their work.

All Fellows-in-Residence will be expected to devote the majority of their time to their individual projects and to participate in regular work-in-progress seminars. In addition, Fellows are strongly encouraged to participate in the Center's programming, which includes public lectures, themed seminars and reading groups, conferences, workshops, and lunch discussions.

Under our new theme, the Center is pleased to offer joint fellowship opportunities with the following Centers:

- Petrie-Flom Center for Health Law Policy, Biotechnology and Bioethics at the Harvard Law School
- Center for Bioethics at the Harvard Medical School
- Center for Research on Computation and Society at the Harvard John A. Paulson School of Engineering and Applied Sciences

Applicants will be invited to indicate on the application form whether they wish to be considered for a joint fellowship position with one of these Centers. If selected, the joint fellowship will offer full access to development opportunities and programming at the Edmond J. Safra Center for Ethics and our partnering Center.

Please note that the Edmond J. Safra Center for Ethics is no longer able to accept applications for Berggruen Fellowships.

ELIGIBILITY

Applicants must have a PhD, professional degree, or a minimum of 5 years of equivalent professional experience, and any discipline or professional field will be considered. Those who have previously held a yearlong residential Fellowship at the Center are not eligible; this limitation does not apply to former Undergraduate Fellows or former Graduate Fellows. The Fellowship-in-Residence Program runs the course of the academic year, typically from the beginning of September through the end of May and is open to all applicants who meet the above criteria, regardless of citizenship.

APPLICATION REQUIREMENTS

To apply, you will need to complete an online application form, found at <https://ethics.harvard.edu/fellows-in-residence>, which includes submission of the following in .pdf form:

- Cover letter stating your background and interest in the Edmond J. Safra Center for Ethics Fellows-in-Residence Program
- CV
- Research proposal
- Recent writing sample
- Names and contact information for three professional references

The deadline for submitting this application is November 15, 2018. Please note that the application form will be saved automatically while in progress, but no edits or alterations will be allowed once you have submitted the application.

Should you have any questions regarding this application process, please send an email to EJSafraFellowships@fas.harvard.edu.

Start Date:

Application Deadline: 11/15/2018

Date Posted: 9/28/2018

Salary: Any

eJobs ID: 4919

Leiden University

Rank: Assistant Professor of Political Science

Subfield(s): International Relations, Comparative Politics, Political Theory

Specializations: Environmental Policy, China, International Security

The Institute of Political Science of Leiden University's Faculty of Social and Behavioural Sciences invites applicants for the position of Assistant Professor of Political Science (1.0 FTE, 5 positions)

Vacancy number 5901

Key responsibilities

Due to the growth of our programme, we are looking to hire 5 assistant professors of political science. The appointment includes teaching introductory and advanced courses reflecting the candidate's expertise, supervising MSc and BSc theses, conducting scholarly research, acquiring external research funding, and participating in the intellectual and administrative life of the Institute (i.e., department). It could also include teaching general introductory courses, working groups, and/or co-supervising PhD theses.

All applicants should be well trained in one or more of the major sub-disciplines (e.g., comparative politics, international relations, political philosophy) and in research methods appropriate to their field and interests. All specialisations will be considered, but we are especially interested in applicants working on Asian and Chinese politics and foreign policy, US politics and foreign policy, international environmental politics, international conflict resolution, politics of international law, international political economy, comparative public policy, and political behavior. Applicants who are prepared to teach research design, qualitative and/or quantitative research methods should outline their relevant training and/or teaching experience in their applications.

Selection criteria

- Applicants must hold (or be near to completing) a PhD in Political Science or a cognate discipline;
- Applicants must have a promising research agenda, some scholarly publications, teaching experience and good teaching evaluations;
- Applicants must be able to teach in English; ability to teach in Dutch is a plus. Staff who do not speak Dutch are required to progress steadily toward Dutch competence through training financed by the institute;
- Leiden University requires teaching staff to obtain the University Teaching Qualification (BKO). If the successful applicant does not already possess this qualification or its equivalent, s/he must obtain this qualification within two years.

Research at our Faculty/Institute

Leiden University's Faculty of Social and Behavioural Sciences comprises four institutes: Education and Child Studies, Political Science, Psychology and Cultural Anthropology & Development Sociology. The Faculty also includes the Centre for Science and Technology Studies. The Faculty is home to 5,000 students and 600 members of staff. Its teaching and research programmes cover diverse topics varying from adoption to political behaviour. For more information, see <http://www.universiteitleiden.nl/en/social-behavioural-sciences>.

The Institute of Political Science has a strong research tradition in various areas of comparative, Dutch and international politics, as well as political theory. The Institute has around 80 academic staff, including many non-Dutch scholars, and houses a number of editorships of international refereed journals and book series. Members of the institute are also involved in a number of the university's multi-disciplinary research centres, including Central and East European Studies, International Relations, Parties and Representation, and Political Philosophy. The Institute is based in Leiden but a large and growing part of the teaching is done nearby in The Hague.

The Institute offers a range of taught programmes at the Bachelor and Master levels and also trains PhD students in political science. The BSc programmes include general Political Science (in Dutch & English, in Leiden), International Politics (in Dutch & English, in Leiden), and International Relations and Organisations (in English, in The Hague). The one-year MSc programme (taught mostly in English) includes four specialisations in Leiden and two in The Hague. Terms and conditions

The position starts as soon as possible, preferably in January 2019. The appointment will be made on a temporary contract of up to 3 years depending upon prior experience. A permanent appointment may be possible during or after the term of the initial contract, depending upon performance (in teaching, research and administration) and the budgetary situation of the Institute. Salary range from 3,545 to 4,852 gross per month (pay scale 11 in accordance with the Collective Labour Agreement for Dutch Universities).

Leiden University offers an attractive benefits package with additional holiday (8%) and end-of-year bonuses (8.3%), training and career development. Our individual choices model gives you some freedom to assemble your own set of terms and conditions. Candidates from outside the Netherlands may be eligible for a substantial tax break. More at <https://www.universiteitleiden.nl/en/working-at/job-application-procedure-and-employment-conditions>.

Diversity

Leiden University is strongly committed to diversity within its community and especially welcomes applications from members of under-represented groups.

Information

Further enquiries can be directed to Professor Arjen Boin, chair of the selection committee, email: boin@fsw.leidenuniv.nl

Applications

Please submit online your application no later than 31 October 2018 via the blue button of our application system. Applicants should submit online a letter of interest, a CV (with list of publications), a research statement covering their current and future research agenda, a sample paper or article, and a statement of teaching interests and experience including sample syllabi and/or teaching evaluations. Applicants should also ask two people to submit recommendation letters commenting on their professional qualifications and suitability for the position directly (i.e. not through the applicant) to vacature_powe@fsw.leidenuniv.nl.

The selection procedure will take place in November-December 2018. Selected candidates will first be invited for an online pre-interview; some will then be invited for in-person interview and research talk. You are kindly requested to be available in this period. Enquiries from agencies are not appreciated.

Start Date: Winter 2019

Application Deadline: 10/31/2018

Date Posted: 9/28/2018

Salary: $90,000 - $99,999

eJobs ID: 4918

New York University Abu Dhabi

Rank: Political Science Professor - Open Rank

Subfield(s): Comparative Politics, Political Theory, International Relations

New York University Abu Dhabi invites applications for full-time tenure/track appointments in Political Science. The open-rank search is open to all fields and methodologies. Applications from senior scholars (associate and full professor) are especially welcome. We expect successful candidates to commence their appointment September 1, 2019, subject to final budget approval. You may visit the Political Science programs website for a description of its innovative curriculum:

<https://nyuad.nyu.edu/en/academics/undergraduate/majors-and-minors/political-science-major.html>

The review of applications will begin September 1, and will continue on a rolling basis until the positions are filled. The excellent terms of employment are competitive and include generous start-up and on-going research funds, as well as housing subsidies and educational subsidies for children. Faculty may also spend an occasional semester at NYU New York and other sites of the global network, engaging in both research and teaching opportunities.

To ensure full consideration by the search committee, applicants must submit a curriculum vitae, a statement of research plans, a statement of teaching interests and three representative writing samples. To complete the online process, early career applicants will be prompted to enter the names and email addresses of at least three referees. Each referee will be contacted to upload their reference letter. Senior candidates should provide a list of three references in PDF format.

Please visit <https://apply.interfolio.com/52969> to apply.

If you have any questions, please e-mail nyuad.socialscience@nyu.edu.

About NYUAD:

New York University has established itself as a Global Network University. The network has three foundational degree-granting campuses: New York, Abu Dhabi, and Shanghai, complemented by a network of eleven research and study-away sites across five continents. Our students are drawn from around the world and surpass all traditional recruitment benchmarks, both US and global. Our goal is to develop a cohort of international students attuned to and educated for an inclusive global society. Students and Faculty will circulate within the global network in pursuit of common research interests and the promotion of cross-cultural and interdisciplinary solutions for problems both local and global.

Entering its ninth year, NYU Abu Dhabi has recruited a cohort of faculty who are distinguished in their research and teaching. NYU Abu Dhabi's highly selective liberal arts enterprise is complemented by an institute for advanced research, sponsoring cutting-edge projects across the Arts, Humanities, Social Sciences, Sciences, and Engineering.

For more information please visit our website at <http://nyuad.nyu.edu/en/about/careers.html>

UAE Nationals are encouraged to apply.

The University is an equal opportunity employer committed to equity, diversity and social inclusion.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 9/27/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4915

Tulane University

Rank: Post Doctoral Fellow

Subfield(s): Comparative Politics, International Relations, Political Theory

The Center for Inter-American Policy and Research (CIPR) invites applications for four (4) research fellowships for the Academic Year of 2019-2020, two with program administration duties and two with light teaching. Applications from the social sciences in the fields of international relations, international political economy, comparative politics, political sociology, and policy studies are encouraged. Latin American expertise and Spanish or Portuguese fluency required. Fellows will be selected based on intellectual merit, experience, the potential impact of their planned research for CIPR programs, and teaching needs of the host department.

Fellowships are one-year, residential, full-time appointments with a stipend of $48,450 plus benefits. Travel and moving expenses are not supported. In addition to their planned research, applicants must be prepared to carry out either program administration or adjunct teaching responsibilities. In the program administration track, fellows will be expected to work with CIPR's director in the Commitment to Equity Project and/or Research Group MEGA: Mobilization, Extractivism, and Government Action, and/or to develop programmatic content and projects in Inter-American relations, comparative political economy, citizenship rights, human development, and others. The other fellowship carries a one course per semester adjunct teaching load in the department of the fellow's primary discipline and in the candidate's major subfields, without administrative responsibilities. In both cases, specific responsibilities will be defined jointly during the initial phase of the appointment. Applicants must plan to complete their Ph.D. no later than May 2019. Recent graduates with no longer than three years since receiving their Ph.D. are especially encouraged to apply.

Application must be submitted via Interfolio by visiting apply.interfolio.com/53827 and must include (1) a curriculum vitae; (2) a cover letter describing research interests and intended research at CIPR if selected, fit to the program and teaching experience; (3) a graduate transcript; (4) two recommendation letters; (5) a writing sample; and (6) teaching evaluations if available. For further information please contact Ludovico Feoli, Director, Center for Inter-American Policy Research. Applications will be reviewed starting December 31, 2018 until the positions are filled.

Tulane University is an equal opportunity/affirmative action employer committed to excellence through diversity. All eligible candidates are invited to apply for position vacancies as appropriate.

Start Date: Summer 2019

Application Deadline: 12/31/2018

Date Posted: 9/24/2018

Salary: $40,000 - $49,999

eJobs ID: 4881

Princeton University

Rank: Visiting Fellow, James Madison Program, Princeton University

Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Political Theory, Comparative Politics

Specializations: American Politics, Constitutional Law & Theory, Political Theory

Invitation for Visiting Fellow Applications

The James Madison Program in American Ideals and Institutions at Princeton University is dedicated to the pursuit of scholarly excellence in the fields of constitutional law and political thought. Sponsored by Princeton's Department of Politics, the Program seeks to enrich the intellectual life of Princeton students and faculty by exploring American constitutional principles and structures through research and public discussion.

The Program invites college and university professors and other professionals with established records of scholarship to apply for appointments as Visiting Fellows for the academic year running from September 1, 2019 to June 30, 2020. One-semester appointments are possible but not preferred. Depending on the needs of the University, teaching opportunities may be available, subject to sufficient enrollment and approval of the Dean of the Faculty.

All James Madison Program Visiting Fellows will spend an academic year (10-month term) in residence at Princeton University. They enjoy access to Firestone Library and a wide range of other facilities and activities throughout the University.

Visiting Fellows are expected to devote full time to their proposed research. They are encouraged, however, to attend or participate in various activities of the Program, including faculty-student seminars, colloquia, and public lectures.

All James Madison Program Fellows must have a doctorate or equivalent degree. Positions are open to all regardless of citizenship. Fellows normally receive a stipend of one-half their academic-year salary plus a living allowance. The fellows' home institutions are expected to provide at least half of their academic-year salaries in addition to all benefits.

How to apply: For full consideration, applicants are required to submit an online application at <https://dof.princeton.edu/academicjobs>. To apply for a Visiting Fellow position please go to requisition D-19-POL-00004.

A complete application must include the following:

- * a curriculum vitae;
- * a scholarly paper written in the past three years;
- * a statement (no more than 1,500 words) describing the proposed research;
- * contact information for two references;
- * a confidential statement from home institution that indicates the applicant's salary for the current academic year, financial support their home institution and other sources are likely to provide, and what support they are likely to need from the Program.

The deadline for application materials is 11:59 p.m. EST on December 1, 2018 for appointments beginning in September 2019. Awards will be announced in March 2019 or before.

Please address any inquiries to:

Bradford P. Wilson, Ph.D., Executive Director

James Madison Program in American Ideals and Institutions
Princeton University

83 Prospect Avenue
Princeton, NJ 08540
E-mail: bpwilson@princeton.edu
Web address: jmp.princeton.edu

Start Date: Fall

Application Deadline: 12/1/2018

Date Posted: 9/20/2018

Salary: Any

eJobs ID: 4866

Princeton University

Rank: Postdoctoral Research Associate, James Madison Program, Princeton University

Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Political Theory, Comparative Politics

Specializations: American Politics, Constitutional Law & Theory, Political Philosophy & Theory

Invitation for Postdoctoral Research Associate Applications

The James Madison Program in American Ideals and Institutions at Princeton University is dedicated to the pursuit of scholarly excellence in the fields of constitutional law and political thought. Sponsored by Princeton's Department of Politics, the Program seeks to enrich the intellectual life of Princeton students and faculty by exploring American constitutional principles and structures through research and public discussion.

The Program invites recent Ph.D. recipients to apply for appointments as Postdoctoral Research Associates or more senior researchers for the year from September 1, 2019 to September 1, 2020, with the possibility of renewal for an additional year, contingent on good performance. All James Madison Program postdocs are expected to be in residence at Princeton University for the duration of the appointment. They may not be employed by another institution during the term of their Princeton appointment. They enjoy access to Firestone Library and a wide range of other facilities and activities throughout the University. Depending on the needs of the University, teaching opportunities may be available, subject to the approval of the Dean of the Faculty. Postdoctoral Research Associates are expected to devote full time to their proposed research. They are, however, encouraged to attend or participate in various activities of the Program, including faculty-student seminars, colloquia, and public lectures.

The position is a fully funded, 12-month postdoctoral research associate appointment with benefits. All James Madison Program Postdoctoral Research Associates must have a Ph.D. degree. Applications are evaluated on the basis of (1) the significance of the proposed research; (2) the quality of the applicant's past research; and (3) the future contribution the applicant is likely to make to higher education. Positions are open to all regardless of citizenship. This position is subject to the University's background check policy.

How to apply:

For full consideration, applicants should submit an online application at <https://dof.princeton.edu/academicjobs> by December 1, 2018; applications will continue to be reviewed until positions are filled. Awards will be announced in March 2019 or before. To apply for a Postdoctoral Research Associate position, go directly to the link. A complete application must include the following:

* a curriculum vitae;

* a scholarly paper written in the past three years;

* a statement (no more than 1,500 words) describing the proposed research;

* contact information for two references.

Please address any inquiries to:

Bradford P. Wilson, Ph.D.
Executive Director
James Madison Program in American Ideals and Institutions
Princeton University
83 Prospect Avenue
Princeton, NJ 08540
E-mail: bpwilson@princeton.edu
Web address: jmp.princeton.edu

Start Date: Fall

Application Deadline: 12/1/2018

Date Posted: 9/19/2018

Salary: $50,000 - $59,999

eJobs ID: 4863

Princeton University

Rank: Postdoctoral Positions in Values and Public Policy

Subfield(s): Other, Public Policy, Political Theory

Specializations: American Politics, Civil Rights & Liberties, Constitutional Law & Theory

The University Center for Human Values and the Woodrow Wilson School of Public and International Affairs invite applications for postdoctoral or more senior research positions in Values and Public Policy. We aim to support highly promising scholars trained in moral and political philosophy, political theory, normative economics and related areas, in developing a research agenda in the ethical dimensions of public policy.

Candidates selected will undertake a research project exploring a normative problem arising in an area of public policy in which the Woodrow Wilson School conducts research. They will be affiliated with a unit of the School that can inform and support their work. They will also be invited to participate in programs of the University Center for Human Values. Candidates will be expected to contribute the equivalent of one course each year to the undergraduate or graduate programs of the School or the University Center. This contribution may be fulfilled by teaching a course on a topic related to ethical issues in public policy, subject to sufficient enrollment and approval by Program/Center Directors and the Dean of the Faculty, or service to the School or Center, subject to approval by Program/Center/School Directors or Chairs.

Qualifications

Applications are welcome from candidates who have or expect to have a Ph.D. by the start date, September 1, 2019. Applicants should not have held the degree for more than three years by the date of appointment. They may not be employed by another institution during the term of their Princeton appointment.

Applicants' dissertation research need not be specifically in values and public policy, but they will be expected to demonstrate a commitment to working on a research project in this area during their time at Princeton. Projects must be related to an area in which the School has a Center or Program (such as science and environmental policy, health and well-being, democratic institutions and processes, information technology policy or globalization and governance). For more information about these and other areas, please consult <http://www.princeton.edu/centers-programs>.

Applications will be evaluated on the basis of the applicant's previous accomplishments, the promise of the proposed research project in values and public policy, and the likelihood that the project will be enhanced by being carried out at the Woodrow Wilson School. The capacity to contribute to the University's teaching program will also be taken into account.

Term of Appointment

The term of appointment is one year, normally beginning September 1, 2019, with the expectation of renewal for one further year assuming good performance. Applicants are expected to be in residence for the duration of the appointment. Princeton offers competitive salary and employee benefits.

How to Apply

Candidates must submit an online application:

A complete application will include the following materials: <https://www.princeton.edu/acad-positions/position/7461>

1. A current curriculum vitae;
2. A research proposal (not to exceed 1,500 words), conforming to the expectations stated above. Please identify the Woodrow Wilson School center or program with which you wish to be associated and briefly describe what you hope to gain from carrying out the project there. Also please supply an indicative title for the project at the beginning of the proposal;
3. A scholarly paper or dissertation chapter (not to exceed 12,000 words) representing your scholarly achievement or potential;
4. Contact information for two referees, who will be asked to comment specifically on your qualifications for the proposed research project. Referees will be contacted directly by email with instructions for uploading letters of reference.

These materials must be submitted online by the application deadline of Monday, November 12, 2018, 11:59 p.m. EST. We cannot accept application materials by any other method. Letters of reference are to be submitted by end of business day on Thursday, November 15, 2018. The selection committee will begin reviewing applications immediately and applications lacking any of the elements listed above may be at a disadvantage. Decisions will be announced in March 2019.

This position is subject to the University's background check policy.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: 11/12/2018

Date Posted: 9/18/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4853

Knox College

Rank: Assistant Professor, Public Law

Subfield(s): Public Law, Political Theory, American Government and Politics

Assistant Professor, Public Law

The Department of Political Science and International Relations at Knox College invites applications for a full time, tenure track assistant professor in the area of Public Law beginning September 1, 2019.

We seek an energetic and creative scholar who adopts innovative approaches to teaching and research in a residential, liberal arts setting.

Candidates should be prepared to teach courses in constitutional law and other courses in the area of law and politics. Possibilities include: civil liberties, medical law, immigration law, race and the legal system, international law, and environmental law. Ability to teach political theory a plus. Knox College operates on a trimester system with three ten week terms. The candidate hired for this position will teach five courses a year over those three terms and serve as Knox's pre-law adviser. Knox is particularly interested in qualified candidates who can contribute to the intellectual diversity and inclusivity of our academic community through their research, teaching, and service.

Qualifications: Ph.D. in Political Science or a closely related field expected at time of appointment; exceptional ABD candidates considered.

Interested applicants should submit:

Cover letter addressing undergraduate liberal arts teaching philosophy and research agenda,

Curriculum Vitae,

Three letters of reference, with at least one addressing teaching potential,

Teaching evaluations and any other evidence of teaching excellence, Unofficial graduate transcripts,

An example of recent scholarship such as an article, book chapter, or conference paper.

Please submit applications electronically (PDF format preferred) to Barbara Schulze at politicalscienceresearch@knox.edu.

Review of applications will begin October 12, 2018 and continue until the position is filled. Questions may be directed to Duane Oldfield, Department Chair, doldfiel@knox.edu or 309-341-7156.

Notice of Non-Discrimination

Knox College does not discriminate on the basis of sex, pregnancy, gender identity or expression, race, color, creed, national or ethnic origin, religion or religious affiliation, sexual orientation or preference, age, marital or family status, disability, veteran status, or other status protected by applicable federal, state, or local law in admission, financial aid, employment, athletics, or any other aspect of its educational programs or activities. Any inquiries regarding Title IX or the College's policies that prohibit discrimination should be directed to the Title IX Coordinator or the Department of Education Office for Civil Rights.

Start Date:

Date Posted: 9/13/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4835

California State University, Fullerton

Rank: Assistant Professor

Specializations: Political Theory, Political Philosophy & Theory, Ethnic & Feminist Theory

DIVISION OF POLITICS, ADMINISTRATION, AND JUSTICE

COLLEGE OF HUMANITIES AND SOCIAL SCIENCES

Political Theory

Tenure-Track

The Division of Politics, Administration, and Justice at California State University, Fullerton, invites applications for a tenure-track

Assistant Professor position in Political Theory with appointment to begin Fall 2019. CSUF values and is dedicated to the goal of building a diverse and inclusive community. We strongly encourage applications from candidates who can demonstrate through their teaching, research, and/or service that they can contribute to the diversity and excellence of our community.

Position

The Division of Politics, Administration, and Justice at California State University, Fullerton is seeking candidates who will teach our undergraduate introductory political theory course (classics through modern), and seminars at the masters level on both classics and modern political philosophy, as well as elective courses in political theory. We are particularly interested in candidates whose research agendas include democratic theory and critical theory, including race and feminist theory. Division faculty members are expected to develop courses in their areas of specialization. The successful candidate will be expected to contribute to and participate in the life and development of the Division, advise students, serve on academic committees, and participate in the broader disciplinary community.

Qualifications

- Ph.D. in political theory or a related field. ABDs may apply but must show evidence that the degree will be completed by the appointment date.
- A strong record of scholarly accomplishments appropriate to the level of the appointment.
- Ability to balance excellent teaching, scholarship, and service.
- Experience in working collaboratively with colleagues and community
- Demonstrated commitment to working successfully with a diverse student population.
- Ability to interact effectively with a wide and culturally diverse range of students including a large number of first-generation college students.

A background check (including a criminal records check) must be completed satisfactorily before any candidate can be offered a position with the CSU. Failure to satisfactorily complete the background check may affect the application status or continued employment of current CSU employees who apply for the position.

Rank and Salary

The positions will be at the rank of Assistant Professor, tenure-track. Salary is commensurate with experience and qualifications. Salary is subject to budgetary authorization and any California State University System faculty contract increases. Summer research grants, moving expenses, start-up funds, and a reduced teaching load may be available. An excellent comprehensive benefits package is available that includes health/vision/dental plans, spouse, domestic partner and dependent fee-waiver, access to campus childcare based on availability of openings, and a defined-benefit retirement through the state system along with optional tax sheltering opportunities.. For a detailed description of benefits, go to http://hr.fullerton.edu/payroll_benefits/HealthCarePlans.php

Appointment Date

August 2019

Application Procedure

A complete on-line application/resume must be received by electronic submission in order to receive consideration. To apply, please go to: <https://apps.fullerton.edu/facultyrecruitment> to view all job listings and select 10688BR to begin the application process and provide the following materials:

1. letter of application in which you respond to the required qualifications
2. curriculum vitae
3. undergraduate and graduate transcripts
4. research statement in which you describe your research program and discuss how students can be incorporated into your research
5. reprints and preprints of publications and presentations
6. teaching portfolio including a teaching statement, course syllabi, and teaching evaluation summaries
7. a student success statement about your teaching experiences, as well as your commitment to teaching and working with a diverse student population (approximately one page, single-spaced)
8. three letters of recommendation (see instructions below)

On the References page of the online application, enter information and email addresses for three referents who will provide a confidential letter of reference for your application. They will immediately receive a request via email along with information on uploading the letter. You will be able to verify that each letter has been received by CSUF by logging back in to the recruitment system.

Please direct all questions about the position to: Shelly Arsneault at sarsneault@fullerton.edu or call 657-278-2456.

Application Deadline

Applications received by November 1, 2018 will be given full consideration. Expect on-campus interviews early in spring semester. Position is open until filled.

Multiple positions may be hired from this recruitment based on the strength of the applicant pool.

The persons holding these positions are considered 'mandated reporters' under the California Child Abuse and Neglect Reporting Act and are required to comply with the requirements set forth in CSU Executive Order 1083 Revised July 21, 2017 as a condition of employment.

California State University Fullerton celebrates all forms of diversity and is deeply committed to fostering an inclusive environment within which students, staff, administrators and faculty thrive. Individuals interested in advancing the University's strategic diversity goals are strongly encouraged to apply. EEO employer. Reasonable accommodations will be provided for qualified applicants with disabilities who self-disclose.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: 11/1/2018

Date Posted: 9/12/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4826

Glendon College, York University

Rank: Assistant Professor, political theory

The Department of Political Science, Glendon College, York University invites applications for a tenure-track professorial stream appointment in political theory at the Assistant Professor level, to commence July 1, 2019. A Ph.D. in Political Science in hand or near completion by July 1, 2019 is required. The successful candidate must show excellence or promise of excellence in teaching, scholarly research and publication, and service. The successful candidate must be fluent in English and French and be able to teach in both languages in a multicultural context.

Applicants should have an ongoing program of research in political theory. The successful candidate must be suitable for prompt appointment to the Faculty of Graduate Studies. The position will involve undergraduate teaching, research and service responsibilities, as well as graduate teaching and supervision. Pedagogical innovation in high priority areas such as experiential education and technology enhanced learning is preferred. Given Glendon's bilingual mandate, the selected candidate will also participate actively in College-wide service activities in both English and French.

Salary will be commensurate with qualifications and experience. All York University positions are subject to budgetary approval.

York U's bilingual Glendon Campus is home to Southern Ontario's Centre of Excellence for French Language and Bilingual Postsecondary Education. Glendon comprises about 2700 students on a scenic campus in the heart of the cosmopolitan city of Toronto. Glendon is committed to high-quality teaching in the tradition of the liberal arts and offers a unique undergraduate academic experience for students within one of Canada's largest research universities. For information about Glendon and its programs, please consult the Faculty webpage at <http://www.glendon.yorku.ca/>

York University is an Affirmative Action (AA) employer and strongly values diversity, including gender and sexual diversity, within its community. The AA program, which applies to Aboriginal people, visible minorities, people with disabilities, and women, can be found at <http://yorku.ca/acadjobs> or by calling the AA office at 416-736-5713. Applicants wishing to self-identify can do so by downloading, completing and submitting the forms found at: <http://acadjobs.info.yorku.ca/>. Please select the 'Affirmative Action' tab under which forms pertaining to Citizenship and AA can be found. All qualified candidates are encouraged to apply; however, Canadian citizens, permanent residents and Indigenous peoples in Canada will be given priority.

The deadline for receipt of completed applications is November 18, 2018. An application letter with curriculum vitae, a statement of research and teaching interests, up to three representative publications if available, teaching evaluations, and at least three confidential letters of reference (at least one of which should address teaching) should be sent to Willem Maas, Chair, Political Science, Glendon College, York University, via email to polisci@glendon.yorku.ca with the subject heading "Political Theory".

**

Le Département de science politique du Collège universitaire Glendon, Université York, sollicite des candidatures pour un poste menant à la permanence dans le courant professoral en théorie politique au rang de professeur adjoint ou professeure adjointe, débutant le 1er juillet 2019. Les candidat(e)s doivent être titulaires d'un doctorat en science politique ou ce dernier doit être en voie d'achèvement au plus tard le 1er juillet 2019. La personne retenue doit faire preuve d'excellence, ou montrer des aptitudes prometteuses, en enseignement, recherche, publications et service. La personne retenue doit être bilingue (français-anglais), capable d'enseigner dans ces deux langues dans un environnement multiculturel.

Les candidat(e)s doivent avoir un programme de recherche en cours avec spécialisation dans le domaine de théorie politique. La personne retenue doit être rapidement admissible au titre de membre de la Faculté des études supérieures. Elle doit donner des cours de 1er cycle, enseigner et encadrer des étudiants et étudiantes des cycles supérieurs, ainsi que faire de la recherche. Elle doit être en mesure d'appliquer des méthodes pédagogiques innovantes dans des domaines prioritaires tels que l'éducation expérientielle et l'apprentissage assisté par la technologie. Compte tenu du mandat bilingue de l'établissement, la personne retenue devra participer aux services à la collectivité en français et en anglais.

Le salaire sera établi en fonction des qualifications et de l'expérience. Toutes les offres de poste à York sont sujettes à autorisation budgétaire de l'Université.

Le Campus bilingue Glendon de l'Université York a été désigné comme Centre d'excellence pour les études postsecondaires en français et bilingues dans le sud de l'Ontario. Le Campus Glendon de l'Université York, avec sa faculté bilingue (français-anglais), comprend environ 2 700 étudiants et est situé sur un campus pittoresque au cœur de la ville cosmopolite de Toronto. Glendon s'inscrit dans la tradition des arts libéraux et offre une expérience académique de 1er cycle sans pareil, dans une des plus grandes universités au Canada. Pour de plus amples renseignements sur ses programmes d'études, veuillez consulter le site Web de Glendon : <http://www.glendon.yorku.ca/>.

York est un employeur qui a adopté un programme d'action affirmative et préconise la diversité dans sa communauté, notamment celle de sexe. Le programme d'action affirmative s'applique aux autochtones, aux minorités visibles, aux personnes en situation de handicap et aux femmes. Pour plus de renseignements sur ce programme, veuillez consulter le site <http://acadjobs.info.yorku.ca/>, ou vous adresser au Bureau d'action affirmative au (416) 736-5713. Toutes les personnes qualifiées sont encouragées à poser leur candidature ; toutefois, la priorité sera accordée aux personnes de citoyenneté canadienne ou détenant le statut de résident permanent, et aux populations autochtones du Canada.

La date d'échéance de dépôt de candidature est le 18 novembre 2018. Les personnes intéressées doivent soumettre une lettre de motivation, un curriculum vitae, un énoncé sur les intérêts de recherche et d'enseignement, jusqu'à trois publications représentatives si disponibles, des évaluations de cours, au moins trois lettres de recommandation confidentielles (dont au moins une qui porte sur l'enseignement) à Willem Maas, Directeur, Département de science politique, Collège universitaire Glendon, Université York, par courriel à polisci@glendon.yorku.ca avec sujet «Théorie politique». Les candidat(e)s qui souhaitent indiquer leur appartenance à un groupe désigné peuvent le faire en téléchargeant et en soumettant le formulaire disponible sur le site : <http://acadjobs.info.yorku.ca/>. Les formulaires relatifs à la citoyenneté et l'action affirmative se trouvent sous l'onglet Affirmative Action.

Start Date: Summer 2019

Application Deadline: 11/18/2018

Date Posted: 9/12/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4823

New College of Florida

Rank: Assistant Professor in Constitutional Law and Political Theory

Subfield(s): Political Theory, American Government and Politics, Public Law

Specializations: Constitutional Law & Theory, Political Philosophy & Theory, Political Theory

Constitutional Law and Political Theory

New College of Florida invites applications for a tenure-track position as Assistant Professor focusing on Constitutional Law and Political Theory. Candidates should have a Ph.D. in Political Science, Philosophy, or related field, teaching experience and career interest in liberal arts teaching, and a vibrant research agenda. The successful candidate will offer a constitutional law sequence of courses in addition to contributions elsewhere in the curriculum. While we are open with regard to research and teaching interests in constitutional law and related areas, we would look especially favorably on candidates who focus on civil rights and civil liberties. The ability to teach courses in jurisprudence, gender and politics, or race and ethnic politics is strongly preferred as well. The candidate must have completed the Ph.D. by the start of employment in August 2019.

Situated on the Gulf Coast of Florida and Sarasota Bay, New College is a nationally recognized, highly selective public honors college with an 10:1 student/faculty ratio. Students are intellectually independent and highly motivated. Undergraduate research has a central role in the curriculum, and a senior thesis or project is required of all students. Students receive narrative evaluations in lieu of grades. We are committed to excellence in undergraduate teaching and research and encourage collaborative student-faculty scholarship. The teaching load is two courses per semester plus sponsoring individual and group tutorials. Faculty members also provide academic advising, supervise independent study projects, sponsor senior theses, and serve on baccalaureate committees. Professors are expected to maintain a program of research or creative work. We are particularly interested in candidates with a commitment to innovative undergraduate liberal arts teaching.

Candidates should apply on-line at <https://www.ncf.edu/employment> and upload the following: a cover letter; c.v.; statements regarding teaching philosophy, the candidate's contributions or approaches to supporting an inclusive culture and learning environment, and research interests; syllabi; teaching evaluations; one writing sample (article or chapter length); and unofficial graduate transcript(s). In addition, please ask at least three references to send signed letters on letterhead electronically to ConLawSearch@ncf.edu or in hard copy to: Constitutional Law Search, Division of Social Sciences, New College of Florida, 5800 Bay Shore Rd, Sarasota, FL 34243. According to Florida law, applications and meetings regarding applications are open to the public upon request. Applicants who need accommodations in order to participate in the selection process must notify the chair of the search committee 48 hours in advance of a meeting. For questions about the application process, please contact Ms. Kristi Fecteau at kfecteau@ncf.edu. Review of applications will begin on October 1, 2018 and continue until the position is filled.

Start Date: Summer 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 9/12/2018

Salary: Negotiable

eJobs ID: 4824

Princeton University

Rank: Laurance S. Rockefeller Visiting Faculty Fellowships

The University Center for Human Values at Princeton University invites applications for Laurance S. Rockefeller Visiting Faculty Fellowships for the academic year 2019-20. Fellows devote an academic year in residence at Princeton to research and writing about topics involving human values in public and private life. This full-time visiting program is open to scholars in all disciplines provided their research plans qualify. In recent years fellows have been drawn from fields including philosophy, political theory, literature, history, classics, economics and law, but this list is not meant to be exhaustive.

Fellows are expected to reside in or around Princeton and to be active contributors to the intellectual life of the Center. This includes participating in a weekly seminar attended by fellows and Center faculty to discuss work in progress and in various other seminars, colloquia and lectures sponsored by the Center. Fellows enjoy access to Firestone Library and to a wide range of activities throughout the University.

Candidates must have a doctorate or equivalent professional degree and a strong record of research publications appropriate to their career stage. Typically Fellows hold faculty positions at other universities or colleges; in exceptional cases we consider applications from independent scholars when there is a high level of scholarly achievement. This is not a postdoctoral fellowship program and we do not generally consider candidates who will have held the Ph.D. for less than two years at the time of appointment.

The fellowship period extends from September 1 to July 1. Fellows normally receive stipends of up to one-half their academic-year salaries (subject to a minimum and maximum set each fall). Ordinarily their home institutions provide a portion of their salaries in addition to all benefits, although this is not a requirement for appointment. Stipends for independent scholars will not exceed the maximum for fellows holding appointments elsewhere.

The main considerations in the evaluation of applications are the following:

- The significance of the proposed research and its relevance to the purposes of the University Center for Human Values (see <http://uchv.princeton.edu/> for more information);
- The quality of a candidate's previous research and the contribution the candidate is likely to make in the future through teaching and writing;
- The likelihood that the research would benefit from being conducted in the University Center environment.

HOW TO APPLY

Candidates must submit an online application at <https://www.princeton.edu/acad-positions/position/7421>

The following materials will be required:

1. A curriculum vitae;
2. A scholarly paper (of no more than about 12,000 words) written in the past three years;
3. A statement (of no more than 1,500 words) describing the proposed research project and including a brief working title for the project; and
4. Contact information for three referees, including at least one who was not a graduate advisor. Referees will be contacted directly with instructions for uploading letters of reference.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: 11/5/2018

Date Posted: 9/7/2018

Salary: Negotiable

eJobs ID: 4792

Brown University: Political Theory Project

Rank: Postdoctoral Research Associate

The Political Theory Project (PTP) at Brown University will be appointing up to two Postdoctoral Research Fellows. PhD must have been received by July 2019 and within the previous three years. Salary is competitive.

Appointments are for two years. Postdoctoral fellows will pursue their own research, participate in PTP working groups, and teach one seminar course per year. In addition to a CV, three confidential letters of reference, and writing sample, applications should include a cover letter describing how their research fits within the mission of the PTP

Details about the Project's research and pedagogical missions can be found at www.politicaltheoryproject.org. Applications received by November 20, 2018 will be assured of full consideration.

In addition to a CV, three confidential letters of reference, and a writing sample, applications should include a cover letter describing how their research fits within the mission of the PTP.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 9/6/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4775

Texas A&M University

Rank: Assistant Professor

The Department of Political Science at Texas A&M University is recruiting for two tenure-track (Assistant Professor) positions that are open with respect to subfield. We welcome applications from clusters of scholars who would find it attractive to join our faculty together. Successful candidates will be expected to carry out a vigorous program of research and actively contribute to undergraduate and graduate teaching. Strong research and teaching interests that cut across traditional subfields of political science would be highly valued. Ph.D. required. The starting date for these positions is Fall 2019.

The department offers Ph.D., MA, BA, and BS degrees and has 34 tenured/tenure track faculty members, 50 graduate students, and approximately 1000 undergraduate majors. Further information about the department is available at <http://pols.tamu.edu>. Texas A&M is a research-intensive flagship university with more than 60,000 students including 10,000 graduate students making it the sixth largest university in the United States. The student body includes 26% African American, Hispanic, Asian or Pacific Islander, and American Indian or Alaskan Native students, as well as approximately 5,000 international students from 130 countries. We seek candidates who can teach effectively in a diverse and global classroom. Texas A&M ranks among the top universities nationally in total research expenditures (with more than $800 million dollars per year). Texas A&M University is an equal opportunity, affirmative action employer that is deeply committed to enhancing the diversity and excellence of its faculty and is responsive to the needs of dual-career couples.

Applicants should apply through Workday as instructed below. Applicants should submit the following material online through workday using the links below: a letter of interest (referencing research agenda and teaching interests), a curriculum vitae, graduate school transcripts, any available teaching evaluations, and a writing sample. Applicants should also have three letters of reference submitted electronically to

Professor William Clark, Head, Department of Political Science at poliscijobs@tamu.edu. Salary is competitive and will be commensurate with qualifications and experience. Our review of applications will begin on October 3, 2018 and will continue until the positions are filled. The Texas A&M System is an Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action/Veterans/Disability Employer committed to diversity.

EXTERNAL APPLICANTS If you currently are NOT a Texas A&M System employee please click below to go to our external career site to view our jobs. Go to External Career Site – https://tamus.wd1.myworkdayjobs.com/en-US/TAMU_External/job/College-Station-TAMU/Assistant-Professor_R-011658

INTERNAL APPLICANTS If you currently ARE a Texas A&M System employee: Go to Internal Career Site – <https://jobs.tamu.edu/internal-applicants/>

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 9/3/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4759

University of Richmond

Rank: Tyler Haynes Professorship of Interdisciplinary Studies

Subfield(s): Public Law, American Government and Politics, Political Theory

Specializations: Civil Rights & Liberties, Constitutional Law & Theory, Judicial Politics

The University of Richmond Jepson School of Leadership Studies and School of Law invite nominations and applications for an endowed professorship to be shared between the two schools. We seek candidates with a distinguished record of scholarship and teaching, or a similarly distinguished record of public service, and we anticipate an appointment at the full professor level. The ideal candidate will have earned J.D. and Ph.D. degrees, although we are open to considering candidates who have one or the other. Our vision is for the Tyler Haynes Professor to conduct interdisciplinary research and teach in an interdisciplinary environment. To complement current strengths, we are especially interested in candidates whose research interests lie in the criminal justice system, the Supreme Court, healthcare, housing, immigration, social welfare, education policy, or institutional design and analysis, although any area of interest with crossover appeal to law and leadership will be considered. Successful candidates will teach courses in the Jepson School of Leadership Studies and the School of Law.

Applications and inquiries may be directed to Sandra Peart and Jessica Erickson at hayneschair@richmond.edu. Candidates should attach a cover letter and curriculum vitae. In their cover letters, candidates should address how their scholarly and teaching interests, or record of public service, connect to the study of leadership and law. Cover letters should also specify how the applicant might contribute to the imperatives of diversity and inclusion in the classroom.

The University of Richmond is a nationally ranked liberal arts university offering a unique combination of undergraduate and graduate degree programs in arts and sciences, business, leadership studies, law, and continuing studies. The Jepson School of Leadership Studies offers students the opportunity to major or minor in Leadership Studies and provides a challenging liberal arts curriculum designed to educate students for, and about, leadership. The Law School offers a curriculum that combines sophisticated legal theory with opportunities to put theory into practice, equipping students with the knowledge and skills they need to make valuable contributions to the legal system. For additional information about the two schools, see <http://jepson.richmond.edu/> and <https://law.richmond.edu/>.

The University of Richmond is committed to developing a diverse workforce and student body, and to modeling an inclusive campus community which values the expression of difference in ways that promote excellence in teaching, learning, personal development, and institutional success. Our academic community strongly encourages applications that are in keeping with this commitment.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 9/3/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4750

John Cabot University

Rank: Visiting Assistant Professor of International Affairs

Visiting Assistant Professor of International Affairs

John Cabot University, a four year, fully-accredited American liberal arts college in Rome, Italy, invites applications for a visiting faculty position in political science and international affairs at the assistant professor rank. We seek candidates with a Ph.D. in Political Science, demonstrated excellence in teaching and research, and commitment to academic service. The candidate will be expected to teach introductory and advanced undergraduate courses in international relations. The ideal candidate should be a graduate of an American university or have experience in the American liberal arts educational tradition. The appointment is for one year, beginning January 1st, 2019, and with possibility of renewal. Candidates are expected to be fluent in English, which is the language of instruction, and have permission to work in the EU. Applicants should send a letter of interest, curriculum vitae, letters of recommendation, one or two research papers or journal publications, and evidence of teaching excellence to: plsearch-visiting@johncabot.edu. Review of applications will begin September 15th, 2018 and remain open until filled. Only short-listed applicants will be notified.

Start Date: Spring 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 8/31/2018

Salary: $40,000 - $49,999

eJobs ID: 4746

University of Virginia

Rank: Political Theory (Open Rank)

Political Theory (Open Rank)

University of Virginia

The University of Virginia's Department of Politics invites applications for an open-rank, tenure-track position in Political Theory. Candidates will be expected to teach at the graduate and undergraduate levels and provide service to the University, Department and professional organizations. The anticipated appointment start date will be August 25, 2019.

Applicants at the assistant professor rank must be on track to defend their dissertation by January 2019 and must hold a PhD in politics or a comparable field at the time of appointment. Applicants at the associate or full professor rank must hold a PhD at the time of application and must have an outstanding publication and teaching record. We are especially interested in candidates who have an interest in, or demonstrated capacity for, mentoring diverse students and colleagues.

Review of applications will begin on September 18, 2018. The position will remain open until filled.

To apply, visit Jobs@UVa (<https://jobs.virginia.edu>) and search on posting number 0623822. Complete a candidate profile online that includes a cover letter, curriculum vitae, writing sample, and contact information for three references.

For questions about the application process, please contact Savanna Galambos at skh7b@virginia.edu.

The University of Virginia assists UVA faculty spouses and partners seeking employment in the Charlottesville area. To learn more about these services, please see <http://provost.virginia.edu/dual-career>.

Applicants may also wish to consult the Faculty & Candidate Guide to UVA & Charlottesville <http://uvacharge.virginia.edu/guide.html>, which offers a wide range of resources on working at UVA and living in and near Charlottesville.

The University of Virginia is an equal opportunity and affirmative action employer. Women, minorities, veterans, and persons with disabilities are encouraged to apply.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 8/28/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4720

U.S. Naval Academy

Rank: Assistant Professor of American Politics

Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Public Policy, Political Theory

The Political Science Department of the United States Naval Academy invites applications for tenure-track Assistant Professor positions in American Politics beginning August 2019. Application review will begin on 01 October 2018 and will continue until the position is filled.

The U.S. Naval Academy is a service academy and top tier liberal arts college with a commitment to excellence in faculty teaching, research, and service. American Politics scholars with expertise in public policy; race, gender, and ethnicity; or political philosophy are encouraged to apply. A strong commitment to undergraduate teaching is essential. Candidates should have a robust research agenda and demonstrate potential for research excellence, as well as a strong commitment to student advising and institutional service.

For more information about this position and how to apply please visit the USNA position announcement at <https://www.usna.edu/HRO/jobinfo/AsstProfessor-PolSciAY19.php>

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 8/27/2018

Salary: Competitive
eJobs ID: 4715

Northern Illinois University

Rank: Assistant Professor

Subfield(s): Political Theory, American Government and Politics, Other

Specializations: African American Politics, Constitutional Law & Theory, Political Behavior

The Center for Black Studies and the Department of Political Science at Northern Illinois University anticipate hiring a tenure-track assistant professor in political science. Employment will begin August 2019. The position is open to applicants from any subfield of political science. Political Theory scholars, in particular, are encouraged to apply. Reflecting NIU's commitment to interdisciplinary collaboration in education and scholarship, the position will hold joint appointment status, but the tenure home will be the Department of Political Science.

The successful candidate will demonstrate a strong record of, or potential for, scholarly research and teaching excellence at both the undergraduate and graduate level. The successful candidate will be expected to teach courses that will contribute to the Black Studies Minor. An earned PhD in political science is required by the start date of the appointment. A demonstrated ability to serve a diverse student population is strongly preferred.

In particular, we seek faculty and staff who embrace NIU's mission of providing opportunity to a diverse student body by providing them with access to high quality education and hands-on involvement in research and community engagement. Experience teaching and mentoring students of diverse backgrounds is highly preferred.

The Department of Political Science has 12 faculty members and offers B.A., B.S., M.A., and Ph.D. degrees. The Center has 13 faculty associates and faculty affiliates that work with the Black Studies Minor. For more information, please visit <http://polisci.niu.edu/> and <https://www.cbs.niu.edu/blackstudies/>. NIU is located in DeKalb, a welcoming and growing city 65 miles west of downtown Chicago. It has an enrollment of more than 18,000 students, including a graduate student body of over 4,000.

Salary will be competitive and commensurate with qualifications and experience. Applicants must send a cover letter, which describes how their scholarship will contribute to the missions of both the Center for Black Studies and the Department of Political Science. In addition, a curriculum vitae, writing samples, evidence of teaching effectiveness, appropriate transcripts, and list of references should be submitted online at <http://employment.niu.edu/postings/36965>.

NIU is an AA/EEO institution and strongly encourages applications from women and minority candidates. A pre-employment criminal background check is required.

Review of completed applications will begin on November 1, 2018 and will continue until the position is filled.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 8/22/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4662

Northern Illinois University

Rank: Assistant Professor

Subfield(s): Political Theory, American Government and Politics, Other

Specializations: African American Politics, Constitutional Law & Theory, Political Behavior

The Center for Black Studies and the Department of Political Science at Northern Illinois University anticipate hiring a tenure-track assistant professor in political science. Employment will begin August 2019. The position is open to applicants from any subfield of political science. Political Theory scholars, in particular, are encouraged to apply. Reflecting NIU's commitment to interdisciplinary collaboration in education and scholarship, the position will hold joint appointment status, but the tenure home will be the Department of Political Science.

The successful candidate will demonstrate a strong record of, or potential for, scholarly research and teaching excellence at both the undergraduate and graduate level. The successful candidate will be expected to teach courses that will contribute to the Black Studies Minor. An earned PhD in political science is required by the start date of the appointment. A demonstrated ability to serve a diverse student population is strongly preferred.

In particular, we seek faculty and staff who embrace NIU's mission of providing opportunity to a diverse student body by providing them with access to high quality education and hands-on involvement in research and community engagement. Experience teaching and mentoring students of diverse backgrounds is highly preferred.

The Department of Political Science has 12 faculty members and offers B.A., B.S., M.A., and Ph.D. degrees. The Center has 13 faculty associates and faculty affiliates that work with the Black Studies Minor. For more information, please visit <http://polisci.niu.edu/> and <https://www.cbs.niu.edu/blackstudies/>. NIU is located in DeKalb, a welcoming and growing city 65 miles west of downtown Chicago. It has an enrollment of more than 18,000 students, including a graduate student body of over 4,000.

Salary will be competitive and commensurate with qualifications and experience. Applicants must send a cover letter, which describes how their scholarship will contribute to the missions of both the Center for Black Studies and the Department of Political Science. In addition, a curriculum vitae, writing samples, evidence of teaching effectiveness, appropriate transcripts, and list of references should be submitted online at <http://employment.niu.edu/postings/36965>.

NIU is an AA/EEO institution and strongly encourages applications from women and minority candidates. A pre-employment criminal background check is required.

Review of completed applications will begin on November 1, 2018 and will continue until the position is filled.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 8/22/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4663

Northern Illinois University

Rank: Assistant Professor

Subfield(s): Political Theory, American Government and Politics, Other

Specializations: African American Politics, Constitutional Law & Theory, Political Behavior

The Center for Black Studies and the Department of Political Science at Northern Illinois University anticipate hiring a tenure-track assistant professor in political science. Employment will begin August 2019. The position is open to applicants from any subfield of political science. Political Theory scholars, in particular, are encouraged to apply. Reflecting NIU's commitment to interdisciplinary collaboration in education and scholarship, the position will hold joint appointment status, but the tenure home will be the Department of Political Science.

The successful candidate will demonstrate a strong record of, or potential for, scholarly research and teaching excellence at both the undergraduate and graduate level. The successful candidate will be expected to teach courses that will contribute to the Black Studies Minor. An earned PhD in political science is required by the start date of the appointment. A demonstrated ability to serve a diverse student population is strongly preferred.

In particular, we seek faculty and staff who embrace NIU's mission of providing opportunity to a diverse student body by providing them with access to high quality education and hands-on involvement in research and community engagement. Experience teaching and mentoring students of diverse backgrounds is highly preferred.

The Department of Political Science has 12 faculty members and offers B.A., B.S., M.A., and Ph.D. degrees. The Center has 13 faculty associates and faculty affiliates that work with the Black Studies Minor. For more information, please visit <http://polisci.niu.edu/> and <https://www.cbs.niu.edu/blackstudies/>. NIU is located in DeKalb, a welcoming and growing city 65 miles west of downtown Chicago. It has an enrollment of more than 18,000 students, including a graduate student body of over 4,000.

Salary will be competitive and commensurate with qualifications and experience. Applicants must send a cover letter, which describes how their scholarship will contribute to the missions of both the Center for Black Studies and the Department of Political Science. In addition, a curriculum vitae, writing samples, evidence of teaching effectiveness, appropriate transcripts, and list of references should be submitted online at <http://employment.niu.edu/postings/36965>.

NIU is an AA/EEO institution and strongly encourages applications from women and minority candidates. A pre-employment criminal background check is required.

Review of completed applications will begin on November 1, 2018 and will continue until the position is filled.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 8/22/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4664

University of Wisconsin, Madison

Rank: Post-Doctoral Fellow

The Center for the Study of Liberal Democracy at the University of Wisconsin-Madison invites applications for a postdoctoral fellowship in political theory for the academic year running from August 20, 2019 to June 30, 2020. Housed in the Department of Political Science, the Center for the Study of Liberal Democracy promotes the study and critical appreciation of the cardinal principles and institutions of liberal democracy, including, but not limited to, constitutionalism and rule of law, the meaning and scope of freedom and free markets in a democratic order, the place and role of religion in liberal democracies, and the relationship between liberty and equality.

Eligible applicants must have completed all requirements for a Ph.D. by the date of application, and no earlier than August 15, 2016. The fellow will receive a stipend of $48,000 per year as well as research funds and benefits. The fellow will teach one course per semester in either the Department of Political Science or the Integrated Liberal Studies program, will assist with the CSLD's programming, and will take an active part in the workshops, conferences, and intellectual life of the Center and the political theory field. The fellowship can be extended for the 2020-2021 academic year, and the appointment will begin in August 2019.

To apply please go to <https://csld.wisc.edu/postdoctoral-fellowship/>

Applications are evaluated on the basis of (1) the significance of the proposed research; (2) the quality of the applicant's past research; (3) the contribution the applicant is likely to make to higher education in the future; and (4) the contribution the applicant is likely to make to intellectual life of the Center.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: 1/15/2019

Date Posted: 8/20/2018

Salary: $40,000 - $49,999

eJobs ID: 4645

Loyola University, Chicago

Rank: Assistant Professor of Political Theory, Helen Houlihan Rigali Endowed Assistant Professorship

Helen Houlihan Rigali Endowed Tenure-Track Assistant Professor of Political Theory

Department of Political Science, Loyola University Chicago

Job Title: Assistant Professor of Political Theory, Helen Houlihan Rigali Endowed Assistant Professorship

Background: Loyola University Chicago (LUC), College of Arts and Sciences, Department of Political Science invites applications for a full-time, entry-level, tenure-track position at the rank of Assistant Professor, beginning fall 2019. The department seeks candidates with expertise in Political Theory. The Helen Houlihan Rigali endowed position provides $5,000 annually in research funds for a maximum of six years. The successful candidate will be joining a department with more than 20 faculty members and more than 500 majors and minors. For information about the department, please visit <http://www.luc.edu/politicalscience/index.shtml>.

Duties and Responsibilities: In addition to publishing quality scholarship, the Helen Houlihan Rigali Endowed Assistant Professor position involves teaching undergraduate courses as well as an occasional graduate course in our M.A. and Ph.D. programs. The candidate will be expected to teach courses in the subfield of Political Theory, including an introductory Political Theory course.

Qualifications: The successful candidate is expected to have a Ph.D. in Political Science at the time of the appointment. Candidates for the position must clearly demonstrate the potential for excellence in research and teaching and have a record of (or clear potential for) distinguished scholarship, grant-funded research, and student mentorship. Candidates should be willing to support the mission of Loyola University Chicago and the goals of a Jesuit Catholic education.

Special Instructions to Applicants: Applicants should submit a current Curriculum Vitae, a statement outlining the applicant's research agenda, a statement on teaching experience, and a letter of interest outlining the applicant's qualifications to www.careers.luc.edu. They also should arrange for three recommendations or evaluations from individuals prepared to speak to their professional qualifications for this position, to be submitted electronically to the above website. Samples of scholarly publications and additional materials related to teaching excellence can also be uploaded to this site or mailed to:

Claudio Katz, Professor and Search Committee Co-Chair
Department of Political Science
Loyola University Chicago
1032 W. Sheridan Road
Chicago, Illinois 60660

Applications will be accepted until the position is filled. For full consideration, applications should be received by September 30, 2018.

Loyola University Chicago is an Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action employer with a strong commitment to hiring for our mission and diversifying our faculty. The University seeks to increase the diversity of its professoriate, workforce and undergraduate and graduate student populations because broad diversity - including a wide range of individuals who contribute to a robust academic environment - is critical to achieving the University's mission of excellence in education, research, educational access and services in an increasingly diverse society. Therefore, in holistically accessing the many qualifications of each applicant, we would factor favorably an individual's record of conduct that includes experience with an array of diverse perspectives, as well as a wide variety of different educational, research or other work activities. Among other qualifications, we would also factor favorably experience overcoming or helping others overcome barriers to an academic career or degrees.

Start Date: Fall 2019
Application Deadline: Open until Filled
Date Posted: 8/17/2018
Salary: Competitive
eJobs ID: 4600

Hamilton College

Rank: Visiting Professor
Subfield(s): Political Theory, American Government and Politics, Public Policy

The Government Department at Hamilton College invites applications for a two-year visiting position with possibility for renewal for an additional two years, at the rank of Visiting Assistant Professor. Teaching load is four courses per year for the first year and five courses per year after. This position covers American politics, public policy, and political theory. Candidates may be from any field but must be able to teach courses from at least two of the three areas listed. Applicants who research the impact of digital technologies or incorporate innovative digital technologies into their research and teaching are especially encouraged to apply. We are seeking candidates who can demonstrate their experience in teaching or working with diverse student populations. Your cover letter should address the ways in which you would further the College's goal of building a diverse educational environment.

Appointment begins July 1, 2019. ABD or Ph.D. required Please submit a curriculum vitae, graduate transcripts, a list of courses you are prepared to teach, evidence of teaching performance, and arrange for submission of three letters of recommendation to Interfolio at <https://apply.interfolio.com/53422>. We will begin consideration of applications on December 1. Applicants with questions or wishing to be interviewed at the APSA should contact Philip Klinkner, Chair, Government Department, Hamilton College (govsrch@hamilton.edu).

Hamilton (www.hamilton.edu) is a residential liberal arts college located in upstate New York. Applicants with dual-career considerations can find other Hamilton and nearby academic job listings at www.higheredcareers.com, as well as additional information at <https://www.hamilton.edu/offices/dof/faculty-support-resources/resources-for-prospective-or-newfaculty/opportunities-for-spouses-or-partners> (Opportunities for Spouses or Partners). Hamilton College is an affirmative action, equal opportunity employer and is committed to diversity in all areas of the campus community. Hamilton provides domestic partner benefits. Candidates from underrepresented groups in higher education are especially encouraged to apply.

Qualifications
ABD or Ph.D. required.

Start Date: Summer 2019
Application Deadline: 12/1/2018
Date Posted: 8/15/2018
Salary: Competitive
eJobs ID: 4601

University of California, Irvine

Rank: 2018-19 Political Science Lecturer Pool (Theory Focus)

The Department of Political Science is seeking applicants for temporary part-time lecturer positions to teach in the field of Political Theory contingent on departmental need. These positions will replace faculty on leave during the 2018-19 academic year.

Requirements - We are seeking candidates with strong teaching credentials who might contribute to our undergraduate program in Political Theory. Candidates should have a Ph.D.

These part-time positions are based on an annual salary range beginning at $54,738 and the number of courses could vary.

Service Period Dates for 2018-2019 Academic Year:
Fall Quarter: 9/24/18 – 12/14/18
Winter Quarter: 1/2/19 - 3/22/19
Spring Quarter: 3/27/19 – 6/14/19

Application Procedure - Interested applicants should submit a letter of application, vita, three letters of reference, evidence of teaching performance, and a Statement of Contributions to Diversity via our online recruit system: <https://recruit.ap.uci.edu/apply/JPF04846>

Priority for positions will be given to applications completed by October 1st, 2018. Please note this is a continuous recruitment to fill classes on an as-needed basis. The department will refer to the pool of applications on file to fill assignments as necessary.

Start Date: Fall 2018

Application Deadline: 3/17/2019

Date Posted: 8/7/2018

Salary: $50,000 - $59,999

eJobs ID: 4516

University of Colorado, Boulder

Rank: Assistant Professor Political Theory

The Department of Political Science at the University of Colorado at Boulder invites applications for a tenure-track appointment at the Assistant Professor level in Political Theory. The appointment begins in August 2019. Successful candidates must demonstrate a research focus in contemporary political theory. We are particularly interested in candidates with specialization in one of the following areas: race and inequality, non-Western or indigenous political thought, post-colonial theory, or democratization. Priority will be given to candidates whose research and teaching interests complement those of our existing political science faculty without duplicating those of our political theory faculty. The position requires teaching at the undergraduate and graduate levels, including contributing to the teaching of our large, introductory lecture course in political theory and advising PhD students.

Applications received by October 1, 2018 will receive priority consideration. We will continue screening applications until the position is filled. The University of Colorado Boulder is committed to diversity and equality in education and employment. Members of underrepresented groups are especially encouraged to apply. Applications are accepted electronically at <https://jobs.colorado.edu/jobs/JobDetail?jobId=12292>, and should include a letter of interest along with a current CV, writing samples, evidence of teaching effectiveness, and three letters of reference. Candidates who have completed a PhD in political science and those who are ABD may apply. ABDs will be hired at the instructor level and will be allowed up to two years to complete the PhD. PhDs will be hired at the Assistant Professor level. Please direct inquiries to the Political Theory Search Committee, Department of Political Science, 333 UCB, University of Colorado, Boulder, CO 80309-0333. See <https://jobs.colorado.edu/jobs/JobDetail/Assistant-Professor-Political-Theory/12292?https://jobs.colorado.edu/jobs/JobDetail/Assistant-Professor-Political-Theory/12292?for full job description>.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 8/6/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4499

Portland State University

Rank: Assistant Professor

The Department of Political Science in the Mark O. Hatfield School of Government at Portland State University seeks applicants for a tenure-track Assistant Professor position in Political Theory beginning Fall 2019. A Ph.D. in political science or a related field must be completed by September 1, 2019.

The position is open with regard to subfield specialization within Political Theory, although we are particularly interested in candidates whose expertise complements existing strengths within the department, school, and university. Teaching responsibilities will include a broad range of topics in political theory, including the normative foundations of governance and ethics in public policy, with specific courses to reflect the candidate's strengths.

The position includes teaching and advising responsibilities in the undergraduate and master's degree programs in Political Science as well as the Master's of Public Policy and interdisciplinary doctoral program in Public Affairs and Policy.

Portland State's 49-acre downtown campus is located in the heart of one of America's most vibrant centers of culture, business and technology. We are recognized throughout the world for programs like Urban Planning, Social Work, and Environmental Studies that directly engage the community, and aim our students towards the creation of a better, more sustainable world.

The Mark O. Hatfield School of Government is part of the College of Urban and Public Affairs, and faculty members are encouraged to participate in inter-disciplinary scholarship within the college.

Please submit:

letter of application(cover letter),
curriculum vitae,
graduate transcripts (upload under "Other-2"), writing sample (e.g. article, book chapter, conference paper, etc) and, teaching evaluations (upload under 'Evidence of Teaching Effectiveness') .

Please list the names, telephone numbers and email addresses for three professional references. As soon as you submit your application, your references will be emailed a link to upload their letters of recommendation.

For more details, and to submit your application, please visit <https://jobs.hrc.pdx.edu/postings/27332>

Review of applications will begin October 15, 2018, and continue until the position is filled. If you have questions, please contact the Political Science department at polisci@pdx.edu.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 8/2/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4484

The New School

Rank: Assistant Professor of Politics

The Politics Department at The New School for Social Research and Eugene Lang College seeks to appoint a political theorist, for a tenure track position at the assistant professor level, subject to budgetary approval.

We seek candidates with a strong background in the history of political thought and with promise of excellence in research as well as teaching.

We seek candidates whose work is theoretically sophisticated, historically sensitive, and politically critical and who are committed to engaging with colleagues outside the theory subfield.

We aim to appoint someone with broad interests and a lively mind, who can contribute to cross-field discussions in a politics department committed to blurring subfield divisions; to interdisciplinary debate in a graduate division dedicated to critically-oriented social science, philosophy and history; and to collegial life in an innovative liberal arts college dedicated to seminar teaching.

While we expect a strong background in the history of political thought, we are especially interested in candidates whose primary focus is on theoretical approaches and questions linked to contemporary political problems—for example, race, indigeneity, colonialism, imperialism/capitalism, domination, intersectionality, borders, globalization, transnationalism, international law; and environmental issues.

The review of applications will begin on September 15, 2018 and will continue until the position is filled. The start date for the position is July 1, 2019. Applicants apply on-line using the faculty application on The New School human resources website <http://careers.newschool.edu/postings/16212/>. Using this online system, applicants should submit 1) a letter of intent, 2) a CV, 3) a list of references, and 4) a piece of recent research. Applicants should have the PhD completed by the time of their contract start date.

Information about The New School for Social Research, Eugene Lang College, and the Politics Department can be found at: <http://www.newschool.edu/nssr/>, <http://www.newschool.edu/lang/>, and <http://www.newschool.edu/nssr/politics/>.

Benefits: Comprehensive university benefits package including health and retirement plans, tuition remission. Visit <http://www.newschool.edu/admin/hr/benefits/index.html>

Start Date: Summer 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 7/31/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4460

Hobart & William Smith Colleges

Rank: Assistant Professor of Political Science

Specializations: American Politics, Political Development, Presidency

The Department of Political Science invites applications for a tenure-track position in American politics and American political thought at the rank of Assistant Professor beginning July 1, 2019. Ph.D. preferred, advanced ABD considered. The teaching load is five courses over two semesters.

The ideal candidate will be able to teach introductory classes in both American politics and political theory. We are interested in candidates who can teach upper-level courses in American political thought and American political development. Additional teaching and research areas might include power and the American presidency; religion and religious movements in US politics; fear and authoritarianism in US politics; and rural and/or labor politics. The successful candidate's work will be informed by theoretical and historical perspectives on questions important to the understanding of power and politics in the United States.

Research and teaching in our department is not confined within the conventional subfields. The department values intellectual diversity and supports a wide range of critical and theoretical approaches that help bring people together across subfields as they address questions of power of ever-pressing importance. The department also supports interdisciplinarity in teaching and research in keeping with the Colleges' longstanding emphasis on interdisciplinary liberal arts education. We encourage the creative development of new questions, lines of inquiry, and vectors of critique. The department seeks candidates that have demonstrated a commitment to diversity and inclusion.

APPLICATION INSTRUCTIONS

Applications received by September 15, 2018, will be given first consideration, but we will continue to review applications until the position is filled.

Please send a letter of application, curriculum vitae, writing sample, graduate transcripts, a statement of teaching philosophy, and a statement explaining how your skills and experience support the campus' commitment to diversity. Please arrange to have three letters of reference sent via Interfolio. Additional inquiries can be directed to Professor Jodi Dean, Search Chair, at jdean@hws.edu.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 5/24/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4266

Virginia Commonwealth University

Rank: ASSISTANT PROFESSOR - AMERICAN POLITICS (CONGRESS)/POLITICAL THEORY

Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Political Theory, Methodology

Specializations: Congress, Ethnic & Feminist Theory, Research Methods

Assistant Professor: (Tenure-Eligible, Political Science)

The Department of Political Science at Virginia Commonwealth University is seeking applications for a tenure eligible faculty position at the Assistant Professor rank to begin August 2018 to support the Department's teaching and research mission in the area of American Politics with expertise in American Institutions (especially, Congress), and Contemporary Political Theory. In addition to subfield expertise in Congress, specialization(s) in gender, race, sexuality, class, and/or ethnicity politics is preferred. The successful candidate will also be able to teach our undergraduate and graduate level research methods.

RESEARCH

The faculty member will be central to the political science department's concentrations in U.S. Government, Civil and Human Rights, Politics and Government, Policy and Administration, Political Theory & Methodology, among others. We are seeking active researchers who study issues related to the U.S. Congress and/or American Political Theory.

TEACHING

In addition to the faculty member's research responsibilities, the teaching responsibilities will include courses at the undergraduate level in her/his areas of specialization, as well as providing support to the Department's core curriculum and general education requirements, including Introduction to American Politics, Introduction to Political Theory, and Senior Seminar, a 400-level Capstone course. Specifically, this candidate will teach courses in legislative politics, advanced research methods, and political theory. The ability to teach courses in Contemporary Political Theory (e.g., Black Political Thought, Feminist Theory, Queer Political Theory) is preferred, but not required. This position also includes an expectation of service to the Department.

SERVICE

The faculty member will serve on departmental, College, and/or University committees as necessary, as well as in a professional capacity in their field, e.g., reviewer, conference organizer, etc.

REQUIRED QUALIFICATIONS

- PhD in political science or closely related field at the time of employment
- Demonstrated expertise and potential for publication in the faculty area of research
- Demonstrated experience working in and fostering a diverse faculty, staff, and student environment or commitment to do so as a faculty member at VCU

REQUIRED DOCUMENTS

1. Cover Letter
2. Three Letters of Recommendation
3. CV/Resume
4. Statement of Teaching Interests
5. Statement of Research Interests
6. Teaching Evaluations (Evidence of Teaching Effectiveness)
7. Graduate Transcript (unofficial is accepted)
8. Writing Sample
9. Statement on Commitment to Diversity and Inclusion

Only electronic applications will be accepted. Please apply online at www.vcujobs.com. Please submit the required documents with your online application. Letters of Reference should be sent to the search committee under separate cover directly via the automated email system at the application site. Questions should be directed to Dr. Alexandra Reckendorf at anreckendorf@vcu.edu. Application deadline is December 15, 2017. Start date will be August 16, 2018.

Start Date: Fall 2018

Application Deadline: 12/15/2017

Date Posted: 11/1/2017

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 3725

University of North Texas

Rank: Open Rank Search in Political Theory

We invite applications for an open-rank position beginning fall 2018 in the broadly defined field of the history of political theory. We are interested in prospective candidates who specialize in Medieval, early modern/Enlightenment, or 19th/20th century German (post-rationalist) thought. An additional strength in non-Western thought, such as Islamic or Chinese political thought, is considered an advantage.

All applicants must meet the following criteria: (1) a Ph.D. in Political Science, (2) evidence of excellence in scholarly productivity, and (3) evidence of demonstrated excellence in teaching and mentoring students in independent activities. Preference will be given to candidates who have published books and/or articles in top-tier journals.

The successful candidate will have responsibilities that may include but are not limited to teaching core, upper-level undergraduate and graduate courses, continuing a record of robust scholarly research, directing graduate research in the Theory field, and providing service to the department, college, and university. The typical teaching load is 2/2.

The Department of Political Science at UNT is a highly productive department with 25 faculty members who are committed to excellence in both teaching and research. It offers BA, MA/MS, and PhD degrees. Faculty in the department have previously edited the American Political Science Review, International Studies Quarterly, and Journal of Political Science Education, and is the current home of Religion and Politics. The department is also home to the Castleberry Peace Institute, the Peace Studies Program and the Latina/o Mexican-American Studies Program. The Department's web site is: <http://politicalscience.unt.edu>.

With 37,000 students, UNT is the nation's 26th largest public university. As the largest, most comprehensive university in Dallas-Fort Worth, UNT drives the North Texas region. UNT offers 99 bachelor's, 83 master's, and 36 doctoral degree programs, many nationally and internationally recognized. UNT is a Carnegie Tier I public research university deeply committed to advancing educational excellence and preparing students to become thoughtful, engaged citizens of the world.

Applicants must submit: (1) a cover letter, (2) a curriculum vitae, (3) a narrative describing scholarly research, (4) two published writing samples, (5) a statement of teaching philosophy, and (6) the names and contact information of three references via UNT's Faculty Jobs portal at <https://facultyjobs.unt.edu>. Direct inquires to Richard Ruderman, search committee chair (Richard.Ruderman@unt.edu)

Review of applications will begin on October 18, 2017 and will remain open until the position is closed. To ensure full consideration, applicants are encouraged to submit their applications and all supporting materials as close as possible to the review date.

Start Date: Fall 2018

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 9/13/2017

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 3400

PUBLIC ADMINISTRATION

Harvard University

Rank: Inequality in America Initiative Postdoctoral Fellowship

Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Public Administration, Public Policy

Organization: Harvard University

Unit: Division of Social Science | Faculty of Arts and Sciences

Position: Inequality in America Initiative Postdoctoral Fellowship

Deadline: 3 December 2018

Description:

The Inequality in America Initiative seeks applications from recent doctoral degree recipients interested in joining a multidisciplinary network of Harvard researchers working to address the manifold challenges of inequality. This program is intended to seed new research directions; facilitate collaboration and mentorship across disciplines; develop new leaders in the study of inequality; and deepen teaching expertise on the subject.

The fellowship is a two-year postdoctoral training program, with an optional third year conditional on program director approval and independent funding. The award includes $65,000/year plus fringe; office space; $2500 for computer equipment; a $10,000 research account; up to $2500/yr for research travel; up to $3000 for relocation.

The program director will pair each fellow with two Harvard faculty mentors (including one from outside the fellow's primary discipline), participating in one or more of five major research clusters:

- Mobility and Migration
- Science, Technology, Education, and Health
- Work, Family, and Opportunity
- Governance, Citizenship, and Social Justice
- America Inequality, Globally

Applicants to the 2019-20 program must have received a doctorate or equivalent terminal degree in May 2016 or later; applicants without a terminal degree must demonstrate that they will receive one by August 2019.

See full details at <https://inequalityinamerica.fas.harvard.edu/postdoctoral-program>

Start Date:

Application Deadline: 12/3/2018

Date Posted: 10/31/2018

Salary: $60,000 - $69,999

eJobs ID: 5085

Flagler College

Rank: Assistant Professor of Public Administration

The Public Administration Department at Flagler College invites applications from qualified candidates for a faculty position in Public Administration at the rank of Assistant Professor for the fall semester 2019. Responsibilities include teaching core upper-level undergraduate courses in Public Administration. The ideal candidate should also have the ability to teach Research Methods and other areas of expertise.

Flagler College is a private independent college with an enrollment of 2,500 students. Flagler College is located in historic St. Augustine, Florida, 35 miles south of Jacksonville and 55 miles north of Daytona Beach.

Completed applications must be received by November 15, 2018.

Qualifications

Applicants should have a terminal degree in Public Administration or other related field, or have made significant progress toward their doctorate or Ph.D. Applicants should demonstrate a strong commitment to effective teaching. The Department is particularly interested in applicants experienced in the development of online learning programs or who have taught online or hybrid courses.

Applicants should electronically submit a letter of application, curriculum vitae, a brief statement of teaching philosophy and research goals, evidence of teaching effectiveness, unofficial copies of transcripts, three letters of recommendation with contact information, and other supplementary materials through the online application link.

Only Applications submitted using the link below will be considered for the position.

<https://www.paycomonline.net/v4/ats/web.php/jobs/ViewJobDetails?job=14103&clientkey=CFD5A25D0F7875F72907A59112412D6B>

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: 11/15/2018

Date Posted: 10/23/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 5055

University of San Francisco

Rank: Assistant Professor, Tenure-Track, M.A in Urban and Public Affairs

Assistant Professor, Tenure-Track, M.A in Urban and Public Affairs

University of San Francisco

Job Summary:

The M.A. in Urban and Public Affairs (UPA) at the University of San Francisco invites applications for a tenure-track position at the Assistant Professor level beginning in August 2019. UPA is a dynamic, interdisciplinary program that trains students in public policy, urban studies and grassroots organizing, examining ways in which policy and community engagement can effect positive change.

We are seeking applications from candidates with a Ph.D. in Public Policy, Urban Studies or related fields, whose work centers on urban development, housing, and homelessness in the Bay Area. Preference will be given to applicants with a background in California Studies through the lens of race and/ or gender and political economy. We especially welcome applications from scholars with an activist perspective, who can articulate a local connection with their scholarly work and are able to bring community-engaged learning into their teaching.

Job Responsibilities:

The successful candidate must be able to teach core courses in the UPA program, including Research Methods, as well as the Introduction to Urban Studies course in the Urban Studies undergraduate program and elective courses in their area of expertise at the undergraduate and graduate level. The standard teaching load for this position at USF is two 4-unit courses per semester with an additional third course every fourth semester (2-2-2-3 over two years).

In addition, the successful candidate will be expected to direct the UPA program for at least one three-year term. Program Directors receive some course release time for their administrative duties. Additionally, all faculty are expected to engage in service to their department, college, and university, as well as maintain an active research program that engages both undergraduate and graduate students when possible.

Minimum Requirements:

Applicants must have completed a Ph.D. in a relevant field by August 31, 2019 as well as have a minimum of three years of experience in directing an academic program. A strong record of teaching at the university level, evidence of scholarship, and an understanding of and commitment to support the mission of the University of San Francisco are required. In addition, successful applicants should demonstrate a commitment to public scholarship and engagement with the local community. Preference will be given to candidates who possess a strong Bay Area network for the purpose of placing students in relevant internships.

Additional Knowledge, Skills, and Abilities:

For information on how to apply, please visit the following link: <http://apptrkr.com/1315432>

EEO Policy

The University of San Francisco is an equal opportunity institution of higher education. As a matter of policy, the University does not discriminate in employment, educational services and academic programs on the basis of an individual's race, color, religion, religious creed, ancestry, national origin, age (except minors), sex, gender identity, sexual orientation, marital status, medical condition (cancer-related and genetic-related) and disability, and the other bases prohibited by law. The University reasonably accommodates qualified individuals with disabilities under the law.

Copyright ©2017 Jobelephant.com Inc. All rights reserved.

<https://www.jobelephant.com/jeid-d2aa6862ba68284491ab76582ca678f7>

Start Date:

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 10/16/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 5022

New York University

Rank: Assistant Professor of Public Service

Subfield(s): Public Policy, Public Administration, Methodology

Specializations: Environmental Policy, Economic Policy, Research Methods

Description:

The Robert F. Wagner Graduate School of Public Service at New York University invites applications for a tenure-track assistant professor position with appointment to begin September 1, 2019. We are particularly interested in candidates with expertise and a record of research in political science with application to the environment. Successful candidates will teach in our Master of Public Administration program and will have demonstrated excellence in research.

NYU Wagner is a multidisciplinary school that prepares public service leaders to translate ideas into actions that have an effective and lasting impact on the public good. Wagner's nearly 40 full-time faculty members are trained in a wide variety of disciplines and share a commitment to addressing issues of public importance in their teaching and research. Wagner faculty members collaborate with other schools and departments across the university, including the Departments of Politics, Economics, and Sociology in Arts & Science; School of Law; Stern School of Business; Tandon School of Engineering; and the College of Global Public Health.

Qualifications:

A Ph.D. in political science, public policy, economics, public administration, or a related field is required and must be conferred by August 31, 2019.

Application Instructions:

To apply, visit the following link: apply.interfolio.com/55519. Candidates should submit a cover letter, curriculum vitae, two completed research papers, and three letters of reference. Because diversity is an important part of the mission at Wagner and the University, candidates should also describe how they would address issues of diversity, equity, and inclusion in their teaching.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 10/12/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 5005

University of Michigan, Ann Arbor

Rank: Education Policy Postdoctoral Research Fellow

Subfield(s): Public Policy, Methodology, Public Administration

Specializations: Education Policy, Quantitative Methods, Research Methods

Postdoctoral Training Program in Quantitative Methods for Education Policy Research

Education Policy Postdoctoral Research Fellow

2019 – 2021

Summary

The Education Policy Initiative (EPI) seeks candidates interested in deepening their knowledge of rigorous, applied quantitative education policy research for a two-year postdoctoral fellowship.

Up to two fellows will be trained to estimate the causal effects of education policies and practices on student outcomes, emphasizing the use of state and district longitudinal data. Fellows will participate in all aspects of the research process, including design, IRB administration, analysis, and presentation. They will collect, compile and analyze data; design surveys; participate in research planning; write papers; present results at seminars and professional meetings; and supervise research assistants. Fellows will have the unique opportunity to leverage EPI's role in the Michigan Education Research Institute (MERI) to develop research partnerships with public agencies and practitioners and to communicate results to non-technical audiences, including policymakers.

The fellows will also have the opportunity to develop and lead additional education research projects. They should expect to spend about a third of their time completing research related to their dissertation, a third of their time working on ongoing research projects at the Ford School, and the remaining third of their time building new collaborations at the university. The fellows will not have any teaching responsibilities.

The fellows will receive close mentorship from professors Susan Dynarski, Brian Jacob and Christina Weiland and will have the opportunity to work with cross-disciplinary UM faculty, including John Bound, Stephen DesJardins, Mathew Ronfeldt and Kevin Stange. UM is home to a dynamic community of researchers, with ample opportunity for professional development – via participation in seminars and trainings, as well as through exposure to high-profile speakers.

This is a 2-year fellowship beginning in the summer of 2019 with competitive salary and benefits plus funds for research expenses and related travel. Funding for the fellowships is provided by the Institute of Education Sciences postdoctoral training grant R305B170015.

Qualifications

Applicants must have completed their PhD in a relevant social science discipline prior to August 31, 2019 and have academic research experience in public policy, economics, education, quantitative methodology, or other similar fields. Applicants must be citizens or permanent residents of the United States. Applicants should not have been supported previously by either a predoctoral or postdoctoral training grant through the United States Department of Education's Institute of Education Sciences.

Application Process and Deadline

We will accept applications submitted online. Please visit our website for instructions. Complete applications include a 2-3 page statement of interest, writing sample (job market paper or recent publication authored / co-authored by the applicant), CV, and three confidential letters of recommendation. We will begin reviewing applications on November 1 and will continue until the positions are filled.

U-M EEO/AA Statement

The University of Michigan is an equal opportunity/affirmative action employer.

Start Date: Summer 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 10/12/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 5006

London School of Economics & Political Science

Rank: Assistant Professors in International Social and Public Policy (2 posts)

Subfield(s): Public Policy, Public Administration, Methodology

LSE is committed to building a diverse, equitable and truly inclusive university

For these posts, we particularly welcome applications by women and ethnic minorities

Department of Social Policy

Assistant Professors in International Social and Public Policy (2 posts)

Salary is competitive with Departments at our peer institutions worldwide and not less than £53,905 pa inclusive

Following the retirement of several faculty members, and consolidation of its BSc and MSc degree programmes, the Department seeks talented individuals keen to help it further develop its renowned strengths in social and public policy.

Candidates should have expertise and research interests in social and public policy analysis, and a completed PhD (or be close to obtaining one) in social and public policy or a related area by the post start date. They must have a track record or trajectory of internationally excellent publications, plus proven ability or potential to publish in top journals or with leading book publishers. Also required is a clear, well developed and viable strategy for future outstanding research that has the potential to result in world-leading publications, together with the ability to establish an international reputation. Candidates must have the ability to teach core and specialist courses in international social and public policy at BSc, MSc, and PhD levels, and also have a commitment to high quality teaching and fostering a positive learning environment for students, including pastoral care.

The other criteria that will be used when shortlisting candidates for this post can be found in the person specification, which is attached to this vacancy on the LSE's online recruitment system.

In addition to a competitive salary the benefits that come with this job include an occupational pension scheme, a research incentive scheme with personal reward options, generous research leave (sabbatical) entitlement, a collegial faculty environment and excellent support, training and development opportunities.

For further information about the post, please see the how to apply document, job description and the person specification, as well as the further information document.

To apply for this post, please go to www.lse.ac.uk/LSEJobs. If you have any technical queries with applying on the online system, please use the "contact us" links at the bottom of the LSE Jobs page. Should you have any queries about the role, please email socialpolicy.recruitment@lse.ac.uk in the first instance.

The closing date for receipt of applications is Sunday 11 November 2018 (23.59 UK time). We are unable to accept any late applications. We expect to interview short-listed candidates in March 2019.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: 11/11/2018

Date Posted: 10/11/2018

Salary: $70,000 - $79,999

eJobs ID: 4980

Idaho State University

Rank: Assistant Professor, Political Science (3411)

Assistant Professor, Political Science (3411)

Posting Number: req687

9 Month

Faculty Tenure Track

College of Arts and Letters

Pocatello - Main

Primary Purpose

Idaho State University invites applications for a tenure track Assistant Professor of Public Administration appointment in the Department of Political Science. The appointment will begin in the Fall semester of 2019.

The Department of Political Science has one of the largest graduate programs in the Idaho State University College of Arts & Letters. Located in Pocatello, Idaho State University has an enrollment of more than 12,000 students. (Visit www.isu.edu for more information.) The Pocatello region has numerous outdoor recreational activities and is well known for mountain biking, hiking, fishing, rock climbing, kayaking, and skiing. Located in southeast Idaho, Pocatello is 2.5 hours or less by car to Grand Teton and Yellowstone National Parks, Sun Valley, Grand Targhee, Jackson Hole, and Salt Lake City.

Key Responsibilities

The position carries a 3-3 teaching load of undergraduate and graduate courses. Faculty are expected to have an active research agenda and carry out service obligations.

Minimum Qualifications

The candidate must be able to teach one of the department's introductory courses in political science. A doctorate in Political Science or Public Administration is required, but ABDs finishing by August 2019 will be considered.

Preferred Qualifications

The department is looking for a candidate with the ability to contribute broadly to its undergraduate and three graduate programs (DA, MA, and MPA). The ideal candidate would demonstrate expertise in the following pair of political science subfields: (1) Public Administration and (2) US Politics, International Relations, or Comparative Politics. Because the candidate is expected to help develop and deliver courses within the Master of Public Administration program, the ability to teach general courses in public administration is essential. The ability to teach specialized courses such as Public Administration Ethics, Qualitative Methods in Public Administration, Introduction to Public Administration, Non-profit administration, and State and Local politics would be an asset. MPA courses are regularly broadcast via distance learning and the candidate will teach one or two such courses a year.

Apply online at <https://isu.csod.com/ats/careersite/JobDetails.aspx?id=687&site=1>

Please submit the following documents with your application: Cover letter, vita, unofficial transcripts, a teaching philosophy, a list of courses that the applicant could teach, the names and contact information of three (3) professional references, a sample of scholarly research, and teaching evaluations (or other evidence of teaching effectiveness if an applicant does not yet have teaching evaluations). If you have questions, please contact the Department of Political Science at 208-282-2211, or email at pols@isu.edu.

Priority consideration will be given to applications received by November 15, 2018. However, the position will remain open until filled. Salary will be commensurate with education and experience. Includes a competitive benefits package. Offers of employment may be conditional pending successful completion of a background investigation.

Apply Here: <http://www.Click2Apply.net/zqczwmdj787zd7n>

PI104805878

Start Date:

Date Posted: 10/10/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4994

Middle Tennessee State University

Rank: Tenure Track Faculty

The Department of Political Science and International Relations at Middle Tennessee State University invites applications for a tenure-track faculty position at the rank of assistant/associate professor. Start date for the position is August 1, 2019.

The Department is looking for a dynamic and effective teacher to work primarily in the public administration and public policy concentration. Candidates who have taught courses in areas such as public finance, grant writing, and specific policy areas will receive special consideration. Faculty are also expected to maintain an active research agenda. Candidates should have a demonstrated commitment to excellence in undergraduate teaching and advising, professional research, and service.

The Department of Political Science and International Relations consists of fifteen full-time faculty members, offering degrees and concentrations in general Political Science, Pre-Law, International Relations, and Public Administration and Policy. MTSU is a growing university in the dynamic Nashville metropolitan region. PhD in Political Science or Public Administration required by appointment date.

To apply or for more detailed information visit <http://mtsujobs.mtsu.edu>. MTSU is an equal opportunity, affirmative action employer that values diversity in all its forms. Women, minorities, individuals with disabilities and protected veterans are encouraged to apply.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 10/9/2018

Salary: Negotiable

eJobs ID: 4979

Rutgers University - Camden

Rank: Assistant Professor in Master of Public Administration

The Department of Public Policy and Administration invites applications for a full-time tenure track Assistant Professor position in the Master of Public Administration (MPA) program for the academic year beginning 2019-2020. Our NASPAA-accredited, MPA and Executive MPA programs offer degree specializations in Public Management and Community Development. We are looking for a candidate whose teaching and research interests are in the areas of public and nonprofit management, policy analysis and/or data analytics. Candidates' research agendas should be robust, with preference for issues including: policy analysis, urban policy, and public sector diversity related research. The successful candidate will be able to teach core public administration classes in management, public policy, and research methods.

Minimum Position Requirements: Ph.D. in Public Administration or related field by the start of employment.

Interested applicants should upload the following application materials at <https://jobs.rutgers.edu/postings/75457>: cover letter, CV, statement of teaching philosophy and research interests, evidence of teaching excellence, transcript of highest degree earned, and a writing sample of the applicant's choice. In addition, please send three confidential letters of reference /recommendation to Mrs. Karen McGrath, at karenmcg@camden.rutgers.edu.

Review of applications will begin October 30, 2018, and continue until the position is filled.

Rutgers University—Camden is part of Rutgers, the State University of New Jersey, an Equal Opportunity / Affirmative Action Employer. It is university policy to provide equal employment opportunity to all its employees and applicants for employment regardless of their race, creed, color, national origin, age, ancestry, nationality, marital or domestic partnership or civil union status, sex, pregnancy, gender identity or expression, disability status, liability for military service, protected veteran status, affectional or sexual orientation, atypical cellular or blood trait, genetic information (including the refusal to submit to genetic testing), or any other category protected by law. As an institution, we value diversity of background and opinion, and prohibit discrimination or harassment on the basis of any legally protected class in the areas of hiring, recruitment, promotion, transfer, demotion, training, compensation, pay, fringe benefits, layoff, termination or any other terms and conditions of employment. For additional information please see the Non-Discrimination Statement at the following web address: <http://uhr.rutgers.edu/non-discrimination-statement>. The University and department have a strong commitment to achieving diversity among faculty and staff, and we strongly encourage women and minorities to apply for this position.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 10/9/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4985

University of New Orleans

Rank: Chair and Professor, Department of Planning and Urban Studies

Subfield(s): Administration, Public Administration, Public Policy

Specializations: Urban Politics, Environmental Policy, Energy Policy

POSITION SUMMARY

The University of New Orleans and the College of Liberal Arts, Education and Human Development seeks candidates for Chair of the Department of Planning and Urban Studies at rank of full-professor with tenure. Chairs are appointed on an initial three-year term and are subject to evaluation and renewal. The successful candidate will have prior academic leadership experience, preferably as a department chair or associate chair. The candidate will need to manage a small but diverse department, in the areas of fiscal responsibility, personnel management, curricular and program oversight, outreach and recruitment, and assessment. The successful candidate will be a collaborative and innovative leader, reporting to the dean and working closely with other chairs in the college, especially those in Anthropology/Sociology and Political Science/Public Administration. Discussions are underway about the college structure, whether a move to a School is warranted for this department, alone or combined with other departments. The successful candidate will be open to other structures that will strengthen and grow the programs in Planning and Urban Studies.

Candidates must possess an earned doctorate in urban/regional planning, or a related field (e.g. social ecology, urban studies/design, applied ecology), which is required for the successful candidate to have demonstrated credentials and to ensure the granting of tenure. The candidate must also have a record suitable for hiring at the rank of full professor, preferably by earning that rank at a previous regionally accredited university. Research in the areas of Environment & Energy, Coastal Zone Planning, and/or Environmental Planning is preferred. Documented success at securing outside funding is strongly preferred as well. The Planning and Urban Studies department offers five degrees: a Bachelor of Science in urban studies and planning (both face-to-face and online), a Master of Science in Transportation, an accredited Master of Urban and Regional Planning, and a Master of Science and a Ph.D. in Urban Studies. Additionally, the department offers three certificates: Geographic Information Systems, Historic and Cultural Preservation, and Disaster Management and Community Resilience. PLUS houses the University of New Orleans Transportation Institute and the Center for Hazards, Assessment and Technology.

RESPONSIBILITIES

50% of effort as department chair; 50% as teaching and research. The assigned time and stipend for department chair changes annually, depending on numbers of majors, SCH generated, and fulltime faculty.

REQUIRED QUALIFICATIONS

PhD from regionally accredited university in the field of urban planning or a closely related field; earned tenure at current institution or qualifications that would allow the candidate to be hired as full professor with tenure.

DESIRED QUALIFICATIONS

Significant leadership experience; discipline specialty areas of Environment & Energy, Coastal Zone Planning, and/or Environmental Planning; documented success at securing outside funding.

POSITION NUMBER 1978

To apply: <http://new.uno.edu/careers/1978>

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 10/9/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4986

Arizona State University

Rank: Data Analytics in Public Policy and Management

Subfield(s): Public Policy, Public Administration, Other

The Arizona State University School of Public Affairs (SPA) invites applications for a tenure track faculty position at the Assistant or Associate level specializing in data analytics. Hiring will focus on active, entrepreneurial emerging scholars desiring to work collaboratively across disciplines as they establish themselves as a leader in public administration and policy. This nine-month position begins August 16, 2019.

The successful candidate will have research and teaching focused on applying data analytic skills to understand and find solutions to important public policy problems. The successful applicant will have demonstrated ability to apply one or more data analytic approaches to public policy or public management problems, such as predictive analytics and artificial intelligence, big data and cloud computing, open data, visualization, text analysis, decision-support, and computational simulation and modeling. A Ph.D. in public policy, public administration, economics, political science, data science, mathematics, statistics, computer science, engineering or related fields is expected at the time of appointment. All applicants should demonstrate interest and experience in one or more applied areas of public policy.

The School's program is ranked #9 in the nation (#4 in information technology). It is home to a number of applied research centers that focus on areas such as e-government, urban innovation, citizen participation, organizational design, public policy, and science policy. ASU is home to a number of data science initiatives including the Decision Theatre, the Data Science and Analytics Lab, the Institute for Social Science Research, a program in data journalism, and a new college-level Master's degree in Program Evaluation and Data Analytics. The university is ranked as #1 in the nation for innovation, according to US News and World Report.

SPA attracts a growing and diverse array of students motivated by the promise of public service and drawn to the unique opportunity of an interdisciplinary public affairs education. We offer Bachelor degrees in Public Service and Public Policy and Urban and Metropolitan Studies, the Master of Public Administration, the Master of Public Policy, and the Ph.D. in Public Administration and Policy. Faculty members have been successful in attracting external funding from national scientific agencies, federal departments, foundations, and the private sector. SPA is also a research partner with the Alliance for Innovation, housed at the School. For more information about the School of Public Affairs and the Watts College of Public Service and Community Solutions, please visit <https://spa.asu.edu> and <https://publicservice.asu.edu>. Candidates from historically underrepresented groups in the academy are especially encouraged to apply.

Required qualifications:

- A Ph.D. in public policy, public administration, economics, political science, data science, mathematics, statistics, computer science, engineering or related fields is expected at the time of appointment.

Desired qualifications:

- Strong primary research and teaching interests in data analytics and their applications in public policy and management, and civic and urban affairs.
- Demonstrated commitment to teaching in-person and online courses and mentoring students in a diverse environment.
- Demonstrated excellence or strong potential in research that will contribute to and enhance the School's national and international reputation.
- Evidence of the ability to pursue external funding to support research.

Job Responsibilities:

- Teach undergraduate, graduate, and doctoral courses in person and online
- Conduct research, pursue external funding
- Service contributions to the school, college, university and profession

Application procedure:

To apply, please visit <https://publicservice.asu.edu/content/jobs> and upload your application materials which include the following:

- Cover letter describing your research and teaching interests
- Curriculum vitae
- One writing sample (single author or leading author preferred)
- Information for three professional references (name, title, organization, email address, phone number)
- Applicants on the short list will be asked to submit (3) letters of recommendation

The application deadline is November 18, 2018 at 5:00p.m. Arizona time; and if not filled, then every other Friday until the search is closed.

Please direct any questions about the position to Dr. Karen Mossberger, the Search Committee Chair, at Karen.Mossberger@asu.edu.

Arizona State University is a VEVRAA Federal Contractor and an Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action Employer. All qualified applicants will be considered without regard to race, color, sex, religion, national origin, age, disability, veteran status, sexual orientation, gender identity, or any other basis protected by law. For a complete statement on ASU's non-discrimination policies, please refer to: <http://www.asu.edu/aad/manuals/acd/acd401.html> and <https://www.asu.edu/titleIX/>

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 10/8/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4976

East Tennessee State University

Rank: Assistant Professor

Subfield(s): Public Law, Public Administration, American Government and Politics

The Department of Political Science, International Affairs and Public Administration at East Tennessee State University invites applications for the position of Assistant Professor beginning August 15, 2019. The position carries a 3/3 teaching load, shared between the undergraduate Political Science program and the graduate Public Administration program. The Department expects the successful applicant to maintain an active research program and to participate in service to the department, university, profession, and community.

Applicants must have a Ph.D in Political Science with either a subfield in Public Administration or an MPA degree.

Strong background in quantitative research methods is preferred.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: 11/15/2018

Date Posted: 10/5/2018

Salary: $50,000 - $59,999

eJobs ID: 4962

East Tennessee State University

Rank: Associate Professor and Director of Master of Public Administration Program (MPA)

The Department of Political Science, International Affairs and Public Administration at East Tennessee State University invites applications for the position of Associate Professor and Director of the MPA Program beginning August 15, 2019. The position carries a 2/2 teaching load, shared between the MPA program and the undergraduate Political Science program. The Department expects the successful applicant to guide the MPA program to accreditation and expand its enrollment and to maintain a reasonable level of research activity.

NASPAA accreditation standards and process; online teaching and course development; program evaluation.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: 12/15/2018

Date Posted: 10/5/2018

Salary: $70,000 - $79,999

eJobs ID: 4963

Troy University

Rank: Assistant/Associate Professor

Subfield(s): Public Administration, Comparative Politics, International Relations

The Department of Political Science invites applicants for an open rank tenure track position in political science with a concentration in comparative public administration beginning on August 1, 2019. This is a ten-month tenure-track position at our Troy, Alabama location. The minimum qualifications are a Ph.D. in Public Administration/

International Relations/Comparative Politics/Political Science, or related field by August 1, 2019 with a research specialization in comparative public administration. The teaching will be in our master's degree (MPA) in public administration as well as undergraduate political science courses, which will be delivered in person as well as online. The job requires that the hire may be asked to teach courses at another Troy location depending on departmental needs. Preferred candidates will have a secondary specialization (such as research methods, or a regional specialization) that can complement our existing faculty strengths. The candidate needs to demonstrate excellence in research and teaching. For best consideration, please submit application documents by October 31, 2019. The position will remain open until filled.

The Department of Political Science at Troy University currently employs twenty-five faculty members who work in three programs: undergraduate political science, graduate international relations, and graduate public administration.

Applicants need to electronically submit a cover letter, CV, writing sample, teaching philosophy, research statement, and arrange to have three reference letters uploaded. Please direct all questions to Dr Terry Anderson at tanderson@troy.edu.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 10/5/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4971

University of South Alabama

Rank: Assistant Professor of Public Administration

Subfield(s): Public Administration, Public Policy, American Government and Politics

The Department of Political Science and Criminal Justice at the University of South Alabama invites applications for a full-time (9 month), tenure-track Assistant Professor position in Public Administration to begin August 15, 2019. An earned Ph.D. in Political Science, Public Administration, or Public Policy is required at the time of appointment. ABDs currently near the completion of the degree are welcome to apply.

The Department of Political Science and Criminal Justice is recognized for its research active faculty, award-winning teaching, and for its collegiality. The Department offers the Master of Public Administration degree at the graduate level, and a Bachelor of Arts in Political Science and a Bachelor of Arts in Criminal Justice. Our growing and dynamic graduate program currently offers two concentrations: Health Administration and Geographic Information Technology, with anticipated development of new concentrations in the future. More information regarding the MPA program can be found here: <https://www.southalabama.edu/colleges/artsandsci/pscj/mpa.html>

Applicants must have teaching and research interests in the area of Public Administration or Political Science and must show a history or willingness to publish in public administration or public policy outlets. The successful candidate will be expected to teach courses principally in the MPA program, as well as offer undergraduate courses. In addition to research and teaching, the successful candidate will be expected to advise a diverse student body, including many students of color and first-generation students, and to contribute appropriate service. Our Department is committed to increasing the diversity of its faculty and highly encourages female, minority, and candidates from other historically underrepresented groups to apply.

Prospective candidates may be asked to participate first in a digital interview. Candidates selected for a digital interview will need to arrange for the submission of their official transcripts from all institutions of higher learning from which a degree was earned as well as to arrange for the submission of three signed professional letters of reference. Letters of reference must include addresses, phone numbers, and e-mail addresses of the letter writers. Candidates selected for an on-campus interview will also need to complete a biographical data form: <https://www.southalabama.edu/departments/eforms/academicaffairs/biographicaldataform.pdf>

Consideration of applications will begin Thursday, November 1, 2018, and will continue until the position is filled.

To apply, please send a letter of application; curriculum vitae; unofficial transcripts; and if ABD or recent PhD, a writing sample to Dr. Thomas Shaw, Chair of Search Committee and MPA Director; at either Department of Political Science and Criminal Justice; The University of South Alabama; 5991 USA Dr N; HUMB 226; Mobile, AL 36688-0002 or tshaw@southalabama.edu. Informal inquiries regarding the position should be sent to the Search Chair at tshaw@southalabama.edu.

The University of South Alabama is an EO/AA employer and does not discriminate on the basis of race, color, national origin, sex (including pregnancy, sexual orientation, gender identity and gender expression), religion, age, genetic information, disability, or protected veteran status and does not discriminate on the basis of race, color, national origin, sex (including pregnancy, sexual orientation, gender identity and gender expression), religion, age, genetic information, disability, or protected veteran status.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: 11/1/2018

Date Posted: 10/5/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4965

East Carolina University

Rank: Assistant Professor

The Department of Political Science is one of sixteen departments in the Thomas Harriot College of Arts and Sciences at East Carolina University, Greenville, NC. The Department is composed of 15 full-time faculty. It offers BS and BA degrees in political science and minors in public administration, comparative politics/international relations, leadership studies, and security studies at the undergraduate level. It is also home to the multidisciplinary studies majors in security studies and international studies. At the graduate level, it offers a NASPAA-accredited Master of Public Administration degree, a Master of Science in Security Studies and certificates in public management and security studies. It emphasizes excellent teaching, impactful research, and a tradition of service to the community, the university, and the discipline. More information about the department can be found at its home page: <http://www.ecu.edu/polsci>.

ECU's planned School of Rural Public Health (scheduled to open in August of 2020- <http://www.ecu.edu/publichealth/>) and Rural Prosperity Initiative (<https://rede.ecu.edu/rural-prosperity/>) may offer excellent opportunities for collaboration to the successful candidate.

ECU is located in Greenville, North Carolina, a rapidly growing city of approximately 90,000. Greenville is located about 80 miles east of Raleigh and is within a short drive to the Outer Banks and other Atlantic Ocean beaches. In 2012, Greenville was ranked in the top ten of Forbes Magazine's "Best Small Places for Business and Careers." Greenville is known as the health, entertainment and educational hub of eastern North Carolina.

The Department of Political Science invites applications for a tenure-track position at the rank of Assistant Professor to begin August 12, 2019. The successful candidate will become one of the core faculty for the NASPAA-accredited Master of Public Administration program and will be expected to teach at both the graduate and undergraduate levels in the classroom and online.

A Ph.D. in Political Science, Public Administration, or a related field such as Public Policy or Health Policy is required. Qualifying degrees must be received from appropriately accredited institutions. Teaching experience is required. Candidates must demonstrate potential for external funding and scholarly research productivity, excellent teaching, and service to the university, community, and profession. Salary is competitive, with the possibility of summer teaching.

Given the department's current needs, preference will be given to candidates whose teaching and research expertise are in the specific field of rural health policy. Candidates should be willing and able to teach public administration and/or public policy analysis courses to MPA and undergraduate students. Teaching experience at the undergraduate or graduate level—both in the classroom and online—is preferred. Applicants should also have demonstrated background in the scholarship and practice of engagement.

To apply, complete a candidate profile and submit a letter of interest, curriculum vita, a statement of research interests, and a teaching experience/philosophy statement online at:

<http://ecu.peopleadmin.com/hr/postings/22387>

2-3 original letters of reference are required for employment. Please be aware that if selected as a candidate of choice, an automatic e-mail will be sent to the individuals entered by the applicant in the References section the PeopleAdmin applicant tracking system. Letters of reference submitted via the PeopleAdmin applicant tracking system will be verified and considered towards meeting this requirement. For letters of reference not submitted via the PeopleAdmin applicant tracking system, please have the original signed letters mailed to: Dr. Carmine Scavo, MPA Director, Department of Political Science, Mail Stop 564, East Carolina University, Greenville, NC 27858-4353. Official transcripts are required upon employment. Review of applications will begin on November 05, 2018 and continue until the position is filled.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 10/4/2018

Salary: Negotiable

eJobs ID: 4955

Institute for Advanced Study in Toulouse

Rank: Research Fellowship multidisciplinary, social sciences

Subfield(s): Political Theory, Public Administration, Public Policy

We welcome applications from researchers within a large range of disciplines in the social, behavioral and life sciences: anthropology, evolutionary biology, economics, genetics, history, law, mathematics, neuroscience, philosophy, political science, psychology and sociology;

however, motivated applications from outside these disciplines will be given full consideration. Successful applicants will have to demonstrate an interest in, and a commitment to, at least one of the other disciplines of IAST.

We seek candidates with a strong research background in their own discipline, but willing and able to develop research projects drawing on IAST's substantial interdisciplinary resources, including particularly the proximity of strong groups in economics (Toulouse School of Economics, TSE).

We are open to a variety of research methods, including theory, field and laboratory experiments, observational field work, and the analysis of large secondary data sets.

All research interests relevant to the broad study of human behavior are welcome, but interests that complement and / or enhance those already developed at IAST will be given special consideration. These include, to cite only a few:

In history: quantitative economic history (cliometrics), empirical political economy in history, qualitative economic or social history.

In evolutionary biology: theoretical models of evolution (applied to family structure, strategic interactions, plasticity, cognition, learning, cultural evolution); related empirical work.

In anthropology: human biology, life history theory, human development and plasticity, health and infectious disease, aging, demography, host-parasite co-evolution, diet and nutrition, global health, evolutionary medicine and genetics.

In political science: public opinion and public policies, comparative studies of democratic institutions, democracy and development, experimental political science, studies of networks and their impact on individual and collective action.

In law: law and economics, corporate governance, criminology.

In psychology: cognition, the emotions, social trust, gender, group decision-making.

In sociology: network formation, the impact of networks on social outcomes, sociology of religion.

Apply here: <https://www.iast.fr/research-fellowships>

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: 11/30/2018

Date Posted: 10/4/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4949

University of Texas, San Antonio

Rank: Department Chair (COPP-Department of Public Administration)

Subfield(s): Public Administration, Public Policy, American Government and Politics

Department Chair

Department of Public Administration

The University of Texas at San Antonio

The Department of Public Administration at the University of Texas at San Antonio (UTSA) invites applications for a Department Chair

position beginning in Fall 2019. The Department is comprised of nine tenured/tenure-track faculty, two full-time lecturers, and several adjunct instructors. The Department serves over 180 graduate and 120 undergraduate students enrolled in the Master's (NASPAA accredited) and Bachelor's degrees in Public Administration. The Department also offers a graduate certificate in Nonprofit Management.

UTSA is a Hispanic-Serving Institution (HSI) with a 53% Latino student population, and one of the fastest growing public universities in Texas. UTSA is gaining momentum in its quest to become the state's next premier Tier 1 university. As a dynamic research urban-serving university, it has a diverse and growing student population of more than 30,000 students with more than 67% coming from groups underrepresented in higher education. UTSA serves the San Antonio metropolitan area, the seventh largest U.S. city, and the broader region of South Texas through programs offered on three campuses. The Department of Public Administration is based on the expanding Downtown Campus. San Antonio has a thriving urban culture, attractive neighborhoods and extensive recreational opportunities. It is one of the fastest growing regional economies - and the fastest growing city - in the US, with numerous industries, job opportunities, and excellent school districts. The low cost of living and the mild winters further make it a highly desirable place to work and live in.

Responsibilities: The Chair reports to the Dean of the College of Public Policy and is responsible for providing vision, leadership, and inclusive excellence for the research, teaching, and service activities of the Department. The Chair supports diversity and inclusion with the faculty in their duties, and advocates for the Department before the College and the University. He or she promotes the program internally and externally, oversees its continued growth (including the planned addition of a Bachelor's in Public Policy degree program), and continuously pursues student success at both the graduate and the undergraduate levels. In addition to his or her administrative responsibilities, the Chair continues to pursue research projects and collaborations locally and nationally. The position is a 10.5-month appointment with a competitive salary, excellent benefits, and reduced teaching responsibilities.

Required qualifications: A Ph.D. in Public Administration, Public Policy, Public Affairs, Political Science, or related discipline. Candidates must demonstrate excellence in leadership, service, research, and teaching, with an established research agenda and a strong publication record.

Preferred qualifications: Specialization in areas such as public policy, urban politics and policy, policy analysis, public budgeting.

To apply: Submit a letter of application, Curriculum Vitae, and the names, addresses, and telephone numbers of five references at <https://jobs.utsa.edu/>. Review of applications will begin on October 8, 2018 and will continue until the position is filled.

All questions regarding the position should be directed to:
Amy Chanmugam, Ph.D.
Chair, Faculty Recruitment Committee
Chair, Department of Social Work, University of Texas at San Antonio
amy.chanmugam@utsa.edu
210-458-3003

For questions concerning the submission of materials, please contact:
Blane Walter
Administrative Analyst

College of Public Policy, office of the Dean,
University of Texas at San Antonio
blane.walter@utsa.edu
210-458-2013

CC: Amy Chanmugam, Ph.D.
Chair, Faculty Recruitment Committee
Chair, Department of Social Work, University of Texas at San Antonio
amy.chanmugam@utsa.edu
210-458-3003

Start Date:
Date Posted: 10/3/2018
Salary: Negotiable
eJobs ID: 4948

Hertie School of Governance

Rank: Professor of International Political Economy

Subfield(s): Comparative Politics, Public Policy, Public Administration

The Hertie School of Governance, Berlin
A European Professional School for Public Policy is recruiting a

Professor of International Political Economy

Assistant Professor or Professor

The Hertie School is recruiting an Assistant Professor or Professor of International Political Economy. We are looking for a candidate with a research agenda in the politics and/or governance of international finance, foreign direct investment, and/or trade. This candidate will play an important role in our "Finance and Trade" track of our Masters of International Affairs (MIA).

Applicants for this position must have a doctoral degree relevant for the position, or expect to have this degree by the start of employment. We are interested in early career scholars in particular, although more advanced candidates will be considered. An early career candidate will be appointed as tenure-track Assistant Professor with a six-year clock (two three-year contracts). A more advanced candidate would initially be on a fixed contract of negotiable length prior to a tenure review. In highly exceptional circumstances, a particularly outstanding candidate may be appointed with tenure.

The expected start date is 1 September 2019.

The Hertie School seeks faculty with demonstrated capacity for research, teaching, and outreach at the highest levels in their discipline. We recruit faculty who will create a climate that embraces excellence and diversity with a commitment to teaching and innovative research of interest to the international scholarly community and policy-makers.

Candidates are expected to work well in an interdisciplinary, international environment with English as the language of instruction and operation. The successful candidate will teach courses in the School's Master, Executive, and PhD programmes.

As a private university, the Hertie School offers an internationally competitive salary as well as a paid sabbatical after every five semesters. We provide excellent working conditions with outstanding financial and administrative support for research. The Hertie School is fully embedded in Germany's vibrant research landscape and has close ties to the top institutions of the European and international teaching and research community as well as to the policy world.

The Hertie School is a diverse, international and lively community located in the heart of Berlin. It takes a family friendly workplace seriously.

The deadline for the submission of applications is 31 October. The Hertie School will review applications that include a letter of motivation, a current curriculum vitae (publication list, degrees earned, if applicable: positions held, teaching experience, research projects, awards received), two writing samples and, if applicable, teaching evaluations. Early career candidates should include three letters of recommendation from professors familiar with their work.

To submit your application, please upload the requested documents <https://hertie-school.dvinci-easy.com/en/p/en/jobs/57/form>.

For information about the Hertie School visit www.hertie-school.org.

For questions about the position, please contact Dean of Research and Faculty Mark Hallerberg (hallerberg@hertie-school.org).

Strict confidentiality in the application process is assured. The Hertie School is an equal opportunity employer.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: 10/31/2018

Date Posted: 10/1/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4925

NC State University College of Humanities and Social Sciences

Rank: Full Professor/ Executive Director of the School of Public and International Affairs

North Carolina State University invites applications and nominations for the position of Executive Director of the School of Public and International Affairs (SPIA). SPIA is a multi-disciplinary cadre of faculty and staff committed to advancing cutting edge scholarship and training the next generation of leaders who will define their respective fields of research and practice. SPIA serves the people of North Carolina, the nation, and the world through its educational, research, and engagement activities in public management, politics, governance, public and international affairs, and public policy. SPIA's programs and activities span the university, building linkages with diverse external communities and stakeholders.

The Executive Director provides innovative and strategic leadership, generates external resources, and administers teaching, research, and extension/engagement activities in the School. The director plays a key role in faculty and staff recruitment and development, program planning and evaluation, and budgetary direction. SPIA's departments and programs include the BA/BS and Master of International Studies in the Department of Political Science; Masters of Public Administration and PhD programs in the Department of Public Administration; the educational and training outreach to law enforcement executives in the Public Safety Leadership Initiative; and the online B.A in Leadership in the Public Sector program.

The Executive Director will be responsible for working with the SPIA Faculty, Board, and College leadership to chart and execute a vision for the advancement of the School and its component programs. Other responsibilities include: leading development and external relations for the School; supervising program and department directors and staff; managing fiscal, space, and other resources; facilitating faculty reappointment, promotion, tenure, and post-tenure review processes; and overseeing academic affairs, research, and recruitment/retention of faculty.

Qualifications: Candidates must be eligible for appointment in at least one of the departments at the rank of Professor. A PhD in Public Administration, Political Science, Public Policy or related field is required. Qualified applicants will have leadership experience in multi-disciplinary settings at research-intensive universities including experience with strategic planning, facilitating faculty research, managing budgets and human resources, and resource development and allocation. Strong preference will be given to individuals with demonstrated success in: faculty and program development; collaboration across disciplinary and administrative boundaries; development of a collegial, diverse and inclusive work setting; distance education or other nontraditional educational programs; staff professional development; facilitating faculty extension and engagement; and/or innovations in promoting student success.

School/University: The School of Public and International Affairs <http://spia.chass.ncsu.edu/> has 39 full-time faculty and offers a baccalaureate degree in political science, a Master in International Studies (MIS), a Master of Public Administration (MPA), and a Ph.D. in Public Administration. SPIA also houses graduate certificates in public policy and nonprofit management, a rapidly growing B.A. online degree completion program, and a longstanding leadership program for law enforcement executives. The School is located administratively in the College of Humanities and Social Sciences. NC State is a land-grant institution enrolling over 34,000 students. It is located in Raleigh, the thriving capital city and one of the fastest growing metropolitan areas in the nation, and part of North Carolina's renowned Research Triangle.

See http://www.ncsu.edu/human_resources/job_applicants/reasons/community/

For more information and to apply, please go to <http://jobs.ncsu.edu/postings/106002> or contact Ken Zagacki at kszagack@ncsu.edu.

College of Humanities and Social Sciences

Campus Box 8102

School of Public and International Affairs

211 Caldwell Hall

Raleigh, NC 27695-8102

spia.ncsu.edu

P: 919.515.2481

F: 919.515.7333

Start Date:

Application Deadline: 11/16/2018

Date Posted: 9/28/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4924

Arizona State University

Rank: Assistant Professor

Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Administration, Public Administration

Specializations: American Politics, Congress, Bureaucracy & Organizational Behavior

Assistant Professor (JOB#12544)

School of Politics and Global Studies
Arizona State University

The School of Politics and Global Studies at Arizona State University (Tempe) invites applications for a full-time, tenure-track assistant professor beginning August 2019. We are interested in candidates whose research and teaching focus is on American institutions, broadly defined. Candidates with expertise in the U.S. Congress, the presidency, interest groups, institutional interactions, representation or opinion-policy linkages are encouraged to apply.

We are open with respect to theoretical orientation, substantive focus, and methodological approaches. Position duties include teaching courses in the American politics curriculum at both the undergraduate and graduate levels, including an upper-division undergraduate course; advising and mentoring graduate and undergraduate students; developing an active research agenda; and providing service to the department, college, and university.

Minimum Qualifications: candidates must hold a Ph.D. in Political Science or related discipline by the time of appointment; demonstrated excellence in research commensurate with appointment at the level of assistant professor; and evidence of promise in and commitment to undergraduate and graduate teaching.

Desired qualifications: demonstrated success meeting the needs of diverse student populations and/or reaching out to diverse communities; the ability to teach advanced statistical methods, particularly at the graduate level; a clear record of, or clear potential for, publishing in top journals and/or top university presses, demonstrated potential to establish a strong, externally-funded research program.

The application deadline is November 2, 2018; if not filled, then every two weeks thereafter until the search is closed. A complete application must include the following: a letter of application stating qualifications, experience, research plans, and teaching interests; a complete curriculum vita; a writing sample, and contact information for three references. Candidates are expected to have a Ph.D. degree completed by August 1, 2019.

All application materials must be received by the deadline and sent to <https://academicjobsonline.org/ajo/jobs/12022>. We will not accept any mailed applicant material, including reference letters; this is an online, paperless search. A background check is required for employment. Questions about the position or search should be directed to the search committee chair at kahn@asu.edu.

The School of Politics and Global Studies (SPGS) values interdisciplinary scholarship, and the successful candidates will have the opportunity to affiliate and collaborate with other schools and centers at Arizona State University. Candidates who can make use of our experimental laboratories are particularly encouraged to apply.

Arizona State University is a VEVRAA Federal Contractor and an Equal Opportunity/ Affirmative Action Employer. All qualified applicants will be considered without regard to race, color, sex, religion, national origin, disability, protected veteran status, or any other basis protected by law. ASU's full non-discrimination statement (ACD 401) is located on the ASU website at <https://www.asu.edu/aad/manuals/acd/acd401.html> and <https://www.asu.edu/titleIX>.

Start Date: Fall 2019
Application Deadline: 11/2/2018
Date Posted: 9/18/2018

Salary: Competitive
eJobs ID: 4855

Georgia State University

Rank: Associate/Full Professor, Public Management and Policy

Associate/Full Professor, Public Management and Policy
Andrew Young School of Policy Studies, Georgia State University

The Department of Public Management and Policy seeks a senior scholar to join the department at the rank of Associate or Full Professor, beginning Fall 2019. Applicants with research interests in all areas of public management and policy are encouraged to apply. Successful candidates will have a record of academic publications and sponsored research appropriate for tenure and appointment at their rank at Georgia State University, which holds the Carnegie classification Doctoral Universities: Highest Research Activity. The ability to teach research methods and quantitative analysis at the doctoral and master's levels is also desirable.

The Department of Public Management and Policy focuses on four areas of excellence: nonprofit management and policy; program evaluation and policy analysis; management and finance of public and nonprofit organizations; and economic development and urban policy. The Andrew Young School ranks 18th overall among graduate programs in public affairs in the US News rankings, as well as 3rd in urban policy, 5th in nonprofit management, 8th in public budgeting and finance, 8th in local government management, 22nd in public management and leadership, and 29th in public policy analysis. The department offers a NASPAA-accredited MPA, as well as undergraduate, master's, and doctoral degrees in public policy. Located in downtown Atlanta, Georgia State University is one of the country's top urban public research universities and has one of the most diverse student bodies. US News calls GSU the 2nd most innovative university in the U.S. and ranks it 2nd in undergraduate teaching.

Candidates should email a letter of interest, curriculum vitae, and the names of three references to pmapfacultysearch@gsu.edu. The position requires a doctorate in an appropriate field of study from an accredited university. Candidate must be eligible to work in the USA. At the time of offer, a background check will be required. Consideration of applications will begin on October 15, 2018, and will continue until the position is filled. Information about the Andrew Young School is available at www.aysps.gsu.edu. Georgia State University is an Equal Opportunity Employer and does not discriminate against applicants due to race, ethnicity, gender, veteran status, or on the basis of disability or any other federal, state, or local protected class. The position is subject to budgetary approval.

Start Date: Fall 2019
Application Deadline: Open until Filled
Date Posted: 9/17/2018
Salary: Competitive
eJobs ID: 4845

Texas A&M University

Rank: Assistant or Associate Professor in Public Policy Analysis/
Assistant or Associate Professor in Public Management
Specializations: Environmental Policy, Energy Policy, Trade

Texas A&M University, Bush School of Government and Public Service,
Department of Public Service and Administration

Assistant or Associate Professor of Public Policy Analysis

The Department of Public Service and Administration in the Bush School of Government and Public Service at Texas A&M University invites applications and nominations for a tenure-track assistant or tenured associate professor to teach in the Public Policy Analysis track of its Master of Public Service and Administration Program. Energy or environmental economists with a strong record of, or high potential for, research and teaching in public policy issues are preferred, although candidates from all fields of public policy and applied economics will be considered. Candidates will be expected to build on existing strengths and bolster the capacity of the School to participate in campus-wide multidisciplinary research initiatives and new or existing programs of the Institute for Science, Technology, and Public Policy and the Mosbacher Institute for Trade, Economics, and Public Policy. Successful applicants must have a Ph.D. by the beginning of employment in September 2019 and demonstrate evidence of a commitment both to high quality empirical research and to teaching in a professional school of government and public service.

The Department of Public Service and Administration is one of two departments in the Bush School of Government and Public Service. Additional information about the Bush School and department is available at <http://bush.tamu.edu/psaa>.

As a major land-grant university, Texas A&M has both an extraordinary opportunity and a special responsibility to create and maintain a campus climate that affirms diversity of thought, background, ethnicity, and perspective. Texas A&M University is an equal opportunity, affirmative action employer strongly committed to achieving excellence through cultural diversity. The University actively encourages applications from women, minorities, and persons with disabilities.

Applications should include a curriculum vitae, letter of interest, at least one writing sample, and complete contact information for 3 references. Letters of reference, while not required at this stage, may also be sent. Please send applications to the PPA Search Committee, c/o Ms. Stephanie Bustos, at bushschoolpsaa-facultysearch@tamu.edu. Review of applications will begin on October 1, 2018, and will continue until the position is filled.

Assistant or Associate Professor of Public Management

The Department of Public Service and Administration in the Bush School of Government and Public Service at Texas A&M University invites applications and nominations for a tenure-track assistant professor or tenured associate professor in public management who will contribute to the department in the areas of teaching, research and service. Successful applicants must have a Ph.D. by the beginning of employment in September 2019 and demonstrate evidence of a commitment both to high quality empirical research and to teaching in a professional school of government and public service.

The Department of Public Service and Administration is one of two departments in the Bush School of Government and Public Service and currently enrolls 174 full-time in-residence students, with 22 full-time and 18 tenured or tenure-track faculty members. It offers three tracks of curriculum, including public management, public policy analysis, and nonprofit management. The School is ranked in the top 12 percent of graduate public affairs schools in the nation (U.S. News & World Report) and 1st in the Nation for "Best Value in MPA Programs" (Value College). The curriculum within the department is a blend of both the theoretical and the practical—providing students with the knowledge, skills, and abilities needed for successful careers in public and nonprofit service. Students choose from a number of concentrations to focus their studies including state and local government; health policy; education policy; security policy; energy, environment, and technology; international nongovernmental organizations; analytical methods; and individually designed concentrations offering flexibility to students with specific interests. Additional information about the Bush School and department is available at <http://bush.tamu.edu/psaa>.

As a major land-grant university, Texas A&M has both an extraordinary opportunity and a special responsibility to create and maintain a campus climate that affirms diversity of thought, background, ethnicity, and perspective. Texas A&M University is an equal opportunity, affirmative action employer strongly committed to achieving excellence through cultural diversity. The University actively encourages applications from women, minorities and persons with disabilities.

Applications should include a curriculum vitae, letter of interest, at least one writing sample, and complete contact information for 3 references. Letters of reference, while not required at this stage, may also be sent. Please send applications to the PPM Search Committee, c/o Ms. Stephanie Bustos, at bushschoolpsaa-facultysearch@tamu.edu. Review of applications will begin on October 1, 2018, and will continue until the position is filled.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 9/14/2018

Salary: Any

eJobs ID: 4840

Syracuse University

Rank: Assistant or Associate Professor, Economics of Aging

Specializations: Health Care, Social Welfare, Economic Policy

The Department of Public Administration and International Affairs (PAIA) seeks to hire a tenured or tenure track professor in the field of economics of aging, at the advanced Assistant or Associate Professor level, beginning in fall 2019.

We are interested in attracting an established scholar with credentials in the economics of aging. A broad range of research topics or specialities is relevant, including retirement and economic well-being; wealth and bequests; public health, health policy, and health service use; disability and its consequences; intergenerational transfers; public policy analysis and evaluation; and international or comparative studies. The successful candidate will be expected to teach courses in the department's Masters and PhD programs. This individual will also be expected to become a faculty associate in the University's Aging Studies Institute, joining its interdisciplinary team of researchers. Therefore, a track record of collaborative research output is particularly desirable; a track record of success in obtaining research support, particularly from the National Institute on Aging or other NIH institutes, is especially desirable.

The PAIA department is located within the Maxwell School of Citizenship and Public Affairs. The school is committed to citizenship education at the undergraduate level and to graduate education in public affairs and the social sciences. The department seeks candidates who complement the broader Maxwell mission, have interdisciplinary interests and are interested in training future leaders.

Applicants should have a Ph.D. in economics or a related field. Rank and salary will be commensurate with degree field, experience, and professional accomplishments.

To be considered, candidates must complete an online faculty application (available at <http://www.sujobopps.com/postings/074067>) and attach: a letter of interest, a CV, a sample of professional writing, a statement of teaching philosophy, names and complete contact information for 3 references. Files may be no larger than 5MB, but you may submit an external link to a larger file if needed. Applications will be reviewed as they arrive with full consideration given to those received by October 15. However, applications will be considered until the position is filled.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 9/10/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4798

University of Wisconsin, Madison

Rank: ASSISTANT OR ASSOCIATE PROFESSOR OF ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT

The selected candidates will conduct productive research and be committed to teaching in core public management topics.

The selected scholar will perform research and teaching in the areas of economic development and state and local public finance. This scholar would be expected to teach courses in public budgeting and economic development. For this position, the strongest candidate would be a scholar who is capable and interested in engaging in public dialogues, including interactions with the media, related to economic development and state and local public finance, as well as in advising state and local government officials on these topics. University and professional service as appropriate are required.

The La Follette School is a highly ranked school of public affairs, and one of many highly ranked social science units at the University of Wisconsin-Madison. The University is consistently ranked among the top universities in terms of success in federally funded research grants and is highly supportive of an interdisciplinary approach to scholarship.

Successful candidates will be expected to teach at the undergraduate and masters/graduate level, lead a scholarly research program, perform university and professional service, interact with the media and public officials, and complete public outreach.

ADDITIONAL INFORMATION:

UW-Madison is seeking a diverse set of faculty candidates who will deepen our campus' research strength, as well as faculty candidates who will approach their work in a manner that advances our commitment to research excellence.

A criminal background check will be conducted prior to hiring.

Candidates for the associate professor rank must meet criteria for appointment at rank per UW College of Letters and Sciences guidelines for appointment and promotion on the tenure track.

Finalists cannot be guaranteed confidentiality.

TO APPLY:

<http://jobs.hr.wisc.edu/cw/en-us/job/499043/assistant-or-associate-professor-of-economic-development>

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: 10/15/2018

Date Posted: 9/6/2018

Salary: Negotiable

eJobs ID: 4780

University of Wisconsin, Madison

Rank: ASSOCIATE OR ASSISTANT PROFESSOR OF PUBLIC MANAGEMENT

The selected candidates will conduct productive research and be committed to teaching in core public management topics.

The selected scholar will teach core courses in public management, as well as upper level electives in specialty topics in public management. The selected individuals will offer undergraduate and graduate level courses in areas such as: performance management, public sector leadership, non-profit management, public policy process, and/or evidence-based policymaking. We encourage applicants from both domestic and international public management or public administration traditions. The research and teaching may include domestic and/or international public management or public administration.

The La Follette School is a highly ranked school of public affairs, and one of many highly ranked social science units at the University of Wisconsin-Madison. The University is consistently ranked among the top universities in terms of success in federally funded research grants and is highly supportive of an interdisciplinary approach to scholarship.

Successful candidates will be expected to teach at the undergraduate and masters/graduate level, lead a scholarly research program, perform university and professional service, interact with the media and public officials, and complete public outreach.

ADDITIONAL INFORMATION:

UW-Madison is seeking a diverse set of faculty candidates who will deepen our campus' research strength, as well as faculty candidates who will approach their work in a manner that advances our commitment to research excellence.

A criminal background check will be conducted prior to hiring.

This recruitment may result in up to 2 hires.

Finalists cannot be guaranteed confidentiality.

TO APPLY:

<http://jobs.hr.wisc.edu/cw/en-us/job/498963/associate-or-assistant-professor-of-public-management>

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: 10/15/2018

Date Posted: 9/6/2018

Salary: Negotiable

eJobs ID: 4779

University of Wisconsin, Madison

Rank: PROFESSOR, PUBLIC POLICY AND REPRODUCTIVE HEALTH - CLUSTER HIRE

The successful candidate for this position will be expected to develop and maintain an energetic, cutting-edge, highly visible research program; advise graduate and post-graduate research; develop and maintain extramural funding for their research program; and teach graduate and undergraduate courses in the management and implementation of reproductive health and social policy, or develop new courses in their area of expertise, as appropriate. Reproductive health includes, but is not limited to public policies surrounding fertility, birth control, in-utero health, post-partum health and early childhood development, as they affect health disparities, whether due to geography, socio-economic status, race, ethnicity, or program delivery and health equity.

The Reproductive Equity Cluster:

This position is part of the Reproductive Equity Cluster, which was developed in order to build cross-disciplinary research expertise necessary to examine the drivers and consequences of inequities in reproductive health and to identify potential solutions. Areas of cluster research could include health care policy, social policy, structural, and individual factors related to family planning, fertility/infertility, maternal and infant mortality, and other aspects of maternal and child health as they relate to policy and practice. It is expected that the successful candidate will focus on health disparities and health equity and the ways in which policy and practice effect same.

A major purpose of the cluster is to build on existing strengths on campus. Ultimately, it is a goal that an expansion of this work at UW-Madison will translate into greater health equity and improved health and well-being of residents of Wisconsin and beyond. The interdisciplinary, comprehensive focus of the cluster will be used to expand research activity in this area and add greater diversity to the voices engaged in these discussions, particularly with respect to health disparities and inequities, and program and policy effects on disparities.

Candidates should have an interest in collaborating with the cluster and with colleagues in schools, centers, and training programs across campus such as the School of Medicine and Public Health, Population Health Sciences, the LaFollette School of Public Affairs, the School of Social Work, the School of Human Ecology, the Institute for Research on Poverty and the Center for Demography and Ecology.

Overall, three candidates will be recruited in this Cluster: 1) Professor, Public Policy and Reproductive Health [PVL # 94865] (this particular search), 2) Professor, Health Services Research and Reproductive Health [PVL# 94599] , and 3) Professor, Social Causes & Consequences of Reproductive Health [PVL # 94972]. These positions are part of the UW's Cluster Hiring Initiative (<https://facstaff.provost.wisc.edu/cluster-hiring-initiative/>), designed to foster innovative, outstanding research programs that will stimulate productive interactions among faculty and students interested in research across the campus and to expand interdisciplinary research.

ADDITIONAL INFORMATION:

Faculty hired under this initiative will most likely have a primary faculty appointment in the LaFollette School of Public Affairs, with potential joint or secondary appointments in relevant departments and schools such as Law, Human Ecology, or Population Health Sciences in the School of Medicine and Public Health.

UW-Madison is seeking a diverse set of faculty candidates who will deepen our campus' interdisciplinary research strength in key areas of current and future research promise, as well as faculty candidates who will approach their work in a manner that advances our commitment to research excellence.

A criminal background check will be conducted prior to hiring.

Candidates for the tenured professor rank must meet criteria for appointment at rank per UW College of Letters and Sciences guidelines for appointment and promotion on the tenure track.

The successful applicant will be responsible for ensuring eligibility for employment in the United States on or before the effective date of the appointment.

TO APPLY:

<http://jobs.hr.wisc.edu/cw/en-us/job/498771/professor-public-policy-and-reproductive-health-cluster-hire>

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: 10/1/2018

Date Posted: 9/6/2018

Salary: Negotiable

eJobs ID: 4781

University of Delaware

Rank: Assistant/Associate Professor Positions in Disaster Science Subfield(s): Public Policy, Methodology, Public Administration

The University of Delaware (UD) (<http://www.udel.edu/>) invites applications from talented scholars pursuing interesting questions related to disasters, hazards, and crisis. We are looking to fill multiple tenure-track/tenured positions in Disaster Science at the Assistant or Associate Professor level beginning September 1, 2019. This search is the first stage of an exciting university-wide, interdisciplinary cluster recruitment effort to expand research in disaster science, a major emphasis of the University, with hiring planned over the next two years. In this first stage, we are seeking exceptional candidates with interdisciplinary interests in a wide range of topics broadly construed as social perspectives on risk, hazards and disasters.

Faculty will have a tenure-track/tenured home in a department at the University of Delaware and join, as core faculty, the world-renowned Disaster Research Center (DRC) (www.drc.udel.edu), the world's oldest center focused on the social science and management aspects of disaster. UD has several environment- and disaster-oriented programs and research streams in its various colleges. DRC houses the flagship institution of the William A. Anderson Fund (BAF), an initiative devoted to increasing the participation of students from historically underrepresented populations in disaster science and practice.

QUALIFICATIONS

We seek scholars who are committed to interdisciplinary research and teaching, diversity and inclusion, and community engagement. Candidates should show experience or potential for securing external funding. The candidate should hold an earned Ph.D. or other relevant doctoral degree at the time of appointment. We will consider a broad range of research foci related to social perspectives on risk, hazards, and disasters. Possible, but not exclusive, areas of interest might include: individual and household preparedness for disaster; social determinants of disaster health outcomes and recovery; food security and connection of food delivery to health outcomes in disaster-affected settings; institutional systems for service delivery, such as for disaster behavioral health; functional and access needs, including elder populations and others requiring medical-support care in hospitals and nursing homes; environmental and social justice; risk perception/communication; environmental planning; hazard mitigation; and decision-making and social change. Researchers with strong methodological skills (one or more approaches, such as statistics, spatial analysis, social network analysis, GIS, participatory action research, qualitative methods, or mixed methods) are encouraged to apply.

APPLICATION PROCESS

Applicants should submit: (1) a current curriculum vita; (2) a cover letter summarizing their interest, qualifications, likely department(s) they wish to be considered for their tenure/tenure-track home, and a description of progress on the dissertation, if not yet complete; (3) a research statement; (4) a teaching statement; (5) contact information for three references (references will not be contacted prior to notifying the candidate). Candidates should ensure that their materials address the qualifications stated above. Review of applications will begin on October 1, 2018 and will continue until the positions are filled. This institution is using Interfolio's Faculty Search to conduct this search. Those interested should apply through <http://www.udel.edu/faculty-staff/human-resources/careers/faculty-jobs/>.

Please direct questions, but not application materials, to Tricia Wachendorf or James Kendra, Search Committee Co-Chairs (twachten@udel.edu or jmkendra@udel.edu).

Located in Newark, Delaware, within 2 hours of New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, and Washington, D.C., UD is a Land Grant, Sea Grant, Space Grant, and Carnegie Research University (highest research activity; and a Carnegie public engagement designation), with external funding exceeding $200 million. A state-assisted, privately governed institution, the University enrolls approximately 19,000 undergraduates and 4,000 graduate students

Start Date: Fall 2019
Application Deadline: 10/1/2018
Date Posted: 9/4/2018
Salary: Competitive
eJobs ID: 4761

University of South Carolina

Rank: Assistant Professor of Public Administration/Public Policy

The Department of Political Science at the University of South Carolina seeks applications for two tenure-track Assistant Professor positions in public administration/public policy to begin August 16, 2019. The positions are open with regard to substantive specialization. We seek candidates with rigorous, theoretically-informed research agendas who have published in or demonstrate the promise of publishing in leading public administration and/or political science outlets. Successful candidates will be able to contribute to the department's NASPAA-accredited Master of Public Administration program, with the ability to teach core and elective classes in this program. A Ph.D. in Political Science, Public Administration, or a closely related field of study is required by the start date of appointment.

Applicants should submit a cover letter, curriculum vitae, a writing sample, statements of research and teaching interests, graduate transcript, and contact information, including telephone number and email address, for three references. References will be contacted directly for letters of recommendation. Applications received by September 30, 2018 are assured full consideration. All applicants must fill out an online application at USC Jobs: <https://uscjobs.sc.edu/>.

Please contact the search committee chair, Susan Miller (sumiller@mailbox.sc.edu), with any questions. Information regarding the Department of Political Science can be found at the department's website: <http://artsandsciences.sc.edu/poli/welcome>.

The University of South Carolina System (www.sc.edu) is comprised of the state's flagship university in Columbia (founded in 1801 and currently one of the top 50 "Best Colleges" according to U.S. News and World Report), three regional comprehensive universities (USC Aiken, USC Beaufort and USC Upstate), and Palmetto

College consisting of four two-year campuses (USC Lancaster, USC Salkehatchie, USC Sumter, USC Union and Fort Jackson/Extended University). Together, the USC System institutions offer more than 450 degree programs on campus and online and are uniquely positioned to meet the state's educational, cultural, health and research needs. The System employs nearly 14,000 people who work daily to improve the lives of students, fellow South Carolinians and the world. Our diverse engaged faculty and staff enjoy a dynamic and intellectually stimulating work environment.

Start Date: Fall 2019
Application Deadline: 9/30/2018
Date Posted: 8/29/2018
Salary: Competitive
eJobs ID: 4732

California State Polytechnic University, Pomona

Rank: Assistant Professor in Public Administration

Subfield(s): Public Administration, Public Policy, American Government and Politics

Assistant Professor – Public Administration in Political Science

The Political Science Department in the College of Letters, Arts, and Social Sciences at California State Polytechnic University, Pomona (Cal Poly Pomona) invites applications for a tenure-track position at the rank of Assistant Professor to begin Fall 2019. Candidates with specializations in public administration and public policy are especially welcome to apply.

At Cal Poly Pomona, we cultivate success through a diverse culture of experiential learning, discovery, and innovation. We demonstrate academic quality, relevance, and excellence through our teaching, learning, scholarship, and creative activities with student-centered faculty in an evidence-based culture. Cal Poly Pomona is committed to being the model for an inclusive polytechnic university that inspires creativity and innovation, embraces local and global challenges, and transforms lives.

The Position

The faculty member will be part of a small, collegial Political Science Department and will contribute to a Master's of Public Administration Program. The faculty member will teach and advise in both the graduate and undergraduate program. As part of the political science undergraduate program, the faculty member will be expected to teach courses in one or more of our subfields in accordance to the faculty member's expertise: American politics, public administration, international relations, comparative politics, public law, and/or political theory. The position requires excellence in teaching and advising, professional and scholarly achievements, and a commitment to service to the university. Applicants whose work incorporates a global perspective and a commitment to diversity in higher education are particularly encouraged to apply. Cal Poly Pomona is a Hispanic-serving institution and the faculty member will be an advisor to many underrepresented minorities and first-generation college students.

Minimum Qualifications

- Ph.D. in Political Science, Public Administration, or related disciplines such as Public Policy from an accredited university by August 1, 2019
- University teaching experience

- Evidence of scholarly potential (conference presentations, publications, grant development, etc.)
- Evidence of demonstrated ability to contribute to the diversity and excellence of the academic community through research, teaching, and/or service and work as well as experience working in an inclusive environment

Preferred/Desired Qualifications

Preference will be given to those candidates who have the expertise to work with graduate students on a range of thesis projects in public administration, as well as the ability to teach political science undergraduates. Expertise and work experience in areas such as public policy/program evaluation, urban politics and administration, community development/sustainability, and qualitative methods will be given careful consideration. Preference will also be given to candidates with research interests related to social or racial justice and who can demonstrate the ability to mentor and advise African-American, Hispanic, and Native American students.

Application Procedure

The position is open until filled. First consideration will be given to completed applications submitted by November 16, 2018. Early response is encouraged. Electronic submissions of all application materials must be submitted online via Interfolio at <https://apply.interfolio.com/53291>

A completed application will consist of:

- A cover letter that describes the candidate's teaching performance, research experience and interests, and that addresses the duties and qualifications articulated in the position description;
- A curriculum vitae comprising at least those elements specified on the application form and including the names, titles, addresses, email addresses, and telephone numbers of at least five individuals who can speak to the candidate's potential for success in this position;
- A 'Student Success Statement' about your teaching, or other experiences, successes, and challenges in working with a diverse student population (approximately one page, single-spaced);
- Three recent letters of reference (on letterhead, signed and dated within the past two years). Applicants will provide contact information for recommenders during the application process and the system will contact recommenders and provide a method for uploading letters;
- A completed application form available on the application website;
- An unofficial transcript showing then highest degree earned from an accredited education institution. Finalists will be required to submit an official transcript; and
- Recent teaching evaluation summaries and sample syllabi, if available.
- Please submit all electronic documents in PDF format.

For further information or clarification, please contact:

Faculty Search Committee

Dr. Mario Guerrero, Faculty Search Chair

Political Science Department

California State Polytechnic University, Pomona

Phone: 909.869.3887

Fax: 909.869.6995

Email: kmalm@cpp.edu (Kim Alm, Administrative Coordinator)

APSA Interviews

Representatives of the department will be available to meet at APSA's Placement Services. Please send a CV to mag@cpp.edu if you are interested in meeting with department representatives at APSA.

The University: Cal Poly Pomona is one of two polytechnic universities in the 23-campus California State University system. Our ethnically diverse student population of approximately 22,000 enrolls in 52 baccalaureate, 26 master's degree programs, 11 credential and certificate programs, and a doctorate in Educational Leadership, presented by 1,200 faculty. We recruit students increasingly from throughout California and beyond. The students are success and career focused and extremely diverse. We are proud of our status as a Hispanic Serving Institution. We have a strong commitment to supporting scholarship, research, and student achievement. Our scenic and historic 1,400-acre campus, once the winter ranch of cereal magnate W. K. Kellogg, is located about 30 miles east of downtown Los Angeles in one of the most dynamic economic and cultural regions in the country, and within an hour's drive of beaches, mountains, and desert. The university is committed to diversifying its faculty and staff and has made educational equity one of its highest priorities. The mission of the university is to advance learning and knowledge by linking theory and practice in all disciplines, and to prepare students for lifelong learning, leadership, and careers in a changing, multicultural world.

The College: The College of Letters, Arts, and Social Sciences fosters intellectual and ethical development and helps students become individuals who value and apply critical thinking in our complex, diverse and technological world. The College offers introductory and advanced course work in numerous degree and certificate programs across the humanities, social sciences, and performing arts. The General Education program offered to all students enrolled in the University is also central to the mission of the College. The College embraces its role in providing courses and curricula in support of multiple and single-subject teaching credential students. The University's mission to "cultivate success through a diverse culture of experiential learning, discovery, and innovation" lies at the heart of the College's commitment to offer programs that educate the whole person. Additional information is available at: <http://www.cpp.edu/~class/>

The Department: The Department of Political Science has over three hundred and fifty undergraduate political science majors and approximately fifty students in our NASPAA-accredited MPA program. We also offer a Political Science minor and participate significantly in the university's General Education offerings. The Department sponsors a Model United Nations program and a Mock Trial Team, both with a history of national recognition. Members of the Department have traditionally been actively involved across campus and in the community.

California State Polytechnic University, Pomona is an Equal Opportunity, Affirmative Action Employer. The University seeks to recruit and retain a diverse workforce as a reflection of our commitment to serve the people of California, to maintain the excellence of the University, and to offer our students richly varied disciplines, perspectives and ways of knowing and learning. Cal Poly Pomona subscribes to all state and federal regulations and prohibits discrimination based on race, color, religion, national origin, sex, gender identity/gender expression, sexual orientation, marital status, pregnancy, age, disability, genetic information, medical condition, and covered veteran status. The University hires only individuals lawfully authorized to work in the United States. As required by the Clery Disclosure Act, the university's annual security report is available at <http://www.cpp.edu/annual-security-report.shtml>. The person holding this position is considered a 'mandated reporter' under the California Child Abuse and Neglect Reporting Act and is required to comply with the requirements set forth in CSU Executive Order 1083 as a condition of employment.

Start Date: Fall 2019
Application Deadline: 11/16/2018
Date Posted: 8/20/2018
Salary: Competitive
eJobs ID: 4647

University of Tennessee

Rank: Public Administration-Public Policy Associate Director

Associate Professor of Political Science

The Department of Political Science at the University of Tennessee, Knoxville invites applications for an associate level professor in Public Policy and/or Public Administration to begin Fall 2019. The successful applicant will be Associate Director of the Masters of Public Policy and Administration (MPPA) program and will contribute to the Department's Ph.D. program. The Department and the MPPA work closely with the Howard Baker Center and the successful candidate will participate in that partnership. The Baker Center was established in 2003 and has emerging research focal areas in energy policy, environmental policy, public health and global security and strong connections to the state and local governments across Tennessee.

Preference for candidates with primary research and teaching interests in Public Policy, including but not limited to public budgeting and finance, energy policy, environmental policy, health care policy, policy process and program evaluation or Non-Profit Management, but all areas will be considered. The successful candidate must have a clear research agenda that will lead to publication in peer-reviewed journals. We are particularly interested in applicants who address substantively important questions using rigorous analytical approaches. Preference will be shown for applicants with teaching and research interests that complement existing departmental interests, have a record of extramural funding commensurate with experience, and demonstrate evidence of college/university teaching excellence. The position is a 9-month faculty appointment and the salary is competitive and commensurate with qualifications and experience.

The University of Tennessee, Knoxville, is the state's flagship research institution, a campus of choice for outstanding undergraduates, and a premier graduate institution. As a land-grant university, it is committed to excellence in learning, scholarship, and engagement with society. More information about the Department is available at: <http://web.utk.edu/~polisci>. The Knoxville campus of the University of Tennessee is seeking candidates who have the ability to contribute in meaningful ways to the diversity and intercultural goals of the University.

Applicants should send a cover letter explaining their research and teaching experience, a current CV, a sample of scholarly writing, and teaching evaluations (if available). All applicants should request letters from three references to be sent directly to the search committee. All materials should be sent electronically to: Dianna Beeler at beelerd@utk.edu and copied to Professor David Folz at dfolz@utk.edu, Department of Political Science, University of Tennessee, Knoxville, TN 37996-3340. Review of applications will begin October 25, 2018 and will continue until the position is filled. For questions or inquiries, contact Professor David Folz at dfolz@utk.edu.

All qualified applicants will receive equal consideration for employment and admission without regard to race, color, national origin, religion, sex, pregnancy, marital status, sexual orientation, gender identity, age, physical or mental disability, genetic information, veteran status, and parental status, or any other characteristic protected by federal or state law. In accordance with the requirements of Title VI of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972, Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973, and the Americans with Disabilities Act of 1990, the University of Tennessee affirmatively states that it does not discriminate on the basis of race, sex, or disability in its education programs and activities, and this policy extends to employment by the university. Inquiries and charges of violation of Title VI (race, color, and national origin), Title IX (sex), Section 504 (disability), the ADA (disability), the Age Discrimination in Employment Act (age), sexual orientation, or veteran status should be directed to the Office of Equity and Diversity, 1840 Melrose Avenue, Knoxville, TN 37996-3560, telephone 865-974-2498. Requests for accommodation of a disability should be directed to the ADA Coordinator at the Office of Equity and Diversity.

Start Date: Fall 2019
Application Deadline: Open until Filled
Date Posted: 8/17/2018
Salary: Competitive
eJobs ID: 4628

Miami University

Rank: Assistant Professor in Public Administration

Assistant Professor in public administration for an appointment as a tenure track Assistant Professor to teach courses across the public administration core curriculum for the undergraduate major and courses for the MA program; advise students; conduct relevant research leading to a record of published scholarship; provide institutional and professional service; and participate in applied research projects through the Center for Public Management and Regional Affairs. The position will begin in the 2019-20 academic year.

Require: PhD by date of appointment in public policy, political science or a related field.

Consideration may be given to candidates with substantive expertise in an area of public policy and policy analysis.

Submit letter of interest, curriculum vitae, evidence of teaching effectiveness, teaching philosophy, statement of research plans, transcripts and writing sample to <https://miamioh.hiretouch.com/job-details?jobID=6187>. The department will solicit reference letters from references provided in application. For inquiries about posting, contact Dr. Bryan Marshall at marshabw@miamioh.edu. Screening of applications will begin September 10, 2018 and will continue until the position is filled.

Start Date: Fall 2019
Application Deadline: Open until Filled
Date Posted: 8/16/2018
Salary: Competitive
eJobs ID: 4615

Winthrop University

Rank: Assistant Professor of Political Science
Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Public Administration, Public Law
Specializations: American Politics, Judicial Politics, Constitutional Law & Theory

The Department of Political Science is seeking engaging teachers and active scholars to join our diverse scholarly community by applying for a full-time, tenure-track Assistant Professor position in American Politics, specifically in the areas of Public Administration/Public Policy and National Institutions. Strong preference will be given to candidates who can teach the Judiciary and/or Constitutional Law. We are seeking a dedicated and experienced teacher with demonstrated scholarly achievement to join our distinguished department. The Winthrop Department of Political Science boasts award-winning faculty who are recognized for the quality of their teaching, research, and service. The department also has three affiliated programs: (1) the 43-year old Model UN Program; (2) the Center for Public Opinion and Policy Research, which is home to the nationally renowned Winthrop Poll; and (3) the John C. West Forum on Politics and Policy, a major civic engagement initiative at the University. The department also collaborates with the Master of Liberal Arts program to provide a graduate Concentration in Political and Civic Engagement. Winthrop University is an Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action employer. Women, minorities, persons with disabilities, and veterans are encouraged to apply.

Major Responsibilities:

- Teach a variety of courses in American Politics, including Public Administration, Public Policy, The Judiciary, Constitutional Law: Federalism, and/or Constitutional Law: Civil Rights and Civil Liberties. Strong preference will be given to candidates with teaching and/or research expertise in multiple areas of need, including Media and Politics and Women and US Politics.
- Teach both introductory and advanced courses in your areas of specialization, including graduate courses in our Political and Civic Engagement Concentration within the Master of Liberal Arts Program
- Teach a team-taught senior capstone course in Political Science
- Ability to conduct media interviews on commentary about campaigns and elections and analysis of American political institutions
- Ability to collaborate with the Center for Public Opinion and Policy Research a plus
- Teach courses in Winthrop University's innovative General Education Program, including American Government, which fulfills the Constitution Requirement
- Participate in departmental, college, and university service, including student advising
- Undertake research in the discipline and promote undergraduate research
- Be an interested and energetic participant in an active department
- Other duties as assigned

Required Qualifications:

- The Ph.D. in Political Science, Public Administration, Public Policy, or a related field is required for appointment at the assistant professor level. A successful candidate who is ABD at the time of employment will be appointed to a non-tenure track position as an instructor. The successful candidate will also be required to undergo a background check prior to hiring
- Specialization in areas among those listed above
- Evidence in the area of Student Intellectual Development, including teaching excellence and commitment to student learning
- Evidence in the area of Scholarly Activity, including an ongoing program of research and publication
- Evidence in the area of Professional Stewardship, including engagement with the discipline, profession, campus, and community
- Preference is given to candidates with experience teaching the courses listed above

Work Environment: This position requires regular contact with students, faculty, and staff on campus. Additionally, the successful candidate will be required to have the ability to work with the outside community, local public schools, the media, other universities, and international schools/companies/partners.

Background Check Statement: Winthrop University is committed to providing a safe campus community. Winthrop conducts background investigations for applicants being considered for employment. Background investigations include reference checks, a criminal history record check, and when appropriate, a financial (credit) report or driving history check.

Employment Conditions: A nine-month, full-time tenure track appointment with faculty rank. Salary is competitive and dependent on academic qualifications.

Position Availability: August 16, 2019

Application Timeline and Procedures:

- Apply Here Now: apply.interfolio.com/53603
- Review of applicants will begin on October 1, 2018 and will continue until the position is filled.
- For more information about the position, please see <http://www.winthrop.edu/hr/>.

Required Materials for Online Application When Available:

- Application letter, with evidence of major responsibilities and required qualifications
- Curriculum vitae, including names, titles, addresses, phone numbers, and e-mail addresses, if available, of at least three persons who know the candidate professionally
- Sample of representative written work (article- or chapter- length)
- Statement of "teaching philosophy, including evidence of excellence in teaching and commitment to student learning
- Three professional letters of reference
- All graduate transcripts and evidence of highest degree achieved (unofficial transcripts are acceptable for initial review; official transcripts are required prior to final appointment)

Interfolio Application Link: apply.interfolio.com/53603

Founded in 1886, Winthrop University in Rock Hill, South Carolina, offers its 6,000-plus undergraduate and graduate students an educational experience that blends liberal arts, professional programs, global awareness, and civic engagement. In its colleges of Arts and Sciences, Business Administration, Education, and Visual and Performing Arts, Winthrop embraces only those programs and activities that can be delivered at an exemplary level. Winthrop is well known for its inclusive and supportive campus environment, with University College supporting programs in both academic and student affairs. Winthrop University is achieving national stature as a competitive and distinctive co-educational, public, residential, comprehensive, values-oriented institution. The values of service, excellence, diversity, community, and leadership provide the foundation for Winthrop's continuing development and shape Winthrop's continuing success. Numerous national accolades reflect the sustained high quality and value of the Winthrop Experience, including the most recent U.S. News & World Report's ranking of Winthrop as one of the top-10 public comprehensive universities in the South. Winthrop is an active member of the Rock Hill community and recognized as a key component of the region's economic resurgence. In addition, Winthrop is located just 30 minutes south of Charlotte, North Carolina, ranked by U.S.

News & World Report in 2018 as one of the top 25 best places to live in the country. For more information, visit us at www.winthrop.edu.

Winthrop University is an Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action employer and does not discriminate against any individual or group of individuals on the basis of age, color, disability, gender, national origin, race, religion, sexual orientation, gender identity, or veteran status. Women, minorities, and persons with disabilities are encouraged to apply.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 8/14/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4584

University of Wisconsin, La Crosse

Rank: Assistant Professor, Public Administration

The Department of Political Science and Public Administration at the University of Wisconsin-La Crosse seeks a tenure track Assistant Professor beginning August 2019 who is a dynamic and skilled teacher and researcher in the field of Public Administration & Policy. Candidates must demonstrate a commitment to teaching excellence, student success, and inclusive and engaging classroom practices. The position will also include advising responsibilities, and the potential for teaching the capstone seminar and directing undergraduate research projects. In addition to teaching excellence and scholarly productivity, the Department also places a high value on service to the University and wider community.

Candidates for the appointment should have or be near to completing a doctorate in Public Administration or a related field by the start date. If a doctorate is not yet earned, it must be earned by the first personnel review, no later than May 15, 2020.

The 11-member department offers undergraduate majors and minors in both Political Science and Public Administration and offers courses that serve interdisciplinary minors in Legal Studies; Ethnic and Racial Studies; International Studies; International Business; Women, Gender and Sexuality Studies; Criminal Justice; and Environmental Studies. The Department's vibrant and growing Public Administration major is one of the few such undergraduate programs in the Upper Midwest. The usual teaching load is three preparations and four (3 credit) courses per semester, which may include American National Government, Women and Politics, or other General Education courses.

Required Application Submissions:

1. Cover letter, with a description about how you envision yourself contributing to the department's public administration curriculum
2. Curriculum vitae
3. Names, email addresses and phone numbers for three academic/professional references

Only those applications received by October 1, 2018 are guaranteed to receive full consideration.

Note: Electronic submission of application materials is required. For additional information about this position and to apply, please visit <https://employment.uwlax.edu>

Please contact the Search and Screen Chair if you have a special need/accommodation to aid your participation in our hiring process.

UW-La Crosse has appeared prominently on the U.S. News & World Report list of "America's Best Colleges" for more than a decade and is ranked consistently as one of the top institutions in the Midwest. With a student population of roughly 10,500, the university offers 94 undergraduate programs in at least 30 disciplines and 21 graduate programs in the following colleges: Liberal Studies, Science and Health, and Business Administration, including the School of Arts & Communication and the School of Education, Professional and Continuing Education. There are 520 full-time faculty and instructional academic staff, 76 percent of whom hold terminal degrees. UW-La Crosse boasts a retention rate (freshmen returning as sophomores) of 85 percent, graduation rate (degree within six years) of 70 percent, and is among only 12 institutions cited nationally by the American Association of State Colleges and Universities for its success in linking campus culture and university leadership to outstanding graduation rates.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Date Posted: 8/13/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4573

Dartmouth College

Rank: Assistant Professor - American Politics

Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Methodology, Public Administration

The Department of Government at Dartmouth College seeks applicants for a tenure-track position in American politics at the rank of assistant professor. The position is open with respect to substantive research focus and methodological approach. The position requires excellence in research and classroom teaching. We are especially interested in applicants with a record of successful teaching and mentoring of students from all backgrounds (including first-generation college students, low-income students, racial and ethnic minorities, women, LGBTQ, etc.). Applicants are encouraged to state in their cover letter how they will enhance the diversity of offerings and educational experiences in the department.

Applicants must have a Ph.D. or be ABD with PhD expected by the time of appointment. Applicants should submit a letter of interest, curriculum vitae, writing sample, and letters of recommendation from at least three references. Application materials should be submitted electronically at: <http://apply.interfolio.com/53055>. The review of applications will begin on September 17, 2018 and will continue until the position is filled. Questions may be sent to: michael.herron@dartmouth.edu

Dartmouth College is an equal opportunity/affirmative action employer with a strong commitment to diversity and inclusion. We prohibit discrimination on the basis of race, color, religion, sex, age, national origin, sexual orientation, gender identity or expression, disability, veteran status, marital status, or any other legally protected status. Applications by members of all underrepresented groups are encouraged.

Start Date: Spring 2019

Application Deadline: 9/17/2018

Date Posted: 8/7/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4512

Whittier CollegeRank: Assistant Professor of Political ScienceSubfield(s): Public Policy, American Government and Politics, Public Administration

Assistant Professor of Political Science

Whittier College

Whittier College announces a tenure-track Assistant Professor of Political Science position beginning Fall 2019. The Department seeks candidates specializing in Public Policy and American Politics, and capable of teaching a core course in Public Administration. We would be particularly interested in candidates who might also be able to contribute to any of the following additional areas: race and politics, minority politics, environmental politics, state and local politics with an emphasis on California, and/or political theory.

Candidates should have earned a Ph.D. in Political Science prior to September 2019. The successful candidate will demonstrate potential for outstanding teaching and excellence in scholarship. The Political Science Department has five full-time faculty and approximately 90 majors. Faculty members teach 20 units each year and are expected to teach college-wide courses such as First-year Writing Seminars and/or courses paired with faculty in other disciplines as part of our general education program. In addition, all faculty must be fully engaged in committee service and advisement of students.

Preliminary review of materials will begin September 10, and will continue until the appointment is made. If you plan to attend the American Political Science Association conference, please let us know, and send your c.v. and letter of application by August 1. We plan to meet with a limited number of applicants during the conference; however, all applicants will have equal consideration, regardless of attendance. Full applications should include: a letter of application, including discussion of teaching philosophy and research interests; a curriculum vitae; a summary of course evaluations or other evidence of teaching effectiveness; unofficial transcripts; and at least three confidential letters of recommendation, sent by your references. Please email (PDFs preferred) materials to Prof. Deborah Norden, Department Chair, at <mailto:dnorden@whittier.edu>. Paper application and reference letters can be sent to Prof. Deborah Norden, Political Science Department; Whittier College; 13406 Philadelphia St.; Whittier, CA 90601.

Whittier College is committed to attracting and retaining a high quality, diverse faculty with a shared passion for student-centered teaching and mentoring. It is distinguished by its small class sizes, high-impact pedagogies, and innovative liberal arts curriculum blended with professional and pre-professional programs. It is a nationally recognized model for diversity and has no racial majority among its student body. With over 60% students of color, Whittier is designated as both a Hispanic Serving Institution (HSI) and Asian American Native American Pacific Islander-Serving Institution (AANAPISI). Founded in 1887, it is an independent, four-year liberal arts college with about 1,650 undergraduates and is ideally situated in the scenic hills 18 miles east of downtown Los Angeles. It is an AA/EOE employer. More information on the position is available at www.whittier.edu/jobs.

Copyright ©2017 Jobelephant.com Inc. All rights reserved.

<https://www.jobelephant.com/jeid-4289f6e1d352e841a207bc2342f12ec7>

Start Date: Fall 2019Application Deadline: Open until FilledDate Posted: 7/20/2018Salary: CompetitiveeJobs ID: 4413PUBLIC LAW*Harvard University*Rank: Harvard University Environmental Fellows ProgramSubfield(s): American Government and Politics, Public Law, Public Policy

APPLICATION DEADLINE: JANUARY 16, 2019

The Harvard University Center for the Environment created the Environmental Fellows program to enable recent doctorate recipients to use and expand Harvard's extraordinary resources to tackle complex environmental problems. The Environmental Fellows will work for two years with Harvard faculty members in any school or department while also strengthening connections across the University's academic disciplines.

The Award:

The fellowship includes a salary of $68,000 per year, employee health insurance eligibility, up to $2,500 reimbursement for relocation expenses, and a $2,500 annual allowance for travel and other professional expenses.

The Harvard University Center for the Environment expects to award approximately six fellowships for the 2019 cohort. The Center will organize a co-curricular program to ensure that the fellows get to know each other and each other's work. All fellows will attend biweekly dinners with their colleagues, faculty members, and guests.

Program Requirements:

- Candidates for 2019 Environmental Fellowships should have received their terminal degree between May 2015 and August 2019. (Fellows must have filed their dissertation before starting their appointment in September 2019.)
- Candidates with a doctorate or equivalent in any field are eligible, and they may propose research projects in any discipline. Applicants without a Ph.D. may apply if they have studied in fields where the Ph.D. is not the typical terminal degree. All successful candidates will be able to demonstrate experience performing scholarly research.
- Each candidate must secure a commitment from one or more Harvard faculty members to serve as a mentor and to provide office or lab space for the two-year fellowship.
- Candidates may have received their degrees at any university in the world. Foreign nationals are eligible for fellowships, though study at Harvard requires proficiency in English.
- Candidates who received terminal degrees from Harvard, and post-docs currently working at Harvard are eligible for the fellowship provided their research and host arrangements take them in new directions and forge new connections within the University. Harvard candidates should not propose to continue to work with the same professors or lab groups with whom they are currently associated. No candidate should propose to work extensively with his or her thesis advisor.
- Harvard is an affirmative action, equal opportunity employer.

- Successful candidates should be prepared to commit to work at Harvard for the full two years of the fellowship. This fellowship requires residency in the Cambridge area and any fieldwork trip must be scheduled for the summer or January recess.

Application Requirements:

1. Please complete the online application form found at <http://environment.harvard.edu/environmental-fellows-program by> January 16, 2019 and attach the relevant supporting documents as PDFs:
 - a. curriculum vitae including list of publications;
 - b. detailed research proposal where applicants should explain their specific reasons for applying to a Harvard residential environmental fellowship (maximum of five pages, references counted separately). Note: While applicants should discuss the proposal with their potential faculty hosts, the final product should clearly be the work of the applicant; and
 - c. up to three publications/writing samples.
2. Three letters of reference, including one from the applicant's dissertation adviser.
3. A letter of support is also required from the applicant's host committing to serve as a mentor and explaining his or her commitment to the proposed research, including the provision of office or lab space. Hosts should send their letters directly to the attention of James Clem at the Center at environmental_fellows@harvard.edu.

If you have questions about the fellowship or application process, please contact:

James Clem
Harvard University Center for the Environment
26 Oxford Street, 4th Floor
Cambridge MA 02138
617-495-0368
james_clem@harvard.edu

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: 1/16/2019

Date Posted: 10/19/2018

Salary: $60,000 - $69,999

eJobs ID: 5039

Idaho State University

Rank: Assistant Professor, Political Science (8171)

Assistant Professor, Political Science (8171)

Posting Number: req690

9 Month

Faculty Tenure Track

College of Arts and Letters

Pocatello - Main

Primary Purpose

Idaho State University invites applications for a tenure-track Assistant Professor in the Department of Political Science. The appointment will begin in the Fall semester of 2019. The department is looking for a candidate with the ability to contribute broadly to its undergraduate and three graduate programs (DA, MA, and MPA), but is specifically seeking candidates with expertise in (1) Comparative Politics and (2) International Relations or Public Law.

The Department of Political Science has one of the largest graduate programs in the College of Arts & Letters at Idaho State University. Located in Pocatello, Idaho State University has an enrollment of more than 12,000 students. The Pocatello region has numerous outdoor recreational activities and is well known for mountain biking, hiking, fishing, rock climbing, kayaking, and skiing. Located in southeast Idaho, Pocatello is 2.5 hours or less by car to Grand Teton and Yellowstone National Parks, Sun Valley, Grand Targhee, Jackson Hole, and Salt Lake City.

Key Responsibilities

The position carries a 3-3 teaching load of undergraduate and graduate courses. The faculty will also have service and research obligations, which will comprise 40 percent of workload.

The candidate maybe asked teach MA/MPA/DA courses related to their expertise that are broadcast via distance learning. The position may also require the faculty to occasionally teach and hold office hours at the growing Idaho Falls campus which is approximately 50 miles from the Pocatello campus. The candidate will also have the opportunity to teach an introductory course in political science reflecting their subfield(s).

Minimum Qualifications

The successful candidate will need to have a doctorate in Political Science before the start of classes in the Fall of 2019. ABDs will be considered.

Preferred Qualifications

Candidates with expertise on military/security/cybersecurity policy is preferred. The ability to teach specialized courses such as Recent American Foreign Politics, Terrorism and Political Violence, Strategy and National Security Policy, Cybersecurity Policy, Intelligence, Constitutional Law, and Jurisprudence would be an asset.

Apply online at <https://isu.csod.com/ats/careersite/JobDetails.aspx?id=690&site=1>

Please submit the following documents with your application:

A letter of interest, a Curriculum Vita, at least one writing sample, recent teaching evaluations or other evidence of teaching effectiveness, a statement of teaching philosophy, unofficial transcripts, and a list of three (3) professional references with contact information.

Priority consideration will be given to applications received by December 31, 2018. However, the position will remain open until filled. Salary will be commensurate with education and experience. Includes a competitive benefits package. Offers of employment may be conditional pending successful completion of a background investigation.

Start Date:

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 10/16/2018

Salary: Negotiable

eJobs ID: 5016

Georgia State University

Rank: Lecturer

The Department of Political Science at Georgia State University invites applications for a full-time Lecturer position to begin Fall 2019, pending budgetary approval. Lecturers at Georgia State University are full-time non-tenure track faculty with both teaching and service requirements, as well as the opportunity for promotion. We welcome candidates who have a demonstrated commitment to delivering high quality instruction to undergraduates. Successful candidates will also have a demonstrated interest in helping develop innovative approaches to content delivery, and contributing to the scholarship on teaching and learning. They will also have experience and interest in working closely with students of varied backgrounds to promote excellence in undergraduate learning. Enrolling one of the most diverse student bodies in the nation, Georgia State University has been recognized for providing an outstanding education and exceptional support for students from all backgrounds. We encourage women, minorities, and individuals with a commitment to mentoring underrepresented groups to apply.

Candidates must have a Ph.D. in hand by August 2019. Review of applications will begin on October 26, 2018, and will continue until the position is filled. Georgia State University is a unit of the University System of Georgia, is an Equal Opportunity Employer and does not discriminate against applicants due to race, ethnicity, gender, veteran status, or on the basis of disability or any other federal, state or local protected class. An offer of employment will be conditional on background verification. Applicants should send a letter of application, curriculum vitae, statement of teaching philosophy, diversity statement, student evaluations, sample syllabi, sample teaching materials, and any additional evidence of teaching effectiveness, as well as original transcript(s). Please submit all materials electronically to pols-search@gsu.edu.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 10/11/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4998

Old Dominion University

Rank: American Politics/Public Law - Assistant Professor

Old Dominion University's Department of Political Science and Geography invites applications for a tenure-track position at the assistant professor level in American Politics/Public Law to begin August 2019. Candidates will be expected to teach courses in constitutional law and judicial politics. The ability to teach the politics of identity (e.g., African American Politics, Women and Politics, or Latino/a American Politics), and political theory is an asset. The successful applicant will also serve as ODU's pre-law advisor. Candidates are expected to pursue an active research agenda. The successful candidate will have a demonstrable commitment to promoting and enhancing diversity. A Ph.D. in Political Science is required at the time of appointment.

Old Dominion University is a residential and research-extensive public institution with a student enrollment of 25,000, including approximately 5,000 graduate students, and a full-time equivalent diverse and multicultural faculty of over 850. The university's primary campus is located in Norfolk, VA, one of the seven cities that make up the historic Hampton Roads region of Virginia, a major recreational area with a population of 1.7 million near the Atlantic Ocean and Chesapeake Bay.

To apply, submit a cover letter, curriculum vitae, brief statement of research and teaching interests, sample of scholarly writing, evidence of teaching effectiveness, unofficial graduate transcripts, and three letters of recommendation to Dr. Michael L. Clemons, Chair, American Politics/Public Law Search Committee at <https://jobs.odu.edu/>

The system will solicit the letters of recommendation from the references listed in your application. Review of applications will begin October 29, 2018 and continue until the position is filled. Inquiries regarding the position should be directed to the search committee chair at MClemons@odu.edu. More information about the political science program can be found at <https://www.odu.edu/pols-geog/political>.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: 10/29/2018

Date Posted: 10/8/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4974

East Tennessee State University

Rank: Assistant Professor

Subfield(s): Public Law, Public Administration, American Government and Politics

The Department of Political Science, International Affairs and Public Administration at East Tennessee State University invites applications for the position of Assistant Professor beginning August 15, 2019. The position carries a 3/3 teaching load, shared between the undergraduate Political Science program and the graduate Public Administration program. The Department expects the successful applicant to maintain an active research program and to participate in service to the department, university, profession, and community.

Applicants must have a Ph.D in Political Science with either a subfield in Public Administration or an MPA degree.

Strong background in quantitative research methods is preferred.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: 11/15/2018

Date Posted: 10/5/2018

Salary: $50,000 - $59,999

eJobs ID: 4962

Ithaca College

Rank: Assistant Professor of Legal Studies

The Ithaca College Department of Politics (located in Ithaca, NY) invites applications for a full-time, tenure-eligible Assistant Professor position in Public Law. While the position is in the Politics Department, teaching responsibilities will be primarily in the Legal Studies Program, an interdisciplinary major/minor housed in the School of Humanities and Sciences. We seek a dedicated teacher/scholar eager to work with undergraduates who can help our students better understand how law, justice, race, gender, and power interact in complex ways.

Position Responsibilities

The selected candidate will teach an annual 18-credit load of undergraduate courses—roughly equivalent to three courses per semester. We are interested in candidates who have an interest in offering courses such as:

- A gateway course for the Legal Studies Program which involves an introduction to issues of law, power, and justice.
- A senior capstone/research/internship experience

- At least one upper level law specific course (e.g., gender and law)

The selected candidate should also plan to maintain an active scholarship program.

Finally, the candidate will be expected to participate in service at the Department level, as well as at the level of either the School, the College, or the off-campus community.

Position/Job Qualifications

Required Qualifications

- Ph.D., discipline open, completed by August 15, 2019, with a specialization in a field of public law.
- Strong desire for teaching undergraduates, and potential for excellence therein.
- Desire for active participation in the Department, School, College, or broader community
- Some teaching experience

Desired Topical Expertise and/or Interests

- gender, sexuality, law
- feminist legal theory
- civil rights law
- race, power, law
- human rights law
- immigration law
- human reproduction and law
- violence and law
- technology and law
- legal research
- NOTE: We are not primarily looking for a constitutional law specialist

Interested applicants must apply online at <http://ithaca.peopleadmin.com/postings/14722>. A complete application package includes the following:

- (1) Cover letter (~500 words) including:
 - A brief professional introduction
 - A clear, concise articulation of (see above):
 - ? Required qualifications
 - ? Desired topical attributes
 - ? Contributions to creating an inclusive classroom
- (2) Curriculum vitae (CV) (no word limit) including details on teaching, scholarship, and service, in that order
- (3) Teaching statement (~500 words) discussing philosophy, and/or approach, and/or experience
- (4) Scholarship statement (~500 words) discussing interests, and/or experience, and/or future plans
- (5) A well-developed syllabus for a course specifically designed to be taught in this position (see "Position Responsibilities" above)
- (6) A list of the names and contact information for three professional or academic references (Letters may be requested after an initial round of review.)

Questions about online application should be directed to the Office of Human Resources at (607) 274-8000.

Review of applications will begin November 1, 2018 and will continue until the position is filled.

Start Date: Fall 2018

Application Deadline: 11/1/2018

Date Posted: 10/4/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4958

Loyola University Maryland

Rank: Visiting Affiliate Assistant Professor or Instructor in American Politics and Constitutional Law

Specializations: American Politics, Civil Rights & Liberties, Constitutional Law & Theory

We seek candidates displaying a strong commitment to excellence in teaching and interest in the enduring questions of American Politics and Constitutional Law for a Spring 2019 position.

Candidates for Visiting Affiliate Assistant Professor should have a Ph.D.; candidates for Instructor should be ABD. The teaching load for the one-semester Spring 2019 position is four courses with three preparations. The four courses will include: two sections of an introductory American Politics course (each capped at 30 students); one section of a Mock Trial course (capped at 20 students); and one section of a Constitutional Law course (capped at 30 students). Service duties will be assigned by Chair.

Loyola University Maryland is a selective liberal arts university in the Jesuit Catholic tradition. The university is committed to intellectual excellence and social justice as it prepares students for a diverse and changing world. Recognized as a leading independent, comprehensive university in the northeastern United States, Loyola has a beautiful historic Evergreen campus in Baltimore and Graduate Centers in Timonium and Columbia. Loyola enrolls over 4,000 students in its undergraduate programs and about 2,000 students in its graduate programs.

Loyola seeks a broad spectrum of candidates, including women, people of color, people with disabilities, and members of sexual minority groups, who understand, respect, and can actively contribute to the University's Jesuit mission and values (see <http://www.loyola.edu/about.aspx> to learn more about Loyola and its educational mission).

Please go to www.loyola.edu/careers to complete the online application. Using the link above, electronically submit a curriculum vita, evidence of teaching effectiveness (such as teaching evaluations, if available), sample syllabi for proposed courses, if available (use Other 1), a list of three references who could comment on teaching abilities, and a cover letter that explicitly incorporates a clear understanding of the mission of Jesuit higher education and how one will contribute to this mission.

If materials cannot be electronically uploaded to the website, please email to: Dr. Kevin Hula (khula@loyola.edu) or, if unable to send electronically, mail to him at Dept. of Political Science, Loyola University Maryland, 4501 N. Charles St., Baltimore, MD, 21210.

Reviews of applications will begin November 1.

Start Date: Spring 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 9/26/2018

Salary: Any

eJobs ID: 4901

Duquesne UniversityRank: Full-time, tenure-track assistant professor of American politicsSubfield(s): American Government and Politics, Public Law, Public Policy

AMERICAN POLITICS

Assistant Professor of Political Science, McAnulty College and Graduate School of Liberal Arts, Duquesne University

The Department of Political Science at Duquesne University invites applications for a full-time, tenure-track assistant professor position in American politics. We are open to methodological approach and scholarly interests in any aspect of American politics, policy, and law. The ability to teach Constitutional law to undergraduates would be welcome. Candidates will be expected to continue the Department's tradition of excellence in scholarship and undergraduate teaching to a diverse and dynamic student body. Duquesne is located in downtown Pittsburgh, PA. The city, frequently ranked as America's most livable according to Places Rated Almanac, enjoys rich educational, cultural, and recreational resources.

The Search Committee will begin its review of applications on November 1, 2018 and will continue reviewing applications until the position is filled. Ph.D. by start date is strongly preferred. Applications from female and minority candidates are strongly encouraged. Applicants should submit (1) a detailed cover letter describing research interests and teaching experience; (2) a curriculum vitae; (3) a single best piece of scholarship no longer than 40 pages; (4) teaching evaluations, if available; and (5) three letters of recommendation to be submitted directly from references. Additional information may be required at a later date. All materials must be submitted directly to <http://apply.interfolio.com/54864>. Start date is August 15, 2019. Contracts are nine months in duration. For additional information, please contact Ms. Cheri Cunningham at cunningc@duq.edu.

Founded in 1878 by its sponsoring religious community, the Congregation of the Holy Spirit, Duquesne University is Catholic in mission and ecumenical in spirit. Its Mission Statement commits the University to "serving God by serving students – through commitment to excellence in liberal and professional education, through profound concern for moral and spiritual values, through the maintenance of an ecumenical atmosphere open to diversity, and through service to the Church, the community, the nation and the world." We invite applicants for this position to learn more about our university and its Spiritan heritage by visiting <http://www.duq.edu/about/mission-and-identity/mission-statement>. Those invited to campus for an interview may be asked about ways in which they see their talents contributing to the continued growth of our community and furthering its mission.

Start Date: Fall 2019Application Deadline: 11/1/2018Date Posted: 9/25/2018Salary: CompetitiveeJobs ID: 4887Duquesne University*Rank: Full-time, tenure-track assistant professor of American politicsSubfield(s): American Government and Politics, Public Law, Public Policy

AMERICAN POLITICS

Assistant Professor of Political Science, McAnulty College and Graduate School of Liberal Arts, Duquesne University

The Department of Political Science at Duquesne University invites applications for a full-time, tenure-track assistant professor position in American politics. We are open to methodological approach and scholarly interests in any aspect of American politics, policy, and law. The ability to teach Constitutional law to undergraduates would be welcome. Candidates will be expected to continue the Department's tradition of excellence in scholarship and undergraduate teaching to a diverse and dynamic student body. Duquesne is located in downtown Pittsburgh, PA. The city, frequently ranked as America's most livable according to Places Rated Almanac, enjoys rich educational, cultural, and recreational resources.

The Search Committee will begin its review of applications on November 1, 2018 and will continue reviewing applications until the position is filled. Ph.D. by start date is strongly preferred. Applications from female and minority candidates are strongly encouraged. Applicants should submit (1) a detailed cover letter describing research interests and teaching experience; (2) a curriculum vitae; (3) a single best piece of scholarship no longer than 40 pages; (4) teaching evaluations, if available; and (5) three letters of recommendation to be submitted directly from references. Additional information may be required at a later date. All materials must be submitted directly to <http://apply.interfolio.com/54864>. Start date is August 15, 2019. Contracts are nine months in duration. For additional information, please contact Ms. Cheri Cunningham at cunningc@duq.edu.

Founded in 1878 by its sponsoring religious community, the Congregation of the Holy Spirit, Duquesne University is Catholic in mission and ecumenical in spirit. Its Mission Statement commits the University to "serving God by serving students – through commitment to excellence in liberal and professional education, through profound concern for moral and spiritual values, through the maintenance of an ecumenical atmosphere open to diversity, and through service to the Church, the community, the nation and the world." We invite applicants for this position to learn more about our university and its Spiritan heritage by visiting <http://www.duq.edu/about/mission-and-identity/mission-statement>. Those invited to campus for an interview may be asked about ways in which they see their talents contributing to the continued growth of our community and furthering its mission.

Duquesne University values equality of opportunity as an educational institution and as an employer. We aspire to attract and sustain a diverse faculty and staff that reflects contemporary society, serves our academic goals and enriches our campus community. We particularly encourage applications from members of underrepresented groups and support dual-career couples through our charter membership in this region's HERC (<http://www.hercjobs.org/oh-western-pa-wv/>).

Start Date: Fall 2019Date Posted: 9/25/2018Salary: CompetitiveeJobs ID: 4888Knox College*Rank: Assistant Professor, Public LawSubfield(s): Public Law, Political Theory, American Government and Politics

Assistant Professor, Public Law

The Department of Political Science and International Relations at Knox College invites applications for a full time, tenure track assistant professor in the area of Public Law beginning September 1, 2019.

We seek an energetic and creative scholar who adopts innovative approaches to teaching and research in a residential, liberal arts setting. Candidates should be prepared to teach courses in constitutional law and other courses in the area of law and politics. Possibilities include: civil liberties, medical law, immigration law, race and the legal system, international law, and environmental law. Ability to teach political theory a plus. Knox College operates on a trimester system with three ten week terms. The candidate hired for this position will teach five courses a year over those three terms and serve as Knox's pre-law adviser. Knox is particularly interested in qualified candidates who can contribute to the intellectual diversity and inclusivity of our academic community through their research, teaching, and service.

Qualifications: Ph.D. in Political Science or a closely related field expected at time of appointment; exceptional ABD candidates considered.

Interested applicants should submit:

Cover letter addressing undergraduate liberal arts teaching philosophy and research agenda,

Curriculum Vitae,

Three letters of reference, with at least one addressing teaching potential,

Teaching evaluations and any other evidence of teaching excellence, Unofficial graduate transcripts,

An example of recent scholarship such as an article, book chapter, or conference paper.

Please submit applications electronically (PDF format preferred) to Barbara Schulze at politicalscienceseach@knox.edu.

Review of applications will begin October 12, 2018 and continue until the position is filled. Questions may be directed to Duane Oldfield, Department Chair, doldfiel@knox.edu or 309-341-7156.

Notice of Non-Discrimination

Knox College does not discriminate on the basis of sex, pregnancy, gender identity or expression, race, color, creed, national or ethnic origin, religion or religious affiliation, sexual orientation or preference, age, marital or family status, disability, veteran status, or other status protected by applicable federal, state, or local law in admission, financial aid, employment, athletics, or any other aspect of its educational programs or activities. Any inquiries regarding Title IX or the College's policies that prohibit discrimination should be directed to the Title IX Coordinator or the Department of Education Office for Civil Rights.

Start Date:

Date Posted: 9/13/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4835

New College of Florida

Rank: Assistant Professor in Constitutional Law and Political Theory

Subfield(s): Political Theory, American Government and Politics, Public Law

Specializations: Constitutional Law & Theory, Political Philosophy & Theory, Political Theory

Constitutional Law and Political Theory

New College of Florida invites applications for a tenure-track position as Assistant Professor focusing on Constitutional Law and Political Theory. Candidates should have a Ph.D. in Political Science, Philosophy, or related field, teaching experience and career interest in liberal arts teaching, and a vibrant research agenda. The successful candidate will offer a constitutional law sequence of courses in addition to contributions elsewhere in the curriculum. While we are open with regard to research and teaching interests in constitutional law and related areas, we would look especially favorably on candidates who focus on civil rights and civil liberties. The ability to teach courses in jurisprudence, gender and politics, or race and ethnic politics is strongly preferred as well. The candidate must have completed the Ph.D. by the start of employment in August 2019.

Situated on the Gulf Coast of Florida and Sarasota Bay, New College is a nationally recognized, highly selective public honors college with an 10:1 student/faculty ratio. Students are intellectually independent and highly motivated. Undergraduate research has a central role in the curriculum, and a senior thesis or project is required of all students. Students receive narrative evaluations in lieu of grades. We are committed to excellence in undergraduate teaching and research and encourage collaborative student-faculty scholarship. The teaching load is two courses per semester plus sponsoring individual and group tutorials. Faculty members also provide academic advising, supervise independent study projects, sponsor senior theses, and serve on baccalaureate committees. Professors are expected to maintain a program of research or creative work. We are particularly interested in candidates with a commitment to innovative undergraduate liberal arts teaching.

Candidates should apply on-line at <https://www.ncf.edu/employment> and upload the following: a cover letter; c.v.; statements regarding teaching philosophy, the candidate's contributions or approaches to supporting an inclusive culture and learning environment, and research interests; syllabi; teaching evaluations; one writing sample (article or chapter length); and unofficial graduate transcript(s). In addition, please ask at least three references to send signed letters on letterhead electronically to ConLawSearch@ncf.edu or in hard copy to: Constitutional Law Search, Division of Social Sciences, New College of Florida, 5800 Bay Shore Rd, Sarasota, FL 34243. According to Florida law, applications and meetings regarding applications are open to the public upon request. Applicants who need accommodations in order to participate in the selection process must notify the chair of the search committee 48 hours in advance of a meeting. For questions about the application process, please contact Ms. Kristi Fecteau at kfecteau@ncf.edu. Review of applications will begin on October 1, 2018 and continue until the position is filled.

Start Date: Summer 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 9/12/2018

Salary: Negotiable

eJobs ID: 4824

University of Wisconsin, Whitewater

Rank: Assistant Professor

Subfield(s): Public Law, Comparative Politics, International Relations

Specializations: International Law & Organizations, Civil Rights & Liberties, Constitutional Law & Theory

The Department of Political Science at the University of Wisconsin-Whitewater anticipates a tenure-track opening at the Assistant Professor level in public law beginning August 22, 2019. The position is open to candidates with teaching and research interests in comparative legal systems and/or international law. In addition, candidates who can expand course offerings in gender and law are highly desirable. Candidates will be expected to contribute to the department's general education curriculum, and experience in the use of online instructional technology is desirable. Criminal Background Check Required.

Qualifications:

Ph.D. in Political Science is required. ABD candidates may apply but must have their degree completed by the contract start date in August 2019; if not, they will be hired on a one-year contract with the understanding that their degree will be completed before January 2020 in advance of their first scheduled review. Demonstrated excellence in or commitment to teaching with an emphasis on promoting the success of undergraduate students, clear evidence of scholarly potential, commitment to working with diverse populations and serving as active member of the university community. Salary is commensurate with academic preparation and experience.

Complete applications received by October 14, 2018 are ensured full consideration. Applications received after that date may be given consideration at the discretion of the search committee. Application materials will be evaluated and the most qualified applicants will be invited to participate in phone and/or online screening interviews and/or on campus interviews.

For questions regarding this position, please contact:

Edward Gimbel
Associate Professor
Department of Political Science
Phone: 262-472-1532
email: gimbele@uww.edu

To Apply:

Complete applications will include online submission of the following materials:

- a letter of application addressing your qualifications for the position
- curriculum vitae
- evidence of teaching effectiveness
- all undergraduate and graduate transcripts
- three (3) letters of recommendation

(letters of recommendation may also be sent separately to POL-ISCIPL@uww.edu)

To apply and submit these documents online, please visit <http://www.uww.edu/employment>, and then follow the "Faculty and Instructional Staff" link on the next page. The Job ID is 14707, listed under "Tenure Track Faculty – College of Letters & Sciences."

If you have questions regarding this recruitment, or if you are not able to complete the application online due to a disability or system problem, please contact us at 262/472-1024 or hstudent@uww.edu.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: 10/14/2018

Date Posted: 9/11/2018

Salary: Negotiable

eJobs ID: 4809

University of Toronto at Scarborough

Rank: Public Law - Assistant Professor

The Department of Political Science at the University of Toronto Scarborough invites applications for a full-time, tenure stream appointment in Canadian Politics, with a specialization in Public Law. The appointment will be at the rank of Assistant Professor and will commence July 1, 2019.

Candidates must have a PhD in Political Science or a related discipline by the date of appointment or shortly thereafter. They must have a demonstrated record of excellence in research on the Canadian Judiciary and the Canadian Constitution. Candidates who examine the Canadian constitution and courts from a comparative perspective are encouraged to apply, as are candidates with expertise in these subjects who hold a PhD in a related discipline. We seek candidates whose research and teaching interests complement and strengthen our existing departmental strengths (see <http://www.utsc.utoronto.ca/~polisci/>).

The successful candidate will be expected to conduct innovative and independent research at the highest international level and establish an outstanding, externally funded research program. They will have an emerging record of scholarly accomplishment including publications in leading academic journals and/or with leading academic presses, or forthcoming publications meeting high international standards, or will provide evidence of excellence in research as demonstrated in presentations at significant conferences, awards and accolades for work in the field and strong endorsements by referees of high international standing.

Candidates must also demonstrate a commitment to excellence in undergraduate and graduate teaching, as well as pedagogy. Evidence of a commitment to excellence in teaching can be demonstrated by strong endorsements from referees, a teaching dossier that includes a coherent teaching philosophy statement that is linked to excellent pedagogical practice, sample course syllabi, a statement of teaching accomplishments, and excellent teaching evaluations submitted as part of the application.

The successful candidate will teach in the undergraduate program at the University of Toronto Scarborough, including in its Public Law program. Information about the Public Law program can be found at: <https://www.utsc.utoronto.ca/polisci/public-law>. We expect the successful candidate to take a leading role in developing the Public Law program.

The successful candidate will also be a member of the tri-campus Graduate Department of Political Science at the University of Toronto and expected to teach graduate courses and supervise graduate students in their areas of research expertise. Information about the graduate department of Political Science at the University of Toronto can be found at: <http://politics.utoronto.ca/>.

Salary will be commensurate with qualifications and experience.

The University of Toronto Scarborough is a research-intensive institution with an interdisciplinary commitment, a multicultural student body, and a modern campus. The University offers the opportunity to conduct research, teach and live in one of the most diverse cities in the world. The University also offers opportunities to work in a range of collaborative programs and centers of research. For more information about the Department of Political Science, University of Toronto Scarborough, please visit: <http://www.utoronto.ca/~polisci/>.

Equity and diversity are essential to academic excellence. We seek candidates who value diversity and whose research, teaching and service bear out our commitment to equity. Candidates are therefore also asked to submit a 1-2 page statement of contributions to equity and diversity, which might cover topics such as (but not limited to): research or teaching that incorporates a focus on underrepresented communities, the development of inclusive pedagogies, or the mentoring of students from underrepresented groups.

All qualified candidates are invited to apply by clicking <https://utoronto.taleo.net/careersection/10050/jobdetail.ftl>

Applications should include a cover letter, curriculum vitae, an article length (8000-10000 word) writing sample, teaching dossier (including a statement of teaching philosophy and accomplishments, sample course syllabi, and teaching evaluations), statement of contributions to equity and diversity, and a statement up to five pages in length outlining current and future research interests. Three letters of reference should be sent directly by the referee (on letterhead, signed and scanned) to the attention of Professor Grace Skogstad, Chair, at polppsearch@utsc.utoronto.ca by the closing date.

All application materials should be submitted online. Submission guidelines can be found at: <http://uoft.me/how-to-apply>. We recommend combining attached documents into one or two files in PDF/MS Word format.

The closing date for applications is November 15, 2018.

If you have questions about this position, please contact Professor Grace Skogstad at polppsearch@utsc.utoronto.ca.

The University of Toronto is strongly committed to diversity within its community and especially welcomes applications from racialized persons / persons of colour, women, Indigenous / Aboriginal People of North America, persons with disabilities, LGBTQ persons, and others who may contribute to the further diversification of ideas.

As part of your application, you will be asked to complete a brief Diversity Survey. This survey is voluntary. Any information directly related to you is confidential and cannot be accessed by search committees or human resources staff. Results will be aggregated for institutional planning purposes. For more information, please see <http://uoft.me/UP>.

All qualified candidates are encouraged to apply; however, Canadians and permanent residents will be given priority.

Start Date: Summer 2019

Application Deadline: 11/15/2018

Date Posted: 9/10/2018

Salary: Negotiable

eJobs ID: 4796

Clemson University

Rank: Assistant Professor / Public Law

Subfield(s): Public Law, American Government and Politics, Comparative Politics

Specializations: Constitutional Law & Theory, Civil Rights & Liberties, Judicial Politics

CLEMSON UNIVERSITY: Assistant Professor

Public Law. The Department of Political Science at Clemson University invites applications for a tenure-track position at the assistant professor level to begin in August 2019. We seek a broadly trained political scientist with a specialization in public law (constitutional law and/or judicial politics). Research emphasis may be in either the American or comparative context. In addition to maintaining an active research agenda, the successful candidate will reflect the Department's commitment to quality undergraduate and graduate teaching. The successful candidate will be expected to teach courses in American constitutional law and in his/her other areas of expertise.

Clemson University is the Land Grant University for the State of South Carolina and is located within the foothills of the Blue Ridge Mountains 30 miles southwest of Greenville. The Department offers a BA and BS in Political Science and a Ph.D. in Policy Studies.

A Ph.D. in Political Science by the time of employment is required. Salary is competitive. Applications should include a letter of interest, CV, transcripts of graduate work, three letters of recommendation, a writing sample, and evidence of teaching performance. Interested candidates should apply via Interfolio at the following job position: <https://apply.interfolio.com/54178>. To ensure full consideration, please submit materials by October 16, 2018.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: 10/16/2018

Date Posted: 9/5/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4766

University of Richmond

Rank: Tyler Haynes Professorship of Interdisciplinary Studies

Subfield(s): Public Law, American Government and Politics, Political Theory

Specializations: Civil Rights & Liberties, Constitutional Law & Theory, Judicial Politics

The University of Richmond Jepson School of Leadership Studies and School of Law invite nominations and applications for an endowed professorship to be shared between the two schools. We seek candidates with a distinguished record of scholarship and teaching, or a similarly distinguished record of public service, and we anticipate an appointment at the full professor level. The ideal candidate will have earned J.D. and Ph.D. degrees, although we are open to considering candidates who have one or the other. Our vision is for the Tyler Haynes Professor to conduct interdisciplinary research and teach in an interdisciplinary environment. To complement current strengths, we are especially interested in candidates whose research interests lie in the criminal justice system, the Supreme Court, healthcare, housing, immigration, social welfare, education policy, or institutional design and analysis, although any area of interest with crossover appeal to law and leadership will be considered. Successful candidates will teach courses in the Jepson School of Leadership Studies and the School of Law.

Applications and inquiries may be directed to Sandra Peart and Jessica Erickson at hayneschair@richmond.edu. Candidates should attach a cover letter and curriculum vitae. In their cover letters, candidates should address how their scholarly and teaching interests, or record of public service, connect to the study of leadership and law. Cover letters should also specify how the applicant might contribute to the imperatives of diversity and inclusion in the classroom.

The University of Richmond is a nationally ranked liberal arts university offering a unique combination of undergraduate and graduate degree programs in arts and sciences, business, leadership studies, law, and continuing studies. The Jepson School of Leadership Studies offers students the opportunity to major or minor in Leadership Studies and provides a challenging liberal arts curriculum designed to educate students for, and about, leadership. The Law School offers a curriculum that combines sophisticated legal theory with opportunities to put theory into practice, equipping students with the knowledge and skills they need to make valuable contributions to the legal system. For additional information about the two schools, see <http://jepson.richmond.edu/> and <https://law.richmond.edu/>.

The University of Richmond is committed to developing a diverse workforce and student body, and to modeling an inclusive campus community which values the expression of difference in ways that promote excellence in teaching, learning, personal development, and institutional success. Our academic community strongly encourages applications that are in keeping with this commitment.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 9/3/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4750

North Dakota State University

Rank: Tenure Track Assistant Professor of Political Science

Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Comparative Politics, Public Law

Specializations: Judicial Politics, Constitutional Law & Theory, Criminal Justice

The department of Criminal Justice & Political Science at NDSU is recruiting for a 9-month tenure-track position, at the rank of assistant professor, starting Fall 2019. We seek candidates with expertise in judicial politics and constitutional law, broadly construed. Successful applicants should be versed in American public law, but could conduct research in a broad variety of related areas, such as, but not limited to, the role of race, ethnicity, sexualities, and/or gender in justice systems, comparative judicial politics, international courts and legal structures, or the politics of policing in the US or abroad. This is a 45% research, 45% teaching, 10% service position. The teaching load is 2-2, with a course release in the first three years. Successful applicants will be prepared to teach core undergraduate pre-law courses on American judicial politics, such as judicial process and constitutional law, but will also have ample opportunity to teach specialized courses of their choosing. Tenure-track political science faculty advise undergraduate students and may have opportunities to contribute to the supervision of MA and PhD students in criminal justice. The department has minimal service expectations for pre-tenure faculty.

Minimum Qualifications

The minimum qualifications for the position are: 1) a Ph.D. degree in Political Science, or a related discipline, conferred no later than August, 2019, 2) evidence of research productivity, or potential to publish scholarship in peer reviewed journals, presses, and other outlets appropriate to one's field, 3) competence to teach American judicial process and constitutional law, and 4) effective written and oral communication skills.

Preferred Qualifications

We will give priority to candidates who 1) can provide substantial evidence of (potential) research productivity and quality, 2) have experience teaching American judicial process and/or constitutional law, 3) can provide substantial evidence of teaching effectiveness, and/or 4) have experience pursuing or obtaining external funding.

The Department

The Department of Criminal Justice & Political Science has 11 tenure-track faculty members and serves roughly 100 undergraduate majors in political science, and 200 undergraduate and 20 graduate students in criminal justice. Faculty in the department teach four classes per year. The NDSU community and national organizations have regularly recognized department faculty for excellence in research, teaching, and mentorship. While faculty contribute primarily to teaching, curriculum development, and advising within their respective programs, the department provides opportunities for interdisciplinary collaboration across fields, both in research and teaching. The college provides faculty with computing resources and tenure-track faculty within the department receive a yearly research and professionalization budget that covers travel to 1-2 conferences, and which faculty routinely supplement with College and University travel grants.

The University

North Dakota State University is a comprehensive, student-focused, land-grant, research university with more than 14,000 students from 47 states and 79 countries. NDSU was the first university in North Dakota to be named to the most research-intensive category by the Carnegie Commission on Higher Education and is listed in the National Science Foundation's top 100 in several areas, including agricultural sciences, social sciences, physical sciences, chemistry, psychology, and computer sciences.

NDSU values faculty members' work-life balance and the needs of dual-career couples. The College of Arts, Humanities, & Social Sciences' guidelines on family-related reassignment of duties are available at <https://www.ndsu.edu/fileadmin/ahss/family2010.pdf> and University policy on extension of the probationary period for personal or family reasons is available at <https://www.ndsu.edu/fileadmin/policy/352.pdf>. NDSU is an ADVANCE institution and has an a Focus on Resources for Women's Advancement, Recruitment/Retention, and Development (FORWARD) program, that, as part of its efforts, has developed procedures and funding streams for dual career hiring at NDSU: <https://www.ndsu.edu/forward/>.

Applicants can find more information about NDSU at <http://www.ndsu.edu>.

The Community

NDSU is located in Fargo-Moorhead (F-M), a pleasant, safe, diversifying, and growing community of approximately 240,000 people. As the largest population center in the region, F-M is a hub of entertainment, finance, information technology, and medical services for a large geographic area including the state of North Dakota, and western Minnesota. Two universities (NDSU and Minnesota State University Moorhead) and one private liberal arts college (Concordia College) are located in F-M. The F-M area has a healthy economy: ND has one of the lowest unemployment rates in the U.S., good public schools, low crime rates, ample shopping, local theatre and music companies, several art galleries, semi-professional baseball and hockey, and Division I intercollegiate athletics. Hector International Airport in Fargo is convenient and is served by several major airlines. Sun, clear skies, and clean air predominate year round. Visiting nearby northern Minnesota lakes, canoeing, camping, cycling, softball, and soccer are popular in summer; winter pastimes include cross-country skiing, skating, and snowmobiling. The city has an excellent park system that includes several quality golf courses and bicycle/running/ski paths along the Red River, which divides Fargo-Moorhead. Fargo is an hour drive from a major resort area in the Minnesota "lakes country" and two hours from scenic Itasca State Park, where you will find the headwaters of the Mississippi river. Central and western North Dakota offer beautiful hiking, camping, fishing, hunting, and related opportunities in the Badlands, national grasslands, and numerous river valleys. Winnipeg, Manitoba is less than a four-hour drive to the north and Minneapolis-St. Paul is an equal distance to the south-east.

Application

Applicants must submit a cover letter, curriculum vitae, statement of research interests, writing sample, statement of teaching philosophy, evidence of teaching effectiveness (e.g., syllabi, course materials, evidence of participation in teaching professionalization activities, and, if available, evaluations by peers and/or mentors; please do not include student evaluations of teaching), and contact information for 3 professional references. All application materials must be submitted online at <https://jobs.ndsu.edu/postings/9576>.

NDSU especially encourages applications from women and members of underrepresented groups.

We will begin reviewing applications on October 1, and will continue to accept and review applications until the position is filled. The department will provide search updates through APSA eJobs' update capability, and on Twitter, using the #PSJMInfo hashtag.

Potential applicants may direct questions about the search to Dan Pemstein, the search committee chair, at daniel.pemstein@ndsu.edu.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 8/27/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4706

Winthrop University

Rank: Assistant Professor of Political Science

Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Public Administration, Public Law

Specializations: American Politics, Judicial Politics, Constitutional Law & Theory

The Department of Political Science is seeking engaging teachers and active scholars to join our diverse scholarly community by applying for a full-time, tenure-track Assistant Professor position in American Politics, specifically in the areas of Public Administration/Public Policy and National Institutions. Strong preference will be given to candidates who can teach the Judiciary and/or Constitutional Law. We are seeking a dedicated and experienced teacher with demonstrated scholarly achievement to join our distinguished department. The Winthrop Department of Political Science boasts award-winning faculty who are recognized for the quality of their teaching, research, and service. The department also has three affiliated programs: (1) the 43-year old Model UN Program; (2) the Center for Public Opinion and Policy Research, which is home to the nationally renowned Winthrop Poll; and (3) the John C. West Forum on Politics and Policy, a major civic engagement initiative at the University. The department also collaborates with the Master of Liberal Arts program to provide a graduate Concentration in Political and Civic Engagement. Winthrop University is an Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action employer. Women, minorities, persons with disabilities, and veterans are encouraged to apply.

Major Responsibilities:

- Teach a variety of courses in American Politics, including Public Administration, Public Policy, The Judiciary, Constitutional Law: Federalism, and/or Constitutional Law: Civil Rights and Civil Liberties. Strong preference will be given to candidates with teaching and/or research expertise in multiple areas of need, including Media and Politics and Women and US Politics.
- Teach both introductory and advanced courses in your areas of specialization, including graduate courses in our Political and Civic Engagement Concentration within the Master of Liberal Arts Program
- Teach a team-taught senior capstone course in Political Science
- Ability to conduct media interviews on commentary about campaigns and elections and analysis of American political institutions
- Ability to collaborate with the Center for Public Opinion and Policy Research a plus
- Teach courses in Winthrop University's innovative General Education Program, including American Government, which fulfills the Constitution Requirement
- Participate in departmental, college, and university service, including student advising
- Undertake research in the discipline and promote undergraduate research
- Be an interested and energetic participant in an active department
- Other duties as assigned

Required Qualifications:

- The Ph.D. in Political Science, Public Administration, Public Policy, or a related field is required for appointment at the assistant professor level. A successful candidate who is ABD at the time of employment will be appointed to a non-tenure track position as an instructor. The successful candidate will also be required to undergo a background check prior to hiring
- Specialization in areas among those listed above
- Evidence in the area of Student Intellectual Development, including teaching excellence and commitment to student learning
- Evidence in the area of Scholarly Activity, including an ongoing program of research and publication
- Evidence in the area of Professional Stewardship, including engagement with the discipline, profession, campus, and community
- Preference is given to candidates with experience teaching the courses listed above

Work Environment: This position requires regular contact with students, faculty, and staff on campus. Additionally, the successful candidate will be required to have the ability to work with the outside community, local public schools, the media, other universities, and international schools/companies/partners.

Background Check Statement: Winthrop University is committed to providing a safe campus community. Winthrop conducts background investigations for applicants being considered for employment. Background investigations include reference checks, a criminal history record check, and when appropriate, a financial (credit) report or driving history check.

Employment Conditions: A nine-month, full-time tenure track appointment with faculty rank. Salary is competitive and dependent on academic qualifications.

Position Availability: August 16, 2019

Application Timeline and Procedures:

- Apply Here Now: apply.interfolio.com/53603
- Review of applicants will begin on October 1, 2018 and will continue until the position is filled.
- For more information about the position, please see <http://www.winthrop.edu/hr/>.

Required Materials for Online Application When Available:

- Application letter, with evidence of major responsibilities and required qualifications
- Curriculum vitae, including names, titles, addresses, phone numbers, and e-mail addresses, if available, of at least three persons who know the candidate professionally
- Sample of representative written work (article- or chapter- length)
- Statement of teaching philosophy, including evidence of excellence in teaching and commitment to student learning
- Three professional letters of reference
- All graduate transcripts and evidence of highest degree achieved (unofficial transcripts are acceptable for initial review; official transcripts are required prior to final appointment)

Interfolio Application Link: apply.interfolio.com/53603

Founded in 1886, Winthrop University in Rock Hill, South Carolina, offers its 6,000-plus undergraduate and graduate students an educational experience that blends liberal arts, professional programs, global awareness, and civic engagement. In its colleges of Arts and Sciences, Business Administration, Education, and Visual and Performing Arts, Winthrop embraces only those programs and activities that can be delivered at an exemplary level. Winthrop is well known for its inclusive and supportive campus environment, with University College supporting programs in both academic and student affairs. Winthrop University is achieving national stature as a competitive and distinctive co-educational, public, residential, comprehensive, values-oriented institution. The values of service, excellence, diversity, community, and leadership provide the foundation for Winthrop's continuing development and shape Winthrop's continuing success. Numerous national accolades reflect the sustained high quality and value of the Winthrop Experience, including the most recent U.S. News & World Report's ranking of Winthrop as one of the top-10 public comprehensive universities in the South. Winthrop is an active member of the Rock Hill community and recognized as a key component of the region's economic resurgence. In addition, Winthrop is located just 30 minutes south of Charlotte, North Carolina, ranked by U.S. News & World Report in 2018 as one of the top 25 best places to live in the country. For more information, visit us at www.winthrop.edu.

Winthrop University is an Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action employer and does not discriminate against any individual or group of individuals on the basis of age, color, disability, gender, national origin, race, religion, sexual orientation, gender identity, or veteran status. Women, minorities, and persons with disabilities are encouraged to apply.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 8/14/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4584

Muhlenberg College

Rank: Assistant Professor

Subfield(s): Public Law, American Government and Politics, Other

The Department of Political Science at Muhlenberg College invites applications for a tenure-track, Assistant Professor to begin August 2019. The successful candidate will be broadly trained in political science with a primary interest in American public law. We are open to candidates with a variety of substantive teaching and research interests, for example, constitutional law and theory; judicial politics; urban politics, civil rights; law and society; criminal justice politics; democracy, law, and race; feminist legal studies; global legal studies; immigration. We are especially interested in candidates who desire to work across subfield and disciplinary boundaries and welcome a variety of methodological approaches. Teaching responsibilities include three courses per semester to include one or two classes in American constitutional law or constitutional theory.

Ideal candidates will hold a PhD in Political Science by August 2019. Successful candidates will demonstrate a commitment to excellence in liberal arts undergraduate teaching and mentoring students from all backgrounds (including first-generation students, low-income students, racial and ethnic minorities, women, LGBTQ, etc.), the potential for scholarly publications, and effective written and oral communication. We are especially interested in candidates who have a long-term interest in helping to develop and advise students in Muhlenberg's pre-law program.

Interested candidates should submit a cover letter describing their teaching and research interests, a curriculum vitae, sample teaching materials (e.g. sample syllabi, a statement describing potential courses, and/or a statement of teaching philosophy), graduate transcripts, and contact information for three references. Candidates should also submit a separate statement describing how they will enhance the diversity of offerings and educational experiences in our department as well as contribute to the College's efforts to become a more diverse and inclusive community.

An equal opportunity employer, Muhlenberg College is committed to recruiting and retaining outstanding faculty and staff from racial and ethnic groups that have been traditionally underrepresented in higher education. For additional information about Muhlenberg's commitment to diversity and inclusion, applicants can find the latest updates to the College's Diversity Strategic Plan at: <http://www.muhlenberg.edu/main/aboutus/president/initiatives/diversityatmuhlenberg/>.

Complete applications should be sent via email as a single PDF document, addressed to Lanethea Mathews-Schultz, Political Science Department Chair to: pscsearch@muhlenberg.edu. In order to receive full consideration, applications must be received by September 17, 2018.

Founded in 1848, Muhlenberg College is an independent, coeducational residential college of liberal arts and sciences located in eastern Pennsylvania's Lehigh Valley. Allentown is a diverse city of 116,000, and along with Bethlehem and Easton, anchors the third-largest metropolitan area in Pennsylvania. The region is home to a vibrant arts scene, a nationally unique parks system, and a rich blend of cuisine and diverse restaurants. In addition, Allentown is within close proximity to both New York City and Philadelphia.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 7/30/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4457

Towson University

Rank: Assistant Professor of Constitutional Law and Legal Philosophy

DEPARTMENT OF POLITICAL SCIENCE – TOWSON UNIVERSITY

ACADEMIC YEAR 2019-2020

Areas of Specialization: Constitutional Law, Legal Philosophy

The Department of Political Science at Towson University invites applications for a tenure-track position at the Assistant Professor level. The position entails teaching general survey courses in law and upper-level courses focused on constitutional case law and jurisprudence. Within two years, the successful candidate will be expected to assume the directorship of the Law and American Civilization (LWAC) program, an interdisciplinary program housed within the department. Applicants with Ph.D. in hand at the time of application will receive preference, although ABDs may be considered if the degree will be completed by the spring of 2019. Applicants must possess a strong commitment to excellence in teaching and show a solid potential for a productive scholarly program. Interest in pursuing external funding is desirable. The teaching load is six courses during the first year, but will rise to seven courses thereafter. Directorship of LWAC will count as a course. Applicants should send: letter of intent; curriculum vitae; one sample of written work; evidence of teaching effectiveness; syllabi of any courses taught; official transcripts of all graduate and undergraduate work; and three letters of recommendation to Dr. Cindy Cates, Department of Political Science, Towson University, 8000 York Road, Towson, MD 21252. Please reference search: CLA-N-3202.

Application review will begin in October. Initial committee review will end on December 15, 2018.

Towson University is the second largest institution in the University System of Maryland. It is located just outside Baltimore and is only an hour from Washington, D.C. by car or train. Towson is an equal opportunity employer and has a strong institutional commitment to diversity.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: 12/15/2018

Date Posted: 6/27/2018

Salary: $60,000 - $69,999

eJobs ID: 4333

PUBLIC POLICY

Harvard University

Rank: Inequality in America Initiative Postdoctoral Fellowship

Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Public Administration, Public Policy

Organization: Harvard University

Unit: Division of Social Science | Faculty of Arts and Sciences

Position: Inequality in America Initiative Postdoctoral Fellowship

Deadline: 3 December 2018

Description:

The Inequality in America Initiative seeks applications from recent doctoral degree recipients interested in joining a multidisciplinary network of Harvard researchers working to address the manifold challenges of inequality. This program is intended to seed new research directions; facilitate collaboration and mentorship across disciplines; develop new leaders in the study of inequality; and deepen teaching expertise on the subject.

The fellowship is a two-year postdoctoral training program, with an optional third year conditional on program director approval and independent funding. The award includes $65,000/year plus fringe; office space; $2500 for computer equipment; a $10,000 research account; up to $2500/yr for research travel; up to $3000 for relocation.

The program director will pair each fellow with two Harvard faculty mentors (including one from outside the fellow's primary discipline), participating in one or more of five major research clusters:

- Mobility and Migration
- Science, Technology, Education, and Health
- Work, Family, and Opportunity
- Governance, Citizenship, and Social Justice
- America Inequality, Globally

Applicants to the 2019-20 program must have received a doctorate or equivalent terminal degree in May 2016 or later; applicants without a terminal degree must demonstrate that they will receive one by August 2019.

See full details at <https://inequalityinamerica.fas.harvard.edu/postdoctoral-program>

Start Date:

Application Deadline: 12/3/2018

Date Posted: 10/31/2018

Salary: $60,000 - $69,999

eJobs ID: 5085

The Brookings Institution

Rank: Rubenstein Fellow, Governance Studies (Job ID: 2018-1897)

The Brookings Institution

Equal-Opportunity Employer: It is Brookings policy to provide equal employment opportunity for all of its employees and applicants without regard to their actual or perceived race, color, religion, sex, age, disability, national origin, ancestry, sexual orientation, marital status, personal appearance, citizenship status, family responsibilities, gender identity or expression, genetic information, matriculation, political affiliation, veteran status, or any other prohibited basis of discrimination as required by law.

Program Governance Studies

Job Function Fellowship

Posted Date 2018-10-25

Job ID 2018-1897

Salary Commensurate with experience

Overview

David M. Rubenstein Fellowship in Governance Studies

Brookings is pleased to announce the second round of the David M. Rubenstein Fellowship Program. The challenges facing the United States and the world require rigorous, innovative, evidence-based research that generate fresh thinking and innovative policy solutions. Through this program, Brookings is seeking to increase diversity in our scholarly community by recruiting the next generation of rising stars and creative thinkers to help achieve our mission of improving governance in the United States and across the world.

For the 2019 class, planned to start in September 2019, the Institution is again looking for ten outstanding early- to mid-career scholars and policy experts with a diverse array of backgrounds, experience, and scholarship expertise. Each Rubenstein Fellow will have a primary affiliation with one of Brookings's five research programs and candidates should submit an application to the program(s) he or she is interested in.

In addition to the program's research priorities as discussed below, Brookings is placing an emphasis on policy researchers with a background in artificial intelligence, emerging technology, and/or data science with public policy. Strong candidates may be as conversant about deep reinforcement learning as they are labor policy, or as familiar with cryptography as they are international security. Alternately, they may use novel data (e.g., satellite imagery, social media posts, IRS records) or methodologies (e.g., machine learning, survey experiments) to gain insight into pressing policy questions. In both cases, strong candidates will draw on deep technical expertise to inform their policy research, and demonstrate a clear ability and willingness to work at the intersection of artificial intelligence, emerging technology, data science, and/or public policy.

Rubenstein Fellows will have the opportunity to enhance the policy impact of their ideas and academic achievements by working with Brookings's network of scholars and experts, relying on the Institution's abilities to develop and promote research to the policy community and the wider public.

Rubenstein Fellows will diversify, augment, and complement the core policy research expertise of the more than 100 resident scholars at Brookings.

Program Overview

The Governance Studies (GS) program at Brookings aims to be the leading, independent voice in the domestic policymaking sphere. Though analyzing public policy, contemporary governance challenges, and political institutions and processes, Governance Studies aims to inform debate and provide policymakers with tools and ideas to improve institutional governance at the national level.

The Governance Studies program is accepting applications for two David M. Rubenstein Fellows with a strong background in either: 1) American democracy, U.S. political institutions, U.S. domestic policy, transparency, rule of law, anti-corruption, race, and equity; or 2) artificial intelligence, machine learning, technology policy, and emerging technologies.

Responsibilities

Under the supervision of the Vice President for Governance Studies, Rubenstein Fellows in Governance Studies will publish in-depth, peer-reviewed monographs and research papers as well as short opinion pieces, blog posts, and other products to promote their ideas in the public policy debate. Rubenstein Fellows will also participate in public and private events, raise money for research projects, interact with the media, and contribute to the overall intellectual life of the Institution.

Qualifications

Successful candidates will hold an advanced degree in political science, sociology, public policy, artificial intelligence, machine learning, information science, or a related discipline and have a record of, or demonstrated potential for, distinguished work through blending academic excellence with experience in the public or private sectors. The individual must have the ability and competence to conduct cutting-edge research and outreach to impact public policy.

(The program does not fund pre- or postdoctoral research, work toward a degree, or the completion of projects for which substantial progress has been made prior to the fellowship period.)

Application Process and Selection Timeline

Interested candidates who meet the program's eligibility requirements should apply online and submit:

- A curriculum vitae (CV), including a list of publications, with a cover letter describing their research interests and priorities, and
- A short piece of written work (no more than 5 pages) that highlights the candidate's capabilities.

When you apply, please attach your CV and cover letter as one document and upload your writing sample as a separate attachment.

For full consideration, please apply by December 17, 2018. Candidates who advance will be invited to interview and present their work and research in January, 2019. Following interviews, the GS Research Vice President will recommend finalists for selection by the President. Official announcement of awards will be made by March 31, 2019; however, some selections may be made in advance.

Selection is based on a combination of the following criteria: depth and breadth of professional experience, quality and rigor of scholarly research, and a commitment to upholding Brookings's core values of quality, independent, and impactful policy research that seeks to promote the public good.

Additional Information:

Successful completion of a background investigation is required for employment at Brookings.

Brookings offers a competitive salary and generous benefits package and is an equal opportunity employer that is committed to promoting a diverse and inclusive workplace. Applications are welcome from all qualified individuals regardless of race, color, national origin, gender, sexual orientation, age, religion, physical or mental disability, marital status, veteran status, or other factors protected by law.

Apply Here: <http://www.Click2apply.net/552cskptybprcphr>

PI105198840

Start Date:

Date Posted: 10/31/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 5084

Berry CollegeRank: Tenure-Track Assistant Professor of Government and International Studies*Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Comparative Politics, Public Policy

The Department of Government and International Studies at Berry College invites applications for a Tenure Track Assistant Professor to begin in August 2019. The successful candidate will be a scholar-teacher-mentor with the following teaching responsibilities: a department Foundations (general education) course in American or comparative government, Social Science Research Methods for majors, and upper-level courses on health politics/policy or environmental politics/policy, with opportunities to teach in our Honors Program. Preference will be given to those with interdisciplinary interests that complement related college programs. The department is committed to offering an excellent undergraduate education that emphasizes the development of strong writing and critical thinking skills that will prepare students for entry into the workforce or for advanced study. We are especially interested in candidates whose teaching and scholarship will add diversity to the college curriculum and engage the community, including by cultivating internship opportunities. Candidates from historically underrepresented groups are especially encouraged to apply. All applicants should describe in their cover letter how they would help recruit and support students from underrepresented groups.

Minimum Qualifications: PhD required by May 2019. An active research agenda, an interest in encouraging and mentoring undergraduate research, and a demonstrated commitment to teaching undergraduates is essential.

Located on more than 26,000 acres in northwest Georgia in a setting of great natural beauty, Berry College has an enrollment of about 2,000 undergraduate students. The college is located 65 miles northwest of Atlanta, Georgia, and 65 miles south of Chattanooga, Tennessee. As a comprehensive liberal-arts college, Berry provides an integrated education that unites a challenging academic program with opportunities for spiritual and moral growth, work experience, and significant service to others.

Candidates should submit a letter of application, along with a current CV, copies of transcripts, statements of teaching philosophy, and three letters of reference to Darla Fox, Department of Government and International Studies, Berry College, P.O. Box 405010, Mt. Berry, GA 30149. Email inquiries: esands@berry.edu. For more information on our program, please visit our website at: www.berry.edu/academics/humanities/government/

Review of applications will begin December 1, 2018 and materials must be received by that date to receive full consideration.

Persons applying for employment with Berry College may be required to submit a full national background check. Berry College is an Equal Opportunity Employer.

Start Date: Fall 2019Application Deadline: Open until FilledDate Posted: 10/25/2018Salary: $50,000 - $59,999eJobs ID: 5066Berry College*Rank: Tenure-Track Assistant Professor of Government and International Studies*Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Comparative Politics, Public Policy

The Department of Government and International Studies at Berry College invites applications for a Tenure Track Assistant Professor to begin in August 2019. The successful candidate will be a scholar-teacher-mentor with the following teaching responsibilities: a department Foundations (general education) course in American or comparative government, Social Science Research Methods for majors, and upper-level courses on health politics/policy or environmental politics/policy, with opportunities to teach in our Honors Program. Preference will be given to those with interdisciplinary interests that complement related college programs. The department is committed to offering an excellent undergraduate education that emphasizes the development of strong writing and critical thinking skills that will prepare students for entry into the workforce or for advanced study. We are especially interested in candidates whose teaching and scholarship will add diversity to the college curriculum and engage the community, including by cultivating internship opportunities. Candidates from historically underrepresented groups are especially encouraged to apply. All applicants should describe in their cover letter how they would help recruit and support students from underrepresented groups.

Minimum Qualifications: PhD required by May 2019. An active research agenda, an interest in encouraging and mentoring undergraduate research, and a demonstrated commitment to teaching undergraduates is essential.

Located on more than 26,000 acres in northwest Georgia in a setting of great natural beauty, Berry College has an enrollment of about 2,000 undergraduate students. The college is located 65 miles northwest of Atlanta, Georgia, and 65 miles south of Chattanooga, Tennessee. As a comprehensive liberal-arts college, Berry provides an integrated education that unites a challenging academic program with opportunities for spiritual and moral growth, work experience, and significant service to others.

Candidates should submit a letter of application, along with a current CV, copies of transcripts, statements of teaching philosophy, and three letters of reference to Darla Fox, Department of Government and International Studies, Berry College, P.O. Box 405010, Mt. Berry, GA 30149. Email inquiries: esands@berry.edu. For more information on our program, please visit our website at: www.berry.edu/academics/humanities/government/

Review of applications will begin December 1, 2018 and materials must be received by that date to receive full consideration.

Persons applying for employment with Berry College may be required to submit a full national background check. Berry College is an Equal Opportunity Employer.

Start Date: Fall 2019Application Deadline: Open until FilledDate Posted: 10/25/2018Salary: $50,000 - $59,999eJobs ID: 5067

RISDRank: Assistant Professor in Environmental Studies*Subfield(s): International Relations, Comparative Politics, Public Policy

Position Description

The Department of History, Philosophy and the Social Sciences (HPSS) at the Rhode Island School of Design (RISD) invites applications for a full-time Assistant Professor in Environmental Studies starting in the fall of 2019.

Rhode Island School of Design recognizes diversity and inclusivity as fundamental to its learning community and integral to an art and design education. We welcome candidates whose experience in teaching, scholarship, or service has prepared them to contribute to our commitment to diversity and excellence.

We are seeking a scholar whose work speaks to the social dynamics inherent in environmental and sustainability issues, and has an interest in the ways that art and design intersect with socio-environmental issues. The ideal candidate has specialty in political ecology, environmental racism and environmental justice, environmental ethics, technology and nature, philosophy of nature, and/or possible expertise in GIS and other forms of mapping. We welcome colleagues whose work engages with historically underrepresented communities. All candidates should demonstrate evidence of quality teaching. The successful candidate will be expected to contribute to the undergraduate Nature-Culture-Sustainability Studies (NCSS) concentration and to the newly developed Nature-Culture-Sustainability Studies Master's degree.

Department /RISD Description

RISD is an undergraduate and graduate college of art and design with approximately 2,400 students, 2000 of whom are undergraduates. HPSS is a multidisciplinary department within the Division of Liberal Arts. Our students are art and design majors who take one third of their courses in the Liberal Arts. RISD offers unique opportunities for collaborative research and teaching with faculty and students in art and design disciplines (e.g., industrial design, apparel, textiles, architecture, film, etc.).

RISD supports faculty professional practice with sabbaticals, pre-critical review leave, conference funds, and professional development grants. RISD has a critical review process, which is very similar to the tenure process. For more information about RISD and to apply online, please visit www.risd.edu/jobs.

Faculty Responsibilities

Full-time faculty in the HPSS Department teach 6 courses a year, including both undergraduate and graduate seminars (capped at 15), lecture courses (capped at 30), and first year seminar courses (capped at 21). In addition to teaching, fulltime faculty are expected to serve on college committees, advise students, participate in curriculum development and other departmental activities and projects, and contribute to the vibrancy of the intellectual life of the college. We seek candidates who demonstrate quality undergraduate teaching, can teach broadly in their field, and represent various aspects of their discipline within the department.

Union Yes Pre-employment Requirement

The successful candidate will be required to meet our pre-employment background screening requirements.

Special Instructions to Applicants

Please attach the following to the appropriate links and the section labeled "Documents Needed to Apply":

- 1) a cover letter including an expression of interest
- 2) curriculum vitae

- 3) a research statement (attach to tab labeled "Other 1")
- 4) an example of scholarly work (attach to tab labeled "Writing Sample")
- 5) a statement of teaching philosophy (that speaks to how you attend to diversity and inclusivity as fundamental to a learning community and provides evidence of teaching excellence)
- 6) a list of potential course descriptions (attach to tab labeled "Course Proposal")
- 7) at least one example syllabus

If you are selected as a semi-finalist, we will require letters of recommendation from your three references.

Review of applications will begin immediately and continue until the position is filled. Candidates who submit their materials by November 18, 2018 are assured full consideration.

EEO Statement

RISD is an Equal Opportunity Employer. Employment decisions are made without regard to race, color, religion, sex, age, national origin, disability, veteran status, sexual orientation, gender identity or expression, genetics, or any other protected characteristic as established by law.

Required Qualifications

The suitable candidate will have undergraduate teaching experience and a broad background in environmental social sciences and/or humanities. Candidates should have completed a Ph.D. in an appropriate field of the environmental social sciences or humanities (e.g., environmental studies, geography, sociology, philosophy, psychology, or other relevant disciplines) by July 1, 2019.

Apply Here: <http://www.Click2Apply.net/swv7hhrcn98hn4xm>

PI105004090

Start Date: Fall 2019

Date Posted: 10/23/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 5052

Harvard UniversityRank: Harvard University Environmental Fellows Program*Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Public Law, Public Policy

APPLICATION DEADLINE: JANUARY 16, 2019

The Harvard University Center for the Environment created the Environmental Fellows program to enable recent doctorate recipients to use and expand Harvard's extraordinary resources to tackle complex environmental problems. The Environmental Fellows will work for two years with Harvard faculty members in any school or department while also strengthening connections across the University's academic disciplines.

The Award:

The fellowship includes a salary of $68,000 per year, employee health insurance eligibility, up to $2,500 reimbursement for relocation expenses, and a $2,500 annual allowance for travel and other professional expenses.

The Harvard University Center for the Environment expects to award approximately six fellowships for the 2019 cohort. The Center will organize a co-curricular program to ensure that the fellows get to know each other and each other's work. All fellows will attend biweekly dinners with their colleagues, faculty members, and guests.

Program Requirements:

- Candidates for 2019 Environmental Fellowships should have received their terminal degree between May 2015 and August 2019. (Fellows must have filed their dissertation before starting their appointment in September 2019.)
- Candidates with a doctorate or equivalent in any field are eligible, and they may propose research projects in any discipline. Applicants without a Ph.D. may apply if they have studied in fields where the Ph.D. is not the typical terminal degree. All successful candidates will be able to demonstrate experience performing scholarly research.
- Each candidate must secure a commitment from one or more Harvard faculty members to serve as a mentor and to provide office or lab space for the two-year fellowship.
- Candidates may have received their degrees at any university in the world. Foreign nationals are eligible for fellowships, though study at Harvard requires proficiency in English.
- Candidates who received terminal degrees from Harvard, and post-docs currently working at Harvard are eligible for the fellowship provided their research and host arrangements take them in new directions and forge new connections within the University. Harvard candidates should not propose to continue to work with the same professors or lab groups with whom they are currently associated. No candidate should propose to work extensively with his or her thesis advisor.
- Harvard is an affirmative action, equal opportunity employer.
- Successful candidates should be prepared to commit to work at Harvard for the full two years of the fellowship. This fellowship requires residency in the Cambridge area and any fieldwork trip must be scheduled for the summer or January recess.

Application Requirements:

1. Please complete the online application form found at [http://environment.harvard.edu/environmental-fellows-program by January 16, 2019](http://environment.harvard.edu/environmental-fellows-program by%20January%2016,%202019) and attach the relevant supporting documents as PDFs:
 - a. curriculum vitae including list of publications;
 - b. detailed research proposal where applicants should explain their specific reasons for applying to a Harvard residential environmental fellowship (maximum of five pages, references counted separately). Note: While applicants should discuss the proposal with their potential faculty hosts, the final product should clearly be the work of the applicant; and
 - c. up to three publications/writing samples.
2. Three letters of reference, including one from the applicant's dissertation adviser.
3. A letter of support is also required from the applicant's host committing to serve as a mentor and explaining his or her commitment to the proposed research, including the provision of office or lab space. Hosts should send their letters directly to the attention of James Clem at the Center at environmental_fellows@harvard.edu.

If you have questions about the fellowship or application process, please contact:

James Clem
Harvard University Center for the Environment
26 Oxford Street, 4th Floor
Cambridge MA 02138

617-495-0368
james_clem@harvard.edu

Start Date: Fall 2019
Application Deadline: 1/16/2019
Date Posted: 10/19/2018
Salary: $60,000 - $69,999
eJobs ID: 5039

Stanford University

Rank: Associate Professor/Professor
Subfield(s): Public Policy, Other, Other

Stanford University invites applications for an associate or full professor position affiliated with the Program in Feminist, Gender and Sexuality Studies (FGSS) and located within a humanities or social science department to begin September 1, 2019. The successful candidate will teach two of their four courses within, and contribute to the leadership of, FGSS. We are particularly interested in candidates whose research and teaching consider the ways race, gender, class, and sexuality intersect and who have experience with interdisciplinary programs. Appointing departments include but are not limited to History, English, Philosophy, Political Science, and Sociology.

Applicants must post a cover letter, a curriculum vitae that includes a list of publications, a teaching statement and a statement of current and future research interests. All materials must be submitted electronically to Academic Jobs Online. The committee will begin reading applications on November 30, 2018, but may consider files received after this date. Interested individuals should apply online to: AcademicJobsOnline <https://academicjobsonline.org/ajo/jobs/12392> Email inquiries and questions may be directed to Monica Moore (mpmoore@stanford.edu) or by mail to:

Faculty Search Program in Feminist, Gender, and Sexuality Studies
450 Serra Mall, Bldg. 460 Stanford, CA 94305

Stanford is an equal employment opportunity and affirmative action employer. All qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to race, color, religion, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, national origin, disability, protected veteran status, or any other characteristic protected by law. Stanford also welcomes applications from others who would bring additional dimensions to the University's research, teaching and clinical missions.

Start Date: Fall 2019
Application Deadline: 11/30/2018
Date Posted: 10/16/2018
Salary: Negotiable
eJobs ID: 5017

University of San Francisco

Rank: Assistant Professor, Tenure-Track, M.A in Urban and Public Affairs

Assistant Professor, Tenure-Track, M.A in Urban and Public Affairs

University of San Francisco

Job Summary:

The M.A. in Urban and Public Affairs (UPA) at the University of San Francisco invites applications for a tenure-track position at the Assistant Professor level beginning in August 2019. UPA is a dynamic, interdisciplinary program that trains students in public policy, urban studies and grassroots organizing, examining ways in which policy and community engagement can effect positive change.

We are seeking applications from candidates with a Ph.D. in Public Policy, Urban Studies or related fields, whose work centers on urban development, housing, and homelessness in the Bay Area. Preference will be given to applicants with a background in California Studies through the lens of race and/ or gender and political economy. We especially welcome applications from scholars with an activist perspective, who can articulate a local connection with their scholarly work and are able to bring community-engaged learning into their teaching.

Job Responsibilities:

The successful candidate must be able to teach core courses in the UPA program, including Research Methods, as well as the Introduction to Urban Studies course in the Urban Studies undergraduate program and elective courses in their area of expertise at the undergraduate and graduate level. The standard teaching load for this position at USF is two 4-unit courses per semester with an additional third course every fourth semester (2-2-2-3 over two years).

In addition, the successful candidate will be expected to direct the UPA program for at least one three-year term. Program Directors receive some course release time for their administrative duties. Additionally, all faculty are expected to engage in service to their department, college, and university, as well as maintain an active research program that engages both undergraduate and graduate students when possible.

Minimum Requirements:

Applicants must have completed a Ph.D. in a relevant field by August 31, 2019 as well as have a minimum of three years of experience in directing an academic program. A strong record of teaching at the university level, evidence of scholarship, and an understanding of and commitment to support the mission of the University of San Francisco are required. In addition, successful applicants should demonstrate a commitment to public scholarship and engagement with the local community. Preference will be given to candidates who possess a strong Bay Area network for the purpose of placing students in relevant internships.

Additional Knowledge, Skills, and Abilities:

For information on how to apply, please visit the following link: <http://apptrkr.com/1315432>

EEO Policy

The University of San Francisco is an equal opportunity institution of higher education. As a matter of policy, the University does not discriminate in employment, educational services and academic programs on the basis of an individual's race, color, religion, religious creed, ancestry, national origin, age (except minors), sex, gender identity, sexual orientation, marital status, medical condition (cancer-related and genetic-related) and disability, and the other bases prohibited by law. The University reasonably accommodates qualified individuals with disabilities under the law.

Copyright ©2017 Jobelephant.com Inc. All rights reserved.

<https://www.jobelephant.com/jeid-d2aa6862ba68284491ab76582ca678f7>

Start Date:

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 10/16/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 5022

New York University

Rank: Assistant Professor of Public Service

Subfield(s): Public Policy, Public Administration, Methodology

Specializations: Environmental Policy, Economic Policy, Research Methods

Description:

The Robert F. Wagner Graduate School of Public Service at New York University invites applications for a tenure-track assistant professor position with appointment to begin September 1, 2019. We are particularly interested in candidates with expertise and a record of research in political science with application to the environment. Successful candidates will teach in our Master of Public Administration program and will have demonstrated excellence in research.

NYU Wagner is a multidisciplinary school that prepares public service leaders to translate ideas into actions that have an effective and lasting impact on the public good. Wagner's nearly 40 full-time faculty members are trained in a wide variety of disciplines and share a commitment to addressing issues of public importance in their teaching and research. Wagner faculty members collaborate with other schools and departments across the university, including the Departments of Politics, Economics, and Sociology in Arts & Science; School of Law; Stern School of Business; Tandon School of Engineering; and the College of Global Public Health.

Qualifications:

A Ph.D. in political science, public policy, economics, public administration, or a related field is required and must be conferred by August 31, 2019.

Application Instructions:

To apply, visit the following link: apply.interfolio.com/55519. Candidates should submit a cover letter, curriculum vitae, two completed research papers, and three letters of reference. Because diversity is an important part of the mission at Wagner and the University, candidates should also describe how they would address issues of diversity, equity, and inclusion in their teaching.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 10/12/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 5005

University of Michigan, Ann Arbor

Rank: Education Policy Postdoctoral Research Fellow

Subfield(s): Public Policy, Methodology, Public Administration

Specializations: Education Policy, Quantitative Methods, Research Methods

Postdoctoral Training Program in Quantitative Methods for Education Policy Research

Education Policy Postdoctoral Research Fellow
2019 – 2021

Summary

The Education Policy Initiative (EPI) seeks candidates interested in deepening their knowledge of rigorous, applied quantitative education policy research for a two-year postdoctoral fellowship.

Up to two fellows will be trained to estimate the causal effects of education policies and practices on student outcomes, emphasizing the use of state and district longitudinal data. Fellows will participate in all aspects of the research process, including design, IRB administration, analysis, and presentation. They will collect, compile and analyze data; design surveys; participate in research planning; write papers; present results at seminars and professional meetings; and supervise research assistants. Fellows will have the unique opportunity to leverage EPI's role in the Michigan Education Research Institute (MERI) to develop research partnerships with public agencies and practitioners and to communicate results to non-technical audiences, including policymakers.

The fellows will also have the opportunity to develop and lead additional education research projects. They should expect to spend about a third of their time completing research related to their dissertation, a third of their time working on ongoing research projects at the Ford School, and the remaining third of their time building new collaborations at the university. The fellows will not have any teaching responsibilities.

The fellows will receive close mentorship from professors Susan Dynarski, Brian Jacob and Christina Weiland and will have the opportunity to work with cross-disciplinary UM faculty, including John Bound, Stephen DesJardins, Mathew Ronfeldt and Kevin Stange. UM is home to a dynamic community of researchers, with ample opportunity for professional development – via participation in seminars and trainings, as well as through exposure to high-profile speakers.

This is a 2-year fellowship beginning in the summer of 2019 with competitive salary and benefits plus funds for research expenses and related travel. Funding for the fellowships is provided by the Institute of Education Sciences postdoctoral training grant R305B170015.

Qualifications

Applicants must have completed their PhD in a relevant social science discipline prior to August 31, 2019 and have academic research experience in public policy, economics, education, quantitative methodology, or other similar fields. Applicants must be citizens or permanent residents of the United States. Applicants should not have been supported previously by either a predoctoral or postdoctoral training grant through the United States Department of Education's Institute of Education Sciences.

Application Process and Deadline

We will accept applications submitted online. Please visit our website for instructions. Complete applications include a 2-3 page statement of interest, writing sample (job market paper or recent publication authored / co-authored by the applicant), CV, and three confidential letters of recommendation. We will begin reviewing applications on November 1 and will continue until the positions are filled.

U-M EEO/AA Statement

The University of Michigan is an equal opportunity/affirmative action employer.

Start Date: Summer 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 10/12/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 5006

London School of Economics & Political Science

Rank: Assistant Professors in International Social and Public Policy (2 posts)

Subfield(s): Public Policy, Public Administration, Methodology

LSE is committed to building a diverse, equitable and truly inclusive university

For these posts, we particularly welcome applications by women and ethnic minorities

Department of Social Policy

Assistant Professors in International Social and Public Policy (2 posts)

Salary is competitive with Departments at our peer institutions worldwide and not less than £53,905 pa inclusive

Following the retirement of several faculty members, and consolidation of its BSc and MSc degree programmes, the Department seeks talented individuals keen to help it further develop its renowned strengths in social and public policy.

Candidates should have expertise and research interests in social and public policy analysis, and a completed PhD (or be close to obtaining one) in social and public policy or a related area by the post start date. They must have a track record or trajectory of internationally excellent publications, plus proven ability or potential to publish in top journals or with leading book publishers. Also required is a clear, well developed and viable strategy for future outstanding research that has the potential to result in world-leading publications, together with the ability to establish an international reputation. Candidates must have the ability to teach core and specialist courses in international social and public policy at BSc, MSc, and PhD levels, and also have a commitment to high quality teaching and fostering a positive learning environment for students, including pastoral care.

The other criteria that will be used when shortlisting candidates for this post can be found in the person specification, which is attached to this vacancy on the LSE's online recruitment system.

In addition to a competitive salary the benefits that come with this job include an occupational pension scheme, a research incentive scheme with personal reward options, generous research leave (sabbatical) entitlement, a collegial faculty environment and excellent support, training and development opportunities.

For further information about the post, please see the how to apply document, job description and the person specification, as well as the further information document.

To apply for this post, please go to www.lse.ac.uk/LSEJobs. If you have any technical queries with applying on the online system, please use the "contact us" links at the bottom of the LSE Jobs page. Should you have any queries about the role, please email socialpolicy.recruitment@lse.ac.uk in the first instance.

The closing date for receipt of applications is Sunday 11 November 2018 (23.59 UK time). We are unable to accept any late applications. We expect to interview short-listed candidates in March 2019.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: 11/11/2018
Date Posted: 10/11/2018
Salary: $70,000 - $79,999
eJobs ID: 4980

Stanford University

Rank: Hoover Fellow

Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, International Relations, Public Policy

Specializations: Economic Policy, International Security, Political Economy

Hoover Institution - Hoover Fellows
 A new path for early-career scholars

The Hoover Institution at Stanford University seeks outstanding scholars for appointments at the newly created rank of Hoover Fellows. The term of the appointment is 5 years and may be renewed. The position is located at the Hoover Institution, Stanford, CA.

The academic activities of the Hoover Institution generally fall into the areas of Economic Policy, Politics & Governance, and National Security. Candidates' work should fit into at least one of these categories. A candidate must have completed a PhD or equivalent degree in economics, history, international relations, political science, public policy, computer science, electrical engineering, physics or other related fields.

Hoover Fellows are expected to maintain a vibrant and productive scholarly research agenda, and achieve a considerable publication record and scholarly impact during their time at Hoover, through the pursuit of topics that also have implications for public policy.

Hoover Fellows are expected to contribute to the intellectual life of the Hoover Institution. There will be no teaching or formal administrative responsibilities during the appointment. Salary and benefits are highly competitive.

To apply, please submit:

- A cover letter or statement of interest that includes a description of academic background and experience
- A recent publication and a current working paper or draft book chapter
- A curriculum vitae
- A future research statement (2 pages maximum)
- Three letters of recommendation that focus on the candidate's research and research potential

Successful applicants will have a proven record of scholarly excellence. Applicants must have completed a PhD or equivalent degree by September 1, 2019, though preference will be given to candidates with post-graduate experience.

Completed applications must be submitted online by December 1, 2018 at <https://academicjobsonline.org/ajol/jobs/12287>.

Please direct questions to Pam Widrin (pwidrin@stanford.edu). Candidates under consideration will be contacted mid-January, 2019. Offer decisions are expected mid-March, 2019.

The Hoover Institution is an equal employment opportunity and affirmative action employer. All qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to race, color, religion, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, national origin, disability, protected veteran status, or any other characteristic protected by law. The Hoover Institution welcomes applications from those who would bring additional dimensions to the University's research mission.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: 12/1/2018

Date Posted: 10/11/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 5000

Middle Tennessee State University

Rank: Tenure Track Faculty

The Department of Political Science and International Relations at Middle Tennessee State University invites applications for a tenure-track faculty position at the rank of assistant/associate professor. Start date for the position is August 1, 2019.

The Department is looking for a dynamic and effective teacher to work primarily in the public administration and public policy concentration. Candidates who have taught courses in areas such as public finance, grant writing, and specific policy areas will receive special consideration. Faculty are also expected to maintain an active research agenda. Candidates should have a demonstrated commitment to excellence in undergraduate teaching and advising, professional research, and service.

The Department of Political Science and International Relations consists of fifteen full-time faculty members, offering degrees and concentrations in general Political Science, Pre-Law, International Relations, and Public Administration and Policy. MTSU is a growing university in the dynamic Nashville metropolitan region. PhD in Political Science or Public Administration required by appointment date.

To apply or for more detailed information visit <http://mtsujobs.mtsu.edu>. MTSU is an equal opportunity, affirmative action employer that values diversity in all its forms. Women, minorities, individuals with disabilities and protected veterans are encouraged to apply.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 10/9/2018

Salary: Negotiable

eJobs ID: 4979

University of New Orleans

Rank: Chair and Professor, Department of Planning and Urban Studies

Subfield(s): Administration, Public Administration, Public Policy

Specializations: Urban Politics, Environmental Policy, Energy Policy

POSITION SUMMARY

The University of New Orleans and the College of Liberal Arts, Education and Human Development seeks candidates for Chair of the Department of Planning and Urban Studies at rank of full-professor with tenure. Chairs are appointed on an initial three-year term and are subject to evaluation and renewal. The successful candidate will have prior academic leadership experience, preferably as a department chair or associate chair. The candidate will need to manage a small but diverse department, in the areas of fiscal responsibility, personnel management, curricular and program oversight, outreach and recruitment, and assessment. The successful candidate will be a collaborative and innovative leader, reporting to the dean and working closely with other chairs in the college, especially those in Anthropology/Sociology and Political Science/Public Administration. Discussions are underway about the college structure, whether a move to a School is warranted for this department, alone or combined with other departments. The successful candidate will be open to other structures that will strengthen and grow the programs in Planning and Urban Studies.

Candidates must possess an earned doctorate in urban/regional planning, or a related field (e.g. social ecology, urban studies/design, applied ecology), which is required for the successful candidate to have demonstrated credentials and to ensure the granting of tenure. The candidate must also have a record suitable for hiring at the rank of full professor, preferably by earning that rank at a previous regionally accredited university. Research in the areas of Environment & Energy, Coastal Zone Planning, and/or Environmental Planning is preferred. Documented success at securing outside funding is strongly preferred as well. The Planning and Urban Studies department offers five degrees: a Bachelor of Science in urban studies and planning (both face-to-face and online), a Master of Science in Transportation, an accredited Master of Urban and Regional Planning, and a Master of Science and a Ph.D. in Urban Studies. Additionally, the department offers three certificates: Geographic Information Systems, Historic and Cultural Preservation, and Disaster Management and Community Resilience. PLUS houses the University of New Orleans Transportation Institute and the Center for Hazards, Assessment and Technology.

RESPONSIBILITIES

50% of effort as department chair; 50% as teaching and research. The assigned time and stipend for department chair changes annually, depending on numbers of majors, SCH generated, and fulltime faculty.

REQUIRED QUALIFICATIONS

PhD from regionally accredited university in the field of urban planning or a closely related field; earned tenure at current institution or qualifications that would allow the candidate to be hired as full professor with tenure.

DESIRED QUALIFICATIONS

Significant leadership experience; discipline specialty areas of Environment & Energy, Coastal Zone Planning, and/or Environmental Planning; documented success at securing outside funding.

POSITION NUMBER 1978

To apply: <http://new.uno.edu/careers/1978>

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 10/9/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4986

Arizona State University

Rank: Data Analytics in Public Policy and Management

Subfield(s): Public Policy, Public Administration, Other

The Arizona State University School of Public Affairs (SPA) invites applications for a tenure track faculty position at the Assistant or Associate level specializing in data analytics. Hiring will focus on active, entrepreneurial emerging scholars desiring to work collaboratively across disciplines as they establish themselves as a leader in public administration and policy. This nine-month position begins August 16, 2019.

The successful candidate will have research and teaching focused on applying data analytic skills to understand and find solutions to important public policy problems. The successful applicant will have demonstrated ability to apply one or more data analytic approaches to public policy or public management problems, such as predictive analytics and artificial intelligence, big data and cloud computing, open data, visualization, text analysis, decision-support, and computational simulation and modeling. A Ph.D. in public policy, public administration, economics, political science, data science, mathematics, statistics, computer science, engineering or related fields is expected at the time of appointment. All applicants should demonstrate interest and experience in one or more applied areas of public policy.

The School's program is ranked #9 in the nation (#4 in information technology). It is home to a number of applied research centers that focus on areas such as e-government, urban innovation, citizen participation, organizational design, public policy, and science policy. ASU is home to a number of data science initiatives including the Decision Theatre, the Data Science and Analytics Lab, the Institute for Social Science Research, a program in data journalism, and a new college-level Master's degree in Program Evaluation and Data Analytics. The university is ranked as #1 in the nation for innovation, according to US News and World Report.

SPA attracts a growing and diverse array of students motivated by the promise of public service and drawn to the unique opportunity of an interdisciplinary public affairs education. We offer Bachelor degrees in Public Service and Public Policy and Urban and Metropolitan Studies, the Master of Public Administration, the Master of Public Policy, and the Ph.D. in Public Administration and Policy. Faculty members have been successful in attracting external funding from national scientific agencies, federal departments, foundations, and the private sector. SPA is also a research partner with the Alliance for Innovation, housed at the School. For more information about the School of Public Affairs and the Watts College of Public Service and Community Solutions, please visit <https://spa.asu.edu> and <https://publicservice.asu.edu>. Candidates from historically underrepresented groups in the academy are especially encouraged to apply.

Required qualifications:

- A Ph.D. in public policy, public administration, economics, political science, data science, mathematics, statistics, computer science, engineering or related fields is expected at the time of appointment.

Desired qualifications:

- Strong primary research and teaching interests in data analytics and their applications in public policy and management, and civic and urban affairs.
- Demonstrated commitment to teaching in-person and online courses and mentoring students in a diverse environment.
- Demonstrated excellence or strong potential in research that will contribute to and enhance the School's national and international reputation.
- Evidence of the ability to pursue external funding to support research.

Job Responsibilities:

- Teach undergraduate, graduate, and doctoral courses in person and online
- Conduct research, pursue external funding

- Service contributions to the school, college, university and profession

Application procedure:

To apply, please visit <https://publicservice.asu.edu/content/jobs> and upload your application materials which include the following:

- Cover letter describing your research and teaching interests
- Curriculum vitae
- One writing sample (single author or leading author preferred)
- Information for three professional references (name, title, organization, email address, phone number)
- Applicants on the short list will be asked to submit (3) letters of recommendation

The application deadline is November 18, 2018 at 5:00p.m. Arizona time; and if not filled, then every other Friday until the search is closed.

Please direct any questions about the position to Dr. Karen Mossberger, the Search Committee Chair, at Karen.Mossberger@asu.edu.

Arizona State University is a VEVRAA Federal Contractor and an Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action Employer. All qualified applicants will be considered without regard to race, color, sex, religion, national origin, age, disability, veteran status, sexual orientation, gender identity, or any other basis protected by law. For a complete statement on ASU's non-discrimination policies, please refer to: <http://www.asu.edu/aad/manuals/acd/acd401.html> and <https://www.asu.edu/titleIX/>

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 10/8/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4976

University of Illinois, Springfield

Rank: Research Director

Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Methodology, Public Policy

Specializations: Public Opinion, State Politics, Research Methods

The Center for State Policy and Leadership at the University of Illinois Springfield seeks a dynamic, skilled professional with substantial research experience to serve as the Research Director overseeing the Center's Institute for Legal, Legislative, and Policy Studies and Survey Research Office. The Institute and Survey Research Office conduct applied research studies and policy and program evaluations for public and nonprofit organizations, with a strong focus on Illinois government. Going forward, these two research organizations will operate as one with an explicit purpose to generate knowledge that can be useful in fostering "good government" in Illinois. A capable leader is needed to guide this effort at a critical time in the history of the state.

Minimum required qualifications: A terminal degree in public administration, political science, law, or related field. Consideration will be given to a relevant master's degree combined with extensive funded public affairs research experience. Minimum of 3 years' experience administering grant/contract funded activities. Successful history securing funding. Must have knowledge of how state and local governments operate. A record of scholarship and publication activity.

Preferred qualifications: Experience conducting funded research, evaluation, and/or technical assistance involving use of both quantitative and qualitative methods. Practical experience working with political processes and government at the state level. Experience successfully communicating research findings to scholarly, professional, and general audiences. Ability to lead, work with, and gain the respect and confidence of faculty, staff, administrators and external constituencies.

Salary range for position is $90,000 - $100,000 annually. Starting salary depends on experience and qualifications. UIS benefits package. Anticipated starting date is January 16, 2019. For a full position description and to apply, please visit: <https://jobs.uis.edu/>

UIS is an affirmative action/equal opportunity employer with a strong institutional commitment to recruitment and retention of a diverse and inclusive campus community. Persons with disabilities, women and minorities are encouraged to apply.

Start Date: Spring 2019

Application Deadline: 10/26/2018

Date Posted: 10/8/2018

Salary: $90,000 - $99,999

eJobs ID: 4975

University of Texas at Dallas

Rank: Visiting Assistant Professor

Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Public Policy, Political Theory

The School of Economic, Political, and Policy Sciences at the University of Texas at Dallas (UTD) invites applications for a full-time, Visiting Assistant Professor position beginning in January of 2019 in the Political Science Program. UTD is a fast-growing, suburban research university with undergraduate, Master's, and PhD programs in Political Science. We currently have approximately 60 graduate students and 250 undergraduate majors.

The University of Texas at Dallas has the highest freshman SAT scores of any public University in Texas and was recently ranked 24th among the 100 best universities in the world under 50 years old by Times Higher Education magazine. UT Dallas is one of the youngest universities to achieve the Carnegie Commission's highest research classification of "Doctoral Universities – Highest Research Activity."

The teaching load for this position is 3 courses per long semester and the standard pay rate is $20,000 per long semester. The position is renewable for up to 4 long semesters. Ideal candidates will demonstrate their ability to contribute to existing program strengths in teaching excellence. Topics of interest include American politics, international relations, or comparative politics. The successful candidate will be expected to teach the introductory state politics course and the introductory American national government course, as well as more specialized upper-level undergraduate courses. PhD by time of employment is expected.

Applicants should submit letter of application, current curriculum vitae and three letters of recommendation to the Program Head, Banks Miller (millerbp@utdallas.edu). Review will begin immediately and continue until the position is filled.

The University of Texas at Dallas is an Equal Opportunity / Equal Access / Affirmative Action Employer and strongly encourages applications from candidates who would enhance the diversity of the University's faculty and administration

Start Date: Spring 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled
Date Posted: 10/8/2018
Salary: $40,000 - $49,999
eJobs ID: 4977

Duke University

Rank: Professor of the Practice in Cybersecurity

Duke University
 Professor of the Practice in Cybersecurity

Steed Family Professorship of the Practice in Cybersecurity: Duke University. The Sanford School of Public Policy at Duke University invites applications for the inaugural Steed Family Professorship of the Practice in Cybersecurity. This search is for a professional with a national or international reputation and visibility, who can provide thought leadership through teaching, research, and public engagement on pressing issues of cybersecurity in the context of broader global and national security. The ideal candidate will also have experience and/or demonstrated interest in building a program at Duke in cybersecurity.

Professors of the Practice need not have a PhD, but the ideal candidates for this position will likely have significant professional experience beyond a post-graduate degree.

The Sanford School includes a full-time faculty of almost 70 and offers an undergraduate major, three masters programs, and a Ph.D. program. Current faculty members have degrees in a variety of disciplines including: demography, economics, history, law, medicine, philosophy, political science, psychology/social psychology, public policy, public health/health policy, and sociology. The School houses several interdisciplinary research centers, and offers degree-related programs and opportunities in Washington, China, Scotland, India, London and Geneva. More information on the Sanford School can be found at www.sanford.duke.edu.

Candidates should submit a letter of application that traces their professional experience and makes it clear why they would be interested in joining the Sanford School of Public Policy. The letter, along with a CV and the names of three references, should be submitted via the following website: <https://academicjobsonline.org/ajo/jobs/12187>. Any questions can be directed to Professor Philip Napoli, Chair, Steed Professorship in Cybersecurity Search, at philip.napoli@duke.edu.

For the job description, click <https://duke.box.com/v/Steed>

Applications submitted by November 16, 2018 will be guaranteed consideration.

Duke University is an Affirmative Action/Equal Opportunity Employer committed to providing employment opportunity without regard to an individual's age, color, disability, genetic information, gender, gender identity, national origin, race, religion, sexual orientation, or veteran status.

Start Date: Fall 2018
Date Posted: 10/5/2018
Salary: Competitive
eJobs ID: 4967

University of South Alabama

Rank: Assistant Professor of Public Administration

Subfield(s): Public Administration, Public Policy, American Government and Politics

The Department of Political Science and Criminal Justice at the University of South Alabama invites applications for a full-time (9 month), tenure-track Assistant Professor position in Public Administration to begin August 15, 2019. An earned Ph.D. in Political Science, Public Administration, or Public Policy is required at the time of appointment. ABDs currently near the completion of the degree are welcome to apply.

The Department of Political Science and Criminal Justice is recognized for its research active faculty, award-winning teaching, and for its collegiality. The Department offers the Master of Public Administration degree at the graduate level, and a Bachelor of Arts in Political Science and a Bachelor of Arts in Criminal Justice. Our growing and dynamic graduate program currently offers two concentrations:

Health Administration and Geographic Information Technology, with anticipated development of new concentrations in the future. More information regarding the MPA program can be found here: <https://www.southalabama.edu/colleges/artsandsci/pscj/mpa.html>

Applicants must have teaching and research interests in the area of Public Administration or Political Science and must show a history or willingness to publish in public administration or public policy outlets. The successful candidate will be expected to teach courses principally in the MPA program, as well as offer undergraduate courses. In addition to research and teaching, the successful candidate will be expected to advise a diverse student body, including many students of color and first-generation students, and to contribute appropriate service. Our Department is committed to increasing the diversity of its faculty and highly encourages female, minority, and candidates from other historically underrepresented groups to apply.

Prospective candidates may be asked to participate first in a digital interview. Candidates selected for a digital interview will need to arrange for the submission of their official transcripts from all institutions of higher learning from which a degree was earned as well as to arrange for the submission of three signed professional letters of reference. Letters of reference must include addresses, phone numbers, and e-mail addresses of the letter writers. Candidates selected for an on-campus interview will also need to complete a biographical data form: <https://www.southalabama.edu/departments/eforms/academicaffairs/biographicaldataform.pdf>

Consideration of applications will begin Thursday, November 1, 2018, and will continue until the position is filled.

To apply, please send a letter of application; curriculum vitae; unofficial transcripts; and if ABD or recent PhD, a writing sample to Dr. Thomas Shaw, Chair of Search Committee and MPA Director; at either Department of Political Science and Criminal Justice; The University of South Alabama; 5991 USA Dr N; HUMB 226; Mobile, AL 36688-0002 or tshaw@southalabama.edu. Informal inquiries regarding the position should be sent to the Search Chair at tshaw@southalabama.edu.

The University of South Alabama is an EO/AA employer and does not discriminate on the basis of race, color, national origin, sex (including pregnancy, sexual orientation, gender identity and gender expression), religion, age, genetic information, disability, or protected veteran status and does not discriminate on the basis of race, color, national origin, sex (including pregnancy, sexual orientation, gender identity and gender expression), religion, age, genetic information, disability, or protected veteran status.

Start Date: Fall 2019
Application Deadline: 11/1/2018
Date Posted: 10/5/2018
Salary: Competitive
eJobs ID: 4965

East Carolina University

Rank: Assistant Professor

The Department of Political Science is one of sixteen departments in the Thomas Harriot College of Arts and Sciences at East Carolina University, Greenville, NC. The Department is composed of 15 full-time faculty. It offers BS and BA degrees in political science and minors in public administration, comparative politics/international relations, leadership studies, and security studies at the undergraduate level. It is also home to the multidisciplinary studies majors in security studies and international studies. At the graduate level, it offers a NASPAA-accredited Master of Public Administration degree, a Master of Science in Security Studies and certificates in public management and security studies. It emphasizes excellent teaching, impactful research, and a tradition of service to the community, the university, and the discipline. More information about the department can be found at its home page: <http://www.ecu.edu/polsci>.

ECU's planned School of Rural Public Health (scheduled to open in August of 2020- <http://www.ecu.edu/publichealth/>) and Rural Prosperity Initiative (<https://rede.ecu.edu/rural-prosperity/>) may offer excellent opportunities for collaboration to the successful candidate.

ECU is located in Greenville, North Carolina, a rapidly growing city of approximately 90,000. Greenville is located about 80 miles east of Raleigh and is within a short drive to the Outer Banks and other Atlantic Ocean beaches. In 2012, Greenville was ranked in the top ten of Forbes Magazine's "Best Small Places for Business and Careers." Greenville is known as the health, entertainment and educational hub of eastern North Carolina.

The Department of Political Science invites applications for a tenure-track position at the rank of Assistant Professor to begin August 12, 2019. The successful candidate will become one of the core faculty for the NASPAA-accredited Master of Public Administration program and will be expected to teach at both the graduate and undergraduate levels in the classroom and online.

A Ph.D. in Political Science, Public Administration, or a related field such as Public Policy or Health Policy is required. Qualifying degrees must be received from appropriately accredited institutions. Teaching experience is required. Candidates must demonstrate potential for external funding and scholarly research productivity, excellent teaching, and service to the university, community, and profession. Salary is competitive, with the possibility of summer teaching.

Given the department's current needs, preference will be given to candidates whose teaching and research expertise are in the specific field of rural health policy. Candidates should be willing and able to teach public administration and/or public policy analysis courses to MPA and undergraduate students. Teaching experience at the undergraduate or graduate level—both in the classroom and online—is preferred. Applicants should also have demonstrated background in the scholarship and practice of engagement

To apply, complete a candidate profile and submit a letter of interest, curriculum vita, a statement of research interests, and a teaching experience/philosophy statement online at:

<http://ecu.peopleadmin.com/hr/postings/22387>

2-3 original letters of reference are required for employment. Please be aware that if selected as a candidate of choice, an automatic e-mail will be sent to the individuals entered by the applicant in the References section the PeopleAdmin applicant tracking system. Letters of reference submitted via the PeopleAdmin applicant tracking system will be verified and considered towards meeting this requirement. For letters of reference not submitted via the PeopleAdmin applicant tracking system, please have the original signed letters mailed to: Dr. Carmine Scavo, MPA Director, Department of Political Science, Mail Stop 564, East Carolina University, Greenville, NC 27858-4353. Official transcripts are required upon employment. Review of applications will begin on November 05, 2018 and continue until the position is filled.

Start Date: Fall 2019
Application Deadline: Open until Filled
Date Posted: 10/4/2018
Salary: Negotiable
eJobs ID: 4955

Institute for Advanced Study in Toulouse

Rank: Research Fellowship multidisciplinary, social sciences

Subfield(s): Political Theory, Public Administration, Public Policy

We welcome applications from researchers within a large range of disciplines in the social, behavioral and life sciences: anthropology, evolutionary biology, economics, genetics, history, law, mathematics, neuroscience, philosophy, political science, psychology and sociology; however, motivated applications from outside these disciplines will be given full consideration. Successful applicants will have to demonstrate an interest in, and a commitment to, at least one of the other disciplines of IAST.

We seek candidates with a strong research background in their own discipline, but willing and able to develop research projects drawing on IAST's substantial interdisciplinary resources, including particularly the proximity of strong groups in economics (Toulouse School of Economics, TSE).

We are open to a variety of research methods, including theory, field and laboratory experiments, observational field work, and the analysis of large secondary data sets.

All research interests relevant to the broad study of human behavior are welcome, but interests that complement and / or enhance those already developed at IAST will be given special consideration. These include, to cite only a few:

In history: quantitative economic history (cliometrics), empirical political economy in history, qualitative economic or social history.

In evolutionary biology: theoretical models of evolution (applied to family structure, strategic interactions, plasticity, cognition, learning, cultural evolution); related empirical work.

In anthropology: human biology, life history theory, human development and plasticity, health and infectious disease, aging, demography, host-parasite co-evolution, diet and nutrition, global health, evolutionary medicine and genetics.

In political science: public opinion and public policies, comparative studies of democratic institutions, democracy and development, experimental political science, studies of networks and their impact on individual and collective action.

In law: law and economics, corporate governance, criminology.

In psychology: cognition, the emotions, social trust, gender, group decision-making.

In sociology: network formation, the impact of networks on social outcomes, sociology of religion.

Apply here: <https://www.iast.fr/research-fellowships>

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: 11/30/2018

Date Posted: 10/4/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4949

Northeastern University

Rank: Urban Studies - Open Rank

Subfield(s): International Relations, Comparative Politics, Public Policy

The International Affairs Program in the College of Social Sciences and Humanities (CSSH) at Northeastern University seeks nominations and applications from leading scholars for an open rank position with an expected start date of Fall 2019. The International Affairs Program, with one of the largest majors in the College of Social Sciences and Humanities, supports undergraduate majors, minors, and a Master's program.

We seek a scholar of urban studies whose interests reach across disciplines, and we are particularly interested in candidates with expertise in urban politics, urban and political geography, urban sociology, urban anthropology and urban ethnography. Candidates whose research complements those topics as well as those who would enhance faculty diversity, are especially encouraged to apply. The successful candidate will have a distinguished scholarly record and demonstrated potential for excellence in leadership. The successful candidate will be cross-appointed in the International Affairs Program and a tenure home within the college appropriate to their field. The position will support the university, college and International Affairs Program's commitment to producing interdisciplinary scholarship and innovative teaching on contested cities, urban politics and/or urban immigrants across the globe. Areas of strategic focus in the College include resilience, sustainability and digital humanities. Candidates should have demonstrated commitment to fostering diverse and inclusive environments as well as to promoting experiential learning, which are central to a Northeastern University education. Review of applications will begin November 1 and will continue until the position is filled.

Qualifications

A PhD in a related field required.

Additional Information

The College of Social Sciences and Humanities is a leader in the Experiential Liberal Arts (www.northeastern.edu/cssh/about/deans-welcome). Founded in 1898, Northeastern University is a dynamic and highly selective urban research university in the center of Boston. Grounded in its signature co-op program, Northeastern provides unprecedented global experiential learning opportunities. The College is strongly committed to fostering excellence through diversity and enthusiastically welcomes nominations and applications from members of groups that have been, and continue to be, underrepresented in academia.

through diversity and enthusiastically welcomes nominations and applications from members of groups that have been, and continue to be, underrepresented in academia.

Equal Employment Opportunity

Northeastern University is an Equal Opportunity, Affirmative Action Educational Institution and Employer, Title IX University. Northeastern University particularly welcomes applications from minorities, women and persons with disabilities. Northeastern University is an E-Verify Employer.

How to Apply

Applicants should submit a CV and letter of interest along with the names of three references. Candidates will be notified before their references are contacted.

To apply, please go to <http://www.northeastern.edu/cssh/faculty-positions> and click on the link for full-time positions or full-time interdisciplinary positions or if viewing this description on the Northeastern University website, click "Apply to this job." Please address nominations and inquiries about the position to Berna Turam at b.turam@neu.edu. Review of applications will begin November 1 and will continue until the position is filled.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 10/3/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4944

University of Texas, San Antonio

Rank: Department Chair (COPP-Department of Public Administration)

Subfield(s): Public Administration, Public Policy, American Government and Politics

Department Chair

Department of Public Administration

The University of Texas at San Antonio

The Department of Public Administration at the University of Texas at San Antonio (UTSA) invites applications for a Department Chair position beginning in Fall 2019. The Department is comprised of nine tenured/tenure-track faculty, two full-time lecturers, and several adjunct instructors. The Department serves over 180 graduate and 120 undergraduate students enrolled in the Master's (NASPAA accredited) and Bachelor's degrees in Public Administration. The Department also offers a graduate certificate in Nonprofit Management.

UTSA is a Hispanic-Serving Institution (HSI) with a 53% Latino student population, and one of the fastest growing public universities in Texas. UTSA is gaining momentum in its quest to become the state's next premier Tier 1 university. As a dynamic research urban-serving university, it has a diverse and growing student population of more than 30,000 students with more than 67% coming from groups underrepresented in higher education. UTSA serves the San Antonio metropolitan area, the seventh largest U.S. city, and the broader region of South Texas through programs offered on three campuses. The Department of Public Administration is based on the expanding Downtown Campus. San Antonio has a thriving urban culture, attractive neighborhoods and extensive recreational opportunities. It is one of the fastest growing regional economies - and the fastest growing city - in the US, with numerous industries, job opportunities, and excellent school districts. The low cost of living and the mild winters further make it a highly desirable place to work and live in.

Responsibilities: The Chair reports to the Dean of the College of Public Policy and is responsible for providing vision, leadership, and inclusive excellence for the research, teaching, and service activities of the Department. The Chair supports diversity and inclusion with the faculty in their duties, and advocates for the Department before the College and the University. He or she promotes the program internally and externally, oversees its continued growth (including the planned addition of a Bachelor's in Public Policy degree program), and continuously pursues student success at both the graduate and the undergraduate levels. In addition to his or her administrative responsibilities, the Chair continues to pursue research projects and collaborations locally and nationally. The position is a 10.5-month appointment with a competitive salary, excellent benefits, and reduced teaching responsibilities.

Required qualifications: A Ph.D. in Public Administration, Public Policy, Public Affairs, Political Science, or related discipline. Candidates must demonstrate excellence in leadership, service, research, and teaching, with an established research agenda and a strong publication record.

Preferred qualifications: Specialization in areas such as public policy, urban politics and policy, policy analysis, public budgeting.

To apply: Submit a letter of application, Curriculum Vitae, and the names, addresses, and telephone numbers of five references at <https://jobs.utsa.edu/>. Review of applications will begin on October 8, 2018 and will continue until the position is filled.

All questions regarding the position should be directed to:
Amy Chanmugam, Ph.D.
Chair, Faculty Recruitment Committee
Chair, Department of Social Work, University of Texas at San Antonio
amy.chanmugam@utsa.edu
210-458-3003

For questions concerning the submission of materials, please contact:
Blane Walter
Administrative Analyst
College of Public Policy, office of the Dean,
University of Texas at San Antonio
blane.walter@utsa.edu
210-458-2013

CC: Amy Chanmugam, Ph.D.
Chair, Faculty Recruitment Committee
Chair, Department of Social Work, University of Texas at San Antonio
amy.chanmugam@utsa.edu
210-458-3003

Start Date:

Date Posted: 10/3/2018

Salary: Negotiable

eJobs ID: 4948

Stanford University

Rank: 2019-20 Shorenstein Postdoctoral Fellow in Contemporary Asia

Subfield(s): International Relations, Comparative Politics, Public Policy

Specializations: East Asia, Southeast Asia, South Asia

Stanford University: 2019–2020 Postdoctoral Fellowships in Contemporary Asia

The Walter H. Shorenstein Asia-Pacific Research Center at Stanford University is pleased to announce its search for two 2019–20 Shorenstein Postdoctoral Fellows in Contemporary Asia-Pacific Studies. Made possible through the generosity of Walter H. Shorenstein, awards will be made to two junior scholars (recent PhDs must have degree conferral and approval by June 30, 2019) for research and writing on Asia.

The primary focus of the fellowship is on contemporary political, economic, or social change in the Asia-Pacific region (including North-east, Southeast, and South Asia), or topics in international relations and international political economy. The postdoctoral fellowship is a 10-month appointment with a salary rate of $52,000, or commensurate with Stanford policy, plus $2,000 for research expenses. Appointments will begin in the fall quarter of the 2019-2020 academic year.

Applications must be received by January 7, 2019.

For additional information and to apply, visit <https://aparc.fsi.stanford.edu/education/fellowship-and-training-opportunities/shorenstein-postdoctoral-fellowship>

Start Date: Fall

Application Deadline: 1/7/2019

Date Posted: 10/2/2018

Salary: $50,000 - $59,999

eJobs ID: 4926

Hertie School of Governance

Rank: Professor of International Political Economy

Subfield(s): Comparative Politics, Public Policy, Public Administration

The Hertie School of Governance, Berlin
A European Professional School for Public Policy is recruiting a

Professor of International Political Economy

Assistant Professor or Professor

The Hertie School is recruiting an Assistant Professor or Professor of International Political Economy. We are looking for a candidate with a research agenda in the politics and/or governance of international finance, foreign direct investment, and/or trade. This candidate will play an important role in our "Finance and Trade" track of our Masters of International Affairs (MIA).

Applicants for this position must have a doctoral degree relevant for the position, or expect to have this degree by the start of employment. We are interested in early career scholars in particular, although more advanced candidates will be considered. An early career candidate will be appointed as tenure-track Assistant Professor with a six-year clock (two three-year contracts). A more advanced candidate would initially be on a fixed contract of negotiable length prior to a tenure review. In highly exceptional circumstances, a particularly outstanding candidate may be appointed with tenure.

The expected start date is 1 September 2019.

The Hertie School seeks faculty with demonstrated capacity for research, teaching, and outreach at the highest levels in their discipline. We recruit faculty who will create a climate that embraces excellence and diversity with a commitment to teaching and innovative research of interest to the international scholarly community and policy-makers.

Candidates are expected to work well in an interdisciplinary, international environment with English as the language of instruction and operation. The successful candidate will teach courses in the School's Master, Executive, and PhD programmes.

As a private university, the Hertie School offers an internationally competitive salary as well as a paid sabbatical after every five semesters. We provide excellent working conditions with outstanding financial and administrative support for research. The Hertie School is fully embedded in Germany's vibrant research landscape and has close ties to the top institutions of the European and international teaching and research community as well as to the policy world.

The Hertie School is a diverse, international and lively community located in the heart of Berlin. It takes a family friendly workplace seriously.

The deadline for the submission of applications is 31 October. The Hertie School will review applications that include a letter of motivation, a current curriculum vitae (publication list, degrees earned, if applicable: positions held, teaching experience, research projects, awards received), two writing samples and, if applicable, teaching evaluations. Early career candidates should include three letters of recommendation from professors familiar with their work.

To submit your application, please upload the requested documents <https://hertie-school.dvinci-easy.com/en/p/en/jobs/57/form>.

For information about the Hertie School visit www.hertie-school.org.

For questions about the position, please contact Dean of Research and Faculty Mark Hallerberg (hallerberg@hertie-school.org).

Strict confidentiality in the application process is assured. The Hertie School is an equal opportunity employer.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: 10/31/2018

Date Posted: 10/1/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4925

Hunter College, Urban Affairs and Planning

Rank: Job Title: Faculty Open Rank - Public Policy (Urban Policy and Planning) Job ID:19432

FACULTY VACANCY ANNOUNCEMENT

The Urban Policy and Planning Department (UPP) at Hunter College is holding an open rank search for an Assistant, Associate or Full Professor to enhance its research and teaching profile in public policy. We especially welcome applications from candidates whose research and writing focuses on social policy related to the problems of poverty and inequality; however, we will consider applications from scholars in other areas of policy expertise as well. UPP is an interdisciplinary department with two graduate programs (MS in Urban Policy and Leadership, Master of Urban Planning [MUP]), and an undergraduate Urban Studies program. The successful candidate will be expected to teach basic courses in public policy processes and methods, as well as advanced courses in their area of expertise. These teaching responsibilities will be divided between UPP and the Roosevelt House Public Policy Institute at Hunter College.

Hunter is committed to active engagement with students and the community at large, and embraces equity, inclusiveness, and global awareness in all dimensions of our work.

QUALIFICATIONS

Ph.D. degree in public policy or related discipline, demonstrated ability to teach at the graduate and undergraduate levels, a record of scholarship commensurate with academic rank sought, and a record of professional and institutional service.

COMPENSATION

CUNY offers faculty a competitive compensation and benefits package covering health insurance, pension and retirement benefits, paid parental leave, and savings programs. We also provide mentoring and support for research, scholarship, and publication as part of our commitment to ongoing faculty professional development.

HOW TO APPLY

Click on the "Apply Now" button and follow the application instructions. Please have your curriculum vitae/ resume and scholarly interest or cover letter with names and contact information of 3 references available to attach into the application before you begin. Please note that the required material must be uploaded as ONE document. The document must be in .doc, .docx, .pdf, .rtf, or text format- and name of file should not exceed ten (10) characters. Incomplete application packages will not be considered.

CLOSING DATE

Open until filled with review of applications to begin October 25, 2018.

JOB SEARCH CATEGORY

CUNY Job Posting: Faculty

EQUAL EMPLOYMENT OPPORTUNITY

CUNY encourages people with disabilities, minorities, veterans and women to apply. At CUNY, Italian Americans are also included among our protected groups. Applicants and employees will not be discriminated against on the basis of any legally protected category, including sexual orientation or gender identity. EEO/AA/Vet/Disability Employer.

Start Date: Fall 2018

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 10/1/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4922

Naval War College

Rank: Assistant/Associate/Full Professor, Strategic Studies

U.S. NAVAL WAR COLLEGE SEEKS Assistant/Associate/Full Professor Strategic Studies Strategic and Operational Research Department Center for Naval Warfare Studies AD-1701-03/05/07

The President, U.S. Naval War College, invites applications for an open-rank position of professor in the Russia Maritime Studies Institute, the Strategic and Operational Research Department, in the Center for Naval Warfare Studies.

The U.S. Naval War College is a Professional Military Education institution serving the nation, the Department of Defense, and the U.S. Navy. The student body consists of members of all the Services, interagency civilians, and international officers. The College is accredited by the New England Association of Schools and Colleges to award a Master of Arts Degree in Defense and Strategic Studies for the College of Naval Command and Staff and a Master of Arts Degree in National Security and Strategic Studies for the College of Naval Warfare. The College is also accredited by the Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff to award certification in Joint Professional Military Education Phase I & II.

Strategic and Operational Research Department: The Strategic and Operational Research Department produces innovative research and analysis for the U.S. Navy, the U.S. Department of Defense, the U.S. interagency, and the broader national security community. It also generates new scholarship and actively participates in the broader community of scholars. The department is one of two in the Center for Naval Warfare Studies at the Naval War College, the other being the War Gaming Department. The department is home to a number of specialized centers, institutes, and advanced research groups that foster deeper levels of research, analysis, and teaching on subjects of critical interest for the Navy: the China Maritime Studies Institute, the Cyber Innovation and Policy Institute, the Russia Maritime Studies Institute, Institute for Future Warfare Studies, and the Gravelly, Halsey, Hollway, and Mahan advanced research groups. The department's faculty employ varied and multi-disciplinary approaches to national security issues, generating new knowledge for the Navy and the Department of Defense. The department's faculty are educated in a range of social sciences, the humanities, sciences and critical languages, and the faculty consists of civilians and retired and active-duty military officers. For more information, see the department's webpage: <https://usnwc.edu/Faculty-andDepartments/Academic-Departments/Strategic-and-Operational-Research-Department>

Responsibilities: Duties include conducting independent and collaborative open-source, Russian-language, scholarly research on policy, strategic, military, maritime, nuclear, and other security issues related to Russia; support to and participation in exercises and war games as appropriate; and supporting student research.

Qualifications: Qualified candidates must have an advanced degree from an accredited university in an appropriate field. A research-oriented Ph.D. is preferred but not required. Evidence of extensive experience researching Russian security issues may be substituted for a Ph.D. Russian language expertise is required. A research agenda focusing on Russian strategy, policy, military, maritime, and/or deterrence issues is highly desirable.

Candidates must be U.S. citizens and capable of obtaining a Department of Defense TOP SECRET/SCI security clearance. The selected candidate will be subject to a pre-employment drug screening test and to random drug testing thereafter.

Appointment: The appointment is governed by provisions of 10 USC 7478 as delegated by the Secretary of the Navy, and the regulations of the U.S. Office of Personnel Management that apply to "Excepted" appointments under Schedule A.

Salary Considerations: Salary is competitive and is accompanied by a generous federal benefit package that includes health insurance and retirement saving plans (with employer matching contributions), paid vacation and sick leave, and other benefits. Rank and salary are commensurate with experience and credentials in accordance with Department of the Navy Faculty Schedule.

Applications: Applicants must reference VA#NWC-18-16 and submit their application package to: hro-sord-18-16@usnwc.edu. The application package must include: (1) cover letter, (2) curriculum vitae, and (3) names and contact information for three references. Applications will be accepted until 9 November 2018.

Active duty members may apply under this announcement but are subject to eligibility requirements of the Veterans Opportunity to Work Act (VOW). Active duty members must submit a statement of service printed on command letterhead and signed by the command. The statement of service must provide branch, rate/rank, all dates of service, the expected date of discharge and anticipated character of service (Honorable, General, etc.). Please note: you will be ineligible for consideration if your statement of service is not submitted with your application or it shows an expected discharge or release date greater than 120 days after being submitted with your application.

Within the Department of Defense (DoD), the appointment of retired military members within 180 days immediately following retirement dated to a civilian position is subject to the provisions of 5 United States Code 3326.

Questions should be directed to the search committee chair, Dr. Michael Petersen at: michael.petersen@usnwc.edu. The Naval War College is an Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action Employer.

Start Date:

Application Deadline: 11/9/2018

Date Posted: 10/1/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4929

Naval War College

Rank: Chair of Strategic and Operational Research Department (SORD)

U.S. NAVAL WAR COLLEGE SEEKS
CHAIR OF STRATEGIC AND OPERATIONAL RESEARCH DEPARTMENT
AD-1701-09

The President, U.S. Naval War College, invites applications for the position of Chair, Strategic and Operational Research Department in the Center for Naval Warfare Studies.

The U.S. Naval War College is a Professional Military Education institution serving the nation, the Department of Defense, and the U.S. Navy. The student body consists of members of all the Services, interagency civilians, and international officers. The College is accredited by the New England Association of Schools and Colleges to award a Master of Arts Degree in Defense and Strategic Studies for the College of Naval Command and Staff and a Master of Arts Degree in National Security and Strategic Studies for the College of Naval Warfare. The College is also accredited by the Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff to award certification in Joint Professional Military Education Phase I & II.

Strategic and Operational Research Department: The Strategic and Operational Research Department produces innovative research and analysis for the U.S. Navy, the U.S. Department of Defense, the U.S. interagency, and the broader national security community. It also generates new scholarship and actively participates in the broader community of scholars. The department is one of two in the Center for Naval Warfare Studies at the Naval War College, the other being the War Gaming Department. The department is home to a number of specialized centers, institutes, and advanced research groups that foster deeper levels of research, analysis, and teaching on subjects of critical interest for the Navy: the China Maritime Studies Institute, the Cyber and Innovation Policy Institute, the Russia Maritime Studies Institute, Institute for Future Warfare Studies, and the Gravelly, Halsey, and Mahan advanced research programs. The department's faculty employ varied and multi-disciplinary approaches to national security issues, generating new knowledge for the Navy and the Department of Defense. The department's faculty are educated in a range of social sciences, humanities, sciences, and critical languages, and the faculty consists of civilians and retired and active-duty military officers. For more information, see the department's webpage: <https://usnwc.edu/Faculty-and-Departments/Academic-Departments/Strategic-and-OperationalResearch-Department>

Responsibilities: The Chair of the Strategic and Operational Research Department, working under the supervision of the Dean of the Center for Naval Warfare Studies, provides leadership for all aspects of the Department's operations including: setting research priorities; engagement with Navy, Joint, DoD, and USG leadership, analytic and academic engagement and outreach; and faculty recruitment, retention, and development. The Chair oversees the preparation, review, management, and execution of the Department's annual research and operations budget. The Chair works closely with the College's leadership, fostering and maintaining cooperative relationships with other departments and programs, and encouraging integration across College departments.

Qualifications: The President seeks candidates who are successful, proven leaders in the academic or analytic world. Qualified candidates must have a research-oriented Ph.D. in an appropriate field and a record of research and/or analytic work in national security issues. The successful candidate must have excellent communication and interpersonal skills and demonstrated experience leading and managing a diverse group of professionals. A candidate's accomplishments must merit appointment as a full professor at the College. Familiarity with naval/maritime strategies, operational concepts, and capabilities is highly desirable. A highly desirable candidate should also have strong team building skills and experience in developing innovative approaches to research and analysis.

Candidates must be U.S. citizens and capable of obtaining a Department of Defense TOP SECRET/SCI security clearance. The selected candidate will be subject to a pre-employment drug screening test and to random drug testing thereafter.

Appointment: The appointment is governed by provisions of 10 USC 7478 as delegated by the Secretary of the Navy, and the regulations of the U.S. Office of Personnel Management that apply to "Excepted" appointments under Schedule A. For the successful candidate, the initial term of appointment is expected to be four years in length with provision for renewal dependent on performance. Expected start date is no later than summer 2019.

Salary Considerations: Salary is competitive and is accompanied by a generous federal benefit package that includes health insurance and retirement saving plans (with employer matching contributions), paid vacation and sick leave, and other benefits. Rank and salary are commensurate with experience and credentials in accordance with Department of the Navy Faculty Schedule.

Applications: Applicants must reference VA#NWC-18-17 and submit their application package to: hro-sord-18-17@usnwc.edu. The application package must include: (1) cover letter, (2) curriculum vitae, and (3) names and contact information for three references. Applications will be accepted until 14 November 2018.

Active duty members may apply under this announcement but are subject to eligibility requirements of the Veterans Opportunity to Work Act (VOW). Active duty members must submit a statement of service printed on command letterhead and signed by the command. The statement of service must provide branch, rate/rank, all dates of service, the expected date of discharge and anticipated character of service (Honorable, General, etc.). Please note: you will be ineligible for consideration if your statement of service is not submitted with your application or it shows an expected discharge or release date greater than 120 days after being submitted with your application.

Within the Department of Defense (DoD), the appointment of retired military members within 180 days immediately following retirement dated to a civilian position is subject to the provisions of 5 United States Code 3326.

Questions should be directed to the search committee point of contact, Dr. Peter Dombrowski at: dombrowp@usnwc.edu. The Naval War College is an Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action Employer.

Start Date:

Application Deadline: 11/14/2018

Date Posted: 10/1/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4930

Naval War College

Rank: Director, Cyber and Innovation Policy Institute (CIPI)

U.S. NAVAL WAR COLLEGE SEEKS

Director, Cyber and Innovation Policy Institute

Strategic and Operational Research Department

Center for Naval Warfare Studies

AD-1701-07

The President, U.S. Naval War College, invites applications for director of the newly-created

Cyber and Innovation Policy Institute, part of the Strategic and Operational Research Department in the Center for Naval Warfare Studies.

The U.S. Naval War College is a Professional Military Education institution serving the nation, the Department of Defense, and the U.S. Navy. The student body consists of members of all the Services, interagency civilians, and international officers. The College is accredited by the New England Association of Schools and Colleges to award a Master of Arts Degree in Defense and Strategic Studies for the College of Naval Command and Staff and a Master of Arts Degree in National Security and Strategic Studies for the College of Naval Warfare. The College is also accredited by the Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff to award certification in Joint Professional Military Education Phase I & II.

Strategic and Operational Research Department: The Strategic and Operational Research Department produces innovative research and analysis for the U.S. Navy, the U.S. Department of Defense, the U.S. interagency, and the broader national security community. It also generates new scholarship and actively participates in the broader community of scholars. The department is one of two in the Center for Naval Warfare Studies at the Naval War College, the other being the War Gaming Department. The department is home to a number of specialized centers, institutes, and advanced research groups that foster deeper levels of research, analysis, and teaching on subjects of critical interest for the Navy: the China Maritime Studies Institute, the Cyber and Innovation Policy Institute, the Russia Maritime Studies Institute, Institute for Future Warfare Studies, and the Gravelly, Halsey, and Mahan advanced research projects. The department's faculty employ varied and multi-disciplinary approaches to national security issues, generating new knowledge for the Navy and the Department of Defense. The department's faculty are educated in a range of social sciences, humanities, sciences, and critical languages, and the faculty consists of civilians and retired and active-duty military officers. For more information, see the department's webpage: <https://usnwc.edu/Faculty-andDepartments/Academic-Departments/Strategic-and-Operational-Research-Department>

Cyber and Innovation Policy Institute:

The Cyber and Innovation Policy Institute (CIPI) is a new initiative to take research at the Naval War College on cyber to the next level at the policy, strategic, and operational levels. Specifically, it will focus on innovation in the cyber domain and actionable policy options for senior leaders. CIPI activities will help shape Navy, as well as joint and national cyber policy and operations. It will also support joint education at the Naval War College and other naval institutions. The Institute is the successor to and an outgrowth of the highly successful community of interest at the Naval War College – the Center for Cyber Conflict Studies (C3S). The Institute consists of a newly enlarged core of research faculty in the Strategic and Operational Research Department as well as a large number of affiliated faculty in departments across the Naval War College.

Responsibilities: The Director, working under the supervision of the Chair of the Strategic and Operational Research Department, will provide leadership for the Institute's research and operations including: setting research priorities; supporting Institute faculty, engaging Navy, Joint, DoD, and USG leadership, analytic and academic engagement and outreach; and setting the future direction of the Institute. The Director works closely with the Center and College's leadership to foster and maintain cooperative relationships with other departments, institutes, center, and programs, and encourages integration across College departments. The Director also maintains and advances a research portfolio of her or his own.

Qualifications: Qualified candidates must have an advanced degree and experience in the cyber security field. A candidate's accomplishments must merit appointment as a full professor at the College.

Preferred qualifications that will make candidates especially competitive possess a research-oriented PhD; evidence of extensive experience researching and/or analyzing cyber security issues and developing innovative approaches to research and analysis. Demonstrated experience leading and managing a diverse group of individuals and strong team building skills is also highly desired.

Candidates must be U.S. citizens and capable of obtaining a Department of Defense TOP SECRET/SCI security clearance. The selected candidate will be subject to a pre-employment drug screening test and to random drug testing thereafter.

Appointment: The appointment is governed by provisions of 10 USC 7478 as delegated by the Secretary of the Navy, and the regulations of the U.S. Office of Personnel Management that apply to "Excepted" appointments under Schedule A.

Salary Considerations: Salary is competitive and is accompanied by a generous federal benefit package that includes health insurance and retirement saving plans (with employer matching contributions), paid vacation and sick leave, and other benefits. Rank and salary are commensurate with experience and credentials in accordance with Department of the Navy Faculty Schedule.

Applications: Applicants must reference VA#NWC-18-18 and submit their application package to: hro-sord-18-18@usnwc.edu. The application package must include: (1) cover letter, (2) curriculum vitae, and (3) names and contact information for three references. Applications will be accepted until 14 November 2018.

Active duty members may apply under this announcement but are subject to eligibility requirements of the Veterans Opportunity to Work Act (VOW). Active duty members must submit a statement of service printed on command letterhead and signed by the command. The statement of service must provide branch, rate/rank, all dates of service, the expected date of discharge and anticipated character of service (Honorable, General, etc.). Please note: you will be ineligible for consideration if your statement of service is not submitted with your application or it shows an expected discharge or release date greater than 120 days after being submitted with your application.

Within the Department of Defense (DoD), the appointment of retired military members within 180 days immediately following retirement dated to a civilian position is subject to the provisions of 5 United States Code 3326.

Questions should be directed to the search committee chair, Dr. Montgomery McFate at: montgomery.mcfate@usnwc.edu. The Naval War College is an Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action Employer.

Start Date:

Application Deadline: 11/14/2018

Date Posted: 10/1/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4931

University of California, Berkeley

Rank: Associate Professor - Political Theory - Department of Political Science/College of Letters and Science

Associate Professor - Political Theory - Department of Political Science/College of Letters and Science

RECRUITMENT PERIOD

Open October 1st, 2018 through October 31st, 2018

DESCRIPTION

The Charles & Louise Travers Department of Political Science at the University of California, Berkeley invites applications for a faculty appointment in Political Theory at either the Assistant or Associate Professor rank with an expected start date of July 1, 2019. Rank will be determined based on qualifications and experience. The Department welcomes applications from candidates specializing in all topics, approaches, historical periods, and areas in the subfield of Political Theory.

The University of California acknowledges the need to remove barriers to the recruitment, retention, and advancement of faculty from historically excluded populations who are currently underrepresented. Qualified women and members of underrepresented minority groups are strongly encouraged to apply.

Associate Professor applicants (individuals currently holding a tenured or equivalent position): Applicants for appointment at the rank of Associate Professor must hold a completed Ph.D., or equivalent international degree, at the time of application. To apply, please complete and submit an online application through Academic Personnel Recruit (AP Recruit) on the University of California, Berkeley website:

<http://apptrkr.com/1302298>

Submit a cover letter, curriculum vitae, a statement outlining the candidate's current and future research, one to three published or unpublished scholarly works ready for examination (such as articles or chapters from a book or book manuscript), the names and contact information of three references, and a statement addressing past and/or potential contributions to diversity through research, teaching, and service. Further information on preparing a diversity statement is available on the website of the Berkeley Office for Faculty Equity and Welfare: <https://ofew.berkeley.edu/recruitment/contributions-diversity/support-faculty-candidates>. Letters may be solicited for candidates under serious consideration (the committee will seek candidates' permission before soliciting letters of recommendation from references).

Assistant Professor applicants (including current advanced Assistant Professors): Applicants for appointment at the rank of Assistant Professor must have completed all degree requirements for the Ph.D. or equivalent international degree, with the exception of the dissertation, at the time of application. To apply, please complete and submit an online application through Academic Personnel Recruit (AP Recruit) on the University of California, Berkeley website: <https://aprecruit.berkeley.edu/apply/JPF01870>. Submit a cover letter, curriculum vitae, a statement outlining the candidate's current and future research, one to three published or unpublished scholarly works ready for examination (such as articles, dissertation chapters, or chapters from a book or book manuscript), three letters of reference, and a statement addressing past and/or potential contributions to diversity through research, teaching, and service. Further information on preparing a diversity statement is available on the website of the Berkeley Office for Faculty Equity and Welfare: <https://ofew.berkeley.edu/recruitment/contributions-diversity/support-faculty-candidates>.

All letters will be treated as confidential per University of California policy and California state law. Please refer potential referees, including when letters are provided via a third party (i.e., dossier service or career center), to the UC Berkeley statement of confidentiality (<http://apo.berkeley.edu/evalltr.html>) prior to submitting their letters.

Applications must be received by October 31, 2018 to be eligible for consideration. Please direct questions regarding the application process to Serena Groen, Director of Administration for Political Science.

The Charles and Louise Travers Department of Political Science is committed to addressing the family needs of faculty, including dual career couples and single parents. For information about potential relocation to Berkeley, or career needs of accompanying partners and spouses, please visit <http://ofew.berkeley.edu/new-faculty>.

The University of California is an Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action Employer. All qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to race, color, religion, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, national origin, disability, age, or protected veteran status.

For the complete University of California nondiscrimination policy and affirmative action policy see <http://policy.ucop.edu/doc/4000376/NondiscrimAffirmAct>.

JOB LOCATION

Berkeley, CA

REQUIREMENTS

Document requirements

- Cover Letter
- Curriculum Vitae
- Statement of Research - Statement outlining the candidate's current and future research
- Scholarly Work - One to three published or unpublished scholarly works ready for examination (such as articles, dissertation chapters, or chapters from a book or book manuscript)
- Scholarly Work - One to three published or unpublished scholarly works ready for examination (such as articles, dissertation chapters, or chapters from a book or book manuscript)

(Optional)

- Scholarly Work - One to three published or unpublished scholarly works ready for examination (such as articles, dissertation chapters, or chapters from a book or book manuscript)

(Optional)

- Statement of Contributions to Diversity - Statement addressing past and/or potential contributions to diversity through research, teaching, and/or service.

Further information on preparing a diversity statement is available on the website of the Berkeley Office for Faculty Equity and Welfare: <https://ofew.berkeley.edu/recruitment/contributions-diversity/support-faculty-candidates>.

Reference requirements

- 3 required (contact information only)

Copyright ©2017 Jobelephant.com Inc. All rights reserved.

<https://www.jobelephant.com/jeid-19a78ae63442ec44a376c58a8688eed9>

Start Date: Summer 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 10/1/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4934

Harvard University

Rank: Fellow-in-Residence

The Edmond J. Safra Center for Ethics at Harvard University invites applications from a broad range of researchers and practitioners who will work over the course of the year on pressing issues in ethics. Faculty in arts and sciences and professional schools, postdoctoral scholars, practitioners, and researchers from industry, government, and NGOs are eligible to apply.

For the 2019-20 academic year, the theme at the Edmond J. Safra Center for Ethics will be the Ethics of Technological and Biomedical Innovation.

Priority will be given to early career scholars and practitioners whose work closely aligns with this theme, but we reserve some "open" slots for senior scholars and practitioners, and for exceptionally competitive applicants whose work in ethics falls outside this scope. The goal will be to craft a cohort in which "thematic" fellows and "open" fellows will all find valuable intellectual partnerships to support and spur their work.

All Fellows-in-Residence will be expected to devote the majority of their time to their individual projects and to participate in regular work-in-progress seminars. In addition, Fellows are strongly encouraged to participate in the Center's programming, which includes public lectures, themed seminars and reading groups, conferences, workshops, and lunch discussions.

Under our new theme, the Center is pleased to offer joint fellowship opportunities with the following Centers:

- Petrie-Flom Center for Health Law Policy, Biotechnology and Bioethics at the Harvard Law School
- Center for Bioethics at the Harvard Medical School
- Center for Research on Computation and Society at the Harvard John A. Paulson School of Engineering and Applied Sciences

Applicants will be invited to indicate on the application form whether they wish to be considered for a joint fellowship position with one of these Centers. If selected, the joint fellowship will offer full access to development opportunities and programming at the Edmond J. Safra Center for Ethics and our partnering Center.

Please note that the Edmond J. Safra Center for Ethics is no longer able to accept applications for Berggruen Fellowships.

ELIGIBILITY

Applicants must have a PhD, professional degree, or a minimum of 5 years of equivalent professional experience, and any discipline or professional field will be considered. Those who have previously held a yearlong residential Fellowship at the Center are not eligible; this limitation does not apply to former Undergraduate Fellows or former Graduate Fellows. The Fellowship-in-Residence Program runs the course of the academic year, typically from the beginning of September through the end of May and is open to all applicants who meet the above criteria, regardless of citizenship.

APPLICATION REQUIREMENTS

To apply, you will need to complete an online application form, found at <https://ethics.harvard.edu/fellows-in-residence>, which includes submission of the following in .pdf form:

- Cover letter stating your background and interest in the Edmond J. Safra Center for Ethics Fellows-in-Residence Program
- CV
- Research proposal
- Recent writing sample
- Names and contact information for three professional references

The deadline for submitting this application is November 15, 2018. Please note that the application form will be saved automatically while in progress, but no edits or alterations will be allowed once you have submitted the application.

Should you have any questions regarding this application process, please send an email to EJSafraFellowships@fas.harvard.edu.

Start Date:

Application Deadline: 11/15/2018

Date Posted: 9/28/2018

Salary: Any

eJobs ID: 4919

University of Michigan, Ann Arbor

Rank: Professor of Public Policy

The University of Michigan's Gerald R. Ford School of Public Policy invites applications from social scientists with a PhD in sociology, social psychology, social demography, social policy, public policy or other closely-related disciplines for one or more tenured positions at the associate or full professor rank. The Ford School is committed to attracting and retaining a distinguished and diverse faculty. Areas of specialization and methodological approaches are open, with a particular interest in candidates whose scholarship addresses questions relating to poverty and inequality, stratification, economic sociology, science and technology studies and the sociology of diverse societies (including political sociology and race/ethnicity). Focus may be domestic/US or comparative. Successful candidates must demonstrate a record of outstanding research impact; ability and willingness to teach core and elective courses in undergraduate, master and PhD degree programs in public policy; dedication to public engagement; and a keen interest in interacting with students, faculty, staff, and policy practitioners in an interdisciplinary professional school environment. Candidates should combine relevant substantive expertise with strong interests in public policy.

This is an ongoing search. First consideration will be given to applications received by December 1, 2018, but applications will be considered until the position is filled. Interested applicants may upload their application materials to: <http://apply.interfolio.com/54665>

The following application materials are required: a letter of interest, curriculum vitae, statements of research and teaching philosophy, and a statement describing how your work would contribute to the Ford School's and University of Michigan's strategic commitment to diversity, equity and inclusion. (fordschool.umich.edu/dei)

The University of Michigan is an AA/EO employer. Women and minorities are encouraged to apply. The University is supportive of the needs of dual career couples.

Start Date: Fall 2019
Application Deadline: Open until Filled
Date Posted: 9/26/2018
Salary: Negotiable
eJobs ID: 4902

Duquesne University

Rank: Full-time, tenure-track assistant professor of American politics

Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Public Law, Public Policy

AMERICAN POLITICS

Assistant Professor of Political Science, McAnulty College and Graduate School of Liberal Arts, Duquesne University

The Department of Political Science at Duquesne University invites applications for a full-time, tenure-track assistant professor position in American politics. We are open to methodological approach and scholarly interests in any aspect of American politics, policy, and law. The ability to teach Constitutional law to undergraduates would be welcome. Candidates will be expected to continue the Department's tradition of excellence in scholarship and undergraduate teaching to a diverse and dynamic student body. Duquesne is located in downtown Pittsburgh, PA. The city, frequently ranked as America's most livable according to Places Rated Almanac, enjoys rich educational, cultural, and recreational resources.

The Search Committee will begin its review of applications on November 1, 2018 and will continue reviewing applications until the position is filled. Ph.D. by start date is strongly preferred. Applications from female and minority candidates are strongly encouraged. Applicants should submit (1) a detailed cover letter describing research interests and teaching experience; (2) a curriculum vitae; (3) a single best piece of scholarship no longer than 40 pages; (4) teaching evaluations, if available; and (5) three letters of recommendation to be submitted directly from references. Additional information may be required at a later date. All materials must be submitted directly to <http://apply.interfolio.com/54864>. Start date is August 15, 2019. Contracts are nine months in duration. For additional information, please contact Ms. Cheri Cunningham at cunningc@duq.edu.

Founded in 1878 by its sponsoring religious community, the Congregation of the Holy Spirit, Duquesne University is Catholic in mission and ecumenical in spirit. Its Mission Statement commits the University to "serving God by serving students – through commitment to excellence in liberal and professional education, through profound concern for moral and spiritual values, through the maintenance of an ecumenical atmosphere open to diversity, and through service to the Church, the community, the nation and the world." We invite applicants for this position to learn more about our university and its Spiritan heritage by visiting <http://www.duq.edu/about/mission-and-identity/mission-statement>. Those invited to campus for an interview may be asked about ways in which they see their talents contributing to the continued growth of our community and furthering its mission.

Start Date: Fall 2019
Application Deadline: 11/1/2018
Date Posted: 9/25/2018
Salary: Competitive
eJobs ID: 4887

Duquesne University

Rank: Full-time, tenure-track assistant professor of American politics

Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Public Law, Public Policy

AMERICAN POLITICS

Assistant Professor of Political Science, McAnulty College and Graduate School of Liberal Arts, Duquesne University

The Department of Political Science at Duquesne University invites applications for a full-time, tenure-track assistant professor position in American politics. We are open to methodological approach and scholarly interests in any aspect of American politics, policy, and law. The ability to teach Constitutional law to undergraduates would be welcome. Candidates will be expected to continue the Department's tradition of excellence in scholarship and undergraduate teaching to a diverse and dynamic student body. Duquesne is located in downtown Pittsburgh, PA. The city, frequently ranked as America's most livable according to Places Rated Almanac, enjoys rich educational, cultural, and recreational resources.

The Search Committee will begin its review of applications on November 1, 2018 and will continue reviewing applications until the position is filled. Ph.D. by start date is strongly preferred. Applications from female and minority candidates are strongly encouraged. Applicants should submit (1) a detailed cover letter describing research interests and teaching experience; (2) a curriculum vitae; (3) a single best piece of scholarship no longer than 40 pages; (4) teaching evaluations, if available; and (5) three letters of recommendation to be submitted directly from references. Additional information may be required at a later date. All materials must be submitted directly to <http://apply.interfolio.com/54864>. Start date is August 15, 2019. Contracts are nine months in duration. For additional information, please contact Ms. Cheri Cunningham at cunningc@duq.edu.

Founded in 1878 by its sponsoring religious community, the Congregation of the Holy Spirit, Duquesne University is Catholic in mission and ecumenical in spirit. Its Mission Statement commits the University to "serving God by serving students – through commitment to excellence in liberal and professional education, through profound concern for moral and spiritual values, through the maintenance of an ecumenical atmosphere open to diversity, and through service to the Church, the community, the nation and the world." We invite applicants for this position to learn more about our university and its Spiritan heritage by visiting <http://www.duq.edu/about/mission-and-identity/mission-statement>. Those invited to campus for an interview may be asked about ways in which they see their talents contributing to the continued growth of our community and furthering its mission.

Duquesne University values equality of opportunity as an educational institution and as an employer. We aspire to attract and sustain a diverse faculty and staff that reflects contemporary society, serves our academic goals and enriches our campus community. We particularly encourage applications from members of underrepresented groups and support dual-career couples through our charter membership in this region's HERC (<http://www.hercjobs.org/oh-western-pa-wv/>).

Start Date: Fall 2019
Date Posted: 9/25/2018
Salary: Competitive
eJobs ID: 4888

Indiana State University

Rank: Assistant Professor of Political Science

The Department of Political Science at Indiana State University (www.indstate.edu) invites applications for an American politics position at the assistant professor rank to begin in August 2019. The department's mission is tied to community engagement and experiential learning, and the successful candidate must demonstrate a willingness to promote those aims via teaching, research, and activities outside the classroom. Indiana State University is a comprehensive institution of higher learning with approximately 14,000 students.

The candidate selected will become the ninth full-time faculty member of the Department of Political Science, which offers undergraduate degrees in Political Science and Legal Studies. We also offer an online MPA program that draws students from Indiana and across the United States. Applicants should demonstrate the potential for both productive scholarship and effective teaching. We seek a new colleague trained in American politics, with an emphasis in public policy formation, implementation, and/or analysis. The successful candidate will be able to contribute introductory and upper division courses to the department's political science undergraduate program. The successful candidate will also offer courses in ISU's Foundational Studies curriculum the instructions of which would include, among other topics, ethics and social responsibility in a political context. Furthermore, the ability to contribute courses to the Master of Public Administration in the areas of public policy, nonprofit management, community development, and/or public-private partnerships is desired.

The typical teaching load for assistant professors in the department is 3 courses per semester, with an active research agenda and service responsibilities also expected. Review of applications will begin on October 25, 2018 and will continue until the position is filled. Applications completed by October 25 will be given full consideration. A Ph.D. at the time of the appointment in Political Science or in a closely related field is preferred. We will consider advanced ABDs who are able to demonstrate that they will have the Ph.D. in hand at that time.

Indiana State University is an Equal Opportunity Employer and conducts its recruitment and hiring based solely upon job-related qualifications, without regard to race, color, religion, age, sex, national origin, sexual orientation, disability, veteran status or citizenship status. The College of Arts and Sciences welcomes all faculty, staff, and students, regardless of identity or affiliation. The College values the contribution of all individuals in the execution of its primary mission, which is to educate undergraduate and graduate students. To that end, we will strive to attract representative staff and faculty. The College will actively support endeavors that embrace and explore human differences and global awareness. View the diversity plan at <https://www.indstate.edu/cas/diversity-plan>. Questions may be addressed to polisci@indstate.edu. Applicants must apply online at <https://jobs.indstate.edu>. Please include a letter of application, curricula vitae, unofficial graduate transcripts, evidence of teaching effectiveness (including sample syllabi, teaching evaluations, and a teaching philosophy statement), three letters of recommendation, and a writing sample.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 9/25/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4891

Vanderbilt University

Rank: Assistant Professor, Tenure Track, and Associate Professor/Professor with Tenure (Two Positions)

Specializations: Education Policy, Political Behavior, Quantitative Methods

The Department of Leadership, Policy, and Organizations (LPO) in Vanderbilt University's Peabody College and the Program in Public Policy Studies within the College of Arts and Science at Vanderbilt University invite applications for two joint faculty positions: 1) a tenured associate or full professor position; and 2) an assistant professor on the tenure track, for which both new and advanced assistant professor candidates are encouraged to apply.

Ideal candidates will show evidence of substantive interest in a true joint appointment between LPO and an Arts and Science department such as economics, political science, or sociology. The primary tenure home (and, for the junior candidate, the primary evaluation unit for the tenure decision) will be either in LPO or in an A&S department, chosen in consultation with the candidate. Both positions will carry appointments with the Program in Public Policy Studies.

We seek applicants whose research employs quantitative methods to address questions of fundamental importance to public policy at the local, state, and federal levels in the areas of education, human capital accumulation, labor/workforce outcomes, human development, and/or health. For one of the positions, we seek a scholar whose research focuses on education and human and economic development in international settings and contexts.

Senior candidates should have a strong record of accomplishment and a history of working collaboratively with colleagues and students. Senior candidates should also have an exemplary record of teaching, research, and service that includes mentoring and training future researchers within his/her research projects. A successful external funding record is expected for senior candidates; for junior candidates, the potential for the research agenda to attract external funding is a plus.

The mission of the Department of Leadership, Policy, and Organizations is to understand and improve the political, economic, organizational, and social contexts in which human learning takes place. The department embraces a range of disciplinary traditions and encourages multiple methodological approaches in the study of education policy and practice. The department operates highly regarded masters, Ed.D., and Ph.D. programs in K-12, international, and higher education leadership and policy, as well as an undergraduate major in Human and Organizational Development. These programs are ranked among the highest in the nation.

The mission of the Program in Public Policy Studies is to prepare students to be informed and engaged consumers and producers of public policy through rigorous training in social science and social context, exposure and access to top public policy researchers and scholars, and a deep commitment to creating positive and lasting change. The Program is in the midst of exciting and substantial growth, naming a Director and hiring two tenure-track faculty in the past year and engaging in this trans-institutional search for two new faculty positions. The Program offers an undergraduate major in the College of Arts and Sciences and seeks to grow trans-institutionally in the near future. The new faculty hired under this program have the potential to play a strong role in the program's future direction.

Application Instructions

For inquiries about the position, please contact search co-chairs Carolyn Heinrich (Patricia and Rodes Hart Professor, LPO: carolyn.j.heinrich@vanderbilt.edu) and/or Kitt Carpenter (Director, PPS and Professor, Economics: christopher.s.carpenter@vanderbilt.edu).

All application materials should be submitted by November 15, 2018; review of applications will begin as they are received and continue until the positions are filled. Applicants should submit a cover letter addressing their qualifications and interest, a full curriculum vita, and a representative research paper. Senior candidates should submit the names and contact information of three people who may serve as references. Junior candidates should submit three letters of reference. All materials should be submitted via Interfolio: <https://apply.interfolio.com/55168>

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: 1/15/2019

Date Posted: 9/21/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4875

Vanderbilt University

Rank: Assistant Professor, Tenure Track, and Associate Professor/Professor with Tenure (Two Positions)

Specializations: Education Policy, Political Behavior, Quantitative Methods

The Department of Leadership, Policy, and Organizations (LPO) in Vanderbilt University's Peabody College and the Program in Public Policy Studies within the College of Arts and Science at Vanderbilt University invite applications for two joint faculty positions: 1) a tenured associate or full professor position; and 2) an assistant professor on the tenure track, for which both new and advanced assistant professor candidates are encouraged to apply.

Ideal candidates will show evidence of substantive interest in a true joint appointment between LPO and an Arts and Science department such as economics, political science, or sociology. The primary tenure home (and, for the junior candidate, the primary evaluation unit for the tenure decision) will be either in LPO or in an A&S department, chosen in consultation with the candidate. Both positions will carry appointments with the Program in Public Policy Studies.

We seek applicants whose research employs quantitative methods to address questions of fundamental importance to public policy at the local, state, and federal levels in the areas of education, human capital accumulation, labor/workforce outcomes, human development, and/or health. For one of the positions, we seek a scholar whose research focuses on education and human and economic development in international settings and contexts.

Senior candidates should have a strong record of accomplishment and a history of working collaboratively with colleagues and students. Senior candidates should also have an exemplary record of teaching, research, and service that includes mentoring and training future researchers within his/her research projects. A successful external funding record is expected for senior candidates; for junior candidates, the potential for the research agenda to attract external funding is a plus.

The mission of the Department of Leadership, Policy, and Organizations is to understand and improve the political, economic, organizational, and social contexts in which human learning takes place. The department embraces a range of disciplinary traditions and encourages multiple methodological approaches in the study of education policy and practice. The department operates highly regarded masters, Ed.D., and Ph.D. programs in K-12, international, and higher education leadership and policy, as well as an undergraduate major in Human and Organizational Development. These programs are ranked among the highest in the nation.

The mission of the Program in Public Policy Studies is to prepare students to be informed and engaged consumers and producers of public policy through rigorous training in social science and social context, exposure and access to top public policy researchers and scholars, and a deep commitment to creating positive and lasting change. The Program is in the midst of exciting and substantial growth, naming a Director and hiring two tenure-track faculty in the past year and engaging in this trans-institutional search for two new faculty positions. The Program offers an undergraduate major in the College of Arts and Sciences and seeks to grow trans-institutionally in the near future. The new faculty hired under this program have the potential to play a strong role in the program's future direction.

Application Instructions

For inquiries about the position, please contact search co-chairs Carolyn Heinrich (Patricia and Rodes Hart Professor, LPO: carolyn.j.heinrich@vanderbilt.edu) and/or Kitt Carpenter (Director, PPS and Professor, Economics: christopher.s.carpenter@vanderbilt.edu).

All application materials should be submitted by November 15, 2018; review of applications will begin as they are received and continue until the positions are filled. Applicants should submit a cover letter addressing their qualifications and interest, a full curriculum vita, and a representative research paper. Senior candidates should submit the names and contact information of three people who may serve as references. Junior candidates should submit three letters of reference. All materials should be submitted via Interfolio: <https://apply.interfolio.com/55161>

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: 11/15/2018

Date Posted: 9/21/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4876

Purdue University, Northwest

Rank: Assistant Professor of Politics and Public Policy

The Department of Political Science, Economics, and World Languages and Cultures at Purdue University Northwest in Hammond and Westville, Indiana, invites applications for a Tenure Track Assistant Professor of Politics and Public Policy position starting on August 12, 2019.

The Department of Political Science, Economics, and World Languages and Cultures brings together scholars in political science, economics and foreign languages, creating unique synergies between its faculty, particularly with respect to public policy within political science and economics. With undergraduate majors and minors in Foreign Languages and Political Science, as well as a new minor in Economics, the department seeks to expand its public policy and state and local government focus.

Purdue University Northwest is an academically comprehensive regional university and part of the internationally respected Purdue

University system. The campuses are located in the northwest Indiana cities of Hammond, less than 25 miles southeast of downtown Chicago, and Westville, near the shores of Lake Michigan. Purdue University Northwest offers baccalaureate and master's degrees in such Purdue academic strengths as engineering; technologies; behavioral and social sciences; liberal arts; as well as professional programs consisting of nursing, business, education, and hospitality & tourism management. More than 12,000 students attend Purdue University Northwest. Adding to the unique character of the institution is a richly diverse student body including more than seven percent international students.

Essential Duties:

- Teaching multiple sections of the introductory courses in American Politics, as well as public policy courses in area of specialization.
- Teaching load will be three courses per semester.
- Participation in professional, university, and community service is expected.
- Opportunities for interacting with regional organizations and businesses are excellent and encouraged.
- Candidates with the ability to teach: introduction to international relations; introduction to public policy, state and local politics or immigration politics are strongly encouraged to apply.

Qualifications

A doctoral degree in Political Science or a related field is required. Applications from ABD candidates will be accepted with the expectation that the dissertation must be successfully defended by no later than January 1, 2019. Proficiency in English, written and spoken, is required.

Additional Information:

This position begins August 12, 2019. Interested applicants should submit a letter of application, vita with references, Letters of recommendation, and a statement of teaching philosophy to the address listed below. Electronic submission preferred. Review of applications will begin immediately and will continue until the position is filled with a preferred date of Oct. 15, 2018.

Purdue University Northwest is committed to advancing diversity in all areas of faculty effort, including scholarship, instruction, and engagement. Candidates should address at least one of these areas in their cover letter, indicating their experiences, current interests or activities, and/or future goals to promote a climate that values diversity and inclusion.

Political Science Search Committee

College of Humanities, Education and Social Sciences
Purdue University Northwest
2200 169th Street
Hammond, IN 46323
poljobs@pnw.edu

Purdue University Northwest offers an attractive salary and an excellent benefits package. For information regarding our excellent benefits package, please visit: www.purdue.edu/benefits

Professional references will be verified prior to any offer of employment. Employment is contingent upon completion of successful background check.

Purdue University Northwest is committed to advancing diversity in all areas of faculty effort, including scholarship, instruction, and engagement. Candidates should address at least one of these areas in their cover letter, indicating their experiences, current interests or activities, and/or future goals to promote a climate that values diversity and inclusion.

Purdue University is an equal opportunity/equal access/affirmative action employer fully committed to achieving a diverse workforce. All individuals, including minorities, women, individuals with disabilities, and protected veterans are encouraged to apply.

www.purdue.edu/ethics/policies/FosteringRespect_accessible.pdf

Start Date: Summer 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 9/19/2018

Salary: $60,000 - $69,999

eJobs ID: 4861

Princeton University

Rank: Postdoctoral Positions in Values and Public Policy

Subfield(s): Other, Public Policy, Political Theory

Specializations: American Politics, Civil Rights & Liberties, Constitutional Law & Theory

The University Center for Human Values and the Woodrow Wilson School of Public and International Affairs invite applications for postdoctoral or more senior research positions in Values and Public Policy. We aim to support highly promising scholars trained in moral and political philosophy, political theory, normative economics and related areas, in developing a research agenda in the ethical dimensions of public policy.

Candidates selected will undertake a research project exploring a normative problem arising in an area of public policy in which the Woodrow Wilson School conducts research. They will be affiliated with a unit of the School that can inform and support their work. They will also be invited to participate in programs of the University Center for Human Values. Candidates will be expected to contribute the equivalent of one course each year to the undergraduate or graduate programs of the School or the University Center. This contribution may be fulfilled by teaching a course on a topic related to ethical issues in public policy, subject to sufficient enrollment and approval by Program/Center Directors and the Dean of the Faculty, or service to the School or Center, subject to approval by Program/Center/School Directors or Chairs.

Qualifications

Applications are welcome from candidates who have or expect to have a Ph.D. by the start date, September 1, 2019. Applicants should not have held the degree for more than three years by the date of appointment. They may not be employed by another institution during the term of their Princeton appointment.

Applicants' dissertation research need not be specifically in values and public policy, but they will be expected to demonstrate a commitment to working on a research project in this area during their time at Princeton. Projects must be related to an area in which the School has a Center or Program (such as science and environmental policy, health and well-being, democratic institutions and processes, information technology policy or globalization and governance). For more information about these and other areas, please consult <http://www.princeton.edu/centers-programs>.

Applications will be evaluated on the basis of the applicant's previous accomplishments, the promise of the proposed research project in values and public policy, and the likelihood that the project will be enhanced by being carried out at the Woodrow Wilson School. The capacity to contribute to the University's teaching program will also be taken into account.

Term of Appointment

The term of appointment is one year, normally beginning September 1, 2019, with the expectation of renewal for one further year assuming good performance. Applicants are expected to be in residence for the duration of the appointment. Princeton offers competitive salary and employee benefits.

How to Apply

Candidates must submit an online application:

A complete application will include the following materials: <https://www.princeton.edu/acad-positions/position/7461>

1. A current curriculum vitae;
2. A research proposal (not to exceed 1,500 words), conforming to the expectations stated above. Please identify the Woodrow Wilson School center or program with which you wish to be associated and briefly describe what you hope to gain from carrying out the project there. Also please supply an indicative title for the project at the beginning of the proposal;
3. A scholarly paper or dissertation chapter (not to exceed 12,000 words) representing your scholarly achievement or potential;
4. Contact information for two referees, who will be asked to comment specifically on your qualifications for the proposed research project. Referees will be contacted directly by email with instructions for uploading letters of reference.

These materials must be submitted online by the application deadline of Monday, November 12, 2018, 11:59 p.m. EST. We cannot accept application materials by any other method. Letters of reference are to be submitted by end of business day on Thursday, November 15, 2018. The selection committee will begin reviewing applications immediately and applications lacking any of the elements listed above may be at a disadvantage. Decisions will be announced in March 2019.

This position is subject to the University's background check policy.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: 11/12/2018

Date Posted: 9/18/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4853

Vanderbilt University

Rank: Professor of Education Policy in Equity and Inclusion

Subfield(s): Other, Methodology, Public Policy

The Department of Leadership, Policy, and Organizations at Peabody College of Education and Human Development at Vanderbilt University invites applications for the position of Professor of Education Policy in Equity and Inclusion. We seek distinguished applicants trained in the social sciences who study the ways in which education creates advantages and disadvantages for different individuals and groups in the United States. We are interested in a scholar whose work addresses the effectiveness of the nation's K-16 education system as a site for civic empowerment and social and economic mobility, and whose research critically examines fundamental questions around the role of schools and/or colleges in the achievement of an equitable, inclusive, and diverse society.

Candidates should possess an exemplary record of scholarly accomplishment and a demonstrated capacity to work collaboratively with colleagues commensurate with the rank of full professor. A successful record of external funding is expected. The successful candidate will have experience mentoring and training doctoral students for careers in academia and closely allied research organizations, and commitments to teaching undergraduate and professional degree students.

The mission of the Department of Leadership, Policy, and Organizations is to understand and improve the political, economic, organizational, and social contexts in which human learning takes place. The department embraces a range of disciplinary traditions and encourages multiple methodological approaches in the study of education policy and practice.

The department operates highly regarded programs and degrees at the undergraduate, master's, and doctoral level, including professional master's degree programs; an on-campus Ed.D. program in K-12 and in higher education leadership and policy; an online Ed.D. in leadership and learning in organizations; a Ph.D. program in K-12 and in higher education leadership and policy; and an undergraduate degree in Human and Organizational Development. For more information on the department, visit our website: <http://peabody.vanderbilt.edu/departments/lpo/index.php>

Applications

Review of formal applications will begin December 1, 2018, and continue until the position is filled. The anticipated start date is August 2019. Applicants should submit a letter addressing their qualifications and interests, a full curriculum vitae, three recent peer-reviewed publications, and the names and contact information of three references. Please apply at the following link: <https://apply.interfolio.com/53826>

For questions about the position, please contact:

Ellen Goldring

Patricia and Rodes Hart Chair

Professor of Education Policy and Leadership

Chair, Department of Leadership, Policy, and Organizations

Peabody #414, 230 Appleton Place

Nashville, TN 37203

ellen.goldring@vanderbilt.edu

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: 12/1/2018

Date Posted: 9/18/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4849

Texas A&M University

Rank: Assistant or Associate Professor in Public Policy Analysis/
Assistant or Associate Professor in Public Management

Specializations: Environmental Policy, Energy Policy, Trade

Texas A&M University, Bush School of Government and Public Service,

Department of Public Service and Administration

Assistant or Associate Professor of Public Policy Analysis

The Department of Public Service and Administration in the Bush School of Government and Public Service at Texas A&M University invites applications and nominations for a tenure-track assistant or tenured associate professor to teach in the Public Policy Analysis track of its Master of Public Service and Administration Program. Energy or environmental economists with a strong record of, or high potential for, research and teaching in public policy issues are preferred, although candidates from all fields of public policy and applied economics will be considered. Candidates will be expected to build on existing strengths and bolster the capacity of the School to participate in campus-wide multidisciplinary research initiatives and new or existing programs of the Institute for Science, Technology, and Public Policy and the Mosbacher Institute for Trade, Economics, and Public Policy. Successful applicants must have a Ph.D. by the beginning of employment in September 2019 and demonstrate evidence of a commitment both to high quality empirical research and to teaching in a professional school of government and public service.

The Department of Public Service and Administration is one of two departments in the Bush School of Government and Public Service. Additional information about the Bush School and department is available at <http://bush.tamu.edu/psaa>.

As a major land-grant university, Texas A&M has both an extraordinary opportunity and a special responsibility to create and maintain a campus climate that affirms diversity of thought, background, ethnicity, and perspective. Texas A&M University is an equal opportunity, affirmative action employer strongly committed to achieving excellence through cultural diversity. The University actively encourages applications from women, minorities, and persons with disabilities.

Applications should include a curriculum vitae, letter of interest, at least one writing sample, and complete contact information for 3 references. Letters of reference, while not required at this stage, may also be sent. Please send applications to the PPA Search Committee, c/o Ms. Stephanie Bustos, at bushschoolpsaa-facultysearch@tamu.edu. Review of applications will begin on October 1, 2018, and will continue until the position is filled.

Assistant or Associate Professor of Public Management

The Department of Public Service and Administration in the Bush School of Government and Public Service at Texas A&M University invites applications and nominations for a tenure-track assistant professor or tenured associate professor in public management who will contribute to the department in the areas of teaching, research and service. Successful applicants must have a Ph.D. by the beginning of employment in September 2019 and demonstrate evidence of a commitment both to high quality empirical research and to teaching in a professional school of government and public service.

The Department of Public Service and Administration is one of two departments in the Bush School of Government and Public Service and currently enrolls 174 full-time in-residence students, with 22 full-time and 18 tenured or tenure-track faculty members. It offers three tracks of curriculum, including public management, public policy analysis, and nonprofit management. The School is ranked in the top 12 percent of graduate public affairs schools in the nation (U.S. News & World Report) and 1st in the Nation for “Best Value in MPA Programs” (Value College). The curriculum within the department is a blend of both the theoretical and the practical—providing students with the knowledge, skills, and abilities needed for successful careers in public and nonprofit service. Students choose from a number of concentrations to focus their studies including state and local government; health policy; education policy; security policy; energy, environment, and technology; international nongovernmental organizations; analytical methods; and individually designed concentrations offering flexibility to students with specific interests. Additional information about the Bush School and department is available at <http://bush.tamu.edu/psaa>.

As a major land-grant university, Texas A&M has both an extraordinary opportunity and a special responsibility to create and maintain a campus climate that affirms diversity of thought, background, ethnicity, and perspective. Texas A&M University is an equal opportunity, affirmative action employer strongly committed to achieving excellence through cultural diversity. The University actively encourages applications from women, minorities and persons with disabilities.

Applications should include a curriculum vitae, letter of interest, at least one writing sample, and complete contact information for 3 references. Letters of reference, while not required at this stage, may also be sent. Please send applications to the PPM Search Committee, c/o Ms. Stephanie Bustos, at bushschoolpsaa-facultysearch@tamu.edu. Review of applications will begin on October 1, 2018, and will continue until the position is filled.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 9/14/2018

Salary: Any

eJobs ID: 4840

Temple University

Rank: Assistant Professor in State/Local/Urban Policy and Politics

The Department of Political Science at Temple University invites applications for a tenure-track position at the level of Assistant Professor in American politics focusing on state, local, or urban policy, politics, and governance. We are interested in candidates whose research and teaching engages any policy area. Candidates must demonstrate a strong commitment to excellence in both research and teaching. Evidence of external grant/fellowship support is desirable.

Teaching a survey course in state and local politics and policy on a regular basis is expected. Temple University is a state-related Carnegie Research University (highest research activity) located in Philadelphia. The College of Liberal Arts is home to 32 undergraduate majors, 32 minors, 23 certificate programs and 15 graduate degree programs. With its vibrant and diverse array of educational programs, the College of Liberal Arts plays a tremendous role in Temple University’s academic success and its mission mirrors both the historical importance of the liberal arts in society and the principles on which the university was founded. Candidates are expected to have completed a Ph.D. by the beginning of their appointment. Please send a cover letter; curriculum vitae; a sample of written or published scholarly work; teaching portfolio (e.g., sample syllabi, student and/or peer evaluations); graduate school transcript; and three letters of reference to: <http://apply.interfolio.com/54756>. Applications received by October 15, 2018 will receive best consideration. Temple University is an Affirmative Action equal opportunity employer and particularly encourages applications from women, persons of color, veterans and persons with disabilities

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: 10/16/2018

Date Posted: 9/12/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4825

Drake University

Rank: Assistant Professor

Drake University seeks a full-time tenure-track Assistant Professor of Political Science in American Politics, focusing on public policy and policy analysis. Applicants should possess a Ph.D. in Political Science (ABDs with solid evidence of completion by the start of the Fall 2019 semester will be considered) and demonstrated commitment to teaching excellence. Teaching responsibilities include the introductory American Politics course and upper level courses covering domestic public policy (process and theory), policy analysis, and topics consistent with the individual's research specialization. Located in the fastest growing city in the Midwest and the state capital of Des Moines, Iowa, Drake is a hub of political activity during the Iowa caucuses and offers exceptional opportunities for experiential learning, student engagement, and scholarship on policy formulation and discourse in local, state, and national contexts. Salary is competitive with peer schools and dependent on qualifications and experience. Review of applications will begin October 1, 2018. To apply, go to <https://drake.hiretouch.com> and submit a cover letter, current curriculum vitae, three letters of reference, evidence of teaching effectiveness (including sample syllabi, teaching evaluations, and a statement on teaching philosophy), and a writing sample. Questions may be directed to the search committee chair at Rachel.caufield@drake.edu.

<https://drake.hiretouch.com/job-details?jobID=50547&job=assistant-professor-of-politics-998795><https://drake.hiretouch.com/job-details?jobID=50547&job=assistant-professor-of-politics-998795>

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: 10/15/2018

Date Posted: 9/11/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4806

Princeton University

Rank: Postdoctoral Fellowship in Regional Political Economy Niehaus Center for Globalization and Governance

Subfield(s): International Relations, Public Policy, Comparative Politics

Specializations: Middle East, Southeast Asia, Africa

The Niehaus Center for Globalization and Governance (NCGG) at Princeton University's Woodrow Wilson School of Public and International Affairs invite applications for a postdoctoral or more senior research associate position from individuals with a Ph.D. degree or who expect to receive a Ph.D. degree by September 1, 2019 for the Postdoctoral Fellowship Program in regional political economy for the 2019-2020 academic year. This fellows program is targeted at developing a generation of scholars able to analyze and make policy recommendations about the regional political economy in the Middle East, East, South, or Southeast Asia, Africa and Latin America. The Center invites candidates with a background in economics, political science, contemporary history, sociology, law, business, and other disciplines bearing on the study of markets, politics, and economic development, focusing on the regions of the Middle East, East, South, or Southeast Asia, Africa and Latin America to apply. Scholarly work should explore the ways in which the politics within and between a set of countries intersect with natural resource endowments, market conditions, technological and physical infrastructure, and cultural biases to explain existing patterns of economic development and to promote higher levels of development more effectively. Selected candidates will be required to be in residence for the duration of the fellowship (September 1, 2019 - July 1, 2020).

Application Deadline – Applicants should apply by Monday, December 3, 2018 (11:59pm EST), for full consideration, however; posting will remain open until filled.

Application Process - All candidates must use the online application process to submit materials at: <http://www.princeton.edu/acad-positions/position/8571>.

Applicants are required to hold a Ph.D. or expect to receive a Ph.D. degree by September 1, 2019 in one of the above mentioned disciplines. To apply, please provide the following:

- Cover letter explaining the candidate's scholarly career, prospective or actual doctoral defense date, and academic interests;
- Current curriculum vitae including publications;
- 2,000-word description of the proposed research project, including its specific objectives, importance, and research design;
- One writing sample (limit of 100 pages);
- Contact information for three references, who will be asked to comment specifically on the applicant's qualifications for the proposed research project. Referees will be contacted directly by email with instructions for submitting a confidential recommendation on your behalf. Letters of reference are to be submitted by the end of business day on Thursday, December 6, 2018. Complete your application well before the deadline so that references can be submitted in a timely manner.

Salary – Rank and salary will be contingent on qualifications. NCGG Fellows will receive applicable Princeton University benefits, a taxable moving allowance, and a $5,000 research fund.

Successful applicants will be notified of the outcome of their application in February 2019. This position is subject to the University's background check policy.

For more information about the Niehaus Center for Globalization and Governance fellowship program, please contact Patricia Trinity, Assistant Director at ptrinity@princeton.edu.

Start Date: Fall

Application Deadline: 12/3/2018

Date Posted: 9/11/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4801

Princeton University

Rank: Postdoctoral Research Associate Niehaus Center for Globalization and Governance

Subfield(s): International Relations, Public Policy, Comparative Politics

Specializations: International Political Economy, Economic Policy, Political Economy

The Niehaus Center for Globalization and Governance (NCGG) at Princeton University's Woodrow Wilson School of Public and International Affairs invite applications for a postdoctoral or more senior research associate position from individuals with a Ph.D. degree or who expect to receive a Ph.D. degree by September 1, 2019 for the 2019-2020 academic year. These awards are designed to promote basic research in the broad areas of international and comparative political economy, international organization and global governance, and globalization. Research on the causes and consequences of globalization, the political economy of foreign trade, monetary and regulatory policies, the sources of international cooperation at the global and regional level, the domestic and international politics of economic development, the political economy of human security issues, the evolution and impact of international institutions, and the politics of international law and human rights policies is of relevance.

Outstanding scholars anywhere in the world are eligible to apply. The Center invites candidates with a background in political science, economics, modern history, sociology, anthropology, law, business, and other disciplines bearing on the study of globalization to apply. Selected candidates will be required to be in residence for the duration of the fellowship (September 1, 2019 – July 1, 2020).

Application Deadline: Applicants should apply by Friday, November 30, 2018 (11:59pm EST), for full consideration, however; posting will remain open until filled.

Application Process – All candidates must use the online application process to submit materials at: <http://www.princeton.edu/acad-positions/position/8569>.

Applicants are required to hold a Ph.D. or who expect to receive a Ph.D. degree by September 1, 2019 in one of the above mentioned disciplines. To apply, please provide the following:

- Cover letter explaining the candidate's scholarly career, prospective or actual doctoral defense date, and academic interests;
- Current curriculum vitae including publications;
- 2,000-word description of the proposed research project, including its specific objectives, importance, and research design;
- One writing sample (limit of 100 pages);
- Contact information for three references, who will be asked to comment specifically on the applicant's qualifications for the proposed research project. Referees will be contacted directly by email with instructions for submitting a confidential recommendation on your behalf. Letters of reference are to be submitted by the end of business day on Wednesday, December 5, 2018. Complete your application well before the deadline so that references can be submitted in a timely manner.

Salary – Rank and salary will be contingent on qualifications. NCGG Fellows will receive applicable Princeton University benefits, a taxable moving allowance, and a $5,000 research fund.

Successful applicants will be notified of the outcome of their application in February 2019. These positions are subject to the University's background check policy.

For more information about the Niehaus Center for Globalization and Governance fellowship program, please contact Patricia Trinity, Assistant Director at ptrinity@princeton.edu.

Start Date: Fall

Application Deadline: 11/30/2018

Date Posted: 9/11/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4800

Princeton University

Rank: Visiting Fellowship in Regional Political Economy Niehaus Center for Globalization and Governance

Subfield(s): International Relations, Public Policy, Comparative Politics

Specializations: Southeast Asia, Middle East, Africa

The Niehaus Center for Globalization and Governance (NCGG) at Princeton University's Woodrow Wilson School of Public and International Affairs seeks two visitors or more candidates for the Visiting Fellowship Program in regional political economy for the 2019-2020 academic year. This fellows program is targeted at developing a generation of scholars able to analyze and make policy recommendations about the regional political economy in the Middle East, East, South, or Southeast Asia, Africa and Latin America. The Center invites candidates with a background in economics, political science, contemporary history, sociology, law, business, and other disciplines bearing on the study of markets, politics, and economic development, focusing on the regions of the Middle East, East, South, or Southeast Asia, Africa and Latin America to apply. Scholarly work should explore the ways in which the politics within and between a set of countries intersect with natural resource endowments, market conditions, technological and physical infrastructure, and cultural biases to explain existing patterns of economic development and to promote higher levels of development more effectively. Selected candidates will be required to be in residence for the duration of the fellowship (September 1, 2018 2019 - July 1, 2020).

Application Deadline – Applicants should apply by Monday, December 3, 2018 (11:59pm EST), for full consideration, however; posting will remain open until filled.

Application Process – All candidates must use the online application process to submit materials at: <http://www.princeton.edu/acad-positions/position/8581>.

Applicants are required to hold a Ph.D. in one of the above mentioned disciplines. To apply, please provide the following:

- Cover letter explaining the candidate's scholarly career, prospective or actual doctoral defense date, and academic interests;
- Current curriculum vitae including publications;
- 2,000-word description of the proposed research project, including its specific objectives, importance, and research design;
- One writing sample (limit of 100 pages);
- Contact information for three references, who will be asked to comment specifically on the applicant's qualifications for the proposed research project. Referees will be contacted directly by email with instructions for submitting a confidential recommendation on your behalf. Letters of reference are to be submitted by the end of business day on Thursday, December 6, 2018. Complete your application well before the deadline so that references can be submitted in a timely manner.

Candidates who hold positions at academic institutions may also be required to submit:

- Home institution policy with regard to sabbatical pay;
- A confidential statement indicating salary for the current academic year (September 2018 - July 1, 2019).

Salary – Rank and salary will be contingent on qualifications. NCGG Fellows will receive applicable Princeton University benefits, a taxable moving allowance, and a $5,000 research fund.

Successful applicants will be notified of the outcome of their application in February 2019. This position is subject to the University's background check policy.

For more information about the Niehaus Center for Globalization and Governance fellowship program, please contact Patricia Trinity, Assistant Director at ptrinity@princeton.edu.

Start Date: Fall

Application Deadline: 12/3/2018

Date Posted: 9/11/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4803

Princeton University

Rank: Visiting Fellowship Niehaus Center for Globalization and Governance

Subfield(s): International Relations, Public Policy, Comparative Politics

Specializations: International Political Economy, Economic Policy, Political Economy

The Niehaus Center for Globalization and Governance (NCGG) at Princeton University's Woodrow Wilson School of Public and International Affairs seeks up to eight visitors for the 2019-2020 academic year Visiting Fellowship Program. These awards are designed to promote basic research in the broad areas of international and comparative political economy, international organization and global governance, and globalization. Research on the causes and consequences of globalization, the political economy of foreign trade, monetary and regulatory policies, the sources of international cooperation at the global and regional level, the domestic and international politics of economic development, the political economy of human security issues, the evolution and impact of international institutions, and the politics of international law and human rights policies is of relevance.

Outstanding scholars anywhere in the world are eligible to apply. The Center invites candidates with a background in political science, economics, modern history, sociology, anthropology, law, business, and other disciplines bearing on the study of globalization to apply. Selected candidates will be required to be in residence for the duration of the fellowship (September 1, 2019 - July 1, 2020).

Application Deadline – Applicants should apply by Friday, November 30, 2018 (11:59pm EST), for full consideration, however; posting will remain open until filled.

Application Process – All candidates must use the online application process to submit materials at: <http://www.princeton.edu/acad-positions/position/8570>.

Applicants are required to hold a Ph.D. in one of the above mentioned disciplines. To apply, please provide the following:

- Cover letter explaining the candidate's scholarly career, prospective or actual doctoral defense date, and academic interests;
- Current curriculum vitae including publications;
- 2,000-word description of the proposed research project, including its specific objectives, importance, and research design;
- One writing sample (limit of 100 pages);
- Contact information for three references, who will be asked to comment specifically on the applicant's qualifications for the proposed research project. Referees will be contacted directly by email with instructions for submitting a confidential recommendation on your behalf. Letters of reference are to be submitted by the end of business day on Wednesday, December 5, 2018. Complete your application well before the deadline so that references can be submitted in a timely manner.

Candidates who hold positions at academic institutions may also be required to submit:

- Home institution policy with regard to sabbatical pay;
- A confidential statement indicating salary for the current academic year (September 2018 - July 1, 2019).

Salary – Rank and salary will be contingent on qualifications. NCGG Fellows will receive applicable Princeton University benefits, a taxable moving allowance, and a $5,000 research fund.

Successful applicants will be notified of the outcome of their application in February 2019. These positions are subject to the University's background check policy.

For more information about the Niehaus Center for Globalization and Governance fellowship program, please contact Patricia Trinity, Assistant Director at ptrinity@princeton.edu.

Start Date: Fall 2018

Application Deadline: 11/30/2018

Date Posted: 9/11/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4799

Syracuse University

Rank: Assistant or Associate Professor, Economics of Aging

Specializations: Health Care, Social Welfare, Economic Policy

The Department of Public Administration and International Affairs (PAIA) seeks to hire a tenured or tenure track professor in the field of economics of aging, at the advanced Assistant or Associate Professor level, beginning in fall 2019.

We are interested in attracting an established scholar with credentials in the economics of aging. A broad range of research topics or specialties is relevant, including retirement and economic well-being; wealth and bequests; public health, health policy, and health service use; disability and its consequences; intergenerational transfers; public policy analysis and evaluation; and international or comparative studies. The successful candidate will be expected to teach courses in the department's Masters and PhD programs. This individual will also be expected to become a faculty associate in the University's Aging Studies Institute, joining its interdisciplinary team of researchers. Therefore, a track record of collaborative research output is particularly desirable; a track record of success in obtaining research support, particularly from the National Institute on Aging or other NIH institutes, is especially desirable.

The PAIA department is located within the Maxwell School of Citizenship and Public Affairs. The school is committed to citizenship education at the undergraduate level and to graduate education in public affairs and the social sciences. The department seeks candidates who complement the broader Maxwell mission, have interdisciplinary interests and are interested in training future leaders.

Applicants should have a Ph.D. in economics or a related field. Rank and salary will be commensurate with degree field, experience, and professional accomplishments.

To be considered, candidates must complete an online faculty application (available at <http://www.sujobopps.com/postings/074067>) and attach: a letter of interest, a CV, a sample of professional writing, a statement of teaching philosophy, names and complete contact information for 3 references. Files may be no larger than 5MB, but you may submit an external link to a larger file if needed.

Applications will be reviewed as they arrive with full consideration given to those received by October 15. However, applications will be considered until the position is filled.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 9/10/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4798

University of Miami

Rank: Assistant Professor in the field of domestic or comparative public policy

The Department of Political Science invites applications for a full-time tenure-track position at the rank of Assistant Professor in the field of domestic or comparative public policy. Preference will be given to public policy candidates who complement our existing strengths. Candidates should have received their PhD by August 15, 2019 and show promise of high-quality research in top scholarly outlets as well as excellence in teaching. The expected teaching assignment is 2-2, and the position will involve teaching in the field of public policy.

All application packages can be submitted online via the Faculty Career Opportunities website (<https://umiami.wd1.myworkdayjobs.com/UMFaculty>) and all documents can be uploaded via this site. Applicants should upload documents including a CV; a cover letter; a one page teaching statement with a list of possible courses the applicant could teach, including but not limited to our existing course offerings; a PhD transcript (unofficial is acceptable for initial application); a single-authored writing sample; as well as three reference letters to be submitted via this site as well. Applications received on or before Friday, November 2nd, 2018, will be given full consideration, though the committee will continue to accept applications until the position is filled. Search committee members will be available to meet with prospective applicants at APSA and APAM. For further information about the position, please contact the Department Chair (jwest@miami.edu). Additional information about the Department is available at www.as.miami.edu/politicalscience/

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 9/10/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4802

University of Wisconsin, Madison

Rank: ASSISTANT OR ASSOCIATE PROFESSOR OF ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT

The selected candidates will conduct productive research and be committed to teaching in core public management topics.

The selected scholar will perform research and teaching in the areas of economic development and state and local public finance. This scholar would be expected to teach courses in public budgeting and economic development. For this position, the strongest candidate would be a scholar who is capable and interested in engaging in public dialogues, including interactions with the media, related to economic development and state and local public finance, as well as in advising state and local government officials on these topics. University and professional service as appropriate are required.

The La Follette School is a highly ranked school of public affairs, and one of many highly ranked social science units at the University of Wisconsin-Madison. The University is consistently ranked among the top universities in terms of success in federally funded research grants and is highly supportive of an interdisciplinary approach to scholarship.

Successful candidates will be expected to teach at the undergraduate and masters/graduate level, lead a scholarly research program, perform university and professional service, interact with the media and public officials, and complete public outreach.

ADDITIONAL INFORMATION:

UW-Madison is seeking a diverse set of faculty candidates who will deepen our campus' research strength, as well as faculty candidates who will approach their work in a manner that advances our commitment to research excellence.

A criminal background check will be conducted prior to hiring.

Candidates for the associate professor rank must meet criteria for appointment at rank per UW College of Letters and Sciences guidelines for appointment and promotion on the tenure track.

Finalists cannot be guaranteed confidentiality.

TO APPLY:

<http://jobs.hr.wisc.edu/cw/en-us/job/499043/assistant-or-associate-professor-of-economic-development>

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: 10/15/2018

Date Posted: 9/6/2018

Salary: Negotiable

eJobs ID: 4780

University of Wisconsin, Madison

Rank: ASSOCIATE OR ASSISTANT PROFESSOR OF PUBLIC MANAGEMENT

The selected candidates will conduct productive research and be committed to teaching in core public management topics.

The selected scholar will teach core courses in public management, as well as upper level electives in specialty topics in public management. The selected individuals will offer undergraduate and graduate level courses in areas such as: performance management, public sector leadership, non-profit management, public policy process, and/or evidence-based policymaking. We encourage applicants from both domestic and international public management or public administration traditions. The research and teaching may include domestic and/or international public management or public administration.

The La Follette School is a highly ranked school of public affairs, and one of many highly ranked social science units at the University of Wisconsin-Madison. The University is consistently ranked among the top universities in terms of success in federally funded research grants and is highly supportive of an interdisciplinary approach to scholarship

Successful candidates will be expected to teach at the undergraduate and masters/graduate level, lead a scholarly research program, perform university and professional service, interact with the media and public officials, and complete public outreach.

ADDITIONAL INFORMATION:

UW-Madison is seeking a diverse set of faculty candidates who will deepen our campus' research strength, as well as faculty candidates who will approach their work in a manner that advances our commitment to research excellence.

A criminal background check will be conducted prior to hiring.

This recruitment may result in up to 2 hires.

Finalists cannot be guaranteed confidentiality.

TO APPLY:

<http://jobs.hr.wisc.edu/cw/en-us/job/498963/associate-or-assistant-professor-of-public-management>

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: 10/15/2018

Date Posted: 9/6/2018

Salary: Negotiable

eJobs ID: 4779

University of Wisconsin, Madison

Rank: PROFESSOR, PUBLIC POLICY AND REPRODUCTIVE HEALTH - CLUSTER HIRE

The successful candidate for this position will be expected to develop and maintain an energetic, cutting-edge, highly visible research program; advise graduate and post-graduate research; develop and maintain extramural funding for their research program; and teach graduate and undergraduate courses in the management and implementation of reproductive health and social policy, or develop new courses in their area of expertise, as appropriate. Reproductive health includes, but is not limited to public policies surrounding fertility, birth control, in-utero health, post-partum health and early childhood development, as they affect health disparities, whether due to geography, socio-economic status, race, ethnicity, or program delivery and health equity.

The Reproductive Equity Cluster:

This position is part of the Reproductive Equity Cluster, which was developed in order to build cross-disciplinary research expertise necessary to examine the drivers and consequences of inequities in reproductive health and to identify potential solutions. Areas of cluster research could include health care policy, social policy, structural, and individual factors related to family planning, fertility/infertility, maternal and infant mortality, and other aspects of maternal and child health as they relate to policy and practice. It is expected that the successful candidate will focus on health disparities and health equity and the ways in which policy and practice effect same.

A major purpose of the cluster is to build on existing strengths on campus. Ultimately, it is a goal that an expansion of this work at UW-Madison will translate into greater health equity and improved health and well-being of residents of Wisconsin and beyond. The interdisciplinary, comprehensive focus of the cluster will be used to expand research activity in this area and add greater diversity to the voices engaged in these discussions, particularly with respect to health disparities and inequities, and program and policy effects on disparities.

Candidates should have an interest in collaborating with the cluster and with colleagues in schools, centers, and training programs across campus such as the School of Medicine and Public Health, Population Health Sciences, the LaFollette School of Public Affairs, the School of Social Work, the School of Human Ecology, the Institute for Research on Poverty and the Center for Demography and Ecology.

Overall, three candidates will be recruited in this Cluster: 1) Professor, Public Policy and Reproductive Health [PVL # 94865] (this particular search), 2) Professor, Health Services Research and Reproductive Health [PVL# 94599] , and 3) Professor, Social Causes & Consequences of Reproductive Health [PVL # 94972]. These positions are part of the UW's Cluster Hiring Initiative (<https://facstaff.provost.wisc.edu/cluster-hiring-initiative/>), designed to foster innovative, outstanding research programs that will stimulate productive interactions among faculty and students interested in research across the campus and to expand interdisciplinary research.

ADDITIONAL INFORMATION:

Faculty hired under this initiative will most likely have a primary faculty appointment in the LaFollette School of Public Affairs, with potential joint or secondary appointments in relevant departments and schools such as Law, Human Ecology, or Population Health Sciences in the School of Medicine and Public Health.

UW-Madison is seeking a diverse set of faculty candidates who will deepen our campus' interdisciplinary research strength in key areas of current and future research promise, as well as faculty candidates who will approach their work in a manner that advances our commitment to research excellence.

A criminal background check will be conducted prior to hiring.

Candidates for the tenured professor rank must meet criteria for appointment at rank per UW College of Letters and Sciences guidelines for appointment and promotion on the tenure track.

The successful applicant will be responsible for ensuring eligibility for employment in the United States on or before the effective date of the appointment.

TO APPLY:

<http://jobs.hr.wisc.edu/cw/en-us/job/498771/professor-public-policy-and-reproductive-health-cluster-hire>

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: 10/1/2018

Date Posted: 9/6/2018

Salary: Negotiable

eJobs ID: 4781

University of Delaware

Rank: Assistant/Associate Professor Positions in Disaster Science Subfield(s): Public Policy, Methodology, Public Administration

The University of Delaware (UD) (<http://www.udel.edu/>) invites applications from talented scholars pursuing interesting questions related to disasters, hazards, and crisis. We are looking to fill multiple tenure-track/tenured positions in Disaster Science at the Assistant or Associate Professor level beginning September 1, 2019. This search is the first stage of an exciting university-wide, interdisciplinary cluster recruitment effort to expand research in disaster science, a major emphasis of the University, with hiring planned over the next two years. In this first stage, we are seeking exceptional candidates with interdisciplinary interests in a wide range of topics broadly construed as social perspectives on risk, hazards and disasters.

Faculty will have a tenure-track/tenured home in a department at the University of Delaware and join, as core faculty, the world-renowned Disaster Research Center (DRC) (www.drc.udel.edu), the world's oldest center focused on the social science and management aspects of disaster. UD has several environment- and disaster-oriented programs and research streams in its various colleges. DRC houses the flagship institution of the William A. Anderson Fund (BAF), an initiative devoted to increasing the participation of students from historically underrepresented populations in disaster science and practice.

QUALIFICATIONS

We seek scholars who are committed to interdisciplinary research and teaching, diversity and inclusion, and community engagement. Candidates should show experience or potential for securing external funding. The candidate should hold an earned Ph.D. or other relevant doctoral degree at the time of appointment. We will consider a broad range of research foci related to social perspectives on risk, hazards, and disasters. Possible, but not exclusive, areas of interest might include: individual and household preparedness for disaster; social determinants of disaster health outcomes and recovery; food security and connection of food delivery to health outcomes in disaster-affected settings; institutional systems for service delivery, such as for disaster behavioral health; functional and access needs, including elder populations and others requiring medical-support care in hospitals and nursing homes; environmental and social justice; risk perception/communication; environmental planning; hazard mitigation; and decision-making and social change. Researchers with strong methodological skills (one or more approaches, such as statistics, spatial analysis, social network analysis, GIS, participatory action research, qualitative methods, or mixed methods) are encouraged to apply.

APPLICATION PROCESS

Applicants should submit: (1) a current curriculum vita; (2) a cover letter summarizing their interest, qualifications, likely department(s) they wish to be considered for their tenure/tenure-track home, and a description of progress on the dissertation, if not yet complete; (3) a research statement; (4) a teaching statement; (5) contact information for three references (references will not be contacted prior to notifying the candidate). Candidates should ensure that their materials address the qualifications stated above. Review of applications will begin on October 1, 2018 and will continue until the positions are filled. This institution is using Interfolio's Faculty Search to conduct this search. Those interested should apply through <http://www.udel.edu/faculty-staff/human-resources/careers/faculty-jobs/>.

Please direct questions, but not application materials, to Tricia Wachendorf or James Kendra, Search Committee Co-Chairs (twachten@udel.edu or jmkendra@udel.edu).

Located in Newark, Delaware, within 2 hours of New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, and Washington, D.C., UD is a Land Grant, Sea Grant, Space Grant, and Carnegie Research University (highest research activity; and a Carnegie public engagement designation), with external funding exceeding $200 million. A state-assisted, privately governed institution, the University enrolls approximately 19,000 undergraduates and 4,000 graduate students

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: 10/1/2018

Date Posted: 9/4/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4761

Stanford University

Rank: Postdoctoral Fellow

Subfield(s): Comparative Politics, International Relations, Public Policy

The Stanford Center on Global Poverty and Development Postdoctoral Fellows program offers one-year (and will consider two-year) fellowships to outstanding new PhDs who have a demonstrated ability to generate high-quality, policy-relevant research on critical issues related to global development and poverty alleviation. The multi-disciplinary program offers a competitive stipend, as well as support for travel and research expenses. Postdoctoral Fellows have no teaching responsibilities and minimal administrative duties.

Application Details

The Stanford Center on Global Poverty and Development invites applications for multi-disciplinary postdoctoral fellowships to start summer/fall 2019 for one year (and will consider two years). The Center's postdoctoral fellows program is intended for promising new and recent PhD recipients—coming from fields such as computer science, earth systems science, economics, engineering, health policy, political science, and sociology—to pursue policy-relevant research on topics related to critical issues for international development and poverty alleviation.

The Center's postdoctoral fellows will be active members of the community of development researchers at Stanford University. The Center provides a competitive salary plus support for travel and research expenses.

For information, please visit <https://globalpoverty.stanford.edu/research/postdoctoral-fellows-program>

For full consideration, please submit all materials by December 1, 2018 via the online application form here: <https://globalpoverty.stanford.edu/postdoctoral-fellow-application-form>

Application Instructions:

Please apply online with the following materials: (1) Cover Letter, (2) Curriculum Vitae, (3) Job Market Paper or Writing Sample, and (4) Three Letters of Recommendation. Please submit items 1-3 in one PDF document through the online application form here: <https://globalpoverty.stanford.edu/postdoctoral-fellow-application-form> Recommenders can submit letters directly to globalpoverty@stanford.edu.

Start Date: Summer 2019

Application Deadline: 12/1/2018

Date Posted: 9/1/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4639

University of California, San Diego

Rank: Associate or Full Professor, and Endowed Chair Innovation, Science, Technology, and Policy

The School of Global Policy and Strategy at UC San Diego invites applications for a tenured Endowed Chair of Innovation, Science, Technology, and Policy at the rank of Associate or Full Professor, to begin July 1st, 2019.

The faculty at the School of Global Policy and Strategy (gps.ucsd.edu) represents a broad range of academic backgrounds, including both social and physical sciences. We are united by a desire to understand, design, and rigorously test solutions to promote human advancement and mitigate against pressing challenges to human welfare and global issues.

We anticipate that the Endowed Chair of Innovation, Science, Technology, and Policy will expand our leadership at the interface of STEM fields and policy. We are looking for candidates with an outstanding record of research and leadership both within their field of training, and in the intersection of that field with questions of policy, welfare, or justice. Domains of interest include, but are not limited to: climate and the environment, critical infrastructure, cybersecurity, data and privacy, development engineering, digital technology and automation, energy, health, and technological innovation.

Applicants should be PhD graduates (or equivalent terminal degree in a research discipline) with proven leadership and scholarship records. The School of Global Policy and Strategy is committed to academic excellence and diversity within the faculty, staff, and student body. Preferred candidates should demonstrate the highest standards of professional research, teaching, and service, and contribute to -- and participate in -- our commitment to diversity, equity, and inclusion in higher education. We welcome applications from both STEM and social science scholars who can develop rich links to other UC San Diego units, including the Jacobs School of Engineering, Scripps Institution of Oceanography, Health Sciences, and the Halicioglu Data Science Institute.

Salary is commensurate with qualifications and based on University of California pay scales.

Application review will begin on November 25, 2018.

To apply:

Candidates should submit the following materials to UC San Diego Academic Personnel On-Line at <https://apol-recruit.ucsd.edu/apply/JPF01863>:

Curriculum Vitae

Two writing samples

A personal statement that includes a description of research, training, and teaching

Three (3) contacts for reference

A summary of past and potential contributions to diversity (see <http://facultyequity.ucsd.edu/Faculty-Applicant-C2D-Info.asp>).

The University of California is an Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action Employer. All qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to race, color, religion, sex, national origin, disability, age or protected veteran status.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 9/1/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4743

University of South Carolina

Rank: Assistant Professor of Public Administration/Public Policy

The Department of Political Science at the University of South Carolina seeks applications for two tenure-track Assistant Professor positions in public administration/public policy to begin August 16, 2019. The positions are open with regard to substantive specialization. We seek candidates with rigorous, theoretically-informed research agendas who have published in or demonstrate the promise of publishing in leading public administration and/or political science outlets. Successful candidates will be able to contribute to the department's NASPAA-accredited Master of Public Administration program, with the ability to teach core and elective classes in this program. A Ph.D. in Political Science, Public Administration, or a closely related field of study is required by the start date of appointment.

Applicants should submit a cover letter, curriculum vitae, a writing sample, statements of research and teaching interests, graduate transcript, and contact information, including telephone number and email address, for three references. References will be contacted directly for letters of recommendation. Applications received by September 30, 2018 are assured full consideration. All applicants must fill out an online application at USC Jobs: <https://uscjobs.sc.edu/>.

Please contact the search committee chair, Susan Miller (sumiller@mailbox.sc.edu), with any questions. Information regarding the Department of Political Science can be found at the department's website: <http://artsandsciences.sc.edu/poli/welcome>.

The University of South Carolina System (www.sc.edu) is comprised of the state's flagship university in Columbia (founded in 1801 and currently one of the top 50 "Best Colleges" according to U.S. News and World Report), three regional comprehensive universities (USC Aiken, USC Beaufort and USC Upstate), and Palmetto College consisting of four two-year campuses (USC Lancaster, USC Salkehatchie, USC Sumter, USC Union and Fort Jackson/Extended University). Together, the USC System institutions offer more than 450 degree programs on campus and online and are uniquely positioned to meet the state's educational, cultural, health and research needs. The System employs nearly 14,000 people who work daily to improve the lives of students, fellow South Carolinians and the world. Our diverse engaged faculty and staff enjoy a dynamic and intellectually stimulating work environment.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: 9/30/2018

Date Posted: 8/29/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4732

U.S. Naval Academy

Rank: Assistant Professor of American Politics

Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Public Policy, Political Theory

The Political Science Department of the United States Naval Academy invites applications for tenure-track Assistant Professor positions in American Politics beginning August 2019. Application review will begin on 01 October 2018 and will continue until the position is filled.

The U.S. Naval Academy is a service academy and top tier liberal arts college with a commitment to excellence in faculty teaching, research, and service. American Politics scholars with expertise in public policy; race, gender, and ethnicity; or political philosophy are encouraged to apply. A strong commitment to undergraduate teaching is essential. Candidates should have a robust research agenda and demonstrate potential for research excellence, as well as a strong commitment to student advising and institutional service.

For more information about this position and how to apply please visit the USNA position announcement at <https://www.usna.edu/HRO/jobinfo/AsstProfessor-PolSciAY19.php>

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 8/27/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4715

California State Polytechnic University, Pomona

Rank: Assistant Professor in Public Administration

Subfield(s): Public Administration, Public Policy, American Government and Politics

Assistant Professor – Public Administration in Political Science

The Political Science Department in the College of Letters, Arts, and Social Sciences at California State Polytechnic University, Pomona (Cal Poly Pomona) invites applications for a tenure-track position at the rank of Assistant Professor to begin Fall 2019. Candidates with specializations in public administration and public policy are especially welcome to apply.

At Cal Poly Pomona, we cultivate success through a diverse culture of experiential learning, discovery, and innovation. We demonstrate academic quality, relevance, and excellence through our teaching, learning, scholarship, and creative activities with student-centered faculty in an evidence-based culture. Cal Poly Pomona is committed to being the model for an inclusive polytechnic university that inspires creativity and innovation, embraces local and global challenges, and transforms lives.

The Position

The faculty member will be part of a small, collegial Political Science Department and will contribute to a Master's of Public Administration Program. The faculty member will teach and advise in both the graduate and undergraduate program. As part of the political science undergraduate program, the faculty member will be expected to teach courses in one or more of our subfields in accordance to the faculty member's expertise: American politics, public administration, international relations, comparative politics, public law, and/or political theory. The position requires excellence in teaching and advising, professional and scholarly achievements, and a commitment to service to the university. Applicants whose work incorporates a global perspective and a commitment to diversity in higher education are particularly encouraged to apply. Cal Poly Pomona is a Hispanic-serving institution and the faculty member will be an advisor to many under-represented minorities and first-generation college students.

Minimum Qualifications

- Ph.D. in Political Science, Public Administration, or related disciplines such as Public Policy from an accredited university by August 1, 2019
- University teaching experience
- Evidence of scholarly potential (conference presentations, publications, grant development, etc.)
- Evidence of demonstrated ability to contribute to the diversity and excellence of the academic community through research, teaching, and/or service and work as well as experience working in an inclusive environment

Preferred/Desired Qualifications

Preference will be given to those candidates who have the expertise to work with graduate students on a range of thesis projects in public administration, as well as the ability to teach political science undergraduates. Expertise and work experience in areas such as public policy/program evaluation, urban politics and administration, community development/sustainability, and qualitative methods will be given careful consideration. Preference will also be given to candidates with research interests related to social or racial justice and who can demonstrate the ability to mentor and advise African-American, Hispanic, and Native American students.

Application Procedure

The position is open until filled. First consideration will be given to completed applications submitted by November 16, 2018. Early response is encouraged. Electronic submissions of all application materials must be submitted online via Interfolio at <https://apply.interfolio.com/53291>

A completed application will consist of:

- A cover letter that describes the candidate's teaching performance, research experience and interests, and that addresses the duties and qualifications articulated in the position description;
- A curriculum vitae comprising at least those elements specified on the application form and including the names, titles, addresses, email addresses, and telephone numbers of at least five individuals who can speak to the candidate's potential for success in this position;
- A 'Student Success Statement' about your teaching, or other experiences, successes, and challenges in working with a diverse student population (approximately one page, single-spaced);
- Three recent letters of reference (on letterhead, signed and dated within the past two years). Applicants will provide contact information for recommenders during the application process and the system will contact recommenders and provide a method for uploading letters;
- A completed application form available on the application website;
- An unofficial transcript showing then highest degree earned from an accredited education institution. Finalists will be required to submit an official transcript; and
- Recent teaching evaluation summaries and sample syllabi, if available.
- Please submit all electronic documents in PDF format.

For further information or clarification, please contact:

Faculty Search Committee

Dr. Mario Guerrero, Faculty Search Chair

Political Science Department

California State Polytechnic University, Pomona

Phone: 909.869.3887

Fax: 909.869.6995

Email: kmalm@cpp.edu (Kim Alm, Administrative Coordinator)

APSA Interviews

Representatives of the department will be available to meet at APSA's Placement Services. Please send a CV to mag@cpp.edu if you are interested in meeting with department representatives at APSA.

The University: Cal Poly Pomona is one of two polytechnic universities in the 23-campus California State University system. Our ethnically diverse student population of approximately 22,000 enrolls in 52 baccalaureate, 26 master's degree programs, 11 credential and certificate programs, and a doctorate in Educational Leadership, presented by 1,200 faculty. We recruit students increasingly from throughout California and beyond. The students are success and career focused and extremely diverse. We are proud of our status as a Hispanic Serving Institution. We have a strong commitment to supporting scholarship, research, and student achievement. Our scenic and historic 1,400-acre campus, once the winter ranch of cereal magnate W. K. Kellogg, is located about 30 miles east of downtown Los Angeles in one of the most dynamic economic and cultural regions in the country, and within an hour's drive of beaches, mountains, and desert. The university is committed to diversifying its faculty and staff and has made educational equity one of its highest priorities. The mission of the university is to advance learning and knowledge by linking theory and practice in all disciplines, and to prepare students for lifelong learning, leadership, and careers in a changing, multicultural world.

The College: The College of Letters, Arts, and Social Sciences fosters intellectual and ethical development and helps students become individuals who value and apply critical thinking in our complex, diverse and technological world. The College offers introductory and advanced course work in numerous degree and certificate programs across the humanities, social sciences, and performing arts. The General Education program offered to all students enrolled in the University is also central to the mission of the College. The College embraces its role in providing courses and curricula in support of multiple and single-subject teaching credential students. The University's mission to "cultivate success through a diverse culture of experiential learning, discovery, and innovation" lies at the heart of the College's commitment to offer programs that educate the whole person. Additional information is available at: <http://www.cpp.edu/~class/>.

The Department: The Department of Political Science has over three hundred and fifty undergraduate political science majors and approximately fifty students in our NASPAA-accredited MPA program. We also offer a Political Science minor and participate significantly in the university's General Education offerings. The Department sponsors a Model United Nations program and a Mock Trial Team, both with a history of national recognition. Members of the Department have traditionally been actively involved across campus and in the community.

California State Polytechnic University, Pomona is an Equal Opportunity, Affirmative Action Employer. The University seeks to recruit and retain a diverse workforce as a reflection of our commitment to serve the people of California, to maintain the excellence of the University, and to offer our students richly varied disciplines, perspectives and ways of knowing and learning. Cal Poly Pomona subscribes to all state and federal regulations and prohibits discrimination based on race, color, religion, national origin, sex, gender identity/gender expression, sexual orientation, marital status, pregnancy, age, disability, genetic information, medical condition, and covered veteran status. The University hires only individuals lawfully authorized to work in the United States. As required by the Clery Disclosure Act, the university's annual security report is available at <http://www.cpp.edu/annual-security-report.shtml>. The person holding this position is considered a 'mandated reporter' under the California Child Abuse and Neglect Reporting Act and is required to comply with the requirements set forth in CSU Executive Order 1083 as a condition of employment.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: 11/16/2018

Date Posted: 8/20/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4647

University of Tennessee

Rank: Public Administration-Public Policy Associate Director

Associate Professor of Political Science

The Department of Political Science at the University of Tennessee, Knoxville invites applications for an associate level professor in Public Policy and/or Public Administration to begin Fall 2019. The successful applicant will be Associate Director of the Masters of Public Policy and Administration (MPPA) program and will contribute to the Department's Ph.D. program. The Department and the MPPA work closely with the Howard Baker Center and the successful candidate will participate in that partnership. The Baker Center was established in 2003 and has emerging research focal areas in energy policy, environmental policy, public health and global security and strong connections to the state and local governments across Tennessee.

Preference for candidates with primary research and teaching interests in Public Policy, including but not limited to public budgeting and finance, energy policy, environmental policy, health care policy, policy process and program evaluation or Non-Profit Management, but all areas will be considered. The successful candidate must have a clear research agenda that will lead to publication in peer-reviewed journals. We are particularly interested in applicants who address substantively important questions using rigorous analytical approaches. Preference will be shown for applicants with teaching and research interests that complement existing departmental interests, have a record of extramural funding commensurate with experience, and demonstrate evidence of college/university teaching excellence. The position is a 9-month faculty appointment and the salary is competitive and commensurate with qualifications and experience.

The University of Tennessee, Knoxville, is the state's flagship research institution, a campus of choice for outstanding undergraduates, and a premier graduate institution. As a land-grant university, it is committed to excellence in learning, scholarship, and engagement with society. More information about the Department is available at: <http://web.utk.edu/~polisci>. The Knoxville campus of the University of Tennessee is seeking candidates who have the ability to contribute in meaningful ways to the diversity and intercultural goals of the University.

Applicants should send a cover letter explaining their research and teaching experience, a current CV, a sample of scholarly writing, and teaching evaluations (if available). All applicants should request letters from three references to be sent directly to the search committee. All materials should be sent electronically to: Dianna Beeler at beelerd@utk.edu and copied to Professor David Folz at dfolz@utk.edu, Department of Political Science, University of Tennessee, Knoxville, TN 37996-3340. Review of applications will begin October 25, 2018 and will continue until the position is filled. For questions or inquiries, contact Professor David Folz at dfolz@utk.edu.

All qualified applicants will receive equal consideration for employment and admission without regard to race, color, national origin, religion, sex, pregnancy, marital status, sexual orientation, gender identity, age, physical or mental disability, genetic information, veteran status, and parental status, or any other characteristic protected by federal or state law. In accordance with the requirements of Title VI of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972, Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973, and the Americans with Disabilities Act of 1990, the University of Tennessee affirmatively states that it does not discriminate on the basis of race, sex, or disability in its education programs and activities, and this policy extends to employment by the university. Inquiries and charges of violation of Title VI (race, color, and national origin), Title IX (sex), Section 504 (disability), the ADA (disability), the Age Discrimination in Employment Act (age), sexual orientation, or veteran status should be directed to the Office of Equity and Diversity, 1840 Melrose Avenue, Knoxville, TN 37996-3560, telephone 865-974-2498. Requests for accommodation of a disability should be directed to the ADA Coordinator at the Office of Equity and Diversity.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 8/17/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4628

University of Tennessee

Rank: Public Policy-Public Administration

Assistant Professor of Political Science

The Department of Political Science at the University of Tennessee, Knoxville invites applications for a tenure-track position at the assistant professor level in Public Policy to begin Fall 2019. We are looking for candidates who can support the Masters of Public Policy and Administration (MPPA) program as well as the Department's Ph.D. program. The Department and the MPPA work closely with the Howard Baker Center and the successful candidate will participate in that partnership. The Baker Center was established in 2003 and has emerging research focal areas in energy policy, environmental policy, public health and global security and strong connections to the state and local governments across Tennessee.

We seek candidates with primary research and teaching interests in Public Policy, including but not limited to public budgeting and finance, energy policy, environmental policy, health care policy, policy process and program evaluation. We are particularly interested in applicants who address substantively important questions using rigorous analytical approaches including the tools of computational social science and "big data" applied to public policy and/or administration. The successful candidate must have a clear research agenda that will lead to publication in peer-reviewed journals. Preference will be shown for applicants with teaching and research interests that complement existing departmental interests, have a record of extramural funding commensurate with experience, and demonstrate evidence of college/university teaching excellence. The position is a 9-month, tenure-track appointment, and the salary is competitive and commensurate with qualifications and experience.

The University of Tennessee, Knoxville, is the state's flagship research institution, a campus of choice for outstanding undergraduates, and a premier graduate institution. As a land-grant university, it is committed to excellence in learning, scholarship, and engagement with society. More information about the Department is available at: <http://web.utk.edu/~polisci>. The Knoxville campus of the University of Tennessee is seeking candidates who have the ability to contribute in meaningful ways to the diversity and intercultural goals of the University.

Applicants should send a cover letter explaining their research and teaching experience, a current CV, graduate transcripts, a sample of scholarly writing, and teaching evaluations (if available). All applicants should request letters from three references to be sent directly to the search committee. All the requirements for a Ph.D. in political science, public policy, or related field must be finished at the time of appointment. All materials should be sent electronically to: Dianna Beeler at beelerd@utk.edu and copied to Professor David Folz at dfolz@utk.edu, Department of Political Science, University of Tennessee, Knoxville, TN 37996-3340. Review of applications will begin October 15, 2018 and will continue until the position is filled. For questions or inquiries, contact Professor David Folz at dfolz@utk.edu.

All qualified applicants will receive equal consideration for employment and admission without regard to race, color, national origin, religion, sex, pregnancy, marital status, sexual orientation, gender identity, age, physical or mental disability, genetic information, veteran status, and parental status, or any other characteristic protected by federal or state law. In accordance with the requirements of Title VI of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972, Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973, and the Americans with Disabilities Act of 1990, the University of Tennessee affirmatively states that it does not discriminate on the basis of race, sex, or disability in its education programs and activities, and this policy extends to employment by the university. Inquiries and charges of violation of Title VI (race, color, and national origin), Title IX (sex), Section 504 (disability), the ADA (disability), the Age Discrimination in Employment Act (age), sexual orientation, or veteran status should be directed to the Office of Equity and Diversity, 1840 Melrose Avenue, Knoxville, TN 37996-3560, telephone 865-974-2498. Requests for accommodation of a disability should be directed to the ADA Coordinator at the Office of Equity and Diversity.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 8/17/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4627

Miami University

Rank: Assistant Professor in Public Administration

Assistant Professor in public administration for an appointment as a tenure track Assistant Professor to teach courses across the public administration core curriculum for the undergraduate major and courses for the MA program; advise students; conduct relevant research leading to a record of published scholarship; provide institutional and professional service; and participate in applied research projects through the Center for Public Management and Regional Affairs. The position will begin in the 2019-20 academic year.

Require: PhD by date of appointment in public policy, political science or a related field.

Consideration may be given to candidates with substantive expertise in an area of public policy and policy analysis.

Submit letter of interest, curriculum vitae, evidence of teaching effectiveness, teaching philosophy, statement of research plans, transcripts and writing sample to <https://miamioh.hiretouch.com/job-details?jobID=6187>. The department will solicit reference letters from references provided in application. For inquiries about posting, contact Dr. Bryan Marshall at marshabw@miamioh.edu. Screening of applications will begin September 10, 2018 and will continue until the position is filled.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 8/16/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4615

University of Chicago

Rank: Assistant/ Associate/Full Professor

The Harris School of Public Policy at the University of Chicago invites applications for faculty positions in international development, politics, and public policy. We are interested in scholars whose research interests encompass the economics of development, the politics of development, international trade, conflict, and crime in international contexts.

The search is open with respect to field and rank. Applicants are invited at all levels (tenure track and tenured), and applicants at the junior and associate levels are encouraged to apply.

Candidates should submit a CV and any accompanying documents such as sample publications online at: <https://tinyurl.com/ycvluq7>. Applicants for the level of assistant professor should provide at least two (three preferred) letters of recommendation. Review of applications will begin on October 1, 2018. No applications will be accepted after May 15, 2019.

The University of Chicago is an Affirmative Action/Equal Opportunity/Disabled/Veterans Employer and does not discriminate on the basis of race, color, religion, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, national or ethnic origin, age, status as an individual with a disability, protected veteran status, genetic information, or other protected classes under the law. For additional information please see the University's Notice of Nondiscrimination at http://www.uchicago.edu/about/non_discrimination_statement/. Job seekers in need of a reasonable accommodation to complete the application process should call 773-702-0287 or email ACOppAdministrator@uchicago.edu with their request.

Start Date:

Date Posted: 8/16/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4620

University of Chicago

Rank: Associate - Professor

The Harris School of Public Policy at the University of Chicago invites applications for multiple senior positions in public policy, political science, economics, and related disciplines. Applicants should submit a CV and any accompanying documents, such as sample publications online at: <https://tinyurl.com/y8j2j5ou>. Review of applications will begin October 1, 2018. Screening of applications will continue until the position is filled, however no applications will be accepted after June 30, 2019.

The University of Chicago is an Affirmative Action/Equal Opportunity/Disabled/Veterans Employer and does not discriminate on the basis of race, color, religion, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, national or ethnic origin, age, status as an individual with a disability, protected veteran status, genetic information, or other protected classes under the law. For additional information please see the University's Notice of Nondiscrimination at http://www.uchicago.edu/about/non_discrimination_statement/. Job seekers in need of a reasonable accommodation to complete the application process should call 773-702-0287 or email ACOppAdministrator@uchicago.edu with their request.

Start Date:

Date Posted: 8/16/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4621

Hamilton College

Rank: Visiting Professor

Subfield(s): Political Theory, American Government and Politics, Public Policy

The Government Department at Hamilton College invites applications for a two-year visiting position with possibility for renewal for an additional two years, at the rank of Visiting Assistant Professor. Teaching load is four courses per year for the first year and five courses per year after. This position covers American politics, public policy, and political theory. Candidates may be from any field but must be able to teach courses from at least two of the three areas listed. Applicants who research the impact of digital technologies or incorporate innovative digital technologies into their research and teaching are especially encouraged to apply. We are seeking candidates who can demonstrate their experience in teaching or working with diverse student populations. Your cover letter should address the ways in which you would further the College's goal of building a diverse educational environment.

Appointment begins July 1, 2019. ABD or Ph.D. required Please submit a curriculum vitae, graduate transcripts, a list of courses you are prepared to teach, evidence of teaching performance, and arrange for submission of three letters of recommendation to Interfolio at <https://apply.interfolio.com/53422>. We will begin consideration of applications on December 1. Applicants with questions or wishing to be interviewed at the APSA should contact Philip Klinkner, Chair, Government Department, Hamilton College (govsrch@hamilton.edu).

Hamilton (www.hamilton.edu) is a residential liberal arts college located in upstate New York. Applicants with dual-career considerations can find other Hamilton and nearby academic job listings at www.higheredcareers.com, as well as additional information at <https://www.hamilton.edu/offices/dof/faculty-support-resources/resources-for-prospective-or-newfaculty/opportunities-for-spouses-or-partners> (Opportunities for Spouses or Partners). Hamilton College is an affirmative action, equal opportunity employer and is committed to diversity in all areas of the campus community. Hamilton provides domestic partner benefits. Candidates from underrepresented groups in higher education are especially encouraged to apply.

Qualifications

ABD or Ph.D. required.

Start Date: Summer 2019

Application Deadline: 12/1/2018

Date Posted: 8/15/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4601

University of Chicago

Rank: Assistant Professor

The Harris School of Public Policy at the University of Chicago invites applications for junior faculty positions in Political Science. The search is open with respect to subfield. Applicants are expected to complete a Ph.D. by July 31, 2019 and demonstrate strong promise for a scholarly career. Applicants are required to submit a CV, at least two letters of recommendation (three preferred), and up to two writing samples online at: <https://tinyurl.com/y7avs6af>. Review of applications will begin on September 15, 2018. No applications will be accepted after May 15, 2019.

The University of Chicago is an Affirmative Action/Equal Opportunity/Disabled/Veterans Employer and does not discriminate on the basis of race, color, religion, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, national or ethnic origin, age, status as an individual with a disability, protected veteran status, genetic information, or other protected classes under the law. For additional information please see the University's Notice of Nondiscrimination at http://www.uchicago.edu/about/non_discrimination_statement/. Job seekers in need of a reasonable accommodation to complete the application process should call 773-702-0287 or email ACOppAdministrator@uchicago.edu with their request.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Date Posted: 8/14/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4592

Augustana College

Rank: Tenure-track Assistant Professor

The Environmental Studies Program at Augustana College invites applications for a full-time (10-month) Tenure-track Assistant Professor beginning in the 2019-2020 academic year. Augustana College is a selective liberal arts college of 2,500 students, most of whom live on a wooded 115-acre campus. Rock Island, Illinois is one of the Illinois-Iowa Quad Cities along the Mississippi River, a diverse metropolitan area with 400,000 residents approximately three hours west of Chicago.

Augustana College places a high priority on creating an environment supportive of the promotion of ethnic minorities, women, and persons with disabilities. The college is also committed to building a culturally diverse educational environment. Thus, we are particularly interested in candidates from underrepresented groups with a demonstrated passion for social/environmental justice and working with diverse student and community populations. We encourage applicants, in their letter of application, to address how they will further this goal in their teaching, scholarship, and/or service. Augustana does not discriminate based on age, race, color, ethnic origin, gender, sexual orientation, disability or creed. Details about Augustana, our expectation of the faculty, the selection process, and the Quad Cities all are available at the Faculty Search website: <http://www.augustanafaculty.org/>.

The candidate will play a critical role in teaching courses in the Environmental Studies curriculum, a rapidly growing interdisciplinary program with approximately 100 majors. Teaching responsibilities could include an introductory course on the social dimensions of sustainability, climate change, sustainable energy, upper level courses in their areas of expertise, and contribute to the capstone interdisciplinary sequence by guiding the stakeholder process. The signature sustainability pedagogy of the core curriculum combines team-based and project/problem-based learning. Faculty will be expected to contribute to Upper Mississippi Center for Sustainable Communities (UMC) Sustainable Working Landscapes Initiative (SWLI; matches city identified sustainability problems with courses to create real-world learning experiences for students) or other community-based sustainability projects through their teaching. We encourage applicants to address their experience and/or passion for teaching courses using these pedagogies in their letter of application.

Service as an academic advisor to Environmental Studies majors will begin in the second year of employment. The teaching and supervisory load for this position will total 24 credit hours (courses are typically 4 cr. hrs.). In addition to traditional sabbatical leaves available after earning tenure, a one-semester leave to pursue a scholarly agenda is typically available during the third year of pre-tenure employment. Preference will be given to interdisciplinary candidates and those with areas of specialization in the social sciences or humanities (see below) emphasizing the human dimensions of environmental problems. We encourage applications from those with interdisciplinary backgrounds in both the natural sciences and social sciences/humanities; however, applicants should explicitly demonstrate in their letter of application and teaching and scholarship statements their expertise in the human dimensions of sustainability problems.

Required Qualifications

- Earned Ph.D. (ABD considered) in a sustainability-related field including anthropology, geography, sociology, psychology, environmental or social justice, history, women and gender studies, political economy, political ecology, environmental policy and governance, sustainable development, religion (i.e., eco-theology, creation spirituality, environmental ethics), or a closely related field emphasizing the human dimensions of social-ecological systems.
- Demonstrated experience or willingness to teach project or problem-based courses.
- Demonstrated passion for teaching, integrating, and mentoring undergraduate students in their research.

Preferred Qualifications

- Experience of being the instructor of record for undergraduate level courses; demonstrating a connection to environmental studies a plus.
- Demonstrated expertise and experience in one or more of the following areas: ethnographic methods, conducting participatory (action-oriented) research, working in the decision-making processes, participating in sustainability policy or politics and engaging diverse communities in research and problem-solving.
- Demonstrated interdisciplinary expertise and experience in one or more of the following areas: qualitative methods, root causal analysis, social network analysis, participatory decision-making, institutional analysis, stakeholder engagement, adaptive governance and management, risk analysis, or back-casting and envisioning methods.

Questions may be directed to the co-chairs of the program, Dr. Michael Reisner (michaelreisner@augustana.edu) and Dr. Jason Koontz (jasonkoontz@augustana.edu). This position is contingent on final authorization from the Provost's office.

To apply, please email application materials to sherrydocherty@augustana.edu using the subject line: Search 103-19 Environmental Studies, and directed to Dr. Wendy Hilton-Morrow. Alternatively, application materials can be mailed to: Search #103-19, C/O Dr. Wendy Hilton-Morrow, Provost & Dean of the College, Augustana College, 639 – 38th Street, Rock Island, IL 61201. Application materials should include: a letter of application addressing each qualification, curriculum vitae, copy of graduate transcripts, statement of teaching interests and philosophy (2-page limit) that describes your qualifications to teach above-described courses, evidence of teaching effectiveness, a statement of research Interests and priorities (2-page limit) that describes undergraduate student involvement, a writing sample, and names and contact information for three references that can address your potential for teaching success.

Review of applications will begin September 10.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 8/13/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4580

University of Wisconsin, La Crosse

Rank: Assistant Professor, Public Administration

The Department of Political Science and Public Administration at the University of Wisconsin-La Crosse seeks a tenure track Assistant Professor beginning August 2019 who is a dynamic and skilled teacher and researcher in the field of Public Administration & Policy. Candidates must demonstrate a commitment to teaching excellence, student success, and inclusive and engaging classroom practices. The position will also include advising responsibilities, and the potential for teaching the capstone seminar and directing undergraduate research projects. In addition to teaching excellence and scholarly productivity, the Department also places a high value on service to the University and wider community.

Candidates for the appointment should have or be near to completing a doctorate in Public Administration or a related field by the start date. If a doctorate is not yet earned, it must be earned by the first personnel review, no later than May 15, 2020.

The 11-member department offers undergraduate majors and minors in both Political Science and Public Administration and offers courses that serve interdisciplinary minors in Legal Studies; Ethnic and Racial Studies; International Studies; International Business; Women, Gender and Sexuality Studies; Criminal Justice; and Environmental Studies. The Department's vibrant and growing Public Administration major is one of the few such undergraduate programs in the Upper Midwest. The usual teaching load is three preparations and four (3 credit) courses per semester, which may include American National Government, Women and Politics, or other General Education courses.

Required Application Submissions:

1. Cover letter, with a description about how you envision yourself contributing to the department's public administration curriculum
2. Curriculum vitae
3. Names, email addresses and phone numbers for three academic/professional references

Only those applications received by October 1, 2018 are guaranteed to receive full consideration.

Note: Electronic submission of application materials is required. For additional information about this position and to apply, please visit <https://employment.uwlax.edu>

Please contact the Search and Screen Chair if you have a special need/accommodation to aid your participation in our hiring process.

UW-La Crosse has appeared prominently on the U.S. News & World Report list of "America's Best Colleges" for more than a decade and is ranked consistently as one of the top institutions in the Midwest. With a student population of roughly 10,500, the university offers 94 undergraduate programs in at least 30 disciplines and 21 graduate programs in the following colleges: Liberal Studies, Science and Health, and Business Administration, including the School of Arts & Communication and the School of Education, Professional and Continuing Education. There are 520 full-time faculty and instructional academic staff, 76 percent of whom hold terminal degrees. UW-La Crosse boasts a retention rate (freshmen returning as sophomores) of 85 percent, graduation rate (degree within six years) of 70 percent, and is among only 12 institutions cited nationally by the American Association of State Colleges and Universities for its success in linking campus culture and university leadership to outstanding graduation rates.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Date Posted: 8/13/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4573

Georgetown University

Rank: Senior Tenured Scholar - McDonough School of Business and the Walsh School of Foreign Service

Subfield(s): International Relations, American Government and Politics, Public Policy

Georgetown University's McDonough School of Business (MSB) and the Walsh School of Foreign Service (SFS) invite applications and nominations for a senior tenured scholar to hold a joint appointment in both schools. We seek scholars who work at the intersection of business and international affairs in fields such as international political economy, international trade, and international business and public policy. We expect to make this appointment at the level of Full Professor, though we welcome applications from accomplished associate professors. We also welcome applications from and nominations of senior scholars with extensive policymaking experience.

This joint position is one of a number of new interdisciplinary positions at Georgetown intended to foster scholarship and teaching on some of the important problems of our times. Because of our location in Washington, DC, extensive linkages to the international policy and business communities, and strong tradition of scholarship and teaching in business, international affairs, and political economy, Georgetown has a unique opportunity to pursue integrative opportunities in scholarship and educational programs at the intersection of these fields, and the person appointed to the joint position will play an important role in these initiatives.

The MSB and SFS are currently undertaking a transformative cooperation to create a new joint undergraduate degree, the first in Georgetown's history, and plans are also underway for joint centers and research initiatives. This cooperation builds on the success of several joint graduate degrees, as well as a jointly administered Global Business Fellows program for undergraduates. The successful candidate will help provide leadership in deepening and broadening the linkages between the schools.

The SFS is a preeminent international affairs school with deep expertise in international political economy, regional studies, and security studies. The MSB has strengths in core business disciplines as well as international business, public policy, and international political economy. Both the MSB and the SFS are collegial and multi-disciplinary.

ABOUT GEORGETOWN UNIVERSITY: Georgetown University is one of the world's leading academic and research institutions, offering a unique educational experience that prepares the next generation of global citizens to lead and make a difference in the world. We are a vibrant community of exceptional students, faculty, alumni and professionals dedicated to real-world applications of our research, scholarship, faith and service.

Established in 1789, Georgetown is the nation's oldest Catholic and Jesuit university. Drawing upon the 450-year-old legacy of Jesuit education, we provide students with a world-class learning experience focused on educating the whole person through exposure to different faiths, cultures and beliefs. More information can be found here: <https://www.georgetown.edu/>.

ABOUT THE MCDONOUGH SCHOOL OF BUSINESS: Georgetown University's McDonough School of Business attracts faculty and students from around the world. We are committed to developing principled leaders capable of making complex business decisions in a global environment and who are dedicated to serving both business and society. Georgetown McDonough offers undergraduate, MBA, Executive MBA, and specialized programs. More information can be found here: <https://msb.georgetown.edu/>

ABOUT THE WALSH SCHOOL OF FOREIGN SERVICE: The Walsh School of Foreign Service (SFS), founded in 1919, is a premier school of international affairs. At Georgetown's Washington, D.C., and Qatar campuses, SFS provides a rigorous education grounded in both theory and practice while instilling the Jesuit values of service. SFS hosts top-ranked undergraduate and graduate studies which feature an interdisciplinary core curriculum that focuses on international affairs, government, economics, history, theology, philosophy, geography, and language. SFS faculty are scholars in political science, economics, history, and cultural studies, as well as professionals with backgrounds in business, government, and the nonprofit sector.

APPLICATION PROCEDURE: Interested applicants should send a cover letter and curriculum vitae to apply.interfolio.com/52848. Please send nominations to the same address. We will begin consideration of applications and nominations on 1 November 2018, but will accept applications and nominations until the position is filled. Professors Dennis P. Quinn of MSB and Erik Voeten of SFS will co-chair the search.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Date Posted: 7/30/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4455

Whittier College

Rank: Assistant Professor of Political Science

Subfield(s): Public Policy, American Government and Politics, Public Administration

Assistant Professor of Political Science

Whittier College

Whittier College announces a tenure-track Assistant Professor of Political Science position beginning Fall 2019. The Department seeks candidates specializing in Public Policy and American Politics, and capable of teaching a core course in Public Administration. We would be particularly interested in candidates who might also be able to contribute to any of the following additional areas: race and politics, minority politics, environmental politics, state and local politics with an emphasis on California, and/or political theory.

Candidates should have earned a Ph.D. in Political Science prior to September 2019. The successful candidate will demonstrate potential for outstanding teaching and excellence in scholarship. The Political Science Department has five full-time faculty and approximately 90 majors. Faculty members teach 20 units each year and are expected to teach college-wide courses such as First-year Writing Seminars and/or courses paired with faculty in other disciplines as part of our general education program. In addition, all faculty must be fully engaged in committee service and advisement of students.

Preliminary review of materials will begin September 10, and will continue until the appointment is made. If you plan to attend the American Political Science Association conference, please let us know, and send your c.v. and letter of application by August 1. We plan to meet with a limited number of applicants during the conference; however, all applicants will have equal consideration, regardless of attendance. Full applications should include: a letter of application, including discussion of teaching philosophy and research interests; a curriculum vitae; a summary of course evaluations or other evidence of teaching effectiveness; unofficial transcripts; and at least three confidential letters of recommendation, sent by your references. Please email (PDFs preferred) materials to Prof. Deborah Norden, Department Chair, at <mailto:dnorden@whittier.edu>. Paper application and reference letters can be sent to Prof. Deborah Norden, Political Science Department; Whittier College; 13406 Philadelphia St.; Whittier, CA 90601.

Whittier College is committed to attracting and retaining a high quality, diverse faculty with a shared passion for student-centered teaching and mentoring. It is distinguished by its small class sizes, high-impact pedagogies, and innovative liberal arts curriculum blended with professional and pre-professional programs. It is a nationally recognized model for diversity and has no racial majority among its student body. With over 60% students of color, Whittier is designated as both a Hispanic Serving Institution (HSI) and Asian American Native American Pacific Islander-Serving Institution (AANAPISI). Founded in 1887, it is an independent, four-year liberal arts college with about 1,650 undergraduates and is ideally situated in the scenic hills 18 miles east of downtown Los Angeles. It is an AA/EOE employer. More information on the position is available at www.whittier.edu/jobs.

Copyright ©2017 Jobelephant.com Inc. All rights reserved.

<https://www.jobelephant.com/>
jeid-4289f6e1d352e841a207bc2342f12ec7

Start Date: Fall 2019
Application Deadline: Open until Filled
Date Posted: 7/20/2018
Salary: Competitive
eJobs ID: 4413

Rowan University

Rank: Assistant Professor of Political Science

The Department of Political Science and Economics at Rowan University invites applications for a tenure-track Assistant Professor of Political Science position beginning in Fall 2019. The Department seeks candidates with expertise in public policy and American politics, including judicial and/or state and local politics. Applicants are encouraged to discuss their ability to contribute to the Department's emphasis in Race, Class, and Gender. Applicants must demonstrate a commitment to excellence in both research and teaching, as well as the potential to secure external grant/fellowship support. Teaching responsibilities include introductory and advanced courses in public policy and American politics, as well as a course in quantitative methods. A 3/3 teaching load is guaranteed for the first two years and can be renewed annually with evidence of continuing scholarship. Female candidates and candidates of color are strongly encouraged to apply. Rowan University is an equal opportunity and affirmative action employer.

If you plan to attend the American Political Science Association (APSA) conference in Boston and would like to meet, please send your CV and a letter of application by August 1 to pluta@rowan.edu. We plan to meet with a limited number of applicants during the conference; however, all applicants will have equal consideration, regardless of attendance at APSA. Full applications should be submitted through the online applicant tracking system as discussed below.

Rowan University is a Carnegie-classified Doctoral University (Moderate Research Activity) with approximately 17,300 students. Its main campus is located in Glassboro, N.J., 20 miles southeast of Philadelphia, with additional campuses in Camden and Stratford. The University comprises seven academic colleges and five schools—the William G. Rohrer College of Business; the Henry M. Rowan College of Engineering; the Colleges of Communication and Creative Arts, Education, Humanities and Social Sciences, Performing Arts, and Science and Mathematics; the Cooper Medical School of Rowan University; the Rowan University School of Osteopathic Medicine; the Graduate School of Biomedical Sciences; the School of Health Professions; and the School of Earth and Environment—with an Honors College that spans across disciplines. Rowan is one of two public universities in the country to offer M.D. and D.O. medical degree programs. The institution is also home to the South Jersey Technology Park, which fosters the translation of applied research into commercial products and processes. Rowan has been recognized as one of the top 100 public universities in the nation and is ranked third among public institutions in the North by U.S. News & World Report.

Candidates should have an earned doctorate in Political Science (or related field) by August 1, 2019. To assure full consideration, completed applications must be received by October 12, 2018. Applications must be submitted through our online applicant tracking system at <http://jobs.rowan.edu/cw/en-us/job/492980/assistant-professor-of-political-science>. Submit a cover letter, a CV, unofficial transcripts, a writing sample, and teaching portfolio (including a statement of teaching philosophy, courses taught, teaching evaluations, etc.). Please do not submit letters of reference at this time.

Candidates must be legally authorized to work in the US, and the university will not sponsor an applicant for a work visa for this position.

Start Date: Fall 2019
Application Deadline: 10/12/2018
Date Posted: 7/9/2018
Salary: Competitive
eJobs ID: 4356

Rowan University

Rank: Assistant Professor of Political Science

The Department of Political Science and Economics at Rowan University invites applications for a tenure-track Assistant Professor of Political Science position beginning in Fall 2019. The Department seeks candidates with expertise in public policy and American politics, including judicial and/or state and local politics. Applicants are encouraged to discuss their ability to contribute to the Department's emphasis in Race, Class, and Gender. Applicants must demonstrate a commitment to excellence in both research and teaching, as well as the potential to secure external grant/fellowship support. Teaching responsibilities include introductory and advanced courses in public policy and American politics, as well as a course in quantitative methods. A 3/3 teaching load is guaranteed for the first two years and can be renewed annually with evidence of continuing scholarship. Female candidates and candidates of color are strongly encouraged to apply. Rowan University is an equal opportunity and affirmative action employer.

If you plan to attend the American Political Science Association (APSA) conference in Boston and would like to meet, please send your CV and a letter of application by August 1 to pluta@rowan.edu. We plan to meet with a limited number of applicants during the conference; however, all applicants will have equal consideration, regardless of attendance at APSA. Full applications should be submitted through the online applicant tracking system as discussed below.

Rowan University is a Carnegie-classified Doctoral University (Moderate Research Activity) with approximately 17,300 students. Its main campus is located in Glassboro, N.J., 20 miles southeast of Philadelphia, with additional campuses in Camden and Stratford. The University comprises seven academic colleges and five schools—the William G. Rohrer College of Business; the Henry M. Rowan College of Engineering; the Colleges of Communication and Creative Arts, Education, Humanities and Social Sciences, Performing Arts, and Science and Mathematics; the Cooper Medical School of Rowan University; the Rowan University School of Osteopathic Medicine; the Graduate School of Biomedical Sciences; the School of Health Professions; and the School of Earth and Environment—with an Honors College that spans across disciplines. Rowan is one of two public universities in the country to offer M.D. and D.O. medical degree programs. The institution is also home to the South Jersey Technology Park, which fosters the translation of applied research into commercial products and processes. Rowan has been recognized as one of the top 100 public universities in the nation and is ranked third among public institutions in the North by U.S. News & World Report.

Candidates should have an earned doctorate in Political Science (or related field) by August 1, 2019. To assure full consideration, completed applications must be received by October 12, 2018. Applications must be submitted through our online applicant tracking system at <http://jobs.rowan.edu/cw/en-us/job/492980/assistant-professor-of-political-science>. Submit a cover letter, a CV, unofficial transcripts, a writing sample, and teaching portfolio (including a statement of teaching philosophy, courses taught, teaching evaluations, etc.). Please do not submit letters of reference at this time.

Candidates must be legally authorized to work in the US, and the university will not sponsor an applicant for a work visa for this position.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: 10/12/2018

Date Posted: 7/9/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4357

Rowan University

Rank: Assistant Professor of Political Science

The Department of Political Science and Economics at Rowan University invites applications for a tenure-track Assistant Professor of Political Science position beginning in Fall 2019. The Department seeks candidates with expertise in public policy and American politics, including judicial and/or state and local politics. Applicants are encouraged to discuss their ability to contribute to the Department's emphasis in Race, Class, and Gender. Applicants must demonstrate a commitment to excellence in both research and teaching, as well as the potential to secure external grant/fellowship support. Teaching responsibilities include introductory and advanced courses in public policy and American politics, as well as a course in quantitative methods. A 3/3 teaching load is guaranteed for the first two years and can be renewed annually with evidence of continuing scholarship. Female candidates and candidates of color are strongly encouraged to apply. Rowan University is an equal opportunity and affirmative action employer.

If you plan to attend the American Political Science Association (APSA) conference in Boston and would like to meet, please send your CV and a letter of application by August 1 to pluta@rowan.edu. We plan to meet with a limited number of applicants during the conference; however, all applicants will have equal consideration, regardless of attendance at APSA. Full applications should be submitted through the online applicant tracking system as discussed below.

Rowan University is a Carnegie-classified Doctoral University (Moderate Research Activity) with approximately 17,300 students. Its main campus is located in Glassboro, N.J., 20 miles southeast of Philadelphia, with additional campuses in Camden and Stratford. The University comprises seven academic colleges and five schools—the William G. Rohrer College of Business; the Henry M. Rowan College of Engineering; the Colleges of Communication and Creative Arts, Education, Humanities and Social Sciences, Performing Arts, and Science and Mathematics; the Cooper Medical School of Rowan University; the Rowan University School of Osteopathic Medicine; the Graduate School of Biomedical Sciences; the School of Health Professions; and the School of Earth and Environment—with an Honors College that spans across disciplines. Rowan is one of two public universities in the country to offer M.D. and D.O. medical degree programs. The institution is also home to the South Jersey Technology Park, which fosters the translation of applied research into commercial products and processes. Rowan has been recognized as one of the top 100 public universities in the nation and is ranked third among public institutions in the North by U.S. News & World Report.

Candidates should have an earned doctorate in Political Science (or related field) by August 1, 2019. To assure full consideration, completed applications must be received by October 12, 2018. Applications must be submitted through our online applicant tracking system at <http://jobs.rowan.edu/cw/en-us/job/492980/assistant-professor-of-political-science>. Submit a cover letter, a CV, unofficial transcripts, a writing sample, and teaching portfolio (including a statement of teaching philosophy, courses taught, teaching evaluations, etc.). Please do not submit letters of reference at this time.

Candidates must be legally authorized to work in the US, and the university will not sponsor an applicant for a work visa for this position.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: 10/12/2018

Date Posted: 7/9/2018

Salary: Competitive

eJobs ID: 4358

Towson University

Rank: Assistant Professor of State and Local Government and Public Policy

Subfield(s): Public Policy, American Government and Politics, American Government and Politics

Specializations: State Politics, Urban Politics, Housing

ASSISTANT PROFESSOR TENURE TRACK SEARCH
DEPARTMENT OF POLITICAL SCIENCE – TOWSON UNIVERSITY
ACADEMIC YEAR 2019-2020

Areas of Specialization: State and Local Government and Public Policy

The Department of Political Science at Towson University invites applications for a tenure-track position at the Assistant Professor level. The position entails teaching general survey courses in metropolitan studies and state and local government and upper-level courses focusing on state governance and metropolitan development. Background in public policy preferred. Applicants with Ph.D. in hand at the time of application will receive preference, although ABDs may be considered if the degree will be completed by the spring of 2019. Applicants must possess a strong commitment to excellence in teaching and show a solid potential for a productive scholarly program. Interest in pursuing external funding is desirable. The teaching load is six courses during the first year, but will rise to seven courses thereafter. Applicants should send: letter of intent; curriculum vitae; one sample of written work; syllabi of any courses taught; evidence of teaching effectiveness; official transcripts of all graduate and undergraduate work; and three letters of recommendation to Dr. Donn Worgs, Department of Political Science, Towson University, 8000 York Road, Towson, MD 21252. Please reference search: CLA-N-3203.

Application review will begin in October. Initial committee review will end on December 15, 2018.

Towson University is the second largest institution in the University System of Maryland. It is located just outside Baltimore and is only an hour from Washington, D.C. by car or train. Towson is an equal opportunity employer and has a strong institutional commitment to diversity.

Start Date: Fall 2019

Application Deadline: 12/15/2018

Date Posted: 6/27/2018

Salary: $60,000 - $69,999
eJobs ID: 4335

Texas A&M University

Rank: Tenure-Track, Assistant Professor in National Security & Diplomacy

Subfield(s): Public Policy, International Relations, American Government and Politics

The Department of International Affairs in the Bush School of Government and Public Service at Texas A&M University invites applications and nominations for a tenure-track, assistant professor position in the broad area of National Security and Diplomacy. The Bush School of Government and Public Service has built an outstanding faculty who are looking to hire a collegial Assistant Professor. We are broadly open to a candidate's regional/topical area of international affairs specialization. Bush School faculty exclusively teach master's degree graduate students in international affairs in a standard 2-2 load. The successful candidate will be expected to teach at least one section of the required course in introductory-level empirical methods. We have a preference for candidates who would also be able to teach U.S. foreign policy. Additional information about the Bush School and department is available at <http://bush.tamu.edu>.

Applicants must have a Ph.D. in Political Science, History, International Relations, Economics or a related discipline by September 2019. The individual selected will have demonstrated a strong commitment to teaching and research in the context of a public policy graduate school environment. The start date for this position will be September 1, 2019.

Applications must be made through the Texas A&M Workday website. The job number for this position is R-008268.

Applicants who currently are not a Texas A&M System employee please go to our external career site at https://tamus.wd1.myworkdayjobs.com/en-US/TAMU_External/job/College-Station-TAMU/Tenure-Track--Assistant-Professor-in-National-Security---Diplomacy---International-Affairs_R-008268

Applicants who currently are a Texas A&M System employee please go to our internal career site at https://www.myworkday.com/tamus/d/inst/15\$158872/9925\$10485.html

Applicants should upload a formal letter of interest that includes reference to the position, a curriculum vitae and a sample of written work.

Additionally, please have three letters of recommendation sent to:

Professor Gregory Gause
 c/o Ms. Janeen Wood (preferably as electronic attachments to bushschoolinta-facultysearch@tamu.edu)
 The Bush School of Government & Public Service
 Texas A&M University
 4220 TAMU
 College Station, TX 77843-4220

The review of applications will begin September 20, 2018, and will continue until the position is filled.

Start Date: Spring 2019
Application Deadline: Open until Filled
Date Posted: 6/22/2018

Salary: Competitive
eJobs ID: 4323

Florida State University

Rank: Assistant professor

The Department of Political Science (<http://coss.fsu.edu/polisci/home>) seeks applications for a tenure track assistant professor to begin in Fall 2019. We seek candidates whose research focuses on American politics and policy. We are especially interested in candidates with interests in political institutions. Priority will be given to candidates who can add to the department's strengths in rigorous empirical, formal, and/or experimental analysis. Successful candidates are expected to pursue an active program of research and contribute to the department's undergraduate and graduate teaching.

Florida State University is committed to broadening the gender, racial, and ethnic diversity of its faculty, and the Department of Political Science shares that goal. The university statement of commitment to increasing the diversity of the faculty and students can be found at http://hr.fsu.edu/?page=diversity/diversity_home.

Florida State University is a Carnegie Foundation-classified Research I institution. Among its 42,000 students are 7,500 graduate students pursuing over 200 programs of study. Tallahassee is Florida's capital and has a metropolitan population of over 375,000. Its principal employers are state government and three higher education institutions.

Applicants should submit (1) a letter of application indicating research and teaching interests, (2) a curriculum vitae, (3) writing samples, (4) three letters of recommendation, and (5) a graduate school transcript. All items must be submitted electronically. Send these files as separate email attachments (pdf's are expected) to polisci@fsu.edu. Review of applications will begin September 15, 2018 and continue until the position is filled. Florida State University is an EO employer. Members of underrepresented groups are strongly encouraged to apply.

Florida State University is an Affirmative Action/Equal Opportunity Employer and racial/ethnic minority applicants are particularly encouraged to apply (http://hr.fsu.edu/?page=eoc/eo/eoo_home).

Start Date: Fall 2019
Application Deadline: 9/17/2018
Date Posted: 6/15/2018
Salary: Competitive
eJobs ID: 4308