Finding a Job in Political Science

Hundreds of academic positions are advertised each year in political science. Finding the openings is the easy part; knowing how to approach the application and interview process is a little more challenging. At APSA, we have collected resources to assist candidates in the academic job search. We would like to highlight a few of these key resources here. The complete list of job resources is available online at www.apsanet.org/jobs.

eJobs: This online resource contains comprehensive online listing of political science jobs, is updated daily with new job listings and candidate resumes, and is fully searchable by field of interest, name of employer/candidate, region, keyword, position, salary, type of institution, and most recent posts.

Data on Jobs Market: APSA gathers and releases data regarding the placement of political science Ph.Ds. View this information at www.apsanet.org/content_7623.cfm.

Mentoring: Enroll in the APSA Mentoring Program online at www.apsanet.org/mentoring.

eJobs Placement Interview Services: The eJobs Annual Meeting Placement Interview Service provides space and facilities for employers who have eJobs posted to interview candidates at the APSA meeting. Many other conferences, such as the Northeastern and Western, also use the APSA online service to schedule placement interviews. Check the listings online in eJobs.

Ethics Guide: The APSA Guide to Professional Ethics in Political Science includes specific guidance on hiring and employment practices. Order a print copy or view online at www.apsanet.org/ethics.

Asking the Right Questions: APSA Job Candidate Questions to Ask Program

Asking the right questions provides valuable information for career decisions. As part of the APSA Job Candidate Questions to Ask (JCQ) Program participating political science departments have agreed to answer the following questions from job candidates.

Salary

1. What is the salary structure?
2. How is salary normally negotiated?
3. How are annual increases handled?
4. Is there an automatic escalator to ensure the salaries of future hires will not outpace those of existing department members?

Service Activities

1. What are the expectations of pre-tenure and tenured faculty regarding:
 - departmental and institutional committee work,
 - professional or disciplinary activities, and
 - outreach activities to communities external to institution?

Research Support

1. What departmental or institutional resources are available to support:
 - access to research materials and equipment,
 - the employment of research assistants,
 - research expenses on/off campus, and
 - travel expenses for conferences?

2. What departmental or institutional resources are available to seek external funding and to administer external funding awards?

Teaching Support

1. What departmental or institutional resources are available to support:
 - the development of teaching expertise,
 - innovations in teaching, and
 - the introduction of new courses and new technologies?
2. What are departmental expectations regarding:
 - the average course load,
 - the number of different courses taught by faculty, and
 - advising of graduate and undergraduate students?

Tenure, Renewal, and Annual Review

1. What policies and procedures govern the granting of tenure, renewal of contracts for pre-tenure faculty, and annual reviews of faculty performance?
2. What are the department's expectations for successful performance leading to the granting of tenure or renewal of contracts for pre-tenure faculty?
3. What are the department's expectations for a positive annual review?

Mentoring and Faculty Support Initiatives

1. What attention does the department give to integrating new faculty into the department, the institution, and in the profession?
2. Does the department or institution have programs that address:
 - the employment of dual-career professional couples,
 - family needs of faculty and staff, and
 - issues associated with minority faculty and staff?

Health and Life Insurance

1. What are the plans offered?
2. How are benefits disbursed?
3. What are the out-of-pocket expenses?
4. Are partners and/or children covered, and to what extent?
5. What portion of my paycheck will be deducted for these benefits?

Retirement

1. How many types of retirement plans are offered?
2. What is the matching percentage of the institution?
3. Is contribution required (and how much)?

Political Science Jobs for January

ADMINISTRATION

University of Wisconsin, Madison

Rank: Executive Director, Institute for Regional and International Studies (IRIS)

Minimum number of years and type of relevant work experience:

Candidates should have a strong track record in educational and research administration in area or international studies broadly defined, as well as demonstrated administrative experience with strong relevance to area and international studies. Candidates should have extensive international experience, which may include study, research, or teaching abroad. Diversity and inclusion are primary values for IRIS and are integral to achieving our strategic goals. We seek candidates with an awareness of and commitment to the principles of diversity and inclusion across all spectrums. The capacity to work collaboratively with faculty and staff across disciplines is required. Experience with campus administrative systems is highly desirable. Familiarity with Title VI National Resource Center and FLAS fellowship programs, or equivalent experience managing federal grants preferred. Candidate must have a record of managerial experience, including evidence of capacity to supervise a team with broad and varied responsibilities. A commitment to fostering a positive and inclusive work environment is essential. Demonstrated commitment to and experience working with diverse populations is extremely important.

50% Oversee management of International Studies Title VI National Resource Center (IS-NRC)

-Develop cross-regional programs and events that support the work of all area studies centers and the International Studies (IS) major. For example, in consultation with the faculty director of IS-NRC, the faculty leadership of the IS major, and the associate directors of the constituent area studies centers, identify themes (e.g. migration & democracy, climate change & human rights) that build synergies among all area studies centers through the development and implementation of cross-regional programming.

-Supervise the administration of the IS-NRC grant, including coordination of application preparation, budget management, and reporting to the U.S. Department of Education.

-Work closely with the International Studies (IS) major faculty director and steering committee to advocate for and support the IS Major (within the College of Letters & Sciences). This will include involvement in activities required to meet L&S administrative policy-related needs.

-Imagine ways that new IS programming can enhance and be enhanced by the work of the nine area studies centers.

50% Executive Director of Institute for Regional and International Studies (IRIS)

-Build coalitions of support for area studies and language education across campus, and engage in efforts that raise the national profile of area studies and language education at UW-Madison.

-Supervise IRIS assistant directors and the Director of WISLI in their efforts to support and enhance the work of the nine area studies centers and IRIS. This includes, but is not limited to budgeting & financial services, outreach assistance, student fellowship management, communications, data & records management, academic planning, human resources, and advising.

-Develop internal management, communication, and administrative systems that support IRIS staff and support the area studies centers effectively and efficiently

-Coordinate International Division HR processes (e.g. pay plan implementation) with IRIS constituent center faculty directors and staff.

-Coordinate IRIS Graduate Student Project Assistant Program for the associate directors of the area studies centers.

-Work with the Dean's Office (International Division) on IRIS budget planning, generating administrative efficiencies, developing new funding models for regional and international studies, and promoting best practices according to university policies and procedures.

-Coordinate major changes in technology, infrastructure, or IT with appropriate personnel;

-Manage offices and space for area studies centers and staff;

-Promote professional development activities for all IRIS staff;

-Contribute to and promote a positive and inclusive work climate for all IRIS staff, students, and faculty

Penn State Harrisburg

Director, School of Public Affairs

Penn State Harrisburg, a comprehensive college of The Pennsylvania State University, one of the largest and most widely recognized institutions in the nation, invites applications and nominations for the position, Director, School of Public Affairs effective July 1, 2019. If you are, or know of, a visionary leader who is both an excellent communicator and strategic thinker who will bring intellectual curiosity and innovative thought, an engaging entrepreneurial spirit, and a notable reputation for working collaboratively with internal and external constituents to promote the growth of an academic unit that is on the cusp of achieving national prominence, then this is the position of challenge for you or that nominee. The successful candidate must have an earned doctorate in a (related) discipline of the School and have proven record of achievement that qualifies him or her for appointment as a full professor with tenure in the college. The Director is responsible for, and is expected to have demonstrated experience in, faculty development through a rigorous promotion and tenure review process, the ability to inspire scholarship at all levels and advocate on behalf of faculty, and clarify the distinction and champion the difference in the delivery of residential and online education. The Director will set the standards for intellectual engagement and promote high quality teaching, research, and service. He or she will effectively have budget oversight, represent, recruit, develop and retain faculty, staff and students of the unit's programs and advocate for the future growth of a complex and diverse School to achieve excellence. The School of Public Affairs is one of Penn State Harrisburg's five academic schools with over 30 highly-regarded, full-time faculty members. The School has a combined resident and online enrollment of about 1500 students and offers the following undergraduate and graduate programs: Bachelor of Arts in Political Science, Bachelor of Science in Public Policy, Bachelor of Science in Criminal Justice (certified by the Academy of Criminal Justice Science), Master of Arts in Criminal Justice, Master in Public Administration (NASPAA-accredited), Master of Health Administration, Intercollege Master of Professional Studies in Homeland Studies, and the Doctor of Philosophy in Public Administration. Penn State Harrisburg is located in Middletown, near the city of Harrisburg, the state capital of Pennsylvania. The College is easily accessible via interstate and rail routes from Baltimore, Philadelphia, Washington DC, and New York. Penn State Harrisburg has an enrollment of more than 5000 resident instruction students, including a broad, diverse and non-traditional population and brings nationally accredited academic programs, award-winning faculty, and the resources of a world-class research university to Pennsylvania's Capital Region. The College offers students the opportunity to earn baccalaureate degrees in 37 academic majors. As a graduate center, the College offers 27 master's degrees and 3 doctoral degree programs. To learn more about the College and the School of Public Affairs, please visit <http://harrisburg.psu.edu> Review of applications will begin on November 1, 2018 and continue until the position is filled. To apply, applicants should upload a cover letter, curriculum vitae, and contact information for five references.

University of Rochester

Rank: Director

The University of Rochester's School of Arts & Sciences invites faculty applications for the new Director of the Frederick Douglass Institute for African & African American Studies (FDI). (<http://www.sas.rochester.edu/aas/index.html>.) We are looking for a dynamic leader who will guide intellectual pursuits and exchange in this field and, with the full support of the College's administration, enhance the role and status of FDI, leading it to national prominence in research and teaching.

FDI brings together faculty and students from across academic disciplines to engage collaboratively on topics of shared interest in the study of the African diaspora; it is an interdepartmental program offering an undergraduate major and minor, a graduate certificate, and pre- and post-doctoral fellowships. FDI also contributes greatly to academic programming on campus through lectures, conferences, and a film series. The new Director will oversee these activities and will be invited to envision and pursue new possibilities for FDI.

The successful candidate will be a tenured Associate or full Professor with a distinguished research profile in this field and excellent administrative and organizational skills; they will be expected to advocate for FDI, and champion African & African American Studies in general, before the College administration and the university community. The Director will work with School of Arts & Sciences administration and the Office of Advancement to develop additional resources.

The Director will report to the Dean of the School of Arts & Sciences in consultation with an executive committee of faculty associates; they will also hold a faculty appointment in an associated humanities or social science department in the School of Arts & Sciences.

Candidates should submit the following application materials:

- Letter of application
- Curriculum vitae
- A two-to-three-page statement about the role of African & African American Studies in academia in general and in the on-campus life of a university.
- Names and contact information for three references; these individuals will not be contacted without permission.

Please submit all materials online at www.rochester.edu/faculty-recruiting/positions. Review of applications will begin December 10, 2018 and continue until the position is filled. For further information, contact the search committee at FDIdirectorsearch2018@rochester.edu.

University of Delaware

Rank: Assistant or Associate Professor & Faculty Coordinator

The Associate in Arts Program (AAP) at the University of Delaware seeks to hire a continuing track faculty member at the rank of Assistant or Associate Professor to serve as Faculty Coordinator of the Wilmington Campus. We welcome applicants with disciplinary or interdisciplinary specialization in any of the academic departments housed within the College of Arts & Sciences.

The Faculty Coordinator will provide leadership for the UD-AAP Wilmington Campus, home to more than 400 students; serve as administrator for nine full time and more than thirty part time faculty; and report to the AAP Director. Candidates for this position must possess a doctoral degree and should demonstrate experience and expertise in administration, skill at leading faculty, and proficiency at empowering students from historically underrepresented groups as they work to achieve their fullest potential in higher education. The successful candidate will have an excellent record as an instructor and be expected to teach two classes per semester in their discipline, including introductory courses and possibly higher level courses where appropriate. The faculty coordinator will also be responsible for hiring adjunct instructors; collaborating with faculty and staff members to schedule courses; leading campus events, including recruitment, orientation, campus welcome and convocation; and liaising with university wide entities, advisement, community partners and city leaders. Administrative responsibilities and compensation will extend into the summer.

The UD AAP offers an associate degree curriculum on campuses in Wilmington, Dover and Georgetown, Delaware. Its faculty teach coursework in humanities, history, the social and behavioral sciences, natural sciences, and languages. AAP students constitute a racially and socioeconomically diverse body of learners, the majority of whom go on to pursue majors in all seven colleges on the University of Delaware's main campus in Newark. AAP students enjoy an uninterrupted transition from the AAP to a bachelor's degree program in the junior year. AAP faculty commit a majority of their time and effort to preparing students to succeed in their transition to bachelor's degree programs or to the workforce. Continuing track faculty have opportunities to pursue research, are eligible for promotion and sabbaticals, and receive full and generous benefits as part of their compensation package.

Applicants must submit: (1) a current curriculum vita; (2) a cover letter summarizing their interest, qualifications and leadership philosophy; (3) a teaching statement, including a description of future teaching interests; (4) a statement on diversity and inclusion; (5) graduate transcripts; and (6) contact information for three references (references will not be contacted prior to notifying the candidate). Candidates should ensure that their materials address the qualifications stated above. Review of applications will begin on November 30, 2018 and will continue until the position is filled. Those interested should apply through Interfolio at: <http://www.udel.edu/faculty-staff/human-resources/careers/faculty-jobs/>. Please direct questions, but not application materials, to Dr. David Teague, Search Committee Chair (teague@udel.edu).

University of New Orleans

Rank: Chair and Professor, Department of Planning and Urban Studies

Subfield(s): Administration, Public Administration, Public Policy

Specializations: Urban Politics, Environmental Policy, Energy Policy

POSITION SUMMARY

The University of New Orleans and the College of Liberal Arts, Education and Human Development seeks candidates for Chair of the Department of Planning and Urban Studies at rank of full-professor with tenure. Chairs are appointed on an initial three-year term and are subject to evaluation and renewal. The successful candidate will have prior academic leadership experience, preferably as a department chair or associate chair. The candidate will need to manage a small but diverse department, in the areas of fiscal responsibility, personnel management, curricular and program oversight, outreach and recruitment, and assessment. The successful candidate will be a collaborative and innovative leader, reporting to the dean and working closely with other chairs in the college, especially those in Anthropology/Sociology and Political Science/Public Administration. Discussions are underway about the college structure, whether a move to a School is warranted for this department, alone or combined with other departments. The successful candidate will be open to other structures that will strengthen and grow the programs in Planning and Urban Studies.

Candidates must possess an earned doctorate in urban/regional planning, or a related field (e.g. social ecology, urban studies/design, applied ecology), which is required for the successful candidate to have demonstrated credentials and to ensure the granting of tenure. The candidate must also have a record suitable for hiring at the rank of full professor, preferably by earning that rank at a previous regionally accredited university. Research in the areas of Environment & Energy, Coastal Zone Planning, and/or Environmental Planning is preferred. Documented success at securing outside funding is strongly preferred as well. The Planning and Urban Studies department offers five degrees: a Bachelor of Science in urban studies and planning (both face-to-face and online), a Master of Science in Transportation, an accredited Master of Urban and Regional Planning, and a Master of Science and a Ph.D. in Urban Studies. Additionally, the department offers three certificates: Geographic Information Systems, Historic and Cultural Preservation, and Disaster Management and Community Resilience. PLUS houses the University of New Orleans Transportation Institute and the Center for Hazards, Assessment and Technology.

RESPONSIBILITIES

50% of effort as department chair; 50% as teaching and research. The assigned time and stipend for department chair changes annually, depending on numbers of majors, SCH generated, and fulltime faculty.

REQUIRED QUALIFICATIONS

PhD from regionally accredited university in the field of urban planning or a closely related field; earned tenure at current institution or qualifications that would allow the candidate to be hired as full professor with tenure.

DESIRED QUALIFICATIONS

Significant leadership experience; discipline specialty areas of Environment & Energy, Coastal Zone Planning, and/or Environmental Planning; documented success at securing outside funding.

The Department of Political Science and the Carl Albert Congressional Research and Studies Center at the University of Oklahoma seek an established scholar who is also a skilled and enthusiastic instructor at the associate professor rank. We seek candidates with teaching and research interests related to legislative politics, civic engagement, and more broadly, to strengthening representative democracy through an engaged and informed citizenry.

The successful candidate will contribute to the core American Politics and Government curriculum by teaching four courses per academic year, including Introduction to American Government, Community Scholars, and additional courses in the candidate's area of expertise; contribute to the civic engagement mission of the Department and Center by supporting a diverse array of services and programs such as the National Education for Women's (N.E.W.) leadership program and the Community Engagement and Experiment Lab (CEEL), among others; and continue to build a national or international scholarly profile.

The position will be jointly appointed to OU's Political Science Department, which is centrally placed in the university's core curriculum — with a course required of all graduates. In addition, faculty members enjoy strong relationships with interdisciplinary research and teaching centers at OU. As the flagship institution for the state of Oklahoma, faculty work with state policymakers and leaders of public, non-profit, tribal, and private organizations.

The Carl Albert Center was established in 1979 as a living tribute to the ideals, leadership, and accomplishments of the Honorable Carl Albert and houses one of the largest congressional archives in the country. The Center, through its endowment, offers a wide range of programming, provides Center faculty with substantial research and travel support, and funds undergraduate research and graduate fellowship programs.

Qualifications

The successful candidate must have a Ph.D. in political science and be able to demonstrate an active research agenda in legislative studies and/or civic engagement, broadly defined. The successful candidate should also have an established publication record in high-quality outlets, potential to secure external research funding, and a commitment to teaching and mentoring undergraduate, masters, and doctoral students.

Application Instructions

Include a curriculum vitae, cover letter, and a list of 3-5 professional references. Review of applications will begin on January 31, 2019 and will continue until the position is filled. Questions about the position may be directed to the chairs of the search committee, Michael Crespin (crespin@ou.edu) or Scott Robinson (scott.e.robinson@ou.edu). The position will begin in August 2019.

Application Process

This institution is using Interfolio's Faculty Search to conduct this search. Applicants to this position receive a free Dossier account and can send all application materials, including confidential letters of recommendation, free of charge.

Applicants should go to <https://apply.interfolio.com/58757> to submit their application.

Amherst College

Rank: Visiting Assistant Professor Race and U.S. Politics

Specializations: American Politics, United States, Religion & Politics

The Department of Political Science at Amherst College invites applications for a full-time, one-year position at the rank of visiting assistant professor in the area of race and U.S. politics. Within the last decade, Amherst College has profoundly transformed its student body in terms of socioeconomic status, ethnicity, race, and nationality. Today, nearly one-quarter of Amherst's students are Pell grant recipients; 45 percent of our students identify as domestic students of color; and 10 percent of our students are international students. Our expectation is that the successful candidate will excel at teaching and mentoring students who are broadly diverse with regard to race, ethnicity, socioeconomic status, gender, nationality, sexual orientation, and religion. Candidates may focus on issues such as voting and political participation; African-American religion and racial politics; party development; civil society and racial cleavages; elections, civil rights, and voter suppression; and urban and local politics in the U.S. more generally. The teaching load is two courses per semester. The appointment will begin in July 2019.

We seek a colleague with a record that demonstrates high-quality teaching and research, and who is committed to excellence in education at the undergraduate level. Candidates should be comfortable teaching courses both within and outside their specialty and be able to direct undergraduate research projects. The successful candidate must have the Ph.D. in hand or have fulfilled all requirements for the degree by the start of the appointment.

Candidates are asked to submit electronically to <https://apply.interfolio.com/58919>, a letter of application, a CV, three confidential letters of recommendation, and a single-authored writing sample (e.g., article or dissertation/book chapter.) Review of applications will begin on February 15, 2019, and continue until the position is filled. Applications received by this date will be assured full consideration.

Amherst College is an equal opportunity employer and encourages persons of all genders, persons of color, and persons with disabilities to apply. The college is committed to enriching its educational experience and its culture through the diversity of its faculty, administration, and staff.

Thinking Matters Fellows

Teaching Positions for the Freshman Liberal Education Requirement 2019-20

The Office of the Vice Provost for Undergraduate Education (VPUE) at Stanford University is now accepting applications for teaching fellowship positions in Thinking Matters, a required program that honors the freshman educational tradition first established at Stanford in 1919. Thinking Matters courses foster intellectual curiosity and the development of critical inquiry skills and support first-year students in achieving a successful transition to college-level learning. In the application process all candidates must identify the courses that fit their teaching experience and training, preferably at least one each in the Autumn, Winter, and Spring quarters. We invite applications from candidates with relevant background in any of the following: Biology, Neuroscience, Physics, Philosophy (especially Aesthetics and Ethics), Political Science, Psychology, American History, Anthropology, Literature and Film (only as relevant to course listings). Eligible candidates will have earned a doctorate in a relevant field, conferred no earlier than 2013 and no later than June 2019.

Fellows will be placed on teaching teams with faculty and fellows in three different courses, one each in autumn, winter and spring quarters. Fellows lead two seminar discussions (averaging 15 students each) twice weekly; they individualize student learning through regular tutorial sessions; and they coordinate instruction with plenum lectures given by Stanford faculty. The appointment begins August 1, 2019 for a two-year term that is renewable for one additional year depending on programmatic need and job performance. Fellows are typically released from teaching responsibilities for one quarter during the second year. Annual starting salary will be at least $68,500 with a supplemental stipend of $2,000 for research and scholarship.

Applicants should provide evidence of teaching experience and indicate their intellectual flexibility. Other desired qualifications are: experience working with and teaching diverse, first-year university students; familiarity with team teaching, and demonstrated experience with developing students' skills in critical thinking, writing, discussion, and analysis.

For information on selecting courses for 2019-20 and instructions on completing an application through Interfolio, go to

<http://apptrkr.com/1350571>

Applications will open December 14, 2018, and close January 31, 2019, and must be submitted through Interfolio. Offers of employment are made contingent upon the successful completion of a background check and ability to demonstrate eligibility to work in the US.

Stanford University is an equal employment opportunity and affirmative action employer and is committed to recruiting and hiring qualified women, minorities, protected veterans and individuals with disabilities.

Duke Kunshan University

Rank: Faculty Positions in Political Science

Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Comparative Politics, Public Policy

Specializations: American Politics, China, Political Economy

Duke Kunshan University (DKU) invites applications for faculty positions in Political Science in areas including but not limited to

1) international political economy, global governance, international relations, and international development; 2) domestic political economy and Chinese politics; 3) American political development and institutions; 4) comparative media systems, global media, new media and society, and public opinion; and 5) ethics and public policy or politics, philosophy, and economics (PPE). These positions are open with regard to rank including tenured, tenure track and non-tenure track.

In Fall, 2018, DKU launched an innovative, integrated and interdisciplinary liberal arts undergraduate program leading to both Duke and DKU degrees. Interdisciplinary majors at DKU that feature the study of political science include Institutions and Governance, Political Economy, Global China Studies and US Studies. We are searching for faculty to begin teaching in the academic year 2019-2020 or 2020-21.

Candidates must hold a Ph.D. degree or equivalent in an appropriate field. Research experience at a postdoctoral level (or greater) and teaching experience are desirable, as is experience in working in an interdisciplinary setting. Applicants should provide a cover letter including a clear statement of the candidate's specific interest in DKU, a curriculum vitae, a research statement, and a teaching statement, as well as the names and contact information for three references. All materials should be submitted through Academic Jobs Online: <https://academicjobsonline.org/ajo/jobs/12944>. The search committee also invites and encourages letters of nomination for potential candidates. Nominations and questions about the positions may be sent to social-science-search@dukekunshan.edu.cn using "Political Science Search" as the subject line. Applicants will be reviewed on a rolling basis. Priority will be given to applications received by January 30, 2019; we will accept applications until the positions are filled.

Duke Kunshan University is a highly selective research-oriented, liberal arts and sciences university that offers both an elite liberal arts education and an environment in which premier research centers can flourish. Similar to the best liberal arts colleges in the U.S., all DKU faculty are deeply involved in teaching and advising and lead research teams comprised primarily of undergraduates, and graduate students in some areas. Faculty should clearly demonstrate their ability to serve as highly effective teachers with a strong commitment to Duke Kunshan University's educational programs, which place particular emphasis on liberal arts undergraduate education. Faculty performance as scholars whose work has been widely perceived among peers as outstanding is also important. As a whole, the Duke Kunshan faculty will have strong commitments to teaching and research and outstanding quality in both research and teaching will be highly valued.

DKU is a partnership of Duke University, Wuhan University and the Municipality of Kunshan, China (<https://dukekunshan.edu.cn/>).^{*} The DKU campus is 37 miles west of Shanghai in Kunshan, and is connected to Shanghai via an 18-minute high-speed train and a subway-light rail train system. DKU provides competitive compensation, benefits and start-up packages.

As an international intellectual community that encourages diversity, openness and creative learning, DKU welcomes outstanding faculty from around the world who contribute diverse perspectives and experiences to a global learning and research environment. DKU particularly welcomes applications from underrepresented groups and minorities.

^{*} Duke Kunshan University (DKU) is accredited by the Ministry of Education (MOE) of the People's Republic of China. Duke University is accredited by the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools Commission on Colleges (SACSCOC) in the United States to award baccalaureate, master's and doctorate degrees. Duke Kunshan University is not accredited by SACSCOC and the accreditation of Duke University does not extend to or include Duke Kunshan University or its students. Note that DKU undergraduate students successfully completing the course of study required by Duke Kunshan University will be conferred both a DKU graduation certificate and diploma officially approved by the MOE as well as a diploma from Duke University (Duke University and its degrees are accredited by SACSCOC). Further, although Duke University agrees to accept certain course work from Duke Kunshan University to be applied toward an award from Duke University, that course work may not be accepted by other colleges or universities in transfer, even if it appears on a transcript from Duke University. The decision to accept course work in transfer from any institution is made by the institution considering the acceptance of credits or course work.

Our research approach anticipates a broad scope of plausible outcomes assessing today's issues, analyzing trends, and identifying "the issue after next," using the unique operational and policy expertise of its analysts.

Responsible for oversight and management of the research program, to include: production of analytic products that meet CNA quality standards; development and maintenance of relationships with program sponsor base; management and professional development of program staff; and development and sustainment of a stable funding base to support program research. This leadership role carries with it personal and corporate responsibility to build and sustain a respectful workplace.

1 Assist the Research Division Vice President in developing the division research plan, allocating personnel and resources to execute the plan, and managing the plan to meet all assigned financial and execution objectives.

2 Provide guidance and support to project directors.

3 Support corporate, division, and program (if applicable) goals for business development by developing a stable funding base to support program research and supporting the business development efforts of other research program directors across the FFRDC.

4 Develop and maintain strong, trust-based relationships with program sponsors. Demonstrate through program products and personal interactions that we are committed to their success. Maintain and cultivate these relationships over time and throughout their career. Facilitate the formation of new relationships elsewhere in the FFRDC as appropriate and relevant to the evolution of their career path and command postings.

5 Conduct analysis and research.

6 Create and foster a collaborative work environment.

7 Exercise oversight of assigned projects to ensure they meet CNA's quality standards.

8 Support division and business unit recruiting and retention efforts to develop and maintain a high-quality, diverse workforce.

9 Guide and assist assigned program staff with their professional development.

10 Provide the primary formal performance evaluation of assigned program staff.

11 Exercise oversight of work conducted by any assigned field reps.

12 Develop staffing pipelines for any assigned field billets and support the field slating process.

Virginia Tech

Rank: Professor/Associate Professor

Subfield(s): Public Administration, Public Policy, American Government and Politics

The School of Public and International Affairs (SPIA) at Virginia Tech seeks a highly qualified, broadly trained individual for a position at the associate or full professor level within the Center for Public Administration and Policy (CPAP). The position will be located in Virginia Tech's National Capital Region campus, in the Washington D.C. metro area. The appointment begins in August 2019.

Although the areas of specialization are open, we are particularly interested in applications from persons whose research and teaching expertise are in the areas of public administration history and theory, public management, and public policy broadly defined. CPAP is one program in three locations: Blacksburg, Northern Virginia, and Richmond. Teaching responsibilities will include both introductory courses and advanced seminars supporting CPAP's MPA and PhD degree programs. There are many opportunities for cross-location teaching. Candidates should also be able to work within the interdisciplinary setting of SPIA, which offers graduate and undergraduate degrees in International Affairs, Urban Planning, and Public Administration.

REQUIRED QUALIFICATIONS

Applicants must hold an earned PhD in public administration, political science, public policy, public management, or a related discipline. Applicants must also have teaching experience at the doctoral level, and must have a record of success in and continued commitment to teaching and scholarly research and publication consistent with appointment at the rank of associate or full professor at a leading research active land-grant university.

PREFERRED QUALIFICATIONS

Demonstrated commitment to community outreach and engagement, as is expected of faculty at a land-grant institution, is strongly preferred. The successful candidate will have the opportunity to engage in transdisciplinary research, curricular, and/or outreach initiatives with other university faculty across the University who are working to advance the human condition and society with better decisions through data, especially in the areas of information technology, digital government and public policy and administrative practices, and technology policy, and collaborating at the intersection of scientific evidence, governance, and analysis toward translating scholarship into practice.

Complete applications should include: 1) a cover letter outlining current and future research agendas, an overview of teaching experience and how the applicant would approach collaborative academic activity within CPAP and SPIA; 2) a curriculum vita, 3) a writing sample, and 4) the names and e-mail addresses of three professional references.

All applications and supporting documents (except reference letters) must be submitted online at www.jobs.vt.edu, reference posting# TR0180188 ; paper documents cannot be accepted.

Questions about the online application process should be directed to Ms. Krystal Wright, at krystal@vt.edu, phone: 540- 231-2291, or SPIA (0113), 140 Orey Street, Room 110, Virginia Tech, Blacksburg, VA 24061.

Application review will begin on December 20, 2018. The search will remain open until the position is filled, but to be assured full consideration, applications should be received by this date.

For more information on the Center for Public Administration and Policy see: www.cpap.vt.edu; and for the School of Public and International Affairs see: www.spia.vt.edu. Informal inquiries about the School of Public and International Affairs can be directed to Prof. Joel Peters, Director (interim) SPIA at: peters25@vt.edu.

Texas A&M University

Rank: Pre- and Post- Doctoral Fellowships

Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, International Relations, Public Policy

The Center for Grand Strategy at the Bush School of Government and Public Service, Texas A&M University, is inviting applications to its residential fellowship program for the 2019-2020 academic year. The program will support one pre-doctoral and one post-doctoral fellow. The Center for Grand Strategy is particularly interested in scholars that are engaging with the fundamental questions surrounding grand strategy: How should the national interest be defined? What are the threats to the national interest? How should the United States use its power in response? Applications are invited from scholars of political science, history, and other relevant disciplines.

Fellows will be expected to be in residence at the Bush School for the duration of their fellowships (September 2019-May 2020). They will be provided with office space and access to the resources of the Bush School and Texas A&M University.

The pre-doctoral fellow is expected to make substantial progress toward – and ideally complete – a dissertation during the fellowship. The post-doctoral fellow is expected to complete a manuscript for publication. The post-doctoral fellow is also expected to teach one course to Bush School students.

Fellows will participate in Center for Grand Strategy activities, to include seminars, workshops, and conferences. They will work with an active community of scholars in international affairs, political science, history, and other disciplines at Texas A&M University.

Eligibility:

Applicants for the pre-doctoral fellowship must be pursuing a Ph.D. in political science, history or other relevant disciplines. Applicants must pass all qualifying exams and advance to the level of candidacy prior to the start of their appointment.

Applicants for the post-doctoral fellowship must have completed their Ph.D. in political science, history, or other relevant disciplines to begin the fellowship. Recent Ph.D. recipients are especially encouraged to apply.

Award information:

The pre-doctoral fellow will receive a stipend of $38,000, as well as $5,000 in research funding. The post-doctoral fellow will receive an annual salary of $60,000 (payable monthly), as well as $10,000 in research funding. The post-doctoral fellow will also be eligible for the benefits package available to TAMU employees.

Application process:

Applicants should submit a letter of interest, curriculum vitae, short writing sample (no more than 10,000 words), and a letter of recommendation (preferably by the applicant's dissertation advisor) to jmschues@tamu.edu.

Applications will be reviewed on a rolling basis, with those arriving by January 14, 2019 receiving priority attention.

Application Link

<http://apply.interfolio.com/56639><http://apply.interfolio.com/56639>

The College of Arts and Sciences at the University of Oklahoma invites applications from energetic, enterprising Big Data/Computational Social Science scholars for an open rank, tenured/tenure track faculty position. This search is part of a cluster hire in the new Data Scholarship Program (DSP). The DSP is designed to support data science, data analytics, statistics, computational social science, and digital humanities across the university community. This position will play an integral role in the growth and development of the DSP. Candidates from a broad range of social science and social science-related disciplines are encouraged to apply (including, but not limited to: African and African-American Studies, Anthropology, Communication, Economics, Library and Information Studies, Native American Studies, Political Science, Psychology, Social Work, and Sociology). The position will begin in August 2019. The teaching load will be dependent upon the usual teaching load of hiring department.

The successful candidate is expected to become a leader within a highly collaborative interdisciplinary research and teaching community. We are looking for a social scientist doing innovative work (i.e., machine learning, text analysis, network analysis, data visualization, etc.) and/or utilizing novel datasets (linked, messy, unstructured, in-the-wild, real-time, or based on novel collection methods) that will magnify existing OU strengths. The ideal candidate should be fluent in emerging areas of Big Data social sciences, such as high-dimensional models and the use of "online field experiments"; acquiring "data in the wild" or using unconventional data sources to investigate human behavior or perceptions; and/or developing innovative data collection techniques or statistical methods. Successful candidates will be expected to apply for extramural funding, including participating in collaborative proposals, such as from the DoD, NSF, and NIH, and private sources.

This hire will address critical needs of OU students for additional training in data analytics and data-driven research, from introductory to advanced levels, to meet the high and growing demand for a work force with data-related skills, particularly those who can ground their analyses in core areas of interest to social scientists. We are looking for teaching expertise in the areas of: basic computing for social scientists, advanced courses in the substantive domain of the candidate, and courses in quantitative analyses and statistical methodologies.

Required Qualifications

A doctoral degree in a social science or any related discipline.

An established, active, and productive research program.

Experience with computational tools and/or "Big Data" methods for analyzing and/or visualizing data.

Preferred Qualifications

Knowledge and skills essential to Big Data/computational social science project development and completion, including but not limited to skills related to developing and managing large or non-conventional datasets, machine or statistical learning and/or causal inference, data analysis and visualization, and/or mining textual, visual, or aural data. Evidence of excellence in teaching that engages students in Big Data/computational social science skill development.

Application of large datasets or data science methods to address questions of interest in the social sciences.

A sustained research program and a record of top-tier, peer-reviewed or other high-impact scholarly publications.

Experience with collaborative, cross-disciplinary research and a record of extramural funding.

Leadership in research, instruction, and/or service.

The salary is competitive and commensurate with qualifications and experience. The University of Oklahoma offers an excellent benefits program. For further information please access the Human Resources website at <http://hr.ou.edu/>.

The University of Oklahoma (OU) is a Carnegie-R1 comprehensive public research university known for excellence in teaching, research, and community engagement, serving the educational, cultural, economic and health-care needs of the state, region, and nation from three campuses: Norman, Health Sciences Center in Oklahoma City and the Schusterman Center in Tulsa.

Application Instructions

Applications should be submitted to <http://apply.interfolio.com/56639><http://apply.interfolio.com/56639> on ByCommittee and should include a cover letter, curriculum vitae; three letters of reference; a statement of research interests and how the candidate would contribute to research and teaching in the development of a data scholarship program. Review of applications will begin December 31, 2018, and will continue until the position is filled. Questions about the position may be directed to the chair of the search committee, Dr. Carol L Silva at <mailto:clsilva@ou.edu>

Colorado State University

Rank: Assistant Professor of US Environmental Politics and Policy
Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Public Policy, Public Administration

The Department of Political Science at Colorado State University invites applications for a tenure-track Assistant Professor position in US Environmental Politics and Policy. Advanced Assistant Professors are encouraged to apply. We are open with respect to theoretical orientation, substantive focus, and methodological approaches. The Department offers programs of study leading to the B.A., M.A., and Ph.D. degrees; the graduate program emphasizes the study of environmental politics and policy.

The Department values both strong teaching and research. Successful candidates will be expected to offer courses in the American politics and/or public policy & administration curriculum at both the undergraduate and graduate levels, including a graduate seminar on US environmental politics and policy. Additional teaching assignments will depend on the candidate's interests and expertise as well as departmental needs. The normal teaching load is 2-2. Faculty members are also expected to advise and mentor graduate and undergraduate students; demonstrate an active research agenda; and provide service to the department, college, university, and community. Approximately one-third of undergraduate political science majors at CSU are first-generation college students.

Required Job Qualifications: Primary teaching and/or scholarly emphasis in American politics or public policy & administration; evidence of an active research agenda focused on US environmental politics and/or policy; PhD in Political Science, public policy, public administration, or related field by August 16, 2019; evidence of teaching effectiveness.

Preferred Job Qualifications: Ability to enhance the Department's commitment to diversity and inclusion reflecting Departmental and institutional values. Candidates who can teach any of the department's methods courses (quantitative, qualitative, or research design) are encouraged to apply.

Application Procedure: Applications will be accepted until the position is filled; to ensure full consideration, complete applications should be received by January 7, 2019. Applicants should submit: 1) a letter of application outlining teaching interests and research agenda as well as a brief statement on how your teaching, research and/or service demonstrate a commitment to diversity and inclusion; 2) Curriculum vitae; 3) Graduate school transcripts (unofficial transcripts acceptable at the initial stage of the search), 4) Evidence of demonstrated or potential teaching effectiveness (syllabi, teaching evaluations, letters of observation), 5) One sample of published or presented work, and 6) The names and contact information of three professional referees who will be emailed immediately upon submission of an application with a request to submit a letter of reference. Please note that a complete application consists of the requested materials and three letters of reference. Your referees will be emailed a request for a letter of reference immediately upon submission of your application. As such, applicants should allow sufficient time for their letters to be submitted by January 14, 2019 to ensure full consideration. Application materials of semi-finalist candidates, including letters of reference, will be made available for review by the entire faculty in the Department of Political Science. candidates who can contribute to the following areas: urban politics; state and local politics; or American political development. While we are open to area of concentration in Political Theory, we are especially interested in candidates with a focus on Critical Race Theory or Queer Theory.

The typical teaching assignment is 12 units (three courses) per quarter, with correspondingly reasonable research and service expectations, and with a significant reduction in course load in the first two years to help establish an active program of research and professional development. Salary is commensurate with qualifications and experience.

The Cal Poly Political Science Department prides itself on its collegiality and commitment to excellence in teaching and scholarship. The department serves approximately 400 majors, 130 minors and 25 graduate students. At the undergraduate level, the department offers concentrations in American Politics, Global Politics, Pre-Law and Individualized Courses of Study, as well as minors in Law & Society, Political Science and Global Politics. It also offers a Master of Public Policy program.

Required Qualifications/Specialized Skills: An earned doctorate (Ph.D.) in Political Science or a closely related field from an accredited institution or international equivalent is required. Candidates nearing completion of the doctorate (ABD) may be considered, but must provide proof that the doctorate was completed prior to appointment.

Candidates are expected to demonstrate a commitment to, or potential for, teaching excellence and scholarly activity at the university level. The successful candidate must have the ability to work effectively with students, staff and faculty from diverse ethnic, cultural and socioeconomic backgrounds. Cal Poly is committed to the teacher-scholar model in which faculty are expected to be excellent teachers and productive scholars in their field(s) of interest. Faculty members are also expected to engage in service activities appropriate to their rank and experience.

Preferred Qualifications/Skills: Preference will be given to candidates whose areas of research and teaching emphasize issues of justice, diversity and inclusion as well as those with demonstrated excellence in university level teaching and research (commensurate with time since degree).

Cal Poly strongly values diversity and inclusion, especially in the classroom and among its areas of study. This American Politics/Political Theory search will occur at the same time as a university-wide cluster of searches designed to increase curricular coverage of areas related to diversity and inclusion, as well as to promote inclusive teaching strategies across the university. If the successful candidate's research overlaps with the area of diversity and inclusion, they will have the opportunity to join and support these university efforts.

California Polytechnic State University is a comprehensive polytechnic university with a strong commitment to its learn-by-doing philosophy. The College of Liberal Arts offers 17 highly selective Bachelor of Arts programs and 5 Master's degree programs with 250 full-time faculty and nearly 3,000 undergraduate majors.

To apply, visit WWW.CALPOLYJOBS.ORG to complete the required online faculty application and submit to requisition #105104. Attach (1) Cover Letter, (2) a Curriculum Vitae, (3) Statement of Teaching Philosophy, (4) Evidence of teaching effectiveness and teaching evaluations, (5) a Statement of Professional/Research Goals, (6) a Statement of Diversity and Inclusion describing past experience and contributions to diversity and inclusion efforts and a description of how you will demonstrate a commitment in these areas regarding teaching, research and/or service at Cal Poly, and (7) unofficial copy of transcripts. Please be prepared to provide the names and email addresses of three professional references when completing the application. Cal Poly will directly solicit letters from the individuals listed as references. Sealed official transcripts showing highest degree earned will be required prior to appointment. Applicants needing computer/internet access may contact Cal Poly Human Resources at: (805) 756-2236, for information on available resources.

Kent State University

Rank: Tenure-Track Position in Political Science (Assistant/Associate Level)

Specializations: Urban Politics, Latino Politics, African American Politics

As part of Kent State University's interdisciplinary Global Understanding Research Initiative, the Department of Political Science invites applications for a tenure-track position, at the Assistant or Associate Professor level, to begin in Fall 2019. Kent State's global understanding initiative stimulates interdisciplinary collaborations focused on solutions to problems in an era marked by globalization, increased marginalization, and growing patterns of migration. Within this context, we are interested in scholars focused on inequality in American politics particularly as it relates to urban politics, race and ethnicity, and/or immigration.

The Political Science Department at Kent State is a PhD-granting department with a dynamic, well-published faculty and a robust undergraduate program that encourages students to engage and change the world around them. The successful candidate will demonstrate an ability to conduct and publish research and to teach courses at the undergraduate and graduate levels. Applicants at the Associate Professor level are expected to have a well-established program of research and a history of extramural funding. There will be ample opportunities for collaboration across departments and for community engagement. The teaching load for untenured tenure-track faculty members is two courses per semester.

Applicants should have a PhD in Political Science or cognate field, broadly defined, at the time of hire. Review of applications will begin January 14, 2019, and continue until the position is filled. Candidates should show evidence or promise of high quality research and outstanding teaching. All applicants should submit a CV, a letter of interest, a writing sample, a diversity statement, and a teaching portfolio. Applicants at the Assistant level should include graduate transcripts and three letters of reference; those at the Associate level should include a list of three references. All applications should be submitted to <http://jobs.kent.edu>. Letters of reference can be submitted to KSU_POL_Jobs@kent.edu.

Vanderbilt University

Rank: CSDI Postdoctoral Research Scholar

Vanderbilt University's Center for the Study of Democratic Institutions (CSDI) seeks up to three Postdoctoral Scholars to conduct research on political institutions, opinion or behavior during the 2019-20 academic year.

Applications are welcome from scholars who have received or will receive their doctoral degrees between September 1, 2016, and August 1, 2019, for year-long appointments beginning August 16, 2019. There is no teaching requirement associated with these positions, but Postdoctoral Scholars will be expected to spend a few hours per week contributing to the Center's ongoing research projects. Successful candidates will receive competitive salary, health care benefits, office space, computing resources, and a research fund.

Candidates should submit a vita and a cover letter describing your research project, what you hope to accomplish while at CSDI, and why spending time at Vanderbilt would provide a useful setting for that research. A graduate school transcript, a writing sample, and letters of reference are also required. Applicants should submit materials electronically via Interfolio at <https://apply.interfolio.com/57781>. Applications will be considered on a rolling basis, but priority will be given to those received before January 18, 2019.

Vanderbilt University

Rank: CSDI Senior Visiting Scholar

Vanderbilt University's Center for the Study of Democratic Institutions (CSDI) seeks up to three Senior Visiting Scholars to conduct research on political institutions, opinion or behavior during the 2019-20 academic year. Applications are welcome from scholars of all ranks or equivalent professional positions. The specific length of the appointment will be negotiated on a case-by-case basis, but we especially welcome applications from scholars who are interested in spending the entire academic year at Vanderbilt.

There is no teaching requirement associated with these positions. Successful candidates will receive financial support (typically, half-salary to support a full year's leave or a stipend to cover travel and housing expenses for shorter visits), office space, and computing resources.

Candidates should submit a vita and a cover letter describing your research project, what you hope to accomplish while at CSDI, and why spending time at Vanderbilt would provide a useful setting for that research. The letter should also indicate how long the desired time in residence would be and whether there are existing financial arrangements that would be relevant (e.g., if you have a paid semester's leave and health care benefits). Princeton University

Rank: Post-Doctoral Fellowship

Subfield(s): International Relations, American Government and Politics, Comparative Politics

Specializations: Foreign Policy, China, International Security

Columbia University & Harvard University
 China and the World Program (C&WP)
 Weatherhead East Asian Institute (WEAI)
 Fairbank Center for Chinese Studies (FCCS)

Professors Thomas J. Christensen of Columbia University's School of International and Public Affairs and Alastair Iain Johnston of Harvard University's Government Department jointly founded the China and the World fellowship program for the advanced study of China's international relations in 2005. As part of Professor Christensen's recent move to Columbia University, the Program was renamed the Columbia-Harvard China and the World Program (C&WP) in 2018. The China and the World Program supports research that integrates theoretical innovations in the field of international relations with the rigorous study of China's interactions with countries, regions, institutions, and non-state actors.

For academic year 2019-2020, C&WP is collaborating with the Weatherhead East Asian Institute at Columbia University (WEAI) and the Fairbank Center for Chinese Studies at Harvard University (FCCS) to award four one-year postdoctoral research fellowships. Two fellows will be expected to be in residence at Columbia University (one funded by WEAI and one funded by CWP) and two will be expected to be in residence at Harvard University (both funded by the An Wang Program). Fellows at Columbia will each teach one course in the spring semester; fellows at Harvard will be members of the An Wang Postdoctoral Fellows Program at FCCS. When not attending to program-related duties, fellows' time should be devoted to their own research, and to participating actively in the life of C&WP and WEAI or FCCS. Fellows also will be expected to make at least one public presentation during their appointment and participate in the annual C&WP workshop where an entire day is devoted entirely to the examination of the Fellows' research by former fellows of the program. Fellows should have defended their dissertations in the past three years. Preference will be given to applicants who are currently working on revising their Ph.D. thesis for publication as a book, or who are just beginning a second major research project.

Qualifications:

Applicants must have completed all Ph.D. requirements (dissertation completed and filed) between May 2016 and July 2019. Applications from individuals who hold or have held fulltime teaching appointments will not be considered. Only applicants working on some aspect of China's relations with the outside world that supports CWP's, WEAI's, and FCCS's missions need apply.

Application Process:

To apply, you will be required to submit an online application using the email weai@columbia.edu. Please note that applicants are required to send all files in one email or to upload them to a cloud based application and send the URL via email for full consideration.

You are required to submit:

- 1-2 page cover letter that briefly states your interest in the program, your background, and a summary of your research project
- CV
- Project description
- 2 scholarly writing samples
- Course proposal with syllabus for a seminar directed at M.A. students and advanced undergraduates
- Course evaluations for classes taught (if any)
- Unofficial transcripts from all graduate-level degrees
- Two letters of reference. Include contact information for the references and have them submit letters directly to the email below.

The deadline for submission is January 4, 2019, 11:59 p.m. EST.

Please note that you will only submit contact information and the email of your referees. Your referee will then receive an email with instructions on how to submit a confidential recommendation on your behalf. All references must be received by the deadline. Complete your application well before the deadline so that references can be submitted in a timely manner.

Successful applicants will be notified of the outcome of their applications in February 2019 and a public announcement will be made by March/April 2019.

For more information about the Columbia-Harvard China and the World Program, the Weatherhead East Asian Institute, or the Fairbank Center for Chinese Studies, please visit www.CWP.SIPA.Columbia.edu, www.weai.columbia.edu, and <https://fairbank.fas.harvard.edu/> respectively.

The fellowships will be subject to all rules and regulations of Columbia University and Harvard University. All qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to age, race, color, religion, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity or expression, national origin, disability status, protected veteran status, pregnancy and pregnancy-related conditions, or any other characteristic protected by law.

University of Chicago

Rank: Research Associate – Race and Capitalism Project

The National Race and Capitalism Project invites applications for a Research Associate based at the University of Chicago. This is a full-time research position beginning September 2019 with a one-year term, renewable upon satisfactory performance review. The salary (nine months) and benefits are competitive.

To be eligible, candidates must have received their PhD within the previous five years or be on track to complete a PhD in a social science or humanities field prior to the start of this position, and have a research agenda that examines the intersection of race and capitalism.

The Race and Capitalism Project is a multi-institution collaboration housed in the Department of Political Science at the University of Chicago. The project seeks to reinvigorate, strengthen, and deepen scholarship on how processes of racialization shape capitalist society and economy and how capitalism simultaneously shapes processes of racialization. This project was initiated and conceived at the Center for the Study of Race, Politics, and Culture (CSRPC) at the University of Chicago, and the Washington Institute for the Study of Inequality and Race (WISIR) at the University of Washington. Central questions included: 1) What is the relationship between racial and economic inequality; 2) How has the relationship between various racial and ethnic groups, the economy, and civil society changed over time; and 3) What theoretical approaches to the studies of capitalism and race best explain the empirical reality of 21st century capitalism. Key goals included: increasing collaboration between scholars across disciplines; advancing the state of scholarship on race and capitalism; and where appropriate, highlighting key findings from the project for use in public discourse.

The Research Associate will take a leading role in coordinating the program and will participate with the project staff, the faculty director, and a predoctoral fellow in formulating a long-range vision for the project as well as implementing the plan for the year. Candidates for the fellowship must bring a project related to the goals of the National Project on which they intend to work during the appointment. The Research Associate will also participate in scholarly activities associated with the Project, which include workshops, retreats, and lectures. The Research Associate will also be involved in local projects, events, and programming at the University of Chicago, such as helping organize speaker visits for public lectures and coordinating the related reading groups. The Research Associate will be responsible for advancing their own research agenda while contributing to the seminar's scholarly output through a public lecture. The Research Associate will be supervised by the faculty director, with additional mentorship from other members of the University of Chicago faculty as appropriate, depending on specialization.

Applications must be submitted through the University of Chicago's Academic Career Opportunity Website: <https://tinyurl.com/yd5fjmk>

WAKE FOREST UNIVERSITY

WORRELL CHAIR IN ANGLO-AMERICAN STUDIES

The Department of Politics and International Affairs at Wake Forest University is seeking an outstanding scholar and teacher to fill a named chair in the area of Anglo-American studies as it relates to politics, ideally at the Full or Associate Professor level.

The Department understands Anglo-America broadly to include Britain as well as regions of the Americas in which English is spoken widely and where the British colonial legacy is reflected in present-day culture and politics. This includes the United States, Canada and the Anglophone Caribbean. Similarly, scholars of Anglo-American studies with research interests that add unique contributions to those of current Wake Forest Politics and International Affairs faculty are encouraged to apply. These might include but are not limited to the examination of shared issues including immigration, environmental, and social welfare policies; party and electoral systems; labor politics and political economy; postcolonial and critical legal studies; and the social and political inequalities associated with race, class, and gender. The Department of Politics and International Affairs includes faculty who are both dedicated teachers and active researchers. Candidates should have a strong commitment to excellence in undergraduate teaching and an outstanding record of research. Salary will be commensurate with the rank and stature of the selected applicant.

Founded in 1834, Wake Forest University is presently ranked among the top 30 national universities in the United States. The university is located in Winston-Salem, North Carolina, a vibrant, small city with a thriving arts community. At Wake Forest and in Winston-Salem there are many opportunities for multi-disciplinary collaboration and community-engaged research, supported by the Pro Humanitate Institute, the Anna Julia Cooper Center, and other affiliated centers. Wake Forest University and Winston-Salem also houses one of the fastest growing urban technology innovation districts in the United States, Wake Forest Innovation Quarter.

Wake Forest University and the Department of Politics and International Affairs welcome diversity and encourage inclusivity. We therefore seek applicants with demonstrated success in engaging diverse populations. Wake Forest University is an AA/EO employer and values an inclusive and diverse learning community and campus climate.

Princeton University

Rank: Visiting Fellow, James Madison Program, Princeton University

Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Political Theory, Comparative Politics

Specializations: American Politics, Constitutional Law & Theory, Political Theory

Invitation for Visiting Fellow Applications

The James Madison Program in American Ideals and Institutions at Princeton University is dedicated to the pursuit of scholarly excellence in the fields of constitutional law and political thought. Sponsored by Princeton's Department of Politics, the Program seeks to enrich the intellectual life of Princeton students and faculty by exploring American constitutional principles and structures through research and public discussion.

The Program invites college and university professors and other professionals with established records of scholarship to apply for appointments as Visiting Fellows for the academic year running from September 1, 2019 to June 30, 2020. One-semester appointments are possible but not preferred. Depending on the needs of the University, teaching opportunities may be available, subject to sufficient enrollment and approval of the Dean of the Faculty.

All James Madison Program Visiting Fellows will spend an academic year (10-month term) in residence at Princeton University. They enjoy access to Firestone Library and a wide range of other facilities and activities throughout the University.

Visiting Fellows are expected to devote full time to their proposed research. They are encouraged, however, to attend or participate in various activities of the Program, including faculty-student seminars, colloquia, and public lectures.

All James Madison Program Fellows must have a doctorate or equivalent degree. Positions are open to all regardless of citizenship. Fellows normally receive a stipend of one-half their academic-year salary plus a living allowance. The fellows' home institutions are expected to provide at least half of their academic-year salaries in addition to all benefits.

How to apply: For full consideration, applicants are required to submit an online application at <https://dof.princeton.edu/academicjobs>. To apply for a Visiting Fellow position please go to requisition D-19-POL-00004.

A complete application must include the following:

- * a curriculum vitae;
- * a scholarly paper written in the past three years;
- * a statement (no more than 1,500 words) describing the proposed research;
- * contact information for two references;
- * a confidential statement from home institution that indicates the applicant's salary for the current academic year, financial support their home institution and other sources are likely to provide, and what support they are likely to need from the Program.

The deadline for application materials is 11:59 p.m. EST on December 1, 2018 for appointments beginning in September 2019. Awards will be announced in March 2019 or before.

New College of Florida

Rank: Assistant Professor in Constitutional Law and Political Theory

Subfield(s): Political Theory, American Government and Politics, Public Law

Specializations: Constitutional Law & Theory, Political Philosophy & Theory, Political Theory

Constitutional Law and Political Theory

New College of Florida invites applications for a tenure-track position as Assistant Professor focusing on Constitutional Law and Political Theory. Candidates should have a Ph.D. in Political Science, Philosophy, or related field, teaching experience and career interest in liberal arts teaching, and a vibrant research agenda. The successful candidate will offer a constitutional law sequence of courses in addition to contributions elsewhere in the curriculum. While we are open with regard to research and teaching interests in constitutional law and related areas, we would look especially favorably on candidates who focus on civil rights and civil liberties. The ability to teach courses in jurisprudence, gender and politics, or race and ethnic politics is strongly preferred as well. The candidate must have completed the Ph.D. by the start of employment in August 2019.

Situated on the Gulf Coast of Florida and Sarasota Bay, New College is a nationally recognized, highly selective public honors college with an 10:1 student/faculty ratio. Students are intellectually independent and highly motivated. Undergraduate research has a central role in the curriculum, and a senior thesis or project is required of all students. Students receive narrative evaluations in lieu of grades. We are committed to excellence in undergraduate teaching and research and encourage collaborative student-faculty scholarship. The teaching load is two courses per semester plus sponsoring individual and group tutorials. Faculty members also provide academic advising, supervise independent study projects, sponsor senior theses, and serve on baccalaureate committees. Professors are expected to maintain a program of research or creative work. We are particularly interested in candidates with a commitment to innovative undergraduate liberal arts teaching.

Candidates should apply on-line at <https://www.ncf.edu/employment> and upload the following: a cover letter; c.v.; statements regarding teaching philosophy, the candidate's contributions or approaches to supporting an inclusive culture and learning environment, and research interests; syllabi; teaching evaluations; one writing sample (article or chapter length); and unofficial graduate transcript(s). In addition, please ask at least three references to send signed letters on letterhead electronically to ConLawSearch@ncf.edu or in hard copy to: Constitutional Law Search, Division of Social Sciences, New College of Florida, 5800 Bay Shore Rd, Sarasota, FL 34243. According to Florida law, applications and meetings regarding applications are open to the public upon request. Applicants who need accommodations in order to participate in the selection process must notify the chair of the search committee 48 hours in advance of a meeting. For questions about the application process, please contact Ms. Kristi Fecteau at kfecteau@ncf.edu. Review of applications will begin on October 1, 2018 and continue until the position is filled.

University of North Carolina, Asheville

Rank: Assistant Professor of Political Science, American Politics

The University of North Carolina Asheville Department of Political Science invites applications for a tenure-track Assistant Professor position to begin Fall 2019. An earned Ph.D. in Political Science or a closely related field is required for a tenure-track position; however, candidates nearing completion of their doctorate (ABD) with a defense expected prior to August 2019 may be considered. Candidates should be broadly trained in Political Science but specifically prepared to teach a variety of classes in American Politics, while also sharing teaching responsibilities in the department's research methods and/or undergraduate research sequence. Priority will be given to candidates with expertise or teaching experience in the politics of race and ethnicity or in state, local, or urban politics. Candidates whose teaching, scholarship, and service contribute to the department's human rights and civil rights emphases are especially welcome, and the successful candidate will have the opportunity to contribute to related university programs such as Africana Studies; U.S. Ethnic Studies; American Indian and Indigenous Studies; Women, Gender, and Sexuality Studies; and Human Rights Studies.

The person selected for this position will be expected to teach 12 contact hours per semester, establish a research program that involves undergraduates, and engage in service to the institution, the community and the profession. Individuals with a passion for undergraduate teaching and interest in a career at an institution focused on the liberal arts are strongly encouraged to apply. In addition to having a passion for undergraduate teaching, research and mentorship, the UNC Asheville faculty is committed to disciplinary teaching through an inter- and multi-disciplinary lens and providing a premier liberal arts education. Faculty members are expected to teach across the University's Liberal Arts Core (LAC) program, our required interdisciplinary liberal arts curriculum, in courses that include, but are not limited to: introductory (freshman) colloquia; diversity intensives; courses that satisfy the Scientific Perspectives, Social Science courses, and Arts and Ideas requirements; courses within the Humanities Program; and LAC Senior Capstone courses.

UNC Asheville has been a national leader in undergraduate research for more than 30 years, and over 60% of our students graduate each year having been involved in this important learning experience. The University fully embraces the idea of mentored undergraduate research being one of the highest forms of teaching, and the institution values success in this facet of a faculty member's work.

The University of North Carolina at Asheville is committed to fostering a diverse and inclusive academic and educational community, welcoming and supportive of faculty and staff from all racial, ethnic, economic, religious, gender, and gender-identity backgrounds. We encourage applications from individuals whose backgrounds and interests align with this commitment. The successful candidate will be expected to engage students from among under-represented groups and to assist in the development of pedagogies and experiences appropriate for diverse learning styles and perspectives. We expect applicants to each write a 1-2 page Diversity Statement describing: (a) their experience in advancing diversity in teaching, scholarship and/or service; (b) examples of demonstrated leadership potential in the area of equity and inclusion; and (c) their understanding of the importance of diversity and inclusion to the mission of a liberal art university.

Applications for this position should be submitted electronically at <https://jobs.unca.edu>. Complete applications should include a cover letter, curriculum vitae, statement of teaching philosophy that addresses Political Science pedagogy in the context of the liberal arts, a diversity statement (described above), copies of teaching evaluations, a scholarly writing sample, statement of research interest and plans, and copies of undergraduate and graduate transcripts. The applicant should provide names and contact information for three references from whom we will request letters of reference to be sent separately; these references should address the candidate's written, verbal and interpersonal skills; ability to teach and mentor undergraduate students; and potential to develop and maintain a successful research program.

Priority will be given to applications received before October 1. Review of applications will begin immediately and continue until the position

Johns Hopkins University

Rank: Professor/Assistant Professor/Associate Professor

Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Comparative Politics, International Relations

The Department of Political Science and the Stavros Niarchos Foundation Agora Institute at Johns Hopkins University seek nominations and applications of interest to appoint three or more distinguished scholars to establish a cluster of excellence in research and teaching on the challenges of contemporary democracy. We are especially interested in colleagues with an established record of scholarship examining the root causes and consequences of polarization, including its global and transnational dynamics. Successful candidates will join the Agora Institute's core faculty and will serve as full members of the Department of Political Science. We invite qualified candidates from all subfields of the discipline whose work connects with the core mission of the Institute. By conducting a broad and inclusive search, we are committed to identifying candidates who, through their research, teaching, and service, will contribute to the diversity and excellence of our academic community.

Political Science at Johns Hopkins is a methodologically diverse and pluralistic department open to a variety of research methods and intellectual approaches. We also will consider applications for potential cross-disciplinary appointments from scholars in fields such as History, Sociology, Psychology, and Philosophy as well as cross-divisional appointments.

Jointly conceived by the University and the Stavros Niarchos Foundation (SNF), the $150M SNF Agora Institute was founded to address the deterioration of civic engagement in democracies worldwide and facilitate the restoration of open and inclusive discourse that is the cornerstone of healthy democracies. Housed in the University's Krieger School of Arts and Sciences, the SNF Agora Institute at JHU will serve as a leading academic and public forum bringing together experts from a range of fields—including but not limited to political science, sociology, history, neuroscience, psychology, philosophy, and ethics—to examine the dynamics of civic strife and design and test mechanisms for improving dialogue, social engagement, and democratic governance (<http://agora.jhu.edu/>).

Applicants for Tenured Associate or Full Professor should submit a cover letter, research statement, and curriculum vitae using Interfolio <http://apply.interfolio.com/54486>. Candidates applying at the level of advanced assistant professor should include the above as well as a writing sample and three letters of recommendation. Nominations of potential candidates should be sent directly to Professor Adam Sheingate (adam.sheingate@jhu.edu). Review of applications will begin on October 15, 2018 and continue until the positions are filled. Appointments will commence on July 1, 2019.

North Dakota State University
Rank: Tenure Track Assistant Professor of Political Science
Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Comparative Politics, Public Law
Specializations: Judicial Politics, Constitutional Law & Theory, Criminal Justice

The department of Criminal Justice & Political Science at NDSU is recruiting for a 9-month tenure-track position, at the rank of assistant professor, starting Fall 2019. We seek candidates with expertise in judicial politics and constitutional law, broadly construed. Successful applicants should be versed in American public law, but could conduct research in a broad variety of related areas, such as, but not limited to, the role of race, ethnicity, sexualities, and/or gender in justice systems, comparative judicial politics, international courts and legal structures, or the politics of policing in the US or abroad. This is a 45% research, 45% teaching, 10% service position. The teaching load is 2-2, with a course release in the first three years. Successful applicants will be prepared to teach core undergraduate pre-law courses on American judicial politics, such as judicial process and constitutional law, but will also have ample opportunity to teach specialized courses of their choosing. Tenure-track political science faculty advise undergraduate students and may have opportunities to contribute to the supervision of MA and PhD students in criminal justice. The department has minimal service expectations for pre-tenure faculty.

Minimum Qualifications

The minimum qualifications for the position are: 1) a Ph.D. degree in Political Science, or a related discipline, conferred no later than August, 2019, 2) evidence of research productivity, or potential to publish scholarship in peer reviewed journals, presses, and other outlets appropriate to one's field, 3) competence to teach American judicial process and constitutional law, and 4) effective written and oral communication skills.

Preferred Qualifications

We will give priority to candidates who 1) can provide substantial evidence of (potential) research productivity and quality, 2) have experience teaching American judicial process and/or constitutional law, 3) can provide substantial evidence of teaching effectiveness, and/or 4) have experience pursuing or obtaining external funding.

The Department

The Department of Criminal Justice & Political Science has 11 tenure-track faculty members and serves roughly 100 undergraduate majors in political science, and 200 undergraduate and 20 graduate students in criminal justice. Faculty in the department teach four classes per year. The NDSU community and national organizations have regularly recognized department faculty for excellence in research, teaching, and mentorship. While faculty contribute primarily to teaching, curriculum development, and advising within their respective programs, the department provides opportunities for interdisciplinary collaboration across fields, both in research and teaching. The college provides faculty with computing resources and tenure-track faculty within the department receive a yearly research and professionalization budget that covers travel to 1-2 conferences, and which faculty routinely supplement with College and University travel grants.

The University

North Dakota State University is a comprehensive, student-focused, land-grant, research university with more than 14,000 students from 47 states and 79 countries. NDSU was the first university in North Dakota to be named to the most research-intensive category by the Carnegie Commission on Higher Education and is listed in the National Science Foundation's top 100 in several areas, including agricultural sciences, social sciences, physical sciences, chemistry, psychology, and computer sciences.

NDSU values faculty members' work-life balance and the needs of dual-career couples. The College of Arts, Humanities, & Social Sciences' guidelines on family-related reassignment of duties are available at <https://www.ndsu.edu/fileadmin/ahss/family2010.pdf> and University policy on extension of the probationary period for personal or family reasons is available at <https://www.ndsu.edu/fileadmin/policy/352.pdf>. NDSU is an ADVANCE institution and has an a Focus on Resources for Women's Advancement, Recruitment/Retention, and Development (FORWARD) program, that, as part of its efforts, has developed procedures and funding streams for dual career hiring at NDSU: <https://www.ndsu.edu/forward/>.

Applicants can find more information about NDSU at <http://www.ndsu.edu>.

The Community

NDSU is located in Fargo-Moorhead (F-M), a pleasant, safe, diversifying, and growing community of approximately 240,000 people. As the largest population center in the region, F-M is a hub of entertainment, finance, information technology, and medical services for a large geographic area including the state of North Dakota, and western Minnesota. Two universities (NDSU and Minnesota State University Moorhead) and one private liberal arts college (Concordia College) are located in F-M. The F-M area has a healthy economy: ND has one of the lowest unemployment rates in the U.S., good public schools, low crime rates, ample shopping, local theatre and music companies, several art galleries, semi-professional baseball and hockey, and Division I intercollegiate athletics. Hector International Airport in Fargo is convenient and is served by several major airlines. Sun, clear skies, and clean air predominate year round. Visiting nearby northern Minnesota lakes, canoeing, camping, cycling, softball, and soccer are popular in summer; winter pastimes include cross-country skiing, skating, and snowmobiling. The city has an excellent park system that includes several quality golf courses and bicycle/running/ski paths along the Red River, which divides Fargo-Moorhead. Fargo is an hour drive from a major resort area in the Minnesota "lakes country" and two hours from scenic Itasca State Park, where you will find the headwaters of the Mississippi river. Central and western North Dakota offer beautiful hiking, camping, fishing, hunting, and related opportunities in the Badlands, national grasslands, and numerous river valleys. Winnipeg, Manitoba is less than a four-hour drive to the north and Minneapolis-St. Paul is an equal distance to the south-east.

Application

Applicants must submit a cover letter, curriculum vitae, statement of research interests, writing sample, statement of teaching philosophy, evidence of teaching effectiveness (e.g., syllabi, course materials, evidence of participation in teaching professionalization activities, and, if available, evaluations by peers and/or mentors; please do not include student evaluations of teaching), and contact information for 3 professional references. All application materials must be submitted online at <https://jobs.ndsu.edu/postings/9576>.

NDSU especially encourages applications from women and members of underrepresented groups.

We will begin reviewing applications on October 1, and will continue to accept and review applications until the position is filled. The department will provide search updates through APSA eJobs' update capability, and on Twitter, using the #PSJMInfo hashtag.

Potential applicants may direct questions about the search to Dan Pemstein, the search committee chair, at daniel.pemstein@ndsu.edu.

Whittier College

Rank: Assistant Professor of Political Science

Subfield(s): Public Policy, American Government and Politics, Public Administration

Assistant Professor of Political Science

Whittier College

Whittier College announces a tenure-track Assistant Professor of Political Science position beginning Fall 2019. The Department seeks candidates specializing in Public Policy and American Politics, and capable of teaching a core course in Public Administration. We would be particularly interested in candidates who might also be able to contribute to any of the following additional areas: race and politics, minority politics, environmental politics, state and local politics with an emphasis on California, and/or political theory.

Candidates should have earned a Ph.D. in Political Science prior to September 2019. The successful candidate will demonstrate potential for outstanding teaching and excellence in scholarship. The Political Science Department has five full-time faculty and approximately 90 majors. Faculty members teach 20 units each year and are expected to teach college-wide courses such as First-year Writing Seminars and/or courses paired with faculty in other disciplines as part of our general education program. In addition, all faculty must be fully engaged in committee service and advisement of students.

Preliminary review of materials will begin September 10, and will continue until the appointment is made. If you plan to attend the American Political Science Association conference, please let us know, and send your c.v. and letter of application by August 1. We plan to meet with a limited number of applicants during the conference; however, all applicants will have equal consideration, regardless of attendance. Full applications should include: a letter of application, including discussion of teaching philosophy and research interests; a curriculum vitae; a summary of course evaluations or other evidence of teaching effectiveness; unofficial transcripts; and at least three confidential letters of recommendation, sent by your references. Please email (PDFs preferred) materials to Prof. Deborah Norden, Department Chair, at <mailto:dnorden@whittier.edu>. Paper application and reference letters can be sent to Prof. Deborah Norden, Political Science Department; Whittier College; 13406 Philadelphia St.; Whittier, CA 90601.

Whittier College is committed to attracting and retaining a high quality, diverse faculty with a shared passion for student-centered teaching and mentoring. It is distinguished by its small class sizes, high-impact pedagogies, and innovative liberal arts curriculum blended with professional and pre-professional programs. It is a nationally recognized model for diversity and has no racial majority among its student body. With over 60% students of color, Whittier is designated as both a Hispanic Serving Institution (HSI) and Asian American Native American Pacific Islander-Serving Institution (AANAPISI). Founded in 1887, it is an independent, four-year liberal arts college with about 1,650 undergraduates and is ideally situated in the scenic hills 18 miles east of downtown Los Angeles. It is an AA/EOE employer. More information on the position is available at www.whittier.edu/jobs.

University of Delaware

Rank: Assistant Professor of American Politics
Specializations: American Politics, Political Behavior, Political Psychology

THE UNIVERSITY OF DELAWARE
 DEPARTMENT OF POLITICAL SCIENCE AND INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS
 ASSISTANT PROFESSOR OF AMERICAN POLITICS

The University of Delaware's academic leadership has identified the Department Political Science and International Relations (<http://www.poscir.udel.edu/>) (POSCIR) as a priority for academic growth and prominence. We invite applications for a position in American politics at the rank of assistant professor (tenure track) beginning September 1, 2019. We seek a scholar studying American politics who has strong methodological skills and exhibits exemplary potential. Ideal candidates will have a record of publishing, evident interest in securing research funding, and experience teaching courses in American politics. The successful applicant must have a Ph.D. in hand by August 31, 2019.

We are especially interested in scholars engaging generally with inequality in the American political context. This could include research related to race and ethnicity, economic or educational inequality, or gender politics, but is not limited to these areas. We encourage scholars working on inequality from either institutional or behavioral perspectives including but not limited to the study of political parties, interest groups, social groups and movements, to apply.

The Department has 26 faculty, nearly 1,000 undergraduate majors and minors, and 45 graduate (mostly doctoral) students. We offer two undergraduate majors (Political Science and International Relations) and two undergraduate minors (Political Science and Political Communication) as well as a Ph.D. in Political Science. The department faculty covers four subfields of political science: American politics (including public law), comparative politics, international relations, and political theory. The faculty is a methodologically diverse and collegial group of research-intensive and nationally and internationally known scholars. They are outstanding teachers, mentors, advisers and public servants.

Using the Interfolio® online system at UD, <http://apply.interfolio.com/52194> applicants should submit a cover letter outlining interest in the position, curriculum vitae, teaching statement, teaching evaluations, one article-length writing sample, and three letters of reference. Questions, but not application materials, should be e-mailed to Professor Jason Mycoff (mycoff@udel.edu), Chair, American Politics Search Committee. Review of applications will begin October 1, 2018 and will continue until the position is filled.

Founded in 1743, the University of Delaware (www.udel.edu) combines tradition and innovation, offering students a rich heritage along with the latest in instructional and research technology. Located in scenic Newark, Delaware, within 2 hours of New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, and Washington, D.C., the University is one of the oldest land-grant institutions in the nation, one of 19 sea-grant institutions, and one of only 13 space-grant institutions. With external funding exceeding $200 million, the University ranks among the top 100 universities in federal R&D support for science and engineering and has nationally recognized research (Carnegie rated, very high research activity). With 23 academic departments, 27 interdisciplinary programs and centers, and more than 10,000 students, the College of Arts and Sciences is the largest college on campus (www.cas.udel.edu).

COMPARATIVE POLITICS

Rank: European Studies Lecturer

The University of Florida Center for European Studies (CES) is seeking a nine-month, non-tenure accruing lecturer position with the possibility of annual renewal in European Studies to begin August 16, 2019. Lecturers are highly valued by the CES and the university. Lecturers at UF have professional development opportunities, including a well-defined promotion structure, a professional development leave program, and access to travel funds for conference presentations. Although the primary duties for this position are instructional, continued research and involvement in service at the center/department, college, and university levels is also expected.

CES is seeking applicants with superior promise who combine broad expertise in the field of European Studies with demonstrated excellence and substantial experience in teaching. Disciplinary backgrounds may include, but are not restricted to, Anthropology, Economics, Geography, Political Science, and/or Sociology.

The candidate is expected to contribute to the teaching, and service missions of the UF Center for European Studies and the CLAS International Studies major and will have a 100% appointment in the Center. We particularly welcome applicants who can teach at least one of the required courses within the International Studies (IS) interdisciplinary undergraduate major ('International Studies Perspectives' and/or 'International Studies Senior Research Seminar'). In addition, competitive candidates will be able to develop a version of the social science European Studies 'European Experience' (EUS2003) course for the Center for European Studies and at least one specifically Europe Union related course that could be included as a core course within the EU studies program. Anticipated teaching assignment for the position will be three courses per semester. We are also seeking someone with a willingness to contribute to the varied activities of the Center including campus and community outreach, new grant initiatives, and program development. Experience with study abroad program development and management also welcome. More information about the Center for European Studies (<https://ces.ufl.edu>), as well as the International Studies program (<http://intstudies.program.ufl.edu>) can be found online.

Minimum Requirements: PhD in related field preferred, ABD considered

Preferred Qualifications: Previous experience in outreach and program development strongly desired.

Special instructions to applicants: For full consideration, applications must be submitted online at <https://apply.interfolio.com/58375> and must include: (1) a letter summarizing the applicant's qualifications, (2) a complete curriculum vitae, (3) three confidential letters of recommendation, (4) teaching portfolio if available or if not available, please include sample syllabi, 1-2 page teaching statement, and teaching evaluations, and (5) 1-2 page diversity statement.

All candidates for employment are subject to a pre-employment screening which includes a review of criminal records, reference checks, and verification of education.

The selected candidate will be required to provide an official transcript to the hiring department upon hire. A transcript will not be considered "official" if a designation of "Issued to Student" is visible. Degrees earned from an educational institution outside of the United States require evaluation by a professional credentialing service provider approved by the National Association of Credential Evaluation Services (NACES), which can be found at <http://www.naces.org/>.

The University of Florida is an equal opportunity institution dedicated to building a broadly diverse and inclusive faculty and staff. Searches are conducted in accordance with Florida's Sunshine Law. If an accommodation due to disability is needed in order to apply for this position, please call (352) 392-2477 or the Florida Relay System at (800) 955-8771 (TDD).

University of Gothenburg

Rank: Assistant Professor (tenure track) in Political Science

Job assignments:

Varieties of Democracy (V-Dem <https://v-dem.net>) is a large-scale data collection and research-program. The V-Dem Institute, Directed by Professor Staffan I. Lindberg, has received several large-scale grants from among others the European Research Council, Riksbankens Jubileumsfond, The Swedish Research Council, and the Wallenberg foundations.

The term for this position in Swedish is "biträdande lektor". The university's official translation (in British English) is Associate Senior Lecture, which is the equivalent to Assistant Professor on tenure-track.

The Assistant Professor (tenure-track, 5 years) is primarily expected to conduct research with a focus on the main questions of the research project "Endangered Democracies: Sequences of Autocratization" (EDSA), which is a new project within the V-Dem umbrella), in collaboration with other scholars at the V-Dem Institute. You can download the project description from <http://pol.gu.se/english/varieties-of-democracy--v-dem->.

In addition, the successful applicant is expected to teach in the department and to contribute to the daily activities of the V-Dem Institute as needed. Research is, however, guaranteed at a minimum of 50 percent of full time employment (FTE).

Eligibility (Minimum Requirements):

Applicants with a doctorate in political science or related field, or with equivalent competence, not older than five years at the conclusion of the application period, will be given primary consideration. Applicants who have obtained a doctorate earlier may also be considered if there are special reasons. Special reasons include leave of absence due to illness, service in the armed forces or other part of the national defense organization, commissions of trust within professional, union and student organizations, parental leave or other similar circumstances.

Assessment (Desired Qualifications):

Applications will be evaluated primarily on research excellence in comparative politics with a particular view towards areas of relevance to the EDSA project, and secondary on merits with regard to teaching. Comparative research at high international level relevant for the study of democratic backsliding/autocratization, authoritarian regimes, democratization, and/or political development, is prioritized in the evaluation of applications. One or more of the following scientific skills are also meritorious:

- A well-developed proposal of high scientific quality, for a research project that falls within and preferably further develops EDSA (see link to program description below);
- Advanced time-series, cross-sectional regression techniques, Vector Auto-Regression (VAR), sequencing algorithms, and/or optimal matching methods.

Documented experience with teaching at under-/graduate level, including lectures, seminars, and advising on papers, is required. Candidates will be requested to demonstrate their teaching abilities.

The applicant should demonstrate resourcefulness, flexibility, and very good ability to work together in different configurations. Excellence in English (orally and written) is a requirement. We will make an overall assessment of the applicants' qualifications and potential with regards to the varying tasks that may be required within EDSA and V-Dem, as well as the applicant's teaching skills. Personal qualities relevant for the position are of great importance

Documented experience with service to the profession and collaboration with the practitioners/policy community is a merit.

Duke Kunshan University

Specializations: American Politics, China, Political Economy

Duke Kunshan University (DKU) invites applications for faculty positions in Political Science in areas including but not limited to 1) international political economy, global governance, international relations, and international development; 2) domestic political economy and Chinese politics; 3) American political development and institutions; 4) comparative media systems, global media, new media and society, and public opinion; and 5) ethics and public policy or politics, philosophy, and economics (PPE). These positions are open with regard to rank including tenured, tenure track and non-tenure track.

In Fall, 2018, DKU launched an innovative, integrated and interdisciplinary liberal arts undergraduate program leading to both Duke and DKU degrees. Interdisciplinary majors at DKU that feature the study of political science include Institutions and Governance, Political Economy, Global China Studies and US Studies. We are searching for faculty to begin teaching in the academic year 2019-2020 or 2020-21.

Candidates must hold a Ph.D. degree or equivalent in an appropriate field. Research experience at a postdoctoral level (or greater) and teaching experience are desirable, as is experience in working in an interdisciplinary setting. Applicants should provide a cover letter including a clear statement of the candidate's specific interest in DKU, a curriculum vitae, a research statement, and a teaching statement, as well as the names and contact information for three references. All materials should be submitted through Academic Jobs Online: <https://academicjobsonline.org/ajo/jobs/12944>. The search committee also invites and encourages letters of nomination for potential candidates. Nominations and questions about the positions may be sent to social-science-search@dukekunshan.edu.cn using "Political Science Search" as the subject line. Applicants will be reviewed on a rolling basis. Priority will be given to applications received by January 30, 2019; we will accept applications until the positions are filled.

Duke Kunshan University is a highly selective research-oriented, liberal arts and sciences university that offers both an elite liberal arts education and an environment in which premier research centers can flourish. Similar to the best liberal arts colleges in the U.S., all DKU faculty are deeply involved in teaching and advising and lead research teams comprised primarily of undergraduates, and graduate students in some areas. Faculty should clearly demonstrate their ability to serve as highly effective teachers with a strong commitment to Duke Kunshan University's educational programs, which place particular emphasis on liberal arts undergraduate education. Faculty performance as scholars whose work has been widely perceived among peers as outstanding is also important. As a whole, the Duke Kunshan faculty will have strong commitments to teaching and research and outstanding quality in both research and teaching will be highly valued.

DKU is a partnership of Duke University, Wuhan University and the Municipality of Kunshan, China (<https://dukekunshan.edu.cn/>).^{*} The DKU campus is 37 miles west of Shanghai in Kunshan, and is connected to Shanghai via an 18-minute high-speed train and a subway-light rail train system. DKU provides competitive compensation, benefits and start-up packages.

As an international intellectual community that encourages diversity, openness and creative learning, DKU welcomes outstanding faculty from around the world who contribute diverse perspectives and experiences to a global learning and research environment. DKU particularly welcomes applications from underrepresented groups and minorities.

^{*} Duke Kunshan University (DKU) is accredited by the Ministry of Education (MOE) of the People's Republic of China. Duke University is accredited by the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools Commission on Colleges (SACSCOC) in the United States to award baccalaureate, master's and doctorate degrees. Duke Kunshan University is not accredited by SACSCOC and the accreditation of Duke University does not extend to or include Duke Kunshan University or its students. Note that DKU undergraduate students successfully completing the course of study required by Duke Kunshan University will be conferred both a DKU graduation certificate and diploma officially approved by the MOE as well as a diploma from Duke University (Duke University and its degrees are accredited by SACSCOC). Further, although Duke University agrees to accept certain course work from Duke Kunshan University to be applied toward an award from Duke University, that course work may not be accepted by other colleges or universities in transfer, even if it appears on a transcript from Duke University. The decision to accept course work in transfer from any institution is made by the institution considering the acceptance of credits or course work.

Virginia Tech

Rank: Assistant or Associate Professor, Comparative European Politics

Comparative European Politics
Department of Political Science
College of Liberal Arts and Human Sciences
Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University

The Department of Political Science invites applications for a tenure-track position at the rank of Assistant or Associate Professor. This position will have a focus on the comparative politics of Europe, broadly defined. The position will begin August 10, 2019.

The Department is particularly interested in applicants with research interests in comparative domestic politics in Europe, preferably with a focus on a specific policy area (e.g., health, pensions), recent electoral dynamics, or migration politics. The Department already has strengths in EU politics, European political economy, global and international security, and comparative migration politics including and beyond Europe. Candidates should be broadly trained in political science and social science methodologies. Candidates should be prepared to teach a variety of courses at the undergraduate and graduate levels, and they will be expected to teach an introductory course on Comparative Politics on a rotating basis with other department faculty. The Department is open to creating new comparative courses that reflect the research interests of the applicant. There will be occasional travel to attend professional conferences and meetings.

Required qualifications: A Ph.D. in Political Science or a closely related field is required for appointment as an Assistant or tenured Associate Professor. Candidates must have a research focus that involves comparative political analysis of Europe and demonstrated excellence in research, including a publication record commensurate to the level for which they are applying. Candidates must have evidence of effectiveness in undergraduate and graduate teaching to meet the Department's key teaching needs in its B.A. and M.A. programs. Teaching requirements for this position will be four courses a year.

Desired qualifications: Preference will be given to broadly trained generalists comfortable with different methodological and theoretical approaches in political science, and who can work with undergraduate and graduate students (at the master's and doctoral levels) in political science and international studies along with non-majors in core curricular courses.

The Carnegie Foundation classifies Virginia Tech as a university with "very high research activity," and the Political Science Department also has a strong record of excellence in teaching. Members of the department work closely with faculty in transdisciplinary programs, including the Alliance for Social, Political, Ethical, and Cultural Thought (ASPECT), the School of Public and International Affairs (SPIA), Women's and Gender Studies, Africana Studies, and the Department of Science, Technology, and Society.

Interested persons must apply at www.jobs.vt.edu posting number TR0180194 where they will submit a cover letter, current curriculum vitae, recent writing samples, teaching evaluations, and contact information for no more than four academic references. Screening of applications will begin January 22, 2019 and continue until the position is filled. All inquiries can be sent to: Dr. Deborah Milly, Chair, Comparative European Politics Search Committee, Department of Political Science, 531 Major Williams Hall (0130), Virginia Tech, Blacksburg, VA 24061, Europesearch@vt.edu. Individuals with additional questions or with disabilities desiring accommodations in the application process should contact the search committee chair. Centre for East European and International Studies (ZOiS)

Rank: Postdoctoral Researcher

The Centre for East European and International Studies (ZOiS) seeks to appoint a full-time Postdoctoral Researcher for 33 months starting on 1 March 2019 within the ORA-funded project “Determinants of Mobilisation at Home and Abroad: Analysing the Micro-Foundations of Out-Migration & Mass Protest” (MOBILISE)

Requirements:

- ? A completed doctorate in the social sciences (e.g. political science, sociology, media-communication)
- ? Experience in social media analysis and quantitative data analysis (e.g. survey research)
- ? A research record on Eastern Europe or at least an interest in engaging in research on the region
- ? Ability to coordinate the implementation of parts of the project
- ? Polish or Ukrainian language knowledge desirable, but not essential

ZOiS is an independent, international and interdisciplinary research institute based in Berlin. It was set up in October 2016 and is supported by the German Federal Foreign Office. It focuses on medium-term politically relevant research on Eastern Europe in an international context. The working languages at ZOiS are German and English. It is not essential to speak German.

The MOBILISE project aims to analyse the interrelationship between migration and protests. The country cases are Ukraine, Poland, Morocco and Brazil, all of which have recently witnessed large-scale emigration and protests. The project follows migrants from these countries to Germany, the UK and Spain. The multi-method project combines survey research, focus groups and social media analysis. MOBILISE is funded under the Open Research Area (ORA) and links up researchers from ZOiS, the University of Manchester, the University of Oxford, the University Paris Saclay and the Vrije Universiteit Amsterdam. The successful applicant will work primarily with the PI Prof. Gwendolyn Sasse at ZOiS.

The Postdoctoral Researcher position is available from 1 March 2019. We will also consider applicants who can take a leave from their home institutions. The salary will be determined in accordance with the guidelines of the German Research Foundation (DFG). ZOiS is an equal opportunity employer and particularly encourages applications from women and persons with disabilities.

Applications including a CV, a description of how the applicant's research interests and background fit the project, and a sample publication (article- or chapter-length) should be sent in one file (max. 10 MB) to bewerbung@zois-berlin.de by 2 January 2019. Applicants should arrange to have three letters of reference sent separately to the same address by the closing date. Please put the job reference number ORA 01/2019 in the subject line of your email message.

Rank: Professor of Fundamental Rights

Subfield(s): Public Law, Comparative Politics, Public Administration

The Hertie School of Governance, Berlin

A European Professional School for Public Policy is recruiting a

Professor of Fundamental Rights

Professor or Assistant Professor

The Hertie School is recruiting a Professor of Fundamental Rights. We are looking for a candidate with a research, teaching, and outreach agenda in fundamental rights theory and practice. The candidate will play an important role in the development of the Centre for Fundamental Rights at the Hertie School of Governance and will offer courses to the international and inter-disciplinary student body of the School.

Applicants for this position must have a doctoral degree relevant for the position, in law, political science or political theory and demonstrate engagement with fundamental rights from interdisciplinary or comparative perspectives. An early career candidate will be appointed as tenure-track Assistant Professor with a six-year clock (two three-year contracts). A more advanced candidate would initially be on a fixed contract of negotiable length prior to a tenure review. In highly exceptional circumstances, a particularly outstanding candidate may be appointed with tenure.

The expected start date is 1 September 2019.

The Hertie School seeks faculty with demonstrated capacity for research, teaching, and outreach at the highest levels in their discipline. We recruit faculty who will create a climate that embraces excellence and diversity with a commitment to teaching and innovative research of interest to the international scholarly community and policy-makers.

Candidates are expected to work well in an interdisciplinary, international environment with English as the language of instruction and operation. The successful candidate will teach courses in the School's Master, Executive, and PhD programmes.

As a private university, the Hertie School offers an internationally competitive salary as well as a paid sabbatical after every five semesters. We provide excellent working conditions with outstanding financial and administrative support for research. The Hertie School is fully embedded in Germany's vibrant research landscape and has close ties to the top institutions of the European and international teaching and research community as well as to the policy world.

The Hertie School is a diverse, international and lively community located in the heart of Berlin. It takes a family friendly workplace seriously.

The deadline for the submission of applications is 31 January 2019.

The Hertie School will review applications that include a letter of motivation, a current curriculum vitae (publication list, degrees earned, if applicable: positions held, teaching experience, research projects, awards received), two writing samples and, if applicable, teaching evaluations.

To submit your application, please upload the requested documents here: <https://hertie-school.dvinci-easy.com/en/p/en/jobs/81/professor-of-fundamental-rights-mfdiv-professor-or-assistant-professor>

Nuffield College, University of Oxford

Specializations: Electoral Behavior, Political Behavior, Great Britain

Applications are invited for a Postdoctoral Researcher to support the work of the Gwilym Gibbon Centre for Public Policy at Nuffield College and conduct research using British Election Study (BES) data, as part of the College's current participation in the BES, led by the Universities of Manchester and Oxford. The post offers an exciting opportunity to be involved in high quality research and in the development of a major research centre at a time of heightened interest in British politics, policy-making and British elections.

Key duties will include conducting research using BES data and linked with the research activities and interests of the Gwilym Gibbon Centre at Nuffield College, including the British Election Study; disseminating research findings through academic publications; supporting the Director of the Gwilym Gibbon Centre in a programme of collaboration with other researchers and research centres and the current Scientific Leadership Team of the BES; contributing to the running of the Gwilym Gibbon Centre, for example, by organising seminars and events; drafting material for dissemination online; assisting with data preparation and management; and assisting with an ongoing programme of engagement with policy-makers and the media. The post-holder may also undertake a small amount of ad hoc paid teaching or supervision within the collegiate University.

Applicants should possess an emerging (national or international) publication record in peer reviewed journals and with leading publishers, commensurate with their career stage. They should have a high level of expertise in the application of quantitative methods using advanced statistical modelling, with demonstrable proficiency in data management (e.g. data linking), and in the use of relevant software including Stata and/or R. They should have experience of using British Election Study or similar data (e.g. social science surveys in Britain or other countries), and an interest in and knowledge of British politics. Applicants should hold or be close to completing a PhD/DPhil in a relevant field (e.g. political science). They should possess the ability to summarise and communicate research to a wide audience, with excellent oral and written communication skills and excellent organisational skills, together with flexibility and responsiveness, and the ability to prioritise workloads and to work to tight deadlines. They should demonstrate exemplary interpersonal skills and the ability to work constructively and effectively both as part of a small research team and under their own initiative.

The post is based in the Gwilym Gibbon Centre for Public Policy at Nuffield College in the University of Oxford. The salary will be in the range GBP 32,236 to GBP 37,345 per annum. The post is full-time and fixed-term for 3 years, with an initial probationary period of six months, and is available from 1 February 2019 or as soon as possible thereafter.

Further particulars and information about how to apply can be found on the College website at https://www.nuffield.ox.ac.uk/media/3124/gg_pdr_jd.pdf

The deadline for applications is 12 noon (UK time) on Monday 7th January 2019.

McGill University

Tenure-Track Faculty Position
 Assistant Professor
 Canada Research Chair Tier 2 in Indigenous Politics

Faculty: Arts
 Department/School: Political Science
 The Canada Research Chair is also open to internal candidates who already hold a tenure-track faculty position at McGill University.

Position Description

The Department of Political Science at McGill University invites applications for a tenure-track position in Indigenous Politics. The Department welcomes applications from qualified candidates working on Indigenous Politics in any subfield of Political Science. Broad engagement with Indigenous Studies, including Indigenous Studies methodologies and community-based research, would be an asset.

The successful candidate will hold a tenure-track appointment in the http://www.mcgill.ca/politicalscience/Department of Political Science, and will work closely with the <http://www.mcgill.ca/indigenous> Indigenous Studies program.

This position is part of a broader provostial initiative to strengthen Indigenous Studies at McGill. McGill University is located on land which has long served as a site of meeting and exchange amongst Indigenous peoples, including the Haudenosaunee and Anishinabeg nations. We acknowledge and thank the diverse Indigenous people whose footsteps have marked this territory on which peoples of the world now gather.

The position start date is August 1, 2019. Inquiries may be sent to the Chair of the Department, Juliet Johnson, at <mailto:juliet.johnson@mcgill.ca>.

The successful candidate that satisfies the eligibility conditions of the Canada Research Chair (CRC) program may be supported by the University for nomination to a Tier 2 Chair in Indigenous Politics, which provides protected time for research within a full-time academic appointment.

Nominees for Tier 2 Chair positions must be emerging scholars and hold the rank of assistant or associate professors, or possess the necessary qualifications to be appointed to these levels. A nominee who is more than 10 years from having earned their highest degree and has experienced legitimate career interruptions (e.g., maternity or parental leave, extended sick leave, clinical training, and family care) will be taken into consideration using the http://www.chairs-chaire.gc.ca/program-programme/nomination-mise_en_candidature-eng.aspx#s3Tier 2 justification process.

Eligibility conditions for CRCs are found at http://www.chairs-chaire.gc.ca/program-programme/nomination-mise_en_candidature-eng.aspx#s3http://www.chairs-chaire.gc.ca/program-programme/nomination-mise_en_candidature-eng.aspx#s3

Job Duties

Teaching, research, and service in the Department of Political Science and the Indigenous Studies Program.

Qualifications and Education Requirements
 Candidates should have completed a PhD in a relevant field or be near completion. The language of instruction at McGill is English, but a working knowledge of Indigenous language(s) and/or French would be considered an asset.

Candidates who do not satisfy the CRC eligibility criteria for a Tier 2 Chair are nonetheless invited to apply for the position.

23-Nov-2018 [Date of Posting]

Poste de professeur menant à la permanence

Ouvert au rang de professeur adjoint

Programme des chaires de recherche du Canada en politiques autochtones

Chair de niveau 2

Faculté: Arts

Département: sciences politiques

Le programme des chaires de recherche du Canada est également ouvert aux candidatures internes qui occupent déjà un poste de professeur permanent à l'Université McGill.

DESCRIPTION DE POSTE

Le Département de science politique sollicite des candidatures en vue de pourvoir un poste de professeur adjoint menant à la permanence en politiques autochtones. Il est à la recherche de candidats qualifiés en politiques autochtones, œuvrant dans toute discipline relevant des sciences politiques. Une solide expérience en études autochtones, plus précisément en méthodologie et en recherche communautaire, constitue un atout.

Le candidat retenu sera titulaire d'un poste menant à la permanence au sein du Département de science politique <http://www.mcgill.ca/politicalscience/> et travaillera en étroite collaboration avec l'équipe du Programme d'études autochtones <http://www.mcgill.ca/indigenous>

Ce poste s'inscrit dans une initiative de mise en valeur des études autochtones à l'Université, qui émane du Bureau du vice-principal exécutif et vice-principal aux études. L'Université McGill est sise sur un emplacement qui a longtemps servi de lieu de rencontre et d'échange entre les peuples autochtones, y compris les nations Haudenosaunee et Anishinabeg. Nous reconnaissons et remercions les divers peuples autochtones dont les pas ont marqué ce territoire sur lequel les peuples du monde entier se réunissent maintenant.

La candidature retenue qui répond aux conditions d'admissibilité du programme des chaires de recherche du Canada (CRC) peut être soutenue par l'Université pour une titularisation à une chaire de niveau 2 en politiques autochtones, ce qui lui permettra de consacrer un temps dédié à des travaux de recherche dans le cadre de sa charge professorale à temps plein.

Les candidatures à une chaire de niveau 2 doivent être de nouveaux chercheurs. D'ailleurs, ces personnes intéressées doivent minimalement être professeurs adjoints ou professeurs agrégés ou doivent posséder les qualifications nécessaires pour pouvoir être nommées à ces niveaux. Les personnes candidates qui ont obtenu leur diplôme le plus avancé 10 ans auparavant et qui ont dû interrompre leur carrière de façon légitime (par exemple, congé de maternité ou parental, congé de maladie prolongé, formation clinique, et soins à un membre de la famille) seront prises en considération en utilisant le http://www.chairs-chaires.gc.ca/program-programme/nomination-mise_en_candidature-fra.aspx#5 processus de justification de la chaire de niveau 2.

Les conditions d'admissibilité pour le programme des CRC peuvent être consultées au http://www.chairs-chaires.gc.ca/program-programme/nomination-mise_en_candidature-fra.aspx#5 http://www.chairs-chaires.gc.ca/program-programme/nomination-mise_en_candidature-fra.aspx#5

TÂCHES PRINCIPALES

Enseignement, recherche et attributions diverses au sein du Département de science politique et du Programme d'études autochtones.

QUALIFICATIONS ET FORMATION EXIGÉES

- Le candidat doit posséder un doctorat dans une discipline pertinente ou être sur le point de l'obtenir. À l'Université McGill, la langue d'enseignement est l'anglais, mais la connaissance d'une ou de plusieurs langue(s) autochtone(s) ou du français est un atout.

Les personnes candidates qui ne satisfont pas nécessairement aux critères d'admissibilité du programme des CRC de niveau 2 sont néanmoins invitées à présenter leur dossier de mise en candidature.

RENSEIGNEMENTS SUR L'EMPLOI

Catégorie de l'emploi: Poste menant à la permanence

Rang: Professeur adjoint
Statut d'emploi: Temps plein
Salaire: La rémunération salariale sera établie en fonction des qualifications et de l'expérience.

Date limite pour le dépôt des dossiers: Les demandes doivent nous parvenir avant le 30 janvier 2019 pour être pleinement prises en considération, mais nous en accepterons jusqu'à ce que le poste soit pourvu.

PROCESSUS DE MISE EN CANDIDATURE

Votre dossier de candidature doit être soumis par l'entremise du site électronique: <https://academicjobsonline.org/ajo/jobs/12816> <https://academicjobsonline.org/ajo/jobs/12816>

Il faut inclure au dossier les documents justificatifs suivants:

- Une lettre de présentation et un curriculum vitae
- Une lettre faisant état de l'expérience du candidat ou de la candidate dans le domaine de la recherche
- Un extrait d'un texte du candidat (de la longueur d'un article ou d'un chapitre);
- Un énoncé sur les responsabilités et réalisations en matière d'enseignement accompagné, si possible, d'évaluations et de plans de cours
- Trois lettres de recommandation. Pour les candidats de niveau 2 au rang de professeur adjoint qui sont dans les trois ans de leur doctorat, un des arbitres doit être le directeur du doctorat.

ENGAGEMENT EN MATIÈRE D'ÉQUITÉ ET DE DIVERSITÉ

L'Université McGill recrute en fonction du mérite et s'engage fermement à respecter les principes d'équité et de diversité au sein de sa communauté. Nous accueillons favorablement les demandes d'emploi des personnes racisées et de minorités visibles, des femmes, des personnes autochtones, des personnes handicapées, des minorités ethniques, des personnes de toute orientation et identité sexuelles, ainsi que toute personne possédant les aptitudes et les connaissances lui permettant de travailler en collaboration avec diverses communautés.

McGill reconnaît en outre et considère à juste titre l'incidence de congés (comme les congés liés à des soins apportés à un membre de la famille ou liés à des problèmes de santé) qui auraient pu causer des interruptions ou des ralentissements de carrière. Nous encourageons les personnes candidates à nous informer de tout congé qui aurait eu un effet sur leur productivité, et conséquemment sur leur cheminement de carrière. Cette information sera prise en considération afin d'assurer une évaluation équitable du dossier de candidature.

University of Central Florida

Rank: Post-Doctoral Researcher

The Department of Political Science at the University of Central Florida together with Chr. Michelsen Institute (CMI) seeks to fill a post-doctoral researcher position for a multi-year project that investigates the impact of the creation of a human right to water in a global perspective.

Candidates must be able to undertake quantitative and qualitative research on the evolution, use, and impact of litigation, popular protest, and legislation that harness a rights-based approach to water policy. The ideal candidate should have a demonstrated interest in some of the following areas: human rights; water rights; comparative judicial politics; the interaction of judicial politics, political and social actors, and legislation; and should possess knowledge of descriptive statistics and regression analysis and the ability to develop competence in computational text and network analysis.

The second year of this two-year position is contingent on satisfactory performance during the first year. The position requires no teaching and includes a competitive salary, benefits, and research funds. The post-doc will be resident at UCF and supervised by Prof. Bruce Wilson (UCF) and work in close collaboration with Prof. Malcolm Langford (CMI/University of Oslo).

Expectations

- Actively engage with colleagues at the University of Central Florida and Water Rights group members at the Chr. Michelsen Institute in Bergen, Norway.
- Contribute to efforts to build and consolidate (1) a water judgment database (2) expert and impact survey databases and (3) a legislative text corpus.

- Conduct statistical and text analysis of the evolution and impact of a rights-based approach at a cross-country level and in specific project countries.
- Lead and contribute to peer-reviewed publications and conference presentations as well as non-academic publications (e.g., blog posts, websites or web-services).

Qualifications

A PhD in political science, or a related social science, with a strong quantitative training is preferred. Prior experience working in a highly interdisciplinary research environment is a plus.

Application Process

To apply, send the following materials electronically no later than December 15, 2019 to Bruce M. Wilson at bruce.wilson@ucf.edu:

1) a letter of application, 2) graduate school transcripts 3) a current CV, 4) a 1-page statement of research and 4) three letters of recommendation and 5) a writing sample.

University of Pennsylvania

Rank: Lightning Scholar

The Global Innovation Program at the University of Pennsylvania's Perry World House invites applications for its 2019-2020 Lightning Scholars Program. This program brings untenured, but tenure-track, faculty at either the assistant or associate level from around the world to Philadelphia for a semester or year of writing, fellowship, and bridging the gap between academia and the policy world.

Since launching in 2016, Perry World House has catalyzed interdisciplinary and policy-relevant research by scholars at Penn and around the globe and convened conversations in Philadelphia on the most pressing global challenges. With its post-doctoral fellowships, Distinguished Visiting Fellows, and Visiting Scholars programs, Perry World House has connected Penn's students and faculty with the world's leading academics and policy makers, infusing our research, teaching and, engagement with the ideas, wisdom and experience of those shaping world events.

This new fellowship program will allow untenured faculty members at leading research universities around the world to join Perry World House and the Penn community for a semester or full academic year in residence in Philadelphia to produce a major research project or book. While the fellowship program is for faculty working on global affairs topics, preference will be given to faculty working on subjects broadly related to our two research themes, The Future of the Global Order: Technology, Power and Governance and Global Shifts: Urbanization, Migration, and Demography. More information on our research themes can be found here: <https://global.upenn.edu/perryworldhouse/research>.

The ideal candidates for this new program will be looking for an in-residence fellowship away from their home institution that will provide the space and support to write, but also the opportunity to collaborate with an interdisciplinary and vibrant community of global affairs scholars and practitioners. Perry World House is especially interested in faculty whose work connects to important global policy conversations and who will want to engage in dialogue with some of the many policymakers from around the world who visit Perry World House. The program's compensation is significant and negotiated on a case-by-case basis. The program is intended to allow the selected Lightning Scholar faculty member to take a comfortable leave from their home institution often by supporting the difference between a one semester sabbatical provided by the home institution and a full year leave. Although final compensation will depend on the circumstances of each applicant, the program will provide at least $50,000 as well as relevant fees and health insurance, if needed. The fellowship will also include $5,000 in research support, as well as the opportunity to help shape workshops and colloquia at Perry World House.

Applications, which should be submitted via Interfolio, are welcome from scholars who have either a Ph.D. or equivalent degrees (including a J.D.), are standing faculty members at a college or university, and are on the tenure track but still untenured. Applications for the 2019-20 academic years will be reviewed on a rolling basis starting Monday, January 14, 2019. Applicants must include a cover-letter, three-page proposal, CV, and letters of support from their home department/institution. To receive full consideration, applications and letters of support should be received by that date.

Slippery Rock University

Rank: Assistant Professor

Slippery Rock University (SRU) of Pennsylvania's Department of Political Science invites applications for a full-time, tenure-track Assistant Professor position with dual specialization in International Relations and Comparative Politics to commence in August 2019.

The successful candidate will teach four courses/three preparations per semester, including two sections of one of our introductory courses (e.g., Introduction to International Relations, Introduction to Comparative Politics) each semester, have broad knowledge of both international relations and comparative politics, and ultimately aid in the creation of a new global politics concentration. The candidate is also expected to support the department's student-focused mission, including advising students, creating internships and other opportunities for students outside of the classroom, and advising Model UN, Model NATO, and/or Model African Union student groups. Furthermore, we seek a creative individual who demonstrates a commitment to civic engagement, service learning, and active learning pedagogies.

Minimum Qualifications: The successful candidate must hold a PhD in political science or international relations by the start date, with specific research and teaching interests in both comparative politics and international relations, as demonstrated by at least two of the following: dissertation substance, graduate course work, and/or teaching experience.

Successful performance in an on-campus interview and teaching demonstration is also required. Commitment to the education of diverse populations is also required.

Preferred Qualifications: Applicants with experience advising Model U.N., Model NATO, and/or Model African Union are preferred.

We strongly encourage applications from candidates who provide evidence of successful teaching, advising, and/or mentoring of students beyond the classroom.

Instructions to applicant: Copies of graduate and undergraduate transcripts are required for this position (unofficial copies are acceptable for the application, but official transcripts are also acceptable). Official transcripts will be required prior to appointment. Transcripts may be uploaded using the online system or submitted to the search chair at the address below.

At least 3 letters of reference are also required, in addition to the names and contact information (email and phone number) for the writers of those letters. Letters may be submitted by (1) uploading using the online system, (2) providing contact information (specifically email addresses) for references using the online system when solicited to do so as part of the application process or (3) mailing the letters to the search chair at the address below.:

University of New Orleans

Rank: Doris Zemurray Stone Chair in Latin American Studies

POSITION SUMMARY: The University of New Orleans invites applications and nominations for the endowed Doris Zemurray Stone Chair in Latin American Studies. The University of New Orleans has expanded its work in Latin America to include faculty research in Latin America and a Latin American student outreach program. The endowment includes support for the Chair, for an annual conference, for a Center for Latin American and Caribbean Studies, and for the expansion of summer and other programs in Latin America.

RESPONSIBILITIES: Responsibilities of the chair-holder include:

1) pursuit of chair-holder's research interest; 2) teaching in the chair-holder's area of expertise; 3) development and oversight of a center for Latin American studies; 4) curriculum development and coordination of existing course offerings in the study of Latin America, broadly defined; 5) participation in the existing Latin American Outreach Program, which includes recruitment of students in Latin America; 6) service as a University liaison to the local Latin American community; 7) organizing an annual academic conference, and 8) involvement in fundraising, including student scholarship from the endowment.

REQUIRED QUALIFICATIONS: PhD in a social science or humanities academic discipline as an advanced assistant professor or higher, with a clear track towards tenure; teaching, research, and administrative experience in Latin American and Caribbean studies sufficient to meet the expectations for an endowed chair-holder.

DESIRED QUALIFICATIONS: Experience in administrative and fund-raising activities towards program development and a record of teaching and research consistent with broadly conceived sympathies to interdisciplinary, cross-cultural, and comparative approaches to Latin American, Caribbean, and Circum-Caribbean studies, as well as broadly defined research, teaching and regional geographic interests.

APPLICATION PROCEDURE: Application materials, including a letter of interest, a cv, a sample of published writing, and the names and contact information of three professional references, should be sent to Dr. Jeffrey David Ehrenreich, Zemurray Stone Chair Selection Committee, University of New Orleans, New Orleans, LA 70148 (jehrenre@uno.edu).

Princeton University

Rank: Post-Doctoral Fellowship

Subfield(s): International Relations, American Government and Politics, Comparative Politics

Specializations: Foreign Policy, China, International Security

Columbia University & Harvard University
China and the World Program (C&WP)
Weatherhead East Asian Institute (WEAI)
Fairbank Center for Chinese Studies (FCCS)

Professors Thomas J. Christensen of Columbia University's School of International and Public Affairs and Alastair Iain Johnston of Harvard University's Government Department jointly founded the China and the World fellowship program for the advanced study of China's international relations in 2005. As part of Professor Christensen's recent move to Columbia University, the Program was renamed the Columbia-Harvard China and the World Program (C&WP) in 2018. The China and the World Program supports research that integrates theoretical innovations in the field of international relations with the rigorous study of China's interactions with countries, regions, institutions, and non-state actors.

For academic year 2019-2020, C&WP is collaborating with the Weatherhead East Asian Institute at Columbia University (WEAI) and the Fairbank Center for Chinese Studies at Harvard University (FCCS) to award four one-year postdoctoral research fellowships. Two fellows will be expected to be in residence at Columbia University (one funded by WEAI and one funded by CWP) and two will be expected to be in residence at Harvard University (both funded by the An Wang Program). Fellows at Columbia will each teach one course in the spring semester; fellows at Harvard will be members of the An Wang Postdoctoral Fellows Program at FCCS. When not attending to program-related duties, fellows' time should be devoted to their own research, and to participating actively in the life of C&WP and WEAI or FCCS. Fellows also will be expected to make at least one public presentation during their appointment and participate in the annual C&WP workshop where an entire day is devoted entirely to the examination of the Fellows' research by former fellows of the program. Fellows should have defended their dissertations in the past three years. Preference will be given to applicants who are currently working on revising their Ph.D. thesis for publication as a book, or who are just beginning a second major research project.

Qualifications:

Applicants must have completed all Ph.D. requirements (dissertation completed and filed) between May 2016 and July 2019. Applications from individuals who hold or have held fulltime teaching appointments will not be considered. Only applicants working on some aspect of China's relations with the outside world that supports CWP's, WEAI's, and FCCS's missions need apply.

Application Process:

To apply, you will be required to submit an online application using the email weai@columbia.edu. Please note that applicants are required to send all files in one email or to upload them to a cloud based application and send the URL via email for full consideration.

You are required to submit:

- 1-2 page cover letter that briefly states your interest in the program, your background, and a summary of your research project
- CV
- Project description
- 2 scholarly writing samples
- Course proposal with syllabus for a seminar directed at M.A. students and advanced undergraduates
- Course evaluations for classes taught (if any)
- Unofficial transcripts from all graduate-level degrees
- Two letters of reference. Include contact information for the references and have them submit letters directly to the email below.

The deadline for submission is January 4, 2019, 11:59 p.m. EST.

Please note that you will only submit contact information and the email of your referees. Your referee will then receive an email with instructions on how to submit a confidential recommendation on your behalf. All references must be received by the deadline. Complete your application well before the deadline so that references can be submitted in a timely manner.

Successful applicants will be notified of the outcome of their applications in February 2019 and a public announcement will be made by March/April 2019.

For more information about the Columbia-Harvard China and the World Program, the Weatherhead East Asian Institute, or the Fairbank Center for Chinese Studies, please visit www.CWP.SIPA.Columbia.edu, www.weai.columbia.edu, and <https://fairbank.fas.harvard.edu/> respectively.

The fellowships will be subject to all rules and regulations of Columbia University and Harvard University. All qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to age, race, color, religion, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity or expression, national origin, disability status, protected veteran status, pregnancy and pregnancy-related conditions, or any other characteristic protected by law.

Georgia State University

Rank: Assistant professor with expertise in urban politics and governance

We seek an outstanding urban scholar with expertise in urban politics and governance, and a specialty in social justice, diversity (regarding gender, race, ethnicity, and/or sexuality), and/or the portability of urban policy and theory. This position closely aligns with the Urban Studies Institute's commitment to inclusive urban development. The successful candidate will advance the Institute's international reputation in this area by contributing theoretical and empirical innovations to the field, and pursuing an agenda-setting research program with strong external funding potential. Specific research foci include (but are not limited to):

- urban inequalities and uneven spatial development
- social difference and urban transformation
- urban social movements
- urban policy mobilities
- urban political economy and economic development
- urban informality
- (sub)urban development, governance, and lived experiences

Required:

* Completed PhD (before August 1, 2019) in urban studies, geography, political science, sociology, urban planning, economics or other related social sciences; expertise in urban politics and governance.

* A broad interest in urban studies and motivation to help build a new Institute with missions in research, teaching, and outreach;

* Enthusiasm to work in an open and pluralistic environment;

* A demonstrated commitment to impactful scholarship inside and outside the academy; and

* The capacity to engage in collaborative research across the University, notably in the areas of public health, urban infrastructure, urban inclusion/inequities, and regional urbanization.

Preferred:

* Experience working on collaborative, interdisciplinary research projects;

* Experience working with external stakeholders, including policy practitioners, non-profit organizations, and community groups;

* An affinity with comparative urbanism and research in international settings; and

* Innovative teaching approaches, including engaging students in solutions-oriented projects.

Georgia State University, located in the heart of downtown Atlanta, is a major research university with an enrollment of more than 50,000 students. The university is currently in the middle of a record $1 billion campus expansion. GSU is recognized as a national leader in student success and in graduating students from diverse backgrounds. In 2018, U.S. News & World Report ranked GSU as the 2nd most innovative school in the nation. The Andrew Young School of Policy Studies, ranked among the top 20 Best Graduate Schools for Public Affairs in the United States by the U.S. News & World Report. Its students, alumni and faculty work to advance economic opportunity, human rights and social justice around the world.

Women and minorities are especially encouraged to apply. For best consideration, applications should be a single PDF file sent via email to urban@gsu.edu: (1) a letter of application including statement on research and teaching; names, affiliations, and email addresses of three referees; and (2) a current CV. The PDF file name should include the applicant's last name. An offer of employment, pending budgetary approval, will be conditional on background verification.

Georgia State University, a Research University of the University System of Georgia, is an AA/EEO employer and does not discriminate against applicants due to race, ethnicity, gender, veteran status, or on the basis of disability or any other federal, state or local protected class.

Reed College

Rank: Two-Year Visiting Appointment in Comparative Politics

Applications are invited for a two-year visiting appointment in Comparative Politics beginning Fall 2019. Visitors are usually appointed at the assistant professor level, but more advanced candidates may be considered. Salary is competitive, including travel and research support.

Candidates are expected to teach five sections over two semesters, including two sections of introduction to comparative politics and three sections in the specialty of the applicant. All our courses are capped at 24 students. Because we are a small department, we are interested in candidates who incorporate multiple methods of analysis and integrate this approach into their teaching of undergraduate seminars and in the advising of student research. Candidates should have a broad research program and scholarly interests that reach into other parts of political science. Our pedagogy emphasizes the conceptual and theoretical foundations of the discipline and includes supervision of undergraduate thesis students. We expect the Ph.D. to be in hand, or very near completion, by the start of the appointment. Above all, we seek candidates with a strong commitment to teaching excellence at the undergraduate level. Information on the department is available at http://academic.reed.edu/poli_sci/. Search inquiries may be addressed to political.search@reed.edu.

Reed College is a community that believes cultural diversity is essential to the excellence of our academic program. In your application materials, we welcome a description of how you would engage and sustain the commitment to diversity and inclusion articulated in Reed College's diversity statement (<http://www.reed.edu/diversity/>). An Equal Opportunity Employer, Reed College values diversity and encourages applications from underrepresented groups.

Please send an application letter, CV, demonstration of teaching excellence, and three letters of recommendation to <http://apply.interfolio.com/57827>. Sample syllabi are welcome but not required. Review of applications will begin January 28, 2019 and applications will be accepted until the position is filled.

Duke University

Rank: Professor of the Practice

Specializations: Environmental Policy, Gender Politics & Policy, Science & Technology

The International Comparative Studies (ICS) program at Duke University invites applications for an open-rank Professor of the Practice position that begins August 1, 2019. This is a regular rank renewable faculty position with a four- or five-year term, depending on rank. International Comparative Studies (<https://internationalcomparative.duke.edu>) is an undergraduate interdisciplinary program that bridges the humanities and social sciences. Students pursue a Global Studies major that focuses on one of seven world regions through language and interdisciplinary courses. The successful candidate will have completed a Ph.D. in the humanities and/or social sciences prior to appointment, be engaged in research and teaching that is interdisciplinary and explores comparative/global topics, and be interested in collaborative teaching and curriculum-building. The selected candidate will also need to demonstrate interest in teaching core ICS courses and will supervise senior theses and contribute appropriate service in the program, including undergraduate advising. The position is open to multiple disciplines and thematics, with a particular interest in the following areas: critical geography and the politics of space; regional and/or global environmental studies; gender, race, sexuality, and disability studies; science, health, and technology. Given the diversity of our students we value candidates with experience teaching and mentoring under-represented students. The position carries a 2/2 teaching load with expectation that three courses per year will be in the ICS core curriculum.

To apply, please submit a letter of application, curriculum vitae, a writing sample or publication of no more than 40 pages, and an Introduction to Global Studies syllabus. In addition, the names and contact information of three recommenders must be submitted with the application. All material should be submitted electronically through the following link <https://academicjobsonline.org/ajo/jobs/11965>. Applications received by January 10, 2019 are guaranteed consideration.

IE University

Rank: Assistant Professor of the Political-Economy of Development

Specializations: Developing Nations, Political Economy, Conflict Processes

IE University's School of Global and Public Affairs (IEGPA) seeks applicants for a position at the rank of Assistant Professor (tenure-track) in the Political Economy of Development. The successful candidate should have a strong publication record in top peer-reviewed outlets, or the proven potential of producing them in the coming two years. We are especially interested in scholars whose research interests deal with technological change and innovation.

The ideal candidate would have solid teaching experience, and should be acquainted with teaching methods focused on critical thinking, problem solving, and the latest pedagogical approaches such as flipped classroom and blended education. He/She is expected to teach courses in Development Studies, Political Economy, and Research Methods at both the undergraduate and Master level.

Beyond these traditional academic criteria, we seek academics with the capacity to engage in policy relevant work, and with a commitment to institution-building: applying for research grants, participating in affiliated research centers and academic programs, and expanding the IEGPA's current network and partnerships.

Applications should include a cover letter and vita, a job market paper, three academic references, and evidence of teaching excellence (e.g. teaching evaluations). Candidates must have a PhD from a recognized Department of Political Science, or demonstrate clear evidence that the PhD will be complete by July, 2019. All application materials should be sent to IESGPA2@ie.edu

The IEGPA is part of IE University, located in Madrid and Segovia, Spain; and is a full-member of the Association of Professional Schools in International Affairs (APSIA). We are committed to world-class professional education and academic research in the social sciences, public policy, and international affairs.

We offer a competitive remuneration package, attractive teaching commitments and an enriching and cosmopolitan work environment in the heart of Madrid. Our working language is English, and both our faculty and student body are highly diverse and international.

Troy University

Rank: Assistant/Associate Professor

Subfield(s): Public Administration, Comparative Politics, International Relations

The Department of Political Science invites applicants for an open rank tenure track position in political science with a concentration in comparative public administration beginning on August 1, 2019. This is a ten-month tenure-track position at our Troy, Alabama location. The minimum qualifications are a Ph.D. in Public Administration/International Relations/Comparative Politics/Political Science, or related field by August 1, 2019 with a research specialization in comparative public administration. The teaching will be in our master's degree (MPA) in public administration as well as undergraduate political science courses, which will be delivered in person as well as online. The job requires that the hire may be asked to teach courses at another Troy location depending on departmental needs. Preferred candidates will have a secondary specialization (such as research methods, or a regional specialization) that can complement our existing faculty strengths. The candidate needs to demonstrate excellence in research and teaching. For best consideration, please submit application documents by October 31, 2019. The position will remain open until filled.

The Department of Political Science at Troy University currently employs twenty-five faculty members who work in three programs: undergraduate political science, graduate international relations, and graduate public administration.

Applicants need to electronically submit a cover letter, CV, writing sample, teaching philosophy, research statement, and arrange to have three reference letters uploaded. Please direct all questions to Dr Terry Anderson at tanderson@troy.edu.

Northeastern University

Rank: Urban Studies - Open Rank

Subfield(s): International Relations, Comparative Politics, Public Policy

The International Affairs Program in the College of Social Sciences and Humanities (CSSH) at Northeastern University seeks nominations and applications from leading scholars for an open rank position with an expected start date of Fall 2019. The International Affairs Program, with one of the largest majors in the College of Social Sciences and Humanities, supports undergraduate majors, minors, and a Master's program.

We seek a scholar of urban studies whose interests reach across disciplines, and we are particularly interested in candidates with expertise in urban politics, urban and political geography, urban sociology, urban anthropology and urban ethnography. Candidates whose research complements those topics as well as those who would enhance faculty diversity, are especially encouraged to apply. The successful candidate will have a distinguished scholarly record and demonstrated potential for excellence in leadership. The successful candidate will be cross-appointed in the International Affairs Program and a tenure home within the college appropriate to their field. The position will support the university, college and International Affairs Program's commitment to producing interdisciplinary scholarship and innovative teaching on contested cities, urban politics and/or urban immigrants across the globe. Areas of strategic focus in the College include resilience, sustainability and digital humanities. Candidates should have demonstrated commitment to fostering diverse and inclusive environments as well as to promoting experiential learning, which are central to a Northeastern University education. Review of applications will begin November 1 and will continue until the position is filled.

Qualifications

A PhD in a related field required.

Wake Forest University

Rank: Worrell Chair in Anglo-American Studies

WORRELL CHAIR IN ANGLO-AMERICAN STUDIES

The Department of Politics and International Affairs at Wake Forest University is seeking an outstanding scholar and teacher to fill a named chair in the area of Anglo-American studies as it relates to politics, ideally at the Full or Associate Professor level.

The Department understands Anglo-America broadly to include Britain as well as regions of the Americas in which English is spoken widely and where the British colonial legacy is reflected in present-day culture and politics. This includes the United States, Canada and the Anglophone Caribbean. Similarly, scholars of Anglo-American studies with research interests that add unique contributions to those of current Wake Forest Politics and International Affairs faculty are encouraged to apply. These might include but are not limited to the examination of shared issues including immigration, environmental, and social welfare policies; party and electoral systems; labor politics and political economy; postcolonial and critical legal studies; and the social and political inequalities associated with race, class, and gender. The Department of Politics and International Affairs includes faculty who are both dedicated teachers and active researchers. Candidates should have a strong commitment to excellence in undergraduate teaching and an outstanding record of research. Salary will be commensurate with the rank and stature of the selected applicant.

Founded in 1834, Wake Forest University is presently ranked among the top 30 national universities in the United States. The university is located in Winston-Salem, North Carolina, a vibrant, small city with a thriving arts community. At Wake Forest and in Winston-Salem there are many opportunities for multi-disciplinary collaboration and community-engaged research, supported by the Pro Humanitate Institute, the Anna Julia Cooper Center, and other affiliated centers. Wake Forest University and Winston-Salem also houses one of the fastest growing urban technology innovation districts in the United States, Wake Forest Innovation Quarter.

Wake Forest University and the Department of Politics and International Affairs welcome diversity and encourage inclusivity. We therefore seek applicants with demonstrated success in engaging diverse populations. Wake Forest University is an AA/EO employer and values an inclusive and diverse learning community and campus climate.

Applications will be reviewed as they are received and accepted until the Professorship is filled. Inquiries and questions about the position should be directed to the Chair of the Search Committee: Katy Harriger at harriger@wfu.edu subject line: "Worrell Chair." Applications accepted on line www.wfu.careers. A complete application includes a letter of interest and a C.V. Additional information and references will be requested from finalists. Technical questions may be directed to wakejobs@wfu.edu.

Princeton University

Rank: Visiting Fellow, James Madison Program, Princeton University
Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Political Theory, Comparative Politics
Specializations: American Politics, Constitutional Law & Theory, Political Theory

Invitation for Visiting Fellow Applications

The James Madison Program in American Ideals and Institutions at Princeton University is dedicated to the pursuit of scholarly excellence in the fields of constitutional law and political thought. Sponsored by Princeton's Department of Politics, the Program seeks to enrich the intellectual life of Princeton students and faculty by exploring American constitutional principles and structures through research and public discussion.

The Program invites college and university professors and other professionals with established records of scholarship to apply for appointments as Visiting Fellows for the academic year running from September 1, 2019 to June 30, 2020. One-semester appointments are possible but not preferred. Depending on the needs of the University, teaching opportunities may be available, subject to sufficient enrollment and approval of the Dean of the Faculty.

All James Madison Program Visiting Fellows will spend an academic year (10-month term) in residence at Princeton University. They enjoy access to Firestone Library and a wide range of other facilities and activities throughout the University.

Visiting Fellows are expected to devote full time to their proposed research. They are encouraged, however, to attend or participate in various activities of the Program, including faculty-student seminars, colloquia, and public lectures.

All James Madison Program Fellows must have a doctorate or equivalent degree. Positions are open to all regardless of citizenship. Fellows normally receive a stipend of one-half their academic-year salary plus a living allowance. The fellows' home institutions are expected to provide at least half of their academic-year salaries in addition to all benefits.

How to apply: For full consideration, applicants are required to submit an online application at <https://dof.princeton.edu/academicjobs>. To apply for a Visiting Fellow position please go to requisition D-19-POL-00004.

A complete application must include the following:

- * a curriculum vitae;
- * a scholarly paper written in the past three years;
- * a statement (no more than 1,500 words) describing the proposed research;
- * contact information for two references;
- * a confidential statement from home institution that indicates the applicant's salary for the current academic year, financial support their home institution and other sources are likely to provide, and what support they are likely to need from the Program.

The deadline for application materials is 11:59 p.m. EST on December 1, 2018 for appointments beginning in September 2019. Awards will be announced in March 2019 or before.

Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Political Theory, Comparative Politics
Specializations: American Politics, Constitutional Law & Theory, Political Philosophy & Theory

Invitation for Postdoctoral Research Associate Applications

The James Madison Program in American Ideals and Institutions at Princeton University is dedicated to the pursuit of scholarly excellence in the fields of constitutional law and political thought. Sponsored by Princeton's Department of Politics, the Program seeks to enrich the intellectual life of Princeton students and faculty by exploring American constitutional principles and structures through research and public discussion.

The Program invites recent Ph.D. recipients to apply for appointments as Postdoctoral Research Associates or more senior researchers for the year from September 1, 2019 to September 1, 2020, with the possibility of renewal for an additional year, contingent on good performance. All James Madison Program postdocs are expected to be in residence at Princeton University for the duration of the appointment. They may not be employed by another institution during the term of their Princeton appointment. They enjoy access to Firestone Library and a wide range of other facilities and activities throughout the University.

Depending on the needs of the University, teaching opportunities may be available, subject to the approval of the Dean of the Faculty. Postdoctoral Research Associates are expected to devote full time to their proposed research. They are, however, encouraged to attend or participate in various activities of the Program, including faculty-student seminars, colloquia, and public lectures.

The position is a fully funded, 12-month postdoctoral research associate appointment with benefits. All James Madison Program Postdoctoral Research Associates must have a Ph.D. degree. Applications are evaluated on the basis of (1) the significance of the proposed research; (2) the quality of the applicant's past research; and (3) the future contribution the applicant is likely to make to higher education. Positions are open to all regardless of citizenship. This position is subject to the University's background check policy.

How to apply:

Rank: ASSISTANT PROFESSOR, POLITICS AND POLICY OF CHINA - CLUSTER HIRE

The University of Wisconsin-Madison seeks to hire a faculty member with research and teaching interests in comparative politics or international relations, with a primary focus on China and a secondary focus on East Asia and the Pacific Rim. Potential areas of substantive expertise in the politics and policy of China include: political and economic development, human rights, environmental politics and policy, international political economy, international security, or international organizations/governance.

The successful candidate will have a primary appointment in either the Department of Political Science or the La Follette School of Public Affairs, with preference given to candidates interested in both political science and public affairs/public policy. Expectations include a commitment to the important functions of research, instruction, and outreach, as well as professional and university service as appropriate to faculty rank. Teaching will include courses to undergraduates as well as graduates. Teaching and research will primarily focus on the successful candidate's area of expertise. This position is part of a research cluster proposed by the Title VI-funded National Resource Center, the Center for East Asian Studies, for the University's Cluster Hiring Initiative (<https://facstaff.provost.wisc.edu/cluster-hiring-initiative/>) to enhance cross-disciplinary expertise on contemporary East Asia. Candidates should have an interest in collaborating with the Cluster and with colleagues affiliated with the Center for East Asian Studies. Three candidates will be recruited in this Cluster: 1) Assistant Professor, Sociology of Contemporary Korea [PVL# 95849]; 2) Assistant Professor, Chinese Politics and Policy [PVL# 95952]; and 3) Assistant Professor, Educational Policy Studies in East Asia [PVL # TBD].

Responsibilities include conducting research and teaching at all levels required with service at the professional and university level.

ADDITIONAL INFORMATION:

UW-Madison is seeking a diverse set of faculty candidates who will deepen our university's interdisciplinary research strength in key areas of current and future research promise, as well as faculty candidates who will approach their work in a manner that advances our commitment to research excellence.

A criminal background check will be conducted prior to hiring.

TO APPLY:

To apply, go to <http://jobs.wisc.edu> and search for PVL 95952. To begin the application process please click on the 'Apply Now' button. You will be asked to create a profile and upload a C.V., cover letter, a research statement, a teaching statement, and 2 samples of written work (please upload these 2 samples together). University of Notre Dame

Rank: Faculty Position in Global Education

Subfield(s): Comparative Politics, International Relations, Other

The University of Notre Dame's Keough School of Global Affairs invites applications for a faculty position in global education, with a preference for scholars whose work and interests include a focus on the intersection of education and development or international and comparative education policy. Scholars engaged in rigorous social science research from a variety of disciplines – economics, political science, sociology, education, and others – will be considered. Applicants should have an interest in interdisciplinary cooperation. Applicants attracted to a university with a Catholic identity are especially encouraged to apply. While priority will be given to consideration of junior candidates (ABD, postdoc, assistant professors or non-tenured associate professors), senior applicants may also be considered. Ph.D. or equivalent terminal degree required at the time of hire.

Qualifications

The successful hire will be based in the Keough School of Global Affairs, with affiliations in the Kellogg Institute for International Studies and in Notre Dame's Institute for Educational Initiatives. Oriented toward research, teaching, and service dedicated to the advancement of integral human development, the Keough School (<http://keough.nd.edu/>) promotes interdisciplinary research on critical issues in global affairs, offers a master's degree, and supports undergraduate and doctoral programs. The Kellogg Institute for International Studies (<http://kellogg.nd.edu/>) has for over 35 years been a leading center for interdisciplinary research and programming on issues of democracy and human development. The Institute for Educational Initiatives (<http://iei.nd.edu/>) provides a home for nearly one hundred faculty fellows from across the University whose research and teaching interests focus on K-12 education, with a particular interest in Catholic education. Joint or concurrent appointments in the appropriate departments are also possible. Applicants should have an affirmative interest in contributing to the joint Kellogg Institute/Institute for Educational Initiative Research Cluster in International Education (<https://kellogg.nd.edu/research-cluster-international-education>).

Application Instructions

All applicants are required to submit a letter of interest and a C.V. Junior candidates (ABD, postdoc, assistant or non-tenured associate professors) should also arrange for the submission of three confidential letters of reference. Apply here: <https://apply.interfolio.com/54487>

Johns Hopkins University

Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Comparative Politics, International Relations

The Department of Political Science and the Stavros Niarchos Foundation Agora Institute at Johns Hopkins University seek nominations and applications of interest to appoint three or more distinguished scholars to establish a cluster of excellence in research and teaching on the challenges of contemporary democracy. We are especially interested in colleagues with an established record of scholarship examining the root causes and consequences of polarization, including its global and transnational dynamics. Successful candidates will join the Agora Institute's core faculty and will serve as full members of the Department of Political Science. We invite qualified candidates from all subfields of the discipline whose work connects with the core mission of the Institute. By conducting a broad and inclusive search, we are committed to identifying candidates who, through their research, teaching, and service, will contribute to the diversity and excellence of our academic community.

Political Science at Johns Hopkins is a methodologically diverse and pluralistic department open to a variety of research methods and intellectual approaches. We also will consider applications for potential cross-disciplinary appointments from scholars in fields such as History, Sociology, Psychology, and Philosophy as well as cross-divisional appointments.

Jointly conceived by the University and the Stavros Niarchos Foundation (SNF), the $150M SNF Agora Institute was founded to address the deterioration of civic engagement in democracies worldwide and facilitate the restoration of open and inclusive discourse that is the cornerstone of healthy democracies. Housed in the University's Krieger School of Arts and Sciences, the SNF Agora Institute at JHU will serve as a leading academic and public forum bringing together experts from a range of fields—including but not limited to political science, sociology, history, neuroscience, psychology, philosophy, and ethics—to examine the dynamics of civic strife and design and test mechanisms for improving dialogue, social engagement, and democratic governance (<http://agora.jhu.edu/>).

Applicants for Tenured Associate or Full Professor should submit a cover letter, research statement, and curriculum vitae using Interfolio <http://apply.interfolio.com/54486>. Candidates applying at the level of advanced assistant professor should include the above as well as a writing sample and three letters of recommendation. Nominations of potential candidates should be sent directly to Professor Adam Sheingate (adam.sheingate@jhu.edu). Review of applications will begin on October 15, 2018 and continue until the positions are filled. Appointments will commence on July 1, 2019.

Temple University

Rank: Professor of Integrative Knowledge in Russian, Soviet, and Post-Soviet Studies

Specializations: Russia, History & Politics, Post Soviet Region

The Departments of Political Science and History at Temple University invite applications for the position of Professor of Integrative Knowledge in Russian, Soviet, and Post-Soviet Studies. We seek an established interdisciplinary scholar whose research and teaching address both Russian and/or Soviet history as well as the legacies of these earlier eras in the post-Soviet era, including topics such as the persistence of authoritarian rule as well as the important roles of the Soviet Union and Russia in world politics. This joint appointment in the Departments of History and Political Science is part of a broader initiative in the College of Liberal Arts to recruit senior faculty studying important questions across disciplinary boundaries. We seek someone who can be tenured at the level of either Associate or Full Professor in either (or both) Political Science and History.

Temple University is a state-related Carnegie Research University (highest research activity) located in Philadelphia. The College of Liberal Arts is home of 32 undergraduate majors, 32 minors, 23 certificate programs and 15 graduate degree programs. With its vibrant and diverse array of educational programs, the College of Liberal Arts plays, and its missions mirrors, both the historical importance of the liberal arts in society and the principles on which the university was founded.

Interested applicants should send a cover letter and curriculum vitae to <http://apply.interfolio.com/53872>. We will begin consideration of applications and nominations on October 15th. Professors Mark Pollack of Political Science and Alan McPherson of History will co-chair the search.

North Dakota State University

Specializations: Judicial Politics, Constitutional Law & Theory, Criminal Justice

The department of Criminal Justice & Political Science at NDSU is recruiting for a 9-month tenure-track position, at the rank of assistant professor, starting Fall 2019. We seek candidates with expertise in judicial politics and constitutional law, broadly construed. Successful applicants should be versed in American public law, but could conduct research in a broad variety of related areas, such as, but not limited to, the role of race, ethnicity, sexualities, and/or gender in justice systems, comparative judicial politics, international courts and legal structures, or the politics of policing in the US or abroad. This is a 45% research, 45% teaching, 10% service position. The teaching load is 2-2, with a course release in the first three years. Successful applicants will be prepared to teach core undergraduate pre-law courses on American judicial politics, such as judicial process and constitutional law, but will also have ample opportunity to teach specialized courses of their choosing. Tenure-track political science faculty advise undergraduate students and may have opportunities to contribute to the supervision of MA and PhD students in criminal justice. The department has minimal service expectations for pre-tenure faculty.

Minimum Qualifications

The minimum qualifications for the position are: 1) a Ph.D. degree in Political Science, or a related discipline, conferred no later than August, 2019, 2) evidence of research productivity, or potential to publish scholarship in peer reviewed journals, presses, and other outlets appropriate to one's field, 3) competence to teach American judicial process and constitutional law, and 4) effective written and oral communication skills.

Preferred Qualifications

We will give priority to candidates who 1) can provide substantial evidence of (potential) research productivity and quality, 2) have experience teaching American judicial process and/or constitutional law, 3) can provide substantial evidence of teaching effectiveness, and/or 4) have experience pursuing or obtaining external funding.

The Department

The Department of Criminal Justice & Political Science has 11 tenure-track faculty members and serves roughly 100 undergraduate majors in political science, and 200 undergraduate and 20 graduate students in criminal justice. Faculty in the department teach four classes per year. The NDSU community and national organizations have regularly recognized department faculty for excellence in research, teaching, and mentorship. While faculty contribute primarily to teaching, curriculum development, and advising within their respective programs, the department provides opportunities for interdisciplinary collaboration across fields, both in research and teaching. The college provides faculty with computing resources and tenure-track faculty within the department receive a yearly research and professionalization budget that covers travel to 1-2 conferences, and which faculty routinely supplement with College and University travel grants.

The University

North Dakota State University is a comprehensive, student-focused, land-grant, research university with more than 14,000 students from 47 states and 79 countries. NDSU was the first university in North Dakota to be named to the most research-intensive category by the Carnegie Commission on Higher Education and is listed in the National Science Foundation's top 100 in several areas, including agricultural sciences, social sciences, physical sciences, chemistry, psychology, and computer sciences.

NDSU values faculty members' work-life balance and the needs of dual-career couples. The College of Arts, Humanities, & Social Sciences' guidelines on family-related reassignment of duties are available at <https://www.ndsu.edu/fileadmin/ahss/family2010.pdf> and University policy on extension of the probationary period for personal or family reasons is available at <https://www.ndsu.edu/fileadmin/policy/352.pdf>. NDSU is an ADVANCE institution and has an a Focus on Resources for Women's Advancement, Recruitment/Retention, and Development (FORWARD) program, that, as part of its efforts, has developed procedures and funding streams for dual career hiring at NDSU: <https://www.ndsu.edu/forward/>.

Applicants can find more information about NDSU at <http://www.ndsu.edu>.

The Community

NDSU is located in Fargo-Moorhead (F-M), a pleasant, safe, diversifying, and growing community of approximately 240,000 people. As the largest population center in the region, F-M is a hub of entertainment, finance, information technology, and medical services for a large geographic area including the state of North Dakota, and western Minnesota. Two universities (NDSU and Minnesota State University Moorhead) and one private liberal arts college (Concordia College) are located in F-M. The F-M area has a healthy economy: ND has one of the lowest unemployment rates in the U.S., good public schools, low crime rates, ample shopping, local theatre and music companies, several art galleries, semi-professional baseball and hockey, and Division I intercollegiate athletics. Hector International Airport in Fargo is convenient and is served by several major airlines. Sun, clear skies, and clean air predominate year round. Visiting nearby northern Minnesota lakes, canoeing, camping, cycling, softball, and soccer are popular in summer; winter pastimes include cross-country skiing, skating, and snowmobiling. The city has an excellent park system that includes several quality golf courses and bicycle/running/ski paths along the Red River, which divides Fargo-Moorhead. Fargo is an hour drive from a major resort area in the Minnesota "lakes country" and two hours from scenic Itasca State Park, where you will find the headwaters of the Mississippi river. Central and western North Dakota offer beautiful hiking, camping, fishing, hunting, and related opportunities in the Badlands, national grasslands, and numerous river valleys. Winnipeg, Manitoba is less than a four-hour drive to the north and Minneapolis-St. Paul is an equal distance to the southeast.

Application

Applicants must submit a cover letter, curriculum vitae, statement of research interests, writing sample, statement of teaching philosophy, evidence of teaching effectiveness (e.g., syllabi, course materials, evidence of participation in teaching professionalization activities, and, if available, evaluations by peers and/or mentors; please do not include student evaluations of teaching), and contact information for 3 professional references. All application materials must be submitted online at <https://jobs.ndsu.edu/postings/9576>.

NDSU especially encourages applications from women and members of underrepresented groups.

We will begin reviewing applications on October 1, and will continue to accept and review applications until the position is filled. The department will provide search updates through APSA eJobs' update capability, and on Twitter, using the #PSJInfo hashtag.

Potential applicants may direct questions about the search to Dan Pemstein, the search committee chair, at daniel.pemstein@ndsu.edu.

University of Richmond

Rank: Assistant Professor of Asian Politics

The Department of Political Science in the School of Arts and Sciences at the University of Richmond invites applications for a tenure-track assistant professor position in comparative politics, to begin in August 2019. The department seeks to hire a teacher-scholar with expertise in Asian politics, broadly defined, who will meet and expand curricular goals within the major and broaden the department's research expertise. We welcome applicants to join an interdisciplinary community of scholars with interests in Asia. The position carries a 3-2 teaching load consisting of a regular offering of a survey course on Asian politics, an upper-division course in the candidate's area of research interest, courses contributing to the department's ongoing offerings of introductory-level comparative politics and research methods courses, and possibly other service courses related to the individual's areas of expertise.

Applicants must either hold a Ph.D. in Political Science or show credible evidence that they will complete the dissertation by August 1, 2019. Applicants should apply online at <http://jobs.richmond.edu>. The application should include the following: a cover letter containing a brief summary of the candidate's research and teaching interests; separate statements on research interests/plans and on teaching philosophy/experience; current curriculum vitae; copies of graduate transcripts; and three letters of recommendation, at least one of which should also speak to the candidate's record of or potential for excellence in teaching. The teaching statement should articulate the candidate's teaching philosophy, interests, and goals as well as involvement and commitment to inclusive pedagogy.

Please address any questions about the application to Dr. Richard Dagger rdagger@richmond.edu, Chair, Department of Political Science, University of Richmond, Richmond, VA 23173. Review of applications will begin on October 1, 2018.

The School of Arts and Sciences, the liberal arts core of the University, is a thriving and inclusive community of 230 faculty, twenty-two departments, and ten interdisciplinary programs. We offer distinctive and engaging learning opportunities to students and outstanding resources to support the scholarly, creative, and pedagogical activities of the faculty. For information about the foundations, goals, and initiatives of the School of Arts and Sciences, see the Concept 30 Strategic Plan at: <https://as.richmond.edu/concept30/index.html>

The University of Richmond is a private, highly selective, predominantly liberal arts institution. The University is committed to developing a diverse workforce and student body, and to modeling an inclusive campus community that values the expression of difference in ways that promote excellence in teaching, learning, personal development, and institutional success. Our academic community strongly encourages applications in keeping with this commitment. For more information on the department, see <http://polisci.richmond.edu>.

Bucknell University

Rank: Assistant Professor of Political Science (Comparative)

Bucknell University's Department of Political Science invites applications for a tenure-track position in the comparative politics of Europe beginning in the fall semester of 2019. We expect to hire at the Assistant Professor level but are open to considering outstanding candidates at other ranks. The successful candidate will be prepared to teach a core course in comparative politics, a course in European politics, a course in either quantitative or qualitative research methods, and other courses in the candidate's field of specialization.

The Department of Political Science has a strong record of hiring diverse faculty whose courses expose students to a variety of racial, ethnic, and cultural perspectives, and we are especially interested in candidates whose teaching and research will contribute to the department's commitment to both diversity and academic excellence. Evidence of teaching experience and excellence, as well as the promise of being a productive scholar, are critically important. The teaching load is five courses over two semesters. By the start date of the position, candidates are expected to have a Ph.D. in Political Science with a sub-field specialization in Comparative Politics, but ABD candidates will also be considered with the understanding that the Ph.D. must be completed before the beginning of the second year.

For additional information and to apply, please go to careers.bucknell.edu. The application should include a cover letter, C.V., statement of teaching philosophy, statement of commitment to diversity, three letters of recommendation, graduate transcripts, sample publications or papers, syllabi, and teaching evaluations (if available), along with any other relevant materials. Questions about the position should be addressed by email to Professor Scott Meinke at smeinke@bucknell.edu. The review of applications will begin on September 24, 2018.

About Bucknell University

Bucknell University is a highly selective, predominately undergraduate, private university with approximately 3600 students. Along with its excellent academic departments and programs, it boasts the Center for the Study of Race, Ethnicity, and Gender, which supports faculty teaching and scholarship in these areas, and the Griot Institute for Africana Studies, which provides faculty and student intellectual and creative engagement with the interdisciplinary investigation of the cultures, histories, narratives, peoples, geographies and arts of Africa and the African diaspora; and the Bucknell Institute for Public Policy, which supports faculty research and teaching on issues of domestic, international, and comparative public policy. In 2014, Bucknell introduced a 5-Year Diversity Plan aimed at enhancing the diversity of the faculty, staff, student body, and curriculum of the university.

Located in Central Pennsylvania along the Susquehanna River, Bucknell is nestled in the Borough of Lewisburg, an architectural gem that has been ranked as one of America's best small towns. The Lewisburg area offers a unique combination of outdoor recreation opportunities, and appealing amenities such as art galleries, an art deco theater, historic museums, and charming independent boutiques and restaurants. In addition, the surrounding region offers outstanding schools, medical facilities, and an affordable cost of living. Bucknell is within an easy three-hour drive to Philadelphia, New York, Baltimore, and Washington, D.C.

Rank: European Studies Lecturer

The University of Florida Center for European Studies (CES) is seeking a nine-month, non-tenure accruing lecturer position with the possibility of annual renewal in European Studies to begin August 16, 2019. Lecturers are highly valued by the CES and the university. Lecturers at UF have professional development opportunities, including a well-defined promotion structure, a professional development leave program, and access to travel funds for conference presentations. Although the primary duties for this position are instructional, continued research and involvement in service at the center/department, college, and university levels is also expected.

CES is seeking applicants with superior promise who combine broad expertise in the field of European Studies with demonstrated excellence and substantial experience in teaching. Disciplinary backgrounds may include, but are not restricted to, Anthropology, Economics, Geography, Political Science, and/or Sociology.

The candidate is expected to contribute to the teaching, and service missions of the UF Center for European Studies and the CLAS International Studies major and will have a 100% appointment in the Center. We particularly welcome applicants who can teach at least one of the required courses within the International Studies (IS) interdisciplinary undergraduate major ('International Studies Perspectives' and/or 'International Studies Senior Research Seminar'). In addition, competitive candidates will be able to develop a version of the social science European Studies 'European Experience' (EUS2003) course for the Center for European Studies and at least one specifically Europe Union related course that could be included as a core course within the EU studies program. Anticipated teaching assignment for the position will be three courses per semester. We are also seeking someone with a willingness to contribute to the varied activities of the Center including campus and community outreach, new grant initiatives, and program development. Experience with study abroad program development and management also welcome. More information about the Center for European Studies (<https://ces.ufl.edu>), as well as the International Studies program (<http://intstudies.program.ufl.edu>) can be found online.

Minimum Requirements: PhD in related field preferred, ABD considered

Preferred Qualifications: Previous experience in outreach and program development strongly desired.

Special instructions to applicants: For full consideration, applications must be submitted online at <https://apply.interfolio.com/58375> and must include: (1) a letter summarizing the applicant's qualifications, (2) a complete curriculum vitae, (3) three confidential letters of recommendation, (4) teaching portfolio if available or if not available, please include sample syllabi, 1-2 page teaching statement, and teaching evaluations, and (5) 1-2 page diversity statement.

All candidates for employment are subject to a pre-employment screening which includes a review of criminal records, reference checks, and verification of education.

The selected candidate will be required to provide an official transcript to the hiring department upon hire. A transcript will not be considered "official" if a designation of "Issued to Student" is visible. Degrees earned from an educational institution outside of the United States require evaluation by a professional credentialing service provider approved by the National Association of Credential Evaluation Services (NACES), which can be found at <http://www.naces.org/>.

The University of Florida is an equal opportunity institution dedicated to building a broadly diverse and inclusive faculty and staff. Searches are conducted in accordance with Florida's Sunshine Law. If an accommodation due to disability is needed in order to apply for this position, please call (352) 392-2477 or the Florida Relay System at (800) 955-8771 (TDD).

University of Richmond

Rank: Zuzana Simoniova Cmelikova Visiting International Scholar in Leadership and Ethics

Subfield(s): Political Theory, Public Law, International Relations

Specializations: Political Philosophy & Theory, Leadership Studies, Political Thought: Historical

The University of Richmond's Jepson School of Leadership Studies invites applications for a visiting position as the Zuzana Simoniova

Cmelikova Visiting International Scholar in Leadership and Ethics for the 2019-20 academic year.

This position, made possible by a generous gift from the Ukrop family, is designed to give visiting scholars with extensive international experience the opportunity to conduct research, develop courses, and/or design programs on leadership ethics. The Visiting International Scholar will pursue his or her own advanced research related to leadership and ethics; and actively contribute to the intellectual life of the School and University through meaningful interactions with faculty including presenting his or her research and/or issues related to leadership in their country.

Visiting international scholars may be new Ph.D.s or experienced scholars who hold a Ph.D. in an academic area related to the study of leadership and ethics. Scholars from newly formed democracies are especially encouraged to apply. Applicants should explain in a cover letter how their research, teaching, and future plans relate to the scholarship that they would pursue as a visitor at the Jepson School.

Inaugurated in 1992, the Jepson School of Leadership Studies is an independent academic unit of the University and offers students the opportunity to major or minor in Leadership Studies. With the aim of educating students for and about leadership, the Jepson School offers an intellectually challenging liberal arts curriculum delivered by means of a rigorous and innovative pedagogy.

The University of Richmond is a private university located just a short drive from downtown Richmond, Virginia. Through its five schools and wide array of campus programming, the University combines the best qualities of a small liberal arts college and a large university. With nearly 4,000 students, an 8:1 student-faculty ratio, and 92% of traditional undergraduate students living on campus, the University is remarkably student-centered, focused on preparing students "to live lives of purpose, thoughtful inquiry, and responsible leadership in a global and pluralistic society."

The University of Richmond is committed to developing a diverse workforce and student body, and to modeling an inclusive campus community which values the expression of difference in ways that promote excellence in teaching, learning, personal development, and institutional success. Our academic community strongly encourages applications that are in keeping with this commitment. For more information on the department and its programs, please see <https://jepson.richmond.edu/>.

Applicants should apply online at <http://jobs.richmond.edu> and submit a cover letter, curriculum vitae, one-page research plan, and writing sample. In addition, please include the names of three references who will receive an email asking them to submit their reference letters to the University's Human Resources department at URHR@richmond.edu. Review of applications will commence February 1, 2019; the deadline for applications is March 15, 2019.

Rank: Executive Director, Institute for Regional and International Studies (IRIS)

Minimum number of years and type of relevant work experience:

Candidates should have a strong track record in educational and research administration in area or international studies broadly defined, as well as demonstrated administrative experience with strong relevance to area and international studies. Candidates should have extensive international experience, which may include study, research, or teaching abroad. Diversity and inclusion are primary values for IRIS and are integral to achieving our strategic goals. We seek candidates with an awareness of and commitment to the principles of diversity and inclusion across all spectrums. The capacity to work collaboratively with faculty and staff across disciplines is required. Experience with campus administrative systems is highly desirable. Familiarity with Title VI National Resource Center and FLAS fellowship programs, or equivalent experience managing federal grants preferred. Candidate must have a record of managerial experience, including evidence of capacity to supervise a team with broad and varied responsibilities. A commitment to fostering a positive and inclusive work environment is essential. Demonstrated commitment to and experience working with diverse populations is extremely important.

50% Oversee management of International Studies Title VI National Resource Center (IS-NRC)

- Develop cross-regional programs and events that support the work of all areas studies centers and the International Studies (IS) major. For example, in consultation with the faculty director of IS-NRC, the faculty leadership of the IS major, and the associate directors of the constituent area studies centers, identify themes (e.g. migration & democracy, climate change & human rights) that build synergies among all area studies centers through the development and implementation of cross-regional programming.
- Supervise the administration of the IS-NRC grant, including coordination of application preparation, budget management, and reporting to the U.S. Department of Education.
- Work closely with the International Studies (IS) major faculty director and steering committee to advocate for and support the IS Major (within the College of Letters & Sciences). This will include involvement in activities required to meet L&S administrative policy-related needs.
- Imagine ways that new IS programming can enhance and be enhanced by the work of the nine area studies centers.

50% Executive Director of Institute for Regional and International Studies (IRIS)

- Build coalitions of support for area studies and language education across campus, and engage in efforts that raise the national profile of area studies and language education at UW-Madison.
- Supervise IRIS assistant directors and the Director of WISLI in their efforts to support and enhance the work of the nine area studies centers and IRIS. This includes, but is not limited to budgeting & financial services, outreach assistance, student fellowship management, communications, data & records management, academic planning, human resources, and advising.
- Develop internal management, communication, and administrative systems that support IRIS staff and support the area studies centers effectively and efficiently

- Coordinate International Division HR processes (e.g. pay plan implementation) with IRIS constituent center faculty directors and staff.
- Coordinate IRIS Graduate Student Project Assistant Program for the associate directors of the area studies centers.
- Work with the Dean's Office (International Division) on IRIS budget planning, generating administrative efficiencies, developing new funding models for regional and international studies, and promoting best practices according to university policies and procedures.
- Coordinate major changes in technology, infrastructure, or IT with appropriate personnel;
- Manage offices and space for area studies centers and staff;
- Promote professional development activities for all IRIS staff;
- Contribute to and promote a positive and inclusive work climate for all IRIS staff, students, and faculty

Subfield(s): International Relations, Political Theory, Public Administration

Full/Associate/Assistant Professor of Political Science

Political Science/Public Administration

(Ref. No.: FSS/DGPA/11/2018)

The University of Macau (UM) is the flagship public university in Macao, which gives it a unique advantage in pursuing the goal of becoming a world-class university with regional characteristics. English is the working language. In recent years, UM has made significant progress and has gained increasing international recognition for its teaching, research, and community service. To better support higher education development in Macao and to meet society's ever-increasing demand for high-quality professionals, UM in 2014 relocated to the current campus which covers approximately 1.09 km². The large campus, the implementation of Asia's largest residential college system, the unique '4-in-1' education model combine to provide a multifaceted education to students to help them achieve well-rounded development. In addition to adopting a governance and management system in line with international standards and practices, UM recruits outstanding scholars worldwide to create a multilingual and multicultural learning environment for students. Recently, UM has appointed a world renowned scholar as Rector to lead the University in its next stage of development. With the new Rector's rich experience in higher education management and global vision, as well as the new developments and initiatives of the University, UM is faced with unprecedented opportunities and provides exciting new possibilities for professional development.

The Department of Government and Public Administration of the Faculty of Social Sciences invites applications for Full/Associate/Assistant Professor in the discipline of political science and public administration.

The Department of Government and Public Administration is currently comprised of 17 full-time staff members and offers programmes leading to Bachelor's, Master's and PhD degrees. Faculty members actively engage in research with particular focus on comparative politics, public administration and policy, international relations, and studies of the greater China regions. More information about the Department is available at the UM website: <http://www.um.edu.mo/fss/pa/>.

Qualifications

The area of specialization is open, but preference will be given to individuals with research and teaching expertise in international relations, international political economy and comparative politics, and for those with rich administrative experiences. Appointment may be at Full, Associate or Assistant Professor rank, depending on qualifications. Applicants must have a PhD in a relevant field and a proven record of publication in high caliber international journals and presses. Applicants should demonstrate a strong commitment to quality research and scholarship and documented excellence in teaching at both the graduate and undergraduate levels. Applicants must be able to lecture and publish research in English. Ability to speak Chinese may be considered an advantage, but is not a prerequisite for appointment.

The selected candidate is expected to assume duty in August 2019.

Position and Remuneration

Remuneration and appointment rank offered will be competitive and commensurate with the successful applicants' academic qualification, current position and professional experience. The current local maximum income tax rate is 12% but is effectively around 5% - 7% after various discretionary exemptions.

Application Procedure

Applicants should visit <https://career.admo.um.edu.mo/> for more details, and apply ONLINE. Review of applications will commence immediately and continue until the position is filled. Applicants may consider their applications not successful if they are not invited for an interview within 3 months of application.

CNA Corporation

Rank: Research Program Director

Subfield(s): International Relations, American Government and Politics, Public Policy

The Strategy, Policy and Plans division supports the Navy and Marine Corps, as well as other DOD sponsors by providing regional expertise and analyses, political-military studies, and U.S. strategy and force assessments. Our research approach anticipates a broad scope of plausible outcomes assessing today's issues, analyzing trends, and identifying "the issue after next," using the unique operational and policy expertise of its analysts.

Responsible for oversight and management of the research program, to include: production of analytic products that meet CNA quality standards; development and maintenance of relationships with program sponsor base; management and professional development of program staff; and development and sustainment of a stable funding base to support program research. This leadership role carries with it personal and corporate responsibility to build and sustain a respectful workplace.

1 Assist the Research Division Vice President in developing the division research plan, allocating personnel and resources to execute the plan, and managing the plan to meet all assigned financial and execution objectives.

2 Provide guidance and support to project directors.

3 Support corporate, division, and program (if applicable) goals for business development by developing a stable funding base to support program research and supporting the business development efforts of other research program directors across the FFRDC.

4 Develop and maintain strong, trust-based relationships with program sponsors. Demonstrate through program products and personal interactions that we are committed to their success. Maintain and cultivate these relationships over time and throughout their career. Facilitate the formation of new relationships elsewhere in the FFRDC as appropriate and relevant to the evolution of their career path and command postings.

5 Conduct analysis and research.

6 Create and foster a collaborative work environment.

7 Exercise oversight of assigned projects to ensure they meet CNA's quality standards.

8 Support division and business unit recruiting and retention efforts to develop and maintain a high-quality, diverse workforce.

9 Guide and assist assigned program staff with their professional development.

10 Provide the primary formal performance evaluation of assigned program staff.

11 Exercise oversight of work conducted by any assigned field reps.

12 Develop staffing pipelines for any assigned field billets and support the field slating process.

University of Oxford

Rank: Associate Professor in International Relations in association with Somerville College

Subfield(s): International Relations, Methodology, Other

The Department of Politics and International Relations (DPIR) at Oxford is an internationally renowned centre of excellence for teaching and research. The study of these disciplines at Oxford has a long and distinguished history and the department is one of the largest in the field in the UK.

The Department, in association with Somerville College, now seeks to appoint an inspirational teacher and accomplished research scholar to an Associate Professorship in International Relations. This post is full-time, and subject to completion of a successful review, permanent. In making this appointment, the College and the University share the goal of developing and strengthening the teaching and research capabilities of both the College and the Department of Politics and International Relations, as well as helping to maintain Oxford University's position as a world-leading centre for teaching and research in the subject.

This joint appointment will be based in the Department of Politics and International Relations and in Somerville College, both in Oxford city centre. The post will be held in conjunction with a Tutorial Fellowship at Somerville College. It is expected that the new appointee will take up this post at the beginning of the 2019/20 academic year. Applications are welcomed from outstanding candidates with research and teaching expertise in any major aspects of the academic study of International Relations, and a proven record of success in obtaining research funding. We are open with respect to theoretical and methodological approaches.

The successful candidate will be expected to engage in advanced study and research, to conduct and publish outstanding research, to give high-quality tutorials, classes, and lectures in International Relations at both undergraduate and graduate level, and to provide high-quality graduate and doctoral supervision. Candidates must have a proven record of relevant teaching experience in International Relations and a viable strategy for on-going top-quality research. A completed doctorate in International Relations and/or Political Science or an associated field with a proven ability to contribute to the Department's research environment and output will be further essential criteria for this post. The Associate Professor will be a member of both the University and the College. She or he will be part of a strong and vibrant research community and will have access to the excellent research facilities and comprehensive support (including mentoring and research support) which Oxford offers: Salary on the scale within the range £47,263 to £63,463 p.a. (plus £8,932 taxable and pensionable College housing allowance if living outside College, and other benefits). Associate professors who are awarded the title of full professor may receive from the University an additional salary payment of £2,754 per annum. The duties and skills required are described in more detail in the further particulars (vacancy reference 138074). These also contain information on additional salary benefits and the comprehensive range of non-salary benefits available to Oxford staff, and details of how to apply for this post.

If you would like to discuss this post and find out more about joining the academic community at Oxford, please contact the DPIR Personnel Office at vacancies@politics.ox.ac.uk. All enquiries will be treated in strict confidence and will not form part of the selection decision. Candidates are also welcome to contact Professor Andrew Hurrell (andrew.hurrell@politics.ox.ac.uk) for an informal discussion of this post.

The closing date for applications is 12:00 noon UK time on Thursday, 10th January 2019.

Applications are particularly welcome from women and black and minority ethnic candidates, who are underrepresented in academic posts in Oxford

Rank: Lightning Scholar

The Global Innovation Program at the University of Pennsylvania's Perry World House invites applications for its 2019-2020 Lightning Scholars Program. This program brings untenured, but tenure-track, faculty at either the assistant or associate level from around the world to Philadelphia for a semester or year of writing, fellowship, and bridging the gap between academia and the policy world.

Since launching in 2016, Perry World House has catalyzed interdisciplinary and policy-relevant research by scholars at Penn and around the globe and convened conversations in Philadelphia on the most pressing global challenges. With its post-doctoral fellowships, Distinguished Visiting Fellows, and Visiting Scholars programs, Perry World House has connected Penn's students and faculty with the world's leading academics and policy makers, infusing our research, teaching and, engagement with the ideas, wisdom and experience of those shaping world events.

This new fellowship program will allow untenured faculty members at leading research universities around the world to join Perry World House and the Penn community for a semester or full academic year in residence in Philadelphia to produce a major research project or book. While the fellowship program is for faculty working on global affairs topics, preference will be given to faculty working on subjects broadly related to our two research themes, The Future of the Global Order: Technology, Power and Governance and Global Shifts: Urbanization, Migration, and Demography. More information on our research themes can be found here: <https://global.upenn.edu/perryworldhouse/research>.

The ideal candidates for this new program will be looking for an in-residence fellowship away from their home institution that will provide the space and support to write, but also the opportunity to collaborate with an interdisciplinary and vibrant community of global affairs scholars and practitioners. Perry World House is especially interested in faculty whose work connects to important global policy conversations and who will want to engage in dialogue with some of the many policymakers from around the world who visit Perry World House. The program's compensation is significant and negotiated on a case-by-case basis. The program is intended to allow the selected Lightning Scholar faculty member to take a comfortable leave from their home institution often by supporting the difference between a one semester sabbatical provided by the home institution and a full year leave. Although final compensation will depend on the circumstances of each applicant, the program will provide at least $50,000 as well as relevant fees and health insurance, if needed. The fellowship will also include $5,000 in research support, as well as the opportunity to help shape workshops and colloquia at Perry World House.

Applications, which should be submitted via Interfolio, are welcome from scholars who have either a Ph.D. or equivalent degrees (including a J.D.), are standing faculty members at a college or university, and are on the tenure track but still untenured. Applications for the 2019-20 academic years will be reviewed on a rolling basis starting Monday, January 14, 2019. Applicants must include a cover-letter, three-page proposal, CV, and letters of support from their home department/institution. To receive full consideration, applications and letters of support should be received by that date.

University of Pennsylvania

Rank: POSTDOCTORAL FELLOWSHIP

The Center for the Study of Contemporary China (<http://cscs.sas.upenn.edu/>) at the University of Pennsylvania invites applications to fill two postdoctoral fellowship positions for the 2019-2020 academic year. Applications are welcomed from scholars who have received their Ph.D. or equivalent degrees in the last two years, or who expect to complete their degree by June 30, 2019. The term of appointment is July 1, 2019-June 30, 2020.

The CSCC postdoctoral fellowships support research on all aspects of contemporary China that fall within the broad mission of the CSCC -- to advance Penn's leadership in programs, research, and scholarship about the political, legal, economic, and social factors shaping China and its role in the world today. The Center provides an institutional home for campus-wide collaboration among departments, programs, institutes, faculty and students at Penn engaged in work pertaining to contemporary China. Activities include conferences, roundtables, and a speaker series.

Fellows at the CSCC will pursue their own research and participate in the activities of the Center. Because fellows are expected to be fully integrated with the intellectual life of the Center, they must plan to physically reside in the vicinity of the University of Pennsylvania. Each fellow receives a stipend of $50,000, a $2500 research fund, and health insurance.

The University of Pennsylvania is an EO/AA employer and we welcome applications from women and minorities. CSCC will start to accept applications on December 1, 2018 and begin reviewing applications on February 15, 2019. To receive full consideration, your application should be received by February 15, 2019. Applicants will be notified of the outcome by April 2019. To apply, please send a C.V., a research statement, a writing sample, and three letters of recommendation to cscs-contact@sas.upenn.edu.

Slippery Rock University

Rank: Assistant Professor

Slippery Rock University (SRU) of Pennsylvania's Department of Political Science invites applications for a full-time, tenure-track Assistant Professor position with dual specialization in International Relations and Comparative Politics to commence in August 2019.

The successful candidate will teach four courses/three preparations per semester, including two sections of one of our introductory courses (e.g., Introduction to International Relations, Introduction to Comparative Politics) each semester, have broad knowledge of both international relations and comparative politics, and ultimately aid in the creation of a new global politics concentration. The candidate is also expected to support the department's student-focused mission, including advising students, creating internships and other opportunities for students outside of the classroom, and advising Model UN, Model NATO, and/or Model African Union student groups. Furthermore, we seek a creative individual who demonstrates a commitment to civic engagement, service learning, and active learning pedagogies.

Minimum Qualifications: The successful candidate must hold a PhD in political science or international relations by the start date, with specific research and teaching interests in both comparative politics and international relations, as demonstrated by at least two of the following: dissertation substance, graduate course work, and/or teaching experience.

Successful performance in an on-campus interview and teaching demonstration is also required. Commitment to the education of diverse populations is also required.

Preferred Qualifications: Applicants with experience advising Model U.N., Model NATO, and/or Model African Union are preferred.

We strongly encourage applications from candidates who provide evidence of successful teaching, advising, and/or mentoring of students beyond the classroom.

Instructions to applicant: Copies of graduate and undergraduate transcripts are required for this position (unofficial copies are acceptable for the application, but official transcripts are also acceptable). Official transcripts will be required prior to appointment. Transcripts may be uploaded using the online system or submitted to the search chair at the address below.

At least 3 letters of reference are also required, in addition to the names and contact information (email and phone number) for the writers of those letters. Letters may be submitted by (1) uploading using the online system, (2) providing contact information (specifically email addresses) for references using the online system when solicited to do so as part of the application process or (3) mailing the letters to the search chair at the address below.:

Heather Rice, Search Chair

Texas A&M University

Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, International Relations, Public Policy

The Center for Grand Strategy at the Bush School of Government and Public Service, Texas A&M University, is inviting applications to its residential fellowship program for the 2019-2020 academic year. The program will support one pre-doctoral and one post-doctoral fellow. The Center for Grand Strategy is particularly interested in scholars that are engaging with the fundamental questions surrounding grand strategy: How should the national interest be defined? What are the threats to the national interest? How should the United States use its power in response? Applications are invited from scholars of political science, history, and other relevant disciplines.

Fellows will be expected to be in residence at the Bush School for the duration of their fellowships (September 2019-May 2020). They will be provided with office space and access to the resources of the Bush School and Texas A&M University.

The pre-doctoral fellow is expected to make substantial progress toward – and ideally complete – a dissertation during the fellowship. The post-doctoral fellow is expected to complete a manuscript for publication. The post-doctoral fellow is also expected to teach one course to Bush School students.

Fellows will participate in Center for Grand Strategy activities, to include seminars, workshops, and conferences. They will work with an active community of scholars in international affairs, political science, history, and other disciplines at Texas A&M University.

Eligibility:

Applicants for the pre-doctoral fellowship must be pursuing a Ph.D. in political science, history or other relevant disciplines. Applicants must pass all qualifying exams and advance to the level of candidacy prior to the start of their appointment.

Applicants for the post-doctoral fellowship must have completed their Ph.D. in political science, history, or other relevant disciplines to begin the fellowship. Recent Ph.D. recipients are especially encouraged to apply.

Award information:

The pre-doctoral fellow will receive a stipend of $38,000, as well as $5,000 in research funding. The post-doctoral fellow will receive an annual salary of $60,000 (payable monthly), as well as $10,000 in research funding. The post-doctoral fellow will also be eligible for the benefits package available to TAMU employees.

Application process:

Applicants should submit a letter of interest, curriculum vitae, short writing sample (no more than 10,000 words), and a letter of recommendation (preferably by the applicant's dissertation advisor) to jmschues@tamu.edu.

Applications will be reviewed on a rolling basis, with those arriving by January 14, 2019 receiving priority attention.

University of Pennsylvania Rank: POSTDOCTORAL FELLOWSHIP

PERRY WORLD HOUSE POSTDOCTORAL FELLOWSHIP PROGRAM ANNOUNCEMENT

The Global Innovation Program at the University of Pennsylvania’s Perry World House invites applications for its postdoctoral fellowship program during the 2019-2020 academic year. The Global Innovation Program is the research arm of Perry World House, the University of Pennsylvania’s new university-wide hub for global engagement and interdisciplinary international policy research. Perry World House connects Penn to the international policy world through research, student engagement, and public programming, bringing the university’s intellectual resources to bear on the urgent global challenges of the 21st century.

We hope to bring several postdoctoral fellows to campus for the 2019-2020 academic year. We are seeking excellent scholars who study global affairs and have interest in interdisciplinary outreach and policy relevance. We are particularly interested in applicants in the following areas:

- The Future of the Global Order: Power, Technology, and Governance
- Global Shifts: Urbanization, Migration, and Demography
- Borders & Boundaries in World Politics

The Future of the Global Order

From Russia’s invasion of Ukraine and China’s construction of artificial islands in the South China Seas to the global economic and political effects of new technologies and questions of how international institutions will handle diverse questions such as ISIS-driven mass killings, the post-Cold War global order may be at a tipping point. In addition, systemic trends such as globalization and climate change mean that the challenges of today and tomorrow will be global – and require global responses. The role of automated trading algorithms in the 2010 “Flash Crash” in the United States, combined with the specter of drone warfare around the world due and the proliferation of military robotics, highlight how the intersection of technologies such as cyber and robotics presents enormous challenges for global business and diplomatic norms. In a time of change, academic research has the potential to shed significant light on these issues, and highlight new and important approaches for the global policy community.

In this theme area, Perry World House will focus primarily, but not exclusively, on four areas: the implications of emerging technologies for global politics, shifting global power balances and how they influence both state and non-state actors, the evolution of international legal regimes, and the ability of the international community to sustain effective governing institutions in times of change.

Global Shifts

Urbanization, migration, and demographic changes are transforming the human environment, creating both new challenges and opportunities. The UN High Commission for Refugees said in 2015 that the world faces the highest level of human displacement since its founding in 1950. New and changing migration patterns, whether driven by civil wars, instability due to environmental change, economic hardships, or potential opportunities elsewhere, have depth and nuance that have proven hard to predict – or track. At the same time, over 66% of the world’s population will live in urban spaces by 2050, raising critical questions about urban vitality and sustainability.

Yet, the diverse causes and consequences of urbanization, migration, and demographic change have not been fully understood, and are too often examined in isolation. The University of Pennsylvania is poised to contribute to pressing policy debates and to help develop new approaches to these global shifts given the University’s numerous strengths in urban studies, sociology, demography, law, and politics. The Global Innovation Program at Perry World House will bring together Penn’s strengths in these areas through an interconnected examination of urbanization, migration, and demography.

Borders & Boundaries in World Politics

The Project on Borders and Boundaries in World Politics has two openings for post-doctoral research fellows for one year, renewable, full-time appointments. Fellows will split their time between their own research and work with a team led by Professor Beth Simmons, Andrea Mitchell University Professor in Law, Political Science, and Business Ethics. The Project is concerned with boundaries between organized human communities, broadly understood. International borders, border regions and border crossings have multiple significance as designations of state authority, security buffers, expressions of social meaning and opportunities for economic integration. Border regions and activities speak to national and local encounters with neighbors and the rest of the world. This project is concerned with how humans demarcate the space between “us” and “them.” It contextualizes border architecture, infrastructure and institutions as expressions of various social, political and economic anxieties associated with globalization. This research team will concern itself with a broad range of questions relating to “bordering” in world politics. Applicants with an interest in territorial politics; migration and movement across borders; development in and across border regions; border crossing regimes, architectures and institutions; transnational migration; transnational crime, human trafficking and law enforcement across borders; and related issues are welcome to apply. Skills in empirical spatial analysis, GIS technologies, mapping technologies, experimental analyses, computerized textual and imaging analyses, and similar technologies are highly desirable, as are computer programming skills and experience using large computer databases and statistical software.

Requirements and Application Information

Postdoctoral fellows in Global Order and Global Shifts research areas will pursue their own research as well as participate in the intellectual life of the Global Innovation Program and Perry World House. Postdoctoral fellows will be expected to give a presentation during the academic year in the Perry World House Seminar Series, publish policy relevant scholarship related to Perry World House themes, and attend regularly scheduled seminars. They will also be expected to spend up to 10% of their time contributing to the intellectual environment at Perry World House, including working with Perry World House's Undergraduate Student Fellows, as well as designing and planning engagement in relevant theme areas. Perry World House will also introduce each postdoctoral fellow to related faculty and leaders of centers and institutes at the University of Pennsylvania. Applications are welcome from scholars who have received their Ph.D. or equivalent degrees (including a J.D. in the case of applicants focused on international legal regimes) in the last two years (not earlier than 2017), or who expect to complete their degree by June 2019. Applications will be reviewed starting Tuesday, January 8, 2019. To receive full consideration, applications and letters of recommendation should be received by that date.

Upon provision of and contingent upon proof of conferral of the PhD degree, all postdoctoral fellow positions pay a stipend of $53,000 plus relevant fees and health insurance. The position also provides $2,000 in research support.

To apply, please go to:

- Global Order or Global Shifts: <http://apply.interfolio.com/56423>
- Borders & Boundaries: <http://apply.interfolio.com/56422>

Applicants will be asked to complete a short form as well as upload a cover letter, CV/resume, one page research statement, writing sample, and unofficial PhD transcript (only required for current graduate students). We will also ask for the name and email address of two letter writers who can submit a letter of recommendation.

General Information

The University of Pennsylvania is strongly committed to Penn's Action Plan for Faculty Diversity and Excellence and to establishing a more diverse community at Penn (for more information see: <http://www.upenn.edu/almanac/volumes/v58/n02/diversityplan.html>).

The University of Pennsylvania values diversity and seeks talented students, faculty and staff from diverse backgrounds. The University of Pennsylvania does not discriminate on the basis of race, color, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, religion, creed, national or ethnic origin, citizenship status, age, disability, veteran status or any other legally protected class status in the administration of its admissions, financial aid, educational or athletic programs, or other University-administered programs or in its employment practices. Questions or complaints regarding this policy should be directed to the Executive Director of the Office of Affirmative Action and Equal Opportunity Programs, Sansom Place East, 3600 Chestnut Street, Suite 228, Philadelphia, PA 19104-6106; or (215) 898-6993 (Voice) or (215) 898-7803 (TDD).

Princeton University

Rank: Post-Doctoral Fellowship

Subfield(s): International Relations, American Government and Politics, Comparative Politics

Specializations: Foreign Policy, China, International Security

Columbia University & Harvard University
China and the World Program (C&WP)

Weatherhead East Asian Institute (WEAI)
Fairbank Center for Chinese Studies (FCCS)

Professors Thomas J. Christensen of Columbia University's School of International and Public Affairs and Alastair Iain Johnston of Harvard University's Government Department jointly founded the China and the World fellowship program for the advanced study of China's international relations in 2005. As part of Professor Christensen's recent move to Columbia University, the Program was renamed the Columbia-Harvard China and the World Program (C&WP) in 2018. The China and the World Program supports research that integrates theoretical innovations in the field of international relations with the rigorous study of China's interactions with countries, regions, institutions, and non-state actors.

For academic year 2019-2020, C&WP is collaborating with the Weatherhead East Asian Institute at Columbia University (WEAI) and the Fairbank Center for Chinese Studies at Harvard University (FCCS) to award four one-year postdoctoral research fellowships. Two fellows will be expected to be in residence at Columbia University (one funded by WEAI and one funded by CWP) and two will be expected to be in residence at Harvard University (both funded by the An Wang Program). Fellows at Columbia will each teach one course in the spring semester; fellows at Harvard will be members of the An Wang Postdoctoral Fellows Program at FCCS. When not attending to program-related duties, fellows' time should be devoted to their own research, and to participating actively in the life of C&WP and WEAI or FCCS. Fellows also will be expected to make at least one public presentation during their appointment and participate in the annual C&WP workshop where an entire day is devoted entirely to the examination of the Fellows' research by former fellows of the program. Fellows should have defended their dissertations in the past three years. Preference will be given to applicants who are currently working on revising their Ph.D. thesis for publication as a book, or who are just beginning a second major research project.

Qualifications:

Applicants must have completed all Ph.D. requirements (dissertation completed and filed) between May 2016 and July 2019. Applications from individuals who hold or have held fulltime teaching appointments will not be considered. Only applicants working on some aspect of China's relations with the outside world that supports CWP's, WEAI's, and FCCS's missions need apply.

Application Process:

To apply, you will be required to submit an online application using the email weai@columbia.edu. Please note that applicants are required to send all files in one email or to upload them to a cloud based application and send the URL via email for full consideration.

You are required to submit:

- 1-2 page cover letter that briefly states your interest in the program, your background, and a summary of your research project
- CV
- Project description
- 2 scholarly writing samples
- Course proposal with syllabus for a seminar directed at M.A. students and advanced undergraduates
- Course evaluations for classes taught (if any)
- Unofficial transcripts from all graduate-level degrees

- Two letters of reference. Include contact information for the references and have them submit letters directly to the email below.

The deadline for submission is January 4, 2019, 11:59 p.m. EST.

Please note that you will only submit contact information and the email of your referees. Your referee will then receive an email with instructions on how to submit a confidential recommendation on your behalf. All references must be received by the deadline. Complete your application well before the deadline so that references can be submitted in a timely manner.

Successful applicants will be notified of the outcome of their applications in February 2019 and a public announcement will be made by March/April 2019.

For more information about the Columbia-Harvard China and the World Program, the Weatherhead East Asian Institute, or the Fairbank Center for Chinese Studies, please visit www.CWP.SIPA.Columbia.edu, www.weai.columbia.edu, and <https://fairbank.fas.harvard.edu/> respectively.

The fellowships will be subject to all rules and regulations of Columbia University and Harvard University. All qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to age, race, color, religion, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity or expression, national origin, disability status, protected veteran status, pregnancy and pregnancy-related conditions, or any other characteristic protected by law.

Dartmouth College

Rank: Post-doctoral Fellows Program in U.S. Foreign Policy and International Security

The Dickey Center for International Understanding at Dartmouth College invites applications for the 2019-20 (September - June) Dartmouth Fellows Program in U.S. Foreign Policy and International Security. Applicants from all disciplines working on research that bears directly on U.S. foreign policy and international security are welcome to apply. While scholars at all stages of their careers will be considered, applications from recent recipients of the Ph.D or equivalent degree are especially welcomed. Fellows must be in residence during their Fellowship and are asked to participate in Dickey Center seminars and events, participate in teaching an undergraduate course (with the other fellows and a faculty member), and are invited to take advantage of other Dartmouth activities.

The Dickey Center for International Understanding encompasses War and Peace Studies, the Global Health Initiative, the Institute for Arctic Studies (an interdisciplinary center for the study of the environment, climate change and policy implications), and new research foci in human development and gender. Researchers with projects that intersect any of these areas are particularly encouraged to apply.

Fellows receive competitive stipends, research support and benefits, comparable to those offered by other fellowship programs. Faculty on leave from their home institutions will receive half of their annual salary, up to $50,000. Dartmouth is an EE/AO employer.

Applications will be evaluated on the basis of the quality and significance of the proposed research and its relevance to U.S. foreign policy and international security, and the ability of the applicant to benefit from interaction with and mentoring from Dartmouth faculty.

How to Apply:

Applicants must submit all of the following by Wednesday, January 2, 2019 to:

<http://apply.interfolio.com/57526>

- A curriculum vitae
- Research abstract (200 words max.)
- A statement of up to 1,500 words describing the proposed research project
- A writing sample (50 pp. max)
- Two confidential letters of reference
- Graduate school transcript (Unofficial transcripts are acceptable. Junior faculty and professionals may include a transcript, but are not required to do so.)
- A confidential financial statement on a separate page indicating the applicant's other sources of support available during fellowship period and —for current faculty only—current salary.

IE University

Rank: Assistant Professor of International Political Economy

Specializations: International Political Economy, Political Economy, Quantitative Methods

IE University's School of Global and Public Affairs (IEGPA) seeks applicants for a position at the rank of Assistant Professor (tenure-track) in International Political Economy. The successful candidate should have a strong publication record in top peer-reviewed outlets, or the proven potential of producing them in the coming two years. We are especially interested in scholars whose research interests deal with technological change and innovation.

The ideal candidate would have solid teaching experience, and should be acquainted with teaching methods focused on critical thinking, problem solving, and the latest pedagogical approaches such as flipped classroom and blended education. He/She is expected to teach courses in International Political Economy, International Trade, and the International Monetary System at both the undergraduate and Master level.

Beyond these traditional academic criteria, we seek academics with the capacity to engage in policy relevant work, and with a commitment to institution-building: applying for research grants, participating in affiliated research centers and academic programs, and expanding the IEGPA's current network and partnerships.

Applications should include a cover letter and vita, a job market paper, three academic references, and evidence of teaching excellence (e.g. teaching evaluations). Candidates must have a PhD from a recognized Department of Political Science or International Relations, or demonstrate clear evidence that the PhD will be complete by July, 2019. Please send all application materials to IESGPA1@ie.edu

The IEGPA is part of IE University, located in Madrid and Segovia, Spain; and is a full-member of the Association of Professional Schools in International Affairs (APSIA). We are committed to world-class professional education and academic research in the social sciences, public policy, and international affairs.

We offer a competitive remuneration package, attractive teaching commitments and an enriching and cosmopolitan work environment in the heart of Madrid. Our working language is English, and both our faculty and student body are highly diverse and international.

Naval Postgraduate School

Rank: Security Studies

Security Studies

Tenure-Track Assistant/Associate/Full Professor

Defense Analysis Department

Naval Postgraduate School, Monterey, CA

The Defense Analysis Department at the Naval Postgraduate School, Monterey, California, is seeking to fill a tenure-track position, open as to rank, in Security Studies. The candidate should be credentialed in a relevant academic discipline in the social sciences or humanities. The candidate will: teach mid-career military officers from special operations and information operations units across all branches and services of the U.S. Armed Forces and allied countries; advise theses; and conduct research. The candidate must have an interest in interdisciplinary research and willingness to work with a cross-disciplinary faculty in the areas of national and international security, conflict studies, terrorism, insurgency, political violence and strategic decision-making. Evidence of the ability to pursue a program of innovative research and a strong commitment to graduate education is required. NPS follows a quarter system, and the normal teaching workload for those in lectureship positions is four courses per year.

The Department of Defense Analysis offers an M.S. in Defense Analysis and an M.S. in Information Strategy and Political Warfare. Home to an average of 150 in-residence graduate students, forty members of a cross-disciplinary teaching and research faculty, and three research centers, the Defense Analysis Department provides the critical thinking skills necessary for future national security leaders to deal with the complex operating environments of the 21st century. Additional information about our programs and faculty can be found at <https://my.nps.edu/web/da>.

The Naval Postgraduate School is located on the central coast of California in Monterey, 115 miles south of the heart of San Francisco. NPS provides graduate education to an average at any given time of 1,500 resident military officers of the uniformed services, Department of Defense civilians, and members of the international defense community, as well as other select professionals employed by the federal government.

Minimum qualifications:

- A Ph.D. or J.D. degree in a relevant Social Science or Humanities discipline (e.g., International Relations, History, Law, Political Science, Communications, Journalism, Psychology, Sociology, Anthropology, and similar fields).

- U.S. citizenship is required. Must be eligible for a security clearance.
- Publication record commensurate with academic experience.

Additional preferred qualifications (Document any relevant experience in these areas as well as your success in the classroom):

- Experience teaching graduate students or upper-level undergraduate electives.
- Experience and/or familiarity with the special operations community.

- A successful candidate will demonstrate excellent judgment, effective leadership, strong team-building skills, and pedagogical expertise.

The position is now open. Candidates should submit the following materials to Dr. Sean Everton at sfeverto@nps.edu, email subject heading: "Strategic Studies." Applications will be accepted through January 15, 2019 or until the position is filled, and should include:

1. Cover letter
2. Curriculum vitae
3. Three letters of recommendation (that specifically address teaching)
4. Research statement
5. Sample of a published article
6. Teaching statement
7. Teaching portfolio (should include a sample lesson, assignments, or handouts and highly recommended to include a link to a videoed teaching sample)

Address electronic cover letter to:

Dr. Sean Everton, Chair, Security Studies Search Committee, Department of Defense Analysis, 589 Dyer Road, Room 203, Naval Postgraduate School, Monterey, CA, 93943.

Do not send paper applications. Salary is highly competitive and commensurate with qualifications and experience. Relocation expenses, including recruitment/relocation incentive, may be authorized in accordance with applicable regulations.

NOTE: IF YOU ARE A VETERAN, you are strongly encouraged to: Identify your Veterans' Preference on your resume or elsewhere in your application package (type of preference, dates of service, date of VA letter, character of service, etc.).

Additional Veterans' information: If you are not sure of your preference eligibility, visit the Department of Labor's website: <http://www.dol.gov/elaws/vets/vetpref/mservice.htm>. For more veterans' preference information, visit: <http://www.fedshirevets.gov/job/vetpref/i>

Arcadia University

Rank: Assistant Professor

Specializations: International Political Economy, Conflict Processes, East Asia

Arcadia University invites applications to fill a tenure-track position as an Assistant Professor in the Department of Historical & Political Studies (HAPS), to begin in fall 2019. HAPS is an inter-disciplinary department with three undergraduate majors (History, International Studies, and Politics, Government, & Law) and one Master's program (International Peace and Conflict Resolution). Most HAPS faculty members teach in multiple areas of the department as per their areas of expertise.

The ideal candidate will have expertise in East or Southeast Asia or the Middle East. Thematic specialization in one or more of the following areas is also desired: international political economy, global governance, conflict management, or environmental politics and sustainable development. We welcome candidates with training in Political Science, History, Anthropology, and other related disciplinary and interdisciplinary fields.

Ph.D. strongly preferred by September 2019, as are demonstrated excellence in and commitment to teaching, and a strong research and publishing record commensurate with the candidate's experience.

Arcadia's College of Arts and Sciences offers programs in science, technology, and math; humanities; visual and performing arts; communications; and historical and political studies. These programs prepare students for careers that contribute to a global society and allow students to exhibit, perform, and publish on campus through a variety of campus media outlets, including an art gallery, a literary magazine, and an online journal.

Arcadia University is a top-ranked private university in Greater Philadelphia and promises a distinctly global, integrative, and personal learning experience that prepares students to contribute and lead in a diverse and dynamic world. A national leader in study abroad and international education, Arcadia has been named #1 in undergraduate study abroad participation by the Institute of International Education's Open Doors Report for the past seven years. Approximately 3,900 students attend Arcadia, and the University's 2,500 undergraduate students choose from more than 65 fields of study.

Applications must be submitted online through Arcadia's Human Resources portal to receive full consideration. Please do not email application materials to hiring manager.

For additional information and to apply, please visit: <https://faculty-arcadia.icims.com/jobs/> and submit a cover letter, curriculum vitae and names and phone numbers of three academic references.

Application review will begin immediately. Posting will be removed from the website once we've established a sufficient talent pool for consideration.

Questions can be submitted to Department Chair Amy Widstrom (widstroma@arcadia.edu).

Consideration of applications will begin December 14, 2018, and will continue until the position is filled.

Arcadia University seeks candidates of diverse cultural backgrounds and abilities. Arcadia University encourages members of underrepresented groups to apply. All offers of employment are conditional based on successful completion of a background check.

University of Texas at Dallas
Rank: Assistant Professor

The School of Economic, Political, and Policy Sciences at The University of Texas at Dallas (UTD) invites applications for a tenure-track assistant professor position beginning in August of 2019 in the Political Science Program. The scholarly topic of interest is civil conflict. The successful candidate will be expected to teach both undergraduate and graduate courses. Possible specializations might include: nationalism, political violence, ethnic conflict, state violence, terrorism, civil war, and related phenomena. PhD by the time of employment is expected.

UTD is a fast-growing, suburban research university with undergraduate, Master's and PhD programs in Political Science. We have approximately 60 graduate students and 250 undergraduate majors. The University of Texas at Dallas has the highest freshman SAT scores of any public University in Texas and was recently ranked 1st among the 100 best universities in the world under 50 years old by Times Higher Education magazine. Further, UT Dallas is now considered an R1 university by the Carnegie Commission on Higher Education.

Faculty typically teach two courses per semester, and opportunities for leave become available after a successful third-year review.

Ideal candidates will demonstrate their ability to contribute to existing program strengths in quantitative methods and teaching excellence. Review of applications will begin November 1st and continue until the position is filled. Applicants should upload a cover letter, curriculum vitae, evidence of teaching effectiveness, and the full contact information for at least three professional references.

Georgia State University
Rank: Assistant/Associate Professor

Georgia State University anticipates hiring a tenure-track hire at the assistant/associate rank in cyber security to begin Fall 2019, pending budgetary approval. Ph.D. required. Recognizing that non-state and state sponsored actors now seek to destroy, incapacitate, or exploit infrastructures to threaten national security, we are seeking a faculty member with an active research program in the means and methodologies of how such groups expand their power and influence through attacks in and through the online environment. The targeted hire should bring expertise in discerning patterns in malevolent hacker behavior, identifying sources of online propaganda, and/or detecting and developing profiles for insider threat. Competitive candidates should ideally be able to demonstrate evidence of effort in attracting grant, contract or other extramural funding.

The hire will join an interdisciplinary team of Georgia State scholars working on Transcultural Conflict and Violent Extremism (TCVE), with their home department negotiable. TCVE brings together scholars from Anthropology, Communication Studies, Computer Science, Global Studies, Political Science, Psychology, and Religious Studies, and a dozen, competitively selected, Presidential Ph.D. Fellows to better understand the causes and solutions regarding conflict and violent extremism happening around the globe. Our team has received support for its research program from DOJ, DHS, the British Foreign Council, NSF, NIJ, and the Department of Defense, among others.

To apply, candidates should send a letter of interest, curriculum vita, and three letters of reference to Carol Winkler, Chair of the Cyber Security Search Committee, Department of Communication, P.O. Box 5060, Georgia State University, Atlanta, GA 30302-5060. Materials sent to cwinkler@gsu.edu will also be accepted. Candidate review will begin November 15, 2018 and remain open until position is filled. Georgia State University, a Title III and Title V institution located in downtown Atlanta, GA, is an Equal Opportunity Employer and does not discriminate against applicants due to race, ethnicity, gender, veteran status, or on the basis of disability or any other federal, state or local protected class.

University of Texas, Rio Grande Valley

Rank: Latin American Politics/Political Economy (Open Rank)

Specializations: Latin American, Mexico, Political Economy

The Department of Political Science at the University of Texas Rio Grande Valley invites applications for a full-time tenured or tenure-track faculty member in Latin American politics and/or Latin American political economy to begin September 1, 2019. The department is particularly interested in applicants with teaching interests and a research agenda in any of the following areas: Government & Politics of Mexico, US-Mexico border relations, and the politics or political economy of various Latin American nations/regions. The department is open to a wide variety of approaches, including qualitative, quantitative, comparative, institutional, and historical methods. The position continues the department's effort to build an undergraduate and graduate program that develops interdisciplinary strength anchored in the concepts and methods of political science, while simultaneously crossing disciplinary boundaries to incorporate topics, concepts, and methods utilized outside of political science. The successful candidate will teach upper-division and graduate level courses in their areas of substantive specialization and required lower-division courses in U.S. Federal Government & Politics and/or Texas Government and Politics. The successful candidate will contribute to the vision of creating a bilingual, bicultural institution on the Texas-Mexico border that serves as a gateway to the Americas.

International Crisis Group / Princeton University

Rank: Postdoctoral Fellowship on the Economics of Conflict

The International Crisis Group (Crisis Group) and the Empirical Studies of Conflict Project (ESOC) seek applicants for a Postdoctoral Fellowship position. This position provides the opportunity to work closely with Crisis Group experts and ESOC academic researchers. The fellowship will entail policy research and analysis, and engagement with policymakers and other conflict actors to prevent, resolve or better manage deadly conflict; it also will involve long-term empirical research on the economic and political drivers of conflict. The fellow will contribute directly to Crisis Group reports. We are particularly interested in how conflict relates to natural resource extraction, though we will consider a focus on other thematic issues as well. We are open to geographic focuses on the countries/regions Crisis Group covers across Africa, Asia, Europe, Latin America and the Middle East (see www.crisisgroup.org).

The fellow will be primarily based in one of Crisis Group's offices in New York, DC or London - with travel as needed for the field research -- or in a Crisis Group regional office as appropriate based on geographic focus area. In addition, the fellow will regularly visit ESOC members relevant to their research and actively collaborate with a multi-university team of scholars who are conducting cutting edge research on the causes and consequences of politically motivated conflict through the production, aggregation, and dissemination of high-resolution data on historical and current conflicts.

Requirements

We seek candidates with exceptional potential to thrive in a demanding policy role while advancing their own cutting edge research. Candidates should be on track to complete a PhD in economics, political science, public policy or a related discipline by June 2019, or have recently completed their PhD. Preference will be given to scholars with a successful track record of international field research and econometric analysis in the areas of political violence, governance, or development, and demonstrated experience and interest in policy analysis. Relevant language skills and regional experience will be taken into account. Past fellowship recipients include Mica Sviatschi (Assistant Professor, Princeton Economics), Renard Sexton (Assistant Professor, Emory Political Science - 2019) and Ceren Baysan (Assistant Professor, Essex Economics - 2019).

Applications should include a letter of introduction of no more than 3 pages, a CV, and contact information for three references. The cover letter should address both regional and thematic interests.

A competitive salary, commensurate with experience, and excellent benefits will be offered. The start date is negotiable but no sooner than 1 April 2019.

Applicants can apply online at <http://jobs.crisisgroup.org/international-crisis-group-and-empirical-studies-of-conflict-project-postdoctoral-fellowship-on-the-economics-of-conflict>.

Screening of applications will begin on November 1 and continue on a rolling basis until the position is filled. All applications must be received by 1 February 2019.

Potential applicants unfamiliar with ESOC's research program are welcome to contact Assistant Professor Tarek Ghani (tghani@wustl.edu) or Professor Jacob N. Shapiro (jns@princeton.edu) with questions and to visit <http://esoc.princeton.edu/> to learn more.

The University of Texas at Austin

Rank: Postdoctoral Fellowship

The Clements Center for National Security at the University of Texas at Austin seeks applications from recent PhD recipients for its Postdoctoral Fellowship Program.

Consistent with the Clements Center's mission areas of history, strategy, and statecraft, applicants from all disciplines whose research bears directly on foreign and defense policy, intelligence, or international security are welcome to apply. However, strong preference will be given to applicants with a doctorate in history or whose research has a strong historical component (ancient or modern). Successful applicants will be able to spend the substantial portion of their time working on their own research and writing projects, while taking advantage of the many academic resources available at the University of Texas-Austin. Additionally, Fellows will be required to play an active role in the Clements Center's programs and activities; any specific responsibilities will be by mutual agreement between the Fellow and the Clements Center leadership. Fellows accepted to the program will be offered a competitive stipend, full use of UT facilities, and office space at the Clements Center. In some cases Fellows will be welcome to teach a course at the University of Texas. Each appointment is for one year, and in exceptional cases may be considered for renewal for a second year.

Applicants should submit a current c.v., a letter of application, graduate school transcripts, a brief (no more than two-page, single-spaced) statement of proposed research, and three letters of recommendation. Applications are due no later than February 4, 2019. Note that applicants are required to have received their doctorate by August 2019, the date the Postdoctoral Fellowship will commence. Please direct any questions to Alex Foggett, the Clements Center's Programs Manager, at alex.foggett@austin.utexas.edu.

Wake Forest University

Rank: Worrell Chair in Anglo-American Studies

WORRELL CHAIR IN ANGLO-AMERICAN STUDIES

The Department of Politics and International Affairs at Wake Forest University is seeking an outstanding scholar and teacher to fill a named chair in the area of Anglo-American studies as it relates to politics, ideally at the Full or Associate Professor level.

The Department understands Anglo-America broadly to include Britain as well as regions of the Americas in which English is spoken widely and where the British colonial legacy is reflected in present-day culture and politics. This includes the United States, Canada and the Anglophone Caribbean. Similarly, scholars of Anglo-American studies with research interests that add unique contributions to those of current Wake Forest Politics and International Affairs faculty are encouraged to apply. These might include but are not limited to the examination of shared issues including immigration, environmental, and social welfare policies; party and electoral systems; labor politics and political economy; postcolonial and critical legal studies; and the social and political inequalities associated with race, class, and gender. The Department of Politics and International Affairs includes faculty who are both dedicated teachers and active researchers. Candidates should have a strong commitment to excellence in undergraduate teaching and an outstanding record of research. Salary will be commensurate with the rank and stature of the selected applicant.

Founded in 1834, Wake Forest University is presently ranked among the top 30 national universities in the United States. The university is located in Winston-Salem, North Carolina, a vibrant, small city with a thriving arts community. At Wake Forest and in Winston-Salem there are many opportunities for multi-disciplinary collaboration and community-engaged research, supported by the Pro Humanitate Institute, the Anna Julia Cooper Center, and other affiliated centers. Wake Forest University and Winston-Salem also houses one of the fastest growing urban technology innovation districts in the United States, Wake Forest Innovation Quarter.

Wake Forest University and the Department of Politics and International Affairs welcome diversity and encourage inclusivity. We therefore seek applicants with demonstrated success in engaging diverse populations. Wake Forest University is an AA/EO employer and values an inclusive and diverse learning community and campus climate.

Applications will be reviewed as they are received and accepted until the Professorship is filled. Inquiries and questions about the position should be directed to the Chair of the Search Committee: Katy

Harriger at harriger@wfu.edu subject line: "Worrell Chair." Applications accepted on line www.wfu.careers. A complete application includes a letter of interest and a C.V. University of Wisconsin, Madison

Rank: ASSISTANT PROFESSOR, POLITICS AND POLICY OF CHINA - CLUSTER HIRE

The University of Wisconsin-Madison seeks to hire a faculty member with research and teaching interests in comparative politics or international relations, with a primary focus on China and a secondary focus on East Asia and the Pacific Rim. Potential areas of substantive expertise in the politics and policy of China include: political and economic development, human rights, environmental politics and policy, international political economy, international security, or international organizations/governance.

The successful candidate will have a primary appointment in either the Department of Political Science or the La Follette School of Public Affairs, with preference given to candidates interested in both political science and public affairs/public policy. Expectations include a commitment to the important functions of research, instruction, and outreach, as well as professional and university service as appropriate to faculty rank. Teaching will include courses to undergraduates as well as graduates. Teaching and research will primarily focus on the successful candidate's area of expertise. This position is part of a research cluster proposed by the Title VI-funded National Resource Center, the Center for East Asian Studies, for the University's Cluster Hiring Initiative (<https://facstaff.provost.wisc.edu/cluster-hiring-initiative/>) to enhance cross-disciplinary expertise on contemporary East Asia. Candidates should have an interest in collaborating with the Cluster and with colleagues affiliated with the Center for East Asian Studies. Three candidates will be recruited in this Cluster: 1) Assistant Professor, Sociology of Contemporary Korea [PVL# 95849]; 2) Assistant Professor, Chinese Politics and Policy [PVL# 95952]; and 3) Assistant Professor, Educational Policy Studies in East Asia [PVL # TBD].

Responsibilities include conducting research and teaching at all levels required with service at the professional and university level.

ADDITIONAL INFORMATION:

UW-Madison is seeking a diverse set of faculty candidates who will deepen our university's interdisciplinary research strength in key areas of current and future research promise, as well as faculty candidates who will approach their work in a manner that advances our commitment to research excellence.

A criminal background check will be conducted prior to hiring.

TO APPLY:

To apply, go to <http://jobs.wisc.edu> and search for PVL 95952. To begin the application process please click on the 'Apply Now' button. You will be asked to create a profile and upload a C.V., cover letter, a research statement, a teaching statement, and 2 samples of written work (please upload these 2 samples together). University of Notre Dame

Rank: Faculty Position in Global Education

Subfield(s): Comparative Politics, International Relations, Other

The University of Notre Dame's Keough School of Global Affairs invites applications for a faculty position in global education, with a preference for scholars whose work and interests include a focus on the intersection of education and development or international and comparative education policy. Scholars engaged in rigorous social science research from a variety of disciplines – economics, political science, sociology, education, and others – will be considered. Applicants should have an interest in interdisciplinary cooperation. Applicants attracted to a university with a Catholic identity are especially encouraged to apply. While priority will be given to consideration of junior candidates (ABD, postdoc, assistant professors or non-tenured associate professors), senior applicants may also be considered. Ph.D. or equivalent terminal degree required at the time of hire.

Qualifications

The successful hire will be based in the Keough School of Global Affairs, with affiliations in the Kellogg Institute for International Studies and in Notre Dame's Institute for Educational Initiatives. Oriented toward research, teaching, and service dedicated to the advancement of integral human development, the Keough School (<http://keough.nd.edu/>) promotes interdisciplinary research on critical issues in global affairs, offers a master's degree, and supports undergraduate and doctoral programs. The Kellogg Institute for International Studies (<http://kellogg.nd.edu/>) has for over 35 years been a leading center for interdisciplinary research and programming on issues of democracy and human development. The Institute for Educational Initiatives (<http://iei.nd.edu/>) provides a home for nearly one hundred faculty fellows from across the University whose research and teaching interests focus on K-12 education, with a particular interest in Catholic education. Joint or concurrent appointments in the appropriate departments are also possible. Applicants should have an affirmative interest in contributing to the joint Kellogg Institute/Institute for Educational Initiative Research Cluster in International Education (<https://kellogg.nd.edu/research-cluster-international-education>).

Application Instructions

All applicants are required to submit a letter of interest and a C.V. Junior candidates (ABD, postdoc, assistant or non-tenured associate professors) should also arrange for the submission of three confidential letters of reference. Apply here: <https://apply.interfolio.com/54487>

Nominations and inquiries may be sent via email to:

Johns Hopkins University

Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Comparative Politics, International Relations

The Department of Political Science and the Stavros Niarchos Foundation Agora Institute at Johns Hopkins University seek nominations and applications of interest to appoint three or more distinguished scholars to establish a cluster of excellence in research and teaching on the challenges of contemporary democracy. We are especially interested in colleagues with an established record of scholarship examining the root causes and consequences of polarization, including its global and transnational dynamics. Successful candidates will join the Agora Institute's core faculty and will serve as full members of the Department of Political Science. We invite qualified candidates from all subfields of the discipline whose work connects with the core mission of the Institute. By conducting a broad and inclusive search, we are committed to identifying candidates who, through their research, teaching, and service, will contribute to the diversity and excellence of our academic community.

Political Science at Johns Hopkins is a methodologically diverse and pluralistic department open to a variety of research methods and intellectual approaches. We also will consider applications for potential cross-disciplinary appointments from scholars in fields such as History, Sociology, Psychology, and Philosophy as well as cross-divisional appointments.

Jointly conceived by the University and the Stavros Niarchos Foundation (SNF), the $150M SNF Agora Institute was founded to address the deterioration of civic engagement in democracies worldwide and facilitate the restoration of open and inclusive discourse that is the cornerstone of healthy democracies. Housed in the University's Krieger School of Arts and Sciences, the SNF Agora Institute at JHU will serve as a leading academic and public forum bringing together experts from a range of fields—including but not limited to political science, sociology, history, neuroscience, psychology, philosophy, and ethics—to examine the dynamics of civic strife and design and test mechanisms for improving dialogue, social engagement, and democratic governance (<http://agora.jhu.edu/>).

Applicants for Tenured Associate or Full Professor should submit a cover letter, research statement, and curriculum vitae using Interfolio <http://apply.interfolio.com/54486>. Candidates applying at the level of advanced assistant professor should include the above as well as a writing sample and three letters of recommendation. Nominations of potential candidates should be sent directly to Professor Adam Sheingate (adam.sheingate@jhu.edu). Review of applications will begin on October 15, 2018 and continue until the positions are filled. Appointments will commence on July 1, 2019.

The Department of Political Science has a strong record of hiring diverse faculty whose courses expose students to a variety of racial, ethnic, and cultural perspectives, and we are especially interested in candidates whose teaching and research will contribute to the department's commitment to both diversity and academic excellence. Evidence of teaching experience and excellence, as well as the promise of being a productive scholar, are critically important. The teaching load is five courses over two semesters. By the start date of the position, candidates are expected to have a Ph.D. in Political Science with a sub-field specialization in international relations, but ABD candidates will also be considered with the understanding that the Ph.D. must be completed before the beginning of the second year.

For additional information and to apply, please go to careers.bucknell.edu. The application should include a cover letter, C.V., statement of teaching philosophy, statement of commitment to diversity, three letters of recommendation, graduate transcripts, sample publications or papers, syllabi, and teaching evaluations (if available). Questions about the position should be addressed by email to Professor Scott Meinke at smeinke@bucknell.edu. The review of applications will begin on September 24, 2018.

About Bucknell University

Bucknell University is a highly selective, predominately undergraduate, private university with approximately 3600 students. Along with its excellent academic departments and programs, it boasts the Center for the Study of Race, Ethnicity, and Gender, which supports faculty teaching and scholarship in these areas, and the Griot Institute for Africana Studies, which provides faculty and student intellectual and creative engagement with the interdisciplinary investigation of the cultures, histories, narratives, peoples, geographies and arts of Africa and the African diaspora; and the Bucknell Institute for Public Policy, which supports faculty research and teaching on issues of domestic, international, and comparative public policy. In 2014, Bucknell introduced a 5-Year Diversity Plan aimed at enhancing the diversity of the faculty, staff, student body, and curriculum of the university.

Located in Central Pennsylvania along the Susquehanna River, Bucknell is nestled in the Borough of Lewisburg, an architectural gem that has been ranked as one of America's best small towns. The Lewisburg area offers a unique combination of outdoor recreation opportunities, and appealing amenities such as art galleries, an art deco theater, historic museums, and charming independent boutiques and restaurants. In addition, the surrounding region offers outstanding schools, medical facilities, and an affordable cost of living. Bucknell is within an easy three-hour drive to Philadelphia, New York, Baltimore, and Washington, D.C.

Dickinson College

Rank: Assistant Professor of Political Science and International Studies

The departments of International Studies and Political Science at Dickinson College are seeking qualified applicants for a full-time, tenure-track assistant professor position beginning in academic year 2019-20. A completed or nearly-completed Ph.D. in Political Science, International Relations, or related discipline is required.

Applicants should have a research and teaching focus on Africa, South Asia, or Southeast Asia. The specific sub-field of research can be comparative politics, international relations, security studies (including human security), or other related fields. In addition to teaching upper-level courses in that research area, the successful candidate must demonstrate ability and interest in teaching introductory International Relations and upper-level American Foreign Policy on a regular basis. Candidates should identify in their application letter courses they are prepared to teach and should have a strong commitment to teaching undergraduate students in an interdisciplinary liberal arts environment. The yearly teaching load is five courses. The successful candidate is expected to participate fully in the intellectual life of the departments, including serving as one of the oral examiners for the International Studies exams at the end of the academic year. The ability to create inclusive learning environments for an increasingly diverse student body will be an important characteristic of the successful candidate.

Dickinson College is a private, four-year liberal arts college with 2,400 students. It is located 20 minutes west of Harrisburg and is a two-hour drive from Baltimore, Washington DC, and Philadelphia.

Interested candidates should apply for this position electronically, online application system at <https://jobs.dickinson.edu>.

Please submit the following materials:

- * a letter of application;
- * curriculum vitae;
- * graduate transcript;
- * names and email addresses for three letters of recommendation;
- * writing sample;
- * teaching statement;
- * sample syllabi – preferably for one or more of the above listed courses.
- * teaching evaluations or other evidence of teaching effectiveness

Review of applications will begin October 1 and will continue until the position is filled.

Connecticut College

Rank: Assistant Professor in International Relations with a focus on US Foreign Policy

International Relations with a focus on US Foreign Policy
The Department of Government and International Relations at Connecticut College invites applicants for a tenure-track position as an Assistant Professor in the subfield of International Relations with a specialization in U.S. Foreign Policy. The ability to teach Comparative Foreign Policy and the ability to offer courses in a region of global interest would be an asset. The department already have strengths in Europe, the Middle East and East Asia. The successful candidate must demonstrate an ability to teach an introductory International Politics course and intermediate- and advanced-level courses on foreign policy, at least one of which would be on US Foreign Policy. Required: ABD in Political Science or International Relations with a Foreign Policy focus. Candidates must have the Ph.D. in hand at the time of appointment to be hired as an Assistant Professor; a candidate may be hired as an Instructor if the candidate does not have a Ph.D. in hand at the time of appointment, but will complete the Ph.D. within one year of hire.

Salary is competitive. In addition to providing ongoing support for teaching and research, the College offers the following resources for pre-tenured faculty: a 2-2 teaching load in the first year, a research fund in the first two years, and a semester's sabbatical (at full salary) after a successful third-year review.

The College's Board of Trustees, President, administration, faculty and staff share a commitment to diversity. To this end, the College, located in New London, CT is continuing what has been a very successful initiative to diversify its faculty, staff, and student body. We encourage applications from candidates who share this understanding and will contribute to the diversity of our college community, including members of historically underrepresented groups. The College is an Affirmative Action/Equal Opportunity Employer. Please visit our website, <http://www.conncoll.edu>, for more information about the College and our faculty searches.

Offering two popular majors (a government major and an interdisciplinary international relations major), Government and International Relations is a collegial department with 11 full-time faculty members. There are also opportunities for collaboration with interdisciplinary programs on campus. Moreover, the College's general education program, Connections, provides ample opportunity for collaborative and interdisciplinary teaching. For an overview of this innovative curriculum, please visit <http://www.conncoll.edu/connections/>

Applicants should upload a letter of application, a C.V., teaching evaluations, a writing sample, graduate transcripts, and at least three letters of recommendation to <https://apply.interfolio.com/51489>. University of California, San Diego

Rank: Postdoctoral Fellow

Subfield(s): International Relations, Methodology, Other

The Center for Peace and Security Studies (cPASS - <http://cpass.ucsd.edu/>) has two postdoctoral positions available for the 2018-2019 academic year. Each position is also renewable at the discretion of the cPASS Director. Research at cPASS targets new and emerging security issues such as emerging modes of conflict and new modes of deterrence. cPASS is devoted to applying innovative thinking and diverse methodologies (experiments, deductive modeling, statistical analysis, case studies, archival research and "big data") to traditional security issues made more dynamic and difficult by the increased complexity of interstate competition and conflict. We emphasize a team-based, multi-method approach to research that combines qualitative and quantitative perspectives.

Postdocs will work closely with the Center Director in conducting cPASS research activities such as data collection, analysis, preparing project reports and manuscripts for peer-reviewed journals, preparing and delivering oral presentations to diverse audiences, overseeing qualitative research or supervising project labs, and mentoring graduate and undergraduate research activities.

Applicants are required to have a PhD in hand at the time of appointment. A degree in Political Science, History, International Relations, Economics, or allied field is anticipated but other specialties may be appropriate, depending on an applicant's interests and skills. Candidates will be assessed based on their expertise and knowledge of different key aspects of security studies and their ability to contribute to a diversified, integrated research team.

The initial period of appointment will be for 12 months from the date of appointment. Renewal is possible with the approval of the Center Director. Some flexibility exists as to start date, but candidates should expect to be in residence in San Diego throughout the appointment. Salary will be commensurate with qualifications and experience.

Interested applicants should provide a letter describing their qualifications and the reasons for interest in the position. A printed copy of a curriculum vitae is also required. Additional materials may be requested after initial review. Please send all materials to the following email address (jml110@ucsd.edu). Please ensure to include the phrase “cPASS Postdoc Fellow” in the subject heading. Review of applications will be ongoing.

METHODOLOGY

University of Oxford

Rank: Postdoctoral Research Fellow in Survey Research

Subfield(s): Comparative Politics, Methodology, Public Policy

Specializations: Political Behavior, Political Economy, Public Opinion

The Blavatnik School of Government, University of Oxford, seeks to appoint a Postdoctoral Research Fellow for three years to lead the development of this research on the dynamics of public opinion in this area in cooperation with Professor Pepper Culpepper and with Professor Taeku Lee from the University of California at Berkeley.

The main duties of the post are to engage in original, world-class research in survey design and data analysis and manage your own academic research and project-related administrative activities; to disseminate your research through publication in highly-ranked, peer reviewed academic journals; to collaborate in the preparation of research publications and book chapters; and to act as a source of information and advice on methodologies and procedures to other members of the team.

The successful postholder will be an independent researcher in the early stages of their career with training in survey research methods and experience designing survey experiments as well as facility in analysing these data. Training and/or experience in experimental design, sampling and measurement theory, conjoint analysis, and causal inference is desirable, as is a substantive interest in political economy, public opinion and regulatory policy. You will have a recent doctorate in political science or another social science field relevant to the project, such as communications, sociology or public policy. Candidates nearing completion of their doctoral dissertation may also be considered. You will show evidence of developing a track record of internationally excellent research worthy of publication in highly-ranked, peer reviewed academic journals, commensurate with the candidate's career stage; and have knowledge of survey methodology and experience writing and fielding surveys, preferably in comparative context.

The full duties, responsibilities and skills required are described in more detail in the further particulars which also contain details on how to apply.

The closing date for applications is 12 noon UK time on Friday 18 January 2019. To apply, visit the University of Oxford website directly via:

University of Gothenburg

Rank: Assistant Professor (tenure track) in Political Science

Job assignments:

Varieties of Democracy (V-Dem <https://v-dem.net>) is a large-scale data collection and research-program. The V-Dem Institute, Directed by Professor Staffan I. Lindberg, has received several large-scale grants from among others the European Research Council, Riksbankens Jubileumsfond, The Swedish Research Council, and the Wallenberg foundations.

The term for this position in Swedish is “biträdande lektor”. The university's official translation (in British English) is Associate Senior Lecture, which is the equivalent to Assistant Professor on tenure-track.

The Assistant Professor (tenure-track, 5 years) is primarily expected to conduct research with a focus on the main questions of the research project “Endangered Democracies: Sequences of Autocratization” (EDSA), which is a new project within the V-Dem umbrella, in collaboration with other scholars at the V-Dem Institute. You can download the project description from <http://pol.gu.se/english/varieties-of-democracy--v-dem->.

In addition, the successful applicant is expected to teach in the department and to contribute to the daily activities of the V-Dem Institute as needed. Research is, however, guaranteed at a minimum of 50 percent of full time employment (FTE).

Eligibility (Minimum Requirements):

Applicants with a doctorate in political science or related field, or with equivalent competence, not older than five years at the conclusion of the application period, will be given primary consideration. Applicants who have obtained a doctorate earlier may also be considered if there are special reasons. Special reasons include leave of absence due to illness, service in the armed forces or other part of the national defense organization, commissions of trust within professional, union and student organizations, parental leave or other similar circumstances.

Assessment (Desired Qualifications):

Applications will be evaluated primarily on research excellence in comparative politics with a particular view towards areas of relevance to the EDSA project, and secondary on merits with regard to teaching. Comparative research at high international level relevant for the study of democratic backsliding/autocratization, authoritarian regimes, democratization, and/or political development, is prioritized in the evaluation of applications. One or more of the following scientific skills are also meritorious:

- A well-developed proposal of high scientific quality, for a research project that falls within and preferably further develops EDSA (see link to program description below);

- Advanced time-series, cross-sectional regression techniques, Vector Auto-Regression (VAR), sequencing algorithms, and/or optimal matching methods.

Documented experience with teaching at under-/graduate level, including lectures, seminars, and advising on papers, is required. Candidates will be requested to demonstrate their teaching abilities.

The applicant should demonstrate resourcefulness, flexibility, and very good ability to work together in different configurations. Excellence in English (orally and written) is a requirement. We will make an overall assessment of the applicants' qualifications and potential with regards to the varying tasks that may be required within EDSA and V-Dem, as well as the applicant's teaching skills. Personal qualities relevant for the position are of great importance

Documented experience with service to the profession and collaboration with the practitioners/policy community is a merit.

Additional Information:

An Assistant Professor is entitled to be evaluated for promotion to Associate Professor with tenure (in Swedish: "universitetslektor"), before the end of the fixed-term five-year employment.

Appointment Procedure:

Please apply online via: https://www.gu.se/english/about_the_university/job-opportunities/vacancies-details/?id=3568

The applications should be submitted in English.

Applicants are expected to visit <http://pol.gu.se/english/varieties-of-democracy--v-dem->, and download the project description for "Endangered Democracies: Sequences of Autocratization" (EDSA).

The application letter should relate to the project description and state clearly how the applicant fulfills the criteria stated above.

The application should also include: a research proposal (3-7 pages) directly addressing the EDSA project; a CV including both scientific and pedagogical merits; 3 to 5 writing samples; an excerpt from Google Scholar with information about the number of citations, h-index; and a list of at least three persons who are prepared to submit letters of recommendation upon request.

Employment:

Type of employment: Fixed-term employment, 5 years, with possibility for tenure and promotion.

Extent: 100 %

Location: V-Dem Institute, Department of Political Science, Gothenburg

First day of employment: 2019-08-15 (negotiable)

About:

University of Gothenburg has 37 000 students and 6 000 employees. Strong research and attractive study programs attract scientists and students from around the world. With new knowledge and new perspectives, the University contributes to a better future. The University of Gothenburg promotes equal opportunities, equality and diversity.

The Department of Political Science is strong on research on elections, democracy, corruption, governance, globalization, environmental politics as well as European studies, with research programs such as QoG institute, Varieties of Democracy (V-Dem), Governance and local development (GLD), and The Swedish Election Studies Program. Centrally located in the city of Gothenburg the department offers undergraduate, graduate, and postgraduate programs in both English and Swedish; 1,400 students ; and 140 people employees.

University of Oxford

Subfield(s): International Relations, Methodology, Other

The Department of Politics and International Relations (DPIR) at Oxford is an internationally renowned centre of excellence for teaching and research. The study of these disciplines at Oxford has a long and distinguished history and the department is one of the largest in the field in the UK.

The Department, in association with Somerville College, now seeks to appoint an inspirational teacher and accomplished research scholar to an Associate Professorship in International Relations. This post is full-time, and subject to completion of a successful review, permanent. In making this appointment, the College and the University share the goal of developing and strengthening the teaching and research capabilities of both the College and the Department of Politics and International Relations, as well as helping to maintain Oxford University's position as a world-leading centre for teaching and research in the subject.

This joint appointment will be based in the Department of Politics and International Relations and in Somerville College, both in Oxford city centre. The post will be held in conjunction with a Tutorial Fellowship at Somerville College. It is expected that the new appointee will take up this post at the beginning of the 2019/20 academic year. Applications are welcomed from outstanding candidates with research and teaching expertise in any major aspects of the academic study of International Relations, and a proven record of success in obtaining research funding. We are open with respect to theoretical and methodological approaches.

The successful candidate will be expected to engage in advanced study and research, to conduct and publish outstanding research, to give high-quality tutorials, classes, and lectures in International Relations at both undergraduate and graduate level, and to provide high-quality graduate and doctoral supervision. Candidates must have a proven record of relevant teaching experience in International Relations and a viable strategy for on-going top-quality research. A completed doctorate in International Relations and/or Political Science or an associated field with a proven ability to contribute to the Department's research environment and output will be further essential criteria for this post. The Associate Professor will be a member of both the University and the College. She or he will be part of a strong and vibrant research community and will have access to the excellent research facilities and comprehensive support (including mentoring and research support) which Oxford offers: Salary on the scale within the range £47,263 to £63,463 p.a. (plus £8,932 taxable and pensionable College housing allowance if living outside College, and other benefits). Associate professors who are awarded the title of full professor may receive from the University an additional salary payment of £2,754 per annum. The duties and skills required are described in more detail in the further particulars (vacancy reference 138074). These also contain information on additional salary benefits and the comprehensive range of non-salary benefits available to Oxford staff, and details of how to apply for this post.

If you would like to discuss this post and find out more about joining the academic community at Oxford, please contact the DPIR Personnel Office at vacancies@politics.ox.ac.uk. All enquiries will be treated in strict confidence and will not form part of the selection decision. Candidates are also welcome to contact Professor Andrew Hurrell (andrew.hurrell@politics.ox.ac.uk) for an informal discussion of this post.

The closing date for applications is 12:00 noon UK time on Thursday, 10th January 2019.

Applications are particularly welcome from women and black and minority ethnic candidates, who are underrepresented in academic posts in Oxford

The College of Arts and Sciences at the University of Oklahoma invites applications from energetic, enterprising Big Data/Computational Social Science scholars for an open rank, tenured/tenure track faculty position. This search is part of a cluster hire in the new Data Scholarship Program (DSP). The DSP is designed to support data science, data analytics, statistics, computational social science, and digital humanities across the university community. This position will play an integral role in the growth and development of the DSP. Candidates from a broad range of social science and social science-related disciplines are encouraged to apply (including, but not limited to: African and African-American Studies, Anthropology, Communication, Economics, Library and Information Studies, Native American Studies, Political Science, Psychology, Social Work, and Sociology). The position will begin in August 2019. The teaching load will be dependent upon the usual teaching load of hiring department.

The successful candidate is expected to become a leader within a highly collaborative interdisciplinary research and teaching community. We are looking for a social scientist doing innovative work (i.e., machine learning, text analysis, network analysis, data visualization, etc.) and/or utilizing novel datasets (linked, messy, unstructured, in-the-wild, real-time, or based on novel collection methods) that will magnify existing OU strengths. The ideal candidate should be fluent in emerging areas of Big Data social sciences, such as high-dimensional models and the use of "online field experiments"; acquiring "data in the wild" or using unconventional data sources to investigate human behavior or perceptions; and/or developing innovative data collection techniques or statistical methods. Successful candidates will be expected to apply for extramural funding, including participating in collaborative proposals, such as from the DoD, NSF, and NIH, and private sources.

This hire will address critical needs of OU students for additional training in data analytics and data-driven research, from introductory to advanced levels, to meet the high and growing demand for a work force with data-related skills, particularly those who can ground their analyses in core areas of interest to social scientists. We are looking for teaching expertise in the areas of: basic computing for social scientists, advanced courses in the substantive domain of the candidate, and courses in quantitative analyses and statistical methodologies.

Required Qualifications

A doctoral degree in a social science or any related discipline.
An established, active, and productive research program.

Vienna School of International Studies

Rank: Postdoctoral Fellow in International Studies

Subfield(s): International Relations, Methodology, Other

The Vienna School of International Studies (Diplomatische Akademie Wien) is proposing the appointment of three Postdoctoral Fellows in International Studies for two years, from 23 September 2019. Geared towards promoting the professional development of the appointee, he/she will focus on his/her own research and do a limited amount of graduate teaching.

The successful candidate must hold – or have evidence of the imminent completion of – a doctorate in Economics, History, Law or Political Science. Our School interprets International Studies broadly. Applications from all these disciplines, including candidates with area expertise (such as European Studies) are welcome. A record of research achievement at the international level, a strong agenda for future research and previous teaching experience – preferably at graduate level – are essential.

The Vienna School of International Studies is a professional school, specialized in the interdisciplinary training of graduate students, and an associate member of APSIA. The presence of international organizations in Vienna makes for excellent research opportunities, in particular for research dealing with diplomacy, governance and multilateralism broadly defined.

The closing date for applications is Sunday, 20 January 2019, midnight.

Depending on seniority and experience, the postdoctoral fellow will be offered a yearly salary (before taxes and social security contribution) between EUR 36.000 and 39.000.

Please apply online at <https://application.da-vienna.ac.at/postdoc/Application>. Your curriculum vitae, your research agenda (5-10 pages), and teaching documentation (e.g. syllabi of courses taught, student evaluations, statement on teaching philosophy, etc) may be sent to us by e-mail (genny.chiarandon@da-vienna.ac.at) or mail (Genny Chiarandon, Vienna School of International Studies, Favoritenstrasse 15a, 1040 Vienna, Austria). Please also make sure that we receive three letters of recommendation (e-mailed directly by your referees/dossier service, or mailed in a sealed envelope).

University of ChicagoRank: Lecturers in Computational Social Science

The Division of Social Sciences at the University of Chicago invites applications for a position as Lecturer in Computational Social Science (macss.uchicago.edu). This is a full-time, career-track teaching position beginning in the 2019-20 academic year. The initial two-year appointment is renewable with opportunity for promotion. Salary and benefits are competitive with tenure-track positions for computational researchers.

The Lecturer is responsible for teaching in the MA program in Computational Social Science (MACSS), providing academic and career guidance to students, and contributing to the academic administration of the program.

Requirements: PhD in sociology, economics, political science, psychology, data science, computer science, or a related discipline; experience conducting social scientific research using machine learning or computational methods; programming experience using R and/or Python. Industry experience is also valued. Lecturers must have the PhD in hand by September 1, 2019.

The Lecturer will teach five graduate courses per year in the MACSS curriculum. At least three will cover important computational methods or questions of research design. The possibilities include a graduate introduction to social scientific inquiry; digital surveys and experiments, including A/B testing; machine learning and statistical modeling; neural networks and deep learning; Bayesian statistical inference; large-scale data storage and processing such as Spark and Hadoop; or research ethics and digital privacy. The successful applicant will also design and teach courses in their discipline or substantive area of expertise, tailored to the interests of master's and doctoral students in the Division of Social Sciences.

In addition to teaching, the Lecturer will advise master's students; evaluate occasional master's theses; hire and manage teaching assistants; participate in program admissions, staff hiring, and student recruitment; help train doctoral-student Preceptors; attend the Computational Social Science Workshop; and contribute to the intellectual life and administrative needs of the master's program.

The Lecturer position includes support for professional development, and the Lecturer will participate in a dynamic community of social science researchers.

Applicants must apply on the University of Chicago's Academic Career Opportunities website at <https://tinyurl.com/y9ovtljm>. The following materials must be submitted: 1) a cover letter, outlining the applicant's prior computational training, prior teaching and/or mentoring experience, and suggested course offerings in our MA program; 2) a curriculum vitae; 3) an article-length writing sample, applying a computational research design; 4) at least one course syllabus, from prior teaching or with an eye to future offerings; 5) course evaluations or other evidence of past excellence in teaching and/or mentoring; and 6) three letters of reference.

We will begin reviewing applications January 2 and will continue until the positions are filled. Later applicants are welcome to contact our Managing Director, Chad Cyrenne (cmcyrenn@uchicago.edu), for updates on the status of the search.

This position will be part of the Service Employees International Union.

The University of Chicago is an Affirmative Action/Equal Opportunity/Disabled/Veterans Employer and does not discriminate on the basis of race, color, religion, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, national or ethnic origin, age, status as an individual with a disability, protected veteran status, genetic information, or other protected classes under the law. University of Chicago

Rank: Senior Lecturer in Computational Social Science

The Division of Social Sciences at the University of Chicago invites applications for a position as Senior Lecturer in Computational Social Science (macss.uchicago.edu). The Senior Lecturer is responsible for teaching in the MA program in Computational Social Science (MACSS) and contributing to curricular design, program development, and student support.

This is a full-time, career-track position beginning in the 2019-20 academic year. The initial three-year appointment is renewable contingent upon satisfactory performance review. Salary and benefits are fully competitive with tenure-track positions for computational social scientists.

Requirements: PhD in sociology, economics, political science, psychology, data science, computer science, or a related discipline; experience conducting social scientific research using machine learning or computational methods; programming experience using R and/or Python. Industry experience is also valued. Senior Lecturers must have the PhD in hand by September 1, 2019. Demonstrated record of outstanding effectiveness as a teacher is required.

The Senior Lecturer will teach five graduate courses per year in the MACSS curriculum. At least three will cover important computational methods or questions of research design. The possibilities include a graduate introduction to social scientific inquiry; digital surveys and experiments, including A/B testing; machine learning and statistical modeling; neural networks and deep learning; Bayesian statistical inference; large-scale data storage and processing such as Spark and Hadoop; or research ethics and digital privacy. The successful applicant will also design and teach courses in their discipline or substantive area of expertise, tailored to the interests of master's and doctoral students in the Division of Social Sciences.

In addition to teaching, the Senior Lecturer will work collaboratively with members of the Faculty to refine the curricular design and requirements of the master's program; lead course development for our core sequence Perspectives in Computational Analysis; help develop relationships with other computational centers on campus and in industry; participate in program admissions, staff hiring, and student recruitment; advise master's students; evaluate occasional master's theses; hire and manage teaching assistants; help train doctoral-student Preceptors; participate in the Computational Social Science Workshop; and contribute to the intellectual life and administrative needs of the master's program.

The Senior Lecturer position includes support for professional development, and opportunities to participate in the intellectual life of the Division. Those opportunities include Workshops in the Department of Economics, the Booth School of Business, Sociology, Political Science, Psychology, the Law School, the Harris School of Public Policy, Computer Science, the Becker Friedman Institute, the Mansueti Institute for Urban Innovation, and the Toyota Technological Institute at Chicago.

University of North Carolina, Charlotte

Rank: Assistant or Associate Professor in Data Analytics and Public Policy

Assistant or Associate Professor in Data Analytics and Public Policy, UNC Charlotte Public Policy Program

The University of North Carolina at Charlotte invites applications for a tenured (Associate) or tenure-track (advanced Assistant) professor who will actively participate in our interdisciplinary Public Policy PhD Program. We seek candidates whose research applies data science methodology and advanced quantitative methods to the study of public policy. The area of research specialty is open, but we will give preference to candidates with interest in collaborating with faculty in a newly developing security and justice policy research cluster, broadly defined. Candidates should have a record of research that utilizes advanced quantitative methods (e.g. causal inference, time series analysis, hierarchical modeling, simulations) and data science skills (e.g. data visualization, machine learning, computational modeling, natural language processing, network science) and be prepared to teach in graduate courses in these areas.

Required qualifications include the following: (1) a Ph.D. in Public Policy or a closely related social science or data science discipline; (2)

a strong record, appropriate to rank, of high quality peer-reviewed publications related to public policy; (3) a program of research likely to generate publications and extramural funding; (4) teaching experience, appropriate to rank; and (5) a commitment to promoting diversity and inclusion as values in the program and college. Candidates at the Associate level should possess credentials and experience appropriate for a tenured associate professorship at UNC Charlotte. A track record of extramural funding is required for candidates at the associate professor rank. We will give preference to candidates with experience working within an interdisciplinary environment, and who have experience in areas such as graduate recruitment, curriculum development, mentoring, and preparing students for an academic and applied job market. Applicants must submit a statement on diversity and inclusion and finalists will be asked during their screening interview how diversity and inclusion are incorporated into their teaching, service, and research.

The Public Policy Program is an interdisciplinary PhD granting program that draws upon faculty and resources from seven departments and three colleges. The position will contribute to the development and integration of data science curriculum into our current PhD program and help develop new graduate certificate programs. At least fifty percent of the teaching and service expectations will be committed to the Public Policy Program. The position will have a tenure home in one of the following four departments: Criminal Justice, Geography and Earth Sciences, Political Science and Public Administration, or Sociology. Research active faculty at UNC Charlotte typically teach two courses per semester. The position begins on August 12, 2019.

The Public Policy Program is supported by over 30 core faculty drawn from departments and colleges throughout the university including Criminal Justice and Criminology, Economics, Geography and Earth Sciences, Philosophy, Political Science and Public Administration, Public Health, and Sociology.

The University of North Carolina at Charlotte is a doctoral, research-intensive university, located in one of the nation's fastest-growing metropolitan areas on an expanding modern campus. One of sixteen campuses in one of the oldest public university systems in the United States, UNC Charlotte offers over 28,000 culturally diverse students a wide range of undergraduate and graduate degree programs. Charlotte's metropolitan area is rich in cultural and racial diversity (over 40% Hispanic/Latino and African-American) and our faculty strives to reflect and interact positively with that population. The College of Liberal Arts and Sciences houses 20 departments in the humanities, social and behavioral sciences, physical sciences, and military sciences, as well as 8 research centers and institutes and 13 interdisciplinary programs.

Applications must be submitted electronically at <https://jobs.uncc.edu> (use position number #004161) and the following documents should be attached: cover letter describing your qualifications, teaching, and scholarship; a separate statement addressing commitment to diversity and inclusion; a recent CV, and the names and contact information for three references. Please contact Dr. Cherie Maestas, Public Policy Program Director at cmaestas@uncc.edu with questions about the position. Review of files will begin December 6 and continue until the position is filled.

As an EOE/AA employer and an ADVANCE Institution that strives to create an academic climate in which the dignity of all individuals is respected and maintained, the University of North Carolina at Charlotte encourages applications from all underrepresented groups.

The candidate chosen for this position will be required to provide an official transcript of their highest earned degree and submit to a criminal background check.

New York University Abu Dhabi

Rank: Computational Social Science Professor - Open Rank

The Social Science Division at New York University Abu Dhabi (NYUAD) is inviting applications for full time faculty positions in Computational Social Sciences, from senior scholars – at the rank of associate and full professors - and exceptional early career scholars.

We encourage applications from all excellent candidates in any field answering social-science questions, as long as they have a strong focus on (big) data collection and visualization; data management and analysis techniques such as machine learning, text analysis, network science/analysis, spatial data analysis/GIS.

All candidates should demonstrate important contributions to their area of research as evidenced e.g. by significant publications in top international academic journals and a history of acquiring third party funding, as well as the ability to mentor and collaborate with a group of junior social scientists.

NYUAD expects successful candidates to continue to publish in high quality internationally refereed journals. The position features a standard teaching load of three courses per year. The terms of employment are very competitive and include generous start-up and on-going research funds, as well as housing subsidies and educational subsidies for children. Faculty may also spend an occasional semester at NYU New York and other sites of the Global Network, engaging in both research and teaching activities.

The review of applications will occur on a rolling basis. Shortlisted candidates will be invited for campus visits to NYU Abu Dhabi throughout the 18/19 Academic Year. We anticipate that successful candidates will start employment on August 15, 2019, subject to final budget approval.

Applicants should submit a curriculum vitae, a statement of research plans, a statement of teaching interests and three representative publications. To complete the online process, early career applicants will be prompted to enter the names and email addresses of at least three referees. Each referee will be contacted to upload their reference letter. Senior candidates should provide a list of three references in PDF format.

About NYUAD

New York University has established itself as a Global Network University. The network has three foundational degree-granting campuses: New York, Abu Dhabi, and Shanghai, complemented by a network of eleven research and study-away sites across five continents. Our students are drawn from around the world and surpass all traditional recruitment benchmarks, both US and global. Our goal is to develop a cohort of international students attuned to and educated for an inclusive global society. Students and Faculty will circulate within the global network in pursuit of common research interests and the promotion of cross-cultural and interdisciplinary solutions for problems both local and global.

Since its inception NYU Abu Dhabi has recruited a cohort of faculty who are distinguished in their research and teaching. NYU Abu Dhabi's highly selective liberal arts enterprise is complemented by an institute for advanced research, sponsoring cutting-edge projects across the Arts, Humanities, Social Sciences, Sciences, and Engineering. The Institute will invest significant funds in creating a hub for research related to social, economic, and political development in the broader region; applications from candidates with an ambition to contribute to this agenda are especially welcome.

UAE Nationals are encouraged to apply.

Although the specific area of research is open, the focus should be human research explicitly linked to social processes. Individuals from all academic backgrounds are encouraged to apply (e.g., biology, psychology, economics, political science or sociology). Preference will be given to applicants who use fMRI, EEG, or process tracing methods, whose research reflects the interdisciplinary nature of social science and who can forge linkages to other areas of study both within the Division (i.e., with economists, political scientists and sociologists) and outside the Division.

The facilities available include a state-of-the-art brain- imaging center housing a Siemens Prisma 3T MRI, MEG, EEG, eye tracking and behavioral testing facilities. The successful candidates will also have access to state of the art core facilities that include High Performance Computing facilities with more than 6,400 computing cores and a peak performance of 70 TFLOPS.

NYUAD expects successful candidates to publish in high quality internationally refereed journals. The terms of employment are very competitive and include generous start-up and on-going research funds, as well as housing subsidies and educational subsidies for children. Faculty may also spend an occasional semester at NYU New York and other sites of the global network, engaging in both research and teaching activities.

Applicants should submit a curriculum vitae, a statement of research plans, a statement of teaching interests and three representative publications. To complete the online process, early career applicants will be prompted to enter the names and email addresses of at least three referees. Each referee will be contacted to upload their reference letter. Senior candidates should provide a list of three references in PDF format. We will begin consideration of applications October 1st, although review of applications will continue until the position is filled.

New York University Abu Dhabi

Rank: Social Science and Genetics Professor - Open Rank

The Social Science Division at New York University Abu Dhabi (NYUAD) invites applications for full time faculty positions in New York University Abu Dhabi from scholars working at the intersection of genetics and social sciences. This tenure/tenure-track appointment is open rank. We will consider applicants from across social science or social science related disciplines (e.g. sociology, economics, political science, psychology, biological anthropology, psychology and human genetics) with active and cutting-edge research agendas that include, but are not limited to, population genetics and social identity, genetics and human behaviour, critical and historical approaches to the use of genetics in social science and public policy, and bioethics in relation to human genetics.

Successful candidates will benefit from resources at NYUAD that support work at the intersection of genetics and the social sciences by providing access to cohorts, populations, collaborations and research programs. These include the Center for Genomics and Systems Biology (<http://as.nyu.edu/biology/research/gsb/cgsb.html>), the Public Health Research Center (<https://nyuad.nyu.edu/en/research/centers-labs-and-projects/public-health-research-center.html>), and seminars and colloquia that bring together faculty from biology and the social sciences.

NYUAD expects successful candidates to publish in high quality internationally refereed journals or books. The terms of employment are very competitive and include generous start-up and on-going research funds, as well as housing subsidies and educational subsidies for children. Faculty may also spend an occasional semester at NYU New York and other sites of the global network, engaging in both research and teaching activities.

The review of applications will begin on October 15 and continue until the position is filled. Shortlisted candidates will be invited for campus visits to NYU Abu Dhabi throughout the 18/19 Academic Year. We anticipate that successful candidates will start employment on August 15, 2019, subject to final budget approval.

To ensure full consideration by the search committee, applicants should submit a curriculum vitae, a statement of research plans, a statement of teaching interests and three representative publications. To complete the online process, early career applicants will be prompted to enter the names and email addresses of at least three referees. Each referee will be contacted to upload their reference letter. Senior candidates should provide a list of three references in PDF format. University of California, San Diego

Subfield(s): International Relations, Methodology, Other

The Center for Peace and Security Studies (cPASS - <http://cpass.ucsd.edu/>) has two postdoctoral positions available for the 2018-2019 academic year. Each position is also renewable at the discretion of the cPASS Director. Research at cPASS targets new and emerging security issues such as emerging modes of conflict and new modes of deterrence. cPASS is devoted to applying innovative thinking and diverse methodologies (experiments, deductive modeling, statistical analysis, case studies, archival research and "big data") to traditional security issues made more dynamic and difficult by the increased complexity of interstate competition and conflict. We emphasize a team-based, multi-method approach to research that combines qualitative and quantitative perspectives.

Postdocs will work closely with the Center Director in conducting cPASS research activities such as data collection, analysis, preparing project reports and manuscripts for peer-reviewed journals, preparing and delivering oral presentations to diverse audiences, overseeing qualitative research or supervising project labs, and mentoring graduate and undergraduate research activities.

Applicants are required to have a PhD in hand at the time of appointment. A degree in Political Science, History, International Relations, Economics, or allied field is anticipated but other specialties may be appropriate, depending on an applicant's interests and skills. Candidates will be assessed based on their expertise and knowledge of different key aspects of security studies and their ability to contribute to a diversified, integrated research team.

The initial period of appointment will be for 12 months from the date of appointment. Renewal is possible with the approval of the Center Director. Some flexibility exists as to start date, but candidates should expect to be in residence in San Diego throughout the appointment. Salary will be commensurate with qualifications and experience.

Interested applicants should provide a letter describing their qualifications and the reasons for interest in the position. A printed copy of a curriculum vitae is also required. Additional materials may be requested after initial review. Please send all materials to the following email address (jml110@ucsd.edu). Please ensure to include the phrase "cPASS Postdoc Fellow" in the subject heading. Review of applications will be ongoing.

- Overall good affinity with relevant ICT systems.
- Excellent communication skills, both oral and written, in a Scandinavian language (Norwegian, Danish or Swedish) and English.
- Personal skills

We are seeking colleagues that can contribute to the long-term development of teaching and research at the faculty. Ability for independent work as well as cooperation is important. The successful candidate will be skilled and motivated for research- and administrative leadership. We will holistically assess the different qualifications of each applicant.

Applications will be long-listed by a sorting committee. Long listed applications will be evaluated by an expert committee, comprised of one internal and two external members.

How to apply:

The application with attachments must be submitted in our electronic recruiting system.

The application must include:

- CV (summarizing education, positions and academic work),
- copies of educational certificates and letters of recommendation,
- a list of scientific publications,
- up to 6 academic articles, chapters or similar. More recent publications will be emphasized. If there are several authors to some of the academic articles that are included, the candidate's role in the article must be described.
- a teaching portfolio that includes:
 - Documentation of formal teaching qualifications.
 - Documentation of teaching experience, for example an overview of teaching/counseling experience.
 - Documented work experience in program- and teaching quality development, planning, evaluations etc.
 - Reflection about your own teaching philosophy and teaching practice.

As a general rule an interview will be used in the appointment process, and it may be appropriate to require trial lectures.

We offer:

- An academic stimulating environment with engaged colleagues at a growing institution.
- Good welfare benefits.
- Salary according to "SKO 1011 Førsteamanuensis" in State salary scale, depending on qualifications and experience in position as Associate professor.

UCSD - Computer Science & Engineering

Rank: Multiple Positions in the Halicioglu Data Science Institute

The University of California, San Diego invites applications from outstanding candidates for multiple tenure-track faculty positions for primary appointment at the Halicioglu Data Science Institute with optional joint appointment in another academic department. We are focusing on candidates who advance research in the following areas:

- Theoretical Foundations - candidates who are applying their disciplinary skills to advance the theory and applications of data science. The foundations area draws heavily from traditional disciplines such as machine learning, statistics, optimization, signal processing, algorithms and complexity. Accordingly, ideal candidates will have a doctorate in areas of engineering and computer science or mathematics/statistics with a record of research in data sciences.

-Systems and Applications - candidates with background and experience in building data science systems that target a well-defined application area. Examples of application areas include robotics, health, cyber-physical systems. Research topics may include architectural design and implementation of devices and systems that push the state of the art in the use of data, data models, data related work-flows and methods of artificial intelligence. Demonstrated applications of these advances in targeted areas are of special interest. System implementations that target cross-cutting needs such as data visualization, system security are particularly welcome to apply. Accordingly, ideal candidates will have a doctorate in sciences or engineering with a record of research in data sciences.

- Digital Security, Privacy and Public Policy - candidates with background in computer science and public policy who explore the impact of risks and benefits of digital data for a well-defined vertical application area: such as democratic practice, health, education, trade in digital services or societal infrastructure for energy, transportation, and communications or information infrastructures. Of prime interest will be candidates pursuing advances in theory, methods and tools that help us understand security risks to organizations and the national infrastructure, devise methods and policies to mitigate those risks considering both technical considerations and implementation factors such as social, political and economic feasibility.

The University of California, San Diego is committed to academic excellence and diversity within the faculty, staff and student body. A PhD in Computer Science, Math, Economics, Engineering or related discipline is required at the time of application. Salary and rank will be commensurate with qualifications in conformance with University of California policies. Successful appointees will have a track record of scientific accomplishments, excellence in teaching, a commitment to university service, and a commitment to support diversity, equity, and inclusion at the university. Applicants will be expected to teach graduate and undergraduate students in the Data Science major/minor degree programs offered by the Institute. In case of a partial joint appointment with another department, the teaching workload would include appropriate course work in the participating department.

Applicants to the Associate and Full Professor levels must have a PhD or equivalent in the area of interest and are expected to have established independent publication and funding records with national reputation in their field of research.

About the Halicioglu Data Science Institute: Data Science has emerged as an area central to advances in our understanding of nature, improving the quality life and a healthy society. Data collection, stewardship, and analyses are already integrated into the infrastructure for commerce, healthcare, governance, and education. These ubiquitous practical uses of digital data have raised awareness of the need to further develop the underlying scientific and technological basis for understanding and exploiting data. UC San Diego is pursuing a strategy for advancing Data Science that builds upon its unique strengths in creating interdisciplinary research areas that span multiple disciplines and departments. Funded with a $75M endowment, the mission of the Halicioglu Data Science Institute (HDSI) is to explore the scientific foundations for the new field of data science. These foundations include the principles, methods, and tools that will enable us to understand the nature of digital data, and also the intersections between this new field and existing disciplines of human enquiry. HDSI is a new strategic academic institute tasked with hosting and coordination of Data Science research and education activities at the University of California, San Diego. Among HDSI academic programs are a Data Science major and minor currently with nearly 600 undergraduate students. Prospective HDSI faculty members will have the option of a joint appointment with one or more academic departments of the University in order to bolster the interdisciplinary nature of Data Science.

We encourage candidates to send applications as soon as possible. Review of applications will begin January 17, 2019 and continue until the position is filled.

Stanford University

Rank: Thinking Matters Fellows

The Office of the Vice Provost for Undergraduate Education (VPUE) at Stanford University is now accepting applications for teaching fellowship positions in Thinking Matters, a required program that honors the freshman educational tradition first established at Stanford in 1919. Thinking Matters courses foster intellectual curiosity and the development of critical inquiry skills and support first-year students in achieving a successful transition to college-level learning. In the application process all candidates must identify the courses that fit their teaching experience and training, preferably at least one each in the Autumn, Winter, and Spring quarters. We invite applications from candidates with relevant background in any of the following: Biology, Neuroscience, Physics, Philosophy (especially Aesthetics and Ethics), Political Science, Psychology, American History, Anthropology, Literature and Film (only as relevant to course listings). Eligible candidates will have earned a doctorate in a relevant field, conferred no earlier than 2013 and no later than June 2019.

Fellows will be placed on teaching teams with faculty and fellows in three different courses, one each in autumn, winter and spring quarters. Fellows lead two seminar discussions (averaging 15 students each) twice weekly; they individualize student learning through regular tutorial sessions; and they coordinate instruction with plenum lectures given by Stanford faculty. The appointment begins August 1, 2019 for a two-year term that is renewable for one additional year depending on programmatic need and job performance. Fellows are typically released from teaching responsibilities for one quarter during the second year. Annual starting salary will be at least $68,500 with a supplemental stipend of $2,000 for research and scholarship.

Applicants should provide evidence of teaching experience and indicate their intellectual flexibility. Other desired qualifications are: experience working with and teaching diverse, first-year university students; familiarity with team teaching, and demonstrated experience with developing students' skills in critical thinking, writing, discussion, and analysis.

<http://apptrkr.com/1350571>

Applications will open December 14, 2018, and close January 31, 2019, and must be submitted through Interfolio. Offers of employment are made contingent upon the successful completion of a background check and ability to demonstrate eligibility to work in the US.

Stanford University is an equal employment opportunity and affirmative action employer and is committed to recruiting and hiring qualified women, minorities, protected veterans and individuals with disabilities.

Sacramento State

Rank: Hazel Cramer Endowed Chair and Professor in Public Policy and Administration

Subfield(s): Public Administration, Public Policy, Other

The Department of Public Policy and Administration at Sacramento State invites applications for the tenured position of Hazel Cramer Endowed Chair and Professor in Public Policy and Administration.

The Department of Public Policy and Administration (PPA) is a department within the College of Social Sciences and Interdisciplinary Studies at California State University, Sacramento (Sacramento State). The mission of the PPA Department at the "Capital Campus" of Sacramento State is to prepare future leaders to address the complex issues that face California. We serve the state and the Sacramento region by developing leaders with strong analytical tools and a deep commitment to public service. We are excited to be part of "Sac State Downtown"—a hub for innovative teaching, learning, and research, fostering collaborative partnerships to address real-world issues and improve the quality of life in the Sacramento region. Sac State Downtown launched this academic year.

The PPA program (<http://www.csus.edu/ppa>) provides professional training for graduate students—many of whom work in state government. Our core academic program is a Master of Public Policy and Administration (MPPA); we also offer as a Master of Science in Urban Land Development (MSULD) and a Certificate in Collaborative Governance for matriculated graduate students. We participate in, or affiliate with, the Doctorate in Educational Leadership degree, the Judicial Administration Certificate Program, the Executive and Judicial Fellows Programs (part of the nationally recognized Capital Fellows Programs), and the Education Insights Center.

PPA faculty focus on developing engaging curricula that include project-based work and application to current policy and administrative issues in California. Courses are taught evenings and weekends to accommodate students who are full-time working professionals. Our curriculum is evidence-based, with a strong focus on ensuring that students leave the program with the ability to: (1) synthesize, analyze, and offer ideas to improve policy and practice; (2) apply knowledge and skills in a professional setting; and (3) recognize the role of profession in society.

ESSENTIAL DUTIES

- Teach two courses per semester (taught in the evenings or on weekends), with the opportunity to reduce the course load through securing funding for research/service projects.
- Continue distinguished scholarly and professional contributions related to public policy and administration.
- Create and execute a sustainable plan to serve the community (examples include, but are not limited to, developing and executing a high impact community engaged research agenda that includes translating research into possible solution sets/ideas for practice; creating new work-based learning opportunities for PPA students; developing and implementing innovative educational programs and curricula; fostering collaborations across the college, university, academic field, and entities in the community; launching a new center or institute with a viable business model; recruiting and supervising graduate students; and providing outreach to the broader community).

- Supervise master's theses related to the area of public policy and administration.
- Provide service to the community in the area of public policy and administration.
- Provide service to the department, college, and university.
- Embrace the mission of the California State University and its students (<https://www2.calstate.edu/csu-system/about-the-csu/Pages/mission.aspx>). Our students are diverse and represent populations that have been historically underserved in both undergraduate and graduate education. A successful applicant must be excited to serve our student populations.

REQUIRED QUALIFICATIONS

- Ph.D. in public policy, public administration, public affairs, an interdisciplinary focus related to public policy and administration, or in a related discipline; or relevant work experience.
- Associate or full professor at an accredited university at some point in the applicant's career; or comparable professional experience that would merit appointment with tenure.
- A distinguished and sustained record in the areas of teaching, scholarship, and service.
- The successful applicant should have a high impact applied research agenda, which utilizes research-based evidence to solve practical problems facing the community and our students. Examples could include political engagement, immigration policy, access to high quality health care, affordable housing, unemployment, poverty, environmental justice, and other similar issues.
- Commitment to master's level university teaching and thesis supervision with a diverse student body
- Commitment to diversity and issues of just, equitable, and inclusive education.
- Commitment to working with the public service community in Sacramento.
- Publications (peer-reviewed journal articles, professional articles, highly utilized and evidence-based policy reports or briefs) in areas related to policy and administration.

PREFERRED QUALIFICATIONS

- Teaching experience and success in the topic areas the person would teach.
- Professional experiences outside of the classroom in areas related to public policy and administration. This could include consulting.
- Deep knowledge of California politics, policies, and regulations.
- Experience engaging different constituency groups to solve public problems.
- Expressed commitment to working in an interdisciplinary academic department.
- Commitment to experimenting with different forms of student engagement in the classroom.

APPOINTMENT SPECIFICS

The position is for the Hazel Cramer Endowed Chair. Through the Hazel Cramer Chair, the university is making a commitment to becoming an anchor institution in the region by focusing on long-term, systemic solutions to entrenched social problems. This position is a key part of the university's efforts to engage more with the community.

As an endowed chair position, the work differs significantly from a traditional faculty member, and additional funds will be provided to ensure that the Endowed Chair can meet those expectations. Through one or more of these tasks, the holder will enhance the reputation of the department, the college, and the university. This is an academic year position. $20,000 per year will be provided to the Endowed Chair to pay for costs associated with executing the Endowed Chair's plan to meet the unique expectations of the position (to pay for research assistants, Endowed Chair travel, student travel, meetings, brown bag lectures, research-related costs, etc.).

The initial appointment of the Endowed Chair will be for six years. Subsequent reappointment will require a thorough performance review.

ADDITIONAL APPLICATION INSTRUCTIONS

- Curriculum Vitae with references. References should include three individual names and contact information for people who can speak to the candidate's ability to fulfill the required (and if relevant, preferred) duties/responsibilities and qualifications. One reference must be from an academic contact and the other two could be either academic or practice-based.
- Cover Letter: addresses the candidate's ability to fulfill the required (and if relevant, preferred) duties/responsibilities and qualifications, focused on: scholarship, service to students, and impact on the community (broadly defined). Must include a proposed plan or set of options focused on fulfilling the community engagement facets of the position. (750 or 1000 word limit)
- Writing Sample: representative samples of three publications, scholarship, and/or creative works. One must be non-scholarly.
- Teaching Effectiveness: Student evaluations and, if available, recent peer observations.
- Diversity statement: Please describe what you think about the importance of diversity with regard to both teaching and public service. (500 words or fewer)

Northwestern University

Rank: Owen L. Coon Professor of Policy Analysis and Communication

Specializations: Political Communication, Science & Technology, Public Opinion

OWEN L. COON PROFESSOR OF POLICY ANALYSIS AND COMMUNICATION

Northwestern University is seeking a distinguished scholar of public communication to appoint as the inaugural Owen L. Coon Professor of Policy Analysis and Communication. This individual will help to build an expanded program of research on the organization and function of discourse in democracy and will be responsible for expanding undergraduate and graduate curricula in this area.

Northwestern University

Northwestern is a top-tier, private research university with three campuses: Evanston, Chicago, and Doha. The Evanston campus, located just north of Chicago and on Lake Michigan, houses the six schools that offer undergraduate instruction (music, education and social policy, journalism, engineering and applied science, arts and sciences, and communication), the Graduate School, and the Kellogg School of Management. The Chicago campus is home to the schools of medicine and law. The new Doha campus, in Qatar, offers an undergraduate program in journalism and communication.

The School of Communication

The School of Communication has five departments and offers a suite of interdisciplinary undergraduate, professional, and graduate programs. The departments span the communication arts and sciences and include the Roxelyn and Richard Pepper Department of Communication Sciences and Disorders, the Department of Communication Studies, the Department of Radio-Television-Film, the Department of Performance Studies, and the Department of Theatre (which includes music theatre and dance). The faculty of 150 includes 105 tenure-track faculty. The school offers instruction to roughly 1200 undergraduate majors and 700 graduate and professional students.

Founded over 135 years ago, the School has been a leader in developing the communication disciplines and professions, and continues to be

Owen L. Coon Professor of Policy Analysis and Communication

The candidate we seek will be suitable for an appointment to an endowed professorship at the rank of associate professor or professor with tenure in the Department of Communication Studies at Northwestern University. The ideal candidate will have a high impact program of research on the role of communications in shaping public policy and decision-making (in any number of substantive policy domains: science policy, environmental policy, health policy, etc.) and will have made significant contributions to the practice of strategic communication. He or she will have an interdisciplinary profile with activity in two or more of the following disciplines: media studies, rhetorical and communication theory, journalism, political science, sociology of media and/or technology, and public policy studies. We hope to find a candidate with facility in multiple methodologies to advance knowledge in this area, including both qualitative and quantitative social scientific methods. We expect all candidates for tenured positions to present a record of achievement as a teacher and mentor for both undergraduate and graduate students.

Candidates must hold a doctorate or other terminal degree in their discipline, have proven administrative competence and experience, have demonstrated scholarly and teaching achievement of the highest quality, and have developed an international reputation and impact. We prefer a candidate whose background spans more than one area of study within the field of communication and/or cognate disciplines.

Applications and timeline

Applicants should send a letter of application, CV, sample publications, evidence of teaching effectiveness, and names of six confidential references to the Faculty Recruiting System located at the following link: <https://facultyrecruiting.northwestern.edu/apply/MzU4>

Inquiries and nominations can be addressed in confidence (e-mails preferred) to:

Department of Communication Studies
Northwestern University
2240 Campus Drive
Evanston, Illinois 60208
commstudies@northwestern.edu

Starting date for the appointment is negotiable but will not be later than September 1, 2020. Salary is negotiable and commensurate with experience, qualifications, and rank. For full consideration, applications or nominations should be received prior to January 15, 2019. Review of materials will begin February 1, 2019 and continue until the position is filled.

Northwestern University is an Affirmative Action, Equal Opportunity Employer. Women and minorities are encouraged to apply. Hiring is contingent on eligibility to work in the United States.

University of Oxford

Rank: Associate Professor in International Relations in association with Somerville College

Subfield(s): International Relations, Methodology, Other

The Department of Politics and International Relations (DPIR) at Oxford is an internationally renowned centre of excellence for teaching and research. The study of these disciplines at Oxford has a long and distinguished history and the department is one of the largest in the field in the UK.

The Department, in association with Somerville College, now seeks to appoint an inspirational teacher and accomplished research scholar to an Associate Professorship in International Relations. This post is full-time, and subject to completion of a successful review, permanent. In making this appointment, the College and the University share the goal of developing and strengthening the teaching and research capabilities of both the College and the Department of Politics and International Relations, as well as helping to maintain Oxford University's position as a world-leading centre for teaching and research in the subject.

This joint appointment will be based in the Department of Politics and International Relations and in Somerville College, both in Oxford city centre. The post will be held in conjunction with a Tutorial Fellowship at Somerville College. It is expected that the new appointee will take up this post at the beginning of the 2019/20 academic year. Applications are welcomed from outstanding candidates with research and teaching expertise in any major aspects of the academic study of International Relations, and a proven record of success in obtaining research funding. We are open with respect to theoretical and methodological approaches.

The successful candidate will be expected to engage in advanced study and research, to conduct and publish outstanding research, to give high-quality tutorials, classes, and lectures in International Relations at both undergraduate and graduate level, and to provide high-quality graduate and doctoral supervision. Candidates must have a proven record of relevant teaching experience in International Relations and a viable strategy for on-going top-quality research. A completed doctorate in International Relations and/or Political Science or an associated field with a proven ability to contribute to the Department's research environment and output will be further essential criteria for this post. The Associate Professor will be a member of both the University and the College. She or he will be part of a strong and vibrant research community and will have access to the excellent research facilities and comprehensive support (including mentoring and research support) which Oxford offers: Salary on the scale within the range £47,263 to £63,463 p.a. (plus £8,932 taxable and pensionable College housing allowance if living outside College, and other benefits). Associate professors who are awarded the title of full professor may receive from the University an additional salary payment of £2,754 per annum. The duties and skills required are described in more detail in the further particulars (vacancy reference 138074). These also contain information on additional salary benefits and the comprehensive range of non-salary benefits available to Oxford staff, and details of how to apply for this post.

If you would like to discuss this post and find out more about joining the academic community at Oxford, please contact the DPIR Personnel Office at vacancies@politics.ox.ac.uk. All enquiries will be treated in strict confidence and will not form part of the selection decision. Candidates are also welcome to contact Professor Andrew Hurrell (andrew.hurrell@politics.ox.ac.uk) for an informal discussion of this post.

The closing date for applications is 12:00 noon UK time on Thursday, 10th January 2019.

Applications are particularly welcome from women and black and minority ethnic candidates, who are underrepresented in academic posts in Oxford

The DSP is designed to support data science, data analytics, statistics, computational social science, and digital humanities across the university community. This position will play an integral role in the growth and development of the DSP. Candidates from a broad range of social science and social science-related disciplines are encouraged to apply (including, but not limited to: African and African-American Studies, Anthropology, Communication, Economics, Library and Information Studies, Native American Studies, Political Science, Psychology, Social Work, and Sociology). The position will begin in August 2019. The teaching load will be dependent upon the usual teaching load of hiring department.

The successful candidate is expected to become a leader within a highly collaborative interdisciplinary research and teaching community. We are looking for a social scientist doing innovative work (i.e., machine learning, text analysis, network analysis, data visualization, etc.) and/or utilizing novel datasets (linked, messy, unstructured, in-the-wild, real-time, or based on novel collection methods) that will magnify existing OU strengths. The ideal candidate should be fluent in emerging areas of Big Data social sciences, such as high-dimensional models and the use of “online field experiments”; acquiring “data in the wild” or using unconventional data sources to investigate human behavior or perceptions; and/or developing innovative data collection techniques or statistical methods. Successful candidates will be expected to apply for extramural funding, including participating in collaborative proposals, such as from the DoD, NSF, and NIH, and private sources.

This hire will address critical needs of OU students for additional training in data analytics and data-driven research, from introductory to advanced levels, to meet the high and growing demand for a work force with data-related skills, particularly those who can ground their analyses in core areas of interest to social scientists. We are looking for teaching expertise in the areas of: basic computing for social scientists, advanced courses in the substantive domain of the candidate, and courses in quantitative analyses and statistical methodologies.

Required Qualifications

A doctoral degree in a social science or any related discipline.
An established, active, and productive research program.
Experience with computational tools and/or “Big Data” methods for analyzing and/or visualizing data.

Preferred Qualifications

Knowledge and skills essential to Big Data/computational social science project development and completion, including but not limited to skills related to developing and managing large or non-conventional datasets, machine or statistical learning and/or causal inference, data analysis and visualization, and/or mining textual, visual, or aural data. Evidence of excellence in teaching that engages students in Big Data/computational social science skill development.
Application of large datasets or data science methods to address questions of interest in the social sciences.
A sustained research program and a record of top-tier, peer-reviewed or other high-impact scholarly publications.
Experience with collaborative, cross-disciplinary research and a record of extramural funding.
Leadership in research, instruction, and/or service.

The salary is competitive and commensurate with qualifications and experience. The University of Oklahoma offers an excellent benefits program. For further information please access the Human Resources website at <http://hr.ou.edu/>.

The University of Oklahoma (OU) is a Carnegie-R1 comprehensive public research university known for excellence in teaching, research, and community engagement, serving the educational, cultural, economic and health-care needs of the state, region, and nation from three campuses: Norman, Health Sciences Center in Oklahoma City and the Schusterman Center in Tulsa.

Application Instructions

Applications should be submitted to <http://apply.interfolio.com/56639> and should include a cover letter, curriculum vitae; three letters of reference; a statement of research interests and how the candidate would contribute to research and teaching in the development of a data scholarship program. Review of applications will begin December 31, 2018, and will continue until the position is filled. Questions about the position may be directed to the chair of the search committee, Dr. Carol L Silva at <mailto:clsilva@ou.edu>.

Michigan State University

Rank: Professor-Tenure System-Open

The College of Social Sciences at Michigan State University (MSU) invites applications for a tenure system position at the Associate Professor or Professor level to serve as Director of Social Science Data Analytics (SSDA).

We seek a dynamic, talented Director who is using new technologies and large-scale data in creative and diverse ways to foster knowledge about the social world and who is able to contribute, in meaningful ways, to promoting an environment in which individuals of differing perspectives, and cultural backgrounds pursue academic goals with mutual respect and shared inquiry. The subject area and tenure home for the position is open. The successful applicant could specialize in Economics, Geography, Political Science, Psychology, Sociology, Criminal Justice, or other social science disciplines.

The Director will play a key leadership role in overseeing SSDA, identifying and chartering strategic advancements for the College in data analytics, and enhancing the methodological training of its students. The College looks forward to continuing its support for the Social Science Data Analytics program, which includes the SSDA hub office space for multiple post-doctoral and graduate assistantships and funding programs and events that further collaboration, diversification, and training within the College.

A successful candidate is expected to have a publication record in utilizing data analytic methods to answer basic or applied social questions, a track record of external funding with plans for future funding, and experience in developing or managing an academic program or collaboration effort. We seek candidates with experience in applying either Bayesian methodologies, statistical learning, geospatial prediction, text analytics, causal inference, network analysis, data visualization, or related techniques.

The ideal Director candidate would have an ability to serve in a leadership role, overseeing and managing SSDA. This Director would have a vision for SSDA's role, advocating for the value of social science in data analytics, bringing together SSDA-affiliated faculty members from within the College of Social Science, as well as from other colleges. The Director will help to strengthen the College's integration and utilization of MSU's data analytic initiatives, such as the Department of Computational Mathematics, Science, and Engineering and the Institute for Cyber-Enabled Research within the College of Natural Sciences, and the Center for Business and Social Analytics jointly administered with the College of Social Science and the Eli Broad College of Business. We also seek experience creating an inclusive research, teaching, and mentoring environment in order to reach those without substantial prior training and to integrate data analytic training among our graduate and undergraduate programs for all students, including our College's minor in Social Science Data Analytics. Such efforts will seek to grow our data analytic community and enhance its diversity.

MSU is an affirmative action, equal opportunity employer. MSU is committed to achieving excellence through cultural diversity. The university actively encourages applications and/or nominations of women, persons of color, veterans, and persons with disabilities and individuals from other underrepresented groups that can diversify the impact of data analytics across the university mission.

You must apply for this position online at careers.msu.edu, posting number 547201. Please submit your curriculum vitae, letter of interest, a statement addressing how past and/or potential contributions to diversity/inclusion will advance MSU's commitment to inclusive excellence, two or three samples of written work, and a list of three references that we may contact.

MSU is located in East Lansing, MI, with easy access to the state capital, Lake Michigan, and great school districts. The University is pro-active in exploring opportunities for employment for dual career couples, both inside and outside the University. Information about MSU's dual career support can be found at <http://miwin.msu.edu/>

Review of applications will begin on January 2, 2019 and continue until the position is filled. For more information please contact Corwin Smidt at smidtc@msu.edu

Vienna School of International Studies

Rank: Postdoctoral Fellow in International Studies

Subfield(s): International Relations, Methodology, Other

The Vienna School of International Studies (Diplomatische Akademie Wien) is proposing the appointment of three Postdoctoral Fellows in International Studies for two years, from 23 September 2019. Geared towards promoting the professional development of the appointee, he/she will focus on his/her own research and do a limited amount of graduate teaching.

The successful candidate must hold – or have evidence of the imminent completion of – a doctorate in Economics, History, Law or Political Science. Our School interprets International Studies broadly. Applications from all these disciplines, including candidates with area expertise (such as European Studies) are welcome. A record of research achievement at the international level, a strong agenda for future research and previous teaching experience – preferably at graduate level – are essential.

The Vienna School of International Studies is a professional school, specialized in the interdisciplinary training of graduate students, and an associate member of APSIA. The presence of international organizations in Vienna makes for excellent research opportunities, in particular for research dealing with diplomacy, governance and multilateralism broadly defined.

The closing date for applications is Sunday, 20 January 2019, midnight.

Depending on seniority and experience, the postdoctoral fellow will be offered a yearly salary (before taxes and social security contribution) between EUR 36.000 and 39.000.

Please apply online at <https://application.da-vienna.ac.at/postdoc/Application>. Your curriculum vitae, your research agenda (5-10 pages), and teaching documentation (e.g. syllabi of courses taught, student evaluations, statement on teaching philosophy, etc) may be sent to us by e-mail (genny.chiarandon@da-vienna.ac.at) or mail (Genny Chiarandon, Vienna School of International Studies, Favoritenstrasse 15a, 1040 Vienna, Austria). Please also make sure that we receive three letters of recommendation (e-mailed directly by your referees/dossier service, or mailed in a sealed envelope).

Analytics and Modeling

Department of Defense Analysis
Naval Postgraduate School, Monterey, CA

The Department of Defense Analysis at the Naval Postgraduate School, Monterey, California, is seeking to fill a tenure-track position, open as to rank, in operational modeling and analytical decision-making methods. The preferred candidate will have teaching experience at the undergraduate level, at a minimum, and a publication record in deterministic and stochastic modeling, and either data analytics or game theory, preferably with defense-relevant applications. The candidate must have an interest in interdisciplinary research and willingness to work with a cross-disciplinary faculty in the areas of irregular warfare, campaign design, network analysis, operational art, and strategic decision-making. Evidence of the ability to pursue a program of innovative research and a strong commitment to and interest in graduate education is required. Position responsibilities include teaching, research, and thesis oversight. NPS follows a quarter system, and the normal teaching workload for tenure-track faculty is four courses per year.

The Naval Postgraduate School is located on the central coast of California in Monterey, 115 miles south of the heart of San Francisco. NPS provides graduate education to an average at any given time of 1,500 resident military officers of the uniformed services, Department of Defense civilians, and members of the international defense community, as well as other select professionals employed by the federal government.

The Department of Defense Analysis offers an MS in Defense Analysis and an MS in Information Strategy and Political Warfare. Home to an average of 150 in-residence graduate students, a cross-disciplinary teaching and research faculty of 40 personnel, and three research centers, the Department of Defense Analysis provides the critical thinking skills necessary for future national security leaders to deal with the complex operating environments of the 21st Century. Yale University

Rank: Openings for Assistant, Associate, and Full Professor Positions

Yale University's Department of Statistics and Data Science invites applications for open rank faculty positions to start in July 2019. The Department seeks outstanding researchers having expertise in both theory and applications, with significant interests in working with real data.

The hiring committee especially encourages applications from scholars working in the areas of machine learning, computational social sciences, and text analysis.

The Department is growing, and has recently hired four new faculty, with research interests spanning statistical theory, machine learning, algorithms for cryo-electron microscope imaging, ethics and fairness in machine learning, and political science.

Yale recently announced five priority areas for investment in science, one of which is to establish a University-wide Institute for Integrative Data Science and its Mathematical Foundations. The Institute will foster collaboration between many different components of the University, bringing together faculty and students across the sciences, social sciences, medical school, arts and humanities. New faculty in the Department of Statistics and Data Science will have an opportunity to play a key role in establishing this new institute, where machine learning is expected to be an area of focus.

The Department has a growing Ph.D. program, and a new undergraduate major in Statistics and Data Science that has 120 majors, including 45 seniors, in only its second year. Excellence in teaching is valued, and new faculty will have opportunities to design courses that align with their research interests.

Applications submitted by December 15, 2018 will be given highest priority. Candidates should hold a PhD or equivalent degree in a field related to Statistics and Data Science at time of employment.

Applicants should submit their curriculum vitae, a research statement, teaching statement, and arrange for the submission of at least three letters of recommendation. Please apply at <http://apply.interfolio.com/55724>.

More information about the department may be found at <http://sds.yale.edu>. Questions regarding the application process can be sent to sds.searches@yale.edu.

Yale is an affirmative action equal opportunity employer. Yale values diversity among its students, staff, and faculty and strongly welcomes applications from women, persons with disabilities, underrepresented minorities, and protected veterans.

College of Charleston

Rank: Assistant Professor of Political Science (Urban Geography)

The Department of Political Science at the College of Charleston invites applications for a tenure track assistant professor position in Urban Geography, to begin in August 2019. The successful candidate will teach introductory and upper level classes in geography and contribute to the Political Science department's Geography Minor (<http://geography-minor.cofc.edu/>) and the Master of Public Administration program (<http://puba.cofc.edu/>). The position requires teaching GIS courses at the undergraduate and graduate level. At the graduate level, instruction will include at least one course in the urban certificate. A PhD in Geography or a related field is required at the time of appointment. Primary teaching and advising responsibilities will be in the undergraduate political science program (four courses per academic year), with additional responsibilities at the graduate level (two courses per academic year). The successful candidate will be expected to maintain an active research agenda and be involved in service.

The College of Charleston is a public, liberal arts and sciences institution with approximately 10,000 undergraduate students and 1,100 graduate students. The Political Science Department has 20 fulltime faculty, approximately 360 undergraduate majors (<http://polisci.cofc.edu/>), and a Geography Minor. The department also supports a Master of Public Administration and Master of Science in Environmental Studies (<http://mes.cofc.edu/>) program. The College is located in historic downtown Charleston in a coastal metropolitan area of 750,000. Additional information about the institution and the surrounding area is available at <https://www.cofc.edu/>. Applicants should apply online at <https://jobs.cofc.edu/> and submit a cover letter, a curriculum vita, graduate transcripts, sample publication/example of scholarly research, a teaching portfolio (with evidence of teaching effectiveness including, but not limited to course syllabi and course evaluations), and contact information for three references. Questions about the search can be directed to the search committee chair, Dr. Annette Watson (watsonam@cofc.edu). Review of applications will begin December 1, 2018 and continue until the position is filled.

The College of Charleston is an Affirmative Action/Equal Opportunity employer and does not discriminate against any individual or group on the basis of gender, sexual orientation, gender identity or expression, age, race, color, religion, national origin, veteran status, genetic information, or disability.

Fletcher School at Tufts University

Rank: ASSISTANT PROFESSOR IN CYBERSECURITY POLICY

The Fletcher School of Law and Diplomacy, established in 1933 as the first exclusively graduate school of international affairs in the United States, Tufts University, seeks applications for a tenure-track position in cybersecurity policy beginning in September 2019. The Fletcher School is actively building a program in cybersecurity and policy in conjunction with the Tufts School of Engineering, Department of Computer Science. Our hire will be a scholar in the areas of international relations, security studies, public policy, information science, or international law with expertise in cybersecurity policy. Scholars of engineering combined with public policy or other fields, such as economics or business, with expertise in both cybersecurity and policy or international politics are also of interest.

The Fletcher School's faculty is multi-disciplinary with a focus on preparing tomorrow's leaders with a global perspective. The School undertakes research and prepares masters and doctoral students to use the latest political, business, economic, and legal thinking, among others, to generate pragmatic policies or make executive decisions that will successfully shape global events. We seek a candidate who will thrive in working in this interdisciplinary area and who will be happy to teach both Fletcher masters students in international studies as well as a combination of Fletcher masters students and undergraduates in political science, IR, and computer science.

Responsibilities will include maintaining an active research program with promise of research excellence, teaching at the masters level, and graduate-level advising, as well as contributing to various faculty service responsibilities at The Fletcher School and its intellectual community.

The Fletcher School fosters a community that embraces and celebrates a wide range of backgrounds and perspectives, including those defined by age, race, ethnicity, sex, gender identity, sexual orientation, physical abilities/qualities, country of origin, religion, culture, socio-economic status, and political views. The School strives to ensure that the Fletcher community is representative, follows best practices and creates a climate of inclusion. Members of underrepresented groups are welcome and strongly encouraged to apply.

QUALIFICATIONS

A Ph.D. in political science, international relations, public policy, or information science, or a JD is preferred, but candidates with PhDs in related fields, so long as their expertise lies in cybersecurity policy, are encouraged to apply.

Applicants should send a cover letter, curriculum vitae, 1-2 writing samples, research plan (maximum 3 pages), statement of teaching experience and classes interested in teaching and/or developing (maximum 2 pages), and 3 letters of reference. All application materials should be submitted online at <http://apply.interfolio.com/57317>.

University of Delaware

Rank: Assistant or Associate Professor & Faculty Coordinator

The Associate in Arts Program (AAP) at the University of Delaware seeks to hire a continuing track faculty member at the rank of Assistant or Associate Professor to serve as Faculty Coordinator of the Wilmington Campus. We welcome applicants with disciplinary or interdisciplinary specialization in any of the academic departments housed within the College of Arts & Sciences.

The Faculty Coordinator will provide leadership for the UD-AAP Wilmington Campus, home to more than 400 students; serve as administrator for nine full time and more than thirty part time faculty; and report to the AAP Director. Candidates for this position must possess a doctoral degree and should demonstrate experience and expertise in administration, skill at leading faculty, and proficiency at empowering students from historically underrepresented groups as they work to achieve their fullest potential in higher education. The successful candidate will have an excellent record as an instructor and be expected to teach two classes per semester in their discipline, including introductory courses and possibly higher level courses where appropriate. The faculty coordinator will also be responsible for hiring adjunct instructors; collaborating with faculty and staff members to schedule courses; leading campus events, including recruitment, orientation, campus welcome and convocation; and liaising with university wide entities, advisement, community partners and city leaders. Administrative responsibilities and compensation will extend into the summer.

The UD AAP offers an associate degree curriculum on campuses in Wilmington, Dover and Georgetown, Delaware. Its faculty teach coursework in humanities, history, the social and behavioral sciences, natural sciences, and languages. AAP students constitute a racially and socioeconomically diverse body of learners, the majority of whom go on to pursue majors in all seven colleges on the University of Delaware's main campus in Newark. AAP students enjoy an uninterrupted transition from the AAP to a bachelor's degree program in the junior year. AAP faculty commit a majority of their time and effort to preparing students to succeed in their transition to bachelor's degree programs or to the workforce. Continuing track faculty have opportunities to pursue research, are eligible for promotion and sabbaticals, and receive full and generous benefits as part of their compensation package.

Applicants must submit: (1) a current curriculum vita; (2) a cover letter summarizing their interest, qualifications and leadership philosophy; (3) a teaching statement, including a description of future teaching interests; (4) a statement on diversity and inclusion; (5) graduate transcripts; and (6) contact information for three references (references will not be contacted prior to notifying the candidate). Candidates should ensure that their materials address the qualifications stated above. Review of applications will begin on November 30, 2018 and will continue until the position is filled. Those interested should apply through Interfolio at: <http://www.udel.edu/faculty-staff/human-resources/careers/faculty-jobs/>. Please direct questions, but not application materials, to Dr. David Teague, Search Committee Chair (teague@udel.edu).

University of Notre Dame

Subfield(s): Comparative Politics, International Relations, Other

The University of Notre Dame's Keough School of Global Affairs invites applications for a faculty position in global education, with a preference for scholars whose work and interests include a focus on the intersection of education and development or international and comparative education policy. Scholars engaged in rigorous social science research from a variety of disciplines – economics, political science, sociology, education, and others – will be considered. Applicants should have an interest in interdisciplinary cooperation. Applicants attracted to a university with a Catholic identity are especially encouraged to apply. While priority will be given to consideration of junior candidates (ABD, postdoc, assistant professors or non-tenured associate professors), senior applicants may also be considered. Ph.D. or equivalent terminal degree required at the time of hire.

Qualifications

The successful hire will be based in the Keough School of Global Affairs, with affiliations in the Kellogg Institute for International Studies and in Notre Dame's Institute for Educational Initiatives. Oriented toward research, teaching, and service dedicated to the advancement of integral human development, the Keough School (<http://keough.nd.edu/>) promotes interdisciplinary research on critical issues in global affairs, offers a master's degree, and supports undergraduate and doctoral programs. The Kellogg Institute for International Studies (<http://kellogg.nd.edu/>) has for over 35 years been a leading center for interdisciplinary research and programming on issues of democracy and human development. The Institute for Educational Initiatives (<http://iei.nd.edu/>) provides a home for nearly one hundred faculty fellows from across the University whose research and teaching interests focus on K-12 education, with a particular interest in Catholic education. Joint or concurrent appointments in the appropriate departments are also possible. Applicants should have an affirmative interest in contributing to the joint Kellogg Institute/Institute for Educational Initiative Research Cluster in International Education (<https://kellogg.nd.edu/research-cluster-international-education>).

Application Instructions

All applicants are required to submit a letter of interest and a C.V. Junior candidates (ABD, postdoc, assistant or non-tenured associate professors) should also arrange for the submission of three confidential letters of reference. Apply here: <https://apply.interfolio.com/54487>

Fellowship period: September 2019 - August 2021

Application deadline: January 15, 2019

The Weiser Center for Emerging Democracies (WCED) at the University of Michigan invites scholars who have received their Ph.D. since 2017 to apply for the WCED Postdoctoral Fellowship. This two-year fellowship supports multidisciplinary research on the broad historical, political, economic, and societal conditions under which democracy and autocracy either emerge and endure or falter and fail.

Up to two awards are available for the 2019-21 fellowship. WCED Postdoctoral Fellows are expected to focus on their own research, participate in occasional WCED workshops and events, and present at least one public lecture during their two-year fellowship, while in full-time residence at the University of Michigan, Ann Arbor. A teaching opportunity may be possible during the second year of the fellowship, if desired.

We welcome applicants from all disciplines, though the majority of past applicants and Fellows have come from political science, sociology, and history. Fellows must have successfully defended and filed their dissertation before beginning the fellowship. Eligibility is restricted to those who have received their Ph.D. after January 1, 2017.

Fellowships carry an annual salary of $50,000 and up to $7,000 in research funds during the post-doctoral appointment. Fellowship recipients will be eligible for U-M health, dental, and life insurance options (beginning September 1, 2019 through August 31, 2021). Fellows have full access to U-M library resources.

Candidates will be required to submit:

- A two-page research plan that outlines the research project and how the fellow will spend his/her time during the fellowship year.
- Curriculum Vitae.
- A scholarly writing sample, such as a dissertation chapter, conference paper, or journal article.
- Two letters of recommendation.

Fellowship applications must be received by January 15, 2019, 11:59 pm EST. Applicants will be notified in March 2019.

University of New England

Rank: Assistant Professor, International Relations and Global Studies

The Department of Political Science at the University of New England is searching for tenure-track Assistant Professor in International Relations and Global Studies beginning in the 2019-2020 academic year.

The ideal candidate will offer a range of introductory and advanced level courses in international relations, depending on the candidate's interest and expertise. The candidate will also teach Introduction to Global Studies and help guide students interested in the Global Studies major. The ability to teach in another sub-field, especially American or Comparative Politics, would be of additional value to the department. Political science courses at UNE are generally taught in a seminar style, with an emphasis on high-engagement with students.

We seek a well-rounded teacher-scholar with a promising research agenda. The department values research that crosses traditional disciplinary boundaries to address original and important questions. Service to the University and a strong commitment to academic advising and student mentorship is expected.

Candidates must have a Ph.D. in Political Sciences or related field at the time of appointment.

Review of applications will begin September 25, 2018 and will continue until the position is filled. To apply for the position, please visit <https://une.peopleadmin.com/postings/4912>

UNE has a beautiful campus ocean-side in Biddeford, Maine. It is 20 minutes away from Portland, one of the country's most livable cities. The political science department is small, but vibrant. We value great teachers and scholars.

New York University Abu Dhabi

Rank: Computational Social Science Professor - Open Rank

The Social Science Division at New York University Abu Dhabi (NYUAD) is inviting applications for full time faculty positions in Computational Social Sciences, from senior scholars – at the rank of associate and full professors – and exceptional early career scholars.

We encourage applications from all excellent candidates in any field answering social-science questions, as long as they have a strong focus on (big) data collection and visualization; data management and analysis techniques such as machine learning, text analysis, network science/analysis, spatial data analysis/GIS.

All candidates should demonstrate important contributions to their area of research as evidenced e.g. by significant publications in top international academic journals and a history of acquiring third party funding, as well as the ability to mentor and collaborate with a group of junior social scientists.

NYUAD expects successful candidates to continue to publish in high quality internationally refereed journals. The position features a standard teaching load of three courses per year. The terms of employment are very competitive and include generous start-up and on-going research funds, as well as housing subsidies and educational subsidies for children. Faculty may also spend an occasional semester at NYU New York and other sites of the Global Network, engaging in both research and teaching activities.

The review of applications will occur on a rolling basis. Shortlisted candidates will be invited for campus visits to NYU Abu Dhabi throughout the 18/19 Academic Year. We anticipate that successful candidates will start employment on August 15, 2019, subject to final budget approval.

Applicants should submit a curriculum vitae, a statement of research plans, a statement of teaching interests and three representative publications. To complete the online process, early career applicants will be prompted to enter the names and email addresses of at least three referees. Each referee will be contacted to upload their reference letter. Senior candidates should provide a list of three references in PDF format.

About NYUAD

New York University has established itself as a Global Network University. The network has three foundational degree-granting campuses: New York, Abu Dhabi, and Shanghai, complemented by a network of eleven research and study-away sites across five continents. Our students are drawn from around the world and surpass all traditional recruitment benchmarks, both US and global. Our goal is to develop a cohort of international students attuned to and educated for an inclusive global society. Students and Faculty will circulate within the global network in pursuit of common research interests and the promotion of cross-cultural and interdisciplinary solutions for problems both local and global.

Since its inception NYU Abu Dhabi has recruited a cohort of faculty who are distinguished in their research and teaching. NYU Abu Dhabi's highly selective liberal arts enterprise is complemented by an institute for advanced research, sponsoring cutting-edge projects across the Arts, Humanities, Social Sciences, Sciences, and Engineering. The Institute will invest significant funds in creating a hub for research related to social, economic, and political development in the broader region; applications from candidates with an ambition to contribute to this agenda are especially welcome.

UAE Nationals are encouraged to apply.

University of California, San Diego

Subfield(s): International Relations, Methodology, Other

The Center for Peace and Security Studies (cPASS - <http://cpass.ucsd.edu/>) has two postdoctoral positions available for the 2018-2019 academic year. Each position is also renewable at the discretion of the cPASS Director. Research at cPASS targets new and emerging security issues such as emerging modes of conflict and new modes of deterrence. cPASS is devoted to applying innovative thinking and diverse methodologies (experiments, deductive modeling, statistical analysis, case studies, archival research and “big data”) to traditional security issues made more dynamic and difficult by the increased complexity of interstate competition and conflict. We emphasize a team-based, multi-method approach to research that combines qualitative and quantitative perspectives.

Postdocs will work closely with the Center Director in conducting cPASS research activities such as data collection, analysis, preparing project reports and manuscripts for peer-reviewed journals, preparing and delivering oral presentations to diverse audiences, overseeing qualitative research or supervising project labs, and mentoring graduate and undergraduate research activities.

Applicants are required to have a PhD in hand at the time of appointment. A degree in Political Science, History, International Relations, Economics, or allied field is anticipated but other specialties may be appropriate, depending on an applicant’s interests and skills. Candidates will be assessed based on their expertise and knowledge of different key aspects of security studies and their ability to contribute to a diversified, integrated research team.

The initial period of appointment will be for 12 months from the date of appointment. Renewal is possible with the approval of the Center Director. Some flexibility exists as to start date, but candidates should expect to be in residence in San Diego throughout the appointment. Salary will be commensurate with qualifications and experience.

Interested applicants should provide a letter describing their qualifications and the reasons for interest in the position. A printed copy of a curriculum vitae is also required. Additional materials may be requested after initial review. Please send all materials to the following email address (jml110@ucsd.edu). Please ensure to include the phrase “cPASS Postdoc Fellow” in the subject heading. Review of applications will be ongoing.

University of Richmond

Subfield(s): Political Theory, Public Law, International Relations

Specializations: Political Philosophy & Theory, Leadership Studies, Political Thought: Historical

The University of Richmond's Jepson School of Leadership Studies invites applications for a visiting position as the Zuzana Simoniova Cmelikova Visiting International Scholar in Leadership and Ethics for the 2019-20 academic year.

This position, made possible by a generous gift from the Ukrop family, is designed to give visiting scholars with extensive international experience the opportunity to conduct research, develop courses, and/or design programs on leadership ethics. The Visiting International Scholar will pursue his or her own advanced research related to leadership and ethics; and actively contribute to the intellectual life of the School and University through meaningful interactions with faculty including presenting his or her research and/or issues related to leadership in their country.

Visiting international scholars may be new Ph.D.s or experienced scholars who hold a Ph.D. in an academic area related to the study of leadership and ethics. Scholars from newly formed democracies are especially encouraged to apply. Applicants should explain in a cover letter how their research, teaching, and future plans relate to the scholarship that they would pursue as a visitor at the Jepson School.

Inaugurated in 1992, the Jepson School of Leadership Studies is an independent academic unit of the University and offers students the opportunity to major or minor in Leadership Studies. With the aim of educating students for and about leadership, the Jepson School offers an intellectually challenging liberal arts curriculum delivered by means of a rigorous and innovative pedagogy.

The University of Richmond is a private university located just a short drive from downtown Richmond, Virginia. Through its five schools and wide array of campus programming, the University combines the best qualities of a small liberal arts college and a large university. With nearly 4,000 students, an 8:1 student-faculty ratio, and 92% of traditional undergraduate students living on campus, the University is remarkably student-centered, focused on preparing students "to live lives of purpose, thoughtful inquiry, and responsible leadership in a global and pluralistic society."

The University of Richmond is committed to developing a diverse workforce and student body, and to modeling an inclusive campus community which values the expression of difference in ways that promote excellence in teaching, learning, personal development, and institutional success. Our academic community strongly encourages applications that are in keeping with this commitment. For more information on the department and its programs, please see <https://jepson.richmond.edu/>.

Applicants should apply online at <http://jobs.richmond.edu> and submit a cover letter, curriculum vitae, one-page research plan, and writing sample. In addition, please include the names of three references who will receive an email asking them to submit their reference letters to the University's Human Resources department at URHR@richmond.edu. Review of applications will commence February 1, 2019; the deadline for applications is March 15, 2019.

Full/Associate/Assistant Professor of Political Science
 Political Science/Public Administration
 (Ref. No.: FSS/DGPA/11/2018)

The University of Macau (UM) is the flagship public university in Macao, which gives it a unique advantage in pursuing the goal of becoming a world-class university with regional characteristics. English is the working language. In recent years, UM has made significant progress and has gained increasing international recognition for its teaching, research, and community service. To better support higher education development in Macao and to meet society's ever-increasing demand for high-quality professionals, UM in 2014 relocated to the current campus which covers approximately 1.09 km². The large campus, the implementation of Asia's largest residential college system, the unique '4-in-1' education model combine to provide a multifaceted education to students to help them achieve well-rounded development. In addition to adopting a governance and management system in line with international standards and practices, UM recruits outstanding scholars worldwide to create a multilingual and multicultural learning environment for students. Recently, UM has appointed a world renowned scholar as Rector to lead the University in its next stage of development. With the new Rector's rich experience in higher education management and global vision, as well as the new developments and initiatives of the University, UM is faced with unprecedented opportunities and provides exciting new possibilities for professional development.

The Department of Government and Public Administration of the Faculty of Social Sciences invites applications for Full/Associate/Assistant Professor in the discipline of political science and public administration.

The Department of Government and Public Administration is currently comprised of 17 full-time staff members and offers programmes leading to Bachelor's, Master's and PhD degrees. Faculty members actively engage in research with particular focus on comparative politics, public administration and policy, international relations, and studies of the greater China regions. More information about the Department is available at the UM website: <http://www.um.edu.mo/fss/pa/>.

Qualifications

The area of specialization is open, but preference will be given to individuals with research and teaching expertise in international relations, international political economy and comparative politics, and for those with rich administrative experiences. Appointment may be at Full, Associate or Assistant Professor rank, depending on qualifications. Applicants must have a PhD in a relevant field and a proven record of publication in high caliber international journals and presses. Applicants should demonstrate a strong commitment to quality research and scholarship and documented excellence in teaching at both the graduate and undergraduate levels. Applicants must be able to lecture and publish research in English. Ability to speak Chinese may be considered an advantage, but is not a prerequisite for appointment.

The selected candidate is expected to assume duty in August 2019.

Position and Remuneration

Remuneration and appointment rank offered will be competitive and commensurate with the successful applicants' academic qualification, current position and professional experience. The current local maximum income tax rate is 12% but is effectively around 5% - 7% after various discretionary exemptions.

Application Procedure

Applicants should visit <https://career.admo.um.edu.mo/> for more details, and apply ONLINE. Review of applications will commence immediately and continue until the position is filled. Applicants may consider their applications not successful if they are not invited for an interview within 3 months of application.

St Olaf College

Rank: Public Affairs Postdoctoral Fellow

Specializations: Political Philosophy & Theory, Political Theory, Political Thought: Historical

The Institute for Freedom and Community (IFC) and the Philosophy Department at St. Olaf College invite applications for a two-year Post Doctoral Fellowship, beginning on August 15, 2019 and concluding on August 14, 2021. In this first run of the fellows program the Fellow will be housed within the Philosophy Department and will contribute jointly to the Philosophy Department and to the core activities of the IFC. Post-Doctoral Fellows will teach 3 courses per year, pursue their own scholarly research, participate in various IFC-sponsored events on campus, and contribute through their teaching and scholarly activities to intellectual diversity and substantial student engagement with American public affairs on campus.

We seek candidates with primary specialization in areas of philosophy that have a substantial bearing on contemporary American public affairs, including social/political philosophy, history of social/political ideas, philosophy of social science/economics, or relevant areas of ethics. We welcome applications from candidates in political science departments with expertise in political theory and/or philosophy. We are particularly interested in applicants who will contribute to the Philosophy Department's commitment to increasing access and opportunities for populations that are currently under-represented in the field. In their letters of application, candidates should address their potential to contribute to the diversity of people and perspectives at the College.

Each year, candidates will teach the fall semester of the year-long IFC-sponsored Public Affairs Conversation. The fall semester looks at the evolution of contested ideals in American politics (e.g. freedom and equality) through the history of the republic, and engages a range of contemporary normative perspectives that provide the foundation for contemporary debates. The spring semester integrates normative and empirical analysis of a range of contemporary public policy issues. In both semesters, the program is supplemented by co-curricular activities and events. In addition to teaching the fall semester of the Public Affairs Conversation each year, Candidates will also teach two courses per year in the Philosophy Department that would contribute to the IFC's mission of supporting intellectually diverse critical engagement on campus.

Established at St. Olaf in 2015, The Institute for Freedom and Community (<https://institute.stolaf.edu/>) is an inter-disciplinary organization which seeks to promote free inquiry and meaningful debate of important American political and social issues across ideological divisions. By exploring diverse ideas about politics, markets, and society, The IFC aims to challenge presuppositions, question easy answers, and foster constructive dialogue among those with differing values and contending points of view.

The Philosophy Department comprises nine faculty who teach and research across a broad range of the discipline. The Department prides itself both on its devotion to teaching and its robust research environment. The Department hosts a lively joint colloquium series with Carleton College (also in Northfield), an annual retreat with an internationally distinguished philosopher, and its annual Belgium Lecture series.

All applications received by January 24, 2019 will receive full consideration. Initial interviews will be conducted via skype. Applications must be submitted online at:

<https://stolaf.hiretouch.com/job-details?jobID=1499&job=public-affairs-post-doc-fellow>

A complete application will include: a cover letter, a curriculum vitae, a writing sample, evidence of teaching excellence, a statement of research interests (optional), a graduate transcript, and up to three reference letters, one of which may be a teaching reference. Candidates with a Ph.D. in hand by the time of appointment will be strongly preferred, though we will consider ABD candidates with exceptional teaching and scholarly qualifications. General inquiries or questions about the application process may be sent to Michael Fuerstein, Search Committee Chair, at fuerstei@stolaf.edu.

Hartwick College

Rank: Visiting Assistant Professor of Political Science

POLITICAL SCIENCE (Political Theory/Public Law): The Department of Political Science at Hartwick College invites applications for a three-year term appointment at the rank of Visiting Assistant Professor starting in August 2019. We seek candidates with expertise in Political Theory and Public Law. Minimum qualifications include PhD or ABD with significant progress by the time of the appointment and a commitment to offering a broad and diverse range of introductory and upper-level courses in political theory and constitutional law. Teaching load will average 20 semester credit hours or their equivalent per academic year, and all faculty members teach during the College's distinctive four-week January Term. The successful candidate must be committed to excellence and innovation in undergraduate teaching, active engagement in scholarly or creative activities, and working closely with students in a small college environment. Committee service and academic advising also are expected.

An independent, residential liberal arts college enrolling approximately 1200 full-time undergraduates, Hartwick embraces the teacher-scholar model, with teaching excellence as the first priority, and seeks to recruit, retain and promote a diverse workforce. Located in the scenic Susquehanna River valley in Oneonta, NY, near the northern foothills of the Catskill Mountains, the College features a Liberal Arts in Practice general education curriculum and aspires to "be the best at melding liberal arts education with experiential learning."

Hartwick offers health benefits to domestic partners of employees and prohibits discrimination on the basis of sexual orientation/preference and gender identity/expression. Hartwick is an Equal Opportunity Employer, committed to broadening "the understanding, awareness, and appreciation of diversity among all members of the Hartwick community." Underrepresented groups are especially encouraged to apply. Additional information about Hartwick (an institutional member of the Council on Undergraduate Research) and the Department may be found on our web site at www.hartwick.edu.

Hartwick College is committed to providing a safe and secure educational environment. Employment at Hartwick College is therefore contingent upon a successful background check on every new employee. Candidates to whom an offer of employment is made will be required to sign a Release of Information Form authorizing the College to conduct a thorough background check.

To apply, please send

- cover letter
- curriculum vitae
- statements of teaching philosophy and research interests
- evidence of teaching and scholarly excellence or the potential for it
- Diversity Statement – a statement addressing how past and/or potential contributions to diversity will support Hartwick College's Diversity Statement (<http://www.hartwick.edu/campus-life/student-affairs/intercultural-affairs/diversity-at-hartwick/>)

- and three letters of reference sent directly by your referees.

Letters should be addressed to the Dr. Amy Forster Rothbart, Department Chair, and all materials must be sent electronically to facultyjobs@hartwick.edu with Political Science in the Subject Line. Review of applications will begin immediately and continue until the position is filled.

McGill University

Tenure-Track Faculty Position

Assistant Professor

Faculty: Arts

Department/School: Political Science

The Canada Research Chair is also open to internal candidates who already hold a tenure-track faculty position at McGill University.

Position Description

The Department of Political Science at McGill University invites applications for a tenure-track position in Indigenous Politics. The Department welcomes applications from qualified candidates working on Indigenous Politics in any subfield of Political Science. Broad engagement with Indigenous Studies, including Indigenous Studies methodologies and community-based research, would be an asset.

The successful candidate will hold a tenure-track appointment in the http://www.mcgill.ca/politicalscience/Department of Political Science, and will work closely with the <http://www.mcgill.ca/indigenous> Indigenous Studies program.

This position is part of a broader provostial initiative to strengthen Indigenous Studies at McGill. McGill University is located on land which has long served as a site of meeting and exchange amongst Indigenous peoples, including the Haudenosaunee and Anishinabeg nations. We acknowledge and thank the diverse Indigenous people whose footsteps have marked this territory on which peoples of the world now gather.

The position start date is August 1, 2019. Inquiries may be sent to the Chair of the Department, Juliet Johnson, at juliet.johnson@mcgill.ca.

The successful candidate that satisfies the eligibility conditions of the Canada Research Chair (CRC) program may be supported by the University for nomination to a Tier 2 Chair in Indigenous Politics, which provides protected time for research within a full-time academic appointment.

Nominees for Tier 2 Chair positions must be emerging scholars and hold the rank of assistant or associate professors, or possess the necessary qualifications to be appointed to these levels. A nominee who is more than 10 years from having earned their highest degree and has experienced legitimate career interruptions (e.g., maternity or parental leave, extended sick leave, clinical training, and family care) will be taken into consideration using the http://www.chairs-chaires.gc.ca/program-programme/nomination-mise_en_candidature-eng.aspx#s3Tier 2 justification process.

Eligibility conditions for CRCs are found at http://www.chairs-chaires.gc.ca/program-programme/nomination-mise_en_candidature-eng.aspx#s3http://www.chairs-chaires.gc.ca/program-programme/nomination-mise_en_candidature-eng.aspx#s3

Teaching, research, and service in the Department of Political Science and the Indigenous Studies Program.

Qualifications and Education Requirements

Candidates should have completed a PhD in a relevant field or be near completion. The language of instruction at McGill is English, but a working knowledge of Indigenous language(s) and/or French would be considered an asset.

Candidates who do not satisfy the CRC eligibility criteria for a Tier 2 Chair are nonetheless invited to apply for the position.

COMMITMENT TO EQUITY AND DIVERSITY

McGill University hires on the basis of merit and is strongly committed to equity and diversity within its community. We welcome and encourage applications from racialized persons/visible minorities, women, Indigenous persons, persons with disabilities, ethnic minorities, and persons of minority sexual orientations and gender identities, as well as from all qualified candidates with the skills and knowledge to productively engage with diverse communities.

McGill further recognizes and fairly considers the impact of leaves (e.g., family care or health-related) that may contribute to career interruptions or slowdowns. Candidates are encouraged to signal any leave that affected productivity, may have had an effect on their career path. This information will be considered to ensure the equitable assessment of the candidate's record.

McGill implements an employment equity program and encourages members of designated equity groups to self-identify. It further seeks to ensure the equitable treatment and full inclusion of persons with disabilities by striving for the implementation of universal design principles transversally, across all facets of the University community, and through <https://www.mcgill.ca/hr/benefits/disabilitiesaccommodation> policies and procedures.

Persons with disabilities who anticipate needing accommodations for any part of the application process may contact, in confidence, Professor Angela Campbell, Associate Provost (Equity and Academic Policies) by email to <mailto:angela.campbell@mcgill.ca> or phone at 514-398-1660.

All qualified applicants are encouraged to apply; however, in accordance with Canadian immigration requirements, Canadians and permanent residents will be given priority.

23-Nov-2018 [Date of Posting]

Poste de professeur menant à la permanence
Ouvert au rang de professeur adjoint
Programme des chaires de recherche du Canada en politiques autochtones
Chair de niveau 2

Faculté: Arts
Département: sciences politiques

Le programme des chaires de recherche du Canada est également ouvert aux candidatures internes qui occupent déjà un poste de professeur permanent à l'Université McGill.

DESCRIPTION DE POSTE

Le Département de science politique sollicite des candidatures en vue de pourvoir un poste de professeur adjoint menant à la permanence en politiques autochtones. Il est à la recherche de candidats qualifiés en politiques autochtones, œuvrant dans toute discipline relevant des sciences politiques. Une solide expérience en études autochtones, plus précisément en méthodologie et en recherche communautaire, constitue un atout.

Le candidat retenu sera titulaire d'un poste menant à la permanence au sein du Département de science politique <http://www.mcgill.ca/politicalscience/www.mcgill.ca/politicalscience/> et travaillera en étroite collaboration avec l'équipe du Programme d'études autochtones <http://www.mcgill.ca/indigenouwww.mcgill.ca/indigenous>

Ce poste s'inscrit dans une initiative de mise en valeur des études autochtones à l'Université, qui émane du Bureau du vice-principal exécutif et vice-principal aux études. L'Université McGill est sise sur un emplacement qui a longtemps servi de lieu de rencontre et d'échange entre les peuples autochtones, y compris les nations Haudenosaunee et Anishinabeg. Nous reconnaissons et remercions les divers peuples autochtones dont les pas ont marqué ce territoire sur lequel les peuples du monde entier se réunissent maintenant.

La candidature retenue qui répond aux conditions d'admissibilité du programme des chaires de recherche du Canada (CRC) peut être soutenue par l'Université pour une titularisation à une chaire de niveau 2 en politiques autochtones, ce qui lui permettra de consacrer un temps dédié à des travaux de recherche dans le cadre de sa charge professorale à temps plein.

Les candidatures à une chaire de niveau 2 doivent être de nouveaux chercheurs. D'ailleurs, ces personnes intéressées doivent minimalement être professeurs adjoints ou professeurs agrégés ou doivent posséder les qualifications nécessaires pour pouvoir être nommées à ces niveaux. Les personnes candidates qui ont obtenu leur diplôme le plus avancé 10 ans auparavant et qui ont dû interrompre leur carrière de façon légitime (par exemple, congé de maternité ou parental, congé de maladie prolongé, formation clinique, et soins à un membre de la famille) seront prises en considération en utilisant le http://www.chairs-chaire.gc.ca/program-programme/nomination-mise_en_candidature-fra.aspx#5 processus de justification de la chaire de niveau 2.

Les conditions d'admissibilité pour le programme des CRC peuvent être consultées au http://www.chairs-chaire.gc.ca/program-programme/nomination-mise_en_candidature-fra.aspx#5

TÂCHES PRINCIPALES

Enseignement, recherche et attributions diverses au sein du Département de science politique et du Programme d'études autochtones.

QUALIFICATIONS ET FORMATION EXIGÉES

- Le candidat doit posséder un doctorat dans une discipline pertinente ou être sur le point de l'obtenir. À l'Université McGill, la langue d'enseignement est l'anglais, mais la connaissance d'une ou de plusieurs langue(s) autochtone(s) ou du français est un atout.

Les personnes candidates qui ne satisfont pas nécessairement aux critères d'admissibilité du programme des CRC de niveau 2 sont néanmoins invitées à présenter leur dossier de mise en candidature.

RENSEIGNEMENTS SUR L'EMPLOI

 Rang: Professeur adjoint

 Statut d'emploi: Temps plein

 Salaire: La rémunération salariale sera établie en fonction des qualifications et de l'expérience.

 Date limite pour le dépôt des dossiers: Les demandes doivent nous parvenir avant le 30 janvier 2019 pour être pleinement prises en considération, mais nous en accepterons jusqu'à ce que le poste soit pourvu.

 PROCESSUS DE MISE EN CANDIDATURE

Votre dossier de candidature doit être soumis par l'entremise du site électronique: <https://academicjobsonline.org/ajo/jobs/12816>

Il faut inclure au dossier les documents justificatifs suivants:

- Une lettre de présentation et un curriculum vitæ
- Une lettre faisant état de l'expérience du candidat ou de la candidate dans le domaine de la recherche
- Un extrait d'un texte du candidat (de la longueur d'un article ou d'un chapitre);
- Un énoncé sur les responsabilités et réalisations en matière d'enseignement accompagné, si possible, d'évaluations et de plans de cours
- Trois lettres de recommandation. Pour les candidats de niveau 2 au rang de professeur adjoint qui sont dans les trois ans de leur doctorat, un des arbitres doit être le directeur du doctorat.

L'Université McGill recrute en fonction du mérite et s'engage fermement à respecter les principes d'équité et de diversité au sein de sa communauté. Nous accueillons favorablement les demandes d'emploi des personnes racisées et de minorités visibles, des femmes, des personnes autochtones, des personnes handicapées, des minorités ethniques, des personnes de toute orientation et identité sexuelles, ainsi que toute personne possédant les aptitudes et les connaissances lui permettant de travailler en collaboration avec diverses communautés.

McGill reconnaît en outre et considère à juste titre l'incidence de congés (comme les congés liés à des soins apportés à un membre de la famille ou liés à des problèmes de santé) qui auraient pu causer des interruptions ou des ralentissements de carrière. Nous encourageons les personnes candidates à nous informer de tout congé qui aurait eu un effet sur leur productivité, et conséquemment sur leur cheminement de carrière. Cette information sera prise en considération afin d'assurer une évaluation équitable du dossier de candidature.

California Polytechnic State University

Rank: Assistant Professor in Political Science: American Politics
Specializations: American Politics, State Politics, Urban Politics

The Department of Political Science in the College of Liberal Arts at California Polytechnic State University (Cal Poly), San Luis Obispo, California, invites applications for a full-time, tenure-track academic year Assistant Professor with a specialization in American Politics to begin September 12, 2019. The successful candidate will have research expertise and the ability to teach courses in American Politics, with a second field or specialization in Political Theory. We are particularly interested in candidates whose work emphasizes issues of justice, diversity and inclusion. With regards to American Politics, we prefer candidates who can contribute to the following areas: urban politics; state and local politics; or American political development. While we are open to area of concentration in Political Theory, we are especially interested in candidates with a focus on Critical Race Theory or Queer Theory.

The typical teaching assignment is 12 units (three courses) per quarter, with correspondingly reasonable research and service expectations, and with a significant reduction in course load in the first two years to help establish an active program of research and professional development. Salary is commensurate with qualifications and experience.

The Cal Poly Political Science Department prides itself on its collegiality and commitment to excellence in teaching and scholarship. The department serves approximately 400 majors, 130 minors and 25 graduate students. At the undergraduate level, the department offers concentrations in American Politics, Global Politics, Pre-Law and Individualized Courses of Study, as well as minors in Law & Society, Political Science and Global Politics. It also offers a Master of Public Policy program.

Required Qualifications/Specialized Skills: An earned doctorate (Ph.D.) in Political Science or a closely related field from an accredited institution or international equivalent is required. Candidates nearing completion of the doctorate (ABD) may be considered, but must provide proof that the doctorate was completed prior to appointment.

Candidates are expected to demonstrate a commitment to, or potential for, teaching excellence and scholarly activity at the university level. The successful candidate must have the ability to work effectively with students, staff and faculty from diverse ethnic, cultural and socioeconomic backgrounds. Cal Poly is committed to the teacher-scholar model in which faculty are expected to be excellent teachers and productive scholars in their field(s) of interest. Faculty members are also expected to engage in service activities appropriate to their rank and experience.

Preferred Qualifications/Skills: Preference will be given to candidates whose areas of research and teaching emphasize issues of justice, diversity and inclusion as well as those with demonstrated excellence in university level teaching and research (commensurate with time since degree).

Cal Poly strongly values diversity and inclusion, especially in the classroom and among its areas of study. This American Politics/Political Theory search will occur at the same time as a university-wide cluster of searches designed to increase curricular coverage of areas related to diversity and inclusion, as well as to promote inclusive teaching strategies across the university. If the successful candidate's research overlaps with the area of diversity and inclusion, they will have the opportunity to join and support these university efforts.

California Polytechnic State University is a comprehensive polytechnic university with a strong commitment to its learn-by-doing philosophy. The College of Liberal Arts offers 17 highly selective Bachelor of Arts programs and 5 Master's degree programs with 250 full-time faculty and nearly 3,000 undergraduate majors.

To apply, visit WWW.CALPOLYJOBS.ORG to complete the required online faculty application and submit to requisition #105104. Attach (1) Cover Letter, (2) a Curriculum Vitae, (3) Statement of Teaching Philosophy, (4) Evidence of teaching effectiveness and teaching evaluations, (5) a Statement of Professional/Research Goals, (6) a Statement of Diversity and Inclusion describing past experience and contributions to diversity and inclusion efforts and a description of how you will demonstrate a commitment in these areas regarding teaching, research and/or service at Cal Poly, and (7) unofficial copy of transcripts. Please be prepared to provide the names and email addresses of three professional references when completing the application. Cal Poly will directly solicit letters from the individuals listed as references. Sealed official transcripts showing highest degree earned will be required prior to appointment. Applicants needing computer/internet access may contact Cal Poly Human Resources at: (805) 756-2236, for information on available resources.

Arcadia University

Rank: Assistant Professor of Philosophy

Specializations: American Politics, Religion & Politics, Political Theory

Arcadia University invites applications to fill a tenure-track position as an Assistant Professor of Philosophy in the Department of Historical & Political Studies (HAPS), to begin in fall 2019. HAPS is an interdisciplinary department with three undergraduate majors (History, International Studies, and Politics, Government & Law), six undergraduate minors (History, International Studies, Law & Public Policy, Philosophy, Political Science, and Religion) and one Master's program (International Peace and Conflict Resolution). Most HAPS faculty members teach in multiple areas of the department as per their areas of expertise.

The ideal candidate should have expertise in social and/or political philosophy, with thematic specialization in ethics and/or religious philosophy. The ideal candidate should be able to offer courses such as introduction to political theory, political thought or American political thought, applied logic, ethics, and courses on religious philosophy(ies). Candidates whose work addresses philosophy's intersection with contemporary social and political life, including the politics of religion, will receive special consideration.

Ph.D. is strongly preferred by September 2019, as are demonstrated excellence in and commitment to teaching, and a strong research and publishing record commensurate with the candidate's experience.

Arcadia's College of Arts and Sciences offers programs in science, technology, and math; humanities; visual and performing arts; communications; and historical and political studies. These programs prepare students for careers that contribute to a global society and allow students to exhibit, perform, and publish on campus through a variety of campus media outlets, including an art gallery, a literary magazine, and an online journal.

Arcadia University is a top-ranked private university in Greater Philadelphia and promises a distinctly global, integrative, and personal learning experience that prepares students to contribute and lead in a diverse and dynamic world. A national leader in study abroad and international education, Arcadia has been named #1 in undergraduate study abroad participation by the Institute of International Education's Open Doors Report for the past seven years. Approximately 3,900 students attend Arcadia, and the University's 2,500 undergraduate students choose from more than 65 fields of study.

Applications must be submitted online through Arcadia's Human Resources portal to receive full consideration. Please do not email application materials to hiring manager.

For additional information and to apply, please visit: <https://faculty-arcadia.icims.com/jobs/> and submit a cover letter, resume and names and phone numbers of three professional references.

Questions can be submitted to Department Chair Amy Widstrom (widstroma@arcadia.edu).

Consideration of applications will begin December 14, 2018, and will continue until the position is filled.

Application review will begin immediately. Posting will be removed from the website once we've established a sufficient talent pool for consideration.

Arcadia University seeks candidates of diverse cultural backgrounds and abilities. Arcadia University encourages members of underrepresented groups to apply. All offers of employment are conditional based on successful completion of a background check.

Princeton University

Specializations: American Politics, Constitutional Law & Theory, Political Theory

Invitation for Visiting Fellow Applications

The James Madison Program in American Ideals and Institutions at Princeton University is dedicated to the pursuit of scholarly excellence in the fields of constitutional law and political thought. Sponsored by Princeton's Department of Politics, the Program seeks to enrich the intellectual life of Princeton students and faculty by exploring American constitutional principles and structures through research and public discussion.

The Program invites college and university professors and other professionals with established records of scholarship to apply for appointments as Visiting Fellows for the academic year running from September 1, 2019 to June 30, 2020. One-semester appointments are possible but not preferred. Depending on the needs of the University, teaching opportunities may be available, subject to sufficient enrollment and approval of the Dean of the Faculty.

All James Madison Program Visiting Fellows will spend an academic year (10-month term) in residence at Princeton University. They enjoy access to Firestone Library and a wide range of other facilities and activities throughout the University.

Visiting Fellows are expected to devote full time to their proposed research. They are encouraged, however, to attend or participate in various activities of the Program, including faculty-student seminars, colloquia, and public lectures.

All James Madison Program Fellows must have a doctorate or equivalent degree. Positions are open to all regardless of citizenship. Fellows normally receive a stipend of one-half their academic-year salary plus a living allowance. The fellows' home institutions are expected to provide at least half of their academic-year salaries in addition to all benefits.

How to apply: For full consideration, applicants are required to submit an online application at <https://dof.princeton.edu/academicjobs>. To apply for a Visiting Fellow position please go to requisition D-19-POL-00004.

A complete application must include the following:

- * a curriculum vitae;
- * a scholarly paper written in the past three years;
- * a statement (no more than 1,500 words) describing the proposed research;
- * contact information for two references;
- * a confidential statement from home institution that indicates the applicant's salary for the current academic year, financial support their home institution and other sources are likely to provide, and what support they are likely to need from the Program.

The deadline for application materials is 11:59 p.m. EST on December 1, 2018 for appointments beginning in September 2019. Awards will be announced in March 2019 or before.

Subfield(s): Political Theory, American Government and Politics, Public Law

Specializations: Constitutional Law & Theory, Political Philosophy & Theory, Political Theory

Constitutional Law and Political Theory

New College of Florida invites applications for a tenure-track position as Assistant Professor focusing on Constitutional Law and Political Theory. Candidates should have a Ph.D. in Political Science, Philosophy, or related field, teaching experience and career interest in liberal arts teaching, and a vibrant research agenda. The successful candidate will offer a constitutional law sequence of courses in addition to contributions elsewhere in the curriculum. While we are open with regard to research and teaching interests in constitutional law and related areas, we would look especially favorably on candidates who focus on civil rights and civil liberties. The ability to teach courses in jurisprudence, gender and politics, or race and ethnic politics is strongly preferred as well. The candidate must have completed the Ph.D. by the start of employment in August 2019.

Situated on the Gulf Coast of Florida and Sarasota Bay, New College is a nationally recognized, highly selective public honors college with an 10:1 student/faculty ratio. Students are intellectually independent and highly motivated. Undergraduate research has a central role in the curriculum, and a senior thesis or project is required of all students. Students receive narrative evaluations in lieu of grades. We are committed to excellence in undergraduate teaching and research and encourage collaborative student-faculty scholarship. The teaching load is two courses per semester plus sponsoring individual and group tutorials. Faculty members also provide academic advising, supervise independent study projects, sponsor senior theses, and serve on baccalaureate committees. Professors are expected to maintain a program of research or creative work. We are particularly interested in candidates with a commitment to innovative undergraduate liberal arts teaching.

Candidates should apply on-line at <https://www.ncf.edu/employment> and upload the following: a cover letter; c.v.; statements regarding teaching philosophy, the candidate's contributions or approaches to supporting an inclusive culture and learning environment, and research interests; syllabi; teaching evaluations; one writing sample (article or chapter length); and unofficial graduate transcript(s). In addition, please ask at least three references to send signed letters on letterhead electronically to ConLawSearch@ncf.edu or in hard copy to: Constitutional Law Search, Division of Social Sciences, New College of Florida, 5800 Bay Shore Rd, Sarasota, FL 34243. According to Florida law, applications and meetings regarding applications are open to the public upon request. Applicants who need accommodations in order to participate in the selection process must notify the chair of the search committee 48 hours in advance of a meeting. For questions about the application process, please contact Ms. Kristi Fecteau at kfecteau@ncf.edu. Review of applications will begin on October 1, 2018 and continue until the position is filled.

The New School

Rank: Assistant Professor of Politics

The Politics Department at The New School for Social Research and Eugene Lang College seeks to appoint a political theorist, for a tenure track position at the assistant professor level, subject to budgetary approval.

We seek candidates with a strong background in the history of political thought and with promise of excellence in research as well as teaching.

We seek candidates whose work is theoretically sophisticated, historically sensitive, and politically critical and who are committed to engaging with colleagues outside the theory subfield.

We aim to appoint someone with broad interests and a lively mind, who can contribute to cross-field discussions in a politics department committed to blurring subfield divisions; to interdisciplinary debate in a graduate division dedicated to critically-oriented social science, philosophy and history; and to collegial life in an innovative liberal arts college dedicated to seminar teaching.

While we expect a strong background in the history of political thought, we are especially interested in candidates whose primary focus is on theoretical approaches and questions linked to contemporary political problems—for example, race, indigeneity, colonialism, imperialism/capitalism, domination, intersectionality, borders, globalization, transnationalism, international law; and environmental issues.

The review of applications will begin on September 15, 2018 and will continue until the position is filled. The start date for the position is July 1, 2019. Applicants apply on-line using the faculty application on The New School human resources website <http://careers.newschool.edu/postings/16212/>. Using this online system, applicants should submit 1) a letter of intent, 2) a CV, 3) a list of references, and 4) a piece of recent research. Applicants should have the PhD completed by the time of their contract start date.

University of North Texas

Rank: Open Rank Search in Political Theory

We invite applications for an open-rank position beginning fall 2018 in the broadly defined field of the history of political theory. We are interested in prospective candidates who specialize in Medieval, early modern/Enlightenment, or 19th/20th century German (post-rationalist) thought. An additional strength in non-Western thought, such as Islamic or Chinese political thought, is considered an advantage.

All applicants must meet the following criteria: (1) a Ph.D. in Political Science, (2) evidence of excellence in scholarly productivity, and (3) evidence of demonstrated excellence in teaching and mentoring students in independent activities. Preference will be given to candidates who have published books and/or articles in top-tier journals.

The successful candidate will have responsibilities that may include but are not limited to teaching core, upper-level undergraduate and graduate courses, continuing a record of robust scholarly research, directing graduate research in the Theory field, and providing service to the department, college, and university. The typical teaching load is 2/2.

The Department of Political Science at UNT is a highly productive department with 25 faculty members who are committed to excellence in both teaching and research. It offers BA, MA/MS, and PhD degrees. Faculty in the department have previously edited the American Political Science Review, International Studies Quarterly, and Journal of Political Science Education, and is the current home of Religion and Politics. The department is also home to the Castleberry Peace Institute, the Peace Studies Program and the Latina/o Mexican-American Studies Program. The Department's web site is: <http://politicalscience.unt.edu>.

With 37,000 students, UNT is the nation's 26th largest public university. As the largest, most comprehensive university in Dallas-Fort Worth, UNT drives the North Texas region. UNT offers 99 bachelor's, 83 master's, and 36 doctoral degree programs, many nationally and internationally recognized. UNT is a Carnegie Tier I public research university deeply committed to advancing educational excellence and preparing students to become thoughtful, engaged citizens of the world.

Applicants must submit: (1) a cover letter, (2) a curriculum vitae, (3) a narrative describing scholarly research, (4) two published writing samples, (5) a statement of teaching philosophy, and (6) the names and contact information of three references via UNT's Faculty Jobs portal at <https://facultyjobs.unt.edu>. Direct inquires to Richard Ruderman, search committee chair (Richard.Ruderman@unt.edu)

Review of applications will begin on October 18, 2017 and will remain open until the position is closed. To ensure full consideration, applicants are encouraged to submit their applications and all supporting materials as close as possible to the review date.

PUBLIC ADMINISTRATION

University of Toledo

Rank: Advanced Assistant or Associate Professor Public or Non-profit Management

The University of Toledo's Department of Political Science and Public Administration is reconstituting its MPA program after a period of hiatus due to faculty retirements. As part of our rebuilding process, we seek an energetic and dynamic scholar, at the advanced Assistant Professor (tenure-track) or Associate Professor (tenured) level, with the ability and willingness to teach graduate courses in public management, nonprofit management, or budgeting. This exciting opportunity is planned to be the first of two hires over two years and these positions will complement the strengths of existing faculty in the areas of public policy, urban politics, and urban planning. We are open to candidates who do research in a variety of related areas (e.g. urban studies or data analytics). The ability to offer other non-duplicative public administration courses is also desired.

Candidates must hold a PhD in public administration or in a related field and should have a minimum of 3 years of teaching experience in an MPA program. Candidates should be either an advanced assistant professor with a solid record of peer-reviewed publication or an associate professor with a peer-reviewed publication record that qualifies for tenure immediately. Experience with NASPAA accreditation is also desirable. The ideal candidate will have very strong teaching skills, experience in online education, and be well positioned to play a vital role in program governance and curriculum development. In addition, preferred qualifications include experience mentoring underrepresented minority students. The new faculty member will be expected to teach graduate courses in public management, nonprofit management, budgeting, and related public administration courses. Teaching undergraduate service courses such as American National Government may be required subject to programmatic demands. Important job duties for this position, which will initially serve as Assistant MPA Director, also include rebuilding linkages with local governments and nonprofits, interacting with external constituents, coordinating internships, and recruiting students. As such, the department is committed to balancing research, service, and teaching obligations in terms of workload.

The University of Toledo is a student-centered, community-engaged, comprehensive research university in Northwest Ohio. Our department offers a BA in political science and the MPA. We are a collegial department of talented scholars and strong teachers and we welcome diverse methodological approaches in research and teaching. The Toledo metro area has a population of over 650,000 and features world class museums and metroparks, a terrific zoo, theater, opera, and top-notch minor league sports. Candidates must apply at <https://jobs.utoledo.edu> with the following documents: a letter of application, CV, evidence of teaching success, transcripts, and a representative sample of published work. In addition, submit three letters of recommendation to the search committee chair Dr. Jami Taylor (jami-taylor@utoledo.edu). Review of applications will begin on January 23, 2019. The position will start on August 19, 2019. Questions may be addressed to Dr. Jami Taylor.

The University of Toledo is an affirmative action, equal opportunity employer. The University is dedicated to the goal of building a culturally diverse and pluralistic faculty and staff committed to teaching and working in a multicultural environment and strongly encourages applications from women, minorities, individuals with disabilities, dual-career professionals and covered veterans.

Sacramento State

Rank: Hazel Cramer Endowed Chair and Professor in Public Policy and Administration

Subfield(s): Public Administration, Public Policy, Other

The Department of Public Policy and Administration at Sacramento State invites applications for the tenured position of Hazel Cramer Endowed Chair and Professor in Public Policy and Administration.

The Department of Public Policy and Administration (PPA) is a department within the College of Social Sciences and Interdisciplinary

Studies at California State University, Sacramento (Sacramento State). The mission of the PPA Department at the “Capital Campus” of Sacramento State is to prepare future leaders to address the complex issues that face California. We serve the state and the Sacramento region by developing leaders with strong analytical tools and a deep commitment to public service. We are excited to be part of “Sac State Downtown”—a hub for innovative teaching, learning, and research, fostering collaborative partnerships to address real-world issues and improve the quality of life in the Sacramento region. Sac State Downtown launched this academic year.

The PPA program (<http://www.csus.edu/ppa>) provides professional training for graduate students—many of whom work in state government. Our core academic program is a Master of Public Policy and Administration (MPPA); we also offer as a Master of Science in Urban Land Development (MSULD) and a Certificate in Collaborative Governance for matriculated graduate students. We participate in, or affiliate with, the Doctorate in Educational Leadership degree, the Judicial Administration Certificate Program, the Executive and Judicial Fellows Programs (part of the nationally recognized Capital Fellows Programs), and the Education Insights Center.

PPA faculty focus on developing engaging curricula that include project-based work and application to current policy and administrative issues in California. Courses are taught evenings and weekends to accommodate students who are full-time working professionals. Our curriculum is evidence-based, with a strong focus on ensuring that students leave the program with the ability to: (1) synthesize, analyze, and offer ideas to improve policy and practice; (2) apply knowledge and skills in a professional setting; and (3) recognize the role of profession in society.

ESSENTIAL DUTIES

- Teach two courses per semester (taught in the evenings or on weekends), with the opportunity to reduce the course load through securing funding for research/service projects.
- Continue distinguished scholarly and professional contributions related to public policy and administration.
- Create and execute a sustainable plan to serve the community (examples include, but are not limited to, developing and executing a high impact community engaged research agenda that includes translating research into possible solution sets/ideas for practice; creating new work-based learning opportunities for PPA students; developing and implementing innovative educational programs and curricula; fostering collaborations across the college, university, academic field, and entities in the community; launching a new center or institute with a viable business model; recruiting and supervising graduate students; and providing outreach to the broader community).
- Supervise master’s theses related to the area of public policy and administration.
- Provide service to the community in the area of public policy and administration.
- Provide service to the department, college, and university.
- Embrace the mission of the California State University and its students (<https://www2.calstate.edu/csu-system/about-the-csu/Pages/mission.aspx>). Our students are diverse and represent populations that have been historically underserved in both undergraduate and graduate education. A successful applicant must be excited to serve our student populations.

REQUIRED QUALIFICATIONS

- Ph.D. in public policy, public administration, public affairs, an interdisciplinary focus related to public policy and administration, or in a related discipline; or relevant work experience.

- Associate or full professor at an accredited university at some point in the applicant's career; or comparable professional experience that would merit appointment with tenure.
- A distinguished and sustained record in the areas of teaching, scholarship, and service.
- The successful applicant should have a high impact applied research agenda, which utilizes research-based evidence to solve practical problems facing the community and our students. Examples could include political engagement, immigration policy, access to high quality health care, affordable housing, unemployment, poverty, environmental justice, and other similar issues.
- Commitment to master's level university teaching and thesis supervision with a diverse student body
- Commitment to diversity and issues of just, equitable, and inclusive education.
- Commitment to working with the public service community in Sacramento.
- Publications (peer-reviewed journal articles, professional articles, highly utilized and evidence-based policy reports or briefs) in areas related to policy and administration.

PREFERRED QUALIFICATIONS

- Teaching experience and success in the topic areas the person would teach.
- Professional experiences outside of the classroom in areas related to public policy and administration. This could include consulting.
- Deep knowledge of California politics, policies, and regulations.
- Experience engaging different constituency groups to solve public problems.
- Expressed commitment to working in an interdisciplinary academic department.
- Commitment to experimenting with different forms of student engagement in the classroom.

APPOINTMENT SPECIFICS

The position is for the Hazel Cramer Endowed Chair. Through the Hazel Cramer Chair, the university is making a commitment to becoming an anchor institution in the region by focusing on long-term, systemic solutions to entrenched social problems. This position is a key part of the university's efforts to engage more with the community.

As an endowed chair position, the work differs significantly from a traditional faculty member, and additional funds will be provided to ensure that the Endowed Chair can meet those expectations. Through one or more of these tasks, the holder will enhance the reputation of the department, the college, and the university. This is an academic year position. $20,000 per year will be provided to the Endowed Chair to pay for costs associated with executing the Endowed Chair's plan to meet the unique expectations of the position (to pay for research assistants, Endowed Chair travel, student travel, meetings, brown bag lectures, research-related costs, etc.).

The initial appointment of the Endowed Chair will be for six years. Subsequent reappointment will require a thorough performance review.

ADDITIONAL APPLICATION INSTRUCTIONS

- Curriculum Vitae with references. References should include three individual names and contact information for people who can speak to the candidate's ability to fulfill the required (and if relevant, preferred) duties/responsibilities and qualifications. One reference must be from an academic contact and the other two could be either academic or practice-based.

- Cover Letter: addresses the candidate's ability to fulfill the required (and if relevant, preferred) duties/responsibilities and qualifications, focused on: scholarship, service to students, and impact on the community (broadly defined). Must include a proposed plan or set of options focused on fulfilling the community engagement facets of the position. (750 or 1000 word limit)
- Writing Sample: representative samples of three publications, scholarship, and/or creative works. One must be non-scholarly.
- Teaching Effectiveness: Student evaluations and, if available, recent peer observations.
- Diversity statement: Please describe what you think about the importance of diversity with regard to both teaching and public service. (500 words or fewer)

Subfield(s): International Relations, Political Theory, Public Administration

Full/Associate/Assistant Professor of Political Science
Political Science/Public Administration
(Ref. No.: FSS/DGPA/11/2018)

The University of Macau (UM) is the flagship public university in Macao, which gives it a unique advantage in pursuing the goal of becoming a world-class university with regional characteristics. English is the working language. In recent years, UM has made significant progress and has gained increasing international recognition for its teaching, research, and community service. To better support higher education development in Macao and to meet society's ever-increasing demand for high-quality professionals, UM in 2014 relocated to the current campus which covers approximately 1.09 km². The large campus, the implementation of Asia's largest residential college system, the unique '4-in-1' education model combine to provide a multifaceted education to students to help them achieve well-rounded development. In addition to adopting a governance and management system in line with international standards and practices, UM recruits outstanding scholars worldwide to create a multilingual and multicultural learning environment for students. Recently, UM has appointed a world renowned scholar as Rector to lead the University in its next stage of development. With the new Rector's rich experience in higher education management and global vision, as well as the new developments and initiatives of the University, UM is faced with unprecedented opportunities and provides exciting new possibilities for professional development.

The Department of Government and Public Administration of the Faculty of Social Sciences invites applications for Full/Associate/Assistant Professor in the discipline of political science and public administration.

The Department of Government and Public Administration is currently comprised of 17 full-time staff members and offers programmes leading to Bachelor's, Master's and PhD degrees. Faculty members actively engage in research with particular focus on comparative politics, public administration and policy, international relations, and studies of the greater China regions. More information about the Department is available at the UM website: <http://www.um.edu.mo/fss/pa/>.

Qualifications

The area of specialization is open, but preference will be given to individuals with research and teaching expertise in international relations, international political economy and comparative politics, and for those with rich administrative experiences. Appointment may be at Full, Associate or Assistant Professor rank, depending on qualifications. Applicants must have a PhD in a relevant field and a proven record of publication in high caliber international journals and presses. Applicants should demonstrate a strong commitment to quality research and scholarship and documented excellence in teaching at both the graduate and undergraduate levels. Applicants must be able to lecture and publish research in English. Ability to speak Chinese may be considered an advantage, but is not a prerequisite for appointment.

The selected candidate is expected to assume duty in August 2019.

Position and Remuneration

Remuneration and appointment rank offered will be competitive and commensurate with the successful applicants' academic qualification, current position and professional experience. The current local maximum income tax rate is 12% but is effectively around 5% - 7% after various discretionary exemptions.

Application Procedure

Applicants should visit <https://career.admo.um.edu.mo/> for more details, and apply ONLINE. Review of applications will commence immediately and continue until the position is filled. Applicants may consider their applications not successful if they are not invited for an interview within 3 months of application.

Virginia Tech

Subfield(s): Public Administration, Public Policy, American Government and Politics

The School of Public and International Affairs (SPIA) at Virginia Tech seeks a highly qualified, broadly trained individual for a position at the associate or full professor level within the Center for Public Administration and Policy (CPAP). The position will be located in Virginia Tech's National Capital Region campus, in the Washington D.C. metro area. The appointment begins in August 2019.

Although the areas of specialization are open, we are particularly interested in applications from persons whose research and teaching expertise are in the areas of public administration history and theory, public management, and public policy broadly defined. CPAP is one program in three locations: Blacksburg, Northern Virginia, and Richmond. Teaching responsibilities will include both introductory courses and advanced seminars supporting CPAP's MPA and PhD degree programs. There are many opportunities for cross-location teaching. Candidates should also be able to work within the interdisciplinary setting of SPIA, which offers graduate and undergraduate degrees in International Affairs, Urban Planning, and Public Administration.

REQUIRED QUALIFICATIONS

Applicants must hold an earned PhD in public administration, political science, public policy, public management, or a related discipline. Applicants must also have teaching experience at the doctoral level, and must have a record of success in and continued commitment to teaching and scholarly research and publication consistent with appointment at the rank of associate or full professor at a leading research active land-grant university.

PREFERRED QUALIFICATIONS

Demonstrated commitment to community outreach and engagement, as is expected of faculty at a land-grant institution, is strongly preferred. The successful candidate will have the opportunity to engage in transdisciplinary research, curricular, and/or outreach initiatives with other university faculty across the University who are working to advance the human condition and society with better decisions through data, especially in the areas of information technology, digital government and public policy and administrative practices, and technology policy, and collaborating at the intersection of scientific evidence, governance, and analysis toward translating scholarship into practice.

Complete applications should include: 1) a cover letter outlining current and future research agendas, an overview of teaching experience and how the applicant would approach collaborative academic activity within CPAP and SPIA; 2) a curriculum vita, 3) a writing sample, and 4) the names and e-mail addresses of three professional references.

All applications and supporting documents (except reference letters) must be submitted online at www.jobs.vt.edu, reference posting# TR0180188 ; paper documents cannot be accepted.

Questions about the online application process should be directed to Ms. Krystal Wright, at krystal@vt.edu, phone: 540- 231-2291, or SPIA (0113), 140 Orey Street, Room 110, Virginia Tech, Blacksburg, VA 24061.

Application review will begin on December 20, 2018. The search will remain open until the position is filled, but to be assured full consideration, applications should be received by this date.

For more information on the Center for Public Administration and Policy see: www.cpap.vt.edu; and for the School of Public and International Affairs see: www.spia.vt.edu. Informal inquiries about the School of Public and International Affairs can be directed to Prof. Joel Peters, Director (interim) SPIA at: peters25@vt.edu.

Colorado State University

Rank: Assistant Professor of US Environmental Politics and Policy

Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Public Policy, Public Administration

The Department of Political Science at Colorado State University invites applications for a tenure-track Assistant Professor position in US Environmental Politics and Policy. Advanced Assistant Professors are encouraged to apply. We are open with respect to theoretical orientation, substantive focus, and methodological approaches. The Department offers programs of study leading to the B.A., M.A., and Ph.D. degrees; the graduate program emphasizes the study of environmental politics and policy.

The Department values both strong teaching and research. Successful candidates will be expected to offer courses in the American politics and/or public policy & administration curriculum at both the undergraduate and graduate levels, including a graduate seminar on US environmental politics and policy. Additional teaching assignments will depend on the candidate's interests and expertise as well as departmental needs. The normal teaching load is 2-2. Faculty members are also expected to advise and mentor graduate and undergraduate students; demonstrate an active research agenda; and provide service to the department, college, university, and community. Approximately one-third of undergraduate political science majors at CSU are first-generation college students.

Required Job Qualifications: Primary teaching and/or scholarly emphasis in American politics or public policy & administration; evidence of an active research agenda focused on US environmental politics and/or policy; PhD in Political Science, public policy, public administration, or related field by August 16, 2019; evidence of teaching effectiveness.

Preferred Job Qualifications: Ability to enhance the Department's commitment to diversity and inclusion reflecting Departmental and institutional values. Candidates who can teach any of the department's methods courses (quantitative, qualitative, or research design) are encouraged to apply.

Application Procedure: Applications will be accepted until the position is filled; to ensure full consideration, complete applications should be received by January 7, 2019. Applicants should submit: 1) a letter of application outlining teaching interests and research agenda as well as a brief statement on how your teaching, research and/or service demonstrate a commitment to diversity and inclusion; 2) Curriculum vitae; 3) Graduate school transcripts (unofficial transcripts acceptable at the initial stage of the search), 4) Evidence of demonstrated or potential teaching effectiveness (syllabi, teaching evaluations, letters of observation), 5) One sample of published or presented work, and 6) The names and contact information of three professional referees who will be emailed immediately upon submission of an application with a request to submit a letter of reference. Please note that a complete application consists of the requested materials and three letters of reference. Your referees will be emailed a request for a letter of reference immediately upon submission of your application. As such, applicants should allow sufficient time for their letters to be submitted by January 14, 2019 to ensure full consideration. Application materials of semi-finalist candidates, including letters of reference, will be made available for review by the entire faculty in the Department of Political Science. Questions about the position can be directed to Dr. Robert Duffy (Robert.Duffy@colostate.edu). To apply, please visit: <http://jobs.colostate.edu/postings/62379>

Rank: Chair and Professor, Department of Planning and Urban Studies

Subfield(s): Administration, Public Administration, Public Policy

Specializations: Urban Politics, Environmental Policy, Energy Policy

POSITION SUMMARY

The University of New Orleans and the College of Liberal Arts, Education and Human Development seeks candidates for Chair of the Department of Planning and Urban Studies at rank of full-professor with tenure. Chairs are appointed on an initial three-year term and are subject to evaluation and renewal. The successful candidate will have prior academic leadership experience, preferably as a department chair or associate chair. The candidate will need to manage a small but diverse department, in the areas of fiscal responsibility, personnel management, curricular and program oversight, outreach and recruitment, and assessment. The successful candidate will be a collaborative and innovative leader, reporting to the dean and working closely with other chairs in the college, especially those in Anthropology/Sociology and Political Science/Public Administration. Discussions are underway about the college structure, whether a move to a School is warranted for this department, alone or combined with other departments. The successful candidate will be open to other structures that will strengthen and grow the programs in Planning and Urban Studies.

Candidates must possess an earned doctorate in urban/regional planning, or a related field (e.g. social ecology, urban studies/design, applied ecology), which is required for the successful candidate to have demonstrated credentials and to ensure the granting of tenure. The candidate must also have a record suitable for hiring at the rank of full professor, preferably by earning that rank at a previous regionally accredited university. Research in the areas of Environment & Energy, Coastal Zone Planning, and/or Environmental Planning is preferred. Documented success at securing outside funding is strongly preferred as well. The Planning and Urban Studies department offers five degrees: a Bachelor of Science in urban studies and planning (both face-to-face and online), a Master of Science in Transportation, an accredited Master of Urban and Regional Planning, and a Master of Science and a Ph.D. in Urban Studies. Additionally, the department offers three certificates: Geographic Information Systems, Historic and Cultural Preservation, and Disaster Management and Community Resilience. PLUS houses the University of New Orleans Transportation Institute and the Center for Hazards, Assessment and Technology.

RESPONSIBILITIES

50% of effort as department chair; 50% as teaching and research. The assigned time and stipend for department chair changes annually, depending on numbers of majors, SCH generated, and fulltime faculty.

REQUIRED QUALIFICATIONS

PhD from regionally accredited university in the field of urban planning or a closely related field; earned tenure at current institution or qualifications that would allow the candidate to be hired as full professor with tenure.

DESIRED QUALIFICATIONS

Significant leadership experience; discipline specialty areas of Environment & Energy, Coastal Zone Planning, and/or Environmental Planning; documented success at securing outside funding.

University of Wisconsin, Madison

Rank: PROFESSOR, PUBLIC POLICY AND REPRODUCTIVE HEALTH - CLUSTER HIRE

The successful candidate for this position will be expected to develop and maintain an energetic, cutting-edge, highly visible research program; advise graduate and post-graduate research; develop and maintain extramural funding for their research program; and teach graduate and undergraduate courses in the management and implementation of reproductive health and social policy, or develop new courses in their area of expertise, as appropriate. Reproductive health includes, but is not limited to public policies surrounding fertility, birth control, in-utero health, post-partum health and early childhood development, as they affect health disparities, whether due to geography, socioeconomic status, race, ethnicity, or program delivery and health equity.

The Reproductive Equity Cluster:

This position is part of the Reproductive Equity Cluster, which was developed in order to build cross-disciplinary research expertise necessary to examine the drivers and consequences of inequities in reproductive health and to identify potential solutions. Areas of cluster research could include health care policy, social policy, structural, and individual factors related to family planning, fertility/infertility, maternal and infant mortality, and other aspects of maternal and child health as they relate to policy and practice. It is expected that the successful candidate will focus on health disparities and health equity and the ways in which policy and practice effect same.

A major purpose of the cluster is to build on existing strengths on campus. Ultimately, it is a goal that an expansion of this work at UW-Madison will translate into greater health equity and improved health and well-being of residents of Wisconsin and beyond. The interdisciplinary, comprehensive focus of the cluster will be used to expand research activity in this area and add greater diversity to the voices engaged in these discussions, particularly with respect to health disparities and inequities, and program and policy effects on disparities.

Candidates should have an interest in collaborating with the cluster and with colleagues in schools, centers, and training programs across campus such as the School of Medicine and Public Health, Population Health Sciences, the LaFollette School of Public Affairs, the School of Social Work, the School of Human Ecology, the Institute for Research on Poverty and the Center for Demography and Ecology.

Overall, three candidates will be recruited in this Cluster: 1) Professor, Public Policy and Reproductive Health [PVL # 94865] (this particular search), 2) Professor, Health Services Research and Reproductive Health [PVL# 94599] , and 3) Professor, Social Causes & Consequences of Reproductive Health [PVL # 94972]. These positions are part of the UW's Cluster Hiring Initiative (<https://facstaff.provost.wisc.edu/cluster-hiring-initiative/>), designed to foster innovative, outstanding research programs that will stimulate productive interactions among faculty and students interested in research across the campus and to expand interdisciplinary research.

ADDITIONAL INFORMATION:

Faculty hired under this initiative will most likely have a primary faculty appointment in the LaFollette School of Public Affairs, with potential joint or secondary appointments in relevant departments and schools such as Law, Human Ecology, or Population Health Sciences in the School of Medicine and Public Health.

UW-Madison is seeking a diverse set of faculty candidates who will deepen our campus' interdisciplinary research strength in key areas of current and future research promise, as well as faculty candidates who will approach their work in a manner that advances our commitment to research excellence.

A criminal background check will be conducted prior to hiring.

Candidates for the tenured professor rank must meet criteria for appointment at rank per UW College of Letters and Sciences guidelines for appointment and promotion on the tenure track.

The successful applicant will be responsible for ensuring eligibility for employment in the United States on or before the effective date of the appointment.

Whittier CollegeRank: Assistant Professor of Political Science*Subfield(s): Public Policy, American Government and Politics, Public Administration

Assistant Professor of Political Science

Whittier College

Whittier College announces a tenure-track Assistant Professor of Political Science position beginning Fall 2019. The Department seeks candidates specializing in Public Policy and American Politics, and capable of teaching a core course in Public Administration. We would be particularly interested in candidates who might also be able to contribute to any of the following additional areas: race and politics, minority politics, environmental politics, state and local politics with an emphasis on California, and/or political theory.

Candidates should have earned a Ph.D. in Political Science prior to September 2019. The successful candidate will demonstrate potential for outstanding teaching and excellence in scholarship. The Political Science Department has five full-time faculty and approximately 90 majors. Faculty members teach 20 units each year and are expected to teach college-wide courses such as First-year Writing Seminars and/or courses paired with faculty in other disciplines as part of our general education program. In addition, all faculty must be fully engaged in committee service and advisement of students.

Preliminary review of materials will begin September 10, and will continue until the appointment is made. If you plan to attend the American Political Science Association conference, please let us know, and send your c.v. and letter of application by August 1. We plan to meet with a limited number of applicants during the conference; however, all applicants will have equal consideration, regardless of attendance. Full applications should include: a letter of application, including discussion of teaching philosophy and research interests; a curriculum vitae; a summary of course evaluations or other evidence of teaching effectiveness; unofficial transcripts; and at least three confidential letters of recommendation, sent by your references. Please email (PDFs preferred) materials to Prof. Deborah Norden, Department Chair, at <mailto:dnorden@whittier.edu>. Paper application and reference letters can be sent to Prof. Deborah Norden, Political Science Department; Whittier College; 13406 Philadelphia St.; Whittier, CA 90601.

Whittier College is committed to attracting and retaining a high quality, diverse faculty with a shared passion for student-centered teaching and mentoring. It is distinguished by its small class sizes, high-impact pedagogies, and innovative liberal arts curriculum blended with professional and pre-professional programs. It is a nationally recognized model for diversity and has no racial majority among its student body. With over 60% students of color, Whittier is designated as both a Hispanic Serving Institution (HSI) and Asian American Native American Pacific Islander-Serving Institution (AANAPISI). Founded in 1887, it is an independent, four-year liberal arts college with about 1,650 undergraduates and is ideally situated in the scenic hills 18 miles east of downtown Los Angeles. It is an AA/EOE employer. More information on the position is available at www.whittier.edu/jobs.

About PluriCourts

PluriCourts is a Centre of Excellence funded by the Research Council of Norway. The Centre is based at the Faculty of Law, Department of Public and International Law of the University of Oslo. Co-Directors of the Centre are Andreas Føllesdal (professor in political philosophy) and Geir Ulfstein (professor in international law).

The coordinator for the political science research at PluriCourts is Daniel Naurin (professor in political science).

The primary research objective of PluriCourts is to analyze and assess the legitimate present and future roles of international courts. For more information about the general research agenda and PluriCourts, visit PluriCourts' web site and its research agenda. Although PluriCourts is situated within the Faculty of Law, the Centre also maintains ties with the Department of Political Science at Oslo University.

Job description

1-2 postdoctoral fellowships of up to three years in political science is available at PluriCourts, the multidisciplinary Centre of Excellence for the Study of the Legitimate Roles of the Judiciary in the Global Order, at the Faculty of Law, University of Oslo.

The postdoctoral researchers will contribute to PluriCourts' research agenda, by studying the functioning, effects and legitimacy of international courts and tribunals (ICs). We seek candidates with a background in judicial politics, international relations, comparative politics, political economy, public administration, legal economics or other relevant political science subfields. Previous experience with research on international courts is preferred, but not required. Perspectives originating in different political science subfields may fruitfully be applied to the study of ICs. Strong methodological (quantitative and/or qualitative) and formal modelling skills are particularly valued.

Successful candidates will develop their own research agenda that contributes to PluriCourts' research plan, in collaboration with colleagues at PluriCourts. Possible research topics include, but are not restricted to; 1) judicial independence and politicization of ICs, 2) compliance with and effectiveness of ICs, 3) the effects of international judicialization on domestic politics, 4) judicial behavior, 5) the selection and retention of judges, 6) the social legitimacy of ICs, 7) descriptive and substantive representation of men and women in ICs, and 8) litigation and the role of law and courts as a strategy for achieving political goals.

The candidates may be assigned a 10% workload of tasks including teaching, supervision or other relevant tasks.

Qualification requirements

We seek candidates with a background in judicial politics, international relations, comparative politics, political economy, public administration, legal economics or other relevant political science subfields. The successful candidates are expected to live and work in Oslo during the project period and participate in common activities at the Centre, such as organizing workshops, contributing to seminars, co-authoring research publications, writing grant applications etc. ? In assessing the applications, special emphasis will be placed on the demonstrated ability of the applicant to conduct, publish and present high quality research at an international level ? The quality of the project proposal will be evaluated with a special emphasis on how it contributes to PluriCourts research agenda Applicants must have received the doctoral degree prior to taking up the position.

We offer

Salary NOK 524 200, - to 586 500, -per annum depending on qualifications in position as Postdoctoral Research Fellow (position code 1352)

University of Richmond

Subfield(s): Political Theory, Public Law, International Relations

Specializations: Political Philosophy & Theory, Leadership Studies, Political Thought: Historical

The University of Richmond's Jepson School of Leadership Studies invites applications for a visiting position as the Zuzana Simoniova Cmelikova Visiting International Scholar in Leadership and Ethics for the 2019-20 academic year.

This position, made possible by a generous gift from the Ukrop family, is designed to give visiting scholars with extensive international experience the opportunity to conduct research, develop courses, and/or design programs on leadership ethics. The Visiting International Scholar will pursue his or her own advanced research related to leadership and ethics; and actively contribute to the intellectual life of the School and University through meaningful interactions with faculty including presenting his or her research and/or issues related to leadership in their country.

Visiting international scholars may be new Ph.D.s or experienced scholars who hold a Ph.D. in an academic area related to the study of leadership and ethics. Scholars from newly formed democracies are especially encouraged to apply. Applicants should explain in a cover letter how their research, teaching, and future plans relate to the scholarship that they would pursue as a visitor at the Jepson School.

Inaugurated in 1992, the Jepson School of Leadership Studies is an independent academic unit of the University and offers students the opportunity to major or minor in Leadership Studies. With the aim of educating students for and about leadership, the Jepson School offers an intellectually challenging liberal arts curriculum delivered by means of a rigorous and innovative pedagogy.

The University of Richmond is a private university located just a short drive from downtown Richmond, Virginia. Through its five schools and wide array of campus programming, the University combines the best qualities of a small liberal arts college and a large university. With nearly 4,000 students, an 8:1 student-faculty ratio, and 92% of traditional undergraduate students living on campus, the University is remarkably student-centered, focused on preparing students “to live lives of purpose, thoughtful inquiry, and responsible leadership in a global and pluralistic society.”

The University of Richmond is committed to developing a diverse workforce and student body, and to modeling an inclusive campus community which values the expression of difference in ways that promote excellence in teaching, learning, personal development, and institutional success. Our academic community strongly encourages applications that are in keeping with this commitment. For more information on the department and its programs, please see <https://jepson.richmond.edu/>.

Applicants should apply online at <http://jobs.richmond.edu> and submit a cover letter, curriculum vitae, one-page research plan, and writing sample. In addition, please include the names of three references who will receive an email asking them to submit their reference letters to the University's Human Resources department at URHR@richmond.edu. Review of applications will commence February 1, 2019; the deadline for applications is March 15, 2019.

Hertie School of Governance

Subfield(s): Public Law, Comparative Politics, Public Administration

The Hertie School of Governance, Berlin

A European Professional School for Public Policy is recruiting a

Professor of Fundamental Rights

Professor or Assistant Professor

The Hertie School is recruiting a Professor of Fundamental Rights. We are looking for a candidate with a research, teaching, and outreach agenda in fundamental rights theory and practice. The candidate will play an important role in the development of the Centre for Fundamental Rights at the Hertie School of Governance and will offer courses to the international and inter-disciplinary student body of the School.

Applicants for this position must have a doctoral degree relevant for the position, in law, political science or political theory and demonstrate engagement with fundamental rights from interdisciplinary or comparative perspectives. An early career candidate will be appointed as tenure-track Assistant Professor with a six-year clock (two three-year contracts). A more advanced candidate would initially be on a fixed contract of negotiable length prior to a tenure review. In highly exceptional circumstances, a particularly outstanding candidate may be appointed with tenure.

The expected start date is 1 September 2019.

The Hertie School seeks faculty with demonstrated capacity for research, teaching, and outreach at the highest levels in their discipline. We recruit faculty who will create a climate that embraces excellence and diversity with a commitment to teaching and innovative research of interest to the international scholarly community and policy-makers.

Candidates are expected to work well in an interdisciplinary, international environment with English as the language of instruction and operation. The successful candidate will teach courses in the School's Master, Executive, and PhD programmes.

As a private university, the Hertie School offers an internationally competitive salary as well as a paid sabbatical after every five semesters. We provide excellent working conditions with outstanding financial and administrative support for research. The Hertie School is fully embedded in Germany's vibrant research landscape and has close ties to the top institutions of the European and international teaching and research community as well as to the policy world.

The Hertie School is a diverse, international and lively community located in the heart of Berlin. It takes a family friendly workplace seriously.

The deadline for the submission of applications is 31 January 2019.

The Hertie School will review applications that include a letter of motivation, a current curriculum vitae (publication list, degrees earned, if applicable: positions held, teaching experience, research projects, awards received), two writing samples and, if applicable, teaching evaluations.

To submit your application, please upload the requested documents here: <https://hertie-school.dvinci-easy.com/en/p/en/jobs/81/professor-of-fundamental-rights-mfdiv-professor-or-assistant-professor>

Hartwick College

Rank: Visiting Assistant Professor of Political Science

POLITICAL SCIENCE (Political Theory/Public Law): The Department of Political Science at Hartwick College invites applications for a three-year term appointment at the rank of Visiting Assistant Professor starting in August 2019. We seek candidates with expertise in Political Theory and Public Law. Minimum qualifications include PhD or ABD with significant progress by the time of the appointment and a commitment to offering a broad and diverse range of introductory and upper-level courses in political theory and constitutional law. Teaching load will average 20 semester credit hours or their equivalent per academic year, and all faculty members teach during the College's distinctive four-week January Term. The successful candidate must be committed to excellence and innovation in undergraduate teaching, active engagement in scholarly or creative activities, and working closely with students in a small college environment. Committee service and academic advising also are expected.

An independent, residential liberal arts college enrolling approximately 1200 full-time undergraduates, Hartwick embraces the teacher-scholar model, with teaching excellence as the first priority, and seeks to recruit, retain and promote a diverse workforce. Located in the scenic Susquehanna River valley in Oneonta, NY, near the northern foothills of the Catskill Mountains, the College features a Liberal Arts in Practice general education curriculum and aspires to "be the best at melding liberal arts education with experiential learning."

Hartwick offers health benefits to domestic partners of employees and prohibits discrimination on the basis of sexual orientation/preference and gender identity/expression. Hartwick is an Equal Opportunity Employer, committed to broadening "the understanding, awareness, and appreciation of diversity among all members of the Hartwick community." Underrepresented groups are especially encouraged to apply. Additional information about Hartwick (an institutional member of the Council on Undergraduate Research) and the Department may be found on our web site at www.hartwick.edu.

Hartwick College is committed to providing a safe and secure educational environment. Employment at Hartwick College is therefore contingent upon a successful background check on every new employee. Candidates to whom an offer of employment is made will be required to sign a Release of Information Form authorizing the College to conduct a thorough background check.

To apply, please send

- cover letter
- curriculum vitae
- statements of teaching philosophy and research interests
- evidence of teaching and scholarly excellence or the potential for it
- Diversity Statement – a statement addressing how past and/or potential contributions to diversity will support Hartwick College's Diversity Statement (<http://www.hartwick.edu/campus-life/student-affairs/intercultural-affairs/diversity-at-hartwick/>)
- and three letters of reference sent directly by your referees.

Letters should be addressed to the Dr. Amy Forster Rothbart, Department Chair, and all materials must be sent electronically to facultyjobs@hartwick.edu with Political Science in the Subject Line. Review of applications will begin immediately and continue until the position is filled.

Constitutional Law and Political Theory

New College of Florida invites applications for a tenure-track position as Assistant Professor focusing on Constitutional Law and Political Theory. Candidates should have a Ph.D. in Political Science, Philosophy, or related field, teaching experience and career interest in liberal arts teaching, and a vibrant research agenda. The successful candidate will offer a constitutional law sequence of courses in addition to contributions elsewhere in the curriculum. While we are open with regard to research and teaching interests in constitutional law and related areas, we would look especially favorably on candidates who focus on civil rights and civil liberties. The ability to teach courses in jurisprudence, gender and politics, or race and ethnic politics is strongly preferred as well. The candidate must have completed the Ph.D. by the start of employment in August 2019.

Situated on the Gulf Coast of Florida and Sarasota Bay, New College is a nationally recognized, highly selective public honors college with an 10:1 student/faculty ratio. Students are intellectually independent and highly motivated. Undergraduate research has a central role in the curriculum, and a senior thesis or project is required of all students. Students receive narrative evaluations in lieu of grades. We are committed to excellence in undergraduate teaching and research and encourage collaborative student-faculty scholarship. The teaching load is two courses per semester plus sponsoring individual and group tutorials. Faculty members also provide academic advising, supervise independent study projects, sponsor senior theses, and serve on baccalaureate committees. Professors are expected to maintain a program of research or creative work. We are particularly interested in candidates with a commitment to innovative undergraduate liberal arts teaching.

Candidates should apply on-line at <https://www.ncf.edu/employment> and upload the following: a cover letter; c.v.; statements regarding teaching philosophy, the candidate's contributions or approaches to supporting an inclusive culture and learning environment, and research interests; syllabi; teaching evaluations; one writing sample (article or chapter length); and unofficial graduate transcript(s). In addition, please ask at least three references to send signed letters on letterhead electronically to ConLawSearch@ncf.edu or in hard copy to: Constitutional Law Search, Division of Social Sciences, New College of Florida, 5800 Bay Shore Rd, Sarasota, FL 34243. According to Florida law, applications and meetings regarding applications are open to the public upon request. Applicants who need accommodations in order to participate in the selection process must notify the chair of the search committee 48 hours in advance of a meeting. For questions about the application process, please contact Ms. Kristi Fecteau at kfecteau@ncf.edu. Review of applications will begin on October 1, 2018 and continue until the position is filled.

North Dakota State University

Specializations: Judicial Politics, Constitutional Law & Theory, Criminal Justice

The department of Criminal Justice & Political Science at NDSU is recruiting for a 9-month tenure-track position, at the rank of assistant professor, starting Fall 2019. We seek candidates with expertise in judicial politics and constitutional law, broadly construed. Successful applicants should be versed in American public law, but could conduct research in a broad variety of related areas, such as, but not limited to, the role of race, ethnicity, sexualities, and/or gender in justice systems, comparative judicial politics, international courts and legal structures, or the politics of policing in the US or abroad. This is a 45% research, 45% teaching, 10% service position. The teaching load is 2-2, with a course release in the first three years. Successful applicants will be prepared to teach core undergraduate pre-law courses on American judicial politics, such as judicial process and constitutional law, but will also have ample opportunity to teach specialized courses of their choosing. Tenure-track political science faculty advise undergraduate students and may have opportunities to contribute to the supervision of MA and PhD students in criminal justice. The department has minimal service expectations for pre-tenure faculty.

Minimum Qualifications

The minimum qualifications for the position are: 1) a Ph.D. degree in Political Science, or a related discipline, conferred no later than August, 2019, 2) evidence of research productivity, or potential to publish scholarship in peer reviewed journals, presses, and other outlets appropriate to one's field, 3) competence to teach American judicial process and constitutional law, and 4) effective written and oral communication skills.

Preferred Qualifications

We will give priority to candidates who 1) can provide substantial evidence of (potential) research productivity and quality, 2) have experience teaching American judicial process and/or constitutional law, 3) can provide substantial evidence of teaching effectiveness, and/or 4) have experience pursuing or obtaining external funding.

The Department

The Department of Criminal Justice & Political Science has 11 tenure-track faculty members and serves roughly 100 undergraduate majors in political science, and 200 undergraduate and 20 graduate students in criminal justice. Faculty in the department teach four classes per year. The NDSU community and national organizations have regularly recognized department faculty for excellence in research, teaching, and mentorship. While faculty contribute primarily to teaching, curriculum development, and advising within their respective programs, the department provides opportunities for interdisciplinary collaboration across fields, both in research and teaching. The college provides faculty with computing resources and tenure-track faculty within the department receive a yearly research and professionalization budget that covers travel to 1-2 conferences, and which faculty routinely supplement with College and University travel grants.

The University

North Dakota State University is a comprehensive, student-focused, land-grant, research university with more than 14,000 students from 47 states and 79 countries. NDSU was the first university in North Dakota to be named to the most research-intensive category by the Carnegie Commission on Higher Education and is listed in the National Science Foundation's top 100 in several areas, including agricultural sciences, social sciences, physical sciences, chemistry, psychology, and computer sciences.

NDSU values faculty members' work-life balance and the needs of dual-career couples. The College of Arts, Humanities, & Social Sciences' guidelines on family-related reassignment of duties are available at <https://www.ndsu.edu/fileadmin/ahss/family2010.pdf> and University policy on extension of the probationary period for personal or family reasons is available at <https://www.ndsu.edu/fileadmin/policy/352.pdf>. NDSU is an ADVANCE institution and has an a Focus on Resources for Women's Advancement, Recruitment/Retention, and Development (FORWARD) program, that, as part of its efforts, has developed procedures and funding streams for dual career hiring at NDSU: <https://www.ndsu.edu/forward/>.

Applicants can find more information about NDSU at <http://www.ndsu.edu>.

The Community

NDSU is located in Fargo-Moorhead (F-M), a pleasant, safe, diversifying, and growing community of approximately 240,000 people. As the largest population center in the region, F-M is a hub of entertainment, finance, information technology, and medical services for a large geographic area including the state of North Dakota, and western Minnesota. Two universities (NDSU and Minnesota State University Moorhead) and one private liberal arts college (Concordia College) are located in F-M. The F-M area has a healthy economy: ND has one of the lowest unemployment rates in the U.S., good public schools, low crime rates, ample shopping, local theatre and music companies, several art galleries, semi-professional baseball and hockey, and Division I intercollegiate athletics. Hector International Airport in Fargo is convenient and is served by several major airlines. Sun, clear skies, and clean air predominate year round. Visiting nearby northern Minnesota lakes, canoeing, camping, cycling, softball, and soccer are popular in summer; winter pastimes include cross-country skiing, skating, and snowmobiling. The city has an excellent park system that includes several quality golf courses and bicycle/running/ski paths along the Red River, which divides Fargo-Moorhead. Fargo is an hour drive from a major resort area in the Minnesota "lakes country" and two hours from scenic Itasca State Park, where you will find the headwaters of the Mississippi river. Central and western North Dakota offer beautiful hiking, camping, fishing, hunting, and related opportunities in the Badlands, national grasslands, and numerous river valleys. Winnipeg, Manitoba is less than a four-hour drive to the north and Minneapolis-St. Paul is an equal distance to the south-east.

Application

Applicants must submit a cover letter, curriculum vitae, statement of research interests, writing sample, statement of teaching philosophy, evidence of teaching effectiveness (e.g., syllabi, course materials, evidence of participation in teaching professionalization activities, and, if available, evaluations by peers and/or mentors; please do not include student evaluations of teaching), and contact information for 3 professional references. All application materials must be submitted online at <https://jobs.ndsu.edu/postings/9576>.

NDSU especially encourages applications from women and members of underrepresented groups.

We will begin reviewing applications on October 1, and will continue to accept and review applications until the position is filled. The department will provide search updates through APSA eJobs' update capability, and on Twitter, using the #PSJMInfo hashtag.

Potential applicants may direct questions about the search to Dan Pemstein, the search committee chair, at daniel.pemstein@ndsu.edu.

PUBLIC POLICY

University of Oxford

Rank: Postdoctoral Research Fellow in Survey Research

Specializations: Political Behavior, Political Economy, Public Opinion

The Blavatnik School of Government, University of Oxford, seeks to appoint a Postdoctoral Research Fellow for three years to lead the development of this research on the dynamics of public opinion in this area in cooperation with Professor Pepper Culpepper and with Professor Taeku Lee from the University of California at Berkeley.

The main duties of the post are to engage in original, world-class research in survey design and data analysis and manage your own academic research and project-related administrative activities; to disseminate your research through publication in highly-ranked, peer reviewed academic journals; to collaborate in the preparation of research publications and book chapters; and to act as a source of information and advice on methodologies and procedures to other members of the team.

The successful postholder will be an independent researcher in the early stages of their career with training in survey research methods and experience designing survey experiments as well as facility in analysing these data. Training and/or experience in experimental design, sampling and measurement theory, conjoint analysis, and causal inference is desirable, as is a substantive interest in political economy, public opinion and regulatory policy. You will have a recent doctorate in political science or another social science field relevant to the project, such as communications, sociology or public policy. Candidates nearing completion of their doctoral dissertation may also be considered. You will show evidence of developing a track record of internationally excellent research worthy of publication in highly-ranked, peer reviewed academic journals, commensurate with the candidate's career stage; and have knowledge of survey methodology and experience writing and fielding surveys, preferably in comparative context.

The full duties, responsibilities and skills required are described in more detail in the further particulars which also contain details on how to apply.

The closing date for applications is 12 noon UK time on Friday 18 January 2019. To apply, visit the University of Oxford website directly via:

Duke Kunshan University

Specializations: American Politics, China, Political Economy

Duke Kunshan University (DKU) invites applications for faculty positions in Political Science in areas including but not limited to 1) international political economy, global governance, international relations, and international development; 2) domestic political economy and Chinese politics; 3) American political development and institutions; 4) comparative media systems, global media, new media and society, and public opinion; and 5) ethics and public policy or politics, philosophy, and economics (PPE). These positions are open with regard to rank including tenured, tenure track and non-tenure track.

In Fall, 2018, DKU launched an innovative, integrated and interdisciplinary liberal arts undergraduate program leading to both Duke and DKU degrees. Interdisciplinary majors at DKU that feature the study of political science include Institutions and Governance, Political Economy, Global China Studies and US Studies. We are searching for faculty to begin teaching in the academic year 2019-2020 or 2020-21.

Candidates must hold a Ph.D. degree or equivalent in an appropriate field. Research experience at a postdoctoral level (or greater) and teaching experience are desirable, as is experience in working in an interdisciplinary setting. Applicants should provide a cover letter including a clear statement of the candidate's specific interest in DKU, a curriculum vitae, a research statement, and a teaching statement, as well as the names and contact information for three references. All materials should be submitted through Academic Jobs Online: <https://academicjobsonline.org/ajo/jobs/12944>. The search committee also invites and encourages letters of nomination for potential candidates. Nominations and questions about the positions may be sent to social-science-search@dukekunshan.edu.cn using "Political Science Search" as the subject line. Applicants will be reviewed on a rolling basis. Priority will be given to applications received by January 30, 2019; we will accept applications until the positions are filled.

Duke Kunshan University is a highly selective research-oriented, liberal arts and sciences university that offers both an elite liberal arts education and an environment in which premier research centers can flourish. Similar to the best liberal arts colleges in the U.S., all DKU faculty are deeply involved in teaching and advising and lead research teams comprised primarily of undergraduates, and graduate students in some areas. Faculty should clearly demonstrate their ability to serve as highly effective teachers with a strong commitment to Duke Kunshan University's educational programs, which place particular emphasis on liberal arts undergraduate education. Faculty performance as scholars whose work has been widely perceived among peers as outstanding is also important. As a whole, the Duke Kunshan faculty will have strong commitments to teaching and research and outstanding quality in both research and teaching will be highly valued.

DKU is a partnership of Duke University, Wuhan University and the Municipality of Kunshan, China (<https://dukekunshan.edu.cn/>).^{*} The DKU campus is 37 miles west of Shanghai in Kunshan, and is connected to Shanghai via an 18-minute high-speed train and a subway-light rail train system. DKU provides competitive compensation, benefits and start-up packages.

As an international intellectual community that encourages diversity, openness and creative learning, DKU welcomes outstanding faculty from around the world who contribute diverse perspectives and experiences to a global learning and research environment. DKU particularly welcomes applications from underrepresented groups and minorities.

^{*} Duke Kunshan University (DKU) is accredited by the Ministry of Education (MOE) of the People's Republic of China. Duke University is accredited by the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools Commission on Colleges (SACSCOC) in the United States to award baccalaureate, master's and doctorate degrees. Duke Kunshan University is not accredited by SACSCOC and the accreditation of Duke University does not extend to or include Duke Kunshan University or its students. Note that DKU undergraduate students successfully completing the course of study required by Duke Kunshan University will be conferred both a DKU graduation certificate and diploma officially approved by the MOE as well as a diploma from Duke University (Duke University and its degrees are accredited by SACS-COC). Further, although Duke University agrees to accept certain course work from Duke Kunshan University to be applied toward an award from Duke University, that course work may not be accepted by other colleges or universities in transfer, even if it appears on a transcript from Duke University. The decision to accept course work in transfer from any institution is made by the institution considering the acceptance of credits or course work.

Sacramento State

Rank: Hazel Cramer Endowed Chair and Professor in Public Policy and Administration

Subfield(s): Public Administration, Public Policy, Other

The Department of Public Policy and Administration at Sacramento State invites applications for the tenured position of Hazel Cramer Endowed Chair and Professor in Public Policy and Administration.

The Department of Public Policy and Administration (PPA) is a department within the College of Social Sciences and Interdisciplinary

Studies at California State University, Sacramento (Sacramento State). The mission of the PPA Department at the “Capital Campus” of Sacramento State is to prepare future leaders to address the complex issues that face California. We serve the state and the Sacramento region by developing leaders with strong analytical tools and a deep commitment to public service. We are excited to be part of “Sac State Downtown”—a hub for innovative teaching, learning, and research, fostering collaborative partnerships to address real-world issues and improve the quality of life in the Sacramento region. Sac State Downtown launched this academic year.

The PPA program (<http://www.csus.edu/ppa>) provides professional training for graduate students—many of whom work in state government. Our core academic program is a Master of Public Policy and Administration (MPPA); we also offer as a Master of Science in Urban Land Development (MSULD) and a Certificate in Collaborative Governance for matriculated graduate students. We participate in, or affiliate with, the Doctorate in Educational Leadership degree, the Judicial Administration Certificate Program, the Executive and Judicial Fellows Programs (part of the nationally recognized Capital Fellows Programs), and the Education Insights Center.

PPA faculty focus on developing engaging curricula that include project-based work and application to current policy and administrative issues in California. Courses are taught evenings and weekends to accommodate students who are full-time working professionals. Our curriculum is evidence-based, with a strong focus on ensuring that students leave the program with the ability to: (1) synthesize, analyze, and offer ideas to improve policy and practice; (2) apply knowledge and skills in a professional setting; and (3) recognize the role of profession in society.

ESSENTIAL DUTIES

- Teach two courses per semester (taught in the evenings or on weekends), with the opportunity to reduce the course load through securing funding for research/service projects.
- Continue distinguished scholarly and professional contributions related to public policy and administration.
- Create and execute a sustainable plan to serve the community (examples include, but are not limited to, developing and executing a high impact community engaged research agenda that includes translating research into possible solution sets/ideas for practice; creating new work-based learning opportunities for PPA students; developing and implementing innovative educational programs and curricula; fostering collaborations across the college, university, academic field, and entities in the community; launching a new center or institute with a viable business model; recruiting and supervising graduate students; and providing outreach to the broader community).
- Supervise master’s theses related to the area of public policy and administration.
- Provide service to the community in the area of public policy and administration.
- Provide service to the department, college, and university.
- Embrace the mission of the California State University and its students (<https://www2.calstate.edu/csu-system/about-the-csu/Pages/mission.aspx>). Our students are diverse and represent populations that have been historically underserved in both undergraduate and graduate education. A successful applicant must be excited to serve our student populations.

REQUIRED QUALIFICATIONS

- Ph.D. in public policy, public administration, public affairs, an interdisciplinary focus related to public policy and administration, or in a related discipline; or relevant work experience.

- Associate or full professor at an accredited university at some point in the applicant’s career; or comparable professional experience that would merit appointment with tenure.
- A distinguished and sustained record in the areas of teaching, scholarship, and service.
- The successful applicant should have a high impact applied research agenda, which utilizes research-based evidence to solve practical problems facing the community and our students. Examples could include political engagement, immigration policy, access to high quality health care, affordable housing, unemployment, poverty, environmental justice, and other similar issues.
- Commitment to master’s level university teaching and thesis supervision with a diverse student body
- Commitment to diversity and issues of just, equitable, and inclusive education.
- Commitment to working with the public service community in Sacramento.
- Publications (peer-reviewed journal articles, professional articles, highly utilized and evidence-based policy reports or briefs) in areas related to policy and administration.

PREFERRED QUALIFICATIONS

- Teaching experience and success in the topic areas the person would teach.
- Professional experiences outside of the classroom in areas related to public policy and administration. This could include consulting.
- Deep knowledge of California politics, policies, and regulations.
- Experience engaging different constituency groups to solve public problems.
- Expressed commitment to working in an interdisciplinary academic department.
- Commitment to experimenting with different forms of student engagement in the classroom.

APPOINTMENT SPECIFICS

The position is for the Hazel Cramer Endowed Chair. Through the Hazel Cramer Chair, the university is making a commitment to becoming an anchor institution in the region by focusing on long-term, systemic solutions to entrenched social problems. This position is a key part of the university’s efforts to engage more with the community.

As an endowed chair position, the work differs significantly from a traditional faculty member, and additional funds will be provided to ensure that the Endowed Chair can meet those expectations. Through one or more of these tasks, the holder will enhance the reputation of the department, the college, and the university. This is an academic year position. $20,000 per year will be provided to the Endowed Chair to pay for costs associated with executing the Endowed Chair’s plan to meet the unique expectations of the position (to pay for research assistants, Endowed Chair travel, student travel, meetings, brown bag lectures, research-related costs, etc.).

The initial appointment of the Endowed Chair will be for six years. Subsequent reappointment will require a thorough performance review.

ADDITIONAL APPLICATION INSTRUCTIONS

- Curriculum Vitae with references. References should include three individual names and contact information for people who can speak to the candidate’s ability to fulfill the required (and if relevant, preferred) duties/responsibilities and qualifications. One reference must be from an academic contact and the other two could be either academic or practice-based.

- Cover Letter: addresses the candidate's ability to fulfill the required (and if relevant, preferred) duties/responsibilities and qualifications, focused on: scholarship, service to students, and impact on the community (broadly defined). Must include a proposed plan or set of options focused on fulfilling the community engagement facets of the position. (750 or 1000 word limit)
- Writing Sample: representative samples of three publications, scholarship, and/or creative works. One must be non-scholarly.
- Teaching Effectiveness: Student evaluations and, if available, recent peer observations.
- Diversity statement: Please describe what you think about the importance of diversity with regard to both teaching and public service. (500 words or fewer)

Salary Commensurate with experience

Overview

David M. Rubenstein Fellowship in Governance Studies

Brookings is pleased to announce the second round of the David M. Rubenstein Fellowship Program. The challenges facing the United States and the world require rigorous, innovative, evidence-based research that generate fresh thinking and innovative policy solutions. Through this program, Brookings is seeking to increase diversity in our scholarly community by recruiting the next generation of rising stars and creative thinkers to help achieve our mission of improving governance in the United States and across the world.

For the 2019 class, planned to start in September 2019, the Institution is again looking for ten outstanding early- to mid-career scholars and policy experts with a diverse array of backgrounds, experience, and scholarship expertise. Each Rubenstein Fellow will have a primary affiliation with one of Brookings's five research programs and candidates should submit an application to the program(s) he or she is interested in.

In addition to the program's research priorities as discussed below, Brookings is placing an emphasis on policy researchers with a background in artificial intelligence, emerging technology, and/or data science with public policy. Strong candidates may be as conversant about deep reinforcement learning as they are labor policy, or as familiar with cryptography as they are international security. Alternatively, they may use novel data (e.g., satellite imagery, social media posts, IRS records) or methodologies (e.g., machine learning, survey experiments) to gain insight into pressing policy questions. In both cases, strong candidates will draw on deep technical expertise to inform their policy research, and demonstrate a clear ability and willingness to work at the intersection of artificial intelligence, emerging technology, data science, and/or public policy.

Rubenstein Fellows will have the opportunity to enhance the policy impact of their ideas and academic achievements by working with Brookings's network of scholars and experts, relying on the Institution's abilities to develop and promote research to the policy community and the wider public.

Rubenstein Fellows will diversify, augment, and complement the core policy research expertise of the more than 100 resident scholars at Brookings.

Program Overview

The Governance Studies (GS) program at Brookings aims to be the leading, independent voice in the domestic policymaking sphere. Though analyzing public policy, contemporary governance challenges, and political institutions and processes, Governance Studies aims to inform debate and provide policymakers with tools and ideas to improve institutional governance at the national level.

The Governance Studies program is accepting applications for two David M. Rubenstein Fellows with a strong background in either: 1) American democracy, U.S. political institutions, U.S. domestic policy, transparency, rule of law, anti-corruption, race, and equity; or 2) artificial intelligence, machine learning, technology policy, and emerging technologies.

Responsibilities

Under the supervision of the Vice President for Governance Studies, Rubenstein Fellows in Governance Studies will publish in-depth, peer-reviewed monographs and research papers as well as short opinion pieces, blog posts, and other products to promote their ideas in the public policy debate. Rubenstein Fellows will also participate in public and private events, raise money for research projects, interact with the media, and contribute to the overall intellectual life of the Institution.

Qualifications

Successful candidates will hold an advanced degree in political science, sociology, public policy, artificial intelligence, machine learning, information science, or a related discipline and have a record of, or demonstrated potential for, distinguished work through blending academic excellence with experience in the public or private sectors. The individual must have the ability and competence to conduct cutting-edge research and outreach to impact public policy.

(The program does not fund pre- or postdoctoral research, work toward a degree, or the completion of projects for which substantial progress has been made prior to the fellowship period.)

Application Process and Selection Timeline

Interested candidates who meet the program's eligibility requirements should apply online and submit:

- A curriculum vitae (CV), including a list of publications, with a cover letter describing their research interests and priorities, and
- A short piece of written work (no more than 5 pages) that highlights the candidate's capabilities.

When you apply, please attach your CV and cover letter as one document and upload your writing sample as a separate attachment.

For full consideration, please apply by December 17, 2018. Candidates who advance will be invited to interview and present their work and research in January, 2019. Following interviews, the GS Research Vice President will recommend finalists for selection by the President. Official announcement of awards will be made by March 31, 2019; however, some selections may be made in advance.

This is a two-year termed appointment. We expect fellowships to begin in September, 2019.

Selection is based on a combination of the following criteria: depth and breadth of professional experience, quality and rigor of scholarly research, and a commitment to upholding Brookings's core values of quality, independent, and impactful policy research that seeks to promote the public good.

Additional Information:

Successful completion of a background investigation is required for employment at Brookings.

Brookings offers a competitive salary and generous benefits package and is an equal opportunity employer that is committed to promoting a diverse and inclusive workplace. Applications are welcome from all qualified individuals regardless of race, color, national origin, gender, sexual orientation, age, religion, physical or mental disability, marital status, veteran status, or other factors protected by law.

Northwestern University

Rank: Owen L. Coon Professor of Policy Analysis and Communication

OWEN L. COON PROFESSOR OF POLICY ANALYSIS AND COMMUNICATION

Northwestern University is seeking a distinguished scholar of public communication to appoint as the inaugural Owen L. Coon Professor of Policy Analysis and Communication. This individual will help to build an expanded program of research on the organization and function of discourse in democracy and will be responsible for expanding undergraduate and graduate curricula in this area.

Northwestern University

Northwestern is a top-tier, private research university with three campuses: Evanston, Chicago, and Doha. The Evanston campus, located just north of Chicago and on Lake Michigan, houses the six schools that offer undergraduate instruction (music, education and social policy, journalism, engineering and applied science, arts and sciences, and communication), the Graduate School, and the Kellogg School of Management. The Chicago campus is home to the schools of medicine and law. The new Doha campus, in Qatar, offers an undergraduate program in journalism and communication.

The School of Communication

The School of Communication has five departments and offers a suite of interdisciplinary undergraduate, professional, and graduate programs. The departments span the communication arts and sciences and include the Roxelyn and Richard Pepper Department of Communication Sciences and Disorders, the Department of Communication Studies, the Department of Radio-Television-Film, the Department of Performance Studies, and the Department of Theatre (which includes music theatre and dance). The faculty of 150 includes 105 tenure-track faculty. The school offers instruction to roughly 1200 undergraduate majors and 700 graduate and professional students.

Founded over 135 years ago, the School has been a leader in developing the communication disciplines and professions, and continues to be a center of excellence in the communication arts and sciences. The current Dean of the School is Barbara J. O'Keefe.

Owen L. Coon Professor of Policy Analysis and Communication

The candidate we seek will be suitable for an appointment to an endowed professorship at the rank of associate professor or professor with tenure in the Department of Communication Studies at Northwestern University. The ideal candidate will have a high impact program of research on the role of communications in shaping public policy and decision-making (in any number of substantive policy domains: science policy, environmental policy, health policy, etc.) and will have made significant contributions to the practice of strategic communication. He or she will have an interdisciplinary profile with activity in two or more of the following disciplines: media studies, rhetorical and communication theory, journalism, political science, sociology of media and/or technology, and public policy studies. We hope to find a candidate with facility in multiple methodologies to advance knowledge in this area, including both qualitative and quantitative social scientific methods. We expect all candidates for tenured positions to present a record of achievement as a teacher and mentor for both undergraduate and graduate students.

Candidates must hold a doctorate or other terminal degree in their discipline, have proven administrative competence and experience, have demonstrated scholarly and teaching achievement of the highest quality, and have developed an international reputation and impact. We prefer a candidate whose background spans more than one area of study within the field of communication and/or cognate disciplines.

Applications and timeline

Applicants should send a letter of application, CV, sample publications, evidence of teaching effectiveness, and names of six confidential references to the Faculty Recruiting System located at the following link: <https://facultyrecruiting.northwestern.edu/apply/MzU4>

Inquiries and nominations can be addressed in confidence (e-mails preferred) to:

Department of Communication Studies
Northwestern University
2240 Campus Drive
Evanston, Illinois 60208
commstudies@northwestern.edu

Starting date for the appointment is negotiable but will not be later than September 1, 2020. Salary is negotiable and commensurate with experience, qualifications, and rank. For full consideration, applications or nominations should be received prior to January 15, 2019. Review of materials will begin February 1, 2019 and continue until the position is filled.

CNA Corporation

Subfield(s): International Relations, American Government and Politics, Public Policy

The Strategy, Policy and Plans division supports the Navy and Marine Corps, as well as other DOD sponsors by providing regional expertise and analyses, political-military studies, and U.S. strategy and force assessments. Our research approach anticipates a broad scope of plausible outcomes assessing today's issues, analyzing trends, and identifying "the issue after next," using the unique operational and policy expertise of its analysts.

Responsible for oversight and management of the research program, to include: production of analytic products that meet CNA quality standards; development and maintenance of relationships with program sponsor base; management and professional development of program staff; and development and sustainment of a stable funding base to support program research. This leadership role carries with it personal and corporate responsibility to build and sustain a respectful workplace.

1 Assist the Research Division Vice President in developing the division research plan, allocating personnel and resources to execute the plan, and managing the plan to meet all assigned financial and execution objectives.

2 Provide guidance and support to project directors.

3 Support corporate, division, and program (if applicable) goals for business development by developing a stable funding base to support program research and supporting the business development efforts of other research program directors across the FFRDC.

4 Develop and maintain strong, trust-based relationships with program sponsors. Demonstrate through program products and personal interactions that we are committed to their success. Maintain and cultivate these relationships over time and throughout their career. Facilitate the formation of new relationships elsewhere in the FFRDC as appropriate and relevant to the evolution of their career path and command postings.

5 Conduct analysis and research.

6 Create and foster a collaborative work environment.

7 Exercise oversight of assigned projects to ensure they meet CNA's quality standards.

8 Support division and business unit recruiting and retention efforts to develop and maintain a high-quality, diverse workforce.

9 Guide and assist assigned program staff with their professional development.

10 Provide the primary formal performance evaluation of assigned program staff.

11 Exercise oversight of work conducted by any assigned field reps.

12 Develop staffing pipelines for any assigned field billets and support the field slating process.

13 Perform other duties as assigned by the Research Division Vice President.

Virginia Tech

Subfield(s): Public Administration, Public Policy, American Government and Politics

The School of Public and International Affairs (SPIA) at Virginia Tech seeks a highly qualified, broadly trained individual for a position at the associate or full professor level within the Center for Public Administration and Policy (CPAP). The position will be located in Virginia Tech's National Capital Region campus, in the Washington D.C. metro area. The appointment begins in August 2019.

Although the areas of specialization are open, we are particularly interested in applications from persons whose research and teaching expertise are in the areas of public administration history and theory, public management, and public policy broadly defined. CPAP is one program in three locations: Blacksburg, Northern Virginia, and Richmond. Teaching responsibilities will include both introductory courses and advanced seminars supporting CPAP's MPA and PhD degree programs. There are many opportunities for cross-location teaching. Candidates should also be able to work within the interdisciplinary setting of SPIA, which offers graduate and undergraduate degrees in International Affairs, Urban Planning, and Public Administration.

REQUIRED QUALIFICATIONS

Applicants must hold an earned PhD in public administration, political science, public policy, public management, or a related discipline. Applicants must also have teaching experience at the doctoral level, and must have a record of success in and continued commitment to teaching and scholarly research and publication consistent with appointment at the rank of associate or full professor at a leading research active land-grant university.

PREFERRED QUALIFICATIONS

Demonstrated commitment to community outreach and engagement, as is expected of faculty at a land-grant institution, is strongly preferred. The successful candidate will have the opportunity to engage in transdisciplinary research, curricular, and/or outreach initiatives with other university faculty across the University who are working to advance the human condition and society with better decisions through data, especially in the areas of information technology, digital government and public policy and administrative practices, and technology policy, and collaborating at the intersection of scientific evidence, governance, and analysis toward translating scholarship into practice.

Complete applications should include: 1) a cover letter outlining current and future research agendas, an overview of teaching experience and how the applicant would approach collaborative academic activity within CPAP and SPIA; 2) a curriculum vita, 3) a writing sample, and 4) the names and e-mail addresses of three professional references.

All applications and supporting documents (except reference letters) must be submitted online at www.jobs.vt.edu, reference posting# TR0180188 ; paper documents cannot be accepted.

Questions about the online application process should be directed to Ms. Krystal Wright, at krystal@vt.edu, phone: 540- 231-2291, or SPIA (0113), 140 Otey Street, Room 110, Virginia Tech, Blacksburg, VA 24061.

Application review will begin on December 20, 2018. The search will remain open until the position is filled, but to be assured full consideration, applications should be received by this date.

For more information on the Center for Public Administration and Policy see: www.cpap.vt.edu; and for the School of Public and International Affairs see: www.spia.vt.edu. Informal inquiries about the School of Public and International Affairs can be directed to Prof. Joel Peters, Director (interim) SPIA at: peters25@vt.edu.

Texas A&M University

Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, International Relations, Public Policy

The Center for Grand Strategy at the Bush School of Government and Public Service, Texas A&M University, is inviting applications to its residential fellowship program for the 2019-2020 academic year. The program will support one pre-doctoral and one post-doctoral fellow. The Center for Grand Strategy is particularly interested in scholars that are engaging with the fundamental questions surrounding grand strategy: How should the national interest be defined? What are the threats to the national interest? How should the United States use its power in response? Applications are invited from scholars of political science, history, and other relevant disciplines.

Fellows will be expected to be in residence at the Bush School for the duration of their fellowships (September 2019-May 2020). They will be provided with office space and access to the resources of the Bush School and Texas A&M University.

The pre-doctoral fellow is expected to make substantial progress toward – and ideally complete – a dissertation during the fellowship. The post-doctoral fellow is expected to complete a manuscript for publication. The post-doctoral fellow is also expected to teach one course to Bush School students.

Fellows will participate in Center for Grand Strategy activities, to include seminars, workshops, and conferences. They will work with an active community of scholars in international affairs, political science, history, and other disciplines at Texas A&M University.

Eligibility:

Applicants for the pre-doctoral fellowship must be pursuing a Ph.D. in political science, history or other relevant disciplines. Applicants must pass all qualifying exams and advance to the level of candidacy prior to the start of their appointment.

Applicants for the post-doctoral fellowship must have completed their Ph.D. in political science, history, or other relevant disciplines to begin the fellowship. Recent Ph.D. recipients are especially encouraged to apply.

Award information:

The pre-doctoral fellow will receive a stipend of $38,000, as well as $5,000 in research funding. The post-doctoral fellow will receive an annual salary of $60,000 (payable monthly), as well as $10,000 in research funding. The post-doctoral fellow will also be eligible for the benefits package available to TAMU employees.

Application process:

Applicants should submit a letter of interest, curriculum vitae, short writing sample (no more than 10,000 words), and a letter of recommendation (preferably by the applicant's dissertation advisor) to jmschues@tamu.edu.

Applications will be reviewed on a rolling basis, with those arriving by January 14, 2019 receiving priority attention.

Colorado State University

Rank: Assistant Professor of US Environmental Politics and Policy

Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Public Policy, Public Administration

The Department of Political Science at Colorado State University invites applications for a tenure-track Assistant Professor position in US Environmental Politics and Policy. Advanced Assistant Professors are encouraged to apply. We are open with respect to theoretical orientation, substantive focus, and methodological approaches. The Department offers programs of study leading to the B.A., M.A., and Ph.D. degrees; the graduate program emphasizes the study of environmental politics and policy.

The Department values both strong teaching and research. Successful candidates will be expected to offer courses in the American politics and/or public policy & administration curriculum at both the undergraduate and graduate levels, including a graduate seminar on US environmental politics and policy. Additional teaching assignments will depend on the candidate's interests and expertise as well as departmental needs. The normal teaching load is 2-2. Faculty members are also expected to advise and mentor graduate and undergraduate students; demonstrate an active research agenda; and provide service to the department, college, university, and community. Approximately one-third of undergraduate political science majors at CSU are first-generation college students.

Required Job Qualifications: Primary teaching and/or scholarly emphasis in American politics or public policy & administration; evidence of an active research agenda focused on US environmental politics and/or policy; PhD in Political Science, public policy, public administration, or related field by August 16, 2019; evidence of teaching effectiveness.

Preferred Job Qualifications: Ability to enhance the Department's commitment to diversity and inclusion reflecting Departmental and institutional values. Candidates who can teach any of the department's methods courses (quantitative, qualitative, or research design) are encouraged to apply.

Application Procedure: Applications will be accepted until the position is filled; to ensure full consideration, complete applications should be received by January 7, 2019. Applicants should submit: 1) a letter of application outlining teaching interests and research agenda as well as a brief statement on how your teaching, research and/or service demonstrate a commitment to diversity and inclusion; 2) Curriculum vitae; 3) Graduate school transcripts (unofficial transcripts acceptable at the initial stage of the search), 4) Evidence of demonstrated or potential teaching effectiveness (syllabi, teaching evaluations, letters of observation), 5) One sample of published or presented work, and 6) The names and contact information of three professional referees who will be emailed immediately upon submission of an application with a request to submit a letter of reference. Please note that a complete application consists of the requested materials and three letters of reference. Your referees will be emailed a request for a letter of reference immediately upon submission of your application. As such, applicants should allow sufficient time for their letters to be submitted by January 14, 2019 to ensure full consideration. Application materials of semi-finalist candidates, including letters of reference, will be made available for review by the entire faculty in the Department of Political Science. University of Chicago

Rank: Provost's Postdoctoral Fellow/Assistant Professor, Political Science

The Harris School of Public Policy invites applications for one or more tenure-track positions from scholars working in political science. The search is open with respect to sub-field within political science, but the Harris School has a particular interest in empirical or theoretical work in the areas of race and ethnic politics, political representation, and urban politics.

Successful candidates, demonstrating a strong promise for a scholarly career, will be appointed as a tenure-track Assistant Professor, or as a Provost Postdoctoral Fellow with an initial two-year tenure track faculty appointment at the rank of Instructor. This initial period is intended to serve in lieu of a postdoctoral appointment for the same period, during which the Provost Postdoctoral Fellow will teach one class per year, receive research support, join a cohort of scholars, and participate in programming designed to help support them in the transition to Assistant Professor. Provost's Postdoctoral Fellows will ordinarily be promoted to Assistant Professor at the end of their 2-year term. A goal of the search is to increase the diversity of the Harris School's faculty, and we therefore welcome applicants who come from groups that are historically underrepresented in the disciplines noted above, such as black/African American, Hispanic/Latin, American Indian or Alaskan Native.

Appointments will begin on July 1, 2019. Review of applications will begin on December 8, 2018 and will continue until the position is filled or the search is closed. Candidates are expected to have a PhD by the start of the appointment. Applications must include: 1) a cover letter; 2) a CV; 3) two writing samples; and 4) three letters of reference. Applications must be submitted through the University of Chicago's Academic Career Opportunities website: <https://tinyurl.com/y8xydzmt>. Only short-listed candidates will be contacted. The Faculty Search Committee will conduct interviews with final candidates who will be invited for an on-campus visit.

The University of Chicago is an Affirmative Action/Equal Opportunity/Disabled/Veterans Employer and does not discriminate on the basis of race, color, religion, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, national or ethnic origin, age, status as an individual with a disability, protected veteran status, genetic information, or other protected classes under the law. University of North Carolina, Charlotte

Rank: Assistant or Associate Professor in Data Analytics and Public Policy

Assistant or Associate Professor in Data Analytics and Public Policy, UNC Charlotte Public Policy Program

The University of North Carolina at Charlotte invites applications for a tenured (Associate) or tenure-track (advanced Assistant) professor who will actively participate in our interdisciplinary Public Policy PhD Program. We seek candidates whose research applies data science methodology and advanced quantitative methods to the study of public policy. The area of research specialty is open, but we will give preference to candidates with interest in collaborating with faculty in a newly developing security and justice policy research cluster, broadly defined. Candidates should have a record of research that utilizes advanced quantitative methods (e.g. causal inference, time series analysis, hierarchical modeling, simulations) and data science skills (e.g. data visualization, machine learning, computational modeling, natural language processing, network science) and be prepared to teach in graduate courses in these areas.

Required qualifications include the following: (1) a Ph.D. in Public Policy or a closely related social science or data science discipline; (2) a strong record, appropriate to rank, of high quality peer-reviewed publications related to public policy; (3) a program of research likely to generate publications and extramural funding; (4) teaching experience, appropriate to rank; and (5) a commitment to promoting diversity and inclusion as values in the program and college. Candidates at the Associate level should possess credentials and experience appropriate for a tenured associate professorship at UNC Charlotte. A track record of extramural funding is required for candidates at the associate professor rank. We will give preference to candidates with experience working within an interdisciplinary environment, and who have experience in areas such as graduate recruitment, curriculum development, mentoring, and preparing students for an academic and applied job market. Applicants must submit a statement on diversity and inclusion and finalists will be asked during their screening interview how diversity and inclusion are incorporated into their teaching, service, and research.

The Public Policy Program is an interdisciplinary PhD granting program that draws upon faculty and resources from seven departments and three colleges. The position will contribute to the development and integration of data science curriculum into our current PhD program and help develop new graduate certificate programs. At least fifty percent of the teaching and service expectations will be committed to the Public Policy Program. The position will have a tenure home in one of the following four departments: Criminal Justice, Geography and Earth Sciences, Political Science and Public Administration, or Sociology. Research active faculty at UNC Charlotte typically teach two courses per semester. The position begins on August 12, 2019.

The Public Policy Program is supported by over 30 core faculty drawn from departments and colleges throughout the university including Criminal Justice and Criminology, Economics, Geography and Earth Sciences, Philosophy, Political Science and Public Administration, Public Health, and Sociology.

The University of North Carolina at Charlotte is a doctoral, research-intensive university, located in one of the nation's fastest-growing metropolitan areas on an expanding modern campus. One of sixteen campuses in one of the oldest public university systems in the United States, UNC Charlotte offers over 28,000 culturally diverse students a wide range of undergraduate and graduate degree programs. Charlotte's metropolitan area is rich in cultural and racial diversity (over 40% Hispanic/Latino and African-American) and our faculty strives to reflect and interact positively with that population. The College of Liberal Arts and Sciences houses 20 departments in the humanities, social and behavioral sciences, physical sciences, and military sciences, as well as 8 research centers and institutes and 13 interdisciplinary programs.

Applications must be submitted electronically at <https://jobs.uncc.edu> (use position number #004161) and the following documents should be attached: cover letter describing your qualifications, teaching, and scholarship; a separate statement addressing commitment to diversity and inclusion; a recent CV, and the names and contact information for three references. Please contact Dr. Cherie Maestas, Public Policy Program Director at cmaestas@uncc.edu with questions about the position. Review of files will begin December 6 and continue until the position is filled.

As an EOE/AA employer and an ADVANCE Institution that strives to create an academic climate in which the dignity of all individuals is respected and maintained, the University of North Carolina at Charlotte encourages applications from all underrepresented groups. The candidate chosen for this position will be required to provide an official transcript of their highest earned degree and submit to a criminal background check.

College of Charleston

Rank: Assistant Professor of Political Science

The Department of Political Science at the College of Charleston invites applications for a tenure track assistant professor position in public administration/policy beginning August 2019. The successful candidate will contribute to undergraduate classes in public administration/policy as well as core and elective classes in the NASPAA Accredited Master of Public Administration (MPA) program. A PhD in Public Administration, Political Science, or a related field is required. We are especially interested in candidates with research and teaching interests in the area of public management, public finance, or the ethical dimensions of public service. The ability to teach research methods at the graduate level is also desirable. The successful candidate will be expected to teach a 3-3 course load (a combination of undergraduate and graduate-level courses), maintain an active research agenda, and contribute to the governance of the MPA program.

The College of Charleston is a public, liberal arts and sciences institution with approximately 10,000 undergraduate students and 1,000 graduate students. The Political Science Department has 20 fulltime faculty, 360 undergraduate majors (<http://polisci.cofc.edu/>), and a Geography Minor (<http://geography-minor.cofc.edu/>). The department also supports a Master of Public Administration (<http://puba.cofc.edu/>) and Master of Science in Environmental Studies (<http://mes.cofc.edu/>) program. The College is located in historic downtown Charleston in a coastal metropolitan area of 750,000. Additional information about the institution and the surrounding area is available at <https://www.cofc.edu/>. Applicants should apply online at <https://jobs.cofc.edu/> and submit a cover letter, a curriculum vita, graduate transcripts, sample publication/example of scholarly research, a teaching portfolio (with evidence of teaching effectiveness including, but not limited to course syllabi and course evaluations), and contact information for three references. Questions about the search can be directed to the search committee chair, Dr. Judy Millesen (millesenj@cofc.edu). Review of applications will begin December 1, 2018 and continue until the position is filled.

The College of Charleston is an Affirmative Action/Equal Opportunity employer and does not discriminate against any individual or group on the basis of gender, sexual orientation, gender identity or expression, age, race, color, religion, national origin, veteran status, genetic information, or disability.

University of New Orleans

Rank: Chair and Professor, Department of Planning and Urban Studies

Subfield(s): Administration, Public Administration, Public Policy
Specializations: Urban Politics, Environmental Policy, Energy Policy

POSITION SUMMARY

The University of New Orleans and the College of Liberal Arts, Education and Human Development seeks candidates for Chair of the Department of Planning and Urban Studies at rank of full-professor with tenure. Chairs are appointed on an initial three-year term and are subject to evaluation and renewal. The successful candidate will have prior academic leadership experience, preferably as a department chair or associate chair. The candidate will need to manage a small but diverse department, in the areas of fiscal responsibility, personnel management, curricular and program oversight, outreach and recruitment, and assessment. The successful candidate will be a collaborative and innovative leader, reporting to the dean and working closely with other chairs in the college, especially those in Anthropology/Sociology and Political Science/Public Administration. Discussions are underway about the college structure, whether a move to a School is warranted for this department, alone or combined with other departments. The successful candidate will be open to other structures that will strengthen and grow the programs in Planning and Urban Studies.

Candidates must possess an earned doctorate in urban/regional planning, or a related field (e.g. social ecology, urban studies/design, applied ecology), which is required for the successful candidate to have demonstrated credentials and to ensure the granting of tenure. The candidate must also have a record suitable for hiring at the rank of full professor, preferably by earning that rank at a previous regionally accredited university. Research in the areas of Environment & Energy, Coastal Zone Planning, and/or Environmental Planning is preferred. Documented success at securing outside funding is strongly preferred as well. The Planning and Urban Studies department offers five degrees: a Bachelor of Science in urban studies and planning (both face-to-face and online), a Master of Science in Transportation, an accredited Master of Urban and Regional Planning, and a Master of Science and a Ph.D. in Urban Studies. Additionally, the department offers three certificates: Geographic Information Systems, Historic and Cultural Preservation, and Disaster Management and Community Resilience. PLUS houses the University of New Orleans Transportation Institute and the Center for Hazards, Assessment and Technology.

RESPONSIBILITIES

50% of effort as department chair; 50% as teaching and research. The assigned time and stipend for department chair changes annually, depending on numbers of majors, SCH generated, and fulltime faculty.

REQUIRED QUALIFICATIONS

PhD from regionally accredited university in the field of urban planning or a closely related field; earned tenure at current institution or qualifications that would allow the candidate to be hired as full professor with tenure.

DESIRED QUALIFICATIONS

Significant leadership experience; discipline specialty areas of Environment & Energy, Coastal Zone Planning, and/or Environmental Planning; documented success at securing outside funding.

University of Wisconsin, Madison

Rank: PROFESSOR, PUBLIC POLICY AND REPRODUCTIVE HEALTH - CLUSTER HIRE

The successful candidate for this position will be expected to develop and maintain an energetic, cutting-edge, highly visible research program; advise graduate and post-graduate research; develop and maintain extramural funding for their research program; and teach graduate and undergraduate courses in the management and implementation of reproductive health and social policy, or develop new courses in their area of expertise, as appropriate. Reproductive health includes, but is not limited to public policies surrounding fertility, birth control, in-utero health, post-partum health and early childhood development, as they affect health disparities, whether due to geography, socioeconomic status, race, ethnicity, or program delivery and health equity.

The Reproductive Equity Cluster:

This position is part of the Reproductive Equity Cluster, which was developed in order to build cross-disciplinary research expertise necessary to examine the drivers and consequences of inequities in reproductive health and to identify potential solutions. Areas of cluster research could include health care policy, social policy, structural, and individual factors related to family planning, fertility/infertility, maternal and infant mortality, and other aspects of maternal and child health as they relate to policy and practice. It is expected that the successful candidate will focus on health disparities and health equity and the ways in which policy and practice effect same.

A major purpose of the cluster is to build on existing strengths on campus. Ultimately, it is a goal that an expansion of this work at UW-Madison will translate into greater health equity and improved health and well-being of residents of Wisconsin and beyond. The interdisciplinary, comprehensive focus of the cluster will be used to expand research activity in this area and add greater diversity to the voices engaged in these discussions, particularly with respect to health disparities and inequities, and program and policy effects on disparities.

Candidates should have an interest in collaborating with the cluster and with colleagues in schools, centers, and training programs across campus such as the School of Medicine and Public Health, Population Health Sciences, the LaFollette School of Public Affairs, the School of Social Work, the School of Human Ecology, the Institute for Research on Poverty and the Center for Demography and Ecology.

Overall, three candidates will be recruited in this Cluster: 1) Professor, Public Policy and Reproductive Health [PVL # 94865] (this particular search), 2) Professor, Health Services Research and Reproductive Health [PVL# 94599], and 3) Professor, Social Causes & Consequences of Reproductive Health [PVL # 94972]. These positions are part of the UW's Cluster Hiring Initiative (<https://factstaff.provost>).

wisc.edu/cluster-hiring-initiative/), designed to foster innovative, outstanding research programs that will stimulate productive interactions among faculty and students interested in research across the campus and to expand interdisciplinary research.

ADDITIONAL INFORMATION:

Faculty hired under this initiative will most likely have a primary faculty appointment in the LaFollette School of Public Affairs, with potential joint or secondary appointments in relevant departments and schools such as Law, Human Ecology, or Population Health Sciences in the School of Medicine and Public Health.

UW-Madison is seeking a diverse set of faculty candidates who will deepen our campus' interdisciplinary research strength in key areas of current and future research promise, as well as faculty candidates who will approach their work in a manner that advances our commitment to research excellence.

A criminal background check will be conducted prior to hiring.

Candidates for the tenured professor rank must meet criteria for appointment at rank per UW College of Letters and Sciences guidelines for appointment and promotion on the tenure track.

The successful applicant will be responsible for ensuring eligibility for employment in the United States on or before the effective date of the appointment.

Augustana College

Rank: Tenure-track Assistant Professor

The Environmental Studies Program at Augustana College invites applications for a full-time (10-month) Tenure-track Assistant Professor beginning in the 2019-2020 academic year. Augustana College is a selective liberal arts college of 2,500 students, most of whom live on a wooded 115-acre campus. Rock Island, Illinois is one of the Illinois-Iowa Quad Cities along the Mississippi River, a diverse metropolitan area with 400,000 residents approximately three hours west of Chicago.

Augustana College places a high priority on creating an environment supportive of the promotion of ethnic minorities, women, and persons with disabilities. The college is also committed to building a culturally diverse educational environment. Thus, we are particularly interested in candidates from underrepresented groups with a demonstrated passion for social/environmental justice and working with diverse student and community populations. We encourage applicants, in their letter of application, to address how they will further this goal in their teaching, scholarship, and/or service. Augustana does not discriminate based on age, race, color, ethnic origin, gender, sexual orientation, disability or creed. Details about Augustana, our expectation of the faculty, the selection process, and the Quad Cities all are available at the Faculty Search website: <http://www.augustanafaculty.org/>.

The candidate will play a critical role in teaching courses in the Environmental Studies curriculum, a rapidly growing interdisciplinary program with approximately 100 majors. Teaching responsibilities could include an introductory course on the social dimensions of sustainability, climate change, sustainable energy, upper level courses in their areas of expertise, and contribute to the capstone interdisciplinary sequence by guiding the stakeholder process. The signature sustainability pedagogy of the core curriculum combines team-based and project/problem-based learning. Faculty will be expected to contribute to Upper Mississippi Center for Sustainable Communities (UMC) Sustainable Working Landscapes Initiative (SWLI; matches city identified sustainability problems with courses to create real-world learning experiences for students) or other community-based sustainability projects through their teaching. We encourage applicants to address their experience and/or passion for teaching courses using these pedagogies in their letter of application.

Service as an academic advisor to Environmental Studies majors will begin in the second year of employment. The teaching and supervisory load for this position will total 24 credit hours (courses are typically 4 cr. hrs.). In addition to traditional sabbatical leaves available after earning tenure, a one-semester leave to pursue a scholarly agenda is typically available during the third year of pre-tenure employment. Preference will be given to interdisciplinary candidates and those with areas of specialization in the social sciences or humanities (see below) emphasizing the human dimensions of environmental problems. We encourage applications from those with interdisciplinary backgrounds in both the natural sciences and social sciences/humanities; however, applicants should explicitly demonstrate in their letter of application and teaching and scholarship statements their expertise in the human dimensions of sustainability problems.

Required Qualifications

- Earned Ph.D. (ABD considered) in a sustainability-related field including anthropology, geography, sociology, psychology, environmental or social justice, history, women and gender studies, political economy, political ecology, environmental policy and governance, sustainable development, religion (i.e., eco-theology, creation spirituality, environmental ethics), or a closely related field emphasizing the human dimensions of social-ecological systems.
- Demonstrated experience or willingness to teach project or problem-based courses.
- Demonstrated passion for teaching, integrating, and mentoring undergraduate students in their research.

Preferred Qualifications

- Experience of being the instructor of record for undergraduate level courses; demonstrating a connection to environmental studies a plus.
- Demonstrated expertise and experience in one or more of the following areas: ethnographic methods, conducting participatory (action-oriented) research, working in the decision-making processes, participating in sustainability policy or politics and engaging diverse communities in research and problem-solving.
- Demonstrated interdisciplinary expertise and experience in one or more of the following areas: qualitative methods, root causal analysis, social network analysis, participatory decision-making, institutional analysis, stakeholder engagement, adaptive governance and management, risk analysis, or back-casting and envisioning methods.

Questions may be directed to the co-chairs of the program, Dr. Michael Reisner (michaelreisner@augustana.edu) and Dr. Jason Koontz (jasonkoontz@augustana.edu). This position is contingent on final authorization from the Provost's office.

To apply, please email application materials to sherrydocherty@augustana.edu using the subject line: Search 103-19 Environmental Studies, and directed to Dr. Wendy Hilton-Morrow. Alternatively, application materials can be mailed to: Search #103-19, C/O Dr. Wendy Hilton-Morrow, Provost & Dean of the College, Augustana College, 639 – 38th Street, Rock Island, IL 61201. Application materials should include: a letter of application addressing each qualification, curriculum vitae, copy of graduate transcripts, statement of teaching interests and philosophy (2-page limit) that describes your qualifications to teach above-described courses, evidence of teaching effectiveness, a statement of research Interests and priorities (2-page limit) that describes undergraduate student involvement, a writing sample, and names and contact information for three references that can address your potential for teaching success.

Review of applications will begin September 10.

Whittier College

Rank: Assistant Professor of Political Science

Subfield(s): Public Policy, American Government and Politics, Public Administration

Whittier College

Whittier College announces a tenure-track Assistant Professor of Political Science position beginning Fall 2019. The Department seeks candidates specializing in Public Policy and American Politics, and capable of teaching a core course in Public Administration. We would be particularly interested in candidates who might also be able to contribute to any of the following additional areas: race and politics, minority politics, environmental politics, state and local politics with an emphasis on California, and/or political theory.

Candidates should have earned a Ph.D. in Political Science prior to September 2019. The successful candidate will demonstrate potential for outstanding teaching and excellence in scholarship. The Political Science Department has five full-time faculty and approximately 90 majors. Faculty members teach 20 units each year and are expected to teach college-wide courses such as First-year Writing Seminars and/or courses paired with faculty in other disciplines as part of our general education program. In addition, all faculty must be fully engaged in committee service and advisement of students.

Preliminary review of materials will begin September 10, and will continue until the appointment is made. If you plan to attend the American Political Science Association conference, please let us know, and send your c.v. and letter of application by August 1. We plan to meet with a limited number of applicants during the conference; however, all applicants will have equal consideration, regardless of attendance. Full applications should include: a letter of application, including discussion of teaching philosophy and research interests; a curriculum vitae; a summary of course evaluations or other evidence of teaching effectiveness; unofficial transcripts; and at least three confidential letters of recommendation, sent by your references. Please email (PDFs preferred) materials to Prof. Deborah Norden, Department Chair, at <mailto:dnorden@whittier.edu>. Paper application and reference letters can be sent to Prof. Deborah Norden, Political Science Department; Whittier College; 13406 Philadelphia St.; Whittier, CA 90601.

Whittier College is committed to attracting and retaining a high quality, diverse faculty with a shared passion for student-centered teaching and mentoring. It is distinguished by its small class sizes, high-impact pedagogies, and innovative liberal arts curriculum blended with professional and pre-professional programs. It is a nationally recognized model for diversity and has no racial majority among its student body. With over 60% students of color, Whittier is designated as both a Hispanic Serving Institution (HSI) and Asian American Native American Pacific Islander-Serving Institution (AANAPISI). Founded in 1887, it is an independent, four-year liberal arts college with about 1,650 undergraduates and is ideally situated in the scenic hills 18 miles east of downtown Los Angeles. It is an AA/EOE employer. More information on the position is available at www.whittier.edu/jobs.
