Resources and Guidance on Finding a Job in Political Science

Hundreds of academic positions are advertised each year in political science. Finding the openings is the easy part; knowing how to approach the application and interview process is a little more challenging. At APSA, we have collected resources to assist candidates in the academic job search. We would like to highlight a few of these key resources here. The complete list of job resources is available online at www.apsanet.org/jobs.

eJobs: This online resource contains comprehensive online listing of political science jobs, is updated daily with new job listings and candidate resumes, and is fully searchable by field of interest, name of employer/candidate, region, keyword, position, salary, type of institution, and most recent posts.

Data on Jobs Market: APSA gathers and releases data regarding the placement of political science Ph.Ds. View this information at www.apsanet.org/content\_7623.cfm.

Mentoring: Enroll in the APSA Mentoring Program online at www.apsanet.org/mentoring.

eJobs Placement Interview Services: The eJobs Annual Meeting Placement Interview Service provides space and facilities for employers who have eJobs posted to interview candidates at the APSA meeting. Many other conferences, such as the Northeastern and Western, also use the APSA online service to schedule placement interviews. Check the listings online in eJobs.

Ethics Guide: The APSA Guide to Professional Ethics in Political Science includes specific guidance on hiring and employment practices. Order a print copy or view online at www.apsanet.org/ethics.

Asking the Right Questions: APSA Job Candidate Questions to Ask Program

Asking the right questions provides valuable information for career decisions. As part of the APSA Job Candidate Questions to Ask (JCQ) Program participating political science departments have agreed to answer the following questions from job candidates.

Salary

1. What is the salary structure?
2. How is salary normally negotiated?
3. How are annual increases handled?
4. Is there an automatic escalator to ensure the salaries of future hires will not outpace those of existing department members?

Service Activities

1. What are the expectations of pre-tenure and tenured faculty regarding:
  - departmental and institutional committee work,
  - professional or disciplinary activities, and
  - outreach activities to communities external to institution?

Research Support

1. What departmental or institutional resources are available to support:
  - access to research materials and equipment,
  - the employment of research assistants,
  - research expenses on/off campus, and
  - travel expenses for conferences?

2. What departmental or institutional resources are available to seek external funding and to administer external funding awards?

Teaching Support

1. What departmental or institutional resources are available to support:
  - the development of teaching expertise,
  - innovations in teaching, and
  - the introduction of new courses and new technologies?
2. What are departmental expectations regarding:
  - the average course load,
  - the number of different courses taught by faculty, and
  - advising of graduate and undergraduate students?

Tenure, Renewal, and Annual Review

1. What policies and procedures govern the granting of tenure, renewal of contracts for pre-tenure faculty, and annual reviews of faculty performance?
2. What are the department's expectations for successful performance leading to the granting of tenure or renewal of contracts for pre-tenure faculty?
3. What are the department's expectations for a positive annual review?

Mentoring and Faculty Support Initiatives

1. What attention does the department give to integrating new faculty into the department, the institution, and in the profession?
2. Does the department or institution have programs that address:
  - the employment of dual-career professional couples,
  - family needs of faculty and staff, and
  - issues associated with minority faculty and staff?

Health and Life Insurance

1. What are the plans offered?
2. How are benefits disbursed?
3. What are the out-of-pocket expenses?
4. Are partners and/or children covered, and to what extent?
5. What portion of my paycheck will be deducted for these benefits?

Retirement

1. How many types of retirement plans are offered?
2. What is the matching percentage of the institution?
3. Is contribution required (and how much)?

More on the APSA Job Candidate Questions to Ask (JCQ) Program

ADMINISTRATION

University of Florida

Rank: Associate Dean for Diversity, Equity, and Inclusion

The University of Florida, a top-ten ranked public university, welcomes applications and nominations for the inaugural role of Associate Dean for Diversity, Equity, and Inclusion in the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences (CLAS). The Associate Dean will join the institution at a transformative time as UF strengthens its commitment to diversity, equity, and inclusion as a top institutional priority. Under the leadership of Dean David E. Richardson, the successful candidate will be an unwavering diversity advocate and inspiring partner who values a liberal arts and sciences education and has demonstrated experience as a skilled administrator, advisor, and strategic leader. The Associate Dean will lead and inform the strategic discussion advancing diversity, equity, and inclusion throughout the college and will build, guide, and assess policies and practices that encourage diversity, equity, and inclusion as a means of improving the college's cultural climate and support its underrepresented populations.

Reporting to the Dean, the Associate Dean will focus on the development of a comprehensive and strategic framework to support diversity, equity, and inclusion efforts in the college; engage in continuous, systematic, and focused recruitment and retention activities to support a diverse student, faculty, and staff population. As a public institution, it is important that the campus reflect demographics that mirror the state of Florida.

Serving as a key partner and advisor to the campus community with the support of the other Associate Deans of the college, this Associate Dean will develop and implement a full range of initiatives that enhance ongoing efforts to ensure college-wide understanding, adoption, and adherence to diversity, equity, and inclusion while fostering a collaborative and nurturing culture that recognizes UF's particular history and combats racism and its impacts. The Associate Dean will serve as a thought leader with in-depth knowledge of diversity, equity, and inclusion; improve the college climate; and intentionally engage faculty, students, and staff in dialogue around critical issues to support the academic, career, and personal development of underrepresented groups.

These unprecedented times overshadowed by a global pandemic and inspired by a revitalized movement for racial justice and equity allow for innovative change in new areas. As a member of the Dean's leadership team, the Associate Dean will partner with other Associate Deans and college stakeholders and champion transparency and accountability of diversity initiatives as a shared priority at CLAS in support of UF's vision by developing significant collaborative partnerships with senior administration, faculty, staff, students, and community members to strengthen the anti-racist fabric of UF. This is a tremendous opportunity for a scholar, administrator, and strategic project manager to build a framework, presence, and advocacy for practices that foster and infuse the values of diversity, equity, and inclusion throughout the college.

All inquiries, nominations/referrals, and resumes with cover letters should be sent electronically and in confidence to Keight Tucker Kennedy or Tiffany Weber at Isaacson, Miller.

Job No. 16108

West Virginia University (WVU) seeks a visionary and enterprising leader to serve as the inaugural Director of the Institute for Policy Research and Public Affairs affiliated with Eberly College of Arts and Sciences and the John D. Rockefeller, Jr. School of Policy and Politics. This is a tenured faculty position at the rank of Professor or Associate Professor in the Eberly College. The Director will lead a new initiative to advance public policy and public affairs research and translational activities. This initiative is one of three divisions planned to be established within the Rockefeller School. The other two deal with academic programs and engaged learning and service. In addition to the duties outlined below, the Director would work closely with WVU leadership to help fully establish the Rockefeller School.

As Director, the successful applicant will support faculty and researchers across complementary disciplines to collaboratively build research capacity in public policy. They will strengthen related resources, build on expertise and research capabilities that currently exist across campus, increase externally sponsored research in social and public policy, as well as create partnerships with foundations, industry, government agencies and other universities. As part of this effort, the Director will be expected to recruit Research Fellows to work within the school. In addition to Departments affiliated with the Rockefeller School, Research Fellows may be recruited from within other WVU programs and external institutions and agencies. The Director will connect policy research to the teaching and outreach mission of the Rockefeller School and will report to the office of the Dean of the Eberly College. The Director will have a dedicated administrative assistant as well as support for graduate research students.

Qualifications include a Ph.D. or equivalent degree in Public Policy, Political Science, Public Administration, or a closely related field; a sustained record of externally funded research in the area of public policy; a record of multidisciplinary scholarship; ability to translate academic research into information for public dissemination and engagement; a record of successful administrative leadership; ability to work collaboratively in a diverse environment with a range of faculty, students, administrators, and external constituents to reach a common goal; ability to develop partnerships with foundations and industry in support of the Institute's programs; understanding of WVU's mission as a land-grant institution; ability to manage budgets and establish fiscal priorities; strong written and oral communication skills; and an established record of research and teaching that will merit appointment at, or promotion to, the rank of Professor or Associate Professor with a grant of tenure at WVU.

WVU is a comprehensive land grant university with approximately 30,000 students and is classified by the Carnegie Commission on Higher Education as a very high research (R1) Institution. The Rockefeller School of Policy and Politics currently consists of 21 tenured and tenure-track faculty and is affiliated with the Eberly College of Arts and Sciences.

To apply for this position, please visit <http://hr.research.wvu.edu> and click on the "View Jobs" link. Qualified applicants should submit a cover letter, curriculum vitae, a description of the applicant's potential to further our progress in building a diverse and inclusive academic community (which will be evaluated without regard to the applicant's personal demographics), and contact information for three references. The cover letter should address the applicant's qualifications for each aspect of the responsibilities listed above. For questions or additional information, contact Prof. Duncan Lorimer via e-mail: duncan.lorimer@mail.wvu.edu. The screening process will begin on March 1, 2021 and will continue until the position is filled.

The University community of Morgantown offers plentiful educational opportunities as well as recreational outlets, is within easy driving distance of Pittsburgh, PA, and is about 200 miles northwest of Washington, D.C. WVU is an Equal Employment Opportunity/Affirmative Action Employer and the recipient of an NSF ADVANCE award for gender equity. The university is committed to diversity and welcomes applications from all qualified individuals, including minorities, females, individuals with disabilities, and veterans.

Clemson University

Rank: Lecturer

The Department of Political Science at Clemson University invites applications for three non-tenure track positions as a lecturer to begin in August 2021. Specialization within American politics is open. The successful candidate will be expected to teach multiple sections of Introduction to American Government or Introduction to Political Theory, and will share the Department's commitment to quality undergraduate teaching. Responsibilities include teaching seven combined sections across the Fall and Spring semesters. The successful candidate may have the opportunity to teach upper-level courses within their area of specialization.

Each of these positions are eligible for renewal, subject to annual reappointment review and continued funding and the needs of the department. Lecturers with sustained teaching excellence over multiple years may be eligible for promotion to the rank of Senior Lecturer. A Ph.D. in Political Science by the time of employment is preferred, though ABDs will be considered. Salary is competitive.

The Department of Political Science at Clemson University offers the BA and BS in Political Science, the Master of Public Administration, and the Ph.D. in Policy Studies. At present, we have roughly 350 undergraduate majors, 130 MPA students, and 15 Ph.D. students. The department has 16 full time faculty and 3 full-time staff.

Clemson University is a land-grant institution located along the shores of Lake Hartwell in the foothills of the Blue Ridge Mountains. The area is valued by many for its wonderful outdoor recreation opportunities, great weather, low cost of living, and friendly people.

Qualifications:

The PhD degree (in hand or expected by the beginning of the 2021-2022 academic year) is a required qualification.

Application Instructions:

Applicants should submit: 1) Curriculum Vitae; 2) Cover Letter; 3) Three Letters of Recommendation; 4) Teaching evaluations or other evidence of teaching effectiveness.

Interested candidates should apply via Interfolio: <http://apply.interfolio.com/85794>.

Applications received by May 1, 2021, will receive full consideration, and review will continue until the positions are filled. For inquiries, please contact Department Chair Dr. Jeff Peake at jpeake@clemson.edu.

Rank: Joint Post-Doctoral Fellowship with Oxfam America

Specializations: Foreign Policy, Gender Politics & Policy, Ethnic & Feminist Theory

The Sié Chéou-Kang Center for International Security and Diplomacy at the University of Denver's Josef Korbel School of International Studies and Oxfam America are seeking qualified candidates for an innovative post-doctoral scholar program. The goal of this position is to contribute to the mission of both organizations through collaborative research on policy-relevant questions related to women's leadership and feminist U.S. foreign policy. This position will serve as a bridge between Oxfam and the Sié Center and develop a collaborative project.

We will accept applications from candidates who specialize in gender-related leadership and U.S. foreign policy. We are particularly interested in applicants who have examined how to implement a feminist and intersectional foreign policy and/or the potential for establishing a Department of Women's Equality in the U.S.

The Fellowship will begin September 1, 2021. The fellowship will extend for a one-year term, with the individuals time spent at both Oxfam America (in Boston and/or Washington, DC) and the Sié Center at the University of Denver.

Essential Functions

-Conduct independent and collaborative research, with a focus on policy-relevant empirical research related to women's leadership and intersectional foreign policy.

-With organizational partners, develop a joint Oxfam- Sié Center collaborative project (workshop or other sets of activities that will increase cooperation between the organizations and promote joint interests).

-Work with Sié Center faculty and Oxfam staff on additional research projects as consistent with his/her interests and expertise.

-Participate in events and workshops hosted by Oxfam and the Sié Center.

-Present research findings to interdisciplinary academic audiences as well as Oxfam staff focused on research, policy/advocacy, and programs.

Required Qualifications

-Substantial progress toward a PhD in Political Science or other relevant disciplines.

-Applicants should complete all requirements for their PhD by June 30, 2021 and be no more than 2 years from the awarding of their degree.

-Policy-relevant research agenda related to women's leadership and intersectional foreign policy.

-Familiarity with U.S. foreign policy and gender and other efforts to move it toward greater social justice.

Application Deadline

For best consideration, please submit your application materials by April 9, 2021.

Special Instructions

Position Information

Working Title: Assistant Professor - Democracy and Justice Studies

Essential Job Functions

The Department of Democracy and Justice Studies at the University of Wisconsin-Green Bay invites applications for a tenure-track Assistant Professor position in race and/or ethnicity and social justice. Applicants whose research and teaching interests address issues of race and/or ethnicity in the context of criminal justice, prisons, and/or carceral studies in the United States will be considered.

This position is part of a broader department effort to foreground race, ethnicity, and criminal justice in our curriculum. This position will be responsible for enhancing UW-Green Bay's mission-driven inclusive teaching efforts and creating and maintaining an educational environment that acknowledges, encourages, and celebrates those with diverse identities, beliefs, and cultural backgrounds.

This position includes the following responsibilities:

Develop and teach courses pertaining to the purpose and mission of the Unit, including American Government and Politics, Social Science Research Methods, and robust offerings of First-Year Seminars.

Develop upper-level courses based on expertise in criminal justice and race and ethnicity.

Advise students.

Perform scholarly activities consistent with rank.

Perform institutional and community service.

Contribute to the ongoing development of the department.

Contribute to department's commitment to student recruitment and retention, which includes high-impact pedagogy.

Implement inclusive instructional strategies to increase support for students from underrepresented and first-generation backgrounds.

The successful candidate will be expected to work inclusively and respectfully within a diverse campus community and practice civility in the workplace. The University welcomes applicants who are dedicated to the appreciation and promotion of inclusivity and equity as crucial components in the pursuit of organizational excellence.

In addition, the successful candidate will be expected to display a demonstrated potential for excellence in teaching and scholarship and a commitment to undergraduate education. The candidate should also possess communication and interpersonal skills sufficient to work effectively with a diverse array of students and colleagues.

Qualifications

MINIMUM QUALIFICATIONS:

Ph.D. in Criminal Justice, Diasporic Studies, Political Science, or a closely related field from an accredited institution. ABD candidates will be considered; however, a Ph.D. in Criminal Justice, Diasporic Studies, Political Science, or a closely related field from an accredited institution is a necessary condition for contract renewal. ABD candidates will be hired into a terminal appointment at the rank of Instructor with a rate determined at the time of hire. Upon degree conferral during the terminal period, the contracted appointment with the rank of Assistant Professor will be reinstated.

Conditions Of Appointment

Position is an academic year, tenure-track appointment. Applicants must be considered for tenure and promotion in six years, although tenure decisions may be at any time. Promotion from Assistant to Associate Professor is simultaneous with tenure. Excellence in teaching, sustained scholarly activity, and institutional service required for retention and promotion. Official transcripts of the highest degree achieved will be required of finalist(s). A criminal conviction investigation will be conducted on the finalist(s). In compliance with the Wisconsin Fair Employment Act, the university does not discriminate on the basis of arrest or conviction record.

All final candidates must be asked, prior to hire, whether they have been found to have engaged in, are currently under investigation for, or left employment during an active investigation in which they were accused of sexual violence or sexual harassment. When obtaining employment reference checks, these same sexual violence or sexual harassment questions must also be asked.

Salary

Competitive salary commensurate with qualifications and experience.

BENEFIT DETAILS

The UW System provides an excellent benefits package, including participation in the Wisconsin State Retirement System.

As a general rule, the interim review shall be carried out in the second semester of their third year (sixth semester) following their appointment and completed within their first three-year term on the tenure track. When a tenure-track faculty member passes the interim review, their first reappointment of two years shall be confirmed before the end of the initial appointment (three years)

By default, the final review shall be carried out in the second semester of their fifth year (tenth semester) and completed by the end of the fifth year on the tenure track. When the tenure-track faculty member passes the final review, the faculty member will become a tenured faculty member from the following semester.

The second reappointment of two years may be granted to the tenure-track faculty member who fails the final review. The tenure-track faculty member may request an interim review or a final review at any time in or after the second semester of their second year (fourth semester) following their appointment.

Alvernia University

Rank: Assistant Professor of Political Science

Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Public Policy, Open

Specializations: Social Movements, Race & Ethnic Politics, American Politics

Position: Assistant Professor of Political Science

The Political Science Program seeks a full-time Assistant Professor, tenure track, appointment to begin August 2021, whose specializations span diverse areas of American Politics and Government, and who will complement existing strengths in political science and interests across the university.

Successful candidates must possess a PhD in Political science and specializations that span diverse areas of American Politics and Government, and who will complement existing strengths in political science and interests across the university.

Housed within the interdisciplinary Department of the Humanities, Alvernia’s Political Science Program offers a BA and minor and serves the University by offering distribution requirements in its general-education program. The successful candidate will be committed to the mission of the University and to developing and growing the political science program. A passion for undergraduate teaching is essential, as is a commitment to inclusivity and working with diverse populations. The ideal candidate will be flexible and creative, with a broad range of academic interests and a devotion to the liberal arts.

Required Qualifications: Evidence of excellence in student-centered teaching; Commitment to engaging in high-impact practices such as service-learning and experiential learning, and use of innovative pedagogy; Ability to connect political science to diverse student populations; Active research agenda with demonstrated potential for publication. Willingness and ability to teach the university’s first year seminar as well as introductory social science research methods at the graduate and undergraduate level. Interest in advising undergraduate students, mentoring undergraduate research, and actively participating in faculty governance and the life of the department. Opportunities may exist for the successful candidate to teach courses in the university’s graduate program in Leadership Studies and to develop courses for the university’s Honors Program. The nominal teaching load for tenure track appointments is 4-4. We are committed to providing our students with excellent educational and co-curricular opportunities and seek candidates devoted to student success, retention, and engagement. Candidates must be committed to upholding our Franciscan core values.

Position Requirements: Successful candidate will possess a PhD in political science, with a specialization in American politics. ABDs with confirmed completion dates will be considered. The promise of excellence in teaching and scholarship is required, as are superior communication skills. We desire candidates who bring enthusiasm, collegiality, and a commitment to liberal arts education and the university’s mission.

Areas of Specialization: We seek a generalist with broad theoretical and methodological training in political science, with a primary emphasis in American politics and government. We encourage applicants from across the subfield but particularly welcome applications from candidates who have the ability to develop courses in one or more of the following areas: civil rights and/or racial and ethnic politics (especially Hispanic); public policy; bureaucracy; public administration; urban politics; civic engagement; gender and politics;

social movements; refugee and migration studies; political behavior; or social and economic justice. Secondary areas of emphasis in Latin American politics or International Political Economy would also be viewed favorably, as would the ability to offer interdisciplinary courses in fields such as sociology or economics.

Alvernia has a bold approach to becoming a 21st century, modern regional university. This includes the rapid expansion of enrollment through new academic majors in engineering, health care and more. We seek professionals who are thoughtful leaders, creative and nimble in the complex environment of private higher education.

Alvernia has been recognized regionally and nationally:

- U.S. News & World Report magazine ranks Alvernia as one of the Best U.S. Colleges & Universities, most recently 94 in the best regional universities category (North)
- Collegencompare.com named Alvernia to its January 2015 list of Ten Best Colleges & Universities in Pennsylvania for its graduate degree programs
- The prestigious Carnegie Foundation selected Alvernia as one of only 23 institutions in Pennsylvania and 361 nationally to receive its 2015 Community Engagement Classification
- Alvernia was one of only four institutions in Pennsylvania and one of 43 nationally to earn the President's Higher Education Interfaith Community Service Honor Roll

All Alvernia University employees promote Franciscan ideals and adherence to the Mission of the University as demonstrated by the University Ideal Characteristics. As we are an equal opportunity employer committed to Franciscan values, all employees share responsibility for advancing diversity, equity, and inclusion in the performance of their roles while demonstrating: service orientation, respect for all, intellectual curiosity, solution focus and innovation, and mutual accountability. Alvernia University strives to be a community supportive of diverse perspectives and identities and strongly encourages applications from women and minorities.

How to Apply

Candidates should send a letter of application with current curriculum vitae, teaching philosophy statement, research statement, official transcripts, and three letters of recommendation to the Alvernia University Human Resource Office email at human.resources@alvernia.edu.

Review of applications will begin March 19, 2021 and continue until on a rolling basis the position is filled.

University of California, San Diego

Rank: Assistant Professor, Halicioglu Data Science Institute

Subfield(s): Methodology, American Government and Politics, Comparative Politics

Assistant Professor, Halicioglu Data Science Institute

University of California San Diego

The University of California, San Diego invites applications from outstanding candidates for an open-rank (tenure-track or tenured) faculty position for a primary appointment at the Halicioglu Data Science Institute (HDSI) with an optional joint appointment in another academic department. HDSI welcomes outstanding candidates who advance research at the intersection of Data Science and Health Sciences/ Humanities/Social Sciences. A successful candidate should use and/or develop Data Science methods to study important societal questions related to Black communities anywhere in the US, Africa or the Black Diaspora. Examples include questions about the experiences and societal contributions of African Americans and the relationship that social/political/economic/legal/health factors have on the lives of Blacks in the US and/or the Black Diaspora. Candidates working in all Data Science areas including -but not limited to- Machine Learning, Artificial Intelligence, Statistics, Causal Inference, Economics, Ethics, Fairness, Health-care, History, Sociology, Public policy are particularly encouraged.

Basic Qualifications:

Applicants must possess a Ph.D. in their field of expertise or have advanced to candidacy at the time of application. (Until degree is conferred, the appointment is Acting Assistant Professor). Degree must be in Statistics, Machine Learning, Data Science, Computer Science, Economics, Public Policy or related field.

UC San Diego is forging a new paradigm for engagement and collaboration between STEM/Public Health/Health Sciences and the Social Sciences/Arts & Humanities. This faculty line is one of 13 ladder-rank faculty positions that unites STEM/Public Health/Health Sciences departments and African American and the Black Diaspora Studies through innovative research, coordinated teaching, and targeted service. Faculty will have multiple opportunities to engage with scholars across UCSD disciplines to address issues of race and racism, access and equity, and social and political influences focused on STEM/Public Health/Health Sciences, while also working within their home departments and professional communities.

Faculty holding these positions will be expected to design and teach undergraduate courses that align with the African American Studies Minor (AASM). They may also demonstrate the equivalent through service to the AASM and by mentoring undergraduate students. We seek candidates whose research, teaching, and service advance anti-racism, anti-oppression, equity, and justice in STEM/Public Health/Health Sciences. We welcome candidates whose professional experiences and personal backgrounds have facilitated their understandings of traditionally underrepresented racial minority communities. Faculty are expected to have an inclusive stance on mentoring and advising that incorporates working with women and underrepresented racial minority undergraduate and graduate students.

Strong candidates are preferred to have a research agenda easily related to factors of race/ethnicity, as well as previous experiences teaching, mentoring, and supporting the advancement of underrepresented racial minority students, and a record of service activities that promote diversity, equity, and inclusion. Strong candidates will also have experience with or the desire to engage in interdisciplinary conversations and scholarship across UCSD disciplines.

Applications must be submitted electronically through AP-Online Recruit website: <https://apptrkr.com/2182057>

University of Illinois, Springfield

Rank: Assistant Professor

Specializations: Race & Ethnic Politics, International Security, Research Methods

The Political Science Department at the University of Illinois Springfield (UIS) seeks applicants for a tenure-track faculty position at the rank of Assistant Professor beginning August 2021. The department seeks candidates with expertise in race, ethnicity, and politics (broadly construed) in American Politics along with teaching interests in at least one of the following subfields: Comparative Politics or International Relations. A successful candidate will be able to chair MA theses and comprehensive exams in the subfield of American Politics, and also in Comparative Politics and/or International Relations. The successful candidate is expected to teach online and on-campus courses at both the undergraduate and graduate levels on the politics of race and ethnicity. Additional courses may include any combination of the following: Introduction to International Relations, U.S. Foreign Policy, Politics of Immigration, Ethnic Conflict, or Research Methods, as well as any other upper-level courses in the candidate's area of specialization. In addition to teaching, the candidate is expected to pursue an active research agenda and engage in service activities.

Candidates must hold a Ph.D. in Political Science by August 16, 2021. Candidates must demonstrate potential for excellence in teaching, scholarship, and service. Prior teaching experience at the college or university level is required. The regular teaching load for tenure-track appointments is 3-3. The successful candidate will have opportunities to receive course relief for curriculum development or scholarship.

The UIS Department of Political Science offers excellent academic preparation and opportunities to become engaged in real world politics for both undergraduate and graduate students. We offer undergraduate and graduate degrees in political science, majors in Public Policy and Global Studies, as well as a graduate degree in Public Affairs Reporting. Students also have the opportunity to receive a minor in political science and global studies. Several of these programs are fully online or on campus.

One of the largest departments in the College of Public Affairs and Administration, the UIS Political Science Department offers an opportunity for our students to live politics in the classroom, on the campus and in the community. Engaged political science makes the connections between the classroom and the world explicit as we challenge our students to both grasp the course material and explore how it has an impact outside of the classroom. The UIS Political Science Department bridges the worlds of the "academic" and "practical" by providing concrete opportunities for the practice of theory and the theory of practice. Since our Department seeks to grow a culture of inclusion and diversity, we encourage applications from members of historically underrepresented groups.

Campus: Located in the state capital, the University of Illinois Springfield is one of three campuses of the University of Illinois. The UIS campus serves approximately 5,100 students in 21 graduate and 24 undergraduate programs. The academic curriculum of the campus emphasizes a strong liberal arts core, an array of professional programs, extensive opportunities in experiential education, and a broad engagement in public affairs issues of the day. The campus offers many small classes, substantial student-faculty interaction, and a rapidly evolving technology enhanced learning environment. Its diverse student body includes traditional, non-traditional, and international students. Twenty-five percent of majors are in 17 undergraduate and graduate online degree programs and the campus has received several national awards for its implementation of online learning. UIS faculty are committed teachers, active scholars, and professionals in service to society. You are encouraged to visit the university web page at <http://www.uis.edu>, the department web page at: <http://www.uis.edu/politicalscience/>.

Application: Candidates should submit the following to be considered: (1) curriculum vitae, (2) cover letter, (3) unofficial graduate transcripts, (4) a teaching portfolio that includes the candidate's teaching philosophy, evidence of teaching effectiveness, and sample syllabi, (5) sample of scholarship, (6) email addresses for three professional letters of reference. All documents must be submitted with your application by April 9th, 2021 in the online employment application system: <https://jobs.uis.edu/job-board/job-details?jobID=142926&job=assistant-professor-political-science>. To maintain the integrity and confidentiality of the search process, applicants are asked to upload their own materials through the UIS jobs board URL. References will receive a separate invitation to upload their recommendations directly to the online system. The committee will begin reviewing applications immediately after this deadline. The search will continue until the position is filled, but applications received by this date will receive full consideration.

Concordia College

Rank: Teaching Fellow

The Department of Political Science at Concordia College in Moorhead, MN invites applications for a one-year teaching fellow beginning August 15, 2021 with the possibility of renewal for a second year. The fellowship aims to support the development of early career teachers; diversify faculty who teach at Concordia, and support the College's initiatives related to diversity, equity, and inclusion. Candidates should have earned a PhD or have advanced to PhD candidacy in political science. The successful candidate will possess the ability to teach introductory and upper-level courses in American Politics and one course in Public Policy.

The department is especially interested in applicants who will contribute to the development of a diverse campus community and who have experience working effectively with diversified populations. Successful candidates will aspire to be part of a community that affirms an abundance of identities, experiences, and perspectives. (See Concordia's current strategic plan <https://www.concordiacollege.edu/about/president/concordia-leads/excellence-through-diversity/>) The fellow will be expected to contribute in significant ways to diversity goals in the department and the college, such as through community outreach, campus service, and/or providing new perspectives to the department. The department is also particularly interested in applicants with teaching experience and who are able to integrate diversity-related issues into their courses.

Teaching responsibilities: The fellow will teach four courses each academic year. Two of these will be our introductory course in American politics, required of all majors. The two other courses will be upper-level courses, one of which will be in the area of public policy, broadly conceived. Early in the fellowship year, the successful candidate will work with colleagues to develop a strategy to achieve their developmental goals as an undergraduate teacher.

Research responsibilities: The fellowship is designed to give the successful candidate both time and a supportive environment in which to achieve their research goals for the one-year fellowship period. The College values highly research programs related to diversity issues or diverse populations. Involving students in research is also encouraged.

Applications may be submitted online at <https://hr.cord.edu>. All applicants should provide a CV; contact information for three references; teaching evaluations, if available; and a cover letter addressing how the candidate will contribute to the diversity goals of the College through their teaching and research. A criminal background check will be required for the successful candidate. Review of applications will begin March 15 and continue until the position is filled. Please note that Work Visa sponsorship is not available for this position.

Concordia College is a private, co-educational, liberal arts college of approximately 2000 students. Located in a growing metropolitan area (Fargo, ND/Moorhead, MN) of 235,000, the College is affiliated with the Evangelical Lutheran Church in America (ELCA) and strives to equip students to become responsibly engaged in the world. Candidates will also have a demonstrated interest in pedagogical innovation. The ideal candidate will show an interest in advancing the scholarship of teaching and learning and developing and leading experiential learning opportunities for students. Successful candidates will have demonstrated interest in teaching and mentoring students of varied backgrounds to promote excellence in undergraduate learning. Enrolling one of the most diverse student bodies in the nation, Georgia State University has been recognized for providing an outstanding education and exceptional support for students from all backgrounds. Women and minorities are especially encouraged to apply. The College of Arts & Sciences supports professional success for all faculty through mentoring programs and representation of faculty from all ranks in college-level program development. GSU is an institutional member of the National Center for Faculty Development & Diversity.

Position 1: Candidates for this position will teach Introduction to American Government, both online and in-person. We strongly encourage applications from candidates who can teach courses in one or more subfields of political theory — for example, critical race theory, African American political thought, feminist theory, or theories of identity.

Position 2: Candidates for this position will teach courses in our pre-law concentration. Scholars of comparative courts are strongly encouraged to apply.

Candidates must have a PhD in hand or must be able to show evidence that a PhD will be awarded by August 2021.

Applicants should send a letter of interest, a curriculum vitae, student evaluations, a statement of teaching philosophy demonstrating a commitment to undergraduate education, sample syllabi, sample teaching materials, any additional evidence of teaching effectiveness, and original graduate transcripts. Applicants should submit a detailed statement addressing how their method of instruction facilitates a diverse and inclusive learning environment. We may request letters of recommendation later in the hiring process. Please submit all materials electronically to polssearch@gsu.edu. Review of applications will begin on March 15, 2021 and will continue until the position is filled. Application materials submitted by then, will be given full consideration.

Lafayette College

Rank: Visiting Assistant Professor

The Department of Government and Law invites applications for a one-year visiting position in American Politics with a focus on Race and Ethnic Politics. The position runs for academic year 2021-2022 and will be at the rank of Visiting Assistant Professor if Ph.D. is in hand by the start date, or, for ABD, at the rank of Visiting Instructor. Teaching requirements include three courses each semester, and candidates should be prepared to teach Introduction to U.S. Politics, as well as intermediate and advanced courses in their areas of expertise.

Applications should include a letter of intent that contains a statement of teaching philosophy and scholarly interests, curriculum vitae, sample of scholarly work, graduate school transcript, evidence of teaching ability (including, if available, syllabi and teaching evaluations), and three letters of recommendation. In the letter of intent, applicants should address the ways in which their teaching, scholarship, and/or community engagement will support Lafayette College's commitment to diversity and inclusion articulated in the college's diversity statement (<https://diversity.lafayette.edu/diversity-statement/>).

Please upload application material electronically through Interfolio at <http://apply.interfolio.com/84111>. Review of applications will begin on March 8, 2021 and continue until the position is filled. Questions may be directed to Helena Silverstein, Department Head, at silversh@lafayette.edu.

Lafayette College is committed to creating a diverse community, one that is inclusive and responsive, and is supportive of each and all of its faculty, students, and staff. All members of the College community share a responsibility for creating, maintaining, and developing a learning environment in which difference is valued, equity is sought, and inclusiveness is practiced. Lafayette College is an equal opportunity employer and encourages applications from women and minorities. Located within 70 miles of New York and Philadelphia, Lafayette College is a highly selective undergraduate institution with significant resources to support faculty members in their teaching and scholarship.

Butler University

Rank: Lecturer/Instructor

Specializations: Race & Ethnic Politics, Gender Politics & Policy, Native American Politics

The Department of Political Science at Butler University invites applications for a full-time non-tenure-track lecturer for a two-year appointment with possibility of renewal. Applicants should have a strong commitment to excellent, inclusive undergraduate teaching. We are particularly interested in candidates whose teaching and scholarship engages intersectional, abolitionist, or critical historical institutional perspectives on race/ethnicity/indigeneity, gender/sexuality, and politics in the United States and potentially beyond it. The successful candidate will teach lower-level and upper-level undergraduate political science courses (including an introductory American politics survey), will contribute to the Core Curriculum, and will help build an inclusive learning environment for our increasingly diverse student population. This faculty member could choose to affiliate with the International Studies; Peace and Conflict Studies; Race, Gender, and Sexuality Studies; and/or Science, Technology, and Environmental Studies interdisciplinary programs. This lecturer will teach four courses per semester, typically with no more than six distinct course preparations per year.

Review of applications will begin January 11, but the position will remain open until filled. Applicants should have earned a doctorate in political science or a related field at the time of appointment before August 1, 2021. Applicants should submit the following to plsearch@butler.edu: a cover letter that highlights the applicant's teaching interests, experience, and commitment to inclusive, excellent teaching and summarizes their research interests; a curriculum vitae; a statement of teaching philosophy, a sample syllabus, and a list of 3-5 references including name, title and contact information. Shortlisted candidates will be asked to provide additional evidence of inclusive teaching excellence including one or more additional syllabi, descriptions of course activities or assignments, and student evaluations or teaching observations; 3 letters of recommendation, and unofficial transcripts. Final round candidates will need to provide official transcripts and will be asked to consent to background checks. The successful candidate will start August 2021, subject to final budgetary approval.

The Butler Political Science Program, distinctively grounded in a firm commitment to social justice, democracy, and human rights, engages students in the study and practice of politics to promote the collective good at the local, national, and global level. The program defines politics broadly as the formal and informal ways societies govern themselves. The program offers an innovative curriculum that crosses traditional disciplinary boundaries to provide students with the knowledge and skills necessary to pursue positive social change. Political science alumni have pursued careers in electoral politics, teaching, law, government, journalism, business, and non-profit organizations, and have earned graduate and professional degrees in several fields.

Utah Valley University

Rank: Faculty, Tenure-Track - POLS Campaigns and Elections

The History and Political Science Department at Utah Valley University invite applicants for a teaching-focused tenure-track Assistant Professor position with a teaching load of 12 credits per semester. Under the supervision of the Department's chair, the successful candidate will be required to teach upper-division courses in Campaigns and Elections, Media and Politics, and Campaign Management within the American Government emphasis as well as the department's introductory American Government course. The ideal candidate will also be expected to maintain an active record of scholarly activity commensurate with a 4/4 teaching load while enhancing UVU's dual-integrated mission with a focus on engagement, inclusion, and student success by contributing to the department's continuing applied politics approach within the American Government emphasis.

The History and Political Science Department currently consists of 11 full-time faculty members in Political Science and serves almost 300 students majoring in Political Science. Our approach to professional education is student-centered and demands a high level of faculty-student engagement, with substantial institutional support for engaging students in faculty research. UVU values diverse opinions and perspectives and seeks to be inclusive in all practices.

As the largest university in the state of Utah, Utah Valley University is a rapidly growing regional university of nearly 40,000 students and is located in Orem, Utah at the foot of the beautiful Wasatch Mountains about 30 miles south of Salt Lake City. Utah Valley University is an open-enrollment institution that values candidates whose experiences in teaching and scholarship have prepared them to contribute to the university's commitment to diversity and inclusive excellence with students from diverse backgrounds, and who possess a strong commitment to improving access to higher education for historically underrepresented students.

Applicants must submit the following materials by March 4, 2021, for full consideration: Unofficial Transcripts, CV, Cover Letter, Teaching Statement, and Research Statement.

Middle Georgia State University

Rank: Assistant Professor, American and/or comparative politics

Specializations: American Politics, Africa, Judicial Politics

JOB SUMMARY: The Department of Political Science at Middle Georgia State University (<https://www.mga.edu/political-science>) invites applications for a tenure-track appointment in political science, with a specialization in American politics or comparative politics, at the rank of assistant professor, to be primarily based on the Cochran campus. This is a 10-month position with a teaching load of 12 credit hours per semester (4-4) of undergraduate courses in political science, typically including multiple sections of the introductory American Government course, as well as more advanced undergraduate courses in political science in the candidate's area of specialization. The ability to contribute to at least one of the minors offered by the department (African and African diaspora studies, environmental policy studies, or pre-law) is desirable.

MAJOR DUTIES: Teaching responsibilities may include day and/or evening courses, partially and fully online courses, and courses taught via video conferencing; faculty are also expected to travel to teach and attend meetings at other campus locations when needed. Tenure-track faculty are expected to have an active scholarly agenda, including publication in peer-reviewed outlets; student advising and service to the department, school, university, and community are also expected for promotion and tenure. Summer teaching opportunities may also be available, contingent on student demand.

QUALIFICATIONS: Candidates should have earned a doctorate in political science, or a doctorate in related field including at least 18 semester hours of graduate coursework in political science, from a regionally-accredited institution; ABD candidates will only be considered if they will earn their doctorate by August 1, 2021. Experience as an instructor of record, demonstrated expertise in American politics or comparative politics, and/or the ability to contribute to one or more of the minors offered by the department are desirable. Candidates must have a record of teaching and potential for scholarship that warrants appointment at the rank of assistant professor.

ABOUT THE UNIVERSITY AND SCHOOL OF EDUCATION AND BEHAVIORAL SCIENCES: Middle Georgia State University is a 4-year public, doctoral level university. MGA was formed through the consolidation of Macon State College and Middle Georgia College in 2013. Serving over 8,000 students who reflect the diversity of the state, the university encompasses all five campuses of the prior two institutions, with campuses in Cochran, Dublin, Eastman, Macon, and Warner Robins. Annual tuition and fees make MGA the most affordable public university in the state of Georgia. MGA is regionally accredited by the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools Commission on Colleges.

SALARY: Commensurate with qualifications and experience.

APPLICATION DEADLINE: The search committee will review complete applications beginning no earlier than February 22, 2021, and will continue to accept applications until the position is filled.

FOR MORE INFORMATION: Informal inquiries about the position may be made to Dr. Christopher N. Lawrence, chair of the Department of Political Science at christopher.lawrence@mga.edu.

TO APPLY: All application materials must be submitted by email to recruitment@mga.edu, as a single PDF attachment, with the subject line "10018045 Assistant Professor of Political Science 2.5.2021". Application materials must include (1) a completed MGA faculty application, (2) a letter of interest that describes how you meet the qualifications for the position, (3) a curriculum vitae, (4) a statement of teaching philosophy, (5) names and contact information of three references, and (6) unofficial transcripts of all post-secondary/college-level work. Paper application materials will not be accepted.

Background checks will be conducted on all final candidates.

Occidental College

Rank: FTNTT

The Politics Department at Occidental College invites applications for a one-year non-tenure track faculty position in American and Latina/o Politics to begin in Fall 2021. This is a full-time position and the faculty member will teach six courses (three in the Fall semester and three in the Spring semester, with certain preparations repeated). The courses include Introduction to American Politics (POLS 101); Latina/o Politics (POLS 205); Research Methods (POLS 300); and one upper division course in American Politics on a topic of the candidate's choosing (200 or 300 level). We do not expect the faculty member to engage in service activities for the Politics Department or Occidental College. This is a benefits-eligible position within the non-tenure track faculty's union, SIEU Local 721. The candidate must have a completed Ph.D. at the start of employment with Occidental College on 8/16/21.

Strong candidates should possess a record of teaching and research excellence and a thoughtful approach to pedagogy. Applicants should submit the following materials—as separate files—to polssearch@oxy.edu: (1) a cover letter describing their interest in Occidental (a liberal arts institution with a mission of equity and excellence) and approaches to teaching and research; (2) a teaching philosophy statement that includes examples of how they create equitable learning environments, especially for underrepresented students; (3) syllabi or sample syllabi for some of the courses listed above; and (4) a curriculum vitae. If selected for an interview, applicants should be prepared to ask references to submit at least two confidential letters of reference to polssearch@oxy.edu. At least one letter should speak directly to their teaching experience and/or potential. The Politics Department will begin application review on February 19th and continue until the position is filled.

University of Toronto

Rank: Assistant Professor American political development/ethics, society, and law

Assistant Professor American political development/ethics, society, and law

Description:

The Department of Political Science and the Ethics, Society, and Law Program, Trinity College, in the Faculty of Arts and Science at the University of Toronto invite applications for a full-time tenure stream position in the area of American political development/ethics, society and law. This will be a joint appointment between the Department of Political Science (51%) and Trinity College (49%). The appointment will be at the rank of Assistant Professor and will commence on July 1, 2021 or shortly thereafter.

We seek candidates who work at the interface between the structural foundations of American political development (such as federalism, separation of powers, and constitutional values) and core questions of ethics (such as human rights and human dignity). Applicants must have earned a PhD degree in Political Science or a related field and have a minimum of one year of postdoctoral training by the time of appointment, or shortly thereafter, with a demonstrated record of excellence in research and teaching in relevant disciplinary areas.

We seek candidates whose research and teaching interests complement and strengthen our existing departmental and program strengths. The successful candidate will undertake undergraduate and graduate teaching responsibilities on the University's downtown (St. George) campus. Applicants are encouraged to review the research and teaching profiles of current faculty members. Please visit our home pages to learn more about us (Department of Political Science <https://politics.utoronto.ca>; and Ethics, Society, and Law program <https://www.trinity.utoronto.ca/study-arts-science/ethics-society-law/>).

The successful candidate will be expected to pursue innovative and independent research at the highest international level and to establish an outstanding, competitive and externally funded research program. Candidates must provide evidence of research excellence which can be demonstrated by a record of publications in top-ranked and field relevant journals or forthcoming publications meeting high international standards, the submitted research statement, presentations at significant conferences, awards and accolades, and strong endorsements from referees of high standing.

Evidence of excellence in teaching will be provided through teaching accomplishments, the teaching dossier including a teaching statement, sample course materials, and teaching evaluations submitted as part of the application, as well as strong letters of reference.

Candidates are also expected to show evidence of a commitment to equity, diversity, inclusion, and the promotion of a respectful and collegial learning and working environment demonstrated through the application materials.

Salary will be commensurate with qualifications and experience.

All qualified candidates are invited to apply online by clicking the link below. Applicants must submit a cover letter; a current curriculum vitae; a research statement outlining current and future research interests; a recent writing sample; and a teaching dossier to include a teaching statement, sample course materials, and teaching evaluations. Equity and diversity are essential to academic excellence. We seek candidates who value diversity and whose research, teaching and service bear out our commitment to equity. Candidates are therefore also asked to submit a 1-2 page statement of their contributions to equity and diversity, which might cover (but need not be limited to): research or teaching that incorporates a focus on underrepresented communities, the development of inclusive pedagogies, or the mentoring of students from underrepresented groups. Applicants must provide the name and contact information of three references. The University of Toronto's recruiting tool will automatically solicit and collect letters of reference from each once an application is submitted. Applicants, however, remain responsible for ensuring that references submit letters (on letterhead, dated and signed) by the closing date. Submission guidelines can be found at <http://uoft.me/how-to-apply>. If you have any questions about this position, please contact Sari Sherman at chair.polisci@utoronto.ca.

All application materials, including reference letters, must be received by Monday, March 15, 2021.

All qualified candidates are encouraged to apply; however, Canadians and permanent residents will be given priority.

Diversity Statement

The University of Toronto is strongly committed to diversity within its community and especially welcomes applications from racialized persons / persons of colour, women, Indigenous / Aboriginal People of North America, persons with disabilities, LGBTQ2S+ persons, and others who may contribute to the further diversification of ideas.

As part of your application, you will be asked to complete a brief Diversity Survey. This survey is voluntary. Any information directly related to you is confidential and cannot be accessed by search committees or human resources staff. Results will be aggregated for institutional planning purposes. For more information, please see <http://uoft.me/UP>.

Accessibility Statement

The University strives to be an equitable and inclusive community, and proactively seeks to increase diversity among its community members. Our values regarding equity and diversity are linked with our unwavering commitment to excellence in the pursuit of our academic mission.

The University is committed to the principles of the Accessibility for Ontarians with Disabilities Act (AODA). As such, we strive to make our recruitment, assessment and selection processes as accessible as possible and provide accommodations as required for applicants with disabilities.

If you require any accommodations at any point during the application and hiring process, please contact uoft.careers@utoronto.ca.

Wheaton College

Rank: Assistant Professor

The Department of Political Science at Wheaton College in Norton, Massachusetts invites applications for a tenure-track Assistant Professor position in American politics to begin Fall 2021. The ideal candidate will possess the ability to teach introductory and upper-level courses in American politics and public law, including courses focused on the American legal system, Constitutional law/interpretation, civil liberties, civil rights, judicial politics and other courses in the candidate's areas of specialization. Teaching responsibilities include introductory sections of U.S. government & politics, and research methods. We are especially interested in candidates with research and teaching specializations at the intersection of race, class, gender, and/or sexuality.

Classroom experience is highly desirable. The promise of excellence in teaching and scholarship is required. We are committed to providing our students with excellent educational and co-curricular opportunities, and our faculty has significant mentoring experience with new teachers in postdoctoral and junior faculty appointments. For example, we offer regular programming in professional development and all tenure-track faculty are entitled to a fully paid pre-tenure sabbatical and research funds to support scholarship. A Ph.D. in Political Science (with an emphasis in judicial politics) is preferred. ABDs will be considered. If the candidate does not have the Ph.D. in hand, they will be hired as an instructor until the degree is obtained. Inquiries about the faculty position or department should be directed to Gerry Huiskamp, Chair and Professor, Political Science, huiskamp.gerard@wheatoncollege.edu. Inquiries about the application process and document submission may be addressed to careers@wheatoncollege.edu.

To apply please visit our website <https://jobs.wheatoncollege.edu>. Instructions to applicants will be listed on our website, with the following materials required: letter of application describing your areas of specialty and a statement about your interest in teaching in a liberal arts environment; curriculum vitae; three letters of reference; a graduate transcript; at least one scholarly writing sample; materials on your teaching history, including sample syllabi, course evaluations, and any other materials you wish to provide. Wheaton strives to be a community supportive of diverse perspectives and identities. Candidates should describe in their cover letter how their teaching and scholarship might support the college's commitment to diversity and inclusion. Applications will be reviewed beginning February 15, 2021 and will be accepted until the position is filled. To ensure full consideration, complete applications must be received by February 15, 2021.

Samford University

Rank: Teaching Postdoctoral Instructor

Teaching Postdoctoral Instructor Position, Department of Political Science (9-month, Non-Tenure)

Samford University's Howard College of Arts and Sciences invites individuals interested in serving in a Christian university environment to apply for a teaching postdoctoral instructor position in the Political Science Department, beginning August 2021. This non-tenure position is a full-time, one-year appointment and may be renewable one time for a maximum of two years.

Qualified candidates will have earned a Ph.D. in Political Science within the past three years from an institutionally accredited university and be able to teach upper-level courses in American political institutions (e.g., Courts, Congress, Presidency) as well as two courses per semester in the university's interdisciplinary core curriculum, which includes a freshman writing seminar on humanities or social science topics. The teaching load is three courses per semester.

The successful candidate should have a strong commitment to classroom teaching, student development and mentorship, and collegial collaboration. The candidate also should be familiar with online teaching technology and have an active research agenda. Departmental funds may be available for research support and other research funds can be earned on a competitive basis.

Samford University (www.samford.edu) is the largest privately supported and fully accredited institution for higher learning in Alabama. Located in suburban Birmingham, the University was founded in 1841 and has 425 full time faculty and more than 5,700 students representing 44 states and 30 countries. Samford has been nationally recognized for academics, affordability and value by a number of prestigious publications and rankings. The Wall Street Journal ranks Samford 2nd nationally for student engagement and Kiplinger's Personal Finance ranks Samford 34th among private universities in the U.S. for value and affordability. The University is dedicated to the promotion of rigorous academic inquiry in a Christian setting. The University offers competitive salaries with a generous benefits package.

Applications will be accepted beginning January 6th, 2021. Review of applications will begin April 1, 2021 and applications will not be accepted beyond that date. Please submit a letter of application, curriculum vitae with names and contact information of three references, description of teaching experience, description of research interests and activities, along with an application for faculty position and the faculty applicant Christian mission statement, both accessible at the links below. The successful candidate must pass a background check. Applicants must be authorized to work in the United States, as Samford will not sponsor any employment visas for this position. Samford University and Howard College of Arts and Sciences embrace diversity in their faculty, students, and staff and encourage applications from those who would add to the diversity of our academic community.

COMPARATIVE POLITICS

Columbia University

Rank: Lecturer in the Discipline of Political Science

The Department of Political Science and the European Institute at Columbia University invite applications for a Lecturer in Discipline to begin July 1, 2021. This position is sponsored by the European Institute. The Lecturer in Discipline will be expected to be the Faculty Advisor for the MA Program in European History, Politics, and Society (MA in EHPS).

The MA in EHPS is an interdisciplinary program. The Faculty Advisor position requires a deep knowledge of the history, politics, and culture of Modern Europe, both Western and Eastern, as well as demonstrated expertise in advising MA-level students in European studies.

The Lecturer will teach the two-semester European Studies Masters Colloquium. This course is a core requirement of the MA in EHPS. It introduces students to key topics and issues in the study of Modern Europe while also helping them develop their research, writing, and presentation skills.

The Lecturer will provide one-on-one advising and support to students enrolled in the MA in EHPS. This includes advising the students in designing their individual course of study within the MA program and identifying a research topic and an advisor for their MA thesis. The Lecturer will also help the students with thesis writing and post-graduation career planning.

In addition, the Lecturer will be expected to serve as thesis advisor to several EHPS MA students, and advise a number of independent studies each semester.

This is a full-time, renewable position with multi-year renewals contingent on successful reviews.

A Ph.D. in political science is required. Salary is commensurate with experience.

Sciences Po (Paris)

Rank: Assistant Professor (tenure track) in Political Science, Comparative Politics of Ecological Transitions at Sciences Po/CEE Paris

JOB DESCRIPTION

Status: Private sector employment as Assistant Professor with tenure track

Discipline: Political science

Profile: Comparative Politics of Ecological Transitions

This recruitment opening will be an opportunity, for the Centre for European Studies and Comparative Politics, to strengthen its research and teaching capacity in Comparative Politics and Policies focusing on Ecological Transitions.

For several decades, the environment has been studied as a new area of mobilization and policy-making. This research agenda has been profoundly renewed in the context of two phenomena: first, the climate crisis and its impact on biodiversity loss and global warming; second, the growing attention given to environmental issues by public opinions and social movements as well as to vivid socio-political and ideological debates about alternative ecological transitions policies.

We seek candidates in any of the following areas:

- Ecological transitions in a multi-level governance context
- The (dis)integration of ecological issues across policy sectors and their organizations
- Expertise and knowledge contributing to the policy process
- The role of social movements and mobilizations in ecological transitions
- The social and political transformative effects of ecological policies

The appointee will hold a PhD. He or She will be able to conduct empirical and theoretical investigations to explore ecological transition politics (climate, energy, biodiversity, pollution, circular economy) in a comparative perspective, focusing especially on Europe. We welcome applications from excellent candidates in the field, with a strong international experience and advanced publication records in comparative political research and methods (qualitative, quantitative or mixed methods).

DUTIES

Research:

The appointee is expected to develop her or his research among the four major research areas of the CEE:

- Transformations of Capitalism;
- The State as a producer or Public Policies;
- Cities, Borders and (im)Mobilities;
- Tensions in Representative Democracy.

The appointee will be fully integrated into the Sciences Po Interdisciplinary Research Programme on the Environment [AIRE], as well as in the Centre for Earth Politics (Centre des Politiques de la Terre) established between Sciences Po and Université de Paris.

Teaching and Service:

Applicants must be able to teach in English at the graduate level on the Paris Campus and at the undergraduate level in one of the seven Sciences Po Campuses.

Annual teaching duties typically comprise three courses of 24 hours each (a combination of lecture and seminar); faculty members are also required to provide a further 56 hours of complementary service

(this includes tutoring, evaluation of applications for admission, examination and so forth). The total hours of service are 128.

During the three years of the tenure track, teaching duties are reduced to two 24-hour master classes (lectures or seminars) and 40 CM hours of complementary services.

Applications from women and other under-represented groups are particularly encouraged.

RECRUITMENT PROCESS

Application

Applications must be electronically submitted before 25th April 2021 (midnight) to the following email address: recruitment.cce@sciencespo.fr.

The application must include the following documents:

- A cover letter presenting the research projects that the applicant intends to pursue;
- A CV and a complete list of publications;
- 3 publications showing the range and quality of research by the applicant;
- A synopsis of courses taught and, if possible, course evaluations.

Incomplete applications will not be considered.

The selection committee will check applications and establish a short list of candidates who will be invited to present their research to the academic community at Sciences Po during a 'Job Talk'.

The expected start date is September 1, 2021

University of Gothenburg

Rank: Associate Senior Lecturer (Assistant Professor, tenure track) in Political Science

Varieties of Democracy (V-Dem) is a large-scale, international data collection and research-program. The V-Dem Institute, Directed by Professor Staffan I. Lindberg, has received several large-scale grants from among others the European Commission, several ministries of foreign affairs, the World Bank, European Research Council, Riksbankens Jubileumsfond, the Swedish Research Council, and Knut and Alice Wallenberg Foundation.

For more information: <https://v-dem.net>

Job assignments:

The term for this position in Swedish is "biträdande lektor". The university's official translation (in British English) is Associate Senior Lecture, which is the equivalent to Assistant Professor on tenure-track. The Assistant Professor/Associate Senior Lecturer (tenure-track, 4 years) is primarily expected to conduct research in collaboration with the Director as well as other scholars at the V-Dem Institute. The research will focus on some of the main questions of the research programs at the V-Dem Institute: Endangered Democracies: Sequences of Autocratization (EDSA); &quot;Failing and Successful Sequences of Democratization&quot; (FASDEM); Varieties of Auto-cratization (V-Aut); &quot;Democratic Resilience&quot; and/or the continuous methodological developments related to measurement and analysis conducted at the institute. Applicants can read about these projects and download various documentation from <https://v-dem.net> under &quot;Our Work/Research Projects&quot;.

In extension of this, the successful candidate is expected to be active in grants writing to support these and related initiatives. The successful candidate will also join the leadership of the institute and is expected to support the Director with taking on responsibilities with regards to one or more issues such as the long-term strategic planning, financial viability, data collection and curation, outreach, international collaborations (non-/academic), the annual Democracy Report.

In addition, the successful applicant is expected to teach and be an active member of the Department of Political Science, and to contribute to the daily activities of the V-Dem Institute as needed. Research is, however, guaranteed at a minimum of 50 percent of full time employment (FTE).

Eligibility (Minimum Requirements):

Eligibility for this position is stated in Chapter 4, subsec. 12 a, and 12 b of the Higher Education Ordinance and in the University of Gothenburg's Appointments Procedure for Teachers. Applicants with a doctorate in a subject area relevant to the position, or with equivalent competence, not older than five years at the conclusion of the application period, will be given primary consideration. Applicants who have obtained a doctorate earlier may also be considered if there are special reasons. Special reasons include leave of absence due to illness, service in the armed forces or other part of the national defense organization, commissions of trust within professional, union and student organizations, parental leave or other similar circumstances.

Assessment (Desired Qualifications):

Applications will be evaluated primarily on research excellence in comparative politics with a particular view towards areas of relevance to the research programs at the institute, and secondary on merits with regard to teaching.

Advanced comparative and quantitative research at high international level relevant for the study of democratic backsliding/autocratization or resilience, authoritarian regimes, democratization, political development and/or methodological developments related to research done at the institute (such as sequencing) or Bayesian IRT, is prioritized in the evaluation of applications.

Scientific skills as expressed in a well-developed proposal of high scientific quality, for a research project that falls within and preferably further develops on one of the existing research programs at the institute, is also highly meritorious.

One or more of the following skills are also meritorious:

- Leadership/working in a larger research and/or data team;
- Documented in-depth understanding of the V-Dem data and its curation, and;

- Outreach and policy advice based on research to non-academic organization.

Documented experience with teaching at under-/graduate level, including lectures, seminars, and advising on papers, is required. Candidates may be requested to demonstrate their teaching abilities.

The applicant should demonstrate resourcefulness, flexibility, and very good ability to work together in different configurations. Excellence in English (orally and written) is a requirement. We will make an overall assessment of the applicants' qualifications and potential with regards to the varying tasks, and select one judged to complement the rest of the team in the best way possible. Personal qualities relevant for the position are of great importance.

Additional Information (Requirements for Tenure and Promotion):

An Assistant Professor/Associate Senior Lecturer is entitled to apply for promotion to Associate Professor/Senior Lecturer with tenure (in Swedish: &quot;universitetslektor&quot;), before the end of the fixed-term four-year employment. For promotion after the four years on tenure-track, the requirements for promotion in the subject area and the criteria of University of Gothenburg must be fulfilled. For this position, the following are additional requirements for promotion and tenure after the first four years:

- Significant advancement of high-quality research equivalent to at least another doctorate as published research findings addressing questions of the one or more of the research programs at the institute, in some combination of articles in leading international peer review journals, a book and/or a number of book chapters published by leading international press'.
- University teacher's training (15 points worth in the Swedish system) or otherwise acquired equivalents including a demonstrated continuous development in teaching abilities, is a requirement for promotion.
- Service to the wider society is expected to be directed towards democracy-promoting actors in particular.
- Finally, the candidate must be able to demonstrate ability to teach political science courses in the Swedish language (as evidenced by actual teaching, or by Swedish advanced course certificate). For information, the university provides courses in Swedish and the department normally offers additional support for the acquisition of language.

The application for tenure and promotion must be submitted six months before the end of the employment time (i.e. latest 3.5 years after starting the position).

University of Copenhagen

Rank: Professorship in Comparative Politics

The Department of Political Science, Faculty of Social Sciences, University of Copenhagen (UCPH), invites excellent candidates for one or more full professorships in Comparative Politics.

The position is available from 1 October 2021 or as soon as possible thereafter.

Introduction

The Department is a top-ranked European Political Science department, which offers a vibrant, collegial and pluralist working environment for ambitious scholars.

The pluralism of Political Science in Copenhagen is evidenced in the various epistemological and methodological approaches as well as sub-fields adopted by faculty, as reflected in a wide range of core subjects in the MSc programme. The Department is located on an attractive, historic campus in central Copenhagen – a city continuously voted as one of the most liveable European capitals. Located in a capital the Department has a strong tradition for engagement in policy development and impact, and in national and international public debates.

The Department has some 2,200 students across its study programmes and welcomes annually approximately 200 exchange and guest students from abroad. See more on the Department's study programmes here: <https://politicalscience.ku.dk/study/>

The Department consists of some 70 faculty, 35 PhD students as well as administrative and support staff.

The successful candidates should represent the multifaceted and broad field of Comparative Politics. Applications are sought from eminent candidates who can enhance the Department's research, education and societal impact covering one or more of the following areas within the broader field of Comparative Politics: State-Building, Nation-Building, Democratization Political Institutions, Public Opinion, Political Behavior, Legislative Studies or Policy Analysis. Particular areas of interest include, but are not limited to, the analysis of democratic and/or non-democratic systems, climate change and environmental politics, and European Politics. Our ideal candidates combine qualifications to teach research methods (quantitative and/or qualitative) and political science with a research profile in one or more of the sub-fields mentioned above.

Research and teaching in the Department are methodologically and theoretically diverse. We expect candidates to be able and willing to engage in intellectual exchanges across various theories and topics within the discipline.

All successful candidates are expected to teach and supervise within the Department's educational programmes (see below) within Comparative Political Science or related fields, and to take actively part in the Danish and Comparative Politics Research Group. For more on the Department and its pluralistic academic environment, please consult our webpage: <http://politicalscience.ku.dk/about/>

Duties and Responsibilities

Duties and responsibilities of the post include contributing to the scholarship and intellectual life of the University by conducting world-class research and teaching. A professor also has administrative responsibilities and is expected to develop the field in synergy with other fields as well as to exercise academic leadership.

General duties attached to the position as Full Professor are:

- Outstanding research within the area of Comparative Politics in one or more of the areas described above
- High Quality teaching, supervision and examination of undergraduate, graduate and PhD students
- Administrative tasks related to the position of Full Professor
- Knowledge exchange with broader society (societal impact)
- Research and teaching management
- Active contribution to the social and intellectual life of the Department
- Project acquisition of external funding

Your Competencies and Opportunities

In order to be assessed qualified for a professor position at the University of Copenhagen, the candidate must meet the University's criteria of academic merit.

We expect candidates to present a clear, well-developed and viable strategy for future outstanding research that will result in further world-leading publications, external research funding as well as a commitment to innovate teaching. In addition, we expect successful candidates at Full Professor level to engage in inter-faculty cooperation and initiatives (e.g. continuing and professional education) within the Faculty of Social Sciences.

Applicants for a Full Professorship must be able to document a very high degree of original scholarly production at international level and have a highly recognised international reputation.

You must meet these academic criteria in order to be assessed as qualified as professor at the University of Copenhagen.

You can read more about the criteria for recognising merit for professors jobportal.ku.dk/videnskabelige-stillinger/kriterier-for-videnskabelige-stillinger/dokumenter-til-meritering/5c\_Criteria\_for\_recognising\_merit\_-\_professors.pdf

The criteria apply for professor appointments at the University of Copenhagen. The assessment is based on these criteria guided by the specific requirements stated in the job advertisement and the material submitted by the applicant.

The assessment committee's assessments will be given in text form as an overall assessment within six main criteria areas. The criteria will be viewed as a framework for an overall assessment of whether the candidate is qualified for the position in relation to the job advertisement rather than as absolute criteria, which the applicant must meet in each case.

Research

Professors are internationally recognised researchers in their fields of expertise. Their research is influential and contributes to the development of their own subject area as well as more broadly:

- An excellent research profile with leading international expertise in the subject area
- An articulated vision and strategy for their subject area, also covering ties to adjacent areas

Significant influence on the subject area via many peer-reviewed publications across recognised journals and/or books or anthologies
 Significant research impact through high research quality and/or many citations in recognised journals and/or books or anthologies
 Participation in national and international scientific networks and conferences, including invitations to present research

Teaching

Professors provide research-based teaching of the highest quality in one or more disciplines and contribute to developing, organising and evaluating courses on all levels:

Extensive teaching experience, including examination work and acting as opponent of PhD theses or doctoral theses
 Experience of supervising bachelor students, master's degree students, PhD students and/or postdocs
 A teaching portfolio that documents teaching experience and reflections on teaching skills
 Ongoing development of pedagogical and didactic skills, including own and others' practice in relation to teaching and supervision
 Interest in including feedback from colleagues, students and others in the development of own teaching as well as mentoring of colleagues with the aim of developing their teaching practice

Societal impact

Professors interact with external partners and seek out new collaborations, communicate and generate knowledge that greatly benefits societal developments, e.g. by influencing the public debate within their field of research:

Considerable experience of communicating research to relevant stakeholders, including students
 Frequent contributions to popular science communication
 Strategic collaboration with private and/or public organisations and a significant network of external stakeholders

Organisational contribution

Professors take responsibility for developing an active academic environment, sit on assessment committees, councils, boards and committees at UCPH and contribute to enhancing the University's brand:

Membership of the department's formal forums, working groups and assessment committees and interest in joining councils, boards and committees at UCPH
 A collegiate spirit and commitment to collaboration as well as strong relationship and conflict resolution skills
 Development and management of interdisciplinary collaborations

External funding

Professors initiate grant application activities regarding research funds and obtain and manage funds:

Experience of applying for, obtaining and managing research funds

Leadership

Professors develop the subject area in synergy with other subject areas and exercise academic leadership, including the development of and delegation of responsibilities to junior researchers:

Experience of developing own academic leadership skills
 Experience of academic leadership tasks, e.g. research, course or programme management
 Responsibility for and contribution to well-being, collaboration, equal treatment, diversity and a good working environment

Strategy of the Faculty of the Social Sciences

The Department of Political Science is part of the Faculty of Social Sciences. The Faculty is a successful academic community that strives to put knowledge into action by:

Engaging partners in the co-creation of knowledge, learning and social change
 Empowering our students to become reflective and responsible citizens who have the vision, the knowledge and the competences to change society for the better
 Energising global, European and Danish communities of knowledge by innovating research methodologies and by research findings with impact

For more on the Faculty strategy, see: <https://socialsciences.ku.dk/faculty/strategy/>

You can read the Department's strategy here: <http://polsci.ku.dk/bilag/StrategiFinalVersion.pdf>

Terms of Employment

Employment with the Faculty of Social Sciences and progression within employment will be determined only by personal merit. We do this by applying academic criteria of the University of Copenhagen which are related to the duties and conditions of each particular post and the needs of the Department concerned

The position is permanent, and therefore we strongly encourage the appointed professor to acquire the proficiency in Danish required to teach and interact with colleagues in that language in 3-6 years. The Department will provide and pay for the necessary language training
 Further information on qualification requirements as professor can be found in the Memorandum on Job Structure for Academic Staff at Danish Universities 2019 here: https://employment.ku.dk/faculty/criteria-for-recognising-merit/dokumenter/Ministerial\_Order\_no.\_1443\_of\_11\_December\_2019\_on\_Job\_Structure\_for\_Academic\_Staff\_at\_Universities.pdf

Terms of appointment and salary is in accordance with the Danish Confederation of Professional Associations () (Akademikerne)
 The salary is DKK 52,500 per month + a 17.1 % contribution to the pension scheme. It is possible to negotiate salary supplements on an annual basis

The recruitment process

Further information on the recruitment process at the University of Copenhagen can be found here: <https://employment.ku.dk/faculty/recruitment-process/>

An Equal Opportunity Workplace

The University of Copenhagen is committed in its pursuit of academic excellence to equality of opportunity and to creating an inclusive working environment and therefore encourages all qualified candidates to apply, regardless of personal background, gender, sexual orientation, age, disability, ethnicity etc. For more on the diverse working place environment at the University and the University's participation in the HRS4R HR Excellence in Research, see <https://employment.ku.dk/working-at-ucph/eu-charter-for-researchers/>

International applicant?

The University of Copenhagen offers a broad variety of services for international researchers and accompanying families, including support before and during your relocation and career counselling to expat partners. Please find more information about these services as well as information on entering and working in Denmark here: <https://ism.ku.dk/>

Essential Qualifications

You must have a PhD in Political Science or equivalent academic qualifications, as well as:

An aspiration to increase our understanding of the world and its problems based on a proven record of outstanding research, as evidenced in a growing and ambitious publication profile that complements the existing research strengths of the Department and evidence of, or clear plans for attracting external research funding.

A commitment to contribute to delivering an excellent student experience based on a sizable track record of excellence in teaching in one or more of the main areas covered by the Department. The Department prefers candidates who can cover more than one of the main courses taught at BSc level.

An engagement in knowledge exchange and policy-impact in an international context and in Denmark. We encourage proactive engagement with government, business and community partners to enhance the impact of research and education and improve the employability of our students.

Robust interpersonal skills which enables the candidate to be a constructive and empathic colleague in a diverse and vibrant working environment as well as an aptitude for working collaboratively with colleagues in planning and delivering teaching, in research projects and in the discharge of administrative duties.

Furthermore, the candidate must demonstrate a commitment to student learning, supporting student welfare and enhancing the student experience.

Strategy of the Faculty of the Social Sciences

The Department of Political Science is part of the Faculty of the Social Sciences. The Faculty is a successful academic community that strives to put knowledge into action by:

Engaging partners in the co-creation of knowledge, learning and social change

Empowering our students to become reflective and responsible citizens who have the vision, the knowledge and the competences to change society for the better

Energising global, European and Danish communities of knowledge by innovating research methodologies and by research findings with impact

For more on the Faculty strategy, see: <https://socialsciences.ku.dk/faculty/strategy/>. You can read the Department's strategy here <http://polsci.ku.dk/bilag/StrategiFinalVersion.pdf>.

Terms of Employment

Employment with the Faculty of Social Sciences and progression within employment will be determined only by personal merit. We do this by applying academic criteria of the University of Copenhagen which are related to the duties and conditions of each particular post and the needs of the Department concerned

As this is a tenure track position, and therefore we strongly encourage the appointed assistant professor to acquire the proficiency in Danish required to teach and interact with colleagues in that language in 3-6 years. The Department will provide and pay for the necessary language training

1. Affiliation:

The Faculty of Political Science and Economics, Waseda University

2. Field:

Political Communication

3. Main courses to be taught:

The successful candidate will teach Political Communication and related courses including seminars for both School of Political Science and Economics (Undergraduate) and Graduate School of Political Science, and teach related topics in the Faculty of Political Science and Economics.

4. Qualifications:

Candidates must have the following qualifications:

- (1) Be able to teach the courses stated in "3. Main courses to be taught".
- (2) Be able to teach classes in English. It is desirable that applicants are able to teach in Japanese as well.
- (3) Have research achievements in the field of Contemporary Politics.
- (4) Hold a Ph.D. degree or expect to obtain a doctoral degree by the time of appointment.
- (5) Be able to teach one of the introductory methodology courses which are required for the Political Science Major in the Graduate School of Political Science.

5. Number of position openings: 1

6. Position rank and title:

The appointment will be made at the rank of Professor (tenured) or Associate Professor (tenured) or Associate Professor (Tenure-track) or Assistant Professor (Tenure-track).

The rank is determined by such factors as the candidate's academic and research achievements, as well as evaluation throughout the screening process, and will be made known to the successful candidate in an interview with the Dean.

General Idea of Tenure-Track Positions at FPSE: (Details will be provided at the time of the second round of selection.)

A tenure-track position at FPSE shall be appointed either as Assistant Professor (tenure-track) or Associate Professor (tenure-track), for three years in the first term, followed by two years of reappointment and an additional two years of reappointment, for a total of up to seven years. As a general rule, the interim review shall be carried out in the second semester of their third year (sixth semester) following their appointment and completed within their first three-year term on the tenure track. When a tenure-track faculty member passes the interim review, their first reappointment of two years shall be confirmed before the end of the initial appointment (three years)

By default, the final review shall be carried out in the second semester of their fifth year (tenth semester) and completed by the end of the fifth year on the tenure track. When the tenure-track faculty member passes the final review, the faculty member will become a tenured faculty member from the following semester.

The second reappointment of two years may be granted to the tenure-track faculty member who fails the final review. The tenure-track faculty member may request an interim review or a final review at any time in or after the second semester of their second year (fourth semester) following their appointment.

If you have had an employment contract with Waseda University regardless of job title since April 1, 2013 and there is no period of at least six months without an employment contract with Waseda University to the scheduled start of this position, in principle, there is a limit to the duration of your employment contract. Therefore, the above may not be met with regard to the duration of appointment.

Administrative Responsibilities

Providing overall supervision for the Global Security Studies program, including shared management of the program with the Center Director;
Leading some full-time faculty and adjunct faculty development, hiring, and evaluation;
Overseeing program admissions processes, including reviewing and approving prospect admission materials;
Coordinating program promotion and outreach, including interacting with outside groups and developing external/internal partnerships;
Coordinating with staff in student and faculty services, online education, marketing, finance, and enrollment services departments on operational issues related to program administration; and
Other administrative duties as assigned.

Minimum Qualifications:

Ph.D. or other terminal degree (e.g., J.D.) in a relevant field to security studies;
3 or more years of higher education teaching experience, preferably including online and/or at the graduate level;
2 or more years of related professional work experience outside of academia, including but not limited to relevant government or military service; outside consulting or collaborative work within fields related to security studies;
3 or more years of management or leadership experience in an Associate Director or similar related position;
The ability to teach a variety of courses in security studies that could include those in international relations, strategic studies, national and/or international security, political economy, energy and/or environmental security, area studies, counterterrorism, cyber-security, quantitative or qualitative methods;
Demonstrated track record of excellence in teaching;
Extensive connections in the practitioner community, preferably both governmental and non-governmental.

Preferred Qualifications:

5 or more years of higher education teaching experience preferably online teaching and at the graduate level;
3 or more years of related professional work experience outside of academia within the fields of the GSS degree program;
A record of scholarly or professional publications or analogous classified work;
Strong organizational skills;
Ability to work independently in a fast-paced environment with competing demands and multiple deadlines;
Excellent oral and written communication skills;
Experience managing a degree or certificate program.

University of California, San Diego

Rank: Assistant Professor, Halicioglu Data Science Institute

Assistant Professor, Halicioglu Data Science Institute

University of California San Diego

The University of California, San Diego invites applications from outstanding candidates for an open-rank (tenure-track or tenured) faculty position for a primary appointment at the Halicioglu Data Science Institute (HDSI) with an optional joint appointment in another academic department. HDSI welcomes outstanding candidates who advance research at the intersection of Data Science and Health Sciences/ Humanities/Social Sciences. A successful candidate should use and/or develop Data Science methods to study important societal questions related to Black communities anywhere in the US, Africa or the Black Diaspora. Examples include questions about the experiences and societal contributions of African Americans and the relationship that social/political/economic/legal/health factors have on the lives of Blacks in the US and/or the Black Diaspora. Candidates working in all Data Science areas including -but not limited to- Machine Learning, Artificial Intelligence, Statistics, Causal Inference, Economics, Ethics, Fairness, Health-care, History, Sociology, Public policy are particularly encouraged.

Basic Qualifications:

Applicants must possess a Ph.D. in their field of expertise or have advanced to candidacy at the time of application. (Until degree is conferred, the appointment is Acting Assistant Professor). Degree must be in Statistics, Machine Learning, Data Science, Computer Science, Economics, Public Policy or related field.

UC San Diego is forging a new paradigm for engagement and collaboration between STEM/Public Health/Health Sciences and the Social Sciences/Arts & Humanities. This faculty line is one of 13 ladder-rank faculty positions that unites STEM/Public Health/Health Sciences departments and African American and the Black Diaspora Studies through innovative research, coordinated teaching, and targeted service. Faculty will have multiple opportunities to engage with scholars across UCSD disciplines to address issues of race and racism, access and equity, and social and political influences focused on STEM/Public Health/Health Sciences, while also working within their home departments and professional communities.

Faculty holding these positions will be expected to design and teach undergraduate courses that align with the African American Studies Minor (AASM). They may also demonstrate the equivalent through service to the AASM and by mentoring undergraduate students. We seek candidates whose research, teaching, and service advance anti-racism, anti-oppression, equity, and justice in STEM/Public Health/Health Sciences. We welcome candidates whose professional experiences and personal backgrounds have facilitated their understandings of traditionally underrepresented racial minority communities. Faculty are expected to have an inclusive stance on mentoring and advising that incorporates working with women and underrepresented racial minority undergraduate and graduate students.

Strong candidates are preferred to have a research agenda easily related to factors of race/ethnicity, as well as previous experiences teaching, mentoring, and supporting the advancement of underrepresented racial minority students, and a record of service activities that promote diversity, equity, and inclusion. Strong candidates will also have experience with or the desire to engage in interdisciplinary conversations and scholarship across UCSD disciplines.

Applications must be submitted electronically through AP-Online Recruit website: <https://apptrkr.com/2182057>

Carleton College

Rank: Robert A. Oden, Jr. Postdoctoral Fellowship for Innovation in the Liberal Arts

Carleton College, Department of Political Science, seeks qualified candidates for the Robert A. Oden, Jr. Postdoctoral Fellowship for Innovation in the Liberal Arts, a two-year position in comparative politics, to begin September 1, 2021. The candidate must have a Ph.D. in hand (received less than five years ago) by the start-date of the position. Appointment involves half-time research and writing, and half-time teaching for a total of 5 courses over a two-year, six-term period (2-3 courses per year). Candidates must have as a primary focus Latin American politics, but should be prepared to teach one introductory course on comparative politics each year. The successful applicant will teach middle-division courses on Latin American politics and a seminar in their area of scholarship in Latin America. The postdoc will also be expected to engage with Carleton's interdisciplinary program in Latin American Studies.

We are particularly interested in candidates who are committed to teaching a diverse student body in a highly selective, liberal arts environment. Carleton College does not discriminate on the basis of race, color, creed, ethnicity, religion, sex, national origin, marital status, veteran status, actual or perceived sexual orientation, gender identity and expression, status with regard to public assistance, disability, or age in providing employment or access to its educational facilities and activities. We are committed to developing our faculty to better reflect the diversity of our student body and American society. Women and members of underrepresented minority groups are strongly encouraged to apply.

To apply, please visit the Carleton College website careers.carleton.edu and submit an on-line application that includes a cover letter, c.v., one or two sample syllabi, a statement about teaching in an undergraduate liberal arts environment and how you would contribute to a college community that embraces a diversity of people and perspectives as one of its core values, and contact information for three letters of reference. Please send inquiries to Paula Teiken (pteiken@carleton.edu), Political Science Department, Carleton College, Northfield, MN. The deadline for applications is April 2.

Carleton is a highly selective liberal arts college with a student body of approximately 2,000. Located in the thriving two-college town of Northfield, Minnesota, it is forty-five miles from the Twin Cities of Minneapolis and St. Paul, in easy reach of a vibrant metropolitan area that is home to three million people and rich cultural resources.

University of Illinois, Springfield

Rank: Assistant Professor
Specializations: Race & Ethnic Politics, International Security, Research Methods

The Political Science Department at the University of Illinois Springfield (UIS) seeks applicants for a tenure-track faculty position at the rank of Assistant Professor beginning August 2021. The department seeks candidates with expertise in race, ethnicity, and politics (broadly construed) in American Politics along with teaching interests in at least one of the following subfields: Comparative Politics or International Relations. A successful candidate will be able to chair MA theses and comprehensive exams in the subfield of American Politics, and also in Comparative Politics and/or International Relations. The successful candidate is expected to teach online and on-campus courses at both the undergraduate and graduate levels on the politics of race and ethnicity. Additional courses may include any combination of the following: Introduction to International Relations, U.S. Foreign Policy, Politics of Immigration, Ethnic Conflict, or Research Methods, as well as any other upper-level courses in the candidate's area of specialization. In addition to teaching, the candidate is expected to pursue an active research agenda and engage in service activities.

Candidates must hold a Ph.D. in Political Science by August 16, 2021. Candidates must demonstrate potential for excellence in teaching, scholarship, and service. Prior teaching experience at the college or university level is required. The regular teaching load for tenure-track appointments is 3-3. The successful candidate will have opportunities to receive course relief for curriculum development or scholarship.

The UIS Department of Political Science offers excellent academic preparation and opportunities to become engaged in real world politics for both undergraduate and graduate students. We offer undergraduate and graduate degrees in political science, majors in Public Policy and Global Studies, as well as a graduate degree in Public Affairs Reporting.

Students also have the opportunity to receive a minor in political science and global studies. Several of these programs are fully online or on campus.

One of the largest departments in the College of Public Affairs and Administration, the UIS Political Science Department offers an opportunity for our students to live politics in the classroom, on the campus and in the community. Engaged political science makes the connections between the classroom and the world explicit as we challenge our students to both grasp the course material and explore how it has an impact outside of the classroom. The UIS Political Science Department bridges the worlds of the "academic" and "practical" by providing concrete opportunities for the practice of theory and the theory of practice. Since our Department seeks to grow a culture of inclusion and diversity, we encourage applications from members of historically underrepresented groups.

Campus: Located in the state capital, the University of Illinois Springfield is one of three campuses of the University of Illinois. The UIS campus serves approximately 5,100 students in 21 graduate and 24 undergraduate programs. The academic curriculum of the campus emphasizes a strong liberal arts core, an array of professional programs, extensive opportunities in experiential education, and a broad engagement in public affairs issues of the day. The campus offers many small classes, substantial student-faculty interaction, and a rapidly evolving technology enhanced learning environment. Its diverse student body includes traditional, non-traditional, and international students. Twenty-five percent of majors are in 17 undergraduate and graduate online degree programs and the campus has received several national awards for its implementation of online learning. UIS faculty are committed teachers, active scholars, and professionals in service to society. You are encouraged to visit the university web page at <http://www.uis.edu>, the department web page at <http://www.uis.edu/politicalscience/>.

Application: Candidates should submit the following to be considered: (1) curriculum vitae, (2) cover letter, (3) unofficial graduate transcripts, (4) a teaching portfolio that includes the candidate's teaching philosophy, evidence of teaching effectiveness, and sample syllabi, (5) sample of scholarship, (6) email addresses for three professional letters of reference. All documents must be submitted with your application by April 9th, 2021 in the online employment application system: <https://jobs.uis.edu/job-board/job-details?jobID=142926&job=assistant-professor-political-science>. To maintain the integrity and confidentiality of the search process, applicants are asked to upload their own materials through the UIS jobs board URL. References will receive a separate invitation to upload their recommendations directly to the online system. The committee will begin reviewing applications immediately after this deadline. The search will continue until the position is filled, but applications received by this date will receive full consideration.

Morehouse College

Rank: Assistant Professor

Position URL: apply.interfolio.com/84198

The Department of Political Science at Morehouse College invites applications for a tenure-track position at the rank of Assistant Professor. Candidates should be trained in the area of international relations. The ideal candidate will also be able to teach an introductory-level course in comparative politics.

Responsibilities include teaching courses (a 3-3 load), advising, and mentoring students; developing and maintaining a scholarly research and publication agenda; and service to the department and the College. We also encourage faculty to be active in soliciting external funding through grants and other sources. The start date for the position is August 2021.

Morehouse College is a private historically black liberal arts college for men whose mission is to develop men with disciplined minds to lead lives of leadership and service by emphasizing the intellectual and character development of its students and by assuming a special responsibility for teaching the history and culture of black people. Since the founding of the College in 1867, the faculty, staff, and leadership have worked to inspire, nurture, challenge, support, and engage its students with the expressed intent of fomenting a very special kind of development.

Morehouse has a very proud tradition of having developed leaders, with the most notable of course being Martin Luther King, Jr. (class of 1948). Each era has defined the qualities of Morehouse Man—an expression of the expectations we have of our graduates—a bit differently, but there are some enduring constants. Backed by nearly 150 years of history, we see our work as helping to shape men of acuity, integrity and agency; men who will commit to brotherhood, standing together with their peers to cheer, challenge and support each other; and men who will strive to lead consequential lives, to not just do well for themselves, but to do good in the world.

Our strong legacy is continued now as we claim a number of successes. Morehouse is the number one baccalaureate origin institution for black male doctorate recipients in science and engineering, life sciences, physical sciences, social sciences, education, and humanities over the decade ending 2012 according to the National Science Foundation. We are the top producer of underrepresented minority physics baccalaureates among non-PhD granting institutions over the three years ending in 2013 as measured by the American Physical Society. And the College just this year became the only non-majority college or university to have produced four Rhodes Scholars. Our graduates include not only men like King and Julian Bond, but Spike Lee, David Satcher, Eddie Glaude, Jim Shelton, and many more operating in and out of academia in some way.

The College offers instructional programs in six divisions—humanities, social sciences and cultural studies, creative and performing arts, life sciences, mathematics and computational science, and business and economics—as well as extracurricular and co-curricular activities that, combined with the academic program: foster the development of oral and written communication skills; foster appreciation of world cultures, artistic, creative expression and the nature of the physical universe; promote understanding of the specific skills needed to pursue professional careers and graduate study; and cultivate the personal attributes of self-confidence, tolerance, morality, ethical behavior, spirituality, humility, global perspective, and commitment to justice.

Qualifications

Minimum qualifications include a PhD in political science; commitment to excellence in teaching; evidence of a productive research program; and service to the profession and community.

Application Instructions

A successful application will consist of the following:

1. A letter of application providing detail on how the candidate meets the qualifications for the position and why they are a good fit for Morehouse College in particular (no more than 2 pages);
2. A current curriculum vitae (no more than 4 pages);
3. A statement of teaching philosophy (no more than 2 pages);
4. A research/scholarship agenda (no more than 2 pages);
5. Unofficial transcripts
6. Three letters of recommendation

Candidates also have the option of sharing the following:

1. Sample syllabi (no more than 2 courses)
2. Samples of research (no more than 2 samples)
3. Teaching evaluations or summaries of evaluations (no more than 2 courses, but if submitted, only submit full class evaluations and not samples of class evaluations)

Review of applications will begin immediately and continue until the position is filled. For questions about the search, please contact Dr. Andrew Douglas, andrew.douglas@morehouse.edu, 470-639-0732.

Temple University

Rank: Postdoctoral Diversity Fellow in Political Science

Specializations: Race & Ethnic Politics, International Law & Organizations, Civil Rights & Liberties

The Department of Political Science at Temple University invites applications for a one-year Postdoctoral Fellowship to support the development of early career scholars from diverse backgrounds with particular attention to historically underrepresented groups on the professorial faculties of colleges and universities in the United States. This year we seek a fellow with expertise in human rights law and politics in either domestic or international contexts. The successful applicant will contribute intellectually to the department and College of Liberal Arts by conducting research while teaching one course during the year. We would welcome, but not limit our search to candidates who study race, sexual orientation, and/or religious affiliation as components of states' legal traditions both domestically and internationally. Applicants should hold or be completing a doctorate in Political Science or a related discipline.

Our department (<https://www.cla.temple.edu/political-science/>) organizes formal colloquia from outside scholars and hosts or cohosts many internal research talks with interdisciplinary centers such as Global Studies, Public Policy Lab, Master of Public Policy, Gender, Sexuality and Women's Studies (GSWS), the Center for Force and Diplomacy (CENFAD), and the Center for Humanities at Temple (CHAT).

The Postdoctoral Diversity Fellowship is a competitive program whose goal is to increase the diversity of the community of scholars devoted to academic research at Temple University. Candidates must have completed their Ph.D. by September 1, 2021. Please submit a letter of application that includes (1) proposed research plan for the fellowship, (2) a statement of teaching interests and/or philosophy, (3) a brief statement of the grounds of eligibility and progress toward completion of the dissertation, (4) curriculum vitae, and (5) three letters of recommendation by April 1, 2021 via the Interfolio link below. Letter writers should address the likelihood of completing the degree before September 1, 2021. Applications are due April 1, 2021 but review will commence immediately.

The current postdoctoral fellowship is non-renewable. The award includes a salary of $50,000, full Temple University employee benefits, a research/travel fund of $3,000, and a $2,000 moving allowance. The postdoctoral fellow will teach one course during the year of appointment and will meet regularly with other postdocs and faculty in the department and college through participation in seminars, colloquia, teaching circles, etc.

Temple University is a state-related Carnegie Research University (highest research activity) located in Philadelphia. The Department of Political Science is in the College of Liberal Arts, which is home to 38 undergraduate majors, 38 minors, 22 certificate programs, 14 doctoral programs, and 6 graduate certificates. With its vibrant and diverse array of educational programs, the College of Liberal Arts plays a tremendous role in Temple University's academic success and its mission mirrors both the historical importance of the liberal arts in society and the principles on which the University was founded. Temple University is an Affirmative Action equal opportunity employer and particularly encourages applications from women and persons of color, members of under-represented groups, persons with disabilities, and veterans. The University has pledged not to discriminate on the basis of race, color, sex, age, religion, national origin, sexual orientation, marital status, or disability.

Please submit information to INTERFOLIO at the following link: apply.interfolio.com/84171

Any questions about submitting application materials should be sent to Ms. LaTasha Goodman (lgoodman@temple.edu)

Johns Hopkins University

Rank: Postdoctoral Fellow – China Africa Research Initiative

Specializations: China, Africa, Political Economy

Founded in 1943 and a Johns Hopkins division since 1950, The Paul H. Nitze School of Advanced International Studies of the Johns Hopkins University (SAIS) has been educating global leaders for almost 60 years. As a highly selective graduate institution with a distinguished faculty, SAIS consistently ranks as one of the top schools of international relations in the world. SAIS was founded to provide a practical approach to training students in international leadership and foreign relations, and to provide mid-career educational opportunities for those already working in related fields. Today, SAIS offers the M.A., M.I.P.P., and Ph.D. degrees and enrolls some 700 full-time students on the Washington, DC campus, 190 students at the SAIS Center in Bologna, Italy, and about 180 Chinese and international students at the Hopkins-Nanjing Center in Nanjing, China.

The China-Africa Research Initiative at Johns Hopkins School of Advanced International Studies (SAIS-CARI), directed by Professor Deborah Brautigam, will offer one pre- or post-doctoral research fellow position for a ten-month period during the 2021-2022 academic year (approximately June 2021 to May 2022). Fellow will spend half of their time on their own Chinese loan-related research projects, and half providing support to CARI research on Chinese lending. This support could include drafting research papers, policy briefs, and related op-eds and “public square” pieces; presenting at conferences and public events; and assisting with, and participating in, interviews, outreach activities and communications as necessary.

Qualifications

An understanding of China's overseas economic engagement (trade, investment, aid, loans, other forms of cooperation) is essential for this position. Our preference is for candidates who have conducted field research, preferably in Africa although we are open to comparative perspectives. Econometric skills would be an asset but are not required. Ability to read and do research in Chinese is essential.

We prefer candidates who have completed all Ph.D. training and have defended their dissertations, but will consider exceptional candidates who are still writing their dissertations as pre-doctoral fellows. Candidates may not be more than five years beyond receipt of the Ph.D. at the start of the fellowship.

Only applications through Interfolio will be considered. To apply, please go to <https://apply.interfolio.com/83123>.

To apply, please provide the following:

- Cover letter explaining your fit for the position, including your scholarly interest in China's overseas lending, the use (if any) that you would make of CARI's extensive data on Chinese lending in Africa, and prospective or actual doctoral defense date;

- Current C.V. including publications;
- 1000-word description of the research project you would work on at SAIS, including its specific objectives, importance, and research design;
- One writing sample;
- Three letters of recommendation requested directly through the Interfolio system.

We will begin reviewing applications on February 28, 2021 and will continue to review new applications until the position is filled, or until March 31, 2021, 11:59pm EST, whichever is earlier.

Rank and salary will be contingent on qualifications.

Planned start date: June 2021 (Flexible)

Location: Washington, DC.

Duration of position: 10 months from the start date.

Please contact sais-cari@jhu.edu with any questions. Please place "Postdoctoral Fellow Application" in the subject line.

This position is funded by a grant from Carnegie Corporation of New York.

Middle Georgia State University

Rank: Assistant Professor, American and/or comparative politics

Specializations: American Politics, Africa, Judicial Politics

JOB SUMMARY: The Department of Political Science at Middle Georgia State University (<https://www.mga.edu/political-science>) invites applications for a tenure-track appointment in political science, with a specialization in American politics or comparative politics, at the rank of assistant professor, to be primarily based on the Cochran campus. This is a 10-month position with a teaching load of 12 credit hours per semester (4-4) of undergraduate courses in political science, typically including multiple sections of the introductory American Government course, as well as more advanced undergraduate courses in political science in the candidate's area of specialization. The ability to contribute to at least one of the minors offered by the department (African and African diaspora studies, environmental policy studies, or pre-law) is desirable.

MAJOR DUTIES: Teaching responsibilities may include day and/or evening courses, partially and fully online courses, and courses taught via video conferencing; faculty are also expected to travel to teach and attend meetings at other campus locations when needed. Tenure-track faculty are expected to have an active scholarly agenda, including publication in peer-reviewed outlets; student advising and service to the department, school, university, and community are also expected for promotion and tenure. Summer teaching opportunities may also be available, contingent on student demand.

QUALIFICATIONS: Candidates should have earned a doctorate in political science, or a doctorate in related field including at least 18 semester hours of graduate coursework in political science, from a regionally-accredited institution; ABD candidates will only be considered if they will earn their doctorate by August 1, 2021. Experience as an instructor of record, demonstrated expertise in American politics or comparative politics, and/or the ability to contribute to one or more of the minors offered by the department are desirable. Candidates must have a record of teaching and potential for scholarship that warrants appointment at the rank of assistant professor.

ABOUT THE UNIVERSITY AND SCHOOL OF EDUCATION AND BEHAVIORAL SCIENCES: Middle Georgia State University is a 4-year public, doctoral level university. MGA was formed through the consolidation of Macon State College and Middle Georgia College in 2013. Serving over 8,000 students who reflect the diversity of the state, the university encompasses all five campuses of the prior two institutions, with campuses in Cochran, Dublin, Eastman, Macon, and Warner Robins. Annual tuition and fees make MGA the most affordable public university in the state of Georgia. MGA is regionally accredited by the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools Commission on Colleges.

SALARY: Commensurate with qualifications and experience.

APPLICATION DEADLINE: The search committee will review complete applications beginning no earlier than February 22, 2021, and will continue to accept applications until the position is filled.

FOR MORE INFORMATION: Informal inquiries about the position may be made to Dr. Christopher N. Lawrence, chair of the Department of Political Science at christopher.lawrence@mga.edu.

TO APPLY: All application materials must be submitted by email to recruitment@mga.edu, as a single PDF attachment, with the subject line "10018045 Assistant Professor of Political Science 2.5.2021". ## University of Pennsylvania

Rank: The Center for the Advanced Study of India - Post Doc

The Center for the Advanced Study of India at the University of Pennsylvania invites applications to fill a postdoctoral fellowship position for the 2021-2022 academic year. The position is open to applicants from the humanities and social sciences whose work focuses on contemporary India. We welcome candidates from a wide range of disciplinary traditions and methodological orientations.

CASI welcomes applications from scholars who have received their Ph.D. or equivalent degrees in the last year, or who will complete their degree by June 30, 2021. The term of appointment is July 1, 2021-June 30, 2022 and Ph.D. must be in hand to begin the appointment. The position may be renewable for up to one additional year conditional on performance and budgetary approval.

Since its founding in 1992 within the School of Arts & Sciences (SAS), CASI has continued to uphold Penn's global reputation as a leading U.S. institution of research in South Asian studies and scholarship on India. CASI's goals are to engage in policy-relevant research focused on the challenges facing contemporary India; to nurture discussion in contemporary India through interactions with visiting scholars and opportunities to work and conduct research in India; and to act as a public forum on contemporary India through seminars, workshops, conferences, and publications.

The fellowship will provide candidates with opportunities to pursue their own research and ideally to also collaborate on research projects undertaken by the Center. There is no teaching requirement. Innovative new project proposals by fellows may also be considered and modestly funded by the Center.

Fellows will also be expected to help organize some of the Center's core activities, including seminars and workshops, and have opportunities to interact with a distinguished array of visiting speakers, scholars and fellows. Because fellows are expected to be fully integrated with the intellectual life of the Center, they must plan to physically reside in the vicinity of the University of Pennsylvania. The fellowship includes a stipend of $58,000, contingent upon proof of conferral of the Ph.D. degree, a $2,500 research fund, and health insurance.

Our program values interdisciplinary research, collaboration, and collegiality; is committed to promoting a culturally diverse intellectual community; and strongly encourages applications from women, minorities, and under-represented communities.

The University of Pennsylvania is strongly committed to Penn's Action Plan for Faculty Diversity and Excellence and to establishing a more diverse community at Penn (for more information see: <http://www.upenn.edu/almanac/volumes/v58/n02/diversityplan.html>).

Applications will be reviewed starting Monday, March 1, 2021. To receive full consideration, applications should be received by that date. To apply, please submit the following required documents.

Required:

Cover Letter address to the "Selection Committee", CASI
Curriculum Vitae

Research Statement (maximum 5 pages, double spaced)

Writing Sample (maximum 50 pages double spaced, or equivalent length published work. Can include a supplement / appendix which will not count against page limit)

Two letters of recommendation from faculty advisors.

University of Oklahoma

Subfield(s): Public Administration, Comparative Politics, Public Policy

The University of Oklahoma invites applications for a tenure-track position in public administration at the assistant professor level beginning in August 2021. We seek candidates with a broad competence in public administration and whose research and/or teaching is inclusive of countries outside of the United States. The selected candidate will contribute to our core courses in our NASPAA-accredited MPA program and be able to teach public administration courses from a comparative perspective, focusing on countries outside of the US, as part of our efforts to have more courses that expose students to the diversity of politics and governments across the world. We are open as to substantive focus, but we are especially interested in candidates with expertise in non-governmental organizations, social equity in the US and/or other countries, indigenous issues, or development administration.

This position is within the Department of Political Science, a large department with two undergraduate majors (Political Science and Public & Nonprofit Administration), multiple minors, two master degree programs (Public Administration & Political Science, with the MPA offered in Norman and Tulsa), and a doctoral program. The department is housed within the College of Arts and Sciences at the University of Oklahoma. The University of Oklahoma is the flagship research institution for the state of Oklahoma, enrolling over 30,000 students, located in Norman, OK, a vibrant college town just 20 miles south of Oklahoma City.

Applicants must hold a Ph.D. in public administration, political science, or public policy, and completed by August 2021, have the ability to contribute to the MPA core curriculum, and ability to teach public administration from a comparative perspective, focusing on countries outside of the US. Preference will be given to applicants with substantive focus in in non-governmental organizations, social equity in the US and/or other countries, indigenous issues, or development administration, show evidence of a robust research agenda and potential for success in publishing in high-quality, peer-reviewed outlets, have teaching experience, especially in an online format. The teaching load for this position is two courses per semester.

Applicants should submit a curriculum vitae, cover letter, teaching statement, unofficial graduate transcript(s) (official transcript will be required for finalist), writing sample, contact information for three references. Three letters of recommendation will be required for candidates who progress past the first screening. Review of applications will begin February 18, 2021 and continue until the position is filled. Any questions can be emailed to the search committee chairs, Dr. Alisa Fryar ahicklin@ou.edu and Dr. Charles Kenney ckennedy@ou.edu. Applicants must apply online at <http://apply.interfolio.com/82689>.

Roanoke College

Rank: Visiting Assistant Professor

The Department of Public Affairs at Roanoke College invites applications for a one-year Visiting Assistant Professor position in International Relations beginning in August 2021 and ending in May 2022. This is a full time, sabbatical-replacement position, with a teaching load of seven courses during the academic year.

We seek candidates with broad training in International Relations and who can offer courses in International Politics, International Relations Theory, and Research Methods. While the department has additional need for courses covering Comparative Politics of Europe and Human Rights Policy to fill specific programmatic requirements, we especially seek candidates who have passion for teaching and mentoring undergraduates and can diversify our offerings. The successful candidate will also contribute International Relations courses to the General Education curriculum. A Ph.D. with teaching experience is preferred, but an ABD will be considered.

The Public Affairs Department administers majors in Political Science, International Relations, and Criminal Justice. In addition to excellent teaching and collegiality, the Public Affairs Department supports and expects active professional participation and research. Visiting Professors are eligible to receive departmental funds and to apply for most of the College's internal grants in support of their research and teaching.

Roanoke College is an equal opportunity employer and actively seeks diversity among its faculty, staff, and students; women and members of under-represented groups are especially encouraged to apply. We also seek candidates with interests in mentoring under-represented students, diversifying curricular offerings, or sponsoring diverse community engagement. Applicants are asked to address their potential contributions in support of a diverse community in their cover letters.

Applicants should submit their cover letter, curriculum vitae, teaching evaluations and three letters of recommendation to: Ms. Judith Pinckney, Department of Public Affairs, 119 West Hall, Roanoke College, Salem, VA 24153. ## University of Richmond

Rank: Assistant Professor of Political Science

The University of Richmond Department of Political Science invites applications for a tenure-track position at the rank of Assistant Professor with expertise in the politics of development, broadly defined. The department has a strong preference for an area concentration in either Africa or the Middle East, which will complement its existing strengths in the politics of Asia, Europe, and Latin America. The position, to begin in 2021-2022 academic year, is intended to meet and expand curricular goals within the major; to broaden the department's research expertise; and to contribute to interdisciplinary initiatives in the School of Arts and Sciences and to the University of Richmond's mission of "preparing students for responsible leadership in a diverse world." More specifically, the position carries a 3-2 teaching load consisting of a regular offering of a survey course on the politics of development. Other courses would relate to the faculty's regional specialization, with particular preference for courses on the politics of Africa and/or the Middle East. The new hire would also share responsibility for teaching the department's ongoing offerings of Introduction to Comparative Politics and/or Introduction to International Relations and, as schedule permits, contribute to departmental First Year Seminar (FYS) offerings.

Applicants must either hold a Ph.D. in Political Science or show credible evidence that they will complete the dissertation by August 1, 2021. Applicants should apply online at <https://richmond.csod.com/ats/careersite/JobDetails.aspx?site=1&cid=2062>.

The University of Richmond is a private university located just a short drive from downtown Richmond, Virginia. Through its five schools and wide array of campus programming, the University combines the best qualities of a small liberal arts college and a large university. With nearly 4,000 students, an 8:1 student-faculty ratio, and more than 90% of traditional undergraduate students living on campus, the University is remarkably student-centered, focused on preparing students "to live lives of purpose, thoughtful inquiry, and responsible leadership in a global and pluralistic society."

The University of Richmond is committed to developing a diverse workforce and student body, and to modeling an inclusive campus community which values the expression of difference in ways that promote excellence in teaching, learning, personal development, and institutional success. Our academic community strongly encourages applications that are in keeping with this commitment. For more information on the department and its programs, please see <https://polisci.richmond.edu/>.

Applicants should click "Apply Now" at the top of the page and submit a curriculum vitae, cover letter containing a brief summary of the candidate's research and teaching interests and indicating commitment to the teacher-scholar model, and separate research and teaching statements. The research statement should expand on the candidate's research agenda and expertise. The teaching statement should articulate the candidate's teaching philosophy, interests, experience and goals. It should also address commitment to inclusive pedagogy and to fostering thriving and inclusive intercultural community, as outlined in the President's Making Excellence Inclusive report (<https://president.richmond.edu/inclusive-excellence/report-pdfs/making-excellence-inclusive-final-report-2019.pdf>). In addition, please include copies of academic transcripts. Candidates for this position may be asked, at a later date, to provide the names and contact information for three references who will be asked to submit letters of recommendation. Review of applications will commence on October 1, 2020 and continue until the position is filled.

Please address any questions about the application to Dr. Jennifer Erkulwater (jerkulwa@richmond.edu), Chair, Department of Political Science, University of Richmond, Richmond, VA 23173.

Lycoming College

Rank: Assistant Professor of Political Science

The Department of Political Science at Lycoming College invites applications for a tenure-track position in Public Law at the rank of Assistant Professor to begin August 2021. The successful candidate will be broadly trained to teach both introductory and advanced courses in Public Law. Candidates with a secondary specialization in Comparative Politics are encouraged to apply.

Lycoming's small, liberal arts environment allows faculty members, as part of their 3-3 teaching load, to create new courses in line with their area of specialization. Candidates with an interest in teaching in the College's interdisciplinary first year seminar program are desired. Candidates should demonstrate a strong promise of teaching effectiveness and scholarly achievement, and a serious commitment to teaching undergraduates in a liberal arts environment is essential. Additional duties include advising and mentoring students, as well as service to the department and institution.

Ph.D. in political science is preferred, but ABDs in their final stages of completion will be considered.

Applicants should submit a cover letter, curriculum vitae along with submitting a teaching portfolio, 250-word statement on why they are interested in a liberal arts academic environment, a single-authored writing sample, 3 letters of recommendation, and graduate transcript using the link below. <https://lycomingcollege.applytojob.com/apply/CqDmzXdfUU/Assistant-Professor-Of-Political-Science-Public-Law>

Letters of recommendations can be mailed to:

Attention: Missy Cashner, HR Generalist
Lycoming College
One College Place, Campus Box 861
Williamsport, PA 17701

To guarantee full consideration applications should be submitted by October 1, 2020. A pre-employment drug screening will be conducted.

Carleton College

Specializations: Asian American Politics, China, East Asia

The Carleton College Department of Political Science invites applications for a tenure-track Assistant Professor position in Comparative Politics to begin September 1, 2021. We are specifically interested in candidates who have regional expertise in Chinese politics and prefer candidates who can speak both to domestic dynamics as well as China's role in a broader Asian and/or global context. Successful candidates should be able to teach a range of courses in Comparative Politics (including the introductory course) as well as offer instruction in research methods (qualitative and/or quantitative). The standard teaching load is five courses spread across three trimesters. The ideal candidate will also be interested in contributing to a vibrant college-wide culture of undergraduate research and have a commitment to attracting and retaining students from underserved groups. A PhD in hand or its imminent completion is required.

Carleton is a highly selective liberal arts college with a student body of approximately 2,000, located in the historic and thriving town of Northfield, Minnesota. We are in commuting distance of the Twin Cities of Minneapolis and St. Paul, whose greater metro area has a diverse population of three million people and a rich variety of cultural resources. The Political Science Department strives to introduce students—majors and non-majors alike—to a broad array of theoretical and philosophical perspectives while equipping them with the necessary analytic skills to engage with an increasingly diverse world and contribute constructively to one's community. For further information about the department, please consult the department website at carleton.edu/political-science.

Applicants should submit a letter of interest, a curriculum vitae, a graduate transcript, and a statement about teaching in an undergraduate liberal arts environment and how you would contribute to a college community that embraces a diversity of people and perspectives as one of its core values. We also require a statement about research interests, one scholarly writing sample and contact information for three letters of reference. All applications should be submitted to jobs.carleton.edu. Inquiries can be directed to pteiken@carleton.edu.

Shanghai University of Finance and Economics

Rank: Assistant and Associate Professors of Political Science - Tenure Track

School of Public Economics and Administration (SPEA)
Shanghai University of Finance and Economics (SUFU)

Job Type: Full-Time

Job Summary: The School of Public Economics and Administration (SPEA) at Shanghai University of Finance and Economics (SUFU) seeks applicants for two tenure-track faculty positions at the rank of assistant or associate (non-tenured) professor. The employment starts in Fall semester of 2021. The openings are in the field of comparative politics, research methodology, and political theory. Candidates who have a research focus on issues of public policy are strongly encouraged to apply for the positions. A completed Ph.D. in Political Science is required before the employment. Applicants should demonstrate their potentials to employ rigorous research methods, either quantitative or qualitative, to answer important theoretical questions in the field. Although the working environment in SUFE is international, the ability to communicate fluently in Mandarin Chinese is highly preferred.

The position is a full-time appointment for a period of six years. A tenure evaluation will be conducted after five years of employment. The tenure-track faculty are expected to publish research on highly reputable international journals, offer high-quality teaching to undergraduate and graduate students, and contribute to the development of political science at SUFE. The rules of evaluation and promotion are standardized at the university and similar to those for tenure positions in a regular American university.

We offer a globally competitive salary based on a full-time appointment and depending on experience and knowledge. The starting salary is 380,000 RMB for entry-level appointment, pending university approval. ### Columbia University

The Department of Political Science and the European Institute at Columbia University invite applications for a Lecturer in Discipline to begin July 1, 2021. This position is sponsored by the European Institute. The Lecturer in Discipline will be expected to be the Faculty Advisor for the MA Program in European History, Politics, and Society (MA in EHPS).

The MA in EHPS is an interdisciplinary program. The Faculty Advisor position requires a deep knowledge of the history, politics, and culture of Modern Europe, both Western and Eastern, as well as demonstrated expertise in advising MA-level students in European studies.

The Lecturer will teach the two-semester European Studies Masters Colloquium. This course is a core requirement of the MA in EHPS. It introduces students to key topics and issues in the study of Modern Europe while also helping them develop their research, writing, and presentation skills.

The Lecturer will provide one-on-one advising and support to students enrolled in the MA in EHPS. This includes advising the students in designing their individual course of study within the MA program and identifying a research topic and an advisor for their MA thesis. The Lecturer will also help the students with thesis writing and post-graduation career planning.

In addition, the Lecturer will be expected to serve as thesis advisor to several EHPS MA students, and advise a number of independent studies each semester.

This is a full-time, renewable position with multi-year renewals contingent on successful reviews.

A Ph.D. in political science is required. Salary is commensurate with experience.

Applicants should submit a cover letter, curriculum vitae, two letters of recommendation, and at least one writing sample at our secure online site:

<https://pa334.peopleadmin.com/postings/7374>

Purdue University

Rank: Visiting Assistant Professor Environmental Policy

Job Summary

Purdue's Political Science Department is seeking two visiting assistant professors for the 2021-2022 academic year in the areas of environmental politics and policy and/or international relations. Each will teach four classes per semester on campus in West Lafayette. We seek scholars prepared to teach introductory courses in public and environmental policy and/or international relations, along with one or more of the following upper level courses: Global Green Politics, International Environmental Policy, Comparative Environmental Policy, International Organizations, Foreign Policy, or Model UN. Ability to teach undergraduate quantitative methods is preferred. We seek candidates who will engage students with broad interests in and beyond political science, and who are committed to creating a diverse, equitable, and inclusive environment in the classroom and department.

Qualifications

Must have completed all requirements for the PhD in Political Science, Public Policy, Environmental Studies or a closely related field prior to August 1, 2021. Postsecondary teaching experience in political science, public policy, or closely related field is required.

The College and University

Founded in 1869, Purdue is a research-intensive, PhD-granting institution and a public land-grant university. Political Science faculty members are actively involved with several interdisciplinary programs and centers on campus, including the Advanced Methods at Purdue (AMAP) cluster, the Building Sustainable Communities initiative, the Center for the Environment, the Center for Research on Diversity and Inclusion, Peace Studies, the Human Rights Program, Asian Studies, the Purdue Systems Collaboratory, and the Purdue Policy Research Institute. In addition to the major, the Department is home to graduate and undergraduate certificates and minors in environmental politics and policy, public policy, and human rights.

Applications

Candidates should submit a cover letter, CV, at least three letters of reference, graduate transcripts, a statement on diversity, equity, and inclusiveness in the classroom, and a teaching portfolio. Application materials must be submitted electronically via <https://careers.purdue.edu/> with job id 13349.

Purdue University's Department of Political Science is committed to advancing diversity in all areas of faculty effort, including scholarship, instruction, and engagement. Candidates should address at least one of these areas in a separate Diversity and Inclusion Statement indicating their past experiences, current interests or activities, and/or future goals to promote a climate that values diversity and inclusion.

Review of applications will begin April 12th and continue until the positions are filled. Questions should be addressed to Department Head Cherie Maestas at cmaestas@purdue.edu.

The anticipated salary range is $52,000 – $55,000 for the academic year. This position is contingent on final budget approval.

A background check is required for employment in this position.

Ability to work in the US without immigration sponsorship from Purdue University.

Equal Opportunity

University of Macau

Rank: Associate/Assistant Professor of Political Science (International Relations)

Associate/Assistant Professor of Political Science

(Ref. No.: FSS/DGPA/IR/AAP/03/2021)

The University of Macau (UM) is the only public comprehensive university in Macao. Leveraging this unique advantage, UM aims to establish itself as a world-class university with regional characteristics. English is its working language. In recent years, UM has seen a significant development in and a rising international recognition for its teaching, research, and community service. It has implemented a unique '4-in-1' education model that integrates discipline-specific education, general education, research and internship education, and community and peer education. Combining this model with the largest residential college system in Asia, UM provides all-round education to students. In addition, it recruits outstanding scholars from around the world to create a multilingual and multicultural learning environment for students. With the development of the Guangdong-Hong Kong-Macao Greater Bay Area, and the new initiatives of the university to boost cutting-edge research and interdisciplinary programmes, UM embraces unprecedented opportunities for development, and offers bright career prospect to professionals in different areas.

The Department of Government and Public Administration of the Faculty of Social Sciences is inviting applications for academic positions at the rank of Associate/Assistant Professor in the discipline of international relations. The Department offers programmes leading to Bachelor's, Master's and PhD degrees. Faculty members actively engage in research with particular focus on comparative politics, public administration and policy, international relations, and studies of the greater China regions. More information about the Department is available at the UM website: <http://www.um.edu.mo/fss/pa/>.

Qualifications

The required area of specialization is international relations. The applicants must have solid training in international relations theories and research methods in international relations. Research interest in Europe, the Global South, Sino-European relations, and/or China's relations with Portuguese speaking countries is a plus. Appointment will be at the rank of Assistant Professor, and in a rare case the rank of Associate Professor could be considered, depending on qualifications. Applicants must have a PhD in a relevant field and a proven record of publication in high calibre international journals and presses. Applicants should document excellence in high quality research and scholarship. They should also demonstrate strong commitment to teaching courses in international relations theories, research methods in international relations, international security, international development, international political economy, etc. at both the graduate and undergraduate levels in English. They are also required to provide quality supervision of student research projects and theses at the UG, Master, and PhD levels.

The selected candidate is expected to assume duty in August 2021.

Remuneration

A taxable annual remuneration starting from MOP828,100 (approximately USD102,230) will be commensurate with the successful applicants' academic qualification and relevant professional experience. The current local maximum income tax rate is 12% but is effectively around 5% - 7% after various discretionary exemptions. Apart from competitive remuneration, UM offers a wide range of benefits, such as medical insurance, provident fund, on campus accommodation/housing allowance and other subsidies. Further details on our package are available at: <https://career.admo.um.edu.mo/learn-more/>.

Application Procedure

Applicants should visit <https://career.admo.um.edu.mo/> for more details, and apply ONLINE. Review of applications will commence immediately and continue until the position is filled. Applicants may consider their applications not successful if they are not invited for an interview within 3 months of application.

Specializations: Foreign Policy, Gender Politics & Policy, Ethnic & Feminist Theory

The Sié Chéou-Kang Center for International Security and Diplomacy at the University of Denver's Josef Korbel School of International Studies and Oxfam America are seeking qualified candidates for an innovative post-doctoral scholar program. The goal of this position is to contribute to the mission of both organizations through collaborative research on policy-relevant questions related to women's leadership and feminist U.S. foreign policy. This position will serve as a bridge between Oxfam and the Sié Center and develop a collaborative project.

We will accept applications from candidates who specialize in gender-related leadership and U.S. foreign policy. We are particularly interested in applicants who have examined how to implement a feminist and intersectional foreign policy and/or the potential for establishing a Department of Women's Equality in the U.S.

The Fellowship will begin September 1, 2021. The fellowship will extend for a one-year term, with the individuals time spent at both Oxfam America (in Boston and/or Washington, DC) and the Sié Center at the University of Denver.

Essential Functions

- Conduct independent and collaborative research, with a focus on policy-relevant empirical research related to women's leadership and intersectional foreign policy.
- With organizational partners, develop a joint Oxfam- Sié Center collaborative project (workshop or other sets of activities that will increase cooperation between the organizations and promote joint interests).
- Work with Sié Center faculty and Oxfam staff on additional research projects as consistent with his/her interests and expertise.
- Participate in events and workshops hosted by Oxfam and the Sié Center.
- Present research findings to interdisciplinary academic audiences as well as Oxfam staff focused on research, policy/advocacy, and programs.

Required Qualifications

- Substantial progress toward a PhD in Political Science or other relevant disciplines.

-Applicants should complete all requirements for their PhD by June 30, 2021 and be no more than 2 years from the awarding of their degree.

-Policy-relevant research agenda related to women's leadership and intersectional foreign policy.

-Familiarity with U.S. foreign policy and gender and other efforts to move it toward greater social justice.

Application Deadline

For best consideration, please submit your application materials by April 9, 2021.

Special Instructions

Candidates must apply online through jobs.du.edu to be considered. Only applications submitted online will be accepted. ## Georgetown University

Rank: Professor in the Practice of International Affairs and Concentration Co-Chair for Global Politics and Security

Description

The Edmund A. Walsh School of Foreign Service of Georgetown University invites applications for a three-year, non-tenure-track, rank-open position of Professor in the Practice of International Affairs and Concentration Co-Chair for Global Politics and Security (GPS) beginning in August, 2021. This position will have teaching and administrative responsibilities in the Master of Science in Foreign Service (MSFS) Program. The successful candidate may also be considered for the role of Deputy Director of the MSFS Program.

The Concentration Co-Chair has teaching, administrative and student-engagement responsibilities. Concentration chairs teach three courses per year and offer skills workshops and other specialized training opportunities each semester. They are members of the MSFS Leadership Team and Curriculum Committee, and are responsible for overseeing the curriculum, course offerings, and adjunct faculty in the GPS concentration. They are academic and career advisors to students, and are expected to facilitate internship and job placement. They participate in student-related events throughout the year including admissions, orientation, graduation, and capstone oral exams.

Qualifications

The successful candidate will have a record of professional experience in international affairs, working in or with national governments, international organizations, think tanks, and/or relevant non-profit institutions. Especially competitive candidates will have a PhD in international affairs or a related field and experience teaching in a student-centered program at the graduate level. Successful candidates are also expected to embody the MSFS values of leadership, ethics, creativity, service, and inclusion. This position requires working collaboratively with other faculty and staff across multiple units and programs, the ability to work independently and in teams and to lead teams effectively, and the flexibility to make adjustments as program needs evolve.

Application Instructions

Applicants should submit a cover letter outlining professional background and teaching experience, curriculum vitae and at least three letters of recommendation. University of Pittsburgh

Rank: GSPIA Assistant Professor (Tenure-Stream) - International Affairs & Intelligence

The Graduate School of Public and International Affairs (GSPIA) at the University of Pittsburgh invites applications for a tenure-stream faculty position at the assistant professor level in the field of international affairs with a focus on intelligence studies, broadly defined, to begin in the fall term of 2021.

Applicants must have earned a Ph.D. in history, international affairs/relations, political science, public affairs, public policy, social psychology, or related field by the time of hire with a demonstrated record of excellence in research and teaching. The successful candidate will have both research and teaching interests related to intelligence while also having the capacity to contribute to GSPIA's core teaching in public and international affairs. While expertise in intelligence (e.g., comparative intelligence, the U.S. intelligence community or intelligence services/leaders/operations around the world, national security organizational processes, bureaucratic politics, cybersecurity, big data, artificial intelligence) is required, we seek candidates with interdisciplinary interests and whose research and teaching complement existing strengths of the School. To that end, our ideal candidate will have broader research and teaching interests; examples could include areas such as international security, foreign policy, human security, international organizations and law, migration, NGOs and non-state actors, conflict prevention and peacebuilding, among other specialties. Applications from candidates with specific regional expertise (e.g., East Asia, Middle East, Africa, Latin America, Russia and Eastern Europe) are especially welcome. Theoretical and methodological approaches are open.

As a School devoted to public service and to the values of liberty, equality, and justice, GSPIA is committed to helping realize the vision of a more equitable and inclusive society. We embrace the diversity of experience of all members of our community, including those arising from differences of race, gender and gender identity, ethnicity, abilities/disabilities, age, religion, sexual orientation, political beliefs, socioeconomic status, geographic region, migrant/immigrant/refugee status, and veteran status. Our goal is a diverse, cosmopolitan community of faculty, staff, students, and alumni. The search committee is especially interested in candidates who, through their research, teaching, and/or service, will contribute to advancing this goal. Applicants are encouraged to address these issues in their application materials.

GSPIA is a dynamic, multidisciplinary school with a top-ranked international affairs degree program and a highly successful security and intelligence studies major. The successful applicant will have many opportunities for collaboration within the school and across the University, including with research centers such as the Matthew B. Ridgway Center for International Security Studies, Ford Institute for Human Security, Center for Analytical Approaches to Social Innovation, Center for Governance and Markets, Johnson Institute for Responsible Leadership, the University of Pittsburgh Institute for Cyber Law, Policy, and Security, and the University Center for International Studies, which houses several federally-funded area studies centers.

Additional questions for the position may be directed to the Search Committee Chair, Dr. Luke Condra at lcondra@pitt.edu.

Questions about the application process may be directed to Kaytlynn Pierra at GSFH@pitt.edu.

Applicants should submit a cover letter, CV, a writing sample for consideration, and three letters of recommendation. The cover letter should address research interests, relevant teaching interests and experience, and plans to address diversity, equity, and inclusion in research, teaching, and service. Application files must be submitted through Pitt's Talent Center site, but letters of recommendation can be emailed directly to Kaytlynn Pierra at GSFH@pitt.edu. Applications must be submitted by March 31, 2021 to receive full consideration.

The University of Pittsburgh is an Affirmative Action/Equal Opportunity Employer and values equality of opportunity, human dignity and diversity.

University of Illinois, Springfield

Rank: Assistant Professor

Specializations: Race & Ethnic Politics, International Security, Research Methods

The Political Science Department at the University of Illinois Springfield (UIS) seeks applicants for a tenure-track faculty position at the rank of Assistant Professor beginning August 2021. The department seeks candidates with expertise in race, ethnicity, and politics (broadly construed) in American Politics along with teaching interests in at least one of the following subfields: Comparative Politics or International Relations. A successful candidate will be able to chair MA theses and comprehensive exams in the subfield of American Politics, and also in Comparative Politics and/or International Relations. The successful candidate is expected to teach online and on-campus courses at both the undergraduate and graduate levels on the politics of race and ethnicity. Additional courses may include any combination of the following: Introduction to International Relations, U.S. Foreign Policy, Politics of Immigration, Ethnic Conflict, or Research Methods, as well as any other upper-level courses in the candidate's area of specialization. In addition to teaching, the candidate is expected to pursue an active research agenda and engage in service activities.

Candidates must hold a Ph.D. in Political Science by August 16, 2021. Candidates must demonstrate potential for excellence in teaching, scholarship, and service. Prior teaching experience at the college or university level is required. The regular teaching load for tenure-track appointments is 3-3. The successful candidate will have opportunities to receive course relief for curriculum development or scholarship.

The UIS Department of Political Science offers excellent academic preparation and opportunities to become engaged in real world politics for both undergraduate and graduate students. We offer undergraduate and graduate degrees in political science, majors in Public Policy and Global Studies, as well as a graduate degree in Public Affairs Reporting. Students also have the opportunity to receive a minor in political science and global studies. Several of these programs are fully online or on campus.

One of the largest departments in the College of Public Affairs and Administration, the UIS Political Science Department offers an opportunity for our students to live politics in the classroom, on the campus and in the community. Engaged political science makes the connections between the classroom and the world explicit as we challenge our students to both grasp the course material and explore how it has an impact outside of the classroom. The UIS Political Science Department bridges the worlds of the "academic" and "practical" by providing concrete opportunities for the practice of theory and the theory of practice. Since our Department seeks to grow a culture of inclusion and diversity, we encourage applications from members of historically underrepresented groups.

Campus: Located in the state capital, the University of Illinois Springfield is one of three campuses of the University of Illinois. The UIS campus serves approximately 5,100 students in 21 graduate and 24 undergraduate programs. The academic curriculum of the campus emphasizes a strong liberal arts core, an array of professional programs, extensive opportunities in experiential education, and a broad engagement in public affairs issues of the day. The campus offers many small classes, substantial student-faculty interaction, and a rapidly evolving technology enhanced learning environment. Its diverse student body includes traditional, non-traditional, and international students. Twenty-five percent of majors are in 17 undergraduate and graduate online degree programs and the campus has received several national awards for its implementation of online learning. UIS faculty are committed teachers, active scholars, and professionals in service to society. You are encouraged to visit the university web page at <http://www.uis.edu>, the department web page at <http://www.uis.edu/politicalscience/>.

Application: Candidates should submit the following to be considered: (1) curriculum vitae, (2) cover letter, (3) unofficial graduate transcripts, (4) a teaching portfolio that includes the candidate's teaching philosophy, evidence of teaching effectiveness, and sample syllabi, (5) sample of scholarship, (6) email addresses for three professional letters of reference. All documents must be submitted with your application by April 9th, 2021 in the online employment application system: <https://jobs.uis.edu/job-board/job-details?jobID=142926&job=assistant-professor-political-science>. To maintain the integrity and confidentiality of the search process, applicants are asked to upload their own materials through the UIS jobs board URL. References will receive a separate invitation to upload their recommendations directly to the online system. The committee will begin reviewing applications immediately after this deadline. The search will continue until the position is filled, but applications received by this date will receive full consideration.

University of California, San Diego

Rank: Postdoctoral Fellow

Subfield(s): International Relations, Methodology, Other

An IR postdoctoral position is available for the 2021-2022 academic years at the Center for Peace and Security Studies at the University of California San Diego. The application deadline is March 1.

This postdoctoral fellow will participate in research at cPASS that targets security issues such as emerging modes of conflict and new modes of deterrence. cPASS is devoted to applying innovative thinking and diverse methodologies (experiments, deductive modeling, statistical analysis, case studies, archival research and "big data") to traditional security issues made more dynamic and difficult by the increased complexity of interstate competition and conflict. We emphasize a team-based, multi-method approach to research that combines qualitative and quantitative perspectives.

University of Southern California

Rank: Postdoctoral Scholar - Research Associate

The Center for International Studies in the Dornsife College of Letters, Arts and Sciences at the University of Southern California (USC; Los Angeles, California) invites applications for a one-year postdoctoral fellowship in the 2021-22 academic year. The fall semester starts in the third week of August 2021.

We seek applicants with (a) a strong research profile in comparative and/or international political economy, with a preference for security or climate change expertise; and (b) a demonstrated commitment to conducting cutting-edge research targeted at the top journals and university presses in political science and/or international relations.

The Center has a preference for selecting candidates who have an interest in engaging affiliated faculty in USC's Department of Political Science and International Relations (POIR), including scholars specializing in:

- The international political economy of security, broadly defined
- Environment, inequality, and redistributive conflicts in global comparative perspective; climate change policy preferences; political economy of state capacity with relation to climate issues

Postdoctoral fellows will also have an option to affiliate with one of two labs within POIR. USC's Security and Political (SPEC) Lab, which conducts interdisciplinary, policy-relevant research on issues at the intersection of climate change, security, and economic development. This lab applies the Stewardship Model of Mentoring to providing experiential research education to undergraduate students and works particularly hard to recruit first-generation college students, minority students, and other members of other underrepresented groups. Alternatively or additionally, the fellow will also have the option to affiliate with a newly forming Inequality Lab with Professor Allison Hartnett.

If a postdoctoral fellow is interested in affiliating with the SPEC Lab and engaging in mentorship, the Lab is prepared to fund a team of undergraduate research assistants supporting the fellow's research.

During their year at USC, the postdoctoral fellow will pursue their own research agenda, but we are seeking to recruit an emerging scholar whose research interests are such that mutually beneficial collaboration with POIR faculty and/or doctoral students will yield the following benefits:

- One or more co-authored papers with POIR faculty and/or doctoral students
- Broad intellectual engagement and knowledge transfer between the postdoctoral fellow and the CIS/POIR research community
- Strong research productivity and professional growth for the postdoctoral fellow

Applicants must be junior scholars who have received a PhD within the last three years (and no later than August 1, 2021).

Applications should be complete by March 15, 2021, to receive fullest consideration. Applicants are required to complete the online application process (with few exceptions—such as published books—materials submitted by regular post will not be accepted).

Required materials include a letter of interest, a one-page proposal for collaboration with USC faculty, curriculum vitae, research sample, three reference letters and official graduate transcripts. Inquiries may be sent to cis@dornsife.usc.edu.

This is a one-year fixed term position.

USC is an equal opportunity, affirmative action employer. All qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to race, color, religion, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, national origin, protected veteran status, disability or any other characteristic protected by law or USC policy. USC will consider for employment all qualified applicants with criminal histories in a manner consistent with the requirements of the Los Angeles Fair Chance Initiative for Hiring ordinance. We provide reasonable accommodations to applicants and employees with disabilities. Applicants with questions about access or requiring a reasonable accommodation for any part of the application or hiring process should contact USC Human Resources by phone at (213) 821-8100, or by email at uschr@usc.edu. ## Bucknell University

Rank: Visiting Assistant Professor (International Politics)

Bucknell University's Department of Political Science invites applications for a Visiting Assistant Professor position in international relations beginning in the fall semester of 2021. The successful candidate will be prepared to teach sections of a core course in international politics and sections of a course in introductory quantitative methods. The teaching load is three courses per semester.

We are especially interested in candidates whose teaching and research will contribute to the department's commitment to both diversity and academic excellence. Evidence of teaching experience, potential for teaching excellence, and the promise of being a productive scholar are critically important. By the start date of the position, candidates are expected to have a Ph.D. or be ABD in political science with a subfield specialization in international relations.

For additional information and to apply, please go to careers.bucknell.edu. The application should include a cover letter, CV, statement of teaching philosophy, statement of commitment to diversity, three letters of recommendation, graduate transcripts, sample publications or papers, course evaluations if available, and sample syllabi relevant to this position. Questions about the position should be addressed by email to Professor Scott Meinke at smeinke@bucknell.edu. Applications received by March 19, 2021 will receive full consideration.

About Bucknell

Bucknell University is a private, highly ranked, primarily undergraduate, national liberal arts institution that also offers strong professional programs in engineering, management, education, and music.

Bucknell University is an Equal Opportunity Employer. The university believes that students learn best in a diverse, inclusive community and is therefore committed to academic excellence through diversity in its faculty, staff, and students. Applications from members of groups that have been historically underrepresented in higher education are encouraged.

Bucknell is committed to creating a climate that fosters inclusion, growth, and development for a diverse student body, and seeks candidates who are also committed these goals.

Bucknell is committed to supporting the teacher-scholar model of faculty development. With a student-faculty ratio of about 9:1, small class sizes are a hallmark of the Bucknell educational experience. The university sponsors a range of activities to support the development of its faculty, including a Teaching-Learning Center and generous research support and leave policies.

Bucknell is located in Lewisburg, Pennsylvania, on the banks of the Susquehanna River. The Lewisburg area offers a combination of outdoor recreation opportunities and small-town amenities. In addition to the cultural and athletic events offered at the University and in town, the region offers strong schools and medical facilities, and an affordable cost of living. Bucknell is about three hours from Philadelphia, New York, Baltimore, and Washington, D.C.

Morehouse College

Rank: Assistant Professor

Position URL: apply.interfolio.com/84198

The Department of Political Science at Morehouse College invites applications for a tenure-track position at the rank of Assistant Professor. Candidates should be trained in the area of international relations. The ideal candidate will also be able to teach an introductory-level course in comparative politics.

Responsibilities include teaching courses (a 3-3 load), advising, and mentoring students; developing and maintaining a scholarly research and publication agenda; and service to the department and the College. We also encourage faculty to be active in soliciting external funding through grants and other sources. The start date for the position is August 2021.

Morehouse College is a private historically black liberal arts college for men whose mission is to develop men with disciplined minds to lead lives of leadership and service by emphasizing the intellectual and character development of its students and by assuming a special responsibility for teaching the history and culture of black people. Since the founding of the College in 1867, the faculty, staff, and leadership have worked to inspire, nurture, challenge, support, and engage its students with the expressed intent of fomenting a very special kind of development.

Morehouse has a very proud tradition of having developed leaders, with the most notable of course being Martin Luther King, Jr. (class of 1948). Each era has defined the qualities of Morehouse Man—an expression of the expectations we have of our graduates—a bit differently, but there are some enduring constants. Backed by nearly 150 years of history, we see our work as helping to shape men of acuity, integrity and agency; men who will commit to brotherhood, standing together with their peers to cheer, challenge and support each other; and men who will strive to lead consequential lives, to not just do well for themselves, but to do good in the world.

Our strong legacy is continued now as we claim a number of successes. Morehouse is the number one baccalaureate origin institution for black male doctorate recipients in science and engineering, life sciences, physical sciences, social sciences, education, and humanities over the decade ending 2012 according to the National Science Foundation. We are the top producer of underrepresented minority physics baccalaureates among non-PhD granting institutions over the three years ending in 2013 as measured by the American Physical Society. And the College just this year became the only non-majority college or university to have produced four Rhodes Scholars. Our graduates include not only men like King and Julian Bond, but Spike Lee, David Satcher, Eddie Glaude, Jim Shelton, and many more operating in and out of academia in some way.

The College offers instructional programs in six divisions—humanities, social sciences and cultural studies, creative and performing arts, life sciences, mathematics and computational science, and business and economics—as well as extracurricular and co-curricular activities that, combined with the academic program: foster the development of oral and written communication skills; foster appreciation of world cultures, artistic, creative expression and the nature of the physical universe; promote understanding of the specific skills needed to pursue professional careers and graduate study; and cultivate the personal attributes of self-confidence, tolerance, morality, ethical behavior, spirituality, humility, global perspective, and commitment to justice.

Qualifications

Minimum qualifications include a PhD in political science; commitment to excellence in teaching; evidence of a productive research program; and service to the profession and community.

Application Instructions

A successful application will consist of the following:

1. A letter of application providing detail on how the candidate meets the qualifications for the position and why they are a good fit for Morehouse College in particular (no more than 2 pages);
2. A current curriculum vitae (no more than 4 pages);
3. A statement of teaching philosophy (no more than 2 pages);
4. A research/scholarship agenda (no more than 2 pages);
5. Unofficial transcripts
6. Three letters of recommendation

Candidates also have the option of sharing the following:

1. Sample syllabi ( no more than 2 courses)
2. Samples of research (no more than 2 samples)
3. Teaching evaluations or summaries of evaluations (no more than 2 courses, but if submitted, only submit full class evaluations and not samples of class evaluations)

Review of applications will begin immediately and continue until the position is filled. For questions about the search, please contact Dr. Andrew Douglas, andrew.douglas@morehouse.edu, 470-639-0732.

We seek a diverse pool and will consider applicants with any specialization in international relations. Applicants must have a Ph.D. in political science, international affairs, international relations, public policy, or a related discipline.

The successful applicant will be expected to work closely with the department chair to expand the masters and doctoral programs, including recruitment and program development. Teaching expectations include undergraduate and graduate courses in the field of expertise. The position comes with a summer research stipend, research and travel support, a graduate assistant, and a reduced teaching load.

Review of applications will begin March 12, 2021. To apply, complete an online application at <https://www.jobs.aum.edu/postings/4601> and upload the following materials: 1) a letter of application to include areas of specialization, current and future research agenda, teaching areas with course titles and teaching philosophy, and most significant professional service; 2) curriculum vitae; 3) two recent writing samples; 4) graduate transcript (official transcript will be needed at time of hire); and 5) contact information for at least three professional references. Separately, three confidential letters of reference are required and must be sent by email to politicalscience@aum.edu by the application deadline.

The Department of Political Science and Public Administration includes eight tenure-track faculty and offers an undergraduate and master's degree in political science and a nationally ranked, NASPAA-accredited master's degree in public administration. We also offer a Ph.D. in Public Administration and Public Policy jointly with Auburn University's Department of Political Science.

Auburn University at Montgomery (AUM), a comprehensive public university, is the metropolitan campus of Auburn University. Located in the state capital on a 500-acre campus, AUM enrolls approximately 5000 undergraduate and graduate students and attracts a diverse student body. AUM is ranked by U.S. News and World Report as one of the top twenty-five Comprehensive Regional Universities in the South and by the Princeton Review as one of the best colleges in the Southeast. Montgomery is a diverse city offering an array of cultural and recreational opportunities including the Alabama Shakespeare Festival, world-class museums and memorials including the new Legacy Museum and the National Memorial for Peace and Justice, a ballet company, a natural habitat zoo, a chamber music society, an independent film theater, and the Montgomery Biscuits Double-A baseball team; it is home to Maxwell-Gunter Air Force Base and Air University, Hyundai Motor's first U.S. production facility, and the headquarters of leading non-profits including Equal Justice Initiative and the Southern Poverty Law Center. The campus is within a two-and-a-half-hour drive to Atlanta, ninety minutes to Birmingham, and less than three hours to the Gulf Coast.

Auburn University at Montgomery is an Equal Opportunity Employer committed to achieving excellence through diversity; therefore, we encourage applications from historically underrepresented groups, veterans, and individuals with disabilities.

While this position is open until filled, Auburn University at Montgomery reserves the right to stop accepting applications once interviewing has begun.

Temple University

Specializations: Race & Ethnic Politics, International Law & Organizations, Civil Rights & Liberties

The Department of Political Science at Temple University invites applications for a one-year Postdoctoral Fellowship to support the development of early career scholars from diverse backgrounds with particular attention to historically underrepresented groups on the professorial faculties of colleges and universities in the United States. This year we seek a fellow with expertise in human rights law and politics in either domestic or international contexts. The successful applicant will contribute intellectually to the department and College of Liberal Arts by conducting research while teaching one course during the year. We would welcome, but not limit our search to candidates who study race, sexual orientation, and/or religious affiliation as components of states' legal traditions both domestically and internationally. Applicants should hold or be completing a doctorate in Political Science or a related discipline.

Our department (<https://www.cla.temple.edu/political-science/>) organizes formal colloquia from outside scholars and hosts or cohosts many internal research talks with interdisciplinary centers such as Global Studies, Public Policy Lab, Master of Public Policy, Gender, Sexuality and Women's Studies (GSWS), the Center for Force and Diplomacy (CENFAD), and the Center for Humanities at Temple (CHAT).

The Postdoctoral Diversity Fellowship is a competitive program whose goal is to increase the diversity of the community of scholars devoted to academic research at Temple University. Candidates must have completed their Ph.D. by September 1, 2021. Please submit a letter of application that includes (1) proposed research plan for the fellowship, (2) a statement of teaching interests and/or philosophy, (3) a brief statement of the grounds of eligibility and progress toward completion of the dissertation, (4) curriculum vitae, and (5) three letters of recommendation by April 1, 2021 via the Interfolio link below. Letter writers should address the likelihood of completing the degree before September 1, 2021. Applications are due April 1, 2021 but review will commence immediately.

The current postdoctoral fellowship is non-renewable. The award includes a salary of $50,000, full Temple University employee benefits, a research/travel fund of $3,000, and a $2,000 moving allowance. The postdoctoral fellow will teach one course during the year of appointment and will meet regularly with other postdocs and faculty in the department and college through participation in seminars, colloquia, teaching circles, etc.

Temple University is a state-related Carnegie Research University (highest research activity) located in Philadelphia. The Department of Political Science is in the College of Liberal Arts, which is home to 38 undergraduate majors, 38 minors, 22 certificate programs, 14 doctoral programs, and 6 graduate certificates. With its vibrant and diverse array of educational programs, the College of Liberal Arts plays a tremendous role in Temple University's academic success and its mission mirrors both the historical importance of the liberal arts in society and the principles on which the University was founded. Temple University is an Affirmative Action equal opportunity employer and particularly encourages applications from women and persons of color, members of under-represented groups, persons with disabilities, and veterans. The University has pledged not to discriminate on the basis of race, color, sex, age, religion, national origin, sexual orientation, marital status, or disability.

Subfield(s): International Relations, Comparative Politics, Methodology

The Department of Political Science at the University of Kentucky (UK) in Lexington, KY is seeking a Postdoctoral Researcher to support a National Science Foundation (NSF) sponsored collaborative research project. The position is for one-year (12 months). Successful candidates will have a PhD in political science with an expertise in international relations.

An ideal candidate will have exceptional data management skills, the ability to analyze large-N TSCS observational data, ability to analyze survey experiment data, experience working with large international relations datasets, and excellent time-management skills.

The successful candidate will be expected to work with the Principal Investigators (PIs) Tiffany D. Barnes and Diana Z. O'Brien on their NSF funded research. Job duties include collecting and managing large TSCS datasets; programming surveys in Qualtrics; analyzing observational and survey experiment data; supervising undergraduate students and in-country research assistants; and collaborating with PI to write up and publish results. There are no teaching responsibilities associated with this position.

The salary is $47,500 and includes health insurance. $5,000 will be provided to defray the cost of moving expenses (to be paid through payroll and will be taxed). $3,000 will be provided for research support.

In addition, the successful candidate will have the opportunity to coauthor with PIs on an article length manuscript(s); the opportunity to include questions/experiments on one or more surveys; and the opportunity to present and receive feedback on research in PI organized working group and at departmental seminar.

The starting date for this one-year position is expected to be July 1, 2021.

Interested applicants should submit the following materials as one pdf-file (upload as Specific Request 1): (1) letter of interest, (2) CV, and (3) writing samples and supplementary materials. The cover letter should describe your empirical approaches to conducting research, datasets you have worked with and/or are comfortable managing and analyzing, programming skills, and language proficiencies (if applicable). The writing samples and supplementary materials should demonstrate a breadth of methods skills. In addition, please provide the names and contact information for three references when prompted in the academic profile. This information may be utilized to solicit recommendation letters from your references within the employment system.

Review of applications will begin on February 20th, 2021, and continue until the position is filled.

Exceptional data management skills; the ability to analyze large-N TSCS observational data; ability to analyze survey experiment data; and excellent time-management skills.

Johns Hopkins University

Specializations: China, Africa, Political Economy

Founded in 1943 and a Johns Hopkins division since 1950, The Paul H. Nitze School of Advanced International Studies of the Johns Hopkins University (SAIS) has been educating global leaders for almost 60 years. As a highly selective graduate institution with a distinguished faculty, SAIS consistently ranks as one of the top schools of international relations in the world. SAIS was founded to provide a practical approach to training students in international leadership and foreign relations, and to provide mid-career educational opportunities for those already working in related fields. Today, SAIS offers the M.A., M.I.P.P., and Ph.D. degrees and enrolls some 700 full-time students on the Washington, DC campus, 190 students at the SAIS Center in Bologna, Italy, and about 180 Chinese and international students at the Hopkins-Nanjing Center in Nanjing, China.

The China-Africa Research Initiative at Johns Hopkins School of Advanced International Studies (SAIS-CARI), directed by Professor Deborah Brautigam, will offer one pre- or post-doctoral research fellow position for a ten-month period during the 2021-2022 academic year (approximately June 2021 to May 2022). Fellow will spend half of their time on their own Chinese loan-related research projects, and half providing support to CARI research on Chinese lending. This support could include drafting research papers, policy briefs, and related op-eds and “public square” pieces; presenting at conferences and public events; and assisting with, and participating in, interviews, outreach activities and communications as necessary.

Qualifications

An understanding of China’s overseas economic engagement (trade, investment, aid, loans, other forms of cooperation) is essential for this position. Our preference is for candidates who have conducted field research, preferably in Africa although we are open to comparative perspectives. Econometric skills would be an asset but are not required. Ability to read and do research in Chinese is essential.

We prefer candidates who have completed all Ph.D. training and have defended their dissertations, but will consider exceptional candidates who are still writing their dissertations as pre-doctoral fellows. Candidates may not be more than five years beyond receipt of the Ph.D. at the start of the fellowship.

Only applications through Interfolio will be considered. To apply, please go to <https://apply.interfolio.com/83123>.

To apply, please provide the following:

- Cover letter explaining your fit for the position, including your scholarly interest in China’s overseas lending, the use (if any) that you would make of CARI’s extensive data on Chinese lending in Africa, and prospective or actual doctoral defense date;

- Current C.V. including publications;
- 1000-word description of the research project you would work on at SAIS, including its specific objectives, importance, and research design;
- One writing sample;
- Three letters of recommendation requested directly through the Interfolio system.

We will begin reviewing applications on February 28, 2021 and will continue to review new applications until the position is filled, or until March 31, 2021, 11:59pm EST, whichever is earlier.

Rank and salary will be contingent on qualifications.

Planned start date: June 2021 (Flexible)

Location: Washington, DC.

Duration of position: 10 months from the start date.

Please contact sais-cari@jhu.edu with any questions. Please place “Postdoctoral Fellow Application” in the subject line.

This position is funded by a grant from Carnegie Corporation of New York.

University of Cincinnati

Rank: Research Fellowships in Cyber Strategy and Policy

Subfield(s): Public Policy, International Relations, Open

Specializations: Defense, Science & Technology, International Security

The Center for Cyber Strategy and Policy (CCSP) at the University of Cincinnati is pleased to announce the opening of applications for Pre- and Post-Doctoral Research Fellowships in Cyber Strategy and Policy. The 10-13-month appointments can begin July 1, 2021 or August 1, 2021. There are two positions available.

Expectations

The CCSP Research Fellows will join a national team of researchers focused on examining aspects of a Whole-Of-Nation-Plus approach to cybersecurity. CCSP is examining the range of challenges that must be managed in linking intergovernmental coordination, public-private sector alignment, and a citizenry engaged in support of better cybersecurity, while adding the “plus” of alignment with allied governments, industry, and citizens. The specific research interest of the applicants is open relative to any aspect related to advancing strategy, policy, regulatory, operational, or technical aspects that contribute to a WON+ approach.

Fellows are expected to devote some portion of their time to one of two collaborative research projects: One, on cyber industrial policy that rests on a partnership with the Center for Embedded secure Systems and Trust (CHEST) a NSF-IUCRC project directed at the University of Cincinnati involving seven universities with national industry partners. CCSP will be examining CHEST research in the context of cyber industrial policy development. The second track of CCSP collaborative research will involve focus on state-level cyber security capacity and intergovernmental coordination leveraging our strong partnership with the Ohio National Guard and the Ohio Civilian Cyber Reserve.

Fellows will be provided the intellectual community support to contribute to the CCSP's research activities as well as work on—in the case of pre-dissertation fellows—advancing their doctoral dissertation or post-doctoral fellows advancing their publication agenda. All fellows are expected to be in residence for the duration of their fellowship contingent on Covid health campus policy. CCSP offers nationally competitive stipend levels and the benefit of relatively lower living costs than found on the East and West coasts.

A Multi-Disciplinary Research Environment

The Research Fellows will be supported by the Center for Cyber Strategy and Policy, which draws on a multidisciplinary set of researchers from political science, information technology, computer engineering, and computer science affiliated with the Ohio Cyber Range Institute at the University of Cincinnati. The OCRI and CCSP are organized around the proposition that cyber security is not a technical problem, but rather is a political, economic, social, organizational, and educational challenge in a technically fluid environment. The CCSP Research Fellowships are open to applicants from multiple backgrounds including the fields of strategic studies, international relations, national and foreign policy studies, law, political science, computing sciences or related professional experience gained as employees of government, military, international, humanitarian, and private research institutions in related fields.

The University of Cincinnati is one of only 18 universities in the country to hold both the National Security Agency's Center of Excellence designations in both Cyber Defense and Cyber Operations. Cyber Defense is anchored in UC's School of IT, Cyber Operations in Electrical Engineering and Computer Science, along with CHEST, and the Center for Cyber Strategy and Policy in the Department of Political Science. These four Centers contribute through disciplinary and multidisciplinary research to the overall OCRI ecosystem that includes 11 academic institutions across the state of Ohio as regional programming centers.

Essential Functions

Engage in and contribute to the research projects of CCSP

Minimum Qualifications and Requirements

Applicants for pre-doctoral fellowships must be in a doctoral program, have passed general examinations prior to appointment. Applications for postdoctoral research fellowships are welcome from recent recipients of the Ph.D. or equivalent relevant degree, university faculty members, and employees of government, military, international, humanitarian, and private research institutions who have relevant professional experience.

Required Experience

In-depth knowledge of specialized field, process or discipline.

University Job Posting and Application Process

Applications will be reviewed on a rolling basis with preference to those submitted by February 22, 2021. Applications must be submitted online via this link with the following components:

Completion of the electronic employment application form
 Cover Letter (two page max)
 Statement of research interests/project(s) (1200 words max)
 Current CV/ Resume
 Additionally, 2 letters of recommendation should be sent separately to cyberstrategy@uc.edu with subject line: Recommendation for (name)
 CCSP Fellows

Physical Requirements / Work Environment
 Sitting - Continuously

The University of Cincinnati, as a multi-national and culturally diverse university, is committed to providing an inclusive, equitable and diverse place of learning and employment. As part of a complete job application you will be asked to include a Contribution to Diversity and Inclusion statement.

As a UC employee, and an employee of an Ohio public institution, if hired you will not contribute to the federal Social Security system, other than contributions to Medicare. Instead, UC employees have the option to contribute to a state retirement plan (OPERS, STRS) or an alternative retirement plan (ARP).

The University of Cincinnati is an Affirmative Action / Equal Opportunity Employer / Minority / Female / Disability / Veteran.

The Public Policy and Political Economy Program in the School of Economic, Political and Policy Sciences (EPPS) is seeking applications for tenure-system assistant professor positions in International Political Economy and Global Health Policy.

The successful candidate for the IPE position will have a PhD in a social science or public policy-related field. The area of specialization within International Political Economy is open, but candidates focusing on cross-border issues with local implications (such as the politics of trade, finance, investment, migration, the environment, etc.) are particularly encouraged to apply. Ideal candidates will demonstrate their ability to contribute to existing program strengths in quantitative methods.

The department's faculty includes multiple winners of internal and external teaching awards. The candidate is expected to incorporate best practices as identified by the scholarship on teaching and learning into her/his pedagogical approach. The successful candidate will be expected to teach both undergraduate and graduate courses. Faculty typically teach two courses per semester.

The University of Texas at Dallas has the highest freshman SAT scores of any public University in Texas and was recently ranked 39th among the 100 best universities in the world under 50 years old by Times Higher Education magazine. UT Dallas is one of the youngest universities to achieve the Carnegie Commission's highest research classification of "Doctoral Universities – Very High Research Activity."

Applicants should upload a letter of application; current curriculum vitae; a sample of written work; statements of teaching and research philosophy; instructional instructional materials such as syllabi and course evaluations and the full contact information for at least three academic or professional references.

Additional questions for the IPE position may be directed to the Search Committee Chair, Dr. Clint Peinhardt (clint.peinhardt@utdallas.edu).

Roanoke College

Rank: Visiting Assistant Professor

The Department of Public Affairs at Roanoke College invites applications for a one-year Visiting Assistant Professor position in International Relations beginning in August 2021 and ending in May 2022. This is a full time, sabbatical-replacement position, with a teaching load of seven courses during the academic year.

We seek candidates with broad training in International Relations and who can offer courses in International Politics, International Relations Theory, and Research Methods. While the department has additional need for courses covering Comparative Politics of Europe and Human Rights Policy to fill specific programmatic requirements, we especially seek candidates who have passion for teaching and mentoring undergraduates and can diversify our offerings. The successful candidate will also contribute International Relations courses to the General Education curriculum. A Ph.D. with teaching experience is preferred, but an ABD will be considered.

The Public Affairs Department administers majors in Political Science, International Relations, and Criminal Justice. In addition to excellent teaching and collegiality, the Public Affairs Department supports and expects active professional participation and research. Visiting Professors are eligible to receive departmental funds and to apply for most of the College's internal grants in support of their research and teaching.

Roanoke College is an equal opportunity employer and actively seeks diversity among its faculty, staff, and students; women and members of under-represented groups are especially encouraged to apply. We also seek candidates with interests in mentoring under-represented students, diversifying curricular offerings, or sponsoring diverse community engagement. Applicants are asked to address their potential contributions in support of a diverse community in their cover letters.

Applicants should submit their cover letter, curriculum vitae, teaching evaluations and three letters of recommendation to: Ms. Judith Pinckney, Department of Public Affairs, 119 West Hall, Roanoke College, Salem, VA 24153. Inquiries may be sent to: pinckney@roanoke.edu. Please visit our Departmental website at: https://www.roanoke.edu/inside/a-z\_index/public\_affairs for more information.

Review of applications will begin on January 8, 2021 and continue until the position is filled.

University of Richmond

Rank: Assistant Professor of Political Science

The University of Richmond Department of Political Science invites applications for a tenure-track position at the rank of Assistant Professor with expertise in the politics of development, broadly defined. The department has a strong preference for an area concentration in either Africa or the Middle East, which will complement its existing strengths in the politics of Asia, Europe, and Latin America. The position, to begin in 2021-2022 academic year, is intended to meet and expand curricular goals within the major; to broaden the department's research expertise; and to contribute to interdisciplinary initiatives in the School of Arts and Sciences and to the University of Richmond's mission of "preparing students for responsible leadership in a diverse world." More specifically, the position carries a 3-2 teaching load consisting of a regular offering of a survey course on the politics of development. Other courses would relate to the faculty's regional specialization, with particular preference for courses on the politics of Africa and/or the Middle East. The new hire would also share responsibility for teaching the department's ongoing offerings of Introduction to Comparative Politics and/or Introduction to International Relations and, as schedule permits, contribute to departmental First Year Seminar (FYS) offerings.

Applicants must either hold a Ph.D. in Political Science or show credible evidence that they will complete the dissertation by August

1, 2021. Applicants should apply online at <https://richmond.csod.com/ats/careersite/JobDetails.aspx?site=1&id=2062>.

The University of Richmond is a private university located just a short drive from downtown Richmond, Virginia. Through its five schools and wide array of campus programming, the University combines the best qualities of a small liberal arts college and a large university. With nearly 4,000 students, an 8:1 student-faculty ratio, and more than 90% of traditional undergraduate students living on campus, the University is remarkably student-centered, focused on preparing students “to live lives of purpose, thoughtful inquiry, and responsible leadership in a global and pluralistic society.”

The University of Richmond is committed to developing a diverse workforce and student body, and to modeling an inclusive campus community which values the expression of difference in ways that promote excellence in teaching, learning, personal development, and institutional success. Our academic community strongly encourages applications that are in keeping with this commitment. For more information on the department and its programs, please see <https://polisci.richmond.edu/>.

Applicants should click “Apply Now” at the top of the page and submit a curriculum vitae, cover letter containing a brief summary of the candidate’s research and teaching interests and indicating commitment to the teacher-scholar model, and separate research and teaching statements. The research statement should expand on the candidate’s research agenda and expertise. The teaching statement should articulate the candidate’s teaching philosophy, interests, experience and goals. It should also address commitment to inclusive pedagogy and to fostering thriving and inclusive intercultural community, as outlined in the President’s Making Excellence Inclusive report (<https://president.richmond.edu/inclusive-excellence/report-pdfs/making-excellence-inclusive-final-report-2019.pdf>). In addition, please include copies of academic transcripts. Candidates for this position may be asked, at a later date, to provide the names and contact information for three references who will be asked to submit letters of recommendation. Review of applications will commence on October 1, 2020 and continue until the position is filled.

Please address any questions about the application to Dr. Jennifer Erkulwater (jerkulwa@richmond.edu), Chair, Department of Political Science, University of Richmond, Richmond, VA 23173.

METHODOLOGY

New York University

Rank: Postdoctoral Associate (CTL)

Subfield(s): Methodology, Public Policy, Other

Specializations: Quantitative Methods, Research Methods, Economic Policy

Postdoctoral Associate To Work on Causal Inference Modeling for the Cash Transfer Lab (CTL) at New York University.

The postdoctoral associate will be a part of the Cash Transfer Lab at NYU. The lab’s initial focus will be on a cash transfer that has been made annually to every Alaskan resident since 1982, the Permanent Fund Dividend. The amount of the transfer varies year-to-year and is arguably exogenous. The generic way to conceptualize this is as a continually treated population whose dosage varies independently from year to year. More generally, the lab seeks to better understand how to rigorously estimate causal effects of UBI programs worldwide.

CTL will adopt a hub and spoke model. The hub is an intellectual infrastructure that can support and lower the barrier to entry for research on substantive areas (the spokes). The primary job of the postdoctoral associate is to build this causal inference modeling infrastructure.

You will report to Dr. Sarah K. Cowan, CTL Founder and Executive Director and Assistant Professor of Sociology at NYU and Dr. Jennifer Hill, Professor of Applied Statistics and Data Science at NYU.

Responsibilities may include, but are not limited to:

Writing a peer reviewed journal article on approaches to this case

Developing new approaches to identifying causal effects

Writing code/packages to implement developed approaches

Advising applied research teams on their approaches

This position will begin as early as May 15, 2021. It will be remote at least until September 1, 2021. After that point, we will be flexible with regard to whether the position is remote, in-person or hybrid based on the state of the pandemic as well as individual needs.

Qualifications:

A Ph.D. in any one of the following fields: Statistics, Applied Statistics, Biostatistics, Economics, Political Science, Sociology, Demography, Public Health or a closely related discipline. Ph.D. must be completed by September 2021.

Application Instructions

Please visit <https://apply.interfolio.com/85237> to apply. To apply for this position, please submit a CV, two writing samples that are either sole-authored or you took the lead on analysis and associated code. Please also provide the names and contact information for three references to whom we will reach out for finalists. We are not asking for a cover letter or research statement. Finalists will also be given a short assignment and be invited to interview. Review of applications will begin on March 29th.

Texas Christian University

Rank: Visiting Lecturer in Research Methods

The Department of Political Science at TCU invites applications for a one-year lecturer position in Research Methods for the 2021-22 academic year. Preference will be given to candidates who will have completed the Ph.D. in Political Science and have demonstrated the capacity for excellence in the classroom and success as a teacher-scholar. The successful candidate will have a 4/4 teaching load, and the salary is competitive.

Applicants should submit a letter of application, CV, transcript, a portfolio of teaching materials (including a teaching philosophy statement and a sample syllabus in an upper-level methods course), and a one-page diversity statement. All materials are to be submitted online at <https://jobs.tcu.edu/en-us/listing/>. Three confidential letters of recommendation should be sent by recommenders or dossier service to hrtalentacquisition@tcu.edu. The finalists for the position will be asked either to submit a video of a teaching demonstration in front of students (approximately 45 minutes in length) or will be asked to give a teaching demonstration during an interview.

We will review applications on receipt and will continue until the position is filled. All questions regarding the application process may be directed to Human Resources at hrtalentacquisition@tcu.edu or 817-257-7790. Questions about the Department of Political Science may be directed to search committee chair, Dr. Grant Ferguson, grant.ferguson@tcu.edu

A selective teaching and research university with 10,000 students, TCU is a private, secular institution committed to academic freedom located in Fort Worth, Texas. UC San Diego is forging a new paradigm for engagement and collaboration between STEM/Public Health/Health Sciences and the Social Sciences/Arts & Humanities. This faculty line is one of 13 ladder-rank faculty positions that unites STEM/Public Health/Health Sciences departments and African American and the Black Diaspora Studies through innovative research, coordinated teaching, and targeted service. Faculty will have multiple opportunities to engage with scholars across UCSD disciplines to address issues of race and racism, access and equity, and social and political influences focused on STEM/ Public Health/Health Sciences, while also working within their home departments and professional communities.

Faculty holding these positions will be expected to design and teach undergraduate courses that align with the African American Studies Minor (AASM). They may also demonstrate the equivalent through service to the AASM and by mentoring undergraduate students. We seek candidates whose research, teaching, and service advance anti-racism, anti-oppression, equity, and justice in STEM/Public Health/Health Sciences. We welcome candidates whose professional experiences and personal backgrounds have facilitated their understandings of traditionally underrepresented racial minority communities. Faculty are expected to have an inclusive stance on mentoring and advising that incorporates working with women and underrepresented racial minority undergraduate and graduate students.

Strong candidates are preferred to have a research agenda easily related to factors of race/ethnicity, as well as previous experiences teaching, mentoring, and supporting the advancement of underrepresented racial minority students, and a record of service activities that promote diversity, equity, and inclusion. Strong candidates will also have experience with or the desire to engage in interdisciplinary conversations and scholarship across UCSD disciplines.

Applications must be submitted electronically through AP-Online Recruit website: <https://apptrkr.com/2182057>

For applicants with interest in spousal/partner employment, please see the UC San Diego Partner Opportunities Program website.

UC San Diego is an Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action Employer with a strong institutional commitment to excellence through diversity.

All qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to race, color, religion, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, national origin, disability, or status as a protected veteran.

Davidson College

Rank: Visiting Assistant Professor

The Data Science program at Davidson College invites applications for a 2-year position at the Visiting Assistant Professor level, with a start date of July 1, 2021. Completion or imminent completion of the Ph.D. in Statistics, Computer Science, or data science-intensive discipline (including social sciences) is required, with a primary emphasis on data science in graduate coursework and scholarly activity. Undergraduate teaching experience is strongly preferred. In addition to teaching 3 semester courses per year, this position requires directing the campus data lab.

Interest and ability to teach introductory and intermediate-level data science courses, including introductory statistics and data visualization in R, is required. The ideal candidate will have cultivated broad interests and experience in intermediate and advanced topics in areas such as statistics, computing, predictive analytics and visualization.

The data lab combines an online presence with physical space in The Jay Hurt Hub for Innovation and Entrepreneurship, and offers consulting and tutoring services for students and faculty in support of coursework and research across the curriculum. As time and resources allow, we are eager to grow the data lab's capacity for consulting with Hurt Hub coworking members and other external clients. In addition to consulting directly with clients, the director is responsible for all data lab operations, including hiring, training and supervising a team of student tutors.

Consistently ranked among the nation's top liberal arts colleges, Davidson College is a highly selective, independent liberal arts college located in Davidson, North Carolina, close to the city of Charlotte. Davidson faculty enjoy a low student-faculty ratio, emphasis on and appreciation of excellence in teaching, and a collegial, respectful atmosphere that honors academic achievement and integrity.

Applications must be submitted online at <http://employment.davidson.edu>, and must include a cover letter addressing professional interests and aspirations pertaining to teaching and scholarly activity in data science, a curriculum vitae, a teaching statement, a 1-2 page diversity statement that outlines how one's teaching and professional work might contribute to Davidson's institutional commitment to diversity and inclusion, (unofficial) graduate transcripts, and contact information for three references (submission instructions will be sent to email addresses provided by the applicant). At least one reference letter must specifically and substantially address the applicant's teaching.

Applications completed by March 22, 2021 will receive full consideration.

At Davidson College, we believe the college grows stronger by recruiting and retaining a diverse faculty and staff committed to building an inclusive community. In order to achieve and sustain educational excellence, we seek to hire talented faculty and staff across the intersections of diverse races, ethnicities, religions, sexual orientations, gender identities, ages, socio-economic backgrounds, political perspectives, abilities, cultures, and national origin.

Northeastern University

Rank: Open Rank - Assistant/Associate/Full Teaching Professor - Criminology and Criminal Justice - Public Policy and Urban Affairs

Open Rank - Assistant/Associate/Full Teaching Professor - Criminology and Criminal Justice - Public Policy and Urban Affairs

About Northeastern:

Founded in 1898, Northeastern is a global research university and the recognized leader in experience-driven lifelong learning. Our world-renowned experiential approach empowers our students, faculty, alumni, and partners to create impact far beyond the confines of discipline, degree, and campus.

Our locations—in Boston; Charlotte, North Carolina; London; Portland, Maine; San Francisco; Seattle; Silicon Valley; Toronto; Vancouver; and the Massachusetts communities of Burlington and Nahant—are nodes in our growing global university system. Through this network, we expand opportunities for flexible, student-centered learning and collaborative, solutions-focused research.

Northeastern's comprehensive array of undergraduate and graduate programs—in a variety of on-campus and online formats—lead to degrees through the doctorate in nine colleges and schools. Among these, we offer more than 195 multi-discipline majors and degrees designed to prepare students for purposeful lives and careers.

About the Opportunity:

The <https://cssh.northeastern.edu/scj> (SCCJ) and the <https://cssh.northeastern.edu/policyschool/> (SPPUA) in <https://cssh.northeastern.edu/about/deans-welcome> at Northeastern University seek nominations and applications for an open rank non-tenure track teaching professor position in the area of research methods and statistics, with an expected start date of September 2021.

Responsibilities:

Successful candidates will have a strong commitment to and experience in undergraduate and graduate teaching, will have expertise in research methods and statistics, and will be familiar with policy-oriented research applications across a broad array of social sciences. We are particularly interested in those with experience integrating examples and applications that advance social justice and racial equity and reduce economic disparity. Responsibilities for this position include: teaching undergraduate and graduate courses in research methods and statistics in the Interdisciplinary Studies in Social Sciences and Humanities (INSH) curriculum (three courses per semester); research and teaching in the School of Criminology and Criminal Justice and the School of Public Policy and Urban Affairs; and service and professional development. This is an open rank, non-tenure track joint teaching professor position between the School of Criminology and Criminal Justice and the School of Public Policy and Urban Affairs, but is continuing and includes the possibility of promotion, as well as multi-year (3 year and 5 year) contracts.

The position will support the University's commitment to innovation in experiential learning, as well as the College's mission to integrate data and technology in the analysis of society, policy and governance. Candidates should have demonstrated experience with experiential learning in these areas, as well as a commitment to fostering diverse and inclusive environments, which is also central to a Northeastern University education.

Qualifications:

A PhD in Criminal Justice, Public Policy, Statistics, or a related field is required by the appointment start date.

Salary Grade:

FAC

Additional Information:

Applications should include: a cover letter that addresses the applicant's interest in and qualifications for the position; curriculum vitae; teaching statement; writing sample; evidence of teaching effectiveness (including sample syllabus for a course related to research methods and/or statistics); and contact information for three letters of recommendation.

To apply, please go to <http://www.northeastern.edu/cssh/faculty-positions> and click on the link for full-time positions or full-time interdisciplinary positions or if viewing this description on the Northeastern University website, click "Apply to this job." Please address nominations and inquiries about the position to Professor Gregory M. Zimmerman at <mailto:g.zimmerman@northeastern.edu>. Review of applications will begin March 8th and will continue until the position is filled.

The successful candidate will be expected to work with the Principal Investigators (PIs) Tiffany D. Barnes and Diana Z. O'Brien on their NSF funded research. Job duties include collecting and managing large TSCS datasets; programming surveys in Qualtrics; analyzing observational and survey experiment data; supervising undergraduate students and in-country research assistants; and collaborating with PI to write up and publish results. There are no teaching responsibilities associated with this position.

The salary is $47,500 and includes health insurance. $5,000 will be provided to defray the cost of moving expenses (to be paid through payroll and will be taxed). $3,000 will be provided for research support.

In addition, the successful candidate will have the opportunity to coauthor with PIs on an article length manuscript(s); the opportunity to include questions/experiments on one or more surveys; and the opportunity to present and receive feedback on research in PI organized working group and at departmental seminar.

The starting date for this one-year position is expected to be July 1, 2021.

Interested applicants should submit the following materials as one pdf-file (upload as Specific Request 1): (1) letter of interest, (2) CV, and (3) writing samples and supplementary materials. The cover letter should describe your empirical approaches to conducting research, datasets you have worked with and/or are comfortable managing and analyzing, programming skills, and language proficiencies (if applicable). The writing samples and supplementary materials should demonstrate a breadth of methods skills. In addition, please provide the names and contact information for three references when prompted in the academic profile. This information may be utilized to solicit recommendation letters from your references within the employment system.

Review of applications will begin on February 20th, 2021, and continue until the position is filled.

Carleton College

Specializations: Asian American Politics, China, East Asia

The Carleton College Department of Political Science invites applications for a tenure-track Assistant Professor position in Comparative Politics to begin September 1, 2021. We are specifically interested in candidates who have regional expertise in Chinese politics and prefer candidates who can speak both to domestic dynamics as well as China's role in a broader Asian and/or global context. Successful candidates should be able to teach a range of courses in Comparative Politics (including the introductory course) as well as offer instruction in research methods (qualitative and/or quantitative). The standard teaching load is five courses spread across three trimesters. The ideal candidate will also be interested in contributing to a vibrant college-wide culture of undergraduate research and have a commitment to attracting and retaining students from underserved groups. A PhD in hand or its imminent completion is required.

Carleton is a highly selective liberal arts college with a student body of approximately 2,000, located in the historic and thriving town of Northfield, Minnesota. We are in commuting distance of the Twin Cities of Minneapolis and St. Paul, whose greater metro area has a diverse population of three million people and a rich variety of cultural resources. The Political Science Department strives to introduce students—majors and non-majors alike—to a broad array of theoretical and philosophical perspectives while equipping them with the necessary analytic skills to engage with an increasingly diverse world and contribute constructively to one's community. For further information about the department, please consult the department website at carleton.edu/political-science.

Applicants should submit a letter of interest, a curriculum vitae, a graduate transcript, and a statement about teaching in an undergraduate liberal arts environment and how you would contribute to a college community that embraces a diversity of people and perspectives as one of its core values. We also require a statement about research interests, one scholarly writing sample and contact information for three letters of reference. All applications should be submitted to jobs.carleton.edu. Inquiries can be directed to pteiken@carleton.edu.

Shanghai University of Finance and Economics

School of Public Economics and Administration (SPEA)
 Shanghai University of Finance and Economics (SUFE)

Job Type: Full-Time

Job Summary: The School of Public Economics and Administration (SPEA) at Shanghai University of Finance and Economics (SUFE) seeks applicants for two tenure-track faculty positions at the rank of assistant or associate (non-tenured) professor. The employment starts in Fall semester of 2021. The openings are in the field of comparative politics, research methodology, and political theory. Candidates who have a research focus on issues of public policy are strongly encouraged to apply for the positions. A completed Ph.D. in Political Science is required before the employment. Applicants should demonstrate their potentials to employ rigorous research methods, either quantitative or qualitative, to answer important theoretical questions in the field. Although the working environment in SUFE is international, the ability to communicate fluently in Mandarin Chinese is highly preferred.

The position is a full-time appointment for a period of six years. A tenure evaluation will be conducted after five years of employment. The tenure-track faculty are expected to publish research on highly reputable international journals, offer high-quality teaching to undergraduate and graduate students, and contribute to the development of political science at SUFE. The rules of evaluation and promotion are standardized at the university and similar to those for tenure positions in a regular American university.

We offer a globally competitive salary based on a full-time appointment and depending on experience and knowledge. The starting salary is 380,000 RMB for entry-level appointment, pending university approval. The offer also includes a broad package of fringe benefits (240K RMB housing subsidy, medical insurance, moving expenses, startup fund, and travel grants) per university regulation.

Institution background: Shanghai University of Finance and Economics, founded in 1917, is a top-ranked research university in China. The university has recruited more than 200 faculty members with overseas Ph.D. degrees. SPEA has 20 faculty members who own overseas Ph.D. degrees. The university and the school have developed a competitive and collegial environment for junior scholars trained overseas. The university has decided to establish and develop a strong political science program in the Thirteenth Five-Year Plan. The newly established Institute of Political Science has eight members who hold a Ph.D. degree from overseas.

NON-ACADEMIC

Krea University

Rank: Post-Doctoral Research Fellow

Specializations: Economic Policy, India, Political Economy

Who We Are:

Inclusion Economics India at Krea University (formerly EPoD India at IFMR) works in close collaboration with Yale's Economic Growth Center and MacMillan Center. Drawing upon economics, political science, and related fields, we conduct cutting-edge research to understand how policy can promote inclusive, accountable economies and societies. Our core research focuses on gender as it relates to labor economics and broader economic empowerment; political economy and governance; and environmental economics. We also aim to build a culture of evidence and increase data literacy in the public sector, strengthening leaders' ability to identify and implement evidence-informed policies. Throughout the research life cycle, we engage closely with policy counterparts to ensure we address questions of immediate relevance, and we regularly communicate data-driven insights with policy counterparts and the general public.

The Role:

We are currently recruiting one or more Post-Doctoral Research Fellows to support our research in India. Final portfolio allocations will depend on candidates' interest, experience, and skillset; ideal candidates have experience and research in one of our core focus areas listed above. The position will provide the selected candidate(s) an opportunity to gain first-hand experience conducting policy-relevant economics research while contributing to an agreed upon project portfolio.

Responsibilities within the project portfolio include supporting research design and implementation, overseeing data collection and analysis, interacting with stakeholders, and managing research activities and staff. This position requires a self-starting candidate with proven expertise in applied economics research who can effectively navigate India's institutional landscape and appropriately represent our work to outside stakeholders. The position will provide a talented early career researcher the opportunity to work directly with top academics and begin building their own research portfolio.

Responsibilities:

- Manage and supervise technical aspects of assigned research studies in collaboration with the research team.
- Oversee field-based team to manage research study activities, including intervention implementation, and contribute to field-based scoping, survey design, survey testing, data quality monitoring, and more.
- Clean and process incoming or secondary data and conduct econometric analysis under the direction of senior researchers.
- Manage relationships with collaborating institutions, including policy counterparts and funding organizations; work with partner institutions and governments to set priorities and coordinate project administration and logistics.
- Compile, assess and synthesize research into policy briefs, white papers, memos and academic articles with guidance and oversight of Yale-affiliated research faculty.
- Provide appropriate inputs and support for administrative requirements of the project portfolio, upon request, which may include financial management, budgeting, procurement, contract set-up and compliance, grant reporting, deliverable tracking, etc.
- Contribute to our team's overall management and strategic vision by identifying new research projects and partners and applying for additional sources of funding in partnership with research team.

Basic Qualifications:

- PhD in economics, public policy, political science, statistics, econometrics or related field by mid-2021
- Advanced coursework in empirical methods, including econometrics and economics, with strong demonstrated academic performance
- Solid understanding of research design and experience with data collection and field work
- Proven analytical skills and proficiency in Stata and/or R; experience in Python a plus
- Proven ability to manage multiple tasks and propose timely solutions with minimal supervision
- Excellent attention to detail
- Capacity to maintain an organized and structured work style in a fast-paced environment
- Ability to adapt to quickly to changing environments
- Strong interpersonal skills, and willingness to interact with a wide range of individuals ranging from Research Associates to academics, donors, research institutions, etc.
- Excellent oral and written communication skills in English and Hindi
- Ability to work in a multicultural environment
- Willingness to travel frequently and spend significant time at research project sites, as needed

Preferred Qualifications:

- Ability to independently drive research projects and produce independent, high-quality original empirical research in mutually agreed upon areas

- 3 to 5 years of field research or field research management experience in international development or related field
- Experience with research grant management and project management
- Proven success in fundraising for research studies with clear policy relevance
- Demonstrated interest in public policy and South Asia

This position will be based in Delhi, India, with frequent travel throughout the country when Covid-19 restrictions are lifted. Fellowships are one-year positions with the possibility of extension upon mutual agreement.

OPEN

University of Copenhagen

Rank: PhD scholarships at the Department of Political Science

Applications are invited for PhD scholarships at the Department of Political Science, University of Copenhagen. Enrolment will be at the Faculty of Social Sciences under Copenhagen Graduate School of Social Sciences.

The position starting date is 1 September 2021.

Introduction

At the Department of Political Science, we strive to explore the present and shape the future by educating PhD students at the highest academic level. This we do by creating a pluralistic and engaging research environment that brings together PhD students, researchers and the surrounding society in innovative ways. Daily life at the Department reflects the easy-going nature of life in Copenhagen. Faculties interact with students and each other in a relaxed atmosphere that invites deliberation. Here researchers can share experience and insights, and experiment with combining approaches and bridging gaps on an interdisciplinary level.

In line with this, the 2019 international evaluation panel concluded that the Political Science Department offers outstanding resources as well as a collegial work and research environment to its PhD fellows. PhDs highlighted that they feel accepted and respected as staff, that they have resources to fund research trips as well as opportunities to invite scholars to offer additional PhD training and that they are part of a research environment in which critical feedback is offered in a supportive way. The PhD scholars are comparatively well paid as a PhD student is regarded as a member of faculty holding a full time job.

The PhD programme provides PhD students with strong research training, which opens up a window of opportunity to a variety of careers within the private and public sectors. The programme includes the drafting of a PhD thesis, active participation in research networks, PhD courses, teaching, and other forms of knowledge dissemination. The PhD programme can be undertaken as a three year full-time study within the framework of the 5+3 study programme, or as a four year full-time study programme within the framework of the 4+4 study programme.

Duties and Responsibilities

Further information about the PhD study programme is available on the website of Copenhagen Graduate School of Social Sciences:

<https://samf.ku.dk/phd-skolen/english/>

<https://samf.ku.dk/phd-skolen/>

Under "Legal basis" on the website you will find information about the rules and guidelines for the PhD programme and the Danish Ministerial Order on the PhD programme at the Universities.

Information about the PhD study programme is also available on the PhD website of the Department of Political Science.

Applications

The University of Copenhagen wishes to reflect the surrounding society, and invites all qualified applicants, regardless of personal background, to apply for the positions

In order to be awarded a PhD scholarship the applicant has to enroll as a PhD student at the Faculty of Social Sciences, cf. the rules of the Danish Ministerial order No 1039 of 27 August 2013

Please note that normally there is strong competition for these scholarships, and only a few can be awarded each term

Scholarship in the 5+3 or in the 4+4 PhD study programme
The 5+3 PhD study programme

In order to be eligible for a scholarship in the 5+3 PhD study programme the applicant must have completed a two year MSc degree programme, or have earned 120 ECTS credits at an equivalent academic level before starting his or her employment. Applicants should check the study programmes for more detailed descriptions of the entry requirements. PhD students are paid a salary in accordance with the agreement between the Ministry of Finance and the Danish Confederation of Professional Associations (AC). The PhD student has a work obligation of up to 840 hours over the 3 year period of time without additional pay. The work obligation can include for instance teaching.

The 4+4 PhD study programme

Students who have completed a BSc plus 60 ECTS of an MSc degree programme would enrol as PhD students simultaneously with their enrolment in the MSc degree programme. Applicants should check the study programmes for more detailed descriptions of the entry requirements. Until an MSc degree is obtained, the grant is paid partly in the form of up to 48 state education grant portions (in Danish: SU-klip). More specifically the PhD student will be paid two grant portions per month plus salary for work (teaching, presentations etc.) which totals a workload of at least 280 hours. Payment and conditions of employment are carried out in accordance with the agreement between the Ministry of Finance and the Danish Confederation of Professional Associations (AC). Upon completion of the MSc degree the student is transferred to the salary-earning part of the PhD studies. The Phd fellow is expected to seek funding for fieldwork as this is not included in the scholarship.

Position Information
 Working Title: Assistant Professor - Democracy and Justice Studies

Essential Job Functions

The Department of Democracy and Justice Studies at the University of Wisconsin-Green Bay invites applications for a tenure-track Assistant Professor position in race and/or ethnicity and social justice. Applicants whose research and teaching interests address issues of race and/or ethnicity in the context of criminal justice, prisons, and/or carceral studies in the United States will be considered.

This position is part of a broader department effort to foreground race, ethnicity, and criminal justice in our curriculum. This position will be responsible for enhancing UW-Green Bay's mission-driven inclusive teaching efforts and creating and maintaining an educational environment that acknowledges, encourages, and celebrates those with diverse identities, beliefs, and cultural backgrounds.

This position includes the following responsibilities:

Develop and teach courses pertaining to the purpose and mission of the Unit, including American Government and Politics, Social Science Research Methods, and robust offerings of First-Year Seminars. Develop upper-level courses based on expertise in criminal justice and race and ethnicity.

Advise students.
 Perform scholarly activities consistent with rank.
 Perform institutional and community service.
 Contribute to the ongoing development of the department.
 Contribute to department's commitment to student recruitment and retention, which includes high-impact pedagogy.
 Implement inclusive instructional strategies to increase support for students from underrepresented and first-generation backgrounds.

The successful candidate will be expected to work inclusively and respectfully within a diverse campus community and practice civility in the workplace. The University welcomes applicants who are dedicated to the appreciation and promotion of inclusivity and equity as crucial components in the pursuit of organizational excellence.

In addition, the successful candidate will be expected to display a demonstrated potential for excellence in teaching and scholarship and a commitment to undergraduate education. The candidate should also possess communication and interpersonal skills sufficient to work effectively with a diverse array of students and colleagues.

Qualifications

MINIMUM QUALIFICATIONS:

Ph.D. in Criminal Justice, Diasporic Studies, Political Science, or a closely related field from an accredited institution. ABD candidates will be considered; however, a Ph.D. in Criminal Justice, Diasporic Studies, Political Science, or a closely related field from an accredited institution is a necessary condition for contract renewal. ABD candidates will be hired into a terminal appointment at the rank of Instructor with a rate determined at the time of hire. Upon degree conferral during the terminal period, the contracted appointment with the rank of Assistant Professor will be reinstated.

Conditions Of Appointment

Position is an academic year, tenure-track appointment. Applicants must be considered for tenure and promotion in six years, although tenure decisions may be at any time. Promotion from Assistant to Associate Professor is simultaneous with tenure. Excellence in teaching, sustained scholarly activity, and institutional service required for retention and promotion. Official transcripts of the highest degree achieved will be required of finalist(s). A criminal conviction investigation will be conducted on the finalist(s). In compliance with the Wisconsin Fair Employment Act, the university does not discriminate on the basis of arrest or conviction record.

All final candidates must be asked, prior to hire, whether they have been found to have engaged in, are currently under investigation for, or left employment during an active investigation in which they were accused of sexual violence or sexual harassment. When obtaining employment reference checks, these same sexual violence or sexual harassment questions must also be asked.

Salary

Competitive salary commensurate with qualifications and experience.

BENEFIT DETAILS

The UW System provides an excellent benefits package, including participation in the Wisconsin State Retirement System.

Bethany College

Rank: Faculty Political Science

Political Science Position

The Bethany College Department of History and Political Science is accepting applications for a tenure-track faculty position at the rank of Assistant Professor to begin in August 2021. The successful candidate will be broadly trained in American politics, with an ability to teach across the subfield. Preference will be given to candidates who can also create new courses for the College that engage identity in American politics and can teach the research methods course that is required for majors. Candidates who can teach courses in environmental politics and/or public health policy are also strongly encouraged to apply.

The typical full-time teaching load is 12 credit hours per semester with additional responsibilities, including student advising and service. The successful candidate will have a reduced load of 9 credit hours per semester and no standing committee service in the first year.

The successful candidate for the position should have a completed Ph.D. in Political Science or an appropriate related field, or be on track to complete the degree by August 2021.

Candidates should submit a letter of application, Curriculum Vitae, and a teaching statement as a single PDF to politics2021@bethany.edu. Three letters of reference should also be sent to the same address, and questions may be directed there as well. Candidates accepted for interviews will be asked to submit official graduate transcripts. Questions may be directed to the same email address.

Applications will be accepted until the position is filled, but candidates should apply by the week of March 30, 2021 for full consideration.

Bethany College is a national liberal arts college located on a beautiful and historic 1,300 acre mountaintop campus in the Northern Panhandle of West Virginia, approximately 40 miles west of downtown Pittsburgh. The state's oldest private college, Bethany offers a wide array of B.A. and B.S. programs in more than 25 fields of study. Bethany is proud to have a particularly diverse student body with more than 30% students of color and more than 40% first generation college students. Bethany College actively seeks a diverse faculty and staff. Bethany is an Equal Opportunity Employer.

Texas Christian University

Rank: Visiting Lecturer in Research Methods

The Department of Political Science at TCU invites applications for a one-year lecturer position in Research Methods for the 2021-22 academic year. Preference will be given to candidates who will have completed the Ph.D. in Political Science and have demonstrated the capacity for excellence in the classroom and success as a teacher-scholar. The successful candidate will have a 4/4 teaching load, and the salary is competitive.

Applicants should submit a letter of application, CV, transcript, a portfolio of teaching materials (including a teaching philosophy statement and a sample syllabus in an upper-level methods course), and a one-page diversity statement. All materials are to be submitted online at <https://jobs.tcu.edu/en-us/listing/>. Three confidential letters of recommendation should be sent by recommenders or dossier service to hrtalentacquisition@tcu.edu. The finalists for the position will be asked either to submit a video of a teaching demonstration in front of students (approximately 45 minutes in length) or will be asked to give a teaching demonstration during an interview.

We will review applications on receipt and will continue until the position is filled. All questions regarding the application process may be directed to Human Resources at hrtalentacquisition@tcu.edu or 817-257-7790. Questions about the Department of Political Science may be directed to search committee chair, Dr. Grant Ferguson, grant.ferguson@tcu.edu

A selective teaching and research university with 10,000 students, TCU is a private, secular institution committed to academic freedom located in Fort Worth, Texas. Fort Worth, the 13th largest city in the United States and part of the nation's fourth-largest metropolitan area, is a city of rich cultural endowments, including world-class museums and performing arts facilities, and has easy access to a major international airport. TCU has been recognized for nine consecutive years as one of the "Great Colleges to Work For" by The Chronicle of Higher Education. The TCU Political Science Department has sixteen full-time faculty with nearly 400 majors.

TCU is dedicated to achieving a diverse faculty and staff. As an AA/EEO employer, TCU recruits, hires, and promotes qualified persons in all job classifications without regard to age, race, color, religion, sex, sexual orientation, gender, gender identity, gender expression, national origin, ethnic origin, disability, genetic information, covered veteran status or any other basis protected by law.

Alvernia University

Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Public Policy, Open
Specializations: Social Movements, Race & Ethnic Politics, American Politics

Position: Assistant Professor of Political Science

The Political Science Program seeks a full-time Assistant Professor, tenure track, appointment to begin August 2021, whose specializations

span diverse areas of American Politics and Government, and who will complement existing strengths in political science and interests across the university.

Successful candidates must possess a PhD in Political science and specializations that span diverse areas of American Politics and Government, and who will complement existing strengths in political science and interests across the university.

Housed within the interdisciplinary Department of the Humanities, Alvernia's Political Science Program offers a BA and minor and serves the University by offering distribution requirements in its general-education program. The successful candidate will be committed to the mission of the University and to developing and growing the political science program. A passion for undergraduate teaching is essential, as is a commitment to inclusivity and working with diverse populations. The ideal candidate will be flexible and creative, with a broad range of academic interests and a devotion to the liberal arts.

Required Qualifications: Evidence of excellence in student-centered teaching; Commitment to engaging in high-impact practices such as service-learning and experiential learning, and use of innovative pedagogy; Ability to connect political science to diverse student populations; Active research agenda with demonstrated potential for publication. Willingness and ability to teach the university's first year seminar as well as introductory social science research methods at the graduate and undergraduate level. Interest in advising undergraduate students, mentoring undergraduate research, and actively participating in faculty governance and the life of the department. Opportunities may exist for the successful candidate to teach courses in the university's graduate program in Leadership Studies and to develop courses for the university's Honors Program. The nominal teaching load for tenure track appointments is 4-4. We are committed to providing our students with excellent educational and co-curricular opportunities and seek candidates devoted to student success, retention, and engagement. Candidates must be committed to upholding our Franciscan core values.

Position Requirements: Successful candidate will possess a PhD in political science, with a specialization in American politics. ABDs with confirmed completion dates will be considered. The promise of excellence in teaching and scholarship is required, as are superior communication skills. We desire candidates who bring enthusiasm, collegiality, and a commitment to liberal arts education and the university's mission.

Areas of Specialization: We seek a generalist with broad theoretical and methodological training in political science, with a primary emphasis in American politics and government. We encourage applicants from across the subfield but particularly welcome applications from candidates who have the ability to develop courses in one or more of the following areas: civil rights and/or racial and ethnic politics (especially Hispanic); public policy; bureaucracy; public administration; urban politics; civic engagement; gender and politics; social movements; refugee and migration studies; political behavior; or social and economic justice. Secondary areas of emphasis in Latin American politics or International Political Economy would also be viewed favorably, as would the ability to offer interdisciplinary courses in fields such as sociology or economics.

Alvernia has a bold approach to becoming a 21st century, modern regional university. This includes the rapid expansion of enrollment through new academic majors in engineering, health care and more.

We seek professionals who are thoughtful leaders, creative and nimble in the complex environment of private higher education.

Alvernia has been recognized regionally and nationally:

- U.S. News & World Report magazine ranks Alvernia as one of the Best U.S. Colleges & Universities, most recently 94 in the best regional universities category (North)
- Collegecompare.com named Alvernia to its January 2015 list of Ten Best Colleges & Universities in Pennsylvania for its graduate degree programs
- The prestigious Carnegie Foundation selected Alvernia as one of only 23 institutions in Pennsylvania and 361 nationally to received its 2015 Community Engagement Classification
- Alvernia was one of only four institutions in Pennsylvania and one of 43 nationally to earn the President's Higher Education Interfaith Community Service Honor Roll

All Alvernia University employees promote Franciscan ideals and adherence to the Mission of the University as demonstrated by the University Ideal Characteristics. As we are an equal opportunity employer committed to Franciscan values, all employees share responsibility for advancing diversity, equity, and inclusion in the performance of their roles while demonstrating: service orientation, respect for all, intellectual curiosity, solution focus and innovation, and mutual accountability. Alvernia University strives to be a community supportive of diverse perspectives and identities and strongly encourages applications from women and minorities.

How to Apply

Candidates should send a letter of application with current curriculum vitae, teaching philosophy statement, research statement, official transcripts, and three letters of recommendation to the Alvernia University Human Resource Office email at human.resources@alvernia.edu.

Review of applications will begin March 19, 2021 and continue until on a rolling basis the position is filled.

Wayne State University

Rank: Levin Center Oversight Fellow

Levin Center at Wayne Law Call for Applications
Congressional Oversight Fellowship
2021-2022

Scholars interested in congressional oversight research may apply for a new fellowship program established by the Levin Center at Wayne Law. Applications will be accepted until the position is filled.

In its inaugural year, the Levin Center Fellowship offers $22,000 as supplemental support to allow a twelve-month, non-resident scholar – including a post-doctoral student or early career professor – to research and produce a scholarly paper related to conducting an overview of congressional oversight databases, defining and measuring effective oversight by Congress, and exploring how to score effective oversight efforts by individual members of Congress, congressional committees, or Congress as a whole. There are no teaching obligations.

The Fellowship provides an outstanding opportunity for collaboration with the Levin Center team, a group of professionals based in Detroit, Michigan and Washington, D.C. with significant oversight expertise and experience conducting oversight-related activities.

Fellowship funding is provided by the Sunwater Institute, a nonprofit think tank dedicated to exploring fundamental ideas that advance liberty, knowledge, opportunity, and power for individuals and society. Any scoring system designed by a Levin Center Fellow could become a feature of the Sunwater platform under development to evaluate congressional performance.

A selection committee established by the Levin Center will review applications beginning immediately, with a goal of finalizing the selection decision by April 30, 2021. The Fellow's final paper must be submitted within twelve months of appointment.

Oklahoma State University

Rank: Open Rank Faculty

Social Sciences Open Rank Cluster Hire, College of Arts and Sciences, Oklahoma State University

The COVID-19 pandemic has significantly altered our communities, our institutions, and our world. Globally, health care infrastructure, scientific research communities, arts and culture organizations, policy-making bodies, local and national economies, K-12 schools and higher education, as well as social service agencies have had to respond to unprecedented challenges. Existing inequities have been magnified and exacerbated. Research that addresses infectious diseases has risen dramatically in importance over the last year and endemic- and pandemic-related studies promise to be an impactful area of research and creative activity for the foreseeable future.

The College of Arts and Sciences (CAS) at Oklahoma State University is recruiting up to five open-rank faculty members to specialize in endemic- and pandemic-related research. This is a cluster-hire that will lead to the hiring of at least one open-rank faculty member in each of CAS's three pillars: Arts and Humanities, Sciences, and Social Sciences. Information on individual departments may be found here: https://cas.okstate.edu/departments\_and\_programs. The goal is to cultivate an interdisciplinary research community dedicated to critical questions related to infectious disease and endemic/pandemic studies. This new area of research emphasis will be facilitated by the Oklahoma Pandemic Center for Innovation and Excellence (<https://oklahoma.gov/opcie>), currently under development in Stillwater, OK, the location of Oklahoma State University's main campus. In addition to a robust trajectory in research and creative activities, these faculty will be expected to make meaningful contributions to teaching and service, and to help CAS and their home departments move forward in the areas of diversity, equity and inclusion (DEI).

Critical research topics related to the Social Sciences include but are not limited to: public health access, distribution, and inequities; influences on attitudes, health behavior, and/or public health outcomes; intersections of inequality; health/science communication; human-environment interactions and spatio-temporal analyses; risk assessment and perceptions; vulnerabilities and resilience; and associated public policy.

Applicants are asked to submit the following items via Interfolio <http://apply.interfolio.com/84982> cover letter; curriculum vita; statement of research interests related to endemics/pandemics and infectious diseases; teaching statement that addresses their pedagogical philosophy; DEI statement that discusses past, present, and future contributions to inclusive excellence in the areas of research, teaching, and/or service; and contact information for three professional references. Review of applications will begin April 5, 2021, and will continue until the positions are filled. Employment will start August 2021 or as negotiated. For questions/inquiries: osusocialsciences21@okstate.edu

General Information

Oklahoma State University is a comprehensive flagship, land-grant, Carnegie Tier 1 research institution with more than 24,000 students on its combined Stillwater and Tulsa campuses. Students come from all 50 states and around 120 nations. With 24 departments and approximately 6,000 students, CAS is the largest and most diverse college at OSU. CAS interdisciplinary programs and centers include Africana Studies, American Indian Studies, American Studies, Gender and Women's Studies, and Religious Studies. Since 2010, OSU has been first in the nation among public land-grant colleges and universities for graduating Native American students. OSU's main campus is located in Stillwater, which is about a 1-hour drive from both Oklahoma City and Tulsa. Stillwater has a historic downtown, a regional airport with direct flights to/from Dallas-Fort Worth (DFW), highly rated public schools, and the newly opened McKnight Center for the Performing Arts.

OSU's Commitment to Diversity, Equity and Inclusion

At Oklahoma State University, diversity, equity and inclusion (DEI) matter. Providing a wide range of ways to understand and engage with the world, identifying opportunities and creating solutions are core to our mission as a land-grant university. We fulfill our mission and enrich our campus community by maintaining a welcoming and inclusive environment that appreciates, values and fosters a sense of belonging for all. For the complete statement, see <https://go.okstate.edu/about-osu/leadership/president/diversity-inclusion-task-force.html>.

OSU's Affirmative Action EEO

Oklahoma State University, as an equal opportunity employer, complies with all applicable federal and state laws regarding non-discrimination and affirmative action. Oklahoma State University is committed to a policy of equal opportunity for all individuals and does not discriminate based on race, religion, age, sex, color, national origin, marital status, sexual orientation, gender identity/expression, disability, or veteran status with regard to employment, educational programs and activities, and/or admissions. ## The University of Queensland

Rank: Lecturer in Political Science and International Studies

The School of Political Science and International Studies is at the forefront of teaching and research in political science, public policy, international relations and peace and conflict studies in Australia. The School's academic teaching and research staff include internationally recognised scholars who are leaders in their research fields and award winners for innovation and excellence in teaching. The School houses the Graduate Centre in Governance and International Affairs as the focal point for its postgraduate programs, the Rotary Centre for International Studies in Peace and Conflict Resolution, and the Asia Pacific Centre for the Responsibility to Protect.

About This Opportunity

The position will contribute to high quality teaching and research into Political Science and International Studies in the School, and to the collegial life and governance of the School, as well as enhancing the School's engagement and academic profile with external stakeholders.

This position is located at our picturesque St Lucia campus, renowned as one of Australia's most attractive university campuses, and located just 7km from Brisbane's city centre. Bounded by the Brisbane River on three sides, and with outstanding public transport connections, our 114-hectare site provides a perfect work environment – you can enjoy the best of both worlds: a vibrant campus with the tradition of an established university.

Our Ideal Candidate

Applicants must have a PhD in any field within Political Science and International Studies. You should have a demonstrated record of publishing research in high quality, internationally recognised outlets as well as the capacity to secure external research grants. The ability to design, coordinate and effectively teach courses at undergraduate and postgraduate level is also essential.

What We Can Offer

This is a full-time, fixed term appointment for four years at Academic Level B.

The remuneration package will be in the range AUD$99,542 - $118,206 p.a., plus employer superannuation contributions of up to 17% (total package will be in the range AUD$116,464 - $138,301 p.a.).

You will be able to take advantage of UQ Sport Facilities, salary sacrificing options, on-campus childcare, discounted private health insurance, cheap parking, development programs and many other benefits.

For further information, please review The University of Queensland's Enterprise Bargaining Agreement 2018-2021.

Our Selection Process

As part of the Selection Process, applicants shortlisted for interview will be required to present a seminar to members of the academic community prior to their scheduled interview. Further information about the requirements will be provided with adequate notice to shortlisted candidates.

The University of Queensland is committed to ensuring all candidates are provided with the opportunity to attend the panel interviews, therefore video interview options will be available.

University of Wisconsin, Madison

Rank: Pre/Post-Doctoral Fellowship in Race, Ethnicity, and Politics

The Department of Political Science at the University of Wisconsin-Madison is inviting applications for a residential fellow for the 2021-2022 academic year. The department will support one pre-doctoral fellow or post-doctoral fellow who specializes in the study of race and ethnic politics, broadly conceived. Applications are invited from scholars from any sub-field in Political Science. The fellow will be expected to be in residence at the University of Wisconsin-Madison for the duration of their fellowship (September 2021-August 2022), where they will be provided office space and access to university resources. The fellow will be expected to participate in relevant workshops and colloquia. The pre-doctoral fellow is expected to make substantial progress toward the completion of a dissertation during the fellowship. The post-doctoral fellow is expected to make substantial progress toward the completion of a manuscript for publication. The post-doctoral fellow is also expected to teach one course related to Race, Ethnicity and Politics.

Eligibility:

Applicants for the pre-doctoral fellowship must be pursuing a Ph.D. in political science and have already started to write up their dissertation prior to the start of the fellowship. Applicants for the post-doctoral fellowship must have completed their Ph.D. prior to the start of the fellowship. The pre-doctoral fellow will receive a stipend of $35,000, as well as $3,000 in research funding. The post-doctoral fellow will receive a salary of $55,000, as well as $5,000 in research funding.

We expect fellows to reside in Madison and take part in campus activities for the entire period of their fellowship. However, although currently UW-Madison plans for campus to be fully open in the fall 2021 semester, those plans may change depending on the course of the COVID-19 pandemic in the coming months. Accordingly, we may consider allowing fellows to begin their fellowships in a virtual format, should there be delays in opening the UW-Madison campus. More information about COVID-19 planning at UW-Madison is available here.

All applicants are required to submit the following materials electronically:

Applicants should submit a letter of interest, curriculum vitae, and writing sample (no more than 40 pages). Applicants should also arrange for two letters of recommendations to be submitted. All application materials are due by Wednesday, March 31st to Scott Straus, Chair, Department of Political Science, at opportunities\_polisci@wisc.edu

Drexel University

Rank: Assistant Professor, Humanities or Social Sciences and Africana Studies

About Drexel

Drexel is a comprehensive global research university ranked among the top 100 in the nation. With over 24,000 students, Drexel is one of America's 15 largest private universities. Drexel is one of Philadelphia's top 10 private employers, and a major engine for economic development in the region. Drexel has committed to being the nation's most civically engaged university, with community partnerships integrated into every aspect of service and academics. The College of Arts and Sciences (CoAS) consists of 13 departments and several research centers. CoAS and Drexel University are working to repair institutional legacies of anti-Black racism in the university and its community, and through this cluster hire are actively committed to supporting African and diasporic knowledge, practices, histories, and people.

The College of Arts and Sciences is home to several ongoing initiatives that reflect commitment to these goals, from community-based learning initiatives to a new Diversity, Equity, and Inclusion advisory council and Associate Dean. At the University level, new and ongoing initiatives include the Center for Black Culture, a university-wide unit focused on Black community at Drexel; the soon to be launched Center on Racism and Health, located in the Dornsife School of Public Health; and, in the School of Education, an active research group dedicated to Black student success. The University's Lindy Center for Civic Engagement, the Dornsife Center for Neighborhood Partnerships, and the Global Classroom program also support colleagues building engaged teaching and scholarship in Africana Studies. This cluster hire joins two concurrent searches for two tenure-track faculty in the Center on Racism and Health, and one faculty search in the Westphal College of Media, Art and Design for a joint position between the Music Industry Program and Music Program to create modern music courses with a focus on the African diaspora.

Job Summary

The College of Arts and Science of Drexel University, a Carnegie R1-classified research institution located in Philadelphia, announces a cluster hire of 3 tenure-track faculty (two at the Assistant Professor level, one at open rank) in the area of Africana Studies, with an expected start date of September 1, 2021. Two of the appointments will have tenure homes in the Department of History, this position will potentially be located in any Humanities and/or Social Science discipline within the College of Arts and Science. Joint appointments will be considered.

The Africana Studies Program

The Africana Studies Program is housed in the Department of History which has particular strengths in the History of Science, Technology and the Environment, and in Global History. The minor in Africana Studies allows students across the University to gain an understanding of, and background in, the history and cultures of peoples of African descent in North and South America, the Caribbean, Africa, and elsewhere. It includes courses in anthropology, history, literature, music, political science and sociology, and provides an opportunity for directed study in areas of special interest.

The current cluster will comprise 2 tenure track historians of Africana Studies (including an open rank hire who will serve as Director of the Africana Studies Program) and 1 additional tenure track faculty with a disciplinary location in any of the College's Humanities and/or Social Sciences departments: Communication, Criminology & Justice Studies, English & Philosophy, Global Studies & Modern Languages, Politics, Psychology, and Sociology. Tenure home will be departmental with teaching responsibilities in the Africana Studies Program. Candidates are expected to teach Introductory courses in Africana Studies, including an Introduction to Africana Studies course and a Cross-Currents in Africana Studies course centered on the Black Atlantic.

Essential Functions: Teaching; Research; Service; Other related duties.

Required Qualifications:

PhD in Humanities or Social Sciences, with an interdisciplinary specialty in Africana/African Diaspora/Black/African American/Afro-American or Race and Ethnic Studies, broadly conceptualized. (Must have PhD by September 1, 2021). 2 years of demonstrated graduate or post-graduate teaching, research or related experience.

Preferred Qualifications:

Exceptional promise of research potential commensurate with rank; Commitment to excellence in teaching, service, community outreach and engagement; Ability to teach introductory courses in Africana Studies, including methods and its intellectual traditions, in addition to courses in home department; Ability to mentor graduate students across the university and enhance the research profile of undergraduates

Required Application materials:

- Cover letter (with a description of the candidate's research program and philosophy of teaching)
- Curriculum Vitae
- One writing sample (e.g., article, book chapter, book)

Candidates who move forward in the process will be notified to submit sample syllabi for an Introduction to Africana Studies course and another syllabus for a special topics course in Africana Studies, and a brief research statement and teaching statement. Three letters of reference will also be requested at this later stage.

All candidates must apply through the Drexel University's Human Resources Careers Website. Please contact Amy Slaton, Interim Department Head of History at aeslaton@drexel.edu for more information.

Butler University

Rank: Lecturer/Instructor

Specializations: Race & Ethnic Politics, Gender Politics & Policy, Native American Politics

The Department of Political Science at Butler University invites applications for a full-time non-tenure-track lecturer for a two-year appointment with possibility of renewal. Applicants should have a strong commitment to excellent, inclusive undergraduate teaching. We are particularly interested in candidates whose teaching and scholarship engages intersectional, abolitionist, or critical historical institutional perspectives on race/ethnicity/indigeneity, gender/sexuality, and politics in the United States and potentially beyond it. The successful candidate will teach lower-level and upper-level undergraduate political science courses (including an introductory American politics survey), will contribute to the Core Curriculum, and will help build an inclusive learning environment for our increasingly diverse student population. This faculty member could choose to affiliate with the International Studies; Peace and Conflict Studies; Race, Gender, and Sexuality Studies; and/or Science, Technology, and Environmental Studies interdisciplinary programs. This lecturer will teach four courses per semester, typically with no more than six distinct course preparations per year.

Review of applications will begin January 11, but the position will remain open until filled. Applicants should have earned a doctorate in political science or a related field at the time of appointment before August 1, 2021. Applicants should submit the following to psearch@butler.edu: a cover letter that highlights the applicant's teaching interests, experience, and commitment to inclusive, excellent teaching and summarizes their research interests; a curriculum vitae; a statement of teaching philosophy, a sample syllabus, and a list of 3-5 references including name, title and contact information. Shortlisted candidates will be asked to provide additional evidence of inclusive teaching excellence including one or more additional syllabi, descriptions of course activities or assignments, and student evaluations or teaching observations; 3 letters of recommendation, and unofficial transcripts. Final round candidates will need to provide official transcripts and will be asked to consent to background checks. The successful candidate will start August 2021, subject to final budgetary approval.

The Butler Political Science Program, distinctively grounded in a firm commitment to social justice, democracy, and human rights, engages students in the study and practice of politics to promote the collective good at the local, national, and global level. The program defines politics broadly as the formal and informal ways societies govern themselves. The program offers an innovative curriculum that crosses traditional disciplinary boundaries to provide students with the knowledge and skills necessary to pursue positive social change. Political science alumni have pursued careers in electoral politics, teaching, law, government, journalism, business, and non-profit organizations, and have earned graduate and professional degrees in several fields.

University of Cincinnati

Rank: Research Fellowships in Cyber Strategy and Policy

Specializations: Defense, Science & Technology, International Security

The Center for Cyber Strategy and Policy (CCSP) at the University of Cincinnati is pleased to announce the opening of applications for Pre- and Post-Doctoral Research Fellowships in Cyber Strategy and Policy. The 10-13-month appointments can begin July 1, 2021 or August 1, 2021. There are two positions available.

Expectations

The CCSP Research Fellows will join a national team of researchers focused on examining aspects of a Whole-Of-Nation-Plus approach to cybersecurity. CCSP is examining the range of challenges that must be managed in linking intergovernmental coordination, public-private sector alignment, and a citizenry engaged in support of better cybersecurity, while adding the "plus" of alignment with allied governments, industry, and citizens. The specific research interest of the applicants is open relative to any aspect related to advancing strategy, policy, regulatory, operational, or technical aspects that contribute to a WON+ approach.

Fellows are expected to devote some portion of their time to one of two collaborative research projects: One, on cyber industrial policy that rests on a partnership with the Center for Embedded secure Systems and Trust (CHEST) a NSF-IUCRC project directed at the University of Cincinnati involving seven universities with national industry partners. CCSP will be examining CHEST research in the context of cyber industrial policy development. The second track of CCSP collaborative research will involve focus on state-level cyber security capacity and intergovernmental coordination leveraging our strong partnership with the Ohio National Guard and the Ohio Civilian Cyber Reserve.

Fellows will be provided the intellectual community support to contribute to the CCSP's research activities as well as work on—in the case of pre-dissertation fellows—advancing their doctoral dissertation or post-doctoral fellows advancing their publication agenda. All fellows are expected to be in residence for the duration of their fellowship contingent on Covid health campus policy. CCSP offers nationally competitive stipend levels and the benefit of relatively lower living costs than found on the East and West coasts.

A Multi-Disciplinary Research Environment

The Research Fellows will be supported by the Center for Cyber Strategy and Policy, which draws on a multidisciplinary set of researchers from political science, information technology, computer engineering, and computer science affiliated with the Ohio Cyber Range Institute at the University of Cincinnati. The OCRI and CCSP are organized around the proposition that cyber security is not a technical problem, but rather is a political, economic, social, organizational, and educational challenge in a technically fluid environment. The CCSP Research Fellowships are open to applicants from multiple backgrounds including the fields of strategic studies, international relations, national and foreign policy studies, law, political science, computing sciences or related professional experience gained as employees of government, military, international, humanitarian, and private research institutions in related fields.

The University of Cincinnati is one of only 18 universities in the country to hold both the National Security Agency's Center of Excellence designations in both Cyber Defense and Cyber Operations. Cyber Defense is anchored in UC's School of IT, Cyber Operations in Electrical Engineering and Computer Science, along with CHEST, and the Center for Cyber Strategy and Policy in the Department of Political Science. These four Centers contribute through disciplinary and multidisciplinary research to the overall OCRI ecosystem that includes 11 academic institutions across the state of Ohio as regional programming centers.

Essential Functions

Engage in and contribute to the research projects of CCSP

Minimum Qualifications and Requirements

Applicants for pre-doctoral fellowships must be in a doctoral program, have passed general examinations prior to appointment. Applications for postdoctoral research fellowships are welcome from recent recipients of the Ph.D. or equivalent relevant degree, university faculty members, and employees of government, military, international, humanitarian, and private research institutions who have relevant professional experience.

Required Experience

In-depth knowledge of specialized field, process or discipline.

University Job Posting and Application Process

Applications will be reviewed on a rolling basis with preference to those submitted by February 22, 2021. Applications must be submitted online via this link with the following components:

Completion of the electronic employment application form

Cover Letter (two page max)

Statement of research interests/project(s) (1200 words max)

Current CV/ Resume

Additionally, 2 letters of recommendation should be sent separately to cyberstrategy@uc.edu with subject line: Recommendation for (name) CCSP Fellows

Physical Requirements / Work Environment

Sitting - Continuously

The University of Cincinnati, as a multi-national and culturally diverse university, is committed to providing an inclusive, equitable and diverse place of learning and employment. As part of a complete job application you will be asked to include a Contribution to Diversity and Inclusion statement.

As a UC employee, and an employee of an Ohio public institution, if hired you will not contribute to the federal Social Security system, other than contributions to Medicare. Instead, UC employees have the option to contribute to a state retirement plan (OPERS, STRS) or an alternative retirement plan (ARP).

Dean of the Jonathan M. Tisch College of Civic Life (Tisch College) of Tisch College at Tufts University

Rank: Dean

Subfield(s): Open, Open, Open

Specializations: Life Sciences & Politics, Civil Rights & Liberties, American Politics

3/23/2021: Finalist Interview Stage

Tufts University (Tufts) seeks an entrepreneurial, collaborative leader with a demonstrated passion and commitment to civic engagement to serve as the Pierre and Pamela Omidyar Dean of the Jonathan M. Tisch College of Civic Life (Tisch College). The next dean will have the opportunity to build on Tisch College's intellectual and programmatic leadership, continuing to move Tufts to the forefront of academic and co-curricular civic engagement programs. Tisch College is the only American institution focused on civic life that is constituted as a college and led by a dean who serves alongside other deans, thereby influencing the direction of an entire University.

Today, Tisch College is a national leader in civic education and engagement, setting the standard for higher education's role in advancing the greater good. With a broad and vital mission to prepare students for a lifetime of engagement in civic life, to study civic life and its intersections with public and private institutions, and to promote practices that strengthen civic life, Tisch College has the opportunity to continue to deeply engage Tufts in cross-cutting, interdisciplinary initiatives and programs. The next dean will be a creative and entrepreneurial leader, who will seize the opportunity to advance and shape the future of the College's civic impact, world-class research, student programming, and interdisciplinary activities. The Dean will be responsive to local, national, and global challenges, and will work to strengthen Tisch College's commitment to ensuring that the work and offerings are rooted in the values and practices of diversity, equity, inclusion, anti-racism, and social justice, which are essential to effective civic practice.

Tisch College has an annual operating budget of nearly $8.5 million and is supported by an annual endowment income of nearly $2.5 million. The College is non-degree-granting, though it does co-lead an undergraduate major in Civic Studies and is mostly supported by philanthropy. The programs and the six research centers at Tisch College are supported by a team of more than 50 dedicated staff. The Dean will report to Provost Nadine Aubry, and their direct reports will include an Associate Dean for Programs and Administration, an Associate Dean of Academic Affairs, and a Director of Communications, Strategy, and Planning. The Dean also works closely with a 35-member Board of Advisors. Newly renovated Barnum Hall, on the main quad of the Tufts Medford campus, is home to the offices of Tisch College.

Tufts University has retained Isaacson, Miller, a national search firm, to assist in the recruitment of the Dean of the Jonathan M. Tisch College of Civic Life.

Please direct all nominations, inquiries, and application materials to:

Wake Forest University

Rank: Teacher-Scholar Postdoctoral Fellow in Leadership and Character and Interdisciplinary Humanities

Job Description Summary

The Program for Leadership and Character and Interdisciplinary Humanities Program at Wake Forest University seek a thoughtful, engaged, and creative scholar to become a Teacher-Scholar Postdoctoral Fellow for one year. The Postdoctoral Fellow will join an innovative cohort of emerging scholars from the humanities, social sciences, and natural sciences to develop and teach leadership and character-related courses in their respective disciplines. The Postdoctoral Fellow will teach 3 courses per year (a 1:2) and contribute to the co-curricular programming of the Program for Leadership and Character and Interdisciplinary Humanities Program. The Postdoctoral Fellow will benefit from course development workshops and mentoring from faculty in the Program for Leadership and Character and Interdisciplinary Humanities Program. The Postdoctoral Fellow will have an opportunity to work with a senior research scholar to assess the impact of their courses and potentially publish relevant research.

The one-year fellowship is funded by a grant from the Lilly Endowment and is open to candidates from across the humanities. We welcome recent PhDs in a variety of fields, including literature, history, classics, philosophy, political theory, religious studies, African American studies, and/or women's, gender, and sexuality studies who specialize in ethics and have interest in working across disciplines to pursue ethics-related teaching and research. Compelling applicants will demonstrate a commitment to excellence in teaching and mentoring undergraduate students from diverse backgrounds, including international students, first-generation students, and those who identify as members of historically marginalized communities.

Wake Forest University welcomes and encourages diversity and inclusivity and seeks applicants with demonstrated success in working with diverse populations. Wake Forest University is an AA/EO employer and values an inclusive and diverse learning community and campus climate. All qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to race, color, religion, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, national origin, disability, protected veteran status, or any other characteristic protected by law.

Wake Forest University is a private, coeducational institution dedicated to academic excellence in liberal arts, graduate and professional education. Located in Winston-Salem, NC ("The City of Arts and Innovation"), the University is ranked among the top thirty national universities by U.S. News and World Report. The University has a deep institutional commitment to public service and engagement with the world, as indicated by the motto Pro Humanitate (for humanity), which encourages students to develop the qualities of human character needed to serve humanity. With the aim to educate the whole person, the University has established an innovative Program for Leadership and Character that plans creative, liberal arts-based programming to help students develop the virtues of character needed to lead in an increasingly complex world. The Program is based on cutting-edge academic research on leadership and character, including research conducted by Wake Forest faculty in philosophy and psychology who are leading experts on the study of character. The program has established a partnership with the Oxford Character Project and has been profiled as a model for how universities can educate character. The Program recently received a major grant from the Lilly Endowment to develop leaders of character at Wake Forest and support other colleges and universities who seek to infuse leadership and character at their campuses. The Interdisciplinary Humanities Program is an exciting academic program that draws insights from multiple disciplines to explore what it means to be human. The Interdisciplinary Humanities Program offers an undergraduate minor and a wide range of courses that address big questions from a variety of disciplinary and ethical perspectives.

Central European University

Rank: Research Fellow or Senior Research Fellow, Lead Researcher for the De- and Re-Democratization Workgroup of the Democracy Institute

Starting date: Fall 2021 (negotiable)

Application deadline: Open until filled, review of applications will start May 1, 2021

Full- Or Part-Time: Full-time (40 hours/week)

Location: Budapest

The newly formed Democracy Institute at the Central European University invites applications for a lead researcher of its De- and Re-Democratization Workgroup. The chosen candidate will be appointed as a Research Fellow or Senior Research Fellow at the Democracy Institute in Budapest and visiting professor at the Political Sciences Department of CEU (Vienna campus). The candidate will have a chance to build up an innovative interdisciplinary international research program looking for better ways of understanding the challenges of democracy in the 21st century. We seek applicants with a strong publication record in this research area. A proven track record in institution building is an advantage.

Duties and responsibilities:

- Establish and run an internationally recognized research program.
- Collaborate with the members of the other research groups at the Democracy Institute.
- Apply for and secure external research funding.
- Train and supervise graduate students.
- Participate in network-building, outreach and fundraising initiatives of the Democracy Institute.

Qualifications:

Candidates must have a PhD, an outstanding research agenda, and a record of publications in peer-reviewed academic journals in political science and/or related disciplines.

Compensation

We offer a competitive salary that is commensurate with experience as well as a dynamic and international academic environment. If the candidate is appointed at the Research Fellow rank the initial contract will be for 2-4 years; continued employment depends on outcome of re-appointment review. The contract for the Senior Research Fellow appointment is for an indefinite term.

How to apply

Applications should include:

- A CV.
- a program statement describing how the candidate envisages building up the research program of this working group
- two recent English language papers or manuscripts that best represent their research

Shortlisted candidates will be requested to name three scholars who could supply recommendation letters.

Informal inquiries can be addressed to the Chair of the Search Committee: Zsolt Enyedi enyedizs@ceu.edu.

The process of reviewing the applications will begin on May 1, 2021. The positions will remain open until filled.

Please send your complete application package to advert\_018@ceu.edu - including job code in subject line: 2021/018.

Virginia Tech

Rank: Open Rank, Cyber Technology and Policy

Open Rank Faculty

- (1) Cyber Technology & Policy and
- (2) Data, Equity & Diversity

The College of Liberal Arts and Human Sciences at Virginia Tech seeks to fill two faculty positions to advance transdisciplinary research, teaching, and public engagement: (1) Cyber Technology and Policy and (2) Data, Equity, and Diversity. Both positions will actively contribute to at least one of the supporting Destination Areas (+ Policy; Data and Decisions; Equity, Social Disparity & the Human Condition), which are university-wide, cross-cutting transdisciplinary communities addressing thematic challenges that impact the human condition. In addition, both positions may contribute to the College of Liberal Arts and Human Sciences's new Academy of Transdisciplinary Studies. Positions are open rank, tenured or tenure-track, to start in August 2021.

Successful applicants will demonstrate an active program of research and scholarship, with commitment to: participating in transdisciplinary collaborations that address contemporary, complex problems; and improving lives consonant with Virginia Tech's Beyond Boundaries goals of advancing Virginia Tech as an internationally-recognized, global land-grant university and strategically addressing the challenges and opportunities presented by the changing landscape of higher education. Applicants should be prepared to teach a variety of courses at the undergraduate and graduate levels. Applicants are expected to pursue extramural funding in support of their research and scholarship. Occasional travel to attend national conferences and meetings is required. Candidates from diverse backgrounds are strongly encouraged to apply.

Successful applicants will be appointed as tenure-track or tenured faculty in one of the departments or schools in the College of Liberal Arts and Human Sciences. Applicants working in fields outside of disciplines represented in the College (including, but not limited to, anthropology, data science, information science, law, public health) are welcome. Successful applicants must be tenurable in CLAHS. We seek applicants who work broadly within two specific areas:

Cyber Technology and Policy focuses on policy related to innovative technologies (broadly construed) of large scale that have high potential to radically alter foundational aspects of national, international and global society. Areas of particular interest include:

- ? Complex decision-making at the nexus of cyber technology policy and large-scale systems and structures (for example, economic, governance, climate and natural resources, schools, families)
- ? Ethics, equity, parity, and social justice related to cyber technology (e.g., artificial intelligence, machine learning, analytics, algorithms), including impacts of technology on humanity and the natural world
- ? Regulatory challenges of emergent cyber technologies
- ? Intersection of cyber technology policies and non-human systems (e.g., energy, environment)
- ? Educational and policy implications for providing training and opportunities for cyber technology professionals
- ? The transformation of work and occupations related to emergent cyber technologies

The successful Cyber Technology and Policy applicant will be expected to teach within the newly approved Science, Technology, and Engineering in Policy (STEP) Graduate Certificate Program.

Data, Equity, and Diversity brings the analytical framework of critical data studies as well as perspectives from race, ethnic, and gender studies to the examination of artificial intelligence, predictive analytics, and human computer interactions as social problems, expressions of identity, regulatory mechanisms, and emancipatory acts. This position affirms that research, teaching, and public engagement occur most productively in a transdisciplinary framework, as data analysis and interpretation must involve social science methods, ethical concerns, and humanistic orientations. Areas of particular interest include:

- ? Algorithmic decision making, predictive analytics, and social justice
- ? Social media, regulatory policies, and individual identity
- ? Systemic inequality, institutional racism, and data collection
- ? Surveillance, tech platforms, and structured inequality

Required Qualifications

- ? Doctoral degree or equivalent in related field, completed prior to position start date
- ? Active program of research and scholarship
- ? Evidence of effective teaching ability
- ? Demonstrated ability to contribute to transdisciplinary teaching, research and scholarship

Preferred Qualifications

- ? Accomplishments in public outreach and engagement related to the candidate's area of research and scholarship

Appointment Type

Review Date

Screening of applications will begin April 7, 2021 and continue until the positions are filled.

Additional Information

All interviews will be conducted via Zoom. Direct inquiries about the positions to the chair of the search committee: Karen A. Roberto (kroberto@vt.edu).

Applications will be accepted online (<https://careers.pageuppeople.com/968/cw/en-us/job/515370/open-rank-faculty-cyber-technology-and-policy>). Applicants should submit a letter (3-page maximum) explaining how their research, teaching, and public engagement would contribute to advancing the college and university's focus on transdisciplinary initiatives. Applicants should also submit a CV along with the names and contact information for three references. Please do not send any other materials at this time. After an initial review, applicants may be asked for additional materials, including research statement, writing sample, statement of teaching philosophy, diversity statement, and recommendation letter.

The successful Candidate will be required to have a criminal conviction check.

As part of the Rising Scholars Postdoctoral Fellowship Program, sponsored by the Graduate School of Arts and Sciences and the Mellon Foundation, the UVA Department of Women, Gender and Sexuality invites applications for a 2-year postdoctoral fellowship in Black, Indigenous and/or global/transnational approaches to gender and sexuality. We seek a rising scholar (candidates who received, or will receive, their Ph.D. degree between August 24, 2019 and August 24, 2021) whose research and teaching are grounded in Black trans/feminist/queer studies, Two-spirit/ Native/Indigenous trans/feminist/queer studies, and/or transnational gender and sexuality studies. Scholars whose research engages with Disability Studies are especially welcome to apply.

The Department of Women, Gender and Sexuality offers a variety of professional development opportunities and formal and informal mentoring within a warm and supportive climate unified around the collective project of decentering whiteness and advancing intersectional analyses in our research and teaching. Fellows will participate in course development training and mentoring during their first semester and teach one independent course in each of the following three semesters. The postdoctoral fellow would join the Department at a unique moment in our history: two new faculty whose work focuses on Black Feminist theory/Black queer studies and global/transnational research and teaching will also be joining the department, adding to a growing roster of global/transnational and Black studies experts. We see this postdoctoral fellowship as an opportunity to further build our intellectual community with strengths in Black/indigenous studies and transnational work, while creating research opportunities for a promising scholar. The fellowship reflects the College of Arts and Sciences' mission to further our understanding of the legacies of racial inequity and to enhance the career trajectory of an underrepresented scholar whose work focuses on questions related to the Black, Indigenous, global and/or comparative dimensions of Race, Justice and Equity.

Possible specializations include but are not limited to:

- Black trans/feminist/queer studies
- Two-spirit/ Indigenous trans/feminist/queer studies
- The Global South (esp. South-South Relations)
- Diaspora/Migration
- Non-Western forms of knowledge
- Disability Studies

Stanford Graduate School of Business

Rank: Post-doctoral Fellow

The Golub Capital Social Impact Lab has a 2-year post-doctoral fellow opening, working with Professor Susan Athey and other faculty affiliates of the lab. The lab's research is focused on improving the effectiveness of social impact organizations, particularly in the domains of education, charitable giving, health, government services, worker training, and financial health.

The ideal candidate will have conducted behavioral/experimental research and have experience working with external partners on field experiments. Excellent candidates with other specialities or backgrounds related to the lab's work will also be considered.

The position involves:

- developing and working on research projects using advanced experimental design and other causal inference techniques
- serving as project manager and collaborator on research projects, as a coauthor on some projects and as an assisting researcher on others interfacing with industry partners and
- supervising research assistants at various levels of seniority.

The ideal candidate is either preparing for an academic position in a field closely aligned with the lab, for which collaboration on the lab's projects would serve as strong preparation, or an industry position, i.e., in a technology company. This position does not incorporate independent research by the fellow outside the scope of the lab; any independent research would be conducted outside of regular work hours and should be managed so as to not present a conflict of commitment to the lab.

Depending on the fellow's skills and interests, the fellowship will allow the opportunity to: create novel experimental designs, including adaptive and dynamic treatment regimes, bandits, and contextual bandits; run experiments in collaboration with technology firms or on tech firm platforms; use and develop cutting edge methodology for working with large data sets, using university infrastructure or the infrastructure of tech firms, including tools of machine learning and causal inference; develop coding expertise for publicly released software; and/or develop expertise in managing large-scale empirical projects with large code bases written by teams.

The postdoc will be responsible for:

- Training and managing student research assistants; including ensuring continuity over projects on which multiple research assistants might work on across time.
- Planning, organizing, and overseeing research projects; including identifying promising research areas, ensuring good progress on projects, and securing all necessary data, research assistants and software to conduct research.
- Contributing to website content and course material relating to research projects; including writing about work to engage advanced student, funder and partner audiences.
- Managing relationships with external (non-academic) partners such as tech companies and nonprofits; including coordinating meetings and workflow with external partners and selecting external partners and projects to collaborate on.
- Contributing to funding applications and IRB approvals.

The strongest applicants will have a variety of skills and preparation, and a strong desire to rapidly obtain any skills and experience that are lacking. Desirable skills and experience include:

- PhD (completed by start of employment) in economics, business or management disciplines, statistics, decision sciences, political science, psychology, marketing, experimental philosophy, or any other relevant scientific discipline or related fields, with deep expertise relevant to at least some of the problems and methods described above
- Training in behavioral science research methods
- Excellent coding skills and experience with statistical software in multiple languages (R, Python, C++ are used regularly)
- Experience with econometrics, modeling and/or programming
- Experience with large datasets
- Experience with designing, implementing and analyzing experiments
- Experience using cloud computing services such as AWS, Azure, etc.
- Experience with Github or similar tools for collaboration and version control
- Experience in interdisciplinary research, working in collaborative teams and managing research assistants
- Excellent organizational skills, including the ability to set goals, track progress, and prioritize to meet deadlines
- Strong communication skills

To apply, please send email with CV and cover letter, 3 references and job market/other paper to susan.athey.lab@gmail.com. Initial deadline 4/30/21. Applications will be accepted on a rolling basis.

In your cover letter, answer the following questions:

- When would you be able to start as a postdoc? How long would you be interested in staying as a postdoc in the lab?
- In what ways would being the role help you accomplish your career goals? The position does not involve independent research outside the scope of the lab. Instead, you would work on collaborative projects related to the lab's missions and partners. Please include how this arrangement fits into your career goals.

- Have you used GitHub? If so, what have you used it for?
- Have you supervised research assistants or worked collaboratively in teams with multiple students?
- Are you legally eligible to work in the U.S.?
- Will you now or in the future require visa sponsorship for employment at Stanford?

University of Toronto at Scarborough

Rank: Indigenous Politics - Assistant Professor

The University of Toronto Scarborough invites applications for a tenure stream appointment in the field of Indigenous Politics. The primary appointment will be in the Department of Political Science (51%), with a cross appointment to the Centre for Critical Development Studies (49%). The appointment will be at the rank of Assistant Professor and will commence on September 1, 2021, or shortly thereafter.

Applicants must have earned a Ph.D. degree in Political Science, Development Studies, or a related discipline, by the time of appointment or shortly thereafter. They must also have a demonstrated record of excellence of innovative and independent research and publications centered on Indigenous politics and/or governance, as well as excellence in teaching. We seek candidates whose research and teaching interests complement and broaden our existing departmental and centre strengths.

This position is part of the University of Toronto's response to the calls to action in Canada's Truth and Reconciliation Commission (TRC) Report. Preference will be given to candidates who self-identify as Indigenous. Recognizing that there are a variety of terms that potential candidates may use to self-identify, the University uses the term "Indigenous" in this search, which forms part of the U of T Response to Canada's Truth and Reconciliation Commission, to encompass the people of Turtle Island, including those who identify as First Nations, Métis, Inuk (Inuit), Alaska Native, Native American, and Native Hawaiian people.

We are seeking a scholar who is able to integrate Indigenous knowledge/Indigenous ways of knowing, as well as research and teaching methods, into the classroom.

The successful candidate will be expected to pursue innovative and independent research at the highest international level and to establish an outstanding, competitive, and externally funded research program.

Candidates must also have a strong record of ethical engagement and collaboration with Indigenous communities and organizations. Demonstrated experience with land-based pedagogy and/or engagement with community leaders and Elders of at least one Indigenous community in Canada is an asset.

The successful candidate also will have a record of research excellence. Such excellence can be demonstrated in the form of publications in leading field-relevant, academic journals, presentations at significant conferences, awards and accolades, commission reports, government briefs, or forthcoming impactful publications, and strong endorsements by referees of high standing, as well as a letter of support commenting on Indigenous community engagement.

The successful candidate will demonstrate excellence in teaching at the graduate and undergraduate levels, and provide clear evidence of this as part of the application. Teaching excellence may be demonstrated through a teaching dossier submitted as part of the application, as well as strong letters of reference. For a complete list of required materials, please refer to the application package paragraph below.

The position will include a graduate appointment in the Department of Political Science on the St. George campus of the University of Toronto. Candidates should also explain in their one-page statement how they can contribute to the development of the tri-campus graduate program (<https://politics.utoronto.ca>).

Salary will be commensurate with qualifications and experience.

The University of Toronto Scarborough is a research-intensive institution with an interdisciplinary commitment, a multicultural student body, and a modern campus. The University offers the opportunity to conduct research, teach, and live in one of the most diverse cities in the world. The Greater Toronto Area offers amazing cultural and demographic diversity, including a vibrant Indigenous community. UTSC has a strong commitment to increasing the presence of Indigenous peoples and knowledge on campus, with steering committees examining campus wide responses to the calls to action in the TRC in terms of staff, faculty, research, teaching, and space. Ongoing initiatives include Indigenous faculty and staff recruitment, Indigenous curriculum retreats, and grants for Indigenous research ethics education and community-based teaching development. Finally, the campus is building a new, free-standing meeting place for Indigenous students, staff, faculty, and elders (provisionally named Indigenous House).

All qualified applicants must apply by clicking <https://jobs.utoronto.ca/job/Toronto-Assistant-Professor-Indigenous-Politics-ON/545863917/>.

A complete application must include: a cover letter, a curriculum vitae, an article-length (8000-10,000) writing sample, a statement up to five pages in length outlining current and future research interests, and a teaching dossier that consists of a selection of applicable materials, including a statement of teaching philosophy that is linked to evidence of excellent teaching practice; a one-page statement explaining how they can contribute to the delivery of the core curricula in Political Science (<http://www.utsc.utoronto.ca/polisci/>) and Critical Development Studies (<http://www.utsc.utoronto.ca/ccds/>); sample teaching materials that reflect Indigenous ways of knowing; excellent course evaluations; and/or demonstrated superior performance in other teaching-related activities, including performance as a teaching assistant or course instructor at the university level or in community-based teaching; experience in leading successful workshops and seminars; student letters; and/or other examples of pedagogical leadership.

Candidates must also arrange to have at least three letters of reference (on letterhead, signed and scanned) addressed to the department Chair, Professor Margaret Kohn. At least one of these letters should comment on the candidate's Indigenous community engagement. Letters should be sent directly by the referees by email to sueann.hicks@utoronto.ca by the closing date. PLEASE NOTE: This search is not using the University's automatic solicitation and collection functionality for reference letters.

Submission guidelines can be found at: <http://uoft.me/how-to-apply>.

If you have any questions about this position, please contact [insert name of contact in unit] at [insert email address].

All applications materials, including reference letters, must be submitted online by the closing date of April 22, 2021.

New York University

Rank: Postdoctoral Associate (CTL)

Subfield(s): Methodology, Public Policy, Other

Specializations: Quantitative Methods, Research Methods, Economic Policy

Postdoctoral Associate To Work on Causal Inference Modeling for the Cash Transfer Lab (CTL) at New York University.

The postdoctoral associate will be a part of the Cash Transfer Lab at NYU. The lab's initial focus will be on a cash transfer that has been made annually to every Alaskan resident since 1982, the Permanent Fund Dividend. The amount of the transfer varies year-to-year and is arguably exogenous. The generic way to conceptualize this is as a continually treated population whose dosage varies independently from year to year. More generally, the lab seeks to better understand how to rigorously estimate causal effects of UBI programs worldwide.

CTL will adopt a hub and spoke model. The hub is an intellectual infrastructure that can support and lower the barrier to entry for research on substantive areas (the spokes). The primary job of the postdoctoral associate is to build this causal inference modeling infrastructure.

You will report to Dr. Sarah K. Cowan, CTL Founder and Executive Director and Assistant Professor of Sociology at NYU and Dr. Jennifer Hill, Professor of Applied Statistics and Data Science at NYU.

Responsibilities may include, but are not limited to:

Writing a peer reviewed journal article on approaches to this case

Developing new approaches to identifying causal effects

Writing code/packages to implement developed approaches

Advising applied research teams on their approaches

This position will begin as early as May 15, 2021. It will be remote at least until September 1, 2021. After that point, we will be flexible with regard to whether the position is remote, in-person or hybrid based on the state of the pandemic as well as individual needs.

Qualifications:

A Ph.D. in any one of the following fields: Statistics, Applied Statistics, Biostatistics, Economics, Political Science, Sociology, Demography, Public Health or a closely related discipline. Ph.D. must be completed by September 2021.

Application Instructions

Please visit <https://apply.interfolio.com/85237> to apply. To apply for this position, please submit a CV, two writing samples that are either sole-authored or you took the lead on analysis and associated code. Please also provide the names and contact information for three references to whom we will reach out for finalists. We are not asking for a cover letter or research statement. Finalists will also be given a short assignment and be invited to interview. Review of applications will begin on March 29th.

University of Virginia

Rank: Postdoctoral Fellow in Race, Ethnicity, and Politics

Rising Scholar Postdoctoral Fellowship, Department of Politics
Race, Ethnicity, and Politics

Review of applications will begin April 12, 2021.

In consort with the Rising Scholars Postdoctoral Fellowship Program, sponsored by the Graduate School of Arts and Sciences and the Mellon Foundation, the UVA Department of Politics hopes to provide a departmental home to a Postdoctoral Fellow in Race, Ethnicity, and Politics. We seek a rising scholar: i.e., candidates who received (or will receive) their Ph.D. degree between August 24, 2019 and August 24, 2021. We are open with respect to topic and subfield within political science or public policy. We encourage applications from a broad range of perspectives and methodologies.

We see this 2-year postdoctoral fellowship as part of the College of Arts and Sciences' mission to further our understanding of the legacies of racial inequity and to enhance the career trajectory of an underrepresented scholar whose work focuses on questions related to the national, global and/or comparative dimensions of Race, Justice, and Equity. The Department of Politics offers a variety of professional development opportunities and formal and informal mentoring withing a warm and supportive climate. Fellows will participate in course development and mentoring in their first semester and teach one independent course in each of the following three semesters. ## University of Virginia

Rank: Postdoctoral Fellow in Race, Ethnicity, and Politics

Rising Scholar Postdoctoral Fellowship, Department of Politics
Race, Ethnicity, and Politics

Review of applications will begin April 12, 2021.

In consort with the Rising Scholars Postdoctoral Fellowship Program, sponsored by the Graduate School of Arts and Sciences and the Mellon Foundation, the UVA Department of Politics hopes to provide a departmental home to a Postdoctoral Fellow in Race, Ethnicity, and Politics. We seek a rising scholar: i.e., candidates who received (or will receive) their Ph.D. degree between August 24, 2019 and August 24, 2021. We are open with respect to topic and subfield within political science or public policy. We encourage applications from a broad range of perspectives and methodologies.

We see this 2-year postdoctoral fellowship as part of the College of Arts and Sciences' mission to further our understanding of the legacies of racial inequity and to enhance the career trajectory of an underrepresented scholar whose work focuses on questions related to the national, global and/or comparative dimensions of Race, Justice, and Equity. The Department of Politics offers a variety of professional development opportunities and formal and informal mentoring withing a warm and supportive climate. Fellows will participate in course development and mentoring in their first semester and teach one independent course in each of the following three semesters. The Rising Scholar Fellow in Politics will be a part of a cohort of scholars similarly situated in other departments across the college, providing both a supportive environment within the department, and opportunities for interdisciplinary collaboration and support across departments throughout the college.

Rank: Postdoctoral Research Scholar

The Department of Sociology at Columbia University invites applications for a Postdoctoral Research Scholar (PRS). The PRS will be a member of the Square One Project (SQ1) in the Justice Lab and will support the work of the Racial Justice and Abolition Democracy Project. The PRS will conduct research related to the Square One sites, involving a mix of quantitative data analysis of criminal justice administrative records and qualitative field observation, in support of the local projects.

The PRS will assist in the development of research projects and the preparation of research reports to be shared with local partners throughout the course of the appointment. The research component will contribute to case studies to be included in the Racial Justice and Abolition Democracy curriculum project.

Summary of Responsibilities:

? Developing and conducting research related to the Square One sites, involving a mix of quantitative data analysis of criminal justice administrative records and qualitative field observation, in support of the local projects, working closely with PIs, the project Advisory Board, and other project staff

? Assisting in the preparation of research reports

? Supervising student research assistants working on Square One research projects

? Working with PIs, project Advisory Board, and other project staff to develop and test courses, clinics, and experiential learning opportunities at Columbia

The Postdoctoral Research Scholar must have a Ph.D. in criminal justice policy, sociology, or other social sciences at the time of appointment and the degree must have been received no more than three years before that time. The PRS will have a background in sociology, social work, public health, political science, public policy and/or economics, strong quantitative and qualitative research skills, and a demonstrated commitment to social and racial justice.

This appointment is a full-time position for a term of one year, renewable for up to two additional years, contingent on satisfactory performance and funding.

Minimum Degree Required

PhD

Minimum Qualifications

A specialization and background in sociology, social work, public health, political science, public policy and/or economics, strong quantitative and qualitative research skills, and a demonstrated commitment to social and racial justice.

Additional Information

About the Racial Justice and Abolition Democracy Project:

The project is a multidisciplinary and multi-institutional effort spanning the humanities, the arts, the social sciences, and public policy and law, including not only Columbia University but also collaborators in other academic settings, at justice-in-arts institutions, and within the broader community of activists and community leaders. In collaboration with its partner institutions, this project will develop a prototype for a national upper-division action-oriented multi-disciplinary curricular program in the humanities, arts, social sciences, public policy, and law, on “Racial Justice and Abolition Democracy.” The curriculum will be designed, developed, and tested collaboratively with community and higher-educational partners and a dedicated, diverse team of scholars at Columbia University. We aim to infuse the curriculum with the narrative-changing work of the Columbia Justice Lab’s Square One Project and with the practice-oriented justice engagement and abolition democracy work being done at the Initiative for a Just Society. The Justice Lab is a research and justice reform collaboration between the Department of Sociology and the School of Social Work at Columbia; it hosts the Square One Project, a narrative change and policy development effort focused on reimagining the foundations of justice in America. The Initiative for a Just Society is a practice and research collaboration between the Law School and Arts & Sciences at Columbia that integrates social justice litigation and policy efforts within critical theoretic frameworks; it is a project of the Columbia Center for Contemporary Critical Thought.

The Racial Justice and Abolition Democracy curriculum will be available for adoption, adaptation, and use across the nation in universities and colleges, in prisons, and in community settings. The curriculum will include a cluster of academic and clinical courses and experiential learning opportunities, with full syllabi and teaching materials, including online teaching resources (videos, lectures, lesson plans) and several MOOCs (“massive open online courses”), all of which will have been developed, designed, and tested collaboratively at partner organizations and institutions. Working with a large network of existing partners at the Square One Project and the Initiative for a Just Society, the project will design and provide teaching material that will be suitable for advanced undergraduates or for a one-year master’s degree on “Racial Justice and Abolition Democracy” that spans the humanities, arts, social sciences, policy, and law.

Special Instructions

All applications must be made through Columbia University’s Recruitment of Academic Personnel System (RAPS). Please upload the following required materials: cover letter, C.V., a list of references for two letters of recommendation.

Before uploading documents, applicants first will be asked to input a name and valid email address for each reference provider. The application to this position requires two reference letters. The applicant may enable the RAPS system to generate an automatic email to the reference provider, politely requesting a letter of reference and offering a secure link to the RAPS website where a letter can be uploaded quickly and easily. Wherever possible, letters should be uploaded in the online system.

After completing the “Provide References” screens, the applicant will come to the “Attach Documents” screen and be asked to upload into RAPS the required application materials listed above.

East-West Center

Rank: Early Career Fellow (2115)

Specializations: South Asia, Southeast Asia, China

The East-West Center promotes better relations and understanding among the people and nations of the United States, Asia, and the Pacific through cooperative study, research, and dialogue. Established by the U.S. Congress in 1960, the Center serves as a resource for information and analysis on critical issues of common concern, bringing people together to exchange views, build expertise, and develop policy options.

The Center's 21-acre Honolulu campus, adjacent to the University of Hawai'i at Manoa, is located midway between Asia and the U.S. mainland and features research, residential, and international conference facilities. The Center's Washington, D.C., office focuses on preparing the United States for an era of growing Asia Pacific prominence.

Applications are being accepted for three Early Career Fellows (ECF). The ECF program mentors outstanding individuals with the intellectual curiosity and multidisciplinary research skills needed to explore the rapid and transformative changes occurring in agriculture, urbanization, food security, water, labor and migration, and climate across the Indo-Asia-Pacific region. Fellows will be proficient in the digital world promoting collaborative research across the region using modern information and communication technologies. Fellows will work constructively with colleagues from across the region to advance methodologies for finding, marketing, and implementing new solutions in the language and methods of biophysical and social sciences. The ECF program offers the Fellow an opportunity to join a community of collaborators to create imaginative, transdisciplinary projects in pursuit of insights into the complex systems that matter most for science and society in the Indo-Asia-Pacific region. There is particular interest in individuals with expertise in 1) Insular Southeast Asia, 2) Mainland Southeast Asia, and 3) South Asia.

The positions are two-year limited appointments and will include the following responsibilities:

- Engage deeply in the Indo-Asia-Pacific region to develop a regional perspective
- Design and conduct collaborative research with scholars across disciplines on issues of emerging importance in the Indo-Asia-Pacific region which contribute to the management and resolution of critical political, economic, agriculture, urbanization, food security, water, labor and migration, and/or climate issues in the region
- Contribute to scholarly material for publication such as research papers, articles, reports, and monographs
- Learn about a wide range of foundations and grant-giving institutions to enhance grant writing skills
- Apply relevant research policy through stakeholder engagement at various steps of the research cycle and through a variety of publication types and other communication modes (workshops, town halls, and social media)
- Participate in the planning and organizing of seminars, workshops, and conferences for intercultural exchange of knowledge, experience, and research results
- Develop proposals for external funding for project activities
- Participate with colleagues and professionals from other institutions in the development of collaborative activities held at the Center and elsewhere. Carryout activities designed to increase substantive interaction of communicators, policymakers, and researchers concerned with solving challenging and complex problems in the Indo-Asia-Pacific region

REQUIRED QUALIFICATIONS:

Candidates must have a Ph.D. or equivalent in a field such as Geography, Political Science, Economics, Urban and Regional Planning, Natural Resources and Environmental Management, Demography, Sociology, Information Technology or a related field from an accredited college or university. Seeking individuals who are starting a career or changing career paths toward scholarly research with demonstrated ability to work collaboratively and effectively as part of a transdisciplinary team in cooperative, cross-cultural, transdisciplinary endeavors. Candidates must be receptive to mentoring in pursuing career objectives and should show a record of research achievement commensurate with their time in their field of study with capacity in analytical and policy-relevant research. Good communication skills in the English language demonstrating the ability to communicate results and recommendations in a clear and concise manner to academic as well as informed policy, public, and private-sector audiences. Candidates will have research and experience in the Indo-Asia-Pacific region.

PREFERRED QUALIFICATIONS:

Demonstrated record of peer-reviewed research, and experience in the Indo-Asia-Pacific region. Ability to speak a regional language; capacity to bridge educational, research, professional training, and business expertise to resolve political, social, economic, and environmental issues, realizing that success normally requires multiple sectors to work constructively together.

COMPENSATION: Salary range $73,514 to $80,686 per year (depending on qualifications), which includes a cost-of-living allowance (COLA) currently at 10.28% (subject to change) and an attractive benefits package.

OTHER INFORMATION: This position is based in Honolulu, Hawaii. Work will be conducted primarily remotely while COVID restrictions are in place, but successful candidates are required to reside in Hawaii throughout their appointment. Employees are expected to be onsite at our Honolulu offices once it is deemed safe to do so.

HOW TO APPLY: Submit an application at www.eastwestcenter.org/employment. Application should include a resume and a cover letter with the position title and a statement addressing how the objectives of the Early Career Fellows Program correspond with the applicant's career development. Also include names and contact information of three professional references. Screening and assessment will be based on materials submitted. ## Pew Research Center

Rank: Research Associate, Race & Ethnicity (1-year term)

Overview

Pew Research Center is a nonpartisan fact tank that informs the public about the issues, attitudes and trends shaping America and the world. It conducts public opinion polling, demographic research, media content analysis and other empirical social science research in the areas of race and ethnicity; U.S. politics and policy views; media and journalism; internet and technology; science and society; religion and public life; global attitudes and U.S. social and demographic trends. Pew Research Center does not take policy positions. It is a subsidiary of The Pew Charitable Trusts. The Center's work is carried out by a staff of about 170.

Position Summary

The Center is seeking a Research Associate with experience in designing, managing and executing focus groups and/or other qualitative methods in studying the experiences of Asian Americans and other racial and ethnic groups in the United States. The Research Associate will serve as the research and project manager for a large-scale qualitative research project involving a series of focus groups exploring the immigration experience, economic mobility, and identity of Asian Americans to be fielded this summer 2021. The position will contribute to identifying key research questions, designing appropriate research strategies, conducting qualitative analysis, preparing findings of that analysis for consumption by the media and general public, and reviewing pertinent literature. The Research Associate is also expected to manage key project stakeholders, including a project advisory group, coordinate the coding and analysis of focus group transcripts/videos, and help with the writing of reports.

This position reports to the Associate Director of Race and Ethnicity research.

This is a term-limited position expected to extend 12 months.

Responsibilities

*(60%) Oversee the development, management and execution of original focus group content on Asian Americans. The Research Associate will be involved in all aspects of the focus group research process, including designing and drafting the focus group moderator guide, managing relationships with the focus group vendor(s), work with the vendor(s) to ensure participant recruitment is happening as planned, develop the moderator training plan together with the vendor(s), coordinate meetings with external project advisors, observe the focus groups, develop a plan for coding of focus group transcripts, coordinate the coding and analysis of focus group content with other team members. The Research Associate works to ensure various forms of data consistently meet Pew Research Center quality standards. Experience with quantitative research methods and secondary data analysis at the national, state and other levels is desirable, but not required.

*(40%) Write, review, and prepare materials for reports and presentations, including preparation of memos, tables and graphs based on findings; manage the number checking process for reports and commentaries. Consistently exercise sound editorial judgement -- in line with the Center's style and voice -- when reporting findings.

Education/Training/Experience

*BA required, advanced degree preferred

*5-9 years of research experience, with at least 3-5 years of specialized research and analysis experience expected.

*Subject matter expertise related to Asian Americans and/or U.S. immigrants and other racial and ethnic groups.

*Proven ability to independently manage large scale qualitative research projects, particularly of focus groups.

*Proven ability to understand research involving qualitative data is crucial, including the use of computer assisted qualitative data management software such as NVivo, ATLAS.ti or other program.

Qualifications

*Strong qualitative research skills, including an ability to organize and analyze large amounts of qualitative data.

- *Experience with conducting focus groups.
- *Strong verbal and written communications skills
- *Ability to balance numerous projects simultaneously
- *Strong project management skills
- *Attention to detail, including extracting standards to maintain accuracy and impartiality in all work products.
- *Ability to work in a team setting

FLSA Status: Exempt

Location:

*This position will, temporarily, be fully remote and will require a functioning Internet connection. Equipment to complete the work will be mailed to candidates and will need to be returned at the end of the position. At a later date, TBD, this position may be required to return/relocate to our office in Washington, D.C.

*Although this position will work remotely, Pew Research Center can only employ candidates in the following states- California, Colorado, District of Columbia, Georgia, Idaho, Iowa, Illinois, Massachusetts, Maryland, Michigan, North Carolina, New Jersey, New York, Ohio, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, South Carolina, Virginia, Vermont.

Krea University

Specializations: Economic Policy, India, Political Economy

Who We Are:

Inclusion Economics India at Krea University (formerly EPoD India at IFMR) works in close collaboration with Yale’s Economic Growth Center and MacMillan Center. Drawing upon economics, political science, and related fields, we conduct cutting-edge research to understand how policy can promote inclusive, accountable economies and societies. Our core research focuses on gender as it relates to labor economics and broader economic empowerment; political economy and governance; and environmental economics. We also aim to build a culture of evidence and increase data literacy in the public sector, strengthening leaders' ability to identify and implement evidence-informed policies. Throughout the research life cycle, we engage closely with policy counterparts to ensure we address questions of immediate relevance, and we regularly communicate data-driven insights with policy counterparts and the general public.

The Role:

We are currently recruiting one or more Post-Doctoral Research Fellows to support our research in India. Final portfolio allocations will depend on candidates' interest, experience, and skillset; ideal candidates have experience and research in one of our core focus areas listed above. The position will provide the selected candidate(s) an opportunity to gain first-hand experience conducting policy-relevant economics research while contributing to an agreed upon project portfolio.

Responsibilities within the project portfolio include supporting research design and implementation, overseeing data collection and analysis, interacting with stakeholders, and managing research activities and staff. This position requires a self-starting candidate with proven expertise in applied economics research who can effectively navigate India's institutional landscape and appropriately represent our work to outside stakeholders. The position will provide a talented early career researcher the opportunity to work directly with top academics and begin building their own research portfolio.

Responsibilities:

- Manage and supervise technical aspects of assigned research studies in collaboration with the research team.
- Oversee field-based team to manage research study activities, including intervention implementation, and contribute to field-based scoping, survey design, survey testing, data quality monitoring, and more.
- Clean and process incoming or secondary data and conduct econometric analysis under the direction of senior researchers.
- Manage relationships with collaborating institutions, including policy counterparts and funding organizations; work with partner institutions and governments to set priorities and coordinate project administration and logistics.
- Compile, assess and synthesize research into policy briefs, white papers, memos and academic articles with guidance and oversight of Yale-affiliated research faculty.
- Provide appropriate inputs and support for administrative requirements of the project portfolio, upon request, which may include financial management, budgeting, procurement, contract set-up and compliance, grant reporting, deliverable tracking, etc.
- Contribute to our team's overall management and strategic vision by identifying new research projects and partners and applying for additional sources of funding in partnership with research team.

Basic Qualifications:

- PhD in economics, public policy, political science, statistics, econometrics or related field by mid-2021
- Advanced coursework in empirical methods, including econometrics and economics, with strong demonstrated academic performance
- Solid understanding of research design and experience with data collection and field work

- Proven analytical skills and proficiency in Stata and/or R; experience in Python a plus
- Proven ability to manage multiple tasks and propose timely solutions with minimal supervision
- Excellent attention to detail
- Capacity to maintain an organized and structured work style in a fast-paced environment
- Ability to adapt to quickly to changing environments
- Strong interpersonal skills, and willingness to interact with a wide range of individuals ranging from Research Associates to academics, donors, research institutions, etc.
- Excellent oral and written communication skills in English and Hindi
- Ability to work in a multicultural environment
- Willingness to travel frequently and spend significant time at research project sites, as needed

Preferred Qualifications:

- Ability to independently drive research projects and produce independent, high-quality original empirical research in mutually agreed upon areas
- 3 to 5 years of field research or field research management experience in international development or related field
- Experience with research grant management and project management
- Proven success in fundraising for research studies with clear policy relevance
- Demonstrated interest in public policy and South Asia

This position will be based in Delhi, India, with frequent travel throughout the country when Covid-19 restrictions are lifted. Fellowships are one-year positions with the possibility of extension upon mutual agreement.

Lehigh University

Rank: Assistant Professor of Political Science

The faculty members in the Department of Political Science at Lehigh University are seeking applications for a full-time, tenure-track faculty position at the rank of Assistant Professor, beginning in August 2021. The successful candidate will possess a doctoral degree in Political Science with a specialization in constitutional and public law. The teaching load for this position is two four-credit courses per semester. A Ph.D. in Political Science is required by the date of hire. The successful candidate will work closely with the pre-law advisor in the Career Services office. In addition, the individual hired will play an instrumental role in the department's annual Tresolini Lecture in Law series (more details are available at <https://polisci.cas.lehigh.edu/content/tresolini-lectures>).

Applicants should submit a letter of interest, curriculum vitae, research statement, and teaching statement via Academic Jobs Online (<https://academicjobsonline.org/ajo/jobs/17841>). Applicants are required to describe how they will contribute to a diverse and equitable community in their letters of interest. Applicants should arrange for three letters of recommendation to be submitted via (<https://academicjobsonline.org/ajo/jobs/17841>).

Serving approximately 85 undergraduate majors and 15 graduate students, the Department of Political Science offers a B.A. and M.A. degree as well as a Master of Public Policy. Interested applicants are invited to visit the Political Science Department website: <https://polisci.cas.lehigh.edu/>

Founded in 1865, Lehigh University has combined outstanding academic and learning opportunities with leadership in fostering innovative research. Recognized among the nation's highly ranked research universities, Lehigh offers a rigorous academic community for nearly 7,000 students. Lehigh University has some 5,000 undergraduates, 2,000 graduate students, and about 550 full-time faculty members. Lehigh University is located in Bethlehem, PA., a vibrant and historic area. Over 820,000 people live in the Lehigh Valley, which is in close proximity to New York City and Philadelphia. Lehigh University ranks in the top 50 among national universities in U.S. News & World Report ratings and is in the most competitive category in both Peterson's Guide and Barron's Profiles of American Colleges. The university is located on a scenic, 1,600-acre campus in historic Bethlehem in a region of eastern Pennsylvania (USA) known as the Lehigh Valley. About 90 minutes from New York and Philadelphia, the Lehigh Valley is an attractive place to live and work with reasonable cost of living, easy commuting, good schools, and abundant cultural activities.

The colleagues and staff in the College of Arts and Sciences at Lehigh University are committed to increasing the diversity of the college community and curriculum. Candidates who can contribute to that goal are encouraged to apply and to identify their strengths or experiences in this area. Lehigh University is an equal opportunity/affirmative action employer. Applications from women and minorities are encouraged. Lehigh offers excellent benefits including domestic partner benefits. Please see Lehigh Work/Life Balance for Faculty: <https://www.lehigh.edu/~inprv/faculty/worklifebalance.html>.

Review of applications will begin on February 1, 2021 and will continue until the position is filled. Questions about this position should be directed to the search committee chair, Dr. Terry-Ann Jones, at tej320@lehigh.edu.

University of Rhode Island

Rank: Associate or Full Professor / Department Chair

POSITION DESCRIPTION

This is a full-time, tenure-track, academic year appointment to commence in Fall 2021, with the tenure home in the Department of Africana Studies.

The College of Arts and Sciences at the University of Rhode Island seeks an associate or full professor to chair the newly created Department of Africana Studies. Its predecessor, the Africana Studies program, established in the mid-1990s, has a long history of advocacy for peoples of the African diaspora. The department is home to an interdisciplinary undergraduate major and minor devoted to the study of the histories, politics, and cultures of peoples of the African diaspora. The department includes faculty with tenure homes in History, English, Political Science, Music, Art, and Art History who maintain affiliations with Africana Studies.

URI is Rhode Island's flagship public university, serving undergraduate and graduate populations from the state, New England, the greater northeast, and beyond. Rhode Island is home to vibrant communities of the African diaspora, with significant populations of people from Cabo Verde, Liberia, and the Caribbean. New research increasingly reveals the deep and rich history of the African diaspora in Rhode Island, as a site of critical freedom struggles borne of the state's involvement in the transatlantic slave trade and subsequent nineteenth and twentieth century civil rights movements.

We are especially interested in social science scholars trained in Africana Studies, with vision for the new department's academic profile and whose work bridges various disciplines, geographies, and cultures. The successful candidate will have the opportunity to establish innovative curricula, to develop future scholars, and to participate in an energetic community. We seek candidates who have a demonstrated potential for excellence in leadership, a distinguished scholarly record, and a deep investment in community engagement and interdisciplinary collaboration.

This is a tenure-track academic appointment to commence in Fall 2021, with the tenure home in the Department of Africana Studies. For consideration at the rank of full professor with tenure, candidates for this position must meet the requirements at URI. If hired at the associate professor level, URI requires that the individual be employed by university for at least two years before being eligible for tenure. Salary is commensurate with experience. Please see Articles 15 through 20 of AAUP collective bargaining agreement for information on promotion and tenure processes at the University of Rhode Island.

REQUIRED QUALIFICATIONS:

1. Ph.D. in Africana Studies, African American Studies, Black Studies or a related discipline in the URI College of Arts and Sciences.
2. Multiple refereed publications in academic journals and presses.
3. Demonstrated potential or experience in a leadership role at the institutional level.
4. Experience as an associate or full professor. Exceptional candidates at the advanced assistant professor level will be considered.
5. Active academic record that meets URI research and teaching standards for tenure and rank of associate or full professor.
6. Demonstrated commitment to working with students from diverse backgrounds and BIPOC populations.
7. Demonstrated potential for community engagement.

All requirements are subject to possible modification to reasonably accommodate individuals with disabilities.

PREFERRED QUALIFICATIONS

1. Success as chair, program director, or other academic leadership position.
2. Successful engagement with the broader academic and non-academic community.

APPLICATION DEADLINE: This is an open until filled search. First consideration will be given to applications received by February 15, 2021. Second consideration may be given to applications received by March 1, 2021. Applications received subsequent to second consideration date (March 1, 2021) may not be given full consideration.

University of Texas at Dallas

Rank: Assistant Professor

The Public Policy and Political Economy program in the School of Economic, Political and Policy Sciences (EPPS) is seeking applications for a tenure-system assistant professor in Cyber Security and Technology Policy.

The successful candidate will have a PhD in a social science or public policy-related field. The candidate's research agenda should focus on issues of cybersecurity and technology with an international/cross-national dimension. Research topics of special interest include economic and legal aspects of the technology regulation across countries, the economics of information security, the interaction of security and privacy considerations, and the politics of developing and administering cybersecurity policies and programs. While experience in the private sector, government agency, NGO or public policy organization will be an advantage, all exceptional candidates will be considered. Ideal candidates will demonstrate their ability to contribute to existing program strengths in quantitative methods.

Applicants should upload a letter of interest; curriculum vitae; statements of teaching and research philosophy; teaching evaluations and the full contact information for at least three academic or professional references.

University of Copenhagen

Rank: PhD scholarship on “Political Representation in a Digital Age” in the Department of Political Science, University of Copenhagen

Specializations: Political Theory, Quantitative Methods, Political Communication

The Department of Political Science at the University of Copenhagen invites applications for one 3-year PhD scholarship on “Political Representation in a Digital Age”. It will be linked to the research project “Advocacy in Digital Democracy: Usage, Impact and Consequences”. The research project is funded by the European Research Council and the Department of Political Science, University of Copenhagen.

The successful candidate will start September 1, 2021 or as soon as possible thereafter.

The project

ADVODID will implement the first large-scale quantitative project designed to provide rich correlational and causal evidence on the effects of advocacy on citizens and policymakers, in both online and offline settings. It sets out to address – theoretically and empirically – the potentials and challenges for modern democracies that arise from digital advocacy tools. Its novelty lies in analyzing the use, impact and democratic consequences of digital advocacy strategies by assessing interactions of advocacy groups with both citizens and political representatives in a diverse set of eight political systems. ADVODID will collect data on the advocacy agenda and strategy use of carefully sampled advocates in these countries, and will assess agenda congruence with political and public agendas, and their dynamic development over time. Correlational analyses of different measures of advocacy success will be complemented by field experiments in cooperation with advocates in two countries, to supply causal evidence on how advocacy affects the positions and actions of policymakers and citizens. The project’s rich datasets will be used to assess and refine theories of democratic representation and the role of digital advocacy across different types of policy issues.

The PhD scholarship

The suggested project should speak to the broader theme of “Political Representation in a Digital Age” and be linked to the overall project. At the same time, there is room to design the project so that it makes an individual contribution. The PhD candidate is offered full membership of the project team. S/he will participate in team meetings of the ADVODID project, attend research events in Denmark and abroad and be involved in disseminating findings from the project to the wider public. S/he will write both single and co-authored publications and is also likely to contribute to the data collection of the wider project. In addition, the PhD candidate is expected to participate actively in the vibrant academic community and social life at the department of political science e.g. by attending seminars, lectures, and reading groups.

Are you the right candidate?

Preferred applicants must have a background in political science, social data science, sociology, psychology, economics, anthropology or a related field. They should have an interest in questions related to political representation, interest groups, public opinion and/or public policy. We are looking for a candidate with strong analytical skills and proven methodological qualifications in the collection, processing and analysis of large n data (possibly also social media data). We value candidates that demonstrate an ability to contribute to and enrich the core components of the existing research project as well as intellectual independence. The successful candidate must have strong English language skills but does not need to know Danish. In the assessment, emphasis will be put on academic track-record, experience with social science research and the project proposal.

We accept applications under the 5+3 and the 4+4 PhD program (see information below). Please note that students who are expecting to graduate this term and are awaiting the evaluation of their dissertation/master thesis may apply under the 5+3 program.

Information

Further information about the PhD study programme is available on the website of Copenhagen Graduate School of Social Sciences:

<https://samf.ku.dk/phd-skolen/english/>

<https://samf.ku.dk/phd-skolen/>

Under “Legal basis” on the website you will find information about the rules and guidelines for the PhD study programme and the Danish Ministerial Order on the PhD Programme at the Universities.

Information about the PhD study programme is also available on the PhD website of the Department of Political Science:

<https://politicalscience.ku.dk/study/phd/>

<https://polsci.ku.dk/uddannelser/phd/>

Applicants should familiarise themselves with the research strategy and the ongoing research at the Department before submitting their application. Further information can be found here:

<https://politicalscience.ku.dk/>

Applications

In order to be awarded a PhD scholarship, the applicant has to enroll as a PhD student at the Faculty of Social Sciences, cf. the rules of the Danish Ministerial order No 1039 of 27 August 2013.

The application must be submitted electronically, using the 'Apply for position' button below, and must include:

Project abstract. Please fill in the project abstract in the application form. Must not exceed 1.200 characters

Cover Letter detailing your motivation and background for applying for the specific PhD project

A shorter project description outlining ideas for research that you would be interested in pursuing during your PhD project (recommended no more than 12,000 keystrokes not including bibliography). The proposed research should examine political representation in a digital age and link to the broader project. A final PhD project plan is not necessary at this stage but can be completed during the first part of the PhD

CV including the names and contact details of two referees that can be contacted to write a reference for you in case you are shortlisted

Diploma and transcripts of records (BSc and MSc)

Preliminary time schedule

Preliminary budget

Other information for consideration, e.g. list of publications, documentation of English language qualifications (if any)

Please note that it is only possible to upload one document per attachment category. If more than one document has to be uploaded in the same category, please make sure that they are scanned and merged in one file.

Scholarship in the 5+3 or in the 4+4 PhD study programme

The 5+3 PhD study programme

In order to be eligible for a scholarship in the 5+3 PhD study programme the applicant must have completed a two year MSc degree programme, or have earned 120 ECTS credits at an equivalent academic level before starting his or her employment. Applicants should check the study programmes for more detailed descriptions of the entry requirements. PhD students are paid a salary in accordance with the agreement between the Ministry of Finance and the Danish Confederation of Professional Associations (AC). The PhD student has a work obligation of up to 840 hours over the 3 year period of time without additional pay. The work obligation includes teaching.

The 4+4 PhD study programme

Students who have completed a BSc plus 60 ECTS of an MSc degree programme would enroll as PhD students simultaneously with their enrolment in the MSc degree programme. Applicants should check the study programmes for more detailed descriptions of the entry requirements. Until an MSc degree is obtained, the grant is paid partly in the form of up to 48 state education grant portions (in Danish: SU-klip). More specifically the PhD student will be paid two grant portions per month plus salary for work (teaching, presentations etc.) which totals a workload of at least 280 hours. Payment and conditions of employment are carried out in accordance with the agreement between the Ministry of Finance and the Danish Confederation of Professional Associations (AC). Upon completion of the MSc degree the student is transferred to the salary-earning part of the PhD studies.

The Phd fellow is expected to seek funding for fieldwork as this is not included in the scholarship.

Application process

On the website of Copenhagen Graduate School of Social Sciences you will find information about the application process, and enclosures to include with your electronic application:

https://samf.ku.dk/phd-skolen/english/applicants/application/current\_advertisement/

After the expiry of the deadline for applications, the authorized recruitment manager selects applicants for assessment on the advice of the Appointments Committee. All applicants are then immediately notified whether their application has been passed for assessment by an expert assessment committee.

The following criteria apply when we shortlist candidates for assessment:

1. Research qualifications as reflected in the project proposal
2. Quality and feasibility of the project
3. Qualifications and knowledge in relevant disciplines
4. Performance (grades obtained) in graduate and post-graduate studies
5. Department of Political Science can offer adequate supervision for the research topic in question

Selected applicants are notified of the composition of the assessment committee, and each applicant has the opportunity to comment on the part of the assessment that relates to the applicant him/herself. You can read about the recruitment process here.

An Equal Opportunity Workplace

The University of Copenhagen is committed in its pursuit of academic excellence to equality of opportunity and to creating an inclusive working environment and therefore encourages all qualified candidates to apply, regardless of personal background, gender, sexual orientation, age, disability, ethnicity etc. For more on the diverse working place environment at the University and the University's participation in the HRS4R HR Excellence in Research, see <https://employment.ku.dk/working-at-ucph/eu-charter-for-researchers/>

Position Information

Essential Job Functions

The Department of Democracy and Justice Studies at the University of Wisconsin-Green Bay invites applications for a tenure-track Assistant Professor position in race and/or ethnicity and social justice. Applicants whose research and teaching interests address issues of race and/or ethnicity in the context of criminal justice, prisons, and/or carceral studies in the United States will be considered.

This position is part of a broader department effort to foreground race, ethnicity, and criminal justice in our curriculum. This position will be responsible for enhancing UW-Green Bay's mission-driven inclusive teaching efforts and creating and maintaining an educational environment that acknowledges, encourages, and celebrates those with diverse identities, beliefs, and cultural backgrounds.

This position includes the following responsibilities:

Develop and teach courses pertaining to the purpose and mission of the Unit, including American Government and Politics, Social Science Research Methods, and robust offerings of First-Year Seminars.

Develop upper-level courses based on expertise in criminal justice and race and ethnicity.

Advise students.

Perform scholarly activities consistent with rank.

Perform institutional and community service.

Contribute to the ongoing development of the department.

Contribute to department's commitment to student recruitment and retention, which includes high-impact pedagogy.

Implement inclusive instructional strategies to increase support for students from underrepresented and first-generation backgrounds.

The successful candidate will be expected to work inclusively and respectfully within a diverse campus community and practice civility in the workplace. The University welcomes applicants who are dedicated to the appreciation and promotion of inclusivity and equity as crucial components in the pursuit of organizational excellence.

In addition, the successful candidate will be expected to display a demonstrated potential for excellence in teaching and scholarship and a commitment to undergraduate education. The candidate should also possess communication and interpersonal skills sufficient to work effectively with a diverse array of students and colleagues.

Qualifications

MINIMUM QUALIFICATIONS:

Ph.D. in Criminal Justice, Diasporic Studies, Political Science, or a closely related field from an accredited institution. ABD candidates will be considered; however, a Ph.D. in Criminal Justice, Diasporic Studies, Political Science, or a closely related field from an accredited institution is a necessary condition for contract renewal. ABD candidates will be hired into a terminal appointment at the rank of Instructor with a rate determined at the time of hire. Upon degree conferral during the terminal period, the contracted appointment with the rank of Assistant Professor will be reinstated.

Conditions Of Appointment

Position is an academic year, tenure-track appointment. Applicants must be considered for tenure and promotion in six years, although tenure decisions may be at any time. Promotion from Assistant to Associate Professor is simultaneous with tenure. Excellence in teaching, sustained scholarly activity, and institutional service required for retention and promotion. Official transcripts of the highest degree achieved will be required of finalist(s). A criminal conviction investigation will be conducted on the finalist(s). In compliance with the Wisconsin Fair Employment Act, the university does not discriminate on the basis of arrest or conviction record.

All final candidates must be asked, prior to hire, whether they have been found to have engaged in, are currently under investigation for, or left employment during an active investigation in which they were accused of sexual violence or sexual harassment. When obtaining employment reference checks, these same sexual violence or sexual harassment questions must also be asked.

Salary

Competitive salary commensurate with qualifications and experience.

BENEFIT DETAILS

The UW System provides an excellent benefits package, including participation in the Wisconsin State Retirement System.

The successful candidate will be prepared to teach sections of a core course in political theory, a course in American political thought, and other electives in the candidate's area of specialization. The teaching load is three courses per semester.

We are especially interested in candidates whose teaching and research will contribute to the department's commitment to both diversity and academic excellence. We welcome candidates who demonstrate excellence in reflective multicultural and inclusive teaching practices and who display a strong commitment to collaboration and interdisciplinarity. Evidence of teaching experience, potential for teaching excellence, and the promise of being a productive scholar are critically important. By the start date of the position, candidates are expected to have a Ph.D. or be ABD in political science with a subfield specialization in political theory.

For additional information and to apply, please go to careers.bucknell.edu. The application should include a cover letter, CV, statement of teaching philosophy, statement of commitment to diversity, three letters of recommendation, graduate transcripts, sample publications or papers, course evaluations if available, and sample syllabi relevant to this position. Questions about the position should be addressed by email to Professor Scott Meinke at smeinke@bucknell.edu. Applications received by April 15, 2021 will receive full consideration.

Butler University

Rank: Assistant Professor

Specializations: Political Philosophy & Theory, Ethnic & Feminist Theory, Political Theory

The Butler University Department of Political Science invites applications for a tenure-track assistant professor with expertise in contemporary political theory. The candidate should have a strong commitment to excellent, inclusive undergraduate teaching and an active scholarly agenda. We are particularly interested in candidates whose scholarship and teaching engages critical, transnational, or global political theory beyond the conventional Western canon such as indigenous, decolonial, modernity/coloniality, Black, or Latin American political thought, and who can offer one or more courses suitable for Core Curriculum Social Justice and Diversity designation. The standard teaching load is three courses per semester. The successful candidate will teach political theory courses, will teach a required political science course; and will contribute to the Core Curriculum and to building an inclusive learning environment for an increasingly diverse student population. The new faculty member could choose to affiliate with the International Studies; Peace and Conflict Studies; Race, Gender, and Sexuality Studies; and/or Science, Technology, and Environmental Studies interdisciplinary programs.

Review of applications will begin January 11, but the position will remain open until filled. Applicants should have earned a doctorate in political science or a related field at the time of appointment before August 1, 2021. Applicants should submit the following to ptsearch@butler.edu: a cover letter that summarizes the applicant's scholarship and their teaching interests and highlights their commitment to inclusive, excellent teaching; a curriculum vitae; a publication or other writing sample; a statement of teaching philosophy; a list of courses taught; a sample syllabus; and a list of 3-5 references. Shortlisted candidates will be asked to provide additional evidence of inclusive teaching excellence including one or more additional syllabi, descriptions of course activities or assignments, and student evaluations or teaching observations; 3 letters of recommendation; and unofficial transcripts, and may provide additional publications or writing samples. Final round candidates will be asked to provide official transcripts and to consent to background checks. The successful candidate will start August 2021, subject to final budgetary approval.

The Butler Political Science Program, distinctively grounded in a firm commitment to social justice, democracy, and human rights, engages students in the study and practice of politics to promote the collective good at the local, national, and global level. The program defines politics broadly as the formal and informal ways societies govern themselves. The program offers an innovative curriculum that crosses traditional disciplinary boundaries to provide students with the knowledge and skills necessary to pursue positive social change. Political science alumni have pursued careers in electoral politics, teaching, law, government, journalism, business, and non-profit organizations, and have earned graduate and professional degrees in several fields.

Shanghai University of Finance and Economics

School of Public Economics and Administration (SPEA)
Shanghai University of Finance and Economics (SUFE)

Job Type: Full-Time

Job Summary: The School of Public Economics and Administration (SPEA) at Shanghai University of Finance and Economics (SUFE) seeks applicants for two tenure-track faculty positions at the rank of assistant or associate (non-tenured) professor. The employment starts in Fall semester of 2021. The openings are in the field of comparative politics, research methodology, and political theory. Candidates who have a research focus on issues of public policy are strongly encouraged to apply for the positions. A completed Ph.D. in Political Science is required before the employment. Applicants should demonstrate their potentials to employ rigorous research methods, either quantitative or qualitative, to answer important theoretical questions in the field. Although the working environment in SUFE is international, the ability to communicate fluently in Mandarin Chinese is highly preferred.

The position is a full-time appointment for a period of six years. A tenure evaluation will be conducted after five years of employment. The tenure-track faculty are expected to publish research on highly reputable international journals, offer high-quality teaching to undergraduate and graduate students, and contribute to the development of political science at SUFE. The rules of evaluation and promotion are standardized at the university and similar to those for tenure positions in a regular American university.

We offer a globally competitive salary based on a full-time appointment and depending on experience and knowledge. The starting salary is 380,000 RMB for entry-level appointment, pending university approval. The offer also includes a broad package of fringe benefits (240K RMB housing subsidy, medical insurance, moving expenses, startup fund, and travel grants) per university regulation.

Institution background: Shanghai University of Finance and Economics, founded in 1917, is a top-ranked research university in China. The university has recruited more than 200 faculty members with overseas Ph.D. degrees. SPEA has 20 faculty members who own overseas Ph.D. degrees. The university and the school have developed a competitive and collegial environment for junior scholars trained overseas. The university has decided to establish and develop a strong political science program in the Thirteenth Five-Year Plan. The newly established Institute of Political Science has eight members who hold a Ph.D. degree from overseas.

Application documents: Your application must contain the following documents (all in English):

1. A cover letter;
2. An extensive curriculum vitae including a publication list;
3. A statement of research interest and agenda;

4. Up to three working papers;
5. And names and contact information of three references.

The deadline for accepting applications is September 31, 2020, for this round of recruitment. We will arrange on-site interviews at SUFE or other forms of interviews such as Skype and Wechat during November and December 2020.

Contact: Please send your application and request to recruit committee at polscisufe@gmail.com.

University of Macau

Rank: Associate/Assistant Professor of Political Science (Public Administration)

Associate/Assistant Professor of Political Science
Public Administration
(Ref. No.: FSS/DGPA/PA/AAP/03/2021)

The University of Macau (UM) is the only public comprehensive university in Macao. Leveraging this unique advantage, UM aims to establish itself as a world-class university with regional characteristics. English is its working language. In recent years, UM has seen a significant development in and a rising international recognition for its teaching, research, and community service. It has implemented a unique '4-in-1' education model that integrates discipline-specific education, general education, research and internship education, and community and peer education. Combining this model with the largest residential college system in Asia, UM provides all-round education to students. In addition, it recruits outstanding scholars from around the world to create a multilingual and multicultural learning environment for students. With the development of the Guangdong-Hong Kong-Macao Greater Bay Area, and the new initiatives of the university to boost cutting-edge research and interdisciplinary programmes, UM embraces unprecedented opportunities for development, and offers bright career prospect to professionals in different areas.

The Department of Government and Public Administration of the Faculty of Social Sciences is inviting applications for academic positions at the rank of Associate/Assistant Professor in the discipline of public administration and public policy. The Department offers programmes leading to Bachelor's, Master's and PhD degrees. Faculty members actively engage in research with particular focus on comparative politics, public administration and policy, international relations, and studies of the greater China regions. More information about the Department is available at the UM website: <http://www.um.edu.mo/fss/pa/>.

Qualifications

The required area of specialization is public administration, broadly defined to include sub-areas of new/collaborative governance, public policy analysis, smart city management, E-government/governance, government-society interactions, big data and new technological innovation, governance in the Greater China region, and other subjects related to governance and policy-making of public affairs. Appointment may be at the rank of Assistant Professor or Associate Professor. Applicants must have a PhD in a relevant field and a proven record of publication in high calibre international journals and presses. Applicants should document excellence in high quality research and scholarship. They should also demonstrate strong commitment to teaching courses in new governance, public policy analysis, new technologies and innovations in governance, research methods in governance, etc. at both the graduate and undergraduate levels in English and preferably also in Chinese. The Department runs two Chinese-taught postgraduate programmes - the Master of Social Sciences in Public Administration (MPA) and the Doctoral of Public Administration (DPA).

The selected candidate is expected to assume duty in August 2021.

Remuneration

A taxable annual remuneration starting from MOP828,100 (approximately USD102,230) will be commensurate with the successful applicants' academic qualification and relevant professional experience.

The current local maximum income tax rate is 12% but is effectively around 5% - 7% after various discretionary exemptions. Apart from competitive remuneration, UM offers a wide range of benefits, such as medical insurance, provident fund, on campus accommodation/housing allowance and other subsidies. Further details on our package are available at: <https://career.admo.um.edu.mo/learn-more/>.

Application Procedure

Applicants should visit <https://career.admo.um.edu.mo/> for more details, and apply ONLINE. Review of applications will commence immediately and continue until the position is filled. Applicants may consider their applications not successful if they are not invited for an interview within 3 months of application.

Clemson University

Rank: Assistant / Associate Professor Public Administration

The Department of Political Science at Clemson University invites applications for two tenure-track appointments at the rank of Assistant or Associate Professor, to begin in August 2021. Successful candidates' primary research and teaching responsibilities will be in the Master of Public Administration Program. We are especially interested in hiring colleagues who can work collaboratively with existing faculty members in the department and across campus, those who prioritize excellence in research and graduate teaching, and those who firmly believe in the land grant university mission. Openness to interdisciplinary scholarship is highly desirable.

Both positions require the ability to teach effectively in a synchronous, online environment, as Clemson's MPA program is delivered entirely online. Successful candidates will contribute to and complement at least one of the MPA program's existing specialization areas in Emergency Management, Homeland Defense and Security, Non-Profit Management, Regional Sustainability, and Local Government. An ability to teach and supervise dissertations in the department's Ph.D. program in Policy Studies is highly desirable. Successful candidates will also have the opportunity to teach undergraduate courses in political science.

Consistent with Clemson University's status as an R1 research institution, excellence in scholarship is required. Successful candidates must demonstrate evidence of a promising research program and readiness to seek external funding and generate impactful publications in peer-reviewed journals.

The Department of Political Science at Clemson University offers the BA and BS in Political Science, the Master of Public Administration, and the Ph.D. in Policy Studies. At present, we have roughly 350 undergraduate majors, 130 MPA students, and 15 Ph.D. students. The department has 16 full time faculty and 3 full-time staff.

Clemson University is a land-grant institution located along the shores of Lake Hartwell in the foothills of the Blue Ridge Mountains. The area is valued by many for its wonderful outdoor recreation opportunities, great weather, low cost of living, and friendly people.

Qualifications

Professional qualifications include:

Earned doctorate at the time of start in public administration, public policy, political science or a related field such as emergency management, homeland defense and security, planning, or related degree, to be completed by August 2021

Evidence of ability to develop and teach innovative courses for master's and Ph.D. students

Evidence of a promising and innovative research agenda

Readiness to apply for external research funding

Evidence of ability to publish impactful work in peer-reviewed journals

Expertise or experience with interdisciplinary research using innovative approaches to address issues and challenges that cut across multiple areas of policy and public administration are of particular interest.

Motivation to undertake transdisciplinary research with colleagues across the College of Behavioral Social and Health Science (CBSHS) and the wider University.

Relevant professional experience is preferred but not required

Candidates seeking appointment at the rank of Associate Professor must meet the departmental requirements for rank and tenure (available upon request)

Application Instructions

Applicants should submit a letter of application, current CV, copies of graduate transcripts, a one-page research agenda statement, a one-page teaching philosophy statement, and the names and contact information of three recommenders. In the letter of application, candidates should comment on how they see themselves contributing to, diversifying, and/or complementing current areas of faculty expertise within the department and its graduate programs, especially the MPA program, and the college broadly.

Review of applications will begin March 1, 2021 and will continue until both positions are filled. To apply, upload the following to Interfolio (<https://apply.interfolio.com/83681>): a letter of application addressing the specified qualification criteria and position responsibilities, current CV, copies of graduate transcripts, a one-page teaching philosophy statement, and the names and contact information of three recommenders. Send email inquiries to: Dr. Lori Dickes (lorid@clemson.edu).

Miami University

Rank: Heanon Wilkins Faculty Fellows/Visiting Assistant Professor or Instructor

Subfield(s): Public Law, Public Policy, Public Administration

The Wilkins Fellows program is named after Professor Emeritus Heanon Wilkins, Miami University's first full-time African-American faculty member. A distinguished professor of Spanish, Portuguese, and Black World Studies, Professor Wilkins received Miami's highest honors in teaching, research, and service, and we honor him with the Wilkins Fellows program. The Wilkins Fellows program is designed to provide those with a strong interest in pursuing a career as a faculty member with dedicated mentoring and intentional preparation for a career in higher education as a faculty member. Our hope is that a significant number of Fellows will choose to apply for positions at Miami and join our ranks of exceptional and dedicated faculty.

Each academic year, we attempt to call for Fellows that align with expected areas of need in the future. The opportunities for Heanon Wilkins Fellows will vary based on the needs of the academic departments. We encourage applications from all areas with particular interest in faculty with expertise in the following areas:

African American History

Public Law or Race & Politics/Policy

Global and Intercultural Studies: International Studies; Women's, Gender and Sexuality Studies

French Second-Language Acquisition

Sociology & Social Justice

Engineering (all disciplines welcome)

Computer Science (all sub-disciplines welcome)

Farmer School of Business (all disciplines welcome)

Nursing

Physician Assistant

Public administration

The Fellowship is for one full academic year (9-month faculty appointment) with the possibility of reappointment to support longer-term research initiatives and projects. Heanon Wilkins Fellows have reduced teaching responsibilities in order to foster a vibrant research program, receive mentoring and career development support, and the opportunity to engage with highly accomplished teacher-scholar faculty colleagues and exceptionally strong students. The Fellows program is designed to prepare individuals to be highly competitive in future faculty searches, especially those we anticipate at Miami University. Thus, there is a strong potential for Fellows to be competitive for both tenure track and/or teaching/clinical professor or lecturer (TCPL) positions, although this is not guaranteed.

Minimum Qualifications:

Miami University welcomes early-career candidates who have completed (or anticipate completing) their doctorate or terminal degree not more than four years prior to the August 2021 appointment date.

This position is available to persons who are currently authorized to work in the United States on a full-time and indefinite basis. (Persons authorized to work on such a basis include US citizens, lawful permanent residents (&quot;green card&quot; holders), asylees, refugees, and temporary residents under IRCA.)

Special Instructions to Applicants:

Submit a cover letter, curriculum vitae, and a statement of proposed research (one to five pages) indicating area or discipline, statement of teaching philosophy, and sample scholarship. Letters of recommendation will be requested from the references listed in the application; the dissertation advisor should be one of those references. Inquiries about the position can be directed to Dana Cox at coxdc4@miamioh.edu.

University of Oklahoma

Subfield(s): Public Administration, Comparative Politics, Public Policy

The University of Oklahoma invites applications for a tenure-track position in public administration at the assistant professor level beginning in August 2021. We seek candidates with a broad competence in public administration and whose research and/or teaching is inclusive of countries outside of the United States. The selected candidate will contribute to our core courses in our NASPAA-accredited MPA program and be able to teach public administration courses from a comparative perspective, focusing on countries outside of the US, as part of our efforts to have more courses that expose students to the diversity of politics and governments across the world. We are open as to substantive focus, but we are especially interested in candidates with expertise in non-governmental organizations, social equity in the US and/or other countries, indigenous issues, or development administration.

This position is within the Department of Political Science, a large department with two undergraduate majors (Political Science and Public & Nonprofit Administration), multiple minors, two master degree programs (Public Administration & Political Science, with the MPA offered in Norman and Tulsa), and a doctoral program. The department is housed within the College of Arts and Sciences at the University of Oklahoma. The University of Oklahoma is the flagship research institution for the state of Oklahoma, enrolling over 30,000 students, located in Norman, OK, a vibrant college town just 20 miles south of Oklahoma City.

Applicants must hold a Ph.D. in public administration, political science, or public policy, and completed by August 2021, have the ability to contribute to the MPA core curriculum, and ability to teach public administration from a comparative perspective, focusing on countries outside of the US. Preference will be given to applicants with substantive focus in non-governmental organizations, social equity in the US and/or other countries, indigenous issues, or development administration, show evidence of a robust research agenda and potential for success in publishing in high-quality, peer-reviewed outlets, have teaching experience, especially in an online format. The teaching load for this position is two courses per semester.

Applicants should submit a curriculum vitae, cover letter, teaching statement, unofficial graduate transcript(s) (official transcript will be required for finalist), writing sample, contact information for three references. Three letters of recommendation will be required for candidates who progress past the first screening. Review of applications will begin February 18, 2021 and continue until the position is filled. Any questions can be emailed to the search committee chairs, Dr. Alisa Fryar ahicklin@ou.edu and Dr. Charles Kenney ckenney@ou.edu. Applicants must apply online at <http://apply.interfolio.com/82689>.

West Virginia University

Rank: Director of Institute for Policy Research and Public Affairs

Subfield(s): Administration, Public Policy, Public Administration

Job No. 16108

West Virginia University (WVU) seeks a visionary and enterprising leader to serve as the inaugural Director of the Institute for Policy Research and Public Affairs affiliated with Eberly College of Arts and Sciences and the John D. Rockefeller, Jr. School of Policy and Politics. This is a tenured faculty position at the rank of Professor or Associate Professor in the Eberly College. The Director will lead a new initiative to advance public policy and public affairs research and translational activities. This initiative is one of three divisions planned to be established within the Rockefeller School. The other two deal with academic programs and engaged learning and service. In addition to the duties outlined below, the Director would work closely with WVU leadership to help fully establish the Rockefeller School.

As Director, the successful applicant will support faculty and researchers across complementary disciplines to collaboratively build research capacity in public policy. They will strengthen related resources, build on expertise and research capabilities that currently exist across campus, increase externally sponsored research in social and public policy, as well as create partnerships with foundations, industry, government agencies and other universities. As part of this effort, the Director will be expected to recruit Research Fellows to work within the school. In addition to Departments affiliated with the Rockefeller School, Research Fellows may be recruited from within other WVU programs and external institutions and agencies. The Director will connect policy research to the teaching and outreach mission of the Rockefeller School and will report to the office of the Dean of the Eberly College. The Director will have a dedicated administrative assistant as well as support for graduate research students.

Qualifications include a Ph.D. or equivalent degree in Public Policy, Political Science, Public Administration, or a closely related field; a sustained record of externally funded research in the area of public policy; a record of multidisciplinary scholarship; ability to translate academic research into information for public dissemination and engagement; a record of successful administrative leadership; ability to work collaboratively in a diverse environment with a range of faculty, students, administrators, and external constituents to reach a common goal; ability to develop partnerships with foundations and industry in support of the Institute's programs; understanding of WVU's mission as a land-grant institution; ability to manage budgets and establish fiscal priorities; strong written and oral communication skills; and an established record of research and teaching that will merit appointment at, or promotion to, the rank of Professor or Associate Professor with a grant of tenure at WVU.

WVU is a comprehensive land grant university with approximately 30,000 students and is classified by the Carnegie Commission on Higher Education as a very high research (R1) Institution. The Rockefeller School of Policy and Politics currently consists of 21 tenured and tenure-track faculty and is affiliated with the Eberly College of Arts and Sciences.

To apply for this position, please visit <http://hr.research.wvu.edu> and click on the "View Jobs" link. Qualified applicants should submit a cover letter, curriculum vitae, a description of the applicant's potential to further our progress in building a diverse and inclusive academic community (which will be evaluated without regard to the applicant's personal demographics), and contact information for three references. The cover letter should address the applicant's qualifications for each aspect of the responsibilities listed above. ## Temple University

Rank: Postdoctoral Diversity Fellow in Political Science

Specializations: Race & Ethnic Politics, International Law & Organizations, Civil Rights & Liberties

The Department of Political Science at Temple University invites applications for a one-year Postdoctoral Fellowship to support the development of early career scholars from diverse backgrounds with particular attention to historically underrepresented groups on the professorial faculties of colleges and universities in the United States. This year we seek a fellow with expertise in human rights law and politics in either domestic or international contexts. The successful applicant will contribute intellectually to the department and College of Liberal Arts by conducting research while teaching one course during the year. We would welcome, but not limit our search to candidates who study race, sexual orientation, and/or religious affiliation as components of states' legal traditions both domestically and internationally. Applicants should hold or be completing a doctorate in Political Science or a related discipline.

Our department (<https://www.cla.temple.edu/political-science/>) organizes formal colloquia from outside scholars and hosts or cohosts many internal research talks with interdisciplinary centers such as Global Studies, Public Policy Lab, Master of Public Policy, Gender, Sexuality and Women's Studies (GSWS), the Center for Force and Diplomacy (CENFAD), and the Center for Humanities at Temple (CHAT).

The Postdoctoral Diversity Fellowship is a competitive program whose goal is to increase the diversity of the community of scholars devoted to academic research at Temple University. Candidates must have completed their Ph.D. by September 1, 2021. Please submit a letter of application that includes (1) proposed research plan for the fellowship, (2) a statement of teaching interests and/or philosophy, (3) a brief statement of the grounds of eligibility and progress toward completion of the dissertation, (4) curriculum vitae, and (5) three letters of recommendation by April 1, 2021 via the Interfolio link below. Letter writers should address the likelihood of completing the degree before September 1, 2021. Applications are due April 1, 2021 but review will commence immediately.

The current postdoctoral fellowship is non-renewable. The award includes a salary of $50,000, full Temple University employee benefits, a research/travel fund of $3,000, and a $2,000 moving allowance. The postdoctoral fellow will teach one course during the year of appointment and will meet regularly with other postdocs and faculty in the department and college through participation in seminars, colloquia, teaching circles, etc.

Temple University is a state-related Carnegie Research University (highest research activity) located in Philadelphia. The Department of Political Science is in the College of Liberal Arts, which is home to 38 undergraduate majors, 38 minors, 22 certificate programs, 14 doctoral programs, and 6 graduate certificates. With its vibrant and diverse array of educational programs, the College of Liberal Arts plays a tremendous role in Temple University's academic success and its mission mirrors both the historical importance of the liberal arts in society and the principles on which the University was founded. Temple University is an Affirmative Action equal opportunity employer and particularly encourages applications from women and persons of color, members of under-represented groups, persons with disabilities, and veterans. The University has pledged not to discriminate on the basis of race, color, sex, age, religion, national origin, sexual orientation, marital status, or disability.

Middle Georgia State University

Rank: Assistant Professor, American and/or comparative politics

Specializations: American Politics, Africa, Judicial Politics

JOB SUMMARY: The Department of Political Science at Middle Georgia State University (<https://www.mga.edu/political-science>) invites applications for a tenure-track appointment in political science, with a specialization in American politics or comparative politics, at the rank of assistant professor, to be primarily based on the Cochran campus. This is a 10-month position with a teaching load of 12 credit hours per semester (4-4) of undergraduate courses in political science, typically including multiple sections of the introductory American Government course, as well as more advanced undergraduate courses in political science in the candidate's area of specialization. The ability to contribute to at least one of the minors offered by the department (African and African diaspora studies, environmental policy studies, or pre-law) is desirable.

MAJOR DUTIES: Teaching responsibilities may include day and/or evening courses, partially and fully online courses, and courses taught via video conferencing; faculty are also expected to travel to teach and attend meetings at other campus locations when needed. Tenure-track faculty are expected to have an active scholarly agenda, including publication in peer-reviewed outlets; student advising and service to the department, school, university, and community are also expected for promotion and tenure. Summer teaching opportunities may also be available, contingent on student demand.

QUALIFICATIONS: Candidates should have earned a doctorate in political science, or a doctorate in related field including at least 18 semester hours of graduate coursework in political science, from a regionally-accredited institution; ABD candidates will only be considered if they will earn their doctorate by August 1, 2021. Experience as an instructor of record, demonstrated expertise in American politics or comparative politics, and/or the ability to contribute to one or more of the minors offered by the department are desirable. Candidates must have a record of teaching and potential for scholarship that warrants appointment at the rank of assistant professor.

ABOUT THE UNIVERSITY AND SCHOOL OF EDUCATION AND BEHAVIORAL SCIENCES: Middle Georgia State University is a 4-year public, doctoral level university. MGA was formed through the consolidation of Macon State College and Middle Georgia College in 2013. Serving over 8,000 students who reflect the diversity of the state, the university encompasses all five campuses of the prior two institutions, with campuses in Cochran, Dublin, Eastman, Macon, and Warner Robins. Annual tuition and fees make MGA the most affordable public university in the state of Georgia. MGA is regionally accredited by the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools Commission on Colleges.

University of Toronto

Rank: Assistant Professor American political development/ethics, society, and law

Assistant Professor American political development/ethics, society, and law

Description:

The Department of Political Science and the Ethics, Society, and Law Program, Trinity College, in the Faculty of Arts and Science at the University of Toronto invite applications for a full-time tenure stream position in the area of American political development/ethics, society and law. This will be a joint appointment between the Department of Political Science (51%) and Trinity College (49%). The appointment will be at the rank of Assistant Professor and will commence on July 1, 2021 or shortly thereafter.

We seek candidates who work at the interface between the structural foundations of American political development (such as federalism, separation of powers, and constitutional values) and core questions of ethics (such as human rights and human dignity). Applicants must have earned a PhD degree in Political Science or a related field and have a minimum of one year of postdoctoral training by the time of appointment, or shortly thereafter, with a demonstrated record of excellence in research and teaching in relevant disciplinary areas.

We seek candidates whose research and teaching interests complement and strengthen our existing departmental and program strengths. The successful candidate will undertake undergraduate and graduate teaching responsibilities on the University's downtown (St. George) campus. Applicants are encouraged to review the research and teaching profiles of current faculty members. Please visit our home pages to learn more about us (Department of Political Science <https://politics.utoronto.ca>; and Ethics, Society, and Law program <https://www.trinity.utoronto.ca/study-arts-science/ethics-society-law/>).

The successful candidate will be expected to pursue innovative and independent research at the highest international level and to establish an outstanding, competitive and externally funded research program. Candidates must provide evidence of research excellence which can be demonstrated by a record of publications in top-ranked and field relevant journals or forthcoming publications meeting high international standards, the submitted research statement, presentations at significant conferences, awards and accolades, and strong endorsements from referees of high standing.

Evidence of excellence in teaching will be provided through teaching accomplishments, the teaching dossier including a teaching statement, sample course materials, and teaching evaluations submitted as part of the application, as well as strong letters of reference.

Candidates are also expected to show evidence of a commitment to equity, diversity, inclusion, and the promotion of a respectful and collegial learning and working environment demonstrated through the application materials.

Salary will be commensurate with qualifications and experience.

All qualified candidates are invited to apply online by clicking the link below. Applicants must submit a cover letter; a current curriculum vitae; a research statement outlining current and future research interests; a recent writing sample; and a teaching dossier to include a teaching statement, sample course materials, and teaching evaluations. Equity and diversity are essential to academic excellence. We seek candidates who value diversity and whose research, teaching and service bear out our commitment to equity. Candidates are therefore also asked to submit a 1-2 page statement of their contributions to equity and diversity, which might cover (but need not be limited to): research or teaching that incorporates a focus on underrepresented communities, the development of inclusive pedagogies, or the mentoring of students from underrepresented groups. Applicants must provide the name and contact information of three references. The University of Toronto's recruiting tool will automatically solicit and collect letters of reference from each once an application is submitted. Applicants, however, remain responsible for ensuring that references submit letters (on letterhead, dated and signed) by the closing date. Submission guidelines can be found at <http://uoft.me/how-to-apply>. If you have any questions about this position, please contact Sari Sherman at chair.polisci@utoronto.ca.

All application materials, including reference letters, must be received by Monday, March 15, 2021.

All qualified candidates are encouraged to apply; however, Canadians and permanent residents will be given priority.

Diversity Statement

The University of Toronto is strongly committed to diversity within its community and especially welcomes applications from racialized persons / persons of colour, women, Indigenous / Aboriginal People of North America, persons with disabilities, LGBTQ2S+ persons, and others who may contribute to the further diversification of ideas.

As part of your application, you will be asked to complete a brief Diversity Survey. This survey is voluntary. Any information directly related to you is confidential and cannot be accessed by search committees or human resources staff. Results will be aggregated for institutional planning purposes. For more information, please see <http://uoft.me/UP>.

Accessibility Statement

The University strives to be an equitable and inclusive community, and proactively seeks to increase diversity among its community members. Our values regarding equity and diversity are linked with our unwavering commitment to excellence in the pursuit of our academic mission.

The University is committed to the principles of the Accessibility for Ontarians with Disabilities Act (AODA). As such, we strive to make our recruitment, assessment and selection processes as accessible as possible and provide accommodations as required for applicants with disabilities.

If you require any accommodations at any point during the application and hiring process, please contact uoft.careers@utoronto.ca.

Miami University

Subfield(s): Public Law, Public Policy, Public Administration

The Wilkins Fellows program is named after Professor Emeritus Heanon Wilkins, Miami University's first full-time African-American faculty member. A distinguished professor of Spanish, Portuguese, and Black World Studies, Professor Wilkins received Miami's highest honors in teaching, research, and service, and we honor him with the Wilkins Fellows program. The Wilkins Fellows program is designed to provide those with a strong interest in pursuing a career as a faculty member with dedicated mentoring and intentional preparation for a career in higher education as a faculty member. Our hope is that a significant number of Fellows will choose to apply for positions at Miami and join our ranks of exceptional and dedicated faculty.

Each academic year, we attempt to call for Fellows that align with expected areas of need in the future. The opportunities for Heanon Wilkins Fellows will vary based on the needs of the academic departments. We encourage applications from all areas with particular interest in faculty with expertise in the following areas:

- African American History
- Public Law or Race & Politics/Policy
- Global and Intercultural Studies: International Studies; Women's, Gender and Sexuality Studies
- French Second-Language Acquisition
- Sociology & Social Justice
- Engineering (all disciplines welcome)
- Computer Science (all sub-disciplines welcome)
- Farmer School of Business (all disciplines welcome)
- Nursing
- Physician Assistant
- Public administration

The Fellowship is for one full academic year (9-month faculty appointment) with the possibility of reappointment to support longer-term research initiatives and projects. Heanon Wilkins Fellows have reduced teaching responsibilities in order to foster a vibrant research program, receive mentoring and career development support, and the opportunity to engage with highly accomplished teacher-scholar faculty colleagues and exceptionally strong students. The Fellows program is designed to prepare individuals to be highly competitive in future faculty searches, especially those we anticipate at Miami University. Thus, there is a strong potential for Fellows to be competitive for both tenure track and/or teaching/clinical professor or lecturer (TCPL) positions, although this is not guaranteed.

Minimum Qualifications:

Miami University welcomes early-career candidates who have completed (or anticipate completing) their doctorate or terminal degree not more than four years prior to the August 2021 appointment date.

This position is available to persons who are currently authorized to work in the United States on a full-time and indefinite basis. (Persons authorized to work on such a basis include US citizens, lawful permanent residents (&quot;green card&quot; holders), asylees, refugees, and temporary residents under IRCA.)

Special Instructions to Applicants:

Submit a cover letter, curriculum vitae, and a statement of proposed research (one to five pages) indicating area or discipline, statement of teaching philosophy, and sample scholarship. Letters of recommendation will be requested from the references listed in the application; the dissertation advisor should be one of those references. Inquiries about the position can be directed to Dana Cox at coxdc4@miamioh.edu.

Wheaton College

Rank: Assistant Professor

The Department of Political Science at Wheaton College in Norton, Massachusetts invites applications for a tenure-track Assistant Professor position in American politics to begin Fall 2021. The ideal candidate will possess the ability to teach introductory and upper-level courses in American politics and public law, including courses focused on the American legal system, Constitutional law/interpretation, civil liberties, civil rights, judicial politics and other courses in the candidate's areas of specialization. Teaching responsibilities include introductory sections of U.S. government & politics, and research methods. We are especially interested in candidates with research and teaching specializations at the intersection of race, class, gender, and/or sexuality.

Classroom experience is highly desirable. The promise of excellence in teaching and scholarship is required. We are committed to providing our students with excellent educational and co-curricular opportunities, and our faculty has significant mentoring experience with new teachers in postdoctoral and junior faculty appointments. For example, we offer regular programming in professional development and all tenure-track faculty are entitled to a fully paid pre-tenure sabbatical and research funds to support scholarship. A Ph.D. in Political Science (with an emphasis in judicial politics) is preferred. ABDs will be considered. If the candidate does not have the Ph.D. in hand, they will be hired as an instructor until the degree is obtained. Inquiries about the faculty position or department should be directed to Gerry Huiskamp, Chair and Professor, Political Science, huiskamp_gerard@wheatoncollege.edu. Inquiries about the application process and document submission may be addressed to careers@wheatoncollege.edu.

To apply please visit our website <https://jobs.wheatoncollege.edu>. Instructions to applicants will be listed on our website, with the following materials required: letter of application describing your areas of specialty and a statement about your interest in teaching in a liberal arts environment; curriculum vitae; three letters of reference; a graduate transcript; at least one scholarly writing sample; materials on your teaching history, including sample syllabi, course evaluations, and any other materials you wish to provide. Wheaton strives to be a community supportive of diverse perspectives and identities. Candidates should describe in their cover letter how their teaching and scholarship might support the college's commitment to diversity and inclusion. Applications will be reviewed beginning February 15, 2021 and will be accepted until the position is filled. To ensure full consideration, complete applications must be received by February 15, 2021.

Lehigh University

Rank: Assistant Professor of Political Science

The faculty members in the Department of Political Science at Lehigh University are seeking applications for a full-time, tenure-track faculty position at the rank of Assistant Professor, beginning in August 2021. The successful candidate will possess a doctoral degree in Political science with a specialization in constitutional and public law. The teaching load for this position is two four-credit courses per semester. A Ph.D. in Political Science is required by the date of hire. The successful candidate will work closely with the pre-law advisor in the Career Services office. In addition, the individual hired will play an instrumental role in the department's annual Tresolini Lecture in Law series (more details are available at <https://polisci.cas.lehigh.edu/content/tresolini-lectures>).

Applicants should submit a letter of interest, curriculum vitae, research statement, and teaching statement via Academic Jobs Online (<https://academicjobsonline.org/ajo/jobs/17841>). Applicants are required to describe how they will contribute to a diverse and equitable community in their letters of interest. Applicants should arrange for three letters of recommendation to be submitted via (<https://academicjobsonline.org/ajo/jobs/17841>).

Serving approximately 85 undergraduate majors and 15 graduate students, the Department of Political Science offers a B.A. and M.A. degree as well as a Master of Public Policy. Interested applicants are invited to visit the Political Science Department website: <https://polisci.cas.lehigh.edu/>

Founded in 1865, Lehigh University has combined outstanding academic and learning opportunities with leadership in fostering innovative research. Recognized among the nation's highly ranked research universities, Lehigh offers a rigorous academic community for nearly 7,000 students. Lehigh University has some 5,000 undergraduates, 2,000 graduate students, and about 550 full-time faculty members. Lehigh University is located in Bethlehem, PA., a vibrant and historic area. Over 820,000 people live in the Lehigh Valley, which is in close proximity to New York City and Philadelphia. Lehigh University ranks in the top 50 among national universities in U.S. News & World Report ratings and is in the most competitive category in both Peterson's Guide and Barron's Profiles of American Colleges. The university is located on a scenic, 1,600-acre campus in historic Bethlehem in a region of eastern Pennsylvania (USA) known as the Lehigh Valley. About 90 minutes from New York and Philadelphia, the Lehigh Valley is an attractive place to live and work with reasonable cost of living, easy commuting, good schools, and abundant cultural activities.

The colleagues and staff in the College of Arts and Sciences at Lehigh University are committed to increasing the diversity of the college community and curriculum. Candidates who can contribute to that goal are encouraged to apply and to identify their strengths or experiences in this area. Lehigh University is an equal opportunity/affirmative action employer. ### Misericordia University

Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Public Administration, Public Policy

Specializations: American Politics, Congress, Bureaucracy & Organizational Behavior

Misericordia University invites applications for a visiting assistant professor position in the Government, Law, and National Security program (GLNS) for the 2021-22 academic year. The GLNS program, which is part of the university's Department of History and Government, seeks a specialist in American Politics. The ideal candidate will have a Ph.D. in Political Science or Public Administration and some teaching experience by the time of appointment. The candidate will have a 4/4 teaching load and be expected to teach face-to-face classes.

For the fall 2021 semester, the candidate will be expected to teach American National Government, Introduction to Public Policy and Administration, and Introduction to the American Legal System. In the spring 2022 semester, the preferred candidate will be able to teach in one or more of the following areas: homeland security, political institutions (including U.S. Congress, U.S. Presidency, and state and local government), environmental policy, and the candidate's area of specialty.

Misericordia University is committed to student, faculty, and staff diversity and values the educational benefit this brings to campus. Candidates should indicate any experience and/or leadership that contribute to this goal.

Misericordia University, founded in 1924 by the Sisters of Mercy, is located adjacent to the Pocono Mountains region of Northeastern Pennsylvania, approximately two hours from New York city and Philadelphia. The University's approach of combining a quality liberal arts education with professional preparation and service leadership has resulted in its wide regional acclaim.

Review of credentials will begin immediately and continue until April 30, 2021 or until the position is filled. For confidential consideration, applicants should submit a letter of application that contains a statement of teaching philosophy, curriculum vitae, and teaching evaluations with their online application.

Princeton University

Rank: Postdoctoral Research Associate

Requisition No: D-21-SPI-00019

The Center for the Study of Democratic Politics, a program in the School of Public and International Affairs at Princeton University, invites applications for a Postdoctoral Research Associate or more senior research position. Applications are welcome from recent PhDs and PhD students who will earn their degree soon after starting the position.

The researcher will be asked to participate in a project on "time in politics" that focuses on psychological processes related to time (such as impatience and present bias) and their causes and political consequences. The individual will work on aspects of the project that may include compilation and analysis of existing survey questions, development of original surveys, and experimental design. The project will combine a variety of different research approaches. This position will start on or about September 1, 2021.

The position is offered for one year, with the possibility of renewal, contingent upon funding and satisfactory performance. Please submit online at <https://www.princeton.edu/acad-positions/position/19761>, a cover letter, a CV, contact information for three recommendations, and a statement of research skills and experience. The statement of research skills should be a separate document not included in the cover letter. Because the project will combine a variety of different approaches, a clear statement of research skills (including descriptions of not only technical/technological expertise but also experience with particular research designs) is an important part of the application. For questions about the position, contact Prof. Markus Prior at mprior@princeton.edu.

The successful candidate will have research experience in political psychology, behavioral economics, or cognitive/social psychology, and a strong background in quantitative research and statistical methods. Experience with questionnaire development and survey design software (e.g., Qualtrics, oTree) is highly desirable, as are data management and programming skills, preferably in STATA. (STATA will be used for this project, but proficiency in equivalent programming languages is acceptable as long as the candidate is willing to learn some STATA.) The candidate should be well organized, attend to detail, and respond to deadlines in a timely fashion.

This position is subject to the University's background check policy.

We at the School of Public and International Affairs believe that it is vital to cultivate an environment that embraces and promotes diversity, equity and inclusion - fundamental to the success of our education and research mission. ## Purdue University

Rank: Visiting Assistant Professor Environmental Policy

Job Summary

Purdue's Political Science Department is seeking two visiting assistant professors for the 2021-2022 academic year in the areas of environmental politics and policy and/or international relations. Each will teach four classes per semester on campus in West Lafayette. We seek scholars prepared to teach introductory courses in public and environmental policy and/or international relations, along with one or more of the following upper level courses: Global Green Politics, International Environmental Policy, Comparative Environmental Policy, International Organizations, Foreign Policy, or Model UN. Ability to teach undergraduate quantitative methods is preferred. We seek candidates who will engage students with broad interests in and beyond political science, and who are committed to creating a diverse, equitable, and inclusive environment in the classroom and department.

Qualifications

Must have completed all requirements for the PhD in Political Science, Public Policy, Environmental Studies or a closely related field prior to August 1, 2021. Postsecondary teaching experience in political science, public policy, or closely related field is required.

The College and University

Founded in 1869, Purdue is a research-intensive, PhD-granting institution and a public land-grant university. Political Science faculty members are actively involved with several interdisciplinary programs and centers on campus, including the Advanced Methods at Purdue (AMAP) cluster, the Building Sustainable Communities initiative, the Center for the Environment, the Center for Research on Diversity and Inclusion, Peace Studies, the Human Rights Program, Asian Studies, the Purdue Systems Collaboratory, and the Purdue Policy Research Institute. In addition to the major, the Department is home to graduate and undergraduate certificates and minors in environmental politics and policy, public policy, and human rights.

Applications

Candidates should submit a cover letter, CV, at least three letters of reference, graduate transcripts, a statement on diversity, equity, and inclusiveness in the classroom, and a teaching portfolio. Application materials must be submitted electronically via <https://careers.purdue.edu/> with job id 13349.

Purdue University's Department of Political Science is committed to advancing diversity in all areas of faculty effort, including scholarship, instruction, and engagement. Candidates should address at least one of these areas in a separate Diversity and Inclusion Statement indicating their past experiences, current interests or activities, and/or future goals to promote a climate that values diversity and inclusion.

Review of applications will begin April 12th and continue until the positions are filled. Questions should be addressed to Department Head Cherie Maestas at cmaestas@purdue.edu.

The anticipated salary range is $52,000 – $55,000 for the academic year. This position is contingent on final budget approval.

A background check is required for employment in this position.

Ability to work in the US without immigration sponsorship from Purdue University.

Equal Opportunity

Purdue University is an EOE/AA employer. All individuals, including minorities, women, individuals with disabilities, and veterans are encouraged to apply.

University of Denver

Rank: Joint Post-Doctoral Fellowship with Oxfam America

Specializations: Foreign Policy, Gender Politics & Policy, Ethnic & Feminist Theory

The Sié Chéou-Kang Center for International Security and Diplomacy at the University of Denver's Josef Korbel School of International Studies and Oxfam America are seeking qualified candidates for an innovative post-doctoral scholar program. The goal of this position is to contribute to the mission of both organizations through collaborative research on policy-relevant questions related to women's leadership and feminist U.S. foreign policy. This position will serve as a bridge between Oxfam and the Sié Center and develop a collaborative project.

We will accept applications from candidates who specialize in gender-related leadership and U.S. foreign policy. We are particularly interested in applicants who have examined how to implement a feminist and intersectional foreign policy and/or the potential for establishing a Department of Women's Equality in the U.S.

The Fellowship will begin September 1, 2021. The fellowship will extend for a one-year term, with the individuals time spent at both Oxfam America (in Boston and/or Washington, DC) and the Sié Center at the University of Denver.

Essential Functions

- Conduct independent and collaborative research, with a focus on policy-relevant empirical research related to women's leadership and intersectional foreign policy.

- With organizational partners, develop a joint Oxfam- Sié Center collaborative project (workshop or other sets of activities that will increase cooperation between the organizations and promote joint interests).

- Work with Sié Center faculty and Oxfam staff on additional research projects as consistent with his/her interests and expertise.

- Participate in events and workshops hosted by Oxfam and the Sié Center.

- Present research findings to interdisciplinary academic audiences as well as Oxfam staff focused on research, policy/advocacy, and programs.

Required Qualifications

- Substantial progress toward a PhD in Political Science or other relevant disciplines.
- Applicants should complete all requirements for their PhD by June 30, 2021 and be no more than 2 years from the awarding of their degree.
- Policy-relevant research agenda related to women's leadership and intersectional foreign policy.
- Familiarity with U.S. foreign policy and gender and other efforts to move it toward greater social justice.

Application Deadline

For best consideration, please submit your application materials by April 9, 2021.

Special Instructions

Candidates must apply online through jobs.du.edu to be considered. Only applications submitted online will be accepted. Questions about the position can be directed towards Gergana Kostadinova-Law, Program Manager at the Sié Center, at Gergana.Kostadinova@du.edu.

Duke Kunshan University

Rank: Faculty Position in Public Policy

Duke Kunshan University (DKU) invites applications to a faculty position in public policy, beginning in the academic year 2022-23. We will consider applications from a wide range of areas, including but not limited to, environmental policy, health policy, regulation and governance, and comparative public policy.

DKU's diverse international faculty is committed to preparing policy-makers who can solve policy problems in diverse contexts. We do this by encouraging an explicitly comparative approach in our diverse and multinational classrooms, an approach that aims to facilitate a deep understanding of the mechanisms, values, and processes underlying public policy. We are thus building a cohort of public policy faculty across the university who will expand scholarly analysis in public policy while working alongside fellow researchers and students in the diverse DKU majors in which public policy appears—including Global Health, Environmental Science, Institutions and Governance, Political Economy, U.S. Studies, and Ethics and Leadership. We seek a colleague excited by this project to advance international and comparative research in public policy.

Successful candidates will articulate how they might contribute to DKU's Interdisciplinary Curriculum. These positions are open with regard to rank including tenured, tenure track and non-tenure track. Mid-career and senior faculty are especially encouraged to apply.

As an international intellectual community that encourages diversity, openness and creative learning, DKU welcomes outstanding faculty from around the world who contribute diverse perspectives and experiences to a global learning and research environment. DKU particularly welcomes applications from underrepresented groups and minorities.

Duke Kunshan University (DKU) is a collaborative partnership of Duke University, Wuhan University and the Municipality of Kunshan, China (<https://dukekunshan.edu.cn>). Faculty teach and conduct research in interdisciplinary clusters without traditional departmental silos. Students are active participants in a distinctive and integrated liberal arts and sciences experience.

A highly selective institution with an acceptance rate of <8%, the current student body represents over 50 countries. Students receive a DKU and a Duke degree. The undergraduate student body will number 2000 students. DKU values research excellence and a commitment to pedagogical innovation in the context of an interdisciplinary research-oriented undergraduate curriculum. The current faculty to student ratio is 7:1.

The DKU campus is 37 miles west of Shanghai in Kunshan, and is connected to Shanghai via an 18-minute high-speed train. Phase 2 of the LEED certified campus is already under construction, and will provide expanded access to superior research facilities. DKU provides internationally competitive compensation, housing allowance, child education benefits (for applicable faculty positions), and a discretionary fund or start-up package.

In order to meet Chinese visa requirements, prior to the position start date international (non-Chinese) candidates must 1) have worked full-time (work experience obtained while studying full-time is not considered as full-time work experience) for at least two years in a relevant area (including post-doctoral work) after receiving their Bachelor's degree, or 2) begin their appointment at DKU within 12 months of obtaining their Ph.D. and without having full-time work experience between graduation date on their Ph.D. diploma and position start date.

Candidates must hold a Ph.D. degree or equivalent in an appropriate field. Applicants should provide a cover letter including a clear statement of the candidate's specific interest in DKU, a curriculum vitae, a research statement, and a teaching statement, as well as three reference letters. All materials should be submitted through Academic Jobs Online: <https://academicjobsonline.org/ajo/jobs/18355>. The search committee also invites and encourages letters of nomination for potential candidates. Nominations and questions about the positions may be sent to social-science-search@dukekunshan.edu.cn using "Public Policy" as the subject line. Priority will be given to applications received by May 1, 2021; we will accept applications until the positions are filled.

University of Rhode Island

DEPARTMENT BRIEF DESCRIPTION

The University of Rhode Island invites applications for a Post-Doctoral Research Fellow in land use policy. Funded by a grant from the USDA, we seek a scholar to collaborate on research at the intersection of behavioral economics, democratic institutions, and land use policy. The project consists of designing, conducting, and analyzing a series of public opinion surveys of American voters and elected officials. The project builds on a long-term project of the Principal Investigators (PIs), Dr. Shanna Pearson-Merkowitz and Dr. Corey Lang, studying public opinion about land use decisions. There are no formal teaching responsibilities for this position but will include working with and managing undergraduate students for data collection. The selected candidate will work under the joint supervision of PIs in the Department of Environmental and Natural Resource Economics and the Department of Political Science. Scholars with a Ph.D. in economics, political science, public policy, or closely related disciplines will be considered.

Position is full-time calendar year, limited to 07/31/2022, with anticipated renewal.

The start date is negotiable but is expected to be August 2021.

APPLICATION DEADLINE

The search will remain open until the position has been filled. First consideration will be given to applications received by April 8, 2021.

Second consideration may be given to applications received by May 6, 2021. Applications received subsequent to second consideration date (May 6, 2021) may not be given full consideration.

DUTIES AND RESPONSIBILITIES

Work closely with Principal Investigators, Shanna Pearson-Merkowitz and Corey Lang, to conduct proposed research to fulfill grant objectives.

Design, program, and conduct surveys.

Lead teams of graduate and undergraduate students in conducting surveys.

Manage and analyze data.

Write manuscripts for publication.

REQUIRED QUALIFICATIONS:

- 1) PhD in Economics, Political Science, Public Policy, or related field at time of appointment.
- 2) Demonstrated research experience in behavioral economics, American politics, or non-market valuation.
- 3) Demonstrated research experience as part of a research team.
- 4) Demonstrated data management and quantitative analysis skills.
- 5) Demonstrated strong written communication skills.
- 6) Demonstrated strong oral communication skills.
- 7) Demonstrated ability to work with diverse groups/populations.

PREFERRED QUALIFICATIONS

- 1) Experience working on interdisciplinary projects.
- 2) Experience in designing, programming, conducting, or analyzing surveys.
- 3) Must be creative, able to think critically, and hard-working.

All requirements are subject to possible modification to reasonably accommodate individuals with disabilities.

New York University

Rank: Postdoctoral Associate (CTL)

Subfield(s): Methodology, Public Policy, Other

Specializations: Quantitative Methods, Research Methods, Economic Policy

Postdoctoral Associate To Work on Causal Inference Modeling for the Cash Transfer Lab (CTL) at New York University.

The postdoctoral associate will be a part of the Cash Transfer Lab at NYU. The lab's initial focus will be on a cash transfer that has been made annually to every Alaskan resident since 1982, the Permanent Fund Dividend. The amount of the transfer varies year-to-year and is arguably exogenous. The generic way to conceptualize this is as a continually treated population whose dosage varies independently from year to year. More generally, the lab seeks to better understand how to rigorously estimate causal effects of UBI programs worldwide.

CTL will adopt a hub and spoke model. The hub is an intellectual infrastructure that can support and lower the barrier to entry for research on substantive areas (the spokes). The primary job of the postdoctoral associate is to build this causal inference modeling infrastructure.

You will report to Dr. Sarah K. Cowan, CTL Founder and Executive Director and Assistant Professor of Sociology at NYU and Dr. Jennifer Hill, Professor of Applied Statistics and Data Science at NYU.

Responsibilities may include, but are not limited to:

Writing a peer reviewed journal article on approaches to this case

Developing new approaches to identifying causal effects

Writing code/packages to implement developed approaches

Advising applied research teams on their approaches

This position will begin as early as May 15, 2021. It will be remote at least until September 1, 2021. After that point, we will be flexible with regard to whether the position is remote, in-person or hybrid based on the state of the pandemic as well as individual needs.

Qualifications:

A Ph.D. in any one of the following fields: Statistics, Applied Statistics, Biostatistics, Economics, Political Science, Sociology, Demography, Public Health or a closely related discipline. Ph.D. must be completed by September 2021.

Application Instructions

Please visit <https://apply.interfolio.com/85237> to apply. To apply for this position, please submit a CV, two writing samples that are either sole-authored or you took the lead on analysis and associated code. Please also provide the names and contact information for three references to whom we will reach out for finalists. We are not asking for a cover letter or research statement. Finalists will also be given a short assignment and be invited to interview. Review of applications will begin on March 29th.

University of Virginia

Rising Scholar Postdoctoral Fellowship, Department of Politics Race, Ethnicity, and Politics

Review of applications will begin April 12, 2021.

In consort with the Rising Scholars Postdoctoral Fellowship Program, sponsored by the Graduate School of Arts and Sciences and the Mellon Foundation, the UVA Department of Politics hopes to provide a departmental home to a Postdoctoral Fellow in Race, Ethnicity, and Politics. We seek a rising scholar: i.e., candidates who received (or will receive) their Ph.D. degree between August 24, 2019 and August 24, 2021. We are open with respect to topic and subfield within political science or public policy. We encourage applications from a broad range of perspectives and methodologies.

We see this 2-year postdoctoral fellowship as part of the College of Arts and Sciences' mission to further our understanding of the legacies of racial inequity and to enhance the career trajectory of an underrepresented scholar whose work focuses on questions related to the national, global and/or comparative dimensions of Race, Justice, and Equity. The Department of Politics offers a variety of professional development opportunities and formal and informal mentoring withing a warm and supportive climate. Fellows will participate in course development and mentoring in their first semester and teach one independent course in each of the following three semesters. The Rising Scholar Fellow in Politics will be a part of a cohort of scholars similarly situated in other departments across the college, providing both a supportive environment within the department, and opportunities for interdisciplinary collaboration and support across departments throughout the college.

Possible areas of study might include:

- Race, policing, and the carceral state
- Identity and/or the political psychology of race and ethnicity
- Legacies of slavery, segregation, and political development
- Race and political mobilization or representation
- Comparative or transnational examinations of the African diaspora
- Black political thought
- Race, political institutions, and policymaking

Again, we encourage applications from any scholars focusing on the politics of race and ethnicity broadly construed. Please contact Jennifer Lawless, Department Chair, with any questions. jll9jx@virginia.edu

Candidates must be committed to upholding our Franciscan core values.

Position Requirements: Successful candidate will possess a PhD in political science, with a specialization in American politics. ABDs with confirmed completion dates will be considered. The promise of excellence in teaching and scholarship is required, as are superior communication skills. We desire candidates who bring enthusiasm, collegiality, and a commitment to liberal arts education and the university's mission.

Areas of Specialization: We seek a generalist with broad theoretical and methodological training in political science, with a primary emphasis in American politics and government. We encourage applicants from across the subfield but particularly welcome applications from candidates who have the ability to develop courses in one or more of the following areas: civil rights and/or racial and ethnic politics (especially Hispanic); public policy; bureaucracy; public administration; urban politics; civic engagement; gender and politics; social movements; refugee and migration studies; political behavior; or social and economic justice. Secondary areas of emphasis in Latin American politics or International Political Economy would also be viewed favorably, as would the ability to offer interdisciplinary courses in fields such as sociology or economics.

Alvernia has a bold approach to becoming a 21st century, modern regional university. This includes the rapid expansion of enrollment through new academic majors in engineering, health care and more. We seek professionals who are thoughtful leaders, creative and nimble in the complex environment of private higher education.

Alvernia has been recognized regionally and nationally:

- U.S. News & World Report magazine ranks Alvernia as one of the Best U.S. Colleges & Universities, most recently 94 in the best regional universities category (North)
- Collegecompare.com named Alvernia to its January 2015 list of Ten Best Colleges & Universities in Pennsylvania for its graduate degree programs
- The prestigious Carnegie Foundation selected Alvernia as one of only 23 institutions in Pennsylvania and 361 nationally to receive its 2015 Community Engagement Classification
- Alvernia was one of only four institutions in Pennsylvania and one of 43 nationally to earn the President's Higher Education Interfaith Community Service Honor Roll

All Alvernia University employees promote Franciscan ideals and adherence to the Mission of the University as demonstrated by the University Ideal Characteristics. As we are an equal opportunity employer committed to Franciscan values, all employees share responsibility for advancing diversity, equity, and inclusion in the performance of their roles while demonstrating: service orientation, respect for all, intellectual curiosity, solution focus and innovation, and mutual accountability. Alvernia University strives to be a community supportive of diverse perspectives and identities and strongly encourages applications from women and minorities.

Columbia University

Rank: Postdoctoral Research Scholar

The Department of Sociology at Columbia University invites applications for a Postdoctoral Research Scholar (PRS). The PRS will be a member of the Square One Project (SQ1) in the Justice Lab and will support the work of the Racial Justice and Abolition Democracy Project. The PRS will conduct research related to the Square One sites, involving a mix of quantitative data analysis of criminal justice administrative records and qualitative field observation, in support of the local projects.

The PRS will assist in the development of research projects and the preparation of research reports to be shared with local partners throughout the course of the appointment. The research component will contribute to case studies to be included in the Racial Justice and Abolition Democracy curriculum project.

Summary of Responsibilities:

? Developing and conducting research related to the Square One sites, involving a mix of quantitative data analysis of criminal justice administrative records and qualitative field observation, in support of the local projects, working closely with PIs, the project Advisory Board, and other project staff

? Assisting in the preparation of research reports

? Supervising student research assistants working on Square One research projects

? Working with PIs, project Advisory Board, and other project staff to develop and test courses, clinics, and experiential learning opportunities at Columbia

The Postdoctoral Research Scholar must have a Ph.D. in criminal justice policy, sociology, or other social sciences at the time of appointment and the degree must have been received no more than three years before that time. The PRS will have a background in sociology, social work, public health, political science, public policy and/or economics, strong quantitative and qualitative research skills, and a demonstrated commitment to social and racial justice.

This appointment is a full-time position for a term of one year, renewable for up to two additional years, contingent on satisfactory performance and funding.

Minimum Degree Required

Minimum Qualifications

A specialization and background in sociology, social work, public health, political science, public policy and/or economics, strong quantitative and qualitative research skills, and a demonstrated commitment to social and racial justice.

Additional Information

About the Racial Justice and Abolition Democracy Project:

The project is a multidisciplinary and multi-institutional effort spanning the humanities, the arts, the social sciences, and public policy and law, including not only Columbia University but also collaborators in other academic settings, at justice-in-arts institutions, and within the broader community of activists and community leaders. In collaboration with its partner institutions, this project will develop a prototype for a national upper-division action-oriented multi-disciplinary curricular program in the humanities, arts, social sciences, public policy, and law, on “Racial Justice and Abolition Democracy.” The curriculum will be designed, developed, and tested collaboratively with community and higher-educational partners and a dedicated, diverse team of scholars at Columbia University. We aim to infuse the curriculum with the narrative-changing work of the Columbia Justice Lab’s Square One Project and with the practice-oriented justice engagement and abolition democracy work being done at the Initiative for a Just Society. The Justice Lab is a research and justice reform collaboration between the Department of Sociology and the School of Social Work at Columbia; it hosts the Square One Project, a narrative change and policy development effort focused on reimagining the foundations of justice in America. The Initiative for a Just Society is a practice and research collaboration between the Law School and Arts & Sciences at Columbia that integrates social justice litigation and policy efforts within critical theoretic frameworks; it is a project of the Columbia Center for Contemporary Critical Thought.

The Racial Justice and Abolition Democracy curriculum will be available for adoption, adaptation, and use across the nation in universities and colleges, in prisons, and in community settings. The curriculum will include a cluster of academic and clinical courses and experiential learning opportunities, with full syllabi and teaching materials, including online teaching resources (videos, lectures, lesson plans) and several MOOCs (“massive open online courses”), all of which will have been developed, designed, and tested collaboratively at partner organizations and institutions. Working with a large network of existing partners at the Square One Project and the Initiative for a Just Society, the project will design and provide teaching material that will be suitable for advanced undergraduates or for a one-year master’s degree on “Racial Justice and Abolition Democracy” that spans the humanities, arts, social sciences, policy, and law.

Special Instructions

All applications must be made through Columbia University’s Recruitment of Academic Personnel System (RAPS). Please upload the following required materials: cover letter, C.V., a list of references for two letters of recommendation.

Before uploading documents, applicants first will be asked to input a name and valid email address for each reference provider. The application to this position requires two reference letters. The applicant may enable the RAPS system to generate an automatic email to the reference provider, politely requesting a letter of reference and offering a secure link to the RAPS website where a letter can be uploaded quickly and easily. Wherever possible, letters should be uploaded in the online system.

After completing the “Provide References” screens, the applicant will come to the “Attach Documents” screen and be asked to upload into RAPS the required application materials listed above.

Oklahoma State University

Rank: Open Rank Faculty

The COVID-19 pandemic has significantly altered our communities, our institutions, and our world. Globally, health care infrastructure, scientific research communities, arts and culture organizations, policy-making bodies, local and national economies, K-12 schools and higher education, as well as social service agencies have had to respond to unprecedented challenges. Existing inequities have been magnified and exacerbated. Research that addresses infectious diseases has risen dramatically in importance over the last year and endemic- and pandemic-related studies promise to be an impactful area of research and creative activity for the foreseeable future.

The College of Arts and Sciences (CAS) at Oklahoma State University is recruiting up to five open-rank faculty members to specialize in endemic- and pandemic-related research. This is a cluster-hire that will lead to the hiring of at least one open-rank faculty member in each of CAS’s three pillars: Arts and Humanities, Sciences, and Social Sciences. Information on individual departments may be found here: https://cas.okstate.edu/departments\_and\_programs. The goal is to cultivate an interdisciplinary research community dedicated to critical questions related to infectious disease and endemic/pandemic studies. This new area of research emphasis will be facilitated by the Oklahoma Pandemic Center for Innovation and Excellence (<https://oklahoma.gov/opcie>), currently under development in Stillwater, OK, the location of Oklahoma State University’s main campus. In addition to a robust trajectory in research and creative activities, these faculty will be expected to make meaningful contributions to teaching and service, and to help CAS and their home departments move forward in the areas of diversity, equity and inclusion (DEI).

Critical research topics related to the Social Sciences include but are not limited to: public health access, distribution, and inequities; influences on attitudes, health behavior, and/or public health outcomes; intersections of inequality; health/science communication; human-environment interactions and spatio-temporal analyses; risk assessment and perceptions; vulnerabilities and resilience; and associated public policy.

Applicants are asked to submit the following items via Interfolio <http://apply.interfolio.com/84982> cover letter; curriculum vita; statement of research interests related to endemics/pandemics and infectious diseases; teaching statement that addresses their pedagogical philosophy; DEI statement that discusses past, present, and future contributions to inclusive excellence in the areas of research, teaching, and/or service; and contact information for three professional references. Review of applications will begin April 5, 2021, and will continue until the positions are filled. Employment will start August 2021 or as negotiated. For questions/inquiries: osusocialsciences21@okstate.edu

General Information

Oklahoma State University is a comprehensive flagship, land-grant, Carnegie Tier 1 research institution with more than 24,000 students on its combined Stillwater and Tulsa campuses. Students come from all 50 states and around 120 nations. With 24 departments and approximately 6,000 students, CAS is the largest and most diverse college at OSU. CAS interdisciplinary programs and centers include Africana Studies, American Indian Studies, American Studies, Gender and Women's Studies, and Religious Studies. Since 2010, OSU has been first in the nation among public land-grant colleges and universities for graduating Native American students. OSU's main campus is located in Stillwater, which is about a 1-hour drive from both Oklahoma City and Tulsa. Stillwater has a historic downtown, a regional airport with direct flights to/from Dallas-Fort Worth (DFW), highly rated public schools, and the newly opened McKnight Center for the Performing Arts.

OSU's Commitment to Diversity, Equity and Inclusion

At Oklahoma State University, diversity, equity and inclusion (DEI) matter. Providing a wide range of ways to understand and engage with the world, identifying opportunities and creating solutions are core to our mission as a land-grant university. We fulfill our mission and enrich our campus community by maintaining a welcoming and inclusive environment that appreciates, values and fosters a sense of belonging for all. For the complete statement, see <https://go.okstate.edu/about-osu/leadership/president/diversity-inclusion-task-force.html>.

OSU's Affirmative Action EEO

Oklahoma State University, as an equal opportunity employer, complies with all applicable federal and state laws regarding non-discrimination and affirmative action. Oklahoma State University is committed to a policy of equal opportunity for all individuals and does not discriminate based on race, religion, age, sex, color, national origin, marital status, sexual orientation, gender identity/expression, disability, or veteran status with regard to employment, educational programs and activities, and/or admissions. ### University of California, Riverside

Rank: Visiting Assistant Professor in Political Science and Public Policy

The UCR School of Public Policy invites applications for a Visiting Assistant Professor position in political science and public policy. This is a one year appointment with the likelihood of a second year reappointment contingent upon performance. If a decision for reappointment is made, it will be based on an assessment of the candidate's demonstrated competence in teaching, advising, and research.

We are looking for a candidate with a strong teaching record and promise of research excellence in topics broadly associated with politics of the policy process, including legislative institutions, state and local governance, public opinion, and political behavior. We are particularly interested in scholars whose research and teaching addresses racial equity, either in general or with respect to particular policy issues such as criminal justice, education, environment, health, immigration, and poverty. For those doing national or international work, we are especially interested in those seeking to apply methods and lessons to issues as they play out in California.

Applicants should have an established record or promise of outstanding research accomplishment and teaching; they will be expected to teach four 10-week courses per academic year including some combination of a core undergraduate class in "Politics and Public Policy" and core graduate classes in "Policy Institutions and Processes" and "State and Local Politics and Policies." Additional teaching possibilities include courses in ethics and public policy, politics and policy in California, racial inequality in politics and policy, and case studies in public policy.

Applicants must have a Ph.D. in political science, public policy or a related discipline by the time of appointment. Salary will be competitive and commensurate with education and experience. The appointment will commence on July 1, 2021.

Applicants should submit a letter of interest that describes their research and training, contributions to diversity and inclusion, and include a curriculum vitae, writing samples, teaching evaluations or other evidence of teaching effectiveness and 3 letters of recommendation. All materials must be uploaded using UCR's on-line application system via <https://aprecruit.ucr.edu/JPF01392>. To ensure full consideration, applications and supporting materials should be received by April 6, 2021. Review of applicants will continue until the position is filled.

UCR is a world-class research university with an exceptionally diverse undergraduate student body. Its mission is explicitly linked to providing routes to educational success for underrepresented and first-generation college students. A commitment to this mission is a preferred qualification.

The University of California is an Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action Employer. All qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to race, color, religion, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, national origin, age, disability, protected veteran status, or any other characteristic protected by law.

University of Rhode Island

Rank: Lecturer in Public Policy/Public Administration

The Department of Political Science at the University of Rhode Island anticipates an opening for a lecturer position. This is a full-time academic year appointment at the rank of lecturer for the 2021-2022 academic year but with anticipated renewal to commence in the Fall of 2022. Lecturers may be eligible for the promotional process to Senior Lecturer or Teaching Professor dependent on time in rank.

We are seeking to attract a diverse pool of job applicants for this position. A key pillar of URI's mission is to "inspire an enlightened community that is characterized by vibrant cultural diversity; that embraces difference; that is built upon a learning environment that fosters respect, understanding, and social justice; and that rejects prejudice and intolerance." Our department seeks candidates whose principles align with that mission.

DUTIES AND RESPONSIBILITIES

Applicants will be expected to teach graduate-level political science courses in the areas of Public Policy and Public Administration that serve as requirements for an online Master of Public Administration (MPA) degree with online graduate certificates in Policy Analysis and Public Management. Applicants will also teach face-to-face undergraduate political science courses on Public Administration, Public Policy, introductory courses in American politics, and other areas of expertise.

Applicants will be expected to serve as Assistant Director of the MPA program, support the governance of an MPA program that is preparing to begin the process of NASPAA-accreditation, work with diverse populations, and advise students.

REQUIRED QUALIFICATIONS:

- 1) Ph.D., or expectation of completion of degree requirements by appointment date of September 1, 2021, in Political Science, Public Administration, or Public Policy.
- 2) Primary or secondary specialization in the area of Public Administration or Public Policy or a specialized public policy-related field.
- 3) Evidence of college level teaching commensurate with level of academic experience.
- 4) Demonstrated ability to excel in teaching graduate-level MPA courses in at least two of the following: Seminar in Public Administration and Policy, Policy Analysis, Public Budgeting and Finance, Policy and Grant Writing, Ethics, Diversity and Inclusion in Public Administration and Policy, or courses related to specific public policy areas.
- 5) Demonstrated ability to teach undergraduate political science courses in at least one of the following areas: Public Administration or Public Policy.
- 6) Demonstrated ability to teach introductory courses in American politics.
- 7) Demonstrated experience working with diverse populations or in diverse environments

PREFERRED QUALIFICATIONS

- 1) Evidence of online instruction or extensive training in online pedagogy.
- 2) Demonstrated ability to teach on race, gender, or inequality.
- 3) Experience advising students or ability to oversee a robust internship program.
- 4) Experience participating in the governance of a NASPAA-accredited program.

All requirements are subject to possible modification to reasonably accommodate individuals with disabilities.

The application deadline is April 5, 2021.

University of Gothenburg

Rank: Post doctoral Research Fellow

The Department of Political Science has an open climate that encourages involvement in broader societal debates. Research areas of specialization include elections, democracy, corruption, governance, globalization, environmental politics, and European studies. The Department hosts research projects such as the QoG Institute, Varieties of Democracy (V-Dem), the Centre for Collective Action Research, (CeCAR), Governance and Local Development (GLD) and the Swedish National Election Studies. We offer several degrees at the undergraduate, master's and doctoral levels, as well as free-standing courses. Education is provided in both Swedish and English. We have a total of 1 300 students and a staff of about 150. The Department is centrally located in the city of Gothenburg.

The advertised postdoctoral research position is associated with the research project Policing, Schooling, and Health Care in Historical and Comparative Perspective, which investigates political conflicts over public services and the consequences of such conflicts. The project, which is meant to generate both new theoretical ideas and empirical findings, has been running for approximately three years. The project is led by professor Johannes Lindvall and financed by a consolidator grant from the Swedish Research Council. So far, the project has resulted in a book by Lindvall and Ben Ansell, Inward Conquest (Cambridge University Press 2021), and in several papers at various stages of completion by the members of the team.

The Department of Political Science and the principal investigator is now looking to expand the team by offering another junior scholar an opportunity to conduct independent research on topics that are related to the project's theme.

Subject area

Political Science

Subject area description

Political science is a social science discipline concerned with the study of the state, nation, government, and of politics and policies on a national and international scale.

Job assignments

Any eligible scholar with a substantive interest in doing research on the politics of public services is welcome to apply. The postdoctoral research fellow will be free to select research questions, formulate theoretical ideas, collect data, and select research methods, as long as the research contributes to at least one of the general objectives of the project, which are to

- (a) explain why public services are sometimes centralized, sometimes decentralized

(b) explain the role of religious conflict in the development of public services

(c) analyze the political behavior and influence of professional groups who work in public services

(d) study the effects of public-service reforms on state capacity and different dimensions of economic and social performance.

Members of the team are encouraged to collaborate with each other on joint papers and joint data-collection initiatives, but also to develop their own research agendas within the larger project.

Eligibility

The postdoctoral research fellow position is open to candidates who have received a PhD in political science or related field no later than the first day of employment.

Assessment

Applications will primarily be evaluated based on research excellence in the field of comparative politics or in comparative public administration. We will make an overall assessment of the applicants' qualifications and select the one judged to complement the rest of the team in the best way possible for the needs of the project. Applicants are therefore asked to provide specific information about both their substantive research experience and their methodological expertise.

Employment

Fixed-term employment, two years, full time in residence, start date 1 November 2021 or per agreement 2021.

Location: Department of Political Science, University of Gothenburg.

How to apply

The application should include:

1. a description of the applicant's substantive research experience and methodological expertise. It should also specify how the applicant meets the requirements that are set out in this advertisement
2. a research proposal that shows how the applicant's own research agenda will contribute to the objectives of the research project Policing, Schooling, and Health Care in Historical and Comparative Perspective
3. a writing sample (e.g. chapter from thesis, published article or work in progress paper)
4. a résumé/CV, including a complete list of publications
5. a list of at least three persons from whom letters of recommendation may be solicited

In order to apply for a position at the University of Gothenburg, you have to register an account in our online recruitment system. It is the responsibility of the applicant to ensure that the application is complete in accordance with the instructions in the job advertisement, and that it is submitted before the deadline. The selection of candidates is made on the basis of the qualifications registered in the application.

Start Date:*Application Deadline: 6/30/2021Date Posted: 2/10/2021Salary: CompetitiveeJobs ID: 8584University of Cincinnati*Rank: Research Fellowships in Cyber Strategy and PolicySubfield(s): Public Policy, International Relations, OpenSpecializations: Defense, Science & Technology, International Security

The Center for Cyber Strategy and Policy (CCSP) at the University of Cincinnati is pleased to announce the opening of applications for Pre- and Post-Doctoral Research Fellowships in Cyber Strategy and Policy. The 10-13-month appointments can begin July 1, 2021 or August 1, 2021. There are two positions available.

Expectations

The CCSP Research Fellows will join a national team of researchers focused on examining aspects of a Whole-Of-Nation-Plus approach to cybersecurity. CCSP is examining the range of challenges that must be managed in linking intergovernmental coordination, public-private sector alignment, and a citizenry engaged in support of better cybersecurity, while adding the "plus" of alignment with allied governments, industry, and citizens. The specific research interest of the applicants is open relative to any aspect related to advancing strategy, policy, regulatory, operational, or technical aspects that contribute to a WON+ approach.

Fellows are expected to devote some portion of their time to one of two collaborative research projects: One, on cyber industrial policy that rests on a partnership with the Center for Embedded secure Systems and Trust (CHEST) a NSF-IUCRC project directed at the University of Cincinnati involving seven universities with national industry partners. CCSP will be examining CHEST research in the context of cyber industrial policy development. The second track of CCSP collaborative research will involve focus on state-level cyber security capacity and intergovernmental coordination leveraging our strong partnership with the Ohio National Guard and the Ohio Civilian Cyber Reserve.

Fellows will be provided the intellectual community support to contribute to the CCSP's research activities as well as work on—in the case of pre-dissertation fellows—advancing their doctoral dissertation or post-doctoral fellows advancing their publication agenda. All fellows are expected to be in residence for the duration of their fellowship contingent on Covid health campus policy. CCSP offers nationally competitive stipend levels and the benefit of relatively lower living costs than found on the East and West coasts.

A Multi-Disciplinary Research Environment

The Research Fellows will be supported by the Center for Cyber Strategy and Policy, which draws on a multidisciplinary set of researchers from political science, information technology, computer engineering, and computer science affiliated with the Ohio Cyber Range

Institute at the University of Cincinnati. The OCRI and CCSP are organized around the proposition that cyber security is not a technical problem, but rather is a political, economic, social, organizational, and educational challenge in a technically fluid environment. The CCSP Research Fellowships are open to applicants from multiple backgrounds including the fields of strategic studies, international relations, national and foreign policy studies, law, political science, computing sciences or related professional experience gained as employees of government, military, international, humanitarian, and private research institutions in related fields.

The University of Cincinnati is one of only 18 universities in the country to hold both the National Security Agency's Center of Excellence designations in both Cyber Defense and Cyber Operations. Cyber Defense is anchored in UC's School of IT, Cyber Operations in Electrical Engineering and Computer Science, along with CHEST, and the Center for Cyber Strategy and Policy in the Department of Political Science. These four Centers contribute through disciplinary and multidisciplinary research to the overall OCRI ecosystem that includes 11 academic institutions across the state of Ohio as regional programming centers.

Essential Functions

Engage in and contribute to the research projects of CCSP

Minimum Qualifications and Requirements

Applicants for pre-doctoral fellowships must be in a doctoral program, have passed general examinations prior to appointment. Applications for postdoctoral research fellowships are welcome from recent recipients of the Ph.D. or equivalent relevant degree, university faculty members, and employees of government, military, international, humanitarian, and private research institutions who have relevant professional experience.

Required Experience

In-depth knowledge of specialized field, process or discipline.

University Job Posting and Application Process

Applications will be reviewed on a rolling basis with preference to those submitted by February 22, 2021. Applications must be submitted online via this link with the following components:

Completion of the electronic employment application form

Cover Letter (two page max)

Statement of research interests/project(s) (1200 words max)

Current CV/ Resume

Additionally, 2 letters of recommendation should be sent separately to cyberstrategy@uc.edu with subject line: Recommendation for (name) CCSP Fellows

Physical Requirements / Work Environment

Sitting - Continuously

The University of Cincinnati, as a multi-national and culturally diverse university, is committed to providing an inclusive, equitable and diverse place of learning and employment. As part of a complete job application you will be asked to include a Contribution to Diversity and Inclusion statement.

As a UC employee, and an employee of an Ohio public institution, if hired you will not contribute to the federal Social Security system, other than contributions to Medicare. Instead, UC employees have the option to contribute to a state retirement plan (OPERS, STRS) or an alternative retirement plan (ARP).

The University of Cincinnati is an Affirmative Action / Equal Opportunity Employer / Minority / Female / Disability / Veteran.

Subfield(s): Public Law, Public Policy, Public Administration

The Wilkins Fellows program is named after Professor Emeritus Heanon Wilkins, Miami University's first full-time African-American faculty member. A distinguished professor of Spanish, Portuguese, and Black World Studies, Professor Wilkins received Miami's highest honors in teaching, research, and service, and we honor him with the Wilkins Fellows program. The Wilkins Fellows program is designed to provide those with a strong interest in pursuing a career as a faculty member with dedicated mentoring and intentional preparation for a career in higher education as a faculty member. Our hope is that a significant number of Fellows will choose to apply for positions at Miami and join our ranks of exceptional and dedicated faculty.

Each academic year, we attempt to call for Fellows that align with expected areas of need in the future. The opportunities for Heanon Wilkins Fellows will vary based on the needs of the academic departments. We encourage applications from all areas with particular interest in faculty with expertise in the following areas:

African American History

Public Law or Race & Politics/Policy

Global and Intercultural Studies: International Studies; Women's, Gender and Sexuality Studies

French Second-Language Acquisition

Sociology & Social Justice

Engineering (all disciplines welcome)

Computer Science (all sub-disciplines welcome)

Farmer School of Business (all disciplines welcome)

Nursing

Physician Assistant

Public administration

The Fellowship is for one full academic year (9-month faculty appointment) with the possibility of reappointment to support longer-term research initiatives and projects. Heanon Wilkins Fellows have reduced teaching responsibilities in order to foster a vibrant research program, receive mentoring and career development support, and the opportunity to engage with highly accomplished teacher-scholar faculty colleagues and exceptionally strong students. The Fellows program is designed to prepare individuals to be highly competitive in future faculty searches, especially those we anticipate at Miami University. Thus, there is a strong potential for Fellows to be competitive for both tenure track and/or teaching/clinical professor or lecturer (TCPL) positions, although this is not guaranteed.

Minimum Qualifications:

Miami University welcomes early-career candidates who have completed (or anticipate completing) their doctorate or terminal degree not more than four years prior to the August 2021 appointment date.

This position is available to persons who are currently authorized to work in the United States on a full-time and indefinite basis. (Persons authorized to work on such a basis include US citizens, lawful permanent residents (&quot;green card&quot; holders), asylees, refugees, and temporary residents under IRCA.)

Special Instructions to Applicants:

Submit a cover letter, curriculum vitae, and a statement of proposed research (one to five pages) indicating area or discipline, statement of teaching philosophy, and sample scholarship. Letters of recommendation will be requested from the references listed in the application; the dissertation advisor should be one of those references. Inquiries about the position can be directed to Dana Cox at coxdc4@miamioh.edu.

University of Oklahoma

Subfield(s): Public Administration, Comparative Politics, Public Policy

The University of Oklahoma invites applications for a tenure-track position in public administration at the assistant professor level beginning in August 2021. We seek candidates with a broad competence in public administration and whose research and/or teaching is inclusive of countries outside of the United States. The selected candidate will contribute to our core courses in our NASPAA-accredited MPA program and be able to teach public administration courses from a comparative perspective, focusing on countries outside of the US, as part of our efforts to have more courses that expose students to the diversity of politics and governments across the world. We are open as to substantive focus, but we are especially interested in candidates with expertise in non-governmental organizations, social equity in the US and/or other countries, indigenous issues, or development administration.

This position is within the Department of Political Science, a large department with two undergraduate majors (Political Science and Public & Nonprofit Administration), multiple minors, two master degree programs (Public Administration & Political Science, with the MPA offered in Norman and Tulsa), and a doctoral program. The department is housed within the College of Arts and Sciences at the University of Oklahoma. The University of Oklahoma is the flagship research institution for the state of Oklahoma, enrolling over 30,000 students, located in Norman, OK, a vibrant college town just 20 miles south of Oklahoma City.

Applicants must hold a Ph.D. in public administration, political science, or public policy, and completed by August 2021, have the ability to contribute to the MPA core curriculum, and ability to teach public administration from a comparative perspective, focusing on countries outside of the US. Preference will be given to applicants with substantive focus in non-governmental organizations, social equity in the US and/or other countries, indigenous issues, or development administration, show evidence of a robust research agenda and potential for success in publishing in high-quality, peer-reviewed outlets, have teaching experience, especially in an online format. The teaching load for this position is two courses per semester.

Applicants should submit a curriculum vitae, cover letter, teaching statement, unofficial graduate transcript(s) (official transcript will be required for finalist), writing sample, contact information for three references. Three letters of recommendation will be required for candidates who progress past the first screening. Review of applications will begin February 18, 2021 and continue until the position is filled. Any questions can be emailed to the search committee chairs, Dr. Alisa Fryar ahicklin@ou.edu and Dr. Charles Kenney ckenney@ou.edu. Applicants must apply online at <http://apply.interfolio.com/82689>.

Start Date:*Date Posted: 1/19/2021Salary: CompetitiveeJobs ID: 8481West Virginia University*Rank: Director of Institute for Policy Research and Public Affairs*Subfield(s): Administration, Public Policy, Public Administration

West Virginia University (WVU) seeks a visionary and enterprising leader to serve as the inaugural Director of the Institute for Policy Research and Public Affairs affiliated with Eberly College of Arts and Sciences and the John D. Rockefeller, Jr. School of Policy and Politics. This is a tenured faculty position at the rank of Professor or Associate Professor in the Eberly College. The Director will lead a new initiative to advance public policy and public affairs research and translational activities. This initiative is one of three divisions planned to be established within the Rockefeller School. The other two deal with academic programs and engaged learning and service. In addition to the duties outlined below, the Director would work closely with WVU leadership to help fully establish the Rockefeller School.

As Director, the successful applicant will support faculty and researchers across complementary disciplines to collaboratively build research capacity in public policy. They will strengthen related resources, build on expertise and research capabilities that currently exist across campus, increase externally sponsored research in social and public policy, as well as create partnerships with foundations, industry, government agencies and other universities. As part of this effort, the Director will be expected to recruit Research Fellows to work within the school. In addition to Departments affiliated with the Rockefeller School, Research Fellows may be recruited from within other WVU programs and external institutions and agencies. The Director will connect policy research to the teaching and outreach mission of the Rockefeller School and will report to the office of the Dean of the Eberly College. The Director will have a dedicated administrative assistant as well as support for graduate research students.

Qualifications include a Ph.D. or equivalent degree in Public Policy, Political Science, Public Administration, or a closely related field; a sustained record of externally funded research in the area of public policy; a record of multidisciplinary scholarship; ability to translate academic research into information for public dissemination and engagement; a record of successful administrative leadership; ability to work collaboratively in a diverse environment with a range of faculty, students, administrators, and external constituents to reach a common goal; ability to develop partnerships with foundations and industry in support of the Institute's programs; understanding of WVU's mission as a land-grant institution; ability to manage budgets and establish fiscal priorities; strong written and oral communication skills; and an established record of research and teaching that will merit appointment at, or promotion to, the rank of Professor or Associate Professor with a grant of tenure at WVU.

WVU is a comprehensive land grant university with approximately 30,000 students and is classified by the Carnegie Commission on Higher Education as a very high research (R1) Institution. The Rockefeller School of Policy and Politics currently consists of 21 tenured and tenure-track faculty and is affiliated with the Eberly College of Arts and Sciences.

To apply for this position, please visit <http://hr.research.wvu.edu> and click on the "View Jobs" link. Qualified applicants should submit a cover letter, curriculum vitae, a description of the applicant's potential to further our progress in building a diverse and inclusive academic community (which will be evaluated without regard to the applicant's personal demographics), and contact information for three references. The cover letter should address the applicant's qualifications for each aspect of the responsibilities listed above. For questions or additional information, contact Prof. Duncan Lorimer via e-mail: duncan.lorimer@mail.wvu.edu. The screening process will begin on March 1, 2021 and will continue until the position is filled.

The University community of Morgantown offers plentiful educational opportunities as well as recreational outlets, is within easy driving distance of Pittsburgh, PA, and is about 200 miles northwest of Washington, D.C. WVU is an Equal Employment Opportunity/Affirmative Action Employer and the recipient of an NSF ADVANCE award for gender equity. The university is committed to diversity and welcomes applications from all qualified individuals, including minorities, females, individuals with disabilities, and veterans.
