Resources and Guidance on

Finding a Job in Political Science

Hundreds of academic positions are advertised each year in political science. Finding the openings is the easy part; knowing how to approach the application and interview process is a little more challenging. At APSA, we have collected resources to assist candidates in the academic job search. We would like to highlight a few of these key resources here. The complete list of job resources is available online at www.apsanet.org/jobs.

eJobs: This online resource contains comprehensive online listing of political science jobs, is updated daily with new job listings and candidate resumes, and is fully searchable by field of interest, name of employer/candidate, region, keyword, position, salary, type of institution, and most recent posts.

Data on Jobs Market: APSA gathers and releases data regarding the placement of political science Ph.Ds. View this information at www.apsanet.org/content\_7623.cfm.

Mentoring: Enroll in the APSA Mentoring Program online at www.apsanet.org/mentoring.

eJobs Placement Interview Services: The eJobs Annual Meeting Placement Interview Service provides space and facilities for employers who have eJobs posted to interview candidates at the APSA meeting. Many other conferences, such as the Northeastern and Western, also use the APSA online service to schedule placement interviews. Check the listings online in eJobs.

Ethics Guide: The APSA Guide to Professional Ethics in Political Science includes specific guidance on hiring and employment practices. Order a print copy or view online at www.apsanet.org/ethics.

Asking the Right Questions: APSA Job Candidate Questions to Ask Program

Asking the right questions provides valuable information for career decisions. As part of the APSA Job Candidate Questions to Ask (JCQ) Program participating political science departments have agreed to answer the following questions from job candidates.

Salary

1. What is the salary structure?
2. How is salary normally negotiated?
3. How are annual increases handled?
4. Is there an automatic escalator to ensure the salaries of future hires will not outpace those of existing department members?

Service Activities

1. What are the expectations of pre-tenure and tenured faculty regarding:
  - departmental and institutional committee work,
  - professional or disciplinary activities, and
  - outreach activities to communities external to institution?

Research Support

1. What departmental or institutional resources are available to support:
  - access to research materials and equipment,
  - the employment of research assistants,
  - research expenses on/off campus, and
  - travel expenses for conferences?

2. What departmental or institutional resources are available to seek external funding and to administer external funding awards?

Teaching Support

1. What departmental or institutional resources are available to support:
  - the development of teaching expertise,
  - innovations in teaching, and
  - the introduction of new courses and new technologies?
2. What are departmental expectations regarding:
  - the average course load,
  - the number of different courses taught by faculty, and
  - advising of graduate and undergraduate students?

Tenure, Renewal, and Annual Review

1. What policies and procedures govern the granting of tenure, renewal of contracts for pre-tenure faculty, and annual reviews of faculty performance?
2. What are the department's expectations for successful performance leading to the granting of tenure or renewal of contracts for pre-tenure faculty?
3. What are the department's expectations for a positive annual review?

Mentoring and Faculty Support Initiatives

1. What attention does the department give to integrating new faculty into the department, the institution, and in the profession?
2. Does the department or institution have programs that address:
  - the employment of dual-career professional couples,
  - family needs of faculty and staff, and
  - issues associated with minority faculty and staff?

Health and Life Insurance

1. What are the plans offered?
2. How are benefits disbursed?
3. What are the out-of-pocket expenses?
4. Are partners and/or children covered, and to what extent?
5. What portion of my paycheck will be deducted for these benefits?

Retirement

1. How many types of retirement plans are offered?
2. What is the matching percentage of the institution?
3. Is contribution required (and how much)?

More on the APSA Job Candidate Questions to Ask (JCQ) Program

Naval War College

Rank: Dean of Academics

The President, U.S. Naval War College, invites applications for the position of Dean of Academics in Newport, RI.

The U.S. Naval War College. The Naval War College (NWC) is a Joint Professional Military Education (JPME) institution serving the nation, the Department of Defense, and the U.S. Navy. U.S. and selected international graduates earn Master of Arts degrees in National Security & Strategic Studies or Defense & Strategic Studies accredited by the New England Commission of Higher Education (NECHE). The College educates and develops future leaders through the development of strategic perspective, critical thinking, and cultural awareness, as well as enhancing the capability to advise and eventually serve as senior leaders and policy makers. The College also helps to define the future Navy and its roles and missions; supports combat readiness; strengthens global maritime partnerships; and promotes ethics and leadership throughout the force. We are actively seeking candidates with diverse academic, demographic, and professional backgrounds. More information on the college can be found at www.usnwc.edu.

Dean of Academics. The Dean of Academics is responsible for establishing and enforcing suitable policies for the NWC's resident JPME and associated graduate degree programs. The Dean of Academics reports directly to the Provost. The Dean of Academics oversees academic core departments, the electives program, the Maritime Advanced Warfighting School (MAWS) and the Advanced Strategist Program (ASP).

Responsibilities. The Dean of Academics provides leadership for the resident academic operations ensuring that resident JPME programs meet Chairman of the Joint Chief of Staff (CJCS) Officer Professional Military Education Policy (OPMEP) accreditation standards and graduate degree programs meet NECHE accreditation standards. The Dean of Academics oversees and coordinates on all matters concerning JPME and master's degree course curriculum and syllabi for the resident academic programs and collaborates with leaders of the NWC non-resident programs. The Dean of Academics also plays an essential role in the College's Assessment Committee and leads implementation of the CJCS OPMEP outcomes-based military education (OBME) process. Under the oversight of the Provost, the Dean of Academics supervises recruitment, selection, hiring, assessment, promotion and tenure processes for resident academic faculty in assigned colleges, schools, departments and programs, and ensures integration of international students into resident JPME and graduate degree programs.

Qualifications. The President seeks candidates who are successful, proven academic leaders. An earned Ph.D. or equivalent in one of the following fields is required: international relations, international political economy, comparative politics, political science, operations research, information operations, leadership studies, psychology, philosophy, economics, international security affairs, regional studies, war studies, history, or a related, relevant field. The ideal candidate will have an understanding of the mission the College accomplishes for the Navy and the Department of Defense, a strong background in teaching, extensive experience leading academic institutions (to include experience with professional military education), the ability to lead a diverse group of faculty and staff, and competence in financial/resource management. The ideal candidate will have strong interpersonal and team-building skills and a commitment to diversity.

Candidates must be U.S. citizens capable of obtaining a Department of Defense security clearance at the SECRET level.

Appointment. The appointment is governed by provisions of 10 USC 8748 as delegated by the Secretary of the Navy, and the regulations of the U.S. Office of Personnel Management that apply to "Excepted" appointments under Schedule A. For the successful candidate, the initial term of appointment is expected to be four years in length with provision for renewal dependent on performance. Expected start date is summer 2023.

Salary Considerations. Salary is competitive and is accompanied by a generous federal employee benefits package that includes health insurance with employer contribution, retirement savings plan, paid vacation and sick leave, and other benefits. Academic rank and salary are commensurate with experience and credentials in accordance with Department of the Navy Faculty Schedule and NWC policy.

Applications. Applicants must reference VA#NWC-23-11 and forward their application package to: nwc-23-11@usnwc.edu. The application package must include: (1) cover letter and (2) curriculum vitae (with names and contact information for three references). Applications will be accepted until 11:59 pm (EST) 30 May 2023.

Questions about the position or the institution should be emailed to Dr. Thomas Gibbons: gibbonst@usnwc.edu.

NOTICE OF VETERANS PREFERENCE: There is no formal rating system for applying veterans' preference to the excepted service; however, the Department of Defense considers veterans' preference eligibility a positive factor for hiring. Applicants eligible for veterans' preference must include that information in their cover letter or resume and attach supporting documentation (e.g., DD Form 214, "Certificate of Release or Discharge from Active Duty" to their submissions. Although the point-preference system is not used, applicants eligible to claim 10-Point preference must submit a Standard

Form (SF) 15, "Application for 10-Point Veteran Preference," and supporting documents required for specific type of preference claimed. (SF 15, which lists the types of 10-Point Preference and the required supporting documents, is available from the Office of Personnel Management Website at www.opm.gov.)

Within the Department of Defense (DoD), the appointment of retired military members within 180 days immediately following retirement date to a civilian position is subject to the provisions of 5 United States Code 3326.

The U.S. Naval War College is an Equal Opportunity Employer.

AMERICAN GOVERNMENT AND POLITICS

Georgetown University

Rank: Post-Doctoral Fellow

Description

Post Doc Fellow for Better Government Lab

The Better Government Lab conducts empirical field-based research to assess the impact and effectiveness of interventions and policies aimed at improving the capacity of government and the quality of government, and is part of the McCourt School of Public Policy at Georgetown University.

The Postdoctoral Fellow will be part of the project "Can governments learn digital governance innovation from the civic tech community?" working closely with project's PIs (Pamela Herd, Sebastian Jilke, Donald Moynihan). The position is for two years, and funded via an award from the Tech and Public Policy program and McCourt Institute. We hope to have someone in place for Fall of 2023, but will search until a suitable candidate is found.

We seek candidates with strong mixed-methods or qualitative method skills. The primary responsibility will be to engage in a study of how civic technology organizations interact with government, and how those interactions facilitate the adoption of digital innovation in government. This will require conducting a series of primary case studies using mixed-methods.

The position will not require any teaching and has flexibility for geographical location in accordance with Georgetown's telework policy.

The Postdoctoral Fellow will:

Help to develop a research plan;

Complete Georgetown IRB training and requirements for the project;

Organize and undertake interviews with research subjects;

Perform data analysis and interpretation;

Distill findings into reports, policy memos and academic publications;

Present project designs and results at government and external conferences and meetings;

Support other Better Government Lab studies of civic technology innovations.

Qualifications

Ph.D. in and research experience with public policy, political science, economics, public administration, organization theory, sociology, business, or a related field (ABDs are welcome to apply if they expect to complete or be near completion of their Ph.D. before project start).

The ideal candidate will have a mix of the following qualifications:

Extensive knowledge of and experience applying qualitative skills, with quantitative skills as a bonus;

An interest in government capacity, administrative burden, digital innovations, human-centered design, organizational theory and/or social policy;

Experience or strong interest in working with government programs, policies and/or operations;

Strong project management skills;

Campus Description:

Stony Brook University, one of two flagships within the State University of New York (SUNY) system, is one of America's most dynamic public universities, a center of academic excellence, and an internationally recognized research institution that is changing the world. After more than 60 years of existence, it is ranked among the top 100 universities in the nation and the top 25 public universities in the nation. It is a member of the prestigious invitation-only Association of American Universities, composed of the top 66 leading research institutions in North America. As Long Island's largest single-site employer, Stony Brook has nearly 15,000 full- and part-time employees, including 2,800 faculty and nearly 27,000 students — including almost 18,000 undergraduates — and offers more than 200 majors, minors and combined-degree programs. Located approximately 60 miles east of Manhattan on Long Island's beautiful North Shore, Stony Brook is situated on 1,454 wooded acres, encompassing 13 schools and colleges; a Research and Development Park; world-class athletics facilities, including an 8,300-seat stadium and a 4,000-seat arena; and Stony Brook Medicine, Long Island's premier academic medical center. Also part of the University is a teaching and research campus in Southampton, New York, which offers graduate arts programs and is the site of the Marine Sciences Center. In addition, Stony Brook has a role in running, and performs joint research with, Brookhaven National Laboratory, the only Department of Energy Laboratory in the Northeast. Home to the Emerson String Quartet, the Pollock-Krasner House in East Hampton, NY, and the Humanities Institute, with endeavors that extend to the Turkana Basin Institute in Kenya and the Ranomafana National Park in Madagascar, Stony Brook sustains an international reputation that cuts across the arts, humanities, social sciences and natural sciences.

California State University, Bakersfield

Rank: Assistant Professor of Political Science

The Department of Political Science at California State University, Bakersfield invites candidates to apply for a Tenure-Track faculty position in American Politics with a focus on Environmental Politics, Sustainability and Justice. Among the topics of interest that should be focused on are: climate change, global warming, and energy politics, agricultural and industrial environmental pollution, water politics and policy, homelessness, migration – locally and across various regions of the country and world, and America's global environmental footprint – with special attention to people from marginalized communities.

The Political Science Department is small but thriving – it is home to a robust Pre-Law Program, and a Model United Nations Program among others. The Department's student demographics are 70% women, and a substantial percentage of First-Generation students, and recently Forbes Magazine ranked CSUB 18th as Top Performer on social mobility. Furthermore, CSUB is a great location for anyone who is interested in studying what politics and policy looks like at the intersection of ethnorace, class, and an ongoing climate crisis. CSUB is located in Kern County which is over 60% Latinx and considered both an agricultural and oil and gas hub. The Central Valley is also the second- most pumped aquifer system in the U.S. We are located one hour and thirty minutes north of the Hollywood Bowl. One hour and 20 minutes from the Central California Coastal Wine Country, and one hour and 40 minutes to the state's central coast. Kern County is where more than 250 different crops are grown and where approximately 75% of California's irrigated land is located. A scholar professor would not only be able to conduct vital research for and about the region on the topics of water and agriculture but Kern county is also known for its involvement with oil and gas making CSUB a fruitful location to also study energy policy.

As a department, we are looking for a qualified and committed candidate with a PhD (ABDs may be also considered) in American Politics with an emphasis in Environmental Politics, Sustainability and Justice (Public Policy, Political Economy, Policy and Politics are encouraged to apply) who can develop and teach courses that are reflective of our community, issues, the state of California, and the US public policy making process. Additionally, candidates for the position would be expected to teach the department's Core Courses, Research Methods, and Introduction to American Government among others.

Minimum Qualifications:

- Earned a Ph.D. (ABD with degree completed before start date) in Political Science, from an accredited doctoral-granting institution.
- Demonstrated commitment to teaching undergraduates from diverse socioeconomic, cultural, and academic backgrounds, including first-generation students.
- Evidence of effective teaching.
- Evidence of potential to conduct independent research in the area of expertise as well as mentor undergraduate students in research.
- Possess a commitment to promote equity and inclusion through teaching, research, and service at CSUB.

Required Qualifications:

- Teaching experience using a variety of teaching modalities (in person, synchronous, asynchronous).
- Possible Course Proposals
- Evidence of Scholarship/Research

Preferred Qualification:

- Experience with academic advising and student mentorship (if applicable).

Application:

To be considered, complete application materials must include:

- Cover Letter
- Current Curriculum Vitae
- Statement of Teaching Philosophy
- Research Statement
- Statement of contribution to diversity, equity and inclusion. Please include information on how you currently or will potentially promote diversity, equity and inclusion through teaching, research and service at CSU Bakersfield.
- Copy of university transcripts verifying academic record and award of doctorate (or anticipated date of award)

- List of three (3) references with contact information

Interviews will be conducted at the annual APSA meeting in Los Angeles, CA. Contact Dr. Ivy AM Cargile if you would like to schedule an appointment.

All applications materials should be sent electronically as one PDF in the order listed above to Ms. Christina Ochoa, department Administrative Assistant: cochoa@csub.edu.

Background Check: A background check (including a criminal records check) must be completed satisfactorily before any candidate can be offered a position with the CSU. Failure to satisfactorily complete the background check may affect the application status of applicants or continued employment of current CSU employees who apply for the position.

For any questions please contact: Dr. Ivy AM Cargile (icargile@csub.edu) or Dr. Jeanine Kraybill (jkraybill@csub.edu).

University of Tennessee, Knoxville

Rank: Lecturer of Political Science

Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Public Law, International Relations

The Department of Political Science at the University of Tennessee, Knoxville invites applications for a non-tenure track, nine-month, full-time Lecturer to begin on August 1, 2023. The initial appointment for this nine-month position will be for one year, but with the likelihood of renewal based on quality of instruction, funding, and department need. The successful candidate will teach four classes in both fall and spring semesters. Lecturers can also teach in summer and winter mini-terms, depending on staffing needs. We seek candidates who are dedicated to a career of exceptional teaching of Political Science. This position will likely provide a path to promotion to Senior Lecturer and ultimately Distinguished Lecturer, which entail salary increases and extended appointments. Several lecturers in our current department have been on faculty for a decade or more and have successfully advanced to the distinguished and senior lecturer ranks. Professional development opportunities are available to Lecturers and supported by both the Department and College. Responsibilities include modest service roles. Candidates must have a PhD in Political Science or equivalent at the time of appointment. We are seeking candidates with a strong background in American Politics, International Relations, and or Comparative Politics, and a commitment to fostering the goals of the department, college, and university.

The University of Tennessee enrolls over 30,000 students at its Knoxville campus. UTK is the state's only public Carnegie Doctoral/Research Extensive University and is currently ranked among the nation's Top 50 public universities. The Department of Political Science has approximately 600 undergraduate majors and 30 MA and Ph.D. students. The city of Knoxville, with a population of 200,000 and growing, is a hidden gem with a beautiful and walkable downtown, varied nightlife, active neighborhoods, and eclectic cultural activities, shopping, and restaurants. It is home to the Knoxville Symphony and the Knoxville Opera, as well as annual festivals like the international Big Ears Music Festival, Jazz on the Square, and Shakespeare on the Square. Trip Advisor recently named Knoxville a Top Ten Destination on the Rise. UTK is located within easy driving distance to Atlanta, Nashville, Asheville, and the Great Smoky Mountains.

Qualifications

PhD in Political Science or equivalent is required at the time of appointment. Record of successful teaching and mentoring in an institution of higher education related to American Politics, Comparative Politics, or International Relations is preferred. Experience or demonstrated ability in the design and delivery of courses in a variety of formats, including face-to-face, synchronous online, asynchronous online, and hybrid is preferred. Ability to work collaboratively with faculty, students, and staff from a wide range of disciplines, cultures and academic backgrounds is essential. The Knoxville campus of the University of Tennessee is seeking candidates who have the ability to contribute in meaningful ways to the diversity and intercultural goals of the University.

The University of Tennessee, Knoxville, is the state's flagship research institution, a campus of choice for outstanding undergraduates, and a premier graduate institution. As a land-grant university, it is committed to excellence in learning, scholarship, and engagement with society. More information about the Department is available at: <https://polisci.utk.edu/>.

Application Instructions

To apply, please submit a letter of interest, a curriculum vitae, statement of teaching philosophy, evidence of effective teaching, sample syllabus and exam for a course previously taught, and three recommendation letters through the Interfolio system link <http://apply.interfolio.com/123979>. A statement concerning experience with and plans for contributing to diversity, equity, and inclusion is valuable but not required. Review of applications will begin immediately and will continue until the position is filled. ## College of Charleston

Rank: Visiting Assistant Professor of Political Science (2 positions available)

Specializations: American Politics, Political Theory, Race & Ethnic Politics

The Department of Political Science at the College of Charleston is seeking candidates for two visiting assistant professor positions in American politics beginning August 2023. We are looking for candidates who can teach multiple sections of introduction to American politics. Opportunities to teach courses in candidate's area of expertise are possible. The successful candidate will teach a 4-4 load. A PhD in Political Science, or a closely related field, is required.

Although this is an open search in the American politics subfield, we are particularly interested in candidates whose research and teaching focus broadly in the areas of political theory, race & politics, public policy, and the law. We seek candidates who have experience advising students from diverse backgrounds and a demonstrated commitment to improving access to higher education for students who represent historically oppressed and marginalized identities.

The Political Science Department has 21 full-time faculty, over 360 undergraduate majors (<http://polisci.cofc.edu/>), and a Geography Minor (<http://geography-minor.cofc.edu/>). The department also supports the NASPAA Accredited Master of Public Administration with an enrollment of approximately 60 students (<http://puba.cofc.edu/>) and Master of Science in Environmental and Sustainability Studies (<http://mes.cofc.edu/>) program and contributes to a concurrent MES/MPA degree. The Department is committed to the rigorous study of politics, power, and place, expanding opportunities for learning and service, career preparation, and civic participation locally and globally.

The College of Charleston is located in historic downtown Charleston in a coastal metropolitan area of 800,000. The College is a public, liberal arts, and sciences institution with a student body of approximately 1,100 graduate students, 10,000 undergraduate students, 20% of whom identify as minority, and 140 international students from 34 different countries. Additional information about the institution, the student body, and the surrounding area is available at: <https://www.cofc.edu/>.

Applicants should apply online at <https://jobs.cofc.edu/> and submit a cover letter that specifically describes how the candidate will contribute to department goals related to equity, inclusion, and co-creation, a curriculum vita, a teaching portfolio (with a teaching philosophy and evidence of teaching effectiveness including, but not limited to course syllabi and course evaluations), and contact information for two reference providers. Graduate transcripts and other information may be requested of finalists.

Questions about the search can be directed to the department chair Dr. Hollis France (franceh@cofc.edu). Review of applications will begin May 23rd and continue until the position is filled.

University of Texas, Arlington

Position ID: F00418P

The Department of Political Science at the University of Texas at Arlington is seeking a non-tenure-stream, full time lecturer, which will begin in August 2023. This position will operate with a three-year contract. We encourage applications from people qualified to teach courses in the following areas: US Government; Texas/State and Local Government. We also welcome applications from those who also are qualified to teach upper division (sophomore-seniors) and graduate MA courses in political science. We are especially interested in applicants who have demonstrated a commitment to students' success and an interest in supporting student recruitment and retention efforts.

Essential duties and responsibilities:

The ability to teach face-to-face, hybrid, and/or online courses in the following areas: US Government; Texas/State and Local Government and other high-enrollment upper-division courses.

Required qualifications:

For lecturer positions, we require at minimum a Master's degree in political science or a very closely related field and prefer applicants who are PhD holding or pursuing a doctorate, or who are ABD.

The University of Texas at Arlington is located in the heart of the Dallas-Fort Worth-Arlington metroplex, a vibrant and diverse metropolitan area that is home to over 7 million people, one of the fastest-growing tech economies in the United States, and a wide array of arts, entertainment, and cultural activities. UTA is a comprehensive teaching, research, and public service institution dedicated to the advancement of knowledge through scholarship and creative work. The University is committed to providing access and ensuring student success, and to a culture of innovation, entrepreneurship, and commercialization of discoveries by our community of scholars. With an enrollment of approximately 46,000 students, UTA is the largest institution in North Texas and the second-largest in the UT System. As a result of its combination of rigorous academics and innovative research, UTA is designated as a Carnegie R-1 “Very High Research Activity” institution and as a Texas Tier One institution. In 2021, UTA received the Higher Education Excellence in Diversity Award for its deep commitment to diversity, equity, and inclusion in higher education.

UTA ranks No. 4 nationally in Military Times’ annual “Best for Vets: Colleges” list and No. 1 in Texas for the number of degrees awarded to African American students (Diverse: Issues in Higher Education, 2021). UTA is designated by the U.S. Department of Education as both a Hispanic Serving Institution (HSI) and an Asian American and Native American Pacific Islander-Serving Institution (AANAP-ISI), and it has the fifth-most ethnically diverse undergraduate population in the United States (U.S. News & World Report, 2023). UTA is among the top 50 performers nationwide for promoting social mobility of its graduates (U.S. News & World Report, 2023), and its approximately 250,000 alumni, including some who occupy leadership positions at many of the 23 Fortune 500 companies headquartered in North Texas, contribute to the UTA’s $22.2 billion annual economic impact on Texas.

The Department of Political Science (<http://www.uta.edu/pols/> and <https://www.facebook.com/POLSatUTArlington>) offers a Bachelor of Arts and Master of Arts. It serves students from across the University (in state-mandated introductory courses) as well as over two hundred and forty undergraduate majors and minors and ten to twenty graduate students.

Successful candidates are expected to demonstrate a commitment to diversity and equity in education through their scholarship, teaching, and/or service as well as a strong commitment to teaching, advising, and mentoring undergraduate and graduate students from diverse backgrounds.

To apply applicants should go to <http://uta.peopleadmin.com/> and submit the following materials: Candidates should submit a cover letter, curriculum vitae, two sample syllabi, a statement of interest, and contact information for three references. Review of applications will begin immediately and will continue until the position is filled. The start date for the position is August 15, 2023.

Questions may be addressed to: Dr. Brent Boyea (boyea@uta.edu). For more information about UTA, please visit: <http://www.uta.edu/uta>.

University of Massachusetts, Amherst

Rank: Lecturer in Political Behavior

Job Description

The Department of Political Science at the University of Massachusetts Amherst invites applications for a 1-year, non-tenure track, Lecturer position in Political Behavior beginning in September 2023. We seek a scholar whose research addresses fundamental questions about the health, quality, and future of the American democratic system, including those who study the United States from a comparative context.

The Lecturer will have the opportunity to further their own research agenda and to collaborate with the faculty in the Department of Political Science on ongoing and new research projects related to political behavior, public opinion, political psychology, gender and politics, and race and ethnic politics. This position will also serve as a core contributor to the UMass Poll with responsibility for mentoring and directing graduate and undergraduate research fellows and assisting with survey design, social media outreach, and website development and maintenance. The Lecturer will also be responsible for teaching one course per semester in their area of expertise in the Department of Political Science and will be supervised by Tatishe Nteta, Associate Professor of Political Science and Director of the UMass Poll.

Requirements

A Ph.D. in political science or a related discipline by the time of appointment is required. Experience in conducting survey research, a background in using survey and statistical software. A record of research and teaching in American Politics, Political Psychology, Gender and Politics, Race and Ethnic Politics, or State and Local Politics is required.

Additional Information

This position will start date on Sep. 1, 2023 and will end on Aug. 31, 2024.

Annual salary range is commensurate with experience.

Application Instructions

Along with the application, please submit a CV, cover letter, up to three (3) samples of current scholarship, a brief statement of teaching philosophy, a Diversity Statement (see below) and contact information for three (3) professional references.

Applicants should submit a one-page diversity statement that discusses the candidate’s skills, experiences and commitment to: teaching and mentoring diverse and historically underrepresented student populations, professional service that assists in achieving equity, inclusion, and diversity, and how the candidate’s past or future research addresses fundamental questions important to an increasingly diverse and global society.

Review of applications will begin on May 8, 2023 and continue until the position is filled. Please direct questions concerning this position to Professor Tatishe Nteta, Search Committee Chair, nteta@umass.edu.

Ben-Gurion University

Rank: Postdoctoral Research Associate

Subfield(s): Methodology, Comparative Politics, American Government and Politics

Specializations: Political Behavior, Political Communication, Research Methods

Postdoctoral Position (2-3 years) in a European Research Council Project

“Participation and Representation in the Digital Age (PRD)”

We invite applications for a postdoctoral position in a European Research Council (ERC) project ($1.5 million Euro, 2023-2028) led by Prof. Jennifer Oser and hosted by Ben-Gurion University.

NOTE: The postdoctoral research position can be conducted largely remotely for candidates who prefer to be physically located in universities in the European Union (EU), EU-affiliated countries, the United States, and Canada. For candidates who wish to be located in Israel, office space can be arranged at Ben-Gurion University (<https://in.bgu.ac.il/en/pages/default.aspx>)—which is consistently highly ranked for student life by Israeli students—as well as in other Israeli universities and institutions throughout the country.

The project: A global trend has emerged in patterns of political participation over the past few decades. While voting has declined, non-electoral participation—like protest, and digital activism—has increased. A main concern is that these trends may lead to unequal representation. This project uses multiple methodological approaches to advance theory-based, empirical scholarship on the connection between participation and representation. See additional information about this project (<https://www.jenniferoser.com/erc-starting-project>) and its international collaborators (<https://www.jenniferoser.com/team-3>).

The role: The postdoctoral position is a full-time (40 hours per week), research-focused role to lead the construction of a harmonized dataset of high-quality, cross-national surveys on political participation, and to conduct data analyses outlined in the project's work plan. The role includes:

- Leading the data management needed to construct the originally harmonized dataset.
- Conducting and publishing high-quality research, both co-authored and sole-authored.
- Support to dedicate time to personal research as part of the position (approximately 20%).
- There is no teaching obligation; teaching positions (lectureship) can be arranged if requested.

Qualifications:

- PhD (or close to completion) in political science, data science, or related fields.
- Strong methodological and quantitative background; excellent command of Stata and/or R.
- Ambition and ability to produce high-impact publications.
- Ability to work independently and to communicate effectively with a team.
- Commitment to a two-year postdoctoral position, with an option for a third year.

Benefits:

- Work as part of a supportive team committed to professional growth and intellectual discovery.
- Competitive ERC-funded salary (approximately 65,000 Euro per year for full-time position).
- Generous additional funding for international conferences and methodological workshops.
- Opportunity to advance your own research as part of a prestigious international grant project.
- Support from project PI, collaborators, and network to advance your academic skills and career.

Application:

- Please submit: (1) Letter of application describing your motivation and qualifications (2) CV with publication list and contact information for at least 2 references (3) Two writing samples, including at least one that is sole-authored (published or unpublished).
- Email the files to the project's Administrative Manager, Raya Even-David, rayaED@bgu.ac.il.
- Applications submitted by May 25, 2023 are guaranteed full consideration. Applications will be considered on a rolling basis until the position is filled.
- Position start date: October 2023 (with flexibility).

Informal inquiries about the position are welcome: Prof. Jennifer Oser, oser@bgu.ac.il.

Drake University

Rank: Visiting Assistant Professor of Political Science

The Department of Political Science at Drake University seeks a 9-month full-time Visiting Assistant Professor of Political Science in American Politics to begin August 2023. We are excited to welcome a new colleague with expertise in political behavior and the politics of race. With more than 200 students and 7 full-time faculty, our department offers 3 majors and 3 minors, featuring small class sizes, outstanding student engagement, and many collaborative opportunities for teaching and research. To find out more about the department, visit www.drake.edu/polsci.

Located in the state capital of Des Moines, Iowa, Drake offers exceptional opportunities for experiential learning, student engagement, development of community-engaged and project-based classes, and scholarship on elections, partisanship, the rural/urban divide, and public opinion. In the fall of 2023, Des Moines will also be the epicenter of the Republican presidential nomination contest leading up to the 2024 first-in-the-nation caucuses. The Des Moines metro offers numerous festivals and cultural celebrations; a selection of museums and theaters; parks and miles of trails; and a surprisingly wide range of dining options.

Applicants should possess a Ph.D. in Political Science (ABDs will be considered) and demonstrated commitment to teaching excellence. Teaching responsibilities include upper-level courses covering public opinion, elections, race and American politics, and topics appropriate to the candidate's research and teaching interests and may also include the introductory American Politics course. The teaching load is 3-3. Salary is competitive with peer institutions and dependent on qualifications and experience.

Drake University is dedicated to building a diverse and pluralistic community and strongly encourages applications from all qualified applicants. We are excited to welcome colleagues who will provide support for and work effectively with individuals and groups from diverse backgrounds.

Review of applications will begin on March 10, 2023. Interested applicants should submit a cover letter, current curriculum vitae, at least two letters of recommendation with emphasis on the candidate's teaching experience and pedagogical approach, a statement of teaching philosophy, evidence of teaching effectiveness (which may include course evaluations and/or sample syllabi) and a statement reflecting their commitment to diversity, equity, and inclusion. The Center brings together a large, vibrant and interdisciplinary community of scholars interested in democratic politics, supports their empirical research, and communicates those findings to inform public policy debates inside and outside the academy.

In concert with the faculty Director(s), the RD directs, oversees, guides, and implements CSDP's academic and policy research programs. The RD envisions, develops, and manages CSDP's research missions and strategy. They monitor and address Affiliates' research needs, including affiliated faculty, researchers (fellows, scholars, and so on), and students. They keep up with and bring to bear research resources and knowledge from across and outside Princeton. The RD will also help CSDP implement SPIA's strategic priorities, especially data science, policy relevance, and DEI.

Responsibilities:

- Design and deliver hands-on workshops on research methods, tools, and applications, including the collection or use of datasets, according to affiliates' needs

- Research and statistical consulting to CSDP affiliates and make recommendations and oversee the selection of research-relevant software

- Assist with the review, selection, recruiting, and mentoring of CSDP's fellows and research staff

- Assist with reading and selecting grant applications submitted for CSDP funding and also with the development and writing of CSDP directors' applications and proposals for funding

- Develop and oversee a new MPA fellows' program and supervise its fellows including their research activities and their policy-oriented writing

- Write reports and other content translating CSDP research for public and policymaker audiences, with the assistance of the MPA fellows

Essential requirements:

- PhD in political science

- Training in and experience using political science research methods including a strong quantitative background

- Strong programming skills, including in R

- At least one publication in an academic political science journal on topics in CSDP's core mission (the study of democratic politics)

- Minimum one-year post-PhD work experience in an academic setting

- Experience teaching research methods, data science, or related programming skills, or advising student activities in these areas

- Meticulous attention to detail and ability to proof one's own work and others'

- Demonstrated ability for creative problem-solving, active listening and interpersonal skills, empathy for others, proactive approach to work issues, openness to feedback on one's work performance, and taking initiative to address, anticipate and head off problems

- Experience with managing research projects from initiation through completion

- Eagerness to collaborate on projects and to cooperate with others in the work environment

- Motivated to produce at a high level of productivity and excellence

Preferred:

- Experience with data use agreements and how to develop partnerships and collaborations to obtain data

- working with or merging large or administrative datasets

- Specialized technical skills for the social sciences

- Experience communicating about political science or policy for broad audience

The RD will have a research budget for their use in attending conferences and similar activities facilitating their ongoing professional development as a researcher.

The position is for a three-year term, with the possibility of renewal, contingent on satisfactory performance. This position is subject to a background check.

Applicants must submit a CV, a cover letter describing their areas of expertise and research interests, and contact information for three references. References may be contacted for the candidates who make the shortlist for this position.

Rice University

Rank: Postdoctoral Associate

The Local Elections in America Project (LEAP) at Rice University in Houston, Texas, invites applications for a one or two-year postdoctoral research associate, beginning July 1, 2023. The Postdoctoral Research Associate is expected to divide time between their own research agenda and work on a project focused on increasing voter participation in "Voting Deserts," communities with historically low levels of civic engagement. The project takes a human-centered design approach to develop and implement a set of evidence-based prototypes and interventions that will address the underlying causes of low voter turnout in neighborhoods across the nine-county area of Greater Houston.

The salary is $60,000 for 12 months. In addition, this position has a $10,000 research budget attached to it.

Successful candidates will have strong analytical and empirical skills, experience conducting field experiments, and research interests in GOTV, political behavior and race and ethnic politics. Applicants should have completed all requirements for the doctoral degree by July 1, 2023. The application deadline is May 15, 2023, but applications will be accepted until the search is closed.

SUNY, Geneseo

Rank: Assistant Professor, American Politics & Public Policy

The Department of Political Science & International Relations at the State University of New York at Geneseo seeks applications for a tenure-track faculty position in American Politics, with a focus on Public Policy and Public Administration, to begin August, 2023. Possible areas of expertise include, but are not limited to, Environmental Policy, Health Care Policy, Income Inequality, or Social Welfare Policy. We are a highly collegial department of six full-time faculty members who are committed to excellence in undergraduate teaching and liberal arts education. We offer two majors (Political Science and International Relations), contribute to several interdisciplinary minors, and have access to substantial resources to support research. More information about our department is available at https://www.geneseo.edu/political\_science.

Duties of the position include:

- Teaching courses 3 courses per semester in American Politics, including an introductory American politics course every semester, courses on public policy and public administration, and other courses in the candidate's area of expertise.

- Coordinating a Public Administration minor, and administering Geneseo's joint 5-year BA/MPA program with the University of Albany.
- Pursuing a program of scholarly research, leading to publication in peer-reviewed outlets.
- Providing academic advising to students.
- Mentoring and supervising undergraduate research and other projects.
- Contributing to governance and engaging in service to the department, the college, and the discipline.
- There may also be opportunities to contribute to other interdisciplinary programs, including the Sustainability Studies, Sociomedical Sciences, and American Studies majors, and the Legal Studies, Urban Studies, Conflict Studies, and Environmental Studies minors.

Our priority is teaching excellence. We seek someone with a strong commitment to teaching in a liberal arts setting and who is prepared to teach both introductory courses and advanced courses in their area of expertise. A commitment to working effectively with students from diverse backgrounds is essential. We also highly value collegiality, experience with integrative learning, and a willingness to contribute to a holistic and broadly-conceived education in political science as a part of a broader liberal arts curriculum.

Required Qualifications:

- Ph.D. in Political Science or related field by the time of appointment.
- Expertise in American Politics and ability to teach courses in Public Policy and Public Administration.
- Prior experience or demonstrated potential in teaching courses in American Politics at the undergraduate level.
- Potential to establish a program of research leading to publication.
- Demonstrated commitment to fostering a diverse and inclusive working/teaching environment.

Applicants should upload a cover letter addressing research and teaching interests, current CV, a statement of teaching philosophy, evidence of teaching effectiveness, and a brief writing sample. Cover letters should address how candidates view themselves as contributing to Geneseo's commitment to Diversity, Equity, Inclusion, and Belonging (DEIB) and its aspiration to become a public equity-centered honors college. Applicants should also supply contact information for three references, who will be contacted to upload letters at the time of application. Please submit materials at <https://jobs.geneseo.edu/postings/4241>. Review of completed applications will begin immediately and continue until the position is filled. Applications received by March 10 are guaranteed full consideration.

Saint Lawrence University

Rank: Visiting Assistant Professor in American Politics

The Government Department at St. Lawrence University invites applications for a one-year visiting assistant professor in American Politics specializing in Congress and Political Parties. The department expects to conduct a tenure track search for the position the following year pending budgetary approval. The successful candidate will be prepared to teach Introduction to American Government as well as upper-level elective courses in their substantive areas of expertise. The position begins August 2023 and the teaching load is three courses per semester. The successful candidate will join a department of 11 full-time faculty members who are passionate about supporting our liberal arts curriculum through diverse and inclusive pedagogies and scholarly agendas. Our supportive department colleagues regularly provide feedback and mentoring to visiting faculty to foster pedagogical and professional development.

Interested candidates should submit a cover letter indicating teaching and research interests, curriculum vitae, graduate school transcript, writing sample of their research, and evidence of teaching effectiveness (which may include teaching evaluations, sample syllabi, teaching philosophy, etc.). If applicants have experience teaching introductory courses, we ask that teaching evaluations from those courses are included in the application.

Applicants should also submit a separate document with a statement indicating how they can contribute in tangible ways to St. Lawrence University's commitment to cultivating a diverse and inclusive community and classrooms. All required documents can be uploaded in the "Applicant Documents" section of your online application.

Additionally, three confidential references are required [the required information input in the reference contact information section of your application will be utilized to send a system-derived email requesting a recommendation letter from each reference].

Review of applications will begin on March 16, 2023. Applications submitted after this date will be reviewed as needed. Questions about the position may be sent to Dr. James Sieja (jsieja@stlawu.edu), Search Chair.

All offers of employment are conditioned upon successful completion of a background (including criminal records) check.

St. Lawrence University policy requires all employees and students to be up to date with available vaccinations against Covid-19 including, as applicable, a booster shot. Individuals may apply for a medical or religious exemption from this policy.

Johns Hopkins University

Rank: Adjunct Faculty: Intelligence Analysis

Subfield(s): International Relations, American Government and Politics, Other

Specializations: Intelligence, Defense, International Security

Location:

Washington, DC or Online (Remote)

Open Date:

Feb 01, 2023

POSITION:

Adjunct Faculty, Intelligence Analysis
Krieger School of Arts and Sciences
Advanced Academic Programs

INSTITUTION:

Johns Hopkins University

Institution Description:

The Advanced Academic Programs (AAP) is a division of the Krieger School of Arts and Sciences at the Johns Hopkins University (JHU). As the nation's oldest and one of the most prestigious research universities, Johns Hopkins offers high-quality master's degrees and post-baccalaureate education to students in the mid-Atlantic region and online. In addition to the online programs, AAP also offers master's degrees and graduate certificate programs at its Washington, DC Center and at the Homewood campus in Baltimore, MD. AAP has approximately 18,000 enrollments each academic year. JHU is committed to hiring candidates who, through their teaching and service, will contribute to the diversity and excellence of the academic community.

Position Description:

The Advanced Academic Programs (AAP) division seeks non-tenure track adjunct faculty to teach several courses within the MS in Intelligence Analysis program. The course(s) will be taught fully online beginning in Summer 2023 and beyond. Candidates with online course development and teaching experience and those with experience teaching and engaging students from diverse backgrounds are of particular interest. We are looking for faculty who can teach one or more of the following courses:

473.600 the Art and Practice of Intelligence

This course introduces students to the field of intelligence, particularly as practiced in the United States. After a brief overview of the historical foundations of modern intelligence, it discusses how intelligence is conducted including collection, analysis, counterintelligence, covert action, and oversight. It also discusses intelligence ethics, as well as the disruptive influences of September 11, new technologies, and emerging social trends.

473.602 Intelligence Analysis

Intelligence analysis is fundamentally about understanding and communicating to decision makers what is known, not known, and surmised, as it can best be determined. Students will read seminal texts on intelligence analysis, discuss the complex cognitive, psychological, organizational, ethical, and legal issues surrounding intelligence analysis now and, in the past, and apply analytic methodologies to real-world problems.

473.604 Advanced Critical Thinking and Analysis

Critical thinking involves the methods and principles of correct reasoning and argumentation. Students will apply a combination of logic, critical thinking skills, and structured analytical techniques to identify biases, promote self-reflective reasoning, and improve the quality of intelligence analysis. Using a selection of empirical case studies and operational exemplars, students will conduct a comparative assessment of analytical outcomes based on the application of course learnings versus outcomes derived in their absence.

473.607 Intelligence Ethics

This course will address the ethical dilemmas and issues that challenge intelligence and government decision makers in an increasingly complex operational and technological environment. We will examine basic moral, ethical and privacy considerations at several key points in intelligence operations from collection to covert action. The course will analyze the evolving nature of privacy concerns worldwide, with an emphasis on the balance between individual rights and national security. Students will examine the policy implications inherent in seeking to address these tensions.

473.606 Legal Issues in Intelligence

This class will examine the interplay between the laws and the practices and policies of the United States' Intelligence Community and national security system, both foreign and domestic. While discussion of the history of intelligence activities and laws dating from the origins of our colonial days will necessarily shape the framework of the class, the focus shall particularly be on current debates and challenges faced by the United States in the 21st Century.

473.800 Research Seminar

This course will introduce a variety of research, analytical, and statistical methods intended to provide a basis for designing a research project, including an introduction to quantitative, qualitative, and mixed method research design. Within the context of the course, students will complete foundational work for the capstone project, including identifying and accessing relevant primary and secondary source data, surveying and evaluating the literature, and framing a research question based on the intersection of empirical studies and organizational needs. Attention will be given to the unique restrictions placed on research design and publication within the intelligence community.

473.801 Capstone: Current Issues in Intelligence

In this culminating course, students complete an independent, faculty-approved project that will address a substantive or methodological challenge in intelligence analysis. A successful capstone will include research that provides evidence of the student's mastery of the theoretical knowledge and analytical skills central to the degree's learning outcomes. The capstone provides an opportunity to apply the skills acquired throughout the program to a key challenge facing their organization or community. Students will conduct a literature review, select a research method appropriate to their study, analyze data using qualitative or quantitative methods in their capstone project, and propose and defend their findings.

Minimum Qualifications:

- An advanced degree in any relevant field, with a master's degree at minimum.
- At least five years of professional work experience within the intelligence field.

Preferred Qualifications:

- A terminal degree in international relations, global security studies, political science, history, or in a relevant field related to intelligence.
- A scholar-practitioner background and publications in the field.
- 1-3 years of graduate level teaching experience.
- Leadership experience within the US Intelligence Community.
- Online teaching experience.
- Experience in developing graduate courses.
- The background to teach a wide variety of courses in an intelligence analysis program.
- Strong interest in advising graduate students interested in an intelligence career.

Application Instructions

The position will remain open until filled. For best consideration, please apply by April 1 2023.

Candidates must submit the following:

- Cover letter should indicate the course or courses you're interested in teaching plus your experience with online learning management systems (i.e., Canvas)
- Curriculum vitae
- Teaching evaluations for two most recently taught courses
- Transcript from highest degree earned
- The selected candidate will undergo a background check and provide three references.

University of Florida

Rank: Assistant Professor in American Politics - Institutions

Institutions

The Department of Political Science at the University of Florida, College of Liberal Arts and Sciences, invites applications for a full-time, nine-month, tenure-track Assistant Professor in American Politics to begin August 16, 2023. We welcome candidates whose research focuses on political attitudes, behavior, participation, activism, and/or parties. This search is part of a thematic hiring initiative in the Department seeking to hire faculty broadly engaged in research that is field-bridging, adding to our Department's long tradition of intellectual diversity and pluralism. For this thematic initiative, we are particularly interested in candidates who combine rigorous and original scholarship in keeping with our recent cluster hire theme of race, ethnicity, gender, and identity with a focus on representation. Candidates who address this theme through the lens of American Political Behavior in their research are especially encouraged to apply.

Successful applicants are expected to teach two courses per fall and two courses per spring semester, with a mix of introductory and advanced undergraduate courses and graduate seminars. The ability to develop experiential learning opportunities for undergraduates and excel in mentoring undergraduate research in the Department's Honors and Junior Fellows programs is a plus. Applicants will have a Ph.D. in Political Science or complete the Ph.D. by August 15, 2023. Salary is competitive and commensurate with qualifications and experience, and includes a full benefits package. More information about the Department of Political Science can be found at: <http://www.polisci.ufl.edu>.

For full consideration, applications must be submitted online at <https://explore.jobs.ufl.edu/en-us/job/523737/assistant-professor-in-american-politics> and must include:

- a) Cover letter
- b) Curriculum vitae
- c) Statement of research interests/plans
- d) Statement of teaching interests/philosophy
- e) Statement of commitment to diversity in research, teaching, and mentoring
- f) A writing sample (a dissertation chapter or one article reprint or pre-print)
- g) The names and email addresses of three references must be provided.

An email will be sent to your references, requesting them to upload their confidential letter to the submission packet.

Review of applications will begin October 15, 2022, and continue until all the position is filled. All candidates for employment are subject to a pre-employment screening which includes a review of criminal records, reference checks, and verification of education.

The selected candidate will be required to provide an official transcript to the hiring department upon hire. A transcript will not be considered "official" if a designation of "Issued to Student" is visible. Degrees earned from an educational institution outside of the United States require evaluation by a professional credentialing service provider approved by the National Association of Credential Evaluation Services (NACES), which can be found at <http://www.naces.org/>.

As articulated in the goals of the university, the college values faculty who embrace diversity and inclusion in research, teaching, and service. The University of Florida is an Equal Opportunity Institution dedicated to building a broadly diverse and inclusive faculty and staff. Minorities, women, and individuals from other under-represented groups are strongly encouraged to apply. The selection process will be conducted in accordance with the provisions of Florida's Government in the Sunshine and Public Records Laws. If an accommodation due to disability is needed to apply for this position, please call (352) 392-2477 or the Florida Relay System at (800) 955-8771 (TDD).

Nanyang Technological University, Singapore

Rank: Assistant Professor of Political Theory

Subfield(s): Public Policy, International Relations, Comparative Politics

Specializations: Political Theory, Political Economy, Research Methods

Public Policy and Global Affairs
School of Social Sciences
Nanyang Technological University, Singapore

Young and research intensive, Nanyang Technological University, Singapore (NTU Singapore) is ranked among the world's top universities.

The School of Social Sciences offers undergraduate and graduate degree programmes in a full range of disciplines and actively promotes interdisciplinary learning and research.

Assistant Professor of Political Theory

The School of Social Sciences at NTU Singapore invites applications for a tenure-track Assistant Professor position in Public Policy and Global Affairs (PPGA).

The Public Policy and Global Affairs Programme is one of the four major programmes in the School of Social Sciences, together with Sociology, Psychology, and Economics. We attract excellent students to our BSocSci and PhD degree programmes and provide them with interdisciplinary training, as well as practical knowledge and skill sets necessary to dissect and address real world problems facing political leaders, policymakers, and the global community.

We seek a dedicated colleague with the necessary skills to collaborate and strengthen PPGA's research programmes and teaching portfolios, as well as commit to relevant administration duties. Personal aptitude will be important for this position.

The successful candidate will have a PhD in political science or in a related field, a strong track record of research commensurate with career stage (e.g., publishing in established peer-reviewed journals in the discipline, securing and managing externally funded research, organising conference panels and workshops) and effective teaching and training of undergraduate and/or graduate students.

Area of specialization within political theory is open, however we particularly welcome candidates who are able to offer courses in non-Western political thought. Ability to teach in a secondary discipline, comparative politics, political economy, or Singapore politics, would also be considered an asset

In addition to developing their own research programme, we expect the successful candidate to contribute to teaching undergraduate and graduate core modules in the PPGA Programme, and modules in their areas of specialisation. The successful candidate will join a dynamic team in administering the PPGA Programme.

Essential selection criteria:

- A PhD in political science or in a related field.
- A strong research and publication track record commensurate with career stage.
- Experience and interest in teaching PPGA core modules (undergraduate, graduate).
- Excellent communication, interpersonal skills, and commitment relevant to teaching, pastoral care, and administering the PPGA Programme.

Desirable selection criteria:

- Specialisation in one or more of the following subfields: political theory and research methodology.
- Research and teaching interests that strengthen and expand PPGA's research programmes and teaching portfolios.

Princeton University

Rank: Research Data Analyst, Arab Barometer

Subfield(s): Methodology, Comparative Politics, Other

Housed at Princeton University, Arab Barometer is a nonpartisan research network that provides insight into the social, political, and economic attitudes and values of citizens across the Middle East and North Africa (MENA). We have been conducting high quality and reliable public opinion surveys since 2006, making us the longest-standing and the largest repository of publicly available data on the views of citizens in the region.

The Research Data Analyst for the Arab Barometer reports to the Senior Research Specialist. The Data Analyst assists with the maintenance and development of scripts in, but not restricted to, ODK, R, and Stata related to collecting and processing Arab Barometer data. During the data collection phase, this includes programming the questionnaire, validating the programming, quality control checks on data, data cleaning, and management of Arab Barometer survey data. The position also assists in data analysis for research projects including modeling, diagnostics, and graphic visualization for reports, articles and other publications.

Arab Barometer is a close-knit team and the Data Analyst will be working directly with the project director, research associates, and communication associates. Outside of the team, the Data Analyst must also work with Princeton graduate and undergraduate students, and research colleagues in the U.S. and the Middle East and North Africa.

This is a remote, one-year term position with possibility of renewal.

Responsibilities

Graph creation: This includes the creation of standard graphs, special request graphs, and developing functions that help create graphs for the Arab Barometer's custom R package.

Data cleaning and management: This includes evaluating data validity with Arab Barometer software, identifying miscodings, and assist with labeling.

Preparing surveys: This includes researching feasibility of survey software, quickly learn the basics of programming questionnaires, and create/test sample surveys.

Research assistance: This includes reading research papers on survey methods, identifying the source of problems in code and suggesting solutions, developing and testing programs to help Arab Barometer run more efficiently.

Qualifications

Essential Qualifications:

Bachelor's degree

Three years experience

Comfortable with the programming language R, especially summarizing data and creating graphs

Ability to clearly and succinctly communicate data results

Ability to learn new skills quickly

Ability to think creatively to solve problems

Preferred Qualifications:

Familiarity with STATA

Familiarity with python

Familiarity with LaTeX

Familiarity with Arabic

Knowledge of MENA countries and regional dynamics

Familiarity with survey programming software, such as ODK, SurveyToGo, etc.

Providence College

Rank: Visiting Assistant Professor of International Relations and the Comparative Politics of Africa

The Political Science Department at Providence College invites applications for a one-year position as visiting assistant professor in International Relations/Comparative Politics with a focus on contemporary politics of Africa, for the 2023-24 academic year. The position is broadly defined, and thus the Department welcomes applicants with a range of substantive interests such as, for example, post-colonial institutions and challenges, international law and organization, democratization, social movements, conflict resolution, geopolitics, political economy, state-building, or other Africa-centered topics. The teaching load will be three courses per semester and class size varies from 12 to 25 students. This visiting assistant professor will teach courses in African Politics, International Relations, and Politics 101, the introductory course for the major.

The position includes competitive salary and benefits as well as research support, including travel funds, library resources, and grant writing assistance.

The Political Science Department has fourteen full-time faculty members dedicated to effective teaching and scholarship, with expertise in an array of topics including campaigns and elections, civic engagement, communications and the media, constitutional law, democracy and development, Latino and Black politics, environmental politics, globalization, race, gender and sexuality, social justice and equality. We study and teach on many aspects of politics in the U.S. as well as numerous other countries, with particular strengths in East Asia, Latin America, and the Middle East.

The City of Providence is a vibrant and diverse city with a long history of welcoming immigrant populations, most recently from West Africa, Latin America, and Southeast Asia.

Applicants should possess a Ph.D. in political science (or be very close to completion), and will be asked to demonstrate evidence of teaching excellence, strong research skills, and potential for research productivity. Apply online at <https://careers.providence.edu> and submit a cover letter, curriculum vita, and contact information for three professional references. For additional information, please contact Dr. Rick Battistoni, Interim Chair of the Political Science Department, at rickbatt@providence.edu with questions.

Review of applications will commence immediately and will continue until the position is filled. We welcome your application!

Providence College is a Roman Catholic four-year liberal arts institution conducted under the auspices of the Dominican Friars and seeks candidates who can affirm and contribute to its Mission. We strive to foster an academic culture and campus community that attracts and supports the development of a stellar and diverse faculty reflecting the global environment in which we live and work. As such, a pillar of Providence College's Strategic Plan for Diversity involves

“intentionally recruiting and retaining faculty and staff who are drawn to, and supportive of, the mission of the College, and who have demonstrated a commitment to the human flourishing of each member of the campus community.” To review the strategic plan, please visit <https://strategic-plan.providence.edu/pc200-full/>. ## Ben-Gurion University

Specializations: Political Behavior, Political Communication, Research Methods

Postdoctoral Position (2-3 years) in a European Research Council Project

“Participation and Representation in the Digital Age (PRD)”

We invite applications for a postdoctoral position in a European Research Council (ERC) project ($1.5 million Euro, 2023-2028) led by Prof. Jennifer Oser and hosted by Ben-Gurion University.

NOTE: The postdoctoral research position can be conducted largely remotely for candidates who prefer to be physically located in universities in the European Union (EU), EU-affiliated countries, the United States, and Canada. For candidates who wish to be located in Israel, office space can be arranged at Ben-Gurion University (<https://in.bgu.ac.il/en/pages/default.aspx>)—which is consistently highly ranked for student life by Israeli students—as well as in other Israeli universities and institutions throughout the country.

The project: A global trend has emerged in patterns of political participation over the past few decades. While voting has declined, non-electoral participation—like protest, and digital activism—has increased. A main concern is that these trends may lead to unequal representation. This project uses multiple methodological approaches to advance theory-based, empirical scholarship on the connection between participation and representation. See additional information about this project (<https://www.jenniferoser.com/erc-starting-project>) and its international collaborators (<https://www.jenniferoser.com/team-3>).

The role: The postdoctoral position is a full-time (40 hours per week), research-focused role to lead the construction of a harmonized dataset of high-quality, cross-national surveys on political participation, and to conduct data analyses outlined in the project’s work plan. The role includes:

- Leading the data management needed to construct the originally harmonized dataset.
- Conducting and publishing high-quality research, both co-authored and sole-authored.
- Support to dedicate time to personal research as part of the position (approximately 20%).
- There is no teaching obligation; teaching positions (lectureship) can be arranged if requested.

Qualifications:

- PhD (or close to completion) in political science, data science, or related fields.
- Strong methodological and quantitative background; excellent command of Stata and/or R.
- Ambition and ability to produce high-impact publications.
- Ability to work independently and to communicate effectively with a team.
- Commitment to a two-year postdoctoral position, with an option for a third year.

Benefits:

- Work as part of a supportive team committed to professional growth and intellectual discovery.
- Competitive ERC-funded salary (approximately 65,000 Euro per year for full-time position).
- Generous additional funding for international conferences and methodological workshops.
- Opportunity to advance your own research as part of a prestigious international grant project.
- Support from project PI, collaborators, and network to advance your academic skills and career.

Application:

- Please submit: (1) Letter of application describing your motivation and qualifications (2) CV with publication list and contact information for at least 2 references (3) Two writing samples, including at least one that is sole-authored (published or unpublished).
- Email the files to the project’s Administrative Manager, Raya Even-David, rayaED@bgu.ac.il.
- Applications submitted by May 25, 2023 are guaranteed full consideration. Applications will be considered on a rolling basis until the position is filled.
- Position start date: October 2023 (with flexibility).

Informal inquiries about the position are welcome: Prof. Jennifer Oser, oser@bgu.ac.il.

New School for Social Research

Rank: Professor, Comparative Politics (one semester, fixed-term)

The Department of Politics at The New School seeks applicants for a one-semester professorship in comparative politics. The Professor will offer one graduate and one undergraduate seminar during the spring 2024 semester (January 22-May 17, 2024). While research and teaching can cover any themes or regions, the department prefers applicants with a demonstrated record of university teaching experience.

The Department of Politics specializes in critical, historical, grounded, and interdisciplinary approaches to the study of politics. Faculty and students bring the leading edge of scholarly debate and analysis into conversation with pressing issues of our time. We engage in political and intellectual life at the university, in New York City, and as a part of extensive global research networks. The Department offers Bachelor of Arts, Master of Arts, and PhD degrees.

The New School is strongly committed to diversity and inclusion in the workplace and particularly seeks applications from members of underrepresented groups, as well as candidates who share this commitment.

4. Qualifications:

(1) Applicants must have research achievement in the field of Japanese Constitutional Law and Comparative Constitutional Law.

(2) Applicants must be able to teach the courses stated in “3. Courses to be taught” in both Japanese and English.

(3) Applicants must have a Ph.D. degree or expect to obtain it by the time of appointment.

(4) Ability to teach the methodology course “Research Methods in Political Science (Normative Studies)” which is a required course in the Graduate School of Political Science is desirable.

(5) Teaching experience in relevant courses at university level is desirable.

5. Number of positions available:

One

6. Position rank and title:

Professor (tenured), Associate Professor (tenured), Associate Professor (Tenure-track), or Assistant Professor (Tenure-track)

The position rank is determined by such factors as the applicant’s academic and research record, as well as evaluation during the screening process, will be made known to the applicant at the final interview with the FPSE’s dean and other executive committee members.

General Idea of Tenure-Track Positions at FPSE: (Detailed information will be provided after the second round of selection.)

A tenure-track position at FPSE shall be appointed either as Assistant Professor (tenure-track) or Associate Professor (tenure-track), for three years in the first term, followed by two years of reappointment and an additional two years of reappointment, for a total of up to seven years.

As a general rule, the interim review shall be carried out in the second semester of the third year (sixth semester) following the appointment and completed within the first three-year term on the tenure track.

When a tenure-track faculty member passes the interim review, the first reappointment of two years shall be confirmed before the end of the initial appointment (three years).

By default, the final review shall be carried out in the second semester of the fifth year (tenth semester) and completed by the end of the fifth year on the tenure track. When the tenure-track faculty member passes the final review, the faculty member will become a tenured faculty member from the following semester. The second reappointment of two years may be granted to a tenure-track faculty member who fails the final review. The tenure-track faculty member may request an interim review or a final review at any time in or after the second semester of the second year (fourth semester) following appointment.

If you have had an employment contract with Waseda University (regardless of job title) since April 1, 2013, and there is no period of at least six months without an employment contract with Waseda

University at the scheduled start of this position, in principle, there is a limit to the duration of the employment contract. Therefore, the above may not be applied.

7. Working conditions:

·Salary, allowances, and commuting expenses are commensurate with qualifications and are based on Waseda University pay scales.

·The workplace will, in principle, be on a Waseda University campus.

·Scheduled working days and working hours (starting/finishing times and rest periods) are based on university regulations. The discretionary labor system for professional work will be applied to research work. Considering the nature of research work, working hours are at the discretion of each faculty member.

·Holidays

Holidays are Saturdays, Sundays, New Year's holidays, legally recognized public holidays, and compensatory holidays appointed by the University for holding classes on public holidays and the anniversary of the University's founding. Holidays prescribed as working days determined by the University in advance will be excluded. There may be cases where classes and other types of FPSE work will be scheduled on holidays. Employees may take compensatory holiday(s) for those occasions. For the academic calendar of the university, please see the URL below.

<https://www.waseda.jp/top/en/about/work/organizations/academic-affairs-division/academic-calendar>

·Leave

Leave is determined by the Labor Standards Act and other related laws, including days that are designated by the University as leave days.

·Social insurance

Pension, health insurance, labor insurance, and employment insurance are provided based on university regulations.

·Research Funding

Individual research allowance: 210,000 yen (per year)

Academic conference traveling subsidies: 90,000 yen (per year)

International academic conference traveling subsidies: 110,000 yen (per year)

Other competitive research funds are available at Waseda University.

·Retirement benefits

Tenured Professors and tenured Associate Professors are paid in accordance with university regulations.

No retirement benefits will be provided to Associate Professors (tenure-track) and Assistant Professors (tenure-track). However, if they continue to serve as tenured faculty members after the term as tenure-track faculty members, retirement benefits will be provided in accordance with university regulations. The period of service for calculating the retirement benefits of a tenured faculty member is counted from the date of appointment as an Associate Professor (tenure-track) or Assistant Professor (tenure-track).

Nanyang Technological University, Singapore

Rank: Assistant Professor of Political Theory

Specializations: Political Theory, Political Economy, Research Methods

School of Social Sciences

Nanyang Technological University, Singapore

Young and research intensive, Nanyang Technological University, Singapore (NTU Singapore) is ranked among the world's top universities.

The School of Social Sciences offers undergraduate and graduate degree programmes in a full range of disciplines and actively promotes interdisciplinary learning and research.

Assistant Professor of Political Theory

The School of Social Sciences at NTU Singapore invites applications for a tenure-track Assistant Professor position in Public Policy and Global Affairs (PPGA).

The Public Policy and Global Affairs Programme is one of the four major programmes in the School of Social Sciences, together with Sociology, Psychology, and Economics. We attract excellent students to our BSocSci and PhD degree programmes and provide them with interdisciplinary training, as well as practical knowledge and skill sets necessary to dissect and address real world problems facing political leaders, policymakers, and the global community.

We seek a dedicated colleague with the necessary skills to collaborate and strengthen PPGA's research programmes and teaching portfolios, as well as commit to relevant administration duties. Personal aptitude will be important for this position.

The successful candidate will have a PhD in political science or in a related field, a strong track record of research commensurate with career stage (e.g., publishing in established peer-reviewed journals in the discipline, securing and managing externally funded research, organising conference panels and workshops) and effective teaching and training of undergraduate and/or graduate students.

Area of specialization within political theory is open, however we particularly welcome candidates who are able to offer courses in non-Western political thought. Ability to teach in a secondary discipline, comparative politics, political economy, or Singapore politics, would also be considered an asset

In addition to developing their own research programme, we expect the successful candidate to contribute to teaching undergraduate and graduate core modules in the PPGA Programme, and modules in their areas of specialisation. The successful candidate will join a dynamic team in administering the PPGA Programme.

Essential selection criteria:

- A PhD in political science or in a related field.
- A strong research and publication track record commensurate with career stage.
- Experience and interest in teaching PPGA core modules (undergraduate, graduate).
- Excellent communication, interpersonal skills, and commitment relevant to teaching, pastoral care, and administering the PPGA Programme.

Desirable selection criteria:

- Specialisation in one or more of the following subfields: political theory and research methodology.
- Research and teaching interests that strengthen and expand PPGA's research programmes and teaching portfolios.

Providence College

Rank: Visiting Assistant Professor of International Relations and the Comparative Politics of Africa

The Political Science Department at Providence College invites applications for a one-year position as visiting assistant professor in International Relations/Comparative Politics with a focus on contemporary politics of Africa, for the 2023-24 academic year. The position is broadly defined, and thus the Department welcomes applicants with a range of substantive interests such as, for example, post-colonial institutions and challenges, international law and organization, democratization, social movements, conflict resolution, geopolitics, political economy, state-building, or other Africa-centered topics. The teaching load will be three courses per semester and class size varies from 12 to 25 students. This visiting assistant professor will teach courses in African Politics, International Relations, and Politics 101, the introductory course for the major.

The position includes competitive salary and benefits as well as research support, including travel funds, library resources, and grant writing assistance.

The Political Science Department has fourteen full-time faculty members dedicated to effective teaching and scholarship, with expertise in an array of topics including campaigns and elections, civic engagement, communications and the media, constitutional law, democracy and development, Latino and Black politics, environmental politics, globalization, race, gender and sexuality, social justice and equality. We study and teach on many aspects of politics in the U.S. as well as numerous other countries, with particular strengths in East Asia, Latin America, and the Middle East.

The City of Providence is a vibrant and diverse city with a long history of welcoming immigrant populations, most recently from West Africa, Latin America, and Southeast Asia.

Applicants should possess a Ph.D. in political science (or be very close to completion), and will be asked to demonstrate evidence of teaching excellence, strong research skills, and potential for research productivity. Apply online at <https://careers.providence.edu> and submit a cover letter, curriculum vita, and contact information for three professional references. For additional information, please contact Dr. Rick Battistoni, Interim Chair of the Political Science Department, at rickbatt@providence.edu with questions.

Review of applications will commence immediately and will continue until the position is filled. We welcome your application!

Providence College is a Roman Catholic four-year liberal arts institution conducted under the auspices of the Dominican Friars and seeks candidates who can affirm and contribute to its Mission. We strive to foster an academic culture and campus community that attracts and supports the development of a stellar and diverse faculty reflecting the global environment in which we live and work. As such, a pillar of Providence College's Strategic Plan for Diversity involves "intentionally recruiting and retaining faculty and staff who are drawn to, and supportive of, the mission of the College, and who have demonstrated a commitment to the human flourishing of each member of the campus community." To review the strategic plan, please visit <https://strategic-plan.providence.edu/pc200-full/>. ## University of Tennessee, Knoxville

Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Public Law, International Relations

The Department of Political Science at the University of Tennessee, Knoxville invites applications for a non-tenure track, nine-month, full-time Lecturer to begin on August 1, 2023. The initial appointment for this nine-month position will be for one year, but with the likelihood of renewal based on quality of instruction, funding, and department need. The successful candidate will teach four classes in both fall and spring semesters. Lecturers can also teach in summer and winter mini-terms, depending on staffing needs. We seek candidates who are dedicated to a career of exceptional teaching of Political Science. This position will likely provide a path to promotion to Senior Lecturer and ultimately Distinguished Lecturer, which entail salary increases and extended appointments. Several lecturers in our current department have been on faculty for a decade or more and have successfully advanced to the distinguished and senior lecturer ranks. Professional development opportunities are available to Lecturers and supported by both the Department and College. Responsibilities include modest service roles. Candidates must have a PhD in Political Science or equivalent at the time of appointment. We are seeking candidates with a strong background in American Politics, International Relations, and or Comparative Politics, and a commitment to fostering the goals of the department, college, and university.

The University of Tennessee enrolls over 30,000 students at its Knoxville campus. UTK is the state's only public Carnegie Doctoral/Research Extensive University and is currently ranked among the nation's Top 50 public universities. The Department of Political Science has approximately 600 undergraduate majors and 30 MA and Ph.D. students. The city of Knoxville, with a population of 200,000 and growing, is a hidden gem with a beautiful and walkable downtown, varied nightlife, active neighborhoods, and eclectic cultural activities, shopping, and restaurants. It is home to the Knoxville Symphony and the Knoxville Opera, as well as annual festivals like the international Big Ears Music Festival, Jazz on the Square, and Shakespeare on the Square. Trip Advisor recently named Knoxville a Top Ten Destination on the Rise. UTK is located within easy driving distance to Atlanta, Nashville, Asheville, and the Great Smoky Mountains.

Qualifications

PhD in Political Science or equivalent is required at the time of appointment. Record of successful teaching and mentoring in an institution of higher education related to American Politics, Comparative Politics, or International Relations is preferred. Experience or demonstrated ability in the design and delivery of courses in a variety of formats, including face-to-face, synchronous online, asynchronous online, and hybrid is preferred. Ability to work collaboratively with faculty, students, and staff from a wide range of disciplines, cultures and academic backgrounds is essential. The Knoxville campus of the University of Tennessee is seeking candidates who have the ability to contribute in meaningful ways to the diversity and intercultural goals of the University.

The University of Tennessee, Knoxville, is the state's flagship research institution, a campus of choice for outstanding undergraduates, and a premier graduate institution. As a land-grant university, it is committed to excellence in learning, scholarship, and engagement with society. More information about the Department is available at: <https://polisci.utk.edu/>.

Finally, the postdoc will work with how to model how political institutions affect communities' vulnerability to the impact of armed conflict.

Coding of data, quality control and/or data management during peak periods may be part of the work. Outreach and collaboration with institutions in society may also be part of the job.

You must have a doctoral degree in preferably political science or related discipline. We are looking for a candidate with previous experience of research relating to the research areas described above.

Applications will be evaluated primarily on research excellence in comparative politics with a focus on areas of relevance to one of the projects listed above.

Candidates must have a strong record in one or more of the following areas:

- Explicit interest in conducting research laid out in the agenda of the in the research program on "Communities at risk: The impact of armed conflict on Human Development", and solving the scientific problems identified, with demonstrated abilities to provide original, state-of-the-art, and creative solutions to such research problems.
- Advanced statistical competences in areas such as regression techniques, and/or related approaches.

Advantageous criteria include:

- Prior use of V-Dem and UCDP data in applied research or similar evidence of familiarity with the project.
- Experience of machine learning, predictive modelling, and/or related approaches.
- Demonstrated resourcefulness, flexibility, and very good ability to do teamwork in different configurations.
- Experience working collaboratively on a large-scale research project.

Applicants must have excellent written and oral proficiency in English.

To be successful in this position, you must have an eye for detail, good organizational skills and be able to solve problems. You need to have very high communication and collaboration skills.

Great emphasis is placed on personal suitability for the position. We will make an overall assessment and the applicant who is considered to be best qualified to carry out and develop the tasks described above will be appointed to the position.

Johns Hopkins University

Rank: Adjunct Faculty: Intelligence Analysis

Location:

Open Date:

Feb 01, 2023

POSITION:

Adjunct Faculty, Intelligence Analysis
Krieger School of Arts and Sciences

INSTITUTION:

Johns Hopkins University

Institution Description:

The Advanced Academic Programs (AAP) is a division of the Krieger School of Arts and Sciences at the Johns Hopkins University (JHU). As the nation's oldest and one of the most prestigious research universities, Johns Hopkins offers high-quality master's degrees and post-baccalaureate education to students in the mid-Atlantic region and online. In addition to the online programs, AAP also offers master's degrees and graduate certificate programs at its Washington, DC Center and at the Homewood campus in Baltimore, MD. AAP has approximately 18,000 enrollments each academic year. JHU is committed to hiring candidates who, through their teaching and service, will contribute to the diversity and excellence of the academic community.

Position Description:

The Advanced Academic Programs (AAP) division seeks non-tenure track adjunct faculty to teach several courses within the MS in Intelligence Analysis program. The course(s) will be taught fully online beginning in Summer 2023 and beyond. Candidates with online course development and teaching experience and those with experience teaching and engaging students from diverse backgrounds are of particular interest. We are looking for faculty who can teach one or more of the following courses:

473.600 the Art and Practice of Intelligence

This course introduces students to the field of intelligence, particularly as practiced in the United States. After a brief overview of the historical foundations of modern intelligence, it discusses how intelligence is conducted including collection, analysis, counterintelligence, covert action, and oversight. It also discusses intelligence ethics, as well as the disruptive influences of September 11, new technologies, and emerging social trends.

473.602 Intelligence Analysis

Intelligence analysis is fundamentally about understanding and communicating to decision makers what is known, not known, and surmised, as it can best be determined. Students will read seminal texts on intelligence analysis, discuss the complex cognitive, psychological, organizational, ethical, and legal issues surrounding intelligence analysis now and, in the past, and apply analytic methodologies to real-world problems.

473.604 Advanced Critical Thinking and Analysis

Critical thinking involves the methods and principles of correct reasoning and argumentation. Students will apply a combination of logic, critical thinking skills, and structured analytical techniques to identify biases, promote self-reflective reasoning, and improve the quality of intelligence analysis. Using a selection of empirical case studies and operational exemplars, students will conduct a comparative assessment of analytical outcomes based on the application of course learnings versus outcomes derived in their absence.

473.607 Intelligence Ethics

This course will address the ethical dilemmas and issues that challenge intelligence and government decision makers in an increasingly complex operational and technological environment. We will examine basic moral, ethical and privacy considerations at several key points in intelligence operations from collection to covert action. The course will analyze the evolving nature of privacy concerns worldwide, with an emphasis on the balance between individual rights and national security. Students will examine the policy implications inherent in seeking to address these tensions.

473.606 Legal Issues in Intelligence

This class will examine the interplay between the laws and the practices and policies of the United States' Intelligence Community and national security system, both foreign and domestic. While discussion of the history of intelligence activities and laws dating from the origins of our colonial days will necessarily shape the framework of the class, the focus shall particularly be on current debates and challenges faced by the United States in the 21st Century.

473.800 Research Seminar

This course will introduce a variety of research, analytical, and statistical methods intended to provide a basis for designing a research project, including an introduction to quantitative, qualitative, and mixed method research design. Within the context of the course, students will complete foundational work for the capstone project, including identifying and accessing relevant primary and secondary source data, surveying and evaluating the literature, and framing a research question based on the intersection of empirical studies and organizational needs. Attention will be given to the unique restrictions placed on research design and publication within the intelligence community.

473.801 Capstone: Current Issues in Intelligence

In this culminating course, students complete an independent, faculty-approved project that will address a substantive or methodological challenge in intelligence analysis. A successful capstone will include research that provides evidence of the student's mastery of the theoretical knowledge and analytical skills central to the degree's learning outcomes. The capstone provides an opportunity to apply the skills acquired throughout the program to a key challenge facing their organization or community. Students will conduct a literature review, select a research method appropriate to their study, analyze data using qualitative or quantitative methods in their capstone project, and propose and defend their findings.

Minimum Qualifications:

- An advanced degree in any relevant field, with a master's degree at minimum.
- At least five years of professional work experience within the intelligence field.

Preferred Qualifications:

- A terminal degree in international relations, global security studies, political science, history, or in a relevant field related to intelligence.
- A scholar-practitioner background and publications in the field.
- 1-3 years of graduate level teaching experience.
- Leadership experience within the US Intelligence Community.
- Online teaching experience.
- Experience in developing graduate courses.
- The background to teach a wide variety of courses in an intelligence analysis program.
- Strong interest in advising graduate students interested in an intelligence career.

Application Instructions

The position will remain open until filled. For best consideration, please apply by April 1 2023.

Candidates must submit the following:

- Cover letter should indicate the course or courses you're interested in teaching plus your experience with online learning management systems (i.e., Canvas)
- Curriculum vitae
- Teaching evaluations for two most recently taught courses
- Transcript from highest degree earned
- The selected candidate will undergo a background check and provide three references.

College of Saint Rose

Rank: Assistant Professor of Comparative Politics and International Relations

The College of Saint Rose, located in the capital city of Albany, New York, is a private, independent, coeducational institution of higher education offering 90 bachelor's degree, master's degree, and certificate programs, as well as a variety of accelerated degree paths. Through a strong liberal arts education curriculum and professional academic programs, the College serves undergraduate and graduate students, working professionals, international students, and more. Visit www.strose.edu for additional information.

A hub of government, higher education and industry in the beautiful Capital Region, Albany sits at the intersection of the Tech Corridor. The Capital Region is a wonderful place to live, teach, and pursue research, offering restful residential neighborhoods and bustling cultural centers, high quality school districts, and countless recreational, entertainment, and educational venues for young professionals and families. For over a century, The College of Saint Rose has been an integral part of this dynamic and vibrant community, with a strong record of teaching as well as a diverse population of students and graduates volunteering and working in government and service agencies, schools, local businesses, and multinational and regional companies. Commuters and vacationers are a short train or car ride away from New York City, Boston, and Montreal, and minutes from the Albany International Airport.

Founded in 1920 by the Sisters of Saint Joseph of Carondelet, the College is proud of its mission of service to the urban community. As an institution that values inclusion, we seek to attract and employ individuals who reflect the cultural diversity found within our student body, and across the nation and globe. The College is proud of its liberal arts and professional programs, and trains more teachers than any other institution of higher education in New York State.

Job Description:

The College of Saint Rose invites applications and nominations for an Assistant Professor of International Relations and Comparative Politics in the School of Arts and Humanities, beginning August 2023. This is a full time, tenure track position.

Drawing from a long, robust learning tradition, the School of Arts & Humanities is a dynamic community of experienced and creative artists, musicians, writers, teachers, and researchers who prepare graduates to think critically, communicate effectively, and address the needs of our increasingly complex society.

Responsibilities will include teaching 12 credits (3 courses) per semester of courses from among the following:

POS 171: International Relations

POS 173: Comparative Politics

Upper-level courses in the candidate's area of expertise

Additionally, responsibilities include contributing to the continuing development and refinement of the program, engaging in scholarship, attending internal and external events applicable to the College and the candidate's academic discipline, academic advising, program assessment, curriculum development, and participation in Department, School, and College committees.

Desired Skills and Experience Requirements:

The successful candidate will have a Ph.D. from an accredited institution in Political Science, Government, or a closely related academic field, at the time of appointment on August 14, 2023.

An ABD from an accredited institution in Political Science, Government, or a closely related academic field, will be considered if the degree will be completed within 1 year from date of appointment.

Additional requirements include: a demonstrated commitment to excellence in teaching, a record of scholarly work or professional impact in the field of International Relations or Comparative Politics, demonstrated experience working with a diverse student population, superior written and oral communication skills and, if selected to advance, a successful demonstration of teaching ability and scholarship during the on campus interview.

Review of applicant credentials will begin immediately. Applications will be accepted until the position is filled.

Additional Information:

Rank: Lecturer

The International Studies Program at the University of Florida (UF), College of Liberal Arts and Sciences, invites applications for a full-time, non-tenure track appointment at the rank of Lecturer. Applicants should focus regionally on the Middle East and/or North Africa, and topically in the areas of global health, governance, civil society, data and public policy, sustainable development, or related subjects.

The International Studies program is a dynamic interdisciplinary major at UF that prepares students for careers in global affairs, international business, research organizations, and other careers by providing foreign language skills, regional cultural awareness, and informed knowledge of critical international issues in global and local context. The International Studies Program is housed in UF's Bob Graham Center for Public Service. The Graham Center prepares students to engage in their communities, to influence policy, and to interact with lawmakers through the Center's public programs, special projects, academic coursework, and research initiatives. The successful candidate will join a collaborative and inclusive team dedicated to promoting the ideals of civic engagement, public leadership, and public service at the local, national, and global levels.

The Lecturer will teach two courses per semester and provide substantial service. Of those courses, it is expected that two will be regularly offered core courses for the International Studies Program: 1) an introductory course in International Studies (INS3004: International Studies Perspectives); and 2) a senior capstone course for majors (INS4930: Senior Research Seminar in International Studies). The remainder of courses taught will correspond to the Lecturer's specialization. Outside of teaching, the Lecturer will serve as the Experiential Learning Coordinator for the International Studies Program, partnering with other programs at UF to identify and develop opportunities for internships, study abroad experiences, and student research. The exact balance between service and teaching duties will depend on the needs of the program and will be determined on an annual basis.

Lecturers are highly valued by the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences and by the University of Florida. To encourage and facilitate the professional development of lecturers, the university provides opportunities for promotion from the ranks of Lecturer to Senior Lecturer and Master Lecturer. Lecturer appointments are typically for nine months per year and are annually renewable.

The International Studies Program and the Bob Graham Center are committed to fostering an environment that affirms diversity across a variety of dimensions including ethnicity/race, gender identity and expression. We particularly welcome applicants who can contribute to developing such an environment through their scholarship, teaching, mentoring, and professional service.

University of Kansas

Rank: Assistant Professor Russian and/or Eurasian International Relations

Specializations: Russia, Foreign Policy, Political Economy

Assistant Professor Russian and/or Eurasian International Relations

Department of Political Science, University of Kansas

The University of Kansas (KU) Department of Political Science of the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences in collaboration with the university's Center for Russian, East European & Eurasian Studies (CREES) invites applications for a tenure-track Assistant Professorship in Russian and/or Eurasian International Relations beginning August 18, 2023. Successful candidates will be able to demonstrate methodological training that is appropriate with their theoretical approaches as well as provide evidence of the capacity to publish in major journals or presses in political science. Preference will be given to applicants with research and/or teaching specialty in Russian and Eurasian international relations including foreign policy, security, political economy, and the opportunity to develop courses in the candidate's own areas of expertise.

Candidates are expected to contribute to the political science department as well as CREES' interdisciplinary intellectual community and mentor undergraduate and graduate students in Russian, East European, and Eurasian Studies. The Political Science Department and CREES are committed to fostering an inclusive and supportive educational environment for students, faculty and staff. The successful candidates will have experience with diversity, equity, and inclusion in higher education.

Required Qualifications: 1) A doctorate in Political Science. If ABD, the dissertation must be successfully defended by the position start date; 2) Demonstrated commitment to excellence in teaching at the undergraduate and graduate level; 3) Demonstrated ability or plans to develop an innovative body of research and scholarship as evidenced by scholarly publications, presentations, and/or other scholarly activities; 4) Expertise on Russia and/or Eurasia, demonstrated by dissertation chapters, working papers, or publications of relevance to the region

At the University of Kansas, diversity, equity, inclusion, and belonging are an important part of our culture and university strategic plan.

Applications from members of underrepresented groups are encouraged, noting the value that differences bring to our organization, students, staff, faculty, and community. The successful candidate must be eligible to work in the U.S. by the effective date of the appointment.

For further details and a full position description, go to: <https://employment.ku.edu/academic/23401BR>. A complete application package includes: (1) a cover letter summarizing research goals and teaching experiences and interests; (2) curriculum vitae; (3) teaching statement showing evidence of teaching ability; (4) a research statement with goals and research potential (samples of published work or conference papers); and (5) the names, email addresses, and contact information for 3 professional references. ABD candidates need to include advisor contact information

In addition to the materials above, learning about each applicant's contribution and engagement in areas of diversity is an important part of KU's mission. As a result, applicants will be presented the following question at the time of application. The response must be within 4,000 characters or less: Describe your experiences working with people from diverse backgrounds and explain how those experiences reflect your commitments to diversity, equity, and inclusion.

Application review will begin October 15, 2022, and will remain open until the position is filled. For more information, please contact Clayton Webb, Search Committee Chair at webb767@ku.edu.

Lehigh University

Rank: Assistant Professor

Assistant Professor of International Relations: International Organization

Department of International Relations

<https://academicjobsonline.org/ajob/jobs/22687>

The Department of International Relations at Lehigh University invites applications for a tenure track faculty position at the assistant professor rank in International Organization (IO) starting in August 2023. We are open to IO scholars with broadly defined regional foci, methodological orientations, and specializations including but not limited to international law, sustainable human development, non-government organizations, environment, human rights, and global governance. The successful candidate should have an earned Ph.D. in political science by the date of employment. Interested candidates should submit a letter of interest, CV, writing samples/publications, statement of teaching philosophy, and, if available, evidence of teaching effectiveness to the IR search committee. Please also arrange to have three letters of recommendation sent to Academic Jobs Online. Only submissions via Academic Jobs Online will be considered. Applications received by October 1, 2022 will be given fullest consideration, and will continue to be reviewed until the post is filled.

Lehigh is among the few higher educational institutions in the US that has long had a separate department of IR. This means that students with a particular interest in international affairs will benefit from a concentrated program of study that few other schools offer. The standard teaching load is 2-2, and the successful candidate will have a strong commitment to excellence in both research and undergraduate teaching.

Founded in 1865, Lehigh University has combined outstanding academic and learning opportunities with leadership in fostering innovative research. Recognized among the nation's highly ranked research universities, Lehigh offers a rigorous academic community for nearly 7,000 students. Lehigh University has some 5,000 undergraduates, 2,000 graduate students, and about 550 full-time faculty members. Lehigh University is located in Bethlehem, PA., a vibrant and historic area. Over 820,000 people live in the Lehigh Valley, which is in close proximity to New York City and Philadelphia.

Lehigh University is an affirmative action/equal opportunity employer and does not discriminate on the basis of age, color, disability, gender identity or expression, genetic information, marital or familial status, national or ethnic origin, race, religion, sex, sexual orientation, or veteran status. We are committed to increasing the diversity of the campus community. Lehigh University is committed to a culturally and intellectually diverse academic community and is especially interested in candidates who can contribute, through their research, teaching and/or service, to this mission. Lehigh University is the recipient of an NSF ADVANCE Institutional Transformation award for promoting the careers of women in academic sciences and engineering (<http://www.lehigh.edu/luadvance/>) and is among institutions of higher education recognized for excellence in diversity with the INSIGHT into Diversity HEED Award. ## METHODOLOGY

Princeton University

Subfield(s): Methodology, Comparative Politics, Other

Housed at Princeton University, Arab Barometer is a nonpartisan research network that provides insight into the social, political, and economic attitudes and values of citizens across the Middle East and North Africa (MENA). We have been conducting high quality and reliable public opinion surveys since 2006, making us the longest-standing and the largest repository of publicly available data on the views of citizens in the region.

The Research Data Analyst for the Arab Barometer reports to the Senior Research Specialist. The Data Analyst assists with the maintenance and development of scripts in, but not restricted to, ODK, R, and Stata related to collecting and processing Arab Barometer data. During the data collection phase, this includes programming the questionnaire, validating the programming, quality control checks on data, data cleaning, and management of Arab Barometer survey data. The position also assists in data analysis for research projects including modeling, diagnostics, and graphic visualization for reports, articles and other publications.

Arab Barometer is a close-knit team and the Data Analyst will be working directly with the project director, research associates, and communication associates. Outside of the team, the Data Analyst must also work with Princeton graduate and undergraduate students, and research colleagues in the U.S. and the Middle East and North Africa.

This is a remote, one-year term position with possibility of renewal.

Responsibilities

Graph creation: This includes the creation of standard graphs, special request graphs, and developing functions that help create graphs for the Arab Barometer's custom R package.

Data cleaning and management: This includes evaluating data validity with Arab Barometer software, identifying miscodings, and assist with labeling.

Preparing surveys: This includes researching feasibility of survey software, quickly learn the basics of programming questionnaires, and create/test sample surveys.

Research assistance: This includes reading research papers on survey methods, identifying the source of problems in code and suggesting solutions, developing and testing programs to help Arab Barometer run more efficiently.

Qualifications

Essential Qualifications:

Bachelor's degree

Three years experience

Comfortable with the programming language R, especially summarizing data and creating graphs

Ability to clearly and succinctly communicate data results

Ability to learn new skills quickly

Ability to think creatively to solve problems

Preferred Qualifications:

Familiarity with STATA

Familiarity with python

Familiarity with LaTeX

Familiarity with Arabic

Knowledge of MENA countries and regional dynamics

Familiarity with survey programming software, such as ODK, SurveyToGo, etc.

Ben-Gurion University

Rank: Postdoctoral Research Associate

Specializations: Political Behavior, Political Communication, Research Methods

Postdoctoral Position (2-3 years) in a European Research Council Project

“Participation and Representation in the Digital Age (PRD)”

We invite applications for a postdoctoral position in a European Research Council (ERC) project ($1.5 million Euro, 2023–2028) led by Prof. Jennifer Oser and hosted by Ben-Gurion University.

NOTE: The postdoctoral research position can be conducted largely remotely for candidates who prefer to be physically located in universities in the European Union (EU), EU-affiliated countries, the United States, and Canada. For candidates who wish to be located in Israel, office space can be arranged at Ben-Gurion University (<https://in.bgu.ac.il/en/pages/default.aspx>)—which is consistently highly ranked for student life by Israeli students—as well as in other Israeli universities and institutions throughout the country.

The project: A global trend has emerged in patterns of political participation over the past few decades. While voting has declined, non-electoral participation—like protest, and digital activism—has increased. A main concern is that these trends may lead to unequal representation. This project uses multiple methodological approaches to advance theory-based, empirical scholarship on the connection between participation and representation. See additional information about this project (<https://www.jenniferoser.com/erc-starting-project>) and its international collaborators (<https://www.jenniferoser.com/team-3>).

The role: The postdoctoral position is a full-time (40 hours per week), research-focused role to lead the construction of a harmonized dataset of high-quality, cross-national surveys on political participation, and to conduct data analyses outlined in the project's work plan. The role includes:

- Leading the data management needed to construct the originally harmonized dataset.
- Conducting and publishing high-quality research, both co-authored and sole-authored.
- Support to dedicate time to personal research as part of the position (approximately 20%).
- There is no teaching obligation; teaching positions (lectureship) can be arranged if requested.

Qualifications:

- PhD (or close to completion) in political science, data science, or related fields.
- Strong methodological and quantitative background; excellent command of Stata and/or R.
- Ambition and ability to produce high-impact publications.
- Ability to work independently and to communicate effectively with a team.
- Commitment to a two-year postdoctoral position, with an option for a third year.

Benefits:

- Work as part of a supportive team committed to professional growth and intellectual discovery.
- Competitive ERC-funded salary (approximately 65,000 Euro per year for full-time position).
- Generous additional funding for international conferences and methodological workshops.
- Opportunity to advance your own research as part of a prestigious international grant project.
- Support from project PI, collaborators, and network to advance your academic skills and career.

Application:

- Please submit: (1) Letter of application describing your motivation and qualifications (2) CV with publication list and contact information for at least 2 references (3) Two writing samples, including at least one that is sole-authored (published or unpublished).
- Email the files to the project's Administrative Manager, Raya Even-David, rayaED@bgu.ac.il.

- Applications submitted by May 25, 2023 are guaranteed full consideration. Applications will be considered on a rolling basis until the position is filled.

- Position start date: October 2023 (with flexibility).

Informal inquiries about the position are welcome: Prof. Jennifer Oser, oser@bgu.ac.il.

Faculty Recruitment Information in Journalism/ Media

The Faculty of Political Science and Economics at Waseda University invites applications for a tenure-track or tenured position in Journalism/ Media to begin in the spring of 2024 at the earliest.

Waseda University, founded in 1882, is a leading private research university located in central Tokyo. As part of its globalization efforts, the Faculty of Political Science and Economics (FPSE) has been offering degree programs in English for both undergraduate and graduate students since 2010, in addition to degree programs in Japanese. The programs provide diverse and dynamic academic opportunities for talented students from all around the world.

1. Affiliation:

The Faculty of Political Science and Economics, Waseda University

2. Field:

Journalism/ Media

3. Courses to be taught:

The successful candidate will teach specialized courses in the Journalism Course of the Graduate School of Political Science (Master and Doctoral Program), seminars of the Journalism Category or the Media Category in the graduate programs, and related topics in FPSE including "Advanced seminar" in the undergraduate program.

4. Qualifications:

- (1) Applicants must have empirical research achievement using data analysis in the field of Journalism or Media.
- (2) Applicants must be able to teach the courses stated in "3. Courses to be taught" in both Japanese and English.
- (3) Applicants must have a Ph.D. degree or expect to obtain it by the time of appointment.
- (4) Ability to teach at least one of the introductory methodology courses which is a required course for the Political Science Course in the Graduate School of Political Science.
- (5) Teaching experience in relevant courses at university level is desirable.
- (6) Ability to develop, coordinate, and formulate the educational curriculum for the Journalism Course is desirable.

5. Number of positions available:
One

6. Position rank and title:
Professor (tenured), Associate Professor (tenured), Associate Professor (Tenure-track), or Assistant Professor (Tenure-track)

The position rank is determined by such factors as the applicant's academic and research record, as well as evaluation during the screening process, will be made known to the applicant at the final interview with the FPSE's dean and other executive committee members.

General Idea of Tenure-Track Positions at FPSE: (Detailed information will be provided after the second round of selection.)

A tenure-track position at FPSE shall be appointed either as Assistant Professor (tenure-track) or Associate Professor (tenure-track), for three years in the first term, followed by two years of reappointment and an additional two years of reappointment, for a total of up to seven years. As a general rule, the interim review shall be carried out in the second semester of the third year (sixth semester) following the appointment and completed within the first three-year term on the tenure track. When a tenure-track faculty member passes the interim review, the first reappointment of two years shall be confirmed before the end of the initial appointment (three years).

By default, the final review shall be carried out in the second semester of the fifth year (tenth semester) and completed by the end of the fifth year on the tenure track. When the tenure-track faculty member passes the final review, the faculty member will become a tenured faculty member from the following semester. The second reappointment of two years may be granted to a tenure-track faculty member who fails the final review. The tenure-track faculty member may request an interim review or a final review at any time in or after the second semester of the second year (fourth semester) following appointment.

If you have had an employment contract with Waseda University (regardless of job title) since April 1, 2013, and there is no period of at least six months without an employment contract with Waseda University at the scheduled start of this position, in principle, there is a limit to the duration of the employment contract. Therefore, the above may not be applied.

7. Working conditions:

·Salary, allowances, and commuting expenses are commensurate with qualifications and are based on Waseda University pay scales.

·The workplace will, in principle, be on a Waseda University campus.

·Scheduled working days and working hours (starting/finishing times and rest periods) are based on university regulations. The discretionary labor system for professional work will be applied to research work. Considering the nature of research work, working hours are at the discretion of each faculty member.

·Holidays

Holidays are Saturdays, Sundays, New Year's holidays, legally recognized public holidays, and compensatory holidays appointed by the University for holding classes on public holidays and the anniversary of the University's founding. Holidays prescribed as working days determined by the University in advance will be excluded. There may be cases where classes and other types of FPSE work will be scheduled on holidays. Employees may take compensatory holiday(s) for those occasions. For the academic calendar of the university, please see the URL below.

<https://www.waseda.jp/top/en/about/work/organizations/academic-affairs-division/academic-calendar>

·Leave

Leave is determined by the Labor Standards Act and other related laws, including days that are designated by the University as leave days.

University of Gothenburg

Rank: Post-Doctoral Research Fellow, V-Dem Institute, University of Gothenburg

Specializations: Conflict Processes, International Security, Political Development

Varieties of Democracy (V-Dem) is a large-scale, international data collection and research-program. The V-Dem Institute, Directed by Professor Staffan I. Lindberg, is the headquarters but also hosts several additional research programs. For more information: <https://v-dem.net>

This postdoc is mainly for fulfilling the V-Dem Institute's part (Work Package 6) in the collaboration with Professor Håvard Hegre (Uppsala University) in the research program on “Communities at risk: The impact of armed conflict on Human Development” funded by Riksbankens Jubileumsfond. The postdoc will also be able to be part of other research projects at the Institute.

The postdoc will study the impact of armed conflict on various aspects of political institutions. Using indicators from the Varieties of Democracy project, seek to distinguish between the effects on elections, on institutions ensuring legislative or judicial constraints, and on civil society and freedom of speech and association. The postdoc will also explore how these institutions work to help preventing armed conflict in the first place partly by establishing a sound counterfactual for the impact of armed conflict, partly to feed in to the conflict forecasting in another part of the overall research program. Finally, the postdoc will work with how to model how political institutions affect communities' vulnerability to the impact of armed conflict.

Coding of data, quality control and/or data management during peak periods may be part of the work. Outreach and collaboration with institutions in society may also be part of the job.

You must have a doctoral degree in preferably political science or related discipline. We are looking for a candidate with previous experience of research relating to the research areas described above.

Applications will be evaluated primarily on research excellence in comparative politics with a focus on areas of relevance to one of the projects listed above.

Candidates must have a strong record in one or more of the following areas:

- Explicit interest in conducting research laid out in the agenda of the in the research program on “Communities at risk: The impact of armed conflict on Human Development”, and solving the scientific problems identified, with demonstrated abilities to provide original, state-of-the-art, and creative solutions to such research problems.
- Advanced statistical competences in areas such as regression techniques, and/or related approaches.

Advantageous criteria include:

- Prior use of V-Dem and UCDDP data in applied research or similar evidence of familiarity with the project.
- Experience of machine learning, predictive modelling, and/or related approaches.
- Demonstrated resourcefulness, flexibility, and very good ability to do teamwork in different configurations.
- Experience working collaboratively on a large-scale research project.

Applicants must have excellent written and oral proficiency in English.

To be successful in this position, you must have an eye for detail, good organizational skills and be able to solve problems. You need to have very high communication and collaboration skills.

Great emphasis is placed on personal suitability for the position. We will make an overall assessment and the applicant who is considered to be best qualified to carry out and develop the tasks described above will be appointed to the position.

How to apply:

Applications are submitted online at: https://web103.reachmee.com/ext/1005/1035/job?site=7&lang=UK&validator=9b89bead79bb7258ad55c8d75228e5b7&job\_id=29916

The application should include the following:

- 470.854 Fundamentals of Quantitative Methods

This course trains students to be informed consumers of quantitative studies, in addition to teaching the tools of basic statistical work. The course material covers basic descriptive statistics, inferential statistics, and data collection. The key learning objective is for students to develop a better understanding of the statistical and econometric results they may encounter in their careers.

- 470.631 Economics for Public Decision-making

This course aims to offer students an understanding of economics and its importance in public policymaking. The first half of the course will offer students an understanding of microeconomic and macroeconomic theory, including a discussion of when markets can work to achieve policy goals and when "market failures" call for government intervention. The second half of the class will use these economic tools and theories to survey several specific policy areas, including health policy, tax policy, and the national debt.

- 470.608 Public Policy Evaluation and the Policy Process

This course introduces students to the public policymaking process, the basics of policy analysis, and the substance of some of today's major policy debates. The first half of the course focuses on establishing a framework in which to analyze public policy formulation within the United States. The class also reviews the tools for developing and implementing policy. The second half of the course turns to policy analysis of some critical contemporary issues.

- 470.605 Global Political Economy

In this course, students investigate core topics in international political economy, analyzing the security implications of each. Topics include trade relations, international finance, monetary relations, poverty, and development.

Do you want to use your empirical research skills to advance individual rights? This is what the Institute for Justice's Strategic Research team does every day, creating data-driven research used by journalists, law-makers, advocates, and courts to bring light to government abuse and achieve reform. We are seeking entrepreneurial researchers to join our team in leadership roles. Title is negotiable to reflect research and managerial skills and experience.

Responsibilities include:

- Developing and executing research plans on a wide range of cutting-edge topics, such as civil forfeiture, occupational licensing, qualified immunity, zoning/housing, and 4th Amendment rights.
- o Working closely with IJ attorneys and researchers to generate research questions that advance our issues and to identify the strongest methods to answer them.
- o Finding datasets or creative ways to build them, as well as managing data collection.
- o Manipulating and analyzing large datasets with both descriptive and inferential statistics, as well as drafting and managing surveys.
- o Mining research literature for new ideas, potential collaborators, and methodological insights.
- o Leading both solo and team projects.
- Managing and mentoring junior researchers and assistants to maintain high standards of accuracy, methodological rigor, and integrity.
- Ensuring research findings reach key audiences, such as journalists and lawmakers, to bring important issues to prominence and create policy change.
- o Writing clear, accessible reports for general audiences, as well as articles for peer-reviewed journals.
- o Conducting media interviews; testifying before legislatures and city councils; writing media materials, such as op-eds and letters to the editor; speaking at public events.
- o Strategizing with IJ's communications, legislative, activism, and research teams to maximize distribution and impact.

Qualifications:

- Passion for policy research and IJ's mission of championing property rights, economic liberty, free speech, and educational choice.
- Ph.D. in social sciences or statistics with an emphasis on research methods, applied statistics, or applied economics; or master's degree in applied statistics or applied economics with three years' experience.
- Proficiency with statistical software such as Stata; proficiency with Python, R, or GIS is helpful.
- Experience conducting policy research, such as with a policy institute, in a legislative, executive, or regulatory role, or through a university-based research center.
- Excellent written and oral communication skills, especially for non-technical audiences.
- Proven ability to handle multiple projects and meet deadlines; experience managing project teams preferred.
- Strong problem-solving and critical-thinking skills.
- Self-motivation and enthusiasm for collaboration.

Benefits:

- Hybrid work schedule
- Flexible work hours with our core business hours of 10am and 4pm
- Work from home equipment reimbursement
- Casual dress code
- Health, Dental, and Vision insurance (IJ covers 100% of individual premiums)
- Free Short-Term Disability, Long-Term Disability, and Life insurance plans
- HSA employer contributions
- 401(k) with employer matches
- Generous PTO including a paid personal day and 12 paid holidays

To apply, please submit a resume, writing sample, and a cover letter detailing how your experience will ensure success in this position.

More about the Institute for Justice's SR Team: IJ's Strategic Research team creates social science and policy research, but our studies don't just sit on a library shelf collecting dust. We put our research to work by combining it with IJ's unique brand of cutting-edge litigation, award-winning communications and top-notch activism and legislative outreach. Our studies have been cited by the White House and the U.S. Supreme Court, as well as leading news outlets nationwide. They have been published in leading peer-reviewed journals. Our work helped certify a victorious class action lawsuit against Philadelphia's civil forfeiture machine, ensure the return of cash wrongfully seized by the IRS, roll back needless occupational licensing, dismantle speech-squelching campaign finance laws, and protect programs that empower parents to choose the best schools for their children. IJ is an equal opportunity employer.

Don't meet every single requirement? Studies have shown that women and people of color are less likely to apply to jobs unless they meet every single qualification. At IJ we value a diverse workplace, so if you're excited about this role but your past experience doesn't align perfectly with every qualification in the job description, we encourage you to apply anyway. You may be just the right candidate for this or other roles.

Pew Research Center

Rank: Research Associate, Global

Washington, DC (Pew Research Center)

Department Overview

Pew Research Center's Global Attitudes team conducts cross-national survey research on major international issues such as attitudes toward the U.S. and American foreign policy, views of China, democracy, religious practice and attitudes, as well as how people view conditions in their countries and their own lives. The bulk of the team's work focuses on one large annual survey (25+ countries) but periodically the team also employs secondary data, qualitative data and experimental data.

Position Summary

The Pew Research Center's Global Attitudes team has an immediate need for a Research Associate. This position will be involved in all aspects of the survey research process, including: drafting a questionnaire, script testing, managing a cross-national translation and verification process, data quality control, vendor relations, reviewing fieldwork and technical reports, and more. Ideally, a Research Associate will gradually be able to not only participate in but manage these tasks.

A Research Associate will also be involved in analysis and writing reports and other products. Reports on the Global Attitudes team are highly collaborative and a Research Associate will be expected to assist in background research, producing charts and tables, statistical analysis, and number checking, in addition to writing. The Research Associate may serve as a spokesperson for the Global Attitudes team and will discuss our research with key audiences such as the media and policymakers.

This position works closely with other researchers on staff and reports to the Associate Director of Global Attitudes Research.

Primary Responsibilities

The position is cyclical in nature. During certain months of the year, the bulk of one's time will be spent on project management, data quality control and tasks related to survey administration. In other months, the bulk of one's time will be focused on reporting, including data analysis, number checking and writing. The percentages below are guidelines based on a full calendar year. A successful candidate will be one who can map out project plans, set and adhere to deadlines and deliverables, and keep colleagues and senior staff informed across these myriad tasks.

Survey design and quality control (40%)

- Help draft project proposals
- Questionnaire background research
- Draft survey questions
- Check scripts
- Check and verify translations
- Assess sampling performance and data quality
- Communicate with vendors
- Prepare datasets for public release

Writing and Communication (35%)

- Write research reports
- Respond to external requests for information
- Serve as a spokesperson for the Center and disseminate findings to external audiences
- Fact-check and number-check reports

Data analysis (25%)

- Conduct analysis of survey and non-survey data, including multivariate analysis and multilevel modeling
- Prepare topline, cross-tabulations and other data summaries
- Prepare tables and charts
- Explore new techniques for examining data, such as ways to use &quot;big data&quot; and other secondary source data that can be used in tandem with survey findings

Knowledge and Skill Requirements

- Quantitative skills, including an ability to use SPSS, Stata, R or other statistical programs to organize and analyze large amounts of data
- Strong verbal and written communication skills
- Strong analytical and research skills
- Ability to manage multiple projects at the same time
- Attention to detail, including exacting standards to maintain accuracy and impartiality of all work products
- Editorial judgment and proven ability to communicate research results clearly and concisely in both verbal and written form
- Skilled in project development and management
- Ability to work collaboratively and collegially with staff from across Pew Research Center and outside organizations
- Ability to lead research teams
- Experience conducting surveys and working with survey vendors - especially in non-U.S. contexts - is a plus

- Experience working with &quot;big data&quot; and/or secondary source data a plus
- Knowledge of and interest in international affairs is preferred

Education/Training/Experience

- BA required, advanced degree preferred. 5-9 years of research experience, with at least 2 years of specialized research and analysis experience expected. Often includes significant graduate training at the PhD level or equivalent experience in an applied setting. Level depends on experience/skills.
- Proven experience with quantitative analysis
- Familiarity and experience with a range of statistical techniques, including logistic and multiple regression
- Proven ability to conduct rigorous data analysis, including substantial experience with SPSS, Stata, R, or similar software
- Familiarity with data collection in non-U.S. settings is highly desirable

FLSA Status: Exempt

This position typically starts at $93,000 per year.

Location

Pew Research Center staff may work virtually from remote locations up to four days in a standard work week. Staff are required to be present in the Center's Washington, D.C., office on at least one of two core days weekly (Tues., Wed.) and one Thursday a month for an all-staff day.

Total Rewards

In addition to competitive pay, Pew Research Center's employees enjoy a robust total rewards package that includes:

- Affordable, comprehensive health care that includes medical, dental (including adult orthodontia) and vision benefits.
- Generous paid annual leave plan, including a winter break between Dec. 25 and Jan. 1
- Employer-paid disability, life insurance and paid family leave plans
- Up to a 12% employer 401(k) contribution, with vesting at the end of the first year.
- A 37.5-hour workweek.
- Health savings or flexible spending account options with employer funding component.
- Flexibility to telework up to 60% for most staff

EEO:

Pew Research Center makes employment decisions without regard to age, sex, ethnicity, religion, disability, marital status, sexual orientation or gender identity, military/veteran status, or any other basis prohibited by applicable law. We champion inclusion, diversity and equity, and we encourage applications from candidates who represent a variety of backgrounds, perspectives, and skills.

Purdue University

Rank: Post Doc Research Associate in Artificial Intelligence

Requisition ID: 26204

Post Doc Research Associate in Artificial Intelligence

Job Summary

Purdue's College of Liberal Arts is seeking candidates who have a PhD in Philosophy, History, Political Science, Sociology, Languages and Cultures, Informatics, Computer Science or a related field for a two-year postdoctoral research associate position. Although we encourage all candidates who have a PhD to apply, we are especially interested in candidates whose research falls under one of the following categories:

a philosopher or humanist (e.g., historians, political scientists, sociologists, specialists in languages and cultures) with expertise in the study of artificial intelligence (AI) / computation someone with expertise in artificial intelligence or computational methods more generally who either already has a research agenda centered on the social, ethical and political issues surrounding AI or would be interested in developing such an agenda at Purdue.

The two-year (12-month FY) position starts on August 14, 2023 and has an annual salary of $52,000. Additional benefits, including travel and research support, are negotiable.

AOS / AOC for philosophy-specific ads

AOS: Philosophy of AI / computation, or mind or cognitive science all broadly construed;

AOC: Open.

Principal Duties

Purdue is a member of the American Association of Universities and seeks candidates of exceptional promise who will contribute to the excellence of our college. This position will have no teaching duties associated with it but requires strong organization skills in order to coordinate efforts among multiple faculty members across our college to pursue external funding in support of projects that will bolster the college's AI community (e.g., helping to organize colloquia, workshops and other research endeavors around the theme of AI). Finally, the postdoctoral research associate will be expected to work on existing AI projects, as well as propose new projects as a lead author. Although we would like candidates who can contribute to the AI initiatives outlined in the next section, candidates are also welcome to work on AI-related projects outside of these efforts.

Artificial Intelligence at Purdue University

Purdue University and the College of Liberal Arts have embarked on a series of endeavors to promote the study of Artificial Intelligence on campus. Recently, the College made a six-figure investment in the Virtual Reality and Artificial Intelligence (VRAI) lab, which aims to employ cutting edge virtual reality technology to answer a variety of research questions. The College has also funded the creation of several social science research labs focused on issues related to AI. The Computational Social Science (CSS) Lab was established to promote the application and development of computational methods to large, typically complex, human and behavioral data. The Governance and Responsible AI Lab (GRAIL) supports research on the social, ethical, and governance implications of artificial intelligence. Each of these efforts is also supported by the newly created Joe and Maggie Kernan (JMK) Social Science lab and the Advanced Methods at Purdue (AMAP) initiative, a cross-college cluster working towards increasing methodological expertise and collaborative opportunities in behavioral, health, and social sciences.

Application Procedure

All materials will be submitted electronically through careers.purdue.edu Requisition #26204. Initial applications only require submission of a CV and cover letter, including short description of the candidate's research agenda and relevant experience. Those deemed competitive will be asked to submit further materials, which may include: (i) brief cover letter, (ii) curriculum vitae (including dissertation abstract and research statement), and (iii) a recent writing sample. Letters of reference should not be included in the initial application but should be prepared for quick submission if requested. If letters are requested from the candidate at a later stage, instructions for how to submit letters will be communicated directly to the candidate.

Purdue University, the College of Liberal Arts, and the Department of Philosophy are committed to free and open inquiry in all matters. Candidates are encouraged to address in their cover letter how they are prepared to contribute to a climate that values free inquiry and academic freedom.

Purdue University, the College of Liberal Arts and Department of Philosophy are committed to advancing diversity in all areas of faculty effort. Candidates are encouraged to address in their cover letter how they are prepared to contribute to an inclusive climate.

Screening of applicants will begin on June 15, 2023 and continue until the position is filled. Incomplete applications will not be considered, and a background check will be required for employment in this position. For additional information, you may contact any member of our search committee: Bryce J. Dietrich (bjdietri@purdue.edu), Javier Gomez-Lavin, (jglavin@purdue.edu) or David Peterson (david-peterson@purdue.edu).

5. Number of positions available:

One

6. Position rank and title:

Professor (tenured), Associate Professor (tenured), Associate Professor (Tenure-track), or Assistant Professor (Tenure-track)

The position rank is determined by such factors as the applicant's academic and research record, as well as evaluation during the screening process, will be made known to the applicant at the final interview with the FPSE's dean and other executive committee members.

General Idea of Tenure-Track Positions at FPSE: (Detailed information will be provided after the second round of selection.)

A tenure-track position at FPSE shall be appointed either as Assistant Professor (tenure-track) or Associate Professor (tenure-track), for three years in the first term, followed by two years of reappointment and an additional two years of reappointment, for a total of up to seven years. As a general rule, the interim review shall be carried out in the second semester of the third year (sixth semester) following the appointment and completed within the first three-year term on the tenure track. When a tenure-track faculty member passes the interim review, the first reappointment of two years shall be confirmed before the end of the initial appointment (three years).

By default, the final review shall be carried out in the second semester of the fifth year (tenth semester) and completed by the end of the fifth year on the tenure track. When the tenure-track faculty member passes the final review, the faculty member will become a tenured faculty member from the following semester. The second reappointment of two years may be granted to a tenure-track faculty member who fails the final review. The tenure-track faculty member may request an interim review or a final review at any time in or after the second semester of the second year (fourth semester) following appointment.

If you have had an employment contract with Waseda University (regardless of job title) since April 1, 2013, and there is no period of at least six months without an employment contract with Waseda University at the scheduled start of this position, in principle, there is a limit to the duration of the employment contract. Therefore, the above may not be applied.

7. Working conditions:

·Salary, allowances, and commuting expenses are commensurate with qualifications and are based on Waseda University pay scales.

·The workplace will, in principle, be on a Waseda University campus.

·Scheduled working days and working hours (starting/finishing times and rest periods) are based on university regulations. The discretionary labor system for professional work will be applied to research work. Considering the nature of research work, working hours are at the discretion of each faculty member.

·Holidays

Holidays are Saturdays, Sundays, New Year's holidays, legally recognized public holidays, and compensatory holidays appointed by the University for holding classes on public holidays and the anniversary of the University's founding. Holidays prescribed as working days determined by the University in advance will be excluded. There may be cases where classes and other types of FPSE work will be scheduled on holidays. Employees may take compensatory holiday(s) for those occasions. For the academic calendar of the university, please see the URL below.

<https://www.waseda.jp/top/en/about/work/organizations/academic-affairs-division/academic-calendar>

·Leave

Leave is determined by the Labor Standards Act and other related laws, including days that are designated by the University as leave days.

·Social insurance

Pension, health insurance, labor insurance, and employment insurance are provided based on university regulations.

·Research Funding

Individual research allowance: 210,000 yen (per year)

Academic conference traveling subsidies: 90,000 yen (per year)

International academic conference traveling subsidies: 110,000 yen (per year)

Other competitive research funds are available at Waseda University.

Retirement benefits

Tenured Professors and tenured Associate Professors are paid in accordance with university regulations.

No retirement benefits will be provided to Associate Professors (tenure-track) and Assistant Professors (tenure-track). However, if they continue to serve as tenured faculty members after the term as tenure-track faculty members, retirement benefits will be provided in accordance with university regulations. The period of service for calculating the retirement benefits of a tenured faculty member is counted from the date of appointment as an Associate Professor (tenure-track) or Assistant Professor (tenure-track).

Job Summary

The Department of Political Science at the University of Victoria invites applications from external candidates for a Tier 1 Canada Research Chair (CRC) in Climate-Related Migration and Displacement. The successful applicant will be nominated by the University for a CRC chair and, upon approval by the CRC Secretariat, will then be offered an appointment at the rank of Associate or Full Professor. The CRC chair is tenable for seven years, and is renewable once after successful performance review. The successful candidate's research program will address the interaction of climate change and extreme climate events with human migration and/or displacement. The CRC's scholarly activity will contribute to the University of Victoria's existing world-class research on climate change and migration, supporting research related to the political dimensions of extreme climate events, migration, and displacement. The applicant is expected to maintain an active research program, to teach and supervise at the graduate level, and to build and expand the department's offerings on the environment and climate change.

Qualifications

Tier 1 CRC's are for exceptional researchers, already acknowledged by their peers as leaders in the field. The successful candidate will have a completed PhD in Political Science or a closely related discipline. The candidate will be an established, world-class researcher who has developed an original and innovative future research plan with the potential to attract external funding and international recognition. The candidate is expected to have a demonstrated record of excellence in teaching and student supervision, including efforts to create an inclusive learning environment for a diverse student body. Furthermore, the candidate will demonstrate the potential for collaboration with a diverse range of colleagues. Finally, the candidate will provide evidence of knowledge mobilization and dissemination from their research to academic and community audiences.

Department of Political Science

The successful candidate will be joining an active Political Science department with vibrant undergraduate, MA and PhD programs. The Department includes several faculty members working at the intersection of environmental politics and human mobility, and applicants are encouraged to consult the department website for information on the research interests of department faculty and programs it offers. The Department also has strong connections with other units and research centres on campus working on the environment and human mobility, including the School of Environmental Studies, the Pacific Institute for Climate Solutions, the Centre for Global Studies, and the Centre for Asia Pacific Initiatives.

Additional Information

Additional information on the Canada Research Chair Program can be found on the program website:

In accordance with the SSHRC Tier 1 CRC regulations, Tier 1 CRCs are intended for 'outstanding researchers acknowledged by their peers as world leaders in their field'.

Please note that reference checks will be done and background checks, including credential and degree verification, may be undertaken as part of this recruitment process.

Faculty and Librarians at the University of Victoria are governed by the provisions of the Collective Agreement. Members are represented by the University of Victoria Faculty Association.

Application Deadline and Procedure

To apply, candidates should send the following application materials in one file (e.g. PDF or MSWord) to poliapps@uvic.ca:

- 1) A cover letter providing an overview of the candidate's qualifications and how their research complements existing research strengths in the Department of Political Science;
- 2) A detailed curriculum vitae;
- 3) A four-page (max) description of the candidate's proposed CRC research program;
- 4) One-page description of the candidate's most important research contributions;
- 5) A two-page (max) statement of teaching philosophy and experience;
- 6) A one-page statement outlining their experiences and contributions to promoting equity, diversity, and inclusion;
- 7) Contact information for three references.

Potential applicants who have questions about the position are encouraged to contact the Chair, Scott Watson, at chairpol@uvic.ca.

Deadline for application materials is August 1, 2023.

Equity Statement

UVic is committed to upholding the values of equity, diversity, and inclusion in our living, learning and work environments. In pursuit of our values, we seek members who will work respectfully and constructively with differences and across levels of power. We actively encourage applications from members of groups experiencing barriers to equity. Read our full equity statement. The CRC program does not place restrictions with respect to nationality or country of residence, but applicants are asked to indicate current citizenship status.

The University acknowledges the potential impact that career interruptions can have on a candidate's record of research achievement. We encourage applicants to explain in their application the impact that career interruptions have had on their record.

Persons with disabilities, who anticipate needing accommodation for any part of the application and hiring process, may contact Faculty Relations and Academic Administration in the Office of the VP Academic and Provost at FRrecruit@uvic.ca. Any personal information provided will be maintained in confidence.

The School of Government and Public Policy (SGPP) at the University of Arizona invites applications for an assistant research social scientist position in the Arizona Policy Lab, beginning in Summer or Fall 2023. The Arizona Policy Lab (<https://policylab.arizona.edu>) is devoted to producing evidence-based policy research (including through use of surveys, experiments, other human subjects research, and big data analytics) with relevance for scholars, elected leaders, public officials, industry, and citizens. Our activities are grounded in cutting-edge scientific practices, cross-disciplinary collaborations, and the mentoring and training of undergraduate and graduate students. The Research Social Scientist position will be responsible for the oversight of research and training in the Lab. The position involves teaching 1 undergraduate course per year and allows for opportunities to collaborate on research and carry out independent research activities in the Lab.

The School of Government and Public Policy is a growing and vibrant academic community housing scholars of Political Science, Public Policy, Administration, and Management, and law and criminal justice. The school is home to in person and online Bachelor's and Master's degrees, as well as an in-residence PhD. Additional information on the SGPP is available at <http://sgpp.arizona.edu/>. SGPP is situated within the College of Social and Behavioral Sciences (SBS).

Outstanding UA benefits include health, dental, and vision insurance plans; life insurance and disability programs; UA/ASU/NAU tuition reduction for the employee and qualified family members; state and optional retirement plans; access to UA recreation and cultural activities; and more.

The University of Arizona has been recognized as a Hispanic Serving Institution and, together with the SBS, has a strong commitment to diversity. The successful candidate must be able to work with students, faculty, and staff from a wide range of social and cultural backgrounds; individuals from underrepresented groups are encouraged to apply.

Duties & Responsibilities

- Oversee operation and daily management of the Lab;
- Coordinate and run research studies in the Lab;
- Co-author or author publications and co-present research results at workshops and conferences;
- Train and mentor graduate and undergraduate research assistants;

- Actively participate in acquiring research funding, including initiating and writing grant proposals;
- Contribute to ensuring regulatory compliance of Lab activities, including by coordinating with IRB and granting agencies;
- Teach one class per year on data and politics and policy at the undergraduate level;
- Support Lab in pursuit of external funding, including in collaboration with UArizona's Research, Innovation, and Impact (RII)
- Participate in outreach and contribute to departmental, college, and university service
- Assist with data visualization activities.

Minimum Qualifications: A PhD in public policy, political science, or a related social science field, is required by the time of appointment. A minimum of 6 years of relevant experience (which includes the duration of graduate studies) is typically required. The candidate will be expected to have a demonstrated ability to conduct and publish significant empirical research.

Preferred Qualifications: Background/experience in computational social science

Contact Information for Candidates: General questions can be directed to the School of Government & Public Policy Assistant Director, Angela Hackett at ahackett@email.arizona.edu.

Candidates should submit a cover letter, statement of research and teaching interests (title of document slot within the application is "Statement of Research Interests"), current Curriculum Vitae, names and contact information for three references, and a writing sample via the UArizona Talent website. ## Yale University

Rank: Lecturer, Ethics, Politics, and Economics

The Program on Ethics, Politics, and Economics sponsors interdisciplinary teaching and research in the Social Sciences and Humanities at Yale. It is designed to foster informed debate about public policy in the light of disciplined reflection on the fundamentals of human association. The Program was created in the belief that, for all the value of specialized fields and subdisciplines, these should not displace attempts to integrate empirical, analytical, and normative concerns that range over different disciplines in the modern university. The undergraduate major in Ethics, Politics, and Economics joins the analytic rigor of the social sciences and the enduring normative questions of philosophy to promote an integrative and critical understanding of the institutions, practices, and policies that shape the contemporary world.

EP&E is now offering a single year lecturer position. We welcome applications from PhDs from political science, economics, philosophy, and business with excellent teaching evaluations, and experience teaching courses that integrate Ethics with either Political Science, Economics, or both disciplines. We encourage PhDs with an interest in teaching the Classics of Ethics, Politics & Economics to apply for this position.

In addition to teaching four courses per year, lecturers are expected to be available to meet undergraduate students of the EP&E major, and assist with advising majors on their senior essays.

The position is for one year, with the possibility of extending the contract conditional upon performance and available resources. Starting salary is $70,000 with Yale health benefits. Salary is negotiable depending on qualifications and teaching experience. In addition to salary, instructor will receive a $1,500 research account. Starting date is August 1, 2023 or negotiable.

Applicants should have completed PhD (or equivalent degree) requirements by August 2023.

Applications should include the following:

- A cover letter indicating your interest in the position
- CV
- Job Market Paper or at least one scholarly writing sample (in English)
- PhD program transcript
- A preliminary syllabus for an interdisciplinary undergraduate course that integrates Ethics with either Political Science, Economics, or both disciplines.
- Teaching evaluations
- Three letters of recommendation

Please submit application materials electronically here: <http://apply.interfolio.com/123777>. The review process will begin on May 14, 2023. We will continue to accept applications until the position has been filled. Please direct inquiries to Ana De La O, Director of Ethics, Politics, and Economics, ana.delao@yale.edu

University of British Columbia

Rank: Merilees Chair for the Study of Democracy (Professor)

The Department of Political Science at the University of British Columbia (UBC), Vancouver Campus, invites applications for the Harold and Dorrie Merilees Chair for the Study of Democracy (the "Merilees Chair"), which is made possible through the generous support of Stephen and Gail Jarislowsky. The Holder of the Merilees Chair will have a reduced teaching load and annual research funding for an initial five-year term, which may be renewed, in accordance with the University's Honorifics Policy and the terms of the Endowment that supports the Chair. The anticipated start date for the position is 1 July 2024.

The successful candidate will be appointed as a full-time tenured faculty member in the Department of Political Science, at the rank of Professor (or, consideration may be given to appointment at the Associate Professor rank in the case of an outstanding candidate who is expected to be promoted to the Professor rank within one or two years of the position start date). While this faculty position is open to any field of political science, the successful candidate will have a Ph.D. and will be an established scholar and leader who has attained eminence in their field and who holds a distinguished international reputation in the study of democratic politics, institutions, or theory, broadly defined. The successful candidate will be expected to carry out a robust research agenda, teach at the undergraduate and graduate levels in Political Science, supervise graduate students, and contribute to service at the departmental level and beyond.

Applicants should submit:

- cover letter
- curriculum vitae
- statement of major research contributions and current and future research programs
- statement (1-2 pages) addressing experience working with a diverse student body and past and potential contributions to creating/advancing a culture of equity and inclusion
- names and contact information (incl. institutional affiliation, address, e-mail address) of four referees
- a recent writing sample.

Shortlisted candidates will be asked to provide a statement of teaching philosophy, interests, and accomplishments, and evidence of teaching effectiveness (e.g., teaching evaluations, sample syllabi) prior to the interview.

Applications should be submitted online at <https://poli.air.arts.ubc.ca/merilees-chair-for-the-study-of-democracy-professor-application-form-2023/> Job ID: JR12315. Review of applications will begin on 30 June 2023 and will continue until the position is filled. This position is subject to final budgetary approval. Salary will be commensurate with qualifications and experience.

The University is committed to creating and maintaining an inclusive and equitable work environment for all members of its workforce, and in particular, for its employees with disabilities. An inclusive work environment for employees with disabilities presumes an environment where differences are accepted, recognized, and integrated into current structures, planning and decision-making modes. ## University of British Columbia

Rank: Political Science Lecturer

The Department of Political Science at The University of British Columbia (Vancouver) invites applications from scholars with expertise in any field of Political Science. We seek to fill, at the rank of Lecturer, up to two full-time positions, depending on the successful candidate(s)' alignment with teaching needs of the Department and subject to availability of funding.

The Lecturer will be expected to teach courses at the undergraduate level, including Introduction to Politics, other lower-level survey courses, and courses in their field of specialization, based on the teaching needs of the Department. The anticipated start date is September 1, 2023, with appointment for a term of up to three years, which entails a probationary first year. Lecturer positions are non-tenure-track appointments, renewable for successive terms, subject to availability of funds and demonstration of excellence in teaching, in accordance with the Collective Agreement between UBC and the UBC Faculty Association. In the Faculty of Arts, the workload for a full-time Lecturer position includes teaching eight (3-credit) courses per year plus service responsibilities. In cases where extraordinary additional service responsibilities are assigned by the Head, a 3-credit teaching reduction may be granted. Positions are subject to final budgetary approval. Salary will be commensurate with qualifications and experience.

A completed Ph.D. in Political Science is required by the start date of the appointment. The successful applicant will demonstrate a strong record of effective teaching with success across a variety of courses, and the ability to engage a range of students through innovative teaching techniques that take into account the diversity of student interests and experiences.

To apply, applicants must submit the following:

- a cover letter;
- a curriculum vitae;
- a teaching portfolio that includes:
  - o a statement (maximum 2 pages) of teaching philosophy, interests and accomplishments;
  - o sample teaching materials (e.g. course syllabi, examples of innovative pedagogy or assessment design, etc.);
  - o a statement (maximum 1 page) about the applicant's experience working with a diverse student body and contributions or potential contributions to creating/advancing a culture of equity and inclusion;
  - o a statement (maximum 1 page) reflecting on what the applicant has done and/or would seek to do in order to incorporate Indigenous scholarship and perspectives and/or use of Indigenous content and materials in their teaching (for context, applicants can find UBC's Indigenous Strategic Plan here: <https://isp.ubc.ca>);
  - o evidence of teaching effectiveness (e.g., official summaries of teaching evaluations, peer reviews of teaching). Applicants are asked to include teaching evaluations from the most recent 3 years (for all courses taught and/or where the candidate held Teaching Assistant roles).

Applications should be submitted online at <https://poli.air.arts.ubc.ca/ubc-political-science-dept-lecturer-position-application-form-2023/> Job ID: JR12281.

In addition, applicants should arrange for three confidential signed letters of recommendation to be sent separately to the Department of Political Science care of Jeff Yupitun, Assistant to the Department Head, at poli.recruitment@ubc.ca, with the word "Lecturer" in the subject line. Applicants should ensure that referees are aware that their letters must reach the Department in a timely fashion, that this is an undergraduate teaching position, and that they should focus on undergraduate teaching qualifications. Review of applications begins on May 15, 2023, and will continue until the position is filled.

The University is committed to creating and maintaining an inclusive and equitable work environment for all members of its workforce, and in particular, for its employees with disabilities. Confidential accommodations are available on request for applicants who are short-listed. An inclusive work environment for employees with disabilities presumes an environment where differences are accepted, recognized, and integrated into current structures, planning and decision-making modes. ### National University of Singapore

Rank: Professor (Head of Department) in Political Science

NATIONAL UNIVERSITY OF SINGAPORE

Head of Department position (Full Professor level with tenure)

The Department of Political Science at the National University of Singapore invites applications for the position of Head of Department at the rank of full professor or higher (endowed chair professor). Research and teaching specialisation is open, although candidates should contribute to one or more of the Department's four subfields: comparative politics, governance and public policy, international relations, and political theory.

The successful candidate will have an internationally recognised record of research and publication, as well as a record of very good teaching. Exceptional leadership skills are essential, as is a strong commitment to intellectual and methodological pluralism. Other qualifications include evidence of substantial administrative experience; a record of promoting faculty and student success; a commitment to collegiality and diversity; and excellent interpersonal, communication, and organisational skills. The Head is expected to provide leadership in co-creating with department faculty to implement a strategic vision, consistent with NUS' research and teaching mission, which advances the Department's international profile and reputation. Research and teaching expectations may be reduced (e.g. one course teaching commitment per year), given the Head's crucial service role.

Interested candidates should submit a CV, cover letter that addresses the qualifications outlined above, research statement (approx. two pages), teaching statement (approx. two pages), and names and addresses of at least four references.

Review of applications will begin in late May 2023 and campus visits for selected candidates will be arranged for early to mid-August 2023. The position is expected to commence in January or July 2025. Questions about the position should be directed to the Search Committee Chair, Professor Henry Yeung (henryyeung@nus.edu.sg), and/or Professor William Bain (wbain@nus.edu.sg).

Exceptional candidates at the rank of senior associate professor are welcome to apply, subject to being promoted to full professor upon appointment at NUS.

The Department of Political Science is a vibrant multidisciplinary community comprised of over 25 tenure- and educator-track faculty members. The Department offers degrees in Political Science and Global Studies at the undergraduate level and in Political Science at the Masters and Doctoral levels. It also partners with the International Political Science Association (IPSA) to host the IPSA-NUS Summer School in Social Science Research Methods annually. It is one of 16 departments in a large Faculty of Arts and Social Sciences that offers a comprehensive range of programmes in Asian Studies, Humanities, Social Science, and Language Studies. The Lee Kuan Yew School of Public Policy, the Asia Research Institute, the Asia-Europe Foundation, the East Asian Institute, the ISEAS–Yusof Ishak Institute, among other research units inside and outside NUS, provide additional opportunities for research interaction and collaboration.

NUS offers an internationally competitive remuneration package that includes a period of subsidised housing (for non-Singaporean applicants), annual performance bonus, medical benefits, and relocation expenses (where applicable). Outstanding applicants might also be considered for endowed/chair professorship that comes with annual research support and business class travel eligibility. NUS provides significant research support, including generous start-up grants for new faculty members.

Please submit your application through the <https://careers.nus.edu.sg/job-invite/19238/>.

Rowan University

Rank: Assistant/Associate/Full Professor - Sustainability

The College of Humanities & Social Sciences invites applications for an open-rank, tenure-track position to begin September 1, 2023. Strong candidates include, but are not limited to, those whose research seeks to understand and address environmental challenges, such as climate change, biodiversity loss, natural resource use and management, water and land access and governance, food security and food sovereignty, or public health. Possible topics of interest include one or more of the following areas in either institutions or behavior: environmental policy and administration, legal and social regulations, economic and social impact, environmental racism and racial justice, ecofeminism and environmental feminism, human rights, the politics of natural disasters/weather/agriculture/land use, environmental area studies, or international cooperation. Regional focuses can be within the United States, comparative in nature, or international area studies.

This position is part of Rowan University's newly launched Catalysts for Sustainability program, which seeks to hire ten new faculty to develop, advance, and communicate solutions to humanity's most pressing existential environmental threats (e.g., problems of climate change, biodiversity loss, pollution, threats to natural habitats, and resource conflicts, among others). The university-wide cohort will lead and collaborate across colleges, disciplines, and communities, catalyzing new initiatives in sustainability research, advocacy, and education while leveraging existing strengths. This project builds upon Rowan University's strategic pillars (access, affordability, quality, and serving as an economic engine) and furthers our commitment to diversity, equity, and inclusion.

Candidates must have a Ph.D. in a field relevant to the humanities or social sciences at the time of appointment and will be housed in the Department of Political Science & Economics. Candidates are also expected to have a strong record of research and be able to compete for external funding. Evidence of excellence in teaching and prior experience teaching at the university level is desired. The successful candidate will teach a mix of introductory and upper-level courses in Political Science, Economics, and/or Public Policy with more specialized courses on the environment.

The successful candidate must also be able to work with various stakeholders. Within the University the candidate will work with their department, college, as well as the Catalysts for Sustainability newly hired faculty members from the various colleges.

The College of Humanities and Social Sciences (CHSS) is the second largest college at Rowan University with seven departments, seven interdisciplinary programs, and fifteen majors. The College also houses a number of Centers and Institutes that serve both research and pedagogical functions. CHSS places a strong emphasis on exceptional teaching, research and service. Our mission is to empower, transform, and engage students and faculty, as well as the global communities in which we live. We actively support faculty research and strive to include faculty as full partners in governance within the College.

A top 100 national public research institution, Rowan University offers bachelor's through doctoral and professional programs in person and online to 23,000 students through its main campus in Glassboro, N.J., its medical school campuses in Camden and Stratford, and five others. Home to Henry M. Rowan College of Engineering; Ric Edelman College of Communication & Creative Arts; William G. Rohrer College of Business; Virtua Health College of Medicine & Health Sciences; Cooper Medical School of Rowan University and the School of Osteopathic Medicine, it also comprises the colleges of Education, Humanities & Social Sciences, Performing Arts, and Science & Mathematics; Virtua Health School of Nursing & Health Professions; the schools of Earth & Environment; Innovation & Entrepreneurship; Translational Biomedical Engineering & Sciences; Veterinary Medicine; the Graduate School of Biomedical Sciences; and a multidisciplinary honors college. Rowan focuses on practical research at the intersection of engineering, medicine, science and business while ensuring excellence in undergraduate education. The University has earned national recognition for innovation; commitment to high-quality, affordable education; and developing public-private partnerships. A Carnegie-classified (R2/high research activity) institution, Rowan has been recognized as the fourth fastest-growing public research university for three consecutive years as reported by The Chronicle of Higher Education.

Applications must be submitted through our online applicant tracking system online: <https://jobs.rowan.edu/en-us/job/496834/tenuretrack-faculty-position-open-rank-sustainability-college-of-humanities-social-sciences>

Submit a curriculum vitae, writing sample, a cover letter explaining your research, teaching philosophy, and why your profile matches the Catalysts for Sustainability program. Applications should also include graduate transcripts and three letters of recommendation. The review process will begin on October 28, 2022, and it will continue until the position is filled. An EOE/AA employer, Rowan University especially encourages applications from women, minorities, and persons with disabilities.

Yale University

Rank: Multi-year Lecturer, Program of Ethics, Politics, and Economics

The Program on Ethics, Politics, and Economics sponsors interdisciplinary teaching and research in the Social Sciences and Humanities at Yale. It is designed to foster informed debate about public policy in the light of disciplined reflection on the fundamentals of human association. The Program was created in the belief that, for all the value of specialized fields and subdisciplines, these should not displace attempts to integrate empirical, analytical, and normative concerns that range over different disciplines in the modern university. The undergraduate major in Ethics, Politics, and Economics joins the analytic rigor of the social sciences and the enduring normative questions of philosophy to promote an integrative and critical understanding of the institutions, practices, and policies that shape the contemporary world.

EP&E is now offering a multi-year lecturer position. We welcome applications from PhDs from political science, economics, philosophy, and business with excellent teaching evaluations, and experience teaching courses that integrate Ethics with either Political Science, Economics, or both disciplines. In particular, we encourage PhDs with an interest and experience in teaching the Classics of Ethics, Politics & Economics to apply for this position.

In addition to teaching three courses per year, lecturers are expected to be available to meet undergraduate students of the EP&E major, and assist with advising majors on their senior essays.

The position is for two years, with the possibility of extending the contract conditional upon performance and available resources. Starting salary is $70,000 with Yale health benefits. Salary is negotiable depending on qualifications and teaching experience. In addition to salary, multi-year instructors will receive a $3,000 research account. Starting date is August 1, 2023 or negotiable.

Please submit application materials electronically to Interfolio at apply.interfolio.com/111113.

OTHER

Hampden-Sydney College

Rank: Assistant Professor/International Law & IR

Subfield(s): International Relations, Political Theory, Other

Specializations: International Law & Organizations, International Security, Normative Political Theory

Hampden-Sydney College invites applications for a full-time, tenure-track appointment at the rank of Assistant Professor within the Department of Government and Foreign Affairs to begin in the fall of 2024. Candidates should have expertise in the history and development of international law, theories of international relations, and the role of the U.S. Constitution in foreign affairs. The ability to teach courses in regional or global policymaking is also welcome. The successful applicant may participate in the college-wide Core Cultures program and teach, as needed, introductory courses in world politics. Faculty teach on a three-year course load rotation with six courses per year for two years and seven courses in the third year.

Hampden-Sydney College highly values the teacher/scholar model. Successful applicants will have a record of effective classroom teaching, a commitment to scholarly productivity, and the willingness to work with colleagues on professional service responsibilities. Applicants should have a Ph.D. in political science or comparable degree by the time of appointment.

Please submit a letter of application, curriculum vitae, teaching statement, research statement, and three letters of reference to Dr. Celia Carroll Jones, Chair, Department of Government and Foreign Affairs, Hampden-Sydney College via Interfolio. Review of applications will begin immediately and continue until the position is filled.

Hampden-Sydney College is a selective liberal arts institution enrolling approximately 1000 students. Founded in 1775, it is the tenth oldest institution of higher learning in the United States and one of four liberal arts colleges in the United States dedicated to the education of men. Our mission is to educate "good men and good citizens in an atmosphere of sound learning."

Our beautiful 1300-acre campus is less than 7 miles from downtown Farmville, home to Longwood University and the Moton Museum, which is listed on the U.S. Civil Rights Trail. The campus is located 65 miles west of Richmond, 50 miles east of Lynchburg, and 75 miles south of Charlottesville, providing abundant cultural, recreational and artistic resources. As a community, we are dedicated to the goal of building a culturally diverse faculty committed to working in a multicultural environment and strongly encourage applications from women and minoritized groups. Hampden-Sydney College values diversity, prohibits discrimination, and is committed to equal opportunity for all employees and applicants for employment.

Princeton University

Subfield(s): Methodology, Comparative Politics, Other

Housed at Princeton University, Arab Barometer is a nonpartisan research network that provides insight into the social, political, and economic attitudes and values of citizens across the Middle East and North Africa (MENA). We have been conducting high quality and reliable public opinion surveys since 2006, making us the longest-standing and the largest repository of publicly available data on the views of citizens in the region.

The Research Data Analyst for the Arab Barometer reports to the Senior Research Specialist. The Data Analyst assists with the maintenance and development of scripts in, but not restricted to, ODK, R, and Stata related to collecting and processing Arab Barometer data. During the data collection phase, this includes programming the questionnaire, validating the programming, quality control checks on data, data cleaning, and management of Arab Barometer survey data. The position also assists in data analysis for research projects including modeling, diagnostics, and graphic visualization for reports, articles and other publications.

Arab Barometer is a close-knit team and the Data Analyst will be working directly with the project director, research associates, and communication associates. Outside of the team, the Data Analyst must also work with Princeton graduate and undergraduate students, and research colleagues in the U.S. and the Middle East and North Africa.

This is a remote, one-year term position with possibility of renewal.

Responsibilities

Graph creation: This includes the creation of standard graphs, special request graphs, and developing functions that help create graphs for the Arab Barometer's custom R package.

Data cleaning and management: This includes evaluating data validity with Arab Barometer software, identifying miscodings, and assist with labeling.

Preparing surveys: This includes researching feasibility of survey software, quickly learn the basics of programming questionnaires, and create/test sample surveys.

Research assistance: This includes reading research papers on survey methods, identifying the source of problems in code and suggesting solutions, developing and testing programs to help Arab Barometer run more efficiently.

Qualifications

Essential Qualifications:

Bachelor's degree

Three years experience

Comfortable with the programming language R, especially summarizing data and creating graphs

Ability to clearly and succinctly communicate data results

Ability to learn new skills quickly

Ability to think creatively to solve problems

Preferred Qualifications:

Familiarity with STATA

Familiarity with python

Familiarity with LaTeX

Familiarity with Arabic

Knowledge of MENA countries and regional dynamics

Familiarity with survey programming software, such as ODK, SurveyToGo, etc.

New York University Arts and Science

Rank: Visiting Assistant Professor, International History

Visiting Assistant Professor, International History

New York University Faculty of Arts and Science

New York University's Program in International Relations invites applications for a Visiting Assistant Professor in International History. This one-year position will have a start date of September 1, 2023 and is renewable for up to three years, pending budgetary and administrative approval.

The teaching load for this position is two graduate-level courses per academic semester. Candidates will also be expected to serve as an academic advisor, supervise theses, and participate in program events. The selected candidate will be expected to teach the Program's core Global and International History course, in addition to electives in their research area. The committee is particularly interested in candidates with regional experience in the countries of the Global South. The breakdown for this position is 50% teaching and 50% service.

The Program in International Relations is home to the MA in International Relations (MAIR). The MAIR is an interdisciplinary program in international relations offering elective concentrations in Asian Studies, European and Mediterranean Studies, International Law, International Politics and Business, Latin American & Caribbean Studies, Middle Eastern & Levantine Studies, Russian and Slavic Studies, and US Foreign Policy. The Program also has a dual Master in Public Administration ("MPA-MAIR") with the Wagner Graduate School of Public Service and a joint degree, the Master of Arts in Journalism and International Relations ("GloJo"), with the Arthur L. Carter Journalism Institute.

The Program in International Relations is housed within NYU's Graduate School of Arts and Science (GSAS). One of the top graduate schools in the world, GSAS counts among its ranks five Pulitzer Prize winners, nine MacArthur Fellows, three National Medal of Science winners, four Howard Hughes Medical Institute Investigators, and 98 Guggenheim Fellows. Students from all 50 states and more than 100 countries study at GSAS. Like our students, NYU faculty come from around the world. Together we form a truly exciting community of the mind around our campus on Washington Square—and across our global network university that stretches across Europe, the Middle East, and Asia. GSAS is dedicated to the education and training of innovative and successful scholars, teachers, and professionals.

In compliance with NYC's Pay Transparency Act, the annual base salary for this position is $60,000. New York University considers factors such as (but not limited to) the scope and responsibilities of the position, the candidate's work experience, education/training, key skills, internal peer equity, as well as market and organizational considerations when extending an offer.

Review of applications will begin on May 15th and continue until the position is filled. Questions about this position should be sent to Lara J. Nettelfield, Program Director, at ln2293@nyu.edu.

University of Toronto

Rank: Assistant Professor, Social Sciences and Digital Technologies

The Munk School of Global Affairs & Public Policy in the Faculty of Arts & Science at the University of Toronto invites applications for a full-time tenure stream position in the area of Social Sciences and Digital Technologies. The appointment will be at the rank of Assistant Professor, with an expected start date of September 1, 2023. The successful candidate may also hold an Endowed Professorship for a five-year term, renewable following a favourable review.

Candidates must have earned a PhD degree in any relevant Social Science field by the time of appointment or shortly thereafter, with a clearly demonstrated record of research and teaching excellence in the area of information controls, data sciences, and digital accountability research. The position is open to a range of disciplines including but not limited to information studies, communications, sociology, political science, area studies, and law. We seek candidates whose research and teaching interests complement and enhance our existing departmental strengths.

The successful candidate will be expected to be a part of the Citizen Lab, an interdisciplinary laboratory based at the Munk School focusing on advanced research and development at the intersection of digital media, global security, and human rights. We are particularly interested in applicants whose research integrates with the Citizen Lab's resources, existing areas of research, and global network. Candidates with a demonstrated track record of working in cross disciplinary teams, and a strong research portfolio that intersects with human rights, online repression, information controls, and digital security are preferred.

The successful candidate will be expected to pursue innovative and independent research at the highest international level, and to establish an outstanding research program, competitive, and externally funded research program.

Candidates must provide evidence of research excellence which can be demonstrated by a record of publications in top-ranked disciplinary and/or field-relevant academic journals or academic presses, outstanding research papers, forthcoming publications meeting high international standards, presentations at significant conferences, awards and accolades, and strong endorsements from referees of high standing.

The successful candidate will teach undergraduate and graduate courses, including in the Munk School's professional graduate programs (the Master of Global Affairs and the Master of Public Policy) to students from a wide range of academic backgrounds and interests. The successful candidate will have experience or demonstrable interest in a professional school and/or in an interdisciplinary environment.

Candidates must provide evidence of excellence in teaching which will be provided through teaching accomplishments, through the teaching dossier submitted as part of the application including a teaching statement, sample course materials, teaching evaluations, or other evidence of superior performance in teaching-related activities submitted as part of the application, and through strong endorsements of teaching in the letters of reference. Other teaching-related activities can include performance as a teaching assistant or course instructor, experience leading successful workshops or seminars, student mentorship, or excellent conference presentations or posters.

Candidates are also expected to show evidence of a commitment to equity, diversity, inclusion, and the promotion of a respectful and collegial learning and working environment demonstrated through the application materials.

Salary will be commensurate with qualifications and experience.

For more information about the Munk School of Global Affairs & Public Policy at the University of Toronto St. George campus, please visit our home page at <https://munkschool.utoronto.ca/>.

All qualified candidates are invited to apply online by clicking the link below. Applicants must submit a cover letter; a curriculum vitae; a research statement outlining current and future research interests; a recent writing sample; and a teaching dossier (including a teaching statement and sample course materials and teaching evaluations, or evidence of superior performance in other teaching-related activities as listed above). We seek candidates who value diversity and whose research, teaching and service bear out our commitment to equity. Candidates are therefore also asked to submit a 1-2 page statement of contributions to equity and diversity, which might cover topics such as (but not limited to): research or teaching that incorporates a focus on underrepresented communities, the development of inclusive pedagogies, or the mentoring of students from underrepresented groups.

Applicants must provide the name and contact information of three referees. The University of Toronto's recruiting tool will automatically solicit and collect letters of reference from each after an application is submitted (this happens overnight). Applicants remain responsible for ensuring that references submit letters (on letterhead, dated and signed) by the closing date. Further detail on the automatic reference letter collection, including timeline, can be found on the candidate FAQ page.

Submission guidelines can be found at <http://uoft.me/how-to-apply>. Your CV and cover letter should be uploaded into the dedicated fields. Please combine any additional application materials into one or two files in PDF/MS Word format. If you have any questions about this position, please contact munkschool.academic@utoronto.ca.

All application materials, including reference letters, must be received by June 12, 2023.

All qualified candidates are encouraged to apply; however, Canadians and permanent residents will be given priority.

Diversity Statement

The University of Toronto embraces Diversity and is building a culture of belonging that increases our capacity to effectively address and serve the interests of our global community. We strongly encourage applications from Indigenous Peoples, Black and racialized persons, women, persons with disabilities, and people of diverse sexual and gender identities. We value applicants who have demonstrated a commitment to equity, diversity and inclusion and recognize that diverse perspectives, experiences, and expertise are essential to strengthening our academic mission.

As part of your application, you will be asked to complete a brief Diversity Survey. This survey is voluntary. Any information directly related to you is confidential and cannot be accessed by search committees or human resources staff. Results will be aggregated for institutional planning purposes. For more information, please see <http://uoft.me/UP>.

Accessibility Statement

The University strives to be an equitable and inclusive community, and proactively seeks to increase diversity among its community members. Our values regarding equity and diversity are linked with our unwavering commitment to excellence in the pursuit of our academic mission.

The University is committed to the principles of the Accessibility for Ontarians with Disabilities Act (AODA). As such, we strive to make our recruitment, assessment and selection processes as accessible as possible and provide accommodations as required for applicants with disabilities.

If you require any accommodations at any point during the application and hiring process, please contact uoft.careers@utoronto.ca.

Applicants should demonstrate interdisciplinary literacy and be familiar with or willing to learn approaches to integrate Indigenous Environmental Governance frameworks, cyberinfrastructure, and advanced data science.

In addition to relationship building, collaborative data collection and analysis, and mentoring, the postdoctoral researchers will be expected to:

- Contribute to research papers for publication
- Conduct literature reviews
- Present research for multiple audiences, including Indigenous communities, academic conferences, policy audiences, and the general public
- Contribute to project management, including supporting project reporting, coordination, and communication

Finally, successful applicants are expected to uphold the Collective's commitment to respect the rights of Native Nations and Indigenous communities in making decisions related to why, how, and by whom knowledge, information, and data are collected, used, or shared.

Applicants should indicate which position they are applying for (either one or both). Details provided below. Both positions are open to ABD candidates close to degree and PhDs who received their degrees since 2020. Expected to begin Fall 2023 with flexibility on start date.

Review will begin immediately and continue until the positions are filled. Applications received by May 31, 2023, will receive full consideration. To apply, please submit your cover letter, CV, writing sample, and three contacts for references through [https://app.smartsheet.com/b/form/01c4c33f00dd49248cfe87cd2e62b16e&quot; rel=&quot;noopener&quot; target=&quot;\_blankonline application&quot;](https://app.smartsheet.com/b/form/01c4c33f00dd49248cfe87cd2e62b16e&quot; rel=&quot;noopener&quot; target=&quot;_blankonline application&quot;).

Postdoctoral Researcher: Strengthening Sovereignty for Resilience

Strengthening Resilience of Ojibwe Nations across Generations project (STRONG; PI: Suiseeya) is a tribally driven effort whose vision is to enhance disaster anticipation, preparation, mitigation, and response in Indigenous communities by building and deploying cyberinfrastructure that integrates Indigenous knowledge, advanced sensing technologies and data systems in ways that support and strengthen Ojibwe Nations' sovereignty and resilience to climate change. During STRONG's planning efforts, Ojibwe Nation leaders made clear that their ability to effectively implement resilience strategies requires recognition of their sovereignty and respect for their authority, legitimacy, and credibility to govern and to exercise treaty rights by the US and state governmental agencies. To strengthen resilience, these leaders identified the need to collect and integrate new environmental data within a culturally appropriate resilience framework. The STRONG project aims to understand the relationships between Indigenous sovereignty and resilience to climate change and support co-development of governance frameworks and tools to strengthen resilience.

The postdoctoral researcher will be expected to conduct field-based research to understand the empirical relationship between sovereignty and resilience. The research will involve working with partner Native Nations and communities to analyze how multi-level governance systems shape sovereignty and resilience practices, experiences, and outcomes; and exploring how multi-modal data can inform and strengthen sovereignty. The postdoctoral researcher will be expected to use multiple, mixed methods including archival research, interviews, focus groups, empirical environmental justice analysis, and institutional analysis to assess sovereignty and wellbeing, and inform development and measurement of sovereignty-affirming resilience indicators. Ideally, the candidate will also contribute to development of STRONG's decision-support cyberinfrastructure, Noon-dawind, a dynamic online community that supports Ojibwe analysis and interpretation of socio-ecological data for asserting sovereignty.

Postdoctoral Researcher: RICE-Gov

Research for Indigenous-led, Collaborative Environmental Governance (RICE-Gov) is part of the NSF-funded Coastlines and Peoples (CoPe, https://www.nsf.gov/awardsearch/showAward?AWD\_ID= 2209226&quot; rel=&quot;noopener&quot; target=&quot;_blankAward No. 2209226&lt;/a&gt;, PI: Hester) Research Hub examining manoomin (wild rice) resilience in the Western Great Lakes region of the United States. Central to Ojibwe lifeways and resilience, manoomin is also a keystone sentinel species for understanding and conserving Great Lakes coastal wetlands. As part of a broader tribally driven research initiative at Northwestern University, the Hub seeks to support Indigenous-led, data-driven resilience strategies for manoomin and increase participation of Great Lakes Indigenous Peoples in science through culturally empowering and sovereignty-affirming collaborative research.&lt;/p&gt;

&lt;p&gt;Currently, hundreds of Tribal, governmental, private, and community agencies and organizations govern the manoomin range using a complicated, sometimes overlapping and often competing set of public and private treaties, laws, regulations, policies, and norms, all of which operate at different governance levels. As part of the Hub, RICE-Gov aims to understand how such fragmented governance presents challenges and opportunities for advancing manoomin resilience.

The postdoctoral researcher will be expected to conduct field-based research to understand the governance dynamics around manoomin. The research will involve analyzing the institutional landscapes for manoomin governance, identifying opportunities for integrating sovereignty-affirming knowledge practices into policy-making, and develop strategies and capacity-building plans for translating real-time data into real-time governance for manoomin resilience. The postdoctoral researcher will be expected to work with tribal partners to convene iterative workshops focused on strengthening reciprocal relationships through understanding the human and social dimensions of manoomin environments (2) support development of virtual interfaces and opportunities for collaboratively analyzing scientific knowledge and Indigenous knowledge to inform multiple evidence base (MEB) policy-making; and, (3) proactively and responsively analyze governance architectures and policy options to contribute to development and realization of an Indigenous Environmental Governance framework that convenes relatives and responsibilities for advancing manoomin resilience across the region.

Successful candidates will join a university with a broad, interdisciplinary community of scholars affiliated with programs such as the Center for Diversity and Democracy (CSDDD), the Institute for Sustainability and Energy at Northwestern (ISEN), the Institute for Policy Research (IPR), the Global Poverty Research Lab, the Center for Native American and Indigenous Research (CNAIR), the Environmental Humanities workshop, and the newly established graduate Environment Cluster whose research and pedagogy engages themes related to environmental justice and policy. Additionally, successful applicants will work with PIs to co-create mentoring plans and individual development plans (IDP) to support each Postdoctoral Scholar in advancing their career goals. In addition to diverse opportunities to publish interdisciplinary work with diverse teams, team member will have the opportunity to present their work to broad networks in academia, national labs, and with funding agencies. Trainees will also have opportunities to mentor graduate and undergraduate students, participate in professional development programming through NU's Graduate School and the Searle Center for Advanced Learning and Teaching.

Faculty Recruitment Information in Journalism/ Media

The Faculty of Political Science and Economics at Waseda University invites applications for a tenure-track or tenured position in Journalism/ Media to begin in the spring of 2024 at the earliest.

Waseda University, founded in 1882, is a leading private research university located in central Tokyo. As part of its globalization efforts, the Faculty of Political Science and Economics (FPSE) has been offering degree programs in English for both undergraduate and graduate students since 2010, in addition to degree programs in Japanese. The programs provide diverse and dynamic academic opportunities for talented students from all around the world.

1. Affiliation:

The Faculty of Political Science and Economics, Waseda University

2. Field:

3. Courses to be taught:

The successful candidate will teach specialized courses in the Journalism Course of the Graduate School of Political Science (Master and Doctoral Program), seminars of the Journalism Category or the Media Category in the graduate programs, and related topics in FPSE including "Advanced seminar" in the undergraduate program.

4. Qualifications:

- (1) Applicants must have empirical research achievement using data analysis in the field of Journalism or Media.
- (2) Applicants must be able to teach the courses stated in "3. Courses to be taught" in both Japanese and English.
- (3) Applicants must have a Ph.D. degree or expect to obtain it by the time of appointment.
- (4) Ability to teach at least one of the introductory methodology courses which is a required course for the Political Science Course in the Graduate School of Political Science.
- (5) Teaching experience in relevant courses at university level is desirable.
- (6) Ability to develop, coordinate, and formulate the educational curriculum for the Journalism Course is desirable.

5. Number of positions available:

One

6. Position rank and title:

Professor (tenured), Associate Professor (tenured), Associate Professor (Tenure-track), or Assistant Professor (Tenure-track)

The position rank is determined by such factors as the applicant's academic and research record, as well as evaluation during the screening process, will be made known to the applicant at the final interview with the FPSE's dean and other executive committee members.

General Idea of Tenure-Track Positions at FPSE: (Detailed information will be provided after the second round of selection.)

A tenure-track position at FPSE shall be appointed either as Assistant Professor (tenure-track) or Associate Professor (tenure-track), for three years in the first term, followed by two years of reappointment and an additional two years of reappointment, for a total of up to seven years. As a general rule, the interim review shall be carried out in the second semester of the third year (sixth semester) following the appointment and completed within the first three-year term on the tenure track. When a tenure-track faculty member passes the interim review, the first reappointment of two years shall be confirmed before the end of the initial appointment (three years).

By default, the final review shall be carried out in the second semester of the fifth year (tenth semester) and completed by the end of the fifth year on the tenure track. When the tenure-track faculty member passes the final review, the faculty member will become a tenured faculty member from the following semester. The second reappointment of two years may be granted to a tenure-track faculty member who fails the final review. The tenure-track faculty member may request an interim review or a final review at any time in or after the second semester of the second year (fourth semester) following appointment.

If you have had an employment contract with Waseda University (regardless of job title) since April 1, 2013, and there is no period of at least six months without an employment contract with Waseda University at the scheduled start of this position, in principle, there is a limit to the duration of the employment contract. Therefore, the above may not be applied.

7. Working conditions:

·Salary, allowances, and commuting expenses are commensurate with qualifications and are based on Waseda University pay scales.

·The workplace will, in principle, be on a Waseda University campus.

·Scheduled working days and working hours (starting/finishing times and rest periods) are based on university regulations. The discretionary labor system for professional work will be applied to research work. Considering the nature of research work, working hours are at the discretion of each faculty member.

Apply: <https://prri.smapply.io>

About PRRI: <https://www.prri.org/about/>

PRRI is announcing an opportunity to join a diverse cohort of 16 non-residential Public Fellows who are engaged in public scholarship at the intersection of religion, culture, and politics.

As a part of PRRI's Religion and Renewing Democracy Initiative, the organization is seeking applicants whose research agendas align with one of four principal vectors of PRRI's ongoing work: 1) religious, racial, and ethnic pluralism; 2) racial justice and white supremacy; 3) immigration and migration studies; and 4) LGBTQ rights. In each area of scholarship, PRRI will select four Public Fellows.

Benefits of the 11-month program (August to July) include:

1. An annual stipend of $5,000/year and course release funds up to $10,000 for the spring 2024 semester.
2. Access to annual microgrants of $12,000 in each area of PRRI's work for collaborative scholarly projects within the cohort.
3. Advance access to PRRI data, as well as various training opportunities to support public scholarship.

Application requirements:

1. Fellows must have a Ph.D. or comparable terminal degree plus a formal affiliation with an accredited college, university, seminary, or research institute in the United States.
2. Fellows must have earned their terminal degree at least three years ago and no more than 12 years ago.
3. Fellows should have demonstrable academic expertise in at least one of the four areas of PRRI's work (see above).
4. Fellows must be authorized to work in the United States.

For questions, please contact PRRI at public.fellows@publicreligion.org.

Johns Hopkins University

Rank: Adjunct Faculty: Intelligence Analysis

Subfield(s): International Relations, American Government and Politics, Other

Specializations: Intelligence, Defense, International Security

Location:

Washington, DC or Online (Remote)

Open Date:

Feb 01, 2023

POSITION:

Adjunct Faculty, Intelligence Analysis
Krieger School of Arts and Sciences
Advanced Academic Programs

INSTITUTION:

Johns Hopkins University

Institution Description:

The Advanced Academic Programs (AAP) is a division of the Krieger School of Arts and Sciences at the Johns Hopkins University (JHU). As the nation's oldest and one of the most prestigious research universities, Johns Hopkins offers high-quality master's degrees and post-baccalaureate education to students in the mid-Atlantic region and online. In addition to the online programs, AAP also offers master's degrees and graduate certificate programs at its Washington, DC Center and at the Homewood campus in Baltimore, MD. AAP has approximately 18,000 enrollments each academic year. JHU is committed to hiring candidates who, through their teaching and service, will contribute to the diversity and excellence of the academic community.

Position Description:

The Advanced Academic Programs (AAP) division seeks non-tenure track adjunct faculty to teach several courses within the MS in Intelligence Analysis program. The course(s) will be taught fully online beginning in Summer 2023 and beyond. Candidates with online course development and teaching experience and those with experience teaching and engaging students from diverse backgrounds are of particular interest. We are looking for faculty who can teach one or more of the following courses:

473.600 the Art and Practice of Intelligence

This course introduces students to the field of intelligence, particularly as practiced in the United States. After a brief overview of the historical foundations of modern intelligence, it discusses how intelligence is conducted including collection, analysis, counterintelligence, covert action, and oversight. It also discusses intelligence ethics, as well as the disruptive influences of September 11, new technologies, and emerging social trends.

473.602 Intelligence Analysis

Intelligence analysis is fundamentally about understanding and communicating to decision makers what is known, not known, and surmised, as it can best be determined. Students will read seminal texts on intelligence analysis, discuss the complex cognitive, psychological, organizational, ethical, and legal issues surrounding intelligence analysis now and, in the past, and apply analytic methodologies to real-world problems.

473.604 Advanced Critical Thinking and Analysis

Critical thinking involves the methods and principles of correct reasoning and argumentation. Students will apply a combination of logic, critical thinking skills, and structured analytical techniques to identify biases, promote self-reflective reasoning, and improve the quality of intelligence analysis. Using a selection of empirical case studies and operational exemplars, students will conduct a comparative assessment of analytical outcomes based on the application of course learnings versus outcomes derived in their absence.

473.607 Intelligence Ethics

This course will address the ethical dilemmas and issues that challenge intelligence and government decision makers in an increasingly complex operational and technological environment. We will examine basic moral, ethical and privacy considerations at several key points in intelligence operations from collection to covert action. The course will analyze the evolving nature of privacy concerns worldwide, with an emphasis on the balance between individual rights and national security. Students will examine the policy implications inherent in seeking to address these tensions.

473.606 Legal Issues in Intelligence

This class will examine the interplay between the laws and the practices and policies of the United States' Intelligence Community and national security system, both foreign and domestic. While discussion of the history of intelligence activities and laws dating from the origins of our colonial days will necessarily shape the framework of the class, the focus shall particularly be on current debates and challenges faced by the United States in the 21st Century.

473.800 Research Seminar

This course will introduce a variety of research, analytical, and statistical methods intended to provide a basis for designing a research project, including an introduction to quantitative, qualitative, and mixed method research design. Within the context of the course, students will complete foundational work for the capstone project, including identifying and accessing relevant primary and secondary source data, surveying and evaluating the literature, and framing a research question based on the intersection of empirical studies and organizational needs. Attention will be given to the unique restrictions placed on research design and publication within the intelligence community.

473.801 Capstone: Current Issues in Intelligence

In this culminating course, students complete an independent, faculty-approved project that will address a substantive or methodological challenge in intelligence analysis. A successful capstone will include research that provides evidence of the student's mastery of the theoretical knowledge and analytical skills central to the degree's learning outcomes. The capstone provides an opportunity to apply the skills acquired throughout the program to a key challenge facing their organization or community. Students will conduct a literature review, select a research method appropriate to their study, analyze data using qualitative or quantitative methods in their capstone project, and propose and defend their findings.

Minimum Qualifications:

- An advanced degree in any relevant field, with a master's degree at minimum.
- At least five years of professional work experience within the intelligence field.

Preferred Qualifications:

- A terminal degree in international relations, global security studies, political science, history, or in a relevant field related to intelligence.
- A scholar-practitioner background and publications in the field.
- 1-3 years of graduate level teaching experience.
- Leadership experience within the US Intelligence Community.
- Online teaching experience.
- Experience in developing graduate courses.
- The background to teach a wide variety of courses in an intelligence analysis program.
- Strong interest in advising graduate students interested in an intelligence career.

Application Instructions

The position will remain open until filled. For best consideration, please apply by April 1 2023.

Candidates must submit the following:

- Cover letter should indicate the course or courses you're interested in teaching plus your experience with online learning management systems (i.e., Canvas)
- Curriculum vitae
- Teaching evaluations for two most recently taught courses
- Transcript from highest degree earned
- The selected candidate will undergo a background check and provide three references.

Johns Hopkins University

Rank: P3 Lab Postdoctoral Fellow

P3 Lab Postdoctoral Fellow

The P3 Lab at Johns Hopkins University is seeking to hire a qualified Postdoctoral Fellow to work with Faculty Director, Professor Hahrie Han, and Lab Director, Jane Booth-Tobin, on a range of studies focused on social movements and community organizing, particularly within race-class subjugated communities. The Postdoctoral Fellow will be hired for a yearlong term beginning no earlier than September 2022.

The position requires someone with a strong background in social science research grounded in the study of collective action and social movements. Post-docs must be excellent writers, capable with quantitative data analysis, and have experience with qualitative fieldwork. Applicants should have a PhD in a relevant social science field from an accredited institution and a record of being an outstanding scholar. Postdoctoral Fellows will be exempt from teaching and service duties and will devote their full-time effort to working on research. The expectation is that the fellow's time will be divided between working on a P3 research project and building out their own research.

Lab Description

At P3, we envision a world where people's participation in public life is possible, probable, and powerful: people across race and class have to be able to participate, they have to want to participate, and their participation has to matter. Realizing this vision necessitates designing a new civic architecture that enables people to engage in public life in ways that are grounded in their own experience, connected to one another, and organized through vehicles of collective action that give people ownership over the ongoing process of systemic struggle and change.

We are a multi-disciplinary research lab based at the SNF Agora Institute at Johns Hopkins University committed to learning and shared inquiry that meets the twin goals of relevance and rigor while helping to realize our vision. Our work simultaneously pushes the frontiers of strategic thinking in organizing and knowledge-building in academic scholarship.

New School for Social Research

Rank: Postdoctoral Fellowship: Political Theory

The Department of Politics at The New School seeks applicants for a Postdoctoral Fellow in Political Theory. While the research focus can address any theme, the candidate will be expected to offer one seminar per semester that connects political theory to themes such as race, feminism, capitalism, environment, political economy, and social movements. The position has a start date of August 21, 2023 and the possibility of a second year renewal.

The Department of Politics specializes in critical, historical, and interdisciplinary approaches to the study of politics. Faculty and students bring the leading edge of scholarly debate and analysis into conversation with pressing issues of our time. We engage in political and intellectual life at the university, in New York City, and as a part of extensive global research networks. The Department offers Bachelor of Arts, Master of Arts, and PhD degrees.

The New School is strongly committed to diversity and inclusion in the workplace and particularly seeks applications from members of underrepresented groups, as well as candidates who share this commitment.

Responsibilities

We are seeking a recent PhD graduate who has training in political theory and whose research interests connect with other fields in the discipline. The postdoctoral fellow will be expected to offer one graduate seminar in fall 2023 and one undergraduate seminar in spring 2024.

Minimum Qualifications

The selection among eligible candidates will be based on:

- A PhD in Political Science or cognate program by August 1, 2023
- Evidence of progress toward research publications
- Evidence of instructional experience (teaching assistant, instructor)
- Ability to adhere to University COVID-19 Policy

Work Modality

The Postdoctoral Fellow is expected to be in residence in the New York City region, to offer in-person classes and attend department events.

Salary Range

$50,000-$55,000 annually

To Apply

Review of applications will begin on April 24, 2023 and may continue until the position is filled.

Interested candidates should submit:

- ? Cover letter outlining research and teaching interests and relevant experience.
- ? Curriculum Vitae.
- ? A writing sample from a current research project.
- ? Names and contact information of three references (references will only be requested for short-listed candidates).

Applicants may be contacted at the discretion of the department faculty for additional materials.

Indiana University Purdue University

Rank: Post-Doctoral Teaching Fellow

The Department of Political Science at Purdue University Fort Wayne (PFW) welcomes qualified applications for a post-doctoral teaching fellowship in political philosophy. The Department of Political Science is housed in the College of Liberal Arts. The fellowship is a two-year appointment, with reappointment for the second year contingent on positive evaluations from students and faculty through the first year, as well as the curricular needs of the program. The fellow will teach a 3/3 course load, mentor undergraduate political science majors, and contribute to programming and faculty-related duties. The fellow will receive office space, a travel stipend, and faculty privileges to university services like institutional technology, the Center for the Enhancement of Teaching and Learning, and the library system, among others. The fellowship is a full-time position with teaching, research, and service expectations and a competitive salary and benefits package.

Qualifications

Applicants will be expected to have consequential teaching experience, solid teaching evaluations, and strong recommendations from their direct teaching mentors. Candidates must have earned their Ph.D. in political science after May 1, 2019, or will have earned their Ph.D. no later than August 15, 2023; completion of the doctoral degree is a requirement for the fellowship appointment. Candidates should be able to teach across different eras and approaches of the political philosophy subfield, as well as to teach another area of political science associated with their academic training and introductory courses common in the discipline.

The Department of Political Science at PFW is a dynamic department with award-winning faculty and students who have earned numerous nationally prestigious awards. Our graduates have attended elite graduate, professional, and law programs and thrive in nearly every private and public sector field. We have averaged around 75 majors in recent years and have multiple degree programs, certificates, and minors. The department's ability to provide our students with a broad curriculum across the discipline despite our marginally sized faculty has been of particular note, as have our extensive experiential learning opportunities, overseas study, and internships. We are proud of our dedication to student mentoring. The fellow is expected to contribute to these existing strengths and provide consistency as the department faculty transitions in its makeup. The fellow will have the opportunity to work with faculty mentors and serve as mentor to students as well as they strengthen their experience for subsequent faculty positions. The University

Purdue University Fort Wayne (PFW) is the largest university in northeast Indiana, offering 25 graduate and over 100 prestigious Purdue University undergraduate degrees and certificates. More than 10,000 students of diverse ages, races and nationalities belong to the PFW family. The 594-acre campus in Fort Wayne is home to over 7,000 degree-seeking undergraduate and graduate students. Through PFW's partnerships with area high schools, almost 3,000 high school students take dual-credit courses, simultaneously earning both high school and college credits. PFW is accredited by The Higher Learning Commission of the North Central Association of Colleges and Schools. Learn more about us at PFW.edu.

Application Process

For full consideration, applicants should provide a letter of interest, CV, statement of teaching philosophy, three letters of recommendation, transcripts, and evidence of teaching effectiveness, including sample syllabi and/or descriptions for courses they would be interested in teaching. The expectation is that the fellow will teach a range of courses, including introductory-level ones that contribute to PFW's general education curriculum, the interdisciplinary courses that attract College of Liberal Arts students, and upper-level political science courses that we already teach or that the candidate would develop. Candidates must demonstrate a strong commitment to teaching and an interest in taking an active role in the student-centered culture of the department. All candidates who are interviewed will prepare a faculty and staff presentation as well as an instructional student-centered presentation.

The Department is committed to advancing diversity in all areas of faculty effort, including research, teaching and service/engagement. Candidates should address at least one of these areas in their cover letter, indicating their past experiences, current interests or activities, and/or future goals to promote a climate that values diversity and inclusion.

PFW is an EEO/AA employer fully committed to achieving a diverse workforce. All individuals, including minorities, women, individuals with disabilities, and protected veterans are encouraged to apply. Purdue will not provide visa sponsorship for this position.

• 470.854 Fundamentals of Quantitative Methods

This course trains students to be informed consumers of quantitative studies, in addition to teaching the tools of basic statistical work. The course material covers basic descriptive statistics, inferential statistics, and data collection. The key learning objective is for students to develop a better understanding of the statistical and econometric results they may encounter in their careers.

• 470.631 Economics for Public Decision-making

This course aims to offer students an understanding of economics and its importance in public policymaking. The first half of the course will offer students an understanding of microeconomic and macroeconomic theory, including a discussion of when markets can work to achieve policy goals and when "market failures" call for government intervention. The second half of the class will use these economic tools and theories to survey several specific policy areas, including health policy, tax policy, and the national debt.

• 470.608 Public Policy Evaluation and the Policy Process

This course introduces students to the public policymaking process, the basics of policy analysis, and the substance of some of today's major policy debates. The first half of the course focuses on establishing a framework in which to analyze public policy formulation within the United States. The class also reviews the tools for developing and implementing policy. The second half of the course turns to policy analysis of some critical contemporary issues.

• 470.605 Global Political Economy

In this course, students investigate core topics in international political economy, analyzing the security implications of each. Topics include trade relations, international finance, monetary relations, poverty, and development.

Qualifications

Minimum Qualifications:

- An advanced degree in public policy/public administration or in a relevant field, such as public finance, economics, or political economy, with a master's degree at minimum
- Two years of professional work experience within the relevant fields

Preferred Qualifications:

- A terminal degree in public policy/public administration or in a relevant field, such as public finance, economics, or political economy
- 1-3 years of graduate-level teaching experience
- Online teaching experience

- In-person/in the classroom teaching experience.
- The background to teach a wide variety of courses in the public management program.

University of Tennessee, Knoxville

Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Public Law, International Relations

The Department of Political Science at the University of Tennessee, Knoxville invites applications for a non-tenure track, nine-month, full-time Lecturer to begin on August 1, 2023. The initial appointment for this nine-month position will be for one year, but with the likelihood of renewal based on quality of instruction, funding, and department need. The successful candidate will teach four classes in both fall and spring semesters. Lecturers can also teach in summer and winter mini-terms, depending on staffing needs. We seek candidates who are dedicated to a career of exceptional teaching of Political Science. This position will likely provide a path to promotion to Senior Lecturer and ultimately Distinguished Lecturer, which entail salary increases and extended appointments. Several lecturers in our current department have been on faculty for a decade or more and have successfully advanced to the distinguished and senior lecturer ranks. Professional development opportunities are available to Lecturers and supported by both the Department and College. Responsibilities include modest service roles. Candidates must have a PhD in Political Science or equivalent at the time of appointment. We are seeking candidates with a strong background in American Politics, International Relations, and or Comparative Politics, and a commitment to fostering the goals of the department, college, and university.

The University of Tennessee enrolls over 30,000 students at its Knoxville campus. UTK is the state's only public Carnegie Doctoral/Research Extensive University and is currently ranked among the nation's Top 50 public universities. The Department of Political Science has approximately 600 undergraduate majors and 30 MA and Ph.D. students. The city of Knoxville, with a population of 200,000 and growing, is a hidden gem with a beautiful and walkable downtown, varied nightlife, active neighborhoods, and eclectic cultural activities, shopping, and restaurants. It is home to the Knoxville Symphony and the Knoxville Opera, as well as annual festivals like the international Big Ears Music Festival, Jazz on the Square, and Shakespeare on the Square. Trip Advisor recently named Knoxville a Top Ten Destination on the Rise. UTK is located within easy driving distance to Atlanta, Nashville, Asheville, and the Great Smoky Mountains.

Qualifications

PhD in Political Science or equivalent is required at the time of appointment. Record of successful teaching and mentoring in an institution of higher education related to American Politics, Comparative Politics, or International Relations is preferred. Experience or demonstrated ability in the design and delivery of courses in a variety of formats, including face-to-face, synchronous online, asynchronous online, and hybrid is preferred. Ability to work collaboratively with faculty, students, and staff from a wide range of disciplines, cultures and academic backgrounds is essential. The Knoxville campus of the University of Tennessee is seeking candidates who have the ability to contribute in meaningful ways to the diversity and intercultural goals of the University.

The University of Tennessee, Knoxville, is the state's flagship research institution, a campus of choice for outstanding undergraduates, and a premier graduate institution. As a land-grant university, it is committed to excellence in learning, scholarship, and engagement with society. More information about the Department is available at: <https://polisci.utk.edu/>.

Application Instructions

To apply, please submit a letter of interest, a curriculum vitae, statement of teaching philosophy, evidence of effective teaching, sample syllabus and exam for a course previously taught, and three recommendation letters through the Interfolio system link <http://apply.interfolio.com/123979>. A statement concerning experience with and plans for contributing to diversity, equity, and inclusion is valuable but not required. Review of applications will begin immediately and will continue until the position is filled. Questions regarding the position

Norfolk State University

Rank: Assistant Professor-Tenure-Track

Specializations: Constitutional Law & Theory, Urban Politics, Judicial Politics

The Department of Political Science at Norfolk State University offers a B.A. in Political Science as well as a minor. Although the Department is interested in developing new courses, currently we offer courses primarily in American Politics, International Relations, Political Theory, Public Administration, Urban Planning, and Pre-Law. The department is particularly interested in candidates who have experience working with students from diverse backgrounds and a demonstrated commitment to improving access to higher education for all students regardless of background. Candidates must include a statement that reflects their commitment to diversity and inclusion including any experience they may have working with students from underrepresented groups.

This is a tenure-track position at the Assistant Professor rank. We are looking for a candidate specializing in Constitutional Law and Urban Politics. The successful candidate would be required to teach courses in Constitutional Law and Urban Planning. Preference will be given to candidates with significant experience with Pre-Law Program development, mentoring, and LSAT tutoring. Also, noting that online instruction constitutes a huge part of our course delivery system, preference will be given to candidates with experience in using LMS, preferably Blackboard, to teach their courses. The successful candidate will also be required to supervise the department's internship program.

1. Teach undergraduate courses in Constitutional Law and Urban Planning
2. Deliver courses online (the university's platform of choice is Blackboard)
3. Develop new instructional materials, techniques, course offerings or major revisions of existing courses
4. Actively engage in research/scholarship and grantsmanship
5. Engage in exemplary teaching, both face-to-face and online
6. Devote time to mentoring and advising students throughout their undergraduate years
7. Assist in developing and administering internship opportunities for students with local, state, and national entities, employers, civic engagement groups, activist and interest groups
8. Develop and attend professional improvement activities in order to maintain contact with one's academic discipline, including teaching/learning processes and/or development of knowledge in one's field of specialization
9. Collegially engage with faculty and other members of the university community
10. Demonstrate multicultural competence including an awareness and understanding of historically disadvantaged populations, and create an educational environment that affirms commitment to diversity, equity, and inclusion
11. Engage in shared governance by participating in department, division, and university committees and assisting in the formulation of policy pertaining to educational programs.

University of South Carolina

Rank: Full-Time Instructor in Public Law or American Political Institutions

The Department of Political Science at the University of South Carolina seeks applications for a full-time instructor position in Public Law or American Political Institutions to begin August 16, 2023. We seek candidates who have experience teaching a wide range of classes including Constitutional Law, Civil Liberties, Judicial Process, American National Government, and other courses focused on the Founding Documents of the United States. A Ph.D. in political science is required by the start date of appointment.

From the Upstate to the Lowcountry, the University of South Carolina system is transforming the lives of South Carolinians through the impact of our eight institutions and 20 locations throughout the state. More than 50,000 students are enrolled at one of eight institutions, including the research campus in Columbia and comprehensive four-year universities in Aiken, Upstate and Beaufort. In addition, our Palmetto College campuses in Salkehatchie, Union, Lancaster, and Sumter enable students to earn associate or bachelor’s degrees through a combination of in-person, online or blended learning. All of our system institutions place strong emphasis on service — helping to build healthier, more educated communities in South Carolina and beyond.

At the University of South Carolina, we strive to cultivate an inclusive environment that is open, welcoming, and supportive of individuals of all backgrounds. We recognize diversity in our workforce is essential to providing academic excellence and critical to our sustainability. The University is committed to eliminating barriers created by institutional discrimination through accountability and continuous process improvement. We celebrate the diverse voices, perspectives, and experiences of our employees.

The University of South Carolina is an affirmative action, equal opportunity employer. Minorities and women are encouraged to apply. The University of South Carolina does not discriminate in educational or employment opportunities on the basis of race, sex, gender, gender identity, transgender status, age, color, religion, national origin, disability, sexual orientation, genetics, protected veteran status, pregnancy, childbirth or related medical conditions.

How to Apply

Applicants must submit a cover letter; curriculum vitae; two writing samples that demonstrate a significant ongoing research agenda; statements of research and teaching interests; graduate transcript; contact information (including telephone number and email address) for three references; and a diversity statement that articulates the candidate's commitment and capacity to contribute to diversity, equity, and inclusion through research, teaching, mentoring, outreach, and engagement. References will be contacted directly for letters of recommendation (which must be submitted on appropriate letterhead). The position will remain open until filled, and the search committee will begin reviewing applications on April 17, 2023. ### University of Puget Sound

Rank: Visiting Assistant Professor

Visiting Assistant Professor, University of Puget Sound

Appointment: One-year visiting assistant professor in US politics for the 2023-2024 academic year. Responsibilities/Description: We are seeking a scholar of US politics to teach six courses for the year. Courses will include Constitutional Law, Introduction to US Politics, and courses that match the interest and expertise of the successful applicant. While not required, applications are encouraged from scholars who could offer courses appealing to student interests in critical approaches or in areas such as indigenous rights or immigration law. There are also opportunities to connect with scholars and students in a range of interdisciplinary programs including a new Crime, Law, and Justice program; African American Studies; and Latinx Studies.

Qualifications: A doctoral degree (ABD considered) in Political Science and a commitment to undergraduate education are required. Candidates must demonstrate a willingness and ability to address the needs of historically underrepresented students. Successful applicants will have expertise in the US courts or the law. We are interested in candidates with a range of secondary interests including but not limited to parties, political behavior, or US institutions.

Application Deadline: Review of applications will begin March 1 and continue until position is filled.

Required Documents:

- Curriculum vitae
- Letter of interest
- Teaching statement
- Diversity statement (see prompt below)
- Sample syllabi of courses you would be prepared to teach
- A research sample (e.g. article, dissertation chapter, conference presentation)
- Contact information for three (3) references. You will be prompted to enter the contact information for three (3) reference providers. The system will automatically email these reference providers to request a letter.

Applicant's Diversity Statement. As a department and university, we are strongly committed to creating an inclusive and effective teaching, learning, and working environment for all. In the applicant's diversity statement, applicants should comment on their ability to contribute meaningfully to our on-going commitment to be informed and competent with regard to issues of diversity, equity, and individual differences. We encourage applicants to reference the University of Puget Sound's current Diversity Strategic Plan (DSP) at <https://www.pugetsound.edu/equity-diversity-puget-sound/threshold-2022-cultivating-culture-inclusive-excellence> prior to writing this statement. While not an exhaustive list, the following are some ways applicants can express their qualifications:

- Demonstration of your awareness of inequities for underrepresented student populations in education, research experience, and other opportunities;
- Brief insights on why diversity is important at institutions like the University of Puget Sound;
- Your lived experiences and/or identities that speak to the department and university's commitment to inclusion and diversity; Infusion of diversity and diversity-related issues into your research, pedagogy, and/or service;
- Previous and/or current activities involving mentoring underrepresented student populations;
- Brief insights on how cultural competency increases one's effectiveness as an educator and department/university colleague.

PUBLIC POLICY

Nanyang Technological University, Singapore

Rank: Assistant Professor of Political Theory

Specializations: Political Theory, Political Economy, Research Methods

Public Policy and Global Affairs
School of Social Sciences
Nanyang Technological University, Singapore

Young and research intensive, Nanyang Technological University, Singapore (NTU Singapore) is ranked among the world’s top universities.

The School of Social Sciences offers undergraduate and graduate degree programmes in a full range of disciplines and actively promotes interdisciplinary learning and research.

Assistant Professor of Political Theory

The School of Social Sciences at NTU Singapore invites applications for a tenure-track Assistant Professor position in Public Policy and Global Affairs (PPGA).

The Public Policy and Global Affairs Programme is one of the four major programmes in the School of Social Sciences, together with Sociology, Psychology, and Economics. We attract excellent students to our BSocSci and PhD degree programmes and provide them with interdisciplinary training, as well as practical knowledge and skill sets necessary to dissect and address real world problems facing political leaders, policymakers, and the global community.

We seek a dedicated colleague with the necessary skills to collaborate and strengthen PPGA’s research programmes and teaching portfolios, as well as commit to relevant administration duties. Personal aptitude will be important for this position.

The successful candidate will have a PhD in political science or in a related field, a strong track record of research commensurate with career stage (e.g., publishing in established peer-reviewed journals in the discipline, securing and managing externally funded research, organising conference panels and workshops) and effective teaching and training of undergraduate and/or graduate students.

Area of specialization within political theory is open, however we particularly welcome candidates who are able to offer courses in non-Western political thought. Ability to teach in a secondary discipline, comparative politics, political economy, or Singapore politics, would also be considered an asset

In addition to developing their own research programme, we expect the successful candidate to contribute to teaching undergraduate and graduate core modules in the PPGA Programme, and modules in their areas of specialisation. The successful candidate will join a dynamic team in administering the PPGA Programme.

Essential selection criteria:

- A PhD in political science or in a related field.
- A strong research and publication track record commensurate with career stage.
- Experience and interest in teaching PPGA core modules (undergraduate, graduate).
- Excellent communication, interpersonal skills, and commitment relevant to teaching, pastoral care, and administering the PPGA Programme.

Desirable selection criteria:

- Specialisation in one or more of the following subfields: political theory and research methodology.
- Research and teaching interests that strengthen and expand PPGA’s research programmes and teaching portfolios.

For further information about the Public Policy and Global Affairs Programme, School of Social Sciences at NTU Singapore, please see: <https://www.ntu.edu.sg/sss/public-policy-and-global-affairs>.

Emoluments

NTU Singapore offers a competitive salary commensurate with qualifications and experience in addition to a comprehensive fringe benefit package.

Georgetown University

Rank: Post-Doctoral Fellow

Description

Post Doc Fellow for Better Government Lab

The Better Government Lab conducts empirical field-based research to assess the impact and effectiveness of interventions and policies aimed at improving the capacity of government and the quality of government, and is part of the McCourt School of Public Policy at Georgetown University.

The Postdoctoral Fellow will be part of the project “Can governments learn digital governance innovation from the civic tech community?” working closely with project’s PI’s (Pamela Herd, Sebastian Jilke, Donald Moynihan). The position is for two years, and funded via an award from the Tech and Public Policy program and McCourt Institute. We hope to have someone in place for Fall of 2023, but will search until a suitable candidate is found.

We seek candidates with strong mixed-methods or qualitative method skills. The primary responsibility will be to engage in a study of how civic technology organizations interact with government, and how those interactions facilitate the adoption of digital innovation in government. This will require conducting a series of primary case studies using mixed-methods.

The position will not require any teaching and has flexibility for geographical location in accordance with Georgetown’s telework policy.

The Postdoctoral Fellow will:

Help to develop a research plan;

Complete Georgetown IRB training and requirements for the project;

Organize and undertake interviews with research subjects;

Perform data analysis and interpretation;

Distill findings into reports, policy memos and academic publications;

Present project designs and results at government and external conferences and meetings;

Qualifications

Ph.D. in and research experience with public policy, political science, economics, public administration, organization theory, sociology, business, or a related field (ABDs are welcome to apply if they expect to complete or be near completion of their Ph.D. before project start).

The ideal candidate will have a mix of the following qualifications:

Extensive knowledge of and experience applying qualitative skills, with quantitative skills as a bonus;

An interest in government capacity, administrative burden, digital innovations, human-centered design, organizational theory and/or social policy;

Experience or strong interest in working with government programs, policies and/or operations;

Strong project management skills;

Position description

The University of California, Berkeley (UCB) Department of Political Science is seeking a postdoctoral scholar who will work in collaboration with and under the supervision of Assistant Professor Kirk Bansak.

Research with Professor Bansak will involve collaboration on his existing and/or new academic research projects. Potential project areas of interest could include (but are not limited to): political methodology; computational social science; design, analysis, and application of conjoint experiments; immigration, refugee, and asylum politics; algorithmic decision-making in public policy; technology and democracy; economic crisis and austerity politics; and public opinion.

In addition to the research component, the postdoctoral scholar will contribute to the Yardi Scholarship program in coordination with Professor Bansak, who is the program's Faculty Director. Launching in Fall 2023, the Yardi Scholarship brings together undergraduate students in the College of Engineering and the College of Letters & Science-Social Sciences Division for a signature experience centered around the intersection of democracy and technology. Yardi Scholars benefit from financial support, a dynamic curriculum, intellectual community, and a program to foster and apply their commitment to improving the world around them. Once fully implemented, the Yardi Scholarship will support 60 students.

New York University Arts and Science
Rank: Visiting Assistant Professor, International Relations

Visiting Assistant Professor, International Relations
 New York University Faculty of Arts and Science

New York University's Program in International Relations invites applications for a Visiting Assistant Professor in International Relations. This one year position will have a start date of September 1, 2023, and is renewable for up to three years, pending budgetary and administrative approval.

The teaching load for this position is two graduate-level courses per academic semester. Candidates will also be expected to serve as an academic advisor, supervise theses, and participate in program events. The selected candidate will be expected to teach the Program's core International Relations Theory course, in addition to electives in their research area. Preference may be given to candidates with research experience in security studies, international organizations, American foreign policy, conflict studies, and political violence. The breakdown for this position is 50% teaching and 50% service.

The Program in International Relations is home to the MA in International Relations (MAIR). The MAIR is an interdisciplinary program in international relations offering elective concentrations in Asian Studies, European and Mediterranean Studies, International Law, International Politics and Business, Latin American & Caribbean Studies, Middle Eastern & Levantine Studies, Russian and Slavic Studies, and US Foreign Policy. The Program also has a dual Master in Public Administration ("MPA-MAIR") with the Wagner Graduate School of Public Service and a joint degree, the Master of Arts in Journalism and International Relations ("GloJo"), with the Arthur L. Carter Journalism Institute.

The Program in International Relations is housed within NYU's Graduate School of Arts and Science (GSAS). One of the top graduate schools in the world, GSAS counts among its ranks five Pulitzer Prize winners, nine MacArthur Fellows, three National Medal of Science winners, four Howard Hughes Medical Institute Investigators, and 98 Guggenheim Fellows. Students from all 50 states and more than 100 countries study at GSAS. Like our students, NYU faculty come from around the world. Together we form a truly exciting community of the mind around our campus on Washington Square—and across our global network university that stretches across Europe, the Middle East, and Asia. GSAS is dedicated to the education and training of innovative and successful scholars, teachers, and professionals.

In compliance with NYC's Pay Transparency Act, the annual base salary for this position is $60,000. New York University considers factors such as (but not limited to) the scope and responsibilities of the position, the candidate's work experience, education/training, key skills, internal peer equity, as well as market and organizational considerations when extending an offer.

Review of applications will begin on May 15th and continue until the position is filled. Questions about this position should be sent to Lara J. Nettelfield, Program Director, at ln2293@nyu.edu.

University of Texas, Arlington

Position ID: F00418P

The Department of Political Science at the University of Texas at Arlington is seeking a non-tenure-stream, full time lecturer, which will begin in August 2023. This position will operate with a three-year contract. We encourage applications from people qualified to teach courses in the following areas: US Government; Texas/State and Local Government. We also welcome applications from those who also are qualified to teach upper division (sophomore-seniors) and graduate MA courses in political science. We are especially interested in applicants who have demonstrated a commitment to students' success and an interest in supporting student recruitment and retention efforts.

Essential duties and responsibilities:

The ability to teach face-to-face, hybrid, and/or online courses in the following areas: US Government; Texas/State and Local Government and other high-enrollment upper-division courses.

Required qualifications:

For lecturer positions, we require at minimum a Master's degree in political science or a very closely related field and prefer applicants who are PhD holding or pursuing a doctorate, or who are ABD.

The University of Texas at Arlington is located in the heart of the Dallas-Fort Worth-Arlington metroplex, a vibrant and diverse metropolitan area that is home to over 7 million people, one of the fastest-growing tech economies in the United States, and a wide array of arts, entertainment, and cultural activities. UTA is a comprehensive teaching, research, and public service institution dedicated to the advancement of knowledge through scholarship and creative work. The University is committed to providing access and ensuring student success, and to a culture of innovation, entrepreneurship, and commercialization of discoveries by our community of scholars. With an enrollment of approximately 46,000 students, UTA is the largest institution in North Texas and the second-largest in the UT System. As a result of its combination of rigorous academics and innovative research, UTA is designated as a Carnegie R-1 "Very High Research Activity" institution and as a Texas Tier One institution. In 2021, UTA received the Higher Education Excellence in Diversity Award for its deep commitment to diversity, equity, and inclusion in higher education.

UTA ranks No. 4 nationally in Military Times' annual "Best for Vets: Colleges" list and No. 1 in Texas for the number of degrees awarded to African American students (Diverse: Issues in Higher Education, 2021). UTA is designated by the U.S. Department of Education as both a Hispanic Serving Institution (HSI) and an Asian American and Native American Pacific Islander-Serving Institution (AANAP-ISI), and it has the fifth-most ethnically diverse undergraduate population in the United States (U.S. News & World Report, 2023). UTA is among the top 50 performers nationwide for promoting social mobility of its graduates (U.S. News & World Report, 2023), and its approximately 250,000 alumni, including some who occupy leadership positions at many of the 23 Fortune 500 companies headquartered in North Texas, contribute to the UTA's $22.2 billion annual economic impact on Texas.

The Department of Political Science (<http://www.uta.edu/pols/> and <https://www.facebook.com/POLSatUTARlington>) offers a Bachelor of Arts and Master of Arts. It serves students from across the University (in state-mandated introductory courses) as well as over two hundred and forty undergraduate majors and minors and ten to twenty graduate students.

Successful candidates are expected to demonstrate a commitment to diversity and equity in education through their scholarship, teaching, and/or service as well as a strong commitment to teaching, advising, and mentoring undergraduate and graduate students from diverse backgrounds.

To apply applicants should go to <http://uta.peopleadmin.com/> and submit the following materials: Candidates should submit a cover letter, curriculum vitae, two sample syllabi, a statement of interest, and contact information for three references. Review of applications will begin immediately and will continue until the position is filled. The start date for the position is August 15, 2023.

Questions may be addressed to: Dr. Brent Boyea (boyea@uta.edu). For more information about UTA, please visit: <http://www.uta.edu/uta>.

Norfolk State University

Specializations: Constitutional Law & Theory, Urban Politics, Judicial Politics

The Department of Political Science at Norfolk State University offers a B.A. in Political Science as well as a minor. Although the Department is interested in developing new courses, currently we offer courses primarily in American Politics, International Relations, Political Theory, Public Administration, Urban Planning, and Pre-Law. The department is particularly interested in candidates who have experience working with students from diverse backgrounds and a demonstrated commitment to improving access to higher education for all students regardless of background. Candidates must include a statement that reflects their commitment to diversity and inclusion including any experience they may have working with students from underrepresented groups.

This is a tenure-track position at the Assistant Professor rank. We are looking for a candidate specializing in Constitutional Law and Urban Politics. The successful candidate would be required to teach courses in Constitutional Law and Urban Planning. Preference will be given to candidates with significant experience with Pre-Law Program development, mentoring, and LSAT tutoring. Also, noting that online instruction constitutes a huge part of our course delivery system, preference will be given to candidates with experience in using LMS, preferably Blackboard, to teach their courses. The successful candidate will also be required to supervise the department's internship program.

1. Teach undergraduate courses in Constitutional Law and Urban Planning
2. Deliver courses online (the university's platform of choice is Blackboard)
3. Develop new instructional materials, techniques, course offerings or major revisions of existing courses
4. Actively engage in research/scholarship and grantsmanship
5. Engage in exemplary teaching, both face-to-face and online
6. Devote time to mentoring and advising students throughout their undergraduate years
7. Assist in developing and administering internship opportunities for students with local, state, and national entities, employers, civic engagement groups, activist and interest groups
8. Develop and attend professional improvement activities in order to maintain contact with one's academic discipline, including teaching/learning processes and/or development of knowledge in one's field of specialization
9. Collegially engage with faculty and other members of the university community
10. Demonstrate multicultural competence including an awareness and understanding of historically disadvantaged populations, and create an educational environment that affirms commitment to diversity, equity, and inclusion
11. Engage in shared governance by participating in department, division, and university committees and assisting in the formulation of policy pertaining to educational programs.

Harvard University

Rank: Julie Johnson Kidd Professorship of Indigenous Governance and Development

Subfield(s): Public Policy, Public Administration, Public Law

The Harvard Kennedy School invites applications for the newly endowed Julie Johnson Kidd Professorship of Indigenous Governance and Development. We seek candidates with distinguished records of scholarship and/or significant engagement in the efforts of Indigenous peoples to exert their powers of self-determination, with possible focus on political challenges; economic development; regulations, laws, and constitutions; environment; education; health; and/or relationships with external governments, jurisdictions, and populations. The position is open for either the full Professor academic rank or Professor of Practice, and we invite applications from accomplished scholars as well as accomplished policymakers and practitioners. In addition, candidates must be able to teach effectively in a professional degree program and to work in a diverse intellectual and social environment. Additionally, candidates should have experience in institutional leadership and engagement with Indigenous communities since an important component of this position is to assist in guiding the work of the Harvard Project on Indigenous Governance and Development (formerly, the Harvard Project on American Indian Economic Development). The Project's concomitant programs and endowments will complement the Professorship with its staff and additional faculty and student support capacity.

Candidates should submit a cover letter, CV, list of references, and at least two publications to: <https://academicpositions.harvard.edu/postings/12343>. Applications will be reviewed beginning June 15, 2023 and continue until the position is filled.

Princeton University

Rank: Professional Specialist/Research Director for the Center for the Study of Democratic Politics

The Center for the Study of Democratic Politics (CSDP) seeks a dynamic Research Director (RD). CSDP serves as Princeton's primary center for studying democratic political processes, behavior, and institutions. The Center brings together a large, vibrant and interdisciplinary community of scholars interested in democratic politics, supports their empirical research, and communicates those findings to inform public policy debates inside and outside the academy.

In concert with the faculty Director(s), the RD directs, oversees, guides, and implements CSDP's academic and policy research programs. The RD envisions, develops, and manages CSDP's research missions and strategy. They monitor and address Affiliates' research needs, including affiliated faculty, researchers (fellows, scholars, and so on), and students. They keep up with and bring to bear research resources and knowledge from across and outside Princeton. The RD will also help CSDP implement SPIA's strategic priorities, especially data science, policy relevance, and DEI.

Responsibilities:

*Design and deliver hands-on workshops on research methods, tools, and applications, including the collection or use of datasets, according to affiliates' needs

*Research and statistical consulting to CSDP affiliates and make recommendations and oversee the selection of research-relevant software

*Assist with the review, selection, recruiting, and mentoring of CSDP's fellows and research staff

*Assist with reading and selecting grant applications submitted for CSDP funding and also with the development and writing of CSDP directors' applications and proposals for funding

*Develop and oversee a new MPA fellows' program and supervise its fellows including their research activities and their policy-oriented writing

*Write reports and other content translating CSDP research for public and policymaker audiences, with the assistance of the MPA fellows

Essential requirements:

- PhD in political science
- Training in and experience using political science research methods including a strong quantitative background
- Strong programming skills, including in R
- At least one publication in an academic political science journal on topics in CSDP's core mission (the study of democratic politics)
- Minimum one year post-PhD work experience in an academic setting
- Experience teaching research methods, data science, or related programming skills, or advising student activities in these areas
- Meticulous attention to detail and ability to proof one's own work and others'
- Demonstrated ability for creative problem-solving, active listening and interpersonal skills, empathy for others, proactive approach to work issues, openness to feedback on one's work performance, and taking initiative to address, anticipate and head off problems
- Experience with managing research projects from initiation through completion
- Eagerness to collaborate on projects and to cooperate with others in the work environment

SUNY, Geneseo

Rank: Assistant Professor, American Politics & Public Policy

The Department of Political Science & International Relations at the State University of New York at Geneseo seeks applications for a tenure-track faculty position in American Politics, with a focus on Public Policy and Public Administration, to begin August, 2023. Possible areas of expertise include, but are not limited to, Environmental Policy, Health Care Policy, Income Inequality, or Social Welfare Policy. We are a highly collegial department of six full-time faculty members who are committed to excellence in undergraduate teaching and liberal arts education. We offer two majors (Political Science and International Relations), contribute to several interdisciplinary minors, and have access to substantial resources to support research. More information about our department is available at https://www.geneseo.edu/political\_science.

Duties of the position include:

- Teaching courses 3 courses per semester in American Politics, including an introductory American politics course every semester, courses on public policy and public administration, and other courses in the candidate's area of expertise.
- Coordinating a Public Administration minor, and administering Geneseo's joint 5-year BA/MPA program with the University of Albany.
- Pursuing a program of scholarly research, leading to publication in peer-reviewed outlets.
- Providing academic advising to students.
- Mentoring and supervising undergraduate research and other projects.
- Contributing to governance and engaging in service to the department, the college, and the discipline.
- There may also be opportunities to contribute to other interdisciplinary programs, including the Sustainability Studies, Sociomedical Sciences, and American Studies majors, and the Legal Studies, Urban Studies, Conflict Studies, and Environmental Studies minors.

Our priority is teaching excellence. We seek someone with a strong commitment to teaching in a liberal arts setting and who is prepared to teach both introductory courses and advanced courses in their area of expertise. A commitment to working effectively with students from diverse backgrounds is essential. We also highly value collegiality, experience with integrative learning, and a willingness to contribute to a holistic and broadly-conceived education in political science as a part of a broader liberal arts curriculum.

Required Qualifications:

- Ph.D. in Political Science or related field by the time of appointment.
- Expertise in American Politics and ability to teach courses in Public Policy and Public Administration.
- Prior experience or demonstrated potential in teaching courses in American Politics at the undergraduate level.
- Potential to establish a program of research leading to publication.
- Demonstrated commitment to fostering a diverse and inclusive working/teaching environment.

Applicants should upload a cover letter addressing research and teaching interests, current CV, a statement of teaching philosophy, evidence of teaching effectiveness, and a brief writing sample. Cover letters should address how candidates view themselves as contributing to Geneseo's commitment to Diversity, Equity, Inclusion, and Belonging (DEIB) and its aspiration to become a public equity-centered honors college. Applicants should also supply contact information for three references, who will be contacted to upload letters at the time of application. Please submit materials at <https://jobs.geneseo.edu/postings/4241>. Review of completed applications will begin immediately and continue until the position is filled. Applications received by March 10 are guaranteed full consideration.

Position Description:

The Advanced Academic Programs (AAP) division seeks non-tenure track adjunct faculty to teach several courses within the MA in Public Management program (see below). The courses will be taught online and/or onsite in Washington, DC in Fall 2022 and beyond. Candidates with online course development and teaching experience and those with experience teaching and engaging students from diverse backgrounds are of particular interest.

- 470.854 Fundamentals of Quantitative Methods

This course trains students to be informed consumers of quantitative studies, in addition to teaching the tools of basic statistical work. The course material covers basic descriptive statistics, inferential statistics, and data collection. The key learning objective is for students to develop a better understanding of the statistical and econometric results they may encounter in their careers.

- 470.631 Economics for Public Decision-making

This course aims to offer students an understanding of economics and its importance in public policymaking. The first half of the course will offer students an understanding of microeconomic and macroeconomic theory, including a discussion of when markets can work to achieve policy goals and when “market failures” call for government intervention. The second half of the class will use these economic tools and theories to survey several specific policy areas, including health policy, tax policy, and the national debt.

- 470.608 Public Policy Evaluation and the Policy Process

This course introduces students to the public policymaking process, the basics of policy analysis, and the substance of some of today’s major policy debates. The first half of the course focuses on establishing a framework in which to analyze public policy formulation within the United States. The class also reviews the tools for developing and implementing policy. The second half of the course turns to policy analysis of some critical contemporary issues.

- 470.605 Global Political Economy

In this course, students investigate core topics in international political economy, analyzing the security implications of each. Topics include trade relations, international finance, monetary relations, poverty, and development.

Qualifications

Minimum Qualifications:

- An advanced degree in public policy/public administration or in a relevant field, such as public finance, economics, or political economy, with a master’s degree at minimum
- Two years of professional work experience within the relevant fields

Preferred Qualifications:

- A terminal degree in public policy/public administration or in a relevant field, such as public finance, economics, or political economy
- 1-3 years of graduate-level teaching experience
- Online teaching experience
- In-person/in the classroom teaching experience.
- The background to teach a wide variety of courses in the public management program.
