Resources and Guidance on

Finding a Job in Political Science

Hundreds of academic positions are advertised each year in political science. Finding the openings is the easy part; knowing how to approach the application and interview process is a little more challenging. At APSA, we have collected resources to assist candidates in the academic job search. We would like to highlight a few of these key resources here. The complete list of job resources is available online at www.apsanet.org/jobs.

eJobs: This online resource contains comprehensive online listing of political science jobs, is updated daily with new job listings and candidate resumes, and is fully searchable by field of interest, name of employer/candidate, region, keyword, position, salary, type of institution, and most recent posts.

Data on Jobs Market: APSA gathers and releases data regarding the placement of political science Ph.Ds. View this information at www.apsanet.org/content\_7623.cfm.

Mentoring: Enroll in the APSA Mentoring Program online at www.apsanet.org/mentoring.

eJobs Placement Interview Services: The eJobs Annual Meeting Placement Interview Service provides space and facilities for employers who have eJobs posted to interview candidates at the APSA meeting. Many other conferences, such as the Northeastern and Western, also use the APSA online service to schedule placement interviews. Check the listings online in eJobs.

Ethics Guide: The APSA Guide to Professional Ethics in Political Science includes specific guidance on hiring and employment practices. Order a print copy or view online at www.apsanet.org/ethics.

Asking the Right Questions: APSA Job Candidate Questions to Ask Program

Asking the right questions provides valuable information for career decisions. As part of the APSA Job Candidate Questions to Ask (JCQ) Program participating political science departments have agreed to answer the following questions from job candidates.

Salary

1. What is the salary structure?
2. How is salary normally negotiated?
3. How are annual increases handled?
4. Is there an automatic escalator to ensure the salaries of future hires will not outpace those of existing department members?

Service Activities

1. What are the expectations of pre-tenure and tenured faculty regarding:
  - departmental and institutional committee work,
  - professional or disciplinary activities, and
  - outreach activities to communities external to institution?

Research Support

1. What departmental or institutional resources are available to support:
  - access to research materials and equipment,
  - the employment of research assistants,
  - research expenses on/off campus, and
  - travel expenses for conferences?

2. What departmental or institutional resources are available to seek external funding and to administer external funding awards?

Teaching Support

1. What departmental or institutional resources are available to support:
  - the development of teaching expertise,
  - innovations in teaching, and
  - the introduction of new courses and new technologies?
2. What are departmental expectations regarding:
  - the average course load,
  - the number of different courses taught by faculty, and
  - advising of graduate and undergraduate students?

Tenure, Renewal, and Annual Review

1. What policies and procedures govern the granting of tenure, renewal of contracts for pre-tenure faculty, and annual reviews of faculty performance?
2. What are the department's expectations for successful performance leading to the granting of tenure or renewal of contracts for pre-tenure faculty?
3. What are the department's expectations for a positive annual review?

Mentoring and Faculty Support Initiatives

1. What attention does the department give to integrating new faculty into the department, the institution, and in the profession?
2. Does the department or institution have programs that address:
  - the employment of dual-career professional couples,
  - family needs of faculty and staff, and
  - issues associated with minority faculty and staff?

Health and Life Insurance

1. What are the plans offered?
2. How are benefits disbursed?
3. What are the out-of-pocket expenses?
4. Are partners and/or children covered, and to what extent?
5. What portion of my paycheck will be deducted for these benefits?

Retirement

1. How many types of retirement plans are offered?
2. What is the matching percentage of the institution?
3. Is contribution required (and how much)?

AMERICAN GOVERNMENT AND POLITICS

Bucknell University

Rank: Tenure-Track position in Political Science (American Politics)

Bucknell University's Department of Political Science invites applications for a tenure-track position in American Politics beginning in Fall, 2024. We expect to hire at the Assistant Professor level but are open to considering outstanding candidates at other ranks. We seek candidates whose scholarly and teaching interests include race and ethnic politics in the U.S. The successful candidate will be prepared to teach a core course in American politics, a course in race and ethnic politics, a course in quantitative or qualitative research methods, and other American politics courses in the candidate's areas of specialization.

We welcome candidates who demonstrate excellence in reflective multicultural and inclusive teaching practices and who display a strong commitment to collaboration and interdisciplinarity. Evidence of teaching excellence as well as the promise of being a productive scholar are critically important. The teaching load is five courses over two semesters. By the start date of the position, candidates are expected to have a Ph.D. in Political Science with a sub-field specialization in American politics, but ABD candidates will also be considered with the understanding that the Ph.D. must be completed before the beginning of the second year.

For additional information and to apply, please go to careers.bucknell.edu. The application should include a cover letter, C.V., statement of teaching philosophy, statement of commitment to diversity, three letters of recommendation, graduate transcripts, sample publications or papers, course evaluations, and sample syllabi relevant to this position. Applicants with questions about this position are encouraged to contact Professor Doug Hecock at douglas.hecock@bucknell.edu. The review of applications will begin on September 23, 2023 and will continue until filled.

About Bucknell

Bucknell University is a private, highly ranked, primarily undergraduate, national liberal arts institution that also offers strong professional programs in engineering, management, education, and music.

Bucknell University is an Equal Opportunity Employer. The university believes that students learn best in a diverse, inclusive community and is therefore committed to academic excellence through diversity in its faculty, staff, and students. Applications from members of groups that have been historically underrepresented in higher education are encouraged.

Bucknell is committed to creating a climate that fosters inclusion, growth, and development for a diverse student body, and seeks candidates who are also committed to these goals.

Bucknell is committed to supporting the teacher-scholar model of faculty development. With a student-faculty ratio of about 9:1, small class sizes are a hallmark of the Bucknell educational experience. The university sponsors a range of activities to support the development of its faculty, including a Teaching-Learning Center and generous research support and leave policies.

Bucknell is located in Lewisburg, Pennsylvania, on the banks of the Susquehanna River. The Lewisburg area offers a combination of outdoor recreation opportunities and small-town amenities. In addition to the cultural and athletic events offered at the University and in town, the region offers strong schools and medical facilities, and an affordable cost of living. Bucknell is about three hours from Philadelphia, New York, Baltimore, and Washington, D.C.

- Introduction to Law, Politics, and Society
- Politics of Law and Religion in the U.S.
- Freshman Seminar: Democratic Citizenship

Spring 2024 courses will be:

- Introduction to Law, Politics, and Society (repeated course from Fall)
- 2 Additional American Politics, Public Law, or Political Theory undergraduate courses that the candidate is prepared to teach. Examples include: American Presidency, Legal Advocacy, American Courts, American Public Thought, etc.

Service activities will include advising Law and Society majors and Legal Studies Certificate students.

Minimum Requirements

Prior to the effective date of the appointment, candidates must have:

- Passed comprehensive exams and Minimally have achieved advanced ABD status in their doctoral program

OR

- Have obtained a completed PhD in Political Science or a related field

The appointment will begin August 15, 2023.

Application Process

Interested and qualified applicants must complete our on-line application at <https://jobs.uc.edu/job-invite/93435/>. In addition to the basic online application, please provide:

- Cover letter indicating fit with the job description and SPIA programs outlined above
- Full and current CV
- List of three references (letters of reference will be requested for short-list finalists)

Review of Applications will begin immediately and continue until the position is filled with a goal of a mid-to late July 2023 conclusion of the search to allow for the candidate to on-board in time for the Fall semester.

Questions should be directed to Dr. Richard J. Harknett, Director and Search Committee Chair at: Richard.harknett@uc.edu.

Georgia Southern University

Rank: Visiting Instructor of Political Science

The Department of Political Science and International Studies in the College of Behavioral and Social Sciences invites applications and nominations for the position of Visiting Instructor of Political Science. Founded in 1906, Georgia Southern University is a Carnegie Doctoral/R2 institution with a focus on public-impact research, serving over 25,500 students on three beautiful campuses in Statesboro, Savannah, and Hinesville, and via a growing online program. Through our degree offerings at the associate's, bachelor's, master's and doctoral levels, Georgia Southern offers a distinctive combination of community collaboration, world-class scholarship, innovative teaching, and hands-on learning opportunities.

To equitably serve a fast growing and highly diverse student body and to fulfill the University's commitment to promoting diversity, equity, and inclusion, we actively seek candidates with a demonstrated commitment to Inclusive Excellence. Candidates whose work furthers the institution's goals and who bring to campus varied life experiences, perspectives, and backgrounds are especially encouraged to apply.

Within this setting, the Department of Political Science and International Studies' mission is to equip students with the knowledge and skills necessary to be productive, politically literate, and engaged citizens in their communities, their nation, and the world. Integrating diverse and high-quality faculty research with excellence in the classroom, our programs promote intellectual, personal, and professional student development and cultivate research, communication, and analytical skills that are in high professional demand. Students are encouraged to bring fresh perspectives and critical thinking to the classroom that will help them become politically active. Our faculty are engaged in impactful service within the University, the profession, and the community. The Department values diversity in all its forms, recognizing that democratic virtues such as engagement, tolerance, and empathy are enhanced by the inclusion of multiple voices. This position will contribute significantly to the Department's commitment to American Government, which is a Core Curriculum course and a gateway to student success.

Position Description. Reporting to the department chair, the visiting instructor of Political Science will teach a 5-5 course load. This is an academic year appointment for the months of August 2023-May 2024. All visiting positions are one-year non-tenure track appointments. The salary is competitive and commensurate with qualifications and experience.

Required Qualifications:

- MA in Political Science with at least 18 graduate semester hours in American Politics.
- Evidence of college/university teaching excellence in American Government courses in a variety of modalities, including online and large-section face to face courses.
- Effective communication skills.
- Ability to teach online courses.
- Willingness to engage with institutional student success initiatives.
- Commitment to engaging with best practice initiatives in instruction and pedagogy, mentoring, and curriculum design and development.

Preferred Qualifications:

- Earned Ph.D. or ABD in Political Science.
- Experience using Desire 2 Learn online platform.
- Evidence of teaching techniques designed to reach a diverse student population.

Conditions of Employment:

- Must be authorized to work in the United States for the duration of employment without assistance from the institution.
- All work (with limited exceptions such as research and study abroad and outside activities such as grading and email correspondence) for Georgia Southern University must be completed while the employee is physically present in the state of Georgia, unless specifically authorized by the university for a specific purpose and limited period of time within current policy.
- Faculty are expected to contribute to the vibrant university community by engaging students, participating in events, and performing other responsibilities on-campus.
- Faculty may be required to teach, conduct research, or perform service duties on any of the three campuses. Georgia Southern provides accessible transportation options between campuses.

Screening of applications begins June 30, 2023 and continues until the position is filled. The preferred position starting date is August 1, 2022. A complete application consists of a letter addressing the qualifications cited above; a curriculum vitae; and the names, addresses, telephone numbers, and email addresses of at least three professional references. Other documentation may be requested. Only complete applications submitted electronically will be considered. Finalists will be required to submit to a background investigation. DePauw University
Rank: Political Science Assistant Professor

The Department of Political Science at DePauw University invites applications for a 2023-24 Term position (Rank of Assistant Professor) beginning August 2023 (that may have the possibility for renewal). Ph.D. (completed by 2023) in Political Science or a closely related field preferred (candidates with master's degrees, or who are ABD, will be considered at the rank of Instructor). A commitment to teaching undergraduates in a liberal arts setting and evidence of effective and inclusive teaching are essential. The department specifically seeks candidates to teach multiple introductory American Politics courses, and upper-level courses in any area of American Politics of the candidate's choosing after consultation with the department. Teaching assignment is three courses per semester and funding is available for professional development.

DePauw University is a leading, nationally-recognized liberal arts university dedicated to educating just over 1,700 highly talented, motivated, and diverse students from across the country and around the globe. Connected to the liberal arts college is one of the nation's first Schools of Music, to be renamed The Institute of Music at DePauw in July 2024. For 185 years, DePauw has created an atmosphere of intellectual challenge and social engagement that prepares students for lifelong success. Located in Greencastle, Indiana, about a 45-minute drive west of Indianapolis, DePauw is a member of the Great Lakes Colleges Association. DePauw has an ongoing commitment to diversity and seeks to strengthen our institution through equitable and inclusive practices.

Candidates should submit through Interfolio [<http://apply.interfolio.com/126552>] a cover letter summarizing qualifications, teaching philosophy, and research interests; CV; evidence of effective teaching (such as sample syllabi or course evaluations); three confidential letters of recommendation; and graduate transcripts. Application materials should provide evidence of a commitment to successfully fostering and engaging with a diversity of ideas and experiences to create an inclusive environment in the classroom and at the University. Review of applications begins June 20, 2023 and will continue until the position is filled. Please contact Deepa Prakash, Political Science Department Chair at deepaparakash@depauw.edu with any questions.

George Washington University
Rank: Postdoctoral Researchers
Subfield(s): Methodology, Political Theory, American Government and Politics
Specializations: Quantitative Methods, Research Methods, Science & Technology

The George Washington University's Institute for Data, Democracy and Politics (IDDP) is seeking an exceptional candidate for a full-time, academic research position at the rank of post-doctoral research scientist. IDDP is a multidisciplinary research initiative intended to strengthen democratic dialog and institutions through research and engagement with policymakers, journalists, and the public. The position is for a one-year term.

The postdoctoral associate will work closely with Professor Catie Bailard, who leads the Meaningful Open Source Indicators (MOSI) cluster. MOSI combines the subject-area and technical expertise of researchers working across a wide range of disciplines—including engineers, data scientists, computer scientists, computational social scientists, and traditional social scientists—to investigate the use of digital technologies to disseminate, promote, and orchestrate deleterious online content and behavior. The candidates will work on topics related to digital harms and the threat they pose to democratic societies. Candidates would be technically capable researchers who are also interested in asking bold, new questions with data. This position is located at GW's Foggy Bottom campus in Washington, DC, and will report to Dr. Rebekah Tromble.

This position is primarily a temporary/training position in which the candidate would play a substantive role in planning and conducting research by using quantitative and qualitative methods to collect, analyze and report on data from digital and online sources. In collaboration with the Principal Investigators, this role will participate in the planning of independent research, will analyze and interpret data, will publish results, will represent the university at conferences and meetings, and may develop new theories and methodologies. Extensive professional experience using R, Python or similar tools are a key requirement for the position, and successful candidates should show potential to excel in tasks related to data collection, network analysis, text-as-data, and natural language processing at very large scale. This position may also help the Principal Investigators to lead and direct the work of research assistants and other staff. This role performs work under the supervision of experienced researchers.

Start Date: Summer 2023

Wellesley College
Rank: Assistant/Associate Professor of American Politics

The Department of Political Science at Wellesley College invites applications for a tenure-track or tenured appointment at the assistant or associate professor level in American politics, beginning in the academic year 2024-2025.

We are seeking candidates with expertise in a wide range of fields, though we are particularly interested in candidates whose research involves American political institutions and organizations, either at the national or subnational level. We are also interested in candidates who can teach an introductory methods course, whether qualitative, quantitative, or some combination. The person hired will be expected to teach our introductory course in American politics.

Candidates should have a strong commitment to teaching undergraduate students in a liberal arts environment. Faculty members at Wellesley teach two courses per semester.

Applications should include the following:

- A cover letter of no more than two pages;

- A one-page teaching statement;
- Teaching evaluations and syllabi (or a draft syllabus if you have one);
- Writing samples of research;
- A curriculum vitae; and
- Three (3) letters of recommendation.

ABD applicants should also include a graduate school transcript.

Not sure you meet all qualifications? Let us decide! Research shows that women and members of other under-represented groups tend to not apply to jobs when they think they may not meet every qualification, when in fact, they often do. Wellesley is dedicated to the goal of building a diverse and inclusive academic community through teaching, research, and service. Familiarity with and experience using pedagogical methods that enable students across racial, ethnic, and socio-economic groups to reach their maximum potential is a valuable qualification. Where applicable, candidates should include (as relevant) how diversity, inclusion, and equity connect to their teaching, scholarship, and service.

All materials should be submitted online by visiting our application website at <https://shorturl.at/hDE13>. We will begin reviewing applications on September 15, 2023, and will continue accepting applications after that date. If circumstances do not allow you to submit materials through our on-line application system, please email us at working@wellesley.edu. Wellesley College is an Affirmative Action/Equal Opportunity Employer.

Specific inquiries should be addressed to Prof. Tom Burke, chair of the search committee, at tburke@wellesley.edu.

California State University, Bakersfield

Rank: Assistant Professor of Political Science

The Department of Political Science at California State University, Bakersfield invites candidates to apply for a Tenure-Track faculty position in American Politics with a focus on Environmental Politics, Sustainability and Justice. Among the topics of interest that should be focused on are: climate change, global warming, and energy politics, agricultural and industrial environmental pollution, water politics and policy, homelessness, migration – locally and across various regions of the country and world, and America's global environmental footprint – with special attention to people from marginalized communities.

The Political Science Department is small but thriving – it is home to a robust Pre-Law Program, and a Model United Nations Program among others. The Department's student demographics are 70% women, and a substantial percentage of First-Generation students, and recently Forbes Magazine ranked CSUB 18th as Top Performer on social mobility. Furthermore, CSUB is a great location for anyone who is interested in studying what politics and policy looks like at the intersection of ethnicity, class, and an ongoing climate crisis. CSUB is located in Kern County which is over 60% Latinx and considered both an agricultural and oil and gas hub. The Central Valley is also the second-most pumped aquifer system in the U.S. We are located one hour and thirty minutes north of the Hollywood Bowl. One hour and 20 minutes from the Central California Coastal Wine Country, and one hour and 40 minutes to the state's central coast. Kern County is where more than 250 different crops are grown and where approximately 75% of California's irrigated land is located. A scholar professor would not only be able to conduct vital research for and about the region on the topics of water and agriculture but Kern county is also known for its involvement with oil and gas making CSUB a fruitful location to also study energy policy.

As a department, we are looking for a qualified and committed candidate with a PhD (ABDs may be also considered) in American Politics with an emphasis in Environmental Politics, Sustainability and Justice (Public Policy, Political Economy, Policy and Politics are encouraged to apply) who can develop and teach courses that are reflective of our community, issues, the state of California, and the US public policy making process. Additionally, candidates for the position would be expected to teach the department's Core Courses, Research Methods, and Introduction to American Government among others.

Required Qualifications:

- Earned a Ph.D. (ABD with degree completed before start date) in Political Science, from an accredited doctoral-granting institution.
- Demonstrated commitment to teaching undergraduates from diverse socioeconomic, cultural, and academic backgrounds, including first-generation students.
- Teaching experience using a variety of teaching modalities (in person, synchronous, asynchronous).
- Possess a commitment to promote equity and inclusion through teaching, research, and service at CSUB.
- Evidence of Scholarship/Research

Minimum Qualifications:

- Evidence of effective teaching.
- Possible Course Proposals
- Evidence of potential to conduct independent research in the area of expertise as well as mentor undergraduate students in research.

Preferred Qualifications:

- Experience with academic advising and student mentorship (if applicable).

To be considered, complete application materials must include:

- Cover Letter
- Current Curriculum Vitae
- Statement of Teaching Philosophy
- Research Statement
- Statement of contribution to diversity, equity and inclusion. Please include information on how you currently or will potentially promote diversity, equity and inclusion through teaching, research and service at CSU Bakersfield.
- Copy of university transcripts verifying academic record and award of doctorate (or anticipated date of award)
- List of three (3) references with contact information

Interviews will be conducted at the annual APSA meeting in Los Angeles, CA. Contact Dr. Ivy AM Cargile if you would like to schedule an appointment.

All applications materials should be sent electronically as one PDF in the order listed above to Ms. Christina Ochoa, department Administrative Assistant: cochoa@csub.edu.

Background Check: A background check (including a criminal records check) must be completed satisfactorily before any candidate can be offered a position with the CSU. Failure to satisfactorily complete the background check may affect the application status of applicants or continued employment of current CSU employees who apply for the position.

For any questions please contact: Dr. Ivy AM Cargile (icargile@csu.edu) or Dr. Jeanine Kraybill (jkraybill@csu.edu).

University of Texas, Arlington

Position ID: F00418P

The Department of Political Science at the University of Texas at Arlington is seeking a non-tenure-stream, full time lecturer, which will begin in August 2023. This position will operate with a three-year contract. We encourage applications from people qualified to teach courses in the following areas: US Government; Texas/State and Local Government. We also welcome applications from those who also are qualified to teach upper division (sophomore-seniors) and graduate MA courses in political science. We are especially interested in applicants who have demonstrated a commitment to students' success and an interest in supporting student recruitment and retention efforts.

Essential duties and responsibilities:

The ability to teach face-to-face, hybrid, and/or online courses in the following areas: US Government; Texas/State and Local Government and other high-enrollment upper-division courses.

Required qualifications:

For lecturer positions, we require at minimum a Master's degree in political science or a very closely related field and prefer applicants who are PhD holding or pursuing a doctorate, or who are ABD.

The University of Texas at Arlington is located in the heart of the Dallas-Fort Worth-Arlington metroplex, a vibrant and diverse metropolitan area that is home to over 7 million people, one of the fastest-growing tech economies in the United States, and a wide array of arts, entertainment, and cultural activities. UTA is a comprehensive teaching, research, and public service institution dedicated to the advancement of knowledge through scholarship and creative work. The University is committed to providing access and ensuring student success, and to a culture of innovation, entrepreneurship, and commercialization of discoveries by our community of scholars. With an enrollment of approximately 46,000 students, UTA is the largest institution in North Texas and the second-largest in the UT System. As a result of its combination of rigorous academics and innovative research, UTA is designated as a Carnegie R-1 "Very High Research Activity" institution and as a Texas Tier One institution. In 2021, UTA received the Higher Education Excellence in Diversity Award for its deep commitment to diversity, equity, and inclusion in higher education.

UTA ranks No. 4 nationally in Military Times' annual "Best for Vets: Colleges" list and No. 1 in Texas for the number of degrees awarded to African American students (Diverse: Issues in Higher Education, 2021). UTA is designated by the U.S. Department of Education as both a Hispanic Serving Institution (HSI) and an Asian American and Native American Pacific Islander-Serving Institution (AANAP-ISI), and it has the fifth-most ethnically diverse undergraduate population in the United States (U.S. News & World Report, 2023). UTA is among the top 50 performers nationwide for promoting social mobility of its graduates (U.S. News & World Report, 2023), and its approximately 250,000 alumni, including some who occupy leadership positions at many of the 23 Fortune 500 companies headquartered in North Texas, contribute to the UTA's $22.2 billion annual economic impact on Texas.

The Department of Political Science (<http://www.uta.edu/pols/> and <https://www.facebook.com/POLSatUTARlington>) offers a Bachelor of Arts and Master of Arts. It serves students from across the University (in state-mandated introductory courses) as well as over two hundred and forty undergraduate majors and minors and ten to twenty graduate students.

Successful candidates are expected to demonstrate a commitment to diversity and equity in education through their scholarship, teaching, and/or service as well as a strong commitment to teaching, advising, and mentoring undergraduate and graduate students from diverse backgrounds.

To apply applicants should go to <http://uta.peopleadmin.com/> and submit the following materials: Candidates should submit a cover letter, curriculum vitae, two sample syllabi, a statement of interest, and contact information for three references. Review of applications will begin immediately and will continue until the position is filled. The start date for the position is August 15, 2023.

Questions may be addressed to: Dr. Brent Boyea (boyea@uta.edu). For more information about UTA, please visit: <http://www.uta.edu/uta>.

Princeton University

Rank: Research Director

The Center for the Study of Democratic Politics (CSDP) seeks a dynamic Research Director (RD). CSDP serves as Princeton's primary center for studying democratic political processes, behavior, and institutions. The Center brings together a large, vibrant and interdisciplinary community of scholars interested in democratic politics, supports their empirical research, and communicates those findings to inform public policy debates inside and outside the academy.

In concert with the faculty Director(s), the RD directs, oversees, guides, and implements CSDP's academic and policy research programs. The RD envisions, develops, and manages CSDP's research missions and strategy. They monitor and address Affiliates' research needs, including affiliated faculty, researchers (fellows, scholars, and so on), and students. They keep up with and bring to bear research resources and knowledge from across and outside Princeton. The RD will also help CSDP implement SPIA's strategic priorities, especially data science, policy relevance, and DEL.

Responsibilities:

- Design and deliver hands-on workshops on research methods, tools, and applications, including the collection or use of datasets, according to affiliates' needs
- Research and statistical consulting to CSDP affiliates and make recommendations and oversee the selection of research-relevant software
- Assist with the review, selection, recruiting, and mentoring of CSDP's fellows and research staff
- Assist with reading and selecting grant applications submitted for CSDP funding and also with the development and writing of CSDP directors' applications and proposals for funding
- Develop and oversee a new MPA fellows' program and supervise its fellows including their research activities and their policy-oriented writing
- Write reports and other content translating CSDP research for public and policymaker audiences, with the assistance of the MPA fellows

Essential requirements:

- PhD in political science
- Training in and experience using political science research methods including a strong quantitative background
- Strong programming skills, including in R
- At least one publication in an academic political science journal on topics in CSDP's core mission (the study of democratic politics)
- Minimum one-year post-PhD work experience in an academic setting
- Experience teaching research methods, data science, or related programming skills, or advising student activities in these areas
- Meticulous attention to detail and ability to proof one's own work and others'
- Demonstrated ability for creative problem-solving, active listening and interpersonal skills, empathy for others, proactive approach to work issues, openness to feedback on one's work performance, and taking initiative to address, anticipate and head off problems
- Experience with managing research projects from initiation through completion
- Eagerness to collaborate on projects and to cooperate with others in the work environment
- Motivated to produce at a high level of productivity and excellence

Preferred:

- Experience with data use agreements and how to develop partnerships and collaborations to obtain data

- working with or merging large or administrative datasets
- Specialized technical skills for the social sciences
- Experience communicating about political science or policy for broad audience

The RD will have a research budget for their use in attending conferences and similar activities facilitating their ongoing professional development as a researcher.

The position is for a three-year term, with the possibility of renewal, contingent on satisfactory performance. This position is subject to a background check.

Applicants must submit a CV, a cover letter describing their areas of expertise and research interests, and contact information for three references. References may be contacted for the candidates who make the shortlist for this position.

The submission must be online via AHIRE link.: <https://www.princeton.edu/acad-positions/position/29741>

SUNY, Geneseo

Rank: Assistant Professor, American Politics & Public Policy

The Department of Political Science & International Relations at the State University of New York at Geneseo seeks applications for a tenure-track faculty position in American Politics, with a focus on Public Policy and Public Administration, to begin August, 2023. Possible areas of expertise include, but are not limited to, Environmental Policy, Health Care Policy, Income Inequality, or Social Welfare Policy. We are a highly collegial department of six full-time faculty members who are committed to excellence in undergraduate teaching and liberal arts education. We offer two majors (Political Science and International Relations), contribute to several interdisciplinary minors, and have access to substantial resources to support research. More information about our department is available at https://www.geneseo.edu/political\_science.

Duties of the position include:

- Teaching courses 3 courses per semester in American Politics, including an introductory American politics course every semester, courses on public policy and public administration, and other courses in the candidate's area of expertise.
- Coordinating a Public Administration minor, and administering Geneseo's joint 5-year BA/MPA program with the University of Albany.
- Pursuing a program of scholarly research, leading to publication in peer-reviewed outlets.
- Providing academic advising to students.
- Mentoring and supervising undergraduate research and other projects.
- Contributing to governance and engaging in service to the department, the college, and the discipline.
- There may also be opportunities to contribute to other interdisciplinary programs, including the Sustainability Studies, Sociomedical Sciences, and American Studies majors, and the Legal Studies, Urban Studies, Conflict Studies, and Environmental Studies minors.

Our priority is teaching excellence. We seek someone with a strong commitment to teaching in a liberal arts setting and who is prepared to teach both introductory courses and advanced courses in their area of expertise. A commitment to working effectively with students from diverse backgrounds is essential. We also highly value collegiality, experience with integrative learning, and a willingness to contribute to a holistic and broadly-conceived education in political science as a part of a broader liberal arts curriculum.

Required Qualifications:

- Ph.D. in Political Science or related field by the time of appointment.
- Expertise in American Politics and ability to teach courses in Public Policy and Public Administration.
- Prior experience or demonstrated potential in teaching courses in American Politics at the undergraduate level.
- Potential to establish a program of research leading to publication.
- Demonstrated commitment to fostering a diverse and inclusive working/teaching environment.

Applicants should upload a cover letter addressing research and teaching interests, current CV, a statement of teaching philosophy, evidence of teaching effectiveness, and a brief writing sample. Cover letters should address how candidates view themselves as contributing to Geneseo's commitment to Diversity, Equity, Inclusion, and Belonging (DEIB) and its aspiration to become a public equity-centered honors college. Applicants should also supply contact information for three references, who will be contacted to upload letters at the time of application. Please submit materials at <https://jobs.geneseo.edu/postings/4241>. Review of completed applications will begin immediately and continue until the position is filled. Applications received by March 10 are guaranteed full consideration.

Johns Hopkins University

Rank: Adjunct Faculty: Intelligence Analysis

Subfield(s): International Relations, American Government and Politics, Other

Specializations: Intelligence, Defense, International Security

Location:

Washington, DC or Online (Remote)

Open Date:

Feb 01, 2023

POSITION:

Adjunct Faculty, Intelligence Analysis
Krieger School of Arts and Sciences
Advanced Academic Programs

INSTITUTION:

Johns Hopkins University

Institution Description:

The Advanced Academic Programs (AAP) is a division of the Krieger School of Arts and Sciences at the Johns Hopkins University (JHU). As the nation's oldest and one of the most prestigious research universities, Johns Hopkins offers high-quality master's degrees and post-baccalaureate education to students in the mid-Atlantic region and online. In addition to the online programs, AAP also offers master's degrees and graduate certificate programs at its Washington, DC Center and at the Homewood campus in Baltimore, MD. AAP has approximately 18,000 enrollments each academic year. JHU is committed to hiring candidates who, through their teaching and service, will contribute to the diversity and excellence of the academic community.

Position Description:

The Advanced Academic Programs (AAP) division seeks non-tenure track adjunct faculty to teach several courses within the MS in Intelligence Analysis program. The course(s) will be taught fully online beginning in Summer 2023 and beyond. Candidates with online course development and teaching experience and those with experience teaching and engaging students from diverse backgrounds are of particular interest. We are looking for faculty who can teach one or more of the following courses:

473.600 the Art and Practice of Intelligence

This course introduces students to the field of intelligence, particularly as practiced in the United States. After a brief overview of the historical foundations of modern intelligence, it discusses how intelligence is conducted including collection, analysis, counterintelligence, covert action, and oversight. It also discusses intelligence ethics, as well as the disruptive influences of September 11, new technologies, and emerging social trends.

473.602 Intelligence Analysis

Intelligence analysis is fundamentally about understanding and communicating to decision makers what is known, not known, and surmised, as it can best be determined. Students will read seminal texts on intelligence analysis, discuss the complex cognitive, psychological, organizational, ethical, and legal issues surrounding intelligence analysis now and, in the past, and apply analytic methodologies to real-world problems.

473.604 Advanced Critical Thinking and Analysis

Critical thinking involves the methods and principles of correct reasoning and argumentation. Students will apply a combination of logic, critical thinking skills, and structured analytical techniques to identify biases, promote self-reflective reasoning, and improve the quality of intelligence analysis. Using a selection of empirical case studies and operational exemplars, students will conduct a comparative assessment of analytical outcomes based on the application of course learnings versus outcomes derived in their absence.

473.607 Intelligence Ethics

This course will address the ethical dilemmas and issues that challenge intelligence and government decision makers in an increasingly complex operational and technological environment. We will examine basic moral, ethical and privacy considerations at several key points in intelligence operations from collection to covert action. The course will analyze the evolving nature of privacy concerns worldwide, with an emphasis on the balance between individual rights and national security. Students will examine the policy implications inherent in seeking to address these tensions.

473.606 Legal Issues in Intelligence

This class will examine the interplay between the laws and the practices and policies of the United States' Intelligence Community and national security system, both foreign and domestic. While discussion of the history of intelligence activities and laws dating from the origins of our colonial days will necessarily shape the framework of the class, the focus shall particularly be on current debates and challenges faced by the United States in the 21st Century.

473.800 Research Seminar

This course will introduce a variety of research, analytical, and statistical methods intended to provide a basis for designing a research project, including an introduction to quantitative, qualitative, and mixed method research design. Within the context of the course, students will complete foundational work for the capstone project, including identifying and accessing relevant primary and secondary source data, surveying and evaluating the literature, and framing a research question based on the intersection of empirical studies and organizational needs. Attention will be given to the unique restrictions placed on research design and publication within the intelligence community.

473.801 Capstone: Current Issues in Intelligence

In this culminating course, students complete an independent, faculty-approved project that will address a substantive or methodological challenge in intelligence analysis. A successful capstone will include research that provides evidence of the student's mastery of the theoretical knowledge and analytical skills central to the degree's learning outcomes. The capstone provides an opportunity to apply the skills acquired throughout the program to a key challenge facing their organization or community. Students will conduct a literature review, select a research method appropriate to their study, analyze data using qualitative or quantitative methods in their capstone project, and propose and defend their findings.

Minimum Qualifications:

- An advanced degree in any relevant field, with a master's degree at minimum.
- At least five years of professional work experience within the intelligence field.

Preferred Qualifications:

- A terminal degree in international relations, global security studies, political science, history, or in a relevant field related to intelligence.
- A scholar-practitioner background and publications in the field.
- 1-3 years of graduate level teaching experience.
- Leadership experience within the US Intelligence Community.
- Online teaching experience.
- Experience in developing graduate courses.
- The background to teach a wide variety of courses in an intelligence analysis program.
- Strong interest in advising graduate students interested in an intelligence career.

Application Instructions

The position will remain open until filled. For best consideration, please apply by April 1 2023.

Candidates must submit the following:

- Cover letter should indicate the course or courses you're interested in teaching plus your experience with online learning management systems (i.e., Canvas)
- Curriculum vitae
- Teaching evaluations for two most recently taught courses
- Transcript from highest degree earned
- The selected candidate will undergo a background check and provide three references.

University College Dublin

Subfield(s): Comparative Politics, Political Theory, Open

Specializations: Political Communication, Political Psychology, Political Parties & Organizations

Moral Agency in Election Campaigns (ELECT) is a project funded by the European Research Council (2023-2028). The emergence of novel political challengers and new strategic and communicative possibilities enabled by big data and new media has greatly altered the electoral landscape. In this context, ELECT aims to understand the normative attitudes and decision-making practices of key actors that animate the electoral process, how those attitudes and practices are shaped by different institutional and regulatory contexts, and the significance of these interactions for electoral democracy. To this end, electoral candidates, campaign professionals, journalists and citizens will be studied across four countries: Germany, Italy, the UK and the USA.

An experienced researcher (post-PhD or PhD submitted by time of appointment) is being recruited to work on the German case. The researcher will work together with the Principal Investigator (Associate Professor Joseph Lacey) and the wider research team for the first three years of the project. Proficiency in German is a requirement of the post. Hybrid working arrangements are possible. Ideally, you will begin in September 2023.

Your tasks will be to:

- Develop an interdisciplinary state of the art on election campaigns in the German case.
- Contribute to designing cross-national surveys, semi-structured interviews and focus groups.
- Take on fieldwork in the German case, carrying out surveys, semi-structured interviews and focus groups.
- Contribute to the analysis of collected data using qualitative and/or quantitative methods.
- Contribute to developing a theory of moral agency in election campaigns.
- Contribute to the organisation of international conferences at UCD and panels or sections at general conferences.

University of Zurich

Rank: Head of Research Area "Governance of Global Inequalities"

Subfield(s): International Relations, Comparative Politics, Other
Specializations: Political Philosophy & Theory, International Political Economy, Trade

The successful candidate will be responsible for research and teaching in the area of the political governance of global inequalities. Applicants can have a background in international/comparative political economy, international relations, or in political philosophy, and their research and/or teaching should relate to PPE ('Politics, Philosophy and Economics'). Within the broader substantive area, specialized attention might be given to issues such as the governance of global climate change agreements and policies, the regulation of migration flows, trade imbalances, developing economies and emerging markets, or changing geopolitical hierarchies. Irrespective of the substantive orientation, the successful candidate's research should have a focus on the political governance of transnational economic, political, or social inequalities, and show an interest in empirical and normative questions and implications.

The University of Zurich offers a dynamic and collaborative work environment with an international orientation, as well as generous support for research and teaching activities. The position is permanent. It comes with a research budget of 3000 CHF/year. In addition, the holder of the position is eligible to apply for Swiss National Science Foundation funding, as well as many other grant programs in Switzerland and abroad. The teaching load is 5 hours per semester plus advising (at 100% employment). A substantial part of the teaching will be in the MA-level program "PPE Politics, Philosophy and Economics". The salary is approximately 110,000CHF/year at 100% employment (80-100% are negotiable). The start date of the position is 1st of February 2024 or upon agreement.

Applicants should hold a PhD degree in political science, international relations, political philosophy, political economy or in a related field at the time of application and have a strong record of academic achievements in the relevant areas. Teaching may be carried out in English, but knowledge of German is an asset. The University of Zurich is an equal opportunities employer and strives to increase the percentage of women in leading positions. Therefore, qualified female researchers are encouraged to apply.

Please send your application electronically as one pdf-file comprising your motivation letter, CV, publication list, transcripts, teaching evaluations (if available), a 1-page statement on the research agenda for the coming 3 years and its link to PPE, as well as the names of at least two references to the personnel office of the Department of Political Science (personal@ipz.uzh.ch) by July 31st. Interviews will be held in fall 2023.

New York University Abu Dhabi

Rank: Instructor of Political Science, Open-Rank

Subfield(s): International Relations, Methodology, Comparative Politics

Specializations: Quantitative Methods, Political Theory, Political Development

Instructor of Political Science, Open-Rank

New York University Abu Dhabi

The Division of Social Science at New York University (NYU) Abu Dhabi is looking to hire an instructor in the field of political science to provide support to faculty with grading and administrative duties for undergraduate courses in political science, and elsewhere in the division of social sciences. The instructor may also be asked to lead small-group discussions with undergraduate students.

About NYU Abu Dhabi

Established in partnership between New York University (NYU) and the emirate of Abu Dhabi, over the last decade, NYUAD has assembled a remarkable community of scholars, students, researchers, artists, inventors, and others who have contributed to the growth of the UAE's capital as a global hub of knowledge and culture while establishing a new model of higher education for today's complex world.

NYUAD is animated by inspiring and diverse faculty, students, and staff working together in an exciting and dynamic city. As an international center of excellence in teaching and research, our goal is to attract outstanding faculty who are leaders in their fields, encouraging them to create programs that draw outstanding students and provide an intellectually rich environment.

NYUAD students come from more than 126 countries, with no single nationality exceeding more than 15 percent of the total student population. Likewise, our over 320 faculty members represent more than 45 nationalities and bring a global perspective to their classrooms and research projects. NYUAD is committed to building and strengthening a university-wide culture of inclusion, diversity, belonging and equity (IDBE), which is fundamental to the University's commitment to excellence. Visit our website for more information on NYUAD's commitment to IDBE and how these values are fundamental to our mission.

Students are drawn from among the world's best. They are bright, intellectually passionate, and committed to building a campus environment anchored in mutual respect, understanding, and care. The NYUAD undergraduate student body has garnered an impressive record of scholarships, graduate-school admissions, and other global honors. Graduate education is an area of growth for the University; the current graduate student population of over 100 students is expected to expand in the next decade as we develop new graduate programs.

Working for NYUAD

To help Academic Staff thrive, we offer a comprehensive benefits package. This starts with a relocation allowance to ensure a smooth transition to Abu Dhabi. It includes a competitive salary; furnished accommodation provided; educational assistance for your dependents attending school in the UAE; and access to health and wellness services. Click here for more information on benefits for you and your family.

Qualifications

The candidate will have broad familiarity with several subfields in political science, including international relations, quantitative methodology/data analysis, and comparative politics. They will have a proven track-record of English-language academic writing for their coursework and at least some experience leading small-group discussions. Candidates must have at least a master's degree in political science or a related discipline and, ideally, some experience providing teaching support. Fluency in spoken and written English is essential, and familiarity with the US or British higher educational systems is preferable.

Assistant Professor of Political Theory

The School of Social Sciences at NTU Singapore invites applications for a tenure-track Assistant Professor position in Public Policy and Global Affairs (PPGA).

The Public Policy and Global Affairs Programme is one of the four major programmes in the School of Social Sciences, together with Sociology, Psychology, and Economics. We attract excellent students to our BSocSci and PhD degree programmes and provide them with interdisciplinary training, as well as practical knowledge and skill sets necessary to dissect and address real world problems facing political leaders, policymakers, and the global community.

We seek a dedicated colleague with the necessary skills to collaborate and strengthen PPGA's research programmes and teaching portfolios, as well as commit to relevant administration duties. Personal aptitude will be important for this position.

The successful candidate will have a PhD in political science or in a related field, a strong track record of research commensurate with career stage (e.g., publishing in established peer-reviewed journals in the discipline, securing and managing externally funded research, organising conference panels and workshops) and effective teaching and training of undergraduate and/or graduate students.

Area of specialization within political theory is open, however we particularly welcome candidates who are able to offer courses in non-Western political thought. Ability to teach in a secondary discipline, comparative politics, political economy, or Singapore politics, would also be considered an asset

In addition to developing their own research programme, we expect the successful candidate to contribute to teaching undergraduate and graduate core modules in the PPGA Programme, and modules in their areas of specialisation. The successful candidate will join a dynamic team in administering the PPGA Programme.

Essential selection criteria:

- A PhD in political science or in a related field.
- A strong research and publication track record commensurate with career stage.
- Experience and interest in teaching PPGA core modules (undergraduate, graduate).
- Excellent communication, interpersonal skills, and commitment relevant to teaching, pastoral care, and administering the PPGA Programme.

Desirable selection criteria:

- Specialisation in one or more of the following subfields: political theory and research methodology.
- Research and teaching interests that strengthen and expand PPGA's research programmes and teaching portfolios.

Rank: Visiting Assistant Professor of International Relations and the Comparative Politics of Africa

The Political Science Department at Providence College invites applications for a one-year position as visiting assistant professor in International Relations/Comparative Politics with a focus on contemporary politics of Africa, for the 2023-24 academic year. The position is broadly defined, and thus the Department welcomes applicants with a range of substantive interests such as, for example, post-colonial institutions and challenges, international law and organization, democratization, social movements, conflict resolution, geopolitics, political economy, state-building, or other Africa-centered topics. The teaching load will be three courses per semester and class size varies from 12 to 25 students. This visiting assistant professor will teach courses in African Politics, International Relations, and Politics 101, the introductory course for the major.

The position includes competitive salary and benefits as well as research support, including travel funds, library resources, and grant writing assistance.

The Political Science Department has fourteen full-time faculty members dedicated to effective teaching and scholarship, with expertise in an array of topics including campaigns and elections, civic engagement, communications and the media, constitutional law, democracy and development, Latino and Black politics, environmental politics, globalization, race, gender and sexuality, social justice and equality. We study and teach on many aspects of politics in the U.S. as well as numerous other countries, with particular strengths in East Asia, Latin America, and the Middle East.

The City of Providence is a vibrant and diverse city with a long history of welcoming immigrant populations, most recently from West Africa, Latin America, and Southeast Asia.

Applicants should possess a Ph.D. in political science (or be very close to completion), and will be asked to demonstrate evidence of teaching excellence, strong research skills, and potential for research productivity. Apply online at <https://careers.providence.edu> and submit a cover letter, curriculum vita, and contact information for three professional references. For additional information, please contact Dr. Rick Battistoni, Interim Chair of the Political Science Department, at rickbatt@providence.edu with questions.

Review of applications will commence immediately and will continue until the position is filled. We welcome your application!

Providence College is a Roman Catholic four-year liberal arts institution conducted under the auspices of the Dominican Friars and seeks candidates who can affirm and contribute to its Mission. We strive to foster an academic culture and campus community that attracts and supports the development of a stellar and diverse faculty reflecting the global environment in which we live and work. As such, a pillar of Providence College's Strategic Plan for Diversity involves "intentionally recruiting and retaining faculty and staff who are drawn to, and supportive of, the mission of the College, and who have demonstrated a commitment to the human flourishing of each member of the campus community." #### Job Description:

The College of Saint Rose invites applications and nominations for an Assistant Professor of International Relations and Comparative Politics in the School of Arts and Humanities, beginning August 2023. This is a full time, tenure track position.

Drawing from a long, robust learning tradition, the School of Arts & Humanities is a dynamic community of experienced and creative artists, musicians, writers, teachers, and researchers who prepare graduates to think critically, communicate effectively, and address the needs of our increasingly complex society.

Responsibilities will include teaching 12 credits (3 courses) per semester of courses from among the following:

POS 171: International Relations

POS 173: Comparative Politics

Upper-level courses in the candidate's area of expertise

Additionally, responsibilities include contributing to the continuing development and refinement of the program, engaging in scholarship, attending internal and external events applicable to the College and the candidate's academic discipline, academic advising, program assessment, curriculum development, and participation in Department, School, and College committees.

Desired Skills and Experience Requirements:

The successful candidate will have a Ph.D. from an accredited institution in Political Science, Government, or a closely related academic field, at the time of appointment on August 14, 2023.

An ABD from an accredited institution in Political Science, Government, or a closely related academic field, will be considered if the degree will be completed within 1 year from date of appointment.

Additional requirements include: a demonstrated commitment to excellence in teaching, a record of scholarly work or professional impact in the field of International Relations or Comparative Politics, demonstrated experience working with a diverse student population, superior written and oral communication skills and, if selected to advance, a successful demonstration of teaching ability and scholarship during the on campus interview.

Review of applicant credentials will begin immediately. Applications will be accepted until the position is filled.

University of Kansas

Rank: Assistant Professor Russian and/or Eurasian International Relations

Specializations: Russia, Foreign Policy, Political Economy

Assistant Professor Russian and/or Eurasian International Relations

Department of Political Science, University of Kansas

The University of Kansas (KU) Department of Political Science of the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences in collaboration with the university's Center for Russian, East European & Eurasian Studies (CREES) invites applications for a tenure-track Assistant Professorship in Russian and/or Eurasian International Relations beginning August 18, 2023. Successful candidates will be able to demonstrate methodological training that is appropriate with their theoretical approaches as well as provide evidence of the capacity to publish in major journals or presses in political science. Preference will be given to applicants with research and/or teaching specialty in Russian and Eurasian international relations including foreign policy, security, political economy, and the opportunity to develop courses in the candidate's own areas of expertise.

Candidates are expected to contribute to the political science department as well as CREES' interdisciplinary intellectual community and mentor undergraduate and graduate students in Russian, East European, and Eurasian Studies. The Political Science Department and CREES are committed to fostering an inclusive and supportive educational environment for students, faculty and staff. The successful candidates will have experience with diversity, equity, and inclusion in higher education.

Required Qualifications: 1) A doctorate in Political Science. If ABD, the dissertation must be successfully defended by the position start date; 2) Demonstrated commitment to excellence in teaching at the undergraduate and graduate level; 3) Demonstrated ability or plans to develop an innovative body of research and scholarship as evidenced by scholarly publications, presentations, and/or other scholarly activities; 4) Expertise on Russia and/or Eurasia, demonstrated by dissertation chapters, working papers, or publications of relevance to the region

At the University of Kansas, diversity, equity, inclusion, and belonging are an important part of our culture and university strategic plan. Applications from members of underrepresented groups are encouraged, noting the value that differences bring to our organization, students, staff, faculty, and community. The successful candidate must be eligible to work in the U.S. by the effective date of the appointment.

For further details and a full position description, go to: <https://employment.ku.edu/academic/23401BR>. A complete application package includes: (1) a cover letter summarizing research goals and teaching experiences and interests; (2) curriculum vitae; (3) teaching statement showing evidence of teaching ability; (4) a research statement with goals and research potential (samples of published work or conference papers); and (5) the names, email addresses, and contact information for 3 professional references. ABD candidates need to include advisor contact information

In addition to the materials above, learning about each applicant's contribution and engagement in areas of diversity is an important part of KU's mission. As a result, applicants will be presented the following question at the time of application. The response must be within 4,000 characters or less: Describe your experiences working with people from diverse backgrounds and explain how those experiences reflect your commitments to diversity, equity, and inclusion.

Application review will begin October 15, 2022, and will remain open until the position is filled. For more information, please contact Clayton Webb, Search Committee Chair at webb767@ku.edu.

Macalester College

Rank: Assistant Professor

The Department of Political Science seeks candidates for a full-time, tenure-track position at the level of Assistant Professor to begin in August 2024. We invite applications from International Relations scholars with a primary teaching and research emphasis in the subfield of global political economy. The successful candidate will contribute to the undergraduate curriculum by teaching Foundations of International Relations, an intermediate-level course on global political economy and electives in at least one of the following additional areas: postcolonial studies; critical international theory; Indigenous international relations; the international politics of migration; race and international relations; Global IR; or non-Western European approaches to international relations.

The teaching load is five courses per year. We welcome candidates whose teaching and scholarly interests can build bridges to other disciplines or Macalester's interdisciplinary departments and concentrations, such as International Studies, Asian Studies, Middle Eastern Studies and Islamic Civilization, Community and Global Health, Environmental Studies, Urban Studies and Women, Gender and Sexuality Studies.

Applicants should submit a cover letter that includes a statement of interest in Macalester and discusses demonstrated activity and contributions to diversity, equity and inclusion initiatives in their teaching, advising, mentorship, curriculum, scholarship, service or community and professional engagement. Strong candidates will have experience and vision regarding teaching and mentorship of students of multiple and diverse backgrounds with attention to structural barriers that limit access to educational opportunities.

Applications should also include a curriculum vitae; a statement of teaching interests and philosophy, a research statement, an example of recent scholarship, evidence of effective teaching (e.g. sample syllabi, course evaluations, comments in reference letters), and three reference letters.

Teaching Statements should include:

- Teaching philosophy and statement of effective strategies for teaching and learning;
- Experience teaching, advising, or mentoring undergraduate students;
- Applied knowledge of supporting students of diverse backgrounds, interests, or prior experience with international relations coursework

Research Statements should include:

- Research specialization in international relations;
- Commitment to and interest in maintaining an active research agenda;
- Understanding of scholarly research in a liberal arts college and support of undergraduate student research;

All materials (cover letter, CV, teaching statement, research statement, research sample, evidence of effective teaching, and three reference letters) must be submitted to Academic Jobs Online. Inquiries can be directed to Professor Lesley Lavery, Chair of Political Science, llavery@macalester.edu. Applications received by October 1, 2023 will be granted full review.

Macalester is a highly selective, private liberal arts college in the vibrant Minneapolis-Saint Paul metropolitan area, with a population of approximately three million people and home to numerous colleges and universities, including the University of Minnesota. Macalester's diverse student body comprises over 2000 undergraduates from all 50 states and the District of Columbia and 99 countries. The College maintains a longstanding commitment to academic excellence with a special emphasis on internationalism, multiculturalism, and service to society. As an Equal Opportunity employer supportive of affirmative efforts to achieve diversity among its faculty, Macalester College strongly encourages applications from women and members of underrepresented minority groups. International scholars will receive H-1B visa assistance if selected for this position.

Please note that candidates who are invited for a campus interview will be required to complete faculty screening questions, and offers of employment are contingent upon a successful criminal background check at the time of offer. Additionally, finalist candidates will be asked for additional references.

National University of Singapore

Rank: Post-doctoral/Research Fellow/Senior Research Fellow, International Relations of Southeast Asia (3 year-contract, renewable)

Post-doctoral/Research Fellow/Senior Research Fellow, International Relations of Southeast Asia (3 year-contract, renewable)

The Centre on Asia and Globalisation (CAG), at the Lee Kuan Yew School of Public Policy, National University of Singapore, invites applications for Research Fellowships in the field of International Relations, with a focus on Southeast Asia.

The Lee Kuan Yew School is a leading school of public policy with an international faculty and student body. CAG was established in 2006 to provide accurate, independent, and high-quality analysis on issues of regional and global significance for academia, decision-makers, commentators, and the general public. Its current research agenda focuses on the prospects of regional and global order; the future of economic globalisation/de-globalisation and their impact on Asia;

the alignment postures of Southeast Asia in an era of superpower competition; and the impact of technology and artificial intelligence on international politics (<https://lkyspp.nus.edu.sg/cag>).

Job Description

The candidate will conduct independent, in-depth, and publishable research on issues in his/her expertise and contribute to the Centre's agenda on international relations of Southeast Asia.

S/he is expected to initiate and organize research projects, workshops, conferences, and other research events. S/he should be able to reach out to publishers and actively engage with academia, policy practitioners, and media and business leaders, as well as apply for external grants. In addition, s/he is expected to play a role in coordinating with other researchers and contribute to the broader intellectual life of the centre.

Job Requirements

- A Ph.D. degree in the social sciences with preference for Political Science/International Relations
- Expertise in the International Relations of Southeast Asia. We are particularly interested in candidates specializing in the interface between domestic politics and foreign/security/military policy
- An ability to engage with policy and research communities in Singapore, Asia, and around the world
- A strong and demonstrated sense of academic independence and collegiality
- A willingness to engage in interdisciplinary interactions at the School

Benefits Include

- Internationally competitive salary, 3-year renewable contract
- Housing benefit, travel assistance, and transit accommodation, subject to NUS eligibility criteria
- Highly collegial working environment with an internationally diverse group of scholars
- Excellent research support provided by CAG, the LKY School, and the University

Application Procedure

Applicants should submit the following in electronic form (MS Word or PDF file):

- Cover letter, with a brief statement of research expertise and its relevance to CAG's existing research interests
- Detailed curriculum vitae
- Copies of academic certificates and transcripts
- Two samples of academic publications
- Three letters of reference (mail to cag@nus.edu.sg)
- Joining date: 1 December 2023 (preferred, but negotiable)
- Application deadline: Open until filled

Please send electronic submissions to Ms. Serene Teang (cag@nus.edu.sg)

University of Zurich

Specializations: Political Philosophy & Theory, International Political Economy, Trade

The successful candidate will be responsible for research and teaching in the area of the political governance of global inequalities. Applicants can have a background in international/comparative political economy, international relations, or in political philosophy, and their research and/or teaching should relate to PPE ('Politics, Philosophy and Economics'). Within the broader substantive area, specialized attention might be given to issues such as the governance of global climate change agreements and policies, the regulation of migration flows, trade imbalances, developing economies and emerging markets, or changing geopolitical hierarchies. Irrespective of the substantive orientation, the successful candidate's research should have a focus on the political governance of transnational economic, political, or social inequalities, and show an interest in empirical and normative questions and implications.

The University of Zurich offers a dynamic and collaborative work environment with an international orientation, as well as generous support for research and teaching activities. The position is permanent. It comes with a research budget of 3000 CHF/year. In addition, the holder of the position is eligible to apply for Swiss National Science Foundation funding, as well as many other grant programs in Switzerland and abroad. The teaching load is 5 hours per semester plus advising (at 100% employment). A substantial part of the teaching will be in the MA-level program "PPE Politics, Philosophy and Economics". The salary is approximately 110.000CHF/year at 100% employment (80-100% are negotiable). The start date of the position is 1st of February 2024 or upon agreement.

Applicants should hold a PhD degree in political science, international relations, political philosophy, political economy or in a related field at the time of application and have a strong record of academic achievements in the relevant areas. Teaching may be carried out in English, but knowledge of German is an asset. The University of Zurich is an equal opportunities employer and strives to increase the percentage of women in leading positions. Therefore, qualified female researchers are encouraged to apply.

Please send your application electronically as one pdf-file comprising your motivation letter, CV, publication list, transcripts, teaching evaluations (if available), a 1-page statement on the research agenda for the coming 3 years and its link to PPE, as well as the names of at least two references to the personnel office of the Department of Political Science (personal@ipz.uzh.ch) by July 31st. Interviews will be held in fall 2023.

For further information, please contact Prof. Dr. Silja Häusermann (silja.haeusermann@ipz.uzh.ch).

New York University Abu Dhabi

Specializations: Quantitative Methods, Political Theory, Political Development

Instructor of Political Science, Open-Rank
New York University Abu Dhabi

The Division of Social Science at New York University (NYU) Abu Dhabi is looking to hire an instructor in the field of political science to provide support to faculty with grading and administrative duties for undergraduate courses in political science, and elsewhere in the division of social sciences. The instructor may also be asked to lead small-group discussions with undergraduate students.

About NYU Abu Dhabi

Established in partnership between New York University (NYU) and the emirate of Abu Dhabi, over the last decade, NYUAD has assembled a remarkable community of scholars, students, researchers, artists, inventors, and others who have contributed to the growth of the UAE's capital as a global hub of knowledge and culture while establishing a new model of higher education for today's complex world.

NYUAD is animated by inspiring and diverse faculty, students, and staff working together in an exciting and dynamic city. As an international center of excellence in teaching and research, our goal is to attract outstanding faculty who are leaders in their fields, encouraging them to create programs that draw outstanding students and provide an intellectually rich environment.

NYUAD students come from more than 126 countries, with no single nationality exceeding more than 15 percent of the total student population. Likewise, our over 320 faculty members represent more than 45 nationalities and bring a global perspective to their classrooms and research projects. NYUAD is committed to building and strengthening a university-wide culture of inclusion, diversity, belonging and equity (IDBE), which is fundamental to the University's commitment to excellence. Visit our website for more information on NYUAD's commitment to IDBE and how these values are fundamental to our mission.

Students are drawn from among the world's best. They are bright, intellectually passionate, and committed to building a campus environment anchored in mutual respect, understanding, and care. The NYUAD undergraduate student body has garnered an impressive record of scholarships, graduate-school admissions, and other global honors. Graduate education is an area of growth for the University; the current graduate student population of over 100 students is expected to expand in the next decade as we develop new graduate programs.

Working for NYUAD

To help Academic Staff thrive, we offer a comprehensive benefits package. This starts with a relocation allowance to ensure a smooth transition to Abu Dhabi. It includes a competitive salary; furnished accommodation provided; educational assistance for your dependents attending school in the UAE; and access to health and wellness services. Click here for more information on benefits for you and your family.

Qualifications

The candidate will have broad familiarity with several subfields in political science, including international relations, quantitative methodology/data analysis, and comparative politics. They will have a proven track-record of English-language academic writing for their coursework and at least some experience leading small-group discussions. Candidates must have at least a master's degree in political science or a related discipline and, ideally, some experience providing teaching support. Fluency in spoken and written English is essential, and familiarity with the US or British higher educational systems is preferable.

Nanyang Technological University, Singapore

Rank: Assistant Professor of Political Theory

Subfield(s): Public Policy, International Relations, Comparative Politics

Specializations: Political Theory, Political Economy, Research Methods

Public Policy and Global Affairs
School of Social Sciences
Nanyang Technological University, Singapore

Young and research intensive, Nanyang Technological University, Singapore (NTU Singapore) is ranked among the world's top universities.

The School of Social Sciences offers undergraduate and graduate degree programmes in a full range of disciplines and actively promotes interdisciplinary learning and research.

Assistant Professor of Political Theory

The School of Social Sciences at NTU Singapore invites applications for a tenure-track Assistant Professor position in Public Policy and Global Affairs (PPGA).

The Public Policy and Global Affairs Programme is one of the four major programmes in the School of Social Sciences, together with Sociology, Psychology, and Economics. We attract excellent students to our BSocSci and PhD degree programmes and provide them with interdisciplinary training, as well as practical knowledge and skill sets necessary to dissect and address real world problems facing political leaders, policymakers, and the global community.

We seek a dedicated colleague with the necessary skills to collaborate and strengthen PPGA's research programmes and teaching portfolios, as well as commit to relevant administration duties. Personal aptitude will be important for this position.

The successful candidate will have a PhD in political science or in a related field, a strong track record of research commensurate with career stage (e.g., publishing in established peer-reviewed journals in the discipline, securing and managing externally funded research, organising conference panels and workshops) and effective teaching and training of undergraduate and/or graduate students.

Area of specialization within political theory is open, however we particularly welcome candidates who are able to offer courses in non-Western political thought. Ability to teach in a secondary discipline, comparative politics, political economy, or Singapore politics, would also be considered an asset

In addition to developing their own research programme, we expect the successful candidate to contribute to teaching undergraduate and graduate core modules in the PPGA Programme, and modules in their areas of specialisation. The successful candidate will join a dynamic team in administering the PPGA Programme.

Essential selection criteria:

- A PhD in political science or in a related field.
- A strong research and publication track record commensurate with career stage.
- Experience and interest in teaching PPGA core modules (undergraduate, graduate).
- Excellent communication, interpersonal skills, and commitment relevant to teaching, pastoral care, and administering the PPGA Programme.

Desirable selection criteria:

- Specialisation in one or more of the following subfields: political theory and research methodology.
- Research and teaching interests that strengthen and expand PPGA's research programmes and teaching portfolios.

For further information about the Public Policy and Global Affairs Programme, School of Social Sciences at NTU Singapore, please see: <https://www.ntu.edu.sg/sss/public-policy-and-global-affairs>.

Emoluments

NTU Singapore offers a competitive salary commensurate with qualifications and experience in addition to a comprehensive fringe benefit package.

Providence College

Rank: Visiting Assistant Professor of International Relations and the Comparative Politics of Africa

The Political Science Department at Providence College invites applications for a one-year position as visiting assistant professor in International Relations/Comparative Politics with a focus on contemporary politics of Africa, for the 2023-24 academic year. The position is broadly defined, and thus the Department welcomes applicants with a range of substantive interests such as, for example, post-colonial institutions and challenges, international law and organization, democratization, social movements, conflict resolution, geopolitics, political economy, state-building, or other Africa-centered topics. The teaching load will be three courses per semester and class size varies from 12 to 25 students. This visiting assistant professor will teach courses in African Politics, International Relations, and Politics 101, the introductory course for the major.

The position includes competitive salary and benefits as well as research support, including travel funds, library resources, and grant writing assistance.

The Political Science Department has fourteen full-time faculty members dedicated to effective teaching and scholarship, with expertise in an array of topics including campaigns and elections, civic engagement, communications and the media, constitutional law, democracy and development, Latino and Black politics, environmental politics, globalization, race, gender and sexuality, social justice and equality. We study and teach on many aspects of politics in the U.S. as well as numerous other countries, with particular strengths in East Asia, Latin America, and the Middle East..

The City of Providence is a vibrant and diverse city with a long history of welcoming immigrant populations, most recently from West Africa, Latin America, and Southeast Asia.

Applicants should possess a Ph.D. in political science (or be very close to completion), and will be asked to demonstrate evidence of teaching excellence, strong research skills, and potential for research productivity. Apply online at <https://careers.providence.edu> and submit a cover letter, curriculum vita, and contact information for three professional references. For additional information, please contact Dr. Rick Battistoni, Interim Chair of the Political Science Department, at rickbatt@providence.edu with questions.

Review of applications will commence immediately and will continue until the position is filled. We welcome your application!

Providence College is a Roman Catholic four-year liberal arts institution conducted under the auspices of the Dominican Friars and seeks candidates who can affirm and contribute to its Mission. We strive to foster an academic culture and campus community that attracts and supports the development of a stellar and diverse faculty reflecting the global environment in which we live and work. As such, a pillar of Providence College's Strategic Plan for Diversity involves "intentionally recruiting and retaining faculty and staff who are drawn to, and supportive of, the mission of the College, and who have demonstrated a commitment to the human flourishing of each member of the campus community." ## New York University Arts and Science

Rank: Visiting Assistant Professor, International History

Visiting Assistant Professor, International History
New York University Faculty of Arts and Science

New York University's Program in International Relations invites applications for a Visiting Assistant Professor in International History. This one-year position will have a start date of September 1, 2023 and is renewable for up to three years, pending budgetary and administrative approval.

The teaching load for this position is two graduate-level courses per academic semester. Candidates will also be expected to serve as an academic advisor, supervise theses, and participate in program events. The selected candidate will be expected to teach the Program's core Global and International History course, in addition to electives in their research area. The committee is particularly interested in candidates with regional experience in the countries of the Global South.

The breakdown for this position is 50% teaching and 50% service.

The Program in International Relations is home to the MA in International Relations (MAIR). The MAIR is an interdisciplinary program in international relations offering elective concentrations in Asian Studies, European and Mediterranean Studies, International Law, International Politics and Business, Latin American & Caribbean Studies, Middle Eastern & Levantine Studies, Russian and Slavic Studies, and US Foreign Policy. The Program also has a dual Master in Public Administration ("MPA-MAIR") with the Wagner Graduate School of Public Service and a joint degree, the Master of Arts in Journalism and International Relations ("GloJo"), with the Arthur L. Carter Journalism Institute.

The Program in International Relations is housed within NYU's Graduate School of Arts and Science (GSAS). One of the top graduate schools in the world, GSAS counts among its ranks five Pulitzer Prize winners, nine MacArthur Fellows, three National Medal of Science winners, four Howard Hughes Medical Institute Investigators, and 98 Guggenheim Fellows. Students from all 50 states and more than 100 countries study at GSAS. Like our students, NYU faculty come from around the world. Together we form a truly exciting community of the mind around our campus on Washington Square—and across our global network university that stretches across Europe, the Middle East, and Asia. GSAS is dedicated to the education and training of innovative and successful scholars, teachers, and professionals.

In compliance with NYC's Pay Transparency Act, the annual base salary for this position is $60,000. New York University considers factors such as (but not limited to) the scope and responsibilities of the position, the candidate's work experience, education/training, key skills, internal peer equity, as well as market and organizational considerations when extending an offer.

Review of applications will begin on May 15th and continue until the position is filled. Questions about this position should be sent to Lara J. Nettelld, Program Director, at ln2293@nyu.edu.

Bowdoin College

Rank: Visiting Assistant Professor

Pending final administrative approval, the Bowdoin College Department of Government and Legal Studies invites applications for a one-year, full-time, visiting assistant professor in international relations to begin July 1, 2023. A PhD in political science or a related field is preferred; ABD will be considered. Founded in 1794 on the Maine coast, Bowdoin is one of the oldest and most selective coeducational, residential liberal arts colleges in the country.

Teaching load is two courses per semester. Candidates will be expected to teach courses at all levels of the curriculum. We are open to scholars in all substantive areas within the IR subfield.

Bowdoin College offers opportunities for professional development including robust programming and resources for establishing and enhancing mentoring networks. The College also offers support for teaching, publication, digital initiatives, computing software, conference travel support, and community partnerships in courses.

The Bowdoin community warmly welcomes people of all backgrounds. We encourage applications from candidates committed to the inclusive instruction and support of a diverse student population and who will enrich and contribute to the College's multifaceted diversity. Successful candidates will demonstrate a strong commitment to inclusive excellence in their teaching. (For a description of inclusive excellence, please consult the following resource: Williams, et. al., Toward a Model of Inclusive Excellence). We especially encourage people from historically excluded groups to apply. Accessibility during the application and interview stages, as well as once employed, is a priority of the College: <https://www.bowdoin.edu/accessibility/index.html>.

Bowdoin College accepts only electronic submissions. Please visit <https://careers.bowdoin.edu> to submit: 1) a cover letter which briefly addresses your research, teaching interests, and how your teaching would support our commitment to equity and inclusion; 2) a curriculum vitae; 3) the names and contact information for three references who have agreed to provide letters of recommendation. The references would be contacted at a later stage of the search.

Review of applications will begin on April 28, 2023 and continue until the position is filled.

Located in Brunswick, a 30-minute drive north of Portland and 2+ hours north of Boston -- connected to Boston and beyond by public transportation -- the College is in an area rich with natural beauty and year-round outdoor activities. Bowdoin's reputation rests on the excellence of its faculty and students, intimate size, strong sense of community, and commitment to diversity (38% domestic students of color, 7% international students and approximately 15% first generation college students). Bowdoin College complies with applicable provisions of federal and state laws that prohibit unlawful discrimination in employment, admission, or access to its educational or extracurricular programs, activities, or facilities based on race, color, ethnicity, ancestry and national origin, religion, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity and/or expression, age, marital status, place of birth, genetic predisposition, veteran status, or against qualified individuals with physical or mental disabilities on the basis of disability, or any other legally protected statuses.

Location:

Open Date:

Feb 01, 2023

POSITION:

Adjunct Faculty, Intelligence Analysis
Krieger School of Arts and Sciences

INSTITUTION:

Johns Hopkins University

Institution Description:

The Advanced Academic Programs (AAP) is a division of the Krieger School of Arts and Sciences at the Johns Hopkins University (JHU). As the nation's oldest and one of the most prestigious research universities, Johns Hopkins offers high-quality master's degrees and post-baccalaureate education to students in the mid-Atlantic region and online. In addition to the online programs, AAP also offers master's degrees and graduate certificate programs at its Washington, DC Center and at the Homewood campus in Baltimore, MD. AAP has approximately 18,000 enrollments each academic year. JHU is committed to hiring candidates who, through their teaching and service, will contribute to the diversity and excellence of the academic community.

Position Description:

The Advanced Academic Programs (AAP) division seeks non-tenure track adjunct faculty to teach several courses within the MS in Intelligence Analysis program. The course(s) will be taught fully online beginning in Summer 2023 and beyond. Candidates with online course development and teaching experience and those with experience teaching and engaging students from diverse backgrounds are of particular interest. We are looking for faculty who can teach one or more of the following courses:

473.600 the Art and Practice of Intelligence

This course introduces students to the field of intelligence, particularly as practiced in the United States. After a brief overview of the historical foundations of modern intelligence, it discusses how intelligence is conducted including collection, analysis, counterintelligence, covert action, and oversight. It also discusses intelligence ethics, as well as the disruptive influences of September 11, new technologies, and emerging social trends.

473.602 Intelligence Analysis

Intelligence analysis is fundamentally about understanding and communicating to decision makers what is known, not known, and surmised, as it can best be determined. Students will read seminal texts on intelligence analysis, discuss the complex cognitive, psychological, organizational, ethical, and legal issues surrounding intelligence analysis now and, in the past, and apply analytic methodologies to real-world problems.

473.604 Advanced Critical Thinking and Analysis

Critical thinking involves the methods and principles of correct reasoning and argumentation. Students will apply a combination of logic, critical thinking skills, and structured analytical techniques to identify biases, promote self-reflective reasoning, and improve the quality of intelligence analysis. Using a selection of empirical case studies and operational exemplars, students will conduct a comparative assessment of analytical outcomes based on the application of course learnings versus outcomes derived in their absence.

473.607 Intelligence Ethics

This course will address the ethical dilemmas and issues that challenge intelligence and government decision makers in an increasingly complex operational and technological environment. We will examine basic moral, ethical and privacy considerations at several key points in intelligence operations from collection to covert action. The course will analyze the evolving nature of privacy concerns worldwide, with an emphasis on the balance between individual rights and national security. Students will examine the policy implications inherent in seeking to address these tensions.

473.606 Legal Issues in Intelligence

This class will examine the interplay between the laws and the practices and policies of the United States' Intelligence Community and national security system, both foreign and domestic. While discussion of the history of intelligence activities and laws dating from the origins of our colonial days will necessarily shape the framework of the class, the focus shall particularly be on current debates and challenges faced by the United States in the 21st Century.

473.800 Research Seminar

This course will introduce a variety of research, analytical, and statistical methods intended to provide a basis for designing a research project, including an introduction to quantitative, qualitative, and mixed method research design. Within the context of the course, students will complete foundational work for the capstone project, including identifying and accessing relevant primary and secondary source data, surveying and evaluating the literature, and framing a research question based on the intersection of empirical studies and organizational needs. Attention will be given to the unique restrictions placed on research design and publication within the intelligence community.

473.801 Capstone: Current Issues in Intelligence

In this culminating course, students complete an independent, faculty-approved project that will address a substantive or methodological challenge in intelligence analysis. A successful capstone will include research that provides evidence of the student's mastery of the theoretical knowledge and analytical skills central to the degree's learning outcomes. The capstone provides an opportunity to apply the skills acquired throughout the program to a key challenge facing their organization or community. Students will conduct a literature review, select a research method appropriate to their study, analyze data using qualitative or quantitative methods in their capstone project, and propose and defend their findings.

Minimum Qualifications:

- An advanced degree in any relevant field, with a master's degree at minimum.
- At least five years of professional work experience within the intelligence field.

Preferred Qualifications:

- A terminal degree in international relations, global security studies, political science, history, or in a relevant field related to intelligence.
- A scholar-practitioner background and publications in the field.
- 1-3 years of graduate level teaching experience.
- Leadership experience within the US Intelligence Community.
- Online teaching experience.
- Experience in developing graduate courses.
- The background to teach a wide variety of courses in an intelligence analysis program.

- Strong interest in advising graduate students interested in an intelligence career.

Application Instructions

The position will remain open until filled. For best consideration, please apply by April 1 2023.

Candidates must submit the following:

- Cover letter should indicate the course or courses you're interested in teaching plus your experience with online learning management systems (i.e., Canvas)
- Curriculum vitae
- Teaching evaluations for two most recently taught courses
- Transcript from highest degree earned
- The selected candidate will undergo a background check and provide three references.

Rank: Assistant Professor of Comparative Politics and International Relations

The College of Saint Rose, located in the capital city of Albany, New York, is a private, independent, coeducational institution of higher education offering 90 bachelor's degree, master's degree, and certificate programs, as well as a variety of accelerated degree paths. Through a strong liberal arts education curriculum and professional academic programs, the College serves undergraduate and graduate students, working professionals, international students, and more. Visit www.strose.edu for additional information.

A hub of government, higher education and industry in the beautiful Capital Region, Albany sits at the intersection of the Tech Corridor. The Capital Region is a wonderful place to live, teach, and pursue research, offering restful residential neighborhoods and bustling cultural centers, high quality school districts, and countless recreational, entertainment, and educational venues for young professionals and families. For over a century, The College of Saint Rose has been an integral part of this dynamic and vibrant community, with a strong record of teaching as well as a diverse population of students and graduates volunteering and working in government and service agencies, schools, local businesses, and multinational and regional companies. Commuters and vacationers are a short train or car ride away from New York City, Boston, and Montreal, and minutes from the Albany International Airport.

Founded in 1920 by the Sisters of Saint Joseph of Carondelet, the College is proud of its mission of service to the urban community. As an institution that values inclusion, we seek to attract and employ individuals who reflect the cultural diversity found within our student body, and across the nation and globe. The College is proud of its liberal arts and professional programs, and trains more teachers than any other institution of higher education in New York State.

Job Description:

The College of Saint Rose invites applications and nominations for an Assistant Professor of International Relations and Comparative Politics in the School of Arts and Humanities, beginning August 2023. This is a full time, tenure track position.

Drawing from a long, robust learning tradition, the School of Arts & Humanities is a dynamic community of experienced and creative artists, musicians, writers, teachers, and researchers who prepare graduates to think critically, communicate effectively, and address the needs of our increasingly complex society.

Responsibilities will include teaching 12 credits (3 courses) per semester of courses from among the following:

POS 173: Comparative Politics

Upper-level courses in the candidate's area of expertise

Additionally, responsibilities include contributing to the continuing development and refinement of the program, engaging in scholarship, attending internal and external events applicable to the College and the candidate's academic discipline, academic advising, program assessment, curriculum development, and participation in Department, School, and College committees.

Desired Skills and Experience Requirements:

The successful candidate will have a Ph.D. from an accredited institution in Political Science, Government, or a closely related academic field, at the time of appointment on August 14, 2023.

An ABD from an accredited institution in Political Science, Government, or a closely related academic field, will be considered if the degree will be completed within 1 year from date of appointment.

Additional requirements include: a demonstrated commitment to excellence in teaching, a record of scholarly work or professional impact in the field of International Relations or Comparative Politics, demonstrated experience working with a diverse student population, superior written and oral communication skills and, if selected to advance, a successful demonstration of teaching ability and scholarship during the on campus interview.

Review of applicant credentials will begin immediately. Applications will be accepted until the position is filled.

Additional Information:

University of Florida

Rank: Lecturer

The International Studies Program at the University of Florida (UF), College of Liberal Arts and Sciences, invites applications for a full-time, non-tenure track appointment at the rank of Lecturer. Applicants should focus regionally on the Middle East and/or North Africa, and topically in the areas of global health, governance, civil society, data and public policy, sustainable development, or related subjects.

The International Studies program is a dynamic interdisciplinary major at UF that prepares students for careers in global affairs, international business, research organizations, and other careers by providing foreign language skills, regional cultural awareness, and informed knowledge of critical international issues in global and local context. The International Studies Program is housed in UF's Bob Graham Center for Public Service. The Graham Center prepares students to engage in their communities, to influence policy, and to interact with lawmakers through the Center's public programs, special projects, academic coursework, and research initiatives. The successful candidate will join a collaborative and inclusive team dedicated to promoting the ideals of civic engagement, public leadership, and public service at the local, national, and global levels.

The Lecturer will teach two courses per semester and provide substantial service. Of those courses, it is expected that two will be regularly offered core courses for the International Studies Program: 1) an introductory course in International Studies (INS3004: International Studies Perspectives); and 2) a senior capstone course for majors (INS4930: Senior Research Seminar in International Studies). The remainder of courses taught will correspond to the Lecturer's specialization. Outside of teaching, the Lecturer will serve as the Experiential Learning Coordinator for the International Studies Program, partnering with other programs at UF to identify and develop opportunities for internships, study abroad experiences, and student research. The exact balance between service and teaching duties will depend on the needs of the program and will be determined on an annual basis.

Lecturers are highly valued by the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences and by the University of Florida. To encourage and facilitate the professional development of lecturers, the university provides opportunities for promotion from the ranks of Lecturer to Senior Lecturer and Master Lecturer. Lecturer appointments are typically for nine months per year and are annually renewable.

The International Studies Program and the Bob Graham Center are committed to fostering an environment that affirms diversity across a variety of dimensions including ethnicity/race, gender identity and expression. We particularly welcome applicants who can contribute to developing such an environment through their scholarship, teaching, mentoring, and professional service.

University of Kansas

Rank: Assistant Professor Russian and/or Eurasian International Relations

Specializations: Russia, Foreign Policy, Political Economy

Assistant Professor Russian and/or Eurasian International Relations

Department of Political Science, University of Kansas

The University of Kansas (KU) Department of Political Science of the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences in collaboration with the university's Center for Russian, East European & Eurasian Studies (CREES) invites applications for a tenure-track Assistant Professorship in Russian and/or Eurasian International Relations beginning August 18, 2023. Successful candidates will be able to demonstrate methodological training that is appropriate with their theoretical approaches as well as provide evidence of the capacity to publish in major journals or presses in political science. Preference will be given to applicants with research and/or teaching specialty in Russian and Eurasian international relations including foreign policy, security, political economy, and the opportunity to develop courses in the candidate's own areas of expertise.

Candidates are expected to contribute to the political science department as well as CREES' interdisciplinary intellectual community and mentor undergraduate and graduate students in Russian, East European, and Eurasian Studies. The Political Science Department and CREES are committed to fostering an inclusive and supportive educational environment for students, faculty and staff. The successful candidates will have experience with diversity, equity, and inclusion in higher education.

Required Qualifications: 1) A doctorate in Political Science. If ABD, the dissertation must be successfully defended by the position start date; 2) Demonstrated commitment to excellence in teaching at the undergraduate and graduate level; 3) Demonstrated ability or plans to develop an innovative body of research and scholarship as evidenced by scholarly publications, presentations, and/or other scholarly activities; 4) Expertise on Russia and/or Eurasia, demonstrated by dissertation chapters, working papers, or publications of relevance to the region

At the University of Kansas, diversity, equity, inclusion, and belonging are an important part of our culture and university strategic plan. Applications from members of underrepresented groups are encouraged, noting the value that differences bring to our organization, students, staff, faculty, and community. The successful candidate must be eligible to work in the U.S. by the effective date of the appointment.

For further details and a full position description, go to: <https://employment.ku.edu/academic/23401BR>. A complete application package includes: (1) a cover letter summarizing research goals and teaching experiences and interests; (2) curriculum vitae; (3) teaching statement showing evidence of teaching ability; (4) a research statement with goals and research potential (samples of published work or conference papers); and (5) the names, email addresses, and contact information for 3 professional references. ABD candidates need to include advisor contact information

In addition to the materials above, learning about each applicant's contribution and engagement in areas of diversity is an important part of KU's mission. As a result, applicants will be presented the following question at the time of application. The response must be within 4,000 characters or less: Describe your experiences working with people from diverse backgrounds and explain how those experiences reflect your commitments to diversity, equity, and inclusion.

Application review will begin October 15, 2022, and will remain open until the position is filled. For more information, please contact Clayton Webb, Search Committee Chair at webb767@ku.edu.

Lehigh University

Rank: Assistant Professor

Assistant Professor of International Relations: International Organization

Department of International Relations

<https://academicjobsonline.org/ajo/jobs/22687>

The Department of International Relations at Lehigh University invites applications for a tenure track faculty position at the assistant professor rank in International Organization (IO) starting in August 2023. We are open to IO scholars with broadly defined regional foci, methodological orientations, and specializations including but not limited to international law, sustainable human development, non-government organizations, environment, human rights, and global governance. The successful candidate should have an earned Ph.D. in political science by the date of employment. Interested candidates should submit a letter of interest, CV, writing samples/publications, statement of teaching philosophy, and, if available, evidence of teaching effectiveness to the IR search committee. Please also arrange to have three letters of recommendation sent to Academic Jobs Online. Only submissions via Academic Jobs Online will be considered. Applications received by October 1, 2022 will be given fullest consideration, and will continue to be reviewed until the post is filled.

Lehigh is among the few higher educational institutions in the US that has long had a separate department of IR. This means that students with a particular interest in international affairs will benefit from a concentrated program of study that few other schools offer. The standard teaching load is 2-2, and the successful candidate will have a strong commitment to excellence in both research and undergraduate teaching.

Founded in 1865, Lehigh University has combined outstanding academic and learning opportunities with leadership in fostering innovative research. Recognized among the nation's highly ranked research universities, Lehigh offers a rigorous academic community for nearly 7,000 students. Lehigh University has some 5,000 undergraduates, 2,000 graduate students, and about 550 full-time faculty members. Lehigh University is located in Bethlehem, PA., a vibrant and historic area. Over 820,000 people live in the Lehigh Valley, which is in close proximity to New York City and Philadelphia.

Lehigh University is an affirmative action/equal opportunity employer and does not discriminate on the basis of age, color, disability, gender identity or expression, genetic information, marital or familial status, national or ethnic origin, race, religion, sex, sexual orientation, or veteran status. We are committed to increasing the diversity of the campus community. Lehigh University is committed to a culturally and intellectually diverse academic community and is especially interested in candidates who can contribute, through their research, teaching and/or service, to this mission. Lehigh University is the recipient of an NSF ADVANCE Institutional Transformation award for promoting the careers of women in academic sciences and engineering (<http://www.lehigh.edu/luadvance/>) and is among institutions of higher education recognized for excellence in diversity with the INSIGHT into Diversity HEED Award. ### Michigan State University

The Department of Political Science at Michigan State University is seeking to hire a 9-month academic year, tenure system professor at the rank of Assistant Professor, with experience in applying data analytics to political science questions. MSU actively promotes a dynamic research and learning environment in which qualified individuals of differing perspectives and cultural backgrounds pursue academic goals with mutual respect and shared inquiry. We are particularly interested in candidates who employ innovative computational technologies and large-scale data to expand knowledge about the political world. Skills in Bayesian methodologies, temporal or geospatial prediction, network analysis, text analytics, statistical learning, or causal inference are highly valued. The specific subfield for this position is flexible; however, candidates with a history of receiving research funding, or those who have plans to apply for funding, will be highly favored. The candidate would be expected to teach political and computational methods courses at both the graduate and undergraduate levels.

Successful candidates will have a promising research agenda and strong analytical and empirical skills, a strategy for external funding, as well as aspire to the highest standards of scholarship, professional activity, and commitment to graduate and undergraduate education. Candidates must currently have a Ph.D. or have completed the Ph.D. by the date of hire.

All qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to race, color, religion, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, national origin, citizenship, disability or protected veteran status.

Please contact Shahryar Minhas (minhash@msu.edu), chair of the search committee, with any questions.

Min. Qualifications:

Candidates must have completed a PhD by the date of hire. A successful candidate will be expected to have a promising research agenda and strong analytical and empirical skills, a strategy for external funding, as well as aspire to the highest standards of scholarship, professional activity, and commitment to graduate and undergraduate education.

Required Materials:

Interested applicants must apply for this position via Michigan State University Applicant Page (MAP). Please access the MAP system at <https://careers.msu.edu>, posting number 867163. Applicants must submit a CV, cover letter, research statement, teaching statement, two samples of written work, and a diversity and inclusion statement (a statement addressing how past/and or potential contributions to diversity and inclusion will advance MSU's commitment to inclusive excellence). Applicants must complete contact information for three references.

Michigan State University is an affirmative action, equal opportunity employer. Michigan State University is committed to achieving excellence through cultural diversity. The University actively encourages applications and/or nominations of women, persons of color, veterans and persons with disabilities.

MSU is located in East Lansing, MI, with easy access to the state capital, Lake Michigan, great school districts, and two large metropolitan areas (Grand Rapids, Detroit). The University is pro-active in exploring opportunities for employment for dual career couples, both inside and outside the University. ## George Washington University

Specializations: Quantitative Methods, Research Methods, Science & Technology

The George Washington University's Institute for Data, Democracy and Politics (IDDP) is seeking an exceptional candidate for a full-time, academic research position at the rank of post-doctoral research scientist. IDDP is a multidisciplinary research initiative intended to strengthen democratic dialog and institutions through research and engagement with policymakers, journalists, and the public. The position is for a one-year term.

The postdoctoral associate will work closely with Professor Catie Bailard, who leads the Meaningful Open Source Indicators (MOSI) cluster. MOSI combines the subject-area and technical expertise of researchers working across a wide range of disciplines—including engineers, data scientists, computer scientists, computational social scientists, and traditional social scientists—to investigate the use of digital technologies to disseminate, promote, and orchestrate deleterious online content and behavior. The candidates will work on topics related to digital harms and the threat they pose to democratic societies. Candidates would be technically capable researchers who are also interested in asking bold, new questions with data. This position is located at GW's Foggy Bottom campus in Washington, DC, and will report to Dr. Rebekah Tromble.

This position is primarily a temporary/training position in which the candidate would play a substantive role in planning and conducting research by using quantitative and qualitative methods to collect, analyze and report on data from digital and online sources. In collaboration with the Principal Investigators, this role will participate in the planning of independent research, will analyze and interpret data, will publish results, will represent the university at conferences and meetings, and may develop new theories and methodologies. Extensive professional experience using R, Python or similar tools are a key requirement for the position, and successful candidates should show potential to excel in tasks related to data collection, network analysis, text-as-data, and natural language processing at very large scale. This position may also help the Principal Investigators to lead and direct the work of research assistants and other staff. This role performs work under the supervision of experienced researchers.

New York University Abu Dhabi

Specializations: Quantitative Methods, Political Theory, Political Development

Instructor of Political Science, Open-Rank

New York University Abu Dhabi

The Division of Social Science at New York University (NYU) Abu Dhabi is looking to hire an instructor in the field of political science to provide support to faculty with grading and administrative duties for undergraduate courses in political science, and elsewhere in the division of social sciences. The instructor may also be asked to lead small-group discussions with undergraduate students.

About NYU Abu Dhabi

Established in partnership between New York University (NYU) and the emirate of Abu Dhabi, over the last decade, NYUAD has assembled a remarkable community of scholars, students, researchers, artists, inventors, and others who have contributed to the growth of the UAE's capital as a global hub of knowledge and culture while establishing a new model of higher education for today's complex world.

NYUAD is animated by inspiring and diverse faculty, students, and staff working together in an exciting and dynamic city. As an international center of excellence in teaching and research, our goal is to attract outstanding faculty who are leaders in their fields, encouraging them to create programs that draw outstanding students and provide an intellectually rich environment.

NYUAD students come from more than 126 countries, with no single nationality exceeding more than 15 percent of the total student population. Likewise, our over 320 faculty members represent more than 45 nationalities and bring a global perspective to their classrooms and research projects. NYUAD is committed to building and strengthening a university-wide culture of inclusion, diversity, belonging and equity (IDBE), which is fundamental to the University's commitment to excellence. Visit our website for more information on NYUAD's commitment to IDBE and how these values are fundamental to our mission.

Students are drawn from among the world's best. They are bright, intellectually passionate, and committed to building a campus environment anchored in mutual respect, understanding, and care. The NYUAD undergraduate student body has garnered an impressive record of scholarships, graduate-school admissions, and other global honors. Graduate education is an area of growth for the University; the current graduate student population of over 100 students is expected to expand in the next decade as we develop new graduate programs.

Working for NYUAD

To help Academic Staff thrive, we offer a comprehensive benefits package. This starts with a relocation allowance to ensure a smooth transition to Abu Dhabi. It includes a competitive salary; furnished accommodation provided; educational assistance for your dependents attending school in the UAE; and access to health and wellness services. Click here for more information on benefits for you and your family.

Qualifications

The candidate will have broad familiarity with several subfields in political science, including international relations, quantitative methodology/data analysis, and comparative politics. They will have a proven track-record of English-language academic writing for their coursework and at least some experience leading small-group discussions. Candidates must have at least a master's degree in political science or a related discipline and, ideally, some experience providing teaching support. Fluency in spoken and written English is essential, and familiarity with the US or British higher educational systems is preferable.

The position also assists in data analysis for research projects including modeling, diagnostics, and graphic visualization for reports, articles and other publications.

Arab Barometer is a close-knit team and the Data Analyst will be working directly with the project director, research associates, and communication associates. Outside of the team, the Data Analyst must also work with Princeton graduate and undergraduate students, and research colleagues in the U.S. and the Middle East and North Africa.

This is a remote, one-year term position with possibility of renewal.

Responsibilities

Graph creation: This includes the creation of standard graphs, special request graphs, and developing functions that help create graphs for the Arab Barometer's custom R package.

Data cleaning and management: This includes evaluating data validity with Arab Barometer software, identifying miscodings, and assist with labeling.

Preparing surveys: This includes researching feasibility of survey software, quickly learn the basics of programming questionnaires, and create/test sample surveys.

Research assistance: This includes reading research papers on survey methods, identifying the source of problems in code and suggesting solutions, developing and testing programs to help Arab Barometer run more efficiently.

Qualifications

Essential Qualifications:

- Bachelor's degree
- Three years experience
- Comfortable with the programming language R, especially summarizing data and creating graphs
- Ability to clearly and succinctly communicate data results

Ability to learn new skills quickly
Ability to think creatively to solve problems

Preferred Qualifications:
Familiarity with STATA
Familiarity with python
Familiarity with LaTeX
Familiarity with Arabic
Knowledge of MENA countries and regional dynamics
Familiarity with survey programming software, such as ODK, SurveyToGo, etc.

Faculty Recruitment Information in Journalism/ Media

The Faculty of Political Science and Economics at Waseda University invites applications for a tenure-track or tenured position in Journalism/ Media to begin in the spring of 2024 at the earliest.

Waseda University, founded in 1882, is a leading private research university located in central Tokyo. As part of its globalization efforts, the Faculty of Political Science and Economics (FPSE) has been offering degree programs in English for both undergraduate and graduate students since 2010, in addition to degree programs in Japanese. The programs provide diverse and dynamic academic opportunities for talented students from all around the world.

1. Affiliation:

The Faculty of Political Science and Economics, Waseda University

2. Field:

Journalism/ Media

3. Courses to be taught:

The successful candidate will teach specialized courses in the Journalism Course of the Graduate School of Political Science (Master and Doctoral Program), seminars of the Journalism Category or the Media Category in the graduate programs, and related topics in FPSE including “Advanced seminar” in the undergraduate program.

4. Qualifications:

- (1) Applicants must have empirical research achievement using data analysis in the field of Journalism or Media.
- (2) Applicants must be able to teach the courses stated in “3. Courses to be taught” in both Japanese and English.
- (3) Applicants must have a Ph.D. degree or expect to obtain it by the time of appointment.

(4) Ability to teach at least one of the introductory methodology courses which is a required course for the Political Science Course in the Graduate School of Political Science.

(5) Teaching experience in relevant courses at university level is desirable.

(6) Ability to develop, coordinate, and formulate the educational curriculum for the Journalism Course is desirable.

5. Number of positions available:

One

6. Position rank and title:

Professor (tenured), Associate Professor (tenured), Associate Professor (Tenure-track), or Assistant Professor (Tenure-track)

The position rank is determined by such factors as the applicant’s academic and research record, as well as evaluation during the screening process, will be made known to the applicant at the final interview with the FPSE’s dean and other executive committee members.

General Idea of Tenure-Track Positions at FPSE: (Detailed information will be provided after the second round of selection.)

A tenure-track position at FPSE shall be appointed either as Assistant Professor (tenure-track) or Associate Professor (tenure-track), for three years in the first term, followed by two years of reappointment and an additional two years of reappointment, for a total of up to seven years. As a general rule, the interim review shall be carried out in the second semester of the third year (sixth semester) following the appointment and completed within the first three-year term on the tenure track. When a tenure-track faculty member passes the interim review, the first reappointment of two years shall be confirmed before the end of the initial appointment (three years).

By default, the final review shall be carried out in the second semester of the fifth year (tenth semester) and completed by the end of the fifth year on the tenure track. When the tenure-track faculty member passes the final review, the faculty member will become a tenured faculty member from the following semester. The second reappointment of two years may be granted to a tenure-track faculty member who fails the final review. The tenure-track faculty member may request an interim review or a final review at any time in or after the second semester of the second year (fourth semester) following appointment.

If you have had an employment contract with Waseda University (regardless of job title) since April 1, 2013, and there is no period of at least six months without an employment contract with Waseda University at the scheduled start of this position, in principle, there is a limit to the duration of the employment contract. Therefore, the above may not be applied.

7. Working conditions:

·Salary, allowances, and commuting expenses are commensurate with qualifications and are based on Waseda University pay scales.

·The workplace will, in principle, be on a Waseda University campus.

·Scheduled working days and working hours (starting/finishing times and rest periods) are based on university regulations. The discretionary labor system for professional work will be applied to research work. Considering the nature of research work, working hours are at the discretion of each faculty member.

·Holidays

Holidays are Saturdays, Sundays, New Year's holidays, legally recognized public holidays, and compensatory holidays appointed by the University for holding classes on public holidays and the anniversary of the University's founding. Holidays prescribed as working days determined by the University in advance will be excluded. There may be cases where classes and other types of FPSE work will be scheduled on holidays. Employees may take compensatory holiday(s) for those occasions. For the academic calendar of the university, please see the URL below.

<https://www.waseda.jp/top/en/about/work/organizations/academic-affairs-division/academic-calendar>

·Leave

Leave is determined by the Labor Standards Act and other related laws, including days that are designated by the University as leave days.

·Social insurance

Pension, health insurance, labor insurance, and employment insurance are provided based on university regulations.

·Research Funding

Individual research allowance: 210,000 yen (per year)

Academic conference traveling subsidies: 90,000 yen (per year)

International academic conference traveling subsidies: 110,000 yen (per year)

Other competitive research funds are available at Waseda University.

·Retirement benefits

Tenured Professors and tenured Associate Professors are paid in accordance with university regulations.

No retirement benefits will be provided to Associate Professors (tenure-track) and Assistant Professors (tenure-track). However, if they continue to serve as tenured faculty members after the term as tenure-track faculty members, retirement benefits will be provided in accordance with university regulations. The period of service for calculating the retirement benefits of a tenured faculty member is counted from the date of appointment as an Associate Professor (tenure-track) or Assistant Professor (tenure-track).

Johns Hopkins University

Rank: Adjunct Faculty: Data Analytics and Policy

Description

Institution Description:

The Advanced Academic Programs (AAP) is a division of the Krieger School of Arts and Sciences at the Johns Hopkins University (JHU). As the nation's oldest and one of the most prestigious research universities, Johns Hopkins offers high-quality master's degrees and post-baccalaureate education to students in the mid-Atlantic region and online. In addition to the online programs, AAP also offers master's degrees and graduate certificate programs at its Washington, DC Center and at the Homewood campus in Baltimore, MD. AAP has approximately 18,000 enrollments each academic year. JHU is committed to hiring candidates who, through their teaching and service, will contribute to the diversity and excellence of the academic community.

Position Description:

The Advanced Academic Programs (AAP) division seeks non-tenure track adjunct faculty to teach one of several courses within the Master of Science in Data Analytics and Policy program. Specifically, we are seeking instructors qualified to teach Probability and Statistics (470.681), Programming and Data Management (470.768), Quantitative Methods (470.709), or Data Visualization (470.673). The course(s) will be taught fully online beginning in the spring 2023 semester. Candidates with online course development and teaching experience and those with experience teaching and engaging students from diverse backgrounds are of particular interest.

These four courses are part of the core curriculum in the Data Analytics and Policy program. The courses introduce learners to statistical analysis and programming using R. Topics include probability theory, descriptive statistics, data visualization, research design for causal inference, and linear regression analysis. Full course descriptions and an overview of our full curriculum are available on the program website. The program has course templates for each course from which the candidate will teach. Faculty duties include supporting student learning, evaluating student work, and working with the Program Director to revise and update course materials as needed.

These courses are taught on a regular basis with semester-length contracts. Adjunct faculty may be included in future course development projects.

Qualifications

Minimum Qualifications:

- Master's degree with training in quantitative statistical methods (e.g., political science, sociology, business analytics, economics, geography, public policy, psychology, or similar)
- Demonstrated experience doing original work using R for programming, data visualization, and statistical analysis

University College Dublin

Specializations: Political Communication, Political Psychology, Political Parties & Organizations

Moral Agency in Election Campaigns (ELECT) is a project funded by the European Research Council (2023-2028). The emergence of novel political challengers and new strategic and communicative possibilities enabled by big data and new media has greatly altered the electoral landscape. In this context, ELECT aims to understand the normative attitudes and decision-making practices of key actors that animate the electoral process, how those attitudes and practices are shaped by different institutional and regulatory contexts, and the significance of these interactions for electoral democracy. To this end, electoral candidates, campaign professionals, journalists and citizens will be studied across four countries: Germany, Italy, the UK and the USA.

An experienced researcher (post-PhD or PhD submitted by time of appointment) is being recruited to work on the German case. The researcher will work together with the Principal Investigator (Associate Professor Joseph Lacey) and the wider research team for the first three years of the project. Proficiency in German is a requirement of the post. Hybrid working arrangements are possible. Ideally, you will begin in September 2023.

Your tasks will be to:

- Develop an interdisciplinary state of the art on election campaigns in the German case.
- Contribute to designing cross-national surveys, semi-structured interviews and focus groups.
- Take on fieldwork in the German case, carrying out surveys, semi-structured interviews and focus groups.
- Contribute to the analysis of collected data using qualitative and/or quantitative methods.

- Contribute to developing a theory of moral agency in election campaigns.
- Contribute to the organisation of international conferences at UCD and panels or sections at general conferences.

University of Notre Dame

Rank: Faculty Fellowship

The Notre Dame Institute for Advanced Study (NDIAS) promotes issue-engaged, inclusive, and interdisciplinary study of questions that affect our ability to lead valuable, meaningful lives. Each year, the NDIAS convenes a diverse group of 8-10 Faculty Fellows to conduct research on projects related to its yearly research theme.

During the 2024-2025 academic year, the Notre Dame Institute for Advanced Study is sponsoring residential research projects that investigate The Good Life.

The Good Life fellowship program will bring together ethicists, humanities faculty, scientists, social scientists, policy scholars, and artists with projects that advance our understanding of human flourishing. We are particularly interested in projects that contribute to ethical research and debates surrounding flourishing, including foundational topics in philosophy and psychology but also applied questions across many different disciplines. We seek scholars who will deepen our understanding, teach us novel methods, and translate the institute's discussions into interdisciplinary and public debates about the good life.

For a list of potential research topics related to the theme, please see ndias.nd.edu/fellowships/faculty.

Faculty Fellows typically have a faculty appointment at their home institution, but the Fellowships are also open to independent researchers, public practitioners, postdoctoral scholars, those who have recently received their Ph.D. (or equivalent terminal) degree, those who are pursuing the creative arts, and faculty from Notre Dame. Scholars from outside the U.S. are welcome to apply—there are no citizenship requirements for these fellowships. Current graduate students are eligible to apply only if they will receive their terminal degree by August 1, 2024.

Faculty Fellows receive half their base salary per academic year (up to $75,000), a housing subsidy (for those who currently reside outside of the South Bend area), a research allowance of $500 per semester, and a private office at the NDIAS. Fellows' home institutions provide the remainder of their salaries as well as all benefits, including health insurance.

Postdocs are welcome to apply and receive a stipend of up to $60,000 paid directly to them (rather than to a home institution). Postdocs are also provided health insurance benefits.

All NDIAS Fellows are expected to reside in the South Bend area and to remain in residence at the University of Notre Dame during the period of their fellowship (except for vacation periods, holidays, and University breaks). Preference is given to those who can join the NDIAS for the entire academic year (August - May), but fellowships for shorter periods of time may be possible.

Applications must be submitted through Interfolio and should include the following:

- 1) Cover letter
- 2) Curriculum vitae (no more than four pages, single-spaced)
- 3) Proposal abstract (no more than 400 words)
- 4) Fellowship research proposal (no more than six pages double-spaced; research proposals may include a works-cited or bibliography page, which does not count toward the 6-page limit). In the research proposal, applicants should provide an explanation of the project they intend to pursue at the NDIAS, including:
  - How the proposed research aligns with the research theme and mission of the Institute (see ndias.nd.edu/about);
  - Preliminary objectives for the research to be conducted (i.e., whether the research might result in a book, journal article, art work, etc.);
  - The proposed work plan (including what research or work has already been accomplished, what will be done during the fellowship period, the methodology to be employed, and the organization of the scholarly project, book, or other work).
- 5) Public-engagement proposal (no more than two pages, double sided). In the public-engagement proposal, applicants should explain how they plan to engage a public audience with their proposed research project (e.g., through a newspaper op-ed, public discussion, podcast episode, etc.).
- 6) Two Letters of Reference. The letters should address the strength of the applicant's proposed research project, its fit with the 2024-2025 theme of The Good Life, and the applicant's collaborative potential and collegiality.
- 7) (Optional) Up to two pages of non-text materials supporting the research proposal.

Finalists will be asked to be available for a brief Zoom conversation with committee members during the final stage of the selection process.

All 2024-2025 NDIAS Faculty Fellowship applications, including letters of reference and supporting documentation, must be received by 11:59 p.m. (ET) on Monday, October 2, 2023.

Hampden-Sydney College

Rank: Assistant Professor/Comparative Politics
Subfield(s): Comparative Politics, International Relations, Open
Specializations: Middle East, East Asia, Latin American

Hampden-Sydney College invites applications for a full-time, tenure-track appointment at the rank of Assistant Professor within the Department of Government and Foreign Affairs to begin in the fall of 2024. Candidates should be broadly trained in the foundations of political thought and have teaching interests in comparative politics and institutions. An ability to teach in at least one regional area--Middle East, East Asia, Latin America, etc.--is expected. The willingness to offer courses on global or regional policymaking in a specialized area is also welcomed. The successful applicant may participate in the college-wide Core Cultures program and teach, as needed, introductory courses in world politics. Faculty teach on a three-year course load rotation with six courses per year for two years and seven courses in the third year.

Hampden-Sydney College highly values the teacher/scholar model. Successful applicants will have a record of effective classroom teaching, a commitment to scholarly productivity, and a willingness to work with colleagues on professional service responsibilities. Applicants should have a Ph.D. in political science or a comparable degree by the time of appointment.

Please submit a letter of application, curriculum vitae, teaching statement, research statement, and three letters of reference to Dr. Celia Carroll Jones, Chair, Department of Government and Foreign Affairs, Hampden-Sydney College via Interfolio: <http://apply.interfolio.com/122859>. Review of applications will begin immediately and continue until the position is filled.

Hampden-Sydney College is a selective liberal arts institution enrolling approximately 1000 students. Founded in 1775, it is the tenth oldest institution of higher learning in the United States. Hampden-Sydney is one of three liberal arts colleges in the United States dedicated to the education of men. Our mission is to educate "good men and good citizens in an atmosphere of sound learning."

Our beautiful 1300-acre campus is less than 7 miles from downtown Farmville, home to Longwood University and the Moton Museum, which is listed on the U.S. Civil Rights Trail. The campus is located 65 miles west of Richmond, 50 miles east of Lynchburg, and 75 miles south of Charlottesville, providing abundant cultural, recreational and artistic resources. As a community, we are dedicated to the goal of building a culturally diverse faculty committed to working in a multicultural environment and strongly encourage applications from women and minoritized groups. Hampden-Sydney College values diversity, prohibits discrimination, and is committed to equal opportunity for all employees and applicants for employment.

University of Chicago

Rank: Instructional Professor in Law, Letters, and Society (Open Rank)

The Social Sciences Collegiate Division at the University of Chicago is now accepting applications for a full-time Instructional Professor who will teach in the program in Law, Letters, and Society. The appointment is non-renewable, for a one-year term that begins September 1, 2023. Appointment at the rank of Assistant, Associate, and full Instructional Professor will be considered based on the candidate's experience.

The program in Law, Letters, and Society (LLSO) is an undergraduate program that offers a major, courses, student research opportunities, and a variety of co-curricular activities. The program is designed to develop students' analytical skills and enable informed and critical examination of law broadly construed. Rather than situating the study of the law solely in contemporary debates in the field of American constitutional law, LLSO seeks to organize its exploration of law through the broader terms of "letters" and "society." LLSO has approximately 120 undergraduate majors and offers courses taught by instructors from diverse disciplines. More information about the program in Law, Letters, and Society can be viewed in the College's online catalog: <http://collegecatalog.uchicago.edu/thecollege/lawlettersandsociety/>

The successful candidate will teach six quarter-length courses during the academic year, including required and elective courses in Law, Letters, and Society. The successful candidate will teach one or two sections of the major's B.A. thesis seminar, a two-quarter sequence. The successful candidate will also participate in developing new coursework for the Law, Letters, and Society major; participate in planning and coordinating co-curricular activities; support the Director and Associate Director in developing workshops, student research experiences, and opportunities for internships and professional placement; and advise up to five B.A. theses.

The terms and conditions of employment for this position are covered by a collective bargaining agreement between the Service Employees International Union (SEIU) and the University.

Qualifications

The position requires either a J.D. or a Ph.D. in a relevant field in the social sciences or humanities. Candidates must have completed all degree requirements no later than August 31, 2023. Experience teaching at the college level is required.

Application Instructions

To apply for this position, you must submit your application through the University of Chicago's Interfolio job board at <https://apply.interfolio.com/126873> and upload the following: 1) a letter of application describing your academic interests and teaching background; 2) a curriculum vitae; 3) evidence of teaching effectiveness, such as student evaluations or performance reviews; 4) a chapter-length piece of writing; and 5) three letters of recommendation.

The review of applications will begin on July 14, 2023, and continue until the position is filled or the search is closed.

Start Date: Fall 2023
Date Posted: 6/14/2023
Salary: Negotiable
eJobs ID: 12026

Princeton University

Rank: Postdoctoral Fellowship

The Princeton Society of Fellows in the Liberal Arts, an interdisciplinary group of scholars in the humanities and social sciences, invites applications for the 2024-27 fellowship competition. Four fellowships are to be awarded:

Two or three Open Fellowships in any discipline represented in the Society

One Fellowship in Humanistic Studies

One Fellowship in Race and Ethnicity Studies

Applicants may be considered for more than one fellowship pertinent to their research and teaching. Please see the Society's website (sf.princeton.edu) for fellowship details, eligibility, disciplines, and application.

Appointed in the Council of the Humanities and academic departments, postdoctoral fellows pursue their research, attend weekly seminars, and teach half-time as Lecturers for a term of three years. In each of the first two years, fellows teach one course per semester; in their third year, they teach only one course in either semester. Fellows must reside in or near Princeton during the academic year.

Applicants holding the Ph.D. at the time of application must have received the degree after January 1, 2022. Applicants not yet holding the Ph.D. must have completed a substantial portion of the dissertation – at least half - at the time of application. Successful candidates must fulfill all requirements for the Ph.D., including filing of the dissertation, by June 15, 2024. Candidates for/recipients of doctoral degrees in Education, Jurisprudence, and from Princeton University are not eligible. Applicants may apply only once to the Princeton Society of Fellows.

Selection is based on exceptional scholarly achievement and evidence of unusual promise, range and quality of teaching experience, and potential contributions to an interdisciplinary community. The Society of Fellows seeks a diverse and international pool of applicants, and especially welcomes those from underrepresented backgrounds. Applicants are asked to submit an online application by August 1, 2023 (11:59 p.m. ET).

These positions are subject to the University's background check policy.

Princeton University is an Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action Employer and all qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to age, race, color, religion, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity or expression, national origin, disability status, protected veteran status, or any other characteristic protected by law. EEO IS THE LAW.

Review of applicants will begin immediately.

The University of Tennessee at Chattanooga is the second-largest school in the University of Tennessee System and serves a diverse student body of more than 11,600 undergraduate and graduate students through five academic colleges. UTC offers a unique blend of private and public school traditions with a commitment to achieve excellence, embrace diversity and inclusion and offer experiential learning opportunities for students. As an urban university, we also are dedicated to inspiring positive change and enriching our community. Each day, we strive to earn the trust and confidence of those we serve. Our goal is to make a difference in our community and in the lives of our students.

Our definition of student success is a graduate who has the knowledge required to succeed in the workplace and the personal development to show up on time, how to collaborate and work with others and to execute the steps to complete a project. We have held the line on the cost of education with record low tuition increases over the past four years. But we still have $325 million invested in eight ongoing renovations to campus buildings and construction of new facilities.

Chattanooga, the fourth-largest city in the state, is located in Southeast Tennessee on the Georgia stateline and only a few miles from the stateline of Alabama. Because of our location, UTC enrolls students from those states as well as Tennessee. The city itself has received national recognition for the renaissance of its beautiful downtown and redevelopment of its riverfront on the Tennessee River. For two straight years, Outside magazine has twice named Chattanooga as the Best Town Ever, the only city to achieve that distinction. Lonely Planet magazine says we are one of the Top 10 U.S. destinations, and Money Inc. calls us one of the nation's most underrated cities.

Chattanooga also is home to the first 10-gig internet network in the United States, the fastest internet service in the Western Hemisphere. The city's ongoing dedication to advancing technology has attracted dozens of startups to join companies already here such as Volkswagen, Amazon, Unum, McKee Foods, U.S. Xpress, Coca-Cola Bottling Co. United. Attractions such as the Tennessee Aquarium, Lookout Mountain, the Creative Discovery Museum for Children, Civil War battlefield sites and the African American Museum in the Bessie Smith Cultural Center bring thousands of people to the area, as do events such as the Southern Writers Conference and the musical festivities of Riverbend, Nightfall and Jazzanooga. People who love the outdoors are coming to Chattanooga in vast numbers for its multitude of offerings such as hang-gliding, kayaking, rock climbing, biking, fishing and caving expeditions. The world-famous Ironman Triathlon and Ironman 70.3 half-marathon have contracted to take place in Chattanooga until at least 2023.

In short, Chattanooga is internationally recognized as a forward-thinking city that's rich in tradition, history and wide-ranging activities. We are an exciting and vibrant place to live and work. Whether you're raising a family or single, Chattanooga has something for you.

Purdue University

Rank: Post Doc Research Associate in Artificial Intelligence

Requisition ID: 26204

Post Doc Research Associate in Artificial Intelligence

Job Summary

Purdue's College of Liberal Arts is seeking candidates who have a PhD in Philosophy, History, Political Science, Sociology, Languages and Cultures, Informatics, Computer Science or a related field for a two-year postdoctoral research associate position. Although we encourage all candidates who have a PhD to apply, we are especially interested in candidates whose research falls under one of the following categories:

a philosopher or humanist (e.g., historians, political scientists, sociologists, specialists in languages and cultures) with expertise in the study of artificial intelligence (AI) / computation someone with expertise in artificial intelligence or computational methods more generally who either already has a research agenda centered on the social, ethical and political issues surrounding AI or would be interested in developing such an agenda at Purdue.

The two-year (12-month FY) position starts on August 14, 2023 and has an annual salary of $52,000. Additional benefits, including travel and research support, are negotiable.

AOS / AOC for philosophy-specific ads

AOS: Philosophy of AI / computation, or mind or cognitive science all broadly construed;

AOC: Open.

Principal Duties

Purdue is a member of the American Association of Universities and seeks candidates of exceptional promise who will contribute to the excellence of our college. This position will have no teaching duties associated with it but requires strong organization skills in order to coordinate efforts among multiple faculty members across our college to pursue external funding in support of projects that will bolster the college's AI community (e.g., helping to organize colloquia, workshops and other research endeavors around the theme of AI). Finally, the postdoctoral research associate will be expected to work on existing AI projects, as well as propose new projects as a lead author. Although we would like candidates who can contribute to the AI initiatives outlined in the next section, candidates are also welcome to work on AI-related projects outside of these efforts.

Artificial Intelligence at Purdue University

Purdue University and the College of Liberal Arts have embarked on a series of endeavors to promote the study of Artificial Intelligence on campus. Recently, the College made a six-figure investment in the Virtual Reality and Artificial Intelligence (VRAI) lab, which aims to employ cutting edge virtual reality technology to answer a variety of research questions. The College has also funded the creation of several social science research labs focused on issues related to AI. The Computational Social Science (CSS) Lab was established to promote the application and development of computational methods to large, typically complex, human and behavioral data. The Governance and Responsible AI Lab (GRAIL) supports research on the social, ethical, and governance implications of artificial intelligence. Each of these efforts is also supported by the newly created Joe and Maggie Kernan (JMK) Social Science lab and the Advanced Methods at Purdue (AMAP) initiative, a cross-college cluster working towards increasing methodological expertise and collaborative opportunities in behavioral, health, and social sciences.

Application Procedure

All materials will be submitted electronically through careers.purdue.edu Requisition #26204. Initial applications only require submission of a CV and cover letter, including short description of the candidate's research agenda and relevant experience. Those deemed competitive will be asked to submit further materials, which may include: (i) brief cover letter, (ii) curriculum vitae (including dissertation abstract and research statement), and (iii) a recent writing sample. Letters of reference should not be included in the initial application but should be prepared for quick submission if requested. If letters are requested from the candidate at a later stage, instructions for how to submit letters will be communicated directly to the candidate.

Purdue University, the College of Liberal Arts, and the Department of Philosophy are committed to free and open inquiry in all matters. Candidates are encouraged to address in their cover letter how they are prepared to contribute to a climate that values free inquiry and academic freedom.

Purdue University, the College of Liberal Arts and Department of Philosophy are committed to advancing diversity in all areas of faculty effort. Candidates are encouraged to address in their cover letter how they are prepared to contribute to an inclusive climate.

Screening of applicants will begin on June 15, 2023 and continue until the position is filled. Incomplete applications will not be considered, and a background check will be required for employment in this position. For additional information, you may contact any member of our search committee: Bryce J. Dietrich (bjdietri@purdue.edu), Javier Gomez-Lavin, (jglavin@purdue.edu) or David Peterson (david-peterson@purdue.edu).

University of Victoria

Rank: Canada Research Chair (Tier 1) - Climate-Related Migration and Displacement (Associate or Full Professor)

CRC Tier 1 – Climate-Related Migration and Displacement

(Full Professor or Associate Professor)

Department of Political Science – Faculty of Social Sciences

The University of Victoria is consistently ranked in the top tier of Canada's research-intensive universities. Vital impact drives the University of Victoria's sense of purpose. As an internationally renowned teaching and research hub, we tackle essential issues that matter to people, places and the planet. Situated in the Pacific Rim, our location breeds a profound passion for exploration. Defined by its edges, this extraordinary environment inspires us to defy boundaries, discover, and innovate in exciting ways. It's different here, naturally and by design. We live, learn, work and explore on the edge of what's next—for our planet and its peoples. Our commitment to research-inspired dynamic learning and vital impact make this Canada's most extraordinary environment for discovery and innovation. Experience the edge of possibilities for yourself.

We acknowledge and respect the l?k????n peoples on whose traditional territory the university stands and the Songhees, Esquimalt and WSÁNEC whose historical relationships with the land continue to this day. The University of Victoria is committed to the ongoing work of decolonizing and Indigenizing the campus community both inside and outside the classroom. Please see the Welcome to the Territory video from Elder Elmer George (Songhees Nation).

Job Summary

The Department of Political Science at the University of Victoria invites applications from external candidates for a Tier 1 Canada Research Chair (CRC) in Climate-Related Migration and Displacement. The successful applicant will be nominated by the University for a CRC chair and, upon approval by the CRC Secretariat, will then be offered an appointment at the rank of Associate or Full Professor. The CRC chair is tenable for seven years, and is renewable once after successful performance review. The successful candidate's research program will address the interaction of climate change and extreme climate events with human migration and/or displacement. The CRC's scholarly activity will contribute to the University of Victoria's existing world-class research on climate change and migration, supporting research related to the political dimensions of extreme climate events, migration, and displacement. The applicant is expected to maintain an active research program, to teach and supervise at the graduate level, and to build and expand the department's offerings on the environment and climate change.

Qualifications

Tier 1 CRC's are for exceptional researchers, already acknowledged by their peers as leaders in the field.

The successful candidate will have a completed PhD in Political Science or a closely related discipline. The candidate will be an established, world-class researcher who has developed an original and innovative future research plan with the potential to attract external funding and international recognition. The candidate is expected to have a demonstrated record of excellence in teaching and student supervision, including efforts to create an inclusive learning environment for a diverse student body. Furthermore, the candidate will demonstrate the potential for collaboration with a diverse range of colleagues. Finally, the candidate will provide evidence of knowledge mobilization and dissemination from their research to academic and community audiences.

Department of Political Science

The successful candidate will be joining an active Political Science department with vibrant undergraduate, MA and PhD programs. The Department includes several faculty members working at the intersection of environmental politics and human mobility, and applicants are encouraged to consult the department website for information on the research interests of department faculty and programs it offers. The Department also has strong connections with other units and research centres on campus working on the environment and human mobility, including the School of Environmental Studies, the Pacific Institute for Climate Solutions, the Centre for Global Studies, and the Centre for Asia Pacific Initiatives.

Additional Information

Additional information on the Canada Research Chair Program can be found on the program website:

In accordance with the SSHRC Tier 1 CRC regulations, Tier 1 CRCs are intended for 'outstanding researchers acknowledged by their peers as world leaders in their field'.

Please note that reference checks will be done and background checks, including credential and degree verification, may be undertaken as part of this recruitment process.

Faculty and Librarians at the University of Victoria are governed by the provisions of the Collective Agreement. Members are represented by the University of Victoria Faculty Association.

Application Deadline and Procedure

To apply, candidates should send the following application materials in one file (e.g. PDF or MSWord) to poliapps@uvic.ca:

- 1) A cover letter providing an overview of the candidate's qualifications and how their research complements existing research strengths in the Department of Political Science;
- 2) A detailed curriculum vitae;
- 3) A four-page (max) description of the candidate's proposed CRC research program;
- 4) One-page description of the candidate's most important research contributions;
- 5) A two-page (max) statement of teaching philosophy and experience;
- 6) A one-page statement outlining their experiences and contributions to promoting equity, diversity, and inclusion;
- 7) Contact information for three references.

Potential applicants who have questions about the position are encouraged to contact the Chair, Scott Watson, at chairpol@uvic.ca.

Deadline for application materials is August 1, 2023.

Equity Statement

UVic is committed to upholding the values of equity, diversity, and inclusion in our living, learning and work environments. In pursuit of our values, we seek members who will work respectfully and constructively with differences and across levels of power. We actively encourage applications from members of groups experiencing barriers to equity. Read our full equity statement. The CRC program does not place restrictions with respect to nationality or country of residence, but applicants are asked to indicate current citizenship status.

The University acknowledges the potential impact that career interruptions can have on a candidate's record of research achievement. We encourage applicants to explain in their application the impact that career interruptions have had on their record.

Persons with disabilities, who anticipate needing accommodation for any part of the application and hiring process, may contact Faculty Relations and Academic Administration in the Office of the VP Academic and Provost at FRrecruit@uvic.ca. Any personal information provided will be maintained in confidence.

Yale University

Rank: Lecturer, Ethics, Politics, and Economics

The Program on Ethics, Politics, and Economics sponsors interdisciplinary teaching and research in the Social Sciences and Humanities at Yale. It is designed to foster informed debate about public policy in the light of disciplined reflection on the fundamentals of human association. The Program was created in the belief that, for all the value of specialized fields and subdisciplines, these should not displace attempts to integrate empirical, analytical, and normative concerns that range over different disciplines in the modern university. The undergraduate major in Ethics, Politics, and Economics joins the analytic rigor of the social sciences and the enduring normative questions of philosophy to promote an integrative and critical understanding of the institutions, practices, and policies that shape the contemporary world.

EP&E is now offering a single year lecturer position. We welcome applications from PhDs from political science, economics, philosophy, and business with excellent teaching evaluations, and experience teaching courses that integrate Ethics with either Political Science, Economics, or both disciplines. We encourage PhDs with an interest in teaching the Classics of Ethics, Politics & Economics to apply for this position.

In addition to teaching four courses per year, lecturers are expected to be available to meet undergraduate students of the EP&E major, and assist with advising majors on their senior essays.

The position is for one year, with the possibility of extending the contract conditional upon performance and available resources. Starting salary is $70,000 with Yale health benefits. Salary is negotiable depending on qualifications and teaching experience. In addition to salary, instructor will receive a $1,500 research account. Starting date is August 1, 2023 or negotiable.

Applicants should have completed PhD (or equivalent degree) requirements by August 2023.

Applications should include the following:

- A cover letter indicating your interest in the position
- CV
- Job Market Paper or at least one scholarly writing sample (in English)
- PhD program transcript
- A preliminary syllabus for an interdisciplinary undergraduate course that integrates Ethics with either Political Science, Economics, or both disciplines.
- Teaching evaluations
- Three letters of recommendation

Please submit application materials electronically here: <http://apply.interfolio.com/123777>. The review process will begin on May 14, 2023. We will continue to accept applications until the position has been filled. Please direct inquiries to Ana De La O, Director of Ethics, Politics, and Economics, ana.delao@yale.edu

University of British Columbia

Rank: Merilees Chair for the Study of Democracy (Professor)

The Department of Political Science at the University of British Columbia (UBC), Vancouver Campus, invites applications for the Harold and Dorrie Merilees Chair for the Study of Democracy (the "Merilees Chair"), which is made possible through the generous support of Stephen and Gail Jarislowky. The Holder of the Merilees Chair will have a reduced teaching load and annual research funding for an initial five-year term, which may be renewed, in accordance with the University's Honorifics Policy and the terms of the Endowment that supports the Chair. The anticipated start date for the position is 1 July 2024.

The successful candidate will be appointed as a full-time tenured faculty member in the Department of Political Science, at the rank of Professor (or, consideration may be given to appointment at the Associate Professor rank in the case of an outstanding candidate who is expected to be promoted to the Professor rank within one or two years of the position start date). While this faculty position is open to any field of political science, the successful candidate will have a Ph.D. and will be an established scholar and leader who has attained eminence in their field and who holds a distinguished international reputation in the study of democratic politics, institutions, or theory, broadly defined. The successful candidate will be expected to carry out a robust research agenda, teach at the undergraduate and graduate levels in Political Science, supervise graduate students, and contribute to service at the departmental level and beyond.

Applicants should submit:

- cover letter
- curriculum vitae
- statement of major research contributions and current and future research programs
- statement (1-2 pages) addressing experience working with a diverse student body and past and potential contributions to creating/advancing a culture of equity and inclusion
- names and contact information (incl. institutional affiliation, address, e-mail address) of four referees
- a recent writing sample.

Shortlisted candidates will be asked to provide a statement of teaching philosophy, interests, and accomplishments, and evidence of teaching effectiveness (e.g., teaching evaluations, sample syllabi) prior to the interview.

Applications should be submitted online at <https://poli.air.arts.ubc.ca/merilees-chair-for-the-study-of-democracy-professor-application-form-2023/> Job ID: JR12315. Review of applications will begin on 30 June 2023 and will continue until the position is filled. This position is subject to final budgetary approval. Salary will be commensurate with qualifications and experience.

The University is committed to creating and maintaining an inclusive and equitable work environment for all members of its workforce, and in particular, for its employees with disabilities. An inclusive work environment for employees with disabilities presumes an environment where differences are accepted, recognized, and integrated into current structures, planning and decision-making modes. ## University of British Columbia

Rank: Political Science Lecturer

The Department of Political Science at The University of British Columbia (Vancouver) invites applications from scholars with expertise in any field of Political Science. We seek to fill, at the rank of Lecturer, up to two full-time positions, depending on the successful candidate(s)' alignment with teaching needs of the Department and subject to availability of funding.

The Lecturer will be expected to teach courses at the undergraduate level, including Introduction to Politics, other lower-level survey courses, and courses in their field of specialization, based on the teaching needs of the Department. The anticipated start date is September 1, 2023, with appointment for a term of up to three years, which entails a probationary first year. Lecturer positions are non-tenure-track appointments, renewable for successive terms, subject to availability of funds and demonstration of excellence in teaching, in accordance with the Collective Agreement between UBC and the UBC Faculty Association. In the Faculty of Arts, the workload for a full-time Lecturer position includes teaching eight (3-credit) courses per year plus service responsibilities. In cases where extraordinary additional service responsibilities are assigned by the Head, a 3-credit teaching reduction may be granted. Positions are subject to final budgetary approval. Salary will be commensurate with qualifications and experience.

A completed Ph.D. in Political Science is required by the start date of the appointment. The successful applicant will demonstrate a strong record of effective teaching with success across a variety of courses, and the ability to engage a range of students through innovative teaching techniques that take into account the diversity of student interests and experiences.

To apply, applicants must submit the following:

- a cover letter;
- a curriculum vitae;
- a teaching portfolio that includes:
  - o a statement (maximum 2 pages) of teaching philosophy, interests and accomplishments;
  - o sample teaching materials (e.g. course syllabi, examples of innovative pedagogy or assessment design, etc.);
  - o a statement (maximum 1 page) about the applicant's experience working with a diverse student body and contributions or potential contributions to creating/advancing a culture of equity and inclusion;
  - o a statement (maximum 1 page) reflecting on what the applicant has done and/or would seek to do in order to incorporate Indigenous scholarship and perspectives and/or use of Indigenous content and materials in their teaching (for context, applicants can find UBC's Indigenous Strategic Plan here: <https://isp.ubc.ca/>);
  - o evidence of teaching effectiveness (e.g., official summaries of teaching evaluations, peer reviews of teaching). Applicants are asked to include teaching evaluations from the most recent 3 years (for all courses taught and/or where the candidate held Teaching Assistant roles).

Applications should be submitted online at <https://poli.air.arts.ubc.ca/ubc-political-science-dept-lecturer-position-application-form-2023/> Job ID: JR12281.

In addition, applicants should arrange for three confidential signed letters of recommendation to be sent separately to the Department of Political Science care of Jeff Yupitun, Assistant to the Department Head, at poli.recruitment@ubc.ca, with the word "Lecturer" in the subject line. Applicants should ensure that referees are aware that their letters must reach the Department in a timely fashion, that this is an undergraduate teaching position, and that they should focus on undergraduate teaching qualifications. Review of applications begins on May 15, 2023, and will continue until the position is filled.

The University is committed to creating and maintaining an inclusive and equitable work environment for all members of its workforce, and in particular, for its employees with disabilities. Confidential accommodations are available on request for applicants who are short-listed. An inclusive work environment for employees with disabilities presumes an environment where differences are accepted, recognized, and integrated into current structures, planning and decision-making modes. - Join a university ranked in the world's top 50
- Ranked 2nd in Australia for Political Sciences
- Fixed term for 5 years with potential for an additional 5-year term
- Applications close 23 July 2023 at 11.00pm AEST (R-25576)

About UQ

What started as Queensland's first university in 1909, with just three faculties and 83 students, has grown into university ranked in the world's top 50 that is renowned for being a leader in teaching and research.

When you join the University of Queensland, you're joining a community that actively strives toward creating change right across the world every day. From science and sustainability to health and humanities, our researchers are finding solutions to the world's biggest challenges. Our award-winning teachers are recognised for empowering our students to thrive as innovative thinkers and grow into the leaders of tomorrow.

Even after 100 years of history and excellence, we haven't forgotten that UQ was founded by – and for – the people of Queensland. In 2022, we launched the Queensland commitment as part of our belief that education and opportunity should be available for all Queenslanders by breaking down personal, financial and geographical barriers. It's this commitment that re-emphasises that UQ is a place for everybody: no matter who you are, where you're from, or what challenges you've faced, you can pursue your ambitions at UQ.

About This Opportunity

The School of Political Science and International Studies is at the forefront of teaching and research in political science, public policy, international relations and peace and conflict studies in Australia. The School's academic teaching and research staff include internationally recognised scholars who are leaders in their research fields and award winners for innovation and excellence in teaching. We are seeking an exceptional academic leader in the above focus areas to lead the UQ School of Political Sciences and International Sciences through the next phase of its development.

Ideally, you will be an experienced and inspiring leader of world-class standing, with the capability to develop and implement an aspirational School strategy aligning with UQ's and the Faculty's vision and strategic objectives. You will have experience in developing and maintaining strategic and academic planning functions, including setting goals, targets and key performance indicators in the context of University and Faculty or Institute strategic and operational plans. You will have an understanding of key contemporary issues in political science and international relations and a commitment to implementing UQ's Reconciliation Action Plan and Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Research and Innovation Strategy. You will be an excellent communicator, with a strong ability in building School resilience, adaptability and receptiveness to change.

As Head of School, you will be expected to foster an inclusive and collegial School culture, cultivating and empowering high-performance as well as forging productive, collaborative partnerships that deliver strategic value.

University of Texas at Austin

Rank: Tenure Track Business and the Natural Environment Position

The Department of Business, Government & Society (BGS) at the University of Texas at Austin's McCombs School of Business invites applications for an assistant professor (tenure track) position focused on firms and the natural environment effective September 1, 2024. Exceptional candidates may be considered at other ranks.

The BGS department (<https://www.mcombs.utexas.edu/faculty-and-research/departments/bgs/>) teaches future leaders at all levels of McCombs' curriculum how to recognize and respond to the regulatory, legal, ethical and social expectations that businesses face. BGS aims to contribute to important public policy debates in these and related areas through research that applies rigorous social scientific methods to relevant questions. A willingness to also engage with UT-Austin's Global Sustainability Leadership Institute (<https://www.mcombs.utexas.edu/centers-and-initiatives/global-sustainability-leadership-institute/>), a partnership between the McCombs School and the Moody School of Communication, will be considered an asset.

The ideal candidate will possess a Ph.D. in economics, political science, sociology, or strategic management and be prepared to publish in top outlets in these fields, as well as teach courses on firms and the natural environment (e.g., Net Zero Strategy or Climate Adaptation) and non-market strategy more broadly. Additionally, candidates' research should primarily focus on business at the organizational- (i.e., firm-) level.

Interested parties should submit the following: 1) a cover letter that includes brief statements of research and teaching interests, 2) a CV, 3) a job market paper, 4) any evidence of teaching effectiveness, and 5) three letters of recommendation. All applications submitted by Friday, September 29, 2023 will receive full consideration, although the search will continue until a suitable candidate is identified. UT-Austin uses Interfolio's Faculty Search. Applicants to this position receive a free Dossier account and can send all application materials free of charge. The posting is available here:

London School of Economics

Rank: LSE Fellow in Political Science and Public Policy

LSE is committed to building a diverse, equitable and truly inclusive university

School of Public Policy

LSE Fellow in Political Science and Public Policy

The LSE School of Public Policy equips students with the skills and ideas to transform people and societies. We are an international community where ideas and practice meet, creating professionals with the ability to analyse, understand and resolve the challenges of contemporary governance.

We are now recruiting an LSE Fellow to contribute to the postgraduate teaching of the School of Public Policy. An LSE Fellow is a career development post which allows aspiring academics who are post PhD, or close to PhD completion, the opportunity to gain experience in teaching and research.

The post-holder will contribute to the teaching of seminars in the field of empirical political science and its application to policymaking. Specifically, the post-holder will teach seminars (groups of c. 15 students) for course codes PP401 and PP478.

The post-holder will also play a key role in supporting the provision of a rich and engaging learning environment for our high-calibre and high fee-paying students. The post-holder will join LSE's world-leading and vibrant research community in the social sciences. Faculty of the School of Public Policy will ensure the integration of the post-holder into that research community, in which s/he will be expected to play a full part.

Candidates should hold, or be demonstrably close to the completion of, a PhD in the field of empirical political science related to public policy. S/he will require excellent written and oral communication skills preferably with some relevant teaching experience. Candidates must also be able to demonstrate an ability to foster an engaging and supportive learning environment.

We offer an occupational pension scheme, generous annual leave and excellent training and development opportunities.

The role is available from 1 September 2023 and it is expected that the successful candidate will take up the post on that date or very shortly thereafter.

An LSE Fellowship is intended to be an entry route to an academic career and is deemed by the School to be a career development position. As such, applicants who have already been employed as an LSE Fellow for three years in total are not eligible to apply. If you have any queries about this, please contact the HR Division.

To apply for this post, please go to www.jobs.lse.ac.uk

If you have any technical queries with applying on the online system, please use the "contact us" links at the bottom of the LSE Jobs page.

Should you have any queries about the role, please email Paul Sullivan, the Department Manager, on p.sullivan@lse.ac.uk

The closing date for receipt of applications is 9 July 2023 (23.59 UK time).

Regrettably, we are unable to accept any late applications.

University of Zurich

Rank: Head of Research Area “Governance of Global Inequalities”

Specializations: Political Philosophy & Theory, International Political Economy, Trade

The successful candidate will be responsible for research and teaching in the area of the political governance of global inequalities. Applicants

can have a background in international/comparative political economy, international relations, or in political philosophy, and their research and/or teaching should relate to PPE (‘Politics, Philosophy and Economics’). Within the broader substantive area, specialized attention might be given to issues such as the governance of global climate change agreements and policies, the regulation of migration flows, trade imbalances, developing economies and emerging markets, or changing geopolitical hierarchies. Irrespective of the substantive orientation, the successful candidate’s research should have a focus on the political governance of transnational economic, political, or social inequalities, and show an interest in empirical and normative questions and implications.

The University of Zurich offers a dynamic and collaborative work environment with an international orientation, as well as generous support for research and teaching activities. The position is permanent. It comes with a research budget of 3000 CHF/year. In addition, the holder of the position is eligible to apply for Swiss National Science Foundation funding, as well as many other grant programs in Switzerland and abroad. The teaching load is 5 hours per semester plus advising (at 100% employment). A substantial part of the teaching will be in the MA-level program “PPE Politics, Philosophy and Economics”. The salary is approximately 110.000CHF/year at 100% employment (80-100% are negotiable). The start date of the position is 1st of February 2024 or upon agreement.

Applicants should hold a PhD degree in political science, international relations, political philosophy, political economy or in a related field at the time of application and have a strong record of academic achievements in the relevant areas. Teaching may be carried out in English, but knowledge of German is an asset. The University of Zurich is an equal opportunities employer and strives to increase the percentage of women in leading positions. Therefore, qualified female researchers are encouraged to apply.

Please send your application electronically as one pdf-file comprising your motivation letter, CV, publication list, transcripts, teaching evaluations (if available), a 1-page statement on the research agenda for the coming 3 years and its link to PPE, as well as the names of at least two references to the personnel office of the Department of Political Science (personal@ipz.uzh.ch) by July 31st. Interviews will be held in fall 2023.

New York University Arts and Science

Rank: Visiting Assistant Professor, International History

Visiting Assistant Professor, International History
New York University Faculty of Arts and Science

New York University's Program in International Relations invites applications for a Visiting Assistant Professor in International History. This one-year position will have a start date of September 1, 2023 and is renewable for up to three years, pending budgetary and administrative approval.

The teaching load for this position is two graduate-level courses per academic semester. Candidates will also be expected to serve as an academic advisor, supervise theses, and participate in program events. The selected candidate will be expected to teach the Program's core Global and International History course, in addition to electives in their research area. The committee is particularly interested in candidates with regional experience in the countries of the Global South. The breakdown for this position is 50% teaching and 50% service.

The Program in International Relations is home to the MA in International Relations (MAIR). The MAIR is an interdisciplinary program in international relations offering elective concentrations in Asian Studies, European and Mediterranean Studies, International Law, International Politics and Business, Latin American & Caribbean Studies, Middle Eastern & Levantine Studies, Russian and Slavic

Studies, and US Foreign Policy. The Program also has a dual Master in Public Administration ("MPA-MAIR") with the Wagner Graduate School of Public Service and a joint degree, the Master of Arts in Journalism and International Relations ("GloJo"), with the Arthur L. Carter Journalism Institute.

The Program in International Relations is housed within NYU's Graduate School of Arts and Science (GSAS). One of the top graduate schools in the world, GSAS counts among its ranks five Pulitzer Prize winners, nine MacArthur Fellows, three National Medal of Science winners, four Howard Hughes Medical Institute Investigators, and 98 Guggenheim Fellows. Students from all 50 states and more than 100 countries study at GSAS. Like our students, NYU faculty come from around the world. Together we form a truly exciting community of the mind around our campus on Washington Square—and across our global network university that stretches across Europe, the Middle East, and Asia. GSAS is dedicated to the education and training of innovative and successful scholars, teachers, and professionals.

In compliance with NYC's Pay Transparency Act, the annual base salary for this position is $60,000. Seeking Two Postdoctoral Scholars in Environmental Social Science STRONG Manoomin Collective

Deadline: Applications received before May 31st, 2023 will receive full consideration | https://app.smartsheet.com/b/form/01c4c33f00dd49248cfe87cd2e62b16e&target=\_blank Apply Here »

Deadline: Applications received by May 31, 2023, will receive full consideration. Expected to begin Fall 2023, preferably by September 1, with some flexibility on start date. For more information on the Collective or the positions, please contact Kim Marion Suiseeya: <mailto:Kimberly.suiseeya@northwestern.edu>

Kim Marion Suiseeya (Political Science, Northwestern University) and Josiah Hester (Computer Engineering, Georgia Tech) co-direct the STRONG Manoomin Collective. The Collective supports Indigenous-led, data-driven resilience strategies through sovereignty-affirming and culturally empowering collaborative research. We currently have two funded projects, (1) Strengthening Resilience of Ojibwe Nations across Generations and (2) the Coastlines and Peoples Hub's Research for Indigenous-led, Collaborative Environmental Governance (RICE-Gov) each seeking a Postdoctoral Scholar in the field of Indigenous environmental governance (1 position/project). These are two-year positions with the possibility of renewal. More details about each position below.

We are seeking researchers with a PhD in Political Science, Sociology, Human Geography, Anthropology, or related social science disciplines. The search is open to ABD candidates close to degree and PhDs who received their degrees no later than 2020. The Postdoctoral Scholars will be part of a large, multi- and transdisciplinary research collective that co-produces tribally driven research to support long-term resilience to climate change. Successful candidates for the positions will conduct field-based, empirical research in the Western Great Lakes region of the United States.

Excellent candidates for these positions will demonstrate a strong commitment to Indigenous and/or decolonizing methodologies; experience co-producing and/or collaborating with Native Nations and Indigenous communities; subject area expertise in Indigenous sovereignty, self-determination, environmental governance, and/or resilience; and experience with a variety of qualitative and/or participatory methodologies, including empirical environmental justice analysis, ethnography, interviewing, surveys, focus groups, and/or institutional analysis. Applicants should demonstrate interdisciplinary literacy and be familiar with or willing to learn approaches to integrate Indigenous Environmental Governance frameworks, cyberinfrastructure, and advanced data science.

In addition to relationship building, collaborative data collection and analysis, and mentoring, the postdoctoral researchers will be expected to:

- Contribute to research papers for publication
- Conduct literature reviews
- Present research for multiple audiences, including Indigenous communities, academic conferences, policy audiences, and the general public
- Contribute to project management, including supporting project reporting, coordination, and communication

Finally, successful applicants are expected to uphold the Collective's commitment to respect the rights of Native Nations and Indigenous communities in making decisions related to why, how, and by whom knowledge, information, and data are collected, used, or shared.

Applicants should indicate which position they are applying for (either one or both). Details provided below. Both positions are open to ABD candidates close to degree and PhDs who received their degrees since 2020. Expected to begin Fall 2023 with flexibility on start date.

Review will begin immediately and continue until the positions are filled. Applications received by May 31, 2023, will receive full consideration. To apply, please submit your cover letter, CV, writing sample, and three contacts for references through https://app.smartsheet.com/b/form/01c4c33f00dd49248cfe87cd2e62b16e&target=\_blank online application.

Postdoctoral Researcher: Strengthening Sovereignty for Resilience

Strengthening Resilience of Ojibwe Nations across Generations project (STRONG; PI: Suiseeya) is a tribally driven effort whose vision is to enhance disaster anticipation, preparation, mitigation, and response in Indigenous communities by building and deploying cyberinfrastructure that integrates Indigenous knowledge, advanced sensing technologies and data systems in ways that support and strengthen Ojibwe Nations' sovereignty and resilience to climate change. During STRONG's planning efforts, Ojibwe Nation leaders made clear that their ability to effectively implement resilience strategies requires recognition of their sovereignty and respect for their authority, legitimacy, and credibility to govern and to exercise treaty rights by the US and state governmental agencies. To strengthen resilience, these leaders identified the need to collect and integrate new environmental data within a culturally appropriate resilience framework. The STRONG project aims to understand the relationships between Indigenous sovereignty and resilience to climate change and support co-development of governance frameworks and tools to strengthen resilience.

The postdoctoral researcher will be expected to conduct field-based research to understand the empirical relationship between sovereignty and resilience. The research will involve working with partner Native Nations and communities to analyze how multi-level governance systems shape sovereignty and resilience practices, experiences, and outcomes; and exploring how multi-modal data can inform and strengthen sovereignty. The postdoctoral researcher will be expected to use multiple, mixed methods including archival research, interviews, focus groups, empirical environmental justice analysis, and institutional analysis to assess sovereignty and wellbeing, and inform development and measurement of sovereignty-affirming resilience indicators. Ideally, the candidate will also contribute to development of STRONG's decision-support cyberinfrastructure, Noon-dawind, a dynamic online community that supports Ojibwe analysis and interpretation of socio-ecological data for asserting sovereignty.

Postdoctoral Researcher: RICE-Gov

Research for Indigenous-led, Collaborative Environmental Governance (RICE-Gov) is part of the NSF-funded Coastlines and Peoples (CoPe, https://www.nsf.gov/awardsearch/showAward?AWD\_ID=2209226; rel="noopener"; target="_blank"; award No. 2209226; PI: Hester) Research Hub examining manoomin (wild rice) resilience in the Western Great Lakes region of the United States. Central to Ojibwe lifeways and resilience, manoomin is also a keystone sentinel species for understanding and conserving Great Lakes coastal wetlands. As part of a broader tribally driven research initiative at Northwestern University, the Hub seeks to support Indigenous-led, data-driven resilience strategies for manoomin and increase participation of Great Lakes Indigenous Peoples in science through culturally empowering and sovereignty-affirming collaborative research.

Currently, hundreds of Tribal, governmental, private, and community agencies and organizations govern the manoomin range using a complicated, sometimes overlapping and often competing set of public and private treaties, laws, regulations, policies, and norms, all of which operate at different governance levels. As part of the Hub, RICE-Gov aims to understand how such fragmented governance presents challenges and opportunities for advancing manoomin resilience.

The postdoctoral researcher will be expected to conduct field-based research to understand the governance dynamics around manoomin. The research will involve analyzing the institutional landscapes for manoomin governance, identifying opportunities for integrating sovereignty-affirming knowledge practices into policy-making, and develop strategies and capacity-building plans for translating real-time data into real-time governance for manoomin resilience. The postdoctoral researcher will be expected to work with tribal partners to convene iterative workshops focused on strengthening reciprocal relationships through understanding the human and social dimensions of manoomin environments (2) support development of virtual interfaces and opportunities for collaboratively analyzing scientific knowledge and Indigenous knowledge to inform multiple evidence base

(MEB) policy-making; and, (3) proactively and responsively analyze governance architectures and policy options to contribute to development and realization of an Indigenous Environmental Governance framework that convenes relatives and responsibilities for advancing manoomin resilience across the region.

Mentorship and Training Opportunities

Successful candidates will join a university with a broad, interdisciplinary community of scholars affiliated with programs such as the Center for Diversity and Democracy (CSDD), the Institute for Sustainability and Energy at Northwestern (ISEN), the Institute for Policy Research (IPR), the Global Poverty Research Lab, the Center for Native American and Indigenous Research (CNAIR), the Environmental Humanities workshop, and the newly established graduate Environment Cluster whose research and pedagogy engages themes related to environmental justice and policy. Additionally, successful applicants will work with PIs to co-create mentoring plans and individual development plans (IDP) to support each Postdoctoral Scholar in advancing their career goals. In addition to diverse opportunities to publish interdisciplinary work with diverse teams, team member will have the opportunity to present their work to broad networks in academia, national labs, and with funding agencies. Trainees will also have opportunities to mentor graduate and undergraduate students, participate in professional development programming through NU's Graduate School and the Searle Center for Advanced Learning and Teaching.

Faculty Recruitment Information in Journalism/ Media

The Faculty of Political Science and Economics at Waseda University invites applications for a tenure-track or tenured position in Journalism/ Media to begin in the spring of 2024 at the earliest.

Waseda University, founded in 1882, is a leading private research university located in central Tokyo. As part of its globalization efforts, the Faculty of Political Science and Economics (FPSE) has been offering degree programs in English for both undergraduate and graduate students since 2010, in addition to degree programs in Japanese. The programs provide diverse and dynamic academic opportunities for talented students from all around the world.

1. Affiliation:

The Faculty of Political Science and Economics, Waseda University

2. Field:

Journalism/ Media

3. Courses to be taught:

The successful candidate will teach specialized courses in the Journalism Course of the Graduate School of Political Science (Master and Doctoral Program), seminars of the Journalism Category or the Media Category in the graduate programs, and related topics in FPSE including “Advanced seminar” in the undergraduate program.

4. Qualifications:

- (1) Applicants must have empirical research achievement using data analysis in the field of Journalism or Media.
- (2) Applicants must be able to teach the courses stated in “3. Courses to be taught” in both Japanese and English.
- (3) Applicants must have a Ph.D. degree or expect to obtain it by the time of appointment.
- (4) Ability to teach at least one of the introductory methodology courses which is a required course for the Political Science Course in the Graduate School of Political Science.
- (5) Teaching experience in relevant courses at university level is desirable.
- (6) Ability to develop, coordinate, and formulate the educational curriculum for the Journalism Course is desirable.

5. Number of positions available:

One

6. Position rank and title:

Professor (tenured), Associate Professor (tenured), Associate Professor (Tenure-track), or Assistant Professor (Tenure-track)

The position rank is determined by such factors as the applicant’s academic and research record, as well as evaluation during the screening process, will be made known to the applicant at the final interview with the FPSE’s dean and other executive committee members.

General Idea of Tenure-Track Positions at FPSE: (Detailed information will be provided after the second round of selection.)

A tenure-track position at FPSE shall be appointed either as Assistant Professor (tenure-track) or Associate Professor (tenure-track), for three years in the first term, followed by two years of reappointment and an additional two years of reappointment, for a total of up to seven years. As a general rule, the interim review shall be carried out in the second semester of the third year (sixth semester) following the appointment and completed within the first three-year term on the tenure track. When a tenure-track faculty member passes the interim review, the first reappointment of two years shall be confirmed before the end of the initial appointment (three years).

By default, the final review shall be carried out in the second semester of the fifth year (tenth semester) and completed by the end of the fifth year on the tenure track. When the tenure-track faculty member passes the final review, the faculty member will become a tenured faculty member from the following semester. The second reappointment of two years may be granted to a tenure-track faculty member who fails the final review. The tenure-track faculty member may request an interim review or a final review at any time in or after the second semester of the second year (fourth semester) following appointment.

If you have had an employment contract with Waseda University (regardless of job title) since April 1, 2013, and there is no period of at least six months without an employment contract with Waseda University at the scheduled start of this position, in principle, there is a limit to the duration of the employment contract. Therefore, the above may not be applied.

7. Working conditions:

·Salary, allowances, and commuting expenses are commensurate with qualifications and are based on Waseda University pay scales.

·The workplace will, in principle, be on a Waseda University campus.

·Scheduled working days and working hours (starting/finishing times and rest periods) are based on university regulations. The discretionary labor system for professional work will be applied to research work. Considering the nature of research work, working hours are at the discretion of each faculty member.

·Holidays

Holidays are Saturdays, Sundays, New Year’s holidays, legally recognized public holidays, and compensatory holidays appointed by the University for holding classes on public holidays and the anniversary of the University’s founding. Holidays prescribed as working days determined by the University in advance will be excluded. There may be cases where classes and other types of FPSE work will be scheduled on holidays. Employees may take compensatory holiday(s) for those occasions. For the academic calendar of the university, please see the URL below.

<https://www.waseda.jp/top/en/about/work/organizations/academic-affairs-division/academic-calendar>

·Leave

Leave is determined by the Labor Standards Act and other related laws, including days that are designated by the University as leave days.

·Social insurance

Pension, health insurance, labor insurance, and employment insurance are provided based on university regulations.

·Research Funding

Individual research allowance: 210,000 yen (per year)

Academic conference traveling subsidies: 90,000 yen (per year)

International academic conference traveling subsidies: 110,000 yen (per year)

Other competitive research funds are available at Waseda University.

·Retirement benefits

Tenured Professors and tenured Associate Professors are paid in accordance with university regulations.

No retirement benefits will be provided to Associate Professors (tenure-track) and Assistant Professors (tenure-track). However, if they continue to serve as tenured faculty members after the term as tenure-track faculty members, retirement benefits will be provided in accordance with university regulations. The period of service for calculating the retirement benefits of a tenured faculty member is counted from the date of appointment as an Associate Professor (tenure-track) or Assistant Professor (tenure-track).

Johns Hopkins University

Rank: Adjunct Faculty: Intelligence Analysis

Location:

Open Date:

Feb 01, 2023

POSITION:

Adjunct Faculty, Intelligence Analysis
Krieger School of Arts and Sciences

INSTITUTION:

Johns Hopkins University

Institution Description:

The Advanced Academic Programs (AAP) is a division of the Krieger School of Arts and Sciences at the Johns Hopkins University (JHU). As the nation's oldest and one of the most prestigious research universities, Johns Hopkins offers high-quality master's degrees and post-baccalaureate education to students in the mid-Atlantic region and online. In addition to the online programs, AAP also offers master's degrees and graduate certificate programs at its Washington, DC Center and at the Homewood campus in Baltimore, MD. AAP has approximately 18,000 enrollments each academic year. JHU is committed to hiring candidates who, through their teaching and service, will contribute to the diversity and excellence of the academic community.

Position Description:

The Advanced Academic Programs (AAP) division seeks non-tenure track adjunct faculty to teach several courses within the MS in Intelligence Analysis program. The course(s) will be taught fully online beginning in Summer 2023 and beyond. Candidates with online course development and teaching experience and those with experience teaching and engaging students from diverse backgrounds are of particular interest. We are looking for faculty who can teach one or more of the following courses:

473.600 the Art and Practice of Intelligence

This course introduces students to the field of intelligence, particularly as practiced in the United States. After a brief overview of the historical foundations of modern intelligence, it discusses how intelligence is conducted including collection, analysis, counterintelligence, covert action, and oversight. It also discusses intelligence ethics, as well as the disruptive influences of September 11, new technologies, and emerging social trends.

473.602 Intelligence Analysis

Intelligence analysis is fundamentally about understanding and communicating to decision makers what is known, not known, and surmised, as it can best be determined. Students will read seminal texts on intelligence analysis, discuss the complex cognitive, psychological, organizational, ethical, and legal issues surrounding intelligence analysis now and, in the past, and apply analytic methodologies to real-world problems.

473.604 Advanced Critical Thinking and Analysis

Critical thinking involves the methods and principles of correct reasoning and argumentation. Students will apply a combination of logic, critical thinking skills, and structured analytical techniques to identify biases, promote self-reflective reasoning, and improve the quality of intelligence analysis. Using a selection of empirical case studies and operational exemplars, students will conduct a comparative assessment of analytical outcomes based on the application of course learnings versus outcomes derived in their absence.

473.607 Intelligence Ethics

This course will address the ethical dilemmas and issues that challenge intelligence and government decision makers in an increasingly complex operational and technological environment. We will examine basic moral, ethical and privacy considerations at several key points in intelligence operations from collection to covert action. The course will analyze the evolving nature of privacy concerns worldwide, with an emphasis on the balance between individual rights and national security. Students will examine the policy implications inherent in seeking to address these tensions.

473.606 Legal Issues in Intelligence

This class will examine the interplay between the laws and the practices and policies of the United States' Intelligence Community and national security system, both foreign and domestic. While discussion of the history of intelligence activities and laws dating from the origins of our colonial days will necessarily shape the framework of the class, the focus shall particularly be on current debates and challenges faced by the United States in the 21st Century.

473.800 Research Seminar

This course will introduce a variety of research, analytical, and statistical methods intended to provide a basis for designing a research project, including an introduction to quantitative, qualitative, and mixed method research design. Within the context of the course, students will complete foundational work for the capstone project, including identifying and accessing relevant primary and secondary source data, surveying and evaluating the literature, and framing a research question based on the intersection of empirical studies and organizational needs. Attention will be given to the unique restrictions placed on research design and publication within the intelligence community.

473.801 Capstone: Current Issues in Intelligence

In this culminating course, students complete an independent, faculty-approved project that will address a substantive or methodological challenge in intelligence analysis. A successful capstone will include research that provides evidence of the student's mastery of the theoretical knowledge and analytical skills central to the degree's learning outcomes. The capstone provides an opportunity to apply the skills acquired throughout the program to a key challenge facing their organization or community. Students will conduct a literature review, select a research method appropriate to their study, analyze data using qualitative or quantitative methods in their capstone project, and propose and defend their findings.

Minimum Qualifications:

- An advanced degree in any relevant field, with a master's degree at minimum.
- At least five years of professional work experience within the intelligence field.

Preferred Qualifications:

- A terminal degree in international relations, global security studies, political science, history, or in a relevant field related to intelligence.
- A scholar-practitioner background and publications in the field.
- 1-3 years of graduate level teaching experience.
- Leadership experience within the US Intelligence Community.
- Online teaching experience.
- Experience in developing graduate courses.
- The background to teach a wide variety of courses in an intelligence analysis program.
- Strong interest in advising graduate students interested in an intelligence career.

Application Instructions

The position will remain open until filled. For best consideration, please apply by April 1 2023.

Candidates must submit the following:

- Cover letter should indicate the course or courses you're interested in teaching plus your experience with online learning management systems (i.e., Canvas)
- Curriculum vitae
- Teaching evaluations for two most recently taught courses
- Transcript from highest degree earned
- The selected candidate will undergo a background check and provide three references.

Johns Hopkins University

Rank: P3 Lab Postdoctoral Fellow

P3 Lab Postdoctoral Fellow

The P3 Lab at Johns Hopkins University is seeking to hire a qualified a Postdoctoral Fellow to work with Faculty Director, Professor Hahrie Han, and Lab Director, Jane Booth-Tobin, on a range of studies focused on social movements and community organizing, particularly within race-class subjugated communities. The Postdoctoral Fellow will be hired for a yearlong term beginning no earlier than September 2022.

The position requires someone with a strong background in social science research grounded in the study of collective action and social movements. Post-docs must be excellent writers, capable with quantitative data analysis, and have experience with qualitative fieldwork. Applicants should have a PhD in a relevant social science field from an accredited institution and a record of being an outstanding scholar. Postdoctoral Fellows will be exempt from teaching and service duties and will devote their full-time effort to working on research. The expectation is that the fellow's time will be divided between working on a P3 research project and building out their own research.

Lab Description

At P3, we envision a world where people's participation in public life is possible, probable, and powerful: people across race and class have to be able to participate, they have to want to participate, and their participation has to matter. Realizing this vision necessitates designing a new civic architecture that enables people to engage in public life in ways that are grounded in their own experience, connected to one another, and organized through vehicles of collective action that give people ownership over the ongoing process of systemic struggle and change.

We are a multi-disciplinary research lab based at the SNF Agora Institute at Johns Hopkins University committed to learning and shared inquiry that meets the twin goals of relevance and rigor while helping to realize our vision. Our work simultaneously pushes the frontiers of strategic thinking in organizing and knowledge-building in academic scholarship.

Responsibilities

The Postdoctoral Fellow will be responsible for:

- Leading a to-be-determined project that is likely to include the following:
  - o Coordinating communities and researchers to develop a study that bridges practitioner and scholarly goals
  - o Developing a research team that supports cross-generational learning in the lab

- o Conducting a literature review
- o Conducting data collection and analysis
- o Writing up results in both academic and practitioner-friendly formats
- Actively engaging in the P3 scholarly community by attending regular lab meetings and collaborating with fellow lab members on their projects.

Term of Appointment

The term of appointment is for 12 months, beginning no sooner than September 2022. Applicants will receive a small research budget that they can use at their discretion. Applicants can work remotely from anywhere in the United States, but must be willing to travel regularly to meet the P3 team. John Hopkins University offers a competitive salary and employee benefits.

Qualifications:

- Ph.D. degree in political science, sociology, or related areas by the start of the appointment
- Outstanding mixed-methods research and writing skills
- Experience working with constituency-based organizations either as a researcher or as a community organizer
- An understanding of or a desire to learn about the field of constituency-based organizations and social movements in the United States, as well as the ecosystems of funders, political parties, etc. they operate within
- Strong organizational skills and ability to simultaneously manage multiple large-scale projects
- Experience and interest in convening and managing events for diverse stakeholders (e.g., conferences, symposia, workshops)
- Commitment to the P3 Lab Mission
- Excellent communication skills
- Ability to work independently and in teams

In addition to the qualifications above, theoretical and empirical familiarity with the field of civic data, movement building, and aspects of computational social science; experience in statistical and spatial data analysis and data visualization; and/or advanced programming in R, STATA, or another statistical package would be valued.

Application Instructions

To apply, please submit your application at: <http://apply.interfolio.com/109351> and include the following materials:

1. Letter of application that includes:
  - a. a description of what you are hoping to get out of a fellowship with P3 and how it fits into your own scholarship
  - b. your understanding of what community organizing is, why it matters, and how it relates to your own research
2. A two-to-five page research statement detailing your substantive and methodological research experience
3. Curriculum vitae
4. A representative manuscript or publication (please note that to the extent possible, this should be a single-authored piece. Excellent writing skills are a must and we would like to be able to review people's writing style)
5. Three names of references at the time of the application.

Application review will begin 7/5/2022, but the position will remain open to accept additional applications until the position filled. Inquiries may be sent electronically to Jane Booth-Tobin, P3 Lab Director (jboothtobin@jhu.edu)

- School of Political Science and International Studies (<https://polsis.uq.edu.au/>)
- Join a university ranked in the world's top 50
- Ranked 2nd in Australia for Political Sciences
- Fixed term for 5 years with potential for an additional 5-year term
- Applications close 23 July 2023 at 11.00pm AEST (R-25576)

About UQ

What started as Queensland's first university in 1909, with just three faculties and 83 students, has grown into university ranked in the world's top 50 that is renowned for being a leader in teaching and research.

When you join the University of Queensland, you're joining a community that actively strives toward creating change right across the world every day. From science and sustainability to health and humanities, our researchers are finding solutions to the world's biggest challenges. Our award-winning teachers are recognised for empowering our students to thrive as innovative thinkers and grow into the leaders of tomorrow.

Even after 100 years of history and excellence, we haven't forgotten that UQ was founded by – and for – the people of Queensland. In 2022, we launched the Queensland commitment as part of our belief that education and opportunity should be available for all Queenslanders by breaking down personal, financial and geographical barriers. It's this commitment that re-emphasises that UQ is a place for everybody: no matter who you are, where you're from, or what challenges you've faced, you can pursue your ambitions at UQ.

About This Opportunity

The School of Political Science and International Studies is at the forefront of teaching and research in political science, public policy, international relations and peace and conflict studies in Australia. ### University College Dublin

Specializations: Political Communication, Political Psychology, Political Parties & Organizations

Moral Agency in Election Campaigns (ELECT) is a project funded by the European Research Council (2023-2028). The emergence of novel political challengers and new strategic and communicative possibilities enabled by big data and new media has greatly altered the electoral landscape. In this context, ELECT aims to understand the normative attitudes and decision-making practices of key actors that animate the electoral process, how those attitudes and practices are shaped by different institutional and regulatory contexts, and the significance of these interactions for electoral democracy. To this end, electoral candidates, campaign professionals, journalists and citizens will be studied across four countries: Germany, Italy, the UK and the USA.

An experienced researcher (post-PhD or PhD submitted by time of appointment) is being recruited to work on the German case. The researcher will work together with the Principal Investigator (Associate Professor Joseph Lacey) and the wider research team for the first three years of the project. Proficiency in German is a requirement of the post. Hybrid working arrangements are possible. Ideally, you will begin in September 2023.

Your tasks will be to:

- Develop an interdisciplinary state of the art on election campaigns in the German case.
- Contribute to designing cross-national surveys, semi-structured interviews and focus groups.
- Take on fieldwork in the German case, carrying out surveys, semi-structured interviews and focus groups.
- Contribute to the analysis of collected data using qualitative and/or quantitative methods.
- Contribute to developing a theory of moral agency in election campaigns.
- Contribute to the organisation of international conferences at UCD and panels or sections at general conferences.

George Washington University

Rank: Postdoctoral Researchers

Specializations: Quantitative Methods, Research Methods, Science & Technology

The George Washington University's Institute for Data, Democracy and Politics (IDDP) is seeking an exceptional candidate for a full-time, academic research position at the rank of post-doctoral research scientist. IDDP is a multidisciplinary research initiative intended to strengthen democratic dialog and institutions through research and engagement with policymakers, journalists, and the public. The position is for a one-year term.

The postdoctoral associate will work closely with Professor Catie Bailard, who leads the Meaningful Open Source Indicators (MOSI) cluster. MOSI combines the subject-area and technical expertise of researchers working across a wide range of disciplines—including engineers, data scientists, computer scientists, computational social scientists, and traditional social scientists—to investigate the use of digital technologies to disseminate, promote, and orchestrate deleterious online content and behavior. The candidates will work on topics related to digital harms and the threat they pose to democratic societies. Candidates would be technically capable researchers who are also interested in asking bold, new questions with data. This position is located at GW's Foggy Bottom campus in Washington, DC, and will report to Dr. Rebekah Tromble.

This position is primarily a temporary/training position in which the candidate would play a substantive role in planning and conducting research by using quantitative and qualitative methods to collect, analyze and report on data from digital and online sources. In collaboration with the Principal Investigators, this role will participate in the planning of independent research, will analyze and interpret data, will publish results, will represent the university at conferences and meetings, and may develop new theories and methodologies. Extensive professional experience using R, Python or similar tools are a key requirement for the position, and successful candidates should show potential to excel in tasks related to data collection, network analysis, text-as-data, and natural language processing at very large scale. This position may also help the Principal Investigators to lead and direct the work of research assistants and other staff. This role performs work under the supervision of experienced researchers.

Start Date: Summer 2023

Hampden-Sydney College

Rank: Assistant Professor/International Law & IR

Subfield(s): International Relations, Political Theory, Other

Specializations: International Law & Organizations, International Security, Normative Political Theory

Hampden-Sydney College invites applications for a full-time, tenure-track appointment at the rank of Assistant Professor within the Department of Government and Foreign Affairs to begin in the fall of 2024. Candidates should have expertise in the history and development of international law, theories of international relations, and the role of the U.S. Constitution in foreign affairs. The ability to teach courses in regional or global policymaking is also welcome. The successful applicant may participate in the college-wide Core Cultures program and teach, as needed, introductory courses in world politics. Faculty teach on a three-year course load rotation with six courses per year for two years and seven courses in the third year.

Hampden-Sydney College highly values the teacher/scholar model. Successful applicants will have a record of effective classroom teaching, a commitment to scholarly productivity, and the willingness to work with colleagues on professional service responsibilities. Applicants should have a Ph.D. in political science or comparable degree by the time of appointment.

Please submit a letter of application, curriculum vitae, teaching statement, research statement, and three letters of reference to Dr. Celia Carroll Jones, Chair, Department of Government and Foreign Affairs, Hampden-Sydney College via Interfolio. Review of applications will begin immediately and continue until the position is filled.

Hampden-Sydney College is a selective liberal arts institution enrolling approximately 1000 students. Founded in 1775, it is the tenth oldest institution of higher learning in the United States and one of four liberal arts colleges in the United States dedicated to the education of men. Our mission is to educate "good men and good citizens in an atmosphere of sound learning."

Our beautiful 1300-acre campus is less than 7 miles from downtown Farmville, home to Longwood University and the Moton Museum, which is listed on the U.S. Civil Rights Trail. The campus is located 65 miles west of Richmond, 50 miles east of Lynchburg, and 75 miles south of Charlottesville, providing abundant cultural, recreational and artistic resources. As a community, we are dedicated to the goal of building a culturally diverse faculty committed to working in a multicultural environment and strongly encourage applications from women and minoritized groups. Hampden-Sydney College values diversity, prohibits discrimination, and is committed to equal opportunity for all employees and applicants for employment.

University of South Dakota

Specializations: Bureaucracy & Organizational Behavior, Leadership Studies, Research Methods

The Department of Political Science at the University of South Dakota invites applicants for the position of visiting lecturer of public administration. The successful candidate will teach in our online M.S. in Administration and Executive Master of Public Administration (Executive MPA) programs. This is a nine-month, full-time position that may be renewed subject to budget authorization and administrative approval. The area of specialization is open, although the Department prefers candidates with expertise in organizational behavior and management; leadership in theory and practice; and research methods for administrators. Because the ideal candidate will teach online graduate courses, remote work (i.e. telecommuting) may be an option. The expected workload will be four graduate courses per semester.

This position is not eligible for visa sponsorship at this time.

The University of South Dakota is the state's flagship liberal arts institution with a "higher research" (R2) Carnegie classification. We seek a candidate who possesses a commitment to excellence in teaching and student mentoring within the context of a strong liberal arts program. The successful candidate will be expected to share in the work of a vibrant department and apply his or her professional expertise in the service of the university, community and discipline. The M.S. in Administration and Executive MPA programs enjoy major endowments that support faculty research and professional development.

The successful candidate must have a Ph.D. in public administration, public affairs or a related field from a NASPAA-accredited program on the date of appointment. The start date will be August 21, 2023.

Applications MUST be submitted online at <https://yourfuture.sdbor.edu>. A complete application consists of:

1. a letter of application;
2. current curriculum vitae;
3. unofficial graduate transcripts;
4. three letters of reference; and
5. a teaching portfolio (course evaluations, philosophy of teaching statement, and/or sample syllabi).

Additional information may be requested from the finalists for the position. Inquiries and materials that cannot be uploaded should be sent to Professor David C. Earnest, chair of the Department of Political Science, at David.Earnest@usd.edu.

Review of applications will begin on June 19, 2023 and continue until a suitable candidate is hired.

School of Public Policy

LSE Fellow in Political Science and Public Policy

Salary from £40,229 to £48,456 pa inclusive with potential to progress to £52,095 pa inclusive of London allowance.

This is a fixed term appointment for two years in the first instance.

The LSE School of Public Policy equips students with the skills and ideas to transform people and societies. We are an international community where ideas and practice meet, creating professionals with the ability to analyse, understand and resolve the challenges of contemporary governance.

We are now recruiting an LSE Fellow to contribute to the postgraduate teaching of the School of Public Policy. An LSE Fellow is a career development post which allows aspiring academics who are post PhD, or close to PhD completion, the opportunity to gain experience in teaching and research.

The post-holder will contribute to the teaching of seminars in the field of empirical political science and its application to policymaking. Specifically, the post-holder will teach seminars (groups of c. 15 students) for course codes PP401 and PP478.

The post-holder will also play a key role in supporting the provision of a rich and engaging learning environment for our high-calibre and high fee-paying students. The post-holder will join LSE's world-leading and vibrant research community in the social sciences. Faculty of the School of Public Policy will ensure the integration of the post-holder into that research community, in which s/he will be expected to play a full part.

Candidates should hold, or be demonstrably close to the completion of, a PhD in the field of empirical political science related to public policy. S/he will require excellent written and oral communication skills preferably with some relevant teaching experience. Candidates must also be able to demonstrate an ability to foster an engaging and supportive learning environment.

We offer an occupational pension scheme, generous annual leave and excellent training and development opportunities.

For further information about the post, please see the how to apply document, job description and the person specification.

The role is available from 1 September 2023 and it is expected that the successful candidate will take up the post on that date or very shortly thereafter.

An LSE Fellowship is intended to be an entry route to an academic career and is deemed by the School to be a career development position. As such, applicants who have already been employed as an LSE Fellow for three years in total are not eligible to apply. If you have any queries about this, please contact the HR Division.

To apply for this post, please go to www.jobs.lse.ac.uk

Nanyang Technological University, Singapore

Rank: Assistant Professor of Political Theory

Specializations: Political Theory, Political Economy, Research Methods

Public Policy and Global Affairs

School of Social Sciences

Nanyang Technological University, Singapore

Young and research intensive, Nanyang Technological University, Singapore (NTU Singapore) is ranked among the world's top universities.

The School of Social Sciences offers undergraduate and graduate degree programmes in a full range of disciplines and actively promotes interdisciplinary learning and research.

Assistant Professor of Political Theory

The School of Social Sciences at NTU Singapore invites applications for a tenure-track Assistant Professor position in Public Policy and Global Affairs (PPGA).

The Public Policy and Global Affairs Programme is one of the four major programmes in the School of Social Sciences, together with Sociology, Psychology, and Economics. We attract excellent students to our BSocSci and PhD degree programmes and provide them with interdisciplinary training, as well as practical knowledge and skill sets necessary to dissect and address real world problems facing political leaders, policymakers, and the global community.

We seek a dedicated colleague with the necessary skills to collaborate and strengthen PPGA's research programmes and teaching portfolios, as well as commit to relevant administration duties. Personal aptitude will be important for this position.

The successful candidate will have a PhD in political science or in a related field, a strong track record of research commensurate with career stage (e.g., publishing in established peer-reviewed journals in the discipline, securing and managing externally funded research, organising conference panels and workshops) and effective teaching and training of undergraduate and/or graduate students.

Area of specialization within political theory is open, however we particularly welcome candidates who are able to offer courses in non-Western political thought. Ability to teach in a secondary discipline, comparative politics, political economy, or Singapore politics, would also be considered an asset.

In addition to developing their own research programme, we expect the successful candidate to contribute to teaching undergraduate and graduate core modules in the PPGA Programme, and modules in their areas of specialisation. The successful candidate will join a dynamic team in administering the PPGA Programme.

Essential selection criteria:

- A PhD in political science or in a related field.
- A strong research and publication track record commensurate with career stage.
- Experience and interest in teaching PPGA core modules (undergraduate, graduate).
- Excellent communication, interpersonal skills, and commitment relevant to teaching, pastoral care, and administering the PPGA Programme.

Desirable selection criteria:

- Specialisation in one or more of the following subfields: political theory and research methodology.
- Research and teaching interests that strengthen and expand PPGA's research programmes and teaching portfolios.

University of Mississippi

Rank: Instructional Assistant Professor

The Department of Public Policy Leadership at the University of Mississippi invites applications for a one-year instructional assistant professor for 2024-2025 to begin in January 2024. The position is renewable for up to one year with the agreement of both parties. The successful candidate will teach three undergraduate courses per semester. A Ph.D. or ABD in Public Policy, Public Administration, Political Science, or a related field is required at the time of employment, as is a record of excellence in teaching. The successful candidate is expected to teach PPL 101 "Foundations of Public Policy Leadership" (theories and principles of public policy formation, implementation, and assessment), U.S. domestic policy or leadership studies courses in the candidate's area of specialization, and possibly PPL 212 "Critical Thinking, Communication, and Public Policy".

The Department of Public Policy Leadership provides a challenging undergraduate major that prepares high-performing students for positions of leadership in an increasingly complex world. The interdisciplinary curriculum for the major incorporates geography, political science, public policy and administration, and philosophy. The program emphasizes in-depth understanding of policy issues, the global nature of responsible decision-making, the ethical imperatives of leadership, critical thinking and communication skills, and the methodological skills necessary for careful policy analysis. It maintains small class size and seminar-style teaching environment. Visit our Web site at <http://www.olemiss.edu/depts/leadership/>.

Apply online: <https://careers.olemiss.edu>. Applications should include a cover letter, a curriculum vitae, and the contact information of three references. The review of applications will begin immediately and continue until the position is filled. The University of Mississippi has been rated a "best college to work for" by the Chronicle of Higher Education and is an EEO/AA/TitleIX/Section 504/ADA/ADEA employer committed to advancing institutional capacity for equity, cultivating a diverse and equitable community, and fostering an inclusive campus climate (<https://chancellor.olemiss.edu/pathways-to-equity/>).

New York University Arts and Science

Rank: Visiting Assistant Professor, International Relations

Visiting Assistant Professor, International Relations

New York University Faculty of Arts and Science

New York University's Program in International Relations invites applications for a Visiting Assistant Professor in International Relations. This one year position will have a start date of September 1, 2023, and is renewable for up to three years, pending budgetary and administrative approval.

The teaching load for this position is two graduate-level courses per academic semester. Candidates will also be expected to serve as an academic advisor, supervise theses, and participate in program events. The selected candidate will be expected to teach the Program's core International Relations Theory course, in addition to electives in their research area. Preference may be given to candidates with research experience in security studies, international organizations, American foreign policy, conflict studies, and political violence. The breakdown for this position is 50% teaching and 50% service.

The Program in International Relations is home to the MA in International Relations (MAIR). The MAIR is an interdisciplinary program in international relations offering elective concentrations in Asian Studies, European and Mediterranean Studies, International Law, International Politics and Business, Latin American & Caribbean Studies, Middle Eastern & Levantine Studies, Russian and Slavic Studies, and US Foreign Policy. The Program also has a dual Master in Public Administration ("MPA-MAIR") with the Wagner Graduate School of Public Service and a joint degree, the Master of Arts in Journalism and International Relations ("GloJo"), with the Arthur L. Carter Journalism Institute.

The Program in International Relations is housed within NYU's Graduate School of Arts and Science (GSAS). One of the top graduate schools in the world, GSAS counts among its ranks five Pulitzer Prize winners, nine MacArthur Fellows, three National Medal of Science winners, four Howard Hughes Medical Institute Investigators, and 98 Guggenheim Fellows. Students from all 50 states and more than 100 countries study at GSAS. Like our students, NYU faculty come from around the world. Together we form a truly exciting community of the mind around our campus on Washington Square—and across our global network university that stretches across Europe, the Middle East, and Asia. GSAS is dedicated to the education and training of innovative and successful scholars, teachers, and professionals.

In compliance with NYC's Pay Transparency Act, the annual base salary for this position is $60,000. New York University considers factors such as (but not limited to) the scope and responsibilities of the position, the candidate's work experience, education/training, key skills, internal peer equity, as well as market and organizational considerations when extending an offer.

Review of applications will begin on May 15th and continue until the position is filled. Questions about this position should be sent to Lara J. Nettelield, Program Director, at ln2293@nyu.edu.

University of Texas, Arlington

Position ID: F00418P

The Department of Political Science at the University of Texas at Arlington is seeking a non-tenure-stream, full time lecturer, which will begin in August 2023. This position will operate with a three-year contract. We encourage applications from people qualified to teach courses in the following areas: US Government; Texas/State and Local Government. We also welcome applications from those who also are qualified to teach upper division (sophomore-seniors) and graduate MA courses in political science. We are especially interested in applicants who have demonstrated a commitment to students' success and an interest in supporting student recruitment and retention efforts.

Essential duties and responsibilities:

The ability to teach face-to-face, hybrid, and/or online courses in the following areas: US Government; Texas/State and Local Government and other high-enrollment upper-division courses.

Required qualifications:

For lecturer positions, we require at minimum a Master's degree in political science or a very closely related field and prefer applicants who are PhD holding or pursuing a doctorate, or who are ABD.

The University of Texas at Arlington is located in the heart of the Dallas-Fort Worth-Arlington metroplex, a vibrant and diverse metropolitan area that is home to over 7 million people, one of the fastest-growing tech economies in the United States, and a wide array of arts, entertainment, and cultural activities. UTA is a comprehensive teaching, research, and public service institution dedicated to the advancement of knowledge through scholarship and creative work. The University is committed to providing access and ensuring student success, and to a culture of innovation, entrepreneurship, and commercialization of discoveries by our community of scholars. With an enrollment of approximately 46,000 students, UTA is the largest institution in North Texas and the second-largest in the UT System. As a result of its combination of rigorous academics and innovative research, UTA is designated as a Carnegie R-1 "Very High Research Activity" institution and as a Texas Tier One institution. In 2021, UTA received the Higher Education Excellence in Diversity Award for its deep commitment to diversity, equity, and inclusion in higher education.

UTA ranks No. 4 nationally in Military Times' annual "Best for Vets: Colleges" list and No. 1 in Texas for the number of degrees awarded to African American students (Diverse: Issues in Higher Education, 2021). UTA is designated by the U.S. Department of Education as both a Hispanic Serving Institution (HSI) and an Asian American and Native American Pacific Islander-Serving Institution (AANAP-ISI), and it has the fifth-most ethnically diverse undergraduate population in the United States (U.S. News & World Report, 2023). UTA is among the top 50 performers nationwide for promoting social mobility of its graduates (U.S. News & World Report, 2023), and its approximately 250,000 alumni, including some who occupy leadership positions at many of the 23 Fortune 500 companies headquartered in North Texas, contribute to the UTA's $22.2 billion annual economic impact on Texas.

The Department of Political Science (<http://www.uta.edu/pols/> and <https://www.facebook.com/POLSatUTArlington>) offers a Bachelor of Arts and Master of Arts. It serves students from across the University (in state-mandated introductory courses) as well as over two hundred and forty undergraduate majors and minors and ten to twenty graduate students.

Successful candidates are expected to demonstrate a commitment to diversity and equity in education through their scholarship, teaching, and/or service as well as a strong commitment to teaching, advising, and mentoring undergraduate and graduate students from diverse backgrounds.

To apply applicants should go to <http://uta.peopleadmin.com/> and submit the following materials: Candidates should submit a cover letter, curriculum vitae, two sample syllabi, a statement of interest, and contact information for three references. Review of applications will begin immediately and will continue until the position is filled. The start date for the position is August 15, 2023.

Questions may be addressed to: Dr. Brent Boyea (boyea@uta.edu). For more information about UTA, please visit: <http://www.uta.edu/uta>.

Norfolk State University

Rank: Assistant Professor-Tenure-Track

Specializations: Constitutional Law & Theory, Urban Politics, Judicial Politics

The Department of Political Science at Norfolk State University offers a B.A. in Political Science as well as a minor. Although the Department is interested in developing new courses, currently we offer courses primarily in American Politics, International Relations, Political Theory, Public Administration, Urban Planning, and Pre-Law. The department is particularly interested in candidates who have experience working with students from diverse backgrounds and a demonstrated commitment to improving access to higher education for all students regardless of background. Candidates must include a statement that reflects their commitment to diversity and inclusion including any experience they may have working with students from underrepresented groups.

This is a tenure-track position at the Assistant Professor rank. We are looking for a candidate specializing in Constitutional Law and Urban Politics. The successful candidate would be required to teach courses in Constitutional Law and Urban Planning. Preference will be given to candidates with significant experience with Pre-Law Program development, mentoring, and LSAT tutoring. Also, noting that online instruction constitutes a huge part of our course delivery system, preference will be given to candidates with experience in using LMS, preferably Blackboard, to teach their courses. The successful candidate will also be required to supervise the department's internship program.

1. Teach undergraduate courses in Constitutional Law and Urban Planning
2. Deliver courses online (the university's platform of choice is Blackboard)
3. Develop new instructional materials, techniques, course offerings or major revisions of existing courses
4. Actively engage in research/scholarship and grantsmanship
5. Engage in exemplary teaching, both face-to-face and online
6. Devote time to mentoring and advising students throughout their undergraduate years
7. Assist in developing and administering internship opportunities for students with local, state, and national entities, employers, civic engagement groups, activist and interest groups
8. Develop and attend professional improvement activities in order to maintain contact with one's academic discipline, including teaching/learning processes and/or development of knowledge in one's field of specialization
9. Collegially engage with faculty and other members of the university community

10. Demonstrate multicultural competence including an awareness and understanding of historically disadvantaged populations, and create an educational environment that affirms commitment to diversity, equity, and inclusion

11. Engage in shared governance by participating in department, division, and university committees and assisting in the formulation of policy pertaining to educational programs.

Institution Description:

The Advanced Academic Programs (AAP) is a division of the Krieger School of Arts and Sciences at the Johns Hopkins University (JHU). As the nation's oldest and one of the most prestigious research universities, Johns Hopkins offers high-quality master's degrees and post-baccalaureate education to students in the mid-Atlantic region and online. In addition to the online programs, AAP also offers master's degrees and graduate certificate programs at its Washington, DC Center and at the Homewood campus in Baltimore, MD. AAP has approximately 18,000 enrollments each academic year. JHU is committed to hiring candidates who, through their teaching and service, will contribute to the diversity and excellence of the academic community.

Position Description:

The Advanced Academic Programs (AAP) division seeks non-tenure track adjunct faculty to teach one of several courses within the Master of Science in Data Analytics and Policy program. Specifically, we are seeking instructors qualified to teach Probability and Statistics (470.681), Programming and Data Management (470.768), Quantitative Methods (470.709), or Data Visualization (470.673). The course(s) will be taught fully online beginning in the spring 2023 semester. Candidates with online course development and teaching experience and those with experience teaching and engaging students from diverse backgrounds are of particular interest.

These four courses are part of the core curriculum in the Data Analytics and Policy program. The courses introduce learners to statistical analysis and programming using R. Topics include probability theory, descriptive statistics, data visualization, research design for causal inference, and linear regression analysis. Full course descriptions and an overview of our full curriculum are available on the program website. The program has course templates for each course from which the candidate will teach. Faculty duties include supporting student learning, evaluating student work, and working with the Program Director to revise and update course materials as needed.

These courses are taught on a regular basis with semester-length contracts. Adjunct faculty may be included in future course development projects.

Qualifications

Minimum Qualifications:

- Master's degree with training in quantitative statistical methods (e.g., political science, sociology, business analytics, economics, geography, public policy, psychology, or similar)
- Demonstrated experience doing original work using R for programming, data visualization, and statistical analysis

Preferred Qualifications:

- A terminal degree with training in quantitative statistical methods (e.g., political science, sociology, business analytics, economics, geography, public policy, psychology, or similar)
- 1-3 years of graduate level teaching experience
- Online teaching experience
- Training in statistical programming and analysis using Python

- Professional experience in applied statistics, predictive modeling, machine learning, database management, and related data science topics

Application Instructions:

The position(s) will remain open until filled. For best consideration, please apply by September 16, 2022.

Candidates must submit the following:

- Cover letter
- Curriculum vitae
- Teaching evaluations for two most recently taught courses, if applicant has teaching experience
