Finding a Job in Political Science

Hundreds of academic positions are advertised each year in political science. Finding the openings is the easy part; knowing how to approach the application and interview process is a little more challenging. At APSA, we have collected resources to assist candidates in the academic job search. We would like to highlight a few of these key resources here. The complete list of job resources is available online at www.apsanet.org/jobs.

eJobs: This online resource contains comprehensive online listing of political science jobs, is updated daily with new job listings and candidate resumes, and is fully searchable by field of interest, name of employer/candidate, region, keyword, position, salary, type of institution, and most recent posts.

Data on Jobs Market: APSA gathers and releases data regarding the placement of political science Ph.Ds. View this information at www.apsanet.org/content_7623.cfm.

Mentoring: Enroll in the APSA Mentoring Program online at www.apsanet.org/mentoring.

eJobs Placement Interview Services: The eJobs Annual Meeting Placement Interview Service provides space and facilities for employers who have eJobs posted to interview candidates at the APSA meeting. Many other conferences, such as the Northeastern and Western, also use the APSA online service to schedule placement interviews. Check the listings online in eJobs.

Ethics Guide: The APSA Guide to Professional Ethics in Political Science includes specific guidance on hiring and employment practices. Order a print copy or view online at www.apsanet.org/ethics.

Asking the Right Questions: APSA Job Candidate Questions to Ask Program

Asking the right questions provides valuable information for career decisions. As part of the APSA Job Candidate Questions to Ask (JCQ) Program participating political science departments have agreed to answer the following questions from job candidates.

Salary

1. What is the salary structure?
2. How is salary normally negotiated?
3. How are annual increases handled?
4. Is there an automatic escalator to ensure the salaries of future hires will not outpace those of existing department members?

Service Activities

1. What are the expectations of pre-tenure and tenured faculty regarding:
 - departmental and institutional committee work,
 - professional or disciplinary activities, and
 - outreach activities to communities external to institution?

Research Support

1. What departmental or institutional resources are available to support:
 - access to research materials and equipment,
 - the employment of research assistants,
 - research expenses on/off campus, and
 - travel expenses for conferences?

2. What departmental or institutional resources are available to seek external funding and to administer external funding awards?

Teaching Support

1. What departmental or institutional resources are available to support:
 - the development of teaching expertise,
 - innovations in teaching, and
 - the introduction of new courses and new technologies?
2. What are departmental expectations regarding:
 - the average course load,
 - the number of different courses taught by faculty, and
 - advising of graduate and undergraduate students?

Tenure, Renewal, and Annual Review

1. What policies and procedures govern the granting of tenure, renewal of contracts for pre-tenure faculty, and annual reviews of faculty performance?
2. What are the department's expectations for successful performance leading to the granting of tenure or renewal of contracts for pre-tenure faculty?
3. What are the department's expectations for a positive annual review?

Mentoring and Faculty Support Initiatives

1. What attention does the department give to integrating new faculty into the department, the institution, and in the profession?
2. Does the department or institution have programs that address:
 - the employment of dual-career professional couples,
 - family needs of faculty and staff, and
 - issues associated with minority faculty and staff?

Health and Life Insurance

1. What are the plans offered?
2. How are benefits disbursed?
3. What are the out-of-pocket expenses?
4. Are partners and/or children covered, and to what extent?
5. What portion of my paycheck will be deducted for these benefits?

Retirement

1. How many types of retirement plans are offered?
2. What is the matching percentage of the institution?
3. Is contribution required (and how much)?

Political Science Jobs for September

ADMINISTRATION

Arizona State University

Rank: Director of the School of Civic and Economic Thought and Leadership (SCETL)

Arizona State University invites applications for a Director of the School of Civic and Economic Thought and Leadership (SCETL). The successful candidate will also be named the Lincoln Professor in Leadership and American Civic Ideals. In this role, you will lead a multidisciplinary community of scholars and students who pursue collaborative and innovative approaches for teaching and scholarship, grounded in a classical liberal arts education resonating with the principles of America's founders. This is an opportunity for an accomplished and creative leader with the experience to develop and implement a strategic vision for a growing academic unit at an AAU University. ASU's charter and goals prioritize student success, public engagement, and use-inspired as well as scholarly research.

Reporting to the Dean of The College of Liberal Arts and Sciences, the Director will foster growth and innovation in the School's research and teaching missions, working to attract, develop, and retain exceptional faculty members. Key goals also include promoting excellence in the school's undergraduate and graduate programs; developing interdisciplinary research and teaching initiatives; advancing entrepreneurial opportunities; enhancing relations with partners and public within and beyond the university community; and contributing to a university-wide culture that fosters intellectual inclusive excellence. These goals reflect the design aspirations of the "New American University" that infuse decision-making across ASU's in-person and online operations, currently serving over 170,000 students.

SCETL is an academic unit reporting to the Dean of the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences and sits administratively in The College's division of Social Sciences. It has an annual operating budget of $5.8 million. The School has 13 tenured/tenure-track faculty, two professors of practice, three teaching and clinical professors, as well as 16 staff members. The School offers bachelor's degrees in Civic and Economic Thought and Leadership, a master's degree in Liberal Education and Leadership and a certificate in Philosophy, Politics and Economics. These degree programs are anchored within four fundamental tracks in the School: moral and political thought; American political thought; economic thought and political economy; and leadership and statesmanship for the 21st Century. More information on the degree programs is available at: <https://scetl.asu.edu/degree-programs>. Current enrollments include 11 MA students, approximately 65 undergraduate majors and 1000 students enrolled in SCETL's courses for Fall 2023.

The Social Sciences at ASU are ranked third nationally in recent National Science Foundation HERD rankings. The School hosts two vibrant centers, the Center for the Study of Economic Liberty and the Center for Political Thought and Leadership; the latter focuses on civic outreach to the broader Arizona and American communities. The School also hosts one of the most robust public lecture series in the country. The College and University value our cultural and intellectual diversity among students, faculty and staff, and continually strive to foster a welcoming and inclusive environment.

Minimum Qualifications

- Earned doctorate in political science, history, economics, philosophy, or a closely related field, with some focus on the Western tradition of liberal arts education, political thought, or intellectual history, or that addresses American political thought and constitutional democracy
- Distinguished scholarly record appropriate to an appointment at the rank of full professor with tenure

- Demonstrated excellence in administrative leadership
- Demonstrated commitment to working with faculty, staff, students and communities to advance the ASU Charter.

Desired Qualifications

- Exceptional communication and organizational skills
- Ongoing, nationally recognized research agenda supported by a record of successful publications in academic and popular outlets
- Demonstrated experience in building and promoting excellence in academic programs, from strategic visioning to program assessment and budgeting

- Demonstrated experience as a director or leader of an academic center, program, or institute beyond departmental leadership roles.

- Supervising and collaborating with faculty leaders and senior support staff; working successfully with university administration and leaders

- Experience in obtaining external funding and/or building relationships with potential donors, alumni, and the broader community

- Commitment to engaging faculty across a range of disciplines

- Effective in articulating a commitment to the integrated mission and programs of the School

- Experience serving as a public spokesperson for an academic program or unit with the media and community leaders

The anticipated start date is July 1, 2024, with the possibility of a start date as early as January 1, 2024. Salary and start-up funding will be competitive and commensurate with qualifications. Consideration of applications will begin on September 23, 2023, and will be evaluated every two weeks thereafter until the position is filled. Applicants should submit electronically the following materials: 1) a cover letter addressing the qualifications listed above; 2) a current curriculum vitae; and 3) contact information (email and phone) for four references to <http://apply.interfolio.com/129795>.

Inquiries and nominations should be directed to Search Committee Chair Patrick Kenney at pkenney@asu.edu.

The search committee proposes to conduct preliminary interviews remotely with long-listed candidates after September 23, 2023. All applications will be treated confidentially until shortlisted candidates are invited to campus visits.

- Advise students, including both program and research/capstone advising
- Provide innovative leadership for curriculum design and new course development to ensure the delivery and growth of a quality program
- Other academic duties normally performed by full-time faculty, such as participating on committees, attending academic events, or contributing to other academic service

Administrative Responsibilities:

- Work with the Program Director and Center Director to hire, mentor, and evaluate adjunct faculty
- Oversee the program's admissions process, including reviewing and approving prospective students' admissions materials

- Provide overall supervision for the Nonprofit Management program
- Schedule courses and set teaching assignments throughout the year
- Host events for current and prospective students

Qualifications:

The Associate Program Director's role is critical to maintaining the overall high quality of this program. The Associate Program Director must have a passion for education and its power to change lives, especially for part-time and non-residential students. A track record of building and managing successful onsite and online education programs, and skills in instructional design, content development, and instructional technologies, are important. Candidates who have experience teaching and engaging students from diverse backgrounds are of particular interest.

Minimum Qualifications:

- PhD in Nonprofit Management, Management, Administration, or a related field
- One to three years of higher education teaching experience online and/or at the graduate level
- One to three years of experience at the Assistant Director level, or equivalent administrative experience
- Ability to teach a variety of courses in the nonprofit management field
- Excellent oral and written communication skills
- Strong organizational

Preferred Qualifications:

- Four or more years of higher education teaching experience online and/or at the graduate level
- Professional work experience in the nonprofit management field
- Demonstrated track record of excellence in teaching and innovation in curriculum design
- The ability to work independently in a fast-paced environment with competing demands and multiple deadlines
- Experience managing a degree or certificate program

Application Instructions:

The position will remain open until it is filled. Candidates must submit the following:

- Cover letter
- Curriculum vitae
- Teaching evaluations for the two most recent semesters taught

Department of Political Science

The Political Science Department is located in the College of Natural and Behavioral Sciences. The current faculty is comprised of five tenured and tenure-track faculty joined by four to five part-time faculty each term. The department provides excellent opportunities for the study of governments, politics, Political Theory, the Constitution, and pre-law. Over 40 courses cover all the major aspects of the discipline. Students develop an understanding of human behavior as it relates to politics. They learn to discuss and analyze critically current philosophical questions and public policy issues facing the United States and the world. They are taught how to critically observe and understand world affairs and comparative politics. They are trained in appropriate research techniques for the study of political processes.

The department offers a major that allows students significant choice to explore their specific interests. Students may choose a concentration in American Politics and Constitutional Law, International Relations and Comparative Politics, or Political Theory. Students may also choose a general track composed of core courses in Research Methods,

History of Political Thought, American Politics, Comparative Politics, and International Relations. Regardless of concentration, majors select breadth courses in American Politics, Comparative Politics, and International Relations along with five elective courses selected from departmental offerings. The Political Science Department is home to the university's first and only endowed chair, the Lyman G. Chaffee Endowed Chair of global and Comparative Politics. The endowed chair supports undergraduate research in global politics and overseas study tours for CSUDH students. The Chaffee Endowment also funds scholarships for political science students studying abroad. The department offers internship opportunities at the national, California government and local government levels. The department sponsors an active student organization (APSS, the Association of Political Science Students), houses a faculty advisor to the on-campus Pre-law Society and boasts successful Model United Nations (MUN) and Mock Trial programs for students.

Sam Houston State University

Rank: Assistant Professor of Political Science (American Politics)

Primary Duties and Responsibilities:

The Department of Political Science at Sam Houston State University invites applications for a full-time, tenure-track faculty position at the rank of Assistant Professor beginning August 2024. The successful candidate will be responsible for teaching three courses per semester and engaging in research/scholarly activities. The successful candidate will also be expected to participate in service activities such as program and curriculum development, face-to-face and online course development, and student recruitment and engagement.

Required Qualifications:

The successful candidates will possess the following required qualifications:

1. A doctoral degree in political science from an accredited institution of higher education. ABD candidates will be considered, but they must have a PhD by the start date (August 2024).
2. Demonstrated evidence of ability and/or desire to teach a variety of undergraduate (face-to-face and online) and graduate (online) courses related to American politics, especially courses covering U.S. Congress and legislative politics more broadly.

3. Demonstrated evidence of an established or emerging research/scholarly program in American politics.

Required Application Materials:

- Cover letter that identifies interests, qualifications, and experience for the position.
- Current CV that includes, if applicable, a summary of previous teaching experience and the format of each course taught (i.e., face-to-face, online, hybrid).
- All graduate transcripts. Unofficial transcripts will be accepted during the application process; however, the successful candidate must submit official transcripts documenting all post-secondary degrees.
- Three letters of recommendation from individuals who are familiar with the applicant's teaching and research abilities.
- Recent student teaching evaluations covering the last two semesters of teaching, if available. Those without teaching evaluations will need to upload a placeholder document in lieu of evaluations.
- Teaching statement, including a discussion of online pedagogy and how the applicant's teaching will meet the specific needs of Sam Houston State University's students.
- If available, sample syllabi for relevant courses.

The search committee will start to review applications on September 24, 2023. The application process will remain open until the position is filled. Please direct questions to Dr. Tamara Waggener (pol_taw@shsu.edu).

Princeton University

Rank: James Madison Program Visiting Fellow

Subfield(s): Political Theory, American Government and Politics, Public Law

Specializations: Political Philosophy & Theory, Constitutional Law & Theory, American Politics

The James Madison Program in American Ideals and Institutions at Princeton University is dedicated to the pursuit of scholarly excellence in the fields of constitutional law and political thought. Sponsored by Princeton's Department of Politics, the Program seeks to enrich the intellectual life of Princeton students and faculty by exploring American constitutional principles and structures through research and public discussion.

The Program invites college and university professors and other professionals with established records of scholarship to apply for appointments as Visiting Fellows for the academic year running from September 1, 2024 to June 1, 2025. One-semester appointments are possible but not preferred. Depending on the needs of the University, teaching opportunities may be available, subject to sufficient enrollment and approval of the Dean of the Faculty.

All James Madison Program Visiting Fellows will spend an academic year (9-month term) in residence at Princeton University or the local vicinity, or demonstrate to the program's satisfaction the ability to be on campus daily, and on short notice, in order to fulfill responsibilities relating to in-person participation. They enjoy access to Firestone Library and a wide range of other facilities and activities throughout the University.

Visiting Fellows are expected to devote full time to their proposed research. They are encouraged, however, to attend or participate in various activities of the Program, including faculty-student seminars, colloquia, and public lectures.

All James Madison Program Fellows must have a doctorate or equivalent degree. Positions are open to all regardless of citizenship. Fellows normally receive a stipend of one-half their academic-year salary plus a living allowance. The fellows' home institutions are expected to provide at least half of their academic-year salaries.

How to apply: Applicants are required to submit an online application at: <https://www.princeton.edu/acad-positions/position/31661>

A complete application must include the following:

- * a curriculum vitae;
- * a scholarly paper written in the past three years;
- * a statement (no more than 1,500 words) describing the proposed research;
- * contact information for two references

Selected candidates will be asked to either submit a confidential statement indicating salary for the current academic year (September 1, 2023 - June 1, 2024) or provide written authorization for Princeton to confirm their salary.

For priority consideration application materials must be received by 11:59 p.m. EST on December 1, 2023 for appointments beginning in September 2024. Awards will be announced in March 2024 or before.

Invitation for Postdoctoral Research Associate Applications

The James Madison Program in American Ideals and Institutions at Princeton University is dedicated to the pursuit of scholarly excellence in the fields of constitutional law and political thought. Sponsored by Princeton's Department of Politics, the Program seeks to enrich the intellectual life of Princeton students and faculty by exploring American constitutional principles and structures through research and public discussion.

The Program invites recent Ph.D. recipients to apply for appointments as Postdoctoral Research Associates or more senior researchers for the year from September 1, 2024 to September 1, 2025. Appointments will be through the Department of Politics. All James Madison Program researchers are expected to be in residence in Princeton or the local vicinity, or demonstrate to the program's satisfaction the ability to be on campus daily, and on short notice, to fulfill responsibilities relating to in-person participation, office hours, and the like. They may not be employed by another institution during the term of their Princeton appointment. They enjoy access to Firestone Library and a wide range of other facilities and activities throughout the University. Depending on the needs of the University, teaching opportunities may be available, subject to the approval of the Dean of the Faculty. Researchers appointed in the Madison Program are expected to devote full time to their proposed research. They are, however, encouraged to attend or participate in various activities of the Program, including faculty-student seminars, colloquia, and public lectures.

The position is a fully funded, 12-month postdoctoral research associate appointment with benefits. All James Madison Program Postdoctoral Research Associates are required to have a Ph.D. degree awarded within the last three years (no earlier than September 1, 2021). All requirements for the Ph.D. must be met by June 30, 2024. Applications are evaluated on the basis of (1) the significance of the proposed research; (2) the quality of the applicant's past research; and (3) the future contribution the applicant is likely to make to higher education. Positions are open to all regardless of citizenship. This position is subject to the University's background check policy.

Cornell University

Rank: Climate Politics and Equitable Futures - AP

Climate change and the coming climate transitions are radically reshaping global politics, with profound domestic and international implications. We aim to make Cornell's Government Department a disciplinary leader in the integrated study of the complex political transformations that are already in process as a result of global warming as well as in developing the transformative politics needed to respond to global warming and its consequences. We are interested in scholarship that addresses topics such as the intersection of climate and environmental politics with racial and ethnic politics, indigenous politics, political economy, environmental justice, the (in)equitable distribution of the costs of climate change, the politics of sustainability, and the politics of climate related migration, among others.

As part of this initiative, the Department of Government invites applications from scholars of American politics for a tenure-track position at the rank of assistant professor to begin in the fall semester 2024. A PhD is required no later than July 1, 2024.

Applicants should apply online at <https://academicjobsonline.org/ajo/jobs/25456>. Interested candidates should submit a letter of application, curriculum vitae, two samples of written work, three letters of recommendation, and teaching evaluations. In addition, we ask applicants to share their experiences and/or approaches (past, current, or future) to fostering learning, research, service, and/or outreach in a diverse community; applicants may submit a stand-alone statement or embed the information in other parts of their application.

We will begin to review applications starting September 20, 2023, and will continue until the search is complete.

Diversity and Inclusion are a part of Cornell University's heritage. We are a recognized employer and educator valuing AA/EEO, Protected Veterans, and Individuals with Disabilities. We also recognize a lawful preference in employment practices for Native Americans living on or near Indian reservations. Cornell University embraces diversity and seeks candidates who will contribute to a climate that supports students, faculty, and staff of all identities and backgrounds. We strongly encourage individuals from underrepresented and/or marginalized identities to apply.

U.S. NAVAL WAR COLLEGE-AT-NAVAL POSTGRADUATE SCHOOL

ASSISTANT/ASSOCIATE/FULL (AD-1701-03/05/07)

Join a vibrant department teaching in-resident graduate courses in the interdisciplinary field of foreign policy analysis and international security. The National Security Affairs (NSA) division of the U.S. Naval War College's program at the Naval Postgraduate School in Monterey, California is actively seeking diverse candidates with national security academic and professional experience for an open-rank position as a professor of national security affairs. Career track determination (tenure/tenure track, non-tenure track, practitioner) is commensurate with experience and credentials.

U.S. Naval War College. The Naval War College (NWC) is a Professional Military Education (PME) institution serving the nation, the Department of Defense, and the U.S. Navy. U.S. and selected international graduates earn Master of Arts degrees in National Security & Strategic Studies or Defense & Strategic Studies accredited by the New England Commission of Higher Education. The College educates and develops future leaders through the development of strategic perspective, critical thinking, and cultural awareness, as well as enhancing the capability to advise senior leaders and policy makers. The College also helps to define the future Navy and its roles and missions; supports combat readiness; strengthens global maritime partnerships; and promotes ethics and leadership throughout the force. We are actively seeking candidates with diverse academic, demographic, and professional backgrounds. More information on the College can be found at www.usnwc.edu.

The Naval War College Program at the Naval Postgraduate School and the National Security Affairs Division: The Naval War College maintains a resident, graduate-level Command & Staff program teaching traditional, in-classroom courses year-round to full-time students who are in residence at the Naval Postgraduate School in Monterey, CA. It is composed of scholars and practitioners engaged in a wide range of teaching, research, and outreach. The program offers courses to full-time graduate students as part of various M.A. and Ph.D. programs in pursuit of Joint Professional Military Education Phase I. It is administered under the Naval War College's College of Distance Education and maintains its own permanent Associate Dean and faculty in Monterey. The NSA division teaches one of the NWC's core academic courses called Theater Security and Decision Making that focuses on national security. For more information, see the program's webpage at <https://my.nps.edu/web/naval-war-college>.

Responsibilities. Specific responsibilities include teaching core graduate-level security studies survey courses, collaborating in the development of common core curricula, professional development and contribution, and college service. There is no requirement or expectation to attract external funding. Normal teaching load is 2/2/2/0 based on a 12-month quarter system. This normally involves teaching two seminar sections (single preparation) of 15 students each for three academic quarters per year. A fourth quarter is normally devoted to research, writing, curriculum development, and college service. All positions are year-round (12-month).

Qualifications. Qualified candidates must have an advanced degree from an accredited university. A master's degree is required; a Ph.D. is preferred. Concentration areas include: International Relations/Affairs, Foreign Policy Analysis, Security Studies, U.S. Government Studies, U.S. Foreign Policy, History, Applied Social Sciences, or a related field. Preferred qualifications include: an established or promising scholarly agenda and/or experience in security affairs, demonstrated experience working in the national security and defense environment, graduate-level teaching experience, graduation from a senior or intermediate-level Service College, Joint Professional Military Education phase I and/or II certification, and experience in a joint or service staff or government organization.

Candidates must be U.S. citizens and be capable of obtaining a Department of Defense security clearance at the SECRET level.

Salary. Salary is competitive and is accompanied by a generous federal civil service package that includes health insurance, pension and retirement savings plans (with employer matching contributions), paid vacation and sick leave, and other benefits. Rank and salary are commensurate with experience and credentials in accordance with the Department of the Navy Faculty Schedule.

Application Procedures. Applicants must reference VA#NWC-23-19 and forward their application package to: NWC-23-19@usnwc.edu. The application package shall include the following: 1) cover letter; 2) Curriculum Vitae/Resume; 3) teaching evaluations or other evidence of teaching effectiveness (if available); 4) research agenda (no more than 5 pages) if applying for tenure/tenure-track; and 5) contact information for three professional references. Applications will be accepted through 11:59 pm (EDT) 29 September 2023.

Questions about the position or the institution should be directed via email to Dr. Robert Tomlinson at robert.tomlinson@usnwc.edu.

NOTICE OF VETERANS PREFERENCE: There is no formal rating system for applying veterans' preference to the excepted service; however, the Department of Defense considers veterans' preference eligibility a positive factor for hiring. Applicants eligible for veterans' preference must include that information in their cover letter or resume/CV and attach supporting documentation (DD Form 214, "Certificate of Release or Discharge from Active Duty" to their submission. Although the point-preference system is not used, applicants eligible to claim 10-Point preference must submit a Standard Form (SF) 15, "Application for 10-Point Veteran Preference," and supporting documents of the claimed disability (e.g., disability letter from the VA). The SF 15, which lists the types of 10-Point Preference and the required supporting documents, is available from the Office of Personnel Management Website at www.opm.gov.

Within the Department of Defense (DoD), the appointment of retired military members within 180 days immediately following retirement date to a civilian position is subject to the provisions of 5 United States Code 3326.

Salem State University

Rank: Faculty - Public Policy - Full Time, Temporary

Specializations: Race & Ethnic Politics, Housing, Education Policy

The politics, policy and international relations department at Salem State University invites a full-time, temporary faculty position for the 2024-2025 academic year. We are seeking a public policy specialist with familiarity with policies in an urban context such as housing, education, transportation, policing, poverty, and/or immigration. This position is part of a Salem State initiative to help establish and advance our proposed North Shore Policy Lab and may be reappointed for up to two additional years subject to available funding. With continued growth of the program, there may be additional tenure track lines in the department.

Housed in the department's Bates Center for Public and Global Affairs, the North Shore Policy Lab will involve students in research conducted on behalf of local and state government and non-governmental organizations in order to prepare them for jobs in the public, non-profit and/or private sectors.

The candidate should be well-versed in both quantitative and qualitative research methods and be able to teach our current Research Methods course as well as a new, advanced multi-methods class that will serve as the foundation for student work on applied policy research projects as a part of the policy lab. The ideal candidate will have a demonstrated record of community-based research and community partnerships with a focus on equity issues in the context of urban areas like those served by Salem State.

Salem State University is committed to excellence in teaching. We pride ourselves in providing first-rate classroom experiences and supervising intensive learning opportunities such as research and internships. Many of our students are first generation, racial/ethnic minorities, veterans, and adult learners. Salem State University is located in the Greater Boston area in the historic city of Salem, Massachusetts. The Greater Boston region is famous for its world-class education, healthcare, and business enterprises and the area offers numerous opportunities for professional and personal enrichment.

Duties and Responsibilities

Candidates are required to perform duties in accordance with the MSCA contract. Duties include teaching, advising, scholarship and contributions to continuously improve the department and university. The standard teaching load is 12 credit hours per semester. The position is subject to available funding.

Required Qualifications:

Earned PhD in public policy or a related field from an accredited institution (ABD considered if degree will be conferred by September 2024)

Advising and/or mentoring experience

Preferred Qualifications:

Commitment to anti-racist, culturally responsive teaching
 Demonstrated expertise in community-based research
 Active publication record and/or exemplary scholarly potential (e.g., ABD candidates with strong pipeline of research)
 Prior applied experience in non-profit or public sector settings
 Demonstrated excellence in teaching

As an emerging Hispanic Serving Institution (HSI), Salem State University seeks to enrich the faculty/librarian ranks by actively encouraging candidates whose lived and scholarly experiences directly address issues regarding the health, welfare, and representation of Latinx populations in the United States. Candidates who meet this strongly desired qualification should present documented activities in Latinx-related teaching, scholarship/research, and service, including community-based endeavors in each of these three areas.

Working Conditions:

This is an on-site, in-person position.

Salem State University complies with the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA) to provide reasonable accommodation to qualified applicants and employees with disabilities. For accommodation information or requests please email eo-hr@salemstate.edu.

Special Instructions to Applicants:

Please apply online and attach curriculum vitae, cover letter, teaching philosophy, and a diversity statement (please read our institutional diversity statement and describe how you would contribute to our mission in your teaching, research, mentoring/advising, and service).

The online portal can be found at: <https://internal-salemstate.icims.com/jobs/2894/faculty%2c-political-science-%28public-policy%29%2c-full-time%2c-temporary%2c-fall-2024/job>

Employment is contingent upon a completed background and CORI check satisfactory to the university.

This position is not eligible for H1B visa sponsorship.

Please Note: If there is no application deadline associated with a position, it may be removed at any time and additional applications will not be accepted.

Rank: Tenure Track Assistant Professor in American Politics, Political Science

Tenure Track Assistant Professor in American Politics, Political Science

The department of political science at Colgate University invites applications for a tenure-stream position in American Politics at the rank of Assistant Professor. The appointment will begin in the fall of 2024. We seek an Americanist who focuses on political institutions, public policy and/or political economy. We welcome any substantive focus, with a special interest in scholarship related to inequality, poverty, class, gender, immigration, or populism. The successful candidate should be able to teach an introductory course on Congress as well as more advanced courses in the candidate's areas of interest.

All Colgate faculty are also expected to participate in all-university programs, including the Liberal Arts Core Curriculum. The teaching load is five courses (or their equivalent) over two semesters. The salary for this position will range from $89,500 (for ABD applicants) to $93,500 (for applicants with a PhD in hand).

Please submit a letter of interest, curriculum vitae, evidence of teaching excellence (e.g., statement of teaching philosophy and student evaluations of teaching), a writing sample (30 pages single-spaced or 60 pages double-spaced), and three letters of recommendation. Completion of PhD is required before, or shortly after, the date of hire.

All materials must be submitted online at [<http://apply.interfolio.com/130449>]. Review of applications will begin October 2nd and continue until the position is filled.

Colgate strives to be a community supportive of diverse perspectives and identities. All applications should speak directly, particularly in the cover letter, to the candidate's ability to work effectively with students across a wide range of identities and backgrounds.

Colgate University is a leading liberal arts university of 3200 students situated in central New York state. Applicants with dual-career considerations can find postings of other employment opportunities at Colgate and at other institutions of higher education in upstate New York at www.upstatenyherc.org.

Oklahoma State University

Rank: Assistant Professor

Specializations: American Politics, Political Parties & Organizations, Presidency

Assistant Professor: Campaigns, Money, and/or Lobbying

The Department of Political Science at Oklahoma State University invites applications for a tenure-track assistant professor position in American politics, with a substantive focus in campaigns, money in politics, and/or lobbying, to begin in August 2024. Competitive candidates will demonstrate the potential for a productive research agenda and an ability to teach and mentor both undergraduate and graduate students, effectively, at a leading, land-grant university. Preference will be given to candidates who can demonstrate a commitment to teaching courses with significant real-world applicability and experiential-learning opportunities. A Ph.D. in Political Science is expected at the time of appointment.

The teaching load for the successful candidate is two courses per semester. These offerings will be drawn from sections of introductory American government, requirements for the department's popular Campaigning, Lobbying, and Policymaking degree option and Campaigns and Lobbying minor, and undergraduate and graduate seminars that reflect the candidate's research expertise. In addition, the department keeps the service load of new, assistant professors to a minimum and provides generous start-up funds and travel support to support research.

Oklahoma State University is one of the state's two comprehensive research universities. Its Stillwater campus has a population of over 23,000 students. The Department of Political Science is housed within the College of Arts and Sciences and offers B.S. and B.A. degrees, with degree options in campaigning, global politics, pre-law, and public policy. It also offers M.A. degrees in Politics and Policy Studies, as well as Peace, Conflict, and Security Studies. The department will give full consideration to applications received by October 5, 2023, but the search will continue until the position is filled.

Applicants can submit their materials through Interfolio <https://apply.interfolio.com/130504> (link here), including the following items:

- letter of application, which should address their commitment to the education of all students, regardless of background
- vitae
- graduate transcripts; the department will accept unofficial transcripts as part of the initial application submission but will expect receipt of official transcripts before a candidate interviews on campus
- a list of three references; the department will expect receipt of recommendation letters from these three referees within one week of contacting candidates for a preliminary Zoom interview
- evidence of successful teaching and scholarship
- statements of teaching and research interests

Candidates may also address their perspectives on furthering the understanding of, and interest in, the challenges and opportunities facing all populations in their statements on teaching and research interests, as appropriate. The department is committed to promoting a welcoming and supportive culture in which all students, professors, and staff members feel that their contributions are valued. As such, the department seeks a rich and deep pool of applicants. Please, contact Dr. Howard Sanborn (howard.sanborn@okstate.edu) with any questions about this position. For more information about the department, please visit polsci.okstate.edu.

The department is committed to creating an inclusive space for our students, faculty, and staff and to teaching and mentoring our undergraduate and graduate scholars from various backgrounds. As such, the department seeks a diverse pool of applicants. Currently, 40 percent of our department's undergraduate student body is comprised of members of underrepresented racial/ethnic minority groups; women comprise 50 percent. Members of these groups are encouraged to apply.

Oklahoma State University, as an equal opportunity employer, complies with all applicable federal and state laws regarding non-discrimination and affirmative action. Oklahoma State University is committed to a policy of equal opportunity for all individuals and does not discriminate based on race, religion, age, sex, color, national origin, marital status, sexual orientation, gender identity/expression, disability, or veteran status with regard to employment, educational programs and activities, and/or admissions. University of California, Davis

Rank: Assistant (tenure-track)

The Department of Political Science at UC Davis, a leading R1 institution, invites applications for a position at the Assistant (tenure-track) Professor level in American Politics. While our needs span multiple areas within the field, we are especially interested in candidates who can contribute in the areas of race, ethnicity, gender, and identity politics. We seek applicants who have exceptional potential for research; who aspire to educate a student body rich in diversity with respect to gender, ethnicity, first-generation students, socioeconomic status, and academic interests; and who will contribute to the department's efforts to promote the success, both at the undergraduate and graduate level, of historically underrepresented, socio-economically disadvantaged, and marginalized student communities.

Applications will be accepted on-line at <https://recruit.ucdavis.edu/JPF05926>. Candidates should upload a curriculum vitae, cover letter, a statement describing their research interests, sample publications or an article-length writing sample, a statement of Contributions to Diversity, Equity, and Inclusion, and a statement of teaching accomplishments and philosophy. Applicants will also be asked to provide three to five letters of reference through the online recruitment system. A Ph.D. or evidence that the degree would be complete by the time of the appointment start date is required. The anticipated starting date is July 1, 2024. Applications must be received by October 1, 2023 to guarantee initial full consideration, but the position will remain open until filled. Appointment level and salary are commensurate with experience. A reasonable estimate for this position is $103,000-135,000.

This recruitment is conducted at the assistant rank. The resulting hire will be at the assistant rank, regardless of the proposed appointee's qualifications. If you experience technical problems in uploading your application material please contact our Academic Personnel Coordinator, Angus Chang, at aychang@ucdavis.edu.

The University of California, Davis and the Department of Political Science are interested in candidates committed to the highest standards of scholarship and professional activities, and to the development of a campus climate that supports diversity, equity, and inclusion that are embedded within our Principles of Community. The University of California is an affirmative action/equal opportunity employer, and we particularly encourage applications from members of historically underrepresented racial/ethnic groups, women, individuals with disabilities, veterans, LGBTQ community members, and others who demonstrate the ability to help us achieve our vision of a diverse and inclusive community.

University of Denver

Rank: Professor in American Politics / Race, Ethnicity, and Politics

The Department of Political Science and the Critical Race and Ethnic Studies Program (CRES) at the University of Denver invite applications for a jointly appointed tenure-line Assistant or tenured Associate Professor to start in Fall 2024 in the field of American politics. The Department of Political Science consists of twelve tenured or tenure-line faculty supporting the Bachelors of Arts degree in political science within the College of Arts, Humanities, and Social Sciences at the University of Denver. The Critical Race and Ethnic Studies program (CRES) was founded in 2018 with an undergraduate minor, expanding to a full program with a tenured faculty director, two visiting faculty members, and numerous affiliated faculty members. CRES now offers an undergraduate major and minor and has approval for additional faculty lines being added over the next few years. Political Science serves approximately 200 majors and CRES serves 50 minors. Both programs serve undergraduate students across campus in the common curriculum. Our faculty are dedicated to the robust pursuit of research, publication, and public engagement. We also value diversity, equity, and inclusion: a commitment by all constituents to create an academic experience that embraces and engages diverse perspectives and communities within an atmosphere of mutual respect. Our curricula endeavor to develop students' abilities to think critically, communicate clearly, write effectively, and develop compelling analytical argumentation based on justifiable sources of empirical evidence and analytical reasoning.

Position Summary

We seek applications from American Politics scholars who study Race, Ethnicity, and Politics. Specific concentrations within American Politics and Race, Ethnicity, and Politics are open.

The University of Denver embraces a teacher-scholar model where faculty balance their commitments to rigorous scholarship and undergraduate education. The position requires teaching the equivalent of five courses over the standard academic year (three quarters) in the Political Science department and/or CRES program, covering a range of CRES major requirements (i.e., Introduction, Theory, or Quantitative Methods in CRES) and cross listed upper division courses. The faculty member will be a fully participating and voting member of the Political Science Department. During the first two years of the position, the faculty member will also assist the Director of the CRES program in developing the new CRES major. To facilitate this, the faculty member will be protected from other substantial service obligations. After the first two years, the CRES program and Political Science department have established a practical distribution of teaching and service obligations.

Our curriculum is delivered via conventional face-to-face classes on our traditional residential campus, with most online-only courses occurring during summer sessions (which faculty may elect to teach for supplemental income, pending sufficient enrollment). We welcome the incorporation of experiential learning opportunities in the curriculum. Adhering to the teacher-scholar model, the position requires maintaining an active scholarly agenda as demonstrated via scholarly publications, academic conference participation, etc. The person holding this position would also be expected to contribute to University, College, and departmental/program service.

Essential Functions

- Pursue a research agenda that results in high-quality scholarly publications.

- Teach the equivalent of five courses across three quarters per academic year, including cross-listed upper division classes between Political Science and the CRES program, as well as introductory, methods, theory, and senior project courses within the CRES program specifically. The teaching schedule will be annually coordinated with the CRES program director and Political Science department chair.
- Meet outside of class in office hours on campus and/or online to provide guidance and assistance to students enrolled in courses taught and to provide major advising to political science and CRES students.
- Deploy best practices through the University of Denver's current course management system (Canvas), utilizing Canvas tools such as discussion boards, quizzes, assignments with uploaded files, and the gradebook as the means to collect student work, communicate feedback and assignment grades, and conduct class sessions and individual appointments remotely when the need for this arises.
- Advise students about program and BA requirements.
- Contribute to University, College, departmental, and program service.

Knowledge, Skills, and Abilities

- Advanced scholarly expertise (PhD level) in the field of American politics, focusing on Race, Ethnicity, and Politics.
- Successful publication of peer-reviewed scholarship on American politics, focusing on Race, Ethnicity, and Politics, and evidence of future promise as a scholar.
- Excellent skills in oral and written communication.
- Excellent undergraduate teaching skills
- Ability to interact constructively with a diverse population of faculty, staff, and undergraduate students.

Required Qualifications

- Ph.D. in Political Science or related field or interdisciplinary program (e.g. American studies). Must have a Ph.D. by start of appointment.
- Evidence of a relevant established scholarly agenda that is indicated by peer-reviewed publications.
- Experience serving as an instructor of record in undergraduate &/ or graduate courses in political (or related social) science.
- Interest in (at the Assistant Level) or expertise in (at the Associate Level) developing upper-division undergraduate courses to help build out the CRES curriculum.
- Growth toward (at the Assistant Level) or evidence of (at the Associate Level) teaching excellence and a commitment to incorporate inclusive teaching methods and/or pedagogies to effectively engage students from a wide range of backgrounds.
- A demonstrated commitment to, and experience in, promoting DEI and in using inclusive pedagogies.
- Experience using course management software (such as Canvas or similar).

Salary Range:

The salary range for this position is Assistant Professor $70,000-$82,000 and Associate Professor (with tenure) $83,000-$95,000.

The University of Denver has provided a compensation range that represents its good faith estimate of what the University may pay for the position at the time of posting. The University may ultimately pay more or less than the posted compensation range. The salary offered to the selected candidate will be determined based on factors such as the qualifications of the selected candidate, departmental budget availability, internal salary equity considerations, and available market information, but not based on a candidate's sex or any other protected status.

Benefits:

The University of Denver offers excellent benefits, including medical, dental, retirement, paid time off, tuition benefit and ECO pass. <https://www.du.edu/sites/default/files/2022-05/benefits-overview-benefited-employees.pdf>

Application Deadline

For best consideration, please submit your application materials by 5:00 p.m. (MST) September 15, 2023

Special Instructions

Candidates must apply online through jobs.du.edu to be considered. Only applications submitted online will be accepted. Here is the direct link to the online listing: <https://jobs.du.edu/en-us/job/496675/assistantassociate-professor-in-political-science-critical-race-and-ethnic-studies>

Please include the following documents with your application:

1. CV that indicates scholarly specialization, publications and/or working papers, and courses you have taught before as an instructor.
2. Cover Letter explaining your interest in and qualifications for this position
3. Three distinct statements (1-2 pages each), combined into one document with identifying headers, that articulate your (a) research agenda, (b) teaching philosophy and methods to engage students, and (c) how your research, teaching, and/or service contribute to DU's values, practices, and actions regarding diversity, equity, and inclusion. Candidates can view DU's DEI Action Plan [<https://www.du.edu/equity/dei-action-plan>] and/or the College of Arts and Humanities and Social Sciences (CAHSS) DEI Strategic Plan [<https://liberalarts.du.edu/news-events/all-articles/diversity-equity-and-inclusion-strategic-plan-cahss>] for reference.
4. Three samples of written work (e.g., two chapters from dissertation or book and one article).
5. Evidence of teaching effectiveness such as two course syllabi, a set of teaching evaluations from two different courses, and any other artifacts of teaching excellence (e.g., a teaching award), all combined into one pdf file with headers identifying each discrete component.
6. For applicants who have not finished their PhD, please include graduate transcripts.
7. Contact information for three professional/academic references who will be emailed to upload letters of recommendation if required. Candidates using Interfolio may arrange to send all three letters of recommendation in one pdf file via email to Darlene.Squires@du.edu. No other materials beyond letters of recommendation should be sent via Interfolio.

Diversity, Equity, Inclusion, & Justice

The University of Denver recognizes that its success in being a great university dedicated to the public good depends greatly on how well it engages, supports, and champions the values of diversity, equity, inclusion, and justice. As part of our intentionality in recruiting and retaining faculty from a wide variety of historically excluded intersecting identities, including those from communities of color, with diverse gender and sexual identities, first-generation college graduates, or with disabilities, new faculty will have the opportunity to choose to participate in a university-wide initiative. This initiative will connect new colleagues in a cohort, building community across units with supportive programming led by the Office of the Vice Provost of Faculty Affairs in collaboration with the Division of Diversity, Equity, and Inclusion and each faculty participant's academic unit. To learn more about the University of Denver's commitments and work in support of DEI and J, please visit: <https://www.du.edu/equity>. University of Rochester

Rank: Black Politics

The University of Rochester's Department of Political Science invites applications from candidates working on Black Politics, broadly construed, for a tenure-track or tenured position at the assistant or associate professor rank, starting July 1, 2024. The primary appointment will be in the Department of Political Science, with the possibility of a joint appointment in the Department of Black Studies. The position is part of an effort to foster path-breaking research in Black Politics, and to strengthen ties with the Frederick Douglass Institute and the Department of Black Studies. This hire is also part of a multi-year initiative to bolster the department's profile in the rigorous analysis of race and ethnic politics. Tenure upon appointment for qualified senior candidates may be granted, contingent on favorable review of the candidate's dossier by the department, the dean of arts & sciences, and the provost.

All applications should include a letter of interest, C.V., research statement, teaching statement, and samples of written work. Candidates for a position at the rank of assistant professor should also include letters of recommendation, and candidates without a prior tenure-track appointment should include a graduate transcript. The University of Rochester is firmly committed to advancing equity and fostering an inclusive and diverse community. We ask candidates to include a statement detailing their past work and future plans for achieving these goals.

Materials should be submitted online at: www.rochester.edu/faculty-recruiting. For more information on the University of Rochester

Political Science Department, go to: <http://www.sas.rochester.edu/psc/>. For more information on the Frederick Douglass Institute and Department of Black Studies, go to: <https://www.sas.rochester.edu/aas/>.

Furman University

Rank: Assistant, Associate, or full Professor in Politics and International Affairs

Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Open, Open

The Department of Politics and International Affairs at Furman University invites applications for a tenure-track appointment at the Assistant, Associate, or Full professorial rank in American politics, specializing in racial and ethnic politics, to begin August 1, 2024. The candidate will teach five courses per year, including introductory and upper-level courses in American politics. The candidate must demonstrate the potential for superb teaching and excellence in scholarship. The person hired must possess a Ph.D. in Political Science by August 1, 2024.

Applicants should submit the following documents as a single PDF in the order listed: a letter of interest, C.V., diversity statement, and complete contact information for three references. The diversity statement should describe how the candidate's teaching, scholarship, mentoring and/or service might contribute to a liberal arts college community that includes a commitment to diversity as one of its core values.

Furman University is committed to advancing diversity, equity, and inclusion in all facets of university life and strives to create an anti-racist community through excellence in teaching, mentorship, and programming. Numerous initiatives and programs are underway or planned to promote these ideals, including historical projects, dialogue initiatives, the Center for Inclusive Communities, and a recently approved major in Africana Studies.

The successful candidate will have the ability to work with historically underrepresented students, including students of color, and be committed to assisting the university in its continuing efforts to become a model of inclusive excellence.

The Politics and International Affairs Department is a large department with specialists in all major political science fields. The Department is committed to fostering a professional community where every member is treated with dignity. All are welcome to participate in the department's life and the respectful exploration of ideas. The candidate should show interest in and aptitude for contributing to this endeavor.

The Furman student experience is supported by a rich network of centers and institutes that includes The Riley Institute, The David E. Shi Center for Sustainability, The Hill Institute for Innovation and Entrepreneurship, The Institute for the Advancement of Community Health, The Herring Center for Continuing, Graduate, and Professional Education, The Rinker Center for Study Away and International Education, The Cothran Center for Vocational Exploration, The Shucker Center for Leadership Development, The Malone Center for Career Engagement, The Center for Inclusive Communities, the Furman Humanities Center, and our newest addition, the Tocqueville Center for the Study of Democracy and Society.

Furman is located in Greenville, South Carolina, one of the fastest-growing cities in the Southeast, and is ranked among "America's Ten Best" by Forbes Magazine. The thriving downtown features excellent restaurants, in-town parks, shops, museums, galleries, music venues, and theaters. Greenville also enjoys an impressive network of nonprofits, small businesses, and international corporations. The city also has excellent public and private schools and a vibrant international community. A 20-mile bike and running trail connects the university to Greenville and to Travelers Rest, which was named "one of America's coolest small towns." The surrounding area abounds with outdoor recreational activities and has some of the country's most beautiful lakes, rivers, and mountains. Greenville is 2½ hours from Atlanta, 1½ hours from Charlotte, and only one hour from Asheville, North Carolina. Greenville is within easy reach of the Blue Ridge Mountains and Atlantic Beaches. The newly renovated Greenville-Spartanburg Airport, located just 25 minutes from downtown, runs daily flights to major cities and airline hubs. It is an ideal place to live and work.

We will begin reviewing applications on October 23, 2023, and continue until the position is filled.

University of Virginia

Rank: Assistant Professor of Public Policy and Politics, Tenure Track

Specializations: Bureaucracy & Organizational Behavior, Legislative Studies, State Politics

The Frank Batten School of Leadership and Public Policy at the University of Virginia seeks to fill a tenure-track, Assistant Professor faculty position in public policy and politics with a start date in Fall 2024. We invite applications from candidates who have earned their doctorate in political science, public policy, or related disciplines, with a focus on American political institutions. We welcome applicants from all subfields within American political institutions whose work focuses on the politics affecting U.S. public policies, including but not limited to the bureaucracy, legislative politics, or state and local government.

The successful candidate will demonstrate the ability to produce highly influential scholarship. The successful candidate must have the desire and ability to effectively teach courses on politics, public policy, and leadership at the undergraduate (BA) and graduate (MPP) levels, and a desire and ability to contribute to the Batten mission through service and public outreach and engagement. The successful candidate will be committed to promoting diversity, equity, and inclusion.

While the primary appointment is in the Batten School, a joint/courtesy appointment could be possible in the Politics Department depending on the candidate's interests and qualifications. The Batten School is a dynamic cross-disciplinary school offering highly competitive teaching loads, salaries, and research support. The Batten School is committed to faculty growth, including multiple searches this year.

Built upon the strong foundation of one of the nation's top public universities, the Batten School combines rigorous training in policy analysis with a unique emphasis on the acquisition of leadership skills. The research faculty includes psychologists, economists, and political scientists, and is enriched by professors of practice who bring real-world policymaking expertise to the classroom. The Batten School currently offers an MPP degree and an undergraduate major and minor in public policy and leadership, as well as multiple dual degree programs with other UVA units.

The candidate should have a PhD, or be on track to attaining the PhD, by August 1, 2024. Applications must be received by September 30, 2023, to receive full consideration, after which applications will be considered on a rolling basis.

TO APPLY

Please apply through Interfolio: <http://apply.interfolio.com/128626>

Applicants must complete the online application and submit the following required materials:

- A cover letter
- A CV
- Three letters of recommendation
- A writing sample
- A research statement
- A teaching statement
- The University's Mission Statement affirms its enduring commitment to a vibrant and unique residential learning environment marked by the free and collegial exchange of ideas; unwavering support of a collaborative, diverse community bound together by distinctive foundational values of honor, integrity, trust, and respect; and universal dedication to excellence and affordable access. As part of your application, please describe your potential contributions to any aspect of this mission in a separate statement. Please focus upon your work skills and experience. In doing so, you may choose to refer to your personal perspective, but the focus of our consideration is on your potential contributions through skills and experience, rather than personal opinions or beliefs.

The selected candidate will be required to complete a background check at time of offer per University Policy.

For questions about the application process, please contact Jennett Murphy, Assistant Director of Faculty Affairs jennett.murphy@virginia.edu.

University of Chicago

Rank: Collegiate Assistant Professor

Subfield(s): Public Policy, American Government and Politics, International Relations

Specializations: Political Philosophy & Theory, History & Politics, Quantitative Methods

The College at the University of Chicago is now accepting applications for four-year postdoctoral teaching appointments as Harper and Schmidt Fellows who hold the rank of Collegiate Assistant Professor. Collegiate Assistant Professors are members of the College Faculty whose primary professional responsibility is to teach in the general education (Core) program. <https://college.uchicago.edu/academics/core-curriculum>

Core courses in the Humanities typically deal with fundamental issues and texts in history, philosophy, and literature. Currently, the Core is organized into eight year-long sequences: Readings in World Literature; Human Being and Citizen; Greece and Rome: Texts, Traditions, Transformations; Philosophical Perspectives on the Humanities; Media Aesthetics; Reading Cultures; Poetry and the Human; and Language and the Human. We encourage applicants to spend time reviewing the descriptions and syllabi for Core sequences to understand the distinct topics and approaches and gauge best fit. Descriptions of these courses are available here: <https://college.uchicago.edu/academics/core/humanities-core>

Core courses in the Social Sciences explore, on the basis of significant works or primary source materials, the fundamental concepts and the different modes of inquiry that have defined the social sciences in the modern period. Currently, we are inviting applications for Collegiate Assistant Professors to teach in some of the year-long sequences into which the Core is organized: Self, Culture and Society; Classics of Social and Political Thought; Power, Identity, and Resistance; Democracy: Equality, Liberty and the Dilemma of Self-Governance; Global Society; Mind; and Social Science Inquiry. We encourage applicants to spend time reviewing the descriptions and syllabi for Core sequences to understand the distinct topics and approaches and gauge best fit. Descriptions of these courses are available here: <https://college.uchicago.edu/academics/core/social-sciences-core>

Some Collegiate Assistant Professors also teach in the History of European Civilization Core sequence as well as the Introductions to the Civilizations of East Asian Core sequences. These courses are taught on the basis of intensive readings of significant primary source documents. For descriptions and syllabi of the History of European Civilization and the Civilizations of East Asia sequences see: <https://college.uchicago.edu/academics/core/civilization-studies-core>

The positions are open to scholars in all disciplines and areas of specialization who will have completed all requirements for their Ph.D. degree no later than August 31, 2024. Candidates must demonstrate excellence in teaching as well as in their original scholarship. While many Core sequences feature set reading lists, applicants need not have conventional expertise in the specific texts and topics that are currently taught. Rather, we welcome applicants from a wide variety of disciplinary backgrounds who can apply conceptual and methodological creativity and skill to the teaching of general education courses. Applicants should be prepared 1) to identify and guide students through fundamental questions in a Core sequence and 2) to contribute meaningfully to the instructional community and the curricular evolution for that Core sequence.

In most years, Collegiate Assistant Professors teach two courses (usually of identical preparation) for each of three quarters. In the second through fourth year of residence, each Collegiate Assistant Professor has the opportunity to design up to two independent courses and each is eligible for one quarter of research sabbatical. In the fourth year there is a possibility of another quarter of sabbatical with salary reduction.

The position comes with an annual salary for 2024-25 of $82,571, carries full benefits, and an annual professional development fund of $6,500. The effective date for these teaching appointments is September 1, 2024.

To apply for these positions, please see our web site at <https://fellows.uchicago.edu>.

The terms and conditions of these positions are described in the collective bargaining agreement between the University and the Service Employees International Union.

On-line application deadline: 11:59:59 PM EDT, Friday, October 13, 2023.

All University departments and institutes are charged with building a faculty from a diversity of backgrounds and with diverse viewpoints; with cultivating an inclusive community that values freedom of expression; and with welcoming and supporting all their members.

We seek a diverse pool of applicants who wish to join an academic community that places the highest value on rigorous inquiry and encourages diverse perspectives, experiences, groups of individuals, and ideas to inform and stimulate intellectual challenge, engagement, and exchange. The University's Statements on Diversity are at <https://provost.uchicago.edu/statements-diversity>.

The University of Chicago is an Affirmative Action/Equal Opportunity/Disabled/Veterans Employer and does not discriminate on the basis of race, color, religion, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, national or ethnic origin, age, status as an individual with a disability, protected veteran status, genetic information, or other protected classes under the law. For additional information please see the University's Notice of Nondiscrimination.

Job seekers in need of a reasonable accommodation to complete the application process should call 773-834-0681 or email dneibel@uchicago.edu with their request before the application deadline.

The Department of Government and Politics (GVPT) in the College of Behavioral and Social Sciences (BSOS) at the University of Maryland, College Park, invites applications for a tenure-track position at the Assistant Professor level. This position is open to applicants who specialize in research on U.S. marginalized communities and political behavior. GVPT especially seeks candidates whose scholarship and teaching interests address immigrant and/or Latino/a/x communities and politics.

The successful candidate will be expected to demonstrate potential for a high-impact research agenda and plan to seek external funding for research. They will teach three to four courses per year at the undergraduate and graduate levels. They will also provide research advising to students at all levels and will engage in service to the profession and shared governance within the university. The position requires a Ph.D. prior to starting in August 2024.

Candidates whose scholarship speaks to the following broad substantive topics are encouraged to apply:

- Immigrant communities of color
- Latino/a/x politics
- Intersections between gender and race or gender and migration

This is a 3-year tenure-track appointment, with potential renewal for three years and tenure review. Salary and benefits are competitive based on qualifications and experience.

To Apply:

Colorado State University

Rank: Assistant Professor of American Politics

Position Summary: The Department of Political Science at Colorado State University invites applications for an entry-level tenure-track Assistant Professor position in American politics with a specialization in racial and ethnic politics. We are open with respect to theoretical orientation, substantive focus, and methodological approaches, and encourage applicants with a broad array of expertise in racial and ethnic politics in the US to apply.

The Department values both strong teaching and research. Successful candidates will be expected to offer courses in the American politics curriculum at both the undergraduate and graduate levels, including an upper-division undergraduate course in US racial and ethnic politics. Additional teaching assignments will depend on the candidate's interests and expertise as well as departmental needs. The normal teaching load is 2-2. Faculty members are also expected to advise and mentor graduate and undergraduate students; develop an active research agenda; and provide service to the department, college, university, and community. The Department offers programs of study leading to the B.A., M.A., and Ph.D. degrees; the doctoral program emphasizes the study of environmental politics and policy. Approximately one-third of undergraduate political science majors at CSU are first-generation college students.

Required Job Qualifications: Primary teaching and scholarly emphasis in American politics; evidence of an active research agenda focused on racial and ethnic politics in the US; PhD in Political Science or related field by August 16, 2024; evidence of teaching effectiveness including the capacity to teach an upper division undergraduate course on racial and ethnic politics in the US; ability to enhance the Department's commitment to diversity and inclusion reflecting Departmental and institutional values.

Application Procedure: Applications will be accepted until the position is filled; to ensure full consideration, complete applications should be received by September 8, 2023. Applicants should submit: 1) a letter of application outlining teaching interests and research agenda as well as a brief statement on how your teaching, research and/or service demonstrate a commitment to diversity and inclusion; 2) Curriculum vitae; 3) Graduate school transcripts (unofficial transcripts acceptable at the initial stage of the search), 4) Evidence of demonstrated or potential teaching effectiveness (syllabi, teaching evaluations, letters of observation), 5) One sample of published or presented work, and 6) The names and contact information of three professional referees who will be emailed immediately upon submission of an application with a request to submit a letter of reference. Please note that a complete application consists of the requested materials and three letters of references. Your referees will be emailed a request for a letter of reference immediately upon submission of your application. As such, applicants should allow sufficient time for their letters to be submitted by September 15, 2023 to ensure full consideration. Application materials of semi-finalist candidates, including letters of reference, will be made available for review by the entire faculty in the Department of Political Science. Questions about the position can be directed to Dr. Courtenay Daum (Courtenay.Daum@colostate.edu)

To apply, please visit: <http://jobs.colostate.edu/postings/59062>

CSU is an EO/EA/AA employer and conducts background checks on all final candidates. The Department of Political Science strives to create and support a diverse and inclusive environment appreciating and valuing the uniqueness of the individual. We value intellectual diversity and embrace a pluralistic approach to scholarship and teaching that reflects the broader society.

Background Check Policy Statement

Colorado State University (CSU) strives to provide a safe study, work, and living environment for its faculty, staff, volunteers and students. To support this environment and comply with applicable laws and regulations, CSU conducts background checks. The type of background check conducted varies by position and can include, but is not limited to, criminal (felony and misdemeanor) history, sex offender registry, motor vehicle history, financial history, and/or education verification. Background checks will be conducted when required by law or contract and when, in the discretion of the university, it is reasonable and prudent to do so.

Hamilton College

Rank: Assistant Professor of Government

Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Public Policy, Public Administration

The Government Department at Hamilton College invites applications for three tenure-track positions at the rank of Assistant Professor, beginning July 1, 2024. The new hires will collectively cover courses in public policy, American politics, and research methods, allocated based on individual expertise. This coordinated hire is part of a commitment to nourishing a diverse learning community and increasing possibilities for exchange focused on issues related to equality and inequality. We actively encourage applications from candidates whose work investigates the politics and policy of equality and inequality along one or more of the following axes: race and ethnicity; gender; class; sexuality; ability; religion; and migrant, refugee, or citizenship status. We seek candidates trained in either or both quantitative and qualitative methods and with academic backgrounds in American Politics, Public Policy, or Public Administration. Beyond that, there are no restrictions on area focus.

We are seeking candidates who can demonstrate their experience in teaching or working with diverse student populations. Your cover letter should address ways in which you raise issues of diversity and inclusion in your teaching, scholarship, and/or service.

These positions require institutional service including academic advising of undergraduate students after the first year.

The Government Department is responsible for the study of politics and public affairs at Hamilton. The department, which is one of Hamilton's largest, currently includes 17 faculty members, 12 of whom are tenured or pre-tenure. Department faculty include specialists in American politics, comparative politics, international relations, political theory, and public policy, and we teach a wide variety of courses across all these subfields. Each year, we also hire two practitioners, each of whom teaches a single one-semester course. The Department offers three majors: Government, World Politics, and Public Policy. Taken together, these three majors total about 85 students a year.

Candidates with ABD will be considered (and hired at the Instructor level until successful completion of their dissertation), although candidates with a Ph.D. are preferred. The teaching load for these positions is four courses during the first year and five courses thereafter. The expected salary range for these positions is $88,000 to $94,100. Candidates should submit cover letter, c.v., a writing sample, evidence of teaching ability, and a list of references via Interfolio at <https://apply.interfolio.com/129439>. Questions regarding the search may be directed to Peter F. Cannavo, Search Committee Chair, at pcannavo@hamilton.edu. Our review of applications will begin on October 1, 2023.

Hamilton College is a residential liberal arts college located in upstate New York. The College has built its reputation on the teaching excellence and leading scholarship of its faculty, and on the academic distinction and intellectual curiosity of its approximately 2000 students who take advantage of Hamilton's open curriculum (<https://www.hamilton.edu/academics/open-curriculum>). SUNY, University at Buffalo

Rank: Assistant/Associate Professor

The Department of Political Science, University at Buffalo, The State University of New York seeks an Associate or Assistant Professor (tenure-track) in American or Comparative Politics focusing on democratic processes and electoral phenomena.

We welcome applicants whose specialties are related to the study of democratic processes, democratic transition, consolidation, and regression, and specifically to the study of phenomena associated with elections. Issues of election reform, electoral integrity, and violence are central to the functioning of democracy both in the US and abroad. While elections are a central pillar of democratic legitimacy and consolidation, they can also serve as targets for instability incited by groups intent on bringing about democratic backsliding. All applicants studying democratic processes in these, and related research areas are invited to apply.

This hire will continue our recent faculty growth in the study of the topics noted above in the American or foreign/comparative contexts. Candidates that match the Department's strength in quantitative methods of analysis and formal modeling are especially welcome. Teaching will include political science courses at the undergraduate and graduate levels. Normal departmental, university and disciplinary service duties are expected. We encourage applications from Associate Professors, Assistant Professors, and graduate students who will complete their degree prior to the position start date. Salary and start-up will be competitive and commensurate with rank.

The faculty in the Department of Political Science understand the value and importance of diversity. We are committed to providing an open, supportive, and inclusive environment for all of our students, faculty, and staff members, consistent with the University's commitment to inclusive excellence.

A letter of application, a vita, and three letters of recommendation must be submitted electronically at <https://www.ubjobs.buffalo.edu/postings/43767>. Applicants applying at the Assistant Professor rank (including those who are ABD) should provide research and teaching statements. All applicants are encouraged to apply by October 1, 2023, to receive full consideration, although application review will begin immediately. Questions about the position can be directed to Dr. Rachael Hinkle by email at rkhinkle@buffalo.edu.

The Department of Political Science at UB is nationally recognized for its research in international relations, public law, and comparative and American politics. The department's strengths lie in its national and international reputation for high quality research. In addition to its strong PhD program, the department offers BA and MA degrees in both Political Science and Global Affairs.

University at Buffalo is an affirmative action/equal opportunity employer and, in keeping with our commitment, welcomes all to apply including veterans and individuals with disabilities.

University of Maryland, College Park

Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Comparative Politics, International Relations

The Department of Government and Politics at the University of Maryland College Park (UMCP) invites applications for the President's Postdoctoral Fellowship Program (PPFP). Candidates with research and teaching interests in the areas of international relations, comparative politics, and/or American politics will be considered. The purpose of the PPFP Program is to support promising scholars who are committed to diversity in academia. We particularly encourage applications from members of groups historically underrepresented in the professoriate. Upon successful completion of the PPFP Program and review, the Fellowship may convert to a tenure-track Assistant Professor position.

Founded in 1856, University of Maryland, College Park is the state's flagship institution. Our 1,250-acre College Park campus is just minutes away from Washington, D.C., and the nexus of the nation's legislative, executive, and judicial centers of power. This unique proximity to business and technology leaders, federal departments and agencies, and a myriad of research entities, embassies, think tanks, cultural centers, and non-profit organizations is simply unparalleled. Synergistic opportunities for our faculty and students abound and are virtually limitless in the nation's capital and surrounding areas. The University is committed to attracting and retaining outstanding and diverse faculty and staff that will enhance our stature of preeminence in our three missions of teaching, scholarship, and full engagement in our community, the state of Maryland, and in the world.

The Department of Government and Politics is one of the largest departments in the College of Behavioral and Social Sciences at the University of Maryland. It has over 30 tenured and tenure track faculty, over 1,000 majors, and 100 graduate students. Its faculty teach and conduct research in the major fields in political science, including American politics, comparative politics, international relations, political theory, political economy, and formal theory and methods. Realizing that many of the key problems we face have a significant political component, our faculty and students study a variety of issues with real-world policy implications ranging from civil wars and ethnic conflict to environmental politics, partisan polarization, and inequality.

We seek an active scholar with the potential to conduct cutting-edge research and innovative teaching interests in the area(s) of international relations, comparative politics, and/or American politics.

The successful Fellow will be appointed for a one-year 12-month term beginning July 1, 2024, with the expectation of renewal for a second one-year term contingent on review. The Fellow will receive a starting stipend of at least $58,000, health benefits, and $10,000 for startup. In addition, Fellows will have access to office space with computer, library access, and other privileges at the University. During the term of appointment, the Fellow will be expected to focus primarily on research. In addition, the Fellow will teach one course (one semester only) per year. Highly experienced research and teaching mentors will meet with the Fellow regularly to provide guidance on developing a pedagogically sound teaching philosophy and plan, and improving the skills needed to pursue an academic research career, including proposal and manuscript writing, and technical presentation skills. The Fellow will also participate in professional development opportunities developed by the Office of Postdoctoral Affairs and the Office of Faculty Affairs.

Selected candidates will be invited to formally apply to the University's PFPF program on the basis of scholarly promise and the potential to contribute to the diversity of the UMCP community. Applicants must have completed their doctoral degree when the term of appointment commences (July 1, 2024).

To express interest in the program, please send an email with the subject line including "Postdoctoral Fellowship" to sehughes@umd.edu. Interested candidates should submit the following documents with their expression of interest:

1. Cover Letter
2. Curriculum Vitae
3. Statement of Proposed Research Plan (2-3 pages)
4. Personal Statement that details your demonstrated commitment to diversity efforts and the mission of UMCP, preliminary ideas about potential mentors in the department, and why you should be selected for this opportunity (1-3 pages)
5. Teaching Statement (1-2 pages)

For best consideration, complete applications should be submitted via email by September 15, 2023.

Responsibilities:

- Design and deliver hands-on workshops on research methods, tools, and applications, including the collection or use of datasets, according to affiliates' needs
- Research and statistical consulting to CSDP affiliates and make recommendations and oversee the selection of research-relevant software
- Assist with the review, selection, recruiting, and mentoring of CSDP's fellows and research staff
- Assist with reading and selecting grant applications submitted for CSDP funding and also with the development and writing of CSDP directors' applications and proposals for funding
- Develop and oversee a new MPA fellows' program and supervise its fellows including their research activities and their policy-oriented writing
- Write reports and other content translating CSDP research for public and policymaker audiences, with the assistance of the MPA fellows

Essential requirements:

- PhD in political science
- Training in and experience using political science research methods including a strong quantitative background
- Strong programming skills, including in R
- At least one publication in an academic political science journal on topics in CSDP's core mission (the study of democratic politics)
- Minimum one-year post-PhD work experience in an academic setting
- Experience teaching research methods, data science, or related programming skills, or advising student activities in these areas
- Meticulous attention to detail and ability to proof one's own work and others'
- Demonstrated ability for creative problem-solving, active listening and interpersonal skills, empathy for others, proactive approach to work issues, openness to feedback on one's work performance, and taking initiative to address, anticipate and head off problems
- Experience with managing research projects from initiation through completion
- Eagerness to collaborate on projects and to cooperate with others in the work environment
- Motivated to produce at a high level of productivity and excellence

Preferred:

- Experience with data use agreements and how to develop partnerships and collaborations to obtain data

- working with or merging large or administrative datasets
- Specialized technical skills for the social sciences
- Experience communicating about political science or policy for broad audience

The RD will have a research budget for their use in attending conferences and similar activities facilitating their ongoing professional development as a researcher.

The position is for a three-year term, with the possibility of renewal, contingent on satisfactory performance. This position is subject to a background check.

Applicants must submit a CV, a cover letter describing their areas of expertise and research interests, and contact information for three references. References may be contacted for the candidates who make the shortlist for this position.

The search is open to candidates whose teaching and research focus on political institutions broadly. We are particularly interested in candidates who study public policy, Congress, the bureaucracy, interest groups, and/or race.

The political science department is housed within the Maxwell School of Citizenship and Public Affairs, which is committed to citizenship education at the undergraduate level and to graduate education in public affairs and the social sciences. We seek candidates who complement the broader Maxwell mission and have interdisciplinary interests. Successful candidates may be invited to affiliate with the Campbell Public Affairs Institute or one of Maxwell's other interdisciplinary centers (<http://www.maxwell.syr.edu/centers/>). The successful candidate will teach at both the undergraduate and graduate level. The typical course load is 2 classes a semester.

Applicants should have a Ph.D. in political science or a related field or a credible expectation of completing all requirements for the Ph.D. by August 2024. The Maxwell School is interested in candidates who can contribute to the inclusiveness and diversity of the academic community through their research, teaching, and/or service.

APPLICATION INSTRUCTIONS:

For consideration, candidates must complete an online faculty application (available at <http://www.sujobopps.com/>) and attach online the following: a letter of interest and a CV, a research statement, a sample of professional writing, a statement of teaching philosophy, and evidence of quality teaching. Files may be no larger than 5MB, but you may submit an external link to a larger file if needed.

In addition, applicants will be required to provide the full email addresses of three references.

Applications will be reviewed as they arrive with full consideration given to those received by October 1, 2023. However, the department will continue to consider applications until this position is filled. We encourage dual career academic couples to apply as well.

Reed College

Rank: Tenure-Track Appointment in American Politics

Applications are invited for a tenure-track appointment in American Politics at Reed College, located in Portland, Oregon, beginning Fall 2024. We anticipate making an appointment at the assistant professor level. Salary is competitive and based on experience. Reed provides generous travel and research support, and the Political Science Department has access to some additional professional development funds. We expect the Ph.D. to be in hand by the start of the appointment.

A successful candidate will teach five courses over two semesters which will include two sections of Introduction to American Politics and Policy, a quantitative research methods course, and additional upper division courses in the candidate's areas of expertise. Our pedagogy emphasizes the conceptual and theoretical foundations of the discipline and includes supervision of several students engaged in their required senior theses.

Reed College is a community that values cultural and intellectual pluralism as essential to the excellence of our academic program. We expect your cover letter to address how your scholarship, teaching, mentoring, and/or community service would support the commitment to diversity, equity, and inclusion articulated in Reed College's diversity and anti-racism statements (<http://www.reed.edu/diversity>). An Equal Opportunity Employer, Reed College values diversity and encourages applications from underrepresented groups.

We welcome applications from all specialties of American politics, with an interest in candidates who use quantitative methods in their research. Enrollment for all of our courses is capped at 24 students, and most of our courses are conducted as seminars. Above all, we seek candidates who demonstrate in their cover letter a strong commitment to teaching excellence at the undergraduate level, a lively and serious program of scholarship, and an interest in treating their specialties explicitly in the light of broader issues in the social sciences.

Please send an application letter, CV, and three letters of recommendation to <http://apply.interfolio.com/128345>.

Application deadline is September 15, 2023.

American University

Rank: Assistant Professor

The Department of Government in the School of Public Affairs at American University invites applications for two full-time, tenure-track positions beginning in Academic Year 2024-25. The positions will be at the rank of Assistant Professor. The Department is seeking American Politics scholars and Political Methodologists with substantive expertise in American politics. Applications from candidates who would enhance the diversity of the department are especially welcome.

Applicants should hold a PhD. Candidates should be effective teachers and must be strongly committed to excellence in scholarly research. The search is open regarding areas of substantive specialty, but the Department is especially interested in scholars whose research and teaching interests include American political institutions. Most of all, the department seeks scholars who will further its goals of producing high impact research and providing innovative undergraduate and graduate teaching. Applications are particularly welcome from scholars who can contribute to high visibility centers and research initiatives at American University, such as the Women and Politics Institute, Center for Congressional and Presidential Studies, Center for Data Science, and Center for Environmental Policy. In addition to scholarship and teaching, all faculty are expected to hold office hours and participate in School and University activities and service.

Review of applications will begin on September 1, 2023, and will continue until the positions are filled, subject to on-going budgetary approvals. The positions begin August 1, 2024. Applicants should have a PhD or an anticipated PhD completion date by August 2024.

Salary and benefits are competitive. Please submit applications via: <http://apply.interfolio.com/128065>. Include a letter of application, curriculum vitae, three confidential letters of recommendation, research and teaching narratives, and a writing sample. Please contact Rachel Whelan, Faculty Coordinator, 202-885-6201 or spa_academicaffairs@american.edu if you have any questions.

Suffolk University

Rank: Assistant Professor of Political Science

Specializations: Race & Ethnic Politics, American Politics, African American Politics

The Political Science and Legal Studies (PSLS) Department at Suffolk University invites applicants for a full time, tenure-track position in American Politics and Public Policy. The Department is interested in recruiting a teacher scholar with a focus on civil rights and liberties, race and ethnic politics, the role of identity in politics, or the impact of economic, social, or political inequality on marginalized groups.

Candidates should provide evidence of commitment to excellent teaching and scholarly potential including a research agenda and plans for peer-reviewed publication. The successful candidate will teach at the undergraduate and graduate level; previous teaching experience is preferred. The PSLS department offers three undergraduate majors (political science, international relations, and law) and two graduate programs (Master’s in Applied Politics and a Master’s in Global Public Policy). We are looking for candidates who are excited about developing and teaching courses in American Politics, American Institutions and/or public policy. Research methods is also a need in the department.

The successful candidate will contribute to a rich tradition of community-engaged teaching and experiential education that prepares our diverse, substantially first-generation college students—40% of whom are Pell eligible—for careers and civic engagement. The successful candidate will have a commitment to inclusive pedagogy and curricular diversity, mentoring and advising students—especially first-generation college students—as well as conducting impactful research.

Not sure this is you? Contact us to find out! Research indicates that women and members of under-represented groups tend not to apply to jobs when they think they do not meet every qualification, when, in fact, they often do. Suffolk University is dedicated to a diverse and inclusive academic community. Familiarity with and experience using pedagogical methods that enable students across racial, ethnic, socio-economic, and ability groups to reach their maximum potential is a valuable qualification.

Faculty in the PSLS department are award-winning teachers recognized for innovative pedagogical practices, community leaders civically engaged in advancing social justice, internationally recognized policy and political consultants and active researchers and scholars. Department faculty take advantage of our location in the heart of Boston to design exciting real-world learning opportunities.

Diversity, equity and inclusion are woven into Suffolk University’s very fabric. We have been providing access and expanding opportunities for under-represented groups for more than a century. This mission is lived through our decisions at every level. U.S. News ranked Suffolk University among the top 100 universities in the country for social mobility. Suffolk was also listed 14th nationally in percentage of international students. Through student, faculty and staff recruitment and support, community engagement, curriculum development, and research, the University community works to advance equity for every student, every day. Learn more about how we manifest the core values of our mission at Suffolk DEI.

Candidates must hold a PhD by the commencement of the 2024/2025 academic year; ABD candidates in the final stages of completing their degrees will be considered.

Application should be made through the Suffolk University Human Resources’ Careers at Suffolk site. A complete submission will include: cover letter (including research agenda); CV; graduate transcripts; research writing sample; statement of teaching philosophy; student course evaluations; and contact information for three professional references. For full consideration, applications should be submitted by September 30. Initial interviews will be via Zoom followed by on-campus interviews. The department will also hold an information session at the 2023 APSA conference in August.

Suffolk University is a private, comprehensive, urban university located in downtown Boston, and is an equal opportunity employer committed to faculty diversity. Candidates from underrepresented groups are encouraged to apply. You can learn more about Suffolk University from our website. To learn more about the Political Science & Legal Studies department, go to our department website.

Inquiries about the position and the APSA information session should be addressed to Dr. Rachael Cobb, Chair of the PSLS Department at rcobb@suffolk.edu.

Specializations: Congress, Presidency, Quantitative Methods

The Department of Political Science at the University of Rhode Island anticipates an opening for a faculty position in American politics specializing in U.S. political institutions, particularly Congress and the Presidency, and quantitative research methods. This is a tenure-track, academic year appointment at the rank of Assistant Professor to commence in the Fall of 2024.

We are seeking to attract a diverse pool of job applicants for this position. A key pillar of URI's mission is to "inspire an enlightened community that is characterized by vibrant cultural diversity; that embraces difference; that is built upon a learning environment that fosters respect, understanding, and social justice; and that rejects prejudice and intolerance." Our department seeks candidates whose principles align with that mission.

DUTIES AND RESPONSIBILITIES

The successful applicant will be expected to teach undergraduate political science courses in the areas of American politics and quantitative research methods that serve as requirements for the Political Science program. Some of these undergraduate classes may have up to 250 students.

Expected to publish original research in their respective field of study and advise undergraduate and graduate students.

Provide service to the department, the university and the profession.

REQUIRED QUALIFICATIONS:

- 1) Ph.D., or expectation of completion of degree requirements by appointment date of September 1, 2024, in Political Science.
- 2) Primary or secondary specialization in the following areas: American politics, Congress, and/or the Presidency.
- 3) Demonstrated ability to excel in teaching large, broad-based introductory political science courses in the area of American politics.
- 4) Demonstrated ability to teach upper-level political science courses on U.S. political institutions, especially Congress and/or the Presidency.
- 5) Evidence of research in the field of American politics with scholarly work commensurate with level of academic experience.
- 6) Ability to teach large introductory research methods courses.
- 7) Demonstrated experience working with diverse populations or in diverse environments.

All requirements are subject to possible modification to reasonably accommodate individuals with disabilities.

PREFERRED QUALIFICATIONS:

1) Ability to develop an externally grant-funded research program relevant to the field.

The application deadline is September 15, 2023.

Pomona College

Rank: Assistant Professor in the Politics of the United States

The Department of Politics at Pomona College invites applications for a tenure-track Assistant Professor in the politics of the United States, with a focus on race, ethnicity and/or identity politics. Qualified candidates should have a PhD in political science or related field. Candidates prepared to teach institutions and/or public policy a plus. Our department has a broad understanding of political science and encourages applications from a variety of approaches, methodologies and perspectives within the discipline. We seek to attract, develop, and retain faculty that contribute to the cultural, linguistic, experiential, and ideological diversity of our campus community.

Pomona is a top-ten liberal arts college that offers a need-blind, no-loan admissions policy and values equal access to higher education. This achievement is reflected in our diverse and outstanding student body of approximately 1,700 students, over 55% of whom identify as a person of color. The College maintains a student-to-faculty ratio of eight to one and is strongly committed to small-scale residential education. Accordingly, the department values excellent teaching and encourages applications from women, minorities, and individuals committed to mentoring our diverse and engaged student body. Faculty at Pomona teach two courses a semester, including introductory courses - in this case at least one section of Introduction to American Politics annually. College faculty are expected to maintain an active scholarship and service profile. The College offers many forms of support for scholarship, including a full-year, pre-tenure research leave. Founded in 1887, Pomona College is the founding member of the Claremont Colleges, a unique constellation of five small undergraduate colleges and two graduate institutions located in southern California near the foothills of the San Gabriel mountains, about 35 miles east of Los Angeles. Students of the Claremont Colleges can cross-register for courses at any of the colleges, and faculty and staff across the colleges often collaborate.

For full consideration, applications must be submitted by September 17, 2023. To apply, please submit for Assistant Professor of Politics on AcademicJobsOnline: 1) a cover letter; 2) a curriculum vitae; 3) graduate school transcripts; 4) a statement of teaching philosophy; 5) evidence of teaching effectiveness; 6) three sample syllabi; 7) a research statement; 8) written samples of your research; 9) a statement addressing your demonstrated knowledge of inclusive pedagogy and demonstrated ability to teach and mentor a diverse student body (more details here), and 10) three letters of recommendation. Alternatively, hard copies of the same materials may be sent to: Amanda Hollis-Brusky, Chair, Pomona College Politics Department, 425 North College Avenue, Claremont, CA. 91711. Bucknell University

Rank: Tenure-Track position in Political Science (American Politics)

Bucknell University’s Department of Political Science invites applications for a tenure-track position in American Politics beginning in Fall, 2024. We expect to hire at the Assistant Professor level but are open to considering outstanding candidates at other ranks. We seek candidates whose scholarly and teaching interests include race and ethnic politics in the U.S. The successful candidate will be prepared to teach a core course in American politics, a course in race and ethnic politics, a course in quantitative or qualitative research methods, and other American politics courses in the candidate’s areas of specialization.

We welcome candidates who demonstrate excellence in reflective multicultural and inclusive teaching practices and who display a strong commitment to collaboration and interdisciplinarity. Evidence of teaching excellence as well as the promise of being a productive scholar are critically important. The teaching load is five courses over two semesters. By the start date of the position, candidates are expected to have a Ph.D. in Political Science with a sub-field specialization in American politics, but ABD candidates will also be considered with the understanding that the Ph.D. must be completed before the beginning of the second year.

For additional information and to apply, please go to careers.bucknell.edu. The application should include a cover letter, C.V., statement of teaching philosophy, statement of commitment to diversity, three letters of recommendation, graduate transcripts, sample publications or papers, course evaluations, and sample syllabi relevant to this position. Applicants with questions about this position are encouraged to contact Professor Doug Hecock at douglas.hecock@bucknell.edu. The review of applications will begin on September 23, 2023 and will continue until filled.

About Bucknell

Bucknell University is a private, highly ranked, primarily undergraduate, national liberal arts institution that also offers strong professional programs in engineering, management, education, and music.

Bucknell University is an Equal Opportunity Employer. The university believes that students learn best in a diverse, inclusive community and is therefore committed to academic excellence through diversity in its faculty, staff, and students. Applications from members of groups that have been historically underrepresented in higher education are encouraged.

Bucknell is committed to creating a climate that fosters inclusion, growth, and development for a diverse student body, and seeks candidates who are also committed to these goals.

Bucknell is committed to supporting the teacher-scholar model of faculty development. With a student-faculty ratio of about 9:1, small class sizes are a hallmark of the Bucknell educational experience. The university sponsors a range of activities to support the development of its faculty, including a Teaching-Learning Center and generous research support and leave policies.

Bucknell is located in Lewisburg, Pennsylvania, on the banks of the Susquehanna River. The Lewisburg area offers a combination of outdoor recreation opportunities and small-town amenities. In addition to the cultural and athletic events offered at the University and in town, the region offers strong schools and medical facilities, and an affordable cost of living. Wellesley College

Rank: Assistant/Associate Professor of American Politics

The Department of Political Science at Wellesley College invites applications for a tenure-track or tenured appointment at the assistant or associate professor level in American politics, beginning in the academic year 2024-2025.

We are seeking candidates with expertise in a wide range of fields, though we are particularly interested in candidates whose research involves American political institutions and organizations, either at the national or subnational level. We are also interested in candidates who can teach an introductory methods course, whether qualitative, quantitative, or some combination. The person hired will be expected to teach our introductory course in American politics.

Candidates should have a strong commitment to teaching undergraduate students in a liberal arts environment. Faculty members at Wellesley teach two courses per semester.

Applications should include the following:

- A cover letter of no more than two pages;
- A one-page teaching statement;
- Teaching evaluations and syllabi (or a draft syllabus if you have one);
- Writing samples of research;
- A curriculum vitae; and
- Three (3) letters of recommendation.

ABD applicants should also include a graduate school transcript.

Not sure you meet all qualifications? Let us decide! Research shows that women and members of other under-represented groups tend to not apply to jobs when they think they may not meet every qualification, when in fact, they often do. Wellesley is dedicated to the goal of building a diverse and inclusive academic community through teaching, research, and service. Familiarity with and experience using pedagogical methods that enable students across racial, ethnic, and socio-economic groups to reach their maximum potential is a valuable qualification. Where applicable, candidates should include (as relevant) how diversity, inclusion, and equity connect to their teaching, scholarship, and service.

All materials should be submitted online by visiting our application website at <https://shorturl.at/hDE13>. We will begin reviewing applications on September 15, 2023, and will continue accepting applications after that date. If circumstances do not allow you to submit materials through our on-line application system, please email us at working@wellesley.edu. Wellesley College is an Affirmative Action/Equal Opportunity Employer.

Specific inquiries should be addressed to Prof. Tom Burke, chair of the search committee, at tburke@wellesley.edu.

California State University, Bakersfield

Rank: Assistant Professor of Political Science

The Department of Political Science at California State University, Bakersfield invites candidates to apply for a Tenure-Track faculty position in American Politics with a focus on Environmental Politics, Sustainability and Justice. Among the topics of interest that should be focused on are: climate change, global warming, and energy politics, agricultural and industrial environmental pollution, water politics and policy, homelessness, migration – locally and across various regions of the country and world, and America's global environmental footprint – with special attention to people from marginalized communities.

The Political Science Department is small but thriving – it is home to a robust Pre-Law Program, and a Model United Nations Program among others. The Department's student demographics are 70% women, and a substantial percentage of First-Generation students, and recently Forbes Magazine ranked CSUB 18th as Top Performer on social mobility. Furthermore, CSUB is a great location for anyone who is interested in studying what politics and policy looks like at the intersection of ethnorace, class, and an ongoing climate crisis. CSUB is located in Kern County which is over 60% Latinx and considered both an agricultural and oil and gas hub. The Central Valley is also the second-most pumped aquifer system in the U.S. We are located one hour and thirty minutes north of the Hollywood Bowl. One hour and 20 minutes from the Central California Coastal Wine Country, and one hour and 40 minutes to the state's central coast. Kern County is where more than 250 different crops are grown and where approximately 75% of California's irrigated land is located. A scholar professor would not only be able to conduct vital research for and about the region on the topics of water and agriculture but Kern county is also known for its involvement with oil and gas making CSUB a fruitful location to also study energy policy.

As a department, we are looking for a qualified and committed candidate with a PhD (ABDs may be also considered) in American Politics with an emphasis in Environmental Politics, Sustainability and Justice (Public Policy, Political Economy, Policy and Politics are encouraged to apply) who can develop and teach courses that are reflective of our community, issues, the state of California, and the US public policy making process. Additionally, candidates for the position would be expected to teach the department's Core Courses, Research Methods, and Introduction to American Government among others.

Required Qualifications:

- Earned a Ph.D. (ABD with degree completed before start date) in Political Science, from an accredited doctoral-granting institution.
- Demonstrated commitment to teaching undergraduates from diverse socioeconomic, cultural, and academic backgrounds, including first-generation students.
- Teaching experience using a variety of teaching modalities (in person, synchronous, asynchronous).
- Possess a commitment to promote equity and inclusion through teaching, research, and service at CSUB.
- Evidence of Scholarship/Research

Minimum Qualifications:

- Evidence of effective teaching.
- Possible Course Proposals
- Evidence of potential to conduct independent research in the area of expertise as well as mentor undergraduate students in research.

Preferred Qualifications:

- Experience with academic advising and student mentorship (if applicable).

To be considered, complete application materials must include:

- Cover Letter
- Current Curriculum Vitae
- Statement of Teaching Philosophy
- Research Statement
- Statement of contribution to diversity, equity and inclusion. Please include information on how you currently or will potentially promote diversity, equity and inclusion through teaching, research and service at CSU Bakersfield.
- Copy of university transcripts verifying academic record and award of doctorate (or anticipated date of award)
- List of three (3) references with contact information

Interviews will be conducted at the annual APSA meeting in Los Angeles, CA. Contact Dr. Ivy AM Cargile if you would like to schedule an appointment.

All applications materials should be sent electronically as one PDF in the order listed above to Ms. Christina Ochoa, department Administrative Assistant: cochoa@csub.edu.

Background Check: A background check (including a criminal records check) must be completed satisfactorily before any candidate can be offered a position with the CSU. Failure to satisfactorily complete the background check may affect the application status of applicants or continued employment of current CSU employees who apply for the position.

For any questions please contact: Dr. Ivy AM Cargile (icargile@csub.edu) or Dr. Jeanine Kraybill (jkraybill@csub.edu).

Princeton University

Rank: Research Director

The Center for the Study of Democratic Politics (CSDP) seeks a dynamic Research Director (RD). CSDP serves as Princeton's primary center for studying democratic political processes, behavior, and institutions. The Center brings together a large, vibrant and interdisciplinary community of scholars interested in democratic politics, supports their empirical research, and communicates those findings to inform public policy debates inside and outside the academy.

In concert with the faculty Director(s), the RD directs, oversees, guides, and implements CSDP's academic and policy research programs. The RD envisions, develops, and manages CSDP's research missions and strategy. They monitor and address Affiliates' research needs, including affiliated faculty, researchers (fellows, scholars, and so on), and students. They keep up with and bring to bear research resources and knowledge from across and outside Princeton. The RD will also help CSDP implement SPIA's strategic priorities, especially data science, policy relevance, and DEI.

Responsibilities:

- Design and deliver hands-on workshops on research methods, tools, and applications, including the collection or use of datasets, according to affiliates' needs
- Research and statistical consulting to CSDP affiliates and make recommendations and oversee the selection of research-relevant software
- Assist with the review, selection, recruiting, and mentoring of CSDP's fellows and research staff
- Assist with reading and selecting grant applications submitted for CSDP funding and also with the development and writing of CSDP directors' applications and proposals for funding
- Develop and oversee a new MPA fellows' program and supervise its fellows including their research activities and their policy-oriented writing
- Write reports and other content translating CSDP research for public and policymaker audiences, with the assistance of the MPA fellows

Essential requirements:

- PhD in political science
- Training in and experience using political science research methods including a strong quantitative background
- Strong programming skills, including in R
- At least one publication in an academic political science journal on topics in CSDP's core mission (the study of democratic politics)
- Minimum one-year post-PhD work experience in an academic setting
- Experience teaching research methods, data science, or related programming skills, or advising student activities in these areas
- Meticulous attention to detail and ability to proof one's own work and others'
- Demonstrated ability for creative problem-solving, active listening and interpersonal skills, empathy for others, proactive approach to work issues, openness to feedback on one's work performance, and taking initiative to address, anticipate and head off problems

- Experience with managing research projects from initiation through completion
- Eagerness to collaborate on projects and to cooperate with others in the work environment
- Motivated to produce at a high level of productivity and excellence

Preferred:

- Experience with data use agreements and how to develop partnerships and collaborations to obtain data
- working with or merging large or administrative datasets
- Specialized technical skills for the social sciences
- Experience communicating about political science or policy for broad audience

The RD will have a research budget for their use in attending conferences and similar activities facilitating their ongoing professional development as a researcher.

The position is for a three-year term, with the possibility of renewal, contingent on satisfactory performance. This position is subject to a background check.

Applicants must submit a CV, a cover letter describing their areas of expertise and research interests, and contact information for three references. References may be contacted for the candidates who make the shortlist for this position.

The submission must be online via AHIRE link.: <https://www.princeton.edu/acad-positions/position/29741>

Visiting Assistant Professor, University of Puget Sound

Appointment: One-year visiting assistant professor in US politics for the 2023-2024 academic year. Responsibilities/Description: We are seeking a scholar of US politics to teach six courses for the year. Courses will include Constitutional Law, Introduction to US Politics, and courses that match the interest and expertise of the successful applicant. While not required, applications are encouraged from scholars who could offer courses appealing to student interests in critical approaches or in areas such as indigenous rights or immigration law. There are also opportunities to connect with scholars and students in a range of interdisciplinary programs including a new Crime, Law, and Justice program; African American Studies; and Latinx Studies.

Qualifications: A doctoral degree (ABD considered) in Political Science and a commitment to undergraduate education are required. Candidates must demonstrate a willingness and ability to address the needs of historically underrepresented students. Successful applicants will have expertise in the US courts or the law. We are interested in candidates with a range of secondary interests including but not limited to parties, political behavior, or US institutions.

Application Deadline: Review of applications will begin March 1 and continue until position is filled.

Required Documents:

- Curriculum vitae
- Letter of interest
- Teaching statement
- Diversity statement (see prompt below)
- Sample syllabi of courses you would be prepared to teach
- A research sample (e.g. article, dissertation chapter, conference presentation)
- Contact information for three (3) references. You will be prompted to enter the contact information for three (3) reference providers. The system will automatically email these reference providers to request a letter.

Applicant's Diversity Statement. As a department and university, we are strongly committed to creating an inclusive and effective teaching, learning, and working environment for all. In the applicant's diversity statement, applicants should comment on their ability to contribute meaningfully to our on-going commitment to be informed and competent with regard to issues of diversity, equity, and individual differences. We encourage applicants to reference the University of Puget Sound's current Diversity Strategic Plan (DSP) at <https://www.pugetsound.edu/equity-diversity-puget-sound/threshold-2022-cultivating-culture-inclusive-excellence> prior to writing this statement. While not an exhaustive list, the following are some ways applicants can express their qualifications:

- Demonstration of your awareness of inequities for underrepresented student populations in education, research experience, and other opportunities;
- Brief insights on why diversity is important at institutions like the University of Puget Sound;
- Your lived experiences and/or identities that speak to the department and university's commitment to inclusion and diversity; Infusion of diversity and diversity-related issues into your research, pedagogy, and/or service;
- Previous and/or current activities involving mentoring underrepresented student populations;
- Brief insights on how cultural competency increases one's effectiveness as an educator and department/university colleague.

Johns Hopkins University

Rank: Adjunct Faculty: Intelligence Analysis

Subfield(s): International Relations, American Government and Politics, Other

Specializations: Intelligence, Defense, International Security

Johns Hopkins University: Zanvyl Krieger School of Arts and Sciences: Advanced Academic Programs

Location:

Washington, DC or Online (Remote)

Open Date:

Feb 01, 2023

POSITION:

Adjunct Faculty, Intelligence Analysis
Krieger School of Arts and Sciences
Advanced Academic Programs

INSTITUTION:

Johns Hopkins University

Institution Description:

The Advanced Academic Programs (AAP) is a division of the Krieger School of Arts and Sciences at the Johns Hopkins University (JHU). As the nation's oldest and one of the most prestigious research universities, Johns Hopkins offers high-quality master's degrees and post-baccalaureate education to students in the mid-Atlantic region and online. In addition to the online programs, AAP also offers master's degrees and graduate certificate programs at its Washington, DC Center and at the Homewood campus in Baltimore, MD. AAP has approximately 18,000 enrollments each academic year. JHU is committed to hiring candidates who, through their teaching and service, will contribute to the diversity and excellence of the academic community.

Position Description:

The Advanced Academic Programs (AAP) division seeks non-tenure track adjunct faculty to teach several courses within the MS in Intelligence Analysis program. The course(s) will be taught fully online beginning in Summer 2023 and beyond. Candidates with online course development and teaching experience and those with experience teaching and engaging students from diverse backgrounds are of particular interest. We are looking for faculty who can teach one or more of the following courses:

473.600 the Art and Practice of Intelligence

This course introduces students to the field of intelligence, particularly as practiced in the United States. After a brief overview of the historical foundations of modern intelligence, it discusses how intelligence is conducted including collection, analysis, counterintelligence, covert action, and oversight. It also discusses intelligence ethics, as well as the disruptive influences of September 11, new technologies, and emerging social trends.

473.602 Intelligence Analysis

Intelligence analysis is fundamentally about understanding and communicating to decision makers what is known, not known, and surmised, as it can best be determined. Students will read seminal texts on intelligence analysis, discuss the complex cognitive, psychological, organizational, ethical, and legal issues surrounding intelligence analysis now and, in the past, and apply analytic methodologies to real-world problems.

473.604 Advanced Critical Thinking and Analysis

Critical thinking involves the methods and principles of correct reasoning and argumentation. Students will apply a combination of logic, critical thinking skills, and structured analytical techniques to identify biases, promote self-reflective reasoning, and improve the quality of intelligence analysis. Using a selection of empirical case studies and operational exemplars, students will conduct a comparative assessment of analytical outcomes based on the application of course learnings versus outcomes derived in their absence.

473.607 Intelligence Ethics

This course will address the ethical dilemmas and issues that challenge intelligence and government decision makers in an increasingly complex operational and technological environment. We will examine basic moral, ethical and privacy considerations at several key points in intelligence operations from collection to covert action. The course will analyze the evolving nature of privacy concerns worldwide, with an emphasis on the balance between individual rights and national security. Students will examine the policy implications inherent in seeking to address these tensions.

473.606 Legal Issues in Intelligence

This class will examine the interplay between the laws and the practices and policies of the United States' Intelligence Community and national security system, both foreign and domestic. While discussion of the history of intelligence activities and laws dating from the origins of our colonial days will necessarily shape the framework of the class, the focus shall particularly be on current debates and challenges faced by the United States in the 21st Century.

473.800 Research Seminar

This course will introduce a variety of research, analytical, and statistical methods intended to provide a basis for designing a research project, including an introduction to quantitative, qualitative, and mixed method research design. Within the context of the course, students will complete foundational work for the capstone project, including identifying and accessing relevant primary and secondary source data, surveying and evaluating the literature, and framing a research question based on the intersection of empirical studies and organizational needs. Attention will be given to the unique restrictions placed on research design and publication within the intelligence community.

473.801 Capstone: Current Issues in Intelligence

In this culminating course, students complete an independent, faculty-approved project that will address a substantive or methodological challenge in intelligence analysis. A successful capstone will include research that provides evidence of the student's mastery of the theoretical knowledge and analytical skills central to the degree's learning outcomes. The capstone provides an opportunity to apply the skills acquired throughout the program to a key challenge facing their organization or community. Students will conduct a literature review, select a research method appropriate to their study, analyze data using qualitative or quantitative methods in their capstone project, and propose and defend their findings.

Minimum Qualifications:

- An advanced degree in any relevant field, with a master's degree at minimum.
- At least five years of professional work experience within the intelligence field.

Preferred Qualifications:

- A terminal degree in international relations, global security studies, political science, history, or in a relevant field related to intelligence.
- A scholar-practitioner background and publications in the field.
- 1-3 years of graduate level teaching experience.
- Leadership experience within the US Intelligence Community.
- Online teaching experience.
- Experience in developing graduate courses.
- The background to teach a wide variety of courses in an intelligence analysis program.
- Strong interest in advising graduate students interested in an intelligence career.

Application Instructions

The position will remain open until filled. For best consideration, please apply by April 1 2023.

Candidates must submit the following:

- Cover letter should indicate the course or courses you're interested in teaching plus your experience with online learning management systems (i.e., Canvas)
- Curriculum vitae
- Teaching evaluations for two most recently taught courses
- Transcript from highest degree earned
- The selected candidate will undergo a background check and provide three references.

New York University Abu Dhabi

Rank: Post-Doctoral Associate in the Division of Social Science (Political Science) - Dr. Leonid Peisakhin

Subfield(s): Comparative Politics, International Relations, Methodology

Description

We are inviting applications for a three-year Post-Doctoral Associate in the Division of Social Science at NYU Abu Dhabi from individuals who have or will soon receive a PhD in political science or a related discipline. The appointment will begin September 1, 2024, subject to final budget approval.

The post-doctoral associate will spend half their time on independent research, and half of their time on collaborative research with Drs. Leonid Peisakhin, Joan Barceló, and Jeff Jensen. The collaborative research will be in the field of historical legacy research, with an emphasis on the legacy of conflict and historical institutions. This position is open as to geographical area.

The ideal candidate will specialize in historical political economy and will have an interest in conflict studies, post-conflict reconciliation, as well as broader topics in political economy; strong candidates with research interests in other subfields will also be given full consideration.

Advanced methodological training is essential; this includes high-level familiarity with causal inference and econometric techniques. Experience working with historical sources and familiarity with public opinion research would be helpful, but not required.

The position does not require teaching, but it may be possible to get teaching experience for compensation. You would be part of a group of over 20 post-doctoral fellows and 70 faculty in the Division of Social Science.

Please use the following link to apply: <https://apply.interfolio.com/130629>

For consideration, applicants need to submit a cover letter, curriculum vitae with a full publication list, statement of research interests and two letters of reference, all in PDF format by December 1, 2023. Applications will be considered on a rolling basis. If you have any questions, please email Dr. Leonid Peisakhin leonid.peisakhin@nyu.edu

Rhodes College

Rank: Assistant Professor of International Relations/Comparative Politics

The Department of International Studies at Rhodes College invites applications for a tenure-track position at the rank of assistant professor to begin Fall of 2024. Rhodes College believes that diversity and inclusion are critical to our success as an institution, and we seek to recruit, develop, and retain the most talented people from a diverse candidate pool. Furthermore, Rhodes College is committed to supporting the work-life alignment of its faculty. We encourage applications from candidates who have expertise in security, peace, and conflict. The search is open in terms of regional or area studies expertise. This position has a 3:2 teaching load, and applicants should demonstrate a firm commitment to teaching and research in an undergraduate, liberal arts environment. The successful candidate will have classroom experience and is expected to teach introductory and advanced courses in either International Relations or Comparative Politics. Additional courses will be based on the candidate's area of specialization. Preference will be given to candidates who can teach an upper-level course on international conflict or security and those who can contribute to an interdisciplinary atmosphere. The successful candidate is expected to earn their Ph.D. by July 2024.

Rhodes is a nationally ranked residential college committed to the liberal arts and sciences. Our highest priorities are intellectual engagement, service to others, commitment to diversity and inclusion, and honor among ourselves. Our students live and learn on one of the country's most beautiful campuses, located in the heart of Memphis, an economic, medical, and culturally diverse center, making Rhodes one of a handful of prominent liberal arts colleges in a major metropolitan area.

Rhodes College prides itself on being a diverse, inclusive, and welcoming environment. We are an equal opportunity employer committed to diversity and anti-discrimination.

A complete application will include 1) a cover letter that addresses the strengths the candidate will bring as a teacher and scholar to a liberal arts college environment; 2) a curriculum vitae; 3) a separate statement that addresses how the candidate's experiences with teaching, scholarship, and/or service will contribute to a college community that includes a commitment to diversity and inclusion as one of its core values; 4) a writing sample; 5) an unofficial graduate transcript; and 6) evidence of teaching performance (if applicable). Review of completed applications will begin on October 1, 2023, and will continue until the position is filled. Candidates from backgrounds typically underrepresented in higher education are strongly encouraged to apply. Letters of recommendation will only be solicited for short-listed applicants, at which time you will be prompted for the names and contact information for three (3) references. Background checks are required before candidates can be brought to campus for interviews.

For further information, please contact Dr. Chien-Kai Chen, chair of the search committee, at [chenc@rhodes.edu].

California State University, Fullerton

Rank: Assistant Professor of Political Science

The Department of Political Science in the Division of Politics, Administration, and Justice at California State University, Fullerton, invites applications for a tenure-track Assistant Professor position in Political Science with an appointment to begin Fall 2024.

California State University, Fullerton (CSUF) is a minority-serving institution, affirmative action, and equal opportunity employer. CSUF is firmly committed to increasing the diversity of the campus community and the curriculum and fostering an inclusive environment within which students, staff, administrators, and faculty thrive. Candidates who can contribute to this goal through their teaching, research, advising and other activities are encouraged to identify their strengths and experiences. Individuals advancing the University's strategic diversity goals and those from groups whose underrepresentation in the American professoriate has been severe and longstanding are particularly encouraged to apply. CSUF is committed to retaining all faculty and has established affinity groups you can join to support your success.

The Dean's Office of the College of Humanities and Social Sciences (H&SS) also supports the Collective for Justice, Equity & Transformation (CoJET). CoJET consists of a team of H&SS faculty whose expertise addresses issues of equity, diversity, justice, community, and organizational transformation. CoJET aims to transform higher education structures, policies, and practices by focusing on college-based initiatives. The CSU is currently engaged in a directed multi-year initiative to improve equity in graduation rates for all students, regardless of racial, ethnic or financial background.

Position

The Political Science Department in the Division of Politics, Administration & Justice at California State University, Fullerton, seeks a candidate whose primary field of teaching and research is Comparative Politics. Regional expertise of Latin America and/or Caribbean is preferred; however, other regions and countries outside of China and Russia will be considered. Additionally, candidates with an interest in one or more of the following areas are encouraged to apply: gender politics, identity politics, human rights, political violence and security, political engagement, political accountability, and democratic consolidation. The successful candidate would be responsible for teaching the introductory course in Comparative Politics, upper-level courses in the candidate's area of specialty, and a graduate-level course in Comparative Politics. In addition, the successful candidate will have the opportunity to collaborate with faculty in Women and Gender Studies. CSUF encourages excellent teaching, scholarship, and service. Preference will be given to candidates interested in directing the department's Center of Academic Excellence (CAE) Intelligence Community Scholars Program and the Pre-Professional Certificate in Security Studies.

CSUF faculty are committed teacher/scholars who bring research and creative discovery to life for students in classrooms, labs, studios, and individually mentored projects. They teach broadly in the curricula of their departments, advise students, and serve on departmental and university-wide committees. The primary responsibilities of the person in this position will include the development and teaching of introductory and core courses in the discipline and the development of courses in their area(s) of specialization. Specific courses that this person will teach include introductory and graduate courses in comparative politics. Faculty generally teach three classes per semester. A reduced teaching load is provided for the first two years. This person will also be responsible for producing scholarship commensurate with the requirements for tenure. The successful candidate will be expected to contribute to and participate in the life and development of the department, advise students, serve on committees, and participate in the broader university and disciplinary communities.

Copenhagen Business School

Subfield(s): Comparative Politics, Methodology, Public Policy

We invite applications for a 2-year postdoc on the project “The Determinants and Consequences of Legislative Capacity” starting August 1st, 2024. The project is led by associate professors Florian M. Hollenbach (CBS) and David Fortunato (UCSD) and funded by the Independent Research Fund Denmark. The postdoc will be based at the Department of International Economics, Government and Business (EGB) at the Copenhagen Business School. It is a 100% research postdoc—there are no teaching requirements. It is our hope that the postdoc will coauthor with the project leaders and develop publications related to the project.

The project

Because policy is written by elected representatives but implemented by unelected bureaucratic agents with their own preferences, the legislature’s capacity for ex-ante policy design and ex-post oversight sets a de facto budget constraint on potential democratic responsiveness. Importantly, parliaments choose their own capacity by allocating resources necessary for legislative work, yet we observe tremendous variation in these endowments. Why? In this project, we investigate the determinants of capacity choices and their broader implications for democratic accountability.

The “Legislative Capacity” project consists of two work packages. Work package I will focus on developing a formal theoretical model of the legislature’s choice over its capacity for policy influence. The model will consider the trade-offs for current majorities to increase capacity to improve its policy making power while also handing more efficient institutions to future governments, should it lose power. Work package II moves on to empirically investigate the relationships predicted by the theoretical model. To do so, we will collect data on legislative capacity in OECD countries over the last 20 years, as well as subnational legislatures.

The postdoc will work on both packages, contributing to development of the central theoretical model, data collection, analysis, and writing. It is essential that applicants have strong research potential in comparative political economy and the ability to work in a team environment, collaborating/co-authoring with other team members.

Non-exhaustive examples of research areas that the postdoc may cover:

Comparative Political Economy
Social Data Science
Quantitative Methods
Formal Modelling
Political Institutions

Department

EGB is a multidisciplinary department that conducts high-quality research in the fields of international business and political science with direct relevance to business, policymakers, and the public. Research at the department focuses on two principal focus areas Business & Government and International Business, in relation to societal challenges. To learn more about the research and education of the department, please visit the departmental homepage; www.cbs.dk/egb.

Qualifications

The applicant must have completed – or be close to completing – a PhD in the political science, political economy, or a related field. The applicant must have excellent research skills and proficiency in English (written and spoken). The ideal applicant will have solid skills in formal modelling and advanced quantitative methods.

To fulfill the research requirements of the position, the postdoc is expected to be physically present at the department on a regular basis.

Copenhagen Business School has a broad commitment to the excellence, distinctiveness and relevance of its teaching and research programs. Candidates who wish to join us should demonstrate enthusiasm for working in an organization of this type.

Appointment and salary will be in accordance with the Ministry of Finance's agreement with the Central Academic Organisation (presently approximately $70,080 USD including pension contribution).

Applications must be sent via the electronic recruitment system, using the link; <https://www.cbs.dk/en/about-cbs/jobs-cbs/vacant-positions/postdoc-in-business-and-government-copenhagen-business-school-2-years>

Applications must include:

A cover letter outlining the candidate's main strengths and abilities.
Transcript(s) and a full CV

A job market paper

A complete, numbered list of publications (indicating titles, co-authors, page numbers and year) with an * marking of the academic productions to be considered during the assessment. A maximum of 5 publications for assessment are allowed. Applicants are requested to prioritise their publications in relation to the field of this job advertisement.

Copies of the publications marked with an *. Only publications written in English (or another specified principal language, according to research tradition) or one of the Scandinavian languages will be taken into consideration)

A brief (1-page) research statement for the 2-year postdoc period, and possibly beyond.

Recruitment procedure

The Recruitment Committee will shortlist a minimum of two applicants; when possible five or more applicants will be shortlisted. The shortlisted applicants will be assessed by the Assessment Committee. All applicants will be notified of their status in the recruitment process shortly after the application deadline.

The applicants selected for assessment will be notified about the composition of the Assessment Committee and later in the process about the result of the assessment.

Once the recruitment process is completed each applicant will be notified of the outcome of their application.

Closing date: October 30, 2023

Copenhagen Business School must receive all application material, including all appendices (see items above), by the application deadline.

For further information about the project, please contact: Associate Professor Florian M. Hollenbach, e-mail: fho.egb@cbs.dk.

For further information about the department (EGB), please contact: Head of Department Jens Gammelgaard, e-mail jg.egb@cbs.dk.

Details about Copenhagen Business School are available at www.cbs.dk

Closing date: 30 October 2023.

Ohio State University

Rank: Comparative Politics

Description:

The Department of Political Science at The Ohio State University invites applications in Comparative Politics for one position at the rank of assistant professor. The appointment will begin in autumn 2024. We are open as to candidates' scholarly focus, including such topics as economic and/or political development; regime dynamics; comparative institutions; courts, crime, and insecurity; social welfare and health; political, social, or economic inequalities; the politics of race or ethnicity; and others. Candidates are expected to have methodological training appropriate to their research interests. Scholars who can work collaboratively with a multidisciplinary team are of particular interest, as are those who can engage with other programs and interdisciplinary research centers at the university. Geographic focus is open, although we are particularly interested in candidates with expertise in areas not already covered by faculty in the department.

Qualifications:

Candidates should have a PhD in Political Science or related appropriate discipline, or expect to complete the degree by August of 2024. Candidates should demonstrate a record of publications and/or working papers, and provide evidence of accomplishments in teaching. Responsibilities of the position include maintaining a robust research program, including actively seeking external funding, contributing to graduate and undergraduate teaching and mentoring, and engaged service to the department, university, and the profession. Salary will be commensurate with the candidate's experience and qualifications. Applicants must have completed all doctoral degree requirements by the time of their appointment. Inquiries may be directed to Professor Marcus Kurtz, at kurtz.61@osu.edu. Appointment is contingent on the university's verification of credentials and other information required by law and/or university policies, including but not limited to a criminal background check.

Application Instructions:

Apply to The Ohio State University Careers website at https://osu.wd1.myworkdayjobs.com/OSUCareers/job/Columbus-Campus/Assistant-Professor_R87426-1. A competitive application consists of the following required elements: a cover letter, curriculum vitae, research and teaching statements, an unofficial transcript, one or more writing samples, and three letters of reference. We also invite candidates to consider providing an optional statement that reflects upon their experiences and endeavors related to OSU's Shared Values (see below).

How to Apply:

You will be presented with the opportunity to attach up to five documents in the Application Documents section. Please include the following:

- Attachment 1: Cover Letter
- Attachment 2: Curriculum Vitae and unofficial transcript in a single file
- Attachment 3: Teaching Statement and Research Statement in a single file
- Attachment 4: Two or more writing samples in a single file
- Attachment 5 (optional): Values Statement: Description of efforts that reflect Ohio State's Shared Values.

You will be sent an email with instructions to provide names and contact information for three reference letters following submission of your application materials.

The Ohio State University's Shared Values include Excellence and Impact, Diversity and Innovation, Inclusion and Equity, Care and Compassion, and Integrity and Respect. Our university community welcomes differences, encourages open-minded exploration and courageous thinking, and upholds freedom of expression. We define diversity broadly and value multiple dimensions of diversity including, but not limited to demographic, religion, country of origin, perspective, ability status, and background.

Ohio State prides itself on welcoming a wide range of viewpoints and providing opportunities for all to deepen and develop their intellectual curiosities. As a land-grant university, we recognize and understand that a diverse faculty, staff, and student body in which all may engage in open dialogue, be exposed to new ideas and perspectives, belong, and feel valued and included is essential to our efforts in meeting our mission of academic excellence and public service.

Please share your own demonstrated efforts in your research, teaching, and/or outreach and engagement that reflect Ohio State's Shared Values and that might further advance our mission and institutional excellence.

Review of applications will begin on October 1 and will continue until the position is filled. Inquiries may be directed to Marcus Kurtz at kurtz.61@osu.edu.

About Columbus:

The Ohio State University campus is located in Columbus, the capital city of Ohio. Columbus is the Midwest's fastest-growing city and the nation's 14th largest city. Candidates should hold a Ph.D. of be near completion (December 2023) in Political Science or Sociology, but candidates in other social science disciplines such as Demography, Human Geography, Criminology or Social Work are also encouraged to apply. Candidates may be specialized in any substantive subarea (for example, research methods, public policy, comparative politics, political economy, social stratification, or socioeconomic inequalities).

Candidates must demonstrate excellence in teaching, an active substantive research agenda, and a demonstrated ability to publish and teach in English and Spanish. Successful candidates are expected to work full-time (160 hours per month) and start working in February or August 2024.

Applications will start being analyzed on September 30, 2023, but applications received after that will still be considered until the position is filled or the university closes the call. A complete application must contain (1) a cover letter, (2) CV, (3) an example of an undergraduate course program that the candidate would be able to teach, (4) up to 2 examples of academic research work, (5) teacher evaluations, and (6) three letters of recommendation. The application should be made electronically (<https://bpm.ucu.edu.uy/public/01LPOSD>). Letters of recommendation can be included by the candidate in the application or can be directly sent by their author to the following email: departamentos@ucu.edu.uy (Ref: LLAMACA-181 – Letter of recommendation for [Name Last name]).

The selection process will consist on the following stages. First, a short list of candidates will be selected to be interviewed by the Selection Committee in person or via videoconference in case of residing abroad. Then, 3 shortlisted candidates will be invited to the Montevideo campus to present their research and hold interviews with members of the Department and other authorities. The selection committee may request from the candidates, at any time during the process, additional materials, or the corresponding accreditations. The decisions of the selection committee will be final. The Universidad Católica del Uruguay reserves the right not to hire any candidates without responsibility of any kind at its own expense.

For additional information, applicants may contact the Department's Chair, Rosario Queirolo (rosario.queirolo@ucu.edu.uy).

Faculty Fellow
 XE: Experimental Humanities & Social Engagement
 New York University Graduate School of Arts and Science

XE: Experimental Humanities & Social Engagement, an interdisciplinary master's program in the Graduate School of Arts and Science at New York University, invites applications for a Faculty Fellow position in the social sciences. The initial appointment will be for one year beginning September 1, 2024, renewable annually for a maximum of three years, pending administrative and budgetary approval.

We seek outstanding interdisciplinary scholars of the social sciences whose work engages intersectional social justice. The successful candidate will be committed to cutting-edge interdisciplinary inquiry and their fields will include, span, or exceed: anthropology, sociology, science and technology studies, politics, or urban studies, addressing urgent topics such as displacement and migration, indigenous rights, anti-racism, decolonization, incarceration, health, or environmental justice, among others.

Faculty fellows teach three graduate seminars per year, advise and mentor students, oversee master's theses, organize public programs, and actively participate in shaping the life of the program.

XE is a highly innovative master's program and tight-knit community of scholars and practitioners who value collaborative mentoring and career building, as well as exploring new pedagogies and research methods at the intersection of creativity, criticality, and social engagement.

Qualifications:

We seek candidates with a PhD in the social sciences. While PhDs are required, we welcome candidates who have a public-facing critical or artistic practice in their field/s. Candidates should have completed their Ph.D. no earlier than 2020 and no later than by August 1, 2024.

To apply, please submit: a cover letter, curriculum vitae, a 20- to 30-page writing sample, sample syllabi for two dream classes, three letters of recommendation, and a statement of diversity and inclusion.

Applications should be submitted through Interfolio: <http://apply.interfolio.com/129772>

The search committee will begin reviewing applications on January 5, 2023 and will continue until the position is filled.

As diversity is a priority for NYU and for this position, for the latter statement we ask you to provide a brief paragraph telling us how diversity figures into your past and present teaching, research, community engagement, and/or life experience, as well as how you would bring issues of diversity to bear on the teaching and programming of XE. Information about diversity statements may be found at <http://as.nyu.edu/departments/facultydiversity/recruitment/diversity-statements.html. >

In compliance with NYC's Pay Transparency Act, the annual base salary for this position is $60,000. New York University considers factors such as (but not limited to) the scope and responsibilities of the position, the candidate's work experience, education/training, key skills, internal peer equity, as well as market and organizational considerations when extending an offer.

The Faculty of Arts and Science at NYU is at the heart of a leading research university that spans the globe. We seek scholars of the highest caliber who embody the diversity of the United States as well as the global society in which we live. We strongly encourage applications from women, racial and ethnic minorities, and other individuals who are under-represented in the profession, across color, creed, race, ethnic and national origin, physical ability, gender and sexual identity, or any other legally protected basis. NYU affirms the value of differing perspectives on the world as we strive to build the strongest possible university with the widest reach. Description

The Department of Political Science at Fordham University invites applications for a tenure-track position in Comparative Politics at the rank of Assistant Professor, beginning Fall 2024. The primary location for this position is at our Fordham College Lincoln Center in Midtown Manhattan but service may be at any campus of the University.

This position's specialization area is comparative politics with a regional focus on Latin America. Within the Latin American context, we are seeking innovative scholars with significant expertise in areas that could include but are not limited to social movements, institutions, political behavior, crime and corruption, political identities, ethnic and racial politics, intersectional approaches to power and marginalization, the politics of crisis, and socio-economic inequality. Scholars who can contribute to the University's interdisciplinary programs, such as, but not limited to Latin American Studies, International Studies, Urban Studies, or Women, Gender, and Sexuality Studies are of particular interest. We encourage applications from candidates who will deepen our engagement with political and social institutions in New York City and contribute to the University and the department's commitment to quality teaching and research.

Qualifications

Consistent with our Jesuit and Catholic mission, we believe diversity is central to our academic program's excellence. We strive to create an academic community and campus culture that attracts and facilitates the development of promising and diverse teacher-scholars. As our student body becomes increasingly diverse, we are especially interested in candidates with substantive experience and commitment to teaching and mentoring students from a range of social, cultural, and economic backgrounds.

Application Instructions

Review of applications will begin on September 15. Interested applicants must submit the following documents in electronic format (PDF or Microsoft Word) to Dr. Annika Hinze, Committee Chair, via Interfolio: <https://apply.interfolio.com/130247>

A cover letter addressing research interests and experience; curriculum vitae; writing sample; three letters of reference; evidence of teaching effectiveness; and a Diversity, Equity, and Inclusion Statement. Evidence of teaching effectiveness should include a teaching statement reflecting the candidate's pedagogical approach and experience and may include past course syllabi, peer observations, and/or student evaluations. The Diversity, Equity, and Inclusion Statement should address how the candidate's teaching, mentoring, scholarship, and/or community service supports Fordham University's commitment to diversity. Ph.D. at the time of appointment is required.

The Harvard Academy for International and Area Studies Academy Scholars Program, 2024-2025

The Academy Scholars Program of The Harvard Academy for International and Area Studies identifies and supports outstanding scholars at the start of their academic careers whose work combines excellence in a social science discipline with a command of the language and knowledge or expertise of countries or regions outside of the United States or Canada. Their scholarship should span traditional disciplinary divisions and elucidate comparative, transnational, or domestic issues, past or present.

The Academy Scholars are a select community of individuals with resourcefulness, initiative, and originality whose work shows promise as a foundation for careers in research universities or international institutions.

Academy Scholars are appointed for a two-year, in-residence, postdoctoral fellowship at The Harvard Academy for International and Area Studies, Harvard University, Cambridge, MA, USA. They receive substantial financial and research assistance which permits them to undertake robust research projects and skills development in their chosen fields and areas. They meet at dinners, seminars, and informal meetings in order to pursue innovative interdisciplinary approaches to their work. They are mentored by the Harvard Academy Senior Scholars, a cohort of faculty members who act as a selection committee, participate in Harvard Academy events, and are committed to supporting the Academy Scholars as they work to achieve their potential.

These awards are open to recipients of PhD or comparable doctoral degrees (within two years of the August 1, 2024, start date) and advanced doctoral candidates in the social sciences. Scholars nearing dissertation completion must be able to submit degree conferral documentation issued by their university registrar's office by June 30, 2024, for an August 1, 2024, start date. Individuals who hold or have completed another Harvard postdoctoral fellowship are not eligible to apply.

The Harvard Academy is dedicated to building an inclusive community of scholars with an array of experiences, perspectives, and methods and welcomes a diverse pool of applicants.

Each year, five or six Academy Scholars are named for two-year appointments with an annual stipend of $75,000, with the two years to be completed within a three-year window. Year 1 of the fellowship must be taken up no later than the fall immediately following the postdoctoral fellowship offer. Delays or deferrals in the start of Year 1 are not permitted. Between Years 1 and 2, Academy Scholars may apply for a one-time leave (up to 12 months), either to accept or to continue with a tenure-track teaching appointment but for no other reason. Academy Scholars may not accept other sources of funding, awards, or obligations during their appointment.

All application materials must be submitted by the deadline of September 22, 2023. We do not accept late applications.

The completed application will include:

Curriculum vitae (CV); including list of publications

Research proposal (2000 words maximum); including intellectual objectives and planned methodological and disciplinary work

One scholarly writing sample (e.g., PhD dissertation chapter or single-authored peer-reviewed academic journal article; fifty pages maximum; in English)

A copy of your PhD program transcript

Smith College

Rank: Assistant Professor of Government

The Department of Government (GOV) at Smith College invites applications for a tenure-track position in Comparative Politics and/or International Relations at the rank of Assistant Professor, to begin July 1, 2024.

By time of appointment applicants must have a Ph.D. in Political Science or a closely related discipline (e.g. public policy). The position has a teaching load of 2:2—i.e., four semester-long courses over the academic year. The hire will also be expected to contribute to student learning beyond regular classes through directing student research and Honors Theses, offering independent studies, and helping with departmental administrative, curricular, and advising responsibilities.

Candidates for the position should have regional expertise in the politics of South and/or Southeast Asia. We encourage applications for this position from scholars using a range of methodological approaches and focusing on a variety of topics, including but not limited to: the politics of religion and ethnicity; political violence; political parties and elections; regional security; geopolitical rivalries and regional conflict and cooperation. We anticipate that a successful candidate for this position will be prepared to teach Introduction to Comparative Politics and/or Introduction to International Relations, courses on the politics of South or Southeast Asia or particular countries within those regions, and upper-division courses relating to their area(s) of expertise.

Candidates from groups underrepresented in political science are encouraged to apply. Successful candidates should be prepared to engage actively with diverse students across the liberal arts.

Located in Northampton, MA, Smith College is the largest women's college in the country, dedicated to excellence in teaching and research across the liberal arts. A faculty of outstanding scholars interact with students in small classes, as advisors, and through student-faculty research projects. Smith College offers opportunities to foster faculty success at every career stage, such as those listed here.

The College is a member of the Five College Consortium with Amherst, Hampshire, and Mt. Holyoke Colleges, and the University of Massachusetts Amherst. Students cross-enroll and faculty cross-teach across the Five Colleges. Details about the Department of Government may be found at <https://www.smith.edu/gov/>.

Submit applications at <https://apply.interfolio.com/129477> with a cover letter describing your research and teaching interests, curriculum vitae, teaching statement, diversity/inclusion statement, chapter- or article-length writing sample, and three confidential letters of reference. Finalists may be asked for additional materials. Review of applications will begin October 1, 2023.

As set forth in our mission and values, Smith College is committed to promoting a culture of equity and inclusion among students, staff and faculty. The College will not discriminate in employment on the basis of age, race, color, ethnicity, national origin, creed, religion, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, gender expression, pregnancy, genetic information, age, veteran status, physical or mental disability, or any other classification protected by law. Smith College is an equal opportunity employer and complies with all state and federal laws that prohibit discrimination.

The Niehaus Center for Globalization and Governance (NCGG) at Princeton University's School of Public and International Affairs invites applications for postdoctoral or more senior research associate positions from individuals with a Ph.D. degree or who expect to receive a Ph.D. degree by August 1, 2024, for the 2024-2025 academic year. These awards are designed to promote basic research in the broad areas of international and comparative political economy, international organization and global governance, and globalization. Research on the causes and consequences of globalization, the political economy of foreign trade, monetary and regulatory policies, the sources of international cooperation at the global and regional level, the domestic and international politics of economic development, the political economy of human security issues, the evolution and impact of international institutions, and the politics of international law and human rights policies are of relevance. Outstanding scholars anywhere in the world are eligible to apply. The Center invites candidates with a background in political science, economics, modern history, sociology, anthropology, law, business, and other disciplines bearing on the study of globalization to apply. Selected candidates will be required to be in residence in Princeton or the local vicinity, or demonstrate to the program's satisfaction the ability to be on campus on a daily basis and on short notice in order to fulfill responsibilities relating to in-person participation, office hours, and related activities for the duration of the fellowship (August 1, 2024 - July 1, 2025).

Application Deadline - Applicants should apply by Wednesday, November 1, 2023 (11:59 pm EST) for full consideration; however, posting will remain open until filled.

Application Process - All candidates must use the online application process to submit materials at: <https://www.princeton.edu/acad-positions/position/30941>.

Applicants are required to hold a Ph.D. or expect to receive a Ph.D. degree by August 1, 2024, in one of the above-mentioned disciplines. To apply, please provide the following:

*Cover letter explaining the candidate's scholarly career, prospective or actual doctoral defense date, and academic interests;

*Current curriculum vitae, including publications;

*2,000-word description of the proposed research project, including its specific objectives, importance, and research design;

*One writing sample (limit of 50 pages);

*Contact information for three references, who will be asked to comment specifically on the applicant's qualifications for the proposed research project. Referees will be contacted directly by email with instructions for submitting a confidential recommendation on your behalf. Letters of reference are to be submitted by the end of business day on Saturday, November 4, 2023. Complete your application well before the deadline so that references can be submitted on time.

Salary - Rank and salary will be contingent on qualifications. NCGG Fellows will receive applicable Princeton University benefits, a taxable moving allowance, and a $5,000 research fund. This is a one-year appointment.

Successful applicants will be notified of the outcome of their application in February 2024. This position is subject to the University's background check policy.

University of Massachusetts, Boston

Rank: Assistant Professor, Critical Security Studies

Specializations: Ethnic & Feminist Theory, International Security, Gender Politics & Policy

The Department of Conflict Resolution, Human Security, and Global Governance (CRHSGG) at the University of Massachusetts Boston invites qualified applicants for a tenure-track Assistant Professor position to join our vibrant, interdisciplinary faculty beginning September 1, 2024.

We are seeking a scholar of critical security studies, broadly defined, who can contribute to and strengthen the core curriculum of the graduate programs in Global Governance and Human Security in CRHSGG. We are particularly interested in candidates whose areas of focus include gender, race, and/or decolonial theory. The position is open to scholars from a range of social sciences, including but not limited to political science, geography, sociology, anthropology, and gender studies, who connect questions of global governance with imperatives for human security.

We are open to a variety of areas of topical focus within critical security studies broadly understood, to all research methodological strategies, and to either a regional or global focus that complements existing expertise in the department. Candidates must possess an earned doctorate in a relevant social science discipline by the date of appointment. Candidates should be prepared to teach in the Global Governance and Human Security core. An ability to contribute to other departmental graduate and undergraduate programs, in International Relations, Conflict Resolution, and Global Affairs, is a plus.

UMass Boston is one of the most diverse campuses in the Northeast region of the U.S. and has a well-established commitment to social justice, equity, and inclusion, with an anti-racist and health-promoting mission. We strongly encourage applications from persons with diverse backgrounds and provide equal employment opportunities without regard to race, color, religion, gender, gender identity or expression, age, sexual orientation, national origin, ancestry, disability, military status, or genetic information.

The Department provides a rich environment for interdisciplinary, collaborative research, policy, and practice, and houses multiple degree programs at the graduate and undergraduate levels. The Department also houses two vibrant research Centers (the Center for Peace, Democracy & Development, and the Center for Governance and Sustainability) and has a strong connection with the Center for Women in Public Policy.

To apply, submit through the application portal (<https://employmentopportunities.umb.edu/en-us/job/519911/assistant-professor-conflict-resolution-human-security-and-global-governance>): a cover letter, curriculum vitae, a writing sample, and the names and contact information for three references who may be contacted at later stages of the selection process. Inquiries regarding the position may be directed to the search committee chair, Dr. Jeffrey Pugh, at Jeffrey.Pugh@umb.edu. Review of applications begins on October 1st and will continue until the position is filled. Responses to frequently asked questions and updates on the search will be posted publicly at https://docs.google.com/document/d/1uNGCFC8q4aAo52y_V4n7ZAS7vQAVEx9pz9-iB8VwNNM/edit?usp=sharing.

UMass Boston is committed to the full inclusion of all qualified individuals. As part of this commitment, we will ensure that persons with disabilities are provided reasonable accommodations for the hiring process. If reasonable accommodation is needed, please contact HRDirect@umb.edu or 617-287-5150.

University of Utah

Rank: Assistant Professor

Specializations: China, Africa, Middle East

The Department of Political Science at the University of Utah invites applications for a tenure-track faculty position in Comparative Politics at the rank of Assistant Professor beginning July 1, 2024. We are interested in candidates whose research makes novel theoretical contributions to such areas as the state, political economy and political development, democratic or authoritarian regimes, domestic conflict and violence, social movements and protests, and/or the environment in one or more regions of the world. We have special interest in candidates with regional expertise in Europe or Asia (especially China), as well as the Middle East and North Africa or Africa. The successful candidate will have expertise in field research and data collection, with a preference for candidates with substantial training in qualitative and/or quantitative methods and a record of research productivity, strong grant potential, and a willingness to contribute to interdisciplinary research and teaching.

Applications should be submitted by September 10, 2023 to receive full consideration. Applications should include a cover letter, CV, a writing sample and three letters of recommendation. As part of the cover letter or teaching statement we invite you to describe how your work and other experience contribute to the success of underrepresented students. The University of Utah values candidates who have experience working in settings with students from diverse backgrounds and possess a strong commitment to improving access to higher education for historically underrepresented students. Applications should be filed using the online system at <https://utah.peopleadmin.com/postings/151429>.

Please email all inquiries to the chair of the search committee, Prof. Hakan Yavuz at: hakan.yavuz@poli-sci.utah.edu.

The University of Utah is the flagship institution of the Utah System of Higher Education, is a member of the AAU (Association of American Universities), and has been classified by the Carnegie Foundation as among those research universities with the "highest research activity." The University provides numerous opportunities for internal research funding and offers a generous benefits and retirement package: <https://www.hr.utah.edu/benefits/>.

The University is located in Salt Lake City, the center of a metropolitan area with a population of approximately 1.26 million residents. Salt Lake City is home to sizable Latinx and immigrant populations (21.5% and 15% of residents, respectively). The city's proximity to the Wasatch Mountains, world-class ski resorts, and national parks makes it an ideal location for outdoor recreation. SLC has extensive arts and cultural activities. The area has received international recognition for its light rail system, foodie culture, Sundance Film Festival, its vibrant downtown, and increasing ethnic diversity.

University of Central Florida

Specializations: India, Southeast Asia, South Asia

The School of Politics, Security, and International Affairs (SPSIA) at the University of Central Florida (UCF) invites applications for a full-time, nine-month, tenure-earning advanced assistant professor or tenured associate professor or professor as an endowed position with a focus on politics in India and director of the India Center at UCF. The anticipated starting date is August 2024; however, a starting date of January 2024 is possible.

The ideal candidate will have a recognized research program focused on politics in India, demonstrated commitment to teaching excellence, and leadership experience. As director of the India Center, the successful candidate will be expected to develop programming of interest to the larger university community, engage in community outreach, develop and strengthen partnerships with the community as well as nationally and internationally, supervise the center's full-time director of Public Affairs, engage in fundraising, work with offices and units across the university, manage the India Center's budget, and develop curriculum and teach in the area of politics in India, among others. The successful candidate is expected to combine the role of faculty member with that of director of the India Center.

We are especially interested in an individual who can contribute through their research, teaching, mentoring, and service to the excellence of our academic community and foster an environment in which faculty, staff, and students from a variety of backgrounds, cultures, and personal experiences are welcomed and can thrive.

The School of Politics, Security, and International Affairs houses two undergraduate majors, a master's program in Political Science, and a Ph.D. program in Security Studies. In addition, the school is home to five institutes, programs and centers including the India Center. The mission of the India Center at UCF is to broaden the awareness and understanding of contemporary India. The India Center promotes the study of India's role in the world today through partnerships, scholarship and research, education, and outreach to the Indian community in Florida and nationally. The center aims to serve the broader UCF community. It currently has one full-time director of Public Affairs. For more information, visit <https://sciences.ucf.edu/politics/> and <https://theindiacenter.ucf.edu/>.

The College of Sciences (COS) houses most of the university's natural, computational, and social sciences in eight departments, two schools, and several centers. The college's programs play a key role in advancing UCF as a national research university that is determined to help students from all backgrounds achieve success. For more information, visit <https://sciences.ucf.edu/>.

The University of Central Florida (UCF), located in Orlando, is a metropolitan research university classified as a Very High Research Activity university by the Carnegie Foundation. At UCF, we solve tomorrow's greatest challenges through a commitment to academic and operational excellence. Leveraging innovative learning, discovery, and partnerships, we foster social mobility while developing the skilled talent needed to advance industry for our region, state and beyond. A Hispanic Serving Institution, UCF is home to a diverse student population of over 70,000 students, almost 2,000 faculty, and more than 4,700 staff. UCF is invested in identifying candidates who will contribute to its mission through equity-minded practice and culturally responsive pedagogy. For more information, visit <http://www.ucf.edu>.

Minimum Qualifications: A doctorate in Political Science or a closely related field from an accredited institution by time of application is required. To be eligible for appointment as a tenured associate professor or professor upon hire, the selected candidate must have a demonstrated record of teaching, research, and service commensurate with a tenured faculty appointment at the rank of associate professor or professor.

Preferred Qualifications: Preference will be given to candidates who have a demonstrated interest and experience in developing and leading a program or center and a successful research and teaching record commensurate with their faculty rank.

UCF requires all applications and supporting documents be submitted electronically through the Human Resources employment opportunities website, <https://www.ucf.edu/jobs/>. In addition to the online application, interested candidates should upload the following materials: (1) a current curriculum vitae, (2) a letter detailing your interest in the position, relevant experience including leadership experience, and vision for the India Center; (3) a research statement outlining the research record and future plans (one to two pages); and (4) a teaching statement (one to two pages); and (5) the names and contact information for three professional references.

NOTE: Please have all documents ready when applying so they can be simultaneously uploaded. Once the online submission process is finalized, the system does not allow applicants to submit additional documents later.

Review of applications will begin on September 29, 2023 and continue until the position is filled. For the application to be considered, all materials will need to be uploaded and the application must be complete.

Questions regarding the position should be directed to Dr. Kerstin Hamann, search committee chair, at Kerstin.Hamann@ucf.edu.

Job Close Date: Open until filled.

The University of Central Florida is proud to be a smoke-free campus and an E-Verify employer. Unless explicitly stated on the job posting, it is UCF's expectation that an employee of UCF will reside in Florida as of the date the employment begins.

Additional Requirements related to Research Positions: Pursuant to Florida State Statute 1010.35, prior to offering employment to certain individuals in research-related positions, UCF is required to conduct additional screening. Applicants subject to additional screening include any citizen of a foreign country who is not a permanent resident of the U.S., or who is a citizen or permanent resident but is affiliated with or has had at least 1 year of higher education, employment, or training in China, Cuba, Iran, Russia, North Korea, Syria, or Venezuela.

The additional screening requirements only apply to employment in research-related positions, including, but not limited to faculty positions.

Equal Employment Opportunity Statement: As an equal opportunity/affirmative action employer, UCF encourages all qualified applicants to apply, including women, veterans, individuals with disabilities, and members of traditionally underrepresented populations. UCF's Equal Opportunity Statement can be viewed at <http://www.oie.ucf.edu/documents/PresidentsStatement.pdf>.

As a Florida public university, UCF makes all application materials and selection procedures available to the public upon request.

Providence College

Rank: African Politics - Assistant Professor of International Relations/Comparative Politics

The Political Science Department at Providence College invites applications for a tenure-track position at the assistant professor level, in the field of African Politics, grounded in perspectives from either International Relations or Comparative Politics. The field of "African Politics" is understood broadly by our Department, and we welcome applicants across a range of methodologies and substantive interests, such as, for example, contemporary Africa in geopolitical context; ancient, colonial, and modern political systems; colonial and post-colonial conflict, institutions, and practices; state-building, democratization, partisan mobilization, and social movements; internal migration, immigration, and emigration; security challenges and conflict resolution; natural resource and environmental politics; national and regional political economy; gender, health, education, labor, and social policy; or other Africa-centered topics. Geographically, we welcome candidates who focus on any of the continent's nations or regions, or those who work within a pan-African framework.

Teaching Responsibilities: The normal teaching load will be three courses per semester, with class sizes of 12 to 25 students. Core assignments each year will include African Politics and one or more of the following: Introduction to International Relations, Introduction to Comparative Politics, Introduction to Politics, or Research Methods. We keep our curriculum fresh by giving colleagues the opportunity to design new lecture, seminar, and research courses in areas which reflect their particular interests and expertise. In all cases, faculty enjoy substantial autonomy in the design and content of courses.

Research Expectations and Support: Our political science faculty are respected scholars with active research agendas who provide generous professional advice and mentoring for junior colleagues. Other support for research includes College-sponsored research grants, grant writing assistance, conference and research travel funds, individual discretionary funds, access to research librarians and other library resources, undergraduate research assistants, and opportunities for collaboration with faculty at other Rhode Island universities including, for example, Brown University, the University of Rhode Island, and Roger Williams University.

Our Political Science Department has fourteen full-time faculty members who are known for effective teaching, grounded in cutting-edge scholarship. They research and teach about politics in the U.S. and other regions, with particular strengths in East Asia, Latin America, and the Middle East. We offer a wide portfolio of courses, including many which are cross-listed in other Arts and Sciences departments and programs including Black Studies, Women's and Gender Studies, Global Studies, Latin American and Latina/o Studies, Asian and American Studies, American Studies, Public and Community Service Studies, Public Administration, Communication, and the College's newest interdisciplinary program—Middle East Studies. Political science faculty frequently direct interdisciplinary programs like these, and teach in the Liberal Arts Honors and Development of Western Civilization programs. Within the political science profession our colleagues are well-known participants and leaders in the American, Western, New England, Midwest, and Northeastern political science associations, as well as the Latin American Studies Association, National Conference of Black Political Scientists, International Studies Association, and International Political Science Association. We author scholarly books and research articles at premier journals and academic presses, publish op-eds in local and regional newspapers, and frequently appear as expert analysts for New England's print, broadcast, and online news media.

Providence College is located in the City of Providence—the capital of the State of Rhode Island ("The Ocean State"), and the third-largest city in New England. Founded in 1636, Providence is one of North America's oldest European settler cities. Nearby Pawtucket, RI, was the birthplace of the American Industrial Revolution in 1793, and Providence has long welcomed immigrant populations, most recently from West Africa, Latin America, and Southeast Asia. Providence is a majority-minority city, and more than 30% of its 2020 population was foreign-born. At present, the state's largest foreign-born African-descent populations come from Cape Verde, Nigeria, and Liberia. The Providence metropolitan area's population of 1.7 million is served by many retail, restaurant, and professional enterprises, as well as churches and social service organizations, established within these African immigrant communities. The city's annual calendar is filled with diverse ethnic and cultural festivals, while a vibrant arts scene is anchored by world-class galleries, museums, live theater, performances across music genres and traditions, and film festivals. Located on the main highway and rail corridors serving the northeastern United States—I-95 and Amtrak's Northeast Corridor—Providence is also connected to Boston via MBTA commuter rail, to New York via frequent rail and air service, and to the rest of the world via T.F. Green International Airport, with more than 100 daily nonstop flights to and from Atlanta, Baltimore, Charleston, Charlotte, Chicago, Cincinnati, Detroit, Ft. Lauderdale, Jacksonville, Los Angeles, Miami, Minneapolis St. Paul, Nashville, New York City, Newark, Norfolk, Orlando, Philadelphia, Richmond, Tampa, Washington, D.C.—and Santo Domingo, DR.

Salary, Benefits, and Resources: The position offers very competitive salary and benefits, generous annual and step salary increases, and campus amenities including fitness center, swimming pool and athletic facilities, free on-campus parking, chapels and meditation spaces, and information technology resources including MacOS and Windows desktop systems on secure campus networks. NOTE: If appropriate, Providence College will file a petition for an Employment-Based Immigrant Visa, in Category H-1B, once a final job offer is tendered and accepted.

How to Apply: Applicants should possess a PhD in political science (or be very close to completion), and will be asked to demonstrate evidence of the potential for teaching excellence, strong research skills, and potential for continued research productivity. Apply online at <https://careers.providence.edu> where you will submit a cover letter, curriculum vitae, three letters of recommendation, teaching materials, and one or more samples of scholarly writing, either published or unpublished.

For additional information, please contact Dr. Tony Affigne, chair of the search committee, at affigne@providence.edu or Dr. Matt Guardino, department chair, at mguardin@providence.edu. NOTE: search committee members will be hosting optional informational interviews at APSA in Los Angeles, and prospective applicants who wish to schedule an informational interview during the conference are encouraged to contact us no later than August 15. Those unable to attend the conference may contact Dr. Affigne to schedule a remote informational interview.

Deadline: For full consideration, your completed application should be submitted no later than October 1, 2023. Review of applications will commence as they are received, and will continue until the position is filled. We anticipate completing on-campus interviews by December 8, and making a final decision by early January 2024.

SUNY, University at Buffalo

Rank: Assistant/Associate Professor

The Department of Political Science, University at Buffalo, The State University of New York seeks an Associate or Assistant Professor (tenure-track) in American or Comparative Politics focusing on democratic processes and electoral phenomena.

We welcome applicants whose specialties are related to the study of democratic processes, democratic transition, consolidation, and regression, and specifically to the study of phenomena associated with elections. Issues of election reform, electoral integrity, and violence are central to the functioning of democracy both in the US and abroad. While elections are a central pillar of democratic legitimacy and consolidation, they can also serve as targets for instability incited by groups intent on bringing about democratic backsliding. All applicants studying democratic processes in these, and related research areas are invited to apply.

This hire will continue our recent faculty growth in the study the topics noted above in the American or foreign/comparative contexts. Candidates that match the Department's strength in quantitative methods of analysis and formal modeling are especially welcome. Teaching will include political science courses at the undergraduate and graduate levels. Normal departmental, university and disciplinary service duties are expected. We encourage applications from Associate Professors, Assistant Professors, and graduate students who will complete their degree prior to the position start date. Salary and start-up will be competitive and commensurate with rank.

The faculty in the Department of Political Science understand the value and importance of diversity. We are committed to providing an open, supportive, and inclusive environment for all of our students, faculty, and staff members, consistent with the University's commitment to inclusive excellence.

A letter of application, a vita, and three letters of recommendation must be submitted electronically at <https://www.ubjobs.buffalo.edu/postings/43767> Applicants applying at the Assistant Professor rank (including those who are ABD) should provide research and teaching statements. All applicants are encouraged to apply by October 1, 2023, to receive full consideration, although application review will begin immediately. Questions about the position can be directed to Dr. Rachael Hinkle by email at rkhinkle@buffalo.edu.

The Department of Political Science at UB is nationally recognized for its research in international relations, public law, and comparative and American politics. The department's strengths lie in its national and international reputation for high quality research. In addition to its strong PhD program, the department offers BA and MA degrees in both Political Science and Global Affairs.

University at Buffalo is an affirmative action/equal opportunity employer and, in keeping with our commitment, welcomes all to apply including veterans and individuals with disabilities.

University of North Carolina, Charlotte

Subfield(s): Comparative Politics, Methodology, International Relations

We invite applications for a postdoctoral research position with strong data analysis and management skills to work on a multi-year project on "Collective Shocks and Social Preferences" led by Professors James Walsh and Alexander Kustov at the University of North Carolina at Charlotte.

The project examines how people's social preferences, such as altruism and trust, are affected by negative collective shocks such as wars, natural disasters, or economic disruptions. Some studies find that these shocks make people more prosocial, but others find that they reduce cooperation. Since most of this research focuses on just one region or outcome, it is hard to know whether the results are generalizable. To address this question, the project aims to create a comprehensive cross-national time-series dataset on various shocks and preferences at the subnational level.

The postdoctoral position is a full-time research-focused role to lead the construction of the dataset for the project. The role includes:

- * Leading the data collection and management efforts needed to construct the original dataset, including cross-national surveys on social preferences and administrative data on collective shocks.
- * Conducting and publishing high-quality research in close collaboration and under the guidance of project leaders.
- * Dedicating time to personal research as part of the position (approximately 40%).
- * Participating in the broader intellectual life of the Department of Political Science and Public Administration, and the interdisciplinary Public Policy and Data Science programs.

The Postdoctoral appointee must have recently (within the last eight years) been awarded a Ph.D. or equivalent doctorate. Strong training and skills in quantitative data analysis in R is required. Preference will be given to applicants with demonstrated skills in one or more of the following areas: data management, survey methodology, multilevel regression, causal inference, machine learning, cross-national research. Preference is also given to applicants with research interests in one or more of the following areas related to the project: conflict and cooperation, political economy, political psychology, state capacity, social preferences, migration.

Postdoc appointments are characterized by all of the following conditions:

- * the appointee was recently (within the last eight years) awarded a Ph.D. or equivalent doctorate (e.g., Sc.D., M.D.);
- * the appointment is temporary;
- * the appointment involves substantially full-time research or scholarship;
- * the appointment is viewed as preparatory for a full-time academic and/or research career;
- * the appointee works under the supervision of a faculty member; and
- * the appointee has the freedom and is expected to publish the results of his or her research or scholarship during the period of appointment.

Screening of applicants will begin on August 15, 2023 and continue until the position is filled. The position is renewable based on performance. For further information, please contact James Walsh (jwalsh@charlotte.edu) and Alexander Kustov (akustov@charlotte.edu).

University of Maryland, College Park

Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Comparative Politics, International Relations

The Department of Government and Politics at the University of Maryland College Park (UMCP) invites applications for the President's Postdoctoral Fellowship Program (PPFP). Candidates with research and teaching interests in the areas of international relations, comparative politics, and/or American politics will be considered. The purpose of the PPFP Program is to support promising scholars who are committed to diversity in academia. We particularly encourage applications from members of groups historically underrepresented in the professoriate. Upon successful completion of the PPFP Program and review, the Fellowship may convert to a tenure-track Assistant Professor position.

Founded in 1856, University of Maryland, College Park is the state's flagship institution. Our 1,250-acre College Park campus is just minutes away from Washington, D.C., and the nexus of the nation's legislative, executive, and judicial centers of power. This unique proximity to business and technology leaders, federal departments and agencies, and a myriad of research entities, embassies, think tanks, cultural centers, and non-profit organizations is simply unparalleled. Synergistic opportunities for our faculty and students abound and are virtually limitless in the nation's capital and surrounding areas. The University is committed to attracting and retaining outstanding and diverse faculty and staff that will enhance our stature of preeminence in our three missions of teaching, scholarship, and full engagement in our community, the state of Maryland, and in the world.

The Department of Government and Politics is one of the largest departments in the College of Behavioral and Social Sciences at the University of Maryland. It has over 30 tenured and tenure track faculty, over 1,000 majors, and 100 graduate students. Its faculty teach and conduct research in the major fields in political science, including American politics, comparative politics, international relations, political theory, political economy, and formal theory and methods. Realizing that many of the key problems we face have a significant political component, our faculty and students study a variety of issues with real-world policy implications ranging from civil wars and ethnic conflict to environmental politics, partisan polarization, and inequality.

We seek an active scholar with the potential to conduct cutting-edge research and innovative teaching interests in the area(s) of international relations, comparative politics, and/or American politics.

The successful Fellow will be appointed for a one-year 12-month term beginning July 1, 2024, with the expectation of renewal for a second one-year term contingent on review. The Fellow will receive a starting stipend of at least $58,000, health benefits, and $10,000 for startup. In addition, Fellows will have access to office space with computer, library access, and other privileges at the University. During the term of appointment, the Fellow will be expected to focus primarily on research. In addition, the Fellow will teach one course (one semester only) per year. Highly experienced research and teaching mentors will meet with the Fellow regularly to provide guidance on developing a pedagogically sound teaching philosophy and plan, and improving the skills needed to pursue an academic research career, including proposal and manuscript writing, and technical presentation skills. The Fellow will also participate in professional development opportunities developed by the Office of Postdoctoral Affairs and the Office of Faculty Affairs.

Selected candidates will be invited to formally apply to the University's PFPF program on the basis of scholarly promise and the potential to contribute to the diversity of the UMCP community. Applicants must have completed their doctoral degree when the term of appointment commences (July 1, 2024).

To express interest in the program, please send an email with the subject line including "Postdoctoral Fellowship" to sehughes@umd.edu. Interested candidates should submit the following documents with their expression of interest:

1. Cover Letter
2. Curriculum Vitae
3. Statement of Proposed Research Plan (2-3 pages)
4. Personal Statement that details your demonstrated commitment to diversity efforts and the mission of UMCP, preliminary ideas about potential mentors in the department, and why you should be selected for this opportunity (1-3 pages)
5. Teaching Statement (1-2 pages)

For best consideration, complete applications should be submitted via email by September 15, 2023.

University of British Columbia

Rank: Comparative Politics of the Global South Assistant Professor

The Department of Political Science at the University of British Columbia (Vancouver) invites applications for a tenure-track appointment in the Comparative Politics of the Global South at the level of Assistant Professor, effective July 1, 2024.

We seek applicants with strong research records and research potential and a demonstrated ability to undertake high-quality teaching. Within the Comparative Politics of the Global South, the area of research and teaching specialization and the geographic focus are open. The Department has a particular interest in scholars who will enhance its diversity.

The successful candidate will have completed a Ph.D. in Political Science (or related field) or be able to adequately demonstrate that all Ph.D. requirements are sufficiently close to completion. The successful candidate will be expected to develop and maintain an active program of research leading to peer-reviewed publications and the securing of external research funding, and to contribute to the education and training of undergraduate and graduate students.

The programs, faculty research interests, and general activities of the UBC Department of Political Science can be found at www.politics.ubc.ca.

This position is subject to final budgetary approval. Salary will be commensurate with qualifications and experience. While at this time we expect in-person campus interviews to take place, applicants must be prepared to conduct interviews remotely if circumstances require.

To apply, applicants must upload online the following materials at <https://poli.air.arts.ubc.ca/comparative-politics-of-the-global-south-assistant-professor-application-form-2023/>

- a cover letter;
- a curriculum vitae;
- a description of current and future research interests (maximum 2 pages);
- a statement of teaching philosophy, interests and accomplishments (maximum 2 pages);
- evidence of teaching effectiveness (e.g., summaries of teaching evaluations (official preferred), peer reviews of teaching, sample course materials);
- a 1-page statement about the applicant's experience working with a diverse student body and about contributions or potential contributions to creating/advancing a culture of equity and inclusion;
- one writing sample, either published or unpublished.

Candidates invited for an on-campus interview will be asked to provide a written paper associated with their research presentation if the presentation is not based on the originally submitted writing sample.

In addition, applicants should arrange for three confidential signed letters of recommendation to be sent separately to the Department of Political Science, in care of Jeff Yupitun, Assistant to the Department Head, at poli.recruitment@ubc.ca. Review of applications will begin on September 15, 2023, and will continue until the position is filled.

UBC-Vancouver's Point Grey Campus is located on the traditional, ancestral, and unceded territories of the Musqueam people, with whom UBC shares a framework Memorandum of Affiliation. San Diego State University

Rank: Politics of East Asia

Subfield(s): Comparative Politics, International Relations, Other

The Political Science Department at San Diego State University invites applications for a tenure-track position in East Asian Politics at the rank of Assistant Professor, to begin Fall 2024. Applicants should demonstrate a well-developed research agenda, a promise of sustained scholarship, and a record of effective teaching.

Qualifications

The department seeks a scholar with research and teaching expertise in the politics of East Asia, broadly understood to encompass North-east and Southeast Asia. We are open to applications from scholars in both comparative politics and international relations whose research is focused on one or more countries in the region. The successful candidate's research may focus on any of a range of substantive topics – including but not limited to, democratization, political economy, state-society relations, and foreign policy – and should demonstrate a capacity to engage with normative issues underlying critical debates in the field. The candidate would be expected to work closely with the program on International Security and Conflict Resolution and the Center for Asian & Pacific Studies. The department is open to a diversity of theoretical and methodological approaches.

The Political Science Department at San Diego State is dedicated to the ideal of the engaged teacher-scholar. It has over 600 undergraduate majors and provides course offerings for students with a wide variety of backgrounds and interests. At the graduate level, the department maintains an M.A. program of high quality. The members of the faculty share a strong commitment to collegiality, active participation in the governing of the department, innovative scholarship, methodological pluralism, rigorous teaching, and robust intellectual and normative engagement. Candidates are encouraged to consult the department website: <http://politicalscience.sdsu.edu>.

We are seeking applicants with demonstrated experience in and/or commitment to teaching and working effectively with individuals from diverse backgrounds and members of underrepresented groups. Candidates must satisfy two or more of the eight Building on Inclusive Excellence (BIE) criteria. Candidates that meet BIE criteria: (a) are committed to engaging in service with underrepresented populations within the discipline, (b) have demonstrated knowledge of barriers for underrepresented students and faculty within the discipline, (c) have experience or have demonstrated commitment to teaching and mentoring underrepresented students, (d) have experience or have demonstrated commitment to integrating understanding of underrepresented populations and communities into research, (e) have experience in or have demonstrated commitment to extending knowledge of opportunities and challenges in achieving artistic/scholarly success to members of an underrepresented group, (f) have experience in or have demonstrated commitment to research that engages underrepresented communities, (g) have expertise or demonstrated commitment to developing expertise in cross-cultural communication and collaboration, and/or (h) have research interests that contribute to diversity and equal opportunity in higher education. Please indicate in a separate diversity statement how you meet at least two (2) of these criteria. Additional guidance on our BIE program for applicants is here.

SDSU is the oldest institution of higher education in the San Diego region, with a campus in San Diego serving 36,000 undergraduate and graduate students and additional locations in Southern California's Imperial Valley and Tbilisi in the Republic of Georgia. SDSU is included in the Carnegie Foundation's Doctoral Universities: High Research Activity category. Established in 1897, SDSU offers bachelor degrees in 97 areas, masters in 84 and doctorates in 23. See <http://www.sdsu.edu> for more information. SDSU is a large, diverse, urban university, an Asian-Native American-Pacific Islander-Serving Institution and a Hispanic-Serving Institution with a commitment to diversity, equity, and inclusive excellence. Our campus community is diverse in many ways, including race, religion, color, sex, age, disability, marital status, sexual orientation, gender identity and expression, national origin, pregnancy, medical condition, and covered veteran status. We strive to build and sustain a welcoming environment for all.

Application Instructions

Applicants must apply via Interfolio at <http://apply.interfolio.com/127871>. A completed file includes a letter of interest, a curriculum vitae, graduate transcripts, complete teaching evaluations (quantitative evaluations and complete sets of qualitative evaluations of recent courses), sample syllabi, academic writing samples, diversity statement, and three letters of recommendation. To ensure full consideration, submit all materials by September 21st, 2023. Screening of applications will begin then. Applicants who will have completed the Ph.D. by the start of the term of appointment will be given priority. Those without a Ph.D. in-hand should include in their letter of interest a statement of progress on the dissertation and reasons to expect completion in a timely fashion.

Further inquiries should be addressed to Farid Abdel-Nour, Chair of the Department of Political Science, at abdelnou@sdsu.edu.

The minimum salary for this position is based on the current CSU salary schedule for Assistant Professors and may be revised based on contract collective bargaining. The anticipated salary range is from $79,000 to $83,000. Salary placement will be based on the selected candidate's qualifications and experience, and salaries higher than the published maximums may be offered in limited circumstances. San Diego State University offers a rich benefits package that constitutes a major portion of total compensation. For benefits information, click here.

As part of its commitment to a safe and equitable "OneSDSU" community, SDSU requires that individuals seeking faculty employment provide at the time of application authorization to conduct background checks if they become a finalist for the position; applications without this authorization will be considered incomplete and not considered.

A background check (including a criminal records check) must be completed before any candidate can be offered a position with the CSU. Failure to satisfactorily complete the background check may affect the application status of applicants or continued employment of current CSU employees who apply for the position.

The person holding this position is considered a "mandated reporter" under the California Child Abuse and Neglect Reporting Act and is required to comply with the requirements set forth in CSU Executive Order 1083 as a condition of employment.

Equal Employment Opportunity Statement

U.S. Army War College

Rank: Asst/Assoc Professor of Asian Affairs

Specializations: East Asia, South Asia, Southeast Asia

United States Army War College

Assistant/Associate Professor of Asian Studies

Salary range: $86,206 – $139,302

Summary:

The United States Army War College is accepting applications for an Assistant/Associate Professor of Asian Studies in the Department of National Security and Strategy to begin in the summer of 2024.

Position Description:

The person selected for this position will have a leading role in planning, administering, and teaching core courses on Asian regional studies as well as other core and elective courses of the resident education program and associated programs. They will serve as a faculty instructor for one seminar, advise students, and serve as project advisor for student research projects. They will also engage in cutting-edge scholarship that advances knowledge in fields relevant to the curriculum, and engage in service in support of USAWC missions. Other duties may include teaching courses on war, strategy, and national security policy, and/or supporting the development and execution of specialized programs in policy, strategy, and outreach. Finally, the applicant must be able to obtain and maintain a SECRET security clearance from the US government.

The Army War College seeks applicants who would find fulfillment teaching and researching in an environment that intentionally blends scholarly achievement with policy application. It relies on a collaborative and inter-disciplinary teaching environment that emphasizes student engagement. As one of the nation's premiere institutions for military education, it is a dynamic workplace that mixes academic excellence with practitioner experience to prepare senior level officers and civilians for roles in strategy- and policy-making over the rest of their careers. This importance of the mission, and direct impact that faculty instruction has on national security processes, fosters a culture of mutual respect and collegiality across the department and school. Faculty who are interested in translating their academic expertise into policy debates are encouraged to do so.

This is a full-time, long-term, civilian faculty position. Initial appointment may be for up to 4 years; the first year may be probationary. Appointments may be renewed subject to job performance and availability of funds; reappointments at USAWC are the norm and the position should be considered equivalent to tenure-track. Academic rank and compensation of initial appointment will be offered commensurate with the applicant's level of experience and qualifications. We are prepared to offer a salary-and-benefits package designed to attract highly talented applicants.

For additional questions about the position, Department of National Security and Strategy, and/or the Army War College, please contact:

University of Kansas

Rank: Assistant Professor Russian and/or Eurasian International Relations

Specializations: Russia, Foreign Policy, Political Economy

Assistant Professor Russian and/or Eurasian International Relations

Department of Political Science, University of Kansas

The University of Kansas (KU) Department of Political Science of the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences in collaboration with the university's Center for Russian, East European & Eurasian Studies (CREES) invites applications for a tenure-track Assistant Professorship in Russian and/or Eurasian International Relations beginning August 18, 2023. Successful candidates will be able to demonstrate methodological training that is appropriate with their theoretical approaches as well as provide evidence of the capacity to publish in major journals or presses in political science. Preference will be given to applicants with research and/or teaching specialty in Russian and Eurasian international relations including foreign policy, security, political economy, and the opportunity to develop courses in the candidate's own areas of expertise.

Candidates are expected to contribute to the political science department as well as CREES' interdisciplinary intellectual community and mentor undergraduate and graduate students in Russian, East European, and Eurasian Studies. The Political Science Department and CREES are committed to fostering an inclusive and supportive educational environment for students, faculty and staff. The successful candidates will have experience with diversity, equity, and inclusion in higher education.

Required Qualifications: 1) A doctorate in Political Science. If ABD, the dissertation must be successfully defended by the position start date; 2) Demonstrated commitment to excellence in teaching at the undergraduate and graduate level; 3) Demonstrated ability or plans to develop an innovative body of research and scholarship as evidenced by scholarly publications, presentations, and/or other scholarly activities; 4) Expertise on Russia and/or Eurasia, demonstrated by dissertation chapters, working papers, or publications of relevance to the region

At the University of Kansas, diversity, equity, inclusion, and belonging are an important part of our culture and university strategic plan. Applications from members of underrepresented groups are encouraged, noting the value that differences bring to our organization, students, staff, faculty, and community. The successful candidate must be eligible to work in the U.S. by the effective date of the appointment.

For further details and a full position description, go to: <https://employment.ku.edu/academic/23401BR>. A complete application package includes: (1) a cover letter summarizing research goals and teaching experiences and interests; (2) curriculum vitae; (3) teaching statement showing evidence of teaching ability; (4) a research statement with goals and research potential (samples of published work or conference papers); and (5) the names, email addresses, and contact information for 3 professional references. ABD candidates need to include advisor contact information

In addition to the materials above, learning about each applicant's contribution and engagement in areas of diversity is an important part of KU's mission. As a result, applicants will be presented the following question at the time of application. The response must be within 4,000 characters or less: Describe your experiences working with people from diverse backgrounds and explain how those experiences reflect your commitments to diversity, equity, and inclusion.

Application review will begin October 15, 2022, and will remain open until the position is filled. For more information, please contact Clayton Webb, Search Committee Chair at webb767@ku.edu.

INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS

George Washington University

Rank: Assistant Professor in International Security

Position Description Summary:

The George Washington University's Elliott School of International Affairs and the Department of Political Science invite applications for a tenure track position in the field of Political Science with a specialization in International Security, beginning in Fall semester 2024. We look to hire a scholar at the Assistant Professor level who will teach and produce scholarship in areas such as (but not limited to) the causes, conduct, control, and termination of armed conflict between or within states; deterrence and compellence; nuclear weapons; alliances and security institutions; grand strategy; cybersecurity; and military intervention—as well as international relations theories that are relevant to assessing these issue areas.

Specific Duties and Responsibilities:

The successful candidate will develop new undergraduate and graduate courses in international security/security studies and may also teach other courses in international relations and/or regional studies in their area of expertise. This hire will be affiliated with the Elliott School's Institute for Security and Conflict Studies—as well as any of the School's regionally focused research institutes, as appropriate. Elliott School faculty are expected to engage with policy issues and the policy community in addition to teaching, research, and service.

Minimum Qualifications:

Applicants must have a Ph.D. in Political Science or other relevant social science discipline or inter-disciplinary field at the time of appointment. Applicants must have demonstrated significant record of sustained and continuing high quality research and substantial teaching experience.

Other Information:

The culture of George Washington University reflects its shared values, including respect and diversity. The Elliott School recognizes that diversity and social mobility are among our country's greatest assets in engaging the rest of the world; we are deeply committed as a school to fostering an inclusive community. To this end, we encourage candidates from diverse identities, backgrounds, and experiences. We are particularly interested in receiving applications from members of underrepresented groups. The selected candidate will be expected to provide evidence of inclusive excellence, including inclusive teaching. To learn more about the Elliott School's commitment to diversity, equity, and inclusion, please visit elliott.gwu.edu/diversityand-inclusion.

Special Instructions to Applicants:

To be considered, complete an online application at <https://www.gwu.jobs/postings/104830> and upload a CV, cover letter, statement of research and teaching interests and qualifications, course evaluations (if available), samples of written work, and statement on how your past and/or potential contributions to diversity, equity and inclusion will advance the Elliott School's commitment to inclusive excellence. In addition, please have at least three letters of recommendation sent to esiafacrecruit@gwu.edu.

Review of applications will begin on October 2, 2023 and continue until the position is filled. Only complete applications will be considered. Employment offers are contingent on the satisfactory outcome of a standard background screening.

EEO Statement:

The university is an Equal Employment Opportunity/Affirmative Action employer that does not unlawfully discriminate in any of its programs or activities on the basis of race, color, religion, sex, national origin, age, disability, veteran status, sexual orientation, gender identity or expression, or on any other basis prohibited by applicable law.

New York University Abu Dhabi

Rank: Post-Doctoral Associate in the Division of Social Science (Political Science) - Dr. Leonid Peisakhin

Description

We are inviting applications for a three-year Post-Doctoral Associate in the Division of Social Science at NYU Abu Dhabi from individuals who have or will soon receive a PhD in political science or a related discipline. The appointment will begin September 1, 2024, subject to final budget approval.

The post-doctoral associate will spend half their time on independent research, and half of their time on collaborative research with Drs. Leonid Peisakhin, Joan Barceló, and Jeff Jensen. The collaborative research will be in the field of historical legacy research, with an emphasis on the legacy of conflict and historical institutions. This position is open as to geographical area.

The ideal candidate will specialize in historical political economy and will have an interest in conflict studies, post-conflict reconciliation, as well as broader topics in political economy; strong candidates with research interests in other subfields will also be given full consideration. Advanced methodological training is essential; this includes high-level familiarity with causal inference and econometric techniques. Experience working with historical sources and familiarity with public opinion research would be helpful, but not required.

The position does not require teaching, but it may be possible to get teaching experience for compensation. You would be part of a group of over 20 post-doctoral fellows and 70 faculty in the Division of Social Science.

Please use the following link to apply: <https://apply.interfolio.com/130629>

For consideration, applicants need to submit a cover letter, curriculum vitae with a full publication list, statement of research interests and two letters of reference, all in PDF format by December 1, 2023. Applications will be considered on a rolling basis. If you have any questions, please email Dr. Leonid Peisakhin leonid.peisakhin@nyu.edu

Rhodes College

Rank: Assistant Professor of International Relations/Comparative Politics

The Department of International Studies at Rhodes College invites applications for a tenure-track position at the rank of assistant professor to begin Fall of 2024. Rhodes College believes that diversity and inclusion are critical to our success as an institution, and we seek to recruit, develop, and retain the most talented people from a diverse candidate pool. Furthermore, Rhodes College is committed to supporting the work-life alignment of its faculty. We encourage applications from candidates who have expertise in security, peace, and conflict. The search is open in terms of regional or area studies expertise. This position has a 3:2 teaching load, and applicants should demonstrate a firm commitment to teaching and research in an undergraduate, liberal arts environment. The successful candidate will have classroom experience and is expected to teach introductory and advanced courses in either International Relations or Comparative Politics. Additional courses will be based on the candidate's area of specialization. Preference will be given to candidates who can teach an upper-level course on international conflict or security and those who can contribute to an interdisciplinary atmosphere. The successful candidate is expected to earn their Ph.D. by July 2024.

Rhodes is a nationally ranked residential college committed to the liberal arts and sciences. Our highest priorities are intellectual engagement, service to others, commitment to diversity and inclusion, and honor among ourselves. Our students live and learn on one of the country's most beautiful campuses, located in the heart of Memphis, an economic, medical, and culturally diverse center, making Rhodes one of a handful of prominent liberal arts colleges in a major metropolitan area.

Rhodes College prides itself on being a diverse, inclusive, and welcoming environment. We are an equal opportunity employer committed to diversity and anti-discrimination.

A complete application will include 1) a cover letter that addresses the strengths the candidate will bring as a teacher and scholar to a liberal arts college environment; 2) a curriculum vitae; 3) a separate statement that addresses how the candidate's experiences with teaching, scholarship, and/or service will contribute to a college community that includes a commitment to diversity and inclusion as one of its core values; 4) a writing sample; 5) an unofficial graduate transcript; and 6) evidence of teaching performance (if applicable). Review of completed applications will begin on October 1, 2023, and will continue until the position is filled. Candidates from backgrounds typically underrepresented in higher education are strongly encouraged to apply. Letters of recommendation will only be solicited for short-listed applicants, at which time you will be prompted for the names and contact information for three (3) references. Background checks are required before candidates can be brought to campus for interviews.

Rank: Assistant Professor (International Relations)

Assistant Professor (Political Science)

United States Naval Academy, Political Science Department

APPLICATION TIMELINE:

Application review will begin on October 1, 2023 and will continue until the position is filled.

ABOUT THE U.S. NAVAL ACADEMY:

The United States Naval Academy is a unique institution of higher learning located in Annapolis, Maryland. As a service academy and premier undergraduate college, the United States Naval Academy has its own distinctive niche amongst American higher education institutions. Our talented faculty and staff are united by a common purpose—to develop the next generation of officers to be exceptional leaders in our naval service.

The United States Naval Academy is committed to building a diverse workforce of faculty and staff who provide a multi-disciplinary and hands-on approach to student learning and leadership development. We believe that individuals from diverse backgrounds and perspectives strengthen our programs and positively impact student success. We encourage qualified applicants from all backgrounds to apply for consideration.

Every year more than one million people tour “the Yard” to experience what our employees already know — the United States Naval Academy is a special place, with a special purpose. Employees will find challenging and rewarding work; state-of-the-art facilities which inspire academic and athletic excellence; the benefits of Federal employment; and exceptional quality-of-life.

POSITION DESCRIPTION:

The Political Science Department invites applications for a tenure-track Assistant Professor position beginning as early as July 2024. USNA is a service academy and top tier liberal arts college with a commitment to excellence in faculty teaching and research. International Relations scholars with expertise in international organizations, international law, international political economy, or human rights are encouraged to apply. A strong methodological background and commitment to undergraduate teaching are essential. Candidates should have a robust interest in teaching introduction to international relations, undergraduate research methods, and upper-level electives in their fields of concentration. The teaching load is typically three sections per semester with small section sizes (16-18 students) and 2-4 course preparations per year. Candidates should have a robust research agenda and demonstrate potential for research excellence. Candidates should also have a strong commitment to advising and mentoring student from a wide variety of geographic, racial, and socioeconomic backgrounds and to service to the institution.

The Political Science Department at the Naval Academy is a large department of civilian and military academics whose specialties cover the full range of subfields in political science. We recognize the value of a department that is diverse and inclusive. In staffing, course offerings, research support, and collective department culture, we are committed to building and maintaining a varied academic program that values the contributions of all without bias regarding race, gender, ethnicity, culture, or sexual orientation. We believe that this commitment to inclusivity and focus on critical thinking skills facilitates a strong education for midshipmen as they study and train to become military officers who will lead diverse teams of sailors and marines.

This is an onsite, 10-month compensation, excepted service federal faculty position with a 3-year renewable appointment, a highly competitive salary, and full federal benefits. Salary is commensurate with experience and qualifications.

MINIMUM AND PREFERRED QUALIFICATIONS:

Minimum:

A Ph.D. or equivalent in Political Science or related field is required (anticipated completion of Ph.D. no later than June 2024 is acceptable).

Preferred:

A teaching interest in the following areas: international relations, international organizations, international law, international political economy, or human rights.

HOW TO APPLY FOR POSITION:

Interested candidates should send a cover letter, teaching and research statements, diversity statement, curriculum vitae, and arrange for three letters of recommendation that address both teaching and research abilities to be sent to the Chair of the Hiring Committee at polisci-ir-ay24-group@usna.edu.

Please note: Applications will be reviewed beginning October 1, 2023 but the position will remain open until filled.

CONDITIONS OF EMPLOYMENT:

U.S. Citizenship is required.

All Civilian Excepted Service/Faculty Positions at USNA are subject to a background investigation. The selected candidate will be subject to a security investigation leading to successful completion of a background investigation with a favorable adjudication. The selectee's failure to meet this requirement will be grounds for termination. Cornell University

Rank: Climate Politics and Equitable Futures - IR

Climate change and the coming climate transitions are radically reshaping global politics, with profound domestic and international implications. We aim to make Cornell's Government Department a disciplinary leader in the integrated study of the complex political transformations that are already in process as a result of global warming as well as in developing the transformative politics needed to respond to global warming and its consequences. We are interested in scholarship that addresses topics such as the intersection of climate and environmental politics with racial and ethnic politics, indigenous politics, political economy, environmental justice, the (in)equitable distribution of the costs of climate change, the politics of sustainability, and the politics of climate related migration, among others.

As part of this initiative, the Department of Government invites applications from scholars with international, global, or transnational interests for a tenure-track position in international relations at the rank of assistant professor to begin in the fall semester 2024. A PhD is required no later than July 1, 2024.

Applicants should apply online at <https://academicjobsonline.org/ajob/jobs/25454>. Interested candidates should submit a letter of application, curriculum vitae, two samples of written work, three letters of recommendation, and teaching evaluations. In addition, we ask applicants to share their experiences and/or approaches (past, current, or future) to fostering learning, research, service, and/or outreach in a diverse community; applicants may submit a stand-alone statement or embed the information in other parts of their application.

We will begin to review applications starting September 20, 2023, and will continue until the search is complete.

Diversity and Inclusion are a part of Cornell University's heritage. We are a recognized employer and educator valuing AA/EEO, Protected Veterans, and Individuals with Disabilities. We also recognize a lawful preference in employment practices for Native Americans living on or near Indian reservations. Cornell University embraces diversity and seeks candidates who will contribute to a climate that supports students, faculty, and staff of all identities and backgrounds. We strongly encourage individuals from underrepresented and/or marginalized identities to apply.

University of Georgia

Rank: Lecturer

The Department of International Affairs at the University of Georgia invites applications for a Lecturer to begin in the fall of 2024. This is a nine-month academic-year appointment that is renewable on an annual basis. The Lecturer will teach eight courses a year, four courses in the fall semester and four courses in the spring semester. Typically, two or more sections of the same course are to be offered each semester and/or during the same academic year. Some courses will be capped at fewer than 20 students per class. The allocation of effort at appointment will be 100% teaching. The ideal candidate will have primary teaching and research interests in international relations and/or comparative politics. The Lecturer will be expected to teach introductory courses on global issues, comparative politics, and international relations, as well as upper-level undergraduate courses in areas such as international law, security, and human rights. Candidates are expected to have a demonstrated ability to teach current political science and international affairs research. The University of Georgia supports a culture of active learning in which students think about what they are learning while they are learning it, and instructors utilize instructional practices that purposefully engage all students in the learning process.

Lecturers are eligible to participate in professional development opportunities and receive funds for professional travel when they are available.

Prospective candidates must apply for the position through the UGA Faculty Job site at: <https://www.ugajobsearch.com/postings/338142>. To complete the application, candidates will need to submit a cover letter indicating interest and qualifications, a current curriculum vita, teaching evaluations demonstrating excellence in instruction, original transcripts, and three letters of recommendation. Questions or hard copies of letters of recommendation can be sent to Bill Zachmann, Department of International Affairs, University of Georgia, Candler Hall 219, Athens, GA 30602 (zachmann@uga.edu). Applicants should have an earned Ph.D. degree in political science or a related discipline by August 1, 2024. Applications received by October 15, 2023 will be assured full consideration.

Georgia is well known for its quality of life both outdoor and urban activities (www.georgia.gov). UGA (www.uga.edu) is a land/sea grant institution located 75 miles northeast of Atlanta.

Rank: PROFESSOR OF NATIONAL SECURITY AFFAIRS

U.S. NAVAL WAR COLLEGE-AT-NAVAL POSTGRADUATE

SEEKS

 ASSISTANT/ASSOCIATE/FULL (AD-1701-03/05/07)

Join a vibrant department teaching in-resident graduate courses in the interdisciplinary field of foreign policy analysis and international security. The National Security Affairs (NSA) division of the U.S. Naval War College's program at the Naval Postgraduate School in Monterey, California is actively seeking diverse candidates with national security academic and professional experience for an open-rank position as a professor of national security affairs. Career track determination (tenure/tenure track, non-tenure track, practitioner) is commensurate with experience and credentials.

U.S. Naval War College. The Naval War College (NWC) is a Professional Military Education (PME) institution serving the nation, the Department of Defense, and the U.S. Navy. U.S. and selected international graduates earn Master of Arts degrees in National Security & Strategic Studies or Defense & Strategic Studies accredited by the New England Commission of Higher Education. The College educates and develops future leaders through the development of strategic perspective, critical thinking, and cultural awareness, as well as enhancing the capability to advise senior leaders and policy makers. The College also helps to define the future Navy and its roles and missions; supports combat readiness; strengthens global maritime partnerships; and promotes ethics and leadership throughout the force. We are actively seeking candidates with diverse academic, demographic, and professional backgrounds. More information on the College can be found at www.usnwc.edu.

The Naval War College Program at the Naval Postgraduate School and the National Security Affairs Division: The Naval War College maintains a resident, graduate-level Command & Staff program teaching traditional, in-classroom courses year-round to full-time students who are in residence at the Naval Postgraduate School in Monterey, CA. It is composed of scholars and practitioners engaged in a wide range of teaching, research, and outreach. The program offers courses to full-time graduate students as part of various M.A. and Ph.D. programs in pursuit of Joint Professional Military Education Phase I. It is administered under the Naval War College's College of Distance Education and maintains its own permanent Associate Dean and faculty in Monterey. The NSA division teaches one of the NWC's core academic courses called Theater Security and Decision Making that focuses on national security. For more information, see the program's webpage at <https://my.nps.edu/web/naval-war-college>.

Responsibilities. Specific responsibilities include teaching core graduate-level security studies survey courses, collaborating in the development of common core curricula, professional development and contribution, and college service. There is no requirement or expectation to attract external funding. Normal teaching load is 2/2/2/0 based on a 12-month quarter system. This normally involves teaching two seminar sections (single preparation) of 15 students each for three academic quarters per year. A fourth quarter is normally devoted to research, writing, curriculum development, and college service. All positions are year-round (12-month).

Qualifications. Qualified candidates must have an advanced degree from an accredited university. A master's degree is required; a Ph.D. is preferred. Concentration areas include: International Relations/Affairs, Foreign Policy Analysis, Security Studies, U.S. Government Studies, U.S. Foreign Policy, History, Applied Social Sciences, or a related field. Preferred qualifications include: an established or promising scholarly agenda and/or experience in security affairs, demonstrated experience working in the national security and defense environment, graduate-level teaching experience, graduation from a senior or intermediate-level Service College, Joint Professional Military Education phase I and/or II certification, and experience in a joint or service staff or government organization.

Candidates must be U.S. citizens and be capable of obtaining a Department of Defense security clearance at the SECRET level.

Salary. Salary is competitive and is accompanied by a generous federal civil service package that includes health insurance, pension and retirement savings plans (with employer matching contributions), paid vacation and sick leave, and other benefits. Rank and salary are commensurate with experience and credentials in accordance with the Department of the Navy Faculty Schedule.

Application Procedures. Applicants must reference VA#NWC-23-19 and forward their application package to: NWC-23-19@usnwc.edu. The application package shall include the following: 1) cover letter; 2) Curriculum Vitae/Resume; 3) teaching evaluations or other evidence of teaching effectiveness (if available); 4) research agenda (no more than 5 pages) if applying for tenure/tenure-track; and 5) contact information for three professional references. Applications will be accepted through 11:59 pm (EDT) 29 September 2023.

Questions about the position or the institution should be directed via email to Dr. Robert Tomlinson at robert.tomlinson@usnwc.edu. NOTICE OF VETERANS PREFERENCE: There is no formal rating system for applying veterans' preference to the excepted service; however, the Department of Defense considers veterans' preference eligibility a positive factor for hiring. Applicants eligible for veterans' preference must include that information in their cover letter or resume/CV and attach supporting documentation (DD Form 214, "Certificate of Release or Discharge from Active Duty") to their submission. Although the point-preference system is not used, applicants eligible to claim 10-Point preference must submit a Standard Form (SF) 15, "Application for 10-Point Veteran Preference," and supporting documents of the claimed disability (e.g., disability letter from the VA). The SF 15, which lists the types of 10-Point Preference and the required supporting documents, is available from the Office of Personnel Management Website at www.opm.gov.

Within the Department of Defense (DoD), the appointment of retired military members within 180 days immediately following retirement date to a civilian position is subject to the provisions of 5 United States Code 3326.

The Naval War College is an Equal Opportunity Employer.

Universidad Catolica del Uruguay

Rank: Assistant Professor

Ref: LLAMACA-181

Call for applications to fill a position of Assistant Professor (Full time) at the Department of Social Sciences

The Universidad Católica del Uruguay calls for applications to fill a position of Assistant Professor (Full time) at its Department of Social Sciences. Candidates should hold a Ph.D. or be near completion (December 2023) in Political Science or Sociology, but candidates in other social science disciplines such as Demography, Human Geography, Criminology or Social Work are also encouraged to apply. Candidates may be specialized in any substantive subarea (for example, research methods, public policy, comparative politics, political economy, social stratification, or socioeconomic inequalities).

Candidates must demonstrate excellence in teaching, an active substantive research agenda, and a demonstrated ability to publish and teach in English and Spanish. Successful candidates are expected to work full-time (160 hours per month) and start working in February or August 2024.

Applications will start being analyzed on September 30, 2023, but applications received after that will still be considered until the position is filled or the university closes the call. A complete application must contain (1) a cover letter, (2) CV, (3) an example of an undergraduate course program that the candidate would be able to teach, (4) up to 2 examples of academic research work, (5) teacher evaluations, and (6) three letters of recommendation. The application should be made electronically (<https://bpm.ucu.edu.uy/public/01LPOSD>). Letters of recommendation can be included by the candidate in the application or can be directly sent by their author to the following email: departamentos@ucu.edu.uy (Ref: LLAMACA-181 – Letter of recommendation for [Name Last name]).

The selection process will consist on the following stages. First, a short list of candidates will be selected to be interviewed by the Selection Committee in person or via videoconference in case of residing abroad. Then, 3 shortlisted candidates will be invited to the Montevideo campus to present their research and hold interviews with members of the Department and other authorities. The selection committee may request from the candidates, at any time during the process, additional materials, or the corresponding accreditations. The decisions of the selection committee will be final. The Universidad Católica del Uruguay reserves the right not to hire any candidates without responsibility of any kind at its own expense.

For additional information, applicants may contact the Department's Chair, Rosario Queirolo (rosario.queirolo@ucu.edu.uy).

Subfield(s): Comparative Politics, Political Theory, International Relations

Specializations: Social Movements, Science & Technology, Urban Politics

Faculty Fellow

New York University Graduate School of Arts and Science

XE: Experimental Humanities & Social Engagement, an interdisciplinary master's program in the Graduate School of Arts and Science at New York University, invites applications for a Faculty Fellow position in the social sciences. The initial appointment will be for one year beginning September 1, 2024, renewable annually for a maximum of three years, pending administrative and budgetary approval.

We seek outstanding interdisciplinary scholars of the social sciences whose work engages intersectional social justice. The successful candidate will be committed to cutting-edge interdisciplinary inquiry and their fields will include, span, or exceed: anthropology, sociology, science and technology studies, politics, or urban studies, addressing urgent topics such as displacement and migration, indigenous rights, anti-racism, decolonization, incarceration, health, or environmental justice, among others.

Faculty fellows teach three graduate seminars per year, advise and mentor students, oversee master's theses, organize public programs, and actively participate in shaping the life of the program.

XE is a highly innovative master's program and tight-knit community of scholars and practitioners who value collaborative mentoring and career building, as well as exploring new pedagogies and research methods at the intersection of creativity, criticality, and social engagement.

Qualifications:

We seek candidates with a PhD in the social sciences. While PhDs are required, we welcome candidates who have a public-facing critical or artistic practice in their field/s. Candidates should have completed their Ph.D. no earlier than 2020 and no later than by August 1, 2024.

To apply, please submit: a cover letter, curriculum vitae, a 20- to 30-page writing sample, sample syllabi for two dream classes, three letters of recommendation, and a statement of diversity and inclusion.

Applications should be submitted through Interfolio: <http://apply.interfolio.com/129772>

The search committee will begin reviewing applications on January 5, 2023 and will continue until the position is filled.

As diversity is a priority for NYU and for this position, for the latter statement we ask you to provide a brief paragraph telling us how diversity figures into your past and present teaching, research, community engagement, and/or life experience, as well as how you would bring issues of diversity to bear on the teaching and programming of XE. Information about diversity statements may be found at <http://as.nyu.edu/departments/facultydiversity/recruitment/diversity-statements.html. >

In compliance with NYC's Pay Transparency Act, the annual base salary for this position is $60,000. New York University considers factors such as (but not limited to) the scope and responsibilities of the position, the candidate's work experience, education/training, key skills, internal peer equity, as well as market and organizational considerations when extending an offer.

The Faculty of Arts and Science at NYU is at the heart of a leading research university that spans the globe. We seek scholars of the highest caliber who embody the diversity of the United States as well as the global society in which we live. We strongly encourage applications from women, racial and ethnic minorities, and other individuals who are under-represented in the profession, across color, creed, race, ethnic and national origin, physical ability, gender and sexual identity, or any other legally protected basis. NYU affirms the value of differing perspectives on the world as we strive to build the strongest possible university with the widest reach. University of British Columbia

Rank: Assistant Professor in China Policy and Governance

The School of Public Policy and Global Affairs (SPPGA) at The University of British Columbia (Vancouver) invites applications for the tenure-track position of Assistant Professor in China Policy and Governance to begin on July 1, 2024.

We seek a scholar who engages in applied research on policy and governance issues related to China. This may include expertise on issues of policy and governance within China, with regards to China's global engagements, and/or comparative work between Chinese and other actors or institutions. We welcome and are committed to supporting candidates with critical perspectives, from a broad array of personal backgrounds and experiences, and across a range of potential disciplinary training. Evidence of experience in communicating to both academic and non-academic audiences and contributing to or influencing policy will be considered an asset.

Candidates should have demonstrated excellence or promise of excellence in research and have a strong commitment to teaching. The successful candidate will be expected to develop and support a dynamic research program, including active policy engagements. The position is open to those specializing in quantitative as well as qualitative research. They are expected to contribute to teaching in the core curriculum of the professional Master of Public Policy and Global Affairs (MPPGA) as well as elective courses on China.

Candidates for this position must have a completed Ph.D. from any disciplinary or interdisciplinary field within the social sciences. Those who have progressed to the point where completion of the PhD is imminent and who demonstrate clear and superior promise of excellent research and teaching will also be considered. The successful candidate is expected to have a Ph.D. for the start of the appointment. The anticipated start date is July 1, 2024.

Applicants should be prepared to upload by the closing deadline of October 16, 2023 in the following order and in a single PDF file (maximum size 15MB):

- Cover letter (up to 2 pages) that contains:
 - o description of current and proposed research;
 - o teaching interests and accomplishments;
 - o experience of contributing to, or influencing, policy;
 - o names and contact information for three scholars from whom confidential letters of assessment can be obtained.
- Curriculum vitae;
- Description of current and proposed research (up to 2 pages);
- Statement (300-500 words) identifying the applicant's philosophy of working with a diverse student body, and contributions, or potential contributions, to advancing a culture of inclusion within the university and beyond;
- Teaching statement and evidence of teaching ability and effectiveness, including sample syllabi (may include teaching evaluations, and teaching dossier);
- One sample of research or publication similar in length to a journal article;
- One sample of writing that aims at communicating the results of research to a policy audience.

Review of applications will begin on 16 October 2023, and will continue until the position has been filled. Applicants with questions about the position are welcome to contact the Administration Manager, Ian Taylor, at ian.taylor@ubc.ca. This position is subject to final budgetary approval. Salary is competitive and will be commensurate with experience.

Further Information:

UBC's School of Public Policy and Global Affairs (SPPGA) is an interdisciplinary and collaborative hub that contributes to developing policies and solutions to complex global and local issues. Davidson College

Rank: Assistant Professor of Political Science - International Relations (East Asia)

International Relations of East Asia

The Department of Political Science invites applications for a tenure-track assistant professor position in International Relations with a regional focus on East Asia. The start date is July 1, 2024. Demonstrated potential for excellence in and enthusiasm for teaching, active and high-quality scholarship, and a commitment to student advising and support are essential. We are interested in candidates whose teaching and research interests include regional courses (e.g. the politics and foreign policy of specific East Asian countries, regional political economy, regional politics, etc.) as well as core courses in International Relations (such as International Security, Causes of War, International Organizations, International Law, International Political Economy, International Trade Theory and Policy, Politics of Global Finance, Globalization and International Development, Regional Security, International Relations of East Asia and the Pacific, etc.).

In addition, the candidate should possess a willingness to expand their teaching and research interests in response to emerging political issues. We also welcome applications from candidates with strong multi-methodological skills, a pluralistic approach to social science methodology, and transdisciplinary interests that complement Davidson College's growing interdisciplinary programs, such as East Asian Studies, and the Data Science interdisciplinary minor. The successful applicant will be expected to offer five courses per year (four in the first year of employment), including an introductory course in either international or comparative politics and upper-level courses and seminars in International Relations. Applications from both Ph.D. holders and very advanced ABDs will be considered.

The following materials are required:

- letter of application;
- curriculum vitae;
- three letters of reference;
- an unofficial copy of graduate school transcript;
- a statement addressing the candidate's research agenda and interests;
- a statement explaining the candidate's demonstrated or potential excellence in and enthusiasm for undergraduate teaching;
- and a statement of contributions to inclusive pedagogy, research, and service. This statement (approximately 500-1000 words) should describe how your teaching, research, and service will support Davidson's commitment to supporting diversity, inclusion, and access (<https://www.davidson.edu/diversity-equity-inclusion>). Specifically, please answer how your past experiences, skills, knowledge, and/or training inform your answers to the following questions:

1. What barriers and practices prevent students from being welcome and included in higher education and from accessing opportunities or resources during their undergraduate education?
2. How will you work to alleviate these barriers in your teaching, mentoring, research, and service?

Your past experiences, knowledge, and/or training that have contributed to your viewpoints or practices related to diversity, inclusion, and access in education could include, but are not limited to, formal and informal teaching and mentoring experiences, workshops, community organizing, and/or lived experiences. We understand that some applicants may have little knowledge of or experience with such statements; please know that we are not looking for a particular response, but for an authentic expression of your perspective and experience.

The deadline for receipt of applications is September 22, 2023. All application materials can be submitted at <http://employment.davidson.edu>. Evidence of excellence in teaching will be provided through teaching accomplishments, the teaching dossier (with required materials outlined below) submitted as part of the application, as well as strong letters of reference.

Candidates are also expected to show evidence of a commitment to equity, diversity, inclusion, and the promotion of a respectful and collegial learning and working environment demonstrated through the application materials.

Salary will be commensurate with qualifications and experience.

All qualified candidates are invited to apply online by clicking the link below. Applicants must submit a cover letter; a current curriculum vitae; a research statement outlining current and future research interests; a recent writing sample of no more than 30 pages; and a teaching dossier to include a teaching statement, sample course materials, and teaching evaluations. Equity and diversity are essential to academic excellence. We seek candidates who value diversity and whose research, teaching and service bear out our commitment to equity. Candidates are therefore also asked to submit a 1-2 page statement of their contributions to equity and diversity, which might cover topics such as (but need not be limited to): research or teaching that incorporates a focus on underrepresented communities, the development of inclusive pedagogies, or the mentoring of students from underrepresented groups.

Applicants must provide the name and contact information of three references. The University of Toronto's recruiting tool will automatically solicit and collect letters of reference from each after an application is submitted (this happens overnight). Applicants remain responsible for ensuring that references submit letters (on letterhead, dated and signed) by the closing date.

Submission guidelines can be found at <http://uoft.me/how-to-apply>. Your CV and cover letter should be uploaded into the dedicated fields. Please combine additional application materials into one or two files in PDF/MS Word format. If you have any questions about this position, please contact Sari Sherman at chair.polisci@utoronto.ca.

All application materials, including reference letters, must be received by October 16, 2023.

All qualified candidates are encouraged to apply; however, Canadians and permanent residents will be given priority.

Diversity Statement

The University of Toronto embraces Diversity and is building a culture of belonging that increases our capacity to effectively address and serve the interests of our global community. We strongly encourage applications from Indigenous Peoples, Black and racialized persons, women, persons with disabilities, and people of diverse sexual and gender identities. We value applicants who have demonstrated a commitment to equity, diversity and inclusion and recognize that diverse perspectives, experiences, and expertise are essential to strengthening our academic mission.

As part of your application, you will be asked to complete a brief Diversity Survey. This survey is voluntary. Any information directly related to you is confidential and cannot be accessed by search committees or human resources staff. Results will be aggregated for institutional planning purposes. For more information, please see <http://uoft.me/UP>.

Accessibility Statement

The University strives to be an equitable and inclusive community, and proactively seeks to increase diversity among its community members. Our values regarding equity and diversity are linked with our unwavering commitment to excellence in the pursuit of our academic mission.

The University is committed to the principles of the Accessibility for Ontarians with Disabilities Act (AODA). As such, we strive to make our recruitment, assessment and selection processes as accessible as possible and provide accommodations as required for applicants with disabilities.

If you require any accommodations at any point during the application and hiring process, please contact uoft.careers@utoronto.ca.

Bates College

Rank: Assistant Professor of Politics

The Department of Politics at Bates College invites applications for a tenure-track position in international relations. We look for candidates whose regional expertise is on Europe. We are open to a variety of theoretical and methodological approaches, but we encourage candidates whose disciplinary focus is in the areas of security studies (broadly defined to include interstate and intra-state conflict, human security, and environmental security), environmental politics, or international governance. We are interested in candidates who can enhance the diversity of perspectives in the department, who are excited to contribute to the college's ongoing commitment to social and cultural diversity and inclusion, who are attentive to the design of inclusive pedagogy, and who can connect with other disciplinary and interdisciplinary efforts at the college, especially with the European Studies program.

The duties of this position include the three main areas of faculty work: teaching, professional achievement, and governance and engagement. Applicants should show a strong commitment to excellence in undergraduate teaching, to academic advising, to scholarly research, to the implementation of inclusive pedagogies, and to taking part in our system of governance and engagement. Faculty members teach five courses per year as well as advise individual senior theses. Courses include those required within the major and those that are part of our general education curriculum. The position would start on August 1, 2024.

We strongly encourage applications from individuals with identities that have been historically marginalized in political science, individuals who have followed non-traditional pathways to higher education due to societal, economic, or academic disadvantages, and individuals with a demonstrated capacity to advance the college's continuing commitments to equitable, inclusive, and anti-racist teaching.

About Bates:

Bates College is a residential liberal arts college in Lewiston, Maine. Details about the college and its community can be found here. Lewiston is a diverse and growing city in Maine, two and a half hours north of Boston and 45 minutes from Portland, Maine's largest city.

Bates supports new faculty with a course reduction in the first year of teaching, formal mentoring, and new-faculty development programming. Bates provides tenure-track faculty with a paid pre-tenure leave and support for post-tenure sabbaticals. Faculty scholarship is supported by start-up packages, internal grants, and a robust external grants office. Teaching is supported by a new Center for Inclusive Teaching and Learning. Community-engaged learning and study abroad are encouraged and robustly supported.

Bates is committed to supporting educational access for all. Educational access and justice are central to Bates' history and mission. That work is supported in a variety of ways, including a Schuler Education Foundation Grant to support financial aid for Pell-eligible students, low income, and undocumented students, and a Mellon Foundation Curricular Transformation Grant. Read more about our faculty's commitment to equity and inclusion here.

Qualifications

Candidates should have PhD in hand or close to completion in Political Science or related field.

Application Instructions: Review of applications will begin on September 22, 2023 and continue until the position is filled. Applicants should submit the following: a cover letter addressing interest in the position and Bates College, curriculum vitae, statement discussing teaching philosophy and experience, statement discussing research interests and proposed research program, three confidential letters of recommendation and copies of graduate transcripts. Our vision of success as a department includes the thriving of all students and colleagues. The candidate's past and potential contributions to equity and inclusion, and their capacity to contribute to and expand upon this vision for a thriving department, should be addressed either in a separate, additional document, or integrated into the teaching and research statements.

Employment is contingent upon successful completion of a background check.

TENURE TRACK ASSISTANT TEACHING PROFESSOR POSITION IN INTERNATIONAL STUDIES, SCHOOL OF GLOBAL POLICY AND STRATEGY, UC SAN DIEGO

The School of Global Policy and Strategy (GPS) (<https://gps.ucsd.edu>) at the University of California San Diego is committed to academic excellence and diversity within the faculty, staff, and student body. We invite applications for a tenure-track Assistant Teaching Professor (Lecturer with Potential Security of Employment) position in its undergraduate International Studies Program. More information about the Teaching Professor series may be found at this link: (https://aps.ucsd.edu/_files/proc-manual/lsoe_faq.pdf).

Candidates for this position should be able to combine an interest in teaching, pedagogical and/or disciplinary research, and administrative responsibilities as Faculty Director of the International Studies Program (ISP). The curriculum of the International Studies Program is broadly interdisciplinary. We invite candidates who have research interests and a publication record in international relations (broadly defined as international security, international political economy, international economics, international development, international business, and related fields); comparative politics or economics; global history; or regional studies in areas of interest to GPS or ISP.

We seek applicants who have an interest in developing innovative curriculum and teaching. The successful candidate will teach undergraduate courses in ISP and/or graduate courses at GPS, and conduct disciplinary or pedagogical research. The candidate will also oversee the administration of ISP, supported by staff, and represent the program within and outside GPS and UC San Diego. The Faculty Director is also responsible for convening the interdisciplinary Faculty Advisory Board.

The preferred candidate will have strong, demonstrated accomplishments in areas contributing to diversity, equity, and inclusion, and a desire to play a leadership role in advancing UC San Diego's commitment to achieving excellence and diversity.

Rank and salary commensurate with qualifications and experience based on UC pay scales.

QUALIFICATIONS

Basic qualifications (Required at Time of Application)

At the time of application, candidates must have a Ph.D. or equivalent degree or be ABD (all but dissertation) in political science, economics, business, or other disciplines with an international or comparative focus.

Additional qualifications (Required at Time of Start)

By the time of appointment, candidates must have a Ph.D. or equivalent doctoral degree in political science, economics, business, or other disciplines with an international or comparative focus.

Preferred qualifications

1. Strong demonstration of leadership and ability to serve as Faculty Director of the International Studies Program (e.g., overseeing academic advising staff and working with lecturers, members of the Advisory Board, GPS, and campus entities).

2. Excellence in teaching and contribution to instruction-related activities (e.g., training of teaching assistants, curriculum development, and creation of instructional materials).

3. A research and publication record in the fields noted above.

4. Strong demonstrated accomplishments in areas contributing to diversity, equity, and inclusion, and a desire to play a leadership role in advancing UC San Diego's commitment to achieving excellence and diversity.

APPLICATION REQUIREMENTS

Document requirements

- Cover Letter - A description of teaching experience, research, and administrative responsibilities.

- Curriculum Vitae - Your most recently updated C.V.

- Statement of Teaching Philosophy - A statement of teaching philosophy and/or goals, as well as pedagogical strategies for achieving these goals.

- Documentation of Teaching Excellence - PDF files or links to teaching evaluations and instructional materials developed by the candidate, and any additional evidence of teaching impacts the candidate wishes to include.

- Statement of Contributions to Diversity - Applicants should summarize their past or potential contributions to diversity. See our Faculty Equity site for more information.

- Samples of Research - PDF files or links to representative scholarly research outputs, e.g., dissertation chapters, journal articles, book chapters, or other research outputs generally accepted in the candidate's discipline.

- Misc / Additional (Optional)

Reference requirements

University of Chicago

Rank: Collegiate Assistant Professor

Subfield(s): Public Policy, American Government and Politics, International Relations

Specializations: Political Philosophy & Theory, History & Politics, Quantitative Methods

The College at the University of Chicago is now accepting applications for four-year postdoctoral teaching appointments as Harper and Schmidt Fellows who hold the rank of Collegiate Assistant Professor. Collegiate Assistant Professors are members of the College Faculty whose primary professional responsibility is to teach in the general education (Core) program. <https://college.uchicago.edu/academics/core-curriculum>

Core courses in the Humanities typically deal with fundamental issues and texts in history, philosophy, and literature. Currently, the Core is organized into eight year-long sequences: Readings in World Literature; Human Being and Citizen; Greece and Rome: Texts, Traditions, Transformations; Philosophical Perspectives on the Humanities; Media Aesthetics; Reading Cultures; Poetry and the Human; and Language and the Human. We encourage applicants to spend time reviewing the descriptions and syllabi for Core sequences to understand the distinct topics and approaches and gauge best fit. Descriptions of these courses are available here: <https://college.uchicago.edu/academics/core/humanities-core>

Core courses in the Social Sciences explore, on the basis of significant works or primary source materials, the fundamental concepts and the different modes of inquiry that have defined the social sciences in the modern period. Currently, we are inviting applications for Collegiate Assistant Professors to teach in some of the year-long sequences into which the Core is organized: Self, Culture and Society; Classics of Social and Political Thought; Power, Identity, and Resistance; Democracy: Equality, Liberty and the Dilemma of Self-Governance; Global Society; Mind; and Social Science Inquiry. We encourage applicants to spend time reviewing the descriptions and syllabi for Core sequences to understand the distinct topics and approaches and gauge best fit. Descriptions of these courses are available here: <https://college.uchicago.edu/academics/core/social-sciences-core>

Some Collegiate Assistant Professors also teach in the History of European Civilization Core sequence as well as the Introductions to the Civilizations of East Asian Core sequences. These courses are taught on the basis of intensive readings of significant primary source documents. For descriptions and syllabi of the History of European Civilization and the Civilizations of East Asia sequences see: <https://college.uchicago.edu/academics/core/civilization-studies-core>

The positions are open to scholars in all disciplines and areas of specialization who will have completed all requirements for their Ph.D. degree no later than August 31, 2024. Candidates must demonstrate excellence in teaching as well as in their original scholarship. While many Core sequences feature set reading lists, applicants need not have conventional expertise in the specific texts and topics that are currently taught. Rather, we welcome applicants from a wide variety of disciplinary backgrounds who can apply conceptual and methodological creativity and skill to the teaching of general education courses. Applicants should be prepared 1) to identify and guide students through fundamental questions in a Core sequence and 2) to contribute meaningfully to the instructional community and the curricular evolution for that Core sequence.

In most years, Collegiate Assistant Professors teach two courses (usually of identical preparation) for each of three quarters. In the second through fourth year of residence, each Collegiate Assistant Professor has the opportunity to design up to two independent courses and each is eligible for one quarter of research sabbatical. In the fourth year there is a possibility of another quarter of sabbatical with salary reduction.

The position comes with an annual salary for 2024-25 of $82,571, carries full benefits, and an annual professional development fund of $6,500. The effective date for these teaching appointments is September 1, 2024.

To apply for these positions, please see our web site at <https://fellows.uchicago.edu>.

The terms and conditions of these positions are described in the collective bargaining agreement between the University and the Service Employees International Union.

On-line application deadline: 11:59:59 PM EDT, Friday, October 13, 2023.

All University departments and institutes are charged with building a faculty from a diversity of backgrounds and with diverse viewpoints; with cultivating an inclusive community that values freedom of expression; and with welcoming and supporting all their members.

We seek a diverse pool of applicants who wish to join an academic community that places the highest value on rigorous inquiry and encourages diverse perspectives, experiences, groups of individuals, and ideas to inform and stimulate intellectual challenge, engagement, and exchange. The University's Statements on Diversity are at <https://provost.uchicago.edu/statements-diversity>.

The University of Chicago is an Affirmative Action/Equal Opportunity/Disabled/Veterans Employer and does not discriminate on the basis of race, color, religion, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, national or ethnic origin, age, status as an individual with a disability, protected veteran status, genetic information, or other protected classes under the law. For additional information please see the University's Notice of Nondiscrimination.

Job seekers in need of a reasonable accommodation to complete the application process should call 773-834-0681 or email dneibel@uchicago.edu with their request before the application deadline.

The Harvard Academy for International and Area Studies
Academy Scholars Program, 2024-2025

The Academy Scholars Program of The Harvard Academy for International and Area Studies identifies and supports outstanding scholars at the start of their academic careers whose work combines excellence in a social science discipline with a command of the language and knowledge or expertise of countries or regions outside of the United States or Canada. Their scholarship should span traditional disciplinary divisions and elucidate comparative, transnational, or domestic issues, past or present.

The Academy Scholars are a select community of individuals with resourcefulness, initiative, and originality whose work shows promise as a foundation for careers in research universities or international institutions.

Academy Scholars are appointed for a two-year, in-residence, postdoctoral fellowship at The Harvard Academy for International and Area Studies, Harvard University, Cambridge, MA, USA. They receive substantial financial and research assistance which permits them to undertake robust research projects and skills development in their chosen fields and areas. They meet at dinners, seminars, and informal meetings in order to pursue innovative interdisciplinary approaches to their work. They are mentored by the Harvard Academy Senior Scholars, a cohort of faculty members who act as a selection committee, participate in Harvard Academy events, and are committed to supporting the Academy Scholars as they work to achieve their potential.

These awards are open to recipients of PhD or comparable doctoral degrees (within two years of the August 1, 2024, start date) and advanced doctoral candidates in the social sciences. Scholars nearing dissertation completion must be able to submit degree conferral documentation issued by their university registrar's office by June 30, 2024, for an August 1, 2024, start date. Individuals who hold or have completed another Harvard postdoctoral fellowship are not eligible to apply.

The Harvard Academy is dedicated to building an inclusive community of scholars with an array of experiences, perspectives, and methods and welcomes a diverse pool of applicants.

Each year, five or six Academy Scholars are named for two-year appointments with an annual stipend of $75,000, with the two years to be completed within a three-year window. Year 1 of the fellowship must be taken up no later than the fall immediately following the postdoctoral fellowship offer. Delays or deferrals in the start of Year 1 are not permitted. Between Years 1 and 2, Academy Scholars may apply for a one-time leave (up to 12 months), either to accept or to continue with a tenure-track teaching appointment but for no other reason. Academy Scholars may not accept other sources of funding, awards, or obligations during their appointment.

All application materials must be submitted by the deadline of September 22, 2023. We do not accept late applications.

The completed application will include:

Curriculum vitae (CV); including list of publications

Research proposal (2000 words maximum); including intellectual objectives and planned methodological and disciplinary work

One scholarly writing sample (e.g., PhD dissertation chapter or single-authored peer-reviewed academic journal article; fifty pages maximum; in English)

A copy of your PhD program transcript

Three letters of recommendation (uploaded directly and confidentially by the recommender through the online application)

All parts of the application, including the three letters of recommendation, are submitted online as PDF documents. Access the online application through the homepage of The Harvard Academy's website: <https://academy.wcfia.harvard.edu>.

All materials must be received by September 22, 2023. The selection process begins immediately thereafter. Applicants whose materials are incomplete are at a disadvantage when considered by the Selection Committee. Announcement of the awards will be made in December 2023.

Smith College

Rank: Assistant Professor of Government

The Department of Government (GOV) at Smith College invites applications for a tenure-track position in Comparative Politics and/or International Relations at the rank of Assistant Professor, to begin July 1, 2024.

By time of appointment applicants must have a Ph.D. in Political Science or a closely related discipline (e.g. public policy). The position has a teaching load of 2:2—i.e., four semester-long courses over the academic year. The hire will also be expected to contribute to student learning beyond regular classes through directing student research and Honors Theses, offering independent studies, and helping with departmental administrative, curricular, and advising responsibilities.

Candidates for the position should have regional expertise in the politics of South and/or Southeast Asia. We encourage applications for this position from scholars using a range of methodological approaches and focusing on a variety of topics, including but not limited to: the politics of religion and ethnicity; political violence; political parties and elections; regional security; geopolitical rivalries and regional conflict and cooperation. We anticipate that a successful candidate for this position will be prepared to teach Introduction to Comparative Politics and/or Introduction to International Relations, courses on the politics of South or Southeast Asia or particular countries within those regions, and upper-division courses relating to their area(s) of expertise.

Candidates from groups underrepresented in political science are encouraged to apply. Successful candidates should be prepared to engage actively with diverse students across the liberal arts.

Located in Northampton, MA, Smith College is the largest women's college in the country, dedicated to excellence in teaching and research across the liberal arts. A faculty of outstanding scholars interact with students in small classes, as advisors, and through student-faculty research projects. Smith College offers opportunities to foster faculty success at every career stage, such as those listed here.

The College is a member of the Five College Consortium with Amherst, Hampshire, and Mt. Holyoke Colleges, and the University of Massachusetts Amherst. Students cross-enroll and faculty cross-teach across the Five Colleges. Details about the Department of Government may be found at <https://www.smith.edu/gov/>.

Submit applications at <https://apply.interfolio.com/129477> with a cover letter describing your research and teaching interests, curriculum vitae, teaching statement, diversity/inclusion statement, chapter- or article-length writing sample, and three confidential letters of reference. Finalists may be asked for additional materials. Review of applications will begin October 1, 2023.

As set forth in our mission and values, Smith College is committed to promoting a culture of equity and inclusion among students, staff and faculty. The College will not discriminate in employment on the basis of age, race, color, ethnicity, national origin, creed, religion, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, gender expression, pregnancy, genetic information, age, veteran status, physical or mental disability, or any other classification protected by law. Smith College is an equal opportunity employer and complies with all state and federal laws that prohibit discrimination.

Dickinson College

Rank: Assistant Professor of International Studies (Global Economy)

The Department of International Studies at Dickinson College is seeking applications for a tenure track, assistant professor position beginning in the academic year 2024-25. The position has a five-course teaching load. The successful candidate is expected to teach a section of Global Economy each semester. This course is a required course for the interdisciplinary International Studies major, and it has introductory micro- and macro-economics as prerequisites. The other three courses should be topical electives and/or seminars on issues in the contemporary world economy that must be accessible to non-economics majors. The Department is open to various possibilities, including, but not limited to, topical courses on international development, global energy politics, the economics of world sustainability, global health economics, and the political economy of trade and investment. Candidates should indicate in their letter of application the courses they are prepared to teach. The search committee is especially interested in candidates whose research and teaching interests address issues relevant to the political economy of Africa, Asia, Latin America, or the Global South more generally. A completed or nearly completed PhD in Economics, International Studies, Political Science, Economic History, Public Administration, or a related field is required; in all cases, a strong foundation in international economics is expected.

Applicants should be active scholars with a strong commitment to teaching undergraduate students in an interdisciplinary liberal arts environment. Approximately 90% of International Studies majors at Dickinson College study abroad during their four years – taking advantage of more than fifty study abroad options around the globe. The Department plays an important role in preparing International Studies majors, and Dickinson students more broadly, to meaningfully engage with diverse global perspectives. Colleagues are expected to participate fully in the intellectual life of the department. Furthermore, the ability to create inclusive learning environments for an increasingly diverse student body will be an important characteristic of the successful candidate.

Dickinson College is a selective four-year, independent liberal arts college with 2300 students. It is located 20 minutes west of Harrisburg and is a two-hour drive from Baltimore, Washington D.C., and Philadelphia. Candidates should submit via QUEST (online application system) at <https://jobs.dickinson.edu>. Please include a letter of application, a curriculum vitae, a graduate transcript, three letters of recommendation, a writing sample, a statement of teaching philosophy, sample syllabi and teaching evaluations or other evidence of teaching effectiveness. Address any questions to the search committee chair, Andrew Wolff, at wolffan@dickinson.edu. Review of applications will begin Monday, October 2, 2023.

University of Massachusetts, Boston

Rank: Assistant Professor, Critical Security Studies

Specializations: Ethnic & Feminist Theory, International Security, Gender Politics & Policy

The Department of Conflict Resolution, Human Security, and Global Governance (CRHSGG) at the University of Massachusetts Boston invites qualified applicants for a tenure-track Assistant Professor position to join our vibrant, interdisciplinary faculty beginning September 1, 2024.

We are seeking a scholar of critical security studies, broadly defined, who can contribute to and strengthen the core curriculum of the graduate programs in Global Governance and Human Security in CRHSGG. We are particularly interested in candidates whose areas of focus include gender, race, and/or decolonial theory. The position is open to scholars from a range of social sciences, including but not limited to political science, geography, sociology, anthropology, and gender studies, who connect questions of global governance with imperatives for human security.

We are open to a variety of areas of topical focus within critical security studies broadly understood, to all research methodological strategies, and to either a regional or global focus that complements existing expertise in the department. Candidates must possess an earned doctorate in a relevant social science discipline by the date of appointment. Candidates should be prepared to teach in the Global Governance and Human Security core. An ability to contribute to other departmental graduate and undergraduate programs, in International Relations, Conflict Resolution, and Global Affairs, is a plus.

UMass Boston is one of the most diverse campuses in the Northeast region of the U.S. and has a well-established commitment to social justice, equity, and inclusion, with an anti-racist and health-promoting mission. We strongly encourage applications from persons with diverse backgrounds and provide equal employment opportunities without regard to race, color, religion, gender, gender identity or expression, age, sexual orientation, national origin, ancestry, disability, military status, or genetic information.

The Department provides a rich environment for interdisciplinary, collaborative research, policy, and practice, and houses multiple degree programs at the graduate and undergraduate levels. The Department also houses two vibrant research Centers (the Center for Peace, Democracy & Development, and the Center for Governance and Sustainability) and has a strong connection with the Center for Women in Public Policy.

To apply, submit through the application portal (<https://employmentopportunities.umb.edu/en-us/job/519911/assistant-professor-conflict-resolution-human-security-and-global-governance>): a cover letter, curriculum vitae, a writing sample, and the names and contact information for three references who may be contacted at later stages of the selection process. Inquiries regarding the position may be directed to the search committee chair, Dr. Jeffrey Pugh, at Jeffrey.Pugh@umb.edu. Review of applications begins on October 1st and will continue until the position is filled. Responses to frequently asked questions and updates on the search will be posted publicly at https://docs.google.com/document/d/1uNGCFC8q4aAo52y_V4n7ZAS7vQAVEx9pz9-iB8VwNNM/edit?usp=sharing.

UMass Boston is committed to the full inclusion of all qualified individuals. As part of this commitment, we will ensure that persons with disabilities are provided reasonable accommodations for the hiring process. If reasonable accommodation is needed, please contact HRDirect@umb.edu or 617-287-5150.

Simon Fraser University

Rank: Teaching Faculty Lecturer in International Security, Defence & Diplomacy, with support for the NATO Field School

The Department of Political Science invites applications for a continuing Lecturer position in Defence, Diplomacy, and International Security. This position will provide teaching and support to the NATO Field School (NFS) and contribute to the development of a Security and Defence Engagement program. In addition, the candidate will teach core courses and/or courses in their areas of expertise. The position will start when filled; preferred starting date is January 2024.

Please see the full job ad with affiliated links here: <https://www.sfu.ca/politics/about/jobs/faculty.html>

We seek candidates who have a strong background in Defense, Diplomacy, and/or International Security as well as outstanding teaching skills in a diversity of classroom settings. Relevant experiences in experiential learning (hands-on learning, field exercises, summer schools, simulations, case studies, role-play exercises, peer group learning, etc.) are an asset.

The successful candidate will collaborate with the NFS Director in preparing and teaching the NFS. The NFS is a growing teaching and engagement endeavour with an emphasis on professional placement of its graduates.

Duties

As per the SFUFA Collective Agreement, the standard course load for Teaching Faculty at SFU varies by rank. Lecturers typically teach an equivalent of eight courses annually. This position will likely be paired with an additional service role – involving logistical and administrative tasks to support the NFS – which may reduce the overall teaching load based on the level of support during their appointment in as the NATO FS administrator. It is expected that the successful candidate will contribute to the Department, Faculty, University and to the academic profession through service.

Required Qualifications

- The chosen candidate must hold a PhD in Political Science or in a related field, with teaching experience in Defence, Diplomacy, and/or International Security. Candidates with firm defence dates by Spring 2024 may be considered

Simon Fraser University is an institution whose strength is based on our shared commitment to diversity, equity, and inclusion. Diversity is an underlying principle of our Strategic Vision, which pledges SFU to “foster a culture of inclusion and mutual respect, celebrating the diversity reflected among its students, faculty, staff, and our community.” SFU is committed to ensuring that no individual is denied access to employment opportunities for reasons unrelated to ability or qualifications. Consistent with this principle, SFU will advance the interests of underrepresented members of the work force, including Indigenous peoples, persons with disabilities, racialized persons, and women; embrace gender and sexual diversity; ensure that equal opportunity is afforded to all who seek employment at the University; and treat all employees equitably. Candidates that belong to underrepresented groups are particularly encouraged to apply.

SFU is consistently ranked among the top comprehensive universities in Canada and was recently ranked in the top 50 in the world for engaged research. The Department of Political Science at SFU has a growing number of faculty in diverse fields and is strongly supportive of faculty members’ strengths, interests, and career progress. The department strongly believes in methodological pluralism. More information about the department and the university can be found on our website: <http://www.sfu.ca/politics.html>. The campus is located on Burnaby Mountain in Greater Vancouver. Vancouver is a scenic waterfront city located minutes from the mountains and a wide range of outdoor activities. It has a reputation as a clean, safe, multicultural, and ethnically diverse city and is one of the very top cities in the world in which to live and work.

All qualified candidates are encouraged to apply; however, Canadian citizens and permanent residents will be given priority. This position is subject to the availability of funding.

Under the authority of the University Act, personal information that is required by the University for academic appointment competitions will be collected. For further details, refer to the Collection Notice.

University of Central Florida

Specializations: India, Southeast Asia, South Asia

The School of Politics, Security, and International Affairs (SPSIA) at the University of Central Florida (UCF) invites applications for a full-time, nine-month, tenure-earning advanced assistant professor or tenured associate professor or professor as an endowed position with a focus on politics in India and director of the India Center at UCF. The anticipated starting date is August 2024; however, a starting date of January 2024 is possible.

The ideal candidate will have a recognized research program focused on politics in India, demonstrated commitment to teaching excellence, and leadership experience. As director of the India Center, the successful candidate will be expected to develop programming of interest to the larger university community, engage in community outreach, develop and strengthen partnerships with the community as well as nationally and internationally, supervise the center's full-time director of Public Affairs, engage in fundraising, work with offices and units across the university, manage the India Center's budget, and develop curriculum and teach in the area of politics in India, among others. The successful candidate is expected to combine the role of faculty member with that of director of the India Center.

We are especially interested in an individual who can contribute through their research, teaching, mentoring, and service to the excellence of our academic community and foster an environment in which faculty, staff, and students from a variety of backgrounds, cultures, and personal experiences are welcomed and can thrive.

The School of Politics, Security, and International Affairs houses two undergraduate majors, a master's program in Political Science, and a Ph.D. program in Security Studies. In addition, the school is home to five institutes, programs and centers including the India Center. The mission of the India Center at UCF is to broaden the awareness and understanding of contemporary India. The India Center promotes the study of India's role in the world today through partnerships, scholarship and research, education, and outreach to the Indian community in Florida and nationally. The center aims to serve the broader UCF community. It currently has one full-time director of Public Affairs. For more information, visit <https://sciences.ucf.edu/politics/> and <https://theindiacenter.ucf.edu/>.

The College of Sciences (COS) houses most of the university's natural, computational, and social sciences in eight departments, two schools, and several centers. The college's programs play a key role in advancing UCF as a national research university that is determined to help students from all backgrounds achieve success. For more information, visit <https://sciences.ucf.edu/>.

The University of Central Florida (UCF), located in Orlando, is a metropolitan research university classified as a Very High Research Activity university by the Carnegie Foundation. At UCF, we solve tomorrow's greatest challenges through a commitment to academic and operational excellence. Leveraging innovative learning, discovery, and partnerships, we foster social mobility while developing the skilled talent needed to advance industry for our region, state and beyond. A Hispanic Serving Institution, UCF is home to a diverse student population of over 70,000 students, almost 2,000 faculty, and more than 4,700 staff. UCF is invested in identifying candidates who will contribute to its mission through equity-minded practice and culturally responsive pedagogy. For more information, visit <http://www.ucf.edu>.

Minimum Qualifications: A doctorate in Political Science or a closely related field from an accredited institution by time of application is required. To be eligible for appointment as a tenured associate professor or professor upon hire, the selected candidate must have a demonstrated record of teaching, research, and service commensurate with a tenured faculty appointment at the rank of associate professor or professor.

Preferred Qualifications: Preference will be given to candidates who have a demonstrated interest and experience in developing and leading a program or center and a successful research and teaching record commensurate with their faculty rank.

UCF requires all applications and supporting documents be submitted electronically through the Human Resources employment opportunities website, <https://www.ucf.edu/jobs/>. In addition to the online application, interested candidates should upload the following materials: (1) a current curriculum vitae, (2) a letter detailing your interest in the position, relevant experience including leadership experience, and vision for the India Center; (3) a research statement outlining the research record and future plans (one to two pages); and (4) a teaching statement (one to two pages); and (5) the names and contact information for three professional references.

NOTE: Please have all documents ready when applying so they can be simultaneously uploaded. Once the online submission process is finalized, the system does not allow applicants to submit additional documents later.

Review of applications will begin on September 29, 2023 and continue until the position is filled. For the application to be considered, all materials will need to be uploaded and the application must be complete.

Questions regarding the position should be directed to Dr. Kerstin Hamann, search committee chair, at Kerstin.Hamann@ucf.edu.

Job Close Date: Open until filled.

The University of Central Florida is proud to be a smoke-free campus and an E-Verify employer. Unless explicitly stated on the job posting, it is UCF's expectation that an employee of UCF will reside in Florida as of the date the employment begins.

Additional Requirements related to Research Positions: Pursuant to Florida State Statute 1010.35, prior to offering employment to certain individuals in research-related positions, UCF is required to conduct additional screening. Applicants subject to additional screening include any citizen of a foreign country who is not a permanent resident of the U.S., or who is a citizen or permanent resident but is affiliated with or has had at least 1 year of higher education, employment, or training in China, Cuba, Iran, Russia, North Korea, Syria, or Venezuela.

The additional screening requirements only apply to employment in research-related positions, including, but not limited to faculty positions.

Equal Employment Opportunity Statement: As an equal opportunity/affirmative action employer, UCF encourages all qualified applicants to apply, including women, veterans, individuals with disabilities, and members of traditionally underrepresented populations. UCF's Equal Opportunity Statement can be viewed at <http://www.oie.ucf.edu/documents/PresidentsStatement.pdf>.

As a Florida public university, UCF makes all application materials and selection procedures available to the public upon request.

Knox College

Rank: Assistant Professor of Political Science & International Relations

The Department of Political Science & International Relations at Knox College invites applications for a full-time, tenure-track appointment as Assistant Professor of Political Science & International Relations, to begin September 1, 2024. We seek applications from international relations scholars and are open to specialization within the IR field.

Knox College, established in 1837, is an independent, selective liberal arts institution with a mission of access, a diverse student body, and a strong commitment to undergraduate teaching. We are particularly interested in creative, energetic teachers of undergraduate students who can contribute to Knox College's considerable diversity and reflect that diversity in their teaching, mentoring, and research. With over 35% of the student body identifying as U.S. students of color and more than 15% international students, the College seeks courses appealing and welcoming to all of Knox's students.

The position involves a six-course teaching load (two courses in each of three 10-week terms) that includes introductory, intermediate, and advanced courses in international relations, as well as other courses that are within the candidate's area of expertise and that contribute to the general liberal arts curriculum.

Our department covers diverse areas in our teaching and research methods and interests, to which an ideal candidate will contribute. The candidate we hire will have substantial autonomy to revise our long-standing and popular International Relations major around their own set of specializations and priorities.

Knox College provides a competitive salary and a strong benefit package including health, dental, vision and life insurance, and access to a retirement plan; a tuition remission benefit is available after a two-year waiting period. Additional information can be found on our Human Resources webpage at <https://www.knox.edu/offices/human-resources/employee-benefits-and-forms>.

Qualifications: Ph.D. is expected at the time of appointment, but exceptional ABD candidates will be considered.

Candidates should submit:

- A cover letter that addresses the qualifications listed above, including the candidate's research interests, teaching interests, and approach to teaching a diverse community of undergraduate students
- Curriculum vitae
- Unofficial graduate transcript
- Three letters of recommendation

Additional materials may be requested at a later date.

Submission via Interfolio: <http://apply.interfolio.com/128895>

Review of applications will begin on September 12, 2023 and continue until the position is filled.

Providence College

Rank: African Politics - Assistant Professor of International Relations/Comparative Politics

The Political Science Department at Providence College invites applications for a tenure-track position at the assistant professor level, in the field of African Politics, grounded in perspectives from either International Relations or Comparative Politics. The field of "African Politics" is understood broadly by our Department, and we welcome applicants across a range of methodologies and substantive interests, such as, for example, contemporary Africa in geopolitical context; ancient, colonial, and modern political systems; colonial and post-colonial conflict, institutions, and practices; state-building, democratization, partisan mobilization, and social movements; internal migration, immigration, and emigration; security challenges and conflict resolution; natural resource and environmental politics; national and regional political economy; gender, health, education, labor, and social policy; or other Africa-centered topics. Geographically, we welcome candidates who focus on any of the continent's nations or regions, or those who work within a pan-African framework.

Teaching Responsibilities: The normal teaching load will be three courses per semester, with class sizes of 12 to 25 students. Core assignments each year will include African Politics and one or more of the following: Introduction to International Relations, Introduction to Comparative Politics, Introduction to Politics, or Research Methods. We keep our curriculum fresh by giving colleagues the opportunity to design new lecture, seminar, and research courses in areas which reflect their particular interests and expertise. In all cases, faculty enjoy substantial autonomy in the design and content of courses.

Research Expectations and Support: Our political science faculty are respected scholars with active research agendas who provide generous professional advice and mentoring for junior colleagues. Other support for research includes College-sponsored research grants, grant writing assistance, conference and research travel funds, individual discretionary funds, access to research librarians and other library resources, undergraduate research assistants, and opportunities for collaboration with faculty at other Rhode Island universities including, for example, Brown University, the University of Rhode Island, and Roger Williams University.

Our Political Science Department has fourteen full-time faculty members who are known for effective teaching, grounded in cutting-edge scholarship. They research and teach about politics in the U.S. and other regions, with particular strengths in East Asia, Latin America, and the Middle East. We offer a wide portfolio of courses, including many which are cross-listed in other Arts and Sciences departments and programs including Black Studies, Women's and Gender Studies, Global Studies, Latin American and Latina/o Studies, Asian and Asian American Studies, American Studies, Public and Community Service Studies, Public Administration, Communication, and the College's newest interdisciplinary program—Middle East Studies. Political science faculty frequently direct interdisciplinary programs like these, and teach in the Liberal Arts Honors and Development of Western Civilization programs. Within the political science profession our colleagues are well-known participants and leaders in the American, Western, New England, Midwest, and Northeastern political science associations, as well as the Latin American Studies Association, National Conference of Black Political Scientists, International Studies Association, and International Political Science Association. We author scholarly books and research articles at premier journals and academic presses, publish op-eds in local and regional newspapers, and frequently appear as expert analysts for New England's print, broadcast, and online news media.

Providence College is located in the City of Providence—the capital of the State of Rhode Island (“The Ocean State”), and the third-largest city in New England. Founded in 1636, Providence is one of North America’s oldest European settler cities. Nearby Pawtucket, RI, was the birthplace of the American Industrial Revolution in 1793, and Providence has long welcomed immigrant populations, most recently from West Africa, Latin America, and Southeast Asia. Providence is a majority-minority city, and more than 30% of its 2020 population was foreign-born. At present, the state’s largest foreign-born African-descent populations come from Cape Verde, Nigeria, and Liberia. The Providence metropolitan area’s population of 1.7 million is served by many retail, restaurant, and professional enterprises, as well as churches and social service organizations, established within these African immigrant communities. The city’s annual calendar is filled with diverse ethnic and cultural festivals, while a vibrant arts scene is anchored by world-class galleries, museums, live theater, performances across music genres and traditions, and film festivals. Located on the main highway and rail corridors serving the northeastern United States—I-95 and Amtrak’s Northeast Corridor—Providence is also connected to Boston via MBTA commuter rail, to New York via frequent rail and air service, and to the rest of the world via T.F. Green International Airport, with more than 100 daily nonstop flights to and from Atlanta, Baltimore, Charleston, Charlotte, Chicago, Cincinnati, Detroit, Ft. Lauderdale, Jacksonville, Los Angeles, Miami, Minneapolis St. Paul, Nashville, New York City, Newark, Norfolk, Orlando, Philadelphia, Richmond, Tampa, Washington, D.C.—and Santo Domingo, DR.

Salary, Benefits, and Resources: The position offers very competitive salary and benefits, generous annual and step salary increases, and campus amenities including fitness center, swimming pool and athletic facilities, free on-campus parking, chapels and meditation spaces, and information technology resources including MacOS and Windows desktop systems on secure campus networks. NOTE: If appropriate, Providence College will file a petition for an Employment-Based Immigrant Visa, in Category H-1B, once a final job offer is tendered and accepted.

How to Apply: Applicants should possess a PhD in political science (or be very close to completion), and will be asked to demonstrate evidence of the potential for teaching excellence, strong research skills, and potential for continued research productivity. Apply online at <https://careers.providence.edu> where you will submit a cover letter, curriculum vitae, three letters of recommendation, teaching materials, and one or more samples of scholarly writing, either published or unpublished.

For additional information, please contact Dr. Tony Affigne, chair of the search committee, at affigne@providence.edu or Dr. Matt Guardino, department chair, at mguardin@providence.edu. NOTE: search committee members will be hosting optional informational interviews at APSA in Los Angeles, and prospective applicants who wish to schedule an informational interview during the conference are encouraged to contact us no later than August 15. Those unable to attend the conference may contact Dr. Affigne to schedule a remote informational interview.

Deadline: For full consideration, your completed application should be submitted no later than October 1, 2023. Review of applications will commence as they are received, and will continue until the position is filled. We anticipate completing on-campus interviews by December 8, and making a final decision by early January 2024.

University of North Carolina, Charlotte

Subfield(s): Comparative Politics, Methodology, International Relations

We invite applications for a postdoctoral research position with strong data analysis and management skills to work on a multi-year project on “Collective Shocks and Social Preferences” led by Professors James Walsh and Alexander Kustov at the University of North Carolina at Charlotte.

The project examines how people’s social preferences, such as altruism and trust, are affected by negative collective shocks such as wars, natural disasters, or economic disruptions. Some studies find that these shocks make people more prosocial, but others find that they reduce cooperation. Since most of this research focuses on just one region or outcome, it is hard to know whether the results are generalizable. To address this question, the project aims to create a comprehensive cross-national time-series dataset on various shocks and preferences at the subnational level.

The postdoctoral position is a full-time research-focused role to lead the construction of the dataset for the project. The role includes:

- * Leading the data collection and management efforts needed to construct the original dataset, including cross-national surveys on social preferences and administrative data on collective shocks.
- * Conducting and publishing high-quality research in close collaboration and under the guidance of project leaders.
- * Dedicating time to personal research as part of the position (approximately 40%).
- * Participating in the broader intellectual life of the Department of Political Science and Public Administration, and the interdisciplinary Public Policy and Data Science programs.

The Postdoctoral appointee must have recently (within the last eight years) been awarded a Ph.D. or equivalent doctorate. Strong training and skills in quantitative data analysis in R is required. Preference will be given to applicants with demonstrated skills in one or more of the following areas: data management, survey methodology, multilevel regression, causal inference, machine learning, cross-national research. Preference is also given to applicants with research interests in one or more of the following areas related to the project: conflict and cooperation, political economy, political psychology, state capacity, social preferences, migration.

Postdoc appointments are characterized by all of the following conditions:

- * the appointee was recently (within the last eight years) awarded a Ph.D. or equivalent doctorate (e.g., Sc.D., M.D.);

- * the appointment is temporary;
- * the appointment involves substantially full-time research or scholarship;
- * the appointment is viewed as preparatory for a full-time academic and/or research career;
- * the appointee works under the supervision of a faculty member; and
- * the appointee has the freedom and is expected to publish the results of his or her research or scholarship during the period of appointment.

Screening of applicants will begin on August 15, 2023 and continue until the position is filled. The position is renewable based on performance. For further information, please contact James Walsh (jwalsh@charlotte.edu) and Alexander Kustov (akustov@charlotte.edu).

University of Toronto

Rank: Assistant Professor, International Relations and International Security

The Munk School of Global Affairs & Public Policy in the Faculty of Arts & Science at the University of Toronto invites applications for a full-time tenure stream position in the area of International Relations and International Security. The appointment will be at the rank of Assistant Professor, with an expected start date of July 1, 2024, or shortly thereafter.

Applicants must have earned a PhD degree in any relevant Social Science field by the time of appointment or shortly thereafter, with a clearly demonstrated record of research and teaching excellence in the area of International Relations and International Security. The position is open to a range of disciplines including but not limited to information studies, communications, sociology, political science, area studies, and law. We seek candidates whose research and teaching interests complement and enhance our existing departmental strengths. The Munk School of Global Affairs & Public Policy is home to the Citizen Lab, an interdisciplinary laboratory based at the Munk School focusing on advanced research and development at the intersection of digital media, global security, and human rights. We are particularly interested in applicants whose research integrates with the Citizen Lab's resources, existing areas of research, and global network.

Candidates must provide evidence of research excellence which can be demonstrated by a record of top-ranked disciplinary and/or field-relevant academic journals or academic presses, the submitted research statement, presentations at significant conferences, awards and accolades, other noteworthy activities that contribute to the visibility and prominence of the field, as well as strong endorsements from referees of high standing.

The successful candidate will be expected to pursue innovative and independent research at the highest international level, and to establish an outstanding research program, competitive, and externally funded research program.

The successful candidate will teach undergraduate and graduate courses, including in the Munk School's professional graduate programs (the Master of Global Affairs and the Master of Public Policy) to students from a wide range of academic backgrounds and interests. The successful candidate will have experience or demonstrable interest in a professional school and/or in an interdisciplinary environment.

Candidates must provide evidence of excellence in teaching which will be provided through teaching accomplishments, through the teaching dossier submitted as part of the application including a teaching statement, sample course materials, teaching evaluations, or other evidence of superior performance in teaching-related activities submitted as part of the application, and through strong endorsements of teaching in the letters of reference. Other teaching-related activities can include performance as a teaching assistant or course instructor, experience leading successful workshops or seminars, student mentorship, or excellent conference presentations or posters.

Candidates are also expected to show evidence of a commitment to equity, diversity, inclusion, and the promotion of a respectful and collegial learning and working environment demonstrated through the application materials.

Salary will be commensurate with qualifications and experience.

All qualified candidates are invited to apply online by clicking the link below. Applicants must submit a cover letter; curriculum vitae; writing sample; teaching dossier (including a teaching statement and sample course materials and teaching evaluations); and a research statement outlining current and future research interests. We seek candidates who value diversity and whose research, teaching and service bear out our commitment to equity. Candidates are therefore also asked to submit a 1-2 page statement of contributions to equity and diversity, which might cover topics such as (but not limited to): research or teaching that incorporates a focus on underrepresented communities, the development of inclusive pedagogies, or the mentoring of students from underrepresented groups.

Applicants must provide the name and contact information of three references. The University of Toronto's recruiting tool will automatically solicit and collect letters of reference from each after an application is submitted (this happens overnight). Applicants remain responsible for ensuring that references submit letters (on letterhead, dated and signed) by the closing date.

Submission guidelines can be found at <http://uoft.me/how-to-apply>. Your CV and cover letter should be uploaded into the dedicated fields. Please combine additional application materials into one or two files in the PDF/MS Word format. If you have any questions about this position, please contact munkschool.academic@utoronto.ca. More details on the automatic reference letter collection, including timelines, are available in the candidate FAQ.

All application materials, including reference letters, must be received by September 7, 2023.

All qualified candidates are encouraged to apply; however, Canadians and permanent residents will be given priority.

University of Maryland, College Park

Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Comparative Politics, International Relations

The Department of Government and Politics at the University of Maryland College Park (UMCP) invites applications for the President's Postdoctoral Fellowship Program (PPFP). Candidates with research and teaching interests in the areas of international relations, comparative politics, and/or American politics will be considered. The purpose of the PPFP Program is to support promising scholars who are committed to diversity in academia. We particularly encourage applications from members of groups historically underrepresented in the professoriate. Upon successful completion of the PPFP Program and review, the Fellowship may convert to a tenure-track Assistant Professor position.

Founded in 1856, University of Maryland, College Park is the state's flagship institution. Our 1,250-acre College Park campus is just minutes away from Washington, D.C., and the nexus of the nation's legislative, executive, and judicial centers of power. This unique proximity to business and technology leaders, federal departments and agencies, and a myriad of research entities, embassies, think tanks, cultural centers, and non-profit organizations is simply unparalleled. Synergistic opportunities for our faculty and students abound and are virtually limitless in the nation's capital and surrounding areas. The University is committed to attracting and retaining outstanding and diverse faculty and staff that will enhance our stature of preeminence in our three missions of teaching, scholarship, and full engagement in our community, the state of Maryland, and in the world.

The Department of Government and Politics is one of the largest departments in the College of Behavioral and Social Sciences at the University of Maryland. It has over 30 tenured and tenure track faculty, over 1,000 majors, and 100 graduate students. Its faculty teach and conduct research in the major fields in political science, including American politics, comparative politics, international relations, political theory, political economy, and formal theory and methods. Realizing that many of the key problems we face have a significant political component, our faculty and students study a variety of issues with real-world policy implications ranging from civil wars and ethnic conflict to environmental politics, partisan polarization, and inequality.

We seek an active scholar with the potential to conduct cutting-edge research and innovative teaching interests in the area(s) of international relations, comparative politics, and/or American politics.

The successful Fellow will be appointed for a one-year 12-month term beginning July 1, 2024, with the expectation of renewal for a second one-year term contingent on review. The Fellow will receive a starting stipend of at least $58,000, health benefits, and $10,000 for startup. In addition, Fellows will have access to office space with computer, library access, and other privileges at the University. During the term of appointment, the Fellow will be expected to focus primarily on research. In addition, the Fellow will teach one course (one semester only) per year. Highly experienced research and teaching mentors will meet with the Fellow regularly to provide guidance on developing a pedagogically sound teaching philosophy and plan, and improving the skills needed to pursue an academic research career, including proposal and manuscript writing, and technical presentation skills. The Fellow will also participate in professional development opportunities developed by the Office of Postdoctoral Affairs and the Office of Faculty Affairs.

Selected candidates will be invited to formally apply to the University's PFPF program on the basis of scholarly promise and the potential to contribute to the diversity of the UMCP community. Applicants must have completed their doctoral degree when the term of appointment commences (July 1, 2024).

To express interest in the program, please send an email with the subject line including "Postdoctoral Fellowship" to sehughes@umd.edu. Interested candidates should submit the following documents with their expression of interest:

1. Cover Letter
2. Curriculum Vitae
3. Statement of Proposed Research Plan (2-3 pages)
4. Personal Statement that details your demonstrated commitment to diversity efforts and the mission of UMCP, preliminary ideas about potential mentors in the department, and why you should be selected for this opportunity (1-3 pages)
5. Teaching Statement (1-2 pages)

For best consideration, complete applications should be submitted via email by September 15, 2023.

San Diego State University

Subfield(s): Comparative Politics, International Relations, Other

The Political Science Department at San Diego State University invites applications for a tenure-track position in East Asian Politics at the rank of Assistant Professor, to begin Fall 2024. Applicants should demonstrate a well-developed research agenda, a promise of sustained scholarship, and a record of effective teaching.

Qualifications

The department seeks a scholar with research and teaching expertise in the politics of East Asia, broadly understood to encompass North-east and Southeast Asia. We are open to applications from scholars in both comparative politics and international relations whose research is focused on one or more countries in the region. The successful candidate's research may focus on any of a range of substantive topics – including but not limited to, democratization, political economy, state-society relations, and foreign policy – and should demonstrate a capacity to engage with normative issues underlying critical debates in the field. The candidate would be expected to work closely with the program on International Security and Conflict Resolution and the Center for Asian & Pacific Studies. The department is open to a diversity of theoretical and methodological approaches.

The Political Science Department at San Diego State is dedicated to the ideal of the engaged teacher-scholar. It has over 600 undergraduate majors and provides course offerings for students with a wide variety of backgrounds and interests. At the graduate level, the department maintains an M.A. program of high quality. The members of the faculty share a strong commitment to collegiality, active participation in the governing of the department, innovative scholarship, methodological pluralism, rigorous teaching, and robust intellectual and normative engagement. Candidates are encouraged to consult the department website: <http://politicalscience.sdsu.edu>.

We are seeking applicants with demonstrated experience in and/or commitment to teaching and working effectively with individuals from diverse backgrounds and members of underrepresented groups. Candidates must satisfy two or more of the eight Building on Inclusive Excellence (BIE) criteria. Candidates that meet BIE criteria: (a) are committed to engaging in service with underrepresented populations within the discipline, (b) have demonstrated knowledge of barriers for underrepresented students and faculty within the discipline, (c) have experience or have demonstrated commitment to teaching and mentoring underrepresented students, (d) have experience or have demonstrated commitment to integrating understanding of underrepresented populations and communities into research, (e) have experience in or have demonstrated commitment to extending knowledge of opportunities and challenges in achieving artistic/scholarly success to members of an underrepresented group, (f) have experience in or have demonstrated commitment to research that engages underrepresented communities, (g) have expertise or demonstrated commitment to developing expertise in cross-cultural communication and collaboration, and/or (h) have research interests that contribute to diversity and equal opportunity in higher education. Please indicate in a separate diversity statement how you meet at least two (2) of these criteria. Additional guidance on our BIE program for applicants is here.

SDSU is the oldest institution of higher education in the San Diego region, with a campus in San Diego serving 36,000 undergraduate and graduate students and additional locations in Southern California's Imperial Valley and Tbilisi in the Republic of Georgia. SDSU is included in the Carnegie Foundation's Doctoral Universities: High Research Activity category. Established in 1897, SDSU offers bachelor degrees in 97 areas, masters in 84 and doctorates in 23. See <http://www.sdsu.edu> for more information. SDSU is a large, diverse, urban university, an Asian-Native American-Pacific Islander -Serving Institution and a Hispanic-Serving Institution with a commitment to diversity, equity, and inclusive excellence. Our campus community is diverse in many ways, including race, religion, color, sex, age, disability, marital status, sexual orientation, gender identity and expression, national origin, pregnancy, medical condition, and covered veteran status. We strive to build and sustain a welcoming environment for all.

Application Instructions

Applicants must apply via Interfolio at <http://apply.interfolio.com/127871>. A completed file includes a letter of interest, a curriculum vitae, graduate transcripts, complete teaching evaluations (quantitative evaluations and complete sets of qualitative evaluations of recent courses), sample syllabi, academic writing samples, diversity statement, and three letters of recommendation. To ensure full consideration, submit all materials by September 21st, 2023. Screening of applications will begin then. Applicants who will have completed the Ph.D. by the start of the term of appointment will be given priority. Those without a Ph.D. in-hand should include in their letter of interest a statement of progress on the dissertation and reasons to expect completion in a timely fashion.

Further inquiries should be addressed to Farid Abdel-Nour, Chair of the Department of Political Science, at abdelnou@sdsu.edu.

The minimum salary for this position is based on the current CSU salary schedule for Assistant Professors and may be revised based on contract collective bargaining. The anticipated salary range is from $79,000 to $83,000. Salary placement will be based on the selected candidate's qualifications and experience, and salaries higher than the published maximums may be offered in limited circumstances. San Diego State University offers a rich benefits package that constitutes a major portion of total compensation. For benefits information, click here.

As part of its commitment to a safe and equitable "OneSDSU" community, SDSU requires that individuals seeking faculty employment provide at the time of application authorization to conduct background checks if they become a finalist for the position; applications without this authorization will be considered incomplete and not considered.

A background check (including a criminal records check) must be completed before any candidate can be offered a position with the CSU. Failure to satisfactorily complete the background check may affect the application status of applicants or continued employment of current CSU employees who apply for the position.

The person holding this position is considered a "mandated reporter" under the California Child Abuse and Neglect Reporting Act and is required to comply with the requirements set forth in CSU Executive Order 1083 as a condition of employment.

Equal Employment Opportunity Statement

U.S. Army War College

Assistant/Associate Professor of Asian Studies

Salary range: $86,206 – $139,302

Summary:

The United States Army War College is accepting applications for an Assistant/Associate Professor of Asian Studies in the Department of National Security and Strategy to begin in the summer of 2024.

Position Description:

The person selected for this position will have a leading role in planning, administering, and teaching core courses on Asian regional studies as well as other core and elective courses of the resident education program and associated programs. They will serve as a faculty instructor for one seminar, advise students, and serve as project advisor for student research projects. They will also engage in cutting-edge scholarship that advances knowledge in fields relevant to the curriculum, and engage in service in support of USAWC missions. Other duties may include teaching courses on war, strategy, and national security policy, and/or supporting the development and execution of specialized programs in policy, strategy, and outreach. Finally, the applicant must be able to obtain and maintain a SECRET security clearance from the US government.

The Army War College seeks applicants who would find fulfillment teaching and researching in an environment that intentionally blends scholarly achievement with policy application. It relies on a collaborative and inter-disciplinary teaching environment that emphasizes student engagement. As one of the nation's premiere institutions for military education, it is a dynamic workplace that mixes academic excellence with practitioner experience to prepare senior level officers and civilians for roles in strategy- and policy-making over the rest of their careers. This importance of the mission, and direct impact that faculty instruction has on national security processes, fosters a culture of mutual respect and collegiality across the department and school. Faculty who are interested in translating their academic expertise into policy debates are encouraged to do so.

This is a full-time, long-term, civilian faculty position. Initial appointment may be for up to 4 years; the first year may be probationary.

Appointments may be renewed subject to job performance and availability of funds; reappointments at USAWC are the norm and the position should be considered equivalent to tenure-track. Academic rank and compensation of initial appointment will be offered commensurate with the applicant's level of experience and qualifications. We are prepared to offer a salary-and-benefits package designed to attract highly talented applicants.

Qualifications:

In order to qualify, you must meet the education and/or experience requirements described below, also known as Knowledge, Skills, and Abilities (KSAs). Your curriculum vitae or résumé must clearly describe your relevant experience, and cover letters are encouraged to directly address the required KSAs, as they will be used by the search committee appointed to identify the best-qualified candidates.

1. Must have master's degree (required) in political science, history, national security studies, international relations, government, or related field. PhD or terminal degree strongly preferred. Doctoral students who expect to complete their Ph.D. prior to July 2024 are eligible and encouraged to apply. Expertise in Asian politics preferred.
 2. Ability to prepare, teach, and lecture on subjects related to Asian studies, regional politics in East, Southeast, or South Asia, American foreign policy, grand strategy, and national security decision-making. An established record of superlative teaching at the undergraduate, graduate, and/or Senior Service College level, and experience in seminar-style instruction, is preferred.
 3. Record of scholarly research and publication—or evidence of great potential for such research and publication—in areas relevant to the curriculum, to include national security policy and strategy, international relations, political science, history, political economy, regional studies, and the strategic use of military force (e.g., assurance, deterrence, coercion, and compellence). Expertise in regional Asian studies is preferred.
 4. A record of successful service to the profession and/or engagement with policy debates, including membership in and service to professional (regional, historical, political) scholarly societies, public history initiatives, or military and defense organizations. A record of successful non-governmental work of a similar nature and scope, such as with a think tank, development organization, media organization, or international organization may also be considered service.
3. One sample of written scholarship not to exceed 50 pages (Electronic format is preferred, as hard copies will not be returned without a self-addressed and metered envelope.)
 4. Unofficial academic transcripts of the highest degree attained. You must provide official transcripts upon request.
 5. List of four disinterested professional references (i.e., persons who can affirm the candidate's qualifications but have no stake in the outcome of the selection).
 6. Proof of U.S. citizenship.
 7. A short narrative of one page or less that describes how you would contribute to an atmosphere of diversity at the U.S. Army War College through teaching, scholarship, and/or service.

To apply for this position, you must apply using the USAJOBS platform via the following link: <https://www.usajobs.gov/job/737609900>. The complete application package must be submitted by 11:59 PM (EST) on 18 September 2023 to receive consideration.

Laval University

Rank: Professor of Global Value Chains

Specializations: Trade, Political Economy, Foreign Policy

Université Laval's Graduate School of International Studies is seeking applications for a position of Professor of Global Value Chains. The successful candidate will serve as Co-Chair of the Chaire de recherche Couche-Tard sur les chaînes de valeur globales. Once a candidate from outside Université Laval has been recruited, an internal competition will be launched to select a Co-Chair with a complementary research record and expertise.

A research advisor will support the Co-Chairs in the development, planning and submission of grant applications, and will oversee the full deployment of the Chair's outreach activities. A budget will be available for doctoral scholarships associated with the Chair.

The candidate hired for this position will join the Graduate School of International Studies as a regular professor as of January 1st, 2024, or no later than June 1st, 2024. Hiring may be at any academic rank in accordance with the Convention collective entre l'Université Laval et le Syndicat des professeurs et des professeures de l'Université Laval (SPUL) (collective agreement between Université Laval and its faculty union (SPUL) – available in French only).

Duties include:

- teaching at the graduate level;
- supervising master's essays, dissertations and doctoral theses;
- conducting research and publishing in the field of global value chains;
- participating in GSIS-related pedagogical and administrative activities;
- being involved in any other activity provided for in the Université Laval-SPUL collective agreement.

Selection Criteria:

- hold a Ph.D. in International Studies or in a field of study relevant to the position;
- demonstrate a strong commitment to multi/interdisciplinarity, whether through training, a research program, teaching experience or collaborations;
- have an excellent research record with publications in peer-reviewed journals considered among the best in the field, or the potential to develop an excellent research record for early career applicants;
- have teaching experience at the university level, ideally confirmed by evaluations;
- have received research grants from granting agencies in their field or demonstrate the potential to obtain such grants in the near future;
- demonstrate the ability to teach a graduate-level methodology course;
- demonstrate proven involvement in international research networks (considered an asset);
- show a high interest in collaborative work;
- have the ability to teach in French within 3 years of taking up the position (Université Laval provides support for newly-recruited faculty to attain proficiency in French).

Applications from doctoral students who are about to defend their doctoral thesis will be considered, provided that a letter from the department head confirming the expected date of thesis submission or defense is provided.

Application deadline: September 29th, 2023

The application file must include:

- A. a cover letter demonstrating, among other things, a commitment to multi/interdisciplinarity and international issues;
- B. a resume;
- C. a document (2 pages maximum) describing a research program for the next 5 years that covers the theoretical, methodological and dissemination aspects of research;
- D. a sample of publications.

Candidates on the short list of successful applicants will be required to provide three letters of recommendation from respondents outside Université Laval. Letters are to be sent to the Graduate School of International Studies management.

All applications will be processed confidentially.

Applications and letters of recommendations must be sent to:

University of Maryland, Baltimore County

Rank: Assistant Professor of International Relations with Focus on China, East Asian International Relations, and International Political Economy

Specializations: China, East Asia, Political Economy

The Department of Political Science at the University of Maryland, Baltimore County (UMBC) invites applications for a tenure-track Assistant Professor position in international relations with a specialization in China, East Asian international relations, and international political economy, beginning in August 2024. UMBC is a Carnegie Research 1, community-engaged, minority-serving institution focused on inclusive excellence.

This job is one of four positions in a cluster hire in Asian Studies. UMBC is searching in 2023-2024 for Asian Studies specialists, in Ancient Studies, History, Philosophy, and Political Science. Faculty hired as part of the cluster will have opportunities to collaborate across disciplines and develop alongside a cohort of new faculty members with an interest in Asian Studies. Though the new faculty members will be housed in their respective academic departments, they will also be affiliate faculty in, and contribute to the success, of, the interdisciplinary Asian Studies Program at UMBC through their course offerings, participation in research seminars, and engagement with Asia-related programming on campus.

Preference will be given to candidates who have a Ph.D. in political science/international relations, or will have a Ph.D. in hand by August 2024. Applicants must provide evidence of a focused, ambitious research agenda and a commitment to excellent undergraduate teaching. Candidates must also describe how their research, teaching, and/or life experiences contribute to "inclusive excellence," such as their ability to work with underserved and diverse populations and their capacity to respond in pedagogically productive ways to the competence, aspirations, and needs of students from diverse backgrounds. The successful candidate will teach two introductory sections of International Relations (counting as two courses) and upper-level undergraduate courses in Chinese politics and foreign policy, East Asian international relations, and international political economy. The annual teaching load is five courses.

For best consideration, applicants should submit their applications by October 15, 2023, using Interfolio: <https://apply.interfolio.com/127984>

Please provide a cover letter, a CV, a statement of your research agenda; a statement of your teaching philosophy; a statement of your commitment to diversity, equity, and inclusion; up to two publications of other writing samples; two sample course syllabi; and three letters of reference. Questions should be addressed to either of the search co-chairs, Dr. Cynthia Hody (hody@umbc.edu) and Dr. Devin T. Hagerty (dhagerty@umbc.edu), using the subject line "POLI Search".

Macalester College

Rank: Assistant Professor

The Department of Political Science seeks candidates for a full-time, tenure-track position at the level of Assistant Professor to begin in August 2024. We invite applications from International Relations scholars with a primary teaching and research emphasis in the subfield of global political economy. The successful candidate will contribute to the undergraduate curriculum by teaching Foundations of International Relations, an intermediate-level course on global political economy and electives in at least one of the following additional areas: postcolonial studies; critical international theory; Indigenous international relations; the international politics of migration; race and international relations; Global IR; or non-Western European approaches to international relations.

The teaching load is five courses per year. We welcome candidates whose teaching and scholarly interests can build bridges to other disciplines or Macalester's interdisciplinary departments and concentrations, such as International Studies, Asian Studies, Middle Eastern Studies and Islamic Civilization, Community and Global Health, Environmental Studies, Urban Studies and Women, Gender and Sexuality Studies.

Applicants should submit a cover letter that includes a statement of interest in Macalester and discusses demonstrated activity and contributions to diversity, equity and inclusion initiatives in their teaching, advising, mentorship, curriculum, scholarship, service or community and professional engagement. Strong candidates will have experience and vision regarding teaching and mentorship of students of multiple and diverse backgrounds with attention to structural barriers that limit access to educational opportunities.

Applications should also include a curriculum vitae; a statement of teaching interests and philosophy, a research statement, an example of recent scholarship, evidence of effective teaching (e.g. sample syllabi, course evaluations, comments in reference letters), and three reference letters.

Teaching Statements should include:

- Teaching philosophy and statement of effective strategies for teaching and learning;
- Experience teaching, advising, or mentoring undergraduate students;
- Applied knowledge of supporting students of diverse backgrounds, interests, or prior experience with international relations coursework

Research Statements should include:

-Research specialization in international relations; -Commitment to and interest in maintaining an active research agenda; -Understanding of scholarly research in a liberal arts college and support of undergraduate student research;

All materials (cover letter, CV, teaching statement, research statement, research sample, evidence of effective teaching, and three reference letters) must be submitted to Academic Jobs Online. Inquiries can be directed to Professor Lesley Lavery, Chair of Political Science, llavery@macalester.edu. Applications received by October 1, 2023 will be granted full review.

Macalester is a highly selective, private liberal arts college in the vibrant Minneapolis-Saint Paul metropolitan area, with a population of approximately three million people and home to numerous colleges and universities, including the University of Minnesota. Macalester's diverse student body comprises over 2000 undergraduates from all 50 states and the District of Columbia and 99 countries. The College maintains a longstanding commitment to academic excellence with a special emphasis on internationalism, multiculturalism, and service to society. As an Equal Opportunity employer supportive of affirmative efforts to achieve diversity among its faculty, Macalester College strongly encourages applications from women and members of underrepresented minority groups. International scholars will receive H-1B visa assistance if selected for this position.

Please note that candidates who are invited for a campus interview will be required to complete faculty screening questions, and offers of employment are contingent upon a successful criminal background check at the time of offer. Additionally, finalist candidates will be asked for additional references.

Johns Hopkins University

Rank: Adjunct Faculty: Intelligence Analysis

Subfield(s): International Relations, American Government and Politics, Other

Specializations: Intelligence, Defense, International Security

Location:

Washington, DC or Online (Remote)

Open Date:

Feb 01, 2023

POSITION:

Adjunct Faculty, Intelligence Analysis
 Krieger School of Arts and Sciences
 Advanced Academic Programs

INSTITUTION:

Johns Hopkins University

Institution Description:

The Advanced Academic Programs (AAP) is a division of the Krieger School of Arts and Sciences at the Johns Hopkins University (JHU). As the nation's oldest and one of the most prestigious research universities, Johns Hopkins offers high-quality master's degrees and post-baccalaureate education to students in the mid-Atlantic region and online. In addition to the online programs, AAP also offers master's degrees and graduate certificate programs at its Washington, DC Center and at the Homewood campus in Baltimore, MD. AAP has approximately 18,000 enrollments each academic year. JHU is committed to hiring candidates who, through their teaching and service, will contribute to the diversity and excellence of the academic community.

Position Description:

The Advanced Academic Programs (AAP) division seeks non-tenure track adjunct faculty to teach several courses within the MS in Intelligence Analysis program. The course(s) will be taught fully online beginning in Summer 2023 and beyond. Candidates with online course development and teaching experience and those with experience teaching and engaging students from diverse backgrounds are of particular interest. We are looking for faculty who can teach one or more of the following courses:

473.600 the Art and Practice of Intelligence

This course introduces students to the field of intelligence, particularly as practiced in the United States. After a brief overview of the historical foundations of modern intelligence, it discusses how intelligence is conducted including collection, analysis, counterintelligence, covert action, and oversight. It also discusses intelligence ethics, as well as the disruptive influences of September 11, new technologies, and emerging social trends.

473.602 Intelligence Analysis

Intelligence analysis is fundamentally about understanding and communicating to decision makers what is known, not known, and surmised, as it can best be determined. Students will read seminal texts on intelligence analysis, discuss the complex cognitive, psychological, organizational, ethical, and legal issues surrounding intelligence analysis now and, in the past, and apply analytic methodologies to real-world problems.

473.604 Advanced Critical Thinking and Analysis

Critical thinking involves the methods and principles of correct reasoning and argumentation. Students will apply a combination of logic, critical thinking skills, and structured analytical techniques to identify biases, promote self-reflective reasoning, and improve the quality of intelligence analysis. Using a selection of empirical case studies and operational exemplars, students will conduct a comparative assessment of analytical outcomes based on the application of course learnings versus outcomes derived in their absence.

473.607 Intelligence Ethics

This course will address the ethical dilemmas and issues that challenge intelligence and government decision makers in an increasingly complex operational and technological environment. We will examine basic moral, ethical and privacy considerations at several key points in intelligence operations from collection to covert action. The course will analyze the evolving nature of privacy concerns worldwide, with an emphasis on the balance between individual rights and national security. Students will examine the policy implications inherent in seeking to address these tensions.

473.606 Legal Issues in Intelligence

This class will examine the interplay between the laws and the practices and policies of the United States' Intelligence Community and national security system, both foreign and domestic. While discussion of the history of intelligence activities and laws dating from the origins of our colonial days will necessarily shape the framework of the class, the focus shall particularly be on current debates and challenges faced by the United States in the 21st Century.

473.800 Research Seminar

This course will introduce a variety of research, analytical, and statistical methods intended to provide a basis for designing a research project, including an introduction to quantitative, qualitative, and mixed method research design. Within the context of the course, students will complete foundational work for the capstone project, including identifying and accessing relevant primary and secondary source data, surveying and evaluating the literature, and framing a research question based on the intersection of empirical studies and organizational needs. Attention will be given to the unique restrictions placed on research design and publication within the intelligence community.

473.801 Capstone: Current Issues in Intelligence

In this culminating course, students complete an independent, faculty-approved project that will address a substantive or methodological challenge in intelligence analysis. A successful capstone will include research that provides evidence of the student's mastery of the theoretical knowledge and analytical skills central to the degree's learning outcomes. The capstone provides an opportunity to apply the skills acquired throughout the program to a key challenge facing their organization or community. Students will conduct a literature review, select a research method appropriate to their study, analyze data using qualitative or quantitative methods in their capstone project, and propose and defend their findings.

Minimum Qualifications:

- An advanced degree in any relevant field, with a master's degree at minimum.

- At least five years of professional work experience within the intelligence field.

Preferred Qualifications:

- A terminal degree in international relations, global security studies, political science, history, or in a relevant field related to intelligence.
- A scholar-practitioner background and publications in the field.
- 1-3 years of graduate level teaching experience.
- Leadership experience within the US Intelligence Community.
- Online teaching experience.
- Experience in developing graduate courses.
- The background to teach a wide variety of courses in an intelligence analysis program.
- Strong interest in advising graduate students interested in an intelligence career.

Application Instructions

The position will remain open until filled. For best consideration, please apply by April 1 2023.

Candidates must submit the following:

- Cover letter should indicate the course or courses you're interested in teaching plus your experience with online learning management systems (i.e., Canvas)
- Curriculum vitae
- Teaching evaluations for two most recently taught courses
- Transcript from highest degree earned
- The selected candidate will undergo a background check and provide three references.

University of Florida

Rank: Lecturer

The International Studies Program at the University of Florida (UF), College of Liberal Arts and Sciences, invites applications for a full-time, non-tenure track appointment at the rank of Lecturer. Applicants should focus regionally on the Middle East and/or North Africa, and topically in the areas of global health, governance, civil society, data and public policy, sustainable development, or related subjects.

The International Studies program is a dynamic interdisciplinary major at UF that prepares students for careers in global affairs, international business, research organizations, and other careers by providing foreign language skills, regional cultural awareness, and informed knowledge of critical international issues in global and local context. The International Studies Program is housed in UF's Bob Graham Center for Public Service. The Graham Center prepares students to engage in their communities, to influence policy, and to interact with lawmakers through the Center's public programs, special projects, academic coursework, and research initiatives. The successful candidate will join a collaborative and inclusive team dedicated to promoting the ideals of civic engagement, public leadership, and public service at the local, national, and global levels.

The Lecturer will teach two courses per semester and provide substantial service. Of those courses, it is expected that two will be regularly offered core courses for the International Studies Program: 1) an introductory course in International Studies (INS3004: International Studies Perspectives); and 2) a senior capstone course for majors (INS4930: Senior Research Seminar in International Studies). The remainder of courses taught will correspond to the Lecturer's specialization. Outside of teaching, the Lecturer will serve as the Experiential Learning Coordinator for the International Studies Program, partnering with other programs at UF to identify and develop opportunities for internships, study abroad experiences, and student research. The exact balance between service and teaching duties will depend on the needs of the program and will be determined on an annual basis.

Lecturers are highly valued by the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences and by the University of Florida. To encourage and facilitate the professional development of lecturers, the university provides opportunities for promotion from the ranks of Lecturer to Senior Lecturer and Master Lecturer. Lecturer appointments are typically for nine months per year and are annually renewable.

The International Studies Program and the Bob Graham Center are committed to fostering an environment that affirms diversity across a variety of dimensions including ethnicity/race, gender identity and expression. We particularly welcome applicants who can contribute to developing such an environment through their scholarship, teaching, mentoring, and professional service.

Assistant Professor Russian and/or Eurasian International Relations

Department of Political Science, University of Kansas

The University of Kansas (KU) Department of Political Science of the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences in collaboration with the university's Center for Russian, East European & Eurasian Studies (CREES) invites applications for a tenure-track Assistant Professorship in Russian and/or Eurasian International Relations beginning August 18, 2023. Successful candidates will be able to demonstrate methodological training that is appropriate with their theoretical approaches as well as provide evidence of the capacity to publish in major journals or presses in political science. Preference will be given to applicants with research and/or teaching specialty in Russian and Eurasian international relations including foreign policy, security, political economy, and the opportunity to develop courses in the candidate's own areas of expertise.

Candidates are expected to contribute to the political science department as well as CREES' interdisciplinary intellectual community and mentor undergraduate and graduate students in Russian, East European, and Eurasian Studies. The Political Science Department and CREES are committed to fostering an inclusive and supportive educational environment for students, faculty and staff. The successful candidates will have experience with diversity, equity, and inclusion in higher education.

Required Qualifications: 1) A doctorate in Political Science. If ABD, the dissertation must be successfully defended by the position start date; 2) Demonstrated commitment to excellence in teaching at the undergraduate and graduate level; 3) Demonstrated ability or plans to develop an innovative body of research and scholarship as evidenced by scholarly publications, presentations, and/or other scholarly activities; 4) Expertise on Russia and/or Eurasia, demonstrated by dissertation chapters, working papers, or publications of relevance to the region

At the University of Kansas, diversity, equity, inclusion, and belonging are an important part of our culture and university strategic plan. Applications from members of underrepresented groups are encouraged, noting the value that differences bring to our organization, students, staff, faculty, and community. The successful candidate must be eligible to work in the U.S. by the effective date of the appointment.

For further details and a full position description, go to: <https://employment.ku.edu/academic/23401BR>. A complete application package includes: (1) a cover letter summarizing research goals and teaching experiences and interests; (2) curriculum vitae; (3) teaching statement showing evidence of teaching ability; (4) a research statement with goals and research potential (samples of published work or conference papers); and (5) the names, email addresses, and contact information for 3 professional references. ABD candidates need to include advisor contact information

In addition to the materials above, learning about each applicant's contribution and engagement in areas of diversity is an important part of KU's mission. As a result, applicants will be presented the following question at the time of application. The response must be within 4,000 characters or less: Describe your experiences working with people from diverse backgrounds and explain how those experiences reflect your commitments to diversity, equity, and inclusion.

Application review will begin October 15, 2022, and will remain open until the position is filled. For more information, please contact Clayton Webb, Search Committee Chair at webb767@ku.edu.

Copenhagen Business School

Subfield(s): Comparative Politics, Methodology, Public Policy

We invite applications for a 2-year postdoc on the project "The Determinants and Consequences of Legislative Capacity" starting August 1st, 2024. The project is led by associate professors Florian M. Hollenbach (CBS) and David Fortunato (UCSD) and funded by the Independent Research Fund Denmark. The postdoc will be based at the Department of International Economics, Government and Business (EGB) at the Copenhagen Business School. It is a 100% research postdoc—there are no teaching requirements. It is our hope that the postdoc will coauthor with the project leaders and develop publications related to the project.

The project

Because policy is written by elected representatives but implemented by unelected bureaucratic agents with their own preferences, the legislature's capacity for ex-ante policy design and ex-post oversight sets a de facto budget constraint on potential democratic responsiveness. Importantly, parliaments choose their own capacity by allocating resources necessary for legislative work, yet we observe tremendous variation in these endowments. Why? In this project, we investigate the determinants of capacity choices and their broader implications for democratic accountability.

The "Legislative Capacity" project consists of two work packages. Work package I will focus on developing a formal theoretical model of the legislature's choice over its capacity for policy influence. The model will consider the trade-offs for current majorities to increase capacity to improve its policy making power while also handing more efficient institutions to future governments, should it lose power. Work package II moves on to empirically investigate the relationships predicted by the theoretical model. To do so, we will collect data on legislative capacity in OECD countries over the last 20 years, as well as subnational legislatures.

The postdoc will work on both packages, contributing to development of the central theoretical model, data collection, analysis, and writing. It is essential that applicants have strong research potential in comparative political economy and the ability to work in a team environment, collaborating/co-authoring with other team members.

Non-exhaustive examples of research areas that the postdoc may cover:

Comparative Political Economy
Social Data Science
Quantitative Methods
Formal Modelling

Department

EGB is a multidisciplinary department that conducts high-quality research in the fields of international business and political science with direct relevance to business, policymakers, and the public. Research at the department focuses on two principal focus areas Business & Government and International Business, in relation to societal challenges. To learn more about the research and education of the department, please visit the departmental homepage; www.cbs.dk/egb.

Qualifications

The applicant must have completed – or be close to completing – a PhD in the political science, political economy, or a related field. The applicant must have excellent research skills and proficiency in English (written and spoken). The ideal applicant will have solid skills in formal modelling and advanced quantitative methods.

To fulfill the research requirements of the position, the postdoc is expected to be physically present at the department on a regular basis.

Copenhagen Business School has a broad commitment to the excellence, distinctiveness and relevance of its teaching and research programs. Candidates who wish to join us should demonstrate enthusiasm for working in an organization of this type.

Appointment and salary will be in accordance with the Ministry of Finance's agreement with the Central Academic Organisation (presently approximately $70,080 USD including pension contribution).

Applications must be sent via the electronic recruitment system, using the link; <https://www.cbs.dk/en/about-cbs/jobs-cbs/vacant-positions/postdoc-in-business-and-government-copenhagen-business-school-2-years>

Applications must include:

A cover letter outlining the candidate's main strengths and abilities.
Transcript(s) and a full CV

A job market paper

A complete, numbered list of publications (indicating titles, co-authors, page numbers and year) with an * marking of the academic productions to be considered during the assessment. A maximum of 5 publications for assessment are allowed. Applicants are requested to prioritise their publications in relation to the field of this job advertisement.

Copies of the publications marked with an *. Only publications written in English (or another specified principal language, according to research tradition) or one of the Scandinavian languages will be taken into consideration)

A brief (1-page) research statement for the 2-year postdoc period, and possibly beyond.

Recruitment procedure

The Recruitment Committee will shortlist a minimum of two applicants; when possible five or more applicants will be shortlisted. The shortlisted applicants will be assessed by the Assessment Committee. All applicants will be notified of their status in the recruitment process shortly after the application deadline.

The applicants selected for assessment will be notified about the composition of the Assessment Committee and later in the process about the result of the assessment.

Once the recruitment process is completed each applicant will be notified of the outcome of their application.

Closing date: October 30, 2023

Copenhagen Business School must receive all application material, including all appendices (see items above), by the application deadline.

For further information about the project, please contact: Associate Professor Florian M. Hollenbach, e-mail: fho.egb@cbs.dk.

Coastal Carolina University

Rank: Assistant Professor of Political Science

Specializations: Political Communication, Public Opinion, Quantitative Methods

Assistant Professor of Political Science

The Spadoni College of Education and Social Sciences at Coastal Carolina University invites applications for a tenure-track appointment in the Department of Political Science to begin in August 2024.

We seek to hire a candidate who specializes in political methodology, in particular quantitative methods. Experience with a range of programs, such as Stata, R, Python, UCINET, and ArcGIS, is especially desired. The person hired will work closely with the College's new Social Science Research Lab (SSRL) in the development of new courses and certificate programs at the undergraduate and graduate levels. Summer compensation will be provided so that courses and workshops can be offered to students.

The candidate will also teach in their substantive area(s) of research, and we are specifically focused on candidates who study mass media, social media, political communication, and/or public opinion in the United States.

The chosen candidate is required to have a Ph.D. in Political Science or related discipline by the time of appointment. Candidates must demonstrate how their scholarship and training, to date, make them a good fit for working collaboratively with the department and the SSRL.

Interested candidates should submit: a letter of application that addresses their qualifications, a curriculum vitae, a writing sample, copies of undergraduate and graduate transcripts, a combined statement about teaching and research, and contact information for three (3) professional references electronically at: <https://jobs.coastal.edu/postings/21246> Review of application materials will begin October 2nd, 2023, and continue until the position is filled.

Coastal Carolina University is a public comprehensive liberal arts institution located in Conway, South Carolina, just nine miles from the Atlantic coastal resort city of Myrtle Beach. Coastal Carolina University enrolls over 10,000 students from 49 states and 55 nations. The University is accredited by the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools Commission on Colleges to award the baccalaureate and master's degrees of national and/or regional significance in the arts and sciences, business, humanities, education, and health and human services, a specialist degree in instructional technology, and PhD degrees in marine science: coastal and marine systems science and education sciences.

Salem State University

Rank: Faculty - Public Policy - Full Time, Temporary

Specializations: Race & Ethnic Politics, Housing, Education Policy

The politics, policy and international relations department at Salem State University invites a full-time, temporary faculty position for the 2024-2025 academic year. We are seeking a public policy specialist with familiarity with policies in an urban context such as housing, education, transportation, policing, poverty, and/or immigration. This position is part of a Salem State initiative to help establish and advance our proposed North Shore Policy Lab and may be reappointed for up to two additional years subject to available funding. With continued growth of the program, there may be additional tenure track lines in the department.

Housed in the department's Bates Center for Public and Global Affairs, the North Shore Policy Lab will involve students in research conducted on behalf of local and state government and non-governmental organizations in order to prepare them for jobs in the public, non-profit and/or private sectors.

The candidate should be well-versed in both quantitative and qualitative research methods and be able to teach our current Research Methods course as well as a new, advanced multi-methods class that will serve as the foundation for student work on applied policy research projects as a part of the policy lab. The ideal candidate will have a demonstrated record of community-based research and community partnerships with a focus on equity issues in the context of urban areas like those served by Salem State.

Salem State University is committed to excellence in teaching. We pride ourselves in providing first-rate classroom experiences and supervising intensive learning opportunities such as research and internships. Many of our students are first generation, racial/ethnic minorities, veterans, and adult learners. Salem State University is located in the Greater Boston area in the historic city of Salem, Massachusetts. The Greater Boston region is famous for its world-class education, healthcare, and business enterprises and the area offers numerous opportunities for professional and personal enrichment.

Duties and Responsibilities

Candidates are required to perform duties in accordance with the MSCA contract. Duties include teaching, advising, scholarship and contributions to continuously improve the department and university. The standard teaching load is 12 credit hours per semester. The position is subject to available funding.

Required Qualifications:

Earned PhD in public policy or a related field from an accredited institution (ABD considered if degree will be conferred by September 2024)

Advising and/or mentoring experience

Preferred Qualifications:

Commitment to anti-racist, culturally responsive teaching

Demonstrated expertise in community-based research

Active publication record and/or exemplary scholarly potential (e.g., ABD candidates with strong pipeline of research)

Prior applied experience in non-profit or public sector settings

Demonstrated excellence in teaching

As an emerging Hispanic Serving Institution (HSI), Salem State University seeks to enrich the faculty/librarian ranks by actively encouraging candidates whose lived and scholarly experiences directly address issues regarding the health, welfare, and representation of Latinx populations in the United States. Candidates who meet this strongly desired qualification should present documented activities in Latinx-related teaching, scholarship/research, and service, including community-based endeavors in each of these three areas.

Working Conditions:

This is an on-site, in-person position.

Salem State University complies with the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA) to provide reasonable accommodation to qualified applicants and employees with disabilities. For accommodation information or requests please email eo-hr@salemstate.edu.

Special Instructions to Applicants:

Please apply online and attach curriculum vitae, cover letter, teaching philosophy, and a diversity statement (please read our institutional diversity statement and describe how you would contribute to our mission in your teaching, research, mentoring/advising, and service).

The online portal can be found at: <https://internal-salemstate.icims.com/jobs/2894/faculty%2c-political-science-%28public-policy%29%2c-full-time%2c-temporary%2c-fall-2024/job>

Employment is contingent upon a completed background and CORI check satisfactory to the university.

This position is not eligible for H1B visa sponsorship.

Please Note: If there is no application deadline associated with a position, it may be removed at any time and additional applications will not be accepted.

Universidad Catolica del Uruguay

Rank: Assistant Professor

Ref: LLAMACA-181

Call for applications to fill a position of Assistant Professor (Full time) at the Department of Social Sciences

The Universidad Católica del Uruguay calls for applications to fill a position of Assistant Professor (Full time) at its Department of Social Sciences. Candidates should hold a Ph.D. or be near completion (December 2023) in Political Science or Sociology, but candidates in other social science disciplines such as Demography, Human Geography, Criminology or Social Work are also encouraged to apply. Candidates may be specialized in any substantive subarea (for example, research methods, public policy, comparative politics, political economy, social stratification, or socioeconomic inequalities).

Candidates must demonstrate excellence in teaching, an active substantive research agenda, and a demonstrated ability to publish and teach in English and Spanish. Successful candidates are expected to work full-time (160 hours per month) and start working in February or August 2024.

Applications will start being analyzed on September 30, 2023, but applications received after that will still be considered until the position is filled or the university closes the call. A complete application must contain (1) a cover letter, (2) CV, (3) an example of an undergraduate course program that the candidate would be able to teach, (4) up to 2 examples of academic research work, (5) teacher evaluations, and (6) three letters of recommendation. The application should be made electronically (<https://bpm.ucu.edu.uy/public/01LPOSD>). Letters of recommendation can be included by the candidate in the application or can be directly sent by their author to the following email: departamentos@ucu.edu.uy (Ref: LLAMACA-181 – Letter of recommendation for [Name Last name]).

The selection process will consist on the following stages. First, a short list of candidates will be selected to be interviewed by the Selection Committee in person or via videoconference in case of residing abroad. Then, 3 shortlisted candidates will be invited to the Montevideo campus to present their research and hold interviews with members of the Department and other authorities. The selection committee may request from the candidates, at any time during the process, additional materials, or the corresponding accreditations. The decisions of the selection committee will be final. The Universidad Católica del Uruguay reserves the right not to hire any candidates without responsibility of any kind at its own expense.

For additional information, applicants may contact the Department's Chair, Rosario Queirolo (rosario.queirolo@ucu.edu.uy).

Rank: Tenure-Track Assistant Professor in Computational Social Science

The University of Rochester seeks applicants for a tenure-track assistant professor in computational social science. This will be a joint appointment between the Goergen Institute for Data Science (GIDS) and a tenure home department in Political Science, Economics, or Linguistics, depending on which best aligns with the applicant's research and teaching. Exceptional candidates in all areas of computational social science are encouraged to apply.

Applicants must have (or be about to receive) a doctorate in computer science, data science, operations research, applied mathematics, statistics, economics, linguistics, political science, or a related discipline. Candidates should have strong skills in computational social science and/or data analytics, as well as a research agenda that uses these methods to analyze substantive issues in political science, economics, or linguistics.

Teaching responsibilities for this position will be split between GIDS and the home department. The successful candidate will have the opportunity to supervise PhD, Master's, and undergraduate students at the home department and at GIDS.

All applications should include a letter of interest, curriculum vitae, research statement, teaching statement, and samples of written work. Candidates without a prior tenure-track appointment should include a graduate transcript. Applicants must also arrange for three letters of recommendation to be submitted online. The University of Rochester is firmly committed to advancing equity and fostering an inclusive and diverse community. We ask candidates to include a statement detailing their past work and future plans for achieving these goals.

Application materials should be submitted online at: www.rochester.edu/faculty-recruiting. We will begin reviewing applications on September 15, 2023. Applications will continue to be reviewed on a rolling basis until a candidate is hired or until February 1, 2024.

The Goergen Institute for Data Science (GIDS) was founded in 2015 as part of the University of Rochester's $100 million commitment to making data science its top research priority. The Institute serves as a hub for interdisciplinary data science research, interdepartmental data science academic programs, and collaborations with industry.

GIDS is housed in the newly constructed Wegmans Hall, a brand-new, 58,000-square-foot building completed in 2017. The Institute offers Bachelor of Arts, Bachelor of Science, and Master of Science degrees, as well as an Advanced Graduate Certificate program in data science for professionals. A Doctoral degree in data science is undergoing the formal approval process, with a first cohort of students expected in 2024. Eighty-five faculty members from a variety of disciplines across the campus are affiliated with GIDS. Areas of expertise of these faculty members include foundations of AI and ML; health analytics and digital health; life sciences and biomedical data science; imaging science, visual science, and optics; human-data-system interfaces; AI-augmented learning and work; audio and music engineering; economics and business data analytics; computational social science; materials design; network data science; and robotics. With a unique structure, GIDS fosters industry engagement via the Center of Excellence (CoE) in Data Science. The CoE helps drive regional economic development through basic research, training, and technology development in all areas related to data science.

The University of Rochester is a private, Tier I research institution with approximately 6,600 undergraduates and 5,500 graduate students. We are deeply committed to building a more diverse and representative faculty, and strongly encourage applications from groups underrepresented in STEM and in higher education. We are actively working to improve the environment for all underrepresented groups as we strive to weave diversity, equity, and inclusion throughout the University's mission to learn, discover, heal, and create. Anchoring the Finger Lakes region of Western New York State, the greater Rochester area is home to over a million people, and offers unsurpassed quality of life, with a thriving arts scene, excellent public schools, affordable housing, and a huge range of cultural and recreational opportunities. <https://www.sas.rochester.edu/dsc/about/jobs.html>

University of Mississippi

Rank: Assistant Professor

The Department of Public Policy Leadership at the University of Mississippi invites applications for a tenure track assistant professorship to begin in August 2024. The position has a 3/2 teaching load, and the successful candidate will advance an active research agenda. Teaching responsibilities include the department's required courses in Public Policy Research Methods (PPL 210) and Policy Design and Analysis (PPL 310), Advanced Quantitative Methods (PPL 399), and courses in the candidate's area of specialization. A Ph.D. in Public Policy and Administration, Political Science or a closely related field is required at the time of employment, as is a record of excellence in teaching and research. A strong background in quantitative methods and policy analysis is required.

The Department provides a challenging undergraduate major that prepares high-performing students for positions of leadership in an increasingly complex world. The interdisciplinary curriculum for the major incorporates economics, geography, philosophy, political science, public administration, and public policy. The program emphasizes the global nature of responsible decision-making; the ethical imperatives of leadership; critical thinking and communication skills; and the conceptual and methodological skills necessary for careful policy analysis. Visit our website at <http://leadership.olemiss.edu>.

Apply online: <https://careers.olemiss.edu>. Applications should include a cover letter, a curriculum vitae, three letters of reference, and a teaching portfolio (including syllabi and evaluations, if available). The review of applications will begin on September 25, 2023 and continue until the position is filled. The University of Mississippi is classified by Carnegie Foundation as a R1 research university and has been rated a "best college to work for" by the Chronicle of Higher Education. It is an EEO/AA/TitleIX/Section 504/ADA/ADEA employer.

University of North Carolina, Charlotte

Subfield(s): Comparative Politics, Methodology, International Relations

We invite applications for a postdoctoral research position with strong data analysis and management skills to work on a multi-year project on “Collective Shocks and Social Preferences” led by Professors James Walsh and Alexander Kustov at the University of North Carolina at Charlotte.

The project examines how people’s social preferences, such as altruism and trust, are affected by negative collective shocks such as wars, natural disasters, or economic disruptions. Some studies find that these shocks make people more prosocial, but others find that they reduce cooperation. Since most of this research focuses on just one region or outcome, it is hard to know whether the results are generalizable. To address this question, the project aims to create a comprehensive cross-national time-series dataset on various shocks and preferences at the subnational level.

The postdoctoral position is a full-time research-focused role to lead the construction of the dataset for the project. The role includes:

- * Leading the data collection and management efforts needed to construct the original dataset, including cross-national surveys on social preferences and administrative data on collective shocks.
- * Conducting and publishing high-quality research in close collaboration and under the guidance of project leaders.
- * Dedicating time to personal research as part of the position (approximately 40%).
- * Participating in the broader intellectual life of the Department of Political Science and Public Administration, and the interdisciplinary Public Policy and Data Science programs.

The Postdoctoral appointee must have recently (within the last eight years) been awarded a Ph.D. or equivalent doctorate. Strong training and skills in quantitative data analysis in R is required. Preference will be given to applicants with demonstrated skills in one or more of the following areas: data management, survey methodology, multilevel regression, causal inference, machine learning, cross-national research. Preference is also given to applicants with research interests in one or more of the following areas related to the project: conflict and cooperation, political economy, political psychology, state capacity, social preferences, migration.

Postdoc appointments are characterized by all of the following conditions:

- * the appointee was recently (within the last eight years) awarded a Ph.D. or equivalent doctorate (e.g., Sc.D., M.D.);
- * the appointment is temporary;
- * the appointment involves substantially full-time research or scholarship;
- * the appointment is viewed as preparatory for a full-time academic and/or research career;
- * the appointee works under the supervision of a faculty member; and
- * the appointee has the freedom and is expected to publish the results of his or her research or scholarship during the period of appointment.

Screening of applicants will begin on August 15, 2023 and continue until the position is filled. The position is renewable based on performance. For further information, please contact James Walsh (jwalsh@charlotte.edu) and Alexander Kustov (akustov@charlotte.edu).

American University

Rank: Assistant Professor

The Department of Government in the School of Public Affairs at American University invites applications for two full-time, tenure-track positions beginning in Academic Year 2024-25. The positions will be at the rank of Assistant Professor. The Department is seeking American Politics scholars and Political Methodologists with substantive expertise in American politics. Applications from candidates who would enhance the diversity of the department are especially welcome.

Applicants should hold a PhD. Candidates should be effective teachers and must be strongly committed to excellence in scholarly research. The search is open regarding areas of substantive specialty, but the Department is especially interested in scholars whose research and teaching interests include American political institutions. Most of all, the department seeks scholars who will further its goals of producing high impact research and providing innovative undergraduate and graduate teaching. Applications are particularly welcome from scholars who can contribute to high visibility centers and research initiatives at American University, such as the Women and Politics Institute, Center for Congressional and Presidential Studies, Center for Data Science, and Center for Environmental Policy. In addition to scholarship and teaching, all faculty are expected to hold office hours and participate in School and University activities and service.

Review of applications will begin on September 1, 2023, and will continue until the positions are filled, subject to on-going budgetary approvals. The positions begin August 1, 2024. Applicants should have a PhD or an anticipated PhD completion date by August 2024.

Salary and benefits are competitive. Please submit applications via: <http://apply.interfolio.com/128065>. Include a letter of application, curriculum vitae, three confidential letters of recommendation, research and teaching narratives, and a writing sample. Please contact Rachel Whelan, Faculty Coordinator, 202-885-6201 or spa_academicaffairs@american.edu if you have any questions.

Established in 1934, the School of Public Affairs offers undergraduate and graduate programs in the departments of Government; Justice, Law, & Criminology; and Public Administration & Policy. University of Michigan-Ann Arbor

Rank: Assistant Professor

Subfield(s): Methodology, Public Policy, Political Theory

Specializations: Quantitative Methods, Science & Technology, Political Economy

The Center for the Study of Complex Systems (CSCS) at the University of Michigan seeks applicants for a tenure-track faculty position in complex systems science. The Center is a broad, interdisciplinary unit whose faculty use and develop tools from applied mathematics, computation, physics, statistics, engineering, and network theory to understand questions in the social, biological, and physical sciences. This is a University-year appointment at the Assistant Professor level. The expected start date is August 26, 2024.

Required Qualifications: We seek applicants with a research agenda focused on the development and/or application of complex systems models and/or methods. This may involve theoretical or applied research in areas of complex systems including (but not limited to) mathematical and computational work in network science, computational approaches in complex systems and related topics in computer science, social science, emergence and robustness, or scientific applications where complex systems theory lies at the core of the approach such as: quantitative modeling of biological and social systems, complex systems approaches to systemic racism and health disparities, biological and social evolution, artificial life, and cognition. We are particularly interested in candidates with a record of working across disciplines.

How to Apply: All applications must be uploaded here: <https://webapps.lsa.umich.edu/apply/1700>

This faculty position will be in the Center for the Study of Complex Systems or joint between Complex Systems and another academic department or school at the University of Michigan. If a joint appointment is preferred, candidates should suggest possible partner departments or schools. Complex Systems has a tradition of jointly appointed faculty across a wide range of schools and colleges at the University of Michigan, however both joint and 100% Complex Systems appointments will be considered. Applicants must submit a CV, a statement of current and future research plans, a statement of teaching philosophy and experience, and evidence of teaching excellence, if any. At least three letters of recommendation are required and must be uploaded by the letter writers to the same website. Finally, please include a diversity statement that demonstrates your commitment to diversity, equity, and inclusion through scholarship/research, and/or teaching/mentoring, and/or service/engagement. There may be some overlap with your research proposal and teaching statements (1-3 pages).

Review of applications will begin on October 1, 2023 and continue until the position is filled.

Offers for this appointment are contingent on successful completion of a background screening. The University of Michigan is supportive of the needs of dual career couples and is an equal opportunity/affirmative action employer. Women and minority groups are encouraged to apply.

University of California, San Diego

Rank: Associate Professor - Designing Just Futures

The Department of Political Science within the School of Social Sciences at the University of California, San Diego invites applications for an Associate Professor as part of UCSD's Designing Just Futures Cluster Hire Initiative, to begin July 1, 2024. We are committed to academic excellence and diversity within the faculty, staff, and student body. We welcome applications from subfields across political science (American, Comparative, International Relations, Political Theory and Methods) and other disciplines that focus on the unique political, legal, economic, and cultural status of Indigenous nations, and their relationships to local, state, and federal governments.

The selected candidate will conduct research, teaching, and service that will advance scholarship and institutional solutions for addressing systemic and structural inequities and advancing UCSD's commitment to Indigenous inclusion, anti-racism, anti-oppression, equity, and social justice. Candidates will utilize their professional experience, community engagement, and personal background that have facilitated their understanding of and ability to better serve students from Indigenous and other underrepresented populations. Candidates must currently hold a PhD in Political Science or a related field.

This search is part of a UC San Diego-wide cluster hire on Designing Just Futures that aims to recruit scholars, artists, or practitioners who can contribute to the advancement of design, social justice, and futures and seeks engagement across disciplines to address issues of territory, access and equity, and social and political debates pertinent to Native American, Indigenous, Black, and migrant communities, while also working within their home departments and professional communities. Faculty hired under this initiative will join the UC San Diego Design Lab and the Indigenous Futures Institute to forge a new paradigm of engagement and collaboration that draws on the geographic, academic, institutional, and cultural strengths of our tri-national region across Southern California, Baja California, and the Kumeyaay region.

UC San Diego was built on the unceded territory of the Kumeyaay people. Today and every day we honor their stewardship of this land and their tremendous contributions to our region. Land acknowledgements are an important gesture of collective recognition and accountability. But we also commit ourselves as a department to action, to truth in learning and teaching the history of this place and its people, a reckoning with injustices, past and present, and a pathway forward that respects the dignity and human rights of all.

University of California, San Diego

Rank: Lecturer in Political Science

The Department of Political Science at the University of California, San Diego, is generating an applicant pool of Lecturer Academic Year (Unit 18-Non-Senate Faculty) instructors to teach courses on a temporary basis should an opening arise. Applicants will be selected from this pool for teaching throughout the 2023-2024 academic year. The number of positions varies by academic term, depending on the needs of the Department. Candidates must identify the specific course or courses they are applying to teach and quarters they are available in the cover letter. (Please visit our department website for a complete listing of the courses we offer.: <https://polisci.ucsd.edu/undergrad/political-science-courses>.)

Positions typically start at the beginning of an academic quarter, and appointments may be renewable based on need, funding, performance, and the Department's mandate to maintain intellectual diversity.

In addition to the core responsibility of teaching, general duties include (but are not limited to) holding office hours, assigning grades, advising students, preparing course materials (e.g., syllabus), and maintaining a course website. Those teaching large courses are expected to manage and mentor graduate student Teaching Assistants. Qualified candidates must hold a PhD in Political Science or closely related field or a related professional degree (including, but not limited to, JD, MPA, MBA).

New York University

Rank: Assistant Professor - Social Media and Computational Social Science

Description

The NYU School of Arts and Science seeks excellent candidates whose research stands at the intersection of digital media and politics. This tenure track, assistant professor position is open to scholars across disciplines. The successful candidate will join the appropriate academic department in the NYU School of Arts and Science and is expected to play an integral role in the NYU Center for Social Media and Politics (CSMaP). Methodologically, applicants should demonstrate a mastery of quantitative and/or computational methods in the social sciences. Substantively, applicants should have research interests that align with and/or compliment the areas of interest at CSMaP. The position is to begin September 1, 2024, pending budgetary and administrative approval.

Compensation: In compliance with NYC's Pay Transparency Act, the annual base salary range for this position is $100,000 - $150,000. New York University considers factors such as (but not limited to) the scope and responsibilities of the position, the candidate's work experience, education/training, key skills, internal peer equity, as well as market and organizational considerations when extending an offer.

Qualifications

Candidates are expected to possess a PhD by September 1, 2024 in a relevant social science or related discipline; to have records of excellent research; and to indicate the potential to be future disciplinary leaders in their respective fields of expertise.

The School of Arts and Science at NYU is dedicated to the goal of building a diverse and inclusive academic community. Accordingly, we strongly encourage applications from candidates who demonstrate through their scholarship, teaching and mentoring, and/or service engagement, a commitment to these goals. We are particularly interested in hearing about steps you have taken (or plan to take) to foster an open and inclusive intellectual environment in the classroom, in the department and on campus, and/or in your field more generally.

Application Instructions

Initial application review will begin Sept 15, 2023, but applications will be considered until the position is filled. Interested candidates should submit: a cover letter, CV, a research statement, a teaching statement, a one-page statement as to how the candidate will contribute to a diverse and inclusive environment at NYU, a job market paper, one (or two) additional research papers, and three letters of recommendation. All of these documents are to be uploaded in Interfolio at <https://apply.interfolio.com/129573>.

The Faculty of Arts and Science at NYU is at the heart of a leading research university that spans the globe. We seek scholars of the highest caliber, who embody the diversity of the United States as well as the global society in which we live. We strongly encourage applications from women, racial and ethnic minorities, and other individuals who are under-represented in the profession, across color, creed, race, ethnic and national origin, physical ability, gender and sexual identity, or any other legally protected basis. NYU affirms the value of differing perspectives on the world as we strive to build the strongest possible university with the widest reach. American University-SIS

Rank: History & International Studies (Full-Time, Tenure Track)

The Department of Global Inquiry in the School of International Service (SIS) at American University (AU) invites applications for a full-time, tenure-line position at the intersection of history and international studies, at the rank of Assistant Professor, beginning August 1, 2024. The Department of Global Inquiry is multi-disciplinary and is open to applications from across the social sciences and humanities.

The department is especially interested in someone who can complement and enhance its commitment to thinking critically and historically about changes to contemporary world order, by studying the history of colonialism or decolonization, race, migration, climate change, the transmission of ideas, or trade. Candidates for this position should also be able to teach research design across multiple methodological traditions, including both causal and interpretive research.

The successful candidate will be enthusiastic about working in a multidisciplinary environment that includes political scientists, historians, geographers, sociologists, anthropologists, economists, and international relations scholars. Preference will be given to applicants whose work is theoretically grounded, empirically rich, and politically relevant.

The successful candidate will also be enthusiastic about teaching international affairs from a multidisciplinary perspective at the undergraduate and graduate levels. Preference will be given to candidates who can teach required courses in the school (e.g., research design) and department (e.g., historical international relations). Willingness to mentor PhD candidates in our vibrant PhD program is also desirable.

The successful candidate will also share a commitment to the university's diversity and inclusion plan. Candidates from groups historically underrepresented in higher education are especially encouraged to apply.

Applicants should hold a PhD or the highest equivalent degree in a social science discipline by the start date, though ABD applications will be considered. The standard course load for a tenure line faculty is 2/2, with an annual service requirement. Salary and benefits are competitive. Review of applications will begin on 1 October 2023 and will continue until the position is filled.

Applications must be submitted electronically via the Interfolio application system [<http://apply.interfolio.com/130110>]. Applications should include the following:

- A one-page cover letter detailing your research, teaching and service record to date
- A current c.v.
- Sample publications
- A short teaching portfolio with a statement of teaching philosophy and evidence of teaching effectiveness (e.g., teaching evaluations)
- A statement describing past examples of your contributions to diversity and inclusion in your scholarship, the classroom, and/or in other professional settings

Sewanee: The University of the South

Rank: Gender in Politics (Full-Time, Tenure-Track)

The Departments of Politics and Women's and Gender Studies (WGS) at the University of the South seek applications for a professor at the Assistant level in gender in politics, with a preference for a specialization in Black feminist politics. The position will begin in August 2024.

The teaching load for this position is five courses per year. The successful candidate will teach a variety of courses in both Politics and the WGS program on Black feminist politics and theory, as well as courses on gender in the global and/or domestic realm. This may include courses on Black feminist political engagement, political behavior, political thought, and/or history. An introductory course on Black Women's Studies is also highly desirable. The successful candidate will show evidence of inclusive and effective classroom teaching and a commitment to scholarly research and publication. The University has committed to diversity, equity, and inclusion in scholarship and teaching, and to that end, candidates whose research contributes to DEI are particularly urged to apply.

Sewanee has been chosen by the American Association of Colleges and Universities as one of 16 campuses to host a Truth, Reconciliation, Healing, and Transformation (TRHT) Campus Center for our ongoing work to foster racial reconciliation. The faculty member hired in this position, together with others across a range of disciplines, will form the inaugural TRHT Scholars. This cohort will have enhanced institutional support to engage in teaching, research, and service projects to further the Center's goals: to create a positive narrative about race in our community; to promote racial healing activities on campus and in our community; to erase institutional barriers to equal treatment; to prepare the next generation of leaders to build just and equitable communities.

The University of the South, commonly known as Sewanee, comprises a nationally ranked residential College of Arts and Sciences and a School of Theology. The university is strongly committed to the values of intellectual inquiry, diversity, equity, and inclusion, and living and serving in community. We seek to build a community enriched by our diversity centered on equity, justice, mutual respect, and shared responsibility. Situated on 13,000 acres atop Tennessee's Cumberland Plateau, Sewanee is known for its stunning natural beauty while providing easy access to Chattanooga, Nashville, and Huntsville, AL. The University is affiliated with the Episcopal Church and seeks to support students, faculty, and staff of all backgrounds and identities.

The University of the South stands firmly for the principle that its employees, students, and participants of university-sponsored programs and activities have a right to be free from discrimination based on race, color, sex, religion, national origin, age, disability, sexual orientation, gender identity, veteran status, pregnancy and childbirth, and genetic information. As required by Title VI of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973, the Americans with Disabilities Act of 1990 and the ADA Amendments Act of 2008, Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, and Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972, the University does not discriminate based on sex or other protected categories in the educational programs or activities which it operates. This nondiscrimination requirement extends to admission to and employment in those programs or activities. The University is committed to sustaining a community in which the dignity of every individual is respected. Key to this value are efforts to nurture an environment of civility and mutual respect and to foster a culture of reporting concerns so that the University can respond promptly and equitably whenever an incident occurs. All employees, students, and participants of university-sponsored programs and activities have the right to be free from harassment and retaliation.

Applicants should submit a cover letter, curriculum vitae, course evaluations, graduate transcript, a statement demonstrating a commitment to and experience supporting diversity, equity, and how the applicant's teaching, research, or service agenda contributes to the mission and goals of the TRHT cohort mentioned above. Applicants will be asked to supply the names and email addresses of three references, who will receive an auto-request to submit their confidential e-letters of recommendation.

Applicant materials should be submitted through the application portal at jobs.sewanee.edu. Employment eligibility is contingent upon successful prescreening. For full consideration, please submit materials by September 30, 2023. Additional information about the Politics Department and the Women and Gender Studies Program are available on their respective websites. If you have any questions about the position, please contact Dr. Rodelio Manacsa (romanacs@sewanee.edu).

Rank: Center for Environment, Community, & Equity (CECE) Postdoctoral Fellowship

The School of International Service (SIS) at American University (AU) invites applications for a full-time, one-year Center for Environment, Community, & Equity (CECE) Postdoctoral Fellowship. We especially encourage applications from individuals from sectors of the population historically underrepresented on the professorial faculties of U.S. colleges and universities. The position begins on October 1, 2023, with the possibility of renewal for a second year.

We welcome applicants who possess a broad and big-picture understanding of environmental challenges and the ability to engage with research and scholarship from multiple disciplines. Preference will be given to applicants with experience working on actionable research and who possess project management and grant-writing experience, strong intrapersonal skills, and knowledge around equity, community, and social justice issues.

The postdoctoral fellow should reside in the D.C. metropolitan area and be an active participant in SIS' vibrant intellectual community.

The successful candidate will work directly with Professor Dana Fisher, the Director of CECE, to expand and enhance the Center's reputation in D.C. and globally. Areas of work will be derived from CECE focus areas: 1) Climate and Sustainability; 2) Environment, Equity, and Justice; 3) Food, Agriculture, and Land; and 4) Water, Oceans, and Fisheries. Other fellowship expectations include:

- Working with Dr. Fisher and the CECE team to coordinate collaborative research projects in development by CECE affiliated faculty across American University,
- Contributing to the day-to-day activities at the Center, including coordinating environmental events, hosting guests, writing for the new CECE Clearinghouse, and providing other administrative support (25% of the time); and
- Providing support and insight to teams that are selected to be part of the Faculty Development Incubator program, which awards start-up funds to support the development of interdisciplinary research projects around the environment from across the AU campus.

Candidates should be enthusiastic about working in a multidisciplinary environment that includes both social and natural scientists. Candidates should also share a commitment to the university's Inclusive Excellence plan.

Applicants should hold a PhD or the highest equivalent degree in any discipline connected to environmental studies (social sciences, humanities, or natural sciences) by the start date. Annual salary: $65,000. Review of applications will begin in mid-August 2023 and will continue until the position is filled.

Applications must be submitted electronically via the Interfolio application system [<http://apply.interfolio.com/129450>]. Applications should include the following:

- Cover letter detailing the applicant's proposed research
- Curriculum vitae
- Sample publications
- Brief research statement including research agenda
- Statement describing past examples of your contributions to diversity and inclusion in your scholarship, the classroom and/or in other professional settings.
- The names and email addresses of three references (the Interfolio system will contact them for a confidential letter of recommendation) and whom the committee may contact.

Queries about the search may be sent to Professor Dana Fisher (drfisher@american.edu). Queries about the online application system may be sent to SIS faculty affairs coordinator Alissa Iwaniuk (aiwaniuk@american.edu) and help@interfolio.com.

Princeton University

Rank: Assistant Professor, Associate Professor (with tenure) or Professor, Ethics in Society

Princeton University invites applications for a faculty position in ethics in society based in the University Center for Human Values, to begin on or after July 1, 2024. Rank: open. The Center is an interdisciplinary community of scholars whose additional principal affiliations currently include history, philosophy, politics, psychology, public policy and international affairs, religion, and sociology. The Center seeks scholars of distinction and promise, especially those who research ethical dimensions of one or more specific social contexts, which may include (but are not limited to) particular domains of contemporary science and technology, such as artificial intelligence, data science, genomics, or climate science, and studies of disability, race, gender, or species. Scholars with research interests and training in philosophy, political theory, legal scholarship, religious ethics, or related areas, and those working on ethical issues in specific social contexts in other disciplines or from interdisciplinary approaches, are encouraged to apply. A joint appointment with another academic unit, such as an academic department, may be possible.

To better realize its scholarly mission and contribute to the University, the Center is committed to enhancing and valuing a diversity of perspectives and experiences among its faculty. The Center seeks to be an inclusive academic community and strongly encourages applications from individuals who identify as members of groups that are underrepresented in their respective discipline. Princeton University is especially interested in qualified candidates who can contribute, through their research, teaching, and/or service, to the diversity and excellence of our academic community.

An appointment at the level of full or associate professor will be tenured; an appointment at the level of assistant professor will be tenure track. A Ph.D. or equivalent by September 1, 2024, is strongly preferred, but not required. Candidates for the Ph.D. who have not completed all the requirements by September 1, 2024, will be appointed at the rank of Instructor for one year (renewable), with promotion to Assistant Professor dependent on the timely completion of the Ph.D.

A complete application will contain the following materials:

- 1) a letter of application
- 2) a curriculum vitae
- 3) a sample of writing in the candidate's field of specialization
- 4) the names and contact details of three persons willing to serve as references.

Please direct all materials to: <https://www.princeton.edu/acad-positions/position/31621>.

Applications that are complete by October 9, 2023, will be assured of the most careful consideration.

Princeton University

Rank: Visiting Research Scholar, Program in Latin American Studies

Program in Latin American Studies (PLAS) Visiting Fellowship, 2024-2025

Requisition Number: D-24-LAS-00002

The Program in Latin American Studies (PLAS) is seeking top scholars in their fields who have teaching experience and will provide Princeton students with a unique opportunity to study topics that are not regularly offered at the University. Applications will be accepted from outstanding scholars in the humanities and social sciences, as well as from established writers, artists, filmmakers, or architects working on projects relating to Latin America who are stellar teachers.

Visiting Research Scholars will be expected to teach one undergraduate course per semester, conditional upon sufficient enrollments and approval of the Dean of the Faculty, and to participate in PLAS-related events on campus.

Appointments are expected to be for one or two semesters, during the 2024-2025 academic year (fall semester: September 1, 2024 - January 16, 2025; spring semester: January 16, 2025 - June 1, 2025). A competitive salary commensurate with experience and excellent benefits will be offered. The Office of the Dean of the Faculty determines salary on the basis of current academic rank and award duration; appointment rank at Princeton is determined on the basis of experience and current institutional affiliation.

How to Apply:

For full consideration, all the materials listed must be received by October 15, 2023, 11:59 p.m. EST. All candidates must submit materials (in English) and apply online at <https://www.princeton.edu/acad-positions/position/31283>.

- 1) Cover letter indicating the applicant's proposed length of stay (1-2 semesters), title of the proposed research project, and teaching interests;
- 2) Curriculum vitae;
- 3) One undergraduate seminar proposal or syllabus for each proposed semester of the fellowship, including a statement of how the course(s) would enhance undergraduate education at Princeton;
- 4) A statement describing the research project and its scholarly contribution (2,000 – 3,000 words);
- 5) The names and contact information of two referees (the Program will contact them, if needed, later).

Advanced degree preferred.

Princeton University is an Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action Employer, and all qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to age, race, color, religion, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity or expression, national origin, disability status, protected veteran status, or any other characteristic protected by law.

Furman University

Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Open, Open

The Department of Politics and International Affairs at Furman University invites applications for a tenure-track appointment at the Assistant, Associate, or Full professorial rank in American politics, specializing in racial and ethnic politics, to begin August 1, 2024. The candidate will teach five courses per year, including introductory and upper-level courses in American politics. The candidate must demonstrate the potential for superb teaching and excellence in scholarship. The person hired must possess a Ph.D. in Political Science by August 1, 2024.

Applicants should submit the following documents as a single PDF in the order listed: a letter of interest, C.V., diversity statement, and complete contact information for three references. The diversity statement should describe how the candidate's teaching, scholarship, mentoring and/or service might contribute to a liberal arts college community that includes a commitment to diversity as one of its core values.

Furman University is committed to advancing diversity, equity, and inclusion in all facets of university life and strives to create an anti-racist community through excellence in teaching, mentorship, and programming. Numerous initiatives and programs are underway or planned to promote these ideals, including historical projects, dialogue initiatives, the Center for Inclusive Communities, and a recently approved major in Africana Studies.

The successful candidate will have the ability to work with historically underrepresented students, including students of color, and be committed to assisting the university in its continuing efforts to become a model of inclusive excellence.

The Politics and International Affairs Department is a large department with specialists in all major political science fields. The Department is committed to fostering a professional community where every member is treated with dignity. All are welcome to participate in the department's life and the respectful exploration of ideas. The candidate should show interest in and aptitude for contributing to this endeavor.

The Furman student experience is supported by a rich network of centers and institutes that includes The Riley Institute, The David E. Shi Center for Sustainability, The Hill Institute for Innovation and Entrepreneurship, The Institute for the Advancement of Community Health, The Herring Center for Continuing, Graduate, and Professional Education, The Rinker Center for Study Away and International Education, The Cothran Center for Vocational Exploration, The Shucker Center for Leadership Development, The Malone Center for Career Engagement, The Center for Inclusive Communities, the Furman Humanities Center, and our newest addition, the Tocqueville Center for the Study of Democracy and Society.

Furman is located in Greenville, South Carolina, one of the fastest-growing cities in the Southeast, and is ranked among "America's Ten Best" by Forbes Magazine. The thriving downtown features excellent restaurants, in-town parks, shops, museums, galleries, music venues, and theaters. Greenville also enjoys an impressive network of nonprofits, small businesses, and international corporations. The city also has excellent public and private schools and a vibrant international community. A 20-mile bike and running trail connects the university to Greenville and to Travelers Rest, which was named "one of America's coolest small towns." The surrounding area abounds with outdoor recreational activities and has some of the country's most beautiful lakes, rivers, and mountains. Greenville is 2½ hours from Atlanta, 1½ hours from Charlotte, and only one hour from Asheville, North Carolina. Greenville is within easy reach of the Blue Ridge Mountains and Atlantic Beaches. The newly renovated Greenville-Spartanburg Airport, located just 25 minutes from downtown, runs daily flights to major cities and airline hubs. It is an ideal place to live and work.

We will begin reviewing applications on October 23, 2023, and continue until the position is filled.

Trinity College

Rank: Director, Greenberg Center for the Study of Religion in Public Life

Trinity College seeks the next Director of the Leonard E. Greenberg Center for the Study of Religion in Public Life, commencing July 2024. Non-sectarian and non-partisan, the Greenberg Center was established at Trinity College in 1996 to advance knowledge and understanding of the varied roles that religious movements, institutions, and ideas play in the contemporary world. The Center sponsors public lectures, organizes conferences and workshops, contributes to the liberal arts curriculum, and supports the publication and dissemination of materials for both academic and general audiences. Its initiatives are designed to foster discussion of religion in public life both within the campus community and among various external publics.

We seek a mid-career or advanced candidate with a Ph.D. and a record of success in program administration, teaching, and scholarship. The Director serves as an 9-month administrative faculty member with joint appointments in Trinity's Public Policy & Law Program and Religious Studies Department. The Director's faculty title will be commensurate with experience.

The Director will shape the Center's goals and activities; enhance the Center's profile on and off campus; and evaluate the Center's impact. The position co-supervises a Program and Communications Assistant and convenes a Center advisory board. As a faculty member, the Director teaches three courses per academic year during the Fall and Spring semesters, cross-listed in Religious Studies and Public Policy & Law. The successful candidate will manage an annual budget of over $65,000, including generous research funds.

We encourage applicants who share our commitment to diversity and inclusion and seek applications from historically underrepresented candidates. Trinity College seeks a faculty that reflects the changing demographics of our student body. Our student body is diverse, representing 41 states and 70 countries, with 21 percent U.S. students of color and 50 percent who identify as women. More than 90 percent of students live on campus. Trinity is a highly selective, independent, nonsectarian liberal arts institution located in the capital city of Hartford, Conn. With more than 2,100 full-time undergraduate students and 91 graduate students, the college maintains a rigorous academic profile complemented by a vibrant and diverse co-curricular program. We consider our location in a culturally and socioeconomically diverse capital city to be among Trinity's most distinctive assets, and we cultivate strong connections with our surrounding neighbors and with institutions and organizations throughout Hartford and the region. As a preeminent liberal arts college in an urban setting, Trinity College prepares students to be bold, independent thinkers who lead transformative lives.

Evidence of demonstrable success in program administration, teaching, and scholarship is required. A Ph.D. in Religious Studies, Public Policy, or a related field should be in hand by July 2024.

Competitive salary and benefits, plus start-up expense fund.

To ensure full consideration please submit a cover letter (describing research; teaching; and commitment to advancing diversity, equity, and inclusion), CV, sample of scholarly writing, course syllabi and evaluations (if available), and the names of three referees who can provide letters of reference to by October 2, 2023. Please contact Administrative Assistant Christine.McMorris@trincoll.edu with questions.

The Harvard Academy for International and Area Studies
Academy Scholars Program, 2024-2025

The Academy Scholars Program of The Harvard Academy for International and Area Studies identifies and supports outstanding scholars at the start of their academic careers whose work combines excellence in a social science discipline with a command of the language and knowledge or expertise of countries or regions outside of the United States or Canada. Their scholarship should span traditional disciplinary divisions and elucidate comparative, transnational, or domestic issues, past or present.

The Academy Scholars are a select community of individuals with resourcefulness, initiative, and originality whose work shows promise as a foundation for careers in research universities or international institutions.

Academy Scholars are appointed for a two-year, in-residence, postdoctoral fellowship at The Harvard Academy for International and Area Studies, Harvard University, Cambridge, MA, USA. They receive substantial financial and research assistance which permits them to undertake robust research projects and skills development in their chosen fields and areas. They meet at dinners, seminars, and informal meetings in order to pursue innovative interdisciplinary approaches to their work. They are mentored by the Harvard Academy Senior Scholars, a cohort of faculty members who act as a selection committee, participate in Harvard Academy events, and are committed to supporting the Academy Scholars as they work to achieve their potential.

These awards are open to recipients of PhD or comparable doctoral degrees (within two years of the August 1, 2024, start date) and advanced doctoral candidates in the social sciences. Scholars nearing dissertation completion must be able to submit degree conferral documentation issued by their university registrar's office by June 30, 2024, for an August 1, 2024, start date. Individuals who hold or have completed another Harvard postdoctoral fellowship are not eligible to apply.

The Harvard Academy is dedicated to building an inclusive community of scholars with an array of experiences, perspectives, and methods and welcomes a diverse pool of applicants.

Each year, five or six Academy Scholars are named for two-year appointments with an annual stipend of $75,000, with the two years to be completed within a three-year window. Year 1 of the fellowship must be taken up no later than the fall immediately following the postdoctoral fellowship offer. Delays or deferrals in the start of Year 1 are not permitted. Between Years 1 and 2, Academy Scholars may apply for a one-time leave (up to 12 months), either to accept or to continue with a tenure-track teaching appointment but for no other reason. Academy Scholars may not accept other sources of funding, awards, or obligations during their appointment.

All application materials must be submitted by the deadline of September 22, 2023. We do not accept late applications.

The completed application will include:

Curriculum vitae (CV); including list of publications

Research proposal (2000 words maximum); including intellectual objectives and planned methodological and disciplinary work

One scholarly writing sample (e.g., PhD dissertation chapter or single-authored peer-reviewed academic journal article; fifty pages maximum; in English)

A copy of your PhD program transcript

Three letters of recommendation (uploaded directly and confidentially by the recommender through the online application)

All parts of the application, including the three letters of recommendation, are submitted online as PDF documents. Access the online application through the homepage of The Harvard Academy's website: <https://academy.wcfia.harvard.edu>.

All materials must be received by September 22, 2023. The selection process begins immediately thereafter. Applicants whose materials are incomplete are at a disadvantage when considered by the Selection Committee. Announcement of the awards will be made in December 2023.

Stanford University

Rank: IDEAL Provostial Fellows for Studies in Race and Ethnicity

Stanford University, in conjunction with its IDEAL initiative, is pleased to announce that it is seeking to appoint four to five early career fellows engaged in the study of race and ethnicity. The purpose of this program is to support the work of early-career researchers, who will lead the next generation of scholarship in race and ethnicity and whose work will point the way forward for reshaping race relations in America. Fellowships may be in any of the seven schools in the University (Business, Doerr School of Sustainability, Education, Engineering, Humanities & Sciences, Law, Medicine).

Applicants will be asked to identify the school or department that aligns with the field of their Ph.D. The selected fellows will be assigned a faculty mentor from their home department or school and will have the opportunity to be involved with the other early career fellows and Stanford faculty in a variety of activities. Informally, they will be invited to lunches and dinners to meet with other Stanford faculty who share their interests. They also will be invited to engage with the intellectual programming offered by the African and African-American Studies program, the Center for Comparative Studies in Race and Ethnicity and the Martin Luther King Research and Education Institute.

The early career fellows will have an opportunity each year to teach one course that will be cross-listed in the curricula of the Center for Comparative Studies in Race and Ethnicity and/or the African and African American Studies program. This course may be taught by the fellow or the fellow may team-teach a course with another member of the Stanford faculty. The fellows also will be involved in the organization of a major conference that brings to Stanford scholars who are at the forefront of scholarship in the study of race and ethnicity.

Criteria: Scholars interested in any field of study are accepted. Early career fellows should have received their terminal degree (PhD, JD, MFA, EdD, DSW, etc.) prior to the start of the fellowship. Selection criteria include the originality and quality of the research, as well as demonstrated potential for intellectual achievement. The term of these fellowships is three years, with a start date of September 1, 2024. To be eligible for an early career fellowship, a candidate must have received their terminal degree no earlier than September 1, 2021.

Applicants for early career fellowships should submit their applications electronically and include a cover letter (detailing the candidate's interest in the position), curriculum vitae, a statement of research interests, a statement of teaching interests, samples of written work, and three letters of recommendation (provide contact information for each and a system generated request will be delivered to each referee). In these materials, please include how your interests would be advanced by a fellowship, needs for laboratory access or special equipment, etc.

The deadline for receiving applications for early career fellowships is November 1, 2023. No application will be accepted after the deadline. Applications will not be accepted by email.

Inquiries about this program can be directed to facultydevelopment@stanford.edu. Please include "IDEAL Provostial Fellows" in the subject line.

Additional details about the fellowship program can be found at <https://facultydevelopment.stanford.edu/ideal-provostial-fellows/about-program>.

More information about Stanford's IDEAL initiative is available at <https://ideal.stanford.edu/>.

Stanford is an equal employment opportunity and affirmative action employer. All qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to race, color, religion, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, national origin, disability, protected veteran status, or any other characteristic protected by law. Stanford welcomes applications from all who would bring additional dimensions to the University's research, teaching and clinical missions. Consistent with its obligations under the law, the University will provide reasonable accommodation to any employee with a disability who requires accommodation to perform the essential functions of his or her job.

University of Oregon

Rank: Assistant Professor of Political Science

Required Application Materials:

Candidates are asked to apply online at <https://careers.uoregon.edu/en-us/job/531910/assistant-professor-in-political-science> by submitting the following materials by:

- application letter describing research and teaching interests, experience, and a statement concerning contributions that promote diversity, equity, and inclusion.
- curriculum vitae
- three letters of recommendation
- a writing sample

Position Announcement:

The University of Oregon's Department of Political Science invites applications for a tenure-track position of Assistant Professor in Political Science, to begin in fall of 2024. We seek candidates specializing in U.S. Racial and Ethnic Politics, including Latinx Politics to support the growing Latinx Studies program at the UO. Open to research on any US political issue and/or institution as well as qualitative and quantitative methodologies. Interest in teaching intro level classes in political science, and race and ethnics politics is a plus.

Competitive applicants will be capable of outstanding research and teaching at the graduate and undergraduate levels.

Description of Department/Programs:

Our faculty employ diverse theoretical and methodological approaches but share the pursuit of meaningful answers to big questions with real-world implications. The department features a strong pole of research and teaching about American politics, with particular strengths in institutions, American political development, and the politics of race, immigration, gender and sexuality. We particularly welcome applications from scholars who are from populations historically underrepresented in the academy, and/or who have experience working with students from diverse backgrounds.

University/Community Description:

The University of Oregon is one of only two Pacific Northwest members of the Association of American Universities and holds the distinction of a "very high research activity" ranking in the Carnegie Classification of Institutions of Higher Education. - academic transcripts,
- three letters of recommendation,
- a writing sample,

Position Announcement:

The University of Oregon's Department of Political Science invites applications for a tenure-track position for an Assistant Professor in Political Science with a focus on Global Environmental Politics, to begin in fall 2024.

Competitive applicants will be capable of outstanding research and teaching at the graduate and undergraduate levels.

Description of Department and related Programs:

Our department is seeking an international relations scholar working on any (or multiple) aspects of global environmental politics, including the politics of climate change, biodiversity loss, marine and terrestrial ecosystem protection, resources use, various forms of pollution, vulnerable populations and other environmental challenges. We are open to scholars whose scholarship on global environmental politics focuses on international cooperation and conflict, transnational networks, public-private partnerships, non-governmental organizations, the science/politics nexus, and related approaches. We are particularly interested in faculty who approach these issues with a recognition of, and an openness to, the value of interdisciplinary perspectives and interdisciplinary research on these topics.

We also seek a scholar who can integrate into, and work well, with faculty in Political Science and the University of Oregon's Environmental Studies Program, as well as faculty involved in the UO's recently-launched Environment Initiative. Our existing faculty use diverse theoretical and methodological approaches in pursuit of meaningful answers to big real-world policy problems. We want to build on existing faculty commitments to innovative research and teaching about international relations, environmental politics, and the intersection of those realms with other social science, natural science, and humanities disciplines. The successful applicant will join our faculty who are already doing cutting edge research on international environmental politics and comparative environmental politics. An existing network of interdisciplinary scholarship exists between faculty in Political Science and Environmental Studies and we expect this to expand rapidly as the recently-launched Environment Initiative makes new resources available for teaching and research that can build a national and internationally-recognized research team dedicated to understanding and resolving the wide range of global environmental problems. The successful candidate could offer courses in international relations and courses related to our department's "Sustainability, Development, and Social Action" and "Global Engagement" career paths, the "Globalization, Environment, and Policy Concentration" (within the UO's General Social Science major), and to help create a "Politics of Environmental Protection" concentration within the UO's Environment Initiative.

University/Community Description:

The University of Oregon has a long tradition of solution-oriented, interdisciplinary research that integrates scholarship from a wide range of disciplines to understand and address global environmental issues.

The University of Oregon's new university-wide Environment Initiative seeks to build on and extend our existing faculty and institutional strengths by bringing in new faculty who will have the interests and skills to do cutting edge disciplinary and interdisciplinary research that engages directly and self-consciously with government policymakers, stakeholder communities (including tribes and underrepresented communities), corporate actors, and non-governmental organizations. As one example of efforts to ensure that scholarship is well-informed by practitioners and that practitioners are aware of solution-oriented scholarship, the University's Tribal Climate Change Project was launched in 2009 and now has well-established links with the Affiliated Tribes of Northwest Indians, the Bureau of Indian Affairs, the Northwest Climate Adaptation Science Center, the Oregon Climate Change Research Institute, and the USDA Forest Service Pacific Northwest Research Station.

The University of Oregon has numerous units on campus with which new faculty can develop and conduct their research and teaching, including the Environmental Studies Program; the Geography, Sociology, and Economics Departments; the School of Global Studies and Languages; the Data Science program; the Center for Global Health; and the Center for Asian Pacific Studies.

The University of Oregon is one of only two Pacific Northwest members of the Association of American Universities and holds the distinction of a "very high research activity" ranking in the Carnegie Classification of Institutions of Higher Education. Princeton University

Rank: Laurance S. Rockefeller Visiting Fellow

The University Center for Human Values invites applications for Laurance S. Rockefeller Visiting Faculty Fellowships for academic year 2024-25. Fellows devote an academic year in residence to research and writing about topics involving human values in public and private life. This full-time visiting program is open to scholars in all disciplines across the humanities and social sciences. For 2024-25, the Center's designated research theme is Criminal Justice, but scholars need not work on Criminal Justice to apply. We anticipate that roughly half of the fellowships awarded for 2024-25 will fall within the research theme, and welcome applications for research projects in any area of human values, broadly defined. We welcome applications from scholars from a variety of disciplines for both our theme and non-theme fellowships.

For those proposing research on the theme of Criminal Justice, we are especially interested in research which may critically analyze underlying values in the philosophy and practice of criminal justice; evaluate institutional formations and policy proposals in light of those values; and explore the roles played by race, ethnicity, gender, and other factors in the differential ways that criminal justice is conceived and carried out in specific contexts.

For thematically relevant applications, please state this explicitly and describe the relevance of the research to the theme. In assessing each application, we look for the potential of applicants to contribute to and benefit from a research community that draws together scholars who work in and across different disciplines.

Fellows are expected to reside in or around Princeton or demonstrate to the program's satisfaction the ability to be on campus daily and on short notice. Fellows are expected to pursue their own research and to be active contributors to the intellectual life of UCHV. This includes participating in a weekly seminar to discuss work in progress. Candidates must have a doctorate or equivalent professional degree and a strong record of research publications appropriate to their career stage. Typically, Fellows hold faculty positions at other universities or colleges; in exceptional cases we consider applications from independent scholars when there is a high level of scholarly achievement. This is not a postdoctoral fellowship program and we do not generally consider candidates who will have held the Ph.D. for less than two years at the time of appointment.

The fellowship typically extends from September 1 to June 1. Fellows receive a stipend paid in nine equal installments. Ordinarily, home institutions provide a portion of their salaries in addition to benefits, although this is not a requirement. Independent scholars are eligible to apply.

Main considerations are the following:

*The significance of the proposed research and its relevance to the purposes of the University Center for Human Values

*The quality of a candidate's previous research and the contribution the candidate is likely to make in the future

*The likelihood that the research would benefit from being conducted at UCHV

HOW TO APPLY

Candidates must submit an online application at <https://www.princeton.edu/acad-positions/position/30681>.

Required materials:

1. A CV
2. A scholarly paper (no more than 12,000 words) written in the past three years
3. A statement (no more than 1,500 words) describing the proposed project. Describe the project's relevance to the research theme where applicable
4. Contact information for three referees, including one who was not a graduate advisor (note, the priority deadline for letters of reference only is Thursday, October 26, 2023; all other applicant materials must be submitted by the earlier deadline stated below). Referees will be contacted directly Applicant materials must be submitted by: Thursday, October 19, 2023, 11:59 p.m. EST. Decisions expected by late March 2024.

University of Western Ontario

Rank: Tier 2 CRC in Sustainability and the Social

Canada Research Chair (CRC) Tier 2 in Sustainability and the Social

The Faculty of Social Science at The University of Western Ontario invites applications for a Tier 2 Canada Research Chair (CRC) in Sustainability and the Social. The successful candidate will be appointed at the rank of Assistant Professor, Probationary (tenure-track) or Associate Professor, Probationary (tenure-track or tenured) in any department in the Faculty of Social Science. (<https://www.ssc.uwo.ca/departments.html>) Candidates will have a PhD or equivalent, and postgraduate research experience in any area of specialization that examines sustainability from a social science perspective. Salary and rank will be commensurate with educational qualifications and experience. The anticipated starting date will be January 1, 2024 or as negotiated. The successful candidate will be expected to apply for a Tier 2 Canada Research Chair in the first available competition after their appointment.

About the Chair - The challenge to create sustainable futures and transitions in the face of rapidly changing, extreme and unpredictable weather patterns, human destruction of the natural environment, the loss of arable land, food insecurity, limited availability of clean water, the devastation of species and biospheres, is ultimately a political and social issue that requires a wholistic approach deeply engaged with social relations and cultural processes as they inform, frame, and transform the natural world. We seek a CRC in Sustainability and the Social who will lead research projects, enable dialogue, and engage students at the cutting edge of interdisciplinary thinking across the social and natural sciences about the central issues facing our planet.

The Chair will advance research at the intersection of the social and natural worlds that will benefit the University's broader initiatives towards increased knowledge sharing across disciplines, integrated learning and education, innovation, and public dialogue. The Chair's specialization may cover a range of areas including, but not limited to, sustainable development and climate transition, the climate crisis, decarbonisation, green finance and manufacturing, health and well-being, corporate environmental responsibility, political action, biodiversity depletion, geopolitical environmental risks, and equity and environment. The Chair will complement existing strengths within our Faculty ranging from big data to qualitative ethnographic analysis. The Chair will provide empirically based analysis through already present strengths across an expansive social science and science methodological terrain to open research frontiers, enhance wider public discussions and/or stimulate student experiential engagement. They might also bring interdisciplinarity to these specializations by catalyzing conversations and collaboration across the Faculties of Science, Engineering, Health Sciences, Arts and Humanities, Ivey School of Business, and more.

The University of Western Ontario, Faculty of Social Science, Social Science Centre Rm 9438 London, Ontario, Canada, N6A 5C2 t. 519.661.2111 ext 80449, www.ssc.uwo.ca

We seek a Chair whose research has the potential to be world-leading and who shows evidence of top-tier research excellence through knowledge production and mobilization. The candidate will be appointed within one or more of our Social Science departments, research centres, research institutes, and the Indigenous Studies interdisciplinary program. As appropriate, the successful candidate may also demonstrate a record of interdisciplinary collaborations nationally or internationally; show a record of early leadership through collaborative research, the establishment of networks, esteem, and connections in their field of work; or demonstrate a record of engagement of knowledge users outside academia such as with government non-governmental organizations, educators, and the general public.

In accordance with the CRC regulations set for Tier 2 Canada Research Chairs <https://www.chairs-chaires.gc.ca>, Tier 2 chairs are intended for exceptional emerging scholars (i.e. candidates must have less than 10 years of experience as an active researcher in their field at the time of nomination). Applicants who are more than 10 years from having earned their highest degree (and where career breaks exist, such as maternity, parental or extended sick leave, clinical training, etc.) may have their eligibility for a Tier 2 Chair assessed through the program's Tier 2 justification process; please contact Research Development at The University of Western Ontario at ResearchWesternCRC@uwo.ca for more information. Please consult the Canada Research Chair website for full information, including further details on eligibility criteria. http://www.chairs-chaires.gc.ca/programme/nomination-mise_en_candidature-eng.aspx

As chairholder, the candidate must have the potential to attract, develop and retain excellent students and trainees, and be proposing an original, innovative research program of high quality fundable through Canada's Social Science and Humanities Research Council (SSHRC) <https://www.sshrc-crsh.gc.ca/home-accueil-eng.aspx> .

About Western www.uwo.ca - Western University is located on the traditional lands of the Anishinaabek, Haudenosaunee, Lunaapéewak and Chonnonton peoples, on lands connected with the London Township and Sombra Treaties of 1796 and the Dish with One Spoon Covenant Wampum. This land continues to be home to diverse Indigenous Peoples (First Nations, Métis, and Inuit) whom we recognize as contemporary stewards of the land and vital contributors of our society.

With annual research funding exceeding $220 million, and an international reputation for success, Western ranks as one of Canada's top research-intensive universities. Our research excellence expands knowledge and drives discovery with real-world application. Western also provides an exceptional employment experience, offering competitive salaries, a wide range of employment opportunities and one of Canada's most beautiful campuses.

Western University recognizes that our commitment to equity, diversity and inclusion is central to the University's mandate as a research intensive institution of higher learning and a community leader. Western understands that our pursuit of research excellence and our commitment to equity, diversity and inclusion are mutually supporting. As such, Western is committed to achieving and maintaining an equitable representation amongst our Canada Research Chair holders, as well as within Western's broader research enterprise.

The University of Western Ontario recognizes the potential impact that career interruptions can have on a candidate's record of research achievement. Potential candidates are encouraged to explain within their application the impact that career interruptions have had on their record, and to submit a full career or extended CV to a chairholder position in cases where they have had career interruptions.

The University of Western Ontario's Recruitment and Retention Office is available to assist in the transition of successful applicants and their families.

This position includes a comprehensive benefits package. Further details can be accessed at: https://www.uwo.ca/hr/benefits/your_benefits/faculty.html

About The Faculty of Social Science - Western is home to one of the largest and most diverse Social Science Faculties in Canada. We have eight core Departments, Anthropology, Economics, Geography, History, the DAN Department of Management & Organizational Studies, Political Science, Psychology and Sociology, as well as co-hosting the Indigenous Studies interdisciplinary program and the Department of Gender, Sexuality, and Women's Studies. Research excellence in each of these departments is supplemented by multiple interdisciplinary Research Centres, Institutes and Groups https://www.ssc.uwo.ca/research/research_centres_and_groups/index.html.

Application must include the following:

- Application for Full-Time Faculty Position form, which can be found here: <https://www.uwo.ca/facultyrelations/pdf/full-time-application-form.pdf> ;
- Cover Letter;
- Curriculum Vitae;
- Research Statement;
- Statement on Equity, Diversity and Inclusion in relation to your research, teaching and/or service;

- Names, addresses, and email addresses for three referees (we do not solicit letters until the interview stage).

Please combine all components, ordered as above, in a single PDF file named YOURLASTNAME_UWO_FSS_CRC_T2 and email the file to:

Chair, Search Committee, Tier 2 CRC in Sustainability and the Social c/o Karen Foullong, Faculty Coordinator
Faculty of Social Science Western University Email: kfoullon@uwo.ca

Consideration of applications will commence August 31, 2023.

Positions are subject to budget approval. Applicants should have fluent written and oral communication skills in English.

The University invites applications from all qualified individuals. Western is committed to employment equity and diversity in the workplace and welcomes applications from women, members of racialized groups, Indigenous peoples, persons with disabilities, persons of any sexual orientation, and persons of any gender identity or gender expression. In accordance with Canadian immigration requirements, priority will be given to Canadian citizens and permanent residents.

Accommodations are available for applicants with disabilities throughout the recruitment process. If you require accommodations for interviews or other meetings, please contact Karen Foullong kfoullon@uwo.ca.

Bocconi University

Rank: Assistant Professor of Political Science

Bocconi University, Department of Social and Political Sciences
Comparative Politics, Assistant Professor

The Department of Social and Political Sciences at Bocconi University is inviting applications for a tenure-track Assistant Professor position in Political Science, specifically within the subfield of comparative politics (with an emphasis on either mass behavior, political economy, or political institutions). The appointment begins on September 1, 2024.

To complement the existing strengths and profile of the department, candidates engaged in research employing rigorous quantitative analysis are highly preferred. Candidates should show evidence of a promising research agenda, and should be doing work that engages with multiple fields of study in the department—political science, applied economics, public administration and health, sociology and demography, and economic history. Candidates should also be able to teach courses in comparative politics at the undergraduate and graduate levels, specifically in the university's undergraduate program in International Politics and Government, its master's program in Politics and Policy Analysis, and its PhD program in Social and Political Sciences.

Bocconi University is a leading European research and teaching institution in economics, social sciences, management and related disciplines. In the 2022 QS World University Ranking of Social Sciences and Management programs, Bocconi ranked 4th in Europe and 10th worldwide. The Department of Social and Political Sciences provides an ideal interdisciplinary research environment. It comprises approximately 60 tenured or tenure-track faculty members who share an interest in policy-relevant research, addressing questions on numerous world challenges, such as inequality, government responsiveness and accountability, corruption and organized crime, environmental sustainability, global health, and international cooperation. Bocconi is located in Italy's most vibrant center, Milan, a historic, cosmopolitan and international city in a metropolitan area of 3 million that is well connected to the rest of Europe and the world. Knowledge of Italian is not required. Terms of employment are competitive.

Applications should be received by October 1, 2023. Applicants must submit (1) a current curriculum vitae, (2) a job market paper (and up to four other published papers), (3) a cover letter, and (4) teaching and research statements via the on-line form using PDF attachments at www.unibocconi.eu/jobmarket. Additionally, at least three academic letters of reference must also be submitted by referees via www.unibocconi.eu/jobmarket. Applicants must successfully defend their PhD thesis by no later than October 1, 2023 to receive a final offer of employment.

University of Notre Dame

Rank: Faculty Fellowship

The Notre Dame Institute for Advanced Study (NDIAS) promotes issue-engaged, inclusive, and interdisciplinary study of questions that affect our ability to lead valuable, meaningful lives. Each year, the NDIAS convenes a diverse group of 8-10 Faculty Fellows to conduct research on projects related to its yearly research theme.

During the 2024-2025 academic year, the Notre Dame Institute for Advanced Study is sponsoring residential research projects that investigate The Good Life.

The Good Life fellowship program will bring together ethicists, humanities faculty, scientists, social scientists, policy scholars, and artists with projects that advance our understanding of human flourishing. We are particularly interested in projects that contribute to ethical research and debates surrounding flourishing, including foundational topics in philosophy and psychology but also applied questions across many different disciplines. We seek scholars who will deepen our understanding, teach us novel methods, and translate the institute's discussions into interdisciplinary and public debates about the good life.

For a list of potential research topics related to the theme, please see ndias.nd.edu/fellowships/faculty.

Faculty Fellows typically have a faculty appointment at their home institution, but the Fellowships are also open to independent researchers, public practitioners, postdoctoral scholars, those who have recently received their Ph.D. (or equivalent terminal) degree, those who are pursuing the creative arts, and faculty from Notre Dame. Scholars from outside the U.S. are welcome to apply—there are no citizenship requirements for these fellowships. Current graduate students are eligible to apply only if they will receive their terminal degree by August 1, 2024.

Faculty Fellows receive half their base salary per academic year (up to $75,000), a housing subsidy (for those who currently reside outside of the South Bend area), a research allowance of $500 per semester, and a private office at the NDIAS. Fellows' home institutions provide the remainder of their salaries as well as all benefits, including health insurance.

Postdocs are welcome to apply and receive a stipend of up to $60,000 paid directly to them (rather than to a home institution). Postdocs are also provided health insurance benefits.

All NDIAS Fellows are expected to reside in the South Bend area and to remain in residence at the University of Notre Dame during the period of their fellowship (except for vacation periods, holidays, and University breaks). Preference is given to those who can join the NDIAS for the entire academic year (August - May), but fellowships for shorter periods of time may be possible.

Applications must be submitted through Interfolio and should include the following:

- 1) Cover letter
- 2) Curriculum vitae (no more than four pages, single-spaced)
- 3) Proposal abstract (no more than 400 words)
- 4) Fellowship research proposal (no more than six pages double-spaced; research proposals may include a works-cited or bibliography page, which does not count toward the 6-page limit). In the research proposal, applicants should provide an explanation of the project they intend to pursue at the NDIAS, including:
 - How the proposed research aligns with the research theme and mission of the Institute (see ndias.nd.edu/about);
 - Preliminary objectives for the research to be conducted (i.e., whether the research might result in a book, journal article, art work, etc.);
 - The proposed work plan (including what research or work has already been accomplished, what will be done during the fellowship period, the methodology to be employed, and the organization of the scholarly project, book, or other work).
- 5) Public-engagement proposal (no more than two pages, double sided). In the public-engagement proposal, applicants should explain how they plan to engage a public audience with their proposed research project (e.g., through a newspaper op-ed, public discussion, podcast episode, etc.).

6) Two Letters of Reference. The letters should address the strength of the applicant's proposed research project, its fit with the 2024-2025 theme of The Good Life, and the applicant's collaborative potential and collegiality.

7) (Optional) Up to two pages of non-text materials supporting the research proposal.

Finalists will be asked to be available for a brief Zoom conversation with committee members during the final stage of the selection process.

All 2024-2025 NDIAS Faculty Fellowship applications, including letters of reference and supporting documentation, must be received by 11:59 p.m. (ET) on Monday, October 2, 2023.

For more information, please visit ndias.nd.edu/fellowships/faculty.

Yale University

Rank: Lecturer, Ethics, Politics, and Economics

The Program on Ethics, Politics, and Economics sponsors interdisciplinary teaching and research in the Social Sciences and Humanities at Yale. It is designed to foster informed debate about public policy in the light of disciplined reflection on the fundamentals of human association. The Program was created in the belief that, for all the value of specialized fields and subdisciplines, these should not displace attempts to integrate empirical, analytical, and normative concerns that range over different disciplines in the modern university. The undergraduate major in Ethics, Politics, and Economics joins the analytic rigor of the social sciences and the enduring normative questions of philosophy to promote an integrative and critical understanding of the institutions, practices, and policies that shape the contemporary world.

EP&E is now offering a single year lecturer position. We welcome applications from PhDs from political science, economics, philosophy, and business with excellent teaching evaluations, and experience teaching courses that integrate Ethics with either Political Science, Economics, or both disciplines. We encourage PhDs with an interest in teaching the Classics of Ethics, Politics & Economics to apply for this position.

In addition to teaching four courses per year, lecturers are expected to be available to meet undergraduate students of the EP&E major, and assist with advising majors on their senior essays.

The position is for one year, with the possibility of extending the contract conditional upon performance and available resources. Starting salary is $70,000 with Yale health benefits. Salary is negotiable depending on qualifications and teaching experience. In addition to salary, instructor will receive a $1,500 research account. Starting date is August 1, 2023 or negotiable.

Applicants should have completed PhD (or equivalent degree) requirements by August 2023.

Applications should include the following:

- A cover letter indicating your interest in the position
- CV
- Job Market Paper or at least one scholarly writing sample (in English)
- PhD program transcript
- A preliminary syllabus for an interdisciplinary undergraduate course that integrates Ethics with either Political Science, Economics, or both disciplines.

- Teaching evaluations
- Three letters of recommendation

Please submit application materials electronically here: <http://apply.interfolio.com/123777>. The review process will begin on May 14, 2023. We will continue to accept applications until the position has been filled. Please direct inquiries to Ana De La O, Director of Ethics, Politics, and Economics, ana.delao@yale.edu

OTHER

Vanderbilt University

Rank: Assistant Professor in Political Economy

Subfield(s): Political Theory, Methodology, Other

The Department of Political Science at Vanderbilt University invites applications from outstanding political scientists who employ the tools of economic analysis to study political institutions and/or behavior for a tenure-track appointment as Assistant Professor, with an appointment in the Department of Political Science, and a potential joint appointment in the Department of Economics. Both departments are committed to building an intellectually vibrant, culturally inclusive, and academically diverse community of exceptional faculty. We will give priority to important research that builds synergies within and between the political science and economics departments.

Successful candidates will be able to contribute to graduate training in formal political theory, as well as contributing to substantive literatures in political science and economics; and successful candidates will also be expected to contribute to curriculum development in both departments, including servicing the newly-developed undergraduate minor in Political Economy. We are especially interested in receiving applications from scholars who study domestic politics and political institutions in well-developed democratic systems of governance. The appointment will begin Fall 2024. Salary and benefits are highly competitive.

The Committee will begin reviewing files as early as September 20, 2023. To ensure full consideration, applicants should submit complete applications by September 27, 2023, but we welcome earlier applications, and we may schedule formal interviews at any time. We will accept applications until we fill the position. Among the qualifications required for hire is the Ph.D. in hand or expected by August 1, 2024.

Interested applicants should submit a cover letter, curriculum vitae, a research statement, a teaching statement, a writing sample, teaching evaluations (if applicable), and three letters of reference electronically at: <http://apply.interfolio.com/130877>. Candidates may discuss equity, diversity, and inclusion in their research and teaching statements, as applicable.

Hoover Institution, Stanford UniversityRank: W. Glenn Campbell and Rita Ricardo-Campbell National Fellow

W. Glenn Campbell and Rita Ricardo-Campbell National Fellows

The Hoover Institution Glenn Campbell and Rita Ricardo-Campbell National Fellows Program allows outstanding scholars from colleges, universities, and institutions around the world to be freed from academic and professional responsibilities to devote one year to unrestricted, creative research and publication. National Fellows Program fellowships provide scholars the opportunity to complete an original significant research project with the expectation of generating a publishable manuscript while in residence at the Hoover Institution at Stanford University, Stanford, California.

Two unique resources frame the Hoover Institution National Fellows program:

- The Hoover Library and Archives affords Fellows access to the richest private archive collections in the United States. With nearly one million volumes and more than six thousand archival collections from 171 countries, the Hoover Library and Archives is a national and international center for primary-source documentation and research on problems of political, economic, and social change.
- National Fellows are able to draw on the experience of outstanding resident scholars at the Hoover Institution and Stanford University. Resident fellows and university faculty are available to discuss research topics, as well as provide insight into policy issues and strategic challenges.

Multiple National Fellows Program fellowships are awarded annually. Participation in the program begins September 1 and ends August 31 of the following year. National Fellows are encouraged to engage in the intellectual life of the Hoover Institution and are expected to make at least one presentation on their research before an appropriate group of scholars during the year in residence.

ADMINISTRATION

The selection committee is made up of Hoover Senior Fellows and distinguished scholars from Stanford University. The committee selects program participants and makes recommendations to the Director of the Hoover Institution regarding each year's participants.

APPLICATION

Application to the program requires the online submission of:

- Cover letter
- Curriculum vitae
- Three (3) to five (5) page research proposal
- Three (3) to five (5) confidential letters of recommendation from leading scholars

Qualified candidates should hold a Ph.D. degree or its equivalent, have an established publication record, and hold promise as a productive scholar. Candidates are generally five (5) to ten (10) years beyond the Ph.D. degree. They are expected to resume pre-existing full-time appointments at highly regarded institutions or universities upon completion of the National Fellows program. Hoover National Fellows receive financial support solely on the merits of their proposed research and scholarly record, irrespective of pre-existing support.

All materials must be submitted electronically by November 17, 2023, at <https://applynationalfellows.hoover.org/>

Stanford University

Rank: Open Rank Position in Global Governance for Sustainability, Stanford Doerr School for Sustainability

Stanford University invites applications for a tenure track Assistant, Associate, or Full Professor in Global Governance for Sustainability. The scope of the search is broad, and we welcome applications from scholars studying environmental governance issues with global implications in a variety of settings, including local, national, and international levels. We invite candidates who have completed or will soon complete their PhD in political science or related fields, such as political economy and environmental policy, to apply. The successful candidate will serve as faculty in the Social Sciences Division of the Stanford Doerr School of Sustainability.

Candidates for an untenured position at the rank of assistant professor must have a PhD or be enrolled in a PhD program or equivalent international degree-granting program at the time of application, with expected degree completion by date of appointment as an assistant professor. Candidates should demonstrate evidence of a creative research trajectory, interest in interdisciplinary approaches, and a commitment to excellence in teaching at both graduate and undergraduate levels. Applicants for an untenured position must include with their application:

1. a cover letter,
2. CV,
3. a combined research and teaching statement of no more than three pages,
4. graduate school transcripts,
5. a writing sample,
6. name and contact information for three professional references.

Candidates for a tenured position of Associate or Full Professor should demonstrate substantial evidence of a creative research career, impact on the field, and a commitment to excellence in teaching and advising students at both graduate and undergraduate levels. Tenured applicants must include with their application:

1. a letter of interest,
2. CV,
3. a combined research and teaching statement of no more than three pages,
4. teaching evaluations,
5. name and contact information for three professional references (for tenured applicants, referees will not be automatically contacted, but may be contacted at a later stage).

The Stanford Doerr School of Sustainability and Stanford University value faculty who will help foster an inclusive academic environment for colleagues, students, and staff with a wide range of backgrounds, identities, and outlooks. Candidates may choose to include as part of their research and teaching statements a brief discussion about how their work and experience will further these ideals. Additional information about Stanford's IDEAL initiative may be found here: <https://ideal.stanford.edu/about-ideal/diversity-statement>.

Application packages should be submitted online at this link. Review of applications will begin September 18, 2023, and to guarantee full consideration, your application should be submitted by this date.

For questions regarding this position, please contact Marisa MacAskill at mmacaskill@stanford.edu.

The expected base pay range for this position is:

Assistant Professor: $126,000-$145,000

Professor: $186,000 - $248,000

Stanford University has provided a base pay range representing its good faith estimate of what the university reasonably expects to pay for the position. The pay offered to the selected candidate will be determined based on factors including (but not limited to) the experience and qualifications of the selected candidate including years since terminal degree, training, and field or discipline; departmental budget availability; internal equity; and external market pay for comparable jobs.

The successful candidate for this position will be one of the founding faculty for this cluster. The position will also help launch an undergraduate applied computer science and technology policy degree, a program created jointly by the two schools. We encourage applications from talented scholars with diverse backgrounds, particularly those who identify as members of an historically or systemically minoritized group, committed to contributing to an internationally recognized school of policy and government and a large and vibrant computer science department within a newly established school of computing.

We seek candidates with expertise in the interface between artificial intelligence, governance and policy, and the social, behavioral or economic sciences, with very strong research records indicating continued high research productivity. We are interested in scholars who focus on social justice and the governance of AI and big data, with specialties including, but not limited to, ethical, legal, and social issues related to AI in a public policy context, privacy regulations for AI, and explainable AI. We prefer applicants with an established track record of securing external funding that will support transformative research and doctoral students; this is a requirement for applicants at the associate and full professor rank. The discipline for this hire is open, including but not limited to economics, engineering, public policy, law, anthropology/sociology, geography, political science, public administration, and computer science.

About the Schools and George Mason University

The Schar School is known among U.S. policy schools for the breadth and interdisciplinarity of its scholarship and teaching. We have particular strengths in a number of subfields, including science and technology, international and homeland security, global health threats and transnational crime, drug and substance abuse policy and administration, immigration, regional economic policy, and non-profit management. The Schar School attracts students from every continent, while a dynamic, international faculty generates academic opportunities and research collaborations that span the globe. We currently have 1700 students and 63 tenure-line faculty members from many disciplines, including political science, economics, sociology, public administration, history, law, anthropology, regional science, engineering, and business. We boast impressive racial and ethnic diversity with 36% of our students coming from under-represented groups, and many students are first in their families to go to college.

The school has a long tradition of research and education in science and technology policy. We currently have several faculty members with expertise in this area, including comparative/global AI infrastructure regulations and policies, AI and Innovation; the equitable use of AI and big data; privacy implications of emerging technology; blockchain and cryptocurrency; cybercrime and cybersecurity, machine learning for healthcare/medicine, and smart cities and social justice.

Our graduate campus is located in Arlington, Virginia (15 minutes from downtown D.C.), which provides faculty with unparalleled access to policymakers. The school currently has more than $40 million in active research grants, and our research centers offer faculty the opportunity to engage with lawmakers, journalists, government leaders, and other academics and to enhance the scope and impact of their research. On top of enrollment and research growth, the Schar School surged nine places in the U.S. News & World Report's 2023 Best Graduate Schools rankings, from 48th to 39th in the country. Six of our graduate programs are ranked in the top 25. Our nonprofit management program rose 14 spots, ranking 13th nationally in 2024.

The College of Engineering and Computing at George Mason University is comprised of the new School of Computing and the Volgenau School of Engineering. The College is a fast-growing force for innovation in research and education. Ranked nationally in the top 100 in both undergraduate and graduate education, the College boasts more than 9,100 students in 37 undergraduate, master's, and doctoral degree programs, including several first-in-the-nation offerings. Of the 271 full-time faculty who comprise the College, 91 are tenured, 59 are tenure-track, 89 are instructional faculty, and 32 are research faculty. As part of a nationally ranked research university, its research teams expended $75 million in sponsored research awards last year and have projects with over $400 million in current and anticipated awards. The College stands out for its leading research in areas such as artificial intelligence, data analytics engineering, cybersecurity engineering, biomedical imaging and devices, community-based healthcare, autonomous systems, 5G/Next G communications, systems architectures, computational biomedicine, advanced materials and manufacturing, sustainable infrastructure, and more. The College encourages multidisciplinary research and provides ample opportunity for faculty to work with other disciplines.

George Mason University is home to Virginia's largest and most diverse student body, and we rank among the most diverse universities in the nation. A leader in educating populations historically underrepresented in higher education, Mason produces more first-generation university graduates than any university in Virginia, and Black and Hispanic students graduate at a much higher rate than the national average. Mason's diversity is also reflected in our viewpoints and thinking, from the Carter School for Conflict Analysis and Resolution to the Antonin Scalia Law School.

The Commonwealth of Virginia announced a multi-year plan to invest in the growth of degree programs in computing, and George Mason University has committed to accelerate its plans to grow its capacity in computing and high-tech fields. Among the exciting initiatives being undertaken by the university are the launch of the Institute for Digital InnovAtion, a university think tank and incubator to serve the digital economy, and the expansion of its Mason Square (Arlington) Campus with a planned 400,000 square foot building that will house this new institute. This state-of-the-art building in Arlington, an anchor for the Rosslyn-Ballston innovation corridor, is designed to support digital innovation, active learning, tech incubators, and collaboration with industry. These initiatives reflect hundreds of millions of dollars in new investment by Mason that will rapidly elevate the university's already leading national position in computing and related areas.

Application Instructions

Applicants must apply at <https://jobs.gmu.edu/postings/57455>, complete and submit the online application, and upload a cover letter and CV. Candidates at the Assistant Professor level should also provide with their application a list of three professional references with contact information; senior candidates will be asked for references if they are short-listed. The positions will remain open until filled, but for best consideration applications should be completed by October 1, 2023.

George Mason University is an innovative and entrepreneurial Tier-1 research university. Over the past half-century, Mason has grown into the largest and most diverse university in the state. Mason is one of the few U.S. universities to have no marked disparity in graduation outcomes for students regardless of race, ethnicity, or socioeconomic status.

Required Qualifications:

- Terminal degree expected prior to August 2024 in related field required (including, but not limited to economics, engineering, public policy, law, anthropology/sociology, geography, political science, public administration, and computer science); and
- Expertise in the interface between AI, public policy, and the social, behavioral or economic sciences with very strong research records and trajectories for continued high research productivity is needed.

Preferred Qualifications:

- A focus on social justice and the governance of AI and big data, with specialties including, but not limited to, explainable AI, privacy regulations for AI, and ethical, legal, and social issues related to AI in a public policy context; and

University of Rochester

Rank: Tenure-Track Assistant Professor in Computational Social Science

The University of Rochester seeks applicants for a tenure-track assistant professor in computational social science. This will be a joint appointment between the Goergen Institute for Data Science (GIDS) and a tenure home department in Political Science, Economics, or Linguistics, depending on which best aligns with the applicant's research and teaching. Exceptional candidates in all areas of computational social science are encouraged to apply.

Applicants must have (or be about to receive) a doctorate in computer science, data science, operations research, applied mathematics, statistics, economics, linguistics, political science, or a related discipline. Candidates should have strong skills in computational social science and/or data analytics, as well as a research agenda that uses these methods to analyze substantive issues in political science, economics, or linguistics.

Teaching responsibilities for this position will be split between GIDS and the home department. The successful candidate will have the opportunity to supervise PhD, Master's, and undergraduate students at the home department and at GIDS.

All applications should include a letter of interest, curriculum vitae, research statement, teaching statement, and samples of written work. Candidates without a prior tenure-track appointment should include a graduate transcript. Applicants must also arrange for three letters of recommendation to be submitted online. The University of Rochester is firmly committed to advancing equity and fostering an inclusive and diverse community. We ask candidates to include a statement detailing their past work and future plans for achieving these goals.

Application materials should be submitted online at: www.rochester.edu/faculty-recruiting. We will begin reviewing applications on September 15, 2023. Applications will continue to be reviewed on a rolling basis until a candidate is hired or until February 1, 2024.

The Goergen Institute for Data Science (GIDS) was founded in 2015 as part of the University of Rochester's $100 million commitment to making data science its top research priority. The Institute serves as a hub for interdisciplinary data science research, interdepartmental data science academic programs, and collaborations with industry. GIDS is housed in the newly constructed Wegmans Hall, a brand-new, 58,000-square-foot building completed in 2017. The Institute offers Bachelor of Arts, Bachelor of Science, and Master of Science degrees, as well as an Advanced Graduate Certificate program in data science for professionals. A Doctoral degree in data science is undergoing the formal approval process, with a first cohort of students expected in 2024. Eighty-five faculty members from a variety of disciplines across the campus are affiliated with GIDS. Areas of expertise of these faculty members include foundations of AI and ML; health analytics and digital health; life sciences and biomedical data science; imaging science, visual science, and optics; human-data-system interfaces; AI-augmented learning and work; audio and music engineering; economics and business data analytics; computational social science; materials design; network data science; and robotics. With a unique structure, GIDS fosters industry engagement via the Center of Excellence (CoE) in Data Science. The CoE helps drive regional economic development through basic research, training, and technology development in all areas related to data science. The University of Rochester is a private, Tier I research institution with approximately 6,600 undergraduates and 5,500 graduate students.

We are deeply committed to building a more diverse and representative faculty, and strongly encourage applications from groups underrepresented in STEM and in higher education. We are actively working to improve the environment for all underrepresented groups as we strive to weave diversity, equity, and inclusion throughout the University's mission to learn, discover, heal, and create. Anchoring the Finger Lakes region of Western New York State, the greater Rochester area is home to over a million people, and offers unsurpassed quality of life, with a thriving arts scene, excellent public schools, affordable housing, and a huge range of cultural and recreational opportunities. <https://www.sas.rochester.edu/dsc/about/jobs.html>

Brown University

Rank: Professor of Climate Policy and Social Science and International and Public Affairs

The Watson Institute for International and Public Affairs at Brown University invites applications for a faculty position in "climate change and social science" to begin in July 2024. We are seeking applicants whose research is solution-oriented, focusing on the transition to a low-carbon economy (mitigation) and/or adapting to unavoidable climate change. Research of interest includes, but is not limited to, topics such as the politics and political economy of decarbonization; climate-induced migration and displacement; environmental justice as it pertains to creating climate solutions; technology policy and climate change; the social, racial, and political aspects of economic transitions away from fossil fuels in the United States or elsewhere in the world; and international trade and finance in an age of climate change.

This faculty position will involve a joint appointment between the Watson Institute and a relevant tenure-granting disciplinary department at Brown. We welcome applicants with doctoral degrees from all relevant disciplines in the social sciences (e.g., Sociology, Political Science, Economics, Anthropology, History, Africana Studies, Public Policy). The Watson Institute is especially interested in qualified candidates who can contribute through their research, teaching, and service to the diversity and excellence of the academic community. Candidates from historically underrepresented groups in higher education are strongly encouraged to apply.

Candidates at all ranks are welcome. A successful senior candidate must have an outstanding record of scholarly achievement and a demonstrated commitment to undergraduate and graduate teaching and advising. A successful junior candidate must be engaged in a research program with the potential to influence their field, and a strong commitment to undergraduate and graduate teaching and advising.

Review of applications will begin on Sept. 24, 2023, but applications will be accepted until the position is filled. Junior candidates must have completed their PhD by the time of appointment.

All candidates should submit: 1) a cover letter describing research completed and planned, 2) a curriculum vitae, 3) a short writing sample, and 4) a teaching statement. In the teaching statement, the candidate should describe how they foster inclusive learning and diversity.

Senior candidates should include the names of five references whom the search committee can contact at an appropriate time. The list of references can be submitted via the "additional documents" field in Interfolio.

Junior candidates should have three letters of reference and their official graduate transcript uploaded to Interfolio at the time of the application. The confidential recommendation letters should be uploaded to Interfolio by the referee.

Brown University is committed to fostering a diverse and inclusive academic global community; as an EEO/AA employer, Brown considers applicants for employment without regard to, and does not discriminate on the basis of, gender, race, protected veteran status, disability, or any other legally protected status.

Oklahoma State University

Rank: Assistant Professor

Assistant Professor: Environmental and/or Energy Politics

The Department of Political Science at Oklahoma State University invites applications for a tenure-track assistant professor position in environmental and/or energy politics to begin in August 2024. Competitive candidates will demonstrate the potential for a productive research agenda and an ability to teach and mentor both undergraduate and graduate students, effectively, at a leading, land-grant university. Preference will be given to candidates who can demonstrate a commitment to teaching courses with significant real-world applicability and experiential-learning opportunities. A Ph.D. in Political Science is expected at the time of appointment.

The teaching load for the successful candidate is two courses per semester. These offerings will be drawn from introductory political science sections, including American government, undergraduate and graduate seminars on public policy, and electives that reflect the candidate's research expertise.

The department keeps the service load of new, assistant professors to a minimum and provides generous start-up funds and travel support. It also encourages collaborations on research, grant, and extension work with students and colleagues engaged in environment and energy-based projects across the university, including the College of Engineering, Architecture, and Technology (CEAT) and the Ferguson College of Agriculture.

Oklahoma State University is one of the state's two comprehensive research universities. Its Stillwater campus has a population of over 23,000 students. The Department of Political Science is housed within the College of Arts and Sciences and offers B.S. and B.A. degrees, with degree options in campaigning, global politics, pre-law, and public policy. It also offers M.A. degrees in Politics and Policy Studies, as well as Peace, Conflict, and Security Studies. The department will give full consideration to applications received by October 1, 2023, but the search will continue until the position is filled.

Applicants can submit their materials through Interfolio <https://apply.interfolio.com/130026> to include the following items:

- letter of application, which should address their commitment to the education of all students, regardless of background
- vitae
- graduate transcripts; the department will accept unofficial transcripts as part of the initial application submission but will expect receipt of official transcripts before a candidate interviews on campus
- a list of three references; the department will expect receipt of recommendation letters from these three referees within one week of contacting candidates for a preliminary Zoom interview
- evidence of successful teaching and scholarship
- statements of teaching and research interests

Candidates may also address their perspectives on furthering the understanding of, and interest in, the challenges and opportunities facing all populations in their statements on teaching and research interests, as appropriate. The department is committed to promoting a welcoming and supportive culture in which all students, professors, and staff members feel that their contributions are valued. As such, the department seeks a rich and deep pool of applicants. Please, contact Dr. Howard Sanborn (howard.sanborn@okstate.edu) with any questions about this position. For more information about the department, please visit polsci.okstate.edu.

The department is committed to creating an inclusive space for our students, faculty, and staff and to teaching and mentoring our undergraduate and graduate scholars from various backgrounds. As such, the department seeks a diverse pool of applicants. Currently, 40 percent of our department's undergraduate student body is comprised of members of underrepresented racial/ethnic minority groups; women comprise 50 percent. Members of these groups are encouraged to apply.

Oklahoma State University, as an equal opportunity employer, complies with all applicable federal and state laws regarding non-discrimination and affirmative action. Oklahoma State University is committed to a policy of equal opportunity for all individuals and does not discriminate based on race, religion, age, sex, color, national origin, marital status, sexual orientation, gender identity/expression, disability, or veteran status with regard to employment, educational programs and activities, and/or admissions. For more information, visit <https://eeo.okstate.edu>. This position is contingent upon availability of funds.

Pew Research Center

Rank: Research Associate, International Religion

Washington, DC (Pew Research Center)

The Center has an immediate need for a Research Associate to support its portfolio of international survey research on religion and public life. The Research Associate will be part of the Religion research team, which seeks to promote a deeper understanding of issues at the intersection of religion and public affairs in the U.S. and around the world through public opinion surveys, demographic studies and other social science research.

The Research Associate supports all aspects of the religion team's international survey research agenda. On the data management side, this includes: script testing, managing a cross-national translation and verification process, data quality control, vendor relations, reviewing fieldwork and technical reports, and more. Ideally, a Research Associate gradually will be able not only to participate in but also to manage these tasks.

The Research Associate also will be involved in developing research questions and sharing research findings with the public. This includes helping to design questionnaires, analyze data, write reports of varying lengths, and make presentations. The process of producing reports on the Religion team is highly collaborative, and the Research Associate will be expected to assist with background research, making charts and tables, statistical analysis and number checking.

The person in this position works closely with other researchers on staff and reports to the Director of Religion Research.

Primary Responsibilities

The position is cyclical in nature. During certain months of the year, the bulk of a Research Associate's time will be spent on project management, data quality control and tasks related to survey administration. In other months, the bulk of the person's time will be focused on reporting, including data analysis, number checking and writing. The percentages below are guidelines based on a full calendar year. A successful candidate will be able to map out project plans, set and adhere to deadlines and deliverables, and keep colleagues and senior staff informed about the status of these tasks.

Survey design and quality control (40%)

- Help draft project proposals

- Conduct background research for questionnaires
- Draft survey questions
- Check scripts
- Check and verify translations
- Assess sampling performance and data quality
- Communicate with vendors and subject-matter expert advisors
- Prepare datasets for public release

Writing and Communication (35%)

- Write research reports
- Respond to external requests for information
- Serve as a spokesperson for the Center and disseminate findings to external audiences
- Fact-check and number-check reports

Data analysis (25%)

- Conduct analysis of survey and non-survey data, including multivariate analysis and multilevel modeling
- Prepare topline, cross-tabulations and other data summaries
- Prepare tables and charts
- Explore new techniques for examining data, such as ways to use "big data" and other secondary source data that can be used in tandem with survey findings

Knowledge and Skill Requirements

- Quantitative skills, including an ability to use SPSS and other statistical programs (e.g., Stata, R) to organize and analyze large datasets
- Strong verbal and written communication skills
- Strong analytical and research skills
- Ability to manage multiple projects at the same time
- Attention to detail, including exacting standards to maintain accuracy and impartiality of all work products
- Editorial judgment and proven ability to communicate research results clearly and concisely, both orally and in writing
- Skilled in project development and management
- Ability to work collaboratively with staff across Pew Research Center and outside organizations
- Ability to lead research teams
- Knowledge of and interest in the study of religion is required
- Knowledge of and interest in international affairs is strongly preferred
- Experience working with unstructured datasets ("big data" and/or secondary data sources) is a plus

Education/Training/Experience

- BA required, advanced degree preferred. Should have 5-9 years of research experience, with at least two years of experience in specialized research and analysis. Clemson University
Rank: Assistant/Associate Professor

Clemson University: College of Behavioral, Social and Health Sciences: Political Science
 Assistant/Associate Professor

Location: BARRE HALL

Description

The Department of Political Science at Clemson University is conducting a search for an Assistant or Associate Professor with a research agenda that applies quantitative research methods to substantive topics in political science to begin in August 2024. This is a nine-month, tenure-track position, although a qualified candidate appointed at the rank of Associate Professor may receive tenure on arrival. Candidates from all subfields of political science and related fields will be considered. Applications from individuals undertaking interdisciplinary or policy-focused research are welcome.

The successful candidate will be expected to pursue an active research program resulting in a strong record of peer-reviewed publications and contribute to the department's transition to a more research-intensive mission. Candidates with a history of external research funding or definite plans to apply for grants are especially desirable. The position's core teaching responsibilities will include introductory courses in statistics and data analysis at the graduate and undergraduate levels and courses on public policy analysis and evaluation for the department's doctoral students in policy studies. The expected teaching load is two courses per semester. Active engagement with the department's graduate programs, including advising students pursuing the Ph.D. in policy studies, is expected, as is participation in the department's shared faculty governance.

The Department of Political Science offers B.A. and B.S. degrees in political science, a master's degree in public administration, and a Ph.D. in policy studies. The department has 26 full-time faculty and 4 full-time staff. Clemson University is a public, land-grant institution located in western South Carolina near the Greenville metropolitan area. The university's campus sits on the shore of Lake Hartwell in the foothills of the Blue Ridge Mountains.

Qualifications

A Ph.D. in political science or a related field, completed by August 15, 2024, is required.

Application Instructions

To apply, candidates should submit a (1) brief cover letter, (2) curriculum vitae, (3) statement explaining their research agenda and plans for future projects, (4) sample article or working paper, (5) statement describing their teaching philosophy and teaching interests, (6) evidence of teaching effectiveness (if available), and (7) contact information for three references who can provide confidential letters of recommendation.

The full consideration date is October 1st.

The review of applications will begin October 1, 2023 and continue until the position is filled.

Equal Employment Opportunity Statement

Clemson University is an AA/EEO employer and does not discriminate against any person or group on the basis of age, color, disability, gender, pregnancy, national origin, race, religion, sexual orientation, veteran status or genetic information. Clemson University is building a culturally diverse faculty and staff committed to working in a multicultural environment and encourages applications from minorities and women.

University of Toronto

Rank: Associate Professor / Professor and Munk-Trinity Chair in International Relations & Global Economics

The Munk School of Global Affairs & Public Policy in the Faculty of Arts & Science at the University of Toronto invites applications for a full-time tenure stream position in the area of International Relations & Global Economics. The appointment will be at the rank of Associate Professor or Professor, with an expected start date of July 1, 2024, or shortly thereafter. The successful candidate may be appointed as the endowed Munk-Trinity Chair in International Relations & Global Economics for a five-year term.

Applicants must have earned a Ph.D. in any social sciences or humanities field and have demonstrated expertise relating to Global Economics, with a clearly demonstrated exceptional record of excellence in research and teaching. The Munk School seeks a scholar whose research and teaching interests complement and enhance one or more of our existing strengths, which include the Future of Democratic Societies, the Changing World Order, the Political Economy of Innovation, and the Digital World. Candidates will have an established international reputation and will be expected to sustain and lead innovative and independent research at the highest international level and to maintain an outstanding, competitive, externally funded research program. The Committee especially welcomes candidates whose work focuses on macroeconomics, international political economy, global finance and global economic migration.

Candidates must provide evidence of research excellence which can be demonstrated by a record of sustained high-impact contributions and publications in top-ranked disciplinary and/or field-relevant academic journals or academic presses, the submitted research statement, presentations at significant conferences, distinguished awards and accolades, other noteworthy activities that contribute to the visibility and prominence of the field, as well as strong endorsements from referees of high standing.

Evidence of excellence in teaching will be demonstrated through teaching accomplishments, through the teaching dossier submitted as part of the application including a teaching statement, sample course materials, teaching evaluations, and through endorsements of teaching in the letters of reference.

Candidates are also expected to show evidence of a commitment to equity, diversity, inclusion, and the promotion of a respectful and collegial learning and working environment demonstrated through the application materials.

The successful candidate will teach undergraduate and graduate courses, including in the Munk School's professional graduate programs (the Master of Global Affairs and the Master of Public Policy) to students from a wide range of academic backgrounds and interests and will also expand teaching capacity in Trinity College. The successful candidate will have experience or demonstrable interest in a professional school and/or in an interdisciplinary environment.

Salary and rank will be commensurate with qualifications and experience.

For more information about the Munk School of Global Affairs & Public Policy at the University of Toronto St. George campus, please visit our home page at <https://munkschool.utoronto.ca/>.

All qualified candidates are invited to apply online by clicking the link below. Applicants must submit a cover letter; curriculum vitae; writing sample; teaching dossier (including a teaching statement and sample course materials and teaching evaluations); and a research statement outlining current and future research interests. We seek candidates who value diversity and whose research, teaching and service bear out our commitment to equity. Candidates are therefore also asked to submit a 1-2 page statement of contributions to equity and diversity, which might cover topics such as (but not limited to): research or teaching that incorporates a focus on underrepresented communities, the development of inclusive pedagogies, or the mentoring of students from underrepresented groups.

Applicants must provide the name and contact information of three references. The University of Toronto's recruiting tool will automatically solicit and collect letters of reference from each after an application is submitted (this happens overnight). Applicants remain responsible for ensuring that references submit letters (on letterhead, dated and signed) by the closing date. More details on the automatic reference letter collection, including timelines, are available in the candidate FAQ.

Submission guidelines can be found at <http://uoft.me/how-to-apply>. Your CV and cover letter should be uploaded into the dedicated fields. Please combine additional application materials into one or two files in the PDF/MS Word format. If you have any questions about this position, please contact munkschool.academic@utoronto.ca.

All application materials, including reference letters, must be received by September 14, 2023.

All qualified candidates are encouraged to apply; however, Canadians and permanent residents will be given priority.

Diversity Statement

The University of Toronto embraces Diversity and is building a culture of belonging that increases our capacity to effectively address and serve the interests of our global community. We strongly encourage applications from Indigenous Peoples, Black and racialized persons, women, persons with disabilities, and people of diverse sexual and gender identities. We value applicants who have demonstrated a commitment to equity, diversity and inclusion and recognize that diverse perspectives, experiences, and expertise are essential to strengthening our academic mission.

As part of your application, you will be asked to complete a brief Diversity Survey. This survey is voluntary. Any information directly related to you is confidential and cannot be accessed by search committees or human resources staff. Results will be aggregated for institutional planning purposes. For more information, please see <http://uoft.me/UP>.

Accessibility Statement

The University strives to be an equitable and inclusive community, and proactively seeks to increase diversity among its community members. Our values regarding equity and diversity are linked with our unwavering commitment to excellence in the pursuit of our academic mission.

The University is committed to the principles of the Accessibility for Ontarians with Disabilities Act (AODA). As such, we strive to make our recruitment, assessment and selection processes as accessible as possible and provide accommodations as required for applicants with disabilities.

The Latino/a and Latin American Studies (LLAS) major offers an interdisciplinary approach to the study of the societies and cultures of Latin America and the Latino and Chicano experience in the United States. By extending the study of 'Latin America' beyond the geopolitical borders of the region to include the Caribbean and the United States, the major emphasizes the importance of migrations, interethnic interactions, and cultural exchanges of Indigenous, European, African, and Asian peoples throughout the Americas. The LLAS program engages students with a variety of perspectives on the socio-political complexities and cultural traditions of the Americas, and the historical development of unique regional societies and cultures. The transnational perspective of our curriculum distinguishes the LLAS major from more traditional area studies programs.

Occidental College is committed to academic excellence in a diverse community and to supporting interdisciplinary and multicultural academic programs that provide a gifted and diverse group of students with an educational experience that prepares them for leadership in a pluralistic world. We strongly encourage applications from candidates who will further Occidental's mission of excellence and equity in their teaching, scholarship, and service. Occidental is an Equal Opportunity Employer and does not unlawfully discriminate against employees or applicants on the basis of race, color, religion, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, gender expression, pregnancy, breastfeeding or related medical condition, national origin, ancestry, citizenship, age, marital status, physical disability, mental disability, medical condition, genetic characteristic or information, military and veteran status, or any other characteristic protected by state or federal law.

Occidental is strongly committed to increasing the diversity of the campus community and the curriculum, and to fostering an inclusive, equitable, and just environment within which students, staff, administrators, and faculty thrive. Candidates who can contribute to this goal through their teaching, research, advising, and other activities are encouraged to identify their strengths and experiences in this area. Individuals advancing the College's strategic equity and justice goals and those from groups whose underrepresentation in the American professoriate has been severe and longstanding are particularly encouraged to apply.

Salary is commensurate with experience and qualifications. Moving expense reimbursement (up to $5000, taxable according to current IRS regulations), start-up funds, and a one-course reduction of teaching load in the first year are provided. A comprehensive benefits package is available that includes: excellent health, dental, life, and retirement benefits; tuition benefits for the employee, spouse, domestic partner, and dependents; additional extras including use of gym facilities and the College Library. For a detailed description of benefits, please visit <https://www.oxy.edu/offices-services/human-resources/benefits-information>.

All qualified applicants will be considered for employment, including those with criminal histories, in a manner consistent with the requirements of applicable state and local laws, including the City of Los Angeles' Fair Chance Initiative for Hiring Ordinance.

Occidental College is committed to working with and providing reasonable accommodations to applicants with qualifying disabilities. If you need a reasonable accommodation because of a disability for any part of the application or employment process, please contact HumanResources (hr@oxy.edu).

Description

POSITION:
 Associate Program Director, Nonprofit Management
 Krieger School of Arts & Sciences
 Advanced Academic Programs

REPORT TO:
 Program Director, Public Management

INSTITUTION:
 Johns Hopkins University

Position Description:
 The Johns Hopkins University invites applications for Associate Program Director, Nonprofit Management in the Advanced Academic Programs' (AAP) Center for Data Analytics, Policy, and Government, a division of the Krieger School of Arts & Sciences. The Associate Program Director will report to the Director of the Public Management Program. The Johns Hopkins University is committed to hiring candidates who, through their teaching and service, will contribute to the diversity and excellence of the academic community.

The Center seeks to hire an innovative and forward-thinking individual to manage the online MA in Nonprofit Management program. This faculty member will also work collaboratively with other Center faculty to set goals and direction in its pursuit of teaching excellence. This is a full-time, non-tenure-track, 12-month renewable faculty position with the academic title of Lecturer or Senior Lecturer.

Advanced Academic Programs:
 AAP offers rigorous and high-quality master's degrees and certificates in three locations: the Washington, DC Center, the Homewood campus in Baltimore, MD, and online. AAP enrolls almost 6,000 students each academic year in over 45 programs and distinguishes itself through its intensive instructional assistance, selective admissions, and over 60 dedicated full-time faculty. Tenured Krieger School faculty members serve as Program Chairs and oversee the academic rigor of AAP programs and courses. AAP's website, <http://advanced.jhu.edu/>, provides additional information.

Academic Responsibilities:

- Teach 4 graduate courses per year, including preparation and time spent in the classroom (online), using best practices for teaching, engaging, and mentoring students from diverse backgrounds in the learning process, and responding to student questions
- Advise students, including both program and research/capstone advising
- Provide innovative leadership for curriculum design and new course development to ensure the delivery and growth of a quality program
- Other academic duties normally performed by full-time faculty, such as participating on committees, attending academic events, or contributing to other academic service

Administrative Responsibilities:

- Work with the Program Director and Center Director to hire, mentor, and evaluate adjunct faculty
- Oversee the program's admissions process, including reviewing and approving prospective students' admissions materials
- Provide overall supervision for the Nonprofit Management program
- Schedule courses and set teaching assignments throughout the year
- Host events for current and prospective students

Qualifications:

The Associate Program Director's role is critical to maintaining the overall high quality of this program. The Associate Program Director must have a passion for education and its power to change lives, especially for part-time and non-residential students. A track record of building and managing successful onsite and online education programs, and skills in instructional design, content development, and instructional technologies, are important. Candidates who have experience teaching and engaging students from diverse backgrounds are of particular interest.

Minimum Qualifications:

- PhD in Nonprofit Management, Management, Administration, or a related field
- One to three years of higher education teaching experience online and/or at the graduate level
- One to three years of experience at the Assistant Director level, or equivalent administrative experience
- Ability to teach a variety of courses in the nonprofit management field
- Excellent oral and written communication skills
- Strong organizational

Preferred Qualifications:

- Four or more years of higher education teaching experience online and/or at the graduate level
- Professional work experience in the nonprofit management field
- Demonstrated track record of excellence in teaching and innovation in curriculum design
- The ability to work independently in a fast-paced environment with competing demands and multiple deadlines
- Experience managing a degree or certificate program

Application Instructions:

The position will remain open until it is filled. Candidates must submit the following:

- Cover letter
- Curriculum vitae
- Teaching evaluations for the two most recent semesters taught

University of TorontoRank: Associate Professor / Professor and Chair in Global India

The Munk School of Global Affairs & Public Policy in the Faculty of Arts & Science at the University of Toronto invites applications for a full-time tenure stream position in the area of Global India. The appointment will be at the rank of Associate Professor or Professor, with an expected start date of July 1, 2024, or shortly thereafter. The successful candidate may be appointed as the endowed Munk Chair in Global India for a five-year term.

Applicants must have earned a Ph.D. in any social sciences or humanities field and have demonstrated expertise relating to Global India, with a clearly demonstrated exceptional record of excellence in research and teaching. The Munk School seeks a scholar whose research and teaching interests complement and enhance one or more of our existing strengths, which include the Future of Democratic Societies, the Changing World Order, the Political Economy of Innovation, and the Digital World. Candidates will have an established international reputation and will be expected to sustain and lead innovative and independent research at the highest international level and to maintain an outstanding, competitive, externally funded research program. The Committee especially welcomes candidates whose work focuses on the global role of India and South Asia within the political economy of innovation, and the role of democratic societies, justice, and foreign relations.

Candidates must provide evidence of research excellence which can be demonstrated by a record of sustained high-impact contributions and publications in top-ranked disciplinary and/or field-relevant academic journals or academic presses, the submitted research statement, presentations at significant conferences, distinguished awards and accolades, other noteworthy activities that contribute to the visibility and prominence of the field, as well as strong endorsements from referees of high standing.

Evidence of excellence in teaching will be demonstrated through teaching accomplishments, through the teaching dossier submitted as part of the application including a teaching statement, sample course materials, teaching evaluations, and through endorsements of teaching in the letters of reference.

Candidates are also expected to show evidence of a commitment to equity, diversity, inclusion, and the promotion of a respectful and collegial learning and working environment demonstrated through the application materials.

The successful candidate will teach undergraduate and graduate courses, including in the Munk School's professional graduate programs (the Master of Global Affairs and the Master of Public Policy) to students from a wide range of academic backgrounds and interests and may also expand teaching capacity in the Asian Institute. The successful candidate will have experience or demonstrable interest in a professional school and/or in an interdisciplinary environment.

Salary and rank will be commensurate with qualifications and experience.

For more information about the Munk School of Global Affairs & Public Policy at the University of Toronto St. George campus, please visit our home page at <https://munkschool.utoronto.ca/>.

All qualified candidates are invited to apply online by clicking the link below. Applicants must submit a cover letter; curriculum vitae; writing sample; teaching dossier (including a teaching statement and sample course materials and teaching evaluations); and a research statement outlining current and future research interests. We seek candidates who value diversity and whose research, teaching and service bear out our commitment to equity. Candidates are therefore also asked to submit a 1-2 page statement of contributions to equity and diversity, which might cover topics such as (but not limited to): research or teaching that incorporates a focus on underrepresented communities, the development of inclusive pedagogies, or the mentoring of students from underrepresented groups.

Applicants must provide the name and contact information of three references. The University of Toronto's recruiting tool will automatically solicit and collect letters of reference from each after an application is submitted (this happens overnight). Applicants remain responsible for ensuring that references submit letters (on letterhead, dated and signed) by the closing date. More details on the automatic reference letter collection, including timelines, are available in the candidate FAQ.

Submission guidelines can be found at <http://uoft.me/how-to-apply>. Your CV and cover letter should be uploaded into the dedicated fields. Please combine additional application materials into one or two files in the PDF/MS Word format. If you have any questions about this position, please contact munkschool.academic@utoronto.ca.

All application materials, including reference letters, must be received by September 11, 2023.

All qualified candidates are encouraged to apply; however, Canadians and permanent residents will be given priority.

Diversity Statement

The University of Toronto embraces Diversity and is building a culture of belonging that increases our capacity to effectively address and serve the interests of our global community. We strongly encourage applications from Indigenous Peoples, Black and racialized persons, women, persons with disabilities, and people of diverse sexual and gender identities. We value applicants who have demonstrated a commitment to equity, diversity and inclusion and recognize that diverse perspectives, experiences, and expertise are essential to strengthening our academic mission.

As part of your application, you will be asked to complete a brief Diversity Survey. This survey is voluntary. Any information directly related to you is confidential and cannot be accessed by search committees or human resources staff. Results will be aggregated for institutional planning purposes. For more information, please see <http://uoft.me/UP>.

Accessibility Statement

The University strives to be an equitable and inclusive community, and proactively seeks to increase diversity among its community members. Our values regarding equity and diversity are linked with our unwavering commitment to excellence in the pursuit of our academic mission.

University of Toronto

Rank: Assistant Professor, Teaching Stream, Canadian Politics and Democracy

The Department of Political Science in the Faculty of Arts and Science at the University of Toronto invites applications for a full-time, continuing teaching-stream position in the area of Canadian Politics and Democracy. The appointment will be the rank of Assistant Professor, Teaching Stream, with an expected start date of July 1, 2024, or shortly thereafter.

Applicants must have earned a PhD degree in Political Science or a related discipline by the time of appointment, or shortly thereafter, with a demonstrated record of excellence in teaching. We seek candidates whose teaching interests complement and enhance our existing departmental strengths. Candidates must have teaching experience in a degree granting program, including lecture preparation and delivery, curriculum development, and development of online material/lectures. Additionally, candidates must possess a demonstrated commitment to excellent pedagogical inquiry and a demonstrated interest in teaching-related scholarly activities.

The successful candidate will focus on Canadian Politics and will regularly teach core courses in Canadian Politics at the undergraduate level. We particularly welcome applications from candidates with interests in experiential learning and with innovative pedagogical approaches to the fundamentals of democratic citizenship, as well as a commitment to pedagogical development, such as discipline-based scholarship, pedagogical research, and/or professional work relevant to Canadian Politics.

Evidence of excellence in teaching and a commitment to excellent pedagogical inquiry can be demonstrated through teaching accomplishments, awards and accolades, presentations at significant conferences, the teaching dossier submitted as part of the application (with required materials outlined below) as well as strong letters of reference from referees of high standing.

Candidates are also expected to show evidence of a commitment to equity, diversity, inclusion, and the promotion of a respectful and collegial learning and working environment demonstrated through the application materials.

Salary will be commensurate with qualifications and experience.

All qualified candidates are invited to apply online by clicking the link below. Applicants must submit a cover letter; a current curriculum vitae; and a complete teaching dossier to include a teaching statement, sample syllabi and course materials, and teaching evaluations.

Application Instructions

Applicants must apply via Interfolio at <http://apply.interfolio.com/127871>. A completed file includes a letter of interest, a curriculum vitae, graduate transcripts, complete teaching evaluations (quantitative evaluations and complete sets of qualitative evaluations of recent courses), sample syllabi, academic writing samples, diversity statement, and three letters of recommendation. To ensure full consideration, submit all materials by September 21st, 2023. Screening of applications will begin then. Applicants who will have completed the Ph.D. by the start of the term of appointment will be given priority. Those without a Ph.D. in-hand should include in their letter of interest a statement of progress on the dissertation and reasons to expect completion in a timely fashion.

Further inquiries should be addressed to Farid Abdel-Nour, Chair of the Department of Political Science, at abdelnou@sdsu.edu.

The minimum salary for this position is based on the current CSU salary schedule for Assistant Professors and may be revised based on contract collective bargaining. The anticipated salary range is from $79,000 to $83,000. Salary placement will be based on the selected candidate's qualifications and experience, and salaries higher than the published maximums may be offered in limited circumstances. San Diego State University offers a rich benefits package that constitutes a major portion of total compensation. For benefits information, click here.

As part of its commitment to a safe and equitable "OneSDSU" community, SDSU requires that individuals seeking faculty employment provide at the time of application authorization to conduct background checks if they become a finalist for the position; applications without this authorization will be considered incomplete and not considered.

A background check (including a criminal records check) must be completed before any candidate can be offered a position with the CSU. Failure to satisfactorily complete the background check may affect the application status of applicants or continued employment of current CSU employees who apply for the position.

The person holding this position is considered a "mandated reporter" under the California Child Abuse and Neglect Reporting Act and is required to comply with the requirements set forth in CSU Executive Order 1083 as a condition of employment.

Equal Employment Opportunity Statement

Rank: Gender & International Relations, Hebrew University of Jerusalem

The Department of International Relations at the Hebrew University of Jerusalem is seeking to fill the newly established Leonard and Sophie Davis Lectureship in Gender, Conflict Resolution, and Peace, beginning fall 2024. We welcome applicants at all academic ranks.

The candidate for this endowed position is expected to have a proven record of excellence in cutting edge research and teaching in Gender and International Relations with an emphasis on Gender, Conflict Resolution and Peace, and is expected to take on a leadership role in the development of research and teaching on Gender and IR at the Hebrew University of Jerusalem. We encourage applications from scholars of all epistemological and methodological approaches to the study of gender. We especially seek candidates who can complement the strengths of our department in other areas of International Relations. Candidates should be able to conduct research, to teach undergraduate and graduate level classes as well as to mentor students.

Advanced doctoral candidates are expected to have their dissertation approved no later than October 1st 2024.

The language of teaching at the Hebrew University of Jerusalem is Hebrew, though some courses are taught in English. New faculty members are expected to be able to teach in Hebrew within a few years following their arrival.

The deadline for applications is 23 September, 2023. Candidates selected by the Department of International Relations require the approval of the Faculty of Social Sciences.

The Department of International Relations and the Hebrew University are committed to diversity and equal opportunity. We are also aware of the lasting impact that the Covid-19 pandemic has had on the academic trajectories of applicants. These issues are considered in hiring deliberations. We welcome the submission of a statement explaining the pandemic's impact, if relevant.

Please submit all application materials electronically here: <http://ttp.huji.ac.il/>

The applicants will be asked to upload:

- A letter of intent stating willingness to begin teaching at the Hebrew University of Jerusalem in the fall of 2024
- A list of required and elective courses that can be taught at the Hebrew University of Jerusalem
- A scientific biography outlining research orientation and plans for the coming years
- A Curriculum Vitae, including teaching experience
- Three writing samples
- Covid-19 statement (optional) – Brief (up to 400 words), specific statement explaining how the pandemic affected the candidate's academic trajectory
- Teaching evaluations, if available

Three letters of recommendation should be sent directly according to the guidelines in the application website.

Questions about the search can be addressed to Dr. Devorah Manekin (dmanekin@mail.huji.ac.il).

Laval University

Rank: Professor of Global Value Chains

Specializations: Trade, Political Economy, Foreign Policy

Université Laval's Graduate School of International Studies is seeking applications for a position of Professor of Global Value Chains. The successful candidate will serve as Co-Chair of the Chaire de recherche Couche-Tard sur les chaînes de valeur globales. Once a candidate from outside Université Laval has been recruited, an internal competition will be launched to select a Co-Chair with a complementary research record and expertise.

A research advisor will support the Co-Chairs in the development, planning and submission of grant applications, and will oversee the full deployment of the Chair's outreach activities. A budget will be available for doctoral scholarships associated with the Chair.

The candidate hired for this position will join the Graduate School of International Studies as a regular professor as of January 1st, 2024, or no later than June 1st, 2024. Hiring may be at any academic rank in accordance with the Convention collective entre l'Université Laval et le Syndicat des professeurs et des professeures de l'Université Laval (SPUL) (collective agreement between Université Laval and its faculty union (SPUL) – available in French only).

Duties include:

- teaching at the graduate level;
- supervising master's essays, dissertations and doctoral theses;
- conducting research and publishing in the field of global value chains;
- participating in GSIS-related pedagogical and administrative activities;
- being involved in any other activity provided for in the Université Laval-SPUL collective agreement.

Selection Criteria:

- hold a Ph.D. in International Studies or in a field of study relevant to the position;
- demonstrate a strong commitment to multi/interdisciplinarity, whether through training, a research program, teaching experience or collaborations;
- have an excellent research record with publications in peer-reviewed journals considered among the best in the field, or the potential to develop an excellent research record for early career applicants;
- have teaching experience at the university level, ideally confirmed by evaluations;
- have received research grants from granting agencies in their field or demonstrate the potential to obtain such grants in the near future;
- demonstrate the ability to teach a graduate-level methodology course;
- demonstrate proven involvement in international research networks (considered an asset);

- show a high interest in collaborative work;
- have the ability to teach in French within 3 years of taking up the position (Université Laval provides support for newly-recruited faculty to attain proficiency in French).

Applications from doctoral students who are about to defend their doctoral thesis will be considered, provided that a letter from the department head confirming the expected date of thesis submission or defense is provided.

Application deadline: September 29th, 2023

The application file must include:

- A. a cover letter demonstrating, among other things, a commitment to multi/interdisciplinarity and international issues;
- B. a resume;
- C. a document (2 pages maximum) describing a research program for the next 5 years that covers the theoretical, methodological and dissemination aspects of research;
- D. a sample of publications.

Candidates on the short list of successful applicants will be required to provide three letters of recommendation from respondents outside Université Laval. Letters are to be sent to the Graduate School of International Studies management.

All applications will be processed confidentially.

Applications and letters of recommendations must be sent to:

University of Michigan

Rank: Lama Shetzer Professorship in Contemporary Jewish Life

The Frankel Center for Judaic Studies at the University of Michigan invites applications for the Lama Shetzer Professorship in Contemporary Jewish Life. Successful candidates will be appointed at the rank of tenure-track Assistant Professor or tenured Associate Professor. This is a university-year appointment with an expected start date of August 26, 2024.

We invite scholars whose research and teaching engages the complexity of Jewish identities, experiences, and practices in the contemporary world. Scholars whose work draws on social science theories and methods (including, but not limited to, anthropology, sociology, political thought, ethics, and media & communication studies) are particularly encouraged to apply.

Candidates should demonstrate outstanding scholarly achievement as well as excellence in teaching and mentorship. They will also be expected to contribute to the Frankel Center's public outreach efforts and participate in cross-departmental initiatives and collaborations.

A completed Ph. D. is required by the time of appointment. Application review begins on September 18, 2023 and will continue until an appointment is made.

All application materials should be submitted online through Interfolio <http://apply.interfolio.com/127450>. Materials should include a cover letter detailing the candidate's interest in and qualifications for the position, curriculum vitae, statement of teaching philosophy and experience (2-3 pages), statement of current and future research plans (2-3 pages), a writing sample (approximately 25 pages), teaching evaluations and other evidence of teaching excellence. Additionally, please include a diversity statement that demonstrates your commitment to diversity, equity, and inclusion through scholarship/research, and/or teaching/mentoring, and/or service/engagement. There may be some overlap with your research proposal and teaching statements. Candidates selected for interviews will be asked to provide three letters of reference.

For any questions, please contact Michele Fleming at js-secretary-admin@umich.edu.

Offers for this appointment are contingent on successful completion of a background screening. The University of Michigan is supportive of the needs of dual career couples and is an Affirmative Action/Equal Opportunity Employer. Women and members of minority groups are encouraged to apply.

Johns Hopkins University

Rank: Adjunct Faculty: Intelligence Analysis

Subfield(s): International Relations, American Government and Politics, Other

Specializations: Intelligence, Defense, International Security

Location:

Washington, DC or Online (Remote)

Open Date:

Feb 01, 2023

Adjunct Faculty, Intelligence Analysis

Krieger School of Arts and Sciences

Advanced Academic Programs

INSTITUTION:

Johns Hopkins University

Institution Description:

The Advanced Academic Programs (AAP) is a division of the Krieger School of Arts and Sciences at the Johns Hopkins University (JHU). As the nation's oldest and one of the most prestigious research universities, Johns Hopkins offers high-quality master's degrees and post-baccalaureate education to students in the mid-Atlantic region and online. In addition to the online programs, AAP also offers master's degrees and graduate certificate programs at its Washington, DC Center and at the Homewood campus in Baltimore, MD. AAP has approximately 18,000 enrollments each academic year. JHU is committed to hiring candidates who, through their teaching and service, will contribute to the diversity and excellence of the academic community.

Position Description:

The Advanced Academic Programs (AAP) division seeks non-tenure track adjunct faculty to teach several courses within the MS in Intelligence Analysis program. The course(s) will be taught fully online beginning in Summer 2023 and beyond. Candidates with online course development and teaching experience and those with experience teaching and engaging students from diverse backgrounds are of particular interest. We are looking for faculty who can teach one or more of the following courses:

473.600 the Art and Practice of Intelligence

This course introduces students to the field of intelligence, particularly as practiced in the United States. After a brief overview of the historical foundations of modern intelligence, it discusses how intelligence is conducted including collection, analysis, counterintelligence, covert action, and oversight. It also discusses intelligence ethics, as well as the disruptive influences of September 11, new technologies, and emerging social trends.

473.602 Intelligence Analysis

Intelligence analysis is fundamentally about understanding and communicating to decision makers what is known, not known, and surmised, as it can best be determined. Students will read seminal texts on intelligence analysis, discuss the complex cognitive, psychological, organizational, ethical, and legal issues surrounding intelligence analysis now and, in the past, and apply analytic methodologies to real-world problems.

473.604 Advanced Critical Thinking and Analysis

Critical thinking involves the methods and principles of correct reasoning and argumentation. Students will apply a combination of logic, critical thinking skills, and structured analytical techniques to identify biases, promote self-reflective reasoning, and improve the quality of intelligence analysis. Using a selection of empirical case studies and operational exemplars, students will conduct a comparative assessment of analytical outcomes based on the application of course learnings versus outcomes derived in their absence.

473.607 Intelligence Ethics

This course will address the ethical dilemmas and issues that challenge intelligence and government decision makers in an increasingly complex operational and technological environment. We will examine basic moral, ethical and privacy considerations at several key points in intelligence operations from collection to covert action. The course will analyze the evolving nature of privacy concerns worldwide, with an emphasis on the balance between individual rights and national security. Students will examine the policy implications inherent in seeking to address these tensions.

473.606 Legal Issues in Intelligence

This class will examine the interplay between the laws and the practices and policies of the United States' Intelligence Community and national security system, both foreign and domestic. While discussion of the history of intelligence activities and laws dating from the origins of our colonial days will necessarily shape the framework of the class, the focus shall particularly be on current debates and challenges faced by the United States in the 21st Century.

473.800 Research Seminar

This course will introduce a variety of research, analytical, and statistical methods intended to provide a basis for designing a research project, including an introduction to quantitative, qualitative, and mixed method research design. Within the context of the course, students will complete foundational work for the capstone project, including identifying and accessing relevant primary and secondary source data, surveying and evaluating the literature, and framing a research question based on the intersection of empirical studies and organizational needs. Attention will be given to the unique restrictions placed on research design and publication within the intelligence community.

473.801 Capstone: Current Issues in Intelligence

In this culminating course, students complete an independent, faculty-approved project that will address a substantive or methodological challenge in intelligence analysis. A successful capstone will include research that provides evidence of the student's mastery of the theoretical knowledge and analytical skills central to the degree's learning outcomes. The capstone provides an opportunity to apply the skills acquired throughout the program to a key challenge facing their organization or community. Students will conduct a literature review, select a research method appropriate to their study, analyze data using qualitative or quantitative methods in their capstone project, and propose and defend their findings.

Minimum Qualifications:

- An advanced degree in any relevant field, with a master's degree at minimum.
- At least five years of professional work experience within the intelligence field.

Preferred Qualifications:

- A terminal degree in international relations, global security studies, political science, history, or in a relevant field related to intelligence.
- A scholar-practitioner background and publications in the field.
- 1-3 years of graduate level teaching experience.
- Leadership experience within the US Intelligence Community.
- Online teaching experience.
- Experience in developing graduate courses.
- The background to teach a wide variety of courses in an intelligence analysis program.
- Strong interest in advising graduate students interested in an intelligence career.

Application Instructions

The position will remain open until filled. For best consideration, please apply by April 1 2023.

Candidates must submit the following:

- Cover letter should indicate the course or courses you're interested in teaching plus your experience with online learning management systems (i.e., Canvas)
- Curriculum vitae
- Teaching evaluations for two most recently taught courses
- Transcript from highest degree earned
- The selected candidate will undergo a background check and provide three references.

Murray State University

Rank: Assistant Professor of Political Science

Summary of Job Duties and Responsibilities:

The Department of Political Science and Sociology at Murray State University invites applications for a position as a tenure-track assistant professor in political science starting in August 2024. We are an interdisciplinary department offering majors in political science, pre-law, international studies, sociology, and social inequality and human rights. In addition, we have a Master of Public Administration program. While the area of specialization is open, the successful candidate should be able to teach courses in the fields of Political Theory and American Politics. Ideally, the candidate for this position would also be willing and able to teach graduate-level courses for our growing Master of Public Administration (MPA) program, such as Ethics in Public Administration.

In addition to the above, a successful candidate may be asked to

- * teach online, in-person, and ITV
- * teach at the graduate and undergraduate level
- * teach other courses in the department as needed
- * advise students in the political science program or the department's other programs as needed
- * assist with the recruitment of majors
- * build relationships between the political science program and the community
- * maintain a record excellence in teaching
- * maintain a record of scholarship and publications
- * build and maintain a record of service

Minimum Education and Qualifications:

Ph.D. in Political Science or a related field is required. ABDs with a documented plan of completion by appointment date will be considered. Teaching experience is preferred.

Submit your application through the following link: <https://www.murraystatejobs.com/postings/11057>

For best consideration, please submit a completed application along with all required materials by November 1, 2023. Applications will be accepted until the position is filled.

Murray State blends educational opportunities found at research institutions with collaborative interactions among students, faculty and staff found at smaller universities. Students receive personalized attention from supportive faculty and staff as the University offers a 16:1 student-to-faculty ratio. Murray State University places our highest priority on student learning and excellent teaching, blending the range of educational opportunities often experienced at research institutions with the nurturing student-teacher interactions usually found at smaller universities.

Located in the West Kentucky region, Murray State University is a public, comprehensive University which offers a low cost of living, low property taxes, and a four-season climate. Murray has a friendly, small-town atmosphere with locally-owned specialty shops and restaurants, an acclaimed community theater, art guild and award-winning public schools. The area is home to Kentucky Lake and Land Between the Lakes, a 170,000-acre National Recreation Area, which offers a wide-range of activities and amenities for residents and visitors alike. Located in close proximity to major cities and nearby access to Interstate 24, Murray is just a few hours from Nashville, St. Louis, Louisville and Memphis.

Vanderbilt University

Rank: Assistant Professor in Political Economy

Subfield(s): Political Theory, Methodology, Other

The Department of Political Science at Vanderbilt University invites applications from outstanding political scientists who employ the tools of economic analysis to study political institutions and/or behavior for a tenure-track appointment as Assistant Professor, with an appointment in the Department of Political Science, and a potential joint appointment in the Department of Economics. Both departments are committed to building an intellectually vibrant, culturally inclusive, and academically diverse community of exceptional faculty. We will give priority to important research that builds synergies within and between the political science and economics departments.

Successful candidates will be able to contribute to graduate training in formal political theory, as well as contributing to substantive literatures in political science and economics; and successful candidates will also be expected to contribute to curriculum development in both departments, including servicing the newly-developed undergraduate minor in Political Economy. We are especially interested in receiving applications from scholars who study domestic politics and political institutions in well-developed democratic systems of governance. The appointment will begin Fall 2024. Salary and benefits are highly competitive.

The Committee will begin reviewing files as early as September 20, 2023. To ensure full consideration, applicants should submit complete applications by September 27, 2023, but we welcome earlier applications, and we may schedule formal interviews at any time. We will accept applications until we fill the position. Among the qualifications required for hire is the Ph.D. in hand or expected by August 1, 2024.

Interested applicants should submit a cover letter, curriculum vitae, a research statement, a teaching statement, a writing sample, teaching evaluations (if applicable), and three letters of reference electronically at: <http://apply.interfolio.com/130877>. Candidates may discuss equity, diversity, and inclusion in their research and teaching statements, as applicable.

Princeton University

Rank: James Madison Program Visiting Fellow

Specializations: Political Philosophy & Theory, Constitutional Law & Theory, American Politics

The James Madison Program in American Ideals and Institutions at Princeton University is dedicated to the pursuit of scholarly excellence in the fields of constitutional law and political thought. Sponsored by Princeton's Department of Politics, the Program seeks to enrich the intellectual life of Princeton students and faculty by exploring American constitutional principles and structures through research and public discussion.

The Program invites college and university professors and other professionals with established records of scholarship to apply for appointments as Visiting Fellows for the academic year running from September 1, 2024 to June 1, 2025. One-semester appointments are possible but not preferred. Depending on the needs of the University, teaching opportunities may be available, subject to sufficient enrollment and approval of the Dean of the Faculty.

All James Madison Program Visiting Fellows will spend an academic year (9-month term) in residence at Princeton University or the local vicinity, or demonstrate to the program's satisfaction the ability to be on campus daily, and on short notice, in order to fulfill responsibilities relating to in-person participation. They enjoy access to Firestone Library and a wide range of other facilities and activities throughout the University.

Visiting Fellows are expected to devote full time to their proposed research. They are encouraged, however, to attend or participate in various activities of the Program, including faculty-student seminars, colloquia, and public lectures.

All James Madison Program Fellows must have a doctorate or equivalent degree. Positions are open to all regardless of citizenship. Fellows normally receive a stipend of one-half their academic-year salary plus a living allowance. The fellows' home institutions are expected to provide at least half of their academic-year salaries.

How to apply: Applicants are required to submit an online application at: <https://www.princeton.edu/acad-positions/position/31661>

A complete application must include the following:

- * a curriculum vitae;
- * a scholarly paper written in the past three years;
- * a statement (no more than 1,500 words) describing the proposed research;
- * contact information for two references

Selected candidates will be asked to either submit a confidential statement indicating salary for the current academic year (September 1, 2023 - June 1, 2024) or provide written authorization for Princeton to confirm their salary.

For priority consideration application materials must be received by 11:59 p.m. EST on December 1, 2023 for appointments beginning in September 2024. Awards will be announced in March 2024 or before.

Princeton University

Rank: Postdoctoral Research Associate, James Madison Program

Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Political Theory, Public Law

Invitation for Postdoctoral Research Associate Applications

The James Madison Program in American Ideals and Institutions at Princeton University is dedicated to the pursuit of scholarly excellence in the fields of constitutional law and political thought. Sponsored by Princeton's Department of Politics, the Program seeks to enrich the intellectual life of Princeton students and faculty by exploring American constitutional principles and structures through research and public discussion.

The Program invites recent Ph.D. recipients to apply for appointments as Postdoctoral Research Associates or more senior researchers for the year from September 1, 2024 to September 1, 2025. Appointments will be through the Department of Politics. All James Madison Program researchers are expected to be in residence in Princeton or the local vicinity, or demonstrate to the program's satisfaction the ability to be on campus daily, and on short notice, to fulfill responsibilities relating to in-person participation, office hours, and the like. They may not be employed by another institution during the term of their Princeton appointment. They enjoy access to Firestone Library and a wide range of other facilities and activities throughout the University. Depending on the needs of the University, teaching opportunities may be available, subject to the approval of the Dean of the Faculty. Researchers appointed in the Madison Program are expected to devote full time to their proposed research. They are, however, encouraged to attend or participate in various activities of the Program, including faculty-student seminars, colloquia, and public lectures.

The position is a fully funded, 12-month postdoctoral research associate appointment with benefits. All James Madison Program Postdoctoral Research Associates are required to have a Ph.D. degree awarded within the last three years (no earlier than September 1, 2021). All requirements for the Ph.D. must be met by June 30, 2024. Applications are evaluated on the basis of (1) the significance of the proposed research; (2) the quality of the applicant's past research; and (3) the future contribution the applicant is likely to make to higher education. Positions are open to all regardless of citizenship. This position is subject to the University's background check policy.

How to apply: Applicants are required to submit an online application at <https://www.princeton.edu/acad-positions/position/31662>

A complete application must include the following:

- * a curriculum vitae;
- * a scholarly paper written in the past three years;

Washington & Lee University

Rank: Assistant Professor of American Politics

The Department of Politics at Washington and Lee University invites applications for at least one tenure-track position in American politics. Our preference is for a second field in Political Theory. The department has needs in the study of parties and elections, public opinion, and methodology. Opportunities will be available to teach in interdisciplinary programs at the University—including Africana Studies, Latin American and Caribbean Studies, Poverty and Human Capability Studies, and Women's, Gender, and Sexuality Studies—as well as the DeLaney Center for the Study of Southern Race Relations, Culture, and Politics.

In addition to teaching the Department's introductory courses in American politics and political philosophy, the successful candidate will be expected to teach upper-level courses in their areas of interest.

This position requires a strong commitment to undergraduate teaching excellence in a liberal arts environment and welcomes interdisciplinary contributions to the curriculum. The school calendar consists of two 13-week terms, one in the fall and one in the winter, along with our unique 4-week spring term. The regular teaching load is 5 courses per year. New hires teach a 2-2 load in their first year.

Faculty are also expected to have an active research program. To support faculty research agendas, the university has generous travel funding, a summer research grant program, a five-year sabbatical cycle, as well as a pre-tenure research leave program.

Washington and Lee is a top-ranked, highly selective university devoted to the teaching of the liberal arts. We are committed to excellence in teaching and to the research and professional activity that support it. Situated in the Shenandoah Valley, three hours southwest of Washington, DC, the university enrolls approximately 1,860 undergraduates and 380 law students.

Qualifications

A completed Ph.D. is required by the time of appointment, which begins July 1, 2024.

Application Instructions

All application materials must be submitted online through Interfolio: <http://apply.interfolio.com/128336>. Application review will begin immediately with full consideration given to applications that are complete by September 29, 2023.

Your letter of application should explain why you wish to teach in a liberal arts setting and how your training and research/teaching interests align with this position. Include a curriculum vitae, graduate transcript (unofficial is acceptable for initial application), teaching evaluations, and three letters of recommendation that speak to teaching and research abilities. Women and minority candidates are especially encouraged to apply. While preliminary interviews will not be conducted at APSA-Los Angeles, members of the Politics Department will be available to speak with interested candidates. Send inquiries to PoliticsSearch@wlu.edu.

Faculty Fellow

New York University Graduate School of Arts and Science

XE: Experimental Humanities & Social Engagement, an interdisciplinary master's program in the Graduate School of Arts and Science at New York University, invites applications for a Faculty Fellow position in the social sciences. The initial appointment will be for one year beginning September 1, 2024, renewable annually for a maximum of three years, pending administrative and budgetary approval.

We seek outstanding interdisciplinary scholars of the social sciences whose work engages intersectional social justice. The successful candidate will be committed to cutting-edge interdisciplinary inquiry and their fields will include, span, or exceed: anthropology, sociology, science and technology studies, politics, or urban studies, addressing urgent topics such as displacement and migration, indigenous rights, anti-racism, decolonization, incarceration, health, or environmental justice, among others.

Faculty fellows teach three graduate seminars per year, advise and mentor students, oversee master's theses, organize public programs, and actively participate in shaping the life of the program.

XE is a highly innovative master's program and tight-knit community of scholars and practitioners who value collaborative mentoring and career building, as well as exploring new pedagogies and research methods at the intersection of creativity, criticality, and social engagement.

Qualifications:

We seek candidates with a PhD in the social sciences. While PhDs are required, we welcome candidates who have a public-facing critical or artistic practice in their field/s. Candidates should have completed their Ph.D. no earlier than 2020 and no later than by August 1, 2024.

To apply, please submit: a cover letter, curriculum vitae, a 20- to 30-page writing sample, sample syllabi for two dream classes, three letters of recommendation, and a statement of diversity and inclusion.

Applications should be submitted through Interfolio: <http://apply.interfolio.com/129772>

The search committee will begin reviewing applications on January 5, 2023 and will continue until the position is filled.

As diversity is a priority for NYU and for this position, for the latter statement we ask you to provide a brief paragraph telling us how diversity figures into your past and present teaching, research, community engagement, and/or life experience, as well as how you would bring issues of diversity to bear on the teaching and programming of XE. Information about diversity statements may be found at #160;

In compliance with NYC's Pay Transparency Act, the annual base salary for this position is $60,000. New York University considers factors such as (but not limited to) the scope and responsibilities of the position, the candidate's work experience, education/training, key skills, internal peer equity, as well as market and organizational considerations when extending an offer.

The Faculty of Arts and Science at NYU is at the heart of a leading research university that spans the globe. We seek scholars of the highest caliber who embody the diversity of the United States as well as the global society in which we live. We strongly encourage applications from women, racial and ethnic minorities, and other individuals who are under-represented in the profession, across color, creed, race, ethnic and national origin, physical ability, gender and sexual identity, or any other legally protected basis. NYU affirms the value of differing perspectives on the world as we strive to build the strongest possible university with the widest reach. University of Richmond

Rank: Assistant Professor of Leadership Studies

Specializations: Leadership Studies, Political Philosophy & Theory, Political Behavior

The University of Richmond's Jepson School of Leadership Studies (JSLS) invites applications for a full-time tenure-track position at the rank of Assistant Professor to begin in the 2024-25 academic year.

The successful candidate must have completed a Ph.D. in Philosophy or a related field by August 15, 2024. We seek applicants with the potential and desire to develop, from their disciplinary training, an active scholarly agenda on the ethics of leadership. Successful candidates' specific areas of expertise and experience should be in applied or professional ethics, including (but not limited to) political or business ethics.

JSLS is a collaborative, inclusive community of scholars with representation from diverse humanities and social science disciplines. Applicants should have the potential and desire to teach in our interdisciplinary undergraduate liberal arts environment (see <http://jepson.richmond.edu/> for more information). The successful candidate will be expected to teach required courses such as Leadership Ethics, Critical Thinking, and Leadership and the Humanities, as well as elective courses that address leadership from a philosophical perspective. Applicants should also be prepared to share in responsibilities for coaching our "Ethics Bowl" team.

The University of Richmond is a private university located just a short drive from downtown Richmond, Virginia. Through its five schools (including JSLS) and wide array of campus programming, the University combines the best qualities of a small liberal arts college and a large university. With approximately 4,000 students, an 8:1 student-faculty ratio, and more than 90% of traditional undergraduate students living on campus, the University is remarkably student-centered, focused on preparing students "to live lives of purpose, thoughtful inquiry, and responsible leadership in a global and pluralistic society."

The University of Richmond is committed to developing a diverse and inclusive campus community, which values the expression of difference in ways that promote a sense of belonging as well as excellence in teaching, learning, and personal development. The JSLS supports the University's commitment to promoting a diverse and inclusive campus community.

Applicants should apply online at <http://jobs.richmond.edu> and submit a curriculum vitae, cover letter, and teaching statement. In their cover letter, candidates should demonstrate how, given their scholarly and teaching interests, they have the potential to address issues in leadership ethics from a philosophical perspective. In addition, applicants should specify in their cover letters how they are prepared to contribute to the unique, interdisciplinary environment at JSLS and to diversity and inclusion. Candidates for this position may be asked, at a later date, to provide the names and contact information for three references who will be asked to submit letters of recommendation. The teaching statement should articulate the candidate's teaching philosophy and experience, particularly as they relate to the courses the successful candidate is expected to teach.

Review of applications will commence November 1, 2023; the deadline for applications is November 15, 2023. Phone or Zoom interviews will be conducted in December. We anticipate inviting candidates to campus in January.

University of Massachusetts, Boston

Rank: Assistant Professor, Critical Security Studies

Specializations: Ethnic & Feminist Theory, International Security, Gender Politics & Policy

The Department of Conflict Resolution, Human Security, and Global Governance (CRHSGG) at the University of Massachusetts Boston invites qualified applicants for a tenure-track Assistant Professor position to join our vibrant, interdisciplinary faculty beginning September 1, 2024.

We are seeking a scholar of critical security studies, broadly defined, who can contribute to and strengthen the core curriculum of the graduate programs in Global Governance and Human Security in CRHSGG. We are particularly interested in candidates whose areas of focus include gender, race, and/or decolonial theory. The position is open to scholars from a range of social sciences, including but not limited to political science, geography, sociology, anthropology, and gender studies, who connect questions of global governance with imperatives for human security.

We are open to a variety of areas of topical focus within critical security studies broadly understood, to all research methodological strategies, and to either a regional or global focus that complements existing expertise in the department. Candidates must possess an earned doctorate in a relevant social science discipline by the date of appointment. Candidates should be prepared to teach in the Global Governance and Human Security core. An ability to contribute to other departmental graduate and undergraduate programs, in International Relations, Conflict Resolution, and Global Affairs, is a plus.

UMass Boston is one of the most diverse campuses in the Northeast region of the U.S. and has a well-established commitment to social justice, equity, and inclusion, with an anti-racist and health-promoting mission. We strongly encourage applications from persons with diverse backgrounds and provide equal employment opportunities without regard to race, color, religion, gender, gender identity or expression, age, sexual orientation, national origin, ancestry, disability, military status, or genetic information.

The Department provides a rich environment for interdisciplinary, collaborative research, policy, and practice, and houses multiple degree programs at the graduate and undergraduate levels. The Department also houses two vibrant research Centers (the Center for Peace, Democracy & Development, and the Center for Governance and Sustainability) and has a strong connection with the Center for Women in Public Policy.

To apply, submit through the application portal (<https://employmentopportunities.umb.edu/en-us/job/519911/assistant-professor-conflict-resolution-human-security-and-global-governance>): a cover letter, curriculum vitae, a writing sample, and the names and contact information for three references who may be contacted at later stages of the selection process. Inquiries regarding the position may be directed to the search committee chair, Dr. Jeffrey Pugh, at Jeffrey.Pugh@umb.edu. Review of applications begins on October 1st and will continue until the position is filled. Responses to frequently asked questions and updates on the search will be posted publicly at https://docs.google.com/document/d/1uNGCFC8q4aAo52y_V4n7ZAS7vQAVEx9pz9-iB8VwNNM/edit?usp=sharing.

UMass Boston is committed to the full inclusion of all qualified individuals. As part of this commitment, we will ensure that persons with disabilities are provided reasonable accommodations for the hiring process. If reasonable accommodation is needed, please contact HRDirect@umb.edu or 617-287-5150.

University of Utah

Rank: Assistant Professor

The Department of Political Science at the University of Utah invites applications for a tenure-track faculty position in Political Theory at the rank of Assistant Professor beginning July 1, 2024. We seek a political theorist whose scholarship and teaching addresses the theme of Ecologies and Inequalities. In the context of today's urgent environmental, social, political, cultural, and economic crises, we are looking for a talented scholar and teacher whose research takes an existential approach to contemporary conditions. We are especially interested in scholars whose research addresses climate change in relation to social stratifications, including race, class, post-coloniality, and disability. The successful candidate will carry a 2/2 teaching load and will be expected to teach foundational courses in Political Theory as well as courses related to Ecologies and Inequalities that align with their interests.

The Department of Political Science is committed to removing barriers that have been traditionally encountered by individuals from underrepresented groups, strives to recruit faculty who will further enhance our diversity, and aims to support the academic, professional, and personal success of all faculty. Enhancing the diversity of our faculty to improve the field of political science and better serve political science students, is a key part of the department's strategic plan. The Department has a history of mentoring Assistant Professors from underrepresented groups and providing a supportive environment for attaining academic and professional goals. The University of Utah recognizes that a diverse faculty benefits and enriches the educational experiences of the entire campus and greater community.

The University of Utah is the flagship institution of the Utah System of Higher Education and has been classified by the Carnegie Foundation as among those research universities with the "highest research activity." The University provides numerous opportunities for internal research funding and offers a generous benefits and retirement package: <https://www.hr.utah.edu/benefits/>.

The University is located in Salt Lake City, the center of a metropolitan area with a population of approximately 1.25 million residents. Salt Lake City is home to sizable Latinx and immigrant populations (21.5% and 11.5% of residents, respectively). Per capita, Salt Lake City has the 11th largest LGBTQ population in the U.S. The city's proximity to the Wasatch Mountains, world-class ski resorts, and national parks makes it an ideal location for outdoor recreation. The Salt Lake City International Airport is a major hub with direct flights to most U.S. cities and direct international flights to a number of major cities.

SLC has extensive arts and cultural activities. The area has received international recognition for its light rail system, foodie culture, Sundance Film Festival, vibrant downtown, and increasing ethnic diversity.

Applications should include a cover letter detailing research and teaching interests and experience, a CV, a writing sample, and three references who can be contacted for letters of recommendation. As part of the cover letter, we invite you to describe how your work and other experiences contribute to the success of underrepresented students. The University of Utah values candidates who have experience working in settings with students from diverse backgrounds and possess a strong commitment to improving access to higher education for historically underrepresented students. Applications should be submitted by a best consideration date of September 24, 2023, although those received after this date will continue to be reviewed until the position is filled.

Applications should be filed using the online system at <https://utah.peopleadmin.com/postings/151430>.

Please email all inquiries to the chair of the search committee, Prof. Steve Johnston at: steven.johnston@utah.edu.

University of Toronto

Rank: Assistant Professor – Black Political Thought

The Department of Political Science in the Faculty of Arts and Science at the University of Toronto invites applications for a full-time tenure stream position in the area of Black Political Thought. The appointment will be at the rank of Assistant Professor, with an expected start date of July 1, 2024, or shortly thereafter.

Applicants must have earned a PhD degree in Political Science or a related discipline by the time of appointment, or shortly thereafter, with a clearly demonstrated record of excellence in research and teaching. The successful candidate will specialize in Black Political Thought, understood broadly to include political thought from Africa, the Caribbean, Latin America, Canada, the United States, Europe, or other parts of the world. Lived experience related to Africa and its diaspora will be an asset. The position is open with respect to approach and methodology. Examples of possible research areas include but are not limited to the history of political thought; critical analysis of race, racism, and ethnicity; gendered and class hierarchies of power; colonialism, imperialism, slavery, and their afterlives; political solidarity and social movements; and the implications of Black political thought for comparative political theory. This search aligns with the University's commitment to strategically and proactively promote diversity among our community members (Statement on Equity, Diversity & Excellence). Recognizing that Black, Indigenous, and other Racialized communities have experienced inequities that have developed historically and are ongoing, we strongly welcome and encourage candidates from those communities to apply.

We seek candidates whose research and teaching interests complement and deepen our existing departmental strengths. The successful candidate will undertake undergraduate and graduate teaching responsibilities on the University of Toronto's downtown (St. George) campus. Applicants are encouraged to review the research and teaching profiles of current faculty members. Please visit our home page (Department of Political Science <https://politics.utoronto.ca>) to learn more about us.

The successful candidate will be expected to pursue innovative and independent research at the highest international level and to establish an outstanding, competitive, and externally funded research program. Candidates must provide evidence of research excellence which can be demonstrated by the submitted research statement, a record of publications in top-ranked and field relevant journals or forthcoming publications meeting high international standards, presentations at significant conferences, awards and accolades and, as well as strong endorsements from referees of high standing.

Evidence of excellence in teaching will be provided through teaching accomplishments, the teaching dossier (with required materials outlined below) submitted as part of the application, as well as strong letters of reference.

Candidates are also expected to show evidence of a commitment to equity, diversity, inclusion, and the promotion of a respectful and collegial learning and working environment demonstrated through the application materials.

Salary will be commensurate with qualifications and experience.

All qualified candidates are invited to apply online by clicking the link below. Applicants must submit a cover letter; a current curriculum vitae; a research statement outlining current and future research interests; a recent writing sample of no more than 30 pages; and a teaching dossier to include a teaching statement, sample course materials, and teaching evaluations. Equity and diversity are essential to academic excellence. We seek candidates who value diversity and whose research, teaching and service bear out our commitment to equity. Candidates are therefore also asked to submit a 1-2 page statement of their contributions to equity and diversity, which might cover topics such as (but need not be limited to): research or teaching that incorporates a focus on underrepresented communities, the development of inclusive pedagogies, or the mentoring of students from underrepresented groups.

Applicants must provide the name and contact information of three references. The University of Toronto's recruiting tool will automatically solicit and collect letters of reference from each after an application is submitted (this happens overnight). Applicants remain responsible for ensuring that references submit letters (on letterhead, dated and signed) by the closing date. More details on the automatic reference letter collection, including timelines, are available in the candidate FAQ.

Submission guidelines can be found at <http://uoft.me/how-to-apply>. Your CV and cover letter should be uploaded into the dedicated fields. Please combine additional application materials into one or two files in PDF/MS Word format. If you have any questions about this position, please contact Sari Sherman at chair.polisci@utoronto.ca.

All application materials, including reference letters, must be received by October 5, 2023.

Diversity Statement

The University of Toronto embraces Diversity and is building a culture of belonging that increases our capacity to effectively address and serve the interests of our global community. We strongly encourage applications from Indigenous Peoples, Black and racialized persons, women, persons with disabilities, and people of diverse sexual and gender identities. We value applicants who have demonstrated a commitment to equity, diversity and inclusion and recognize that diverse perspectives, experiences, and expertise are essential to strengthening our academic mission.

As part of your application, you will be asked to complete a brief Diversity Survey. This survey is voluntary. Any information directly related to you is confidential and cannot be accessed by search committees or human resources staff. Results will be aggregated for institutional planning purposes. For more information, please see <http://uoft.me/UP>.

Accessibility Statement

The University strives to be an equitable and inclusive community, and proactively seeks to increase diversity among its community members. Our values regarding equity and diversity are linked with our unwavering commitment to excellence in the pursuit of our academic mission.

The University is committed to the principles of the Accessibility for Ontarians with Disabilities Act (AODA). As such, we strive to make our recruitment, assessment and selection processes as accessible as possible and provide accommodations as required for applicants with disabilities.

If you require any accommodations at any point during the application and hiring process, please contact uoft.careers@utoronto.ca.

Princeton University

Rank: Postdoctoral Researcher in Political Theory

The Princeton University Center for Human Values invites applications for a Postdoctoral Researcher in Political Theory for a position starting in September 2024.

The researcher's duties will include making progress on their own research projects, teaching the equivalent of one course each year, and actively participating in the intellectual community of the University Center for Human Values. The teaching will likely involve running a senior thesis seminar rather than teaching a traditional course, subject to approval of Princeton's Dean of the Faculty. The postdoc will be expected to participate in a year-long research seminar for visiting fellows and Center faculty, as well as a year-long seminar for the Center's cohort of Postdoctoral Associates. (Each of these seminars meets roughly every other week.) The postdoc will also be expected to regularly attend some of the talks, panels, and conferences sponsored by the Center.

The University Center for Human Values has a strong record of placing our Postdoctoral Researchers in excellent tenure-track academic jobs. Some recent postdocs can be seen here: <https://uchv.princeton.edu/people/postdoctoral-research-associates>.

Qualifications

Applications are welcome from candidates who have or expect to have a Ph.D. by the start date of their appointment, normally beginning September 1, 2024. Applicants should not have more than two years of postdoctoral experience by the date of appointment. Applicants should have a serious research specialization in Political Theory. We understand Political Theory broadly to include the history of political thought, normative analysis, and intellectual projects involving work jointly with other subfields in political science, related disciplines, or in interdisciplinary areas. While most political theorists are trained in departments of politics and political science, we also welcome applications from candidates with research expertise in political theory who are trained in other disciplines or in interdisciplinary approaches.

Applications will be evaluated on the basis of the applicant's previous accomplishments and the promise of the proposed research project in Political Theory.

Term of Appointment

The term of the fellowship is one year, normally beginning September 1, 2024, with the possibility of renewal for up to one additional year pending satisfactory performance. Appointment will be made to the rank of Postdoctoral Research Associate. Princeton University offers competitive salary and employee benefits.

How to Apply

Candidates must submit an online application at <https://www.princeton.edu/acad-positions/position/31081>.

A complete application will include the following supporting materials:

1. A curriculum vitae;
2. A research proposal (not to exceed 1,500 words) describing the research project(s) the applicant plans to work on during the fellowship. Please provide an indicative title in the heading;
3. A scholarly paper (of no more than 12,000 words, not including bibliography) representing the applicant's scholarly achievement or potential;
4. Contact information for three referees, who should be prepared to comment specifically about the applicant's qualifications for the proposed research project. Referees will be contacted directly with instructions for uploading letters of reference.

Applicant materials must be submitted online by the application deadline of November 1, 2023, 11:59 p.m. EST. We do not accept application materials by any other method. Letters of reference should be submitted by the priority deadline of November 8, 2023, 11:59 p.m. EST. The selection committee will begin reviewing applications immediately, so letters of reference received after the priority deadline may put candidates at a disadvantage.

We expect to announce decisions in late March 2024. This position is subject to the University's background check policy.

Southwestern University

Rank: Assistant Professor of Political Science

The Department of Political Science at Southwestern University invites applications for a tenure-track Assistant Professor of Political Science position beginning August 2024. The ideal candidate will hold a PhD in political science (ABD will be considered) and specialize in political theory. While we are open to a range of subfields within theory, we are especially interested in applicants whose scholarly and teaching interests intersect with existing departmental strengths in political behavior, representation, and racial/ethnic politics. We strongly encourage candidates from underrepresented backgrounds who can contribute to the diversity and excellence of our academic community to apply.

Successful applicants will demonstrate a commitment to excellence and inclusivity in undergraduate teaching and a willingness to foster undergraduate research. The typical teaching load is five courses per year; this will include our introductory political theory course and at least one other course that is accessible to nonmajors. Campus-wide responsibilities include advising students and university service.

The Political Science Department and Southwestern University are committed to recruiting candidates who both excel in teaching and research/creative work and can best serve our diverse student population. As of the fall 2022 semester, 36% of students enrolled at Southwestern were members of groups traditionally underrepresented in higher education and we are committed to further increasing and supporting the diversity of our students, faculty and curriculum. The Department seeks candidates who have a demonstrated commitment to, and will take an active role in, enhancing diversity, inclusion, and equity across the University, including fostering a sense of community and belonging for students. In your application materials, please include specific and detailed information about how you have worked to enhance diversity and inclusion through your teaching practices, research, and/or service experiences within the college or university setting.

To apply, candidates should submit the following information by September 15, 2023, to Interfolio <http://apply.interfolio.com/128923>:

- ? a cover letter
- ? a C.V.
- ? a teaching statement
- ? brief descriptions of 2-3 possible courses and/or sample syllabi
- ? a research statement

We will be speaking with interested candidates at the APSA Annual Meeting; to set up an appointment or ask questions about this position, please contact the department chair, Emily Sydnor (sydnore@southwestern.edu). Additional materials, including three letters of recommendation, will be requested from selected candidates later in the process. The search will remain open until the position is filled.

University of Toronto

Rank: Assistant Professor - Liberal Democratic Theory

The Department of Political Science in the Faculty of Arts and Science at the University of Toronto invites applications for a full-time tenure stream position in liberal democratic theory. The appointment will be at the rank of Assistant Professor, with an expected start date of July 1, 2024, or shortly thereafter.

Applicants must have earned a PhD degree in Political Science or a related area by the time of the appointment, or shortly thereafter, with a demonstrated record of excellence in research and teaching. The successful candidate will specialize in liberal democratic theory and its critics.

The position is open with respect to approaches and methods. We are particularly interested in candidates whose research addresses the ideals and challenges of liberal democratic politics.

We seek candidates whose research and teaching interests complement and deepen our existing departmental strengths. The successful candidate will undertake undergraduate and graduate teaching responsibilities on the University of Toronto's downtown (St. George) campus. Applicants are encouraged to review the research and teaching profiles of current faculty members. Please visit our home page (Department of Political Science <https://politics.utoronto.ca>) to learn more about us.

The successful candidate will be expected to pursue innovative and independent research at the highest international level and to establish an outstanding, competitive, and externally funded research program. Candidates must provide evidence of research excellence which can be demonstrated by the submitted research statement, a record of publications in top-ranked and field relevant journals or forthcoming publications meeting high international standards, presentations at significant conferences, and awards and accolades, and strong endorsements from referees of high standing.

Evidence of excellence in teaching will be provided through teaching accomplishments, the teaching dossier (with required materials outlined below) submitted as part of the application, as well as strong letters of reference.

Candidates are also expected to show evidence of a commitment to equity, diversity, inclusion, and the promotion of a respectful and collegial learning and working environment demonstrated through the application materials.

Salary will be commensurate with qualifications and experience.

All qualified candidates are invited to apply online by clicking the link below. Applicants must submit a cover letter; a current curriculum vitae; a research statement outlining current and future research interests; a recent writing sample of no more than 30 pages; and a teaching dossier to include a teaching statement, sample course materials, and teaching evaluations.

Equity and diversity are essential to academic excellence. We seek candidates who value diversity and whose research, teaching and service bear out our commitment to equity.

Candidates are therefore also asked to submit a 1–2-page statement of their contributions to equity and diversity, which might cover topics such as (but need not be limited to): research or teaching that incorporates a focus on underrepresented communities, the development of inclusive pedagogies, or the mentoring of students from underrepresented groups.

Applicants must provide the name and contact information of three references. The University of Toronto's recruiting tool will automatically solicit and collect letters of reference from each after an application is submitted (this happens overnight). Applicants remain responsible for ensuring that references submit letters (on letterhead, dated and signed) by the closing date. More details on the automatic reference letter collection, including timelines, are available in the FAQ.

Submission guidelines can be found at <http://uoft.me/how-to-apply>. Your CV and cover letter should be uploaded into the dedicated fields. Please combine additional application materials into one or two files in PDF/MS Word format. If you have any questions about this position, please contact Sari Sherman at chair.polisci@utoronto.ca.

All application materials, including reference letters, must be received by September 26, 2023.

All qualified candidates are encouraged to apply; however, Canadians and permanent residents will be given priority.

Diversity Statement

The University of Toronto embraces Diversity and is building a culture of belonging that increases our capacity to effectively address and serve the interests of our global community.

We strongly encourage applications from Indigenous Peoples, Black and racialized persons, women, persons with disabilities, and people of diverse sexual and gender identities. We value applicants who have demonstrated a commitment to equity, diversity and inclusion and recognize that diverse perspectives, experiences, and expertise are essential to strengthening our academic mission.

As part of your application, you will be asked to complete a brief Diversity Survey. This survey is voluntary. Any information directly related to you is confidential and cannot be accessed by search committees or human resources staff. Results will be aggregated for institutional planning purposes. For more information, please see <http://uoft.me/UP>.

Accessibility Statement

The University strives to be an equitable and inclusive community, and proactively seeks to increase diversity among its community members. Our values regarding equity and diversity are linked with our unwavering commitment to excellence in the pursuit of our academic mission.

The University is committed to the principles of the Accessibility for Ontarians with Disabilities Act (AODA). As such, we strive to make our recruitment, assessment and selection processes as accessible as possible and provide accommodations as required for applicants with disabilities.

If you require any accommodations at any point during the application and hiring process, please contact uoft.careers@utoronto.ca.

University of Michigan-Ann Arbor

Rank: Assistant Professor

Subfield(s): Methodology, Public Policy, Political Theory

Specializations: Quantitative Methods, Science & Technology, Political Economy

The Center for the Study of Complex Systems (CSCS) at the University of Michigan seeks applicants for a tenure-track faculty position in complex systems science. The Center is a broad, interdisciplinary unit whose faculty use and develop tools from applied mathematics, computation, physics, statistics, engineering, and network theory to understand questions in the social, biological, and physical sciences. This is a University-year appointment at the Assistant Professor level. The expected start date is August 26, 2024.

Required Qualifications: We seek applicants with a research agenda focused on the development and/or application of complex systems models and/or methods. This may involve theoretical or applied research in areas of complex systems including (but not limited to) mathematical and computational work in network science, computational approaches in complex systems and related topics in computer science, social science, emergence and robustness, or scientific applications where complex systems theory lies at the core of the approach such as: quantitative modeling of biological and social systems, complex systems approaches to systemic racism and health disparities, biological and social evolution, artificial life, and cognition. We are particularly interested in candidates with a record of working across disciplines.

How to Apply: All applications must be uploaded here: <https://webapps.lsa.umich.edu/apply/1700>

This faculty position will be in the Center for the Study of Complex Systems or joint between Complex Systems and another academic department or school at the University of Michigan. If a joint appointment is preferred, candidates should suggest possible partner departments or schools. Complex Systems has a tradition of jointly appointed faculty across a wide range of schools and colleges at the University of Michigan, however both joint and 100% Complex Systems appointments will be considered. Applicants must submit a CV, a statement of current and future research plans, a statement of teaching philosophy and experience, and evidence of teaching excellence, if any. At least three letters of recommendation are required and must be uploaded by the letter writers to the same website. Finally, please include a diversity statement that demonstrates your commitment to diversity, equity, and inclusion through scholarship/research, and/or teaching/mentoring, and/or service/engagement. There may be some overlap with your research proposal and teaching statements (1-3 pages).

Review of applications will begin on October 1, 2023 and continue until the position is filled.

Offers for this appointment are contingent on successful completion of a background screening. The University of Michigan is supportive of the needs of dual career couples and is an equal opportunity/affirmative action employer. Women and minority groups are encouraged to apply.

California State University, Fullerton

Rank: Assistant Professor of Public Administration

The Division of Politics, Administration, and Justice at California State University, Fullerton, invites applications for a tenure-track Assistant Professor position in Public Administration with an appointment to begin Fall 2024.

California State University, Fullerton (CSUF) is a minority-serving institution, affirmative action, and equal opportunity employer. CSUF is firmly committed to increasing the diversity of the campus community and the curriculum and fostering an inclusive environment within which students, staff, administrators, and faculty thrive. Candidates who can contribute to this goal through their teaching, research, advising and other activities are encouraged to identify their strengths and experiences. Individuals advancing the University's strategic diversity goals and those from groups whose underrepresentation in the American professoriate has been severe and longstanding are particularly encouraged to apply.

CSUF is committed to retaining all faculty and has established affinity groups you can join to support your success. The CSU is currently engaged in a directed multi-year initiative to improve graduation rates for all students, with a particular focus on first-generation college students, low-socioeconomic students, Latinx, African American, and Native American students.

We are committed to pedagogy and scholarship that acknowledges historical and current structural inequalities. We will prioritize candidates whose work will engage students in questions of fairness in public policy and governance.

Position

CSUF faculty are committed teacher/scholars who bring research and creative discovery to life for students in classrooms, labs, studios, and individually mentored projects. They teach broadly in the curricula of their departments, advise students, and serve on departmental and university-wide committees. The person's primary responsibilities in this position will include developing and teaching courses in public administration and their area(s) of specialization. Specific courses that this person will teach may include graduate and undergraduate courses in at least three of the following areas: Public Policy Analysis, Public Policy Process, Research Methods, Public Economics, and/or Public Finance. This person will also be responsible for producing scholarship or creative work commensurate with the requirements for tenure. The successful candidate will also be expected to contribute to and participate in the life and development of the MPA program, advise students, serve on committees, and participate in the broader university and disciplinary communities.

Required Qualifications

Hamilton College

Rank: Assistant Professor of Government

Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Public Policy, Public Administration

The Government Department at Hamilton College invites applications for three tenure-track positions at the rank of Assistant Professor, beginning July 1, 2024. The new hires will collectively cover courses in public policy, American politics, and research methods, allocated based on individual expertise. This coordinated hire is part of a commitment to nourishing a diverse learning community and increasing possibilities for exchange focused on issues related to equality and inequality. We actively encourage applications from candidates whose work investigates the politics and policy of equality and inequality along one or more of the following axes: race and ethnicity; gender; class; sexuality; ability; religion; and migrant, refugee, or citizenship status. We seek candidates trained in either or both quantitative and qualitative methods and with academic backgrounds in American Politics, Public Policy, or Public Administration. Beyond that, there are no restrictions on area focus.

We are seeking candidates who can demonstrate their experience in teaching or working with diverse student populations. Your cover letter should address ways in which you raise issues of diversity and inclusion in your teaching, scholarship, and/or service.

These positions require institutional service including academic advising of undergraduate students after the first year.

The Government Department is responsible for the study of politics and public affairs at Hamilton. The department, which is one of Hamilton's largest, currently includes 17 faculty members, 12 of whom are tenured or pre-tenure. Department faculty include specialists in American politics, comparative politics, international relations, political theory, and public policy, and we teach a wide variety of courses across all these subfields. Each year, we also hire two practitioners, each of whom teaches a single one-semester course. The Department offers three majors: Government, World Politics, and Public Policy. Taken together, these three majors total about 85 students a year.

Candidates with ABD will be considered (and hired at the Instructor level until successful completion of their dissertation), although candidates with a Ph.D. are preferred. The teaching load for these positions is four courses during the first year and five courses thereafter. The expected salary range for these positions is $88,000 to $94,100. Candidates should submit cover letter, c.v., a writing sample, evidence of teaching ability, and a list of references via Interfolio at <https://apply.interfolio.com/129439>. Questions regarding the search may be directed to Peter F. Cannavò, Search Committee Chair, at pcannavo@hamilton.edu. Our review of applications will begin on October 1, 2023.

Hamilton College is a residential liberal arts college located in upstate New York. The College has built its reputation on the teaching excellence and leading scholarship of its faculty, and on the academic distinction and intellectual curiosity of its approximately 2000 students who take advantage of Hamilton's open curriculum (<https://www.hamilton.edu/academics/open-curriculum>). - Advise students, including both program and research/capstone advising
- Provide innovative leadership for curriculum design and new course development to ensure the delivery and growth of a quality program
- Other academic duties normally performed by full-time faculty, such as participating on committees, attending academic events, or contributing to other academic service

Administrative Responsibilities:

- Work with the Program Director and Center Director to hire, mentor, and evaluate adjunct faculty
- Oversee the program's admissions process, including reviewing and approving prospective students' admissions materials
- Provide overall supervision for the Nonprofit Management program
- Schedule courses and set teaching assignments throughout the year
- Host events for current and prospective students

Qualifications:

The Associate Program Director's role is critical to maintaining the overall high quality of this program. The Associate Program Director must have a passion for education and its power to change lives, especially for part-time and non-residential students. A track record of building and managing successful onsite and online education programs, and skills in instructional design, content development, and instructional technologies, are important. Candidates who have experience teaching and engaging students from diverse backgrounds are of particular interest.

Minimum Qualifications:

- PhD in Nonprofit Management, Management, Administration, or a related field
- One to three years of higher education teaching experience online and/or at the graduate level
- One to three years of experience at the Assistant Director level, or equivalent administrative experience
- Ability to teach a variety of courses in the nonprofit management field
- Excellent oral and written communication skills
- Strong organizational

Preferred Qualifications:

- Four or more years of higher education teaching experience online and/or at the graduate level
- Professional work experience in the nonprofit management field
- Demonstrated track record of excellence in teaching and innovation in curriculum design
- The ability to work independently in a fast-paced environment with competing demands and multiple deadlines
- Experience managing a degree or certificate program

Application Instructions:

The position will remain open until it is filled. Candidates must submit the following:

- Cover letter
- Curriculum vitae
- Teaching evaluations for the two most recent semesters taught

The selected candidate will undergo a background check, provide three references, and official transcripts for each credential.

Princeton University

Rank: James Madison Program Visiting Fellow

Specializations: Political Philosophy & Theory, Constitutional Law & Theory, American Politics

The James Madison Program in American Ideals and Institutions at Princeton University is dedicated to the pursuit of scholarly excellence in the fields of constitutional law and political thought. Sponsored by Princeton's Department of Politics, the Program seeks to enrich the intellectual life of Princeton students and faculty by exploring American constitutional principles and structures through research and public discussion.

The Program invites college and university professors and other professionals with established records of scholarship to apply for appointments as Visiting Fellows for the academic year running from September 1, 2024 to June 1, 2025. One-semester appointments are possible but not preferred. Depending on the needs of the University, teaching opportunities may be available, subject to sufficient enrollment and approval of the Dean of the Faculty.

All James Madison Program Visiting Fellows will spend an academic year (9-month term) in residence at Princeton University or the local vicinity, or demonstrate to the program's satisfaction the ability to be on campus daily, and on short notice, in order to fulfill responsibilities relating to in-person participation. They enjoy access to Firestone Library and a wide range of other facilities and activities throughout the University.

Visiting Fellows are expected to devote full time to their proposed research. They are encouraged, however, to attend or participate in various activities of the Program, including faculty-student seminars, colloquia, and public lectures.

All James Madison Program Fellows must have a doctorate or equivalent degree. Positions are open to all regardless of citizenship. Fellows normally receive a stipend of one-half their academic-year salary plus a living allowance. The fellows' home institutions are expected to provide at least half of their academic-year salaries.

How to apply: Applicants are required to submit an online application at: <https://www.princeton.edu/acad-positions/position/31661>

A complete application must include the following:

- * a curriculum vitae;
- * a scholarly paper written in the past three years;
- * a statement (no more than 1,500 words) describing the proposed research;
- * contact information for two references

Selected candidates will be asked to either submit a confidential statement indicating salary for the current academic year (September 1, 2023 - June 1, 2024) or provide written authorization for Princeton to confirm their salary.

For priority consideration application materials must be received by 11:59 p.m. EST on December 1, 2023 for appointments beginning in September 2024. Awards will be announced in March 2024 or before.

Invitation for Postdoctoral Research Associate Applications

The James Madison Program in American Ideals and Institutions at Princeton University is dedicated to the pursuit of scholarly excellence in the fields of constitutional law and political thought. Sponsored by Princeton's Department of Politics, the Program seeks to enrich the intellectual life of Princeton students and faculty by exploring American constitutional principles and structures through research and public discussion.

The Program invites recent Ph.D. recipients to apply for appointments as Postdoctoral Research Associates or more senior researchers for the year from September 1, 2024 to September 1, 2025. Appointments will be through the Department of Politics. All James Madison Program researchers are expected to be in residence in Princeton or the local vicinity, or demonstrate to the program's satisfaction the ability to be on campus daily, and on short notice, to fulfill responsibilities relating to in-person participation, office hours, and the like. They may not be employed by another institution during the term of their Princeton appointment. They enjoy access to Firestone Library and a wide range of other facilities and activities throughout the University. Depending on the needs of the University, teaching opportunities may be available, subject to the approval of the Dean of the Faculty. Researchers appointed in the Madison Program are expected to devote full time to their proposed research. They are, however, encouraged to attend or participate in various activities of the Program, including faculty-student seminars, colloquia, and public lectures.

The position is a fully funded, 12-month postdoctoral research associate appointment with benefits. All James Madison Program Postdoctoral Research Associates are required to have a Ph.D. degree awarded within the last three years (no earlier than September 1, 2021). All requirements for the Ph.D. must be met by June 30, 2024. Applications are evaluated on the basis of (1) the significance of the proposed research; (2) the quality of the applicant's past research; and (3) the future contribution the applicant is likely to make to higher education. Positions are open to all regardless of citizenship. This position is subject to the University's background check policy.

Position description

The Jurisprudence and Social Policy (JSP) PhD Program in the School of Law at the University of California, Berkeley invites entry-level and lateral applicants for a full-time, tenured or tenure-track faculty position in the field of race and law. We seek a scholar whose primary research focus is on race and its relationship to law and legal institutions and/or a scholar whose research centers on the legal activities, ideas, and experiences of underrepresented minorities. We are especially interested in scholars whose research centers on race and law as they relate to African Americans, and who will teach at least one course in the broad area of race and law. Candidates may be appointed at the tenure-track or tenured level, depending upon their qualifications and experience.

The successful candidate should be a scholar who does theoretically informed qualitative or quantitative research, which could include but is not limited to archival methods, computational text analysis, digital humanities, ethnography, experimental methods, mixed methods, survey methods, or other similar methods. We are interested in scholars who develop critical approaches to the study of race and its role in shaping law and legal institutions, including but not limited to research that examines the intersection of race with class, gender, sexuality, indigeneity, disability, or other forms of inequality, and/or research that offers comparative or transnational perspectives (particularly the Global South). The search is open in terms of specific content areas. Possible areas of specialization might include but certainly are not limited to race and the carceral state/criminology/punishment and society; discrimination and inequality in the labor market, education, family, and/or other institutional contexts; environmental justice; inequality and power relations within minority communities; identity and belonging; immigration and citizenship; information and technology; political participation and civic engagement; or social welfare policy. We welcome applicants who engage with social impact, public engagement, and social justice in their scholarship.

The JSP Program attracts a diverse student body with a variety of experiences before graduate school. We are interested in candidates who have demonstrated excellence in research, teaching and service, and/or a commitment to mentor, teach, and build an equitable, diverse, and interdisciplinary learning environment for all students, including those with nontraditional backgrounds. Candidates with a history and/or commitment to mentoring non-traditional and underrepresented minority students are encouraged to apply and state their experience and/or commitment in their letter of interest and/or in their Statement on Contributions to Advancing Diversity, Equity, and Inclusion.

The JSP Program is committed to methodological pluralism and encourages scholars who are willing and able to mentor students who are using a range of methods. Applicants should indicate in their letters of interest their qualifications for and proposed contributions to working with students from diverse disciplinary backgrounds. We also welcome candidates who could contribute to teaching within the broader community at Berkeley Law, including the JD program. Most JSP faculty members also teach in Berkeley's interdisciplinary undergraduate Legal Studies major, which operates under the auspices of JSP.

The JSP Program is committed to addressing the family needs of faculty, including dual career couples and single parents. We are interested in candidates who have demonstrated excellence in research, teaching and service, and a commitment to building an equitable, diverse, and interdisciplinary scholarly environment. We are also interested in candidates who have had non-traditional career paths or who have taken time off for family reasons, or who have achieved excellence in careers outside academia. For information about family friendly resources, potential relocation to Berkeley, or career needs of accompanying partners and spouses, please visit: <http://ofew.berkeley.edu/new-faculty>.

California Polytechnic State University

Rank: Tenure-Track Assistant Professor with Specialization in Law and Society

The Department of Political Science in the College of Liberal Arts at California Polytechnic State University (Cal Poly), San Luis Obispo, California, invites applications for a full-time, tenure-track, academic-year Assistant Professor with a specialization in law and society or law and politics, to begin September 16, 2024. Ph.D. in Political Science or a related field is required at time of appointment. Evidence of strong teaching skills and an active research program is required.

Substantive areas of expertise might include constitutional law, law and society, or judicial politics, among others. The successful candidate should be able to teach core undergraduate courses in law, such as Judicial Process, Constitutional Law, Civil Rights, Civil Liberties, Jurisprudence and Constitutional Theory. Preference is given to candidates with teaching and research interest in social justice issues.

An earned doctorate (Ph.D.) in Political Science or a closely related field from an accredited institution or international equivalent is required. Candidates nearing completion of the doctorate (ABD) may be considered but must provide proof that the doctorate has been completed prior to the start of the appointment. The initial appointment is for two years, subject to renewal.

Although Cal Poly is primarily a teaching university, our faculty are expected to balance teaching with an active program of research/professional development (including publication), student supervision and advising, and participation in service activities at the department and college/university level. The typical teaching load is 12 units (three courses) per quarter, with a reduction in course load in each of the first two years to help new faculty establish an active program of research and professional development. Cal Poly strongly values diversity, equity, and inclusion (DEI), especially in the classroom and among its areas of study.

The College of Liberal Arts (CLA) sees diversity as central to its mission and is committed to fostering an equitable and inclusive environment within the college and university. We value our diversity of complex and intersecting identities, while striving to maintain an environment that is equitable, respectful, and inclusive. The successful applicant should be able to clearly demonstrate how they have infused these values and student learning objectives into their work. They should be prepared to present clear examples of how they would infuse these areas into their work as a faculty member.

At California Polytechnic State University, San Luis Obispo, we believe that cultivating an environment that embraces and promotes diversity is fundamental to the success of our students, our employees and our community. Bringing people together from different backgrounds and experiences fosters the innovative and creative thinking that exemplifies Cal Poly's values of free inquiry and reflection on impacts of cultural context, mutual respect, civic engagement, and social and environmental responsibility. Cal Poly's commitment to DEI informs our efforts in recruitment, hiring and retention. California Polytechnic State University is an equal opportunity employer.

Required Qualifications:

- Ph.D. in Political Science or a closely related field
- Demonstrated experience and commitment to student-centered learning and teaching,
- The ability to collaboratively work in multidisciplinary settings is required.
- Demonstrated proficiency in written and oral use of the English language is required.

Preferred Qualifications:

- J.D. (in addition to the Ph.D.) is preferred but not required;
- Teaching and research interest in social justice issues;
- Preference will be given to those with experience in working with diverse populations and fostering a collaborative, supportive and inclusive environment;
- Preference will also be given to those with relevant work experience and those who bring professional capabilities.

The person holding this position is considered a 'mandated reporter' under the California Child Abuse and Neglect Reporting Act and is required to comply with the requirements set forth in CSU Executive Order 1083 as a condition of employment.

Following a conditional offer of employment, a background check (including a criminal records check) must be completed satisfactorily before any candidate may start work with Cal Poly, San Luis Obispo. Failure to satisfactorily complete the background check may result in the withdrawal of the offer of employment. Note: Cal Poly cannot deny an applicant a position solely or in part due to a criminal conviction history until it has performed an individualized assessment and linked the relevant conviction history with specific job duties in the position being sought.

Please note: Current employees who are offered positions on campus will be required to undergo a background check for any position where a background check is required by law or that Cal Poly has designated as sensitive. Sensitive positions are those requiring heightened scrutiny of individuals holding the position based on potential for harm to children, concerns for the safety and security of people, animals, or property, or heightened risk of financial loss to Cal Poly or individuals in the university community.

For health and well-being, Cal Poly is a smoke & tobacco-free campus. The university is committed to promoting a healthy environment for all members of our community.

In accordance with the California State University (CSU) Out-of-State Employment Policy, the CSU is a state entity whose business operations reside within the State of California and prohibits hiring employees to perform CSU related work outside of California.

About the Department

The Cal Poly Political Science Department prides itself on its collegiality and commitment to excellence in teaching and scholarship. The department serves approximately 350 majors, 180 minors, and 25 graduate students. At the undergraduate level, the department offers concentrations in American Politics, Global Politics, Pre-Law and Individualized Courses of Study, as well as minors in Law & Society, Political Science, and Global Politics. It also administers a Master of Public Policy Program.

University of Richmond

Rank: Assistant Professor of Leadership Studies

Specializations: Leadership Studies, Political Philosophy & Theory, Political Behavior

The University of Richmond's Jepson School of Leadership Studies (JSLS) invites applications for a full-time tenure-track position at the rank of Assistant Professor to begin in the 2024-25 academic year.

The successful candidate must have completed a Ph.D. in Philosophy or a related field by August 15, 2024. We seek applicants with the potential and desire to develop, from their disciplinary training, an active scholarly agenda on the ethics of leadership. Successful candidates' specific areas of expertise and experience should be in applied or professional ethics, including (but not limited to) political or business ethics.

JSLS is a collaborative, inclusive community of scholars with representation from diverse humanities and social science disciplines. Applicants should have the potential and desire to teach in our interdisciplinary undergraduate liberal arts environment (see <http://jepson.richmond.edu/> for more information). The successful candidate will be expected to teach required courses such as Leadership Ethics, Critical Thinking, and Leadership and the Humanities, as well as elective courses that address leadership from a philosophical perspective. Applicants should also be prepared to share in responsibilities for coaching our "Ethics Bowl" team.

The University of Richmond is a private university located just a short drive from downtown Richmond, Virginia. Through its five schools (including JSLS) and wide array of campus programming, the University combines the best qualities of a small liberal arts college and a large university. With approximately 4,000 students, an 8:1 student-faculty ratio, and more than 90% of traditional undergraduate students living on campus, the University is remarkably student-centered, focused on preparing students "to live lives of purpose, thoughtful inquiry, and responsible leadership in a global and pluralistic society."

The University of Richmond is committed to developing a diverse and inclusive campus community, which values the expression of difference in ways that promote a sense of belonging as well as excellence in teaching, learning, and personal development. The JSLS supports the University's commitment to promoting a diverse and inclusive campus community.

Applicants should apply online at <http://jobs.richmond.edu> and submit a curriculum vitae, cover letter, and teaching statement. In their cover letter, candidates should demonstrate how, given their scholarly and teaching interests, they have the potential to address issues in leadership ethics from a philosophical perspective. In addition, applicants should specify in their cover letters how they are prepared to contribute to the unique, interdisciplinary environment at JSLS and to diversity and inclusion. Candidates for this position may be asked, at a later date, to provide the names and contact information for three references who will be asked to submit letters of recommendation. The teaching statement should articulate the candidate's teaching philosophy and experience, particularly as they relate to the courses the successful candidate is expected to teach.

Review of applications will commence November 1, 2023; the deadline for applications is November 15, 2023. Phone or Zoom interviews will be conducted in December. We anticipate inviting candidates to campus in January.

University of Washington

Rank: Assistant Professor of Law, Societies and Justice

The Department of Law, Societies and Justice (LSJ) at the University of Washington's Seattle campus invites applications for a full-time, tenure-track Assistant Professor position focusing on race/racialization as it relates to law, rights, and justice. This position is part of a multiple hiring process aimed at enhancing LSJ's excellence in the area of race, law, rights, and justice. The successful applicant will be expected to support LSJ's commitment to inclusive teaching, mentorship, community engagement, and research excellence. The successful candidate will teach a large introductory course and upper-level courses, including courses focusing on race, law, rights, and justice in the United States and possibly elsewhere. As part of an interdisciplinary liberal arts education, LSJ features dynamic classroom conversations with diverse undergraduate students and experiential learning opportunities that enable our students to explore and tackle various inequities and injustices. LSJ's undergraduate student body is approximately 1/3 first-generation and ¼ Pell-eligible, and the Department is administrative home to the Disability Studies Program. LSJ also offers a graduate certificate for PhD students from a variety of disciplines. We welcome applications from candidates with all types of social science training, including, but not limited to, scholars who take humanistic and/or interdisciplinary approaches. Tenure track faculty at the University of Washington engage in teaching, research, and service and have an annual service period of nine months (Sept 16-June 15). This position is a 100% FTE, tenure eligible position, and is expected to start in September 2024. Washington State Law requires that this ad list a binding salary range. The base salary range for this position will be $9,250 - $13,500 per month on a 9-month basis ($83,250 - $121,500 annually), commensurate with experience and qualifications, or as mandated by a U.S. Department of Labor prevailing wage determination.

Positive factors for consideration include, but are not limited to, research quality and productivity (as demonstrated through publications and/or presentations, for example); excellence in undergraduate teaching; contributions to DEI; and a record of service such as public scholarship, community engagement, and/or service to the profession.

Qualifications

Applicants should demonstrate 1) evidence of an active research agenda foregrounding race/racialization in the context of law, rights, and justice; 2) evidence of experience or preparation to teach on race in the contemporary United States; and 3) a plan for successful teaching with students from diverse backgrounds.

Candidates should have completed all requirements for a Ph.D. in a social science or related interdisciplinary field (or foreign equivalent) by the appointment start date, although applicants at the ABD level will also be considered.

Application Instructions

Applications should include a cover letter, current CV, research statement, teaching statement, DEI statement, writing sample, and three letters of recommendation. The research statement should describe the applicant's substantive research interests, experiences, and plans for future research. The teaching statement should describe the applicant's teaching philosophy and undergraduate and graduate teaching interests, and describe race, law, rights, or justice related courses that the applicant has taught and/or is prepared to teach in LSJ. The DEI statement should describe the applicant's efforts to support diversity, equity, and inclusion and ideas for expanding that work. Each statement should be no more than 500 words. All application materials must be submitted online at: <https://apply.interfolio.com/128598>

Review of applications will begin on September 1, 2023. Questions about this position should be directed to Angelina Godoy, Search Committee Chair, at agodoy@uw.edu.

Occidental College

Rank: Professor of Politics, open rank, in the subfield of Public Law

The Department of Politics at Occidental College invites applications for a tenured/tenure-track faculty appointment, open rank, in the subfield of Public Law with appointment to begin fall 2024.

Position

The Politics Department invites applications from scholars in the political science subfield of public law, who work within the areas of judicial politics or law and society. We are interested in scholars whose work addresses fundamental questions of equity, equality and justice in the law and/or in society, in the United States or in comparative context. We especially welcome applications from scholars committed to offering community-based or practice-oriented law classes, and who may--depending on their interests, strength, and background--contribute to the college's pre-law program (such as through supporting pre-law advising, advising student internships, or developing activities such as Moot Court). We value knowledge about, a track-record of, and plans for advancing justice, equity, inclusion and diversity in teaching and mentoring.

Occidental faculty are committed teacher-scholars who bring research and creative discovery to life for students in classrooms, labs, studios, and mentored projects. They teach broadly in the curricula of their departments, advise students, carry out research, and provide departmental, college wide, and external service. The Politics Department is especially committed to preparing our students to be well informed, curious, and engaged leaders by delving into the subfields of political science and putting theory into practice. In this position, your primary responsibilities will include the development and teaching of a number of courses in the public law subfield, including POLS 140 (Law and Society), POLS 244 (Constitutional Law), and POLS 245 (Constitutional Law: Civil Rights and Civil Liberties). You will also have the opportunity to develop lower and upper division classes in your area of expertise and teach in our First Year Seminar program. You will further produce scholarship commensurate with the requirements for tenure and/or promotion. You will also be expected to contribute to and participate in the life and development of the department, advise and mentor students, serve on committees, participate in the broader college and disciplinary communities, and establish a track-record of advancing justice, equity, inclusion, and diversity.

Required Qualifications

-Ph.D. in political science and/or JD – Applicants may be Ph.D. candidates in political science who expect to have their Ph.D. in hand by August 1, 2024.

-background or specialization in public law with focus on judicial politics or law and society

-demonstrated commitment to and excellence in undergraduate teaching

-a strong record of scholarly accomplishments appropriate to the level of appointment

-experience in working collaboratively with colleagues

-demonstrated commitment to working effectively with students from minoritized and marginalized social groups

-ability to balance excellent teaching, scholarship, and service

-demonstrated commitment to the four cornerstones of the mission of the College: excellence, equity, community, and service

Preferred Qualifications

-experience with community-based or practice-oriented law courses

-experience working with undergraduate pre-law programs

Expected Salary Range $84,500 - $145,000

Application Submission Materials

You must submit a complete application package electronically to be considered. To apply, please visit <http://apply.interfolio.com/129284>

-Cover Letter in which you respond to the position description, required and preferred qualifications

-Curriculum Vitae

-Research Statement

-Teaching Philosophy Statement

-Commitment to Inclusive Excellence Statement

This statement provides your unique perspective on your past and present contributions to and future aspirations for promoting justice, equity, inclusion, and diversity in your professional career. This should include your demonstrated commitment to, past evidence of, and future plans for creating equitable opportunities for learning and mentoring especially for students from marginalized and minoritized groups. The purpose of this statement is to help the department identify candidates who have professional experience, intellectual commitments, and/or willingness to engage in activities that could help the College contribute to its mission in these areas.

-List of three references with relevant contact information

If you advance to the finalist phase, you will be asked to have each of your three references submit a letter of recommendation. Please have these ready for the referents to submit should you move forward to this phase of the search. Do not submit these letters with your initial application.

Please direct all questions about the position to: Regina Freer, Chair of Politics at rffreer@oxy.edu or call 323-259-2924.

Application Deadline

To be assured full consideration, your application materials must be received by September 15, 2023.

The Department and College

The dynamic curriculum and exciting faculty research agendas in the Politics department focus on questions of democracy, social justice, power, rights, and liberties. We work closely with our students, preparing them to become well-informed and engaged leaders in our increasingly complex, interdependent world, combining rigorous in-classroom work, research, and community-based experiential learning opportunities. The faculty are active scholars and contributors to the local, state, national, and international communities.

Additional Information

Occidental is an Equal Opportunity Employer and does not unlawfully discriminate against employees or applicants on the basis of race, color, religion, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, gender expression, pregnancy, breastfeeding or related medical condition, national origin, ancestry, citizenship, age, marital status, physical disability, mental disability, medical condition, genetic characteristic or information, military and veteran status, or any other characteristic protected by state or federal law. Occidental is strongly committed to increasing the diversity of the campus community and the curriculum, and to fostering an inclusive, equitable, and just environment within which students, staff, administrators, and faculty thrive. Candidates who can contribute to this goal through their teaching, research, advising, and other activities are encouraged to identify their strengths and experiences in this area. Individuals advancing the College's strategic equity and justice goals and those from groups whose underrepresentation in the American professoriate has been severe and longstanding are particularly encouraged to apply.

Salary is commensurate with experience and qualifications. Moving expense reimbursement (up to $5000, taxable according to current IRS regulations), start-up funds, and a one-course reduction of teaching load in the first year are provided. A comprehensive benefits package is available that includes: excellent health, dental, life, and retirement benefits; tuition benefits for the employee, spouse, domestic partner, and dependents; additional extras including use of gym facilities and the College Library. For a detailed description of benefits, please visit <https://www.oxy.edu/offices-services/human-resources/benefits-information>.

All qualified applicants will be considered for employment, including those with criminal histories, in a manner consistent with the requirements of applicable state and local laws, including the City of Los Angeles' Fair Chance Initiative for Hiring Ordinance.

Occidental College is committed to working with and providing reasonable accommodations to applicants with qualifying disabilities. If you need a reasonable accommodation because of a disability for any part of the application or employment process, please contact Human Resources (hr@oxy.edu).

University of San Diego

Rank: Assistant Professor in Public Law

The Department of Political Science and International Relations at the University of San Diego invites applications for a tenure track position at the Assistant Professor level with expertise in public law.

Successful candidates should be committed to excellent, inclusive teaching at the lower and upper division levels, and to engage in student advising. Candidates will pursue a scholarly agenda and engage in service at the departmental, college, and university levels. The teaching load is three courses per semester. The University of San Diego is a teaching focused liberal arts institution, and all faculty in the department of Political Science and International Relations are committed to offering a range of courses aligned with their interests and in support of the departmental curriculum.

The candidate will offer courses that address the relationships between the law, politics, and structural inequity, with a specific expectation that they will regularly offer upper division courses in Constitutional Law and lower division courses in political theory and/or race and ethnic politics. Within the scope of these parameters, the position is open to teacher-scholars of a variety of sub-disciplinary approaches to public law, including law & society, political theory, judicial politics, legal institutions, critical legal studies, politics of race & ethnicity, feminist legal theory, or comparative law. The successful candidate will also contribute courses in other core areas of departmental curriculum need and participate actively in student advising, including especially pre-law advising.

In addition to outlining their own interests in and approaches to teaching and research in a liberal arts environment, candidates should also describe how their research or teaching connects to one or more of the following three cluster themes in the College of Arts and Sciences. (link to cluster hire here: <https://www.sandiego.edu/cas/about/diversity-equity-inclusion/hiring.php>). These clusters will include new faculty from multiple academic disciplines who have research or teaching interests in one of the following substantive themes: Borders and Social Justice, Technology and the Human Experience, and Climate Change and Environmental Justice. The goal of these themed clusters is to facilitate collaborative research, provide opportunities for interdisciplinary teaching, and build community among faculty and students throughout the University. Candidates are encouraged to interpret these themes broadly and creatively to indicate how their teaching and research in political science and public law may be understood to intersect with one or more of the three themes.

Click Apply Now at the following link to apply: <https://jobs.sandiego.edu/cw/en-us/job/496415/assistant-professor-of-political-science-and-international-relations-in-public-law>

Candidates are asked to submit, at the earliest convenience, but no later than August 21, 2023, the following materials:

Letter of application
Curriculum vitae

Letters of application should explain how the candidate's expertise aligns with the job description of this position as described above, including especially teaching interests and reference to the cluster(s) of interest. The department will review these materials, and candidates will be notified of the department's interest on a rolling basis, but no later than September 8.

At that point, we will invite candidates in whom the department is interested to submit the following further materials:

Teaching Statement and a sample syllabus
Research Statement and a sample of scholarly or creative work
Diversity statement, in which you address A) your values with respect to diversity, equity, and inclusion; B) your experience working with minoritized populations and/or on issues that disproportionately affect diverse populations, and C) your plans related to diversity and inclusion in your teaching and research.
Contact information for three references who will be sent a link to upload letters.

Contact: Questions should be directed to the Search Committee Chair, Dr. Timothy Wyman McCarty, tmccarty@sandiego.edu.

University of Puget Sound

Rank: Visiting Assistant Professor

Visiting Assistant Professor, University of Puget Sound

Appointment: One-year visiting assistant professor in US politics for the 2023-2024 academic year. Responsibilities/Description: We are seeking a scholar of US politics to teach six courses for the year. Courses will include Constitutional Law, Introduction to US Politics, and courses that match the interest and expertise of the successful applicant. While not required, applications are encouraged from scholars who could offer courses appealing to student interests in critical approaches or in areas such as indigenous rights or immigration law. There are also opportunities to connect with scholars and students in a range of interdisciplinary programs including a new Crime, Law, and Justice program; African American Studies; and Latinx Studies.

Qualifications: A doctoral degree (ABD considered) in Political Science and a commitment to undergraduate education are required. Candidates must demonstrate a willingness and ability to address the needs of historically underrepresented students. Successful applicants will have expertise in the US courts or the law. We are interested in candidates with a range of secondary interests including but not limited to parties, political behavior, or US institutions.

Application Deadline: Review of applications will begin March 1 and continue until position is filled.

Required Documents:

- Curriculum vitae
- Letter of interest
- Teaching statement
- Diversity statement (see prompt below)
- Sample syllabi of courses you would be prepared to teach
- A research sample (e.g. article, dissertation chapter, conference presentation)
- Contact information for three (3) references. You will be prompted to enter the contact information for three (3) reference providers. The system will automatically email these reference providers to request a letter.

Applicant's Diversity Statement. As a department and university, we are strongly committed to creating an inclusive and effective teaching, learning, and working environment for all. In the applicant's diversity statement, applicants should comment on their ability to contribute meaningfully to our on-going commitment to be informed and competent with regard to issues of diversity, equity, and individual differences. We encourage applicants to reference the University of Puget Sound's current Diversity Strategic Plan (DSP) at <https://www.pugetsound.edu/equity-diversity-puget-sound/threshold-2022-cultivating-culture-inclusive-excellence> prior to writing this statement. While not an exhaustive list, the following are some ways applicants can express their qualifications:

- Demonstration of your awareness of inequities for underrepresented student populations in education, research experience, and other opportunities;
- Brief insights on why diversity is important at institutions like the University of Puget Sound;
- Your lived experiences and/or identities that speak to the department and university's commitment to inclusion and diversity; Infusion of diversity and diversity-related issues into your research, pedagogy, and/or service;
- Previous and/or current activities involving mentoring underrepresented student populations;
- Brief insights on how cultural competency increases one's effectiveness as an educator and department/university colleague.

California State University, Fullerton

Rank: Assistant Professor of Public Administration

The Division of Politics, Administration, and Justice at California State University, Fullerton, invites applications for a tenure-track Assistant Professor position in Public Administration with an appointment to begin Fall 2024.

California State University, Fullerton (CSUF) is a minority-serving institution, affirmative action, and equal opportunity employer. CSUF is firmly committed to increasing the diversity of the campus community and the curriculum and fostering an inclusive environment within which students, staff, administrators, and faculty thrive. Candidates who can contribute to this goal through their teaching, research, advising and other activities are encouraged to identify their strengths and experiences. Individuals advancing the University's strategic diversity goals and those from groups whose underrepresentation in the American professoriate has been severe and longstanding are particularly encouraged to apply.

CSUF is committed to retaining all faculty and has established affinity groups you can join to support your success. The CSU is currently engaged in a directed multi-year initiative to improve graduation rates for all students, with a particular focus on first-generation college students, low-socioeconomic students, Latinx, African American, and Native American students.

We are committed to pedagogy and scholarship that acknowledges historical and current structural inequalities. We will prioritize candidates whose work will engage students in questions of fairness in public policy and governance.

Position

CSUF faculty are committed teacher/scholars who bring research and creative discovery to life for students in classrooms, labs, studios, and individually mentored projects. They teach broadly in the curricula of their departments, advise students, and serve on departmental and university-wide committees. The person's primary responsibilities in this position will include developing and teaching courses in public administration and their area(s) of specialization. Specific courses that this person will teach may include graduate and undergraduate courses in at least three of the following areas: Public Policy Analysis, Public Policy Process, Research Methods, Public Economics, and/or Public Finance. This person will also be responsible for producing scholarship or creative work commensurate with the requirements for tenure. The successful candidate will also be expected to contribute to and participate in the life and development of the MPA program, advise students, serve on committees, and participate in the broader university and disciplinary communities.

Required Qualifications

- Ph.D. in Public Administration, Public Affairs, or a related field, research specialization open
- Ability to teach graduate and/or undergraduate courses in at least two of the following areas: Public Policy Analysis, Public Policy Process, Research Methods, Public Economics, and/or Public Finance.
- A strong record of scholarly accomplishments appropriate to the level of appointment
- Ability to balance excellent teaching, scholarship, and service
- Ability to integrate technology into class instruction
- Demonstrated knowledge or experience in public administration and/or public affairs education

Preferred Qualifications

- Ability to teach graduate and/or undergraduate courses in at least three of the following areas: Public Policy Analysis, Public Policy Process, Research Methods, Public Economics, and/or Public Finance.
- A coherent research agenda
- Ability and/or experience teaching in multiple modalities
- Experience working in or with governments or not-for-profit organizations
- Demonstrated commitment to and excellence in teaching in a public administration or public affairs program
- Demonstrated commitment to working effectively with students from marginalized social groups
- Experience working collaboratively with colleagues
- A commitment to high-quality graduate and undergraduate education

Application

A complete online application must be received by electronic submission to be considered. To apply, please visit <http://hr.fullerton.edu/careers/Faculty.php>, choose full-time faculty, search for position 531196, and provide the following required materials:

- Cover letter in which you respond to the required qualifications
- Curriculum vitae
- Graduate transcripts
- Research statement (1-2 pages)
- Writing/publication sample(s)
- Teaching statement (1-2 pages)
- Teaching materials (sample of syllabi, assignments, performance data, etc.)
- Candidate statement on commitment to inclusive excellence

o This statement provides the candidate's unique perspective on their past and present contributions to and future aspirations for promoting diversity, inclusion, and social justice in their professional careers. This statement aims to help the department identify candidates with professional experience, intellectual commitments, and/or willingness to engage in activities that could help CSUF contribute to its mission in these areas. The statement shall address one or more of the following criteria:

1. The candidate has acquired knowledge of barriers for underrepresented students and faculty in higher education.
 2. The candidate has experience in and is committed to engaging in service with underrepresented populations in higher education.
 3. The candidate has experience in and is committed to teaching and/or mentoring underrepresented students in a higher education environment.
 4. The candidate has experience integrating underrepresented populations and communities into scholarly and creative activities.
- A list of three references with relevant contact information
- o Semi-finalists must submit three letters of recommendation. Please have these ready for the referents to submit. On the References page of the online application, enter information and email addresses for three referents who will provide a confidential letter of reference for your application. At the appropriate time in the search process, they will receive a request via email along with information on uploading the letter. You can verify that CSUF has received each letter by logging back into your applicant portal.

Finalists will be asked to have each of their three referents submit a letter of recommendation. Please have these ready for the referents to offer should you proceed to this search phase.

Please direct all questions about the position to: Dr. Samuel B. Stone at ssone@fullerton.edu or call 657-278-3728.

Application Deadline

To be assured full consideration, all application materials must be received by October 15, 2023. The anticipated appointment date is August 2024

Copenhagen Business School

Subfield(s): Comparative Politics, Methodology, Public Policy

We invite applications for a 2-year postdoc on the project "The Determinants and Consequences of Legislative Capacity" starting August 1st, 2024. The project is led by associate professors Florian M. Hollenbach (CBS) and David Fortunato (UCSD) and funded by the Independent Research Fund Denmark. The postdoc will be based at the Department of International Economics, Government and Business (EGB) at the Copenhagen Business School. It is a 100% research postdoc—there are no teaching requirements. It is our hope that the postdoc will coauthor with the project leaders and develop publications related to the project.

The project

Because policy is written by elected representatives but implemented by unelected bureaucratic agents with their own preferences, the legislature's capacity for ex-ante policy design and ex-post oversight sets a de facto budget constraint on potential democratic responsiveness. Importantly, parliaments choose their own capacity by allocating resources necessary for legislative work, yet we observe tremendous variation in these endowments. Why? In this project, we investigate the determinants of capacity choices and their broader implications for democratic accountability.

The "Legislative Capacity" project consists of two work packages. Work package I will focus on developing a formal theoretical model of the legislature's choice over its capacity for policy influence. The model will consider the trade-offs for current majorities to increase capacity to improve its policy making power while also handing more efficient institutions to future governments, should it lose power. Work package II moves on to empirically investigate the relationships predicted by the theoretical model. To do so, we will collect data on legislative capacity in OECD countries over the last 20 years, as well as subnational legislatures.

The postdoc will work on both packages, contributing to development of the central theoretical model, data collection, analysis, and writing. It is essential that applicants have strong research potential in comparative political economy and the ability to work in a team environment, collaborating/co-authoring with other team members.

Non-exhaustive examples of research areas that the postdoc may cover:

- Comparative Political Economy
- Social Data Science
- Quantitative Methods
- Formal Modelling
- Political Institutions

Department

EGB is a multidisciplinary department that conducts high-quality research in the fields of international business and political science with direct relevance to business, policymakers, and the public. Research at the department focuses on two principal focus areas Business & Government and International Business, in relation to societal challenges. To learn more about the research and education of the department, please visit the departmental homepage; www.cbs.dk/egb.

Qualifications

The applicant must have completed – or be close to completing – a PhD in the political science, political economy, or a related field. The applicant must have excellent research skills and proficiency in English (written and spoken). The ideal applicant will have solid skills in formal modelling and advanced quantitative methods.

To fulfill the research requirements of the position, the postdoc is expected to be physically present at the department on a regular basis.

Copenhagen Business School has a broad commitment to the excellence, distinctiveness and relevance of its teaching and research programs. Candidates who wish to join us should demonstrate enthusiasm for working in an organization of this type.

Appointment and salary will be in accordance with the Ministry of Finance's agreement with the Central Academic Organisation (presently approximately $70,080 USD including pension contribution).

Applications must be sent via the electronic recruitment system, using the link; <https://www.cbs.dk/en/about-cbs/jobs-cbs/vacant-positions/postdoc-in-business-and-government-copenhagen-business-school-2-years>

Applications must include:

- A cover letter outlining the candidate's main strengths and abilities.
- Transcript(s) and a full CV
- A job market paper
- A complete, numbered list of publications (indicating titles, co-authors, page numbers and year) with an * marking of the academic productions to be considered during the assessment. A maximum of 5 publications for assessment are allowed. Applicants are requested to prioritise their publications in relation to the field of this job advertisement.

Copies of the publications marked with an *. Only publications written in English (or another specified principal language, according to research tradition) or one of the Scandinavian languages will be taken into consideration)

A brief (1-page) research statement for the 2-year postdoc period, and possibly beyond.

Recruitment procedure

The Recruitment Committee will shortlist a minimum of two applicants; when possible five or more applicants will be shortlisted. The shortlisted applicants will be assessed by the Assessment Committee. All applicants will be notified of their status in the recruitment process shortly after the application deadline.

The applicants selected for assessment will be notified about the composition of the Assessment Committee and later in the process about the result of the assessment.

Once the recruitment process is completed each applicant will be notified of the outcome of their application.

Closing date: October 30, 2023

Copenhagen Business School must receive all application material, including all appendices (see items above), by the application deadline.

For further information about the project, please contact: Associate Professor Florian M. Hollenbach, e-mail: fho.egb@cbs.dk.

Position description

The Goldman School of Public Policy and the School of Information at the University of California, Berkeley, invite applications for a joint tenure-track appointment to the faculty at the Assistant Professor rank.

We seek applications from intellectually rigorous and exciting scholars who have already completed their degree requirements, with preference for those who are currently serving in industry, post-doc positions, or at the assistant professor rank. Ideal candidates will have research foci in one or more broad areas at the intersection of technology and policy - including digital democracy, privacy and security, and data science from a policy analysis perspective - and who can teach innovative courses on these topics to graduate students in both Public Policy and Information Schools. We seek applicants with expertise in technology combined with an explicit policy domain including, but not limited to: policies and regulation for AI/automation; racial-ethnic and social justice; public health; climate change and environmental sustainability; election and voting integrity; social media, journalism and information integrity; public administration and agile government; planning, infrastructure, and transportation; and law and technology regulation.

We encourage applications from individuals of any scholarly discipline whose research focuses on these questions. Preference will be given to scholars who have demonstrated the potential to make significant research contributions and who have a clear interest in contributing to both the School of Public Policy and the School of Information.

The Goldman School of Public Policy (GSPP) at the University of California, Berkeley's holds the #1 US News and World Report rankings in Policy Analysis, and in Social Policy, and we are committed proudly to equity and justice for the public good. The School of Information is a graduate research and education community committed to expanding access to information and to improving its usability, reliability, and credibility while preserving security and privacy. This requires the insights of scholars from diverse fields — information and computer science, design, social sciences, management, law, and policy. GSPP and the I School are particularly interested in candidates who will contribute to diversity, inclusive perspectives, collegial respect, and support for underserved student populations through their intellectual voice and actions in research, teaching, and service. This commitment to advancing equity and inclusion is essential for GSPP and the I School, as our excellence can only be fully realized if our entire community shares in the commitment to these values. Additional information about programs and resources supporting the advancement of diversity, equity, inclusion, and belonging is available at: <https://ls.berkeley.edu/about/diversity-equity-and-inclusion> and at: <https://www.ischool.berkeley.edu/about/community>

The Goldman School of Public Policy and the School of Information are committed to addressing the family needs of faculty, including dual career couples and single parents. We are also interested in candidates who have had non-traditional career paths or who have taken time off for family reasons, or who have achieved excellence in careers outside academia. Preferred qualifications

Preference will be given to scholars who have already demonstrated significant research contributions, who have a clear interest in interdisciplinary scholarship, and who are interested in teaching in both the School of Public Policy and the School of Information. Public-sector experience is also desirable. Candidates will be evaluated on the following criteria:

- Excellence in research, including quality and trajectory;
- Teaching and mentoring ability for graduate students;

- Fit with the research and teaching desires and needs of the Schools;
- Ability and interest in bridging fields and topics in an interdisciplinary manner;
- Public/professional sector experience and impact; and

Position description

The Goldman School of Public Policy (GSPP) at the University of California, Berkeley's holds the #1 US News and World Report rankings in Policy Analysis, and in Social Policy, and we are committed proudly to equity and justice for the public good. We seek applicants for a tenure-track, Assistant Professor position as part of the Berkeley's (Non)Citizenship Cluster search. Successful applicants will have primary research using analytical methods to examine policy areas that enhance, sustain, or threaten citizenship as a legal and cultural status combining civil, political, and social rights with a sense of identity. Focal areas include, but are not limited to immigration, voting and election policy, refugee/asylee policy, legal, social, and cultural incorporation processes, and other relevant topics touching upon the determinants of citizenship in the face of increasing threats of democracy and international mobility.

Successful candidates' scholarship must speak to and advance the goals of the "Understanding (Non)Citizenship" initiative at the University of California, Berkeley, which aims to hire an interdisciplinary cluster of faculty on this topic over two years. The cluster tackles three overarching themes: issues of justice, fairness and equality as related to (non)citizenship; the determinants and content of (non)citizenship; and the consequences of (non)citizenship. The cluster considers citizenship broadly, as a legal, social and cultural status that combines civil, political and social rights with a sense of identity, encompassing those who lack formal citizenship but also those who experience "second-class" citizenship through differential rights and treatment. Fully understanding (non)citizenship requires an interdisciplinary approach: claims for citizenship and equality are invariably normative, while the consequences and drivers of (non)citizenship must be studied empirically to understand change and effects. For this reason, this innovative cluster of faculty hiring will bring together diverse units in the social sciences, humanities and professional schools across UC-Berkeley. Faculty hired through the Understanding (Non)Citizenship cluster will hold positions in Philosophy, Political Science, Public Policy, Sociology and Law.

The successful applicant's faculty line would rest within GSPP. Ideal candidates will be prepared for an intellectually and methodologically rigorous academic setting, working with an exciting and energetic group of faculty committed to public impact and change. We seek scholars who have already completed their degree requirements and are currently serving in industry, post-doc positions, or at the assistant professor rank; but will consider highly productive scholars near degree completion. Candidates should have an existing track-record of independent or collaborative research excellence, experience or aspirations to teach and be actively engaged in a professional graduate school setting, and a commitment to interdisciplinary perspectives and collegial service. We encourage applications from individuals with an understanding of, and commitment to, the public university mission, as well as a familiarity with schools of public policy. Prior policy-related work experience is desirable.

GSPP is particularly interested in candidates who will contribute to diversity, inclusive perspectives, collegial respect, and support for underserved student populations through their intellectual voice and actions in research, teaching, and service. This commitment to advancing equity and inclusion is essential for GSPP, as our excellence can only be fully realized if our entire community shares in the commitment to these values. Additional information about programs and resources supporting the advancement of diversity, equity, inclusion, and belonging is available at: <https://diversity.berkeley.edu/>

Rank: Faculty - Public Policy - Full Time, Temporary

Specializations: Race & Ethnic Politics, Housing, Education Policy

The politics, policy and international relations department at Salem State University invites a full-time, temporary faculty position for the 2024-2025 academic year. We are seeking a public policy specialist with familiarity with policies in an urban context such as housing, education, transportation, policing, poverty, and/or immigration. This position is part of a Salem State initiative to help establish and advance our proposed North Shore Policy Lab and may be reappointed for up to two additional years subject to available funding. With continued growth of the program, there may be additional tenure track lines in the department.

Housed in the department's Bates Center for Public and Global Affairs, the North Shore Policy Lab will involve students in research conducted on behalf of local and state government and non-governmental organizations in order to prepare them for jobs in the public, non-profit and/or private sectors.

The candidate should be well-versed in both quantitative and qualitative research methods and be able to teach our current Research Methods course as well as a new, advanced multi-methods class that will serve as the foundation for student work on applied policy research projects as a part of the policy lab. The ideal candidate will have a demonstrated record of community-based research and community partnerships with a focus on equity issues in the context of urban areas like those served by Salem State.

Salem State University is committed to excellence in teaching. We pride ourselves in providing first-rate classroom experiences and supervising intensive learning opportunities such as research and internships. Many of our students are first generation, racial/ethnic minorities, veterans, and adult learners. Salem State University is located in the Greater Boston area in the historic city of Salem, Massachusetts. The Greater Boston region is famous for its world-class education, healthcare, and business enterprises and the area offers numerous opportunities for professional and personal enrichment.

Duties and Responsibilities

Candidates are required to perform duties in accordance with the MSCA contract. Duties include teaching, advising, scholarship and contributions to continuously improve the department and university. The standard teaching load is 12 credit hours per semester. The position is subject to available funding.

Required Qualifications:

Earned PhD in public policy or a related field from an accredited institution (ABD considered if degree will be conferred by September 2024)

Advising and/or mentoring experience

Preferred Qualifications:

Commitment to anti-racist, culturally responsive teaching

Demonstrated expertise in community-based research

Active publication record and/or exemplary scholarly potential (e.g., ABD candidates with strong pipeline of research)

Prior applied experience in non-profit or public sector settings

Demonstrated excellence in teaching

As an emerging Hispanic Serving Institution (HSI), Salem State University seeks to enrich the faculty/librarian ranks by actively encouraging candidates whose lived and scholarly experiences directly address issues regarding the health, welfare, and representation of Latinx populations in the United States. Candidates who meet this strongly desired qualification should present documented activities in Latinx-related teaching, scholarship/research, and service, including community-based endeavors in each of these three areas.

Working Conditions:

This is an on-site, in-person position.

Salem State University complies with the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA) to provide reasonable accommodation to qualified applicants and employees with disabilities. For accommodation information or requests please email eo-hr@salemstate.edu.

Special Instructions to Applicants:

Please apply online and attach curriculum vitae, cover letter, teaching philosophy, and a diversity statement (please read our institutional diversity statement and describe how you would contribute to our mission in your teaching, research, mentoring/advising, and service).

The online portal can be found at: <https://internal-salemstate.icims.com/jobs/2894/faculty%2c-political-science-%28public-policy%29%2c-full-time%2c-temporary%2c-fall-2024/job>

Employment is contingent upon a completed background and CORI check satisfactory to the university.

This position is not eligible for H1B visa sponsorship.

Please Note: If there is no application deadline associated with a position, it may be removed at any time and additional applications will not be accepted.

University of British Columbia

Rank: Assistant Professor in China Policy and Governance

The School of Public Policy and Global Affairs (SPPGA) at The University of British Columbia (Vancouver) invites applications for the tenure-track position of Assistant Professor in China Policy and Governance to begin on July 1, 2024.

We seek a scholar who engages in applied research on policy and governance issues related to China. This may include expertise on issues of policy and governance within China, with regards to China's global engagements, and/or comparative work between Chinese and other actors or institutions. We welcome and are committed to supporting candidates with critical perspectives, from a broad array of personal backgrounds and experiences, and across a range of potential disciplinary training. Evidence of experience in communicating to both academic and non-academic audiences and contributing to or influencing policy will be considered an asset.

Candidates should have demonstrated excellence or promise of excellence in research and have a strong commitment to teaching. The successful candidate will be expected to develop and support a dynamic research program, including active policy engagements. The position is open to those specializing in quantitative as well as qualitative research. They are expected to contribute to teaching in the core curriculum of the professional Master of Public Policy and Global Affairs (MPPGA) as well as elective courses on China.

Candidates for this position must have a completed Ph.D. from any disciplinary or interdisciplinary field within the social sciences. Those who have progressed to the point where completion of the PhD is imminent and who demonstrate clear and superior promise of excellent research and teaching will also be considered. The successful candidate is expected to have a Ph.D. for the start of the appointment. The anticipated start date is July 1, 2024.

Applicants should be prepared to upload by the closing deadline of October 16, 2023 in the following order and in a single PDF file (maximum size 15MB):

- Cover letter (up to 2 pages) that contains:
 - o description of current and proposed research;
 - o teaching interests and accomplishments;
 - o experience of contributing to, or influencing, policy;
 - o names and contact information for three scholars from whom confidential letters of assessment can be obtained.
- Curriculum vitae;
- Description of current and proposed research (up to 2 pages);
- Statement (300-500 words) identifying the applicant's philosophy of working with a diverse student body, and contributions, or potential contributions, to advancing a culture of inclusion within the university and beyond;
- Teaching statement and evidence of teaching ability and effectiveness, including sample syllabi (may include teaching evaluations, and teaching dossier);
- One sample of research or publication similar in length to a journal article;
- One sample of writing that aims at communicating the results of research to a policy audience.

Review of applications will begin on 16 October 2023, and will continue until the position has been filled. Applicants with questions about the position are welcome to contact the Administration Manager, Ian Taylor, at ian.taylor@ubc.ca. This position is subject to final budgetary approval. Salary is competitive and will be commensurate with experience.

Further Information:

UBC's School of Public Policy and Global Affairs (SPPGA) is an interdisciplinary and collaborative hub that contributes to developing policies and solutions to complex global and local issues. The School offers the Master of Public Policy and Global Affairs (MPPGA), a 2-year professional global public policy program with particular expertise in Asia Pacific and sustainability. University of Notre Dame

Rank: Professor of Computational Social Science

The University of Notre Dame's Keough School of Global Affairs in conjunction with the Notre Dame Lucy Family Institute for Data and Society invites applicants for a tenure-track (open rank) professorship focused in the area of computational social science. The ideal candidate will have completed a Ph.D. in business, computer science, economics, information science, public policy, political science, psychology, sociology, or a related field with a strong research focus on the intersection of business and society.

The candidate should have strong skills in computational social science and data analytics with expertise in methods such as machine learning, network analysis, system dynamics or big-data analytics and visualization. They should have a strong research agenda focused on using these methods to help understand the role and impacts of business policies, practice and performance in society with a particular focus on public policy interventions to address challenges of human development, persistent poverty and growing inequality. Areas of particular interest include, but are not limited to, a focus on lower income countries, implementation of environmental social and governance (ESG) principles, global supply chains, trade, migration, and human trafficking.

Competitive candidates for this professorship will have a scholarly track record with evidence of high-quality research as well as experience or interest in policy engagement on questions of social and economic development. Scholars with direct experience working on policy with governments, international organizations, or non-governmental organizations are encouraged to apply. The successful candidate is expected to participate in the Keough School in all dimensions of research, teaching, and service.

The professorship will be based in the Keough School (<https://keough.nd.edu>), which advances integral human development through research, policy and practice, transformative educational programs, and partnerships for global engagement. It promotes interdisciplinary research on critical issues in global affairs. The successful candidate will be appointed as an affiliated faculty member of Notre Dame's Lucy Family Institute (<https://lucyinstitute.nd.edu/>), which seeks to advance data innovation to help transform society and individual lives.

The Keough School is committed to fostering a culture of diverse views and approaches to Global Affairs. All applicants whose scholarly pursuits will enhance our ability to fulfill that commitment are encouraged to apply. Questions about the position can be directed to Tom Mustillo at tmustill@nd.edu. All applicants are required to submit a cover letter, C.V., and research statement summarizing examples of recent or ongoing research in the above areas of interest. Evidence of teaching effectiveness is also welcomed. Junior candidates should also arrange for the submission of three confidential letters of reference. All application materials must be submitted through the Interfolio/Notre Dame online application system: <http://apply.interfolio.com/122625>

The position will close on September 29, 2023 and review of applications will begin at that time.

University of MichiganRank: Faculty Position in Health Policy

The Department of Health Management and Policy (HMP) at the University of Michigan is seeking a faculty member at any level—assistant, associate or full professor—within the field of health policy. Individuals who have or will complete degrees in political science, public policy, health policy, or other social science discipline. The ideal person for the position is capable of teaching political science at the graduate level, has strong research skills and evidence of a research agenda that focuses on the policy aspects of important public health, healthcare or related issues. We are especially interested in a scholarly commitment to anti-racism and equity. With a start date of August 2024, the candidate must have a PhD by September 1, 2024. We seek researchers with strong scholarly credentials and a record or promise of external research funding. The faculty member will be expected to teach in our leading master and doctorate programs, and possibly in the School of Public Health's undergraduate program. HMP is committed to the University of Michigan Diversity, Equity, and Inclusion plan and encourages applications from faculty of color and women at all ranks. We value diversity as a necessary part of success in all aspects of teaching, research, and leadership. We encourage candidates to highlight their experiences with DEI in their materials. About HMP: The Department of Health Management & Policy has a longstanding reputation for its contributions to the design and improvement of health care and public health systems and has been ranked one of the top programs in the U.S. News and World Report rankings for over 20 years. This new faculty member will also be expected to actively contribute to our various educational programs, including the Health Services Organization and Policy PhD program, and professional master degree programs in public health, health services administration, and the health informatics program offered jointly by the School of Public Health, the School of Information and the School of Medicine.

The Department and the School of Public Health (SPH) are committed to the University of Michigan Diversity, Equity, and Inclusion (DEI) plan and encourage applications from faculty of color and women. The department supports LAUNCH committees (following guidance from ADVANCE) for each new faculty member which entails a committee including 2 senior members of the department (one in a field related to the faculty member) and two members from outside the department (at least one with field expertise) who meet every other month during the first year of the faculty member's appointment. The goal of the LAUNCH committee is to discuss all aspects of new faculty member's transition: research, teaching, service, clinical responsibilities, work/life integration, family transitions/adjustment to Ann Arbor, and challenges or questions in any area the faculty member wants to discuss.

How to Apply: All applicants should submit a curriculum vitae and a cover letter that address (or includes as separate statements) research agenda, evidence of teaching excellence if available, a statement about experience and commitment to diversity. We will ask for references and letters of recommendation at later stages of the process. All application materials must be submitted electronically via: <http://apply.interfolio.com/126376>

Please direct inquiries about this position to the chair of the search committee, Scott Greer at slgreer@umich.edu.

Consideration of applications will occur on a rolling basis. Applications will continue to be accepted until the position is filled. We will begin reviewing applications on September 22, 2023, for a start date of September 2024.

Background Screening: The University of Michigan conducts background checks on all job candidates upon acceptance of a contingent offer and may use a third party administrator to conduct background checks. Background checks will be performed in compliance with the Fair Credit Reporting Act.

U-M EEO/AA Statement: The University of Michigan is an equal opportunity/affirmative action employer.

The initial appointment is for two years, subject to renewal.

Although Cal Poly is primarily a teaching university, our faculty are expected to balance teaching with an active program of research/professional development (including publication), student supervision and advising, and participation in service activities at the department and college/university level. The typical teaching load is 12 units (three courses) per quarter, with a reduction in course load in each of the first two years to help new faculty establish an active program of research and professional development. Cal Poly strongly values diversity, equity, and inclusion (DEI), especially in the classroom and among its areas of study.

The College of Liberal Arts (CLA) sees diversity as central to its mission and is committed to fostering an equitable and inclusive environment within the college and university. We value our diversity of complex and intersecting identities, while striving to maintain an environment that is equitable, respectful, and inclusive. The successful applicant should be able to clearly demonstrate how they have infused these values and student learning objectives into their work. They should be prepared to present clear examples of how they would infuse these areas into their work as a faculty member.

At California Polytechnic State University, San Luis Obispo, we believe that cultivating an environment that embraces and promotes diversity is fundamental to the success of our students, our employees and our community. Bringing people together from different backgrounds and experiences fosters the innovative and creative thinking that exemplifies Cal Poly's values of free inquiry and reflection on impacts of cultural context, mutual respect, civic engagement, and social and environmental responsibility. Cal Poly's commitment to DEI informs our efforts in recruitment, hiring and retention. California Polytechnic State University is an equal opportunity employer.

Required Qualifications:

A.B.D. or Ph.D. in Public Policy, Political Science or a closely related field;
Demonstrated university teaching experience;
Demonstrated proficiency in written and oral use of the English language is required.

Preferred Qualifications:

Teaching and research interest in social justice issues;
Preference is also given to candidates who can expand the Department's existing areas of expertise;
Experience working with diverse populations and fostering a collaborative, supportive and inclusive environment;

The ability to collaboratively work in multidisciplinary settings is preferred;

Preference is also given to candidates with relevant work experience and those who bring professional capabilities.

Special Conditions:

The person holding this position is considered a 'mandated reporter' under the California Child Abuse and Neglect Reporting Act and is required to comply with the requirements set forth in CSU Executive Order 1083 as a condition of employment.

Following a conditional offer of employment, a background check (including a criminal records check) must be completed satisfactorily before any candidate may start work with Cal Poly, San Luis Obispo. Failure to satisfactorily complete the background check may result in the withdrawal of the offer of employment. Note: Cal Poly cannot deny an applicant a position solely or in part due to a criminal conviction history until it has performed an individualized assessment and linked the relevant conviction history with specific job duties in the position being sought.

Please note: Current employees who are offered positions on campus will be required to undergo a background check for any position where a background check is required by law or that Cal Poly has designated as sensitive. Sensitive positions are those requiring heightened scrutiny of individuals holding the position based on potential for harm to children, concerns for the safety and security of people, animals, or property, or heightened risk of financial loss to Cal Poly or individuals in the university community.

For health and well-being, Cal Poly is a smoke & tobacco-free campus. The university is committed to promoting a healthy environment for all members of our community.

In accordance with the California State University (CSU) Out-of-State Employment Policy, the CSU is a state entity whose business operations reside within the State of California and prohibits hiring employees to perform CSU related work outside of California.

Trinity College

Rank: Director, Greenberg Center for the Study of Religion in Public Life

Trinity College seeks the next Director of the Leonard E. Greenberg Center for the Study of Religion in Public Life, commencing July 2024. Non-sectarian and non-partisan, the Greenberg Center was established at Trinity College in 1996 to advance knowledge and understanding of the varied roles that religious movements, institutions, and ideas play in the contemporary world. The Center sponsors public lectures, organizes conferences and workshops, contributes to the liberal arts curriculum, and supports the publication and dissemination of materials for both academic and general audiences. Its initiatives are designed to foster discussion of religion in public life both within the campus community and among various external publics.

We seek a mid-career or advanced candidate with a Ph.D. and a record of success in program administration, teaching, and scholarship. The Director serves as an 9-month administrative faculty member with joint appointments in Trinity's Public Policy & Law Program and Religious Studies Department. The Director's faculty title will be commensurate with experience.

The Director will shape the Center's goals and activities; enhance the Center's profile on and off campus; and evaluate the Center's impact. The position co-supervises a Program and Communications Assistant and convenes a Center advisory board. As a faculty member, the Director teaches three courses per academic year during the Fall and Spring semesters, cross-listed in Religious Studies and Public Policy & Law. The successful candidate will manage an annual budget of over $65,000, including generous research funds.

We encourage applicants who share our commitment to diversity and inclusion and seek applications from historically underrepresented candidates. Trinity College seeks a faculty that reflects the changing demographics of our student body. Our student body is diverse, representing 41 states and 70 countries, with 21 percent U.S. students of color and 50 percent who identify as women. More than 90 percent of students live on campus. Trinity is a highly selective, independent, nonsectarian liberal arts institution located in the capital city of Hartford, Conn. With more than 2,100 full-time undergraduate students and 91 graduate students, the college maintains a rigorous academic profile complemented by a vibrant and diverse co-curricular program. We consider our location in a culturally and socioeconomically diverse capital city to be among Trinity's most distinctive assets, and we cultivate strong connections with our surrounding neighbors and with institutions and organizations throughout Hartford and the region. As a preeminent liberal arts college in an urban setting, Trinity College prepares students to be bold, independent thinkers who lead transformative lives.

Evidence of demonstrable success in program administration, teaching, and scholarship is required. A Ph.D. in Religious Studies, Public Policy, or a related field should be in hand by July 2024.

Competitive salary and benefits, plus start-up expense fund.

To ensure full consideration please submit a cover letter (describing research; teaching; and commitment to advancing diversity, equity, and inclusion), CV, sample of scholarly writing, course syllabi and evaluations (if available), and the names of three referees who can provide letters of reference to by October 2, 2023. University of Chicago

Rank: Collegiate Assistant Professor

Subfield(s): Public Policy, American Government and Politics, International Relations

Specializations: Political Philosophy & Theory, History & Politics, Quantitative Methods

The College at the University of Chicago is now accepting applications for four-year postdoctoral teaching appointments as Harper and Schmidt Fellows who hold the rank of Collegiate Assistant Professor. Collegiate Assistant Professors are members of the College Faculty whose primary professional responsibility is to teach in the general education (Core) program. <https://college.uchicago.edu/academics/core-curriculum>

Core courses in the Humanities typically deal with fundamental issues and texts in history, philosophy, and literature. Currently, the Core is organized into eight year-long sequences: Readings in World Literature; Human Being and Citizen; Greece and Rome: Texts, Traditions, Transformations; Philosophical Perspectives on the Humanities; Media Aesthetics; Reading Cultures; Poetry and the Human; and Language and the Human. We encourage applicants to spend time reviewing the descriptions and syllabi for Core sequences to understand the distinct topics and approaches and gauge best fit. Descriptions of these courses are available here: <https://college.uchicago.edu/academics/core/humanities-core>

Core courses in the Social Sciences explore, on the basis of significant works or primary source materials, the fundamental concepts and the different modes of inquiry that have defined the social sciences in the modern period. Currently, we are inviting applications for Collegiate Assistant Professors to teach in some of the year-long sequences into which the Core is organized: Self, Culture and Society; Classics of Social and Political Thought; Power, Identity, and Resistance; Democracy: Equality, Liberty and the Dilemma of Self-Governance; Global Society; Mind; and Social Science Inquiry. We encourage applicants to spend time reviewing the descriptions and syllabi for Core sequences to understand the distinct topics and approaches and gauge best fit. Descriptions of these courses are available here: <https://college.uchicago.edu/academics/core/social-sciences-core>

Some Collegiate Assistant Professors also teach in the History of European Civilization Core sequence as well as the Introductions to the Civilizations of East Asian Core sequences. These courses are taught on the basis of intensive readings of significant primary source documents. For descriptions and syllabi of the History of European Civilization and the Civilizations of East Asia sequences see: <https://college.uchicago.edu/academics/core/civilization-studies-core>

The positions are open to scholars in all disciplines and areas of specialization who will have completed all requirements for their Ph.D. degree no later than August 31, 2024. Candidates must demonstrate excellence in teaching as well as in their original scholarship. While many Core sequences feature set reading lists, applicants need not have conventional expertise in the specific texts and topics that are currently taught. Rather, we welcome applicants from a wide variety of disciplinary backgrounds who can apply conceptual and methodological creativity and skill to the teaching of general education courses. Applicants should be prepared 1) to identify and guide students through fundamental questions in a Core sequence and 2) to contribute meaningfully to the instructional community and the curricular evolution for that Core sequence.

In most years, Collegiate Assistant Professors teach two courses (usually of identical preparation) for each of three quarters. In the second through fourth year of residence, each Collegiate Assistant Professor has the opportunity to design up to two independent courses and each is eligible for one quarter of research sabbatical. In the fourth year there is a possibility of another quarter of sabbatical with salary reduction.

The position comes with an annual salary for 2024-25 of $82,571, carries full benefits, and an annual professional development fund of $6,500. The effective date for these teaching appointments is September 1, 2024.

To apply for these positions, please see our web site at <https://fellows.uchicago.edu>.

The terms and conditions of these positions are described in the collective bargaining agreement between the University and the Service Employees International Union.

On-line application deadline: 11:59:59 PM EDT, Friday, October 13, 2023.

All University departments and institutes are charged with building a faculty from a diversity of backgrounds and with diverse viewpoints; with cultivating an inclusive community that values freedom of expression; and with welcoming and supporting all their members.

We seek a diverse pool of applicants who wish to join an academic community that places the highest value on rigorous inquiry and encourages diverse perspectives, experiences, groups of individuals, and ideas to inform and stimulate intellectual challenge, engagement, and exchange. The University's Statements on Diversity are at <https://provost.uchicago.edu/statements-diversity>.

University of California, Riverside

Rank: Assistant Professor of Public Policy

Specializations: Environmental Policy, Housing, Immigration Policy

Position Announcement:

Assistant Professor of Public Policy, University of California, Riverside

The School of Public Policy at UCR is seeking to hire an Assistant Professor of Public Policy. We are open to the area of scholarship but have a particular interest in energy and environmental policy, housing policy, and immigration policy, the policies of heightened importance in Southern California. The School of Public Policy values public policies that promote efficiency, equity, prosperity, and justice; we are particularly interested in scholars who apply these principles in their research and teaching. We are seeking candidates with clear evidence of scholarship on public policy issues.

Applicants must have an earned doctorate by the time of appointment in a relevant field and demonstrated excellence in research and teaching. Work experience in a public policy setting and/or public policy training is valued. Instructional and mentoring activities include teaching four, 10-week courses per academic year and guiding the research of undergraduate and graduate students.

The School of Public Policy values diversity among its faculty and strongly encourages applications from women and members of under-represented groups.

The Assistant Professor Series is a full-time position with the rights and responsibilities of membership in the Academic Senate. Appointments and reappointments are limited to a maximum term of two-years. The total University service with this title may not exceed eight years except as provided in APM - 133-12-b and 133-12-c https://www.ucop.edu/academic-personnel-programs/_files/apm/apm-133.pdf. Advancement through the faculty and non-senate academic ranks at the University of California is through a series of structured, merit-based evaluations, occurring every 2-3 years, each of which includes substantial peer input. Teaching, scholarly professional achievement, and activities, and university and public service constitute the criteria for advancement.

All materials must be uploaded using UCR's on-line application system via <https://aprecruit.ucr.edu/JPF01753>. To ensure full consideration, complete applications including cover letter, CV, writing samples, a research statement, a teaching statement, evidence of teaching excellence, statement of past and/or planned future contributions to advancing diversity and inclusive excellence, and at least 3 letters of recommendation should be received by October 1, 2023. Review of applicants will continue until the position is filled. The appointment will commence as early as July 1, 2024, or as late as September 1, 2024, per negotiation with the candidate.

The posted UC salary scales, <https://www.ucop.edu/academic-personnel-programs/compensation/index.html>, set the minimum pay determined by rank and/or step at appointment. See Table 1 https://www.ucop.edu/academic-personnel-programs/_files/2023-24/oct-2023-acad-salary-scales/t1.pdf for the salary range. The salary range for this appointment is $70,900 to $92,800 annually. "Off-scale salaries" and other components of pay, i.e., a salary that is higher than the published system-wide salary at the designated rank and step, are offered when necessary to meet competitive conditions.

UCR is a world-class research university with an exceptionally diverse undergraduate student body. Its mission is explicitly linked to providing routes to educational success for underrepresented and first-generation college students. A commitment to this mission is a preferred qualification.

The University of California is an Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action Employer. All qualified candidates will receive consideration for employment without regard to race, color, religion, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, national origin, age, disability, protected veteran status, or any other characteristic protected by law.

As a University employee, you will be required to comply with all applicable University policies and/or collective bargaining agreements, as may be amended from time to time. Federal, state, or local government directives may impose additional requirements.

For more information about the position, please contact Victoria Anaya at victoria.anaya@ucr.edu.

Hamilton College

Rank: Assistant Professor of Government
Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Public Policy, Public Administration

The Government Department at Hamilton College invites applications for three tenure-track positions at the rank of Assistant Professor, beginning July 1, 2024. The new hires will collectively cover courses in public policy, American politics, and research methods, allocated based on individual expertise. This coordinated hire is part of a commitment to nourishing a diverse learning community and increasing possibilities for exchange focused on issues related to equality and inequality. We actively encourage applications from candidates whose work investigates the politics and policy of equality and inequality along one or more of the following axes: race and ethnicity; gender; class; sexuality; ability; religion; and migrant, refugee, or citizenship status. We seek candidates trained in either or both quantitative and qualitative methods and with academic backgrounds in American Politics, Public Policy, or Public Administration. Beyond that, there are no restrictions on area focus.

We are seeking candidates who can demonstrate their experience in teaching or working with diverse student populations. Your cover letter should address ways in which you raise issues of diversity and inclusion in your teaching, scholarship, and/or service.

These positions require institutional service including academic advising of undergraduate students after the first year.

The Government Department is responsible for the study of politics and public affairs at Hamilton. The department, which is one of Hamilton's largest, currently includes 17 faculty members, 12 of whom are tenured or pre-tenure. Department faculty include specialists in American politics, comparative politics, international relations, political theory, and public policy, and we teach a wide variety of courses across all these subfields. Each year, we also hire two practitioners, each of whom teaches a single one-semester course. The Department offers three majors: Government, World Politics, and Public Policy. Taken together, these three majors total about 85 students a year.

Candidates with ABD will be considered (and hired at the Instructor level until successful completion of their dissertation), although candidates with a Ph.D. are preferred. The teaching load for these positions is four courses during the first year and five courses thereafter. The expected salary range for these positions is $88,000 to $94,100. Candidates should submit cover letter, c.v., a writing sample, evidence of teaching ability, and a list of references via Interfolio at <https://apply.interfolio.com/129439>. Questions regarding the search may be directed to Peter F. Cannavò, Search Committee Chair, at pcannavo@hamilton.edu. Our review of applications will begin on October 1, 2023.

Hamilton College is a residential liberal arts college located in upstate New York. The College has built its reputation on the teaching excellence and leading scholarship of its faculty, and on the academic distinction and intellectual curiosity of its approximately 2000 students who take advantage of Hamilton's open curriculum (<https://www.hamilton.edu/academics/open-curriculum>). Please visit the college website for more information (www.hamilton.edu).

University of Mississippi

Rank: Assistant Professor

The Department of Public Policy Leadership at the University of Mississippi invites applications for a tenure track assistant professorship to begin in August 2024. The position has a 3/2 teaching load, and the successful candidate will advance an active research agenda. Teaching responsibilities include the department's required courses in Public Policy Research Methods (PPL 210) and Policy Design and Analysis (PPL 310), Advanced Quantitative Methods (PPL 399), and courses in the candidate's area of specialization. A Ph.D. in Public Policy and Administration, Political Science or a closely related field is required at the time of employment, as is a record of excellence in teaching and research. A strong background in quantitative methods and policy analysis is required.

The Department provides a challenging undergraduate major that prepares high-performing students for positions of leadership in an increasingly complex world. The interdisciplinary curriculum for the major incorporates economics, geography, philosophy, political science, public administration, and public policy. The program emphasizes the global nature of responsible decision-making; the ethical imperatives of leadership; critical thinking and communication skills; and the conceptual and methodological skills necessary for careful policy analysis. Visit our website at <http://leadership.olemiss.edu>.

Apply online: <https://careers.olemiss.edu>. Applications should include a cover letter, a curriculum vitae, three letters of reference, and a teaching portfolio (including syllabi and evaluations, if available). The review of applications will begin on September 25, 2023 and continue until the position is filled. The University of Mississippi is classified by Carnegie Foundation as a R1 research university and has been rated a "best college to work for" by the Chronicle of Higher Education. It is an EEO/AA/TitleIX/Section 504/ADA/ADEA employer.

Suffolk University

Rank: Assistant Professor of Political Science

Specializations: Race & Ethnic Politics, American Politics, African American Politics

The Political Science and Legal Studies (PSLS) Department at Suffolk University invites applicants for a full time, tenure-track position in American Politics and Public Policy. The Department is interested in recruiting a teacher scholar with a focus on civil rights and liberties, race and ethnic politics, the role of identity in politics, or the impact of economic, social, or political inequality on marginalized groups.

Candidates should provide evidence of commitment to excellent teaching and scholarly potential including a research agenda and plans for peer-reviewed publication. The successful candidate will teach at the undergraduate and graduate level; previous teaching experience is preferred. The PSLS department offers three undergraduate majors (political science, international relations, and law) and two graduate programs (Master's in Applied Politics and a Master's in Global Public Policy). We are looking for candidates who are excited about developing and teaching courses in American Politics, American Institutions and/or public policy. Research methods is also a need in the department.

The successful candidate will contribute to a rich tradition of community-engaged teaching and experiential education that prepares our diverse, substantially first-generation college students—40% of whom are Pell eligible—for careers and civic engagement. The successful candidate will have a commitment to inclusive pedagogy and curricular diversity, mentoring and advising students—especially first-generation college students—as well as conducting impactful research.

Not sure this is you? Contact us to find out! Research indicates that women and members of under-represented groups tend not to apply to jobs when they think they do not meet every qualification, when, in fact, they often do. Suffolk University is dedicated to a diverse and inclusive academic community. Familiarity with and experience using pedagogical methods that enable students across racial, ethnic, socio-economic, and ability groups to reach their maximum potential is a valuable qualification.

Faculty in the PSLS department are award-winning teachers recognized for innovative pedagogical practices, community leaders civically engaged in advancing social justice, internationally recognized policy and political consultants and active researchers and scholars. Department faculty take advantage of our location in the heart of Boston to design exciting real-world learning opportunities.

Diversity, equity and inclusion are woven into Suffolk University's very fabric. We have been providing access and expanding opportunities for under-represented groups for more than a century. This mission is lived through our decisions at every level. U.S. News ranked Suffolk University among the top 100 universities in the country for social mobility. Suffolk was also listed 14th nationally in percentage of international students. Through student, faculty and staff recruitment and support, community engagement, curriculum development, and research, the University community works to advance equity for every student, every day. Learn more about how we manifest the core values of our mission at Suffolk DEI.

Candidates must hold a PhD by the commencement of the 2024/2025 academic year; ABD candidates in the final stages of completing their degrees will be considered.

Application should be made through the Suffolk University Human Resources' Careers at Suffolk site. A complete submission will include: cover letter (including research agenda); CV; graduate transcripts; research writing sample; statement of teaching philosophy; student course evaluations; and contact information for three professional references. For full consideration, applications should be submitted by September 30. Initial interviews will be via Zoom followed by on-campus interviews. The department will also hold an information session at the 2023 APSA conference in August.

Suffolk University is a private, comprehensive, urban university located in downtown Boston, and is an equal opportunity employer committed to faculty diversity. Candidates from underrepresented groups are encouraged to apply. You can learn more about Suffolk University from our website. To learn more about the Political Science & Legal Studies department, go to our department website.

Inquiries about the position and the APSA information session should be addressed to Dr. Rachael Cobb, Chair of the PSLS Department at rcobb@suffolk.edu.

University of Michigan-Ann Arbor

Rank: Assistant Professor

Subfield(s): Methodology, Public Policy, Political Theory

Specializations: Quantitative Methods, Science & Technology, Political Economy

The Center for the Study of Complex Systems (CSCS) at the University of Michigan seeks applicants for a tenure-track faculty position in complex systems science. The Center is a broad, interdisciplinary unit whose faculty use and develop tools from applied mathematics, computation, physics, statistics, engineering, and network theory to understand questions in the social, biological, and physical sciences. This is a University-year appointment at the Assistant Professor level. The expected start date is August 26, 2024.

Required Qualifications: We seek applicants with a research agenda focused on the development and/or application of complex systems models and/or methods. This may involve theoretical or applied research in areas of complex systems including (but not limited to) mathematical and computational work in network science, computational approaches in complex systems and related topics in computer science, social science, emergence and robustness, or scientific applications where complex systems theory lies at the core of the approach such as: quantitative modeling of biological and social systems, complex systems approaches to systemic racism and health disparities, biological and social evolution, artificial life, and cognition. We are particularly interested in candidates with a record of working across disciplines.

How to Apply: All applications must be uploaded here: <https://webapps.lsa.umich.edu/apply/1700>

This faculty position will be in the Center for the Study of Complex Systems or joint between Complex Systems and another academic department or school at the University of Michigan. If a joint appointment is preferred, candidates should suggest possible partner departments or schools. Complex Systems has a tradition of jointly appointed faculty across a wide range of schools and colleges at the University of Michigan, however both joint and 100% Complex Systems appointments will be considered. Applicants must submit a CV, a statement of current and future research plans, a statement of teaching philosophy and experience, and evidence of teaching excellence, if any. At least three letters of recommendation are required and must be uploaded by the letter writers to the same website. Finally, please include a diversity statement that demonstrates your commitment to diversity, equity, and inclusion through scholarship/research, and/or teaching/mentoring, and/or service/engagement. There may be some overlap with your research proposal and teaching statements (1-3 pages). Review of applications will begin on October 1, 2023 and continue until the position is filled.

Offers for this appointment are contingent on successful completion of a background screening. The University of Michigan is supportive of the needs of dual career couples and is an equal opportunity/affirmative action employer. Women and minority groups are encouraged to apply.
