Resources and Guidance on

Finding a Job in Political Science

Hundreds of academic positions are advertised each year in political science. Finding the openings is the easy part; knowing how to approach the application and interview process is a little more challenging. At APSA, we have collected resources to assist candidates in the academic job search. We would like to highlight a few of these key resources here. The complete list of job resources is available online at www.apsanet.org/jobs.

eJobs: This online resource contains comprehensive online listing of political science jobs, is updated daily with new job listings and candidate resumes, and is fully searchable by field of interest, name of employer/candidate, region, keyword, position, salary, type of institution, and most recent posts.

Data on Jobs Market: APSA gathers and releases data regarding the placement of political science Ph.Ds. View this information at www.apsanet.org/content\_7623.cfm.

Mentoring: Enroll in the APSA Mentoring Program online at www.apsanet.org/mentoring.

eJobs Placement Interview Services: The eJobs Annual Meeting Placement Interview Service provides space and facilities for employers who have eJobs posted to interview candidates at the APSA meeting. Many other conferences, such as the Northeastern and Western, also use the APSA online service to schedule placement interviews. Check the listings online in eJobs.

Ethics Guide: The APSA Guide to Professional Ethics in Political Science includes specific guidance on hiring and employment practices. Order a print copy or view online at www.apsanet.org/ethics.

Asking the Right Questions: APSA Job Candidate Questions to Ask Program

Asking the right questions provides valuable information for career decisions. As part of the APSA Job Candidate Questions to Ask (JCQ) Program participating political science departments have agreed to answer the following questions from job candidates.

Salary

1. What is the salary structure?
2. How is salary normally negotiated?
3. How are annual increases handled?
4. Is there an automatic escalator to ensure the salaries of future hires will not outpace those of existing department members?

Service Activities

1. What are the expectations of pre-tenure and tenured faculty regarding:
  - departmental and institutional committee work,
  - professional or disciplinary activities, and
  - outreach activities to communities external to institution?

Research Support

1. What departmental or institutional resources are available to support:
  - access to research materials and equipment,
  - the employment of research assistants,
  - research expenses on/off campus, and
  - travel expenses for conferences?

2. What departmental or institutional resources are available to seek external funding and to administer external funding awards?

Teaching Support

1. What departmental or institutional resources are available to support:
  - the development of teaching expertise,
  - innovations in teaching, and
  - the introduction of new courses and new technologies?
2. What are departmental expectations regarding:
  - the average course load,
  - the number of different courses taught by faculty, and
  - advising of graduate and undergraduate students?

Tenure, Renewal, and Annual Review

1. What policies and procedures govern the granting of tenure, renewal of contracts for pre-tenure faculty, and annual reviews of faculty performance?
2. What are the department's expectations for successful performance leading to the granting of tenure or renewal of contracts for pre-tenure faculty?
3. What are the department's expectations for a positive annual review?

Mentoring and Faculty Support Initiatives

1. What attention does the department give to integrating new faculty into the department, the institution, and in the profession?
2. Does the department or institution have programs that address:
  - the employment of dual-career professional couples,
  - family needs of faculty and staff, and
  - issues associated with minority faculty and staff?

Health and Life Insurance

1. What are the plans offered?
2. How are benefits disbursed?
3. What are the out-of-pocket expenses?
4. Are partners and/or children covered, and to what extent?
5. What portion of my paycheck will be deducted for these benefits?

Retirement

1. How many types of retirement plans are offered?
2. What is the matching percentage of the institution?
3. Is contribution required (and how much)?

ADMINISTRATION

University of California Center Sacramento

Rank: UC CENTER SACRAMENTO DIRECTOR

UC CENTER SACRAMENTO DIRECTOR

This is an academic position located in Sacramento, California.
UC OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT

At the University of California (UC), your contributions make a difference. A world leader producing Nobel and Pulitzer Prize recipients with over 150 years of groundbreaking research transforming the world. Choose a career where you can leverage your knowledge, skills and aspirations to inspire and support some of the greatest minds in the world, and those who will follow in their footsteps. Working at the University of California is being part of a unique institution, and a vibrant and diverse community. At the University of California, Office of the President, we propel our mission through impactful work locally, in government centers and systemwide. We are passionate people, serving the greater good.

The University of California, one of the largest and most acclaimed institutions of higher learning in the world, is dedicated to excellence in teaching, research and public service. The University of California Office of the President is the headquarters to the 10 campuses, six academic medical centers and three national laboratories and enrolls premier students from California, the nation and the world. Learn more about the UC Office of the President

DEPARTMENT OVERVIEW

Established in 2003 as a systemwide unit of the University of California Office of the President (UCOP), the University of California Center Sacramento (UCCS) is poised to begin a new chapter in its history, by integrating a highly visible, public facing program of top flight speakers, debates, briefings, and panels designed to speak to major policy issues of our time, policy work conducted on behalf of the State of California and the legislature, and an outstanding academic program for students throughout the UC system. Drawing on the extraordinary caliber of research conducted by UC faculty in the public interest, UCCS activities make their mark in the capital of the fifth largest economy in the world. Administered through UC Davis with financial support from UCOP, the Center is located within walking distance of the State Capitol in Sacramento at the new University of California Student and Policy Center (1115 11th Street, Sacramento).

POSITION SUMMARY

We seek applications for the position of Director of UC Center Sacramento, to begin no later than July 1, 2024. The Director must be a current member (or eligible for the membership) of the Academic Senate of the University of California. We are open to many kinds of candidates, ranging from scholars whose work focuses on policy-related issues to public figures who have joined the Academy, but are familiar with the landscape of state and federal policymaking. In all instances, we are interested in finding a prominent, public-facing colleague whose reputation for engagement and leadership is significant.

The Director of UC Center Sacramento is responsible for the management and operation of the Student and Policy Center; promoting highly visible public activities in the Center on behalf of UC as well as private and governmental groups; and interacting with agencies and the local community as a provider of state-of-the-art research that aims to solve policy problems. The director will be deeply engaged in the development of an expanded program of internships designed to provide undergraduate and graduate students with opportunities to contribute to problem solving in state agencies, legislative offices, non-profit organizations, and private sector firms, while completing challenging courses aligned to this mission.

Closely connected to the university-wide State Governmental Relations office, the Director will contribute to the overall public prominence of the University of California system. Wherever possible, UCCS seeks to enable a Sacramento presence for the University's many research groups that contribute to sound policy development through rigorous data analysis, including those focused on economic development, sustainability and stewardship of the environment, educational attainment, health equity, clean energy, and other issues of significance.

Responsibilities

Responsibilities include: supervision of staff; academic collaboration with campuses on opportunities to showcase impactful faculty research; coordination of the UCCS Advisory Board and Faculty Council; engaging in fundraising for the Center; and UC goals more generally. Furthermore, the Director is responsible for developing, maintaining and communicating with the UCCS alumni association.

The Director reports to both the Provost and Executive Vice President at UCOP and the UC Davis Provost and Executive Vice Chancellor. Additionally, the Center Director collaborates and consults with the UC Office of State Governmental Relations, as appropriate. The Director must be in residence in the Sacramento area for this appointment.

The Director is responsible for providing overall direction, supervision and vision for three inter-related components making up the UCCS program:

1. The UC Sacramento Policy Forum, a diverse set of debates, major lectures from prominent figures, national and California-based policy advocacy events, seminars, workshops, conferences and other activities that showcase policy-relevant faculty expertise from across the University of California for a Sacramento audience and for the press.
2. The Public Policy Seminar and Internship Program, a for-credit internship related to the state public policy process in Sacramento.
3. The academic programs of the Center, which engage faculty from throughout the UC system, but with special focus on the nearby Davis campus, with whom students enroll when they come throughout California to experience all that a bustling state capital has to offer.

The Public Policy Forum is a locus for drawing attention to collaborative policy research efforts within and between the campuses, and a conduit for making that research available to state policymakers. The mission of the public-facing program is to harness all that the world's most celebrated public university has to offer to policy makers in the capital and to be recognized in the media for this effort. Accordingly, the ideal candidate will have extensive contacts in the world of politics, think tanks, and television/radio/podcast media, ranging from the leadership itself to the staffers who are influential in the policy process both in Sacramento and Washington, DC. UCCS aspires to be a "beehive" of activity, a "go-to" place for information and networking, and a proud showcase of the strengths of the University as an economic and workforce engine, a national gem of an educational institution and research excellence, the source of professional talent for industries and non-profits throughout the state, and a provider of health care through its medical centers.

The core of the academic program—the public policy seminar and internship program—is the undergraduate experience, which includes a rich combination of academic/research courses, skills courses, and experiential learning through internships in a wide range of governmental organizations. In the future, we anticipate that our major graduate programs in public policy, journalism, public economics, health science, and environmental policy will establish a presence for students and faculty in UCCS. Because the vitality of these academic programs depends on the participation of all ten campuses, the Director must be adept at working with different constituencies and representing the overall interests of UCCS to broad and divergent groups.

Because internships and experiential learning are fundamental to the UCCS student experience, the Director is expected to engage actively with public life in Sacramento. Securing opportunities for UC students and faculty to work with legislators, state agencies, the Governor's office, unions, professional associations, advocacy groups, journalists, and on faculty-led research projects aimed at solving public problems, are important responsibilities of the new Director.

The academic program of the Center consists of a set of courses offered to undergraduates (and, we hope, graduate students in the future) who are interested in learning about issues of the day including climate change, health care, educational attainment and inequality, racial disparities, and many other topics of current concern. Students take a full program of academic classes, in addition to their internship responsibilities, to advance in degree completion and develop the insights and skills needed to contribute to their post-graduate lives.

Promoting these opportunities with relevant academic leaders on the ten campuses is central to this role. Developing options for related undergraduate majors (e.g., in public policy, political science, sociology, environmental science, and economics) and graduate programs (Political Science, MPA/MPP in Public Affairs/Policy, Business and Public Management, etc.) to spend semesters/quarters, summers and more limited-time intensive seminars, is a crucial goal going forward. In addition to these academically integrated opportunities, students of all kinds are recruited to UCCS by maintaining strong relations with the campus deans and student affairs directors.

In partnership with the campuses, outreach is aimed at alumni of UCCS, with the goal of raising funds to sustain and enhance the academic experience of this student program. The Director must be an effective manager, capable of exercising authority over a range of complex functions essential to the operation of the Student and Policy Center space and UCCS academic program.

The Director must be willing to take up residence in the Sacramento area while serving in this role but prepared to travel throughout the state on behalf of UCCS. Ideally, the candidate will have experience in running a substantial institution. Involvement in a multi-campus program or experience in collaborating with multiple UC campuses would be desirable, and the candidate must demonstrate an ability to work with different groups and achieve consensus on difficult issues.

Required Qualifications

Candidates should demonstrate the following competencies:

Leadership and Management

- Ability to “think big,” run with nascent ideas where appropriate, and build coalitions across institutional boundaries within the university and between UC and external actors.
- Good business acumen and a taste for innovation that is fiscally sound.

- Ability to work with and lead skilled staff.
- Ability to recognize and solve problems of varied kinds quickly and effectively.
- Experience/ability to work collaboratively with the Office of the President, UC Davis, and advisory and governing boards that oversee academic programs, financial matters and governance.
- Leadership skills and administrative experience, including program management, designing and/or managing curricular programs, overseeing a program budget, managing facilities, and dealing with student welfare issues.
- Ability to provide leadership and direction for UCCS operations including the academic program, public policy research program and public engagement efforts.
- Ability to bridge organizational cultures at a detailed level.

Outreach

- Experience in building visible and durable networks of political office holders, researchers, journalists, and others in the “policy ecosystem.”
- Experience in public relations, journalism, policymaking.
- Ability to forge strong connections between UCCS with experts and professional organizations in the Sacramento area and beyond.
- Dedication to strategic partnerships with State Governmental Relations (UC SGR) along with other UC programs
- Exceptional communications skills and ability to work well with diverse constituencies in order to advocate on behalf of UCCS in coordination with State Governmental Relations.
- Ability to serve as the public face of UCCS and foster a sense of community with alumni, other UC and external audiences, as well as with UCCS students.
- Willingness and ability to fundraise for UCCS.
- Commitment to strengthen ties between the program and the campuses and to recruitment of students in all disciplines, particularly in science, arts and humanities.

Academic Leadership

- Be a member (or be eligible for membership) in the Faculty Senate at one of the campuses of the University of California.
- Passion for the academic mission, commitment to a balance between core research and experiential learning for a broad spectrum of majors.
- Familiarity with UC policies and practices with respect to academic courses and program development, faculty hiring and assessment.
- Ability to build strong relationships with and between UCCS faculty, staff and students.
- A commitment to program development and to exploring ways to broaden student participation in UCCS.
- Experience within the UC system, or a comparable research-rich academic environment.

SPECIAL CONDITIONS

This position could be anywhere from 50% time and above, up to and including 100% time. The selected candidate will be expected to make the UCCS the primary focus of his/her/their work life. The appointment is for a five-year renewable term.

SALARY AND BENEFITS

The posted UC salary scales set the minimum pay determined by rank and/or step at appointment, and discipline. See Tables 1-8 (<https://www.ucop.edu/academic-personnel-programs/compensation/2023-24-academic-salary-scales.html>). The salary range for this position is determined by the underlying academic appointment. A reasonable estimated annualized full-time salary range for this position is $180K-$325K based on experience and accomplishments. “Off-scale salaries” and other components of pay, i.e., a salary that is higher than the published system-wide salary at the designated rank and step, are offered when necessary to meet competitive conditions.

Illinois State University

Rank: Department Chair

Illinois State University invites applications for a full-time, 12-month Chair for the Department of Politics and Government at the tenured rank of Professor/Associate Professor (advanced Associate Professors will be considered) to begin July 1, 2024.

The Department of Politics and Government: The Department of Politics and Government comprises a vibrant, dynamic, and energetic group of faculty, students, and staff. The Department is known for its student-centered approach to teaching and academic rigor, and offers B.A./B.S. and M.A./M.S. degrees in political science. Department members cover all political science subfields in both teaching and research, including international relations, comparative politics, American politics, public law, political theory, and political methodology. The Department also houses an American Bar Association-approved paralegal education program and offers B.A./B.S. degrees in legal studies. Across political science and legal studies programs, the Department of Politics and Government is home to 15 tenured and tenure-track faculty, nearly 300 undergraduates, staff, political science graduate students, and non-tenure track faculty. Faculty produce high-quality research, publish work in top journals, and author books on topics spanning the subfields of political science. Faculty also share their expertise through invited talks and media interviews with local and national outlets. The Department publishes Critique, a student journal, and hosts an annual student conference in political science. The Department has a long tradition of sponsoring student engagement outside the classroom, including programs such as an intercollegiate mock trial team, Model U.N., study abroad experiences, and annual trips to Washington, D.C. The Department is deeply engaged in nurturing equity, diversity, and inclusion in its programs and seeks to advance research and teaching practices that promote these principles.

The Department of Politics and Government is housed within the College of Arts and Sciences (<http://www.cas.ilstu.edu>), home to 19 academic departments, schools, and interdisciplinary programs. The Department, College, and University are committed to shared governance and academic freedom. For more information about the Department and our programs, visit <https://pol.illinoisstate.edu/>.

Primary Responsibilities: The Chair is expected to undertake the following:

- serve as the academic leader of the Department;
- represent the Department and faculty members to the rest of the University, especially higher administration;
- serve as a representative of the views and policies of higher administration to the faculty members of the Department;
- manage the Department's resources;
- represent the Department and University to external bodies;
- coordinate the development and implementation of the Department's Vision and Goals Statement;
- lead the Department's efforts toward achieving University and College goals and initiatives;
- develop the Department's budget;
- manage the fiscal affairs of the Department;
- lead and coordinate the Department's strategic planning and curriculum development;
- assign and assess the distribution of faculty workload, including instructional, research, and service responsibilities;
- promote excellence in instruction, scholarly and creative productivity, and service at Illinois State University;
- lead and coordinate the governance of the Department;
- lead the processes of faculty selection and ensure that the appointment of tenure-track faculty follows university, college, and department ASPT policies;
- coordinate the professional development of faculty members;
- lead the evaluation of faculty members for retention, tenure, and promotion;
- provide recommendations to the Dean and Provost regarding sabbaticals and other leaves for faculty and staff;

- manage non-faculty staff members; and
- develop, lead, and encourage outreach and public service efforts.

Qualifications: Required qualifications include a Ph.D. in political science or a related field, the rank of Professor or Associate Professor, leadership experience, excellent written communication skills, and evidence of achievement in teaching, research, and service. A successful candidate will also demonstrate excellent oral communication and interpersonal skills. Candidates must be able to demonstrate oral proficiency in English as a requirement for this position, as mandated by state law.

Salary, Rank, and Tenure: The position is a full-time, 12-month appointment. Salary and rank are commensurate with qualifications and experience. A comprehensive benefits package is included.

Illinois State University: Illinois State University (<http://www.illinoisstate.edu>), founded in 1857, is the oldest public university in Illinois. There are approximately 21,000 students in the seven colleges of Illinois State University. The University's metrics of excellence can be found at (<http://illinoisstate.edu/pointsofpride/>). In our most recent strategic plan, Educate · Connect · Elevate, we have committed our resources to realizing seven core values: Learning and Scholarship, Diversity and Inclusion, Respect, Collaboration, Individualized Attention, Civic Engagement, and Integrity. By acting on these values, we create a learning environment that results in our University being the first-choice public university in Illinois for high-achieving, motivated students who seek an individualized educational experience combined with the resources of a large university. Illinois State University is committed to fostering a small-college atmosphere while providing the opportunities of a large university.

Illinois State made U.S. News & World Report's 2021 rankings of America's best public national universities based on academic quality and excellence. The Chronicle of Higher Education has consistently named Illinois State University one of the "Great Colleges to Work For." Washington Monthly ranked the University No. 62 out of all national universities for the institution's contribution to the public good through social mobility, research, and public services. The American Association of State Colleges and Universities (AASCU) recognized Illinois State University with the 2021 Excellence and Innovation Award for Civic Learning and Community Engagement, highlighting the University's efforts to encourage students to be engaged and educated citizens in partnership with the community.

Bloomington-Normal Community: Illinois State University is located in the growing twin cities of Bloomington and Normal, with a metro population of approximately 172,000. The community is also home to Illinois Wesleyan University, Heartland Community College, St. Joseph Medical Center, Carle BroMenn Medical Center, COUNTRY Financial, State Farm Insurance's International Headquarters, Central Illinois Regional Airport, and electric truck manufacturer Rivian Motors. The community has distinguished itself for its outstanding school systems and its citizens' high level of educational attainment, as well as its parks and recreation, health care, vibrant fine arts scene, job growth, economic opportunity, historic sites, and low crime rates. SmartAsset ranked Bloomington, IL, in the top 20 of the most livable cities in the U.S. (2022). Zippia named Bloomington, IL, as #1 on their "Happiest Cities" list (2020), and Best Choice Schools listed the area on its "30 Small College Towns with Great Quality of Life" (2020). Bloomington-Normal is conveniently located about three hours from Indianapolis, two hours from both Chicago and St. Louis, and an hour from Peoria, Champaign-Urbana, Decatur, and Springfield; many of these locations are accessible from Bloomington-Normal via the Amtrak located one block from ISU's campus. For more information on our community, please visit (<http://visitbn.org/>).

Application Procedure: Review of applications will begin December 1, 2023, and continue until the position is filled. Applicants should submit an initial online application referring to posting number 517750. To do this, visit (www.IllinoisState.edu/jobs/) where applicants must submit a complete application packet by uploading the requisite documents, which include: 1) Letter of Application; 2) Curriculum Vitae; 3) Statement of Research; 4) Teaching Philosophy; 5) Statement of Managerial Style; 6) Inclusion, Diversity, Equity, and Access (IDEA) Statement; and 7) Contact Information for At Least Three (3) References. Applications will be considered incomplete until all required items are uploaded and will not be reviewed until complete.

If applicants have questions about the position, they should contact the search committee chair, Dr. Aaron Smith (kasmit3@ilstu.edu/309-438-7158), Professor of Linguistics, Department of English.

Illinois State University is committed to developing a diverse pool of applicants and recognizes that a diverse faculty, staff, and student body enriches the educational experiences of the entire campus and greater community. Women, veterans, persons with disabilities, and people of color are encouraged to apply.

If you are an individual with a disability and need a reasonable accommodation under the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA) or other state or federal law, you may request an accommodation by contacting the Office of Equal Opportunity and Access at 309-438-3383. If you have difficulty accessing the system, please call Human Resources at (309) 438-8311.

Rank: Director of Boston College Irish Institute and Open Rank Faculty Position in Comparative Politics

Boston College seeks a candidate for a joint faculty and administrative appointment. The individual will split their duties as Director of the University's Irish Institute and as a Comparative Politics faculty member in the Political Science Department beginning Fall 2024. The position is based in Boston full-time. The ideal candidate will have both policy and academic experience. The successful candidate will also be affiliated with the university's renowned interdisciplinary Irish Studies program.

The Irish Institute has over three decades cultivated and sustained ties between Boston College and policy-engaged institutions and organizations across the island of Ireland (political, civil service, civil society, business, higher education). The Irish Institute organizes seminars and conferences on matters of policy relevance to contemporary Ireland, and brings leading Irish policy and academic figures into conversation with the Boston College community. The University supports the Irish Institute's engagement as a policy think tank on Irish matters that is informed by and speaks to both the practical-policy and the academic-theoretical realms. It is our hope that the topics and themes explored in the Irish context will open up to broader contemporary concerns in politics and policy in Europe and around the world. We expect the new director to invigorate the institute, and the chosen candidate's own background and interests will influence its future direction. Given the expectations of the directorship of the Irish Institute, the candidate should have some practical experience and personal connections, directly or indirectly, in Irish politics or policymaking.

On the academic side, the appointment is open in terms of status and specialty. We assume that the research specialty of the candidate will be a topic of relevance in contemporary Irish politics. We are especially interested in a candidate whose expertise connects with a broader theme in Comparative Politics, such as but not limited to Religion and Politics; Politics of Post-Conflict Societies; Politics of Decolonization; Politics of Neutrality; Comparative Political Economy; Electoral Politics; European Union Politics. Depending on teaching experience and publications, the appointment in the Political Science Department could be junior- or senior-level, with or without tenure. In contributing to Irish Studies at Boston College, the candidate would offer courses on aspects of Irish politics and engage with the program's public events.

The search committee will begin reviewing application files on December 1, 2023.

Application Instructions:

Applicants should upload their cover letter, stating research and teaching interests; curriculum vitae; and a statement on their experience and expectations for the position of the Irish Institute director to Interfolio at apply.interfolio.com/134357.

Three confidential letters of recommendation should be uploaded to Interfolio by the individual letter writers.

No email applications or U.S.P.S. applications will be accepted.

University Benefits

- Health, Life, and Flexible Spending Accounts: Penn offers comprehensive medical, prescription, behavioral health, dental, vision, and life insurance benefits to protect you and your family's health and welfare. You can also use flexible spending accounts to pay for eligible health care and dependent care expenses with pre-tax dollars.
- Tuition: Take advantage of Penn's exceptional tuition benefits. You, your spouse, and your dependent children can get tuition assistance here at Penn. Your dependent children are also eligible for tuition assistance at other institutions.
- Retirement: Penn offers generous retirement plans to help you save for your future. Penn's Basic, Matching, and Supplemental retirement plans allow you to save for retirement on a pre-tax or Roth basis. Choose from a wide variety of investment options through TIAA and Vanguard.
- Time Away from Work: Penn provides you with a substantial amount of time away from work during the course of the year. This allows you to relax, take vacations, attend to personal affairs, recover from illness or injury, spend time with family—whatever your personal needs may be.
- Long-Term Care Insurance: In partnership with Genworth Financial, Penn offers faculty and staff (and your eligible family members) long-term care insurance to help you cover some of the costs of long-term care services received at home, in the community or in a nursing facility. If you apply when you're newly hired, you won't have to provide proof of good health or be subject to underwriting requirements. Eligible family members must always provide proof of good health and are subject to underwriting.
- Wellness and Work-life Resources: Penn is committed to supporting our faculty and staff as they balance the competing demands of work and personal life. That's why we offer a wide variety of programs and resources to help you care for your health, your family, and your work-life balance.
- Professional and Personal Development: Penn provides an array of resources to help you advance yourself personally and professionally.

- University Resources: As a member of the Penn community, you have access to a wide range of University resources as well as cultural and recreational activities. Take advantage of the University's libraries and athletic facilities, or visit our arboretum and art galleries. There's always something going on at Penn, whether it's a new exhibit at the Penn Museum, the latest music or theater presentation at the Annenberg Center, or the Penn Relays at Franklin Field to name just a few examples. As a member of the Penn community, you're right in the middle of the excitement—and you and your family can enjoy many of these activities for free.
- Discounts and Special Services: From arts and entertainment to transportation and mortgages, you'll find great deals for University faculty and staff. Not only do Penn arts and cultural centers and museums offer free and discounted admission and memberships to faculty and staff. You can also enjoy substantial savings on other goods and services such as new cars from Ford and General Motors, cellular phone service plans, movie tickets, and admission to theme parks.
- Flexible Work Hours: Flexible work options offer creative approaches for completing work while promoting balance between work and personal commitments. These approaches involve use of non-traditional work hours, locations, and/or job structures.
- Penn Home Ownership Services: Penn offers a forgivable loan for eligible employees interested in buying a home or currently residing in West Philadelphia, which can be used for closing costs or home improvements.
- Adoption Assistance: Penn will reimburse eligible employees on qualified expenses in connection with the legal adoption of an eligible child, such as travel or court fees, for up to two adoptions in your household.

North Dakota State University

Rank: Doctoral/Post Doctoral Fellowship

Subfield(s): Public Law, American Government and Politics, Comparative Politics

North Dakota State University invites applications for a 9-month position in judicial politics, to begin on August 16, 2024.

The department of Political Science & Public Policy at NDSU is recruiting for a 9-month doctoral or post-doctoral fellowship, preferred starting Fall 2024. We seek candidates with expertise in judicial politics and constitutional law, broadly construed. Successful applicants should be versed in American public law, but could conduct research in a broad variety of related areas, such as, but not limited to, the role of race, ethnicity, sexualities, and/or gender in justice systems; criminal justice policy; law and society; comparative judicial politics; international courts and legal structures; or American political development. The teaching load is 2-2 for two years with one course release. Successful applicants will be prepared to teach core undergraduate and graduate law-related courses on American judicial politics, such as judicial processes and constitutional law.

Minimum Qualifications:

The minimum qualifications for the position are: 1) ABD or hold a Ph.D. in Political Science, or a related discipline, 2) evidence of research productivity, or potential to publish scholarship in peer reviewed journals, presses, and other outlets appropriate to one's field, 3) competence to teach American judicial processes and constitutional law, and 4) effective written and oral communication skills.

Preferred Qualifications:

We will give priority to candidates who 1) hold a Ph.D. in Political Science, or a related discipline, 2) can provide substantial evidence of (potential) research productivity and quality, 3) have experience teaching American judicial processes and/or constitutional law, 4) can provide substantial evidence of teaching effectiveness, and/or 5) have experience supervising or mentoring undergraduate students.

Applicant Materials Required:

Applicants must submit a cover letter, curriculum vitae, statement of research interests, writing sample, statement of teaching philosophy, evidence of teaching effectiveness (e.g., syllabi, course materials, evidence of participation in teaching professionalization activities, and,

if available, evaluations by peers and/or mentors; please do not include student evaluations of teaching), and the names and contact information of 3 references. All application materials must be submitted online at Employment Opportunities | NDSU.

Arizona State University

Rank: Presidential Postdoctoral Fellowship

Specializations: Race & Ethnic Politics, Gender Politics & Policy, Women & Politics

The School of Politics and Global Studies (SPGS) at Arizona State University (ASU) invites applications for up to two postdoctoral scholar positions in the area of race, ethnicity and politics, broadly defined, in the United States and/or across the globe.

SPGS, part of the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences, pursues inclusive excellence and is composed of faculty conducting cutting-edge research of public value on a variety of salient topics facing humanity in the United States and elsewhere. SPGS faculty include award-winning instructors skilled in teaching students with diverse backgrounds and life experiences and boast an exceptional capacity to mentor scholars studying the politics of race and ethnicity both in the US and globally. SPGS is committed to the success of Presidential Postdoctoral Fellows who will work closely with an accomplished group of faculty and students.

Consistent with the ASU Charter mission of inclusive excellence, the Fellows will work on their research publishable in high-impact scholarly outlets, present research at major conferences as well as ASU, participate regularly in School events, and mentor students. They may be also asked to perform duties common to faculty including teaching and grant writing.

The postdoctoral scholars selected will join a cohort of 10-15 other postdoctoral scholars at ASU as part of the Presidential Postdoctoral Fellowship Program. The goal of the program is to support the career development of outstanding Ph.D. recipients with great potential for advancing the ASU Charter into a future tenure track appointment at ASU.

The program seeks applicants whose professional preparedness, experience, and accomplishments are informed by experiences working with and within groups historically underrepresented or underserved in higher education in the United States. Where pools of qualified applicants are strong, priority will be given to applicants who demonstrate, through prior actions and achievements, intentional and actioned commitment to inclusive excellence. Examples of such contributions are research, teaching, mentorship, service or creative activity focused on empowering underserved populations that increases equitable access and inclusion in fields where historically excluded populations are underrepresented.

SPGS has committed to provide individualized mentorship and career development to ensure each candidate is well prepared to succeed in a future tenure track appointment. Career development and community building will also occur through programmatic support at the ASU Graduate College's Postdoctoral Affairs Office.

About Arizona State University:

ASU is a large, comprehensive, research university and for nearly two decades, has transformed into the "New American University," one dedicated to the simultaneous pursuit of excellence, broad access to quality education, and meaningful societal impact. By our Charter and Design Aspirations, we center inclusion and success as values that drive the enterprise; adopt inter- and transdisciplinary approaches to teaching and learning as ways to address society's greatest challenges; and develop innovative partnerships to produce master learners across the lifespan. To learn more about ASU, visit <http://www.asu.edu>.

Qualifications:

Successful candidates will engage in scholarly research and may be asked to perform duties common to academic personnel including grant writing and teaching.

Minimum qualifications:

A Ph.D. in political science, global studies, or a related social-scientific field from a regionally-accredited university by the time of appointment.

Demonstrated potential for excellence in research and teaching.

Demonstrated commitment to working with faculty, staff, students and communities to advance the principles of the ASU Charter

Desired qualifications:

Demonstrated experience publishing in leading peer-reviewed journals on the politics of race and ethnicity, broadly defined, in the US and/or globally.

Demonstrated potential to engage in interdisciplinary research.

Evidence of activities consistent with the ASU Charter and Design Aspirations

This position is located at the Arizona State University at the Tempe campus. All postdoctoral fellowship positions are for one year. Options for an additional one or two years of funding or a transition to a tenure track position may be offered, depending on each fellow's progress and training needs. Faculty tenure track appointments will require a process of review within the SPGS.

Application Instructions:

Applications can be submitted online via <https://apply.interfolio.com/135001>.

Application materials should include:

- a curriculum vitae;
- a letter of interest describing how you meet the qualifications noted above;
- a research statement; and
- contact information for 3 references including email addresses.

All application materials due by November 30, 2023. Applications will continue to be accepted on a rolling basis for a reserve pool. Applications in the reserve pool may then be reviewed in the order in which they were received until the position is filled.

Inquiries can be directed to Dr. Francisco Pedraza at fpedraz2@asu.edu.

University of Central Florida

Rank: Assistant Professor Intelligence/Security Studies

Subfield(s): International Relations, Comparative Politics, American Government and Politics

School of Politics, Security, and International Affairs (SPSIA) at the University of Central Florida (UCF) invites applications for a full-time, nine-month, tenure-earning assistant professor anticipated to begin August 2024.

The ideal candidate will have a well-developed research agenda including work on security; clear indicators of promise as a teacher; the ability to teach courses on intelligence, including intelligence analysis; and the ability to contribute to the Security Studies Ph.D. program through teaching and supervision, including the ability to teach qualitative methods at the graduate level. Experience working in an intelligence agency or establishment may strengthen an application but is not required. The ideal candidate will also have a record of, or potential for, external research funding as appropriate for the discipline. We are especially interested in candidates who can contribute through their research, teaching, and service to the diversity and excellence of our academic community and foster an environment in which faculty, staff, and students from a variety of backgrounds, cultures, and personal experiences are welcomed and can thrive.

The School of Politics, Security, and International Affairs is home to more than 1,300 undergraduate students, including a major track in intelligence and national security. Graduate programs include a master's degree in political science and a vibrant Ph.D. in Security Studies. SPSIA also hosts several centers, including the federally funded Central Florida Intelligence Community Center of Academic Excellence. For more information, visit <https://sciences.ucf.edu/politics/>.

The College of Sciences (COS) houses most of the university's natural, computational, and social sciences in eight departments, two schools, and several centers. The college's programs play a key role in advancing UCF as a national research university that is determined to help students from all backgrounds achieve success. For more information, visit <https://sciences.ucf.edu/>.

UCF, located in Orlando, Florida, is classified as a Very High Research Activity university by the Carnegie Foundation. With a diverse student body of more than 68,000 students, UCF is one of the largest universities in the country. The university offers more than 240 degree programs. UCF is designated a Hispanic Serving Institution. For more information, visit <http://www.ucf.edu>.

Minimum Qualifications:

A doctorate in Political Science, Security Studies, International Affairs, or a closely related field from an accredited institution by the time of hire is required.

Preferred Qualifications:

Preference will be given to candidates with:

- a promising research agenda in national/international security that reflects theoretical creativity and empirical sophistication;
- the ability to teach courses related to intelligence and security at the undergraduate and graduate levels; and
- the ability to contribute to the Security Studies Ph.D. program.

Additional Application Materials Required:

UCF requires all applications and supporting documents to be submitted electronically through the Human Resources employment opportunities website, <https://www.ucf.edu/jobs/>. In addition to the online application, interested candidates should attach the following materials: (1) a letter of interest, (2) a current CV, (3) a research statement, (4) a teaching statement (including, if available, evidence of teaching excellence), and (5) a list with the names and contact information for three professional references.

NOTE: Please have all documents ready when applying so they can be simultaneously uploaded. Once the online submission process is finalized, the system does not allow applicants to submit additional documents later.

Review of applications will begin on November 15, 2023, and continue until the position is filled.

University of Virginia

Rank: Dean's Postdoctoral Research Associate

Subfield(s): Other, American Government and Politics, Public Policy

Specializations: Education Policy, Race & Ethnic Politics, American Politics

The Frank Batten School of Leadership and Public Policy at the University of Virginia invites applications for a position of Dean's postdoctoral research associate. The school seeks a candidate who has research interests related to the core mission of the school – to generate new knowledge to solve the world's toughest public policy challenges and educate ethical and effective leaders prepared to lead in a diverse and divided world

We seek candidates from a range of disciplines with specific interests in American political institutions, the politics of domestic policy issues, the politics of U.S. education, and/or race and ethnic politics. We welcome candidates who conduct research that has synergies with areas of current strength at the Batten School. Candidates should identify in their application 2 to 3 possible faculty within the school to serve as disciplinary mentors with whom they would be matched during the postdoc.

The postdoctoral appointment is renewed annually with a target length of two years and is expected to begin August 2024. A Ph.D. (conferred no later than July 2024) is required. Appointments involve independent research and/or opportunities for research collaboration with faculty and teaching one class per academic year at the Batten School.

A criterion for selection for this position is evidence of scholarly potential that could lead to a tenure track appointment at a research university. Strong quantitative, communication, and project management skills are also required. Applicants with a track record of publication are preferred. Applicants with demonstrated willingness and ability to contribute to the wellbeing of populations that are historically underserved are encouraged.

This dean's postdoctoral research associate position was launched in 2020 with the intention of creating a mentored professional development opportunity to train the next generation of scholars for future tenure-track positions. Postdoc research associates in this role will have opportunities for mentorship, access to resources and research infrastructure, opportunities to collaborate with faculty at a truly interdisciplinary school, and connections to a robust network of diverse scholars.

The University of Virginia is an equal opportunity/affirmative action employer. Women, minorities, veterans, and persons with disabilities are encouraged to apply.

Harvard University

Rank: Inequality in America Initiative Postdoctoral Fellowship

Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Public Administration, Public Policy

The Inequality in America Initiative seeks applications from recent doctoral degree recipients interested in joining a multidisciplinary network of Harvard researchers working to address the manifold challenges of inequality. This program is intended to seed new research directions, facilitate interdisciplinary collaboration, and develop new leaders in the study of inequality.

We expect to appoint up to four fellows in 2024, with two positions dedicated to research on issues of racial and ethnic inequality and at least one position focused on work, family, and opportunity.

The fellowship is a two-year postdoctoral training program, with a salary of $76,500/year plus fringe benefits, including health insurance eligibility.

The award will also include office space and up to $17,500 for research expenses across the two years.

Fellows are expected to be in residence at Harvard. The program director will connect fellows with mentors, and fellows will have ample opportunity to make connections with faculty and students from across the University.

Applicants to the fall 2024 program must have received a doctorate *no earlier than* April 2021; those applicants without a doctorate must demonstrate that they will receive such a degree *no later than* August 2024.

Middle Georgia State University

Rank: Assistant/Associate Professor of Public Safety

Subfield(s): Public Administration, Public Policy, American Government and Politics

Specializations: Criminal Justice, Public Finance & Budgeting, United States

About Us: Middle Georgia State University (MGA), a multi-campus, baccalaureate and graduate degree granting public institution, is the most affordable public state university in Georgia. MGA has five campuses-Macon, Cochran, Dublin, Eastman, and Warner Robins, all located in central Georgia-and global outreach through its fully-online campus. Its enrollment of 8,000 students is largely comprised of students from most of Georgia's 159 counties. The University has six academic schools, including Georgia's flagship aviation university, that support its mission to educate and graduate inspired, lifelong learners whose scholarship and careers enhance the state.

Department Information: The Department of Psychology and Criminal Justice includes programs that are designed to produce analytic, critical thinkers prepared to succeed in meeting the challenges of modern life. We emphasize career preparation in the behavioral sciences through lifelong learning. The Department offers an Associate of Science in Criminal Justice, a Bachelor of Science in Psychology, a Bachelor of Science in Criminal Justice, and a Doctorate in Public Safety. (Note: The successful applicant(s) may be appointed to either the Department of Psychology and Criminal Justice or the Department of Political Science, depending on their disciplinary background and undergraduate teaching responsibilities.)

Job Summary: The successful applicants will receive tenure-track appointments in the School of Education & Behavioral Sciences, appropriate to their disciplinary background and expertise. Successful applicants will teach courses in a new online doctorate in public safety and in one of our undergraduate programs in their field. In addition to other courses to be taught, we anticipate a need for one of the candidates to have the background or expertise to teach doctoral-level courses in one or some of the following: (1) Geographic Information Systems, (2) Infrastructure and Resilience, (3) Disaster Science, (4) Financial Investigation & Fraud Prevention, or (5) courses related to Legal Studies. The successful candidates will be expected to serve on committees to guide and evaluate doctoral students' program evaluation or policy evaluation research. The standard teaching load at MGA is a 4/4 course load. The position also involves expectations for student mentorship, service, and scholarship. These are ten (10)-month faculty positions. Regular on campus presence is also required for the position. Teaching responsibilities will include online courses, but face to face and hybrid undergraduate teaching responsibilities are also likely.

Responsibilities: Teach a workload of a variety of four courses per Fall and Spring semester, in courses for the Doctor of Science in Public Safety and in one of our undergraduate programs field of expertise. Serve on committees for the university, school, and department. Scholarship and research activities. Evaluate doctoral students' program evaluation or policy evaluation research. Mentor both undergraduate and doctoral students. Actively pursue continuous improvement in teaching. Actively engage in activities aimed at improving student success. Be present on campus regularly/weekly.

Required Qualifications
Required Educational Experience

Doctorate in public safety or closely related field from a regionally-accredited university (or international equivalent).

Required Experience

Experience in a university setting.
Experience related to public safety.
Experience that warrants a tenure-track appointment at an appropriate rank.

Experience teaching related courses at the college-level.
Experience with online course delivery will be a plus.

Required Documents to Attach
Letter of interest, including teaching philosophy.
Curriculum vitae.
Unofficial Academic Transcripts (undergraduate and graduate).
Research statement, including any experience conducting and/or supervising program evaluation or policy evaluation research.
Name and contact information for three professional references.

Background Check
Employment offer is contingent upon completing a background investigation including a criminal background check demonstrating your employment eligibility with MGA, as determined by MGA in its sole discretion, confirmation of the credentials and employment history reflected in your application material and, if applicable, a satisfactory credit check.

Other Information
Start date for this position is August 1, 2024.

This is a full-time, 10-month, faculty position and includes a comprehensive benefits package. Benefits include:

Health insurance
Dental
Vision
Flexible Spending Account (FSA)
Health Savings Account (HSA)
Life Insurance

America in the World Consortium

Rank: AWC Postdoctoral Fellowship

Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Public Policy, Political Theory

The America in the World Consortium at Duke University, Johns Hopkins SAIS, the University of Texas at Austin, and the University of Florida seeks applications from current Ph.D. students for its Postdoctoral Fellowship Program.

The America in the World Consortium (AWC) is a dynamic partnership of universities seeking to create a more vibrant debate among policy-interested scholars about America's role in the world. We are committed to preparing the next generation to confront geopolitical challenges and advance American national interests abroad. AWC prioritizes an intellectually diverse research community and supports fellows across a variety of disciplines. AWC seeks Postdoctoral Fellows for in-residence positions beginning in August 2024. Applicants will be considered for up to six (6) fellowship positions for up to two (2) years in residence at one of the four partner institutions:

- Duke University, Program in American Grand Strategy (AGS)
- Johns Hopkins University, Henry A. Kissinger Center for Global Affairs at SAIS
- University of Texas at Austin, Clements Center for National Security
- University of Florida, Alexander Hamilton Center for Classical and Civic Education

Applicants from all disciplines whose research bears directly on American grand strategy, broadly defined, are welcome to apply. However, preference will be given to applicants with a doctorate in history, political science, public policy, classics, and political philosophy whose research has a strong connection to policy. Successful applicants will be able to spend the substantial portion of their time working on their own research and writing projects, while taking advantage of the many academic resources available at their institution. Additionally, Fellows will be required to play an active role in the host institution's programs and activities. Additional responsibilities will be by mutual agreement between the Fellow and the AWC directors. For example, in some cases, Fellows will have the opportunity to teach an undergraduate course.

Fellows accepted to the program will be offered a competitive stipend of $72,000, access to benefits and full use of campus facilities, in addition to other university-specific benefits. The fellowship position will provide funding for a minimum of 12 months and up to 24 months. Fellows will also be given a research fund of $7,500 to cover relocation expenses and legitimate research-related expenses, as needed.

Applicants are required to have received a Ph.D. by August 1, 2024, in a relevant field, such as history, political science, public policy, classics, or political philosophy. Applicants who have received a Ph.D. in language studies, area studies, or other related fields may be considered if their research explicitly engages U.S. foreign policy.

Applications are due no later than Friday, January 5, 2024 (11:59 p.m. EST).

Applicants will need to submit a Cover Letter. In the Cover Letter, stipulate which Consortium school or schools the candidate would wish to reside at during the fellowship.

Applicants are required to submit a C.V., graduate school transcript, and the names of 3 referees who would write a letter of recommendation if asked by the review committee.

Applicants are also required to submit an article or writing sample representing an existing contribution to the field of American grand strategy, broadly defined.

Application Deadline: 1/5/2024

Date Posted: 10/16/2023

Salary: Competitive

New College of Florida

Rank: American Political Institutions, focusing on Legislative Politics & Public Policy (tenure-track)

New College of Florida invites applications for a tenure-track position in American Political Institutions with a substantive focus in Legislative Politics and Public Policy. Candidates should have a Ph.D. in Political Science, teaching experience, career interest in liberal arts teaching, and a vibrant research agenda. In addition to coursework in their area of expertise, the candidate will be expected to join in the rotation(s) of one or more of the following disciplinary service courses: American Government and Civics, Quantitative Political Analysis I, or Research Design (multiple approaches and methods). The ability to teach American Political Development and/or State Politics would be a plus. We expect that the candidate hired would be able to guide both qualitative and quantitative undergraduate research. The candidate must have completed the Ph.D. by the start of employment in August 2024.

New College, the nationally recognized honors college of the State University System of Florida, is a small, highly selective, innovative liberal arts institution. Students, with the help of faculty sponsors, plan their own academic programs through a series of semester contracts, and receive narrative evaluations in lieu of grades. Undergraduate research has a central role in the curriculum, and a senior thesis or project is required of all students. The teaching load is two courses per semester plus sponsoring individual and group tutorials. Faculty members also provide academic advising, supervise independent study projects, sponsor senior theses, and serve on baccalaureate committees. Professors are expected to maintain a program of research or creative work. We are particularly interested in candidates with a commitment to innovative undergraduate liberal arts teaching.

Interested candidates should apply online at <http://www.ncf.edu/employment> and upload the following: a cover letter; c.v.; statements of teaching and research interests; syllabi; teaching evaluations; one writing sample (article or chapter length); and unofficial graduate transcript(s). In addition, please identify three scholars to write letters of recommendation (they will receive a request through the system). According to Florida law, applications and meetings regarding applications are open to the public upon request. For questions about the application process or accommodations, please contact Ms. Kristi Fecteau at kfecteau@ncf.edu.

Review of applications will begin on November 6, 2023 and continue until the position is filled.

New College of Florida, an Equal Opportunity Employer, complies with all federal, state, and Florida Board of Governors regulations. In accordance with state law, all employees are subject to a background check at the time of hiring.

Specializations: American Politics, United States, Research Methods

The Center for Rural Pennsylvania, a bipartisan, bicameral legislative research agency of the Pennsylvania General Assembly, welcomes applications for the position of Quantitative Research Analyst. Review of applications will begin immediately and continue until the position is filled. The anticipated start date is flexible, although preference will be given to candidates who can start on or before January 2024. This position is based in the Capital Complex in Harrisburg, Pennsylvania. Employees are generally expected to be in the office at least three days per week, 8:30 A.M. to 4:30 P.M. The remaining two days per week may be scheduled for remote work.

Responsibilities: Reporting to the Executive Director, the Quantitative Research Analyst is responsible for the following:

--Maintaining and updating the Center's comprehensive database on trends and conditions.

--Maintaining awareness of new or emerging sources of data available to help inform policy decisions.

--Using a variety of methodological techniques to provide valid and reliable statistical analysis on issues affecting rural Pennsylvania.

--Effectively coordinating the Center's response efforts for technical assistance and database inquiries from various constituent groups.

--Creating fact sheets, data visualizations, GIS maps, and related materials to inform the work of the General Assembly and rural stakeholders.

--Conducting necessary background work for, and assist in the development of, Rural publications to include bi-monthly newsletters, Issue Papers, and technical reports.

--Assisting the Executive Director, as assigned, in official representation of the Center for Rural Pennsylvania to members of the General Assembly, Executive Offices and Agencies, and others.

--Providing the research and data for, and help with, presentations to be delivered by Center staff.

--In consultation with the Assistant Director, investigating and identifying issues that warrant inclusion in the Center's Annual Faculty Research Grant Program.

--Assisting, as needed, in the review and analysis of faculty research grant proposals, student grant proposals, and the progress reports or draft versions of research reports.

--Coordinating and supervising the work of any student interns or Rural Fellows.

--Performing other duties as necessary and assigned.

Qualifications:

--A master's degree in Public Administration, Public Policy, Political Science, Economics, Statistics, or related field.

--A minimum of two years' work experience in a position focusing on research and policy development OR a terminal degree in an appropriate field.

--Proficiency in an appropriate statistical analysis package—e.g., SPSS, Stata, SAS, R, etc.

--Proficiency in an appropriate GIS software package and/or data visualization package—e.g., Tableau, Microsoft BI, etc.

--Familiarity with U.S. Census data or other federal and state government data, preferred.

--Excellent written and verbal communication skills.

--Experience in delivering professional presentations to groups preferred.

--Ability to collaborate effectively within a small work group.

--Demonstrated ability to meet urgent requests.

--Demonstrated ability to work independently.

--Valid Driver's License.

--Ability to travel occasionally throughout the Commonwealth, including overnight travel.

Salary Range: $70,000-$80,000 (commensurate with experience)

Required Application Materials:

Candidates must submit the following materials to the online application portal:

--Cover letter

--Resume or C.V.

--List of three professional references, with contact information

Johns Hopkins University

Rank: SNF Agora Academy Postdoctoral Fellowship

Subfield(s): International Relations, American Government and Politics, Public Policy

The SNF Agora Institute at Johns Hopkins University invites sociologists and political scientists to apply for its SNF Agora Academy Postdoctoral Fellowship.

To apply go to <https://apply.interfolio.com/134071>

The SNF Agora Institute, an academic and public forum, is dedicated to strengthening global democracy through civic engagement and informed, inclusive dialogue.

The postdoctoral program is a one-year program, with the opportunity for a two-year fellowship, intended to support recent doctoral degree recipients whose scholarship engages with questions and topics directly related to the institute's mission. The SNF Agora Academy seeks two fellows who would engage actively with and benefit from a multidisciplinary scholarly community that enables them to extend their research and public engagement in new directions, with the active mentorship of SNF Agora Institute faculty.

The fellows will contribute actively to the academic mission of institute. They will carry out their own research, participate in seminars, and be full members of the intellectual community. As part of their commitment to the institute, they are expected to participate actively in a research/practice project of the institute, reside in the Baltimore-DC area, and regularly engage in institute activities, including weekly Tuesday and Thursday seminars.

One of the central goals of the SNF Agora Institute is to foster conversations and collaboration that don't happen elsewhere. The fellows must have a strong academic record and be on a trajectory to contribute to key disciplinary conversations, but also be excited about being part of a community that is not simply made up of academics, whether that helps them integrate other perspectives into their scholarship, employs their scholarship to help strengthen democracy in tangible ways, or both. We strongly encourage applicants to think creatively about how their research interacts with scholars in other disciplines and efforts to strengthen democracy in the world and, thus, support the SNF Agora mission. Getting your work into the public domain is not the same as having impact. How do you hope to have impact? Are there civic and political entities, including movements, parties, governmental organizations, media, etc. that you could partner with? Do you have ideas that could contribute to public debates around democracy as well as academic ones? This work should be in addition to and not a replacement for a strong academic trajectory.

Compensation

Fellows will be appointed initially for a one-year term, and will have the opportunity to extend their fellowship for a second academic year. They will receive a stipend of $70,000, health insurance, and a modest moving and research budget.

The fellowship start date is July 01, 2024.

Qualifications

The fellows must have a strong academic record and be on a trajectory to contribute to key disciplinary conversations, but also be excited about being part of a community that is not simply made up of academics, whether that helps them integrate other perspectives into their scholarship, employs their scholarship to help strengthen democracy in tangible ways, or both.

Morningside University

Rank: Assistant Professor of Political Science

Specializations: State Politics, Constitutional Law & Theory, Research Methods

Applications are invited for a tenure-track position in American Politics in the Department of Social Science with specialization in such areas as U.S. political institutions, public law, state and local politics, public policy, and/or research methods. The successful candidate will bring a quantitative approach that complements the department's commitment to methodological diversity and innovative approaches to teaching and research. Teaching responsibilities may include Introduction to U.S. Government, U.S. Law, US Constitution, State and Local Government, Research Methods in Political Science, Congress & Presidency, courses in general education (including a course in introductory statistics and first-year writing), and other courses in the applicant's area(s) of expertise. Ideal candidates will have an active scholarly agenda that may include collaborating with students.

Candidates must have a Ph.D. in political science or a closely related discipline; ABD will be considered. This position is a nine-month appointment beginning August 12, 2024. The teaching load is 20 credits per academic year plus a May term course once every three years.

Morningside, a private university located in Sioux City, Iowa, is admired for both its rich, connected campus community and exceptional active learning experiences. Established in 1894, the university has been led by its 13th president Dr. Albert Mosley since 2022 and is nestled within a serene 69-acre park-like campus in the heart of Iowa's fourth largest city. Morningside also offers academic environments at its 77-acre learning farm and at the Sioux Gateway Airport for its School of Aviation. The institution serves a community of approximately 2,300 students from almost all 50 states and more than 30 countries.

As a testament to its learning outcomes, more than 80% of undergraduate students have engaged in an internship, externship, student teaching, or preceptorship upon graduation, and for more than a decade 99% of students have gone on to a job or graduate school in their field of study within six months of graduation.

Residential undergraduate students can expect a tranquil and secure campus environment, propelling personal and professional growth. Student life includes around 50 student-led clubs and organizations, a wide array of visual and performing arts opportunities, and 28 varsity sports that regularly receive conference and national recognition. Morningside is also proud to serve as a regional resource for the Siouxland area, offering a variety of on-campus events and activities for students, alumni, and the community at large. Learn more at morningside.edu.

Review of applications for the position will begin immediately and will continue until filled. For fullest consideration, applicant materials should be received by Oct 31, 2023. Candidates for searches must have current authorization to be employed in the U.S. without employer sponsorship. Successful completion of a background check and education verification are required. All qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to age, sex, religion, creed, race, color, gender identity, sexual orientation, disability, genetic information, national origin, or other characteristics protected by state and federal law. ## Ohio State University

Rank: Post-Doctoral Scholar

Subfield(s): International Relations, American Government and Politics, Comparative Politics

The Mershon Center for International Security Studies at the Ohio State University (<https://mershoncenter.osu.edu>) seeks to appoint up to three Post Doctoral Scholars to join our team for the 2024-2026 academic years. The two-year appointment begins August 15, 2024, through August 14, 2026, and carries a stipend of $60,000/yr plus an annual $4,000 research fund.

Situated in Ohio State's College of Arts & Sciences, the Mershon Center cultivates innovative research at the intersections of international, national, and human security challenges. It provides the institutional home for campus-wide collaboration. Although most of our affiliates come from the social sciences and the humanities, we are open to the full range of disciplines involved analytically and/or practically with diplomacy, conflict, peacemaking, governance, and cooperative problem-solving. We also seek to engage perspectives across nations, cultures, commitments, generations, and forms of practice. We invite applicants from any field whose research promises to bring new insight into established or emerging security questions. Successful applicants will make compelling arguments for how their work can benefit from our interdisciplinary and multiperspectival environment.

Mershon postdocs receive mentoring as a cohort, along with assistance from our affiliates in building individual networks across campus. They are expected to devote approximately 10 hours per week to Center-related activities: supporting and developing programming, collaborating on research, and training projects, etc. The remainder of the post-doctoral scholar's time is given to developing their own research, publications, and professional profile.

Because scholars are expected to be fully integrated with the intellectual life of the Center, they must plan to reside in the Columbus area during the relevant academic years. Required: Ph.D. in appropriate field related to security studies by June 30, 2024. Candidates should be within three years of the Ph.D.

Applications should be submitted through Workday and consist of:

- Cover letter describing the two-year research agenda and how it supports the research agenda of the Mershon Center
- Current CV
- An article-length writing sample

All documents can be uploaded as one single attachment.

The deadline for receipt of applications is December 15, 2023. Short-listed candidates will then be asked for three reference letters to be submitted online. Final interviews will take place in late January, with decisions by mid-February.

Rank: Assistant Professor of Political Science and International Relations

Subfield(s): Public Administration, Public Policy, American Government and Politics

Specializations: Health Care, Environmental Policy, Women & Politics

The Department of Political Science & International Relations at the State University of New York (SUNY) at Geneseo seeks applications for a tenure-track faculty position in Public Administration and Policy, with a focus in American Politics, to begin August, 2024. We seek applicants from a variety of fields within Public Administration and Public Policy, with possible areas of expertise including, but not limited to, Bureaucratic Politics, Nonprofits, Education, the Environment, Health Care, Income Inequality, or Social Welfare Policy. We seek a candidate that complements but is distinctive from our existing areas of expertise in American politics (American political institutions and campaigns and elections).

We are a highly collegial department of seven full-time faculty members who are committed to excellence in undergraduate teaching, liberal arts education, and diversity, equity, and inclusion. We offer two majors (Political Science and International Relations), contribute to several interdisciplinary programs, and have access to substantial resources to support research. More information about our department is available at https://www.geneseo.edu/political\_science.

Duties of the position include:

- Teaching 3 courses per semester (3-3 load) in public administration and policy, including PLSC 374 – Public Administration and PLSC 414 – American Public Policy, and other courses in American politics and the candidate's area of expertise.

- Coordinating the Public Administration minor and administering Geneseo's joint 5-year BA/MPA program with the University of Albany.

- Supervising student internships and regularly teaching the internship course PLSC 495 – Political Affairs and Legal Affairs Internships as part of the 3-3 course load.

- Pursuing a program of scholarly research leading to publication in peer-reviewed outlets.

- Providing academic advising to political science majors.

- Mentoring and supervising undergraduate research and other projects.

- Contributing to governance and engaging in service to the department, the college, and the discipline.

- There are also opportunities to contribute to other interdisciplinary programs, including Women's and Gender Studies, Black Studies, Sustainability Studies, Sociomedical Sciences, Legal Studies, and Urban Studies.

Our priorities are teaching excellence and creating a sense of belonging for all students. A commitment to working effectively with students from diverse backgrounds is essential. We also highly value collegiality, experience with integrative learning, and a willingness to contribute to a holistic and broadly-conceived education in political science as a part of a liberal arts curriculum. The department will support the process for a successful candidate to acquire an H1-B visa as needed for international candidates or non-citizens.

To learn more about our department visit: https://www.geneseo.edu/political\_science.

Minimum Qualifications:

- Ph.D. in Political Science or related field by the time of appointment.
- Expertise in Public Policy and Public Administration.
- Prior experience or demonstrated potential in teaching courses in Public Administration and Policy at the undergraduate level.
- Potential to establish a program of research leading to publication.
- Demonstrated commitment to fostering a diverse and inclusive working/teaching environment.

To be guaranteed consideration, applications must be completed by Friday, December 1, 2023.

Applicants should be prepared to provide:

- Cover letter that addresses teaching experience and candidate's research agenda
- CV
- Teaching statement and demonstration of teaching effectiveness
- Diversity statement
- 3 letters of recommendation

- (2) A strong record of published research related to public policy and/or public law.
- (3) Demonstrated excellence in undergraduate teaching related to public policy and/or public law.

We prefer candidates with a record of departmental service and/or leadership and an interest in collaborating with colleagues to strengthen our unique interdisciplinary program. We encourage applicants who share our commitment to diversity, equity, and inclusion.

Trinity College seeks a faculty that reflects the changing demographics of our student body, including candidates from backgrounds historically underrepresented in higher education. Our student body is diverse, representing 41 states and 70 countries, with 21 percent U.S. students of color and 50 percent who identify as women. More than 90 percent of students live on campus. Trinity is a highly selective, independent, nonsectarian liberal arts institution located in the capital city of Hartford, Conn. With more than 2,100 full-time undergraduate students and 91 graduate students, the college maintains a rigorous academic profile complemented by a vibrant and diverse co-curricular program. We consider our location in a culturally and socioeconomically diverse capital city to be among Trinity's most distinctive assets, and we cultivate strong connections with our surrounding neighbors and with institutions and organizations throughout Hartford and the region. As a preeminent liberal arts college in an urban setting, Trinity College prepares students to be bold, independent thinkers who lead transformative lives.

The typical teaching load is 2-3 with a one-semester leave every fourth year. The successful candidate will receive annual research and conference travel funds.

To ensure full consideration please submit the following materials to <https://trincoll.peopleadmin.com> by November 1, 2023: a cover letter (describing research; teaching; and commitment to advancing diversity, equity, and inclusion), CV, sample of scholarly writing, course syllabi, course evaluations, and contact information for at least three individuals who will provide letters of reference.

University of South Carolina

Rank: Assistant Professor in American Politics

The Department of Political Science at the University of South Carolina seeks applications for a nine month, full-time, tenure-track Assistant Professor position in American Politics, to begin August 16, 2024. We seek candidates with well-conceived, theoretically informed research agendas who have published in or demonstrate the promise of publishing in leading outlets. Successful candidates will be able to teach substantive courses in American Politics, contribute to the department's graduate and undergraduate programs in methodology, and to the teaching of the Founding Documents of the United States. A Ph.D. in political science is required by the start date of appointment.

From the Upstate to the Lowcountry, the University of South Carolina system is transforming the lives of South Carolinians through the impact of our eight institutions and 20 locations throughout the state. More than 50,000 students are enrolled at one of eight institutions, including the research campus in Columbia and comprehensive four-year universities in Aiken, Upstate and Beaufort. In addition, our Palmetto College campuses in Salkehatchie, Union, Lancaster, and Sumter enable students to earn associate or bachelor's degrees through a combination of in-person, online or blended learning. All of our system institutions place strong emphasis on service — helping to build healthier, more educated communities in South Carolina and beyond.

At the University of South Carolina, we strive to cultivate an inclusive environment that is open, welcoming, and supportive of individuals of all backgrounds. We recognize diversity in our workforce is essential to providing academic excellence and critical to our sustainability. The University is committed to eliminating barriers created by institutional discrimination through accountability and continuous process improvement. We celebrate the diverse voices, perspectives, and experiences of our employees.

The University of South Carolina is an affirmative action, equal opportunity employer. Minorities and women are encouraged to apply. The University of South Carolina does not discriminate in educational or employment opportunities on the basis of race, sex, gender, gender identity, transgender status, age, color, religion, national origin, disability, sexual orientation, genetics, protected veteran status, pregnancy, childbirth or related medical conditions.

How to Apply

Applicants must submit a cover letter; curriculum vitae; two writing samples that demonstrate a significant ongoing research agenda; statements of research and teaching interests; graduate transcript; contact information (including telephone number and email address) for three references; and a diversity statement that articulates the candidate's commitment and capacity to contribute to diversity, equity, and inclusion through research, teaching, mentoring, outreach, and engagement. References will be contacted directly for letters of recommendation (which must be submitted on appropriate letterhead). The position will remain open until filled, and the search committee will begin reviewing applications on October 20, 2023. ## Northwestern University

Rank: Assistant Professor of Political Science in American Politics and Political Behavior

Specializations: Political Behavior, Political Parties & Organizations, Race & Ethnic Politics

The Department of Political Science at Northwestern University seeks applications for a full-time, tenure-track Assistant Professor of American Politics who specializes in Political Behavior to begin on September 1, 2024. We seek a scholar whose research and teaching tackles important, problem-driven questions about democracy and representation, including but not limited to partisanship as social identity, polarization of American politics, elite manipulation of mass opinion, misinformation, and mass responses to the erosion of democratic norms. Outstanding candidates for this position are experts in survey and experimental methods and will be able to advise undergraduates and graduates in these research methods. We are particularly interested in candidates whose research dovetails with scholarship on political institutions and/or racial and ethnic politics.

The successful candidate will teach a combination of graduate and undergraduate courses, as well as participate in departmental activities and service. Ph.D. or equivalent terminal degree is required; however, ABD applicants who anticipate completion of the doctorate by Fall 2024 will be considered. The candidate will join a university with a broad, interdisciplinary community of scholars affiliated with departments and programs such as the Center for Diversity and Democracy (CSDD), the Institute for Sustainability and Energy at Northwestern (ISEN), the Institute for Policy Research (IPR), the Global Poverty

Research Lab, the Center for Native American and Indigenous Research (CNAIR), the Council for Race and Ethnic Studies (CRES), the Northwestern Institute of Complex System (NICO), Sociology, Psychology, Computer Science, Statistics and Data Science, the School of Education and Social Policy, the School of Communication, Kellogg School of Management, among others.

Applications should include a cover letter, current CV, writing sample, research statement, teaching statement, evidence of teaching effectiveness, diversity statement, and three letters of recommendation. Review will begin immediately. Applications received by October 20th will receive full consideration. The committee will accept new applications until the position is filled.

Princeton University

Rank: Postdoctoral Research Associate/2024-2025 CSDP Fellow

Postdoctoral Research Associate/2024-2025 CSDP Fellow

Princeton University's Center for the Study of Democratic Politics (CSDP) seeks post-doctoral or more senior research associates for ten-month positions anticipated to start on September 1, 2024. The Center supports empirical research on democratic political processes and institutions. PhD required.

Each research associate will pursue research and contribute to the intellectual life of the Center, the Princeton School of Public and International Affairs, and the Department of Politics. CSDP scholars are expected to participate in the weekly CSDP seminars and related weekly research seminars in the Department of Politics, as well as occasional lectures, conferences, and other events.

Successful candidates will receive a competitive salary and applicable Princeton University benefits in accordance with university guidelines, a taxable moving allowance, and a research allowance. Selected candidates will be required to be in residence in Princeton or the local vicinity, or demonstrate to the program's satisfaction the ability to be on campus on a daily basis and on short notice in order to fulfill responsibilities relating to in-person participation for the duration of the fellowship (September 1, 2024 - July 1, 2025).

Applicants must apply online and submit a CV, a 3-5 page (double-spaced) statement of research interest/research proposal, a writing sample, and the names of two (and not more than two) references. A cover letter is optional. Applicants for this 2024-2025 postdoctoral research associate position must apply to <https://www.princeton.edu/acad-positions/position/31461>. The deadline for receipt of complete applications is Friday, December 1, 2023, at 11:59 p.m. EST. Referees will be contacted directly by email with instructions for submitting a confidential recommendation on your behalf. Letters of reference are to be submitted by the end of the business day on Wednesday, December 6, 2023. Complete your application well before the deadline so that references can be submitted in a timely manner. This position is subject to the University's background check policy.

We at the School of Public and International Affairs believe that it is vital to cultivate an environment that embraces and promotes diversity, equity, and inclusion, which are fundamental to the success of our education and research mission. This commitment to diversity informs our efforts in recruitment and hiring as we actively seek colleagues of exceptional ability who represent a broad range of viewpoints, experiences, and value systems, and who share Princeton University's dedication to excellence.

Princeton University is an Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action Employer and all qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to age, race, color, religion, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity or expression, national origin, disability status, protected veteran status, or any other characteristic protected by law. ### Princeton University

Rank: Visiting Research Scholar/2024-2025 CSDP Fellow

Princeton University's Center for the Study of Democratic Politics (CSDP) seeks visiting scholars for the 2024-2025 academic year. The Center supports empirical research on democratic political processes and institutions. Applications are welcome from political scientists and scholars in related social science disciplines. CSDP visiting scholar positions are restricted to employed scholars on leave who are expected to return to their positions.

Each scholar will pursue research and contribute to the intellectual life of the Center, the Department of Politics, and the Princeton School of Public and International Affairs. CSDP scholars are expected to participate in the weekly CSDP seminars and related weekly research seminars in the Department of Politics, as well as occasional lectures, conferences, and other events.

Visiting scholars from academic institutions often receive up to one-half of their academic-year salaries from their home institutions for the appointment period. The amount that Princeton contributes to the scholar's salary is based on the financial support provided by their home institution. Selected candidates will be asked to indicate, or provide written authorization for Princeton to confirm, what percentage of financial support their home institution and other sources are likely to provide during their visit, if any, and to submit a confidential statement indicating salary for the current academic year (September 1, 2023 - July 1, 2024) or provide written authorization for Princeton to confirm their salary. Successful candidates will also receive applicable benefits, one trip to and from Princeton, and a research allowance.

Selected candidates will be required to be in residence in Princeton or the local vicinity or demonstrate to the program's satisfaction the ability to be on campus on a daily basis and on short notice in order to fulfill responsibilities relating to in-person participation for the duration of the fellowship (September 1, 2024 - July 1, 2025).

Verification of employment will be requested prior to approval by the Dean of the Faculty. PhD or equivalent doctoral degree required.

Applicants for this Visiting Research Scholar position for 2024-2025 must apply online at <https://www.princeton.edu/acad-positions/position/31925> and submit a CV, a 3-5 page (double-spaced) statement of research interest/research proposal, a writing sample, and a statement of the home institution's leave policy. ## Pennsylvania State University

Rank: Assistant Professor of American Politics

Assistant Professor, American Politics

The Department of Political Science at The Pennsylvania State University in University Park, Pennsylvania, USA, invites applications for an Assistant Professor of American Politics. This is a tenure-line position to begin in Fall 2024.

Duties for an Assistant Professor will involve a combination of research, teaching, and service. In the role, the selected candidate will be expected to focus their research and teaching on social inequity and/or health or wellbeing widely defined. For example, the department welcomes applications from scholars whose work focuses on race or ethnicity, class, gender, sexual orientation, gender identity, disability, mental health, and/or political voice and representation. Assistant Professor positions at Penn State involve substantial research support and offer significant release time.

This position is co-funded by Penn State's interdisciplinary Social Science Research Institute and is part of an initiative to hire faculty members in different units across Penn State. These faculty members join an existing campus cluster, with the goal to foster collaborations among social and behavioral scientists and others, working at different levels of aggregation on understanding and reducing disparities.

Candidates whose research addresses critical social problems and shows evidence of, or potential for, interdisciplinary collaborations across disciplinary lines are particularly desired. We particularly welcome scholars who build on existing departmental strengths. Scholars whose work speaks to questions or policies that fit well with the cluster focus, are especially encouraged to apply. A description of the Social Science Research Institute's Strategic Foci can be found at <https://ssri.psu.edu/about/ssri-overview>.

Candidates for this position should show demonstrated ability as a researcher and teacher, evidence of scholarly and professional growth, and demonstrate the potential for external funding. Candidates must have completed their Ph.D. in American Politics or related field by the time of appointment.

In addition, successful candidates must either have demonstrated a commitment to building an inclusive, equitable, and diverse campus community, or describe one or more ways they would envision doing so, given the opportunity.

To apply, submit a cover letter outlining your research interests and teaching credentials, a curriculum vitae that provides evidence of qualifications, a sample of scholarly writing, evidence of effectiveness as a teacher (e.g., course evaluations, sample syllabi/assignments, teaching statement), and the names/contact information of three references at Penn State's Job Posting Board.

System limitations allow for a total of 5 documents (5mb per document) as part of your application. Please combine materials to meet the 5-document limit.

Review of applications will begin immediately and continue until the position is filled. To receive full consideration, materials should be received by October 15, 2023.

Penn State is committed to and accountable for advancing diversity, equity, and inclusion in all of its forms. We embrace individual uniqueness, foster a culture of inclusion that supports both broad and specific diversity initiatives, leverage the educational and institutional benefits of diversity, and engage all individuals to help them thrive. We value inclusion as a core strength and an essential element of our public service mission.

Penn State offers competitive benefits to full-time employees, including medical, dental, vision, and retirement plans, in addition to 75% tuition discounts (including for a spouse and dependent children up to the age of 26) and paid holidays. Please visit <https://hr.psu.edu/benefits> for more detailed information.

Catholic University of America

Rank: Assistant Professor of Politics
Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Public Policy, Political Theory

Assistant Professor of Politics (American Politics)

The Department of Politics at The Catholic University of America invites applications for a tenure-track faculty appointment in American politics, to begin in the fall of 2024. We are interested in a candidate with a range of interests, including but not limited to public opinion, ideology, political parties, elections, and the presidency. The successful candidate could also play an important advisory role for our Washington, D.C. internship programs. The department especially welcomes applicants whose research interests complement its traditional strengths in historical, theoretical, and institutional perspectives. Situated on a large and beautiful campus, Catholic University is only three metro stops from the Capitol. Politics is one of the largest majors on campus, attracting many students who value the community of a Catholic university while pursuing careers related to politics and law in the nation's capital. The department's Ph.D program has a long and distinguished history, and the development of professionally minded M.A. programs is a university priority.

We seek candidates who understand, are enthusiastic about, and will make a significant contribution to the mission of the University, which reads as follows: "As the national university of the Catholic Church in the United States, founded and sponsored by the bishops of the country with the approval of the Holy See, The Catholic University of America is committed to being a comprehensive Catholic and American institution of higher learning, faithful to the teachings of Jesus Christ as handed on by the Church. Dedicated to advancing the dialogue between faith and reason, The Catholic University of America seeks to discover and impart the truth through excellence in teaching and research, all in service to the Church, the nation and the world."

Applicants should submit a cover letter, a curriculum vitae, a statement of current research and future research plans, a statement of teaching philosophy, graduate school transcript, and a sample of written work (including scholarly publications) to pol-search@cua.edu and arrange for the submission of three letters of reference. In addition, applicants are asked to submit a one- to two-page personal statement indicating how their research, teaching, and service will make a distinctive contribution to our University's mission and to the vision of Catholic education outlined in the Apostolic Constitution on Catholic Universities Ex Corde Ecclesiae.

Review of applications will begin November 15 and continue until the position is filled. Questions may be directed to Jakub Grygiel, Department Chair, at grygiel@cua.edu.

The Catholic University of America is an Equal Opportunity Employer.

The department especially welcomes applicants whose research interests complement its traditional strengths in historical, theoretical, ethical and institutional perspectives. The successful candidate will have an opportunity to teach both undergraduates and graduates, including students in a new MA in Public Policy program currently under development.

We seek candidates who understand, are enthusiastic about, and will make a significant contribution to the mission of the University, which reads as follows: "As the national university of the Catholic Church in the United States, founded and sponsored by the bishops of the country with the approval of the Holy See, The Catholic University of America is committed to being a comprehensive Catholic and American institution of higher learning, faithful to the teachings of Jesus Christ as handed on by the Church. Dedicated to advancing the dialogue between faith and reason, The Catholic University of America seeks to discover and impart the truth through excellence in teaching and research, all in service to the Church, the nation and the world."

Applicants should submit a cover letter, a curriculum vitae, a statement of current research and future research plans, a statement of teaching philosophy, graduate school transcript, and a sample of written work (including scholarly publications) to pol-search@cua.edu and arrange for the submission of three letters of reference. In addition, applicants are asked to submit a one- to two-page personal statement indicating how their research, teaching, and service will make a distinctive contribution to our University's mission and to the vision of Catholic education outlined in the Apostolic Constitution on Catholic Universities Ex Corde Ecclesiae.

Review of applications will begin November 15 and continue until the position is filled.

Questions may be directed to Jakub Grygiel, Department Chair, at grygiel@cua.edu.

Description

The Department of Politics at the University of Virginia invites applications for a tenure-track assistant or associate professor position for a scholar who studies democracy, race, and U.S. politics. Applicants must hold a Ph.D. in political science by the time of the appointment.

This position is part of a multiyear hiring initiative. In the fall of 2020, with the generous support of the John L. Nau Foundation and the Andrew W. Mellon Foundation, the University of Virginia's Democracy Initiative and College of Arts & Sciences launched a faculty hiring project. Over four years, we will hire a dozen or more new faculty members at all ranks in the departments of Classics, History, and Philosophy, Politics, and elsewhere. Across all the searches, the Departments seek to appoint scholars whose primary research is focused on the study of the principles of democracy, democratic accountability and representation.

The mission of the Democracy Initiative is to promote excellence in research, teaching, and public engagement on democracy at a global scale by bringing together a diverse range of scholars, government leaders, and practitioners to study and advance the prospects of democracy around the world. The Democracy Initiative is interdisciplinary and supports and advances the work of faculty, as well as graduate and undergraduate students, in the humanities, the arts, and the social sciences.

Qualifications

Candidates should have an active research agenda that engages with normative and /or practical questions pertaining to race and democracy in the United States, a strong interest in teaching at both the graduate and undergraduate levels, and a willingness to contribute to the scholarly life of the Department of Politics and the Democracy Initiative. Application review will begin October 9, 2023, and the position will remain open until filled. The appointment begins with the fall semester of 2024. Applicants must have received their PhD by time of appointment.

Application Instructions

TO APPLY:

Apply online at :<https://apply.interfolio.com/129311>

All applications must include:

1. A cover letter addressing the candidate's past and future research, as well as their teaching experience and interests, including how their skills and experiences could advance the University's ambition to cultivate the most vibrant community in higher education in order to prepare students to be citizen-leaders in a diverse and globally connected world
2. Current curriculum vitae
3. Research statement (not to exceed three single-spaced pages)
4. Teaching philosophy (not to exceed one single-spaced page)
5. Statement outlining intellectual and/or institutional contributions you could envision making to the Democracy Initiative (not to exceed one single-spaced page)
6. One article-length writing sample

James Madison University

Rank: Tenure Track Assistant Professor of Political Science - Race and Ethnic Politics

Mission

We are a community committed to preparing students to be educated and enlightened citizens who lead productive and meaningful lives.

Vision

To be the national model for the engaged university: engaged with ideas and the world.

Who We Are

Located in the heart of Virginia's beautiful Shenandoah Valley, the city of Harrisonburg is approximately 120 miles from Washington, D.C. and Richmond, VA. With a population of just over 53,000, Harrisonburg is one of the most diverse communities in the Commonwealth of Virginia. JMU is a selective, public institution with a growing national reputation for offering experiences that lead to an outstanding education and inclusive environment for students, faculty and staff. The student body includes approximately 20,000 undergraduate and 1,900 graduate students, with over 1,000 full-time instructional faculty.

JMU offers thriving programs in the liberal arts, science and technology, and professional disciplines at the undergraduate, master's and doctoral levels. The university is committed to expanding diversity, fostering equity and inclusion, and supporting superlative teaching and scholarship. JMU has achieved national recognition for the high quality of its academic programs, focus on maintaining strong student/faculty interaction, and innovative faculty research.

The College of Arts and Letters in which the Department of Political Science is located, enrolls over 3,100 undergraduate majors and about 150 graduate students across ten academic units in the humanities, social sciences, and communication studies. Home to several interdisciplinary centers and institutes, the College employs 270 full-time faculty. We embrace the teacher-scholar model, and encourage excellent applicants within our particular disciplines, as well as scholars and teachers eager to work across them. We look to enhance our existing interdisciplinary strengths and to extend our offerings in global cultures, politics, and religions, as well as in global justice, disability studies, and digital humanities.

The Position

The Department of Political Science at James Madison University invites applications for one tenure track assistant professor position in Political Science with a specialization in Race and Ethnic Politics. ### University of Southern California

Rank: (Open Rank) Professor in American Politics

Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Public Law, Public Policy

The Department of Political Science and International Relations (POIR) in the Dana and David Dornsife College of Letters, Arts and Sciences at the University of Southern California (USC) in Los Angeles invites applications for a tenure-track or tenured position in American Politics as part of a major hiring initiative.

We seek candidates with a strong substantive research program in any domain of American politics, whose work advances theoretical and empirical research on important questions in their subfield. Candidates are expected to have strong methodological training, and their methodological skills, ability to advise graduate students on methodological issues and teach graduate classes in the Department's core methods sequence will be a consideration. A strong commitment to undergraduate and graduate education is also expected.

The candidate must have completed a Ph.D. by the appointment date. Review of applications will start September 15, 2023 and will continue until the positions are filled.

In order to be considered for this position, applicants are required to submit an electronic USC application; follow this job link or paste in a browser: <https://uscareers.usc.edu/job/los-angeles/open-rank-faculty-position-in-american-politics/1209/53486590032>. Required materials for upload include a CV, letter of interest, sample research paper(s), statement of research interests, evidence of teaching effectiveness, the names of three individuals who will be contacted by USC for a letter of reference, and official graduate transcripts. Send inquiries to poir@usc.edu. Materials submitted by regular mail will not be accepted.

The annual base salary range for this position is $93,500 - $175,700. When extending an offer of employment, the University of Southern California considers factors such as (but not limited to) the scope and responsibilities of the position, the candidate's work experience, education/training, key skills, internal peer equity, federal, state and local laws, contractual stipulations, grant funding, as well as external market and organizational considerations.

USC is an equal-opportunity educator and employer, proudly pluralistic and firmly committed to providing equal opportunity for outstanding persons of every race, gender, creed and background. The University particularly encourages women, members of underrepresented groups, veterans and individuals with disabilities to apply. USC will make reasonable accommodations for qualified individuals with known disabilities unless doing so would result in an undue hardship. Further information is available by contacting uschr@usc.edu.

Princeton University

Rank: James Madison Program Visiting Fellow

Subfield(s): Political Theory, American Government and Politics, Public Law

Specializations: Political Philosophy & Theory, Constitutional Law & Theory, American Politics

The James Madison Program in American Ideals and Institutions at Princeton University is dedicated to the pursuit of scholarly excellence in the fields of constitutional law and political thought. Sponsored by Princeton's Department of Politics, the Program seeks to enrich the intellectual life of Princeton students and faculty by exploring American constitutional principles and structures through research and public discussion.

The Program invites college and university professors and other professionals with established records of scholarship to apply for appointments as Visiting Fellows for the academic year running from September 1, 2024 to June 1, 2025. One-semester appointments are possible but not preferred. Depending on the needs of the University, teaching opportunities may be available, subject to sufficient enrollment and approval of the Dean of the Faculty.

All James Madison Program Visiting Fellows will spend an academic year (9-month term) in residence at Princeton University or the local vicinity, or demonstrate to the program's satisfaction the ability to be on campus daily, and on short notice, in order to fulfill responsibilities relating to in-person participation. They enjoy access to Firestone Library and a wide range of other facilities and activities throughout the University.

Visiting Fellows are expected to devote full time to their proposed research. They are encouraged, however, to attend or participate in various activities of the Program, including faculty-student seminars, colloquia, and public lectures.

All James Madison Program Fellows must have a doctorate or equivalent degree. Positions are open to all regardless of citizenship. Fellows normally receive a stipend of one-half their academic-year salary plus a living allowance. The fellows' home institutions are expected to provide at least half of their academic-year salaries.

How to apply: Applicants are required to submit an online application at: <https://www.princeton.edu/acad-positions/position/31661>

A complete application must include the following:

- * a curriculum vitae;
- * a scholarly paper written in the past three years;
- * a statement (no more than 1,500 words) describing the proposed research;
- * contact information for two references

Selected candidates will be asked to either submit a confidential statement indicating salary for the current academic year (September 1, 2023 - June 1, 2024) or provide written authorization for Princeton to confirm their salary.

For priority consideration application materials must be received by 11:59 p.m. EST on December 1, 2023 for appointments beginning in September 2024. Awards will be announced in March 2024 or before.

Cornell University

Rank: Climate Politics and Equitable Futures - AP

Climate change and the coming climate transitions are radically reshaping global politics, with profound domestic and international implications. We aim to make Cornell's Government Department a disciplinary leader in the integrated study of the complex political transformations that are already in process as a result of global warming as well as in developing the transformative politics needed to respond to global warming and its consequences. We are interested in scholarship that addresses topics such as the intersection of climate and environmental politics with racial and ethnic politics, indigenous politics, political economy, environmental justice, the (in)equitable distribution of the costs of climate change, the politics of sustainability, and the politics of climate related migration, among others.

As part of this initiative, the Department of Government invites applications from scholars of American politics for a tenure-track position at the rank of assistant professor to begin in the fall semester 2024. A PhD is required no later than July 1, 2024.

Applicants should apply online at <https://academicjobsonline.org/ajo/jobs/25456>. Interested candidates should submit a letter of application, curriculum vitae, two samples of written work, three letters of recommendation, and teaching evaluations. In addition, we ask applicants to share their experiences and/or approaches (past, current, or future) to fostering learning, research, service, and/or outreach in a diverse community; applicants may submit a stand-alone statement or embed the information in other parts of their application.

We will begin to review applications starting September 20, 2023, and will continue until the search is complete.

Diversity and Inclusion are a part of Cornell University's heritage. We are a recognized employer and educator valuing AA/EEO, Protected Veterans, and Individuals with Disabilities. We also recognize a lawful preference in employment practices for Native Americans living on or near Indian reservations. Cornell University embraces diversity and seeks candidates who will contribute to a climate that supports students, faculty, and staff of all identities and backgrounds. We strongly encourage individuals from underrepresented and/or marginalized identities to apply.

Salem State University

Rank: Faculty - Public Policy - Full Time, Temporary

Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Methodology, Public Policy

Specializations: Race & Ethnic Politics, Housing, American Politics

The politics, policy and international relations department at Salem State University invites a full-time, temporary faculty position for the 2024-2025 academic year. We are seeking a public policy specialist with familiarity with policies in an urban context such as housing, education, transportation, policing, poverty, and/or immigration. This position is part of a Salem State initiative to help establish and advance our proposed North Shore Policy Lab and may be reappointed for up to two additional years subject to available funding. With continued growth of the program, there may be additional tenure track lines in the department.

Housed in the department's Bates Center for Public and Global Affairs, the North Shore Policy Lab will involve students in research conducted on behalf of local and state government and non-governmental organizations in order to prepare them for jobs in the public, non-profit and/or private sectors.

The candidate should be well-versed in both quantitative and qualitative research methods and be able to teach our current Research Methods course as well as a new, advanced multi-methods class that will serve as the foundation for student work on applied policy research projects as a part of the policy lab. The ideal candidate will have a demonstrated record of community-based research and community partnerships with a focus on equity issues in the context of urban areas like those served by Salem State.

Salem State University is committed to excellence in teaching. We pride ourselves in providing first-rate classroom experiences and supervising intensive learning opportunities such as research and internships. Many of our students are first generation, racial/ethnic minorities, veterans, and adult learners. Salem State University is located in the Greater Boston area in the historic city of Salem, Massachusetts. The Greater Boston region is famous for its world-class education, healthcare, and business enterprises and the area offers numerous opportunities for professional and personal enrichment.

Duties and Responsibilities

Candidates are required to perform duties in accordance with the MSCA contract. Duties include teaching, advising, scholarship and contributions to continuously improve the department and university. The standard teaching load is 12 credit hours per semester. The position is subject to available funding.

Required Qualifications:

Earned PhD in public policy or a related field from an accredited institution (ABD considered if degree will be conferred by September 2024)

Advising and/or mentoring experience

Preferred Qualifications:

Commitment to anti-racist, culturally responsive teaching

Demonstrated expertise in community-based research

Active publication record and/or exemplary scholarly potential (e.g., ABD candidates with strong pipeline of research)

Prior applied experience in non-profit or public sector settings

Demonstrated excellence in teaching

As an emerging Hispanic Serving Institution (HSI), Salem State University seeks to enrich the faculty/librarian ranks by actively encouraging candidates whose lived and scholarly experiences directly address issues regarding the health, welfare, and representation of Latinx populations in the United States. Candidates who meet this strongly desired qualification should present documented activities in Latinx-related teaching, scholarship/research, and service, including community-based endeavors in each of these three areas.

Working Conditions:

This is an on-site, in-person position.

Salem State University complies with the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA) to provide reasonable accommodation to qualified applicants and employees with disabilities. For accommodation information or requests please email eo-hr@salemstate.edu.

Special Instructions to Applicants:

Please apply online and attach curriculum vitae, cover letter, teaching philosophy, and a diversity statement (please read our institutional diversity statement and describe how you would contribute to our mission in your teaching, research, mentoring/advising, and service).

The online portal can be found at: <https://internal-salemstate.icims.com/jobs/2894/faculty%2c-political-science-%28public-policy%29%2c-full-time%2c-temporary%2c-fall-2024/job>

University of Denver

Rank: Professor in American Politics / Race, Ethnicity, and Politics

The Department of Political Science and the Critical Race and Ethnic Studies Program (CRES) at the University of Denver (DU) invite applications for a jointly appointed tenure-line Assistant or tenured Associate Professor to start in Fall 2024 in the field of American politics. DU defines Critical Race and Ethnic Studies broadly. A specialization in critical race theory is not required, and we invite all scholars whose work speaks to race and ethnic politics to apply.

The Department of Political Science consists of twelve tenured or tenure-line faculty supporting the Bachelors of Arts degree in political science within the College of Arts, Humanities, and Social Sciences at the University of Denver. The Critical Race and Ethnic Studies program (CRES) was founded in 2018 with an undergraduate minor, expanding to a full program with a tenured faculty director, two visiting faculty members, and numerous affiliated faculty members. CRES now offers an undergraduate major and minor and has approval for additional faculty lines being added over the next few years. Political Science serves approximately 200 majors and CRES serves 50 minors. Both programs serve undergraduate students across campus in the common curriculum. Our faculty are dedicated to the robust pursuit of research, publication, and public engagement. We also value diversity, equity, and inclusion: a commitment by all constituents to create an academic experience that embraces and engages diverse perspectives and communities within an atmosphere of mutual respect. Our curricula endeavor to develop students' abilities to think critically, communicate clearly, write effectively, and develop compelling analytical argumentation based on justifiable sources of empirical evidence and analytical reasoning.

Position Summary

We seek applications from American Politics scholars who study Race, Ethnicity, and Politics. Specific concentrations within American Politics and Race, Ethnicity, and Politics are open.

The University of Denver embraces a teacher-scholar model where faculty balance their commitments to rigorous scholarship and undergraduate education. The position requires teaching the equivalent of five courses over the standard academic year (three quarters) in the Political Science department and/or CRES program, covering a range of CRES major requirements (i.e., Introduction, Theory, or Quantitative Methods in CRES) and cross listed upper division courses. The faculty member will be a fully participating and voting member of the Political Science Department. During the first two years of the position, the faculty member will also assist the Director of the CRES program in developing the new CRES major. To facilitate this, the faculty member will be protected from other substantial service obligations. After the first two years, the CRES program and Political Science department have established a practical distribution of teaching and service obligations.

Our curriculum is delivered via conventional face-to-face classes on our traditional residential campus, with most online-only courses occurring during summer sessions (which faculty may elect to teach for supplemental income, pending sufficient enrollment). We welcome the incorporation of experiential learning opportunities in the curriculum. Adhering to the teacher-scholar model, the position requires maintaining an active scholarly agenda as demonstrated via scholarly publications, academic conference participation, etc. The person holding this position would also be expected to contribute to University, College, and departmental/program service.

Essential Functions

- Pursue a research agenda that results in high-quality scholarly publications.
- Teach the equivalent of five courses across three quarters per academic year, including cross-listed upper division classes between Political Science and the CRES program, as well as introductory, methods, theory, and senior project courses within the CRES program specifically. The teaching schedule will be annually coordinated with the CRES program director and Political Science department chair.
- Meet outside of class in office hours on campus and/or online to provide guidance and assistance to students enrolled in courses taught and to provide major advising to political science and CRES students.
- Deploy best practices through the University of Denver's current course management system (Canvas), utilizing Canvas tools such as discussion boards, quizzes, assignments with uploaded files, and the gradebook as the means to collect student work, communicate feedback and assignment grades, and conduct class sessions and individual appointments remotely when the need for this arises.
- Advise students about program and BA requirements.
- Contribute to University, College, departmental, and program service.

Knowledge, Skills, and Abilities

- Advanced scholarly expertise (PhD level) in the field of American politics, focusing on Race, Ethnicity, and Politics.
- Successful publication of peer-reviewed scholarship on American politics, focusing on Race, Ethnicity, and Politics, and evidence of future promise as a scholar.
- Excellent skills in oral and written communication.
- Excellent undergraduate teaching skills
- Ability to interact constructively with a diverse population of faculty, staff, and undergraduate students.

Required Qualifications

- Ph.D. in Political Science or related field or interdisciplinary program (e.g. American studies). Must have a Ph.D. by start of appointment.
- Evidence of a relevant established scholarly agenda that is indicated by peer-reviewed publications.
- Experience serving as an instructor of record in undergraduate &/or graduate courses in political (or related social) science.
- Interest in (at the Assistant Level) or expertise in (at the Associate Level) developing upper-division undergraduate courses to help build out the CRES curriculum.
- Growth toward (at the Assistant Level) or evidence of (at the Associate Level) teaching excellence and a commitment to incorporate inclusive teaching methods and/or pedagogies to effectively engage students from a wide range of backgrounds.
- A demonstrated commitment to, and experience in, promoting DEI and in using inclusive pedagogies.
- Experience using course management software (such as Canvas or similar).

Salary Range:

The salary range for this position is Assistant Professor $70,000-$82,000 and Associate Professor (with tenure) $83,000-$95,000.

The University of Denver has provided a compensation range that represents its good faith estimate of what the University may pay for the position at the time of posting. The University may ultimately pay more or less than the posted compensation range. The salary offered to the selected candidate will be determined based on factors such as the qualifications of the selected candidate, departmental budget availability, internal salary equity considerations, and available market information, but not based on a candidate's sex or any other protected status.

Benefits:

The University of Denver offers excellent benefits, including medical, dental, retirement, paid time off, tuition benefit and ECO pass. <https://www.du.edu/sites/default/files/2022-05/benefits-overview-benefited-employees.pdf>

Application Deadline

5. Evidence of teaching effectiveness such as two course syllabi, a set of teaching evaluations from two different courses, and any other artifacts of teaching excellence (e.g., a teaching award), all combined into one pdf file with headers identifying each discrete component.
6. For applicants who have not finished their PhD, please include graduate transcripts.
7. Contact information for three professional/academic references who will be emailed to upload letters of recommendation if required. Candidates using Interfolio may arrange to send all three letters of recommendation in one pdf file via email to Darlene.Squires@du.edu. No other materials beyond letters of recommendation should be sent via Interfolio.

Diversity, Equity, Inclusion, & Justice

The University of Denver recognizes that its success in being a great university dedicated to the public good depends greatly on how well it engages, supports, and champions the values of diversity, equity, inclusion, and justice. As part of our intentionality in recruiting and retaining faculty from a wide variety of historically excluded intersecting identities, including those from communities of color, with diverse gender and sexual identities, first-generation college graduates, or with disabilities, new faculty will have the opportunity to choose to participate in a university-wide initiative. This initiative will connect new colleagues in a cohort, building community across units with supportive programming led by the Office of the Vice Provost of Faculty Affairs in collaboration with the Division of Diversity, Equity, and Inclusion and each faculty participant's academic unit. To learn more about the University of Denver's commitments and work in support of DEI and J, please visit: <https://www.du.edu/equity>. For more information about this program or if you have any questions, please email inclusion@du.edu and/or visit <https://duvpfa.du.edu/faculty-resources/prospective-faculty/>.

Furman University

Rank: Assistant, Associate, or full Professor in Politics and International Affairs

Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Open, Open

The Department of Politics and International Affairs at Furman University invites applications for a tenure-track appointment at the Assistant, Associate, or Full professorial rank in American politics, specializing in racial and ethnic politics, to begin August 1, 2024. The candidate will teach five courses per year, including introductory and upper-level courses in American politics. The candidate must demonstrate the potential for superb teaching and excellence in scholarship. The person hired must possess a Ph.D. in Political Science by August 1, 2024.

Applicants should submit the following documents as a single PDF in the order listed: a letter of interest, C.V., diversity statement, and complete contact information for three references. The diversity statement should describe how the candidate's teaching, scholarship, mentoring and/or service might contribute to a liberal arts college community that includes a commitment to diversity as one of its core values.

Furman University is committed to advancing diversity, equity, and inclusion in all facets of university life and strives to create an anti-racist community through excellence in teaching, mentorship, and programming. Numerous initiatives and programs are underway or planned to promote these ideals, including historical projects, dialogue initiatives, the Center for Inclusive Communities, and a recently approved major in Africana Studies.

The successful candidate will have the ability to work with historically underrepresented students, including students of color, and be committed to assisting the university in its continuing efforts to become a model of inclusive excellence.

The Politics and International Affairs Department is a large department with specialists in all major political science fields. The Department is committed to fostering a professional community where every member is treated with dignity. All are welcome to participate in the department's life and the respectful exploration of ideas. The candidate should show interest in and aptitude for contributing to this endeavor.

The Furman student experience is supported by a rich network of centers and institutes that includes The Riley Institute, The David E. Shi Center for Sustainability, The Hill Institute for Innovation and Entrepreneurship, The Institute for the Advancement of Community Health, The Herring Center for Continuing, Graduate, and Professional Education, The Rinker Center for Study Away and International Education, The Cothran Center for Vocational Exploration,

The Shucker Center for Leadership Development, The Malone Center for Career Engagement, The Center for Inclusive Communities, the Furman Humanities Center, and our newest addition, the Tocqueville Center for the Study of Democracy and Society.

Furman is located in Greenville, South Carolina, one of the fastest-growing cities in the Southeast, and is ranked among “America’s Ten Best” by Forbes Magazine. The thriving downtown features excellent restaurants, in-town parks, shops, museums, galleries, music venues, and theaters. Greenville also enjoys an impressive network of nonprofits, small businesses, and international corporations. The city also has excellent public and private schools and a vibrant international community. A 20-mile bike and running trail connects the university to Greenville and to Travelers Rest, which was named “one of America’s coolest small towns.” The surrounding area abounds with outdoor recreational activities and has some of the country’s most beautiful lakes, rivers, and mountains. Greenville is 2½ hours from Atlanta, 1½ hours from Charlotte, and only one hour from Asheville, North Carolina. Greenville is within easy reach of the Blue Ridge Mountains and Atlantic Beaches. The newly renovated Greenville-Spartanburg Airport, located just 25 minutes from downtown, runs daily flights to major cities and airline hubs. It is an ideal place to live and work.

Hamilton College

Rank: Assistant Professor of Government
Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Public Policy, Public Administration

The Government Department at Hamilton College invites applications for three tenure-track positions at the rank of Assistant Professor, beginning July 1, 2024. The new hires will collectively cover courses in public policy, American politics, and research methods, allocated based on individual expertise. This coordinated hire is part of a commitment to nourishing a diverse learning community and increasing possibilities for exchange focused on issues related to equality and inequality. We actively encourage applications from candidates whose work investigates the politics and policy of equality and inequality along one or more of the following axes: race and ethnicity; gender; class; sexuality; ability; religion; and migrant, refugee, or citizenship status. We seek candidates trained in either or both quantitative and qualitative methods and with academic backgrounds in American Politics, Public Policy, or Public Administration. Beyond that, there are no restrictions on area focus.

We are seeking candidates who can demonstrate their experience in teaching or working with diverse student populations. Your cover letter should address ways in which you raise issues of diversity and inclusion in your teaching, scholarship, and/or service.

These positions require institutional service including academic advising of undergraduate students after the first year.

The Government Department is responsible for the study of politics and public affairs at Hamilton. The department, which is one of Hamilton's largest, currently includes 17 faculty members, 12 of whom are tenured or pre-tenure. Department faculty include specialists in American politics, comparative politics, international relations, political theory, and public policy, and we teach a wide variety of courses across all these subfields. Each year, we also hire two practitioners, each of whom teaches a single one-semester course. The Department offers three majors: Government, World Politics, and Public Policy. Taken together, these three majors total about 85 students a year.

Candidates with ABD will be considered (and hired at the Instructor level until successful completion of their dissertation), although candidates with a Ph.D. are preferred. The teaching load for these positions is four courses during the first year and five courses thereafter. The expected salary range for these positions is $88,000 to $94,100. Candidates should submit cover letter, c.v., a writing sample, evidence of teaching ability, and a list of references via Interfolio at <https://apply.interfolio.com/129439>. Questions regarding the search may be directed to Peter F. Cannavò, Search Committee Chair, at pcannavo@hamilton.edu. Our review of applications will begin on October 1, 2023.

SUNY, University at Buffalo

Rank: Assistant/Associate Professor

The Department of Political Science, University at Buffalo, The State University of New York seeks an Associate or Assistant Professor (tenure-track) in American or Comparative Politics focusing on democratic processes and electoral phenomena.

We welcome applicants whose specialties are related to the study of democratic processes, democratic transition, consolidation, and regression, and specifically to the study of phenomena associated with elections. Issues of election reform, electoral integrity, and violence are central to the functioning of democracy both in the US and abroad. While elections are a central pillar of democratic legitimacy and consolidation, they can also serve as targets for instability incited by groups intent on bringing about democratic backsliding. All applicants studying democratic processes in these, and related research areas are invited to apply.

This hire will continue our recent faculty growth in the study of the topics noted above in the American or foreign/comparative contexts. Candidates that match the Department's strength in quantitative methods of analysis and formal modeling are especially welcome. Teaching will include political science courses at the undergraduate and graduate levels. Normal departmental, university and disciplinary service duties are expected. We encourage applications from Associate Professors, Assistant Professors, and graduate students who will complete their degree prior to the position start date. Salary and start-up will be competitive and commensurate with rank.

The faculty in the Department of Political Science understand the value and importance of diversity. We are committed to providing an open, supportive, and inclusive environment for all of our students, faculty, and staff members, consistent with the University's commitment to inclusive excellence.

A letter of application, a vita, and three letters of recommendation must be submitted electronically at <https://www.ubjobs.buffalo.edu/postings/43767>. Applicants applying at the Assistant Professor rank (including those who are ABD) should provide research and teaching statements. All applicants are encouraged to apply by October 1, 2023, to receive full consideration, although application review will begin immediately. Questions about the position can be directed to Dr. Rachael Hinkle by email at rkhinkle@buffalo.edu.

The Department of Political Science at UB is nationally recognized for its research in international relations, public law, and comparative and American politics. The department's strengths lie in its national and international reputation for high quality research. In addition to its strong PhD program, the department offers BA and MA degrees in both Political Science and Global Affairs.

University at Buffalo is an affirmative action/equal opportunity employer and, in keeping with our commitment, welcomes all to apply including veterans and individuals with disabilities.

Princeton University

Rank: Research Director

The Center for the Study of Democratic Politics (CSDP) seeks a dynamic Research Director (RD). CSDP serves as Princeton's primary center for studying democratic political processes, behavior, and institutions. The Center brings together a large, vibrant and interdisciplinary community of scholars interested in democratic politics, supports their empirical research, and communicates those findings to inform public policy debates inside and outside the academy.

In concert with the faculty Director(s), the RD directs, oversees, guides, and implements CSDP's academic and policy research programs. The RD envisions, develops, and manages CSDP's research missions and strategy. They monitor and address Affiliates' research needs, including affiliated faculty, researchers (fellows, scholars, and so on), and students. They keep up with and bring to bear research resources and knowledge from across and outside Princeton. The RD will also help CSDP implement SPIA's strategic priorities, especially data science, policy relevance, and DEI.

Responsibilities:

- Design and deliver hands-on workshops on research methods, tools, and applications, including the collection or use of datasets, according to affiliates' needs
- Research and statistical consulting to CSDP affiliates and make recommendations and oversee the selection of research-relevant software
- Assist with the review, selection, recruiting, and mentoring of CSDP's fellows and research staff
- Assist with reading and selecting grant applications submitted for CSDP funding and also with the development and writing of CSDP directors' applications and proposals for funding
- Develop and oversee a new MPA fellows' program and supervise its fellows including their research activities and their policy-oriented writing
- Write reports and other content translating CSDP research for public and policymaker audiences, with the assistance of the MPA fellows

Essential requirements:

- PhD in political science
- Training in and experience using political science research methods including a strong quantitative background
- Strong programming skills, including in R
- At least one publication in an academic political science journal on topics in CSDP's core mission (the study of democratic politics)
- Minimum one-year post-PhD work experience in an academic setting
- Experience teaching research methods, data science, or related programming skills, or advising student activities in these areas
- Meticulous attention to detail and ability to proof one's own work and others'

- Demonstrated ability for creative problem-solving, active listening and interpersonal skills, empathy for others, proactive approach to work issues, openness to feedback on one's work performance, and taking initiative to address, anticipate and head off problems
- Experience with managing research projects from initiation through completion
- Eagerness to collaborate on projects and to cooperate with others in the work environment
- Motivated to produce at a high level of productivity and excellence

Preferred:

- Experience with data use agreements and how to develop partnerships and collaborations to obtain data
- working with or merging large or administrative datasets
- Specialized technical skills for the social sciences
- Experience communicating about political science or policy for broad audience

The RD will have a research budget for their use in attending conferences and similar activities facilitating their ongoing professional development as a researcher.

The position is for a three-year term, with the possibility of renewal, contingent on satisfactory performance. This position is subject to a background check.

Applicants must submit a CV, a cover letter describing their areas of expertise and research interests, and contact information for three references. References may be contacted for the candidates who make the shortlist for this position.

The submission must be online via AHIRE link.: <https://www.princeton.edu/acad-positions/position/29741>

Syracuse University

Rank: Assistant Professor - American Politics

Specializations: Congress, Bureaucracy & Organizational Behavior, Race & Ethnic Politics

Syracuse University
American Politics

The Department of Political Science seeks a tenure-track Assistant Professor in American Politics. The search is open to candidates whose teaching and research focus on political institutions broadly. We are particularly interested in candidates who study public policy, Congress, the bureaucracy, interest groups, and/or race.

The political science department is housed within the Maxwell School of Citizenship and Public Affairs, which is committed to citizenship education at the undergraduate level and to graduate education in public affairs and the social sciences. We seek candidates who complement the broader Maxwell mission and have interdisciplinary interests. Successful candidates may be invited to affiliate with the Campbell Public Affairs Institute or one of Maxwell's other interdisciplinary centers (<http://www.maxwell.syr.edu/centers/>). The successful candidate will teach at both the undergraduate and graduate level. The typical course load is 2 classes a semester.

Applicants should have a Ph.D. in political science or a related field or a credible expectation of completing all requirements for the Ph.D. by August 2024. The Maxwell School is interested in candidates who can contribute to the inclusiveness and diversity of the academic community through their research, teaching, and/or service.

APPLICATION INSTRUCTIONS:

For consideration, candidates must complete an online faculty application (available at <http://www.sujobopps.com/>) and attach online the following: a letter of interest and a CV, a research statement, a sample of professional writing, a statement of teaching philosophy, and evidence of quality teaching. Files may be no larger than 5MB, but you may submit an external link to a larger file if needed.

In addition, applicants will be required to provide the full email addresses of three references.

Applications will be reviewed as they arrive with full consideration given to those received by October 1, 2023. However, the department will continue to consider applications until this position is filled. We encourage dual career academic couples to apply as well.

Suffolk University

Rank: Assistant Professor of Political Science

Specializations: Race & Ethnic Politics, American Politics, African American Politics

The Political Science and Legal Studies (PSLS) Department at Suffolk University invites applicants for a full time, tenure-track position in American Politics and Public Policy. The Department is interested in recruiting a teacher scholar with a focus on civil rights and liberties, race and ethnic politics, the role of identity in politics, or the impact of economic, social, or political inequality on marginalized groups.

Candidates should provide evidence of commitment to excellent teaching and scholarly potential including a research agenda and plans for peer-reviewed publication. The successful candidate will teach at the undergraduate and graduate level; previous teaching experience is preferred. The PSLS department offers three undergraduate majors (political science, international relations, and law) and two graduate programs (Master's in Applied Politics and a Master's in Global Public Policy). We are looking for candidates who are excited about developing and teaching courses in American Politics, American Institutions and/or public policy. Research methods is also a need in the department.

The successful candidate will contribute to a rich tradition of community-engaged teaching and experiential education that prepares our diverse, substantially first-generation college students—40% of whom are Pell eligible—for careers and civic engagement. The successful candidate will have a commitment to inclusive pedagogy and curricular diversity, mentoring and advising students—especially first-generation college students—as well as conducting impactful research.

Not sure this is you? Contact us to find out! Research indicates that women and members of under-represented groups tend not to apply to jobs when they think they do not meet every qualification, when, in fact, they often do. Suffolk University is dedicated to a diverse and inclusive academic community. Familiarity with and experience using pedagogical methods that enable students across racial, ethnic, socio-economic, and ability groups to reach their maximum potential is a valuable qualification.

Faculty in the PSLS department are award-winning teachers recognized for innovative pedagogical practices, community leaders civically engaged in advancing social justice, internationally recognized policy and political consultants and active researchers and scholars. Department faculty take advantage of our location in the heart of Boston to design exciting real-world learning opportunities.

Diversity, equity and inclusion are woven into Suffolk University's very fabric. We have been providing access and expanding opportunities for under-represented groups for more than a century. This mission is lived through our decisions at every level. U.S. News ranked Suffolk University among the top 100 universities in the country for social mobility. Suffolk was also listed 14th nationally in percentage of international students. Through student, faculty and staff recruitment and support, community engagement, curriculum development, and research, the University community works to advance equity for every student, every day. Learn more about how we manifest the core values of our mission at Suffolk DEI.

Candidates must hold a PhD by the commencement of the 2024/2025 academic year; ABD candidates in the final stages of completing their degrees will be considered.

Application should be made through the Suffolk University Human Resources' Careers at Suffolk site. A complete submission will include: cover letter (including research agenda); CV; graduate transcripts; research writing sample; statement of teaching philosophy; student course evaluations; and contact information for three professional references. For full consideration, applications should be submitted by September 30. Initial interviews will be via Zoom followed by on-campus interviews. The department will also hold an information session at the 2023 APSA conference in August.

Suffolk University is a private, comprehensive, urban university located in downtown Boston, and is an equal opportunity employer committed to faculty diversity. Candidates from underrepresented groups are encouraged to apply. You can learn more about Suffolk University from our website. To learn more about the Political Science & Legal Studies department, go to our department website.

Inquiries about the position and the APSA information session should be addressed to Dr. Rachael Cobb, Chair of the PSLS Department at rcobb@suffolk.edu.

Bucknell University

Rank: Tenure-Track position in Political Science (American Politics)

Bucknell University’s Department of Political Science invites applications for a tenure-track position in American Politics beginning in Fall, 2024. We expect to hire at the Assistant Professor level but are open to considering outstanding candidates at other ranks. We seek candidates whose scholarly and teaching interests include race and ethnic politics in the U.S. The successful candidate will be prepared to teach a core course in American politics, a course in race and ethnic politics, a course in quantitative or qualitative research methods, and other American politics courses in the candidate’s areas of specialization.

We welcome candidates who demonstrate excellence in reflective multicultural and inclusive teaching practices and who display a strong commitment to collaboration and interdisciplinarity. Evidence of teaching excellence as well as the promise of being a productive scholar are critically important. The teaching load is five courses over two semesters. By the start date of the position, candidates are expected to have a Ph.D. in Political Science with a sub-field specialization in American politics, but ABD candidates will also be considered with the understanding that the Ph.D. must be completed before the beginning of the second year.

For additional information and to apply, please go to careers.bucknell.edu. The application should include a cover letter, C.V., statement of teaching philosophy, statement of commitment to diversity, three letters of recommendation, graduate transcripts, sample publications or papers, course evaluations, and sample syllabi relevant to this position. Applicants with questions about this position are encouraged to contact Professor Doug Hecock at douglas.hecock@bucknell.edu. The review of applications will begin on September 23, 2023 and will continue until filled.

About Bucknell

Bucknell University is a private, highly ranked, primarily undergraduate, national liberal arts institution that also offers strong professional programs in engineering, management, education, and music.

Bucknell University is an Equal Opportunity Employer. The university believes that students learn best in a diverse, inclusive community and is therefore committed to academic excellence through diversity in its faculty, staff, and students. Applications from members of groups that have been historically underrepresented in higher education are encouraged.

Bucknell is committed to creating a climate that fosters inclusion, growth, and development for a diverse student body, and seeks candidates who are also committed to these goals.

Bucknell is committed to supporting the teacher-scholar model of faculty development. With a student-faculty ratio of about 9:1, small class sizes are a hallmark of the Bucknell educational experience. The university sponsors a range of activities to support the development of its faculty, including a Teaching-Learning Center and generous research support and leave policies.

Bucknell is located in Lewisburg, Pennsylvania, on the banks of the Susquehanna River. The Lewisburg area offers a combination of outdoor recreation opportunities and small-town amenities. In addition to the cultural and athletic events offered at the University and in town, the region offers strong schools and medical facilities, and an affordable cost of living. Bucknell is about three hours from Philadelphia, New York, Baltimore, and Washington, D.C.

California State University, Bakersfield

Rank: Assistant Professor of Political Science

The Department of Political Science at California State University, Bakersfield invites candidates to apply for a Tenure-Track faculty position in American Politics with a focus on Environmental Politics, Sustainability and Justice. Among the topics of interest that should be focused on are: climate change, global warming, and energy politics, agricultural and industrial environmental pollution, water politics and policy, homelessness, migration – locally and across various regions of the country and world, and America’s global environmental footprint – with special attention to people from marginalized communities.

The Political Science Department is small but thriving – it is home to a robust Pre-Law Program, and a Model United Nations Program among others. The Department’s student demographics are 70% women, and a substantial percentage of First-Generation students, and recently Forbes Magazine ranked CSUB 18th as Top Performer on social mobility. Furthermore, CSUB is a great location for anyone who is interested in studying what politics and policy looks like at the intersection of ethnorace, class, and an ongoing climate crisis. CSUB is located in Kern County which is over 60% Latinx and considered both an agricultural and oil and gas hub. The Central Valley is also the second- most pumped aquifer system in the U.S. We are located one hour and thirty minutes north of the Hollywood Bowl. One hour and 20 minutes from the Central California Coastal Wine Country, and one hour and 40 minutes to the state’s central coast. Kern County is where more than 250 different crops are grown and where approximately 75% of California’s irrigated land is located. A scholar professor would not only be able to conduct vital research for and about the region on the topics of water and agriculture but Kern county is also known for its involvement with oil and gas making CSUB a fruitful location to also study energy policy.

As a department, we are looking for a qualified and committed candidate with a PhD (ABDs may be also considered) in American Politics with an emphasis in Environmental Politics, Sustainability and Justice (Public Policy, Political Economy, Policy and Politics are encouraged to apply) who can develop and teach courses that are reflective of our community, issues, the state of California, and the US public policy making process. Additionally, candidates for the position would be expected to teach the department’s Core Courses, Research Methods, and Introduction to American Government among others.

Required Qualifications:

- Earned a Ph.D. (ABD with degree completed before start date) in Political Science, from an accredited doctoral-granting institution.
- Demonstrated commitment to teaching undergraduates from diverse socioeconomic, cultural, and academic backgrounds, including first-generation students.
- Teaching experience using a variety of teaching modalities (in person, synchronous, asynchronous).
- Possess a commitment to promote equity and inclusion through teaching, research, and service at CSUB.
- Evidence of Scholarship/Research

Minimum Qualifications:

- Evidence of effective teaching.
- Possible Course Proposals
- Evidence of potential to conduct independent research in the area of expertise as well as mentor undergraduate students in research.

Preferred Qualifications:

- Experience with academic advising and student mentorship (if applicable).

To be considered, complete application materials must include:

- Cover Letter
- Current Curriculum Vitae
- Statement of Teaching Philosophy
- Research Statement
- Statement of contribution to diversity, equity and inclusion. Please include information on how you currently or will potentially promote diversity, equity and inclusion through teaching, research and service at CSU Bakersfield.
- Copy of university transcripts verifying academic record and award of doctorate (or anticipated date of award)
- List of three (3) references with contact information

Interviews will be conducted at the annual APSA meeting in Los Angeles, CA. Contact Dr. Ivy AM Cargile if you would like to schedule an appointment.

All applications materials should be sent electronically as one PDF in the order listed above to Ms. Christina Ochoa, department Administrative Assistant: cochoa@csub.edu.

Background Check: A background check (including a criminal records check) must be completed satisfactorily before any candidate can be offered a position with the CSU. Failure to satisfactorily complete the background check may affect the application status of applicants or continued employment of current CSU employees who apply for the position.

For any questions please contact: Dr. Ivy AM Cargile (icargile@csub.edu) or Dr. Jeanine Kraybill (jkraybill@csub.edu).

Open Date:

Feb 01, 2023

POSITION:

Adjunct Faculty, Intelligence Analysis
Krieger School of Arts and Sciences
Advanced Academic Programs

INSTITUTION:

Johns Hopkins University

Institution Description:

The Advanced Academic Programs (AAP) is a division of the Krieger School of Arts and Sciences at the Johns Hopkins University (JHU). As the nation’s oldest and one of the most prestigious research universities,

Johns Hopkins offers high-quality master's degrees and post-baccalaureate education to students in the mid-Atlantic region and online. In addition to the online programs, AAP also offers master's degrees and graduate certificate programs at its Washington, DC Center and at the Homewood campus in Baltimore, MD. AAP has approximately 18,000 enrollments each academic year. JHU is committed to hiring candidates who, through their teaching and service, will contribute to the diversity and excellence of the academic community.

Position Description:

The Advanced Academic Programs (AAP) division seeks non-tenure track adjunct faculty to teach several courses within the MS in Intelligence Analysis program. The course(s) will be taught fully online beginning in Summer 2023 and beyond. Candidates with online course development and teaching experience and those with experience teaching and engaging students from diverse backgrounds are of particular interest. We are looking for faculty who can teach one or more of the following courses:

473.600 the Art and Practice of Intelligence

This course introduces students to the field of intelligence, particularly as practiced in the United States. After a brief overview of the historical foundations of modern intelligence, it discusses how intelligence is conducted including collection, analysis, counterintelligence, covert action, and oversight. It also discusses intelligence ethics, as well as the disruptive influences of September 11, new technologies, and emerging social trends.

473.602 Intelligence Analysis

Intelligence analysis is fundamentally about understanding and communicating to decision makers what is known, not known, and surmised, as it can best be determined. Students will read seminal texts on intelligence analysis, discuss the complex cognitive, psychological, organizational, ethical, and legal issues surrounding intelligence analysis now and, in the past, and apply analytic methodologies to real-world problems.

473.604 Advanced Critical Thinking and Analysis

Critical thinking involves the methods and principles of correct reasoning and argumentation. Students will apply a combination of logic, critical thinking skills, and structured analytical techniques to identify biases, promote self-reflective reasoning, and improve the quality of intelligence analysis. Using a selection of empirical case studies and operational exemplars, students will conduct a comparative assessment of analytical outcomes based on the application of course learnings versus outcomes derived in their absence.

473.607 Intelligence Ethics

This course will address the ethical dilemmas and issues that challenge intelligence and government decision makers in an increasingly complex operational and technological environment. We will examine basic moral, ethical and privacy considerations at several key points in intelligence operations from collection to covert action. The course will analyze the evolving nature of privacy concerns worldwide, with an emphasis on the balance between individual rights and national security. Students will examine the policy implications inherent in seeking to address these tensions.

473.606 Legal Issues in Intelligence

This class will examine the interplay between the laws and the practices and policies of the United States' Intelligence Community and national security system, both foreign and domestic. While discussion of the history of intelligence activities and laws dating from the origins of our colonial days will necessarily shape the framework of the class, the focus shall particularly be on current debates and challenges faced by the United States in the 21st Century.

473.800 Research Seminar

This course will introduce a variety of research, analytical, and statistical methods intended to provide a basis for designing a research project, including an introduction to quantitative, qualitative, and mixed method research design. Within the context of the course, students will complete foundational work for the capstone project, including identifying and accessing relevant primary and secondary source data, surveying and evaluating the literature, and framing a research question based on the intersection of empirical studies and organizational needs. Attention will be given to the unique restrictions placed on research design and publication within the intelligence community.

473.801 Capstone: Current Issues in Intelligence

In this culminating course, students complete an independent, faculty-approved project that will address a substantive or methodological challenge in intelligence analysis. A successful capstone will include research that provides evidence of the student's mastery of the theoretical knowledge and analytical skills central to the degree's learning outcomes. The capstone provides an opportunity to apply the skills acquired throughout the program to a key challenge facing their organization or community. Students will conduct a literature review, select a research method appropriate to their study, analyze data using qualitative or quantitative methods in their capstone project, and propose and defend their findings.

Minimum Qualifications:

- An advanced degree in any relevant field, with a master's degree at minimum.
- At least five years of professional work experience within the intelligence field.

Preferred Qualifications:

- A terminal degree in international relations, global security studies, political science, history, or in a relevant field related to intelligence.
- A scholar-practitioner background and publications in the field.
- 1-3 years of graduate level teaching experience.
- Leadership experience within the US Intelligence Community.
- Online teaching experience.
- Experience in developing graduate courses.
- The background to teach a wide variety of courses in an intelligence analysis program.
- Strong interest in advising graduate students interested in an intelligence career.

Application Instructions

The position will remain open until filled. For best consideration, please apply by April 1 2023.

Candidates must submit the following:

- Cover letter should indicate the course or courses you're interested in teaching plus your experience with online learning management systems (i.e., Canvas)
- Curriculum vitae
- Teaching evaluations for two most recently taught courses
- Transcript from highest degree earned
- The selected candidate will undergo a background check and provide three references.

Arizona State University

Rank: Presidential Postdoctoral Fellowship

Specializations: Race & Ethnic Politics, Gender Politics & Policy, Women & Politics

The School of Politics and Global Studies (SPGS) at Arizona State University (ASU) invites applications for up to two postdoctoral scholar positions in the area of race, ethnicity and politics, broadly defined, in the United States and/or across the globe.

SPGS, part of the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences, pursues inclusive excellence and is composed of faculty conducting cutting-edge research of public value on a variety of salient topics facing humanity in the United States and elsewhere. SPGS faculty include award-winning instructors skilled in teaching students with diverse backgrounds and life experiences and boast an exceptional capacity to mentor scholars studying the politics of race and ethnicity both in the US and globally. SPGS is committed to the success of Presidential Postdoctoral Fellows who will work closely with an accomplished group of faculty and students.

Consistent with the ASU Charter mission of inclusive excellence, the Fellows will work on their research publishable in high-impact scholarly outlets, present research at major conferences as well as ASU, participate regularly in School events, and mentor students. They may be also asked to perform duties common to faculty including teaching and grant writing.

The postdoctoral scholars selected will join a cohort of 10-15 other postdoctoral scholars at ASU as part of the Presidential Postdoctoral Fellowship Program. The goal of the program is to support the career development of outstanding Ph.D. recipients with great potential for advancing the ASU Charter into a future tenure track appointment at ASU.

The program seeks applicants whose professional preparedness, experience, and accomplishments are informed by experiences working with and within groups historically underrepresented or underserved in higher education in the United States. Where pools of qualified applicants are strong, priority will be given to applicants who demonstrate, through prior actions and achievements, intentional and actioned commitment to inclusive excellence. Examples of such contributions are research, teaching, mentorship, service or creative activity focused on empowering underserved populations that increases equitable access and inclusion in fields where historically excluded populations are underrepresented.

SPGS has committed to provide individualized mentorship and career development to ensure each candidate is well prepared to succeed in a future tenure track appointment. Career development and community building will also occur through programmatic support at the ASU Graduate College's Postdoctoral Affairs Office.

About Arizona State University:

ASU is a large, comprehensive, research university and for nearly two decades, has transformed into the "New American University," one dedicated to the simultaneous pursuit of excellence, broad access to quality education, and meaningful societal impact. By our Charter and Design Aspirations, we center inclusion and success as values that drive the enterprise; adopt inter- and transdisciplinary approaches to teaching and learning as ways to address society's greatest challenges; and develop innovative partnerships to produce master learners across the lifespan. To learn more about ASU, visit <http://www.asu.edu>.

Qualifications:

Successful candidates will engage in scholarly research and may be asked to perform duties common to academic personnel including grant writing and teaching.

Minimum qualifications:

A Ph.D. in political science, global studies, or a related social-scientific field from a regionally-accredited university by the time of appointment.

Demonstrated potential for excellence in research and teaching.

Demonstrated commitment to working with faculty, staff, students and communities to advance the principles of the ASU Charter

Desired qualifications:

Demonstrated experience publishing in leading peer-reviewed journals on the politics of race and ethnicity, broadly defined, in the US and/or globally.

Demonstrated potential to engage in interdisciplinary research.

Evidence of activities consistent with the ASU Charter and Design Aspirations

This position is located at the Arizona State University at the Tempe campus. All postdoctoral fellowship positions are for one year. Options for an additional one or two years of funding or a transition to a tenure track position may be offered, depending on each fellow's progress and training needs. Faculty tenure track appointments will require a process of review within the SPGS.

Application Instructions:

Applications can be submitted online via <https://apply.interfolio.com/135001>.

Application materials should include:

- a curriculum vitae;
- a letter of interest describing how you meet the qualifications noted above;
- a research statement; and
- contact information for 3 references including email addresses.

All application materials due by November 30, 2023. Applications will continue to be accepted on a rolling basis for a reserve pool. Applications in the reserve pool may then be reviewed in the order in which they were received until the position is filled.

Inquiries can be directed to Dr. Francisco Pedraza at fpedraz2@asu.edu.

University of Central Florida

Rank: Assistant Professor Intelligence/Security Studies

Subfield(s): International Relations, Comparative Politics, American Government and Politics

School of Politics, Security, and International Affairs (SPSIA) at the University of Central Florida (UCF) invites applications for a full-time, nine-month, tenure-earning assistant professor anticipated to begin August 2024.

The ideal candidate will have a well-developed research agenda including work on security; clear indicators of promise as a teacher; the ability to teach courses on intelligence, including intelligence analysis; and the ability to contribute to the Security Studies Ph.D. program through teaching and supervision, including the ability to teach qualitative methods at the graduate level. Experience working in an intelligence agency or establishment may strengthen an application but is not required. The ideal candidate will also have a record of, or potential for, external research funding as appropriate for the discipline. We are especially interested in candidates who can contribute through their research, teaching, and service to the diversity and excellence of our academic community and foster an environment in which faculty, staff, and students from a variety of backgrounds, cultures, and personal experiences are welcomed and can thrive.

The School of Politics, Security, and International Affairs is home to more than 1,300 undergraduate students, including a major track in intelligence and national security. Graduate programs include a master's degree in political science and a vibrant Ph.D. in Security Studies. SPSIA also hosts several centers, including the federally funded Central Florida Intelligence Community Center of Academic Excellence. For more information, visit <https://sciences.ucf.edu/politics/>.

The College of Sciences (COS) houses most of the university's natural, computational, and social sciences in eight departments, two schools, and several centers. The college's programs play a key role in advancing UCF as a national research university that is determined to help students from all backgrounds achieve success. For more information, visit <https://sciences.ucf.edu/>.

UCF, located in Orlando, Florida, is classified as a Very High Research Activity university by the Carnegie Foundation. With a diverse student body of more than 68,000 students, UCF is one of the largest universities in the country. The university offers more than 240 degree programs. UCF is designated a Hispanic Serving Institution. For more information, visit <http://www.ucf.edu>.

Minimum Qualifications:

A doctorate in Political Science, Security Studies, International Affairs, or a closely related field from an accredited institution by the time of hire is required.

Preferred Qualifications:

Preference will be given to candidates with:

- a promising research agenda in national/international security that reflects theoretical creativity and empirical sophistication;
- the ability to teach courses related to intelligence and security at the undergraduate and graduate levels; and
- the ability to contribute to the Security Studies Ph.D. program.

Additional Application Materials Required:

UCF requires all applications and supporting documents to be submitted electronically through the Human Resources employment opportunities website, <https://www.ucf.edu/jobs/>. In addition to the online application, interested candidates should attach the following materials: (1) a letter of interest, (2) a current CV, (3) a research statement, (4) a teaching statement (including, if available, evidence of teaching excellence), and (5) a list with the names and contact information for three professional references.

NOTE: Please have all documents ready when applying so they can be simultaneously uploaded. Once the online submission process is finalized, the system does not allow applicants to submit additional documents later.

Review of applications will begin on November 15, 2023, and continue until the position is filled.

Questions regarding the position should be directed to Tom Dolan, Search Committee Chair, at thomas.dolan@ucf.edu.

Who Are We?

Founded in 1963 to fuel the region's talent pipeline and support the growing U.S. space program, UCF is built to make a better future for our students and society. It's one of the reasons U.S. News & World Report ranks UCF among the nation's top 20 most innovative colleges, while Forbes, Kiplinger, and The Princeton Review rank us a best-value university. UCF is one of 14 universities nationwide designated as both a Hispanic-Serving Institution and a Research 1 university. With 13 colleges, including a fully accredited College of Medicine, UCF offers more than 240-degree programs between its main campus, downtown campus, hospitality campus, academic health sciences campus, and 11 UCF Connect centers located throughout the region. In addition, UCF extends its reach to communities in and beyond Central Florida by offering complete online programs leading to bachelor's degrees, master's degrees, Ph.D.'s., certificates, and more.

The University of Central Florida is proud to be a smoke-free campus and an E-Verify employer. Unless explicitly stated on the job posting, it is UCF's expectation that an employee of UCF will reside in Florida as of the date the employment begins.

Equal Employment Opportunity Statement:

As an equal opportunity/affirmative action employer, UCF encourages all qualified applicants to apply, including women, veterans, individuals with disabilities, and members of traditionally underrepresented populations. UCF's Equal Opportunity Statement can be viewed at <http://www.oie.ucf.edu/documents/PresidentsStatement.pdf>.

Please apply directly at:

<https://www.schooljobs.com/careers/sewanee/jobs/4235390/international-and-global-studies-assistant-professor?pagetype=jobOpportunitiesJobs>

Position Overview

The International and Global Studies (IGS) program at Sewanee: The University of the South invites applications for a tenure-track assistant professor to begin in August 2024.

The major in International and Global studies involves the interdisciplinary study of global processes as they play out in various parts of the world and seeks candidates who demonstrate a strong commitment to teaching and publishing on global issues.

Position Description

The teaching load for this position is five courses per year. The successful candidate will be expected to teach INGS 200: Introduction to International and Global Studies and at least three courses in the area of their expertise. The candidate will join a well-established and successful program but will have a great opportunity, as one of our core faculty, to shape the future of International and Global studies on our campus.

Attributes of a Successful Candidate

Areas of expertise could include (but are not limited to): the capitalist world system, international media and the arts, migration, postcoloniality, transnational social movements, urbanization, environment and sustainability, and digital and technology studies. We have a preference for individuals who work on Asia or the Middle East but are excited to consider anyone who works in a non-US field and is committed to interdisciplinarity.

Candidates should have a Ph.D. in hand by the time of appointment.

Interested candidates should submit the following materials by November 10:

- a cover letter that addresses teaching and research
- a curriculum vitae that includes the names and email addresses of three references
- a statement of teaching effectiveness
- a sample syllabus or syllabi

Applicants selected for the second round of consideration will be asked to provide additional materials, including a writing sample and teaching evaluations. Reference letters will only be requested of short-listed applicants.

The University has committed to diversity, equity, and inclusion in scholarship and teaching, and to that end, candidates should address how their research and teaching would contribute to DEI. All questions should be directed to Nicholas Roberts, director of IGS, at nerobert@sewanee.edu.

Supplemental Information

The University of the South, commonly known as Sewanee, comprises a nationally ranked residential College of Arts and Sciences and a School of Theology. Situated on 13,000 acres atop Tennessee's Cumberland Plateau, Sewanee is known for its stunning natural beauty while providing easy access to Chattanooga, Nashville, and Huntsville. The University is affiliated with the Episcopal Church and seeks to help employees of all backgrounds and identities flourish.

At the university, our commitment to inclusion and belonging is grounded in our core values of community, courage, flourishing, and inquiry. We seek to build a community enriched by our diversity and centered on equity, justice, mutual respect and shared responsibility. <https://new.sewanee.edu/offices/university-offices/dei/> Recent initiatives built around these values include the creation of the Truth, Racial Healing, and Transformation Campus Center, the Office of Civic Engagement, and the Office of Global Citizenship.

New College of Florida

Rank: Comparative Politics/International Relations with Latin America Focus (tenure-track)

Subfield(s): Comparative Politics, International Relations, Methodology

New College of Florida invites applications for a tenure-track position in Comparative Politics and International Relations with a substantive focus on Latin America. Candidates should have a Ph.D. in Political Science, teaching experience, a career interest in liberal arts teaching, and a vibrant research agenda. In addition to teaching a core introduction to comparative politics, the candidate will offer an upper-level undergraduate course in the politics of Latin America and join in the rotation(s) of at least one of the disciplinary service courses in Quantitative Political Analysis I or Research Design (multiple approaches and methods). Ability to teach International or Comparative Political Economy would also be considered favorably. We expect that the candidate hired would have advanced quantitative skills and be able to guide both qualitative and quantitative undergraduate research. While this position is open with regard to research interests, we would look especially favorably on someone who can teach about and supervise research on the large states and economies of South America. The candidate must have completed the Ph.D. by the start of employment in August 2024.

New College, the nationally recognized honors college of the State University System of Florida, is a small, highly selective, innovative liberal arts institution. Students, with the help of faculty sponsors, plan their own academic programs through a series of semester contracts, and receive narrative evaluations in lieu of grades. Undergraduate research has a central role in the curriculum, and a senior thesis or project is required of all students. The teaching load is two courses per semester plus sponsoring individual and group tutorials. Faculty members also provide academic advising, supervise independent study projects, sponsor senior theses, and serve on baccalaureate committees. Professors are expected to maintain a program of research or creative work. We are particularly interested in candidates with a commitment to innovative undergraduate liberal arts teaching.

Interested candidates should apply online at <http://www.ncf.edu/employment> and upload the following: a cover letter, c.v., statements of teaching and research interests, syllabi, teaching evaluations, one writing sample (article or chapter length), and unofficial graduate transcript(s). In addition, please identify three scholars to write letters of recommendation (they will receive a request through the system). According to Florida law, applications and meetings regarding applications are open to the public upon request. For questions about the application process or accommodations, please contact Ms. Kristi Fecteau at kfecteau@ncf.edu.

Review of applications will begin on November 6, 2023 and continue until the position is filled.

New College of Florida, an Equal Opportunity Employer, complies with all federal, state, and Florida Board of Governors regulations. In accordance with state law, all employees are subject to a background check at the time of hiring.

NYU Shanghai

Rank: Tenured/Tenure-Track Positions in Political Science-Global China Studies

Subfield(s): Comparative Politics, International Relations, Other

Position Description

NYU Shanghai is seeking to fill at least two tenured or tenure-track positions (rank open) in the fields of Comparative Politics, Political Economy, and/or International Relations. The substantive field is open, but one of the positions will focus on China.

Terms of employment at NYU Shanghai are comparable to NYU New York and other U.S. institutions with respect to research start-up funds and compensation, and they include housing subsidies and educational subsidies for children. Faculty may in certain cases have the opportunity to spend time at NYU New York and other sites of the NYU Global Network, engaging in both research and teaching.

Qualifications

We seek candidates who have completed or are close to completing a Ph.D. in Political Science or a closely related discipline. We invite applications from candidates in the fields of Comparative Politics, Political Economy, and/or International Relations.

Application Instructions

Applicants should submit a cover letter, curriculum vitae, statement of research, statement of teaching interests, and at least one writing sample via Interfolio. Additionally, applicants will be prompted to enter the names and email addresses of at least three referees. Each referee will be contacted to upload a reference letter through Interfolio.

Review of applications will begin on November 1, 2023 and will continue until the position is filled. To apply, follow this link: <https://apply.interfolio.com/134126>. If you have any questions, please email the NYU Shanghai NY Office of Faculty Recruitment shanghai.faculty.recruitment@nyu.edu.

About NYU Shanghai:

NYU Shanghai is the third degree-granting campus within New York University's Global Network. It is the first higher education joint venture in China authorized to grant degrees that are accredited in the U.S. as well as in China. All teaching is conducted in English. A research university with liberal arts and science at its core, NYU Shanghai resides in one of the world's great cities with a vibrant intellectual community. NYU Shanghai recruits scholars of the highest caliber who are committed to NYU's global vision of transformative teaching and innovative research and who embody the global society in which we live.

NYU's Global Network includes degree-granting campuses in New York, Shanghai, and Abu Dhabi, complemented by twelve additional academic centers across the world. Faculty and students may circulate within the network in pursuit of common research interests and cross-cultural, interdisciplinary endeavors, both local and global.

Boston College

Rank: Director of Boston College Irish Institute and Open Rank Faculty Position in Comparative Politics

Boston College seeks a candidate for a joint faculty and administrative appointment. The individual will split their duties as Director of the University's Irish Institute and as a Comparative Politics faculty member in the Political Science Department beginning Fall 2024. The position is based in Boston full-time. The ideal candidate will have both policy and academic experience. The successful candidate will also be affiliated with the university's renowned interdisciplinary Irish Studies program.

The Irish Institute has over three decades cultivated and sustained ties between Boston College and policy-engaged institutions and organizations across the island of Ireland (political, civil service, civil society, business, higher education). The Irish Institute organizes seminars and conferences on matters of policy relevance to contemporary Ireland, and brings leading Irish policy and academic figures into conversation with the Boston College community. The University supports the Irish Institute's engagement as a policy think tank on Irish matters that is informed by and speaks to both the practical-policy and the academic-theoretical realms. It is our hope that the topics and themes explored in the Irish context will open up to broader contemporary concerns in politics and policy in Europe and around the world. We expect the new director to invigorate the institute, and the chosen candidate's own background and interests will influence its future direction. Given the expectations of the directorship of the Irish Institute, the candidate should have some practical experience and personal connections, directly or indirectly, in Irish politics or policymaking.

On the academic side, the appointment is open in terms of status and specialty. We assume that the research specialty of the candidate will be a topic of relevance in contemporary Irish politics. We are especially interested in a candidate whose expertise connects with a broader theme in Comparative Politics, such as but not limited to Religion and Politics; Politics of Post-Conflict Societies; Politics of Decolonization; Politics of Neutrality; Comparative Political Economy; Electoral Politics; European Union Politics. Depending on teaching experience and publications, the appointment in the Political Science Department could be junior- or senior-level, with or without tenure. In contributing to Irish Studies at Boston College, the candidate would offer courses on aspects of Irish politics and engage with the program's public events.

The search committee will begin reviewing application files on December 1, 2023.

Application Instructions:

Applicants should upload their cover letter, stating research and teaching interests; curriculum vitae; and a statement on their experience and expectations for the position of the Irish Institute director to Interfolio at apply.interfolio.com/134357.

Three confidential letters of recommendation should be uploaded to Interfolio by the individual letter writers.

No email applications or U.S.P.S. applications will be accepted.

Application Process:

This institution is using Interfolio's Faculty Search to conduct this search. Applicants to this position receive a free Dossier account and can send all application materials, including confidential letters of recommendation, free of charge.

Boston College conducts pre-employment background checks as part of the hiring process.

Stanford University

Rank: Postdoctoral Fellow

Subfield(s): Comparative Politics, International Relations, Public Policy

The King Center Postdoctoral Fellows Program offers fellowships to outstanding new PhD recipients who have a demonstrated ability to generate high-quality, policy-relevant research on critical issues related to global development.

We invite applications for multidisciplinary postdoctoral fellowships to start summer/fall 2024 for a one- or two-year appointment. The King Center's Postdoctoral Fellows Program is intended for promising new PhD recipients—coming from fields such as computer science, earth systems science, economics, engineering, health policy, political science, and sociology—to pursue policy-relevant research on topics related to international development and poverty alleviation. Postdoctoral Fellows should expect to be active members of the community of development researchers at Stanford University.

The King Center's Postdoctoral Fellows Program particularly encourages applications from women and minority PhD recipients and from scholars from low- and middle-income countries, as well as from others whose backgrounds and experience would contribute to the diversity (broadly defined) of the program.

The King Center provides a competitive fellowship stipend, plus support for travel and research expenses.

For full consideration, candidates should submit all materials by December 3, 2023. For more details and the application, please visit: <https://kingcenter.stanford.edu/opportunities/prospective-postdoctoral-fellows>.

Specializations: African American Politics, Social Movements, Caribbean

Assistant Professor in Black Cultural Studies
Department of Social and Cultural Analysis
New York University Arts & Science

The Department of Social and Cultural Analysis at New York University invites applications for a tenure-track, assistant professor position in Black Cultural Studies. We are particularly interested in applicants whose work focuses on the Caribbean or the African continent and its diasporas, and whose research and teaching take an interdisciplinary and comparative approach.

This position is part of a multi-departmental cluster hire in "Black Diaspora Cultural Studies," which includes the Arts and Science departments of Art History, History and Music. A primary aim of the cluster is to create a network for scholars at NYU working across a range of disciplines. More information about this cluster can be found here, along with background on NYU's broader Faculty Cluster Hiring Initiative.

The Department of Social and Cultural Analysis is an interdisciplinary department committed to developing innovative approaches in urbanism, migration, diaspora, critical race, ethnic and indigenous studies, gender and sexuality, art, culture, politics, and economic life. The Department has degree programs in Africana Studies, American Studies, Asian/Pacific/American Studies, Gender and Sexuality Studies, Latinx Studies, Urban Studies, and Social and Cultural Analysis. The department encourages innovative teaching at both the undergraduate and graduate levels.

Candidates should submit the following materials via this Interfolio link <http://apply.interfolio.com/132712>

Letter of application

Curriculum vitae
 Writing sample of 20-25 pages
 Three confidential letters of recommendation

Your letter of application should focus on the contributions your research makes to the field and to the department. You may also address how your work in the university, such as classroom teaching, has contributed toward equity and inclusion.

The committee will begin reviewing applications on November 10, 2023, and will continue until the position is filled. For questions about the position please consult the NYU Department of Social and Cultural Analysis website: <http://sca.as.nyu.edu>, referring to the homepage link "Employment Opportunities." For questions not answered here please contact the Assistant to the SCA Department Chair, Marty Correia at mc2828@nyu.edu.

The appointment will begin on September 1, 2024, pending administrative and budgetary approval. Candidates must have Ph.D. in hand by September 1, 2024.

In compliance with NYC's Pay Transparency Act, the annual base salary range for this position is $85,000 - $135,000. New York University considers factors such as (but not limited to) the scope and responsibilities of the position, the candidate's work experience, education/training, key skills, internal peer equity, as well as market and organizational considerations when extending an offer.

Equal Employment Opportunity Statement

Arts & Science at NYU is at the heart of a leading research university that spans the globe. We seek scholars of the highest caliber, who embody the diversity of the United States as well as the global society in which we live. We strongly encourage applications from women, racial and ethnic minorities, and other individuals who are underrepresented in the profession, across color, creed, race, ethnic and national origin, physical ability, gender and sexual identity, or any other legally protected basis. ## University of Texas at Austin

Rank: Latin American Comparative Policy and Politics (Assistant Professor)

Latin American Comparative Policy and Politics (Assistant Professor)

The University of Texas at Austin: LBJ School of Public Affairs

Location: Austin, TX

Open Date: Sep 01, 2023

Description

Latin American Comparative Policy and Politics (Assistant Professor)

The Lyndon B. Johnson School of Public Affairs (LBJ School) at the University of Texas at Austin invites applications for a tenure-track Assistant Professor of Latin American Comparative Policy and Politics to begin in Fall of academic year 2024-25 (with an August 2024 start date). This faculty position will be housed at the LBJ School with commitments to cross-list elective courses and collaborate with the Teresa Lozano Long Institute of Latin American Studies (LLILAS).

The appointee's research may investigate political, social, and economic phenomena in the region with a focus on democracy, human rights, and comparative policy. Some potential topics of study in this field include:

- Comparative policy: analyzing policy decisions and outcomes across different countries, with a focus on issues such as redistribution, education, health care, labor, and social welfare.
- Democratic consolidation: studying the quality and stability of democratic institutions, the role of civil society and social movements, and the impact of economic development on democratic consolidation.
- Human rights: examining the protection and promotion of human rights, the role of international institutions, and the influence of social and political actors in promoting or hindering human rights protection.

The appointee will teach core courses either in the master's program or the new undergraduate program as well as electives in the areas of specialization described above. The appointee's research will have direct relevance to public policy. The appointee will conduct and publish scholarly research and seek grant opportunities in support of their research and/or teaching activities. The appointee will participate in faculty governance in the LBJ School.

One of the nation's top ten programs in public affairs, the LBJ School comprises more than 40 faculty members and approximately 300 graduate students, and offers multi-disciplinary curricula leading to the degrees of Master of Public Affairs, Master of Global Policy Studies, and Ph.D. in Public Policy. In its 75-year history, LLILAS is among the largest Latin American studies centers in the US, with an academic unit with several undergraduate and graduate degrees and an interdisciplinary research and outreach center. LLILAS and the LBJ School have had a longstanding relationship, which includes teaching and research initiatives in areas such as public health, environmental and migratory policy, and security; faculty-led research projects, student opportunities, scholarly programming, and public outreach. LLILAS and the LBJ School offer an MA dual degree. This degree responds to an increased need in both public and private sectors for policy specialists, who have a global perspective on public affairs and related fields, and a desire to specialize on Latin America and US-Latin American relations.

Qualifications:

A Ph.D. in Political Science or a related field is required. ABD candidates will be considered if the doctoral degree will be complete by the time of employment. Experience in college teaching and evidence of scholarship or scholarly potential is preferred.

Subfield(s): Public Law, Political Theory, Comparative Politics

Specializations: International Law & Organizations, Ethnic & Feminist Theory, Religion & Politics

Clinical Assistant Professor - International Law, Comparative Law, and Global Legal Issues

Liberal Studies

New York University Arts & Science

Liberal Studies at New York University invites applications for a Clinical Assistant Professor position to begin September 1, 2024, pending administrative and budgetary approval. The Liberal Studies Core is a dynamic liberal arts curriculum that provides a global and interdisciplinary foundation for nearly 100 NYU majors. The Global Liberal Studies Bachelor of Arts is an innovative global studies major grounded in the spatial, conceptual, and temporal understandings of a highly interconnected world, with a program of study that is distinguished by experiential learning, study away, and independent research focused in an interdisciplinary concentration. In both the LS Core and the GLS major, small, seminar-style classes and close faculty-student interaction provide students with the benefits of a liberal arts college within a large urban research university. We are especially interested in hiring qualified candidates who can contribute their research, teaching and service to the diversity and excellence of Liberal Studies and NYU.

We seek applicants for the following position:

INTERNATIONAL LAW, COMPARATIVE LAW, AND GLOBAL LEGAL ISSUES

PhD in History, Philosophy, or Politics, with a focus on law and society. A JD is not required in addition to the PhD, but is nonetheless welcome. Candidates must have familiarity with global legal institutions as well as international conventions and treaties and constitutional and statutory regimes in both Western and non-Western settings. Candidates should be prepared to develop upper-division seminars that include introduction to Western and non-Western legal systems in the Law, Ethics, History, and Religion concentration and focus on such global legal issues as racial justice, indigenous rights, earth justice, capital punishment, LGBTQ and women's rights, and disability law. Candidates are also expected to draw on ancient and early modern sources in their teaching with a global, interdisciplinary emphasis in the Global Works and Society sequence of the Core Curriculum. Candidates must embrace interdisciplinary and intersectional approaches from a variety of global perspectives and must have the ability to examine relationships of power and to interrogate the historical roots of current challenges.

In compliance with NYC's Pay Transparency Act, the annual base salary range for this position is $70,000 - $80,000. New York University considers factors such as (but not limited to) the scope and responsibilities of the position, the candidate's work experience, education/training, key skills, internal peer equity, as well as market and organizational considerations when extending an offer.

All Liberal Studies full-time faculty hold renewable term contracts, initially three years, and later six years in duration. Faculty are eligible for promotion within the Clinical faculty ranks (Assistant, Associate, Full). Faculty normally teach three classes per semester, advise undergraduates, and contribute service to Liberal Studies and to the University.

Qualifications

Minimum qualifications: PhD by the date of appointment; three years of college-level teaching experience; and demonstrated excellence in teaching. We are especially interested in qualified candidates who share Liberal Studies' commitment to diversity, equity, and inclusion, and who can contribute to the diversity of intellectual life in LS and NYU. Candidates must present demonstrated experience and commitment to interdisciplinarity, intersectionality, and a teaching approach informed by global perspectives. Publications and evidence of outstanding scholarship and relevant professional activity are strongly encouraged.

Application Instructions

Applications include ONLY (1) a cover letter, (2) a current CV, and (3) a Diversity and Inclusion Statement addressing past and/or potential future contributions to diversity through teaching, professional activity, and/or service. (Additional information can be found here <http://as.nyu.edu/departments/facultydiversity/recruitment/diversity-statements.html>). Complete applications must be recorded by 11:59 p.m. Eastern Standard Time (US), November 1st, 2023. Applications recorded after this deadline will not be considered.

Applicants may apply directly through the following link: apply.in-terfolio.com/131838

Liberal Studies sees diversity, equity and inclusion and belonging as essential to education and the development of leadership in a globally interconnected world. These values inform LS as a collegial and respectful environment for students, faculty and staff—with particular attention to improving the student experience. Liberal Studies strongly encourages applications from women, racial and ethnic minorities, and other individuals who are under-represented in the profession, across color, creed, race, ethnic and national origin, ability, gender and sexual identity, or any other legally protected basis. ### Harvard Kennedy School of Government

Rank: Democracy Visiting Fellow

*About the Visiting Fellowship

The Ash Center for Democratic Governance and Innovation invites faculty, doctoral, and postdoctoral students to apply to its Democracy Visiting Fellowship Program and further their research on substantive democratic governance issues.

*Eligibility

We are broadly interdisciplinary and invite scholars who use approaches from political theory and philosophy, political science, sociology, law, or history. We are especially interested in drawing scholars whose work focuses on innovations in public participation and political participation in democracies or non-democracies.

The Ash Center is a global and values-driven community that believes diverse perspectives are paramount to better understanding and addressing real-world problems. In fostering an environment of rigor, curiosity, and integrity, we value and respect different opinions, lived experiences, and diverse research and policy areas and approaches. We actively seek candidates who share our commitment and values.

*Benefits

The duration of the fellowship is one academic year, lasting August 1 until July 31. Visiting Fellows will be expected to participate in a weekly community seminar series and engage in the activities of the Ash Center and Harvard Kennedy School more broadly. The Democracy Visiting Fellowship carries a modest administration fee, and offers institutional support including physical and online library access, access to Harvard's electronic resources, and use of our shared fellow study space.

Nuffield College

Rank: Postdoctoral Prize Research Fellowships in Politics

Subfield(s): Political Theory, Comparative Politics, International Relations

Postdoctoral Prize Research Fellowships in Politics (up to three posts)

Nuffield College and the Department of Politics and International Relations, University of Oxford intend to appoint jointly, with effect from 1 September 2024 or as soon as possible thereafter, up to three Postdoctoral Prize Research Fellows (PPRFs) in Politics, broadly construed to include political science, political behaviour, comparative politics, political economy, electoral studies, political theory, international relations, and political history.

The key responsibilities of the Research Fellows are to engage in advanced study and independent scholarly research in politics broadly construed (as above); to disseminate research findings through publication and participation in conferences and workshops; to take part in the intellectual life of the College and the Department by organising workshops, seminars or conferences; and to undertake teaching not expected to exceed 48 stint units per year (the equivalent to teaching an eight-week 2-hour seminar series per year), and to assist in examining for the Department.

To be eligible, candidates should have completed, or be close to completing, a PhD/DPhil in a relevant field. Candidates must be within three years of the defence date (viva voce examination date) of their doctorate at the time of application. Allowances will be made for career breaks (for example, family-related leave) and candidates are asked to provide relevant information. Preference will be given to candidates who have not previously held a research fellowship similar to that advertised for more than one year at the time of taking up the fellowship. Prospective candidates should also have experience of carrying out independent research and a track record of excellent quality papers appropriate for and commensurate with their career level. They should have the ability to provide excellent teaching to high-achieving students; the willingness to contribute to the intellectual life of the College and the Department; and excellent oral and written communication skills. Teaching experience in any area of Political Theory, Comparative Political Economy, or International Relations would be desirable.

The Fellowships are full-time, fixed-term posts and are to be taken up on 1 September 2024 or as soon as possible thereafter. The post end date will normally be 31 August 2027. Candidates who have not yet completed their doctorate at the time of application should note that to take up the Fellowship in September 2024, it may be necessary for them to have submitted their doctoral dissertation for examination by the end of May 2024. The posts will be based at Nuffield College and at the Department of Politics and International Relations. The salary offered is GBP 39,378 per annum. Subject to availability, Research Fellows may apply to rent single accommodation in College. Benefits include a research allowance and free lunch and dinner in College.

University of Gothenburg, V-Dem Institute

Rank: Post Doctoral Researcher(s)

We invite applications for one or more post-docs, to conduct research within the V-Dem Institute research programs. This is a 2-year position, 100% of full-time, starting date is as soon as possible, and latest by 2024-08-15.

The postdoc(s) is primarily expected to conduct team-based research on the main questions of the research programs at the V-Dem Institute: "Varieties of Autocratization" (V-Aut), and/or "Endangered Democracies: Sequences of Autocratization" (EDSA) in collaboration with the PI and the existing team members. Applicants can read about these projects and download various documentation from <https://v-dem.net> under "Our Work/Research Programs".

V-Dem-, V-Party, and ERT- data are typically used in the research for these projects but also data from the Digital Society Project. We are particularly looking for candidates with interest and qualifications to focus on further development and issue solving with regards to the measures of autocracy and autocratization.

Research at the Institute is commonly conducted in teams and co-authorships with one or a few team members are common. While all researchers at the Institute are encouraged to participate actively in these collaborations, they also have guaranteed time to work on individual projects. One of V-Dem's strengths is the flexibility and collaborative spirit of everyone at the Institute, focusing on reaching the goals of the data collection and research program.

A doctorate in political science or a closely related subject is required at the latest at the time the employment decision is made. In the first instance, those who have completed their degree no more than three years before the end of the application period should be considered.

Applications will be evaluated primarily on research excellence in comparative politics with a focus on authoritarian regimes, comparative democratization, autocratization, and/or regime transitions. We are particularly interested in candidates that study the role of institutions including but not limited to political parties, as well as those studying disinformation or effects of democracy/autocracy.

Candidates must have a strong record in one or more of the following areas:

- Explicit interest in further extending the research agenda of the V-Aut/EDSA program with demonstrated abilities to provide original, state-of-the-art, and creative research.
- Track record of high-quality publications in relevant areas.
- Strong competence in advanced time-series, cross-sectional regression techniques, sequencing algorithms, and/or associated techniques, and/or observational/experimental microlevel methods.
- Excellent written and oral proficiency in English.

Advantageous criteria include:

- Prior use of V-Dem data in applied research or similar evidence of familiarity with the project.
- Extensive demonstrated experience with cross-national expert-coded data, Stata, and R programming skills, as well as experience with observational/experimental data gathering and analysis.
- Demonstrated resourcefulness, flexibility, and very good ability to do teamwork in different configurations.
- Experience working collaboratively on a large-scale research project.
- Documented experience of outreach, especially translating and communicating research to policy-makers/practitioners in things such as policy briefs, descriptive reports, op-eds and newsletters, and/or social media.

Great emphasis is placed on personal suitability for the position.

How to apply:

Applications are submitted online at: https://web103.reachmee.com/ext/1005/1035/job?site=7&lang=UK&validator=9b89bead79bb7258ad55c8d75228e5b7&job\_id=31769

The application should include the following:

- Letter of application (max 3 pages), outlining how your research agenda can contribute to this project. It should clearly show the ways in which the applicant meets the requirements specified above.
- Research proposal (max 2 pages)
- CV, (including list of publications)
- One writing sample
- A list of at least three references (with contact information) from whom letters of recommendation can be solicited

Ohio State University

Rank: Post-Doctoral Scholar

Subfield(s): International Relations, American Government and Politics, Comparative Politics

The Mershon Center for International Security Studies at the Ohio State University (<https://mershoncenter.osu.edu>) seeks to appoint up to three Post Doctoral Scholars to join our team for the 2024-2026 academic years. The two-year appointment begins August 15, 2024, through August 14, 2026, and carries a stipend of $60,000/yr plus an annual $4,000 research fund.

Situated in Ohio State's College of Arts & Sciences, the Mershon Center cultivates innovative research at the intersections of international, national, and human security challenges. It provides the institutional home for campus-wide collaboration. Although most of our affiliates come from the social sciences and the humanities, we are open to the full range of disciplines involved analytically and/or practically with diplomacy, conflict, peacemaking, governance, and cooperative problem-solving. We also seek to engage perspectives across nations, cultures, commitments, generations, and forms of practice. We invite applicants from any field whose research promises to bring new insight into established or emerging security questions. Successful applicants will make compelling arguments for how their work can benefit from our interdisciplinary and multiperspectival environment.

Mershon postdocs receive mentoring as a cohort, along with assistance from our affiliates in building individual networks across campus. They are expected to devote approximately 10 hours per week to Center-related activities: supporting and developing programming, collaborating on research, and training projects, etc. The remainder of the post-doctoral scholar's time is given to developing their own research, publications, and professional profile.

Because scholars are expected to be fully integrated with the intellectual life of the Center, they must plan to reside in the Columbus area during the relevant academic years. Required: Ph.D. in appropriate field related to security studies by June 30, 2024. Candidates should be within three years of the Ph.D.

Applications should be submitted through Workday and consist of:

- Cover letter describing the two-year research agenda and how it supports the research agenda of the Mershon Center
  - Current CV
  - An article-length writing sample
- All documents can be uploaded as one single attachment.

The deadline for receipt of applications is December 15, 2023. Short-listed candidates will then be asked for three reference letters to be submitted online. Final interviews will take place in late January, with decisions by mid-February.

Tulane University

Rank: Post-Doctoral Fellowship

Subfield(s): Comparative Politics, International Relations, Political Theory

The Center for Inter-American Policy and Research (CIPR) invites applications for five (5) research fellowships for the Academic Year of 2024-2025, some with program administration duties and others with light teaching. Applications from the social sciences in the fields of international relations, international political economy, comparative politics, political sociology, and policy studies are preferred. Latin American expertise and Spanish or Portuguese fluency required. Fellows will be selected based on intellectual merit, experience, the potential impact of their planned research for CIPR programs, and teaching needs of the host department.

Fellowships are one-year, residential, full-time appointments starting in July 2024 with a stipend of $48,940 plus benefits. Travel and moving expenses are not supported. In addition to their planned research, applicants must be prepared to carry out either program administration or adjunct teaching responsibilities. In the program administration track, fellows will be expected to work with CIPR's director in one of the Center's ongoing research initiatives, including the Commitment to Equity Project and/or Research Group MEGA: Mobilization, Extractivism, and Government Action, and/or to develop programmatic content and projects in Inter-American relations, comparative political economy, citizenship rights, human development, and others. The other fellowships carry a one course per semester adjunct teaching load in the department of the fellow's primary discipline and in the candidate's major subfields, without administrative responsibilities. In both cases, specific responsibilities will be defined jointly during the initial phase of the appointment. Applicants must plan to complete their Ph.D. no later than May 2024. Recent graduates with no longer than three years since receiving their Ph.D. are especially encouraged to apply.

Application must be submitted via Interfolio by visiting <http://apply.interfolio.com/132695> and must include (1) a curriculum vitae; (2) a cover letter describing research interests and intended research at CIPR if selected, fit to the program and teaching experience; (3) a graduate transcript; (4) a writing sample; and (5) teaching evaluations if available. Letters of recommendation will be requested only for finalists, so applicants at this stage are asked only to indicate who their recommenders will be. For further information, please contact Ludovico Feoli, Director, Center for Inter-American Policy and Research. Applications will be reviewed starting November 1, 2023.

Tulane University is an equal opportunity/affirmative action employer committed to excellence through diversity. All eligible candidates are invited to apply for position vacancies as appropriate.

Princeton University

Rank: Postdoctoral Research Associate/2024-2025 CSDP Fellow

Postdoctoral Research Associate/2024-2025 CSDP Fellow

Princeton University's Center for the Study of Democratic Politics (CSDP) seeks post-doctoral or more senior research associates for ten-month positions anticipated to start on September 1, 2024. The Center supports empirical research on democratic political processes and institutions. PhD required.

Each research associate will pursue research and contribute to the intellectual life of the Center, the Princeton School of Public and International Affairs, and the Department of Politics. CSDP scholars are expected to participate in the weekly CSDP seminars and related weekly research seminars in the Department of Politics, as well as occasional lectures, conferences, and other events.

Successful candidates will receive a competitive salary and applicable Princeton University benefits in accordance with university guidelines, a taxable moving allowance, and a research allowance. Selected candidates will be required to be in residence in Princeton or the local vicinity, or demonstrate to the program's satisfaction the ability to be on campus on a daily basis and on short notice in order to fulfill responsibilities relating to in-person participation for the duration of the fellowship (September 1, 2024 - July 1, 2025).

Applicants must apply online and submit a CV, a 3-5 page (double-spaced) statement of research interest/research proposal, a writing sample, and the names of two (and not more than two) references. A cover letter is optional. Applicants for this 2024-2025 postdoctoral research associate position must apply to <https://www.princeton.edu/acad-positions/position/31461>. The deadline for receipt of complete applications is Friday, December 1, 2023, at 11:59 p.m. EST. Referees will be contacted directly by email with instructions for submitting a confidential recommendation on your behalf. Letters of reference are to be submitted by the end of the business day on Wednesday, December 6, 2023. Complete your application well before the deadline so that references can be submitted in a timely manner. This position is subject to the University's background check policy.

We at the School of Public and International Affairs believe that it is vital to cultivate an environment that embraces and promotes diversity, equity, and inclusion, which are fundamental to the success of our education and research mission. This commitment to diversity informs our efforts in recruitment and hiring as we actively seek colleagues of exceptional ability who represent a broad range of viewpoints, experiences, and value systems, and who share Princeton University's dedication to excellence.

Princeton University is an Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action Employer and all qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to age, race, color, religion, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity or expression, national origin, disability status, protected veteran status, or any other characteristic protected by law. ## Princeton University

Princeton University's Center for the Study of Democratic Politics (CSDP) seeks visiting scholars for the 2024-2025 academic year. The Center supports empirical research on democratic political processes and institutions. Applications are welcome from political scientists and scholars in related social science disciplines. CSDP visiting scholar positions are restricted to employed scholars on leave who are expected to return to their positions.

Each scholar will pursue research and contribute to the intellectual life of the Center, the Department of Politics, and the Princeton

School of Public and International Affairs. CSDP scholars are expected to participate in the weekly CSDP seminars and related weekly research seminars in the Department of Politics, as well as occasional lectures, conferences, and other events.

Visiting scholars from academic institutions often receive up to one-half of their academic-year salaries from their home institutions for the appointment period. The amount that Princeton contributes to the scholar's salary is based on the financial support provided by their home institution. Selected candidates will be asked to indicate, or provide written authorization for Princeton to confirm, what percentage of financial support their home institution and other sources are likely to provide during their visit, if any, and to submit a confidential statement indicating salary for the current academic year (September 1, 2023 - July 1, 2024) or provide written authorization for Princeton to confirm their salary. Successful candidates will also receive applicable benefits, one trip to and from Princeton, and a research allowance.

Selected candidates will be required to be in residence in Princeton or the local vicinity or demonstrate to the program's satisfaction the ability to be on campus on a daily basis and on short notice in order to fulfill responsibilities relating to in-person participation for the duration of the fellowship (September 1, 2024 - July 1, 2025).

Verification of employment will be requested prior to approval by the Dean of the Faculty. PhD or equivalent doctoral degree required.

Applicants for this Visiting Research Scholar position for 2024-2025 must apply online at <https://www.princeton.edu/acad-positions/position/31925> and submit a CV, a 3-5 page (double-spaced) statement of research interest/research proposal, a writing sample, and a statement of the home institution's leave policy. A cover letter is optional.

Northwestern University

Rank: Assistant Professor of Comparative Politics

The Department of Political Science at Northwestern University seeks applications for a full-time, tenure-track Assistant Professor working in the field of Comparative Politics to begin on September 1, 2024. The search is open with respect to substantive, methodological, and regional specialization within the field of Comparative Politics. We seek an excellent scholar who employs theory and methodology in the effort to generate new and important empirical findings about substantively interesting questions, and whose teaching and mentorship inspire the next generation of scholars of Comparative Politics.

The successful candidate will teach a combination of graduate and undergraduate courses, as well as participate in activities and service in the Department and University. Ph.D. or equivalent terminal degree is required; however, ABD applicants who anticipate completion of the doctorate by Fall 2024 will be considered. The candidate will have the opportunity to collaborate with the Weinberg College Center for International and Area Studies, the Buffett Institute for Global Affairs, the Global Poverty Research Lab, and regional clusters including African Studies, Latin America and Caribbean Studies, and the Middle East and North Africa program, among others. The Department is particularly interested in recruiting scholars who will contribute to the Department's goal of diversifying and increasing external funding for research in line with the Comparative Politics subfield's strong record of current funding (e.g., NSF, Departments of State and Defense, and Folke Bernadotte Academy). In addition, the Department is interested in candidates who can contribute to ongoing efforts of colleagues to build institutional links for the study of Comparative Politics (current collaborations include Universidad de los Andes, Kyiv School of Economics, US Air Force Academy, and Peace Research Institute Oslo).

Applications should include a cover letter, current CV, two writing samples, research statement, teaching statement, evidence of teaching effectiveness, diversity statement, and three letters of recommendation. The two writing samples should include a portion of the candidate's doctoral dissertation and optionally one additional paper or article.

Review will begin immediately. All applications received by October 27th will be given priority.

Stanford

Rank: CDDRL Pre & Postdoctoral Fellowship

Subfield(s): International Relations, Comparative Politics, American Government and Politics

Stanford University Center on Democracy, Development, and the Rule of Law welcomes applications from pre-doctoral students at the write-up stage and from post-doctoral scholars working in any of the four program areas of democracy, development, evaluating the efficacy of democracy promotion, and rule of law.

Pre-doctoral fellows must be enrolled currently in a doctoral program or equivalent through the time of intended residency at Stanford and must be at the dissertation write-up (post course work) phase of their doctoral program. Post-doctoral fellows must have earned their Ph.D. within 3 years of the start of the fellowship, or plan to have successfully defended their Ph.D. dissertations by July 31, 2024.

In addition to our regular call for applications, CDDRL invites applications for the Gerhard Casper Fellow in Rule of Law for 2024-25. We welcome research on any aspect of rule of law, including judicial politics, criminal justice, and the politicization of judicial institutions. We are an interdisciplinary center; candidates from any relevant field (i.e. the social sciences, law) are welcome to apply. The Gerhard

Casper Fellow will be part of CDDRL's larger cohort of pre- and postdoctoral fellows. Please apply through the CDDRL fellowship application process and indicate that you would like to be considered for the Gerhard Casper Rule of Law Fellowship.

The application cycle for the 2024-2025 academic year will be open from Monday, September 25, 2023, through Friday, December 15, 2023. Applicants can apply online at https://webportalapp.com/sp/stanford\_cddrl\_fellowship.

Harvard University

Rank: Postdoctoral Fellow

Subfield(s): Comparative Politics, International Relations, Public Policy

Specializations: Japan, East Asia, Advanced Industrial Societies

The Program on U.S.-Japan Relations at Harvard University's Weatherhead Center for International Affairs will offer postdoctoral fellowships during the 2024-25 academic year. We seek applications from outstanding recent PhDs in the social sciences who are conducting research that illuminates Japan's relations with the rest of the world in the broadest sense. We welcome applications from anthropology, business, economics, history, international relations, law, political science, psychology, public health, public policy, and sociology, among other fields. Scholars may examine domestic issues that bear on Japan's external relations or problems that it shares with other countries, and we encourage projects that compare Japan's experience cross-nationally.

A knowledge of the Japanese language is not required. Applicants must have received their doctoral degree in 2019 or later, in a discipline bearing on the Program's research areas. Research projects that focus on Japan or Japan's international role from a comparative, historical, or global perspective are welcome. Those who are selected to receive fellowships must have a Registrar-certified PhD degree by July 31, 2024.

The grant includes a stipend of $67,000 (over a 10-month period); health insurance coverage for grantee; and up to $5,000 in research funds. This fellowship is made possible by support from the Edwin O. Reischauer Institute of Japanese Studies.

IE University

Rank: Tenure-Track Assistant Professor in Comparative Politics 2024-2025

Specializations: Africa, Middle East, Political Behavior

Tenure-Track Assistant Professor in Comparative Politics 2024-2025 IE University's School of Politics, Economics, and Global Affairs (SPEGA) seeks applicants for a tenure-track faculty position in Comparative Politics at the rank of Assistant Professor starting September 1, 2024. We are especially but not exclusively interested in candidates with regional expertise on Africa or the Middle East, and candidates with an emphasis on political behavior and experimental methodology. Successful candidates will demonstrate capacity to produce publications in top peer-reviewed outlets (both generalist and field journals) in the coming years, and their research should display advanced research design and methodological skills.

More generally, we seek academics with the capacity to engage in policy-relevant work and an overall commitment to institution-building - applying for research grants, participating in affiliated research centers and academic programs, and expanding our current network and partnerships.

Successful candidates will join the Political Science and International Relations group within SPEGA, which consists of 14 tenured and tenure-track scholars studying comparative politics, international relations, political economy, and political behavior. Recent publications from this group appear in APSR, AJPS, JOP, BJPS, and many other top generalist and field outlets.

Candidates should have a PhD from a recognized department of political science, international relations, public policy, economics, or a related field, or demonstrate clear evidence that their PhD will be complete by July 2024.

The IE SPEGA is part of IE University, located in Madrid and Segovia, Spain, and is a full-member of the Association of Professional Schools in International Affairs (APSIA). We are a fast-growing department of professors committed to world-class academic research and teaching in the social sciences, public policy, and international affairs.

We offer a competitive remuneration package, attractive teaching commitments, and an enriching and cosmopolitan work environment in the heart of Madrid. Our working language is English, and both our faculty and student body are highly diverse and international.

IE University is an Equal Opportunity Employer and strongly encourages applications from individuals who will expand the ethnic and gender diversity of our faculty.

Applications should include a cover letter and vita, a job market paper, and three confidential letters of recommendation.

Candidates may apply via Interfolio by October 20, 2023, using the following link: <http://apply.interfolio.com/132210>

William & Mary

Rank: Assistant Professor of Government

The Department of Government at William & Mary, a public university of the Commonwealth of Virginia, seeks applications for a tenure track position at the Assistant Professor level in the International Relations of East Asia.

Appointment will begin August 10, 2024. We are interested in individuals with research and teaching expertise in the international relations/comparative politics of East Asia (especially China). Topics of interest include, but are not limited to Chinese foreign policy, US-China relations, or the political economy or security of East Asia.

Duties include research, teaching, and service to the University. The applicant is expected to establish and maintain a vibrant research program that inspires a highly motivated undergraduate student body. Teaching expectation is 2 courses per semester. Successful applicants must possess the skills to teach compelling introductory courses in International Relations and other lecture and seminar-style courses in International Relations or Comparative Politics of East Asia.

Required Qualifications

Applicants must hold a Ph.D. in political science or a related field at the time the appointment begins (August 10, 2024). The successful candidate will possess a demonstrated commitment to producing high-level scholarship and outstanding classroom teaching; will help the Department enhance diversity of new perspectives to its research profile and curricular offerings; and will be interested in mentoring student research or conducting collaborative research with students.

Preferred Qualifications

Previous experience in teaching and mentoring successful undergraduate research is preferred. Evidence of scholarly achievement or demonstrated potential as a scholar is preferred.

Applicants must apply online at <https://jobs.wm.edu>. Submit a curriculum vitae, a cover letter, a statement of teaching interests, a statement of research interests, writing sample and evidence of teaching effectiveness. A diversity statement is not required. Candidates are encouraged to reflect on their past experiences or future plans to foster an inclusive and welcoming climate for learners/scholars in International Relations/Comparative Politics in any of the aforementioned required documents. You will be prompted to submit online the names and email addresses of three references who will be contacted by the system with instructions for how to submit a letter of reference.

For full consideration, submit application materials by the initial review date, [October 15]. Applications received after the initial review date will be considered if needed.

Catholic University of America

Rank: Clinical Assistant Professor of Politics

Subfield(s): Public Policy, Comparative Politics, American Government and Politics

Specializations: American Politics, Latin American, Political Theory

Clinical Assistant Professor of Politics (Public Policy)

The Department of Politics at The Catholic University of America invites applications for a clinical (non-tenure track, two-year renewable contract) faculty appointment, to begin in the fall of 2024. Candidates should have expertise in public policy (American and/or comparative, as well as familiarity with the principles of Catholic social teaching). The department especially welcomes applicants whose research interests complement its traditional strengths in historical, theoretical, ethical and institutional perspectives. The successful candidate will have an opportunity to teach both undergraduates and graduates, including students in a new MA in Public Policy program currently under development.

We seek candidates who understand, are enthusiastic about, and will make a significant contribution to the mission of the University, which reads as follows: "As the national university of the Catholic Church in the United States, founded and sponsored by the bishops of the country with the approval of the Holy See, The Catholic University of America is committed to being a comprehensive Catholic and American institution of higher learning, faithful to the teachings of Jesus Christ as handed on by the Church. Dedicated to advancing the dialogue between faith and reason, The Catholic University of America seeks to discover and impart the truth through excellence in teaching and research, all in service to the Church, the nation and the world."

Applicants should submit a cover letter, a curriculum vitae, a statement of current research and future research plans, a statement of teaching philosophy, graduate school transcript, and a sample of written work (including scholarly publications) to pol-search@cua.edu and arrange for the submission of three letters of reference. In addition, applicants are asked to submit a one- to two-page personal statement indicating how their research, teaching, and service will make a distinctive contribution to our University's mission and to the vision of Catholic education outlined in the Apostolic Constitution on Catholic Universities Ex Corde Ecclesiae.

Review of applications will begin November 15 and continue until the position is filled.

Questions may be directed to Jakub Grygiel, Department Chair, at grygiel@cua.edu.

Duke University

Rank: Assistant Professor

Assistant Professor Position in Comparative Ethnic Politics

The Department of Political Science at Duke University in Durham, NC invites applications and nominations for a tenure-track position at the assistant professor level in Comparative Ethnic Politics to begin July 1, 2024. Candidates are expected to demonstrate theoretical innovation, regional expertise, and empirical acumen in their research and teaching. The search committee is particularly interested in scholars studying the formation and expression of ethnic identity, the salience of ethnic political demands, the political mobilization of ethnic groups, the representation of ethnic groups in political institutions and constitutional design across different types of regimes, the relationship between ethnic identity, distributional outcomes and/or ethnic conflict. Fault-lines in some societies focus on sectarian rather than ethnic identity. The scope of the search includes such cases. Finally, the committee is also interested in theoretical and methodological innovations in the conceptualization and measurement of ethnic identity.

Duke University and The Department of Political Science are strongly committed to advancing inclusive excellence throughout our research, teaching, and service activities. A diverse faculty – defined broadly as representing a wide range of identities, lived experiences, and perspectives – is a prerequisite for excellence and is essential to driving innovation within our scholarly community. To achieve these goals, it is essential that all members of the community feel valued and welcome, that the contributions of all individuals are respected, and that all voices are heard. All members of our community are expected to uphold these values, and we seek to hire faculty who are passionate about working to increase the participation and success of individuals from different backgrounds and communities.

Applicants should submit a letter of interest, along with a curriculum vitae, a statement describing their research agenda in no more than three pages, graduate school transcripts, two writing samples, a teaching statement covering evidence of teaching excellence, a statement on how they would contribute to advancing the university's diversity mission, as explained below, and three letters of recommendation. All application materials should be submitted electronically using the following site: <https://academicjobsonline.org/ajo/jobs/25591>. Address correspondence through that portal to: Prof. Edmund Malesky, PhD, Chair of the CEP Search Committee, Department of Political Science, Duke University, 140 Science Drive; 208 Gross Hall; Campus Box 90204; Durham, NC 27708.

Review of applications will begin on October 1, 2023 and continue until the position is filled.

Duke University is an Equal Opportunity Employer committed to providing employment opportunities without regard to an individual's age, color, disability, gender, gender expression, gender identity, genetic information, national origin, race, religion, sex, sexual orientation, or veteran status.

New York University Abu Dhabi

Rank: Post-Doctoral Associate in the Division of Social Science (Political Science) - Dr. Leonid Peisakhin

Description

We are inviting applications for a three-year Post-Doctoral Associate in the Division of Social Science at NYU Abu Dhabi from individuals who have or will soon receive a PhD in political science or a related discipline. The appointment will begin September 1, 2024, subject to final budget approval.

The post-doctoral associate will spend half their time on independent research, and half of their time on collaborative research with Drs. Leonid Peisakhin, Joan Barceló, and Jeff Jensen. The collaborative research will be in the field of historical legacy research, with an emphasis on the legacy of conflict and historical institutions. This position is open as to geographical area.

The ideal candidate will specialize in historical political economy and will have an interest in conflict studies, post-conflict reconciliation, as well as broader topics in political economy; strong candidates with research interests in other subfields will also be given full consideration. Advanced methodological training is essential; this includes high-level familiarity with causal inference and econometric techniques. Experience working with historical sources and familiarity with public opinion research would be helpful, but not required.

The position does not require teaching, but it may be possible to get teaching experience for compensation. You would be part of a group of over 20 post-doctoral fellows and 70 faculty in the Division of Social Science.

Please use the following link to apply: <https://apply.interfolio.com/130629>

For consideration, applicants need to submit a cover letter, curriculum vitae with a full publication list, statement of research interests and two letters of reference, all in PDF format by December 1, 2023. Applications will be considered on a rolling basis. If you have any questions, please email Dr. Leonid Peisakhin leonid.peisakhin@nyu.edu

Rhodes College

Rank: Assistant Professor of International Relations/Comparative Politics

The Department of International Studies at Rhodes College invites applications for a tenure-track position at the rank of assistant professor to begin Fall of 2024. Rhodes College believes that diversity and inclusion are critical to our success as an institution, and we seek to recruit, develop, and retain the most talented people from a diverse candidate pool. Furthermore, Rhodes College is committed to supporting the work-life alignment of its faculty. We encourage applications from candidates who have expertise in security, peace, and conflict. The search is open in terms of regional or area studies expertise. This position has a 3:2 teaching load, and applicants should demonstrate a firm commitment to teaching and research in an undergraduate, liberal arts environment. The successful candidate will have classroom experience and is expected to teach introductory and advanced courses in either International Relations or Comparative Politics. Additional courses will be based on the candidate's area of specialization. Preference will be given to candidates who can teach an upper-level course on international conflict or security and those who can contribute to an interdisciplinary atmosphere. The successful candidate is expected to earn their Ph.D. by July 2024.

Rhodes is a nationally ranked residential college committed to the liberal arts and sciences. Our highest priorities are intellectual engagement, service to others, commitment to diversity and inclusion, and honor among ourselves. Our students live and learn on one of the country's most beautiful campuses, located in the heart of Memphis, an economic, medical, and culturally diverse center, making Rhodes one of a handful of prominent liberal arts colleges in a major metropolitan area.

Rhodes College prides itself on being a diverse, inclusive, and welcoming environment. We are an equal opportunity employer committed to diversity and anti-discrimination.

A complete application will include 1) a cover letter that addresses the strengths the candidate will bring as a teacher and scholar to a liberal arts college environment; 2) a curriculum vitae; 3) a separate statement that addresses how the candidate's experiences with teaching, scholarship, and/or service will contribute to a college community that includes a commitment to diversity and inclusion as one of its core values; 4) a writing sample; 5) an unofficial graduate transcript; and 6) evidence of teaching performance (if applicable). Review of completed applications will begin on October 1, 2023, and will continue until the position is filled. Candidates from backgrounds typically underrepresented in higher education are strongly encouraged to apply. Letters of recommendation will only be solicited for short-listed applicants, at which time you will be prompted for the names and contact information for three (3) references. Background checks are required before candidates can be brought to campus for interviews.

For further information, please contact Dr. Chien-Kai Chen, chair of the search committee, at chenc@rhodes.edu.

Copenhagen Business School

Rank: Postdoc in Business and Government

Subfield(s): Comparative Politics, Methodology, Public Policy

We invite applications for a 2-year postdoc on the project "The Determinants and Consequences of Legislative Capacity" starting August 1st, 2024. The project is led by associate professors Florian M. Hollenbach (CBS) and David Fortunato (UCSD) and funded by the Independent Research Fund Denmark. The postdoc will be based at the Department of International Economics, Government and Business (EGB) at the Copenhagen Business School. It is a 100% research postdoc—there are no teaching requirements. It is our hope that the postdoc will coauthor with the project leaders and develop publications related to the project.

The project

Because policy is written by elected representatives but implemented by unelected bureaucratic agents with their own preferences, the legislature's capacity for ex-ante policy design and ex-post oversight sets a de facto budget constraint on potential democratic responsiveness. Importantly, parliaments choose their own capacity by allocating resources necessary for legislative work, yet we observe tremendous variation in these endowments. Why? In this project, we investigate the determinants of capacity choices and their broader implications for democratic accountability.

The "Legislative Capacity" project consists of two work packages. Work package I will focus on developing a formal theoretical model of the legislature's choice over its capacity for policy influence. The model will consider the trade-offs for current majorities to increase capacity to improve its policy making power while also handing more efficient institutions to future governments, should it lose power. Work package II moves on to empirically investigate the relationships predicted by the theoretical model. To do so, we will collect data on legislative capacity in OECD countries over the last 20 years, as well as subnational legislatures.

The postdoc will work on both packages, contributing to development of the central theoretical model, data collection, analysis, and writing. It is essential that applicants have strong research potential in comparative political economy and the ability to work in a team environment, collaborating/co-authoring with other team members.

Non-exhaustive examples of research areas that the postdoc may cover:

- Comparative Political Economy
- Social Data Science
- Quantitative Methods
- Formal Modelling
- Political Institutions

Department

EGB is a multidisciplinary department that conducts high-quality research in the fields of international business and political science with direct relevance to business, policymakers, and the public. Research at the department focuses on two principal focus areas Business & Government and International Business, in relation to societal challenges. To learn more about the research and education of the department, please visit the departmental homepage; www.cbs.dk/egb.

Qualifications

The applicant must have completed – or be close to completing – a PhD in the political science, political economy, or a related field. The applicant must have excellent research skills and proficiency in English (written and spoken). The ideal applicant will have solid skills in formal modelling and advanced quantitative methods.

To fulfill the research requirements of the position, the postdoc is expected to be physically present at the department on a regular basis.

Copenhagen Business School has a broad commitment to the excellence, distinctiveness and relevance of its teaching and research programs. Candidates who wish to join us should demonstrate enthusiasm for working in an organization of this type.

Appointment and salary will be in accordance with the Ministry of Finance's agreement with the Central Academic Organisation (presently approximately $70,080 USD including pension contribution).

Applications must be sent via the electronic recruitment system, using the link; <https://www.cbs.dk/en/about-cbs/jobs-cbs/vacant-positions/postdoc-in-business-and-government-copenhagen-business-school-2-years>

Applications must include:

- A cover letter outlining the candidate's main strengths and abilities.
- Transcript(s) and a full CV
- A job market paper
- A complete, numbered list of publications (indicating titles, co-authors, page numbers and year) with an * marking of the academic productions to be considered during the assessment. A maximum of 5 publications for assessment are allowed. Applicants are requested to prioritise their publications in relation to the field of this job advertisement.
- Copies of the publications marked with an *. Only publications written in English (or another specified principal language, according to research tradition) or one of the Scandinavian languages will be taken into consideration)
- A brief (1-page) research statement for the 2-year postdoc period, and possibly beyond.

Recruitment procedure

The Recruitment Committee will shortlist a minimum of two applicants; when possible five or more applicants will be shortlisted. The shortlisted applicants will be assessed by the Assessment Committee. All applicants will be notified of their status in the recruitment process shortly after the application deadline.

The applicants selected for assessment will be notified about the composition of the Assessment Committee and later in the process about the result of the assessment.

Once the recruitment process is completed each applicant will be notified of the outcome of their application.

Closing date: October 30, 2023

Copenhagen Business School must receive all application material, including all appendices (see items above), by the application deadline.

For further information about the project, please contact: Associate Professor Florian M. Hollenbach, e-mail: fho.egb@cbs.dk.

For further information about the department (EGB), please contact: Head of Department Jens Gammelgaard, e-mail jg.egb@cbs.dk.

Ohio State University

Rank: Comparative Politics

Description:

The Department of Political Science at The Ohio State University invites applications in Comparative Politics for one position at the rank of assistant professor. The appointment will begin in autumn 2024. We are open as to candidates' scholarly focus, including such topics as economic and/or political development; regime dynamics; comparative institutions; courts, crime, and insecurity; social welfare and health; political, social, or economic inequalities; the politics of race or ethnicity; and others. Candidates are expected to have methodological training appropriate to their research interests. Scholars who can work collaboratively with a multidisciplinary team are of particular interest, as are those who can engage with other programs and interdisciplinary research centers at the university. Geographic focus is open, although we are particularly interested in candidates with expertise in areas not already covered by faculty in the department.

Qualifications:

Candidates should have a PhD in Political Science or related appropriate discipline, or expect to complete the degree by August of 2024. Candidates should demonstrate a record of publications and/or working papers, and provide evidence of accomplishments in teaching. Responsibilities of the position include maintaining a robust research program, including actively seeking external funding, contributing to graduate and undergraduate teaching and mentoring, and engaged service to the department, university, and the profession. Salary will be commensurate with the candidate's experience and qualifications. Applicants must have completed all doctoral degree requirements by the time of their appointment. Inquiries may be directed to Professor Marcus Kurtz, at kurtz.61@osu.edu. Appointment is contingent on the university's verification of credentials and other information required by law and/or university policies, including but not limited to a criminal background check.

Application Instructions:

Apply to The Ohio State University Careers website at https://osu.wd1.myworkdayjobs.com/OSUCareers/job/Columbus-Campus/Assistant-Professor\_R87426-1. A competitive application consists of the following required elements: a cover letter, curriculum vitae, research and teaching statements, an unofficial transcript, one or more writing samples, and three letters of reference. We also invite candidates to consider providing an optional statement that reflects upon their experiences and endeavors related to OSU's Shared Values (see below).

How to Apply:

You will be presented with the opportunity to attach up to five documents in the Application Documents section. Please include the following:

- Attachment 1: Cover Letter
- Attachment 2: Curriculum Vitae and unofficial transcript in a single file
- Attachment 3: Teaching Statement and Research Statement in a single file
- Attachment 4: Two or more writing samples in a single file
- Attachment 5 (optional): Values Statement: Description of efforts that reflect Ohio State's Shared Values.

You will be sent an email with instructions to provide names and contact information for three reference letters following submission of your application materials.

The Ohio State University's Shared Values include Excellence and Impact, Diversity and Innovation, Inclusion and Equity, Care and Compassion, and Integrity and Respect. Our university community welcomes differences, encourages open-minded exploration and courageous thinking, and upholds freedom of expression. We define diversity broadly and value multiple dimensions of diversity including, but not limited to demographic, religion, country of origin, perspective, ability status, and background.

Ohio State prides itself on welcoming a wide range of viewpoints and providing opportunities for all to deepen and develop their intellectual curiosities. As a land-grant university, we recognize and understand that a diverse faculty, staff, and student body in which all may engage in open dialogue, be exposed to new ideas and perspectives, belong, and feel valued and included is essential to our efforts in meeting our mission of academic excellence and public service.

Please share your own demonstrated efforts in your research, teaching, and/or outreach and engagement that reflect Ohio State's Shared Values and that might further advance our mission and institutional excellence.

Review of applications will begin on October 1 and will continue until the position is filled. Inquiries may be directed to Marcus Kurtz at kurtz.61@osu.edu.

University of Massachusetts, Boston

Rank: Assistant Professor, Critical Security Studies

Subfield(s): International Relations, Political Theory, Comparative Politics

Specializations: Ethnic & Feminist Theory, International Security, Gender Politics & Policy

The Department of Conflict Resolution, Human Security, and Global Governance (CRHSGG) at the University of Massachusetts Boston

invites qualified applicants for a tenure-track Assistant Professor position to join our vibrant, interdisciplinary faculty beginning September 1, 2024.

We are seeking a scholar of critical security studies, broadly defined, who can contribute to and strengthen the core curriculum of the graduate programs in Global Governance and Human Security in CRHSGG. We are particularly interested in candidates whose areas of focus include gender, race, and/or decolonial theory. The position is open to scholars from a range of social sciences, including but not limited to political science, geography, sociology, anthropology, and gender studies, who connect questions of global governance with imperatives for human security.

We are open to a variety of areas of topical focus within critical security studies broadly understood, to all research methodological strategies, and to either a regional or global focus that complements existing expertise in the department. Candidates must possess an earned doctorate in a relevant social science discipline by the date of appointment. Candidates should be prepared to teach in the Global Governance and Human Security core. An ability to contribute to other departmental graduate and undergraduate programs, in International Relations, Conflict Resolution, and Global Affairs, is a plus.

UMass Boston is one of the most diverse campuses in the Northeast region of the U.S. and has a well-established commitment to social justice, equity, and inclusion, with an anti-racist and health-promoting mission. We strongly encourage applications from persons with diverse backgrounds and provide equal employment opportunities without regard to race, color, religion, gender, gender identity or expression, age, sexual orientation, national origin, ancestry, disability, military status, or genetic information.

The Department provides a rich environment for interdisciplinary, collaborative research, policy, and practice, and houses multiple degree programs at the graduate and undergraduate levels. The Department also houses two vibrant research Centers (the Center for Peace, Democracy & Development, and the Center for Governance and Sustainability) and has a strong connection with the Center for Women in Public Policy.

To apply, submit through the application portal (<https://employmentopportunities.umb.edu/en-us/job/519911/assistant-professor-conflict-resolution-human-security-and-global-governance>): a cover letter, curriculum vitae, a writing sample, and the names and contact information for three references who may be contacted at later stages of the selection process. Inquiries regarding the position may be directed to the search committee chair, Dr. Jeffrey Pugh, at Jeffrey.Pugh@umb.edu. Review of applications begins on October 1st and will continue until the position is filled. ## University of Central Florida

Rank: Assistant Professor, Associate Professor, or Professor, and Endowed Professor in India Politics and Director of the India Center

Specializations: India, Southeast Asia, South Asia

The School of Politics, Security, and International Affairs (SPSIA) at the University of Central Florida (UCF) invites applications for a full-time, nine-month, tenure-earning advanced assistant professor or tenured associate professor or professor as an endowed position with a focus on politics in India and director of the India Center at UCF. The anticipated starting date is August 2024; however, a starting date of January 2024 is possible.

The ideal candidate will have a recognized research program focused on politics in India, demonstrated commitment to teaching excellence, and leadership experience. As director of the India Center, the successful candidate will be expected to develop programming of interest to the larger university community, engage in community outreach, develop and strengthen partnerships with the community as well as nationally and internationally, supervise the center's full-time director of Public Affairs, engage in fundraising, work with offices and units across the university, manage the India Center's budget, and develop curriculum and teach in the area of politics in India, among others. The successful candidate is expected to combine the role of faculty member with that of director of the India Center.

We are especially interested in an individual who can contribute through their research, teaching, mentoring, and service to the excellence of our academic community and foster an environment in which faculty, staff, and students from a variety of backgrounds, cultures, and personal experiences are welcomed and can thrive.

The School of Politics, Security, and International Affairs houses two undergraduate majors, a master's program in Political Science, and a Ph.D. program in Security Studies. In addition, the school is home to five institutes, programs and centers including the India Center. The mission of the India Center at UCF is to broaden the awareness and understanding of contemporary India. The India Center promotes the study of India's role in the world today through partnerships, scholarship and research, education, and outreach to the Indian community in Florida and nationally. The center aims to serve the broader UCF community. It currently has one full-time director of Public Affairs. For more information, visit <https://sciences.ucf.edu/politics/> and <https://theindiacenter.ucf.edu/>.

The College of Sciences (COS) houses most of the university's natural, computational, and social sciences in eight departments, two schools, and several centers. The college's programs play a key role in advancing UCF as a national research university that is determined to help students from all backgrounds achieve success. For more information, visit <https://sciences.ucf.edu/>.

The University of Central Florida (UCF), located in Orlando, is a metropolitan research university classified as a Very High Research Activity university by the Carnegie Foundation. At UCF, we solve tomorrow's greatest challenges through a commitment to academic and operational excellence. Leveraging innovative learning, discovery, and partnerships, we foster social mobility while developing the skilled talent needed to advance industry for our region, state and beyond. A Hispanic Serving Institution, UCF is home to a diverse student population of over 70,000 students, almost 2,000 faculty, and more than 4,700 staff. UCF is invested in identifying candidates who will contribute to its mission through equity-minded practice and culturally responsive pedagogy. For more information, visit <http://www.ucf.edu>.

Minimum Qualifications: A doctorate in Political Science or a closely related field from an accredited institution by time of application is required. To be eligible for appointment as a tenured associate professor or professor upon hire, the selected candidate must have a demonstrated record of teaching, research, and service commensurate with a tenured faculty appointment at the rank of associate professor or professor.

Preferred Qualifications: Preference will be given to candidates who have a demonstrated interest and experience in developing and leading a program or center and a successful research and teaching record commensurate with their faculty rank.

UCF requires all applications and supporting documents be submitted electronically through the Human Resources employment opportunities website, <https://www.ucf.edu/jobs/>. In addition to the online application, interested candidates should upload the following materials: (1) a current curriculum vitae, (2) a letter detailing your interest in the position, relevant experience including leadership experience, and vision for the India Center; (3) a research statement outlining the research record and future plans (one to two pages); and (4) a teaching statement (one to two pages); and (5) the names and contact information for three professional references.

NOTE: Please have all documents ready when applying so they can be simultaneously uploaded. Once the online submission process is finalized, the system does not allow applicants to submit additional documents later.

Review of applications will begin on September 29, 2023 and continue until the position is filled. For the application to be considered, all materials will need to be uploaded and the application must be complete.

Questions regarding the position should be directed to Dr. Kerstin Hamann, search committee chair, at Kerstin.Hamann@ucf.edu.

Job Close Date: Open until filled.

The University of Central Florida is proud to be a smoke-free campus and an E-Verify employer. Unless explicitly stated on the job posting, it is UCF's expectation that an employee of UCF will reside in Florida as of the date the employment begins.

Additional Requirements related to Research Positions: Pursuant to Florida State Statute 1010.35, prior to offering employment to certain individuals in research-related positions, UCF is required to conduct additional screening. Applicants subject to additional screening include any citizen of a foreign country who is not a permanent resident of the U.S., or who is a citizen or permanent resident but is affiliated with or has had at least 1 year of higher education, employment, or training in China, Cuba, Iran, Russia, North Korea, Syria, or Venezuela.

The additional screening requirements only apply to employment in research-related positions, including, but not limited to faculty positions.

Equal Employment Opportunity Statement: As an equal opportunity/affirmative action employer, UCF encourages all qualified applicants to apply, including women, veterans, individuals with disabilities, and members of traditionally underrepresented populations. UCF's Equal Opportunity Statement can be viewed at <http://www.oie.ucf.edu/documents/PresidentsStatement.pdf>.

As a Florida public university, UCF makes all application materials and selection procedures available to the public upon request.

SUNY, University at Buffalo

Rank: Assistant/Associate Professor

The Department of Political Science, University at Buffalo, The State University of New York seeks an Associate or Assistant Professor (tenure-track) in American or Comparative Politics focusing on democratic processes and electoral phenomena.

We welcome applicants whose specialties are related to the study of democratic processes, democratic transition, consolidation, and regression, and specifically to the study of phenomena associated with elections. Issues of election reform, electoral integrity, and violence are central to the functioning of democracy both in the US and abroad. While elections are a central pillar of democratic legitimacy and consolidation, they can also serve as targets for instability incited by groups intent on bringing about democratic backsliding. All applicants studying democratic processes in these, and related research areas are invited to apply.

This hire will continue our recent faculty growth in the study the topics noted above in the American or foreign/comparative contexts. Candidates that match the Department's strength in quantitative methods of analysis and formal modeling are especially welcome. Teaching will include political science courses at the undergraduate and graduate levels. Normal departmental, university and disciplinary service duties are expected. We encourage applications from Associate Professors, Assistant Professors, and graduate students who will complete their degree prior to the position start date. Salary and start-up will be competitive and commensurate with rank.

The faculty in the Department of Political Science understand the value and importance of diversity. We are committed to providing an open, supportive, and inclusive environment for all of our students, faculty, and staff members, consistent with the University's commitment to inclusive excellence.

A letter of application, a vita, and three letters of recommendation must be submitted electronically at <https://www.ubjobs.buffalo.edu/postings/43767> Applicants applying at the Assistant Professor rank (including those who are ABD) should provide research and teaching statements. All applicants are encouraged to apply by October 1, 2023, to receive full consideration, although application review will begin immediately. Questions about the position can be directed to Dr. Rachael Hinkle by email at rkinkle@buffalo.edu.

The Department of Political Science at UB is nationally recognized for its research in international relations, public law, and comparative and American politics. The department's strengths lie in its national and international reputation for high quality research. In addition to its strong PhD program, the department offers BA and MA degrees in both Political Science and Global Affairs.

University at Buffalo is an affirmative action/equal opportunity employer and, in keeping with our commitment, welcomes all to apply including veterans and individuals with disabilities.

University of Central Florida

Rank: Assistant Professor Intelligence/Security Studies

Subfield(s): International Relations, Comparative Politics, American Government and Politics

School of Politics, Security, and International Affairs (SPSIA) at the University of Central Florida (UCF) invites applications for a full-time, nine-month, tenure-earning assistant professor anticipated to begin August 2024.

The ideal candidate will have a well-developed research agenda including work on security; clear indicators of promise as a teacher; the ability to teach courses on intelligence, including intelligence analysis; and the ability to contribute to the Security Studies Ph.D. program through teaching and supervision, including the ability to teach qualitative methods at the graduate level. Experience working in an intelligence agency or establishment may strengthen an application but is not required. The ideal candidate will also have a record of, or potential for, external research funding as appropriate for the discipline. We are especially interested in candidates who can contribute through their research, teaching, and service to the diversity and excellence of our academic community and foster an environment in which faculty, staff, and students from a variety of backgrounds, cultures, and personal experiences are welcomed and can thrive.

The School of Politics, Security, and International Affairs is home to more than 1,300 undergraduate students, including a major track in intelligence and national security. Graduate programs include a master's degree in political science and a vibrant Ph.D. in Security Studies. SPSIA also hosts several centers, including the federally funded Central Florida Intelligence Community Center of Academic Excellence. For more information, visit <https://sciences.ucf.edu/politics/>.

The College of Sciences (COS) houses most of the university's natural, computational, and social sciences in eight departments, two schools, and several centers. The college's programs play a key role in advancing UCF as a national research university that is determined to help students from all backgrounds achieve success. For more information, visit <https://sciences.ucf.edu/>.

UCF, located in Orlando, Florida, is classified as a Very High Research Activity university by the Carnegie Foundation. With a diverse student body of more than 68,000 students, UCF is one of the largest universities in the country. The university offers more than 240 degree programs. UCF is designated a Hispanic Serving Institution. For more information, visit <http://www.ucf.edu>.

Minimum Qualifications:

A doctorate in Political Science, Security Studies, International Affairs, or a closely related field from an accredited institution by the time of hire is required.

Preferred Qualifications:

Preference will be given to candidates with:

- a promising research agenda in national/international security that reflects theoretical creativity and empirical sophistication;
- the ability to teach courses related to intelligence and security at the undergraduate and graduate levels; and
- the ability to contribute to the Security Studies Ph.D. program.

Additional Application Materials Required:

UCF requires all applications and supporting documents to be submitted electronically through the Human Resources employment opportunities website, <https://www.ucf.edu/jobs/>. In addition to the online application, interested candidates should attach the following materials: (1) a letter of interest, (2) a current CV, (3) a research statement, (4) a teaching statement (including, if available, evidence of teaching excellence), and (5) a list with the names and contact information for three professional references.

NOTE: Please have all documents ready when applying so they can be simultaneously uploaded. Once the online submission process is finalized, the system does not allow applicants to submit additional documents later.

Review of applications will begin on November 15, 2023, and continue until the position is filled.

Questions regarding the position should be directed to Tom Dolan, Search Committee Chair, at thomas.dolan@ucf.edu.

University of Washington

Rank: Assistant Teaching Professor of Political Economy of Development

The Henry M. Jackson School of International Studies in the College of Arts and Sciences at the University of Washington (Seattle) invites applications for a full-time Assistant Teaching Professor of Political Economy of Development. This is a non-tenure-track position with a 9-month (mid-September through mid-June) service period. The initial appointment, with an anticipated start date of September 16, 2024, will be for 3 years with the possibility of renewal. Teaching Professors are eligible for promotion and sabbatical and are voting members of the faculty.

The Jackson School [JSIS] seeks an outstanding teacher to introduce core concepts of economics to non-economics majors and to teach more specialized courses in areas such as the political economy of international development, global trade and finance, international political economy, and related fields. This position emphasizes teaching, but the successful applicant will be expected to maintain an active research agenda and contribute to the intellectual life of our area studies in programs and centers.

JSIS offers interdisciplinary degrees at the B.A., M.A., and Ph.D. levels, focusing on global, regional, national, and thematic issues. The successful applicant will be expected to explain core economic concepts to students in ways that demonstrate both the advantages and limitations of applying pure economic reasoning to complex realities.

The Jackson School brings a distinctive intellectual lens to questions of diversity, equity, and inclusion. We model socially inclusive approaches to addressing practical problems in the world today through applied research opportunities that connect students to grassroots communities, policy communities, and transnational actors. We train students to work inclusively and to understand the significance of linguistic, religious, and cultural literacy. Our work de-centers U.S.-centric conceptions of the world and confronts the historical legacies of colonialism as well as inequalities within and between nation-states. Our vision of public engagement has a strong emphasis on equity, justice, human rights, and respect for the histories and knowledge of diverse peoples and places across national borders.

This position will be expected to engage in teaching and pedagogical innovation and will teach two courses per quarter during the academic year (six courses total). University faculty participate in teaching, scholarship, and service. The criteria for merit evaluation and promotion for this position will give the greatest weight to teaching.

Washington State Law requires that this ad list a binding salary range. The base salary range for this position will be $7,800-$10,200 on a 9-month basis ($70,200-$91,800 annually) commensurate with experience and qualifications or as mandated by a U.S. Department of Labor prevailing wage determination.

Qualifications

A Ph.D. or foreign equivalent is required by the date of the appointment. Doctoral degree need not be in economics, but applicants must demonstrate strong competencies in economics through advanced degrees in related fields or through practice

Application Instructions

Applicants must submit the following documents via Interfolio:

- A Letter of application that speaks to your teaching and research in this area
- CV
- A statement describing past and/or potential contributions to equity, diversity and inclusion, especially in relation to teaching (2 pages maximum)
- A teaching statement that includes how you approach teaching and mentoring; the courses you've taught; your formal and informal mentoring experiences and successes; a summary of your teaching evaluations; and any teaching or mentoring recommendations or awards (2 pages maximum)
- Contact Information for three references

The position is open until filled, but priority will be given to applications received before December 31, 2023. For questions regarding this search, please contact jsishr@uw.edu.

Please apply directly at:

<https://www.schooljobs.com/careers/sewanee/jobs/4235390/international-and-global-studies-assistant-professor?pagetype=jobOpportunitiesJobs>

Position Overview

The International and Global Studies (IGS) program at Sewanee: The University of the South invites applications for a tenure-track assistant professor to begin in August 2024.

The major in International and Global studies involves the interdisciplinary study of global processes as they play out in various parts of the world and seeks candidates who demonstrate a strong commitment to teaching and publishing on global issues.

Position Description

The teaching load for this position is five courses per year. The successful candidate will be expected to teach INGS 200: Introduction to International and Global Studies and at least three courses in the area of their expertise. The candidate will join a well-established and successful program but will have a great opportunity, as one of our core faculty, to shape the future of International and Global studies on our campus.

Attributes of a Successful Candidate

Areas of expertise could include (but are not limited to): the capitalist world system, international media and the arts, migration, postcoloniality, transnational social movements, urbanization, environment and sustainability, and digital and technology studies. We have a preference for individuals who work on Asia or the Middle East but are excited to consider anyone who works in a non-US field and is committed to interdisciplinarity.

Candidates should have a Ph.D. in hand by the time of appointment.

Interested candidates should submit the following materials by November 10:

- a cover letter that addresses teaching and research
- a curriculum vitae that includes the names and email addresses of three references
- a statement of teaching effectiveness

a sample syllabus or syllabi

Applicants selected for the second round of consideration will be asked to provide additional materials, including a writing sample and teaching evaluations. Reference letters will only be requested of short-listed applicants.

The University has committed to diversity, equity, and inclusion in scholarship and teaching, and to that end, candidates should address how their research and teaching would contribute to DEI. All questions should be directed to Nicholas Roberts, director of IGS, at nerobert@sewanee.edu.

Supplemental Information

The University of the South, commonly known as Sewanee, comprises a nationally ranked residential College of Arts and Sciences and a School of Theology. Situated on 13,000 acres atop Tennessee's Cumberland Plateau, Sewanee is known for its stunning natural beauty while providing easy access to Chattanooga, Nashville, and Huntsville. The University is affiliated with the Episcopal Church and seeks to help employees of all backgrounds and identities flourish.

At the university, our commitment to inclusion and belonging is grounded in our core values of community, courage, flourishing, and inquiry. We seek to build a community enriched by our diversity and centered on equity, justice, mutual respect and shared responsibility. <https://new.sewanee.edu/offices/university-offices/dei/> Recent initiatives built around these values include the creation of the Truth, Racial Healing, and Transformation Campus Center, the Office of Civic Engagement, and the Office of Global Citizenship.

University of South Carolina Aiken

Rank: Assistant Professor of Political Science - Cybersecurity/National Security

The Department of History, Political Science, and Philosophy at the University of South Carolina Aiken (USC Aiken) invites applications for a tenure-track Assistant Professor of Political Science, specializing in Cybersecurity and National Security, beginning August 16, 2024. Typical responsibilities include teaching three undergraduate introductory surveys a semester such as American National Government, Introduction to International Relations/Comparative Politics, and Introduction to Politics. Remaining classes in the 4-4 teaching load consist of upper-level course offerings with a strong preference for International Relations or US foreign relations classes that focus on cybersecurity policy and/or national security. Each semester requires two to three course preparations, typically including both face-to-face and online modalities. A PhD in Political Science or related discipline obtained by August 16, 2024, is required; PhD in hand at time of application is preferred. Ability and willingness to teach political theory would be a plus. Evidence of teaching as instructor of record is necessary, preferably in international relations or American foreign relations. Evidence of productive scholarship or research potential is necessary. Service to the department, university, and community is expected. Salary is commensurate with education and experience.

USC Aiken continues to diversify its faculty ranks to resemble our student population more closely, approximately 40% of whom are from underrepresented racial or ethnic groups. USC Aiken is an affirmative action, equal opportunity employer and does not discriminate in educational or employment opportunities or decisions for qualified persons on the basis of race, color, religion, sex, national origin, age, disability, sexual orientation, gender, gender identity, transgender status, genetics, or protected veteran status, or pregnancy, childbirth, or related medical conditions.

Applications submitted by November 20, 2023, will receive full consideration, but position will remain open until filled. To be considered for this position, applicants must apply online at: <https://uscjobs.sc.edu/postings/154888> and upload the following with their online application: a cover letter, CV, unofficial graduate transcripts, a sample syllabus for an undergraduate class in IR/American Foreign Relations, contact info for three references, a research sample, a statement of teaching philosophy, and three letters of recommendation. Please note: transcripts, syllabi, and research sample must be submitted as one file under "other supporting documents". Please direct any questions to Dr. Sarah Young, search committee chair, at sarahy@usca.edu. Additional documentation will be solicited as needed.

The University of South Carolina Aiken, a public comprehensive university in the University of South Carolina system, offers undergraduate and master's degrees to more than 3,900 students in 50 programs of study. USC Aiken, newly recognized as a master's-granting university, has long been ranked as a top public regional college in the South by U.S. News & World Report's guide "America's Best Colleges" with 23 consecutive years ranking among the top three and 15 times as #1. Additionally, USC Aiken was recognized for being a Best College for Veterans and a Top Performer in Social Mobility. USC Aiken is South Carolina's COPLAC institution providing a unique and strong liberal arts core within our degree offerings. We boast students from 35 states and 32 countries. USC Aiken has ten NCAA Division II Athletic programs. For more information about USC Aiken, visit www.usca.edu.

Situated on 450 acres, USC Aiken is located thirty minutes from Augusta, GA (home of the Masters Tournament and Fort Gordon, new home of US Army Cyber Command), one hour from Columbia, SC, and within three hours of Charleston, SC, coastal beaches, and the Appalachian Mountains. ### New College of Florida

Subfield(s): Comparative Politics, International Relations, Methodology

New College of Florida invites applications for a tenure-track position in Comparative Politics and International Relations with a substantive focus on Latin America. Candidates should have a Ph.D. in Political Science, teaching experience, a career interest in liberal arts teaching, and a vibrant research agenda. In addition to teaching a core introduction to comparative politics, the candidate will offer an upper-level undergraduate course in the politics of Latin America and join in the rotation(s) of at least one of the disciplinary service courses in Quantitative Political Analysis I or Research Design (multiple approaches and methods). Ability to teach International or Comparative Political Economy would also be considered favorably. We expect that the candidate hired would have advanced quantitative skills and be able to guide both qualitative and quantitative undergraduate research. While this position is open with regard to research interests, we would look especially favorably on someone who can teach about and supervise research on the large states and economies of South America. The candidate must have completed the Ph.D. by the start of employment in August 2024.

New College, the nationally recognized honors college of the State University System of Florida, is a small, highly selective, innovative liberal arts institution. Students, with the help of faculty sponsors, plan their own academic programs through a series of semester contracts, and receive narrative evaluations in lieu of grades. Undergraduate research has a central role in the curriculum, and a senior thesis or project is required of all students. The teaching load is two courses per semester plus sponsoring individual and group tutorials. Faculty members also provide academic advising, supervise independent study projects, sponsor senior theses, and serve on baccalaureate committees. Professors are expected to maintain a program of research or creative work. We are particularly interested in candidates with a commitment to innovative undergraduate liberal arts teaching.

Interested candidates should apply online at <http://www.ncf.edu/employment> and upload the following: a cover letter, c.v., statements of teaching and research interests, syllabi, teaching evaluations, one writing sample (article or chapter length), and unofficial graduate transcript(s). In addition, please identify three scholars to write letters of recommendation (they will receive a request through the system). According to Florida law, applications and meetings regarding applications are open to the public upon request. For questions about the application process or accommodations, please contact Ms. Kristi Fecteau at kfecteau@ncf.edu.

Review of applications will begin on November 6, 2023 and continue until the position is filled.

New College of Florida, an Equal Opportunity Employer, complies with all federal, state, and Florida Board of Governors regulations. In accordance with state law, all employees are subject to a background check at the time of hiring.

The University of Texas at Austin

Rank: Postdoctoral Fellowship
Subfield(s): International Relations, Public Policy, Political Theory

The Clements Center for National Security at the University of Texas at Austin seeks applications from recent PhD recipients for its Postdoctoral Fellowship Program.

Consistent with the Clements Center's emphasis on history, strategy, and statecraft, applicants from all disciplines whose research bears directly on foreign and defense policy, intelligence, or international security are welcome to apply. While our preference tends to be the discipline of history, or research with a strong historical component, we highly encourage applications from PhD recipients in political science, political philosophy, public policy, language studies, area studies, and classics whose research contributes to traditional political and military history. Successful applicants will be able to spend the substantial portion of their time working on their own research and writing projects, while taking advantage of the many academic resources available at the University of Texas-Austin. Additionally, Fellows will be required to play an active role in the Clements Center's programs and activities; any specific responsibilities will be by mutual agreement between the Fellow and the Clements Center leadership. Fellows accepted to the program will be offered a competitive stipend, full use of UT facilities, and office space at the Clements Center. In some cases Fellows will be welcome to teach a course at the University of Texas. Each appointment is for one year, and in exceptional cases may be considered for renewal for a second year.

Applications open on October 16, 2023. Applicants should submit a current c.v., cover letter, graduate school transcripts, a brief (no more than two-page, single-spaced) statement of proposed research, and three letters of recommendation. Applicants whose research addresses the Indo-Pacific region's increasing role in U.S. foreign policy and security should indicate whether they want to be considered for a formal affiliation at the Clements-Strauss Asia-Policy Program. Applications are due no later than January 26, 2024. Note that applicants are required to have received their doctorate by August 2024, the date the Postdoctoral Fellowship will commence. Please direct any questions to Emily Burch, the Clements Center's Administrative Program Coordinator, at emily.burch@austin.utexas.edu.

Applications are due by Friday, 26 January, 2024 at midnight EST.

Applicants will need to submit a C.V., cover letter and a brief statement of proposed research.

Applicants are also required to submit three letters of recommendation and graduate school transcripts.

Area of expertise is open, but preference will be given to candidates with a background in Africa, Middle East and Northern Africa, the Middle East, or international law. In addition, preference will be given to candidates with the ability to contribute to our programs in Legal Studies, Women and Gender Studies, Global Sustainability, and other interdisciplinary programs focused on global issues and cultures.

The standard teaching load is four courses per semester. A Ph.D. in political science is expected at the time of employment. However, ABD candidates may be considered. Applicants should have a proven record of teaching excellence and success in working with diverse populations. Review of applications will begin November 10, but the position will remain open until filled.

Nazareth University, an independent, comprehensive institution with 1,900 undergraduate and 350 graduate students, prepares its graduates to serve local and global communities through a wide range of liberal arts and professional programs. Nazareth seeks to hire teacher-scholars with a demonstrated commitment to excellent teaching, student success, and civic engagement, and an understanding of the educational benefits of ethnic and racial diversity in the campus community. The University is located minutes from downtown Rochester, New York, a city noted for its rich arts and cultural community and its international businesses and industry. Applications from candidates from diverse backgrounds are encouraged.

NYU Shanghai

Rank: Tenured/Tenure-Track Positions in Political Science-Global China Studies

Position Description

NYU Shanghai is seeking to fill at least two tenured or tenure-track positions (rank open) in the fields of Comparative Politics, Political Economy, and/or International Relations. The substantive field is open, but one of the positions will focus on China.

Terms of employment at NYU Shanghai are comparable to NYU New York and other U.S. institutions with respect to research start-up funds and compensation, and they include housing subsidies and educational subsidies for children. Faculty may in certain cases have the opportunity to spend time at NYU New York and other sites of the NYU Global Network, engaging in both research and teaching.

Qualifications

We seek candidates who have completed or are close to completing a Ph.D. in Political Science or a closely related discipline. We invite applications from candidates in the fields of Comparative Politics, Political Economy, and/or International Relations.

Application Instructions

Applicants should submit a cover letter, curriculum vitae, statement of research, statement of teaching interests, and at least one writing sample via Interfolio. Additionally, applicants will be prompted to enter the names and email addresses of at least three referees. Each referee will be contacted to upload a reference letter through Interfolio.

Review of applications will begin on November 1, 2023 and will continue until the position is filled. To apply, follow this link: <https://apply.interfolio.com/134126>. If you have any questions, please email the NYU Shanghai NY Office of Faculty Recruitment shanghai.faculty.recruitment@nyu.edu.

About NYU Shanghai:

NYU Shanghai is the third degree-granting campus within New York University's Global Network. It is the first higher education joint venture in China authorized to grant degrees that are accredited in the U.S. as well as in China. All teaching is conducted in English. A research university with liberal arts and science at its core, NYU Shanghai resides in one of the world's great cities with a vibrant intellectual community. NYU Shanghai recruits scholars of the highest caliber who are committed to NYU's global vision of transformative teaching and innovative research and who embody the global society in which we live.

NYU's Global Network includes degree-granting campuses in New York, Shanghai, and Abu Dhabi, complemented by twelve additional academic centers across the world. Faculty and students may circulate within the network in pursuit of common research interests and cross-cultural, interdisciplinary endeavors, both local and global.

Duke Kunshan University

Rank: Faculty Position in International Relations

Duke Kunshan University (DKU) invites applications to a faculty position in international relations, beginning in the academic year 2024-2025. The successful candidate will be able to offer a course on East Asian international relations and an introductory course in international relations theory. This call is open with regard to rank, including tenured and tenure track candidates.?

In order to meet Chinese visa requirements, prior to the position start date international (non-Chinese) candidates must have worked full-time (work experience obtained while studying full-time is not considered as full-time work experience) for at least two years in a relevant area (including post-doctoral work) after receiving their Bachelor's degree, or begin their appointment at DKU within 12 months of obtaining their master's degree/Ph.D. and without having work experience between graduation date on master's degree diploma/Ph.D. diploma and position start date.

DKU is a collaborative partnership of Duke University, Wuhan University and the Municipality of Kunshan, China (<https://dukekunshan.edu.cn/>). Our campus provides an innovative and robustly interdisciplinary undergraduate liberal arts experience to a student body that will number 2000 students and 150+ faculty, with an acceptance rate of <8% and a student body represented by over 60 countries. We also offer a discrete number of Master's level graduate programs. The DKU pedagogical model draws on the best of Duke's educational experience and resources to reimagine undergraduate instruction on an intimate campus setting.

Similar to the best liberal arts colleges in the United States, DKU values dedication to teaching excellence in a liberal arts environment, as well as a strong commitment to successful scholarly engagement and research. This includes research with undergraduate students. As a whole, the Duke Kunshan faculty will have strong commitments to teaching and research, and outstanding quality in both areas will be highly valued.

Candidates must hold a Ph.D. degree or equivalent in a relevant field. Research experience at a postdoctoral level (or greater) and teaching experience are desirable, as is experience working in an interdisciplinary setting. Applicants should provide a cover letter including a clear statement of the candidate's specific interest in DKU, a curriculum vitae, a research statement, a teaching statement, and three reference letters. All materials should be submitted through Academic Jobs Online: <https://academicjobsonline.org/ajo/jobs/26172>. The search committee also invites and encourages letters of nomination for potential candidates. Nominations and questions about the positions may be sent to social-science-search@dukekunshan.edu.cn using the subject “IR/Asia” as the subject line. Priority will be given to applications received by November 22, 2023; we will accept applications until the positions are filled.

The DKU campus is 37 miles west of Shanghai in Kunshan, and is connected to Shanghai via an 18-minute high-speed train and a subway-light rail train system. DKU provides internationally competitive compensation, housing allowance, child education benefits (for applicable faculty positions), and a discretionary fund or start-up package.

Stanford University

Rank: Postdoctoral Fellow

Subfield(s): Comparative Politics, International Relations, Public Policy

The King Center Postdoctoral Fellows Program offers fellowships to outstanding new PhD recipients who have a demonstrated ability to generate high-quality, policy-relevant research on critical issues related to global development.

We invite applications for multidisciplinary postdoctoral fellowships to start summer/fall 2024 for a one- or two-year appointment. The King Center's Postdoctoral Fellows Program is intended for promising new PhD recipients—coming from fields such as computer science, earth systems science, economics, engineering, health policy, political science, and sociology—to pursue policy-relevant research on topics related to international development and poverty alleviation. Postdoctoral Fellows should expect to be active members of the community of development researchers at Stanford University.

The King Center's Postdoctoral Fellows Program particularly encourages applications from women and minority PhD recipients and from scholars from low- and middle-income countries, as well as from others whose backgrounds and experience would contribute to the diversity (broadly defined) of the program.

The King Center provides a competitive fellowship stipend, plus support for travel and research expenses.

For full consideration, candidates should submit all materials by December 3, 2023. For more details and the application, please visit: <https://kingcenter.stanford.edu/opportunities/prospective-postdoctoral-fellows>.

Johns Hopkins University

Rank: SNF Agora Academy Postdoctoral Fellowship

Subfield(s): International Relations, American Government and Politics, Public Policy

The SNF Agora Institute at Johns Hopkins University invites sociologists and political scientists to apply for its SNF Agora Academy Postdoctoral Fellowship.

To apply go to <https://apply.interfolio.com/134071>

The SNF Agora Institute, an academic and public forum, is dedicated to strengthening global democracy through civic engagement and informed, inclusive dialogue.

The postdoctoral program is a one-year program, with the opportunity for a two-year fellowship, intended to support recent doctoral degree recipients whose scholarship engages with questions and topics directly related to the institute's mission. The SNF Agora Academy seeks two fellows who would engage actively with and benefit from a multidisciplinary scholarly community that enables them to extend their research and public engagement in new directions, with the active mentorship of SNF Agora Institute faculty.

The fellows will contribute actively to the academic mission of institute. They will carry out their own research, participate in seminars, and be full members of the intellectual community. As part of their commitment to the institute, they are expected to participate actively in a research/practice project of the institute, reside in the Baltimore-DC area, and regularly engage in institute activities, including weekly Tuesday and Thursday seminars.

One of the central goals of the SNF Agora Institute is to foster conversations and collaboration that don't happen elsewhere. The fellows must have a strong academic record and be on a trajectory to contribute to key disciplinary conversations, but also be excited about being part of a community that is not simply made up of academics, whether that helps them integrate other perspectives into their scholarship, employs their scholarship to help strengthen democracy in tangible ways, or both. We strongly encourage applicants to think creatively about how their research interacts with scholars in other disciplines and efforts to strengthen democracy in the world and, thus, support the SNF Agora mission. Getting your work into the public domain is not the same as having impact. How do you hope to have impact? Are there civic and political entities, including movements, parties, governmental organizations, media, etc. that you could partner with? Do you have ideas that could contribute to public debates around democracy as well as academic ones? This work should be in addition to and not a replacement for a strong academic trajectory.

Compensation

Fellows will be appointed initially for a one-year term, and will have the opportunity to extend their fellowship for a second academic year. They will receive a stipend of $70,000, health insurance, and a modest moving and research budget.

The fellowship start date is July 01, 2024.

Qualifications

The fellows must have a strong academic record and be on a trajectory to contribute to key disciplinary conversations, but also be excited about being part of a community that is not simply made up of academics, whether that helps them integrate other perspectives into their scholarship, employs their scholarship to help strengthen democracy in tangible ways, or both.

Tulane University

Rank: CIPR Mid-Level Career Fellow

Subfield(s): Political Theory, International Relations, Comparative Politics

The Center for Inter-American Policy and Research (CIPR) at Tulane University seeks visiting research fellows for the 2024-2025 academic year. The Center supports empirical research in the fields of international relations, international political economy, comparative politics, political sociology, and policy studies. Latin American expertise and Spanish or Portuguese fluency are required. Fellows will be selected based on intellectual merit, experience, and the potential impact of their planned research for CIPR programs.

Fellows will pursue research and contribute to the intellectual life of their disciplinary department, CIPR, and the Stone Center for Latin American Studies. They are expected to participate in weekly CIPR seminars and workshops, as well as lectures, conferences, and other events organized by the Center. Fellows will collaborate with resident faculty and students on projects of mutual interest in addition to developing their independent research agendas on related topics, as well as mentor junior colleagues at the Center when possible.

Fellowships are for one or two semesters depending on applicant preferences; however, the stipend is $37,000 plus benefits regardless of the duration. Applicants are requested to indicate the period of their preference. Fellows may also obtain funding from their own academic institutions, outside foundations or personal resources. Round-trip travel expenses of up to $3,000 are also supported. Foreign applicants will need to obtain separate health insurance coverage.

Applications must be submitted via Interfolio by visiting apply.interfolio.com/133082 and must include (1) a curriculum vitae; (2) a cover letter describing research interests, fit to the program, and intended research plan to be developed at CIPR if selected. Letters of recommendation will be requested only for finalists, so applicants at this stage are asked only to indicate who their recommenders will be. For further information, please contact Ludovico Feoli, Director, Center for Inter-American Policy and Research. Applications will be reviewed starting December 31, 2023.

Tulane University is an equal opportunity/affirmative action employer committed to excellence through diversity. All eligible candidates are invited to apply for position vacancies as appropriate.

Job Title:

Assistant Professor, Political Science

Department:

Political Science

College/Division:

College Of Liberal Arts And Sciences

Primary Job Posting Location:

Macon, GA 31207

Additional Job Posting Locations:

(Other locations that this position could be based)

Job Details:

The Department of Political Science in the College of Liberal Arts at Mercer University invites applications for a full-time appointment at the Assistant Professor level (tenure track).

Responsibilities:

Duties include teaching approximately 21 semester hours of courses per year plus departmental duties as assigned by the Chair and college duties as assigned by the Dean. The successful candidate will teach departmental offerings in International Relations and Comparative Politics. Additionally, the successful candidate for this position is expected to contribute at least one course per year to the college's innovative interdisciplinary foundational studies program.

Beyond an excellent record of teaching, successful candidates for tenure in the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences have demonstrated records of accomplishment in scholarship and service. The definition of both categories is broad but should be relevant to the candidate's areas of expertise and candidates should be able to demonstrate recognition by other experts in the field.

Teaching expectations include two to three sections of Introduction to International Relations as well as upper division courses in the successful candidate's areas of expertise. Of particular interest to the department is the coverage of classes in the realm of International Political Economy, an interest in the intersection of religion and politics, and an area of regional expertise. We are especially interested in candidates with expertise in the Middle East or Latin America. The college also offers a minor in Religion and Diplomacy and a certificate in Faith-based diplomacy to which the successful candidate will ideally contribute.

The crucial elements that we seek in a new colleague are a commitment to excellence in teaching, an active scholarship agenda, and a willingness to take on service both internally to the university and externally.

We seek candidates that enjoy working collegially within and across disciplines and are committed to seeing our students thrive. This includes academic advising, willingness to collaborate on projects, advising student organizations, and engaging fully in the life of the university.

Qualifications:

A PhD in Political Sciences or a closely related field from an accredited college/university is required. ABD candidates may be considered for hiring at the rank of Instructor with promotion to Assistant Professor once the PhD degree is completed.

Additional Information:

Mercer University is a private university distinguished by its commitment to teaching, empowering, and inspiring its students to create, discover, and serve. The university offers rigorous programs to more than 9,000 students enrolled in schools of liberal arts and sciences, engineering, music, business, law, pharmacy, medicine, nursing, health professions, education, theology, and professional advancement. Mercer continues to boast a strong enrollment, increasing the incoming first-year class of students by 39% in the past decade. At the same time, the average GPA of incoming students for Fall 2023 was a 4.02 with average standardized test score in the 88th percentile for those who submitted scores. The College, which hosts a chapter of Phi Beta Kappa, is dedicated to cultivating intellectual curiosity, respectful dialogue, and responsible citizenry, and affirms the university's commitment to openness and inclusion and to inspiring students to lives of service. It is located in the historic city of Macon, Georgia, which is the educational, medical, cultural, and commercial hub of Middle Georgia, an hour and a half south of Atlanta.

Application Information:

Review of applications will begin on October 10. Applications submitted after November 6 may not be given full consideration in the selection process. Candidates should complete the brief online application and attach 1) a cover letter; 2) current CV; 3) statement of teaching philosophy; 4) list of three professional references with contact information.

Questions about the position can be addressed to Chris Grant, Ph.D.; chair of the search committee via email grant\_jc@mercer.edu or by phone at (478) 301-5519.

Selection of the final candidate is contingent upon successful completion of a criminal background check.

University of Texas at Austin

Rank: Latin American National Security and Foreign Policy (Assistant Professor or Professor of Practice)

Latin American National Security and Foreign Policy (Assistant Professor or Professor of Practice)

The University of Texas at Austin: LBJ School of Public Affairs

Location: Austin, TX

Open Date: Sep 01, 2023

Description

Latin American National Security and Foreign Policy (Assistant Professor or Professor of Practice)

The Lyndon B. Johnson School of Public Affairs (LBJ School) at the University of Texas at Austin invite applications for a Professor of Practice or a tenure-track Assistant Professor of Latin American National Security and Foreign Policy to begin in Fall of academic year 2024-25 (with an August 2024 start date). This faculty position will be housed at the LBJ School with commitments to cross-list elective courses and collaborate with the Teresa Lozano Long Institute of Latin American Studies (LLILAS).

The appointee's research may focus on:

- Intelligence sharing: analyzing the mechanisms and effectiveness of intelligence sharing between Latin American countries, as well as with external partners, such as the United States and Europe.
- Drug trafficking: studying the dynamics of drug trafficking in the region, including the role of transnational criminal organizations, drug cartels, and local criminal networks.
- Arms trafficking: examining the flow of arms across national borders in Latin America, including the sources of illicit arms, the actors involved in arms trafficking, and the impacts on regional security.
- Cybersecurity: analyzing the emerging threats to cybersecurity in Latin America, including the rise of cybercrime and cyber espionage, and the capacity of states to respond to these threats.
- Transnational organized crime: exploring the broader phenomenon of transnational organized crime in Latin America, including human trafficking, money laundering, and corruption.
- Border security: studying the policies and practices of border security in Latin America, including the construction of physical barriers, the use of surveillance technologies, and the management of migration flows.
- Political violence: studying the causes, dynamics, and impacts of political violence, including terrorism, civil wars, and human rights abuses.
- Foreign policy: examining the role of Latin American countries in international relations, including issues such as regional integration, relations with the United States, and South-South cooperation.

The appointee will teach core courses either in the master's program or the new undergraduate program as well as electives in the areas of specialization described above. The appointee's research will have direct relevance to public policy. The appointee may conduct and publish scholarly research and seek grant opportunities in support of their research and/or teaching activities. In the case of a Professor of Practice position, the appointee will be expected to actively engage in policy development and teaching. The appointee will participate in faculty governance in the LBJ School.

One of the nation's top ten programs in public affairs, the LBJ School comprises more than 40 faculty members and approximately 300 graduate students, and offers multi-disciplinary curricula leading to the degrees of Master of Public Affairs, Master of Global Policy Studies, and Ph.D. in Public Policy. In its 75-year history, LLILAS is among the largest Latin American studies centers in the US, with an academic unit with several undergraduate and graduate degrees and an interdisciplinary research and outreach center. LLILAS and the LBJ School have had a longstanding relationship, which includes teaching and research initiatives in areas such as public health, environmental and migratory policy, and security; faculty-led research projects, student opportunities, scholarly programming, and public outreach. LLILAS and the LBJ School offer an MA dual degree. This degree responds to an increased need in both public and private sectors for policy specialists, who have a global perspective on public affairs and related fields, and a desire to specialize on Latin America and US-Latin American relations.

Qualifications:

A master's degree in a related field is required for a Professor of Practice position. For a tenure-track Assistant Professor, a PhD is required. ABD candidates will be considered if the doctoral degree will be complete by the time of employment. Experience in college teaching and evidence of scholarship or scholarly potential is preferred.

Application Instructions:

Interested candidates can submit their cover letter, CV, statement of teaching, three years of teaching evaluations (or fewer if unavailable), three letters of reference, and one article-length writing sample via <https://apptrkr.com/4562245>. Questions about the position can be directed to Sergio Garcia-Rios at garcia.rios@utexas.edu. Questions about the application can be directed to Shannon LaFevers at slafevers@austin.utexas.edu

The search committee will begin considering applications October 15th. The position will remain open until filled.

New York University Arts and Science

Rank: Clinical Assistant Professor - Global Works and Society

Subfield(s): Political Theory, Comparative Politics, International Relations

Specializations: International Political Economy, Developing Nations, Political Philosophy & Theory

Clinical Assistant Professor - Global Works and Society
Liberal Studies

New York University Arts & Science

Liberal Studies at New York University invites applications for a Clinical Assistant Professor position to begin September 1, 2024, pending administrative and budgetary approval.

The Liberal Studies Core is a dynamic liberal arts curriculum that provides a global and interdisciplinary foundation for nearly 100 NYU majors. The Global Liberal Studies Bachelor of Arts is an innovative global studies major grounded in the spatial, conceptual, and temporal understandings of a highly interconnected world, with a program of study that is distinguished by experiential learning, study away, and independent research focused in an interdisciplinary concentration. In both the LS Core and the GLS major, small, seminar-style classes and close faculty-student interaction provide students with the benefits of a liberal arts college within a large urban research university. We are especially interested in hiring qualified candidates who can contribute their research, teaching and service to the diversity and excellence of the Liberal Studies and NYU.

We seek applicants for the following position:

GLOBAL WORKS AND SOCIETY

PhD in Political Theory, Philosophy, History, or related fields in the social sciences. Candidates should have the ability to teach global works that examine enduring questions of philosophy, religion, political and social theory, and history from antiquity to the early 18th century in the Global Works and Society sequence of the Core Curriculum. Candidates must embrace interdisciplinary approaches from a variety of global perspectives, and should have the ability to examine relationships of power and to interrogate the historical roots of current challenges. Candidates must have the ability to teach upper-division seminars in their areas of expertise.

All Liberal Studies full-time faculty hold renewable term contracts, initially three years, and later six years in duration. Faculty are eligible for promotion within the Clinical faculty ranks (Assistant, Associate, Full). Faculty normally teach three classes per semester, advise undergraduates, and contribute service to Liberal Studies and to the University.

In compliance with NYC's Pay Transparency Act, the annual base salary range for this position is $70,000 - $80,000. New York University considers factors such as (but not limited to) the scope and responsibilities of the position, the candidate's work experience, education/training, key skills, internal peer equity, as well as market and organizational considerations when extending an offer.

Qualifications

Minimum qualifications: PhD by the date of appointment; three years of college-level teaching experience; and demonstrated excellence in teaching. We are especially interested in qualified candidates who share Liberal Studies' commitment to diversity, equity, and inclusion, and who can contribute to the diversity of intellectual life in LS and NYU. Candidates must present demonstrated experience and commitment to interdisciplinarity, intersectionality, and a teaching approach informed by global perspectives. Publications and evidence of outstanding scholarship and relevant professional activity are strongly encouraged.

Application Instructions

Applications include ONLY (1) a cover letter, (2) a current CV, and (3) a Diversity and Inclusion Statement addressing past and/or potential future contributions to diversity through teaching, professional activity, and/or service. (Additional information can be found here <http://as.nyu.edu/departments/facultydiversity/recruitment/diversity-statements.html>). Complete applications must be recorded by 11:59 p.m. Eastern Standard Time (US), November 1st, 2023. Applications received after this deadline will not be considered.

Applicants may apply directly through the following link: <http://apply.interfolio.com/131837>

Liberal Studies sees diversity, equity and inclusion and belonging as essential to education and the development of leadership in a globally interconnected world. These values inform LS as a collegial and respectful environment for students, faculty and staff—with particular attention to improving the student experience. Liberal Studies strongly encourages applications from women, racial and ethnic minorities, and other individuals who are under-represented in the profession, across color, creed, race, ethnic and national origin, ability, gender and sexual identity, or any other legally protected basis. ## Nuffield College

Rank: Postdoctoral Prize Research Fellowships in Politics

Subfield(s): Political Theory, Comparative Politics, International Relations

Postdoctoral Prize Research Fellowships in Politics (up to three posts)

Nuffield College and the Department of Politics and International Relations, University of Oxford intend to appoint jointly, with effect from 1 September 2024 or as soon as possible thereafter, up to three Postdoctoral Prize Research Fellows (PPRFs) in Politics, broadly construed to include political science, political behaviour, comparative politics, political economy, electoral studies, political theory, international relations, and political history.

The key responsibilities of the Research Fellows are to engage in advanced study and independent scholarly research in politics broadly construed (as above); to disseminate research findings through publication and participation in conferences and workshops; to take part in the intellectual life of the College and the Department by organising workshops, seminars or conferences; and to undertake teaching not expected to exceed 48 stint units per year (the equivalent to teaching an eight-week 2-hour seminar series per year), and to assist in examining for the Department.

To be eligible, candidates should have completed, or be close to completing, a PhD/DPhil in a relevant field. Candidates must be within three years of the defence date (viva voce examination date) of their doctorate at the time of application. Allowances will be made for career breaks (for example, family-related leave) and candidates are asked to provide relevant information. Preference will be given to candidates who have not previously held a research fellowship similar to that advertised for more than one year at the time of taking up the fellowship. Prospective candidates should also have experience of carrying out independent research and a track record of excellent quality papers appropriate for and commensurate with their career level. They should have the ability to provide excellent teaching to high-achieving students; the willingness to contribute to the intellectual life of the College and the Department; and excellent oral and written communication skills. Teaching experience in any area of Political Theory, Comparative Political Economy, or International Relations would be desirable.

The Fellowships are full-time, fixed-term posts and are to be taken up on 1 September 2024 or as soon as possible thereafter. The post end date will normally be 31 August 2027. Candidates who have not yet completed their doctorate at the time of application should note that to take up the Fellowship in September 2024, it may be necessary for them to have submitted their doctoral dissertation for examination by the end of May 2024. The posts will be based at Nuffield College and at the Department of Politics and International Relations. The salary offered is GBP 39,378 per annum. Subject to availability, Research Fellows may apply to rent single accommodation in College. Benefits include a research allowance and free lunch and dinner in College.

King's College London

Rank: Professor of War Studies

Job id: 071965

Salary: Competitive

Business unit: Social Science & Public Policy

Department: Department of War Studies

Location: Strand Campus

Category: Academic & Teaching

The Department of War Studies at King's College London has recently celebrated its 60th anniversary and is one of the very few academic departments in the world focused on understanding the complex realm of war, conflict, security and international politics through inter-disciplinary teaching, research, and engagement. Alongside its sister department, Defence Studies, based at the UK Defence Academy, War Studies sits within the School of Security Studies, a community of over 200 academic and research staff, and over 300 post-graduate research students.

The Department is currently seeking to appoint a distinguished scholar who has an outstanding international profile in the field of War Studies. We are particularly interested in inviting those with expertise in strategic studies, international security, and aspects of contemporary war to join our vibrant research and scholarly community.

The post-holder will be equipped to deliver outstanding, impactful research, as evidenced by publications of the highest quality. They will demonstrate intellectual leadership and success in generating research income and have a clear and well developed strategy for future research and grant capture. They will also be equipped to support the department's work on knowledge exchange with the potential to influence public understanding and policy initiatives.

The post-holder will demonstrate excellence in teaching, and the capacity to deliver innovative, research-led teaching to students at all levels. They will be committed to training, mentoring, and supporting the next generation of scholars in war, conflict, security and international politics. It is also critical that the successful applicant can evidence a commitment to diversity, equity, and inclusivity with the ability to nurture a positive culture that supports the development of all staff and students.

For an informal conversation please contact Matthew Granger at kings-search@kcl.ac.uk

The closing date for applications is 23.59 on Monday 23rd October 2023. The selection process will include a rigorous shortlisting and interview process.

Ohio State University

Rank: Post-Doctoral Scholar

Subfield(s): International Relations, American Government and Politics, Comparative Politics

The Mershon Center for International Security Studies at the Ohio State University (<https://mershoncenter.osu.edu>) seeks to appoint up to three Post Doctoral Scholars to join our team for the 2024-2026 academic years. The two-year appointment begins August 15, 2024, through August 14, 2026, and carries a stipend of $60,000/yr plus an annual $4,000 research fund.

Situated in Ohio State's College of Arts & Sciences, the Mershon Center cultivates innovative research at the intersections of international, national, and human security challenges. It provides the institutional home for campus-wide collaboration. Although most of our affiliates come from the social sciences and the humanities, we are open to the full range of disciplines involved analytically and/or practically with diplomacy, conflict, peacemaking, governance, and cooperative problem-solving. We also seek to engage perspectives across nations, cultures, commitments, generations, and forms of practice. We invite applicants from any field whose research promises to bring new insight into established or emerging security questions. Successful applicants will make compelling arguments for how their work can benefit from our interdisciplinary and multiperspectival environment.

Mershon postdocs receive mentoring as a cohort, along with assistance from our affiliates in building individual networks across campus. They are expected to devote approximately 10 hours per week to Center-related activities: supporting and developing programming, collaborating on research, and training projects, etc. The remainder of the post-doctoral scholar's time is given to developing their own research, publications, and professional profile.

Because scholars are expected to be fully integrated with the intellectual life of the Center, they must plan to reside in the Columbus area during the relevant academic years. Required: Ph.D. in appropriate field related to security studies by June 30, 2024. Candidates should be within three years of the Ph.D.

Applications should be submitted through Workday and consist of:

- Cover letter describing the two-year research agenda and how it supports the research agenda of the Mershon Center
- Current CV
- An article-length writing sample

All documents can be uploaded as one single attachment.

The deadline for receipt of applications is December 15, 2023. Short-listed candidates will then be asked for three reference letters to be submitted online. Final interviews will take place in late January, with decisions by mid-February.

Negotiable

ACADEMIC (9 months)

Additional Information:

The International Studies Major is an interdisciplinary undergraduate instructional unit that focuses on the study of global issues, grounded in three core ideas: (i) A relational, interactional, contextually rooted understanding of global forces and dynamics; (ii) The mutual constitution of the global and the local, (iii) The importance of a broad, interdisciplinary approach to global issues. An outstanding feature of International Studies Major at UW Madison is the support provided by its many Title VI-funded Area Studies Programs (<https://iris.wisc.edu/>).

The Department of Geography at UW-Madison is a top-ranked program with a renowned geography program having strengths in the Global South and mixed method approaches. UW-Madison Geography offers BA/BS and graduate degrees (M.S./Ph.D.).

The appointee is expected to be a full member of both the Department of Geography and the International Studies Major community. They will be expected to build a research, teaching, and service record commensurate with the tenure expectations and standards of the rank, the Department of Geography, and the University of Wisconsin-Madison.

Madison is situated among four lakes, with the university situated on southern shore of the largest. It is a walkable, bikeable, beautiful city that regularly makes national top-ten lists for quality of life. Our food carts have been ranked #1 in the nation, our farmers' markets are legendary, our libraries and public parks are great. Community events-from protests to concerts to football games-are diverse and lively, and it is not as cold here as you think.

How to Apply:

Applications arriving after the deadline cannot be guaranteed consideration. Apply online at “Jobs at UW” (<http://jobs.wisc.edu>) under job number 287873. Applications must be received through UW- Madison’s online application system. Applications submitted outside of this system will not be considered. Click the “Apply Now” button to start the application process. Applications must be submitted electronically as a single PDF, which should include: 1) letter of interest, 2) curriculum vitae, 3) statement of research interests (1-2 pages), 4) teaching statement (1-2 pages), and 5) one or two writing examples (uploaded as one document). Candidates will be asked to provide contact information for three references; each reference will each receive an electronic link through which they can upload a signed letter of reference.

For full consideration, all materials must be received no later than 11:59pm on November 3, 2023. Applications will be accepted until position is filled. Please note that applicants will be evaluated based upon submitted application materials and therefore should speak to and include evidence of their qualifications.

For further questions, please contact search committee co-chairs Erica Simmons (essimmons@wisc.edu) and Stephen Young (sjyoung3@wisc.edu)

Employment will require an institutional reference check regarding any misconduct. To be considered, applicants must upload a signed ‘Authorization to Release Information’ form as part of the application. The authorization form and a definition of ‘misconduct’ can be found here: <https://hr.wisc.edu/institutional-reference-check/>

Tulane University

Rank: Post-Doctoral Fellowship

Subfield(s): Comparative Politics, International Relations, Political Theory

The Center for Inter-American Policy and Research (CIPR) invites applications for five (5) research fellowships for the Academic Year of 2024-2025, some with program administration duties and others with light teaching. Applications from the social sciences in the fields of international relations, international political economy, comparative politics, political sociology, and policy studies are preferred. Latin American expertise and Spanish or Portuguese fluency required. Fellows will be selected based on intellectual merit, experience, the potential impact of their planned research for CIPR programs, and teaching needs of the host department.

Fellowships are one-year, residential, full-time appointments starting in July 2024 with a stipend of $48,940 plus benefits. Travel and moving expenses are not supported. In addition to their planned research, applicants must be prepared to carry out either program administration or adjunct teaching responsibilities. In the program administration track, fellows will be expected to work with CIPR’s director in one of the Center’s ongoing research initiatives, including the Commitment to Equity Project and/or Research Group MEGA: Mobilization, Extractivism, and Government Action, and/or to develop programmatic content and projects in Inter-American relations, comparative political economy, citizenship rights, human development, and others. The other fellowships carry a one course per semester adjunct teaching load in the department of the fellow’s primary discipline and in the candidate’s major subfields, without administrative responsibilities. In both cases, specific responsibilities will be defined jointly during the initial phase of the appointment. Applicants must plan to complete their Ph.D. no later than May 2024. Recent graduates with no longer than three years since receiving their Ph.D. are especially encouraged to apply.

Application must be submitted via Interfolio by visiting <http://apply.interfolio.com/132695> and must include (1) a curriculum vitae; (2) a cover letter describing research interests and intended research at CIPR if selected, fit to the program and teaching experience; (3) a graduate transcript; (4) a writing sample; and (5) teaching evaluations if available. Letters of recommendation will be requested only for finalists, so applicants at this stage are asked only to indicate who their recommenders will be. For further information, please contact Ludovico Feoli, Director, Center for Inter-American Policy and Research. Applications will be reviewed starting November 1, 2023.

Stanford

Rank: CDDRL Pre & Postdoctoral Fellowship

Subfield(s): International Relations, Comparative Politics, American Government and Politics

Stanford University Center on Democracy, Development, and the Rule of Law welcomes applications from pre-doctoral students at the write-up stage and from post-doctoral scholars working in any of the four program areas of democracy, development, evaluating the efficacy of democracy promotion, and rule of law.

Pre-doctoral fellows must be enrolled currently in a doctoral program or equivalent through the time of intended residency at Stanford and must be at the dissertation write-up (post course work) phase of their doctoral program. Post-doctoral fellows must have earned their Ph.D. within 3 years of the start of the fellowship, or plan to have successfully defended their Ph.D. dissertations by July 31, 2024.

In addition to our regular call for applications, CDDRL invites applications for the Gerhard Casper Fellow in Rule of Law for 2024-25. We welcome research on any aspect of rule of law, including judicial politics, criminal justice, and the politicization of judicial institutions. We are an interdisciplinary center; candidates from any relevant field (i.e. the social sciences, law) are welcome to apply. The Gerhard Casper Fellow will be part of CDDRL's larger cohort of pre- and postdoctoral fellows. Please apply through the CDDRL fellowship application process and indicate that you would like to be considered for the Gerhard Casper Rule of Law Fellowship.

The application cycle for the 2024-2025 academic year will be open from Monday, September 25, 2023, through Friday, December 15, 2023. Applicants can apply online at https://webportalapp.com/sp/stanford\_cddrl\_fellowship.

Harvard University

Rank: Postdoctoral Fellow

Subfield(s): Comparative Politics, International Relations, Public Policy

Specializations: Japan, East Asia, Advanced Industrial Societies

The Program on U.S.-Japan Relations at Harvard University's Weatherhead Center for International Affairs will offer postdoctoral fellowships during the 2024-25 academic year. We seek applications from outstanding recent PhDs in the social sciences who are conducting research that illuminates Japan's relations with the rest of the world in the broadest sense. We welcome applications from anthropology, business, economics, history, international relations, law, political science, psychology, public health, public policy, and sociology, among other fields. Scholars may examine domestic issues that bear on Japan's external relations or problems that it shares with other countries, and we encourage projects that compare Japan's experience cross-nationally.

A knowledge of the Japanese language is not required. Applicants must have received their doctoral degree in 2019 or later, in a discipline bearing on the Program's research areas. Research projects that focus on Japan or Japan's international role from a comparative, historical, or global perspective are welcome. Those who are selected to receive fellowships must have a Registrar-certified PhD degree by July 31, 2024.

The grant includes a stipend of $67,000 (over a 10-month period); health insurance coverage for grantee; and up to $5,000 in research funds. This fellowship is made possible by support from the Edwin O. Reischauer Institute of Japanese Studies.

Carnegie Mellon University

Rank: International Relations & Emerging Technologies-Multiple Faculty Lines

Subfield(s): International Relations, Methodology, Open

Carnegie Mellon University (CMU) has launched a major new initiative devoted to the wise development, use and governance of new and emerging technologies that are changing the national and international security landscape. As part of this forward-looking enterprise, the university seeks top tenure-line scholars in political science, international relations, and other related disciplines with established interest in emerging technologies relevant to international affairs.

We seek scholars at both the entry and senior levels. This is an outstanding opportunity to become part of a new, interdisciplinary initiative that will combine Carnegie Mellon's existing strengths in AI, cybersecurity, block chain, robotics, and other technologies, with scholarship focused on national security, international relations, ethics, law, and policy. We seek intellectually agile, innovative scholars willing to work cooperatively across disciplinary boundaries to tackle the challenges of emergent technologies for war and peace.

Background

Carnegie Mellon University (CMU) launched a major new interdisciplinary institute, the Carnegie Mellon Institute for Security and Technology (CMIST), in 2023. CMIST is a university-wide initiative devoted to the wise development, use, and governance of new and emerging technologies that are changing the national and international security landscape.

The home for Carnegie Mellon University's (CMU) study of Political Science and International Relations, CMIST is also uniquely poised to take advantage of the university's strengths in computer science and engineering and its distinctive tradition of collaborative, cross-university, cross-disciplinary research. CMU is ranked in the top five in the U.S. in Computer Science and in Engineering. It is ranked #1 in the subfields of artificial intelligence, computer engineering, cybersecurity, information systems, and software engineering. It has leading research institutes in areas such as robotics, machine learning, natural language technologies, human-computer interaction, engineering and public policy, and public policy and management--all designed to reach across disciplinary boundaries to solve key problems and address the highest-priority challenges facing humanity. Tying these areas of strength to crucial questions of strategy, security, ethics, and policy, CMIST is the newest addition to this rich CMU research landscape.

Carnegie Mellon University

Formally established in 1967, CMU is a dynamic R1 institution that has an exceptional impact on the world. Despite its relative youth, Carnegie Mellon consistently ranks in the top 25 US national universities. CMU is a global, research-intensive university with more than 14,000 students, more than 110,000 living alumni, approximately 5,000 faculty and staff, and over 100 research centers. It is a place of creativity, entrepreneurship, pragmatism, and ambition, with a tradition of strategically focusing its efforts and resources in areas where it can lead, then pursuing those areas with startling intensity. The research and teaching initiative in CMIST is just such a strategic undertaking.

Carnegie Mellon University is an equal opportunity employer and is committed to increasing the diversity of its community on a range of intellectual and cultural dimensions. Carnegie Mellon welcomes faculty applicants who will contribute to this diversity through their research, teaching and service, including women, members of minority groups, protected veterans, individuals with disabilities, and others who would contribute in different ways. Carnegie Mellon University seeks to meet the needs of dual-career couples and is a member of the Higher Education Recruitment Consortium (HERC) that assists with dual-career searches.

How to Apply

Applications should be submitted electronically via the Interfolio application system at <http://apply.interfolio.com/132453>. They should include the following:

For Junior Scholars:

- A cover letter explaining the candidate's interest in the position, and detailing the applicant's research, teaching, and service record to date.
- A curriculum vitae.
- Up to three writing samples.
- A projection of the candidate's future research agenda.
- A short teaching portfolio, including statement of teaching philosophy, courses the candidate might propose to teach, and any evidence of teaching effectiveness (e.g., teaching evaluations)
- The names and addresses of three references, who will be requested to submit letters through the Interfolio system.

For Senior Scholars:

- A cover letter explaining the candidate's reasons for being interested in the position.
- A detailed curriculum vitae.
- Other materials and names of references may be requested thereafter.

Review of applications will begin on October 23, 2023, and will continue until the positions are filled.

IE University

Rank: Tenure-track faculty position in International Relations 2024-2025

Specializations: Conflict Processes, Defense, International Security

Tenure-track faculty position in International Relations 2024-2025

IE University's School of Politics, Economics, and Global Affairs (SPEGA) seeks applicants for a tenure-track faculty position in International Relations at the rank of Assistant Professor starting September 1, 2024.

We seek candidates addressing substantive questions of broad disciplinary relevance in security, geopolitics, and civil conflict. We are especially but not exclusively interested in candidates whose work addresses European defense, US foreign policy, NATO, and related topics.

Successful candidates will demonstrate the capacity to produce publications in top peer-reviewed outlets (both generalist and field journals) in the coming years, and their research should employ advanced research design and methodological skills.

All in all, we seek academics with the capacity to engage in policy-relevant work and an overall commitment to institution-building - applying for research grants, participating in affiliated research centers and academic programs, and expanding our current network and partnerships.

Successful candidates will join the Political Science and International Relations group within SPEGA, which consists of 14 tenured and tenure-track scholars studying comparative politics, international relations, political economy, and political behavior. Recent publications from this group appear in APSR, AJPS, JOP, BJPS, and many other top generalist and field outlets.

Candidates should have a PhD from a recognized department of political science, international relations, or a related field, or demonstrate clear evidence that their PhD will be complete by July 2024.

The IE SPEGA is part of IE University, located in Madrid and Segovia, Spain, and is a full-member of the Association of Professional Schools in International Affairs (APSIA). We are a fast-growing department of professors committed to world-class academic research and teaching in the social sciences, public policy, and international affairs.

We offer a competitive remuneration package, attractive teaching commitments, and an enriching and cosmopolitan work environment in the heart of Madrid. Our working language is English, and both our faculty and student body are highly diverse and international.

IE University is an Equal Opportunity Employer and strongly encourages applications from individuals who will expand the ethnic and gender diversity of our faculty.

Applications should include a cover letter and vita, a job market paper, and three confidential letters of recommendation.

Candidates may apply via Interfolio by October 20, 2023, using the following link: <https://apply.interfolio.com/132073>

Swarthmore College

Rank: Visiting Assistant Professor of Political Science (International Relations)

The Department of Political Science at Swarthmore College invites applications for a 1.5 year (three semester) position as a Visiting Assistant Professor in International Relations. The position will begin in January 2024 and continue through the 2024-2025 academic year (encompassing the spring semester of 2024, the fall semester of 2024, and the spring semester of 2025). The area of specialization within International Relations is open. Candidates will be expected to teach "Introduction to International Relations" as well as upper level courses in International Relations.

The Department of Political Science provides students with a rigorous education that spans all four traditional subfields of the discipline. The Department consists of nine tenure-line faculty members and four visiting faculty members (including this position). Visiting faculty teach the same 2-2 course load as tenure-track faculty, are provided mentoring and professional development opportunities, and are eligible for funds to support research and conference travel. The salary is highly competitive.

Additional information about the Department of Political Science can be found at <https://www.swarthmore.edu/political-science>

Located in the suburbs of Philadelphia and near Wilmington DE, Swarthmore College is a highly selective liberal arts college whose mission combines academic rigor with social responsibility. Swarthmore has a strong institutional commitment to diversity, and actively seeks and welcomes applications from candidates with exceptional qualifications, particularly those with demonstrable commitments to a more inclusive society and world. Applicants from traditionally underrepresented groups are strongly encouraged to apply. For more information on Faculty Diversity and Excellence at Swarthmore, see <http://www.swarthmore.edu/faculty-diversity-excellence/information-candidates-new-faculty>

Qualifications

Applicants should have either completed a Ph.D. in Political Science or be close to finishing a Ph.D. ("all but dissertation" or ABD).

The strongest candidates will demonstrate an active research program and a commitment to creative teaching that speaks to and motivates undergraduates from diverse backgrounds

Application Instructions

Candidates must demonstrate excellence in undergraduate teaching as well as an active research profile. Applicants should include:

A cover letter describing the applicant's research agenda, teaching philosophy, courses previously taught, potential courses for Swarthmore, and their experience of (and/or plans for) creating an inclusive environment for students.

A curriculum vitae.

A sample of the candidate's research, such as an article, book chapter, or dissertation chapter.

A sample syllabus for a course in International Relations that they might teach at Swarthmore.

A graduate school transcript.

Three letters of recommendation (at least one letter should specifically comment on the candidate's teaching).

Applications received by October 25, 2023 will receive full consideration. Apply via Interfolio at <http://apply.interfolio.com/132311>. Selected applicants will be invited for interviews. ## American Enterprise Institute

Rank: Jeane Kirkpatrick Fellowship Program

Overview

The American Enterprise Institute is inviting candidates to apply for two open scholar positions in the Jeane Kirkpatrick Fellowship Program in Foreign and Defense Policy Studies. The program is open to mid-career academics, government, and civilian professionals in foreign policy and security studies who are looking for an opportunity to deepen their work.

The application period commences on August 14, 2023 and concludes on December 1, 2023. The program begins in January 2024, although the starting date for new Jeane Kirkpatrick scholars is negotiable to accommodate existing personal and professional obligations. The program's duration is one year from the start date, with the possibility of a one-year extension.

Applications are reviewed on a rolling basis.

Fellowship Benefits:

Guided by the belief that American liberties are best preserved by a robust national defense and US global leadership, senior research fellows will conduct in-depth research to produce policy recommendations intended to enhance American security and interests. AEI will assist fellows in developing and disseminating their research by providing the support and training needed to publish serious longer works, place their work in the nation's most-read publications, brief policymakers, and host public and private events at the Institute.

Application Process:

Qualified applicants should apply at www.aei.org/jobs and submit a resume and a 1,000-word statement addressing academic interests, how this fellowship will enhance their professional goals, and which scholars they would like to work with in AEI's foreign and defense policy department.

Subfield(s): International Relations, Public Policy, Comparative Politics

Specializations: East Asia, Southeast Asia, South Asia

Stanford University: 2024–2025 Postdoctoral Fellowship on Contemporary Asia

The Walter H. Shorenstein Asia-Pacific Research Center at Stanford University is pleased to announce its search for up to two 2024-2025 Shorenstein Postdoctoral Fellows on Contemporary Asia-Pacific Studies. Made possible through the generosity of Walter H. Shorenstein, awards will be made to two junior scholars (recent PhDs must have degree conferral and approval by June 30, 2024) for research and writing on Asia.

The primary focus of the fellowship is on contemporary political, economic, or social change in the Asia-Pacific region (including North-east, Southeast, and South Asia), or topics in international relations and international political economy. The postdoctoral fellowship is a 10-month appointment with salary rate commensurate with Stanford policy, plus up to $3,000 for research expenses. Appointments will begin in the fall quarter of the 2024-2025 academic year.

Applications will be accepted until December 1, 2023.

Boston University

Rank: Professor of International Relations and Director of the Pardee Center for the Study of the Longer-Range Future

Specializations: Environmental Policy, Science & Technology, International Security

The Pardee School of Global Studies at Boston University invites applications for a Director, at the rank of Professor with tenure, of the Pardee Center for the Study of the Longer-Range Future. The appointment is expected to begin July 1, 2024. The search is open to applicants from all disciplines and functional specializations. Successful candidates would be expected to have demonstrated the potential for excellence in any discipline relevant to international affairs, and share a commitment to the Pardee School's institutional values of diversity, equity, inclusion, and social justice. The successful candidate must have a demonstrated record of interdisciplinary research that addresses globally important issues that affect the human condition presently, with increasing global relevance over the next several decades. Scholars and practitioners whose work addresses the challenges of climate change and other forms of environmental degradation, artificial intelligence, cyber security, the future of technologies, governance, or human security are especially encouraged to apply. We are particularly interested in work that has policy relevance.

The Frederick S. Pardee Center for the Study of the Longer-Range Future is an interdisciplinary research center of the Frederick S. Pardee School of Global Studies at Boston University. The Pardee Center was established in 2000 through the generosity of the late Frederick S. Pardee, whose career as a systems analyst and an economic forecaster was imbued with a passion for analyzing trends for the future. Both the Pardee Center and the Pardee School are motivated by Mr. Pardee's lifelong dedication to the creation of a better future for all of humanity. The Center conducts interdisciplinary research on globally important issues that affect the human condition over the course of several decades. Through programs of scholarship, outreach, and education, the Pardee Center works to improve public decision-making and policy and to train future generations of interdisciplinary scholars.

The Center Director oversees the operations and activities of the Center, including research affiliates, research seminars, summer graduate fellows program, and supervises staff. The Director is expected to participate in fundraising activities for the School and the Pardee Center. In addition to leading the work of the Center, the successful candidate will be expected to teach courses in his/her/their area(s) of functional expertise, and will also advise and mentor our undergraduate and graduate students. A distinguished record of publication and research and the capacity for excellence in teaching are essential. The Pardee School of Global Studies is committed to multidisciplinary, policy-relevant research and teaching and to nurturing the next generation of international relations practitioners, and it is expected that candidates will share this commitment. Candidates who have demonstrated policy experience in addition to scholarly qualifications are encouraged to apply.

Boston University is a member of the prestigious Association of American Universities, with a rich tradition of inclusion and social justice. We are proud of our record of inclusiveness, including being the first American university to award a PhD to a woman and the institution from which Martin Luther King, Jr. received his PhD. We are also the home of the BU Center for Antiracist Research. We are dedicated to increasing participation of all talented students and professionals, especially women and underrepresented minorities. We are an equal opportunity employer: all qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to race, color, religion, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, national origin, disability status, protected veteran status, or any other characteristic protected by law. We are a Vietnam Era Veterans' Readjustment Assistance Act federal contractor.

BU conducts a background check on all final candidates for certain faculty and staff positions. The background check includes contacting the final candidate's current and previous employer(s) to ask whether, in the last seven years, there has been a substantiated finding of misconduct violating that employer's applicable sexual misconduct policies. To implement this process, the University requires a final candidate to complete and sign the form entitled "Authorization to Release Information" after execution of an offer letter.

Please submit 1) a letter of application describing your teaching and research interests and professional experience, 2) statement of how you will support the university's commitment to diversity, equity, and inclusion, and 3) curriculum vitae electronically at <https://academicjobsonline.org/ajo/jobs/25543>. Questions about the position or school may be directed to Ms. Elaine Bidianos at elaineb@bu.edu. Applications will be reviewed on a rolling basis, beginning October 1, 2023, but applications will be accepted until the job is filled. The expected starting date for employment is July 1, 2024.

William & Mary

Rank: Assistant Professor of Government

The Department of Government at William & Mary, a public university of the Commonwealth of Virginia, seeks applications for a tenure track position at the Assistant Professor level in the International Relations of East Asia.

Appointment will begin August 10, 2024. We are interested in individuals with research and teaching expertise in the international relations/comparative politics of East Asia (especially China). Topics of interest include, but are not limited to Chinese foreign policy, US-China relations, or the political economy or security of East Asia.

Duties include research, teaching, and service to the University. The applicant is expected to establish and maintain a vibrant research program that inspires a highly motivated undergraduate student body. Teaching expectation is 2 courses per semester. Successful applicants must possess the skills to teach compelling introductory courses in International Relations and other lecture and seminar-style courses in International Relations or Comparative Politics of East Asia.

Required Qualifications

Applicants must hold a Ph.D. in political science or a related field at the time the appointment begins (August 10, 2024). The successful candidate will possess a demonstrated commitment to producing high-level scholarship and outstanding classroom teaching; will help the Department enhance diversity of new perspectives to its research profile and curricular offerings; and will be interested in mentoring student research or conducting collaborative research with students.

Preferred Qualifications

Previous experience in teaching and mentoring successful undergraduate research is preferred. Evidence of scholarly achievement or demonstrated potential as a scholar is preferred.

Applicants must apply online at <https://jobs.wm.edu>. Submit a curriculum vitae, a cover letter, a statement of teaching interests, a statement of research interests, writing sample and evidence of teaching effectiveness. A diversity statement is not required. Candidates are encouraged to reflect on their past experiences or future plans to foster an inclusive and welcoming climate for learners/scholars in International Relations/Comparative Politics in any of the aforementioned required documents. You will be prompted to submit online the names and email addresses of three references who will be contacted by the system with instructions for how to submit a letter of reference.

For full consideration, submit application materials by the initial review date, [October 15]. Applications received after the initial review date will be considered if needed.

James Madison University

Rank: Tenure Track Assistant Professor of Political Science - International Relations and Security Studies

Mission

We are a community committed to preparing students to be educated and enlightened citizens who lead productive and meaningful lives.

Vision

To be the national model for the engaged university: engaged with ideas and the world.

Who We Are

Located in the heart of Virginia's beautiful Shenandoah Valley, the city of Harrisonburg is approximately 120 miles from Washington, D.C. and Richmond, VA. With a population of just over 53,000, Harrisonburg is one of the most diverse communities in the Commonwealth of Virginia. JMU is a selective, public institution with a growing national reputation for offering experiences that lead to an outstanding education and inclusive environment for students, faculty and staff. The student body includes approximately 20,000 undergraduate and 1,900 graduate students, with over 1,000 full-time instructional faculty.

JMU offers thriving programs in the liberal arts, science and technology, and professional disciplines at the undergraduate, master's and doctoral levels. The university is committed to expanding diversity, fostering equity and inclusion, and supporting superlative teaching and scholarship. JMU has achieved national recognition for the high quality of its academic programs, focus on maintaining strong student/faculty interaction, and innovative faculty research.

The College of Arts and Letters in which the Department of Political Science is located, enrolls over 3,100 undergraduate majors and about 150 graduate students across ten academic units in the humanities, social sciences, and communication studies. Home to several interdisciplinary centers and institutes, the College employs 270 full-time faculty. We embrace the teacher-scholar model, and encourage excellent applicants within our particular disciplines, as well as scholars and teachers eager to work across them. We look to enhance our existing interdisciplinary strengths and to extend our offerings in global cultures, politics, and religions, as well as in global justice, disability studies, and digital humanities.

The Position

The Department of Political Science at James Madison University invites applications for one tenure track assistant professor position

in Political Science with a specialization in International Relations and Security Studies. The department includes undergraduate majors in Political Science, International Affairs, and Public Administration and graduate programs in Political Science and Public Administration. Faculty in the department also support a wide range of collaborative and interdisciplinary minors, including but not limited to those in: African, African American, and Diaspora Studies; Asian Studies; Environmental Science; Environmental Studies; Humanitarian Affairs; Latin American, Latinx, and Caribbean Studies; Middle Eastern Communities and Migrations; Modern European Studies; Political Communication; and Women, Gender, and Sexuality Studies. In addition to interdisciplinary minors and programs, there are opportunities for collaboration with the Center for International Stabilization and Recovery.

The successful candidate will teach an introductory course on global political issues and an advanced undergraduate course in U.S. foreign policy. The new colleague will also teach a graduate-level course that contributes to the Master of Public Administration concentration in International Stabilization and Recovery Operations. The ability to teach undergraduate research methods is desired, but not required. The standard teaching load is 3-2, but the position will come with 1 course release in the first year. The position will begin in August 2024. Applicants should apply via JMU Joblink: <https://joblink.jmu.edu/postings/15338>

Candidates should hold a Ph.D. in Political Science (or a closely related field) or have ABD status with an expected Ph.D. completion date within 10 months from the start date of the position. Applicants should demonstrate excellence in teaching, advising and research and a commitment to an inclusive classroom and work environment.

Employment is contingent upon the successful completion of a criminal background check.

E-Verify Notice: After accepting employment, new hires are required to complete an I-9 form and present documentation of their identity and eligibility to work in the United States. James Madison University uses the E-Verify system to confirm identity and work authorization.

Applicants should apply via JMU Joblink: <https://joblink.jmu.edu/postings/15338>

George Washington University

Rank: Assistant Professor in International Security

Position Description Summary:

The George Washington University's Elliott School of International Affairs and the Department of Political Science invite applications for a tenure track position in the field of Political Science with a specialization in International Security, beginning in Fall semester 2024. We look to hire a scholar at the Assistant Professor level who will teach and produce scholarship in areas such as (but not limited to) the causes, conduct, control, and termination of armed conflict between or within states; deterrence and compellence; nuclear weapons; alliances and security institutions; grand strategy; cybersecurity; and military intervention—as well as international relations theories that are relevant to assessing these issue areas.

Specific Duties and Responsibilities:

The successful candidate will develop new undergraduate and graduate courses in international security/security studies and may also teach other courses in international relations and/or regional studies in their area of expertise. This hire will be affiliated with the Elliott School's Institute for Security and Conflict Studies—as well as any of the School's regionally focused research institutes, as appropriate. Elliott School faculty are expected to engage with policy issues and the policy community in addition to teaching, research, and service.

Minimum Qualifications:

Applicants must have a Ph.D. in Political Science or other relevant social science discipline or inter-disciplinary field at the time of appointment. Applicants must have demonstrated significant record of sustained and continuing high quality research and substantial teaching experience.

Other Information:

The culture of George Washington University reflects its shared values, including respect and diversity. The Elliott School recognizes that diversity and social mobility are among our country's greatest assets in engaging the rest of the world; we are deeply committed as a school to fostering an inclusive community. To this end, we encourage candidates from diverse identities, backgrounds, and experiences. We are particularly interested in receiving applications from members of underrepresented groups. The selected candidate will be expected to provide evidence of inclusive excellence, including inclusive teaching. To learn more about the Elliott School's commitment to diversity, equity, and inclusion, please visit elliott.gwu.edu/diversityand-inclusion.

Special Instructions to Applicants:

To be considered, complete an online application at <https://www.gwu.jobs/postings/104830> and upload a CV, cover letter, statement of research and teaching interests and qualifications, course evaluations (if available), samples of written work, and statement on how your past and/or potential contributions to diversity, equity and inclusion will advance the Elliott School's commitment to inclusive excellence. In addition, please have at least three letters of recommendation sent to esiafacrecruit@gwu.edu.

Review of applications will begin on October 2, 2023 and continue until the position is filled. Only complete applications will be considered. Employment offers are contingent on the satisfactory outcome of a standard background screening.

EEO Statement:

The university is an Equal Employment Opportunity/Affirmative Action employer that does not unlawfully discriminate in any of its programs or activities on the basis of race, color, religion, sex, national origin, age, disability, veteran status, sexual orientation, gender identity or expression, or on any other basis prohibited by applicable law.

University of California, Los Angeles

Rank: Faculty Position Search, 2023-2024

APPLICATION WINDOW:

Open date: September 1, 2023

Review date: October 1, 2023

The UCLA Department of Political Science invites applications from outstanding candidates for an open-rank position in the field of International Relations, to begin on July 1, 2024. While the department has particular needs in this field, we also welcome applications from exceptional candidates in any field who contribute to diversity and inclusion at UCLA and the communities that we serve.

UCLA and the UCLA Department of Political Science are firmly committed to the principles of equity, diversity, and inclusion. Therefore, we ask each applicant to submit with their application a statement that addresses their past efforts, as well as future plans, to advance equity, diversity, and inclusion in their scholarship, teaching, and service.

The online application should include a letter of interest, a curriculum vitae, a statement of research interests, the aforementioned diversity statement, evidence of teaching excellence in related courses, at least one writing sample, completed Authorization to Release Information form, and three letters of reference. Applicants who do not yet hold a faculty position or who have held one for fewer than two years should also include a graduate transcript. The letters of recommendation should be uploaded directly by the referees. A PhD in Political Science or related field should be in hand prior to the appointment. To ensure full consideration, please submit applications by October 1, 2023, however, applications will be accepted through June 30, 2024. After the initial review date, new applications will only be considered if the position has not yet been filled. Sample guidance for EDI statement: <https://ucla.app.box.com/v/sample-EDI-statements>.

The posted UC salary scales set the minimum pay determined by rank and/or step at appointment. The on-scale salary range for the open-rank position in International Relations is $74,600 - $197,100. Off-scale salaries (i.e., a salary that is higher than the published system-wide salary at the designated rank and step), and other components of pay, are offered when necessary to meet competitive conditions. UC salary scales: <https://www.ucop.edu/academicpersonnel-programs/compensation/index.html>.

The University of California is committed to creating and maintaining a community dedicated to the advancement, application, and transmission of knowledge and creative endeavors through academic excellence, where all individuals who participate in University programs and activities can work and learn together in a safe and secure environment, free of violence, harassment, bullying and other demeaning behavior, discrimination, exploitation, or intimidation. With this commitment as well as a commitment to addressing all forms of academic misconduct, UCLA conducts targeted employment reference checks for finalists to whom departments or other hiring units would like to extend formal offers of appointment into Academic Senate faculty positions. The targeted employment reference checks involve contacting the finalists' current and prior places of employment to ask whether there have been substantiated findings of misconduct that would violate the University's Faculty Code of Conduct. To implement this process, UCLA requires all applicants for Academic Senate faculty positions to complete, sign, and upload the form entitled "Authorization to Release Information" into RECRUIT as part of their application. If the applicant does not include the signed authorization to release information with the application materials, the application will be considered incomplete. As with any incomplete application, the application will not receive further consideration. Although all applicants for faculty recruitments must complete the entire application, only finalists (i.e. those to whom the department or other hiring unit would like to extend a formal offer) considered for Academic Senate faculty positions will be subject to targeted employment reference checks.

As a University employee, you will be required to comply with all applicable University policies and/or collective bargaining agreements, as may be amended from time to time. Federal, state, or local government directives may impose additional requirements.

The University of California is an Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action Employer. All qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to race, color, religion, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, national origin, disability, age or protected veteran status. For the complete University of California nondiscrimination and affirmative action policy, see: UC Nondiscrimination & Affirmative Action Policy.

Rank: Post-Doctoral Associate in the Division of Social Science (Political Science) - Dr. Leonid Peisakhin

Subfield(s): Comparative Politics, International Relations, Methodology

Description

We are inviting applications for a three-year Post-Doctoral Associate in the Division of Social Science at NYU Abu Dhabi from individuals who have or will soon receive a PhD in political science or a related discipline. The appointment will begin September 1, 2024, subject to final budget approval.

The post-doctoral associate will spend half their time on independent research, and half of their time on collaborative research with Drs. Leonid Peisakhin, Joan Barceló, and Jeff Jensen. The collaborative research will be in the field of historical legacy research, with an emphasis on the legacy of conflict and historical institutions. This position is open as to geographical area.

The ideal candidate will specialize in historical political economy and will have an interest in conflict studies, post-conflict reconciliation, as well as broader topics in political economy; strong candidates with research interests in other subfields will also be given full consideration. Advanced methodological training is essential; this includes high-level familiarity with causal inference and econometric techniques. Experience working with historical sources and familiarity with public opinion research would be helpful, but not required.

The position does not require teaching, but it may be possible to get teaching experience for compensation. You would be part of a group of over 20 post-doctoral fellows and 70 faculty in the Division of Social Science.

Please use the following link to apply: <https://apply.interfolio.com/130629>

For consideration, applicants need to submit a cover letter, curriculum vitae with a full publication list, statement of research interests and two letters of reference, all in PDF format by December 1, 2023. Applications will be considered on a rolling basis. If you have any questions, please email Dr. Leonid Peisakhin leonid.peisakhin@nyu.edu

Rhodes College

Rank: Assistant Professor of International Relations/Comparative Politics

The Department of International Studies at Rhodes College invites applications for a tenure-track position at the rank of assistant professor to begin Fall of 2024. Rhodes College believes that diversity and inclusion are critical to our success as an institution, and we seek to recruit, develop, and retain the most talented people from a diverse candidate pool. Furthermore, Rhodes College is committed to supporting the work-life alignment of its faculty. We encourage applications from candidates who have expertise in security, peace, and conflict. The search is open in terms of regional or area studies expertise. This position has a 3:2 teaching load, and applicants should demonstrate a firm commitment to teaching and research in an undergraduate, liberal arts environment. The successful candidate will have classroom experience and is expected to teach introductory and advanced courses in either International Relations or Comparative Politics. Additional courses will be based on the candidate's area of specialization. Preference will be given to candidates who can teach an upper-level course on international conflict or security and those who can contribute to an interdisciplinary atmosphere. The successful candidate is expected to earn their Ph.D. by July 2024.

Rhodes is a nationally ranked residential college committed to the liberal arts and sciences. Our highest priorities are intellectual engagement, service to others, commitment to diversity and inclusion, and honor among ourselves. Our students live and learn on one of the country's most beautiful campuses, located in the heart of Memphis, an economic, medical, and culturally diverse center, making Rhodes one of a handful of prominent liberal arts colleges in a major metropolitan area.

Rhodes College prides itself on being a diverse, inclusive, and welcoming environment. We are an equal opportunity employer committed to diversity and anti-discrimination.

A complete application will include 1) a cover letter that addresses the strengths the candidate will bring as a teacher and scholar to a liberal arts college environment; 2) a curriculum vitae; 3) a separate statement that addresses how the candidate's experiences with teaching, scholarship, and/or service will contribute to a college community that includes a commitment to diversity and inclusion as one of its core values; 4) a writing sample; 5) an unofficial graduate transcript; and 6) evidence of teaching performance (if applicable). Review of completed applications will begin on October 1, 2023, and will continue until the position is filled. Candidates from backgrounds typically underrepresented in higher education are strongly encouraged to apply. Letters of recommendation will only be solicited for short-listed applicants, at which time you will be prompted for the names and contact information for three (3) references. Background checks are required before candidates can be brought to campus for interviews.

For further information, please contact Dr. Chien-Kai Chen, chair of the search committee, at [chenc@rhodes.edu].

Cornell University

Rank: Climate Politics and Equitable Futures - IR

Climate change and the coming climate transitions are radically reshaping global politics, with profound domestic and international implications. We aim to make Cornell's Government Department a disciplinary leader in the integrated study of the complex political transformations that are already in process as a result of global warming as well as in developing the transformative politics needed to respond to global warming and its consequences. We are interested in scholarship that addresses topics such as the intersection of climate and environmental politics with racial and ethnic politics, indigenous politics, political economy, environmental justice, the (in)equitable distribution of the costs of climate change, the politics of sustainability, and the politics of climate related migration, among others.

As part of this initiative, the Department of Government invites applications from scholars with international, global, or transnational interests for a tenure-track position in international relations at the rank of assistant professor to begin in the fall semester 2024. A PhD is required no later than July 1, 2024.

Applicants should apply online at <https://academicjobsonline.org/ajojobs/25454>. Interested candidates should submit a letter of application, curriculum vitae, two samples of written work, three letters of recommendation, and teaching evaluations. In addition, we ask applicants to share their experiences and/or approaches (past, current, or future) to fostering learning, research, service, and/or outreach in a diverse community; applicants may submit a stand-alone statement or embed the information in other parts of their application.

We will begin to review applications starting September 20, 2023, and will continue until the search is complete.

Diversity and Inclusion are a part of Cornell University's heritage. We are a recognized employer and educator valuing AA/EEO, Protected Veterans, and Individuals with Disabilities. We also recognize a lawful preference in employment practices for Native Americans living on or near Indian reservations. Cornell University embraces diversity and seeks candidates who will contribute to a climate that supports students, faculty, and staff of all identities and backgrounds. We strongly encourage individuals from underrepresented and/or marginalized identities to apply.

Call for applications to fill a position of Assistant Professor (Full time) at the Department of Social Sciences

The Universidad Católica del Uruguay calls for applications to fill a position of Assistant Professor (Full time) at its Department of Social Sciences. Candidates should hold a Ph.D. or be near completion (December 2023) in Political Science or Sociology, but candidates in other social science disciplines such as Demography, Human Geography, Criminology or Social Work are also encouraged to apply. Candidates may be specialized in any substantive subarea (for example, research methods, public policy, comparative politics, political economy, social stratification, or socioeconomic inequalities).

Candidates must demonstrate excellence in teaching, an active substantive research agenda, and a demonstrated ability to publish and teach in English and Spanish. Successful candidates are expected to work full-time (160 hours per month) and start working in February or August 2024.

Applications will start being analyzed on September 30, 2023, but applications received after that will still be considered until the position is filled or the university closes the call. A complete application must contain (1) a cover letter, (2) CV, (3) an example of an undergraduate course program that the candidate would be able to teach, (4) up to 2 examples of academic research work, (5) teacher evaluations, and (6) three letters of recommendation. The application should be made electronically (<https://bpm.ucu.edu.uy/public/01LPOSD>). Letters of recommendation can be included by the candidate in the application or can be directly sent by their author to the following email: departamentos@ucu.edu.uy (Ref: LLAMACA-181 – Letter of recommendation for [Name Last name]).

The selection process will consist on the following stages. First, a short list of candidates will be selected to be interviewed by the Selection Committee in person or via videoconference in case of residing abroad. Then, 3 shortlisted candidates will be invited to the Montevideo campus to present their research and hold interviews with members of the Department and other authorities. The selection committee may request from the candidates, at any time during the process, additional materials, or the corresponding accreditations. The decisions of the selection committee will be final. The Universidad Católica del Uruguay reserves the right not to hire any candidates without responsibility of any kind at its own expense.

For additional information, applicants may contact the Department's Chair, Rosario Queirolo (rosario.queirolo@ucu.edu.uy).

Dickinson College

Rank: Assistant Professor of International Studies (Global Economy)

The Department of International Studies at Dickinson College is seeking applications for a tenure track, assistant professor position beginning in the academic year 2024-25. The position has a five-course teaching load. The successful candidate is expected to teach a section of Global Economy each semester. This course is a required course for the interdisciplinary International Studies major, and it has introductory micro- and macro-economics as prerequisites. The other three courses should be topical electives and/or seminars on issues in the contemporary world economy that must be accessible to non-economics majors. The Department is open to various possibilities, including, but not limited to, topical courses on international development, global energy politics, the economics of world sustainability, global health economics, and the political economy of trade and investment. Candidates should indicate in their letter of application the courses they are prepared to teach. The search committee is especially interested in candidates whose research and teaching interests address issues relevant to the political economy of Africa, Asia, Latin America, or the Global South more generally. A completed or nearly completed PhD in Economics, International Studies, Political Science, Economic History, Public Administration, or a related field is required; in all cases, a strong foundation in international economics is expected.

Applicants should be active scholars with a strong commitment to teaching undergraduate students in an interdisciplinary liberal arts environment. Approximately 90% of International Studies majors at Dickinson College study abroad during their four years – taking advantage of more than fifty study abroad options around the globe. The Department plays an important role in preparing International Studies majors, and Dickinson students more broadly, to meaningfully engage with diverse global perspectives. Colleagues are expected to participate fully in the intellectual life of the department. Furthermore, the ability to create inclusive learning environments for an increasingly diverse student body will be an important characteristic of the successful candidate.

Dickinson College is a selective four-year, independent liberal arts college with 2300 students. It is located 20 minutes west of Harrisburg and is a two-hour drive from Baltimore, Washington D.C., and Philadelphia. Candidates should submit via QUEST (online application system) at <https://jobs.dickinson.edu>. Please include a letter of application, a curriculum vitae, a graduate transcript, three letters of recommendation, a writing sample, a statement of teaching philosophy, sample syllabi and teaching evaluations or other evidence of teaching effectiveness. Address any questions to the search committee chair, Andrew Wolff, at wolffan@dickinson.edu. Review of applications will begin Monday, October 2, 2023.

University of Massachusetts, Boston

Rank: Assistant Professor, Critical Security Studies
Subfield(s): International Relations, Political Theory, Comparative Politics
Specializations: Ethnic & Feminist Theory, International Security, Gender Politics & Policy

The Department of Conflict Resolution, Human Security, and Global Governance (CRHSGG) at the University of Massachusetts Boston invites qualified applicants for a tenure-track Assistant Professor position to join our vibrant, interdisciplinary faculty beginning September 1, 2024.

We are seeking a scholar of critical security studies, broadly defined, who can contribute to and strengthen the core curriculum of the graduate programs in Global Governance and Human Security in CRHSGG. We are particularly interested in candidates whose areas of focus include gender, race, and/or decolonial theory. The position is open to scholars from a range of social sciences, including but not limited to political science, geography, sociology, anthropology, and gender studies, who connect questions of global governance with imperatives for human security.

We are open to a variety of areas of topical focus within critical security studies broadly understood, to all research methodological strategies, and to either a regional or global focus that complements existing expertise in the department. Candidates must possess an earned doctorate in a relevant social science discipline by the date of appointment. Candidates should be prepared to teach in the Global Governance and Human Security core. An ability to contribute to other departmental graduate and undergraduate programs, in International Relations, Conflict Resolution, and Global Affairs, is a plus.

UMass Boston is one of the most diverse campuses in the Northeast region of the U.S. and has a well-established commitment to social justice, equity, and inclusion, with an anti-racist and health-promoting mission. We strongly encourage applications from persons with diverse backgrounds and provide equal employment opportunities without regard to race, color, religion, gender, gender identity or expression, age, sexual orientation, national origin, ancestry, disability, military status, or genetic information.

The Department provides a rich environment for interdisciplinary, collaborative research, policy, and practice, and houses multiple degree programs at the graduate and undergraduate levels. The Department also houses two vibrant research Centers (the Center for Peace, Democracy & Development, and the Center for Governance and Sustainability) and has a strong connection with the Center for Women in Public Policy.

To apply, submit through the application portal (<https://employmentopportunities.umb.edu/en-us/job/519911/assistant-professor-conflict-resolution-human-security-and-global-governance>): a cover letter, curriculum vitae, a writing sample, and the names and contact information for three references who may be contacted at later stages of the selection process. Inquiries regarding the position may be directed to the search committee chair, Dr. Jeffrey Pugh, at Jeffrey.Pugh@umb.edu. Review of applications begins on October 1st and will continue until the position is filled. Responses to frequently asked questions and updates on the search will be posted publicly at https://docs.google.com/document/d/1uNGCFC8q4aAo52y\_V4n7ZAS7vQAVEx9pz9-iB8VwNNM/edit?usp=sharing.

UMass Boston is committed to the full inclusion of all qualified individuals. As part of this commitment, we will ensure that persons with disabilities are provided reasonable accommodations for the hiring process. If reasonable accommodation is needed, please contact HRDirect@umb.edu or 617-287-5150.

University of Central Florida

Rank: Assistant Professor, Associate Professor, or Professor, and Endowed Professor in India Politics and Director of the India Center
Specializations: India, Southeast Asia, South Asia

The School of Politics, Security, and International Affairs (SPSIA) at the University of Central Florida (UCF) invites applications for a full-time, nine-month, tenure-earning advanced assistant professor or tenured associate professor or professor as an endowed position with a focus on politics in India and director of the India Center at UCF. The anticipated starting date is August 2024; however, a starting date of January 2024 is possible.

The ideal candidate will have a recognized research program focused on politics in India, demonstrated commitment to teaching excellence, and leadership experience. As director of the India Center, the successful candidate will be expected to develop programming of interest to the larger university community, engage in community outreach, develop and strengthen partnerships with the community as well as nationally and internationally, supervise the center's full-time director of Public Affairs, engage in fundraising, work with offices and units across the university, manage the India Center's budget, and develop curriculum and teach in the area of politics in India, among others. The successful candidate is expected to combine the role of faculty member with that of director of the India Center.

We are especially interested in an individual who can contribute through their research, teaching, mentoring, and service to the excellence of our academic community and foster an environment in which faculty, staff, and students from a variety of backgrounds, cultures, and personal experiences are welcomed and can thrive.

The School of Politics, Security, and International Affairs houses two undergraduate majors, a master's program in Political Science, and a Ph.D. program in Security Studies. In addition, the school is home to five institutes, programs and centers including the India Center. The mission of the India Center at UCF is to broaden the awareness and understanding of contemporary India. The India Center promotes the study of India's role in the world today through partnerships, scholarship and research, education, and outreach to the Indian community in Florida and nationally. The center aims to serve the broader UCF community. It currently has one full-time director of Public Affairs. For more information, visit <https://sciences.ucf.edu/politics/> and <https://theindiacenter.ucf.edu/>.

The College of Sciences (COS) houses most of the university's natural, computational, and social sciences in eight departments, two schools, and several centers. The college's programs play a key role in advancing UCF as a national research university that is determined to help students from all backgrounds achieve success. For more information, visit <https://sciences.ucf.edu/>.

The University of Central Florida (UCF), located in Orlando, is a metropolitan research university classified as a Very High Research Activity university by the Carnegie Foundation. At UCF, we solve tomorrow's greatest challenges through a commitment to academic and operational excellence. Leveraging innovative learning, discovery, and partnerships, we foster social mobility while developing the skilled talent needed to advance industry for our region, state and beyond. A Hispanic Serving Institution, UCF is home to a diverse student population of over 70,000 students, almost 2,000 faculty, and more than 4,700 staff. UCF is invested in identifying candidates who will contribute to its mission through equity-minded practice and culturally responsive pedagogy. For more information, visit <http://www.ucf.edu>.

Minimum Qualifications: A doctorate in Political Science or a closely related field from an accredited institution by time of application is required. To be eligible for appointment as a tenured associate professor or professor upon hire, the selected candidate must have a demonstrated record of teaching, research, and service commensurate with a tenured faculty appointment at the rank of associate professor or professor.

Preferred Qualifications: Preference will be given to candidates who have a demonstrated interest and experience in developing and leading a program or center and a successful research and teaching record commensurate with their faculty rank.

UCF requires all applications and supporting documents be submitted electronically through the Human Resources employment opportunities website, <https://www.ucf.edu/jobs/>. In addition to the online application, interested candidates should upload the following materials: (1) a current curriculum vitae, (2) a letter detailing your interest in the position, relevant experience including leadership experience, and vision for the India Center; (3) a research statement outlining the research record and future plans (one to two pages); and (4) a teaching statement (one to two pages); and (5) the names and contact information for three professional references.

NOTE: Please have all documents ready when applying so they can be simultaneously uploaded. Once the online submission process is finalized, the system does not allow applicants to submit additional documents later.

Review of applications will begin on September 29, 2023 and continue until the position is filled. For the application to be considered, all materials will need to be uploaded and the application must be complete.

Questions regarding the position should be directed to Dr. Kerstin Hamann, search committee chair, at Kerstin.Hamann@ucf.edu.

Job Close Date: Open until filled.

The University of Central Florida is proud to be a smoke-free campus and an E-Verify employer. Unless explicitly stated on the job posting, it is UCF's expectation that an employee of UCF will reside in Florida as of the date the employment begins.

Additional Requirements related to Research Positions: Pursuant to Florida State Statute 1010.35, prior to offering employment to certain individuals in research-related positions, UCF is required to conduct additional screening. Applicants subject to additional screening include any citizen of a foreign country who is not a permanent resident of the U.S., or who is a citizen or permanent resident but is affiliated with or has had at least 1 year of higher education, employment, or training in China, Cuba, Iran, Russia, North Korea, Syria, or Venezuela.

The additional screening requirements only apply to employment in research-related positions, including, but not limited to faculty positions.

Equal Employment Opportunity Statement: As an equal opportunity/affirmative action employer, UCF encourages all qualified applicants to apply, including women, veterans, individuals with disabilities, and members of traditionally underrepresented populations. UCF's Equal Opportunity Statement can be viewed at <http://www.oie.ucf.edu/documents/PresidentsStatement.pdf>.

As a Florida public university, UCF makes all application materials and selection procedures available to the public upon request.

Knox College

Rank: Assistant Professor of Political Science & International Relations

The Department of Political Science & International Relations at Knox College invites applications for a full-time, tenure-track appointment as Assistant Professor of Political Science & International Relations, to begin September 1, 2024. We seek applications from international relations scholars and are open to specialization within the IR field.

Knox College, established in 1837, is an independent, selective liberal arts institution with a mission of access, a diverse student body, and a strong commitment to undergraduate teaching. We are particularly interested in creative, energetic teachers of undergraduate students who can contribute to Knox College's considerable diversity and reflect that diversity in their teaching, mentoring, and research. With over 35% of the student body identifying as U.S. students of color and more than 15% international students, the College seeks courses appealing and welcoming to all of Knox's students.

The position involves a six-course teaching load (two courses in each of three 10-week terms) that includes introductory, intermediate, and advanced courses in international relations, as well as other courses that are within the candidate's area of expertise and that contribute to the general liberal arts curriculum.

Our department covers diverse areas in our teaching and research methods and interests, to which an ideal candidate will contribute. The candidate we hire will have substantial autonomy to revise our long-standing and popular International Relations major around their own set of specializations and priorities.

Knox College provides a competitive salary and a strong benefit package including health, dental, vision and life insurance, and access to a retirement plan; a tuition remission benefit is available after a two-year waiting period. Additional information can be found on our Human Resources webpage at <https://www.knox.edu/offices/human-resources/employee-benefits-and-forms>.

Qualifications: Ph.D. is expected at the time of appointment, but exceptional ABD candidates will be considered.

Candidates should submit:

- A cover letter that addresses the qualifications listed above, including the candidate's research interests, teaching interests, and approach to teaching a diverse community of undergraduate students
- Curriculum vitae
- Unofficial graduate transcript
- Three letters of recommendation

Additional materials may be requested at a later date.

Submission via Interfolio: <http://apply.interfolio.com/128895>

Review of applications will begin on September 12, 2023 and continue until the position is filled.

San Diego State University

Rank: Politics of East Asia

Subfield(s): Comparative Politics, International Relations, Other

The Political Science Department at San Diego State University invites applications for a tenure-track position in East Asian Politics at the rank of Assistant Professor, to begin Fall 2024. Applicants should demonstrate a well-developed research agenda, a promise of sustained scholarship, and a record of effective teaching.

Qualifications

The department seeks a scholar with research and teaching expertise in the politics of East Asia, broadly understood to encompass North-east and Southeast Asia. We are open to applications from scholars in both comparative politics and international relations whose research is focused on one or more countries in the region. The successful candidate's research may focus on any of a range of substantive topics – including but not limited to, democratization, political economy, state-society relations, and foreign policy – and should demonstrate a capacity to engage with normative issues underlying critical debates in the field. The candidate would be expected to work closely with the program on International Security and Conflict Resolution and the Center for Asian & Pacific Studies. The department is open to a diversity of theoretical and methodological approaches.

The Political Science Department at San Diego State is dedicated to the ideal of the engaged teacher-scholar. It has over 600 undergraduate majors and provides course offerings for students with a wide variety of backgrounds and interests. At the graduate level, the department maintains an M.A. program of high quality. The members of the faculty share a strong commitment to collegiality, active participation in the governing of the department, innovative scholarship, methodological pluralism, rigorous teaching, and robust intellectual and normative engagement. Candidates are encouraged to consult the department website: <http://politicalscience.sdsu.edu>.

We are seeking applicants with demonstrated experience in and/or commitment to teaching and working effectively with individuals from diverse backgrounds and members of underrepresented groups. Candidates must satisfy two or more of the eight Building on Inclusive Excellence (BIE) criteria. Candidates that meet BIE criteria: (a) are committed to engaging in service with underrepresented populations within the discipline, (b) have demonstrated knowledge of barriers for underrepresented students and faculty within the discipline, (c) have experience or have demonstrated commitment to teaching and mentoring underrepresented students, (d) have experience or have demonstrated commitment to integrating understanding of underrepresented populations and communities into research, (e) have experience in or have demonstrated commitment to extending knowledge of opportunities and challenges in achieving artistic/scholarly success to members of an underrepresented group, (f) have experience in or have demonstrated commitment to research that engages underrepresented communities, (g) have expertise or demonstrated commitment to developing expertise in cross-cultural communication and collaboration, and/or (h) have research interests that contribute to diversity and equal opportunity in higher education. Please indicate in a separate diversity statement how you meet at least two (2) of these criteria. Additional guidance on our BIE program for applicants is here.

SDSU is the oldest institution of higher education in the San Diego region, with a campus in San Diego serving 36,000 undergraduate and graduate students and additional locations in Southern California's Imperial Valley and Tbilisi in the Republic of Georgia. SDSU is included in the Carnegie Foundation's Doctoral Universities: High Research Activity category. Established in 1897, SDSU offers bachelor degrees in 97 areas, masters in 84 and doctorates in 23. See <http://www.sdsu.edu> for more information. SDSU is a large, diverse, urban university, an Asian-Native American-Pacific Islander -Serving Institution and a Hispanic-Serving Institution with a commitment to diversity, equity, and inclusive excellence. Our campus community is diverse in many ways, including race, religion, color, sex, age, disability, marital status, sexual orientation, gender identity and expression, national origin, pregnancy, medical condition, and covered veteran status. We strive to build and sustain a welcoming environment for all.

Application Instructions

Applicants must apply via Interfolio at <http://apply.interfolio.com/127871>. A completed file includes a letter of interest, a curriculum vitae, graduate transcripts, complete teaching evaluations (quantitative evaluations and complete sets of qualitative evaluations of recent courses), sample syllabi, academic writing samples, diversity statement, and three letters of recommendation. To ensure full consideration, submit all materials by September 21st, 2023. Screening of applications will begin then. Applicants who will have completed the Ph.D. by the start of the term of appointment will be given priority. Those without a Ph.D. in-hand should include in their letter of interest a statement of progress on the dissertation and reasons to expect completion in a timely fashion.

Further inquiries should be addressed to Farid Abdel-Nour, Chair of the Department of Political Science, at abdelnou@sdsu.edu.

The minimum salary for this position is based on the current CSU salary schedule for Assistant Professors and may be revised based on contract collective bargaining. The anticipated salary range is from $79,000 to $83,000. Salary placement will be based on the selected candidate's qualifications and experience, and salaries higher than the published maximums may be offered in limited circumstances. San Diego State University offers a rich benefits package that constitutes a major portion of total compensation. For benefits information, click here.

As part of its commitment to a safe and equitable "OneSDSU" community, SDSU requires that individuals seeking faculty employment provide at the time of application authorization to conduct background checks if they become a finalist for the position; applications without this authorization will be considered incomplete and not considered.

A background check (including a criminal records check) must be completed before any candidate can be offered a position with the CSU. Failure to satisfactorily complete the background check may affect the application status of applicants or continued employment of current CSU employees who apply for the position.

The person holding this position is considered a "mandated reporter" under the California Child Abuse and Neglect Reporting Act and is required to comply with the requirements set forth in CSU Executive Order 1083 as a condition of employment.

Equal Employment Opportunity Statement

SDSU is a Title IX, equal opportunity employer and does not discriminate against persons on the basis of race, religion, national origin, sexual orientation, gender, gender identity and expression, marital status, age, disability, pregnancy, medical condition, or covered veteran status.

University of Maryland, Baltimore County

Rank: Assistant Professor of International Relations with Focus on China, East Asian International Relations, and International Political Economy

Specializations: China, East Asia, Political Economy

The Department of Political Science at the University of Maryland, Baltimore County (UMBC) invites applications for a tenure-track Assistant Professor position in international relations with a specialization in China, East Asian international relations, and international political economy, beginning in August 2024. UMBC is a Carnegie Research 1, community-engaged, minority-serving institution focused on inclusive excellence.

This job is one of four positions in a cluster hire in Asian Studies. UMBC is searching in 2023-2024 for Asian Studies specialists, in Ancient Studies, History, Philosophy, and Political Science. Faculty hired as part of the cluster will have opportunities to collaborate across disciplines and develop alongside a cohort of new faculty members with an interest in Asian Studies. Though the new faculty members will be housed in their respective academic departments, they will also be affiliate faculty in, and contribute to the success, of, the interdisciplinary Asian Studies Program at UMBC through their course offerings, participation in research seminars, and engagement with Asia-related programming on campus.

Preference will be given to candidates who have a Ph.D. in political science/international relations, or will have a Ph.D. in hand by August 2024. Applicants must provide evidence of a focused, ambitious research agenda and a commitment to excellent undergraduate teaching. Candidates must also describe how their research, teaching, and/or life experiences contribute to “inclusive excellence,” such as their ability to work with underserved and diverse populations and their capacity to respond in pedagogically productive ways to the competence, aspirations, and needs of students from diverse backgrounds. The successful candidate will teach two introductory sections of International Relations (counting as two courses) and upper-level undergraduate courses in Chinese politics and foreign policy, East Asian international relations, and international political economy. The annual teaching load is five courses.

For best consideration, applicants should submit their applications by October 15, 2023, using Interfolio: <https://apply.interfolio.com/127984>

Please provide a cover letter, a CV, a statement of your research agenda; a statement of your teaching philosophy; a statement of your commitment to diversity, equity, and inclusion; up to two publications of other writing samples; two sample course syllabi; and three letters of reference. Questions should be addressed to either of the search co-chairs, Dr. Cynthia Hody (hody@umbc.edu) and Dr. Devin T. Hagerly (dhagerly@umbc.edu), using the subject line “POLI Search”.

Johns Hopkins University: Zanvyl Krieger School of Arts and Sciences: Advanced Academic Programs

Location:

Washington, DC or Online (Remote)

Open Date:

Feb 01, 2023

POSITION:

Adjunct Faculty, Intelligence Analysis
Krieger School of Arts and Sciences
Advanced Academic Programs

INSTITUTION:

Johns Hopkins University

Institution Description:

The Advanced Academic Programs (AAP) is a division of the Krieger School of Arts and Sciences at the Johns Hopkins University (JHU). As the nation's oldest and one of the most prestigious research universities, Johns Hopkins offers high-quality master's degrees and post-baccalaureate education to students in the mid-Atlantic region and online. In addition to the online programs, AAP also offers master's degrees and graduate certificate programs at its Washington, DC Center and at the Homewood campus in Baltimore, MD. AAP has approximately 18,000 enrollments each academic year. JHU is committed to hiring candidates who, through their teaching and service, will contribute to the diversity and excellence of the academic community.

Position Description:

The Advanced Academic Programs (AAP) division seeks non-tenure track adjunct faculty to teach several courses within the MS in Intelligence Analysis program. The course(s) will be taught fully online beginning in Summer 2023 and beyond. Candidates with online course development and teaching experience and those with experience teaching and engaging students from diverse backgrounds are of particular interest. We are looking for faculty who can teach one or more of the following courses:

473.600 the Art and Practice of Intelligence

This course introduces students to the field of intelligence, particularly as practiced in the United States. After a brief overview of the historical foundations of modern intelligence, it discusses how intelligence is conducted including collection, analysis, counterintelligence, covert action, and oversight. It also discusses intelligence ethics, as well as the disruptive influences of September 11, new technologies, and emerging social trends.

473.602 Intelligence Analysis

Intelligence analysis is fundamentally about understanding and communicating to decision makers what is known, not known, and surmised, as it can best be determined. Students will read seminal texts on intelligence analysis, discuss the complex cognitive, psychological, organizational, ethical, and legal issues surrounding intelligence analysis now and, in the past, and apply analytic methodologies to real-world problems.

473.604 Advanced Critical Thinking and Analysis

Critical thinking involves the methods and principles of correct reasoning and argumentation. Students will apply a combination of logic, critical thinking skills, and structured analytical techniques to identify biases, promote self-reflective reasoning, and improve the quality of intelligence analysis. Using a selection of empirical case studies and operational exemplars, students will conduct a comparative assessment of analytical outcomes based on the application of course learnings versus outcomes derived in their absence.

473.607 Intelligence Ethics

This course will address the ethical dilemmas and issues that challenge intelligence and government decision makers in an increasingly complex operational and technological environment. We will examine basic moral, ethical and privacy considerations at several key points in intelligence operations from collection to covert action. The course will analyze the evolving nature of privacy concerns worldwide, with an emphasis on the balance between individual rights and national security. Students will examine the policy implications inherent in seeking to address these tensions.

473.606 Legal Issues in Intelligence

This class will examine the interplay between the laws and the practices and policies of the United States' Intelligence Community and national security system, both foreign and domestic. While discussion of the history of intelligence activities and laws dating from the origins of our colonial days will necessarily shape the framework of the class, the focus shall particularly be on current debates and challenges faced by the United States in the 21st Century.

473.800 Research Seminar

This course will introduce a variety of research, analytical, and statistical methods intended to provide a basis for designing a research project, including an introduction to quantitative, qualitative, and mixed method research design. Within the context of the course, students will complete foundational work for the capstone project, including identifying and accessing relevant primary and secondary source data, surveying and evaluating the literature, and framing a research question based on the intersection of empirical studies and organizational needs. Attention will be given to the unique restrictions placed on research design and publication within the intelligence community.

473.801 Capstone: Current Issues in Intelligence

In this culminating course, students complete an independent, faculty-approved project that will address a substantive or methodological challenge in intelligence analysis. A successful capstone will include research that provides evidence of the student's mastery of the theoretical knowledge and analytical skills central to the degree's learning outcomes. The capstone provides an opportunity to apply the skills acquired throughout the program to a key challenge facing their organization or community. Students will conduct a literature review, select a research method appropriate to their study, analyze data using qualitative or quantitative methods in their capstone project, and propose and defend their findings.

Minimum Qualifications:

- An advanced degree in any relevant field, with a master's degree at minimum.
- At least five years of professional work experience within the intelligence field.

Preferred Qualifications:

- A terminal degree in international relations, global security studies, political science, history, or in a relevant field related to intelligence.

METHODOLOGY

New College of Florida

Rank: Comparative Politics/International Relations with Latin America Focus (tenure-track)

Subfield(s): Comparative Politics, International Relations, Methodology

New College of Florida invites applications for a tenure-track position in Comparative Politics and International Relations with a substantive focus on Latin America. Candidates should have a Ph.D. in Political Science, teaching experience, a career interest in liberal arts teaching, and a vibrant research agenda. In addition to teaching a core introduction to comparative politics, the candidate will offer an upper-level undergraduate course in the politics of Latin America and join in the rotation(s) of at least one of the disciplinary service courses in Quantitative Political Analysis I or Research Design (multiple approaches and methods). Ability to teach International or Comparative Political Economy would also be considered favorably. We expect that the candidate hired would have advanced quantitative skills and be able to guide both qualitative and quantitative undergraduate research. While this position is open with regard to research interests, we would look especially favorably on someone who can teach about and supervise research on the large states and economies of South America. The candidate must have completed the Ph.D. by the start of employment in August 2024.

New College, the nationally recognized honors college of the State University System of Florida, is a small, highly selective, innovative liberal arts institution. Students, with the help of faculty sponsors, plan their own academic programs through a series of semester contracts, and receive narrative evaluations in lieu of grades. Undergraduate research has a central role in the curriculum, and a senior thesis or project is required of all students. The teaching load is two courses per semester plus sponsoring individual and group tutorials. Faculty members also provide academic advising, supervise independent study projects, sponsor senior theses, and serve on baccalaureate committees. Professors are expected to maintain a program of research or creative work. We are particularly interested in candidates with a commitment to innovative undergraduate liberal arts teaching.

Interested candidates should apply online at <http://www.ncf.edu/employment> and upload the following: a cover letter, c.v., statements of teaching and research interests, syllabi, teaching evaluations, one writing sample (article or chapter length), and unofficial graduate transcript(s). In addition, please identify three scholars to write letters of recommendation (they will receive a request through the system). According to Florida law, applications and meetings regarding applications are open to the public upon request. For questions about the application process or accommodations, please contact Ms. Kristi Fecteau at kfecteau@ncf.edu.

Review of applications will begin on November 6, 2023 and continue until the position is filled.

New College of Florida, an Equal Opportunity Employer, complies with all federal, state, and Florida Board of Governors regulations. In accordance with state law, all employees are subject to a background check at the time of hiring.

Northwestern University

Rank: Assistant Professor of Instruction in Computational Social Science (Teaching-Track)

Specializations: Quantitative Methods, Research Methods, Political Behavior

The Department of Political Science at Northwestern University seeks applications for a full-time, teaching-track Assistant Professor of Instruction in Computational Social Science to begin on September 1, 2024.

Excellent candidates for this position exhibit a strong record and potential for building leading-edge courses, curriculum, and programs that help undergraduates, graduate students, and colleagues across substantive areas of political science to connect with relevant techniques and methodological ideas. We are especially keen to seek a new colleague who can expand our research, teaching, and advising with intensive statistical knowledge, programming skills, and awareness of data science norms and practices.

The successful candidate will teach a combination of graduate and undergraduate courses, as well as participate in departmental activities and service. The standard teaching load is six courses annually, which can include the two-week, pre-semester intensive on Statistical and Computational Research methods. Course releases in exchange for specific service roles may be available. Ph.D. or equivalent terminal degree is required; however, ABD applicants who anticipate completion of the doctorate by Fall 2024 will be considered. The ideal candidate will bridge between the Political Science department and the broader computational social science and data sciences communities at Northwestern, helping establish connections with other campus activities such as the Center for Diversity and Democracy (CSDD), the Institute for Sustainability and Energy at Northwestern (ISEN), the Institute for Policy Research (IPR), the Global Poverty Research Lab, the Weinberg College Center for International and Area Studies, the Buffett Institute for Global Affairs, the Northwestern Institute of Complex System (NICO), Sociology, Psychology, Computer Science, Statistics and Data Science, the School of Education and Social Policy, the School of Communication, Kellogg School of Management, among others.

Applications should include a cover letter, current CV, writing sample, research statement, teaching statement, evidence of teaching effectiveness, diversity statement, and three letters of recommendation. In addition to narrating publications and manuscripts in progress, the research statement should describe the candidate's computational contributions to the scholarly community (programs, R libraries, repositories, etc.) and provide links to such materials.

Consideration of files will begin on January 15th and will continue until the position is filled. All applications received by January 15th will be given priority.

Annenberg Institute at Brown University

Rank: Postdoctoral Research Associate

Subfield(s): Public Policy, Open, Methodology

The Annenberg Institute at Brown University (AIB) is seeking a postdoctoral research associate for a two-year appointment (one-year renewable) to join a diverse community of scholars committed to educational equity and improvement. The postdoctoral associate will participate in collaborative research activities with our affiliated faculty, including Lindsay Page, John Papay, Nathaniel Schwartz, John Diamond, Jesse Bruhn, Margot Jackson, Susan Moffitt, Matthew Kraft, and others, on issues related to US PK-16 education policy. We seek postdoctoral research associates with interests in developing and applying their skills in education policy research. Applicants should have a substantive interest in and experience with quantitative and/or mixed methods research in PK-16 issues. The Department is especially interested in qualified candidates who can contribute, through their research, and/or service, to the diversity and excellence of the academic community.

The associate will receive mentorship and training from a faculty sponsor, primarily through an active research apprenticeship and collaboration. In addition, they will be part of the broader AIB community including faculty and students at Brown University, visiting faculty and students, and other postdoctoral research associates.

Qualifications

Candidates should have a PhD in Education, Economics, Sociology, Political Science, Public Policy, or a related field by the beginning of the postdoctoral appointment. Candidates should have strong substantive expertise in PK-16 education policy and strong quantitative and/or mixed methods research skills. Applications with a record of successful publication and with project management skills are preferred, as are those with details about methodological skills and expertise and the substantive domains of a candidate's work.

Application Instructions

Review of applications will begin December 1, 2023. Applications received by December 1, 2023 will be considered preferentially, but the search will remain open until filled.

To be considered for this position please submit a letter of interest, curriculum vitae, two examples of scholarly work, and arrange to have three confidential letters of recommendation submitted via Interfolio. ## University of Gothenburg, V-Dem Institute

We invite applications for one or more post-docs, to conduct research within the V-Dem Institute research programs. This is a 2-year position, 100% of full-time, starting date is as soon as possible, and latest by 2024-08-15.

The postdoc(s) is primarily expected to conduct team-based research on the main questions of the research programs at the V-Dem Institute: “Varieties of Autocratization” (V-Aut), and/or “Endangered Democracies: Sequences of Autocratization” (EDSA) in collaboration with the PI and the existing team members. Applicants can read about these projects and download various documentation from <https://v-dem.net> under “Our Work/Research Programs”.

V-Dem-, V-Party, and ERT- data are typically used in the research for these projects but also data from the Digital Society Project. We are particularly looking for candidates with interest and qualifications to focus on further development and issue solving with regards to the measures of autocracy and autocratization.

Research at the Institute is commonly conducted in teams and co-authorships with one or a few team members are common. While all researchers at the Institute are encouraged to participate actively in these collaborations, they also have guaranteed time to work on individual projects. One of V-Dem’s strengths is the flexibility and collaborative spirit of everyone at the Institute, focusing on reaching the goals of the data collection and research program.

A doctorate in political science or a closely related subject is required at the latest at the time the employment decision is made. In the first instance, those who have completed their degree no more than three years before the end of the application period should be considered.

Applications will be evaluated primarily on research excellence in comparative politics with a focus on authoritarian regimes, comparative democratization, autocratization, and/or regime transitions. We are particularly interested in candidates that study the role of institutions including but not limited to political parties, as well as those studying disinformation or effects of democracy/autocracy.

Candidates must have a strong record in one or more of the following areas:

- Explicit interest in further extending the research agenda of the V-Aut/EDSA program with demonstrated abilities to provide original, state-of-the-art, and creative research.
- Track record of high-quality publications in relevant areas.
- Strong competence in advanced time-series, cross-sectional regression techniques, sequencing algorithms, and/or associated techniques, and/or observational/experimental microlevel methods.
- Excellent written and oral proficiency in English.

Advantageous criteria include:

- Prior use of V-Dem data in applied research or similar evidence of familiarity with the project.
- Extensive demonstrated experience with cross-national expert-coded data, Stata, and R programming skills, as well as experience with observational/experimental data gathering and analysis.
- Demonstrated resourcefulness, flexibility, and very good ability to do teamwork in different configurations.
- Experience working collaboratively on a large-scale research project.
- Documented experience of outreach, especially translating and communicating research to policy-makers/practitioners in things such as policy briefs, descriptive reports, op-eds and newsletters, and/or social media.

Great emphasis is placed on personal suitability for the position.

How to apply:

Applications are submitted online at: https://web103.reachmee.com/ext/1005/1035/job?site=7&lang=UK&validator=9b89bead79bb7258ad55c8d75228e5b7&job\_id=31769

The application should include the following:

- Letter of application (max 3 pages), outlining how your research agenda can contribute to this project. It should clearly show the ways in which the applicant meets the requirements specified above.
- Research proposal (max 2 pages)
- CV, (including list of publications)
- One writing sample
- A list of at least three references (with contact information) from whom letters of recommendation can be solicited

Whitman College

Rank: Assistant Professor of Politics (Global Environmental) Specializations: Environmental Policy, Race & Ethnic Politics, Gender Politics & Policy

Located in the vibrant community of Walla Walla, WA, Whitman College is home to an intellectually diverse, dynamic, and supportive community of some 500 staff and faculty serving roughly 1,500 students from the local region and across the globe. With exceptional students, accomplished faculty and staff, and engaged alumni, Whitman College continues to build on its national reputation for academic excellence as one of the top undergraduate, liberal arts colleges in the country.

The Department of Politics seeks applicants for a Tenure-Track position beginning August 2024 with expertise in Global Environmental Politics, broadly conceived, at the rank of assistant professor. Applicants must have a Ph.D. at the start of the position. We welcome applicants from a variety of disciplinary homes. The successful applicant will offer courses of their own design in support of the Politics and ES-Politics majors, including a mix of introductory courses and advanced seminars, and contribute to the College's general education requirements. Areas of scholarly interest and expertise might include global perspectives on: environmental racism; Environmental Justice; Political Ecology; decolonial strategies; plantations; land grabs; climate change and migration; urban environmental politics; conservation politics; climate governance; political thought and the environment; agriculture and food sovereignty. We are particularly interested in candidates whose research centers the Global South as a political category.

Our department takes a transdisciplinary approach to the study of politics, with a strong commitment to methodological pluralism and diverse modes of scholarship, including scholar-activism, community-based research, and other kinds of public-facing research. In addition to the College's vibrant and growing Environmental Studies program, the candidate would have the opportunity to contribute to interdisciplinary programs such as Indigeneity, Race and Ethnicity Studies; Gender Studies; Asian and Middle Eastern Studies; and the Center for Global Studies, or to new emerging curricular formations.

The College provides a generous pre-tenure sabbatical leave program and professional development support for both research and teaching. The successful candidate will demonstrate potential to sustain an active scholarly or creative research agenda and to participate in faculty governance, mentorship, or other forms of service that contribute to the overall functioning of the college.

Whitman College is committed to fostering an inclusive learning community that values diverse identities, experiences, and perspectives. In the cover letter, candidates should describe their interest in teaching undergraduates, majors as well as non-majors, at all levels of instruction. In doing so, candidates should address how their lived experiences and classroom and scholarly practices will advance equity and inclusion in the learning environment and help Whitman promote antiracist, systemic change.

To apply, go to <https://apply.interfolio.com/132680>. The online application will prompt you to submit all of the required materials:

a cover letter; curriculum vitae; separate statements addressing the candidate's teaching interests and scholarly agenda; graduate transcripts; and evidence of demonstrated or potential excellence in undergraduate instruction. The committee will solicit three letters of recommendation from applicants who reach the interview stage.

Review of applications will begin November 6, 2023

Salary Range: $74,000-$82,000

Whitman College offers a competitive benefits package that is designed to attract qualified candidates and retain talented employees. Full-time employees enjoy the following benefits: Medical/Dental/Vision Insurances; basic life, accidental death and dismemberment and long term disability insurances with the capability to elect additional voluntary coverage; 403(b) Defined Contribution Retirement Plan with a 10% matching contribution after eligibility requirements are met; Tuition Remission – Dependent Children, after eligibility requirements; employee tuition waiver for one Whitman course per semester; and an Employee Assistance Program. ## Carnegie Mellon University

Rank: International Relations & Emerging Technologies-Multiple Faculty Lines

Subfield(s): International Relations, Methodology, Open

Carnegie Mellon University (CMU) has launched a major new initiative devoted to the wise development, use and governance of new and emerging technologies that are changing the national and international security landscape. As part of this forward-looking enterprise, the university seeks top tenure-line scholars in political science, international relations, and other related disciplines with established interest in emerging technologies relevant to international affairs.

We seek scholars at both the entry and senior levels. This is an outstanding opportunity to become part of a new, interdisciplinary initiative that will combine Carnegie Mellon's existing strengths in AI, cybersecurity, block chain, robotics, and other technologies, with scholarship focused on national security, international relations, ethics, law, and policy. We seek intellectually agile, innovative scholars willing to work cooperatively across disciplinary boundaries to tackle the challenges of emergent technologies for war and peace.

Background

Carnegie Mellon University (CMU) launched a major new interdisciplinary institute, the Carnegie Mellon Institute for Security and Technology (CMIST), in 2023. CMIST is a university-wide initiative devoted to the wise development, use, and governance of new and emerging technologies that are changing the national and international security landscape.

The home for Carnegie Mellon University's (CMU) study of Political Science and International Relations, CMIST is also uniquely poised to take advantage of the university's strengths in computer science and engineering and its distinctive tradition of collaborative, cross-university, cross-disciplinary research. CMU is ranked in the top five in the U.S. in Computer Science and in Engineering. It is ranked #1 in the subfields of artificial intelligence, computer engineering, cybersecurity, information systems, and software engineering. It has leading research institutes in areas such as robotics, machine learning, natural language technologies, human-computer interaction, engineering and public policy, and public policy and management--all designed to reach across disciplinary boundaries to solve key problems and address the highest-priority challenges facing humanity. Tying these areas of strength to crucial questions of strategy, security, ethics, and policy, CMIST is the newest addition to this rich CMU research landscape.

Carnegie Mellon University

Formally established in 1967, CMU is a dynamic R1 institution that has an exceptional impact on the world. Despite its relative youth, Carnegie Mellon consistently ranks in the top 25 US national universities. CMU is a global, research-intensive university with more than 14,000 students, more than 110,000 living alumni, approximately 5,000 faculty and staff, and over 100 research centers. It is a place of creativity, entrepreneurship, pragmatism, and ambition, with a tradition of strategically focusing its efforts and resources in areas where it can lead, then pursuing those areas with startling intensity. The research and teaching initiative in CMIST is just such a strategic undertaking.

Carnegie Mellon University is an equal opportunity employer and is committed to increasing the diversity of its community on a range of intellectual and cultural dimensions. Carnegie Mellon welcomes faculty applicants who will contribute to this diversity through their research, teaching and service, including women, members of minority groups, protected veterans, individuals with disabilities, and others who would contribute in different ways. Carnegie Mellon University seeks to meet the needs of dual-career couples and is a member of the Higher Education Recruitment Consortium (HERC) that assists with dual-career searches.

Rank: Assistant Professor

The Department of Political Science at Indiana University-Bloomington invites applications for a full-time tenure track Assistant Professor in the field of quantitative political methodology, beginning August of 2024. Our goal is to hire the strongest candidate available who is doing interesting and important scholarship on questions of quantitative political methodology broadly defined and who can contribute to the campus's strengths in social science methodology more generally, especially in Artificial Intelligence and Cybersecurity. This thematic focus may be approached from any subfield or combination of subfields such as American politics, comparative politics, and international relations.

Candidates should demonstrate broad theoretical interests, active research agendas with the promise for publication in high-quality venues, strong teaching credentials, and proficiency in appropriate research methods. In addition to maintaining an ongoing research program, this faculty member would be expected to teach courses at both the undergraduate and graduate levels, and to participate actively in departmental activities.

Successful candidates will have completed their Ph.D. degree in Political Science by August 1, 2024.

We especially encourage applications from members of groups that are traditionally underrepresented in academia as we seek to diversify our faculty. Both the Department of Political Science and the College of Arts and Sciences are committed to building and supporting a diverse inclusive and equitable community of students and scholars.

Indiana University is an equal employment and affirmative action employer and a provider of ADA services. All qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment based on individual qualifications. Indiana University prohibits discrimination based on age, ethnicity, color, race, religion, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity or expression, genetic information, marital status, national origin, disability status or protected veteran status. Applications received by October 15, 2023 will be assured full consideration; however, the search will remain open until the position is filled.

Applicants should submit a letter of application, complete curriculum vitae, two publications or papers, course syllabi and summary of teaching, and a short statement with information and specific examples about the applicant's past, present, and future contributions to promoting diversity, equity and inclusion in their professional careers. Candidates should have at least three letters of recommendation forwarded to us. All application materials should be submitted online to the attention of Aurelian Craiutu, Department Chair, Department of Political Science at: <https://indiana.peopleadmin.com/postings/20219>

Questions regarding the position or application process should be directed to Jan Peterson, Department Manager, at 812- 855-6308; email: janpeter@indiana.edu, Department of Political Science, 210 Woodburn Hall, 1100 E. ## Pennsylvania State University

Rank: Tenured or Tenure Track position in PLSC

Open Rank Professor of Political Science and Social Data Analytics

The Department of Political Science and the Institute for Computational and Data Sciences at the Pennsylvania State University at University Park, PA, USA, invite applications for a tenured or tenure-track Assistant Professor, Associate Professor or Professor of Political Science and Social Data Analytics to begin in Fall 2024 for faculty whose substantive research interests on politics are informed by, or inform the development of, innovative quantitative, statistical, data-intensive, or computationally-intensive techniques. The substantive research area is open.

Candidates should be able to contribute to our undergraduate Social Data Analytics (<https://soda.la.psu.edu/>) major, which offers upper-level undergraduate courses that fuse substantive material and data analysis, and our graduate course offerings in Social Data Analytics and political methodology. Faculty positions at Penn State involve substantial research support; in addition, this position will offer significant release time.

Candidates for Assistant Professor must have demonstrated ability as a teacher, scholar, and researcher in a field relevant to the Department of Political Science and the Institute for Computational and Data Sciences and have shown evidence of scholarly or professional achievement. Duties will involve a combination of teaching, research, and service, based on the candidate's qualifications.

Candidates for Associate Professor must have demonstrated excellence as a teacher, scholar, and researcher in a field relevant to the Department of Political Science and the Institute for Computational and Data Sciences and have an established reputation in scholarly or professional achievement. Duties will involve a combination of teaching, research, and service, based on the candidate's qualifications.

Candidates for Professor must have demonstrated excellence as a teacher, scholar, and researcher in a field relevant to the Department of Political Science and the Institute for Computational and Data Sciences and have evidence of a substantial record of advanced research as well as leadership in their field of specialization. Duties will involve a combination of teaching, research, and service, based on the candidate's qualifications.

Applicants for all ranks should possess a terminal degree (Ph.D.) in either Political Science, Social Data Analytics, or another field relevant to the Department of Political Science and the Institute for Computational and Data Sciences. Candidates must have their Ph.D. in hand by the appointment date.

Candidates for all ranks should have a record of publication in high-quality venues and demonstrate the potential for external funding.

In addition, successful candidates must either have demonstrated a commitment to building an inclusive, equitable, and diverse campus community, or describe one or more ways they would envision doing so, given the opportunity.

This position is co-funded by the College of the Liberal Arts and the Institute for Computational and Data Sciences. As an ICDS co-hire, the successful candidate is expected to engage in interdisciplinary research that relies substantially on innovative approaches to quantitative, computational, and/or big data analysis.

The Institute for Computational and Data Sciences (ICDS; <https://www.icds.psu.edu/>), one of Penn State's five university wide research institutes, connects researchers from numerous disciplines to answer critical scientific questions and societal issues through cyber enabled research and methodology. ICDS has nearly 300 affiliated faculty, with over 20 tenure-track, co-hired faculty, engaged in interdisciplinary computation and data enabled research. Our affiliated faculty utilize our ICDS-operated advanced computing (Roar), Penn State's high performance research cloud, which is in the top 15 among our peers.

Application review will begin immediately and continue until the position is filled. Applicants should submit a cover letter explaining their research and teaching experience, a current CV, two samples of scholarly writing, evidence of effectiveness as a teacher (e.g., course evaluations, sample syllabi/assignments, teaching statement), and contact information for three references. Apply online at Penn State's Job Posting Board.

System limitations allow for a total of 5 documents (5mb per document) as part of your application. Please combine materials to meet the 5-document limit.

Penn State is committed to and accountable for advancing diversity, equity, and inclusion in all of its forms. We embrace individual uniqueness, foster a culture of inclusion that supports both broad and specific diversity initiatives, leverage the educational and institutional benefits of diversity, and engage all individuals to help them thrive. We value inclusion as a core strength and an essential element of our public service mission.

Penn State offers competitive benefits to full-time employees, including medical, dental, vision, and retirement plans, in addition to 75% tuition discounts (including for a spouse and dependent children up to the age of 26) and paid holidays. ### New York University Abu Dhabi

Rank: Post-Doctoral Associate in the Division of Social Science (Political Science) - Dr. Leonid Peisakhin

Description

We are inviting applications for a three-year Post-Doctoral Associate in the Division of Social Science at NYU Abu Dhabi from individuals who have or will soon receive a PhD in political science or a related discipline. The appointment will begin September 1, 2024, subject to final budget approval.

The post-doctoral associate will spend half their time on independent research, and half of their time on collaborative research with Drs. Leonid Peisakhin, Joan Barceló, and Jeff Jensen. The collaborative research will be in the field of historical legacy research, with an emphasis on the legacy of conflict and historical institutions. This position is open as to geographical area.

The ideal candidate will specialize in historical political economy and will have an interest in conflict studies, post-conflict reconciliation, as well as broader topics in political economy; strong candidates with research interests in other subfields will also be given full consideration. Advanced methodological training is essential; this includes high-level familiarity with causal inference and econometric techniques. Experience working with historical sources and familiarity with public opinion research would be helpful, but not required.

The position does not require teaching, but it may be possible to get teaching experience for compensation. You would be part of a group of over 20 post-doctoral fellows and 70 faculty in the Division of Social Science.

Please use the following link to apply: <https://apply.interfolio.com/130629>

For consideration, applicants need to submit a cover letter, curriculum vitae with a full publication list, statement of research interests and two letters of reference, all in PDF format by December 1, 2023. Applications will be considered on a rolling basis. If you have any questions, please email Dr. Leonid Peisakhin leonid.peisakhin@nyu.edu

University of Southern California

Rank: (Open Rank) Professor in International Relations

The Department of Political Science and International Relations (POIR) in the Dana and David Dornsife College of Letters, Arts and Sciences at the University of Southern California (USC) in Los Angeles, California invites applications for a tenure-track or tenured position in International Relations as part of a major hiring initiative.

We seek candidates with a strong substantive research program in any domain of International Relations whose work advances theoretical and empirical research on important questions in their subfield. Candidates are expected to have strong methodological training, and their methodological skills, ability to advise graduate students on methodological issues and teach graduate classes in the Department's core methods sequence will be a consideration. A strong commitment to undergraduate and graduate education is also expected.

The candidate must have completed a Ph.D. by the appointment date. Review of applications will start September 15, 2023 and will continue until the positions are filled.

In order to be considered for this position, applicants are required to submit an electronic USC application; follow this job link or paste in a browser: <https://usccareers.usc.edu/job/los-angeles/open-rank-faculty-position-in-international-relations/1209/53486590048>. Required materials for upload include a CV, letter of interest, sample research paper(s), statement of research interests, evidence of teaching effectiveness, the names of three individuals who will be contacted by USC for a letter of reference, and official graduate transcripts. Send inquiries to poir@usc.edu. Materials submitted by regular mail will not be accepted.

The annual base salary range for this position is $93,500 - $175,700. When extending an offer of employment, the University of Southern California considers factors such as (but not limited to) the scope and responsibilities of the position, the candidate's work experience, education/training, key skills, internal peer equity, federal, state and local laws, contractual stipulations, grant funding, as well as external market and organizational considerations.

USC is an equal-opportunity educator and employer, proudly pluralistic and firmly committed to providing equal opportunity for outstanding persons of every race, gender, creed and background. The University particularly encourages women, members of underrepresented groups, veterans and individuals with disabilities to apply. USC will make reasonable accommodations for qualified individuals with known disabilities unless doing so would result in an undue hardship. Further information is available by contacting uschr@usc.edu.

Copenhagen Business School

Rank: Postdoc in Business and Government

Subfield(s): Comparative Politics, Methodology, Public Policy

We invite applications for a 2-year postdoc on the project "The Determinants and Consequences of Legislative Capacity" starting August 1st, 2024. The project is led by associate professors Florian M. Hollenbach (CBS) and David Fortunato (UCSD) and funded by the Independent Research Fund Denmark. The postdoc will be based at the Department of International Economics, Government and Business (EGB) at the Copenhagen Business School. It is a 100% research postdoc—there are no teaching requirements. It is our hope that the postdoc will coauthor with the project leaders and develop publications related to the project.

The project

Because policy is written by elected representatives but implemented by unelected bureaucratic agents with their own preferences, the legislature's capacity for ex-ante policy design and ex-post oversight sets a de facto budget constraint on potential democratic responsiveness. Importantly, parliaments choose their own capacity by allocating resources necessary for legislative work, yet we observe tremendous variation in these endowments. Why? In this project, we investigate the determinants of capacity choices and their broader implications for democratic accountability.

The "Legislative Capacity" project consists of two work packages. Work package I will focus on developing a formal theoretical model of the legislature's choice over its capacity for policy influence. The model will consider the trade-offs for current majorities to increase capacity to improve its policy making power while also handing more efficient institutions to future governments, should it lose power. Work package II moves on to empirically investigate the relationships predicted by the theoretical model. To do so, we will collect data on legislative capacity in OECD countries over the last 20 years, as well as subnational legislatures.

The postdoc will work on both packages, contributing to development of the central theoretical model, data collection, analysis, and writing. It is essential that applicants have strong research potential in comparative political economy and the ability to work in a team environment, collaborating/co-authoring with other team members.

Non-exhaustive examples of research areas that the postdoc may cover:

- Comparative Political Economy
- Social Data Science
- Quantitative Methods
- Formal Modelling
- Political Institutions

Department

EGB is a multidisciplinary department that conducts high-quality research in the fields of international business and political science with direct relevance to business, policymakers, and the public. Research at the department focuses on two principal focus areas Business & Government and International Business, in relation to societal challenges. To learn more about the research and education of the department, please visit the departmental homepage; www.cbs.dk/egb.

Qualifications

The applicant must have completed – or be close to completing – a PhD in the political science, political economy, or a related field. The applicant must have excellent research skills and proficiency in English (written and spoken). The ideal applicant will have solid skills in formal modelling and advanced quantitative methods.

To fulfill the research requirements of the position, the postdoc is expected to be physically present at the department on a regular basis.

Copenhagen Business School has a broad commitment to the excellence, distinctiveness and relevance of its teaching and research programs. Candidates who wish to join us should demonstrate enthusiasm for working in an organization of this type.

Appointment and salary will be in accordance with the Ministry of Finance's agreement with the Central Academic Organisation (presently approximately $70,080 USD including pension contribution).

Applications must be sent via the electronic recruitment system, using the link; <https://www.cbs.dk/en/about-cbs/jobs-cbs/vacant-positions/postdoc-in-business-and-government-copenhagen-business-school-2-years>

Applications must include:

- A cover letter outlining the candidate's main strengths and abilities.
- Transcript(s) and a full CV
- A job market paper
- A complete, numbered list of publications (indicating titles, co-authors, page numbers and year) with an * marking of the academic productions to be considered during the assessment. A maximum of 5 publications for assessment are allowed. Applicants are requested to prioritise their publications in relation to the field of this job advertisement.
- Copies of the publications marked with an *. Only publications written in English (or another specified principal language, according to research tradition) or one of the Scandinavian languages will be taken into consideration)
- A brief (1-page) research statement for the 2-year postdoc period, and possibly beyond.

Recruitment procedure

The Recruitment Committee will shortlist a minimum of two applicants; when possible five or more applicants will be shortlisted. The shortlisted applicants will be assessed by the Assessment Committee. All applicants will be notified of their status in the recruitment process shortly after the application deadline.

The applicants selected for assessment will be notified about the composition of the Assessment Committee and later in the process about the result of the assessment.

Once the recruitment process is completed each applicant will be notified of the outcome of their application.

Closing date: October 30, 2023

Copenhagen Business School must receive all application material, including all appendices (see items above), by the application deadline.

For further information about the project, please contact: Associate Professor Florian M. Hollenbach, e-mail: fho.egb@cbs.dk.

For further information about the department (EGB), please contact: Head of Department Jens Gammelgaard, e-mail jg.egb@cbs.dk.

Rank: Faculty - Public Policy - Full Time, Temporary

Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Methodology, Public Policy

Specializations: Race & Ethnic Politics, Housing, American Politics

The politics, policy and international relations department at Salem State University invites a full-time, temporary faculty position for the 2024-2025 academic year. We are seeking a public policy specialist with familiarity with policies in an urban context such as housing, education, transportation, policing, poverty, and/or immigration. This position is part of a Salem State initiative to help establish and advance our proposed North Shore Policy Lab and may be reappointed for up to two additional years subject to available funding. With continued growth of the program, there may be additional tenure track lines in the department.

Housed in the department's Bates Center for Public and Global Affairs, the North Shore Policy Lab will involve students in research conducted on behalf of local and state government and non-governmental organizations in order to prepare them for jobs in the public, non-profit and/or private sectors.

The candidate should be well-versed in both quantitative and qualitative research methods and be able to teach our current Research Methods course as well as a new, advanced multi-methods class that will serve as the foundation for student work on applied policy research projects as a part of the policy lab. The ideal candidate will have a demonstrated record of community-based research and community partnerships with a focus on equity issues in the context of urban areas like those served by Salem State.

Salem State University is committed to excellence in teaching. We pride ourselves in providing first-rate classroom experiences and supervising intensive learning opportunities such as research and internships. Many of our students are first generation, racial/ethnic minorities, veterans, and adult learners. Salem State University is located in the Greater Boston area in the historic city of Salem, Massachusetts. The Greater Boston region is famous for its world-class education, healthcare, and business enterprises and the area offers numerous opportunities for professional and personal enrichment.

Duties and Responsibilities

Candidates are required to perform duties in accordance with the MSCA contract. Duties include teaching, advising, scholarship and contributions to continuously improve the department and university. The standard teaching load is 12 credit hours per semester. The position is subject to available funding.

Required Qualifications:

Earned PhD in public policy or a related field from an accredited institution (ABD considered if degree will be conferred by September 2024)

Advising and/or mentoring experience

Preferred Qualifications:

Commitment to anti-racist, culturally responsive teaching

Demonstrated expertise in community-based research

Active publication record and/or exemplary scholarly potential (e.g., ABD candidates with strong pipeline of research)

Prior applied experience in non-profit or public sector settings

Demonstrated excellence in teaching

As an emerging Hispanic Serving Institution (HSI), Salem State University seeks to enrich the faculty/librarian ranks by actively encouraging candidates whose lived and scholarly experiences directly address issues regarding the health, welfare, and representation of Latinx populations in the United States. Candidates who meet this strongly desired qualification should present documented activities in Latinx-related teaching, scholarship/research, and service, including community-based endeavors in each of these three areas.

Working Conditions:

This is an on-site, in-person position.

Salem State University complies with the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA) to provide reasonable accommodation to qualified applicants and employees with disabilities. For accommodation information or requests please email eo-hr@salemstate.edu.

Special Instructions to Applicants:

Please apply online and attach curriculum vitae, cover letter, teaching philosophy, and a diversity statement (please read our institutional diversity statement and describe how you would contribute to our mission in your teaching, research, mentoring/advising, and service).

The online portal can be found at: <https://internal-salemstate.icims.com/jobs/2894/faculty%2c-political-science-%28public-policy%29%2c-full-time%2c-temporary%2c-fall-2024/job>

Employment is contingent upon a completed background and CORI check satisfactory to the university.

This position is not eligible for H1B visa sponsorship.

Please Note: If there is no application deadline associated with a position, it may be removed at any time and additional applications will not be accepted.

Universidad Catolica del Uruguay

Rank: Assitant Professor

Subfield(s): Comparative Politics, International Relations, Methodology

Ref: LLAMACA-181

Call for applications to fill a position of Assistant Professor (Full time) at the Department of Social Sciences

The Universidad Católica del Uruguay calls for applications to fill a position of Assistant Professor (Full time) at its Department of Social Sciences. Candidates should hold a Ph.D. or be near completion (December 2023) in Political Science or Sociology, but candidates in other social science disciplines such as Demography, Human Geography, Criminology or Social Work are also encouraged to apply. Candidates may be specialized in any substantive subarea (for example, research methods, public policy, comparative politics, political economy, social stratification, or socioeconomic inequalities).

Candidates must demonstrate excellence in teaching, an active substantive research agenda, and a demonstrated ability to publish and teach in English and Spanish. Successful candidates are expected to work full-time (160 hours per month) and start working in February or August 2024.

Applications will start being analyzed on September 30, 2023, but applications received after that will still be considered until the position is filled or the university closes the call. A complete application must contain (1) a cover letter, (2) CV, (3) an example of an undergraduate course program that the candidate would be able to teach, (4) up to 2 examples of academic research work, (5) teacher evaluations, and (6) three letters of recommendation. The application should be made electronically (<https://bpm.ucu.edu.uy/public/01LPOSD>). Letters of recommendation can be included by the candidate in the application or can be directly sent by their author to the following email: departamentos@ucu.edu.uy (Ref: LLAMACA-181 – Letter of recommendation for [Name Last name]).

The selection process will consist on the following stages. First, a short list of candidates will be selected to be interviewed by the Selection Committee in person or via videoconference in case of residing abroad. Then, 3 shortlisted candidates will be invited to the Montevideo campus to present their research and hold interviews with members of the Department and other authorities. The selection committee may request from the candidates, at any time during the process, additional materials, or the corresponding accreditations. The decisions of the selection committee will be final. The Universidad Católica del Uruguay reserves the right not to hire any candidates without responsibility of any kind at its own expense.

For additional information, applicants may contact the Department's Chair, Rosario Queirolo (rosario.queirolo@ucu.edu.uy).

University of Rochester

Rank: Tenure-Track Assistant Professor in Computational Social Science

The University of Rochester seeks applicants for a tenure-track assistant professor in computational social science. This will be a joint appointment between the Goergen Institute for Data Science (GIDS) and a tenure home department in Political Science, Economics, or Linguistics, depending on which best aligns with the applicant's research and teaching. Exceptional candidates in all areas of computational social science are encouraged to apply.

Applicants must have (or be about to receive) a doctorate in computer science, data science, operations research, applied mathematics, statistics, economics, linguistics, political science, or a related discipline. Candidates should have strong skills in computational social science and/or data analytics, as well as a research agenda that uses these methods to analyze substantive issues in political science, economics, or linguistics.

Teaching responsibilities for this position will be split between GIDS and the home department. The successful candidate will have the opportunity to supervise PhD, Master's, and undergraduate students at the home department and at GIDS.

All applications should include a letter of interest, curriculum vitae, research statement, teaching statement, and samples of written work. Candidates without a prior tenure-track appointment should include a graduate transcript. Applicants must also arrange for three letters of recommendation to be submitted online. The University of Rochester is firmly committed to advancing equity and fostering an inclusive and diverse community. We ask candidates to include a statement detailing their past work and future plans for achieving these goals.

Application materials should be submitted online at: www.rochester.edu/faculty-recruiting. We will begin reviewing applications on September 15, 2023. Applications will continue to be reviewed on a rolling basis until a candidate is hired or until February 1, 2024.

The Goergen Institute for Data Science (GIDS) was founded in 2015 as part of the University of Rochester's $100 million commitment to making data science its top research priority. The Institute serves as a hub for interdisciplinary data science research, interdepartmental data science academic programs, and collaborations with industry. GIDS is housed in the newly constructed Wegmans Hall, a brand-new, 58,000-square-foot building completed in 2017. The Institute offers Bachelor of Arts, Bachelor of Science, and Master of Science degrees, as well as an Advanced Graduate Certificate program in data science for professionals. A Doctoral degree in data science is undergoing the formal approval process, with a first cohort of students expected in 2024. Eighty-five faculty members from a variety of disciplines across the campus are affiliated with GIDS. Areas of expertise of these faculty members include foundations of AI and ML; health analytics and digital health; life sciences and biomedical data science; imaging science, visual science, and optics; human-data-system interfaces; AI-augmented learning and work; audio and music engineering; economics and business data analytics; computational social science; materials design; network data science; and robotics. With a unique structure, GIDS fosters industry engagement via the Center of Excellence (CoE) in Data Science. The CoE helps drive regional economic development through basic research, training, and technology development in all areas related to data science. The University of Rochester is a private, Tier I research institution with approximately 6,600 undergraduates and 5,500 graduate students. We are deeply committed to building a more diverse and representative faculty, and strongly encourage applications from groups underrepresented in STEM and in higher education. We are actively working to improve the environment for all underrepresented groups as we strive to weave diversity, equity, and inclusion throughout the University's mission to learn, discover, heal, and create. Anchoring the Finger Lakes region of Western New York State, the greater Rochester area is home to over a million people, and offers unsurpassed quality of life, with a thriving arts scene, excellent public schools, affordable housing, and a huge range of cultural and recreational opportunities.

American University

Rank: Assistant Professor

The Department of Government in the School of Public Affairs at American University invites applications for two full-time, tenure-track positions beginning in Academic Year 2024-25. The positions will be at the rank of Assistant Professor. The Department is seeking American Politics scholars and Political Methodologists with substantive expertise in American politics. Applications from candidates who would enhance the diversity of the department are especially welcome.

Applicants should hold a PhD. Candidates should be effective teachers and must be strongly committed to excellence in scholarly research. The search is open regarding areas of substantive specialty, but the Department is especially interested in scholars whose research and teaching interests include American political institutions. Most of all, the department seeks scholars who will further its goals of producing high impact research and providing innovative undergraduate and graduate teaching. Applications are particularly welcome from scholars who can contribute to high visibility centers and research initiatives at American University, such as the Women and Politics Institute, Center for Congressional and Presidential Studies, Center for Data Science, and Center for Environmental Policy. In addition to scholarship and teaching, all faculty are expected to hold office hours and participate in School and University activities and service.

Review of applications will begin on September 1, 2023, and will continue until the positions are filled, subject to on-going budgetary approvals. The positions begin August 1, 2024. Applicants should have a PhD or an anticipated PhD completion date by August 2024.

Salary and benefits are competitive. Please submit applications via: <http://apply.interfolio.com/128065>. Include a letter of application, curriculum vitae, three confidential letters of recommendation, research and teaching narratives, and a writing sample. Please contact Rachel Whelan, Faculty Coordinator, 202-885-6201 or spa\_academicaffairs@american.edu if you have any questions.

American Political Science Association

Rank: Congressional Fellowships for Political Scientists

The American Political Science Association <https://www.apsanet.org/cfpCongressionalFellowshipProgram> is currently <https://apsanet.org/PROGRAMS/Congressional-Fellowship-Program/Prospective-Fellow-Resources> accepting online applications for congressional fellowships for political scientists. The nine-month program in Washington, D.C., gives scholars a hands-on understanding of Congress through placements in congressional offices.

Fellows begin their fellowship year with a comprehensive one-month orientation with congressional experts and policy leaders. Fellows then work in full-time placements of their choosing in a personal office or committee in the House of Representatives or Senate.

The fellowship year also features:

- winter and spring seminar series on Congress;
- visit to the district or state of a Member of Congress;
- optional study program in Ottawa, Canada; and
- ongoing guidance and mentoring from program staff and alumni.

Orientation begins November 2024. Office placements run until August 16, 2025. Two optional programs precede the main fellowship program: a two-month course on Congress and Foreign Policy, taught at the Johns Hopkins School of Advanced International Studies, and a fellowship through the William A. Steiger fund to spend up to two months at the APSA Centennial Center carrying out a project in legislative studies.

Required Qualifications: Applicants must have completed a PhD in the last 15 years or will have defended a dissertation by November 2024.

Applications are welcome from political scientists in all subfields who can demonstrate a scholarly interest in Congress and the policymaking process.

Preference is given to those without extensive Capitol Hill experience.

Application Procedure: Applications must be <https://apsa.secure-platform.com/a/organizations/main/homesubmitted> online and include:

- CV;
- 750-word personal statement;
- names and contact information for three references; and
- one sole-authored writing sample.

Applicants may apply through the same online form for the two optional pre-fellowship programs.

Submit your application for the 2024-2025 fellowship year by Tuesday, January 10, 2024. Please send questions about the program to <mailto:cfp@apsanet.org>.

Start Date: November 2024

Salary: $60,000 for the 9.5-month fellowship period, plus travel allowance. Fellows who are also selected for a fellowship through the Steiger Fund will receive a stipend for the duration of the Steiger Fellowship.

The University of Chicago

Rank: Instructional Professor in Computational Social Science

Description

The Division of Social Sciences at the University of Chicago invites applications for Instructional Professors (IP) in the MA program in Computational Social Science (MACSS, macss.uchicago.edu). This is a full-time, career-track teaching position. Appointments at the Assistant, Associate, and Full rank will be considered with an initial term of at least three years, depending on rank, beginning by September 2024. Rank will be considered based on the candidate's experience.

The Master of Arts in Computational Social Science (MACSS) is a two-year interdisciplinary MA program that trains students in the theory and methods of algorithmic, cutting-edge computational techniques—such as deep learning, AI, complex systems, and network science, broadly defined—to gain social scientific insights (in fields such as political science, psychology, sociology, anthropology, and history). Approximately 20% of our graduates go on for a PhD, while 80% seek research-oriented positions in industry, government, consulting, and a variety of think tanks.

The IP will annually teach four courses, including 2-3 in our MACSS curriculum and 1-2 computational social science electives, some of which may include introductory undergraduate courses for those new to computational social science. Our current course offerings are here: <http://graduateannouncements.uchicago.edu/graduate/computationalsocialscience/#courseinventory>. We welcome candidates from the broad research and teaching areas of computational social science, computational psychology, information science, and data science. Potential areas of focus include but are not limited to machine learning, deep learning, digital experimentation, natural language processing, data science, and data mining.

In addition, the IP will: advise a group MA students from matriculation through convocation and serve as the second reader on 7-9 MA theses; serve as the primary reader for an additional 2-3 MA theses each year; attend and participate in the weekly MACSS workshop; hold weekly office hours; coordinate teaching assistants; contribute to program admissions, staff hiring, and student recruitment; attend staff meetings; support students in their applications to doctoral programs; and participate in occasional committee work. The position includes support for professional development.

Qualifications

Applicants must have a PhD in computer science, data science, information science, sociology, political science, psychology, or a related discipline. The PhD must be in hand prior to the start date. Prior teaching experience is expected.

Application Instructions

The following materials must be submitted through Interfolio at <https://apply.interfolio.com/135034>: (1) a cover letter, outlining the applicant's prior training experience in their discipline, their prior teaching or mentoring experience, and their suggested course offerings; (2) a curriculum vitae; (3) at least one course syllabus; (4) an article-length writing sample employing a computational research design; (5) course evaluations or other evidence of past experience in teaching or mentoring; (6) a teaching statement; and (7) the names and contact information for three recommenders.

Review of applications will begin on November 30, 2023 and will continue until the position is filled or the search is closed.

This position will be part of the Service Employees International Union.

Equal Employment Opportunity Statement

All University departments and institutes are charged with building a faculty from a diversity of backgrounds and with diverse viewpoints; with cultivating an inclusive community that values freedom of expression; and with welcoming and supporting all their members.

We seek a diverse pool of applicants who wish to join an academic community that places the highest value on rigorous inquiry and encourages diverse perspectives, experiences, groups of individuals, and ideas to inform and stimulate intellectual challenge, engagement, and exchange. ## Georgia State University

Rank: Lecturer in Interdisciplinary Studies

Full-Time Teaching Track Lecturer in the Bachelor of Interdisciplinary Studies (BIS) Concentration in Arts and Sciences degree program (Promotion Eligible)

The Department of Political Science at Georgia State University invites applications for a full-time Lecturer position providing instruction in an interdisciplinary studies degree program to begin Fall 2024. Lecturers at GSU are full-time faculty who are eligible for promotion to Senior Lecturer and Principal Lecturer.

The Department of Political Science hosts the Bachelor of Interdisciplinary Studies (BIS) with a concentration in Arts and Sciences. This new program enables nontraditional students as well as students who must transition out of their major of choice to continue making progress towards a degree and to build connections among related disciplines. Students pick three fields of study in the College of Arts and Sciences in the humanities, social sciences, and/or stem fields. The position will teach interdisciplinary research methods, a capstone seminar, and an internship course. While primary responsibility is to teach these three required courses, the candidate may have the opportunity to teach other courses of interest in Political Science.

Lecturers at GSU have both teaching and service requirements and are full members of the department's intellectual community and leadership team. In addition to helping the university achieve excellence in undergraduate teaching and serving on MA thesis committees, Lecturers meet a broad array of vital service needs, such as coordinating our core courses, directing undergraduate programs, leading study abroad trips, coaching academic teams, and developing innovative experiential learning courses. GSU is an institutional member of the National Center for Faculty Development & Diversity, and the College of Arts & Sciences supports professional success for all faculty through mentoring programs and representation of faculty from all ranks (including Lecturers) in college-level program development.

GSU is an urban research university located in downtown Atlanta. Designated as a minority-serving institution, and the only comprehensive Predominantly Black Institution with a R1 Carnegie Research Classification in the nation, GSU has one of the most diverse student bodies in the country and is nationally recognized for its record in student success regardless of race, ethnicity, and income level. The Department of Political Science prides itself on serving this student body and advancing innovative teaching and research. More information about the department is available here: <https://politicalscience.gsu.edu>.

Required Qualifications:

- Ability to teach an undergraduate Research Methods course from an interdisciplinary perspective.
- Ability to teach a Capstone Seminar with a focus on career preparation.
- Ability to deliver effective, high-impact instruction across all modalities.
- Interest in teaching and mentoring students from all backgrounds to promote excellence in undergraduate learning.
- A Ph.D. in hand, or evidence that a PhD will be awarded by Summer 2024, in a social sciences field.

Preferred Qualifications:

- Demonstrated interest in pedagogical innovation.
- Ability to contribute to Political Science course offerings.

Applicants should send a letter of application that details how the essential and (if applicable) preferred qualifications are met, a curriculum vitae, a statement of teaching philosophy, sample syllabi, and any additional evidence of teaching effectiveness.

Applicants should also provide a list of at least three professional references (name, title, email address, and telephone number) who are willing to provide letters of reference in the future. Please submit all materials electronically to polssearchbis@gsu.edu

Review of applications will begin on November 27, 2023, and will continue until the position is filled. Application materials submitted by this date will be given full consideration.

All qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to race, color, religion, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, national origin, disability or status as a protected veteran. An offer of employment will be conditional on background verification.

University of Pittsburgh

Rank: Mellon Endowed Chair and Associate/Full Professor

Mellon Endowed Chair in Sociology. The Sociology Department at the University of Pittsburgh invites applications to fill the Mellon Endowed Chair in Sociology. The position is a tenured faculty appointment at the rank of Associate Professor or Professor and will begin in the 2024-2025 academic year, pending budgetary approval.

In filling this chair, the Department seeks candidates with extraordinary credentials in research, teaching, and mentorship. Substantive areas are open. We are especially keen to attract a scholar whose research and teaching employ civically engaged, participatory, and/or public sociology of social change. We welcome scholars engaged in these approaches in local, regional, global, or comparative contexts. Applicants must have a Ph.D. in sociology or a related discipline, a significant record of publications, and a demonstrated ability to deliver high-quality instruction, contribute to an inclusive climate, and attract and retain a diverse student body.

Sociology is a Ph.D.-granting department and is home to active and vibrant scholars with strengths in social movements; politics & culture; global, comparative, and area studies research; race, gender, sexualities, intersectionality, and other systems of inequality; and environment. The Department benefits from numerous synergies with other units on campus, including the University Center for International Studies, a world-renowned, multidisciplinary institute housing centers for area studies and for topical specializations in international studies; the University Center for Social and Urban Research (UCSUR); the Center for Race and Social Problems; the World History Center; and the Gender Inequality Research Lab (GIRL). The Department also benefits from collaborations that reach beyond the University, such as the Collaboratory against Hate Research and Action Center. The City of Pittsburgh frequently tops "most livable city" rankings thanks to its numerous social and cultural offerings and relatively low cost of living.

Review of applications will begin January 15, 2024, and will continue until the position is filled. Applicants can apply online at Home | Talent Center: Careers at Pitt | University of Pittsburgh. Requisition number: 23007638. Candidates should submit a letter of application, CV, diversity statement, and contact information (full name, title, and email) for the three people providing reference letters for you.

Please direct applicant inquiries to Professor Melanie M. Hughes, Search Committee Chair, hughesm@pitt.edu.

The University of Pittsburgh is committed to championing all aspects of diversity, equity, inclusion, and accessibility within our community. This commitment is a fundamental value of the University and is crucial in helping us advance our mission, which includes attracting and retaining diverse workforces. We will continue to create and maintain an environment that allows individuals to discover, belong, contribute, and grow while honoring the experiences, perspectives, and unique identities of all.

Wabash College

Rank: Post-doctoral Scholar-in-Residence and Distinguished Scholar-in-Residence

Wabash College, a liberal arts college for men located in Crawfordsville, Indiana, seeks applicants to fill two types of visiting positions. First, a Post-doctoral Scholar-in-Residence to be housed in the Stephenson Institute for Classical Liberalism. Second, a senior-level Distinguished Scholar-in-Residence, also to be housed in the Stephenson Institute for Classical Liberalism.

The Post-doctoral Scholar-in-Residencies are residential fellowships that support full-time research and publication efforts. The duration of the appointment is one academic year with the possibility of renewal for a second-year term.

The Distinguished Scholar-in-Residence is also a residential appointment to support full-time research and publication efforts, ideally during sabbatical leave from the candidate's home institution. The duration of the appointment is one academic year, but single semester appointments are also possible on a case-by-case basis.

The disciplinary field, project design, and research approach for both types of positions are open. Successful applicants will have an interest in engaging with our students and participating in the intellectual life of the College and Institute during the fellowship. Applicants will propose a project that contributes to one or more of the subject areas and research topics of particular interest to the Stephenson Institute's mission:

- The institutional and cultural conditions of individual rights and legal equality
- Free inquiry, free expression, free speech, and the market-place of ideas
- The relationship(s) between market economies and government intervention
- The role of personal responsibility in a free society
- Comparative and historical investigations of differing property rights regimes
- Comparative political economy and comparative political philosophy

Applicants are invited in their proposals to offer other ideas for how they might contribute to the Institute's programming and areas of student engagement. While the primary focus of the position is research, any Scholar-in-Residence will also contribute to campus conversations via participation in Institute programming. There are no formal teaching expectations, but candidates who desire to teach a course should indicate that interest in their materials. A teaching placement is at the discretion of the relevant academic department.

Preferred start date is July 1, 2024. This position provides salary, benefits, office space, relocation costs, and a generous fund to support research, travel, and related needs. Salary will be commensurate with relevant experience and academic field.

About Wabash College and the Stephenson Institute

Wabash College is a private, independent, residential four-year liberal arts college for men located in Crawfordsville, Indiana. Founded in 1832, its mission is to "educate men to think critically, act responsibly, lead effectively, and live humanely." Our 65-acre wooded campus is located 50 miles west of Indianapolis and three hours from Chicago.

In the midst of a strategic transformation to advance the success of first-generation students, students of color, and students from low-income families, Wabash College is committed to attracting and effectively supporting faculty and staff from all backgrounds, including an academically and culturally diverse faculty. Approximately 25% of our students are federal Pell Grant recipients, 30% are first-generation college students, and 20% identify as domestic students of color. Wabash has been home to the Malcolm X Institute of Black Studies for more than fifty years, is a member of the USC Race and Equity Center's Liberal Arts Colleges Racial Equity Leadership Alliance, is a top-60 Liberal Arts College according to U.S. News, and is a member of Colleges That Change Lives.

Established in 2021, the Stephenson Institute for Classical Liberalism is a non-partisan academic research center. We provide teaching, learning, and research opportunities for motivated students and faculty at Wabash College and beyond whom share an interest in the operations and implications of a free society

Qualifications

Applicants for the Postdoctoral Scholar-in-Residence position should have a terminal degree in their academic field, and be no further than four years since completion of a Ph.D.

Applicants for the Distinguished Scholar-in-Residence position should have a terminal degree in their academic field, and have obtained the level of at least Associate Professor. Ideal candidates will be on sabbatical from a home institution during their appointment.

To apply, go to <https://www.wabash.edu/employment/>, select the Stephenson Institute Postdoctoral Scholar-in-Residence or Stephenson Institute Distinguished Scholar-in-Residence, and click the "Apply Now" button. The application dossier should consist of:

1. A cover letter describing interest in the position and the stated mission and topic areas of the Stephenson Institute for Classical Liberalism;
2. A curriculum vitae;
3. A proposal for the research project to be conducted in residence; and
4. Email addresses for two individuals who will submit letters of reference that address the scholar's contributions to the field.

Inquiries about the positions should be addressed to Dr. Daniel J. D'Amico, director of the Stephenson Institute for Classical Liberalism, at damicod@wabash.edu. Review of applications will begin on December 15, 2023 and continue until the position is filled.

Wabash College, a liberal arts college for men, seeks faculty and staff who are committed to providing quality engagement with students, high levels of academic challenge and support, and meaningful experiences that prepare students for life and leadership among diverse populations around the globe. Work Type: Tenure-Track Faculty

Location: Main Campus (Gainesville, FL)

Categories: Social/Behavioral Science, Humanities

Job Description

Classification Title:

Assistant Professor of Human Rights and Environmental Justice in Latin America

Job Description:

The Center for Latin American Studies (<https://www.latam.ufl.edu>) at the University of Florida invites applicants who take an intersectional approach to conducting theoretically driven, empirical research for a tenure-track Assistant Professor position of human rights and environmental justice in Latin America and/or the Caribbean. We are particularly interested in considering applications from candidates whose research and teaching focus on Indigenous or Afro-descendant populations, incorporating a broad range of methods. We encourage candidates to apply whose interest and scholarship include such fields as Indigenous studies, . . . , Afro-diasporic studies, environmental racism, ecological economics, law and governance, social conflict, conflict mediation, gender, education, political ecology, environmental conservation, sustainability, grassroots organizing, civil society, art and culture, institutional politics, or media studies. We strongly encourage applicants from historically underrepresented groups in the profession, applicants who have collaborators based in Latin America and/or the Caribbean, and those with proficiency in one or more non-English languages spoken in Latin America or the Caribbean. Prior teaching experience with evidence of creative pedagogies, experiential learning, and student mentoring is highly desirable. We expect the successful candidate to teach two courses each semester, maintain an active research agenda, value methodological pluralism, participate in the activities of the specializations in the Center, and provide service to the Center, University, and their respective disciplines.

About the Center: The UF Center for Latin American Studies (LAS) was founded in 1931 and is one of the top-ranked and oldest centers of its kind. It is renowned for the richness and breadth of its intellectual life, which is sustained in part by the diverse perspectives, backgrounds, and identities of its members. Over 20 LAS faculty and 300 affiliate faculty across the university integrate approaches from social sciences, natural sciences, the humanities and professions. LAS has a vibrant Outreach Program that targets K-16 educators and hosts an annual Bacardi Scholar program that invites a distinguished scholar of Latin American Studies to conduct a semester-long teaching and research residence. Additionally, the Center hosts an annual conference/workshop on an area of relevance to Latin American Studies that brings together scholars, graduate students, and participants from socio-political sectors to contribute to the advancement of research and thought surrounding key issues impacting communities across Latin America and the Latin American Diaspora.

The Center is home to vibrant Master's degree programs in Latin American Studies (MALAS), Sustainable Development Practice (MDP), and combined JD/LAS that attract students from Latin America, the Caribbean, the United States, and across the globe. It also offers graduate certificate programs in Tropical Conservation and Development (TCD) and Latin American Studies. The Center currently hosts eleven specialization that bring together faculty and students in research and learning communities. Finally, the Center's core and affiliate faculty, as well as its students, are supported by the UF Libraries' Latin American and Caribbean Collection (LACC) and the Smathers Library. The LACC holds a range of collections that attract scholars from around the world to the University of Florida campus, and it helps bolster teaching and research by offering immediate access to various archives, manuscripts, and texts.

About the University: Founded in 1853, the University of Florida (UF) is a public land-grant, sea-grant, and space-grant research university and one of the most academically renowned universities in the nation. The Wall Street Journal ranks UF as the No. 1 public university in the nation. Other national rankings, such as 2nd by Forbes and 7th by Kiplinger, are a result of UF's commitment to provide the highest quality education at the best value. UF is home to 16 colleges and more than 200 research, service, and education centers, as well as various bureaus and institutes. UF boasts more than 4,000 faculty members, 50,000 students and 415,000 living alumni. In 2021, faculty scholars generated more than $950 million in research awards. In 2013, the Florida Legislature designated UF as a "preeminent" state university. UF is also an "emerging" Hispanic serving institute with more than 23% of the full-time student body identifying as Hispanic or Latinx.

About the Area: UF is located in Gainesville, a progressive college town in north central Florida that blends big-city cultural and athletic offerings with small-town friendliness and charm, along with excellent schools. Gainesville sits about halfway between the Atlantic Ocean and Gulf of Mexico, is often recognized as one of America's best college towns, and is easily accessible from three major metropolitan areas (Jacksonville, Orlando, and Tampa). The National Arbor Day Foundation has recognized Gainesville as a "Tree City USA" every year since 1982. Add the allure of Florida's famous sunshine, tropical breezes, and abundant wilderness, springs, rivers and seashores nearby, and it is little wonder that top-caliber faculty and students find our College and University to be the perfect balance of premier academics and a fulfilling lifestyle.

Expected Salary:

Salary will be commensurate with qualifications.

In addition to your salary, the University of Florida (UF) offers low-cost https://www.mybenefits.myflorida.com/health/health\_insurance\_plans plans, a number of Dental plans to fit you and your family's needs, and Vision. Domestic partner coverage through GatorCare is also available. Optional plans such as life, disability, legal and accident insurance are also available.

The University of Florida provides a variety of leave programs including sick leave, paid holidays, and family medical leave. UF also provides you the flexibility to deal with life's challenges by offering paid family leave, eight full weeks of leave over a 24-month period.

Build your retirement roadmap with competitive pension plans, investment accounts and a host of voluntary add-ons, such as 457 deferred compensation and 403(b) plans.

Minimum Requirements:

Applicants must have a PhD by the start date of the position and have substantial knowledge of Latin America and/or the Caribbean.

The anticipated start date is August 2024.

Preferred Qualifications:

The Candidate should have strong knowledge of Latin America and/or the Caribbean, and fluency or proficiency in one or more non-English languages spoken in Latin America or the Caribbean. Preference will be given to candidates with collaborators based in Latin America and/or the Caribbean, a record of conducting empirical research, and theoretical expertise on human rights and environmental justice as it applies to Indigenous and/or Afro-descendant communities in Latin America/the Caribbean. Prior teaching experience with evidence of commitment to creative teaching and student mentoring is highly desirable. We strongly encourage applicants from historically underrepresented groups in the profession.

Special Instructions to Applicants:

Harvard University

Rank: Harvard University Environmental Fellows Program

The Harvard University Center for the Environment created the Environmental Fellows program to enable recent doctorate recipients to use and expand Harvard's extraordinary resources to tackle complex environmental problems. The Environmental Fellows will work for two years with Harvard faculty members in any school or department while also strengthening connections across the University's academic disciplines.

The Award:

The fellowship includes a salary of $87,500 per year, employee health insurance eligibility, up to $2,500 reimbursement for relocation expenses, and a $2,500 annual allowance for travel and other professional expenses.

The Harvard University Center for the Environment expects to award approximately six fellowships for the 2024 cohort. The Center will organize a co-curricular program to ensure that the fellows get to know each other and each other's work. All fellows will attend biweekly dinners with their colleagues, faculty members, and guests.

Program Requirements:

Candidates for 2024 Environmental Fellowships should have received their terminal degree between May 2020 and August 2024. (Fellows must have filed their dissertation before starting their appointment in September 2024.)

Candidates with a doctorate or equivalent in any field are eligible, and they may propose research projects in any discipline. Applicants without a Ph.D. may apply if they have studied in fields where the Ph.D. is not the typical terminal degree. All successful candidates will be able to demonstrate experience performing scholarly research.

Each candidate must secure a commitment from one or more Harvard faculty members to serve as a mentor and to provide office or lab space for the two-year fellowship.

Candidates may have received their degrees at any university in the world. Foreign nationals are eligible for fellowships, though study at Harvard requires proficiency in English.

Candidates who received terminal degrees from Harvard, and post-docs currently working at Harvard are eligible for the fellowship provided their research and host arrangements take them in new directions and forge new connections within the University. Harvard candidates should not propose to continue to work with the same professors or lab groups with whom they are currently associated. No candidate should propose to work extensively with their thesis advisor.

Harvard is an affirmative action, equal opportunity employer.

Successful candidates should be prepared to commit to work at Harvard for the full two years of the fellowship. This fellowship requires residency in the Cambridge, MA area and any fieldwork trip must be scheduled for the summer or January recess.

Application Requirements:

Please complete the online application form found at <https://academicpositions.harvard.edu/postings/12766> by January 10, 2024 at 5 p.m. (ET) and attach the relevant supporting documents as PDFs: curriculum vitae including list of publications; detailed research proposal where applicants should explain their specific reasons for applying to a Harvard residential environmental fellowship (maximum of five pages, references counted separately). Note: While applicants should discuss the proposal with their potential faculty hosts, the final product should clearly be the work of the applicant; and up to three publications/writing samples.

Three letters of reference, including one from the applicant's dissertation adviser.

A letter of support is also required from the applicant's host committing to serve as a mentor and explaining their commitment to the proposed research, including the provision of office or lab space. Hosts should send their letters directly to the attention of Cayla Jett at the Center at environmental\_fellows@harvard.edu.

Purdue University

Rank: Assistant Professor, Field Open - AI

Subfield(s): Open, Public Policy, Public Administration

Specializations: Science & Technology, Regulatory Policy, Research Methods

Assistant Professor of Political Science

Job Summary

Purdue University's Department of Political Science seeks an assistant professor (tenure track), with research interests in artificial intelligence, broadly construed, that connects to any field related to political science, public policy, or public administration.

The scholar holding this position will conduct research, teach undergraduate and graduate courses in their area(s) of interest, and contribute to growing department strengths in technology politics, policy, and governance. The individual holding this position will have the opportunity to participate in departmental, college, and university research and educational initiatives around AI, including the university-level Institute for Physical AI (IPAI), and interdisciplinary and department research labs housed in Political Science and the College of Liberal Arts.

This position will also include teaching in our innovative, nationally recognized Cornerstone Integrated Liberal Arts Program that educates students across the university. This position contributes strength to the cross-college initiative, Advanced Methods at Purdue, a program designed to cultivate methodological expertise and collaborative opportunities.

Qualifications

The candidate must have completed all requirements for a Ph.D. in political science, public policy, or a closely related field prior to the start date of the position. This position requires strong communication skills, the ability to publish high-quality peer-reviewed research, and evidence of preparation for quality instruction. Candidates should demonstrate strong research methods skills, with strengths in quantitative, computational, and/or mixed methods research.

About Purdue University

For the third consecutive year, the College of Liberal Arts at Purdue University is embarking on multiple hires with a focus on artificial intelligence (AI) to begin in Fall 2024. Representing a variety of disciplines in the College, this cohort of scholars will expand our capacity to explore the implications of developing AI across our academic domains and advance and contribute to research and educational initiatives surrounding AI in new and important ways.

Purdue University is a member of the AAU and a land grant university with enrollment of over 52,000 students. The campus is located in West Lafayette, Indiana, an area with a favorable cost of living and a vibrant community. Purdue University offers high-quality research and computing facilities with many opportunities for collaboration in Centers and Institutes across campus and in the broader region. Purdue University is building a world-leading program in AI, including a new Institute for Physical Artificial Intelligence.

Political Science offers PhD, MA, and BA degrees, and is home to several interdisciplinary certificates and/or minors. It houses the Computational Social Science Lab, Governance and Responsible AI Lab (GRAIL) and the International Politics and Responsible Tech (iPART) Lab. Faculty in Political Science are actively involved with many interdisciplinary programs and centers on campus, including the JMK Social Science Research Lab, Purdue Policy Research Institute, the Center for C-SPAN Scholarship and Engagement, and Purdue's Applied Research Institute.

Application Procedures

To apply, please visit careers.purdue.edu (requisition #28467). Applications must be submitted online and include: 1) Cover letter describing research interests and how the applicant's research and teaching fit the principal duties and qualifications of the position, 2) a CV with a list of references, and 3) a teaching portfolio or statement describing preparation to deliver high-quality instruction. Candidates who advance in the review process may be asked to provide additional materials to assist in the review, including letters of recommendation, writing samples, and transcripts.

EXTERNAL candidates (non-Purdue employee) should submit application materials electronically via <https://careers.purdue.edu/>. The job requisition ID number for this position is #28467, or access the position directly via this link: <https://careers.purdue.edu/job-invite/28467/>

University of Missouri, Columbia

Rank: Open-Rank Tenure-Track/Tenured Professor

Open-Rank Tenure-Track/Tenured Professor
Truman School of Government and Public Affairs, University of Missouri

Job Description:

The University of Missouri has launched an ambitious multi-year hiring initiative, Mizzou Forward, that is intended to attract high profile scholars with a record of significant external funding. The Truman School of Government and Public Affairs is participating in this initiative and tenure-line positions are available for exceptional candidates in the fields of public policy, political science, comparative politics, international relations, and/or public administration. This is an executive style search that is managed centrally by the University; applications may be submitted at any time.

A successful MizzouForward candidate is a research leader with a passion for collaboration and the grit to address our world's most pressing research challenges. The colleagues we're looking to recruit possess:

- A proven track record of active, external research funding, particularly from federal agencies
- A research agenda that complements the goals of MizzouForward
- A robust publication and citation record
- National awards and honors, membership with national academies
- An interdisciplinary scope of work

Although all research areas will be considered, the University of Missouri is particularly interested in recruiting scholars focused on artificial intelligence, economic development, disparities in science, health, and education, as well as energy and technology policy.

To apply go to Mizzou Forward (<https://provost.missouri.edu/mizzou-forward>) and submit materials through the priority area that best matches your expertise. For questions about the Truman School or potential priority areas through which to apply, contact Lael Keiser, Truman School Director, at keiserl@missouri.edu.

The Truman School of Government and Public Affairs: Almost 1,000 students and 10,000 alumni strong, the Truman School of Government and Public Affairs provides an interdisciplinary educational environment for our undergraduate and graduate students. Through our research and teaching, we inform public policy, educate for ethical leadership in public service, and foster democratic discourse among citizens, policymakers, and scholars. We offer degrees in Political Science (BA, PhD), Public Administration and Policy (BA), Public Affairs (MPA, PhD), and Defense and Strategic Studies (MA).

About the University of Missouri: The University of Missouri was founded in 1839 in Columbia, Missouri, as the first public university west of the Mississippi River and the first state university in the Louisiana Purchase territory. MU provides the benefits of two universities in one — it is a major land-grant institution and Missouri's largest public research university.

Considered one of the nation's top-tier institutions, MU has a reputation of excellence in teaching and research and is the flagship campus of the four-campus University of Missouri System. It is one of only 64 public universities, and the only public institution in Missouri, to be selected for membership in the Association of American Universities. Mizzou is the flagship campus of the University of Missouri system, located in Columbia, just 20 minutes to the Columbia Regional Airport, and less than 2 hours to St. Louis or Kansas City.

Columbia, MO., consistently rated as one of the best communities to live, is an ideal college town, combining small-town comforts, community spirit and low cost of living with big-city culture, activities and resources. Home to nationally renowned public schools and other colleges and educational centers, Columbia is packed with restaurants and entertainment venues and hosts more than a dozen annual cultural festivals.

About the Department/College

Housed in the College of Social & Behavioral Science, the Department of Politics and International Affairs consists of 20 full-time permanent faculty members, 11 of whom are tenure-track or tenured. We are a community of political scientists dedicated to excellence in teaching, research, and service. We use the study of politics to empower scholars, students, and the public at large to use critical thinking and communication skills to expand curiosity and integrity in our diverse and ever-changing world. We have approximately 450 undergraduate majors (Fall 2023), as well as MA, MPA, and PhD programs.

About the Position

The Department of Politics and International Affairs (PIA) is seeking a Tenure-Track Assistant Professor of American Institutions and American Politics. We are looking for a dynamic candidate with a strong background in American politics and a passion for teaching and research. The successful candidate should be an American politics generalist. The candidate should have a demonstrated record of teaching undergraduate/graduate courses related to American institutions and American politics. (e.g., American institutions, branches of government, the U.S. Constitution, and American government agencies).

The standard teaching load in the College of Social and Behavioral Sciences is 3-3, although additional responsibilities can reduce this load. The applicant's area of research expertise should be related to American institutions and politics, and they should have a demonstrated record and potential for future publications in this field. The successful applicant will coordinate, teach, and train graduate students in American institutions and politics. Preferably, the successful candidate would have applied experiences in their past scholarship or work such as studying or working with lobbyists, legislators, non-profits, campaigns, or government agencies. Furthermore, the successful candidate would have experiences and networks that lend themselves to applied student experiences.

The successful candidate will actively participate in research and teaching, while also advancing the mission of the Department of Politics and International Affairs and the <https://nau.edu/college-social-behavioral-sciences/>, contributing to our research and teaching missions on the Flagstaff Mountain campus.

We encourage applications from individuals who meet some or all of the preferred qualifications. Where you do not have direct experience, please describe course work, training, other similar experiences, and/or evidence of interest that may demonstrate your ability to succeed in this position.

Responsibilities Include:

- Delivering engaging instruction in American institutions and politics, including large freshmen classes.
- Engaging in scholarly research related to American institutions and politics, and serving the department and university in various committees.
- Cultivating collaborative relationships with graduate students.
- Mentoring and guiding both undergraduate and graduate students in American institutions and politics.
- Fostering a diverse and inclusive learning environment.
- Coordinating, teaching, and mentoring graduate students in their roles as instructors for American institutions and politics courses.

This position is a 9-month tenure track position.

This position is an on-site position which requires the incumbent to complete their work primarily at an NAU site, campus, or facility with or without accommodation. Opportunities for remote work are rare.

- Ability to advocate for faculty, staff, and students in the department.

Compensation & Benefits

Salary range begins at $70,000. Annual salary commensurate with candidate's qualifications and related experience.

This is a Faculty (FAC) position. NAU offers an excellent benefit package including generous health, dental and vision insurance; participation in the Arizona State Retirement System (ASRS) or the Optional Retirement Program (ORP); sick leave accruals and 10 holidays per year; and tuition reduction for employees and qualified family members. More information on benefits at NAU is available at the NAU <https://nau.edu/Human-Resources/Benefits/>. Faculty are hired on a contract basis, renewable according to terms of the <http://nau.edu/Provost/Resources-Policies/>. Employees offered a position will be eligible for state health plans (including NAU's BCBS Plan). Employees will have 31 days from date of hire to enroll in benefits, and their benefits will then be effective the first day of the pay period following their completed enrollment. If a new employee chooses the Arizona State Retirement System (ASRS) retirement option, participation in the ASRS Plan (and the long-term disability coverage that accompanies it) will begin on the first of the pay period following 183 days of employment. New employees who choose to participate in the Optional Retirement Plan (ORP; an alternative to the ASRS plan) will begin to participate on the first day of the pay period following election. The long-term disability plan that accompanies the ORP will begin on the first day of the pay period following election. More information about NAU benefits is available at the NAU <https://nau.edu/Human-Resources/Benefits/>.

Pre-Employment Check

Northern Arizona University requires satisfactory results for the following: a criminal background investigation, an employment history verification and a degree verification (in some cases) prior to employment. You may also be required to complete a fingerprint background check. Additionally, as an employer in the state of Arizona, NAU is required to participate in the federal E-Verify program that assists employers with verifying new employees' right to work in the United States. Finally, each year Northern Arizona University releases an <https://in.nau.edu/police-department/annual-security-and-fire-safety-reports/>. The report is a result of a federal law known as the Clery Act. The report includes Clery reportable crime statistics for the three most recent completed calendar years and discloses procedures, practices and programs NAU uses to keep students and employees safe including how to report crimes or other emergencies occurring on campus. In addition, the <https://in.nau.edu/police-department/annual-security-and-fire-safety-reports/> is combined with the Annual Security Report for the NAU Flagstaff Mountain Campus as this campus has on-campus student housing. This report discloses fire safety policies and procedures related to on-campus student housing and statistics for fires that occurred in those facilities. If you would like a free paper copy of the report, please contact the NAUPD Records Department at (928) 523-8884 or by visiting the department at 525 E. Pine Knoll Drive in Flagstaff.

Brown University

Rank: Postdoctoral Fellows at the Africa Initiative at Watson Institute for International and Public Affairs at Brown University, 2024-2026

Postdoctoral Fellows at the Africa Initiative at Watson Institute for International and Public Affairs at Brown University, 2024-2026

As part of a broader commitment to develop its programmatic focus on Africa, the Watson Institute for International and Public Affairs at Brown University seeks to appoint two two-year postdoctoral fellows who will participate actively in the ongoing Africa Initiative. Broadly, the Watson Institute aspires to promote a just and peaceful world through research, teaching, and public engagement. The Africa Initiative postdoctoral fellows will contribute to this core mission with a specific focus on Africa. A main aim is to galvanize the careers of young social scientists conducting research in Africa related to the Institute's three core thematic areas: development, governance, and security. Participants in this program will join an interdisciplinary community of scholars engaged in theoretically and substantively important research addressing the most pressing global issues of our time. Fellows receive two years of support, with the expectation that they will pursue research and participate fully in the intellectual life of the Africa Initiative and the Institute. Fellows will also teach one course per year in the Institute or in an affiliated Brown University social science department. Watson Institute is especially interested in qualified candidates who can contribute, through their research, teaching, and/or service, to the diversity and excellence of the academic community.

Founded in 1764, Brown is a leading research university distinct for its student-centered learning and deep sense of purpose. Brown University students, faculty, and staff are driven by the idea that their work will have an impact on the world. Brown is a place where rigorous scholarship, complex problem-solving, and service to the public good are defined by collaboration, intellectual discovery, and working in ways that transcend traditional disciplinary boundaries.

The fellowship competition is open to candidates from the social sciences, including anthropology, economics, history, political science, and sociology. The selection process is open with regard to nationality. Candidates from or located in Africa strongly encouraged to apply. Scholars who have received their PhDs within three years of the application deadline are eligible to apply. Fellows will receive an annual stipend of $75,000, for this benefits-eligible position. Additional funding will be made available for research expenses and research-related programming on campus. Candidates selected for the postdoctoral fellows' positions who have not completed their dissertations by July 1, 2024, will be paid a reduced salary until their dissertation is defended.

To receive full consideration, the following materials should be submitted by November 15, 2023, to the application portal: <http://apply.interfolio.com/131819>

- A cover letter stating the applicant's academic field, status of their dissertation, and proposed research to be conducted during their fellowship period. The cover letter should not exceed 2,000 words and should make clear the focus on Africa as well as where in the Institute's core areas of security, development, or governance the proposed research best fits. Please also include a statement about teaching in a diverse and inclusive classroom.

- An up-to-date curriculum vitae.
- A copy of each graduate transcript.
- A writing sample.
- Three letters of recommendation from scholars familiar with the applicant's research.

Review of applications will begin on November 15, 2023; to receive full consideration applications should be received by that date. Awards will be announced in February 2024.

Northwestern University

Rank: 2024-26 SPAN Postdoctoral Fellows

Specializations: Gender Politics & Policy, Lesbian & Gay Studies, Women & Politics

The Sexualities Project at Northwestern (SPAN) invites applications for two-year postdoctoral fellowships in Sexuality Studies, to run from September 1, 2024 through August 31, 2026. Applications are welcome from scholars who study sexuality from a social science perspective (broadly construed). Each Fellow's appointment will be a joint one: in the Gender & Sexuality Studies Program and in another department relevant to the Fellow's research interests. We are particularly interested in candidates who could affiliate with one of the following participating departments: Anthropology, Black Studies, Communication Studies, History, Human Development and Social Policy, Linguistics, Performance Studies, Political Science, Religious Studies, or Sociology. That is, the Fellow must have relevant expertise in both Sexuality Studies and one of these other disciplines, and must be prepared to teach courses that reflect that combined expertise.

Fellows will pursue a program of independent scholarship under the guidance of a faculty mentor and will teach two undergraduate courses

(typically one seminar and one lecture course) over the course of each year. Northwestern is on the quarter system by which the Fellows' two courses will be distributed across three academic quarters. Fellows will also be expected to be active participants in SPAN's community of faculty and graduate students and, as applicable, in their affiliated department by attending talks and events, and by giving a public talk once each year. Finally, they will assist in the organization of on-campus educational activities such as the annual SPAN workshop.

Fellows will be expected to be in residence for each of the academic years of their appointment, and all teaching will be conducted in person.

Applicants with a PhD (or equivalent doctoral degree) must have completed it after September 1, 2020. Applicants without a PhD (or equivalent doctoral degree) must complete all the requirements for the degree before September 1, 2024. At time of application, the applicant must be available for the full two-year term of the Fellowship. The stipend is $64,000 in the first year of the fellowship. In addition, the Fellow is eligible for $4,000 per year to fund research and conference travel, and up to $2,000 for allowable relocation expenses in the first year. Up to $1,000 is also available for allowable travel expenses for an area visit prior to the start of the postdoc term. This is a full-time, benefits eligible position.

All application materials other than letters of recommendation must be received by 11:59 p.m. on December 1, 2023. The initial letter of recommendation is due no later than December 8, 2023. Given that your references will not receive submission instructions until you submit your completed application, we urge you to submit your application well before the deadline.

FAQs and submission instructions appear below. Administrative questions not addressed below should be directed to Ariel Clark-Semyck (mailto:sexualities@northwestern.edu; sexualities@northwestern.edu). Substantive questions not addressed below may be sent to the Co-Directors of SPAN, Héctor Carrillo (mailto:hector@northwestern.edu; hector@northwestern.edu) and Gregory Ward (mailto:gw@northwestern.edu; gw@northwestern.edu). ## Duke University

Rank: Assistant Professor of Public Policy

The Sanford School of Public Policy invites applicants for up to three tenure-track Assistant Professor positions across a range of policy areas including Climate, Development, Education, Health, Democratic Governance, Local/State Policy, Migration, Poverty, Social and Economic Inequality/Inequity, Social Safety Nets, and Urban Policy. The focus could be on domestic or global issues. We invite applicants with doctoral-level training in public policy and related disciplines, such as economics, political science, public health, psychology, or sociology. We welcome scholars with expertise in quantitative and qualitative research methods. Successful candidates will be expected to teach courses in Sanford's core curriculum, which includes policy analysis, political analysis, microeconomics, ethics, and statistics.

Duke University and the Sanford School of Public Policy are strongly committed to advancing inclusive excellence throughout our research, teaching, and service activities. A diverse faculty – defined broadly as representing a wide range of identities, lived experiences, and perspectives – is a prerequisite for excellence and is essential to driving innovation within our scholarly community. To achieve these goals, it is essential that all members of the community feel valued and welcome, that the contributions of all individuals are respected, and that all voices are heard. All members of our community are expected to uphold these values, and we seek to hire faculty who are passionate about increasing the participation and success of individuals from all different backgrounds and communities.

Interested candidates should submit the following materials for review: (i) cover letter describing their motivation to be part of a policy school; (ii) curriculum vitae; (iii) a representative research paper; (iv) a one- to two-page research statement that describes current and future research, as well as the ways that lived experience influences their approach to research; (v) a one-page statement describing their teaching philosophy, previous experiences, future plans for teaching, and experience and approach to fostering an inclusive learning and mentoring environment for their students; and (vi) the names of three references or three reference letters. The deadline for priority review is October 31, 2023. Applications will then be reviewed on a rolling basis until April 30, 2024, or until the position has been filled. ## Carnegie Mellon University

Subfield(s): International Relations, Methodology, Open

Carnegie Mellon University (CMU) has launched a major new initiative devoted to the wise development, use and governance of new and emerging technologies that are changing the national and international security landscape. As part of this forward-looking enterprise, the university seeks top tenure-line scholars in political science, international relations, and other related disciplines with established interest in emerging technologies relevant to international affairs.

We seek scholars at both the entry and senior levels. This is an outstanding opportunity to become part of a new, interdisciplinary initiative that will combine Carnegie Mellon's existing strengths in AI, cybersecurity, block chain, robotics, and other technologies, with scholarship focused on national security, international relations, ethics, law, and policy. We seek intellectually agile, innovative scholars willing to work cooperatively across disciplinary boundaries to tackle the challenges of emergent technologies for war and peace.

Background

Carnegie Mellon University (CMU) launched a major new interdisciplinary institute, the Carnegie Mellon Institute for Security and Technology (CMIST), in 2023. CMIST is a university-wide initiative devoted to the wise development, use, and governance of new and emerging technologies that are changing the national and international security landscape.

The home for Carnegie Mellon University's (CMU) study of Political Science and International Relations, CMIST is also uniquely poised to take advantage of the university's strengths in computer science and engineering and its distinctive tradition of collaborative, cross-university, cross-disciplinary research. CMU is ranked in the top five in the U.S. in Computer Science and in Engineering. It is ranked #1 in the subfields of artificial intelligence, computer engineering, cybersecurity, information systems, and software engineering. It has leading research institutes in areas such as robotics, machine learning, natural language technologies, human-computer interaction, engineering and public policy, and public policy and management--all designed to reach across disciplinary boundaries to solve key problems and address the highest-priority challenges facing humanity. Tying these areas of strength to crucial questions of strategy, security, ethics, and policy, CMIST is the newest addition to this rich CMU research landscape.

Carnegie Mellon University

Formally established in 1967, CMU is a dynamic R1 institution that has an exceptional impact on the world. Despite its relative youth, Carnegie Mellon consistently ranks in the top 25 US national universities. CMU is a global, research-intensive university with more than 14,000 students, more than 110,000 living alumni, approximately 5,000 faculty and staff, and over 100 research centers. It is a place of creativity, entrepreneurship, pragmatism, and ambition, with a tradition of strategically focusing its efforts and resources in areas where it can lead, then pursuing those areas with startling intensity. The research and teaching initiative in CMIST is just such a strategic undertaking.

Carnegie Mellon University is an equal opportunity employer and is committed to increasing the diversity of its community on a range of intellectual and cultural dimensions. Carnegie Mellon welcomes faculty applicants who will contribute to this diversity through their research, teaching and service, including women, members of minority groups, protected veterans, individuals with disabilities, and others who would contribute in different ways. Carnegie Mellon University seeks to meet the needs of dual-career couples and is a member of the Higher Education Recruitment Consortium (HERC) that assists with dual-career searches.

How to Apply

Rice University

Rank: Director of Economic Mobility

The Kinder Institute for Urban Research at Rice University is seeking a tenured Associate or Full Professor to fill the position of Director of Economic Mobility. This director will oversee an interdisciplinary team of community-engaged researchers who work closely with local partners on topics such as labor economics, economic development, discrimination, income and wealth inequality, financial security, and inter- and intra-generational mobility. Faculty directors in the Kinder Institute are expected to work closely with the institute director and leadership team to develop and maintain relationships with community partners, set the research agenda together with these partners, coordinate intersecting projects across research teams, and ensure that research use and impact are maximized. Faculty directors are also expected to secure research grants, working closely with the leadership and grant writing teams. Leadership experience and community partnership experience is required.

Candidates must have a Ph.D. or terminal degree and an outstanding record in urban research, experience leading a research team, and experience in community-engaged research done in partnership with local organizations that apply the research in meaningful ways. Faculty members are on nine-month appointments and the successful candidate will have a tenure home in the department that aligns with the selected applicant's disciplinary background (see here for a list of departments at Rice), which includes teaching undergraduate and graduate courses in that department. Grant funding may be used for course buyouts. Kinder faculty directors are expected to center their research efforts on institute projects, utilizing the institute's resources, and co-developed with the institute's community partners, aiming to inform their efforts to improve lives. Because the Kinder Institute focuses on maximizing research use and impact, institute researchers work closely with community partners to develop the research agenda, plan how research will be used, and generate informative research products beyond, but inclusive of, academic publications.

The Kinder Institute for Urban Research is an interdisciplinary research organization that works in direct partnership with local agencies and organizations that use its research, data, and policy analysis to implement solutions to critical challenges facing the Houston region. The institute aims to improve lives through data, research, engagement, and action. It consists of (and is developing) five centers that conduct research on housing, education, public health, economic mobility, and population dynamics. Centers conduct research that focuses on their particular topics, as well as research that intersects across centers, through interdisciplinary teams that specialize in solutions-oriented, community-engaged research called research-practice partnerships (RPPs).

The Kinder Institute has a team of over 60 full-time research and administrative staff, plus faculty and student affiliates. Researchers benefit from access to hundreds of datasets, established long-term community partnerships, highly skilled interdisciplinary teams, and extensive research support such as financial, communications, and grant writing teams. Founded in 2010, the Kinder Institute was endowed with a gift from Houston philanthropists Richard and Nancy Kinder. Today, the institute generates funding from research grants, corporate sponsorships, individual donors, and an endowment.

The Kinder Institute is committed to promoting diversity, equity, and inclusion in our research and service endeavors. We strive to promote an environment that welcomes and respects diverse backgrounds, experiences, and views, as this diversity strengthens our research and our collaborative outreach efforts. In this spirit, we particularly welcome applications from all genders and members of historically underrepresented groups who exemplify diverse experiences. The search committee is eager to receive applications from scholars with lived experience related to the issues on which the Kinder Institute is focused.

Interested candidates should submit application materials through Interfolio at <http://apply.interfolio.com/132357>, including a CV, cover letter, research sample, and statement of partnership research. References will be requested for candidates that advance to the short-list. All materials must be submitted by Nov 1, 2023. The start date is July 1, 2024. In the cover letter and statement of research partnership, applicants are encouraged to address their experience with and/or plans for building and leading inclusive research teams.

Rice University is a private, comprehensive university located in the heart of Houston's dynamic Museum District. The Houston, Texas, metro is one of the largest and most diverse in the country. Rice offers undergraduate and graduate degrees across eight schools and has approximately 4,000 undergraduate and 3,000 graduate students. Rice consistently ranks among the top 20 US universities and the top 10 in undergraduate teaching; its endowment ranks among the top 20 (US News & World Report).

University of Notre Dame

Rank: Signature Course Fellowship

The Notre Dame Institute for Advanced Study (NDIAS) is a university-wide institute that convenes an interdisciplinary group of fellows each year to study questions that engage complex ethical challenges of our time and affect our ability to lead valuable, meaningful lives.

Made possible by a grant from the John Templeton Foundation, the Signature Course Fellowship funds and supports faculty who have a vision for translating research on human flourishing into large-scale, public-facing, pedagogically innovative courses that have the potential to serve as a cornerstone in their university's curriculum.

Paradigmatic examples of signature courses include Michael Sandel's Justice (Harvard), Bill Burnett and Dave Evans' Designing Your Life (Stanford), and Meghan Sullivan's God and the Good Life (Notre Dame).

The Signature Course Fellowship Program aims to gather a cohort of scholars from across disciplines and higher education who are ready to build and launch their own signature course addressing a pressing question for human flourishing.

During the 2024-2025 academic year, the program will fund 15 faculty members for residential sabbaticals to pursue their projects: two during the Fall 2024 semester, three during the Spring 2025 semester, and 10 during an intensive, one-month program in Summer 2025 (likely in June).

Semester-long Fellows (Fall 2024, Spring 2025) will receive a $50,000 fellowship stipend during the semester of residency as well as subsidized housing near Notre Dame. Summer 2025 Fellows will receive a $15,000 fellowship stipend during their four weeks of residency as well as subsidized housing.

All funded course proposals will be provided a $10,000 subgrant to help launch their course along with a $7,000 design fund allotment to develop assets for the course (such as the creation of a course trailer videos, publicity posters, co-curricular activities, field experiences, etc.). A portion of the design fund should also be used to conduct a benchmarking assessment before or during residency.

Signature Course Fellows will have the opportunity to work with a student intern to support their course-creation efforts. For semester-long Fellows (Fall 2024, Spring 2025), this student will be from Notre Dame and will be provided by the NDIAS. For summer 2025 Fellows, each Fellow will be invited to select one student from their institution to join the summer program as a research intern. Summer student interns receive a $2,500 stipend, housing during their internship at Notre Dame, and a food stipend.

Signature Course Fellowships are open to distinguished or high-potential tenure-stream scholars who are developing a signature course on a topic connected to human flourishing or ethics.

Faculty from any academic discipline that engages with ethics and human flourishing are invited to apply—indeed, one goal of the program is to support a Faculty cohort that represents a broad range of disciplinary perspectives.

To be eligible for a Fellowship, candidates should have assurance from their home institution that the course will be launched, supported, and sustained post-fellowship. Fellows will need to submit letters of support from their department chair and dean-level administrator (dean, associate dean, etc.) indicating this assurance at the time of application.

Faculty members from any university, including the University of Notre Dame, are welcome to apply. While some Fellowships will be awarded to Notre Dame faculty, the majority will be awarded to faculty from other institutions.

There are no citizenship requirements for these fellowships—scholars from outside the U.S. are invited to apply.

Although we anticipate that the majority of the courses developed in the Signature Course Fellowship program will be targeted to undergraduates, applicants who are developing courses targeted to graduate or professional students are also welcome to apply.

We will also consider proposals for dual-instructor, team-taught courses. The instructors may apply for the Fellowship jointly, with the intention that both instructors will serve as Signature Course Fellows simultaneously during the same fellowship period. Or one instructor may apply for the Fellowship individually, without the intention that the other will serve as a Fellow. In the case where only one instructor serves as a Fellow, they may request additional funding if they would like to make it possible for the un-funded co-instructor to visit the program on an occasional basis.

One goal of the fellowship selection process is the creation of a diverse and collaborative community of Fellows with a range of disciplines and academic ranks. Applicants who are members of traditionally under-represented groups are encouraged to apply.

The Signature Course Fellowship program is an in-person, residential program. All Fellows are expected to reside in the South Bend area and remain in residence at the University of Notre Dame during the period of their fellowship (except for vacation periods, holidays, and University breaks).

Fellows should be free of their regular commitments and have their primary office at the NDIAS so they may devote themselves full time to the work outlined in their proposal and participate fully in the engaging and cooperative community of scholars at the Institute.

Fellows are required to attend the Vision Summit (August 2024), all planning seminars during their fellowship period, and the Summative Conference (May 2026).

Fellows are expected to teach the course they've developed at least three times in the three years after the fellowship period and to develop a website to accompany the course. (Website development will be a central task during the Fellowship program, and Fellows will receive substantial website training and support while in residence.)

Fellows must also commit to participate in program evaluation of their course and their Fellowship experience. This may require writing self-study reports, conducting interviews with students, creating and distributing surveys, and permitting evaluators to visit and evaluate the course during the launch phase.

Applications for Faculty Fellowships must be submitted through Interfolio and should include the following:

- 1) Cover Letter
- 2) CV
- 3) Project Proposal (2-3 pages, single spaced). The Project Proposal should describe the course the applicant intends to build, including its anticipated scale (class/audience size), the pedagogical tools employed, and key learning goals. The applicant should also situate the course in their department's or university's curriculum and discuss the unmet need it will fill.
- 4) Letters of endorsement from the applicant's department chair and dean-level administrator (dean, associate dean, etc.). These letters should address the strength of the applicant's course proposal, its importance to the university's curriculum, and the applicant's availability for a full-time residential fellowship of the sort our program provides. The letters should also provide assurance that the applicant will be able to teach the course at least three times in the three years following the fellowship.

Finalists will be asked to be available for a brief Zoom conversation with committee members during the final stage of the selection process.

Applicants will be evaluated according to the following criteria:

Course Content and Learning Goals. The course should be informed by up-to-date scholarship in the relevant disciplines, be appropriately engaged with practical questions facing students, and include at least one significant learning goal that requires students to apply this scholarship to their own lives in the context of the course themes.

Scholarly Excellence: The course should reflect the most significant ideas coming out of relevant research on flourishing from the relevant disciplines. The instructor should have a plan for integrating their research, teaching, and public engagement, and the course should reflect both breadth and depth of engagement in its design.

Sustainability and Institutional Visibility: The course should fulfill a clear, unmet need in the home university's curriculum. The plan for meeting the need should be innovative and benefit from a semester of intensive design. The home university should have a plan for integrating the course into department requirements and/or the core curriculum.

Scale and Likely Impact: There should be demonstrated potential for public impact and a thoughtful balance of breadth, approachability, and rigor. At some institutions, this will mean offering the course to a large number of students. At others this will mean building out a mechanism for the public to engage with and learn from the project.

University of Colorado, Boulder

Rank: Assistant Professor

The Department of Political Science at the University of Colorado Boulder invites applications for a tenure-track position at the Assistant Professor level to begin Fall 2024. The department is particularly interested in scholars who specialize in the study of institutions with expertise in the area of race, ethnicity, and politics. The ability to teach research methods would be an advantage. Scholars with these specialties from all subfields of political science are encouraged to apply. Scholars who can contribute to the thematic Racial and Structural Inequality hiring plan in the CU Social Sciences Division are also encouraged to apply. The successful candidate will teach courses at the undergraduate and graduate levels.

The CU Political Science department comprises roughly 25 full-time faculty, over 1,000 undergraduate majors, about 50 Ph.D. students, and three full-time staff members. We provide students with a rigorous education and conduct influential research in all subfields of the discipline.

Your key responsibilities will be teaching, research and service.

This is a tenure track position at the rank of assistant professor. As part of the University of Colorado Boulder's deep commitment to equity, diversity, and inclusion, the campus has implemented a reference check program with respect to final candidates for tenured faculty appointments. The reference check program is intended to allow CU Boulder to collect and review information about a candidate's conduct at their previous institutions, specifically conduct related to sexual misconduct, harassment, and/or discrimination – before making hiring decisions. All final candidates for tenured faculty appointments are required to complete an Authorization to Release Information.

The successful candidate will have the knowledge and skills necessary to teach undergraduate and graduate courses on political institutions and race and ethnic politics. Ability to teach undergraduate and graduate courses on research methods will be an advantage. They will also have the ability to conduct high quality political science research that is publishable in professional peer-reviewed outlets.

The salary range for this full-time appointment is $95,000-$100,000 annually.

Colby College

Rank: Assistant Professor - Artificial Intelligence in Politics and Policy (tenure-track)

The Department of Government at Colby College invites applications for a tenure-track position to begin in the fall of 2024. The candidate should have a research and teaching focus analyzing the intersections of artificial intelligence, politics, and policy – as well as the ability to use machine learning/artificial intelligence in this research. The candidate will be expected to teach courses that explore the social, ethical, and policy implications of AI and machine learning, as well as courses on how to apply methodological tools from artificial intelligence/machine learning for social science research. The successful applicant will be expected to teach the department's introductory course in research methods as well as additional courses chosen in consultation with the department chair.

Colby is a highly selective liberal arts college located in Central Maine with high standards for teaching and research. Our students are motivated, intellectually curious, and easily engaged in the classroom and in independent research. Our department faculty have active research agendas and receive generous support from the college, including a pre-tenure sabbatical during the fourth year, start-up and travel funds, divisional research grant opportunities, and department funded student research assistants. The teaching load at Colby is 4.5 courses per year.

Thanks to the generous gift that created the Davis Institute for Artificial Intelligence, Colby College will be hiring an interdisciplinary cluster of two faculty members and one postdoctoral associate this academic year. Faculty at Colby have numerous opportunities to collaborate on research and teaching related to AI; currently there are faculty pursuing AI-related scholarship in chemistry, philosophy, environmental science, anthropology, music, physics, economics, statistics, east Asian studies and computer science. The successful applicant for the present position will be expected to contribute to the college's AI programs and interdisciplinary initiatives. For more about the Davis Institute for AI see <https://davisinstituteai.colby.edu>

The ideal candidate will hold a Ph.D. in political science, public policy, or a related field (ABD will be considered). The successful candidate will provide evidence of excellence in teaching a diverse student body and present a strong and on-going research program that is open to the inclusion of undergraduates. The college and the department are committed to enhancing the diversity and inclusivity of the campus community and the curriculum; candidates who can contribute to these goals are encouraged to identify their strengths and experiences in these areas when they apply.

Applicants should submit the following materials: a letter of application, a curriculum vitae, a statement outlining the candidate's research agenda, a recent sample of scholarly writing, a statement expressing the candidate's teaching experience and philosophy, course descriptions and/or syllabi for three proposed courses, evidence of teaching excellence, a graduate school transcript, and three confidential letters of recommendation. Please submit all of these materials via Interfolio: <http://apply.interfolio.com/132179>. Review of applications will begin October 15 and will continue until the position is filled. Questions about this position should be directed to: government-ai-search@colby.edu.

The University of Birmingham is one of the world's leading research universities, ranked in the top 100 globally. We are dedicated to academic excellence, pioneering research advancing understanding of real-world challenges, and enriching community locally and worldwide. We are one of the largest Schools of Government in the United Kingdom – home to more than 90 full-time academic staff, more than 1,500 undergraduate and taught postgraduate students, and more than 70 doctoral researchers.

Appointments will be made in the School's constituent departments of <https://www.birmingham.ac.uk/schools/government/departments/public-administration-and-policy/index.aspx> Public Administration and Policy&lt;/a&gt; , <https://www.birmingham.ac.uk/schools/government/departments/international-development/index.aspx>International Development&lt;/a&gt; and <https://www.birmingham.ac.uk/schools/government/departments/political-science-international-studies/index.aspx>Political Science and International Studies&lt;/a&gt; based on scholarly background and expertise.

Candidates at all ranks must demonstrate excellence in both research and teaching. We aim to build an outstanding scholarly community that thrives on academic rigor, interdisciplinary collaboration, and embodies the diversity of society worldwide.

To apply, please submit a cover letter, CV, research statement, teaching statement, and names of 3 referees via corresponding links above.

Candidates shortlisted for interview will also be invited for a campus visit to meet the faculty in the School and Department. We are starting to consider applications for interview as early as late September, but the call is open until positions are filled or November 30, 2023 at the latest, whichever occurs first so we encourage early applications.

For questions, please contact Professor René Lindstädt (Head of School of Government) at R.Lindstaedt@bham.ac.uk.

We aim to ensure that Equality, Diversity, and Inclusion are embedded across the University of Birmingham and welcome applications from all sections of the community and are open to discussions around all forms of flexible working.

Princeton University

Rank: Visiting Research Scholar, Fung Global Fellows Program

Princeton University is pleased to announce the call for applications to the Fung Global Fellows Program at the Princeton Institute for International and Regional Studies (PIIRS). The program will select early-career scholars from around the world to be in residence at Princeton for an academic year and to engage in research and discussion around a common theme. The fellowships will be awarded to scholars employed outside the United States who have a faculty appointment, a professional research appointment, or are an established independent scholar. They will also be expected to return to their positions at the conclusion of the fellowship. Lastly, they must have demonstrated outstanding scholarly achievement and unusual intellectual promise. Early-career scholars will be appointed at the rank of Visiting Research Scholar. The number of candidates hired at this rank will depend on the qualifications of the overall applicant pool.

During the academic year 2024-25, the program theme will be &quot;Colonial Residues.&quot; Colonialism is frequently evoked today as a root cause of global inequity or, in some jarring instances, nostalgic celebration. In both the &quot;new&quot; states and the &quot;old&quot; ones that reluctantly let them go, colonialism's many impacts are ubiquitous-its traces often tangible and measurable, shaping political regimes and socioeconomic wellbeing while also determining whose stories are told and by whom; whose achievements are celebrated and how; and whose resources are used, removed, or polluted. We invite applications from scholars whose work expands our understanding of this phenomenon. Applicants may address any region of the world, past and present, and may be from any disciplinary background in the humanities and social sciences. The hope is that we will enable a truly exceptional set of international scholars to come together to interrogate today's colonial residues, asking how they may be apprehended, and if there might not even be scalable solutions for our common future.

Applicants must apply online at <https://www.princeton.edu/acad-positions/position/31841>. Applications are due on November 15, 2023 (11:59 p.m. EST). To be eligible, applicants must have received their Ph.D. (or equivalent) no earlier than September 1, 2014. Fellowships will be awarded on the strength of a candidate's proposed research project, the relationship of the project to the program's theme, the candidate's scholarly record and ability to contribute to the intellectual life of the program. More information: <https://funggfp.princeton.edu/applications>.

The following items must be submitted by the applicant, in English, by November 15, 2023:

- Cover letter (1.5 pages maximum)
- Curriculum Vitae (including publications)
- Research proposal (maximum of 3 pages, single spaced)
- One writing sample (article or book chapter, maximum of 50 pages)
- For those applicants with a current faculty appointment or a professional research appointment, an official letter from the applicant's current employer affirming that, should an offer be made, the applicant would be permitted to accept it and to spend the academic year at Princeton University. If applicant is an established independent scholar, please upload a PDF stating this as the applicant's current status.
- The names and email addresses for three referees, who will be contacted automatically by the online application system with an invitation to upload their letter of recommendation to the system by the application deadline. (*Please note: all letters of reference should be submitted by your referees before the November 15, 2023 deadline.*)

University of California, Los Angeles

Rank: Faculty Position Search, 2023-2024

APPLICATION WINDOW:

Open date: September 1, 2023

Review date: October 1, 2023

The UCLA Department of Political Science invites applications from outstanding candidates for an open-rank position in the field of International Relations, to begin on July 1, 2024. While the department has particular needs in this field, we also welcome applications from exceptional candidates in any field who contribute to diversity and inclusion at UCLA and the communities that we serve.

UCLA and the UCLA Department of Political Science are firmly committed to the principles of equity, diversity, and inclusion. Therefore, we ask each applicant to submit with their application a statement that addresses their past efforts, as well as future plans, to advance equity, diversity, and inclusion in their scholarship, teaching, and service.

The online application should include a letter of interest, a curriculum vitae, a statement of research interests, the aforementioned diversity statement, evidence of teaching excellence in related courses, at least one writing sample, completed Authorization to Release Information form, and three letters of reference. Applicants who do not yet hold a faculty position or who have held one for fewer than two years should also include a graduate transcript. The letters of recommendation should be uploaded directly by the referees. A PhD in Political Science or related field should be in hand prior to the appointment. To ensure full consideration, please submit applications by October 1, 2023, however, applications will be accepted through June 30, 2024. After the initial review date, new applications will only be considered if the position has not yet been filled. Sample guidance for EDI statement: <https://ucla.app.box.com/v/sample-EDI-statements>.

The posted UC salary scales set the minimum pay determined by rank and/or step at appointment. The on-scale salary range for the open-rank position in International Relations is $74,600 - $197,100. Off-scale salaries (i.e., a salary that is higher than the published system-wide salary at the designated rank and step), and other components of pay, are offered when necessary to meet competitive conditions. UC salary scales: <https://www.ucop.edu/academicpersonnel-programs/compensation/index.html>.

The University of California is committed to creating and maintaining a community dedicated to the advancement, application, and transmission of knowledge and creative endeavors through academic excellence, where all individuals who participate in University programs and activities can work and learn together in a safe and secure environment, free of violence, harassment, bullying and other demeaning behavior, discrimination, exploitation, or intimidation. With this commitment as well as a commitment to addressing all forms of academic misconduct, UCLA conducts targeted employment reference checks for finalists to whom departments or other hiring units would like to extend formal offers of appointment into Academic Senate faculty positions. The targeted employment reference checks involve contacting the finalists' current and prior places of employment to ask whether there have been substantiated findings of misconduct that would violate the University's Faculty Code of Conduct. To implement this process, UCLA requires all applicants for Academic Senate faculty positions to complete, sign, and upload the form entitled "Authorization to Release Information" into RECRUIT as part of their application. If the applicant does not include the signed authorization to release information with the application materials, the application will be considered incomplete. As with any incomplete application, the application will not receive further consideration. Although all applicants for faculty recruitments must complete the entire application, only finalists (i.e. those to whom the department or other hiring unit would like to extend a formal offer) considered for Academic Senate faculty positions will be subject to targeted employment reference checks.

As a University employee, you will be required to comply with all applicable University policies and/or collective bargaining agreements, as may be amended from time to time. Federal, state, or local government directives may impose additional requirements.

The University of California is an Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action Employer. All qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to race, color, religion, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, national origin, disability, age or protected veteran status. For the complete University of California nondiscrimination and affirmative action policy, see: UC Nondiscrimination & Affirmative Action Policy.

University of California, San Diego

Rank: Associate Professor - Designing Just Futures

The Department of Political Science within the School of Social Sciences at the University of California, San Diego invites applications for an Associate Professor as part of UCSD's Designing Just Futures Cluster Hire Initiative, to begin July 1, 2024. We are committed to academic excellence and diversity within the faculty, staff, and student body. We welcome applications from subfields across political science (American, Comparative, International Relations, Political Theory and Methods) and other disciplines that focus on the unique political, legal, economic, and cultural status of Indigenous nations, and their relationships to local, state, and federal governments.

The selected candidate will conduct research, teaching, and service that will advance scholarship and institutional solutions for addressing systemic and structural inequities and advancing UCSD's commitment to Indigenous inclusion, anti-racism, anti-oppression, equity, and social justice. Candidates will utilize their professional experience, community engagement, and personal background that have facilitated their understanding of and ability to better serve students from Indigenous and other underrepresented populations. Candidates must currently hold a PhD in Political Science or a related field.

This search is part of a UC San Diego-wide cluster hire on Designing Just Futures that aims to recruit scholars, artists, or practitioners who can contribute to the advancement of design, social justice, and futures and seeks engagement across disciplines to address issues of territory, access and equity, and social and political debates pertinent to Native American, Indigenous, Black, and migrant communities, while also working within their home departments and professional communities. Faculty hired under this initiative will join the UC San Diego Design Lab and the Indigenous Futures Institute to forge a new paradigm of engagement and collaboration that draws on the geographic, academic, institutional, and cultural strengths of our tri-national region across Southern California, Baja California, and the Kumeyaay region.

UC San Diego was built on the unceded territory of the Kumeyaay people. Today and every day we honor their stewardship of this land and their tremendous contributions to our region. Land acknowledgements are an important gesture of collective recognition and accountability. But we also commit ourselves as a department to action, to truth in learning and teaching the history of this place and its people, a reckoning with injustices, past and present, and a pathway forward that respects the dignity and human rights of all.

New York University

Rank: Assistant Professor - Social Media and Computational Social Science

Description

The NYU School of Arts and Science seeks excellent candidates whose research stands at the intersection of digital media and politics. This tenure track, assistant professor position is open to scholars across disciplines. The successful candidate will join the appropriate academic department in the NYU School of Arts and Science and is expected to play an integral role in the NYU Center for Social Media and Politics (CSMaP). Methodologically, applicants should demonstrate a mastery of quantitative and/or computational methods in the social sciences. Substantively, applicants should have research interests that align with and/or compliment the areas of interest at CSMaP. The position is to begin September 1, 2024, pending budgetary and administrative approval.

Compensation: In compliance with NYC's Pay Transparency Act, the annual base salary range for this position is $100,000 - $150,000. New York University considers factors such as (but not limited to) the scope and responsibilities of the position, the candidate's work experience, education/training, key skills, internal peer equity, as well as market and organizational considerations when extending an offer.

Qualifications

Candidates are expected to possess a PhD by September 1, 2024 in a relevant social science or related discipline; to have records of excellent research; and to indicate the potential to be future disciplinary leaders in their respective fields of expertise.

The School of Arts and Science at NYU is dedicated to the goal of building a diverse and inclusive academic community. Accordingly, we strongly encourage applications from candidates who demonstrate through their scholarship, teaching and mentoring, and/or service engagement, a commitment to these goals. We are particularly interested in hearing about steps you have taken (or plan to take) to foster an open and inclusive intellectual environment in the classroom, in the department and on campus, and/or in your field more generally.

Application Instructions

Initial application review will begin Sept 15, 2023, but applications will be considered until the position is filled. Interested candidates should submit: a cover letter, CV, a research statement, a teaching statement, a one-page statement as to how the candidate will contribute to a diverse and inclusive environment at NYU, a job market paper, one (or two) additional research papers, and three letters of recommendation. All of these documents are to be uploaded in Interfolio at <https://apply.interfolio.com/129573>.

The Faculty of Arts and Science at NYU is at the heart of a leading research university that spans the globe. We seek scholars of the highest caliber, who embody the diversity of the United States as well as the global society in which we live. We strongly encourage applications from women, racial and ethnic minorities, and other individuals who are under-represented in the profession, across color, creed, race, ethnic and national origin, physical ability, gender and sexual identity, or any other legally protected basis. NYU affirms the value of differing perspectives on the world as we strive to build the strongest possible university with the widest reach. To learn more about the Arts and Science commitment to equality and inclusion, please read see <http://as.nyu.edu/departments/facultydiversity.html>

The Center seeks scholars of distinction and promise, especially those who research ethical dimensions of one or more specific social contexts, which may include (but are not limited to) particular domains of contemporary science and technology, such as artificial intelligence, data science, genomics, or climate science, and studies of disability, race, gender, or species. Scholars with research interests and training in philosophy, political theory, legal scholarship, religious ethics, or related areas, and those working on ethical issues in specific social contexts in other disciplines or from interdisciplinary approaches, are encouraged to apply. A joint appointment with another academic unit, such as an academic department, may be possible.

To better realize its scholarly mission and contribute to the University, the Center is committed to enhancing and valuing a diversity of perspectives and experiences among its faculty. The Center seeks to be an inclusive academic community and strongly encourages applications from individuals who identify as members of groups that are underrepresented in their respective discipline. Princeton University is especially interested in qualified candidates who can contribute, through their research, teaching, and/or service, to the diversity and excellence of our academic community.

An appointment at the level of full or associate professor will be tenured; an appointment at the level of assistant professor will be tenure track. A Ph.D. or equivalent by September 1, 2024, is strongly preferred, but not required. Candidates for the Ph.D. who have not completed all the requirements by September 1, 2024, will be appointed at the rank of Instructor for one year (renewable), with promotion to Assistant Professor dependent on the timely completion of the Ph.D.

A complete application will contain the following materials:

- 1) a letter of application
- 2) a curriculum vitae
- 3) a sample of writing in the candidate's field of specialization
- 4) the names and contact details of three persons willing to serve as references.

Please direct all materials to: <https://www.princeton.edu/acad-positions/position/31621>.

Applications that are complete by October 9, 2023, will be assured of the most careful consideration.

This position is subject to the University's background check policy. Princeton University is an Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action Employer and all qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to age, race, color, religion, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity or expression, national origin, disability status, protected veteran status, or any other characteristic protected by law.

Furman University

Rank: Assistant, Associate, or full Professor in Politics and International Affairs

Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Open, Open

The Department of Politics and International Affairs at Furman University invites applications for a tenure-track appointment at the Assistant, Associate, or Full professorial rank in American politics, specializing in racial and ethnic politics, to begin August 1, 2024. The candidate will teach five courses per year, including introductory and upper-level courses in American politics. The candidate must demonstrate the potential for superb teaching and excellence in scholarship. The person hired must possess a Ph.D. in Political Science by August 1, 2024.

Applicants should submit the following documents as a single PDF in the order listed: a letter of interest, C.V., diversity statement, and complete contact information for three references. The diversity statement should describe how the candidate's teaching, scholarship, mentoring and/or service might contribute to a liberal arts college community that includes a commitment to diversity as one of its core values.

Furman University is committed to advancing diversity, equity, and inclusion in all facets of university life and strives to create an anti-racist community through excellence in teaching, mentorship, and programming. Numerous initiatives and programs are underway or planned to promote these ideals, including historical projects, dialogue initiatives, the Center for Inclusive Communities, and a recently approved major in Africana Studies.

The successful candidate will have the ability to work with historically underrepresented students, including students of color, and be committed to assisting the university in its continuing efforts to become a model of inclusive excellence.

The Politics and International Affairs Department is a large department with specialists in all major political science fields. The Department is committed to fostering a professional community where every member is treated with dignity. All are welcome to participate in the department's life and the respectful exploration of ideas. The candidate should show interest in and aptitude for contributing to this endeavor.

The Furman student experience is supported by a rich network of centers and institutes that includes The Riley Institute, The David E. Shi Center for Sustainability, The Hill Institute for Innovation and Entrepreneurship, The Institute for the Advancement of Community Health, The Herring Center for Continuing, Graduate, and Professional Education, The Rinker Center for Study Away and International Education, The Cothran Center for Vocational Exploration,

The Shucker Center for Leadership Development, The Malone Center for Career Engagement, The Center for Inclusive Communities, the Furman Humanities Center, and our newest addition, the Tocqueville Center for the Study of Democracy and Society.

Furman is located in Greenville, South Carolina, one of the fastest-growing cities in the Southeast, and is ranked among "America's Ten Best" by Forbes Magazine. The thriving downtown features excellent restaurants, in-town parks, shops, museums, galleries, music venues, and theaters. Greenville also enjoys an impressive network of nonprofits, small businesses, and international corporations. The city also has excellent public and private schools and a vibrant international community. A 20-mile bike and running trail connects the university to Greenville and to Travelers Rest, which was named "one of America's coolest small towns." The surrounding area abounds with outdoor recreational activities and has some of the country's most beautiful lakes, rivers, and mountains. Greenville is 2½ hours from Atlanta, 1½ hours from Charlotte, and only one hour from Asheville, North Carolina. Greenville is within easy reach of the Blue Ridge Mountains and Atlantic Beaches. The newly renovated Greenville-Spartanburg Airport, located just 25 minutes from downtown, runs daily flights to major cities and airline hubs. It is an ideal place to live and work.

We will begin reviewing applications on October 23, 2023, and continue until the position is filled.

Trinity College

Rank: Director, Greenberg Center for the Study of Religion in Public Life

Trinity College seeks the next Director of the Leonard E. Greenberg Center for the Study of Religion in Public Life, commencing July 2024. Non-sectarian and non-partisan, the Greenberg Center was established at Trinity College in 1996 to advance knowledge and understanding of the varied roles that religious movements, institutions, and ideas play in the contemporary world. The Center sponsors public lectures, organizes conferences and workshops, contributes to the liberal arts curriculum, and supports the publication and dissemination of materials for both academic and general audiences. Its initiatives are designed to foster discussion of religion in public life both within the campus community and among various external publics.

We seek a mid-career or advanced candidate with a Ph.D. and a record of success in program administration, teaching, and scholarship. The Director serves as an 9-month administrative faculty member with joint appointments in Trinity's Public Policy & Law Program and Religious Studies Department. The Director's faculty title will be commensurate with experience.

The Director will shape the Center's goals and activities; enhance the Center's profile on and off campus; and evaluate the Center's impact. The position co-supervises a Program and Communications Assistant and convenes a Center advisory board. As a faculty member, the Director teaches three courses per academic year during the Fall and Spring semesters, cross-listed in Religious Studies and Public Policy & Law. The successful candidate will manage an annual budget of over $65,000, including generous research funds.

We encourage applicants who share our commitment to diversity and inclusion and seek applications from historically underrepresented candidates. Trinity College seeks a faculty that reflects the changing demographics of our student body. Our student body is diverse, representing 41 states and 70 countries, with 21 percent U.S. students of color and 50 percent who identify as women. More than 90 percent of students live on campus. Trinity is a highly selective, independent, nonsectarian liberal arts institution located in the capital city of Hartford, Conn. With more than 2,100 full-time undergraduate students and 91 graduate students, the college maintains a rigorous academic profile complemented by a vibrant and diverse co-curricular program. We consider our location in a culturally and socioeconomically diverse capital city to be among Trinity's most distinctive assets, and we cultivate strong connections with our surrounding neighbors and with institutions and organizations throughout Hartford and the region. As a preeminent liberal arts college in an urban setting, Trinity College prepares students to be bold, independent thinkers who lead transformative lives.

Evidence of demonstrable success in program administration, teaching, and scholarship is required. A Ph.D. in Religious Studies, Public Policy, or a related field should be in hand by July 2024.

Competitive salary and benefits, plus start-up expense fund.

To ensure full consideration please submit a cover letter (describing research; teaching; and commitment to advancing diversity, equity, and inclusion), CV, sample of scholarly writing, course syllabi and evaluations (if available), and the names of three referees who can provide letters of reference to by October 2, 2023. ## Stanford University

Rank: IDEAL Provostial Fellows for Studies in Race and Ethnicity

Stanford University, in conjunction with its IDEAL initiative, is pleased to announce that it is seeking to appoint four to five early career fellows engaged in the study of race and ethnicity. The purpose of this program is to support the work of early-career researchers, who will lead the next generation of scholarship in race and ethnicity and whose work will point the way forward for reshaping race relations in America. Fellowships may be in any of the seven schools in the University (Business, Doerr School of Sustainability, Education, Engineering, Humanities & Sciences, Law, Medicine).

Applicants will be asked to identify the school or department that aligns with the field of their Ph.D. The selected fellows will be assigned a faculty mentor from their home department or school and will have the opportunity to be involved with the other early career fellows and Stanford faculty in a variety of activities. Informally, they will be invited to lunches and dinners to meet with other Stanford faculty who share their interests. They also will be invited to engage with the intellectual programming offered by the African and African-American Studies program, the Center for Comparative Studies in Race and Ethnicity and the Martin Luther King Research and Education Institute.

The early career fellows will have an opportunity each year to teach one course that will be cross-listed in the curricula of the Center for Comparative Studies in Race and Ethnicity and/or the African and African American Studies program. This course may be taught by the fellow or the fellow may team-teach a course with another member of the Stanford faculty. The fellows also will be involved in the organization of a major conference that brings to Stanford scholars who are at the forefront of scholarship in the study of race and ethnicity.

Criteria: Scholars interested in any field of study are accepted. Early career fellows should have received their terminal degree (PhD, JD, MFA, EdD, DSW, etc.) prior to the start of the fellowship. Selection criteria include the originality and quality of the research, as well as demonstrated potential for intellectual achievement. The term of these fellowships is three years, with a start date of September 1, 2024. To be eligible for an early career fellowship, a candidate must have received their terminal degree no earlier than September 1, 2021.

Applicants for early career fellowships should submit their applications electronically and include a cover letter (detailing the candidate's interest in the position), curriculum vitae, a statement of research interests, a statement of teaching interests, samples of written work, and three letters of recommendation (provide contact information for each and a system generated request will be delivered to each referee). In these materials, please include how your interests would be advanced by a fellowship, needs for laboratory access or special equipment, etc.

The deadline for receiving applications for early career fellowships is November 1, 2023. No application will be accepted after the deadline. Applications will not be accepted by email.

Inquiries about this program can be directed to facultydevelopment@stanford.edu. Please include "IDEAL Provostial Fellows" in the subject line.

Additional details about the fellowship program can be found at <https://facultydevelopment.stanford.edu/ideal-provostial-fellows/about-program>.

More information about Stanford's IDEAL initiative is available at <https://ideal.stanford.edu/>.

Stanford is an equal employment opportunity and affirmative action employer. All qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to race, color, religion, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, national origin, disability, protected veteran status, or any other characteristic protected by law. Stanford welcomes applications from all who would bring additional dimensions to the University's research, teaching and clinical missions. Consistent with its obligations under the law, the University will provide reasonable accommodation to any employee with a disability who requires accommodation to perform the essential functions of his or her job.

Yale University

Rank: Lecturer, Ethics, Politics, and Economics

The Program on Ethics, Politics, and Economics sponsors interdisciplinary teaching and research in the Social Sciences and Humanities at Yale. It is designed to foster informed debate about public policy in the light of disciplined reflection on the fundamentals of human association. The Program was created in the belief that, for all the value of specialized fields and subdisciplines, these should not displace attempts to integrate empirical, analytical, and normative concerns that range over different disciplines in the modern university. The undergraduate major in Ethics, Politics, and Economics joins the analytic rigor of the social sciences and the enduring normative questions of philosophy to promote an integrative and critical understanding of the institutions, practices, and policies that shape the contemporary world.

EP&E is now offering a single year lecturer position. We welcome applications from PhDs from political science, economics, philosophy, and business with excellent teaching evaluations, and experience teaching courses that integrate Ethics with either Political Science, Economics, or both disciplines. We encourage PhDs with an interest in teaching the Classics of Ethics, Politics & Economics to apply for this position.

In addition to teaching four courses per year, lecturers are expected to be available to meet undergraduate students of the EP&E major, and assist with advising majors on their senior essays.

The position is for one year, with the possibility of extending the contract conditional upon performance and available resources. Starting salary is $70,000 with Yale health benefits. Salary is negotiable depending on qualifications and teaching experience. In addition to salary, instructor will receive a $1,500 research account. Starting date is August 1, 2023 or negotiable.

Applicants should have completed PhD (or equivalent degree) requirements by August 2023.

Applications should include the following:

- A cover letter indicating your interest in the position
- CV

Auburn University

Rank: Assistant Professor (tenure-track), Public Administration/Nonprofit Management

Position Summary: The Auburn University Department of Political Science is seeking a tenure-track Assistant Professor in Public Administration to begin August 16, 2024.

Position Responsibilities: Candidates must be able to offer courses in-person and online at both the undergraduate and graduate levels in public administration and nonprofit management. Candidates should be broadly trained in public administration and/or nonprofit management. We are seeking individuals who can contribute extensively to the MPA Program’s Graduate Certificate in Nonprofit Organizations and Community Governance, the Graduate Certificate in Global Public Service, and undergraduate public administration courses. In addition, the individual should be able to teach courses in the core curriculum of our Master of Public Administration Program (NASPAA accredited). The standard teaching load is two courses per semester for at least the first three years of appointment. Candidates who would contribute to the diversity of the Department are especially encouraged to apply.

Required/Minimum Qualifications: Ph.D. in public administration, nonprofit management, public policy, or related field awarded by August 16, 2024. Candidates with professional experience in public administration, public or nonprofit management, experience teaching online and in-person classes, experience teaching public administration and/or nonprofit management courses at the undergraduate and graduate level, evidence of a record of commitment to student success at the college level through substantial and continued effectiveness in teaching, advising, and other student-related responsibilities are highly desired. Candidates who present a strong indication of future research productivity in appropriate academic journals are desired.

The candidate selected for this position must be able to meet eligibility requirements to work in the United States at the time the appointment is scheduled to begin and continue working legally for the proposed term of employment; excellent communication skills are required.

Review of applications will begin on November 30, 2023, and will continue until a suitable candidate has been selected. To apply, visit <https://www.auemployment.com/postings/41074>. Candidates must submit a cover letter outlining their qualifications for the position, a curriculum vitae, an official transcript of all graduate work, contact information for three letters of recommendation, a teaching statement and evidence of teaching ability, a research statement, and a writing sample.

Auburn University is an R1 research institution, enrolling over 33,000 students. The Political Science Department maintains a diverse faculty of 26 tenured and tenure-track members and offers undergraduate degrees in political science, health services administration, and public administration; a Master's degree program in Public Administration (MPA) with graduate certificates in Election Administration, Non-profit Organizations and Community Governance, and Global Public Service; a Master's degree program in Community Planning (MCP), and a Ph.D. program in public administration and public policy.

University of Chicago

Rank: Instructional Professor in Law, Letters, and Society (Open Rank)

The Social Sciences Collegiate Division at the University of Chicago is now accepting applications for a full-time Instructional Professor who will teach in the program in Law, Letters, and Society. The appointment is renewable, and the initial three-year term begins September 1, 2024. Appointment at the rank of Assistant, Associate, and full Instructional Professor will be considered based on the candidate's experience.

The program in Law, Letters, and Society (LLSO) is an undergraduate program that offers a major, courses, student research opportunities, and a variety of co-curricular activities. The program is designed to develop students' analytical skills and enable informed and critical examination of law broadly construed. Rather than situating the study of the law solely in contemporary debates in the field of American constitutional law, LLSO seeks to organize its exploration of law through the broader terms of "letters" and "society." LLSO has approximately 120 undergraduate majors and offers courses taught by instructors from diverse disciplines. More information about the program in Law, Letters, and Society can be viewed in the College's online catalog: <http://collegecatalog.uchicago.edu/thecollege/lawlettersandsociety/>

The position involves teaching up to six quarter-length courses during the academic year, depending on program responsibilities and needs, including required and elective courses in Law, Letters, and Society. The successful applicant will have a scholarly expertise related to law. We are especially interested in candidates whose work focuses on international law, comparative law, or non-common law traditions. Candidates may be asked to teach one or two sections of the major's B.A. thesis seminar, a two-quarter sequence. They should also be prepared to teach the required LLSO course, "Introduction to Legal Reasoning." The successful candidate will also participate in developing new coursework for the Law, Letters, and Society major; participate in planning and coordinating co-curricular activities; support the Faculty Director and Program Director in developing workshops, student research experiences, and opportunities for internships and professional placement; and advise up to five B.A. theses.

The terms and conditions of employment for this position are covered by a collective bargaining agreement between the Service Employees International Union (SEIU) and the University.

Qualifications

The position requires either a J.D. or a Ph.D. in a relevant field in the social sciences or humanities. Candidates must have completed all degree requirements no later than August 31, 2024. Experience teaching at the college level is required.

Application Instructions

To apply for this position, you must submit your application through the University of Chicago Interfolio job board at <http://apply.interfolio.com/135672> and upload the following:

A letter of application describing your academic interests and teaching background;

A curriculum vitae;

Syllabi of courses previously taught and/or designed by the candidate or sample syllabi of proposed courses

A teaching statement;

Evidence of teaching effectiveness, such as student evaluations or performance reviews;

A chapter-length piece of writing;

Three letters of recommendation.

The review of applications will begin on November 30, 2023, and continue until the position is filled or the search is closed.

Dartmouth College

Rank: Neukom Postdoctoral Fellowship

The Neukom Institute for Computational Science at Dartmouth College invites applications for the Neukom Postdoctoral Fellowship. We expect to appoint several fellows, with anticipated start date of September 1, 2024.

Neukom Postdoctoral Fellowships are interdisciplinary positions for recent Ph.D.s, DMAs, or MFAs whose research interests or practice cuts across traditional disciplinary boundaries, and has some computational component, whether it be a framing concept for intellectual exploration or an explicit part of the work that is pursued. Qualified candidates should have a history of collaborative work across disciplines, while also showing evidence of independence and initiative. For information about current Neukom Fellows, please visit: <https://neukom.dartmouth.edu/research/neukom-postdoctoral-fellows/current-fellows>

The Neukom Postdoctoral Fellowships are two-year full-time appointments; other than standard research trips, fellows are expected to be in residence at Dartmouth College. Neukom Fellows will be mentored by faculty in two departments at Dartmouth College, take up residence in one department, and will teach one seminar course each year on a subject of their interest. The remainder of fellows' time is dedicated to research and participation in the intellectual life of campus. The fellowship stipend for 2024-2026 will be $65,000 per year (pro-rated in the event of early departure). Additional funds are available for equipment, travel, and research materials. Fellows are eligible for certain benefits, as well as professional development opportunities with the Guarini School of Graduate and Advanced Studies.

Qualifications

Applicants must have a Ph.D., DMA, or MFA in any discipline, or have a degree conferred no later than September 1, 2024.

Selection criteria include: research interests strongly intersecting with the theme of computation; demonstrated interest in multidisciplinary research; evidence of ability to think outside traditional paradigms; and potential to contribute to an interdisciplinary community of scholars. Dartmouth is highly committed to fostering a diverse and inclusive population of fellows, faculty, students, and staff. We are especially interested in applicants who are able to work effectively with fellows, faculty, students, and staff from all backgrounds, including but not limited to: racial and ethnic minorities, women, individuals who identify with LGBTQ communities, individuals with disabilities, individuals from lower income backgrounds, and/or first-generation college graduates. Applicants are welcome to address in their materials how their research, teaching, service, and/or life experience have prepared them to advance Dartmouth's commitments to diversity, equity, and inclusion.

Application Instructions

Please submit the following materials electronically via Interfolio (<https://apply.interfolio.com/128998>):

1. Curriculum vitae
2. Publications list (uploaded separately from CV)
3. Statement of research interests, including a short description of the research you would like to pursue as a Neukom Fellow (maximum 2 pages)
4. Description of which departments and Dartmouth faculty you would be interested in working with and why the opportunity to engage with multiple departments would enhance your work. Applicants are strongly encouraged to seek out connections with and contact potential Dartmouth mentors as they draft their applications.
5. Three referees whose letters of recommendation speak to the aims of the Fellowship. The application requires the reference email address: referees will receive an email and have access to upload a letter; the applicant will not have access to this letter. Although we prefer applications to be complete by the deadline, referees have until 7 days after the position closes. Please make sure referees are aware of the deadline and are expecting the email from Interfolio.
6. (Optional) A copy of one article you have written in English (or some comparable kind of creative work), either published or unpublished.
7. (Optional) A teaching statement.
8. (Optional) A cover letter.

We will begin reviewing applications on December 1, 2023 and continue until the positions are filled.

General inquiries should be directed to the Neukom Institute Manager, Christine Monigle (Christine.E.Monigle@Dartmouth.edu).

University of Pennsylvania

Rank: Postdoctorate Fellow

As part of its Annenberg Center for the Advanced Study of Communication, the Annenberg Public Policy Center (APPC; <http://www.annenbergpublicpolicycenter.org>) of the University of Pennsylvania's postdoctoral fellowship program in the Science of Science Communication (SSC) is accepting applications for the 2024-2025 academic year. Fellows in the program will work closely with other fellows and senior researchers of APPC on scholarship designed to understand basic problems (e.g., source credibility, communication processes, attitude change, belief formation, conspiracy theories, and misinformation debunking) as well as policy-related ones (e.g., climate change, vaccines, and COVID-19). The program is interdisciplinary and is currently led by Professor Dolores Albarracín.

First-year fellows will receive a stipend of $70,000 and serve in a 12-month appointment, beginning September 1, 2024. Renewal for a second year is contingent upon performance and budgetary considerations. A relocation allowance of up to $1,000 for domestic relocations and up to $2,000 for international relocations is available to offset pre-approved, receipt-documented relocation expenses, and APPC will reimburse up to $2,000 in travel to conferences to present APPC research. Post-docs are eligible for health insurance under the University of Pennsylvania's plans outlined here: <https://www.hr.upenn.edu/PennHR/benefits-pay/postdoctoral-researchers-and-fellows>.

We are seeking fellows who apply a variety of disciplinary and methodological approaches, and have completed a Ph.D. in a social, behavioral, or computational science within the last five years. Please note that the University of Pennsylvania limits post-doctoral appointments to a maximum of five years, including time spent in post-doctoral appointments prior to joining Penn. In addition to being appointed to the center, fellows are appointed to an academic department.

To apply, please submit a CV, a research statement, three research papers, and names of three references via the Google form found at <https://forms.gle/tpAwp5i9otigd3w18>. A reference letter from a dissertation advisor will be required of finalists. Questions about current lines of research or other academic aspects of the appointment may be directed to Dr. Albarracín at cquasti@upenn.edu.

The application deadline is March 15, 2024. However, decisions will be made on a rolling basis.

Position description

The University of California, San Diego invites applications for a tenure-track faculty position in Data Science and Public Policy (primary appointment at the Halicioglu Data Science Institute with joint appointment in the School of Global Policy and Strategy). The appointment will be at the Assistant Professor level, and we welcome applications from advanced assistant professors.

Economics, Political Science, and Public Policy are all seeing rapid advancement in the ability to understand human behavior in new ways through the use of data. We seek faculty applicants who are experts in data science, economics, political science, or public policy. Faculty candidates should demonstrate interest and contributions in both: (1) an aspect of data science vital to the design or implementation of public policy, including machine learning, artificial intelligence, natural language processing, network analysis, data privacy and security, or algorithmic fairness; and (2) a policy domain of long-term priority, including public health, public infrastructure (e.g., transportation, housing, smart cities), movement and settlement of peoples (e.g., migration, refugees, border issues), fairness and discrimination (e.g., in employment, housing, or criminal justice), international trade and finance, climate and energy policy, or defense and security policy.

This position involves teaching university students. The successful appointee will be expected to teach graduate and undergraduate students at HDSI and GPS, with teaching load for each unit commensurate with the appointment. Candidates are expected to establish a vigorous program of high-quality research that focuses on innovations in Data Science and Public Policy.

Qualifications

Basic qualifications (required at time of application)

PhD or equivalent degree, or advancement to candidacy in Data Science, Computer Science, Political Science, Economics, Public Policy, or related discipline.

Preferred qualifications

We seek applicants with an outstanding track record of research accomplishments, excellence in teaching, service, and a commitment to support diversity, equity and inclusion at the university.

Application Requirements

Document requirements

- Cover Letter
- Curriculum Vitae - Your most recently updated C.V.
- Statement of Research
- Statement of Contributions to Diversity - Applicants should summarize their past or potential contributions to diversity. See our <http://facultydiversity.ucsd.edu/recruitment/contributions-to-diversity.html> site for more information.
- Statement of Teaching
- Teaching Evaluations (Optional)
- Misc / Additional (Optional)
- COVID-19 Impact Statement - We understand that the COVID-19 pandemic may have had a substantial impact on academic productivity. In our academic hiring processes, we will be keeping this in mind as we consider achievement relative to opportunity. We encourage you to reflect on constraints on opportunity in your field that were caused by the events of the pandemic and where applicable, to discuss your achievements in this light. (Optional)

Stanford University

Rank: Assistant or untenured Associate Professor

Stanford University
Department of Management Science and Engineering
Faculty Opening

We invite applications from individuals working at the frontiers of Management Science and Engineering, broadly defined. Management Science & Engineering is a multidisciplinary department with research efforts spanning a broad intellectual spectrum, ranging from analytics and computation to the social and behavioral sciences. We are united by an interest in engineering solutions to pressing societal problems.

Appointments are to tenure-line junior faculty positions at the Assistant or untenured Associate Professor level. Please visit our website for more information about the Management Science & Engineering Department at <http://www.stanford.edu/dept/MSandE/>.

An earned PhD, evidence of the ability to pursue a program of research, and a strong commitment to graduate and undergraduate teaching are required. A successful candidate will be expected to teach courses at the graduate and undergraduate levels and to build and lead a team of graduate students in PhD research.

Applications should include a resume, brief statements of research and teaching interests, and the names and e-mail addresses of at least three references. Candidates should apply online at: <https://msande.stanford.edu/about/jobs/faculty-openings-mse>.

The Department of Management Science & Engineering, School of Engineering, and Stanford University value faculty who will help foster an inclusive academic environment for colleagues, students, and staff with a wide range of backgrounds, identities, and outlooks. Candidates may choose to include as part of their research and teaching statements a brief discussion about how their work and experience will further these ideals. Additional information about Stanford's IDEAL initiative may be found here: <https://ideal.stanford.edu/about-ideal/diversity-statement>.

The review of applications will begin on November 3, 2023. Interviews will begin in the fall term, so applicants are encouraged to apply early. Applications will be accepted until December 15, 2023.

Stanford is an equal employment opportunity and affirmative action employer. All qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to race, color, religion, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, national origin, disability, protected veteran status, or any other characteristic protected by law. Stanford welcomes applications from all who would bring additional dimensions to the University's research, teaching, and clinical missions.

The expected base pay range for this position is:

Assistant Professor: $131,900 - $147,217

Associate Professor (untentured): $161,313 - $174,071

This base pay range is for a nine-month academic appointment and does not include summer salary. For more information about compensation and our wide range of benefits, including housing assistance, please contact the hiring department.

Stanford University has provided a pay range representing its good faith estimate of what the university reasonably expects to pay for the position. The pay offered to the selected candidate will be determined based on factors including (but not limited to) the experience and qualifications of the selected candidate including years since terminal degree, training, and field or discipline; departmental budget availability; internal equity; and external market pay for comparable jobs.

University of Virginia

Rank: Dean's Postdoctoral Research Associate

Subfield(s): Other, American Government and Politics, Public Policy

Specializations: Education Policy, Race & Ethnic Politics, American Politics

The Frank Batten School of Leadership and Public Policy at the University of Virginia invites applications for a position of Dean's postdoctoral research associate. The school seeks a candidate who has research interests related to the core mission of the school – to generate new knowledge to solve the world's toughest public policy challenges and educate ethical and effective leaders prepared to lead in a diverse and divided world

We seek candidates from a range of disciplines with specific interests in American political institutions, the politics of domestic policy issues, the politics of U.S. education, and/or race and ethnic politics. We welcome candidates who conduct research that has synergies with areas of current strength at the Batten School. Candidates should identify in their application 2 to 3 possible faculty within the school to serve as disciplinary mentors with whom they would be matched during the postdoc.

The postdoctoral appointment is renewed annually with a target length of two years and is expected to begin August 2024. A Ph.D. (conferred no later than July 2024) is required. Appointments involve independent research and/or opportunities for research collaboration with faculty and teaching one class per academic year at the Batten School.

A criterion for selection for this position is evidence of scholarly potential that could lead to a tenure track appointment at a research university. Strong quantitative, communication, and project management skills are also required. Applicants with a track record of publication are preferred. Applicants with demonstrated willingness of and ability to contribute to the wellbeing of populations that are historically underserved are encouraged.

This dean's postdoctoral research associate position was launched in 2020 with the intention of creating a mentored professional development opportunity to train the next generation of scholars for future tenure-track positions. Postdoc research associates in this role will have opportunities for mentorship, access to resources and research infrastructure, opportunities to collaborate with faculty at a truly interdisciplinary school, and connections to a robust network of diverse scholars.

The University of Virginia is an equal opportunity/affirmative action employer. Women, minorities, veterans, and persons with disabilities are encouraged to apply.

To Apply

Apply online at <https://jobs.virginia.edu/jobs/R0053913>.

Internal applicants must apply through their UVA Workday profile. Complete the application, and upload the following Required materials:

- 1-page cover letter identifying 2-3 potential Batten faculty mentors
  - Curriculum vitae
  - Research statement (max. 3 pages), including a broad introduction to your research, both past successes and future plans, as well as how your research agenda could integrate with current areas of study at the Batten School
  - Teaching statement, describing prior teaching experience and/or teaching philosophy and courses you would like to teach
  - Contact information for three references (references will only be contacted for those who are short listed)
  - A separate statement regarding your potential contributions to any aspect of the UVA mission, which includes:
    - an enduring commitment to a vibrant and unique residential learning environment marked by the free and collegial exchange of ideas
    - an unwavering support of a collaborative, diverse community bound together by distinctive foundational values of honor, integrity, trust, and respect
    - universal dedication to excellence and affordable access.
- o In this statement, please focus upon your work skills and experience. In doing so, you may choose to refer to your personal perspective, but the focus of our consideration is on your potential contributions through skills and experience, rather than personal opinions or beliefs.

** Note: Documents should be combined into fewer than five files, as five is the maximum number that can be uploaded in the CV/Resume box. Incomplete applications that are missing required documents may not be given full consideration.

Review of applications begins October 31, 2023. The position will remain open until filled.

The selected candidate will be required to complete a background check at time of offer per University Policy.

Rank: R000073844 Data, Polling & Election Analytics Senior Producer

Your New Role...

CNN seeks a Data, Polling & Election Analytics Senior Producer to help bring political data to life in our election and politics coverage.

The Senior Producer of Data, Polling & Election Analytics sees the stories hidden in rows of numbers, knows the right questions to ask and how to use data to find the answers.

The right candidate will seek innovative ways to look at and combine data to tell a more compelling and complete story about American politics today. Working with CNN's Director of Polling and Election Analytics, the Senior Producer, will pursue novel ways to translate data on politics into understandable insights that drive our reporting, survey research methods and Election Night coverage, while keeping accuracy at the heart of what we do.

Your Role Accountabilities...

Uncover data-driven insights into American politics, using advanced and multi-variate statistical techniques to analyze survey and other election-related datasets (such as voter list data, Census statistics, election returns, etc.), translating that information into understandable text and graphics for a general audience.

Support the CNN Decision Desk, becoming an expert on the statistical models the elections projection team relies on and guiding new models through development, testing and deployment on election nights.

The ideal candidate would be able to grow into a key role within the race-calling team.

Work with the CNN polling team to enhance our innovative and industry-leading polling operation by building on existing methodologies for survey sampling and weighting, as well as likely voter modeling.

Collaborate with the TV and digital election night production teams to ensure accurate and insightful reporting of data about voting in America.

Guide CNN journalists in using methodologically rigorous research and analysis in their reporting, helping them to describe and present it accurately.

Qualifications & Experience...

4 plus years' statistical modeling and analytics experience required

Master's degree or PHD in related field of study preferred: Statistics; Data Science; Political Science; Political Psychology or Survey Methodology

Passion for bringing politics to life through statistics and analysis of key data

Excellent verbal and written communication skills, including an ability to translate complex statistics for a general audience

Can confidently apply advanced statistics -- such as regression, factor and cluster analyses, small area estimation, mathematical-statistical modeling, predictive modeling, etc. -- to evaluate and understand complex data, and an ability to explain the uncertainty in those analyses

Understanding of multiple methodological approaches to survey research, and interest in exploring innovative approaches to representative research

Interest in politics, elections, and political geography a must, knowledge of election forecasting a plus, experience working with voter list data preferred

Close attention to detail and a commitment to accuracy

Experience with statistical software required, SPSS or R preferred Strong skills in Excel a must

Ability to work in a high-pressure, fast-paced environment

Jacksonville University

Rank: Assistant or Associate Professor of Public Policy

Subfield(s): Public Policy, Public Administration, Other

Link to job posting: <https://www.ju.edu/humanresources/faculty/asst-assoc-prof-public-policy-sept2023.php>

About Jacksonville University and The Jacksonville University Public Policy Institute

The Jacksonville University Public Policy Institute (Institute), established in 2012, is the first Institute of its kind in Florida and offers a Master in Public Policy (MPP) degree, Executive Master in Public Policy (EMPP) degree program, and three dual degree programs: MPP-Marine Science, MPP-MBA, and MPP-Juris Doctor. A Minor in Public Policy is also offered to undergraduate students.

Jacksonville University conferred the first MPP degrees in the history of Florida in 2015. In addition, the nonpartisan Institute provides a neutral gathering place for public policy education, discussion, and debate, hosting over 100 events on campus since 2013, and is actively engaged in the community, including training of elected officials, keynote addresses, and television and radio commentary. The Institute has a nonpartisan 25 member Board of Advisors, made up of extraordinary business, community, and civic leaders. It typically has leading policymakers, including the Governor, US Senators, and leading national policymakers as keynote speakers at board meetings. In addition, the Institute has a nine-member MPP Minority Fellowship Board of Advisors, which awards fellowships and scholarships to qualifying minority applicants. Please visit the Institute's website at www.ju.edu/publicpolicy.

Job Summary

The Public Policy Institute at Jacksonville University invites applications for an Assistant or Associate Professor in Public Policy position, beginning in August 2024. Successful candidates must demonstrate a willingness and ability to teach core, elective, and capstone courses in the MPP Program, and in the undergraduate Minor in Public Policy Program. The range of courses can include graduate courses in public policy, political institutions, statistics and research methods, policy analysis, ethics, microeconomics for public policy, and public finance, as well as public policy courses for undergraduate students.

The candidate must also show an ability to engage in public policy and interact with students, faculty, policy practitioners, and community leaders. The successful candidate will work closely with the Institute Executive Director on Institute governance, the MPP academic program, campus programming, and community engagement. The successful candidate must demonstrate a commitment to building a strong research agenda and publication record, as well as playing a leadership role commensurate with experience. The determination of the appropriate rank for the appointment will depend on the successful candidate's qualifications, background, and experience.

Qualifications

Applicants must have earned a PhD in Public Policy, or a closely related social science discipline, such as political science or economics. The candidate must demonstrate a commitment and promise in teaching and scholarly publishing as well as a willingness to contribute to and help lead the growth of the MPP Program and Public Policy Institute.

Diversity and Inclusion

Jacksonville University, an Equal Opportunity Employer, believes students learn best in a diverse, inclusive community and is therefore committed to academic excellence through diversity in its faculty, staff, and students. We seek candidates who are committed to Jacksonville University's efforts to create a climate that fosters the growth and development of a diverse student body, and we actively welcome applications from members of groups who are historically underrepresented in higher education.

Physical Requirements

Manual dexterity to efficiently operate a computer keyboard and other business machines

Adequate hearing to communicate effectively in person and virtually
Near vision sufficient to read written communications and computer display screens

Stamina to teach up to 24 hours weekly

Important Note

This is not an exhaustive list of all responsibilities, duties, and/or skills required for this position. The University reserves the right to amend and change responsibilities to meet organizational needs.

To Apply

The following application materials are required: (1) a letter of interest, (2) curriculum vitae, (3) copy of transcripts for all degrees earned (unofficial are accepted at this stage—official will be required prior to the start date), (4) a statement regarding teaching philosophy, (5) evidence of effective teaching (syllabi and course evaluations), (6) evidence of scholarly writing, (7) completed JU faculty application, and (8) three letters of recommendation.

Interested applicants may send their application materials, preferably as a PDF packet, to Jacksonville University Public Policy Institute at ppi@ju.edu, with the subject line "Assistant/Associate Professor Search" by November 10, 2023. For full consideration, all applicant materials should be received no later than this date, including recommendation letters.

Selected candidates will be notified the first week of Spring term 2024 to schedule an interview. Questions regarding the open position can be sent to the Jacksonville University Public Policy Institute at ppi@ju.edu.

University of South Carolina Aiken

Rank: Assistant Professor of Political Science - Cybersecurity/National Security

The Department of History, Political Science, and Philosophy at the University of South Carolina Aiken (USC Aiken) invites applications for a tenure-track Assistant Professor of Political Science, specializing in Cybersecurity and National Security, beginning August 16, 2024. Typical responsibilities include teaching three undergraduate introductory surveys a semester such as American National Government, Introduction to International Relations/Comparative Politics, and Introduction to Politics. Remaining classes in the 4-4 teaching load consist of upper-level course offerings with a strong preference for International Relations or US foreign relations classes that focus on cybersecurity policy and/or national security. Each semester requires two to three course preparations, typically including both face-to-face and online modalities. A PhD in Political Science or related discipline obtained by August 16, 2024, is required; PhD in hand at time of application is preferred. Ability and willingness to teach political theory would be a plus. Evidence of teaching as instructor of record is necessary, preferably in international relations or American foreign relations. Evidence of productive scholarship or research potential is necessary. Service to the department, university, and community is expected. Salary is commensurate with education and experience.

USC Aiken continues to diversify its faculty ranks to resemble our student population more closely, approximately 40% of whom are from underrepresented racial or ethnic groups. USC Aiken is an affirmative action, equal opportunity employer and does not discriminate in educational or employment opportunities or decisions for qualified persons on the basis of race, color, religion, sex, national origin, age, disability, sexual orientation, gender, gender identity, transgender status, genetics, or protected veteran status, or pregnancy, childbirth, or related medical conditions.

Applications submitted by November 20, 2023, will receive full consideration, but position will remain open until filled. To be considered for this position, applicants must apply online at: <https://uscjobs.sc.edu/postings/154888> and upload the following with their online application: a cover letter, CV, unofficial graduate transcripts, a sample syllabus for an undergraduate class in IR/American Foreign Relations, contact info for three references, a research sample, a statement of teaching philosophy, and three letters of recommendation. Please note: transcripts, syllabi, and research sample must be submitted as one file under "other supporting documents". Please direct any questions to Dr. Sarah Young, search committee chair, at sarahy@usca.edu. Additional documentation will be solicited as needed.

The University of South Carolina Aiken, a public comprehensive university in the University of South Carolina system, offers undergraduate and master's degrees to more than 3,900 students in 50 programs of study. USC Aiken, newly recognized as a master's-granting university, has long been ranked as a top public regional college in the South by U.S. News & World Report's guide "America's Best Colleges" with 23 consecutive years ranking among the top three and 15 times as #1. Additionally, USC Aiken was recognized for being a Best College for Veterans and a Top Performer in Social Mobility. USC Aiken is South Carolina's COPLAC institution providing a unique and strong liberal arts core within our degree offerings.

We boast students from 35 states and 32 countries. USC Aiken has ten NCAA Division II Athletic programs. For more information about USC Aiken, visit www.usca.edu.

Situated on 450 acres, USC Aiken is located thirty minutes from Augusta, GA (home of the Masters Tournament and Fort Gordon, new home of US Army Cyber Command), one hour from Columbia, SC, and within three hours of Charleston, SC, coastal beaches, and the Appalachian Mountains. Aiken is noted for its famous thoroughbred horses, numerous parks and golf courses, wonderful weather, spacious avenues, and historic homes.

The Chinese University of Hong Kong

Rank: Dean of the Faculty of Social Science

The Chinese University of Hong Kong

Dean of the Faculty of Social Science

The University

Founded in 1963, The Chinese University of Hong Kong (CUHK) (<http://www.cuhk.edu.hk>) is a forward-looking comprehensive research university with a global vision and a mission to combine tradition with modernity, and to bring together China and the West. Today CUHK is home to over 30,000 students and over 8,000 staff members (including a faculty team of over 3,400 full-time teaching and research staff members joining from all around the world). The University offers a broad spectrum of programmes up to the PhD level in various disciplines organized under eight Faculties (namely, Arts, Business Administration, Education, Engineering, Law, Medicine, Science and Social Science). Graduates worldwide stay connected with their alma mater through an extensive alumni network.

The Faculty

The Faculty of Social Science (<http://www.socsc.cuhk.edu.hk>) with its dedicated team of 320+ teaching and research staff members, 2600+ undergraduate and 2,000+ postgraduate students will be celebrating its 50th anniversary in 2024. With eight schools and departments - Architecture, Economics, Geography and Resource Management, Government and Public Administration, Journalism and Communication, Psychology, Social Work, and Sociology - the Faculty is committed to achieving excellence with purpose and responsibility in both education and research. Its degree programmes, including five interdisciplinary programmes, attract some of the most outstanding students from Hong Kong, the Chinese Mainland and around the world. Research excellence is a hallmark of the Faculty, which encourages interdisciplinary research that not only extends the frontiers of knowledge but also delivers positive impact and value for society. Several programmes have been recognized globally for their outstanding accomplishments: in the 2023 QS World University Rankings, CUHK was ranked 20th globally in Communication and Media Studies; 23rd in Sociology; 24th in Geography; 45th in Psychology; and 59th in Economics. On the university level, CUHK placed 45th in the 2023 The Times Higher Education World University Rankings.

The Faculty of Social Science houses a number of research units, e.g., the Computational Social Science Laboratory, Centre for Cognition and Brain Studies, Centre for Chinese Media and Comparative Communication Research and CUHK-Tsinghua Joint Research Centre for Chinese Economy, to name but a few. The Faculty works closely with government, industry and other organizations in research and education, addressing the pressing challenges society faces and providing experiential learning opportunities for students. To expand the scope of its research impact and educational offerings, the Faculty collaborates actively with a wide network of national and international partners.

The Deanship

The Dean is a member of the University senior management team, reporting to the Vice-Chancellor/President, the Provost, and the University Council. As the academic and executive head of the Faculty, the Dean is responsible for shaping the Faculty's development in alignment with the University's strategic plan. He/she is responsible for the management of the Faculty's resources, including human resources, budget and space, as well as educational programmes and activities and research performance. He/she is also expected to engage actively in cultivating alumni, donor and community relations, building ties with industry, and extending educational and research networks and collaborations with regional (e.g., the Hong Kong-Macau-Guangdong Greater Bay Area) and global partners.

The successful candidate is expected to be an internationally recognized leader in his/her areas of specialization, with a proven record of academic excellence appropriate for appointment at the level of a full Professor in the Faculty. Requirements for the role include a broad vision, understanding of education and research in all areas within the Faculty, prior experience in academic leadership roles, proficiency in high-level planning and management, and the foresight needed for planning the Faculty's long-term development. Excellent interpersonal and communication skills are essential.

Remuneration and benefit package for the post will be globally competitive, commensurate with qualifications and experience.

Applications and Nominations

We welcome applications from and nominations for qualified candidates for the post. Please send applications and or nominations in strict confidence to the Search Committee for the Dean of the Faculty of Social Science, c/o Mr Kieran Pollentine, Perrett Laver (Job reference no.: 6898; email: kieran.pollentine@perrettlaver.com).

The Personal Information Collection Statement will be made available upon request. All enquiries, applications and nominations will be treated in strict confidence.

Consideration of applications/nominations will begin in January 2024 and will continue until the post is filled. The University reserves the right to fill the post by invitation.

Toronto Metropolitan University

Rank: Gender and Migration

Located in downtown Toronto, the largest and most culturally diverse city in Canada, and situated on the territory of the Anishinaabeg, Haudenosaunee, Mississaugas of the Credit and the Wendat Peoples, the Department of Geography and Environmental Studies in the Faculty of Arts at the Toronto Metropolitan University (TMU) invite applications for a Tier 2 Canada Research Chair (CRC) in Gender and Migration.

The Canada Research Chairs Program is a federally funded program that seeks to achieve excellence by attracting and retaining the most accomplished and promising researchers. The Tier 2 CRC is intended for exceptional emerging scholars, i.e., candidates must have been active researchers in their field for fewer than 10 years at the time of nomination, excluding eligible leaves. Further details on the CRC eligibility criteria can be found here.

In collaboration with TMU, the successful candidate will develop the CRC nomination for the April 2024 deadline. Conditional upon the success of the CRC submission, the candidate will be appointed to a tenure track position at the rank of Assistant or Associate Professor, effective January 1, 2025. The CRC Tier 2 appointment is tenable for five years and renewable once. All nominations are subject to review and final approval by the CRC Secretariat. The faculty appointment is subject to final budgetary approval by the university.

The successful candidate will engage in a combination of research, teaching and service duties, and maintain an inclusive, equitable, and collegial work environment across all activities. The incumbent will be expected to develop and maintain a strong, independent, externally funded research program that will be internationally recognized in five to ten years, to mentor and support diverse trainees, students, future researchers and colleagues in forms such as organizing workshops, co-authoring papers, and ideally contributing to public policy and professional practice. The incumbent will also effectively teach a diverse student population in undergraduate and graduate courses and engage in collegial service.

The CRC in Gender and Migration is conceived as interdisciplinary, yet sharply focused on innovation and originality in methods and research approaches. The candidate will pursue innovative and unique scholarly, research and creative (SRC) activities with geographical and human dimensions, and policy impacts beyond academia. TMU offers an outstanding institutional environment to pursue the study of gender and migration, including the Canada Excellence Research Chair (CERC) in Migration and Integration, the Toronto Metropolitan Centre for Immigration and Settlement, and research initiatives such as a 12-year $98,000,000 Canada First Research Excellence Fund (CFREF) for the initiative Migrant Integration in the Mid-21st Century: Bridging Divides, and the Partnership Project Urban Sanctuary, Migrant Solidarity and Hospitality in Global Perspective.

Qualifications

Candidates must have a Ph.D. or an equivalent degree in Geography or a related discipline or field such as Gender Studies; Migration Studies; Peace/Conflict Studies; Gender, Peace and Security; LGBTQ2S+ Studies; Black Studies; Indigenous Studies; or Refugee Studies. Nominees for Tier 2 Chair positions should, at a minimum, be Assistant or Associate Professors, or possess the necessary qualifications to be appointed to these ranks.

Candidates must also:

be excellent emerging world-class researchers who have demonstrated particular research creativity, in accordance with the CRC Program guidelines;

have demonstrated the potential to achieve international recognition in their field(s) in the next five to ten years, in accordance with the CRC Program guidelines;

as chairholders, have the potential to attract, develop and retain excellent and diverse trainees, students and future researchers, in accordance with the CRC Program guidelines; be proposing an original, innovative research program of high quality, in accordance with the CRC Program guidelines; have established a strong emerging research profile that demonstrates creativity and evidence of impact, such as peer reviewed publications/contributions, special papers, conference/symposia proceedings, government publications and policy contributions, book reviews by the nominee or published reviews of their work, papers presented at scholarly meetings or conferences, and other forms of scholarly expression, including participation in public discourse and debate and non-peer reviewed publications, which constitute a contribution to research; have established or demonstrated the potential to attract diverse, internationally recognized collaborators;

demonstrate the ability to establish an independent, highly productive program of research which will attract high levels of external funding, including Tri-Council funding; demonstrate a record of research engaged in innovative methods, including mixed methods, that contribute to the development and enhancement of geographical methods and/or spatial analytical approaches.

have a record of commitment to equity, diversity and inclusion in leadership, teaching and research, including recommended practices of recruiting, mentoring and supporting students and research trainees with diverse backgrounds and experiences and from underrepresented groups, such as women, racialized people, persons with disabilities, Indigenous people, and 2SLGBTQ+ people; demonstrate the ability to effectively teach students with diverse backgrounds and experiences in courses in Geographies of gender and/or migration studies and/or geographic methods in undergraduate and graduate programs, and the potential to contribute to inclusive and accessible learning, course development and pedagogy; and demonstrate the ability to participate in leadership activities in collegial (internal and external) service.

TMU recognizes that scholars have varying career paths and that career interruptions can be part of an excellent academic record. Candidates are encouraged to provide any relevant information about their experience and/or career interruptions to allow for a fair assessment of their application. Search committee members have been instructed to give careful consideration to diverse experiences and knowledges, and to be sensitive to the impact of career interruptions in their assessments.

Applicants who are more than 10 years from having earned their highest degree (and where career breaks exist, such as pregnancy, parental or extended medical leave, clinical training, etc.) may have their eligibility for a Tier 2 chair assessed through the CRC Program's Tier 2 justification process.

All eligible leaves (e.g., pregnancy, parental, medical, bereavement) are credited at twice the amount of time taken; part-time leaves will be taken into consideration, calculated according to the percentage of leave taken, and credited at twice the amount of time taken; professional leaves (e.g., sabbatical) are not credited, but certain training or administrative leaves may be considered. Other leaves that have had an impact on the nominee's research career may be taken into account (e.g., mandatory military service, non-research-related positions, unemployment and training unrelated to the research career). This information must be supported by the information contained in the nominee's CV. Research interruptions caused by the COVID-19 pandemic (e.g., closures) are recognized and may be counted as an eligible delay (credited at twice the amount of time) beginning March 1, 2020.

To inquire about CRC eligibility, please contact Dayle Levine, Manager Institutional Projects, Office of Vice-President, Research and Innovation by sending an email to dayle.levine@torontomu.ca with "Tier 2 Justification" in the subject line.

This position falls under the jurisdiction of the Toronto Metropolitan Faculty Association (TFA) (www.tfanet.ca). The TFA collective agreement can be viewed here and a summary of TFA benefits can be found here.

Toronto Metropolitan University (TMU)

Toronto Metropolitan University welcomes those who have demonstrated a commitment to upholding the values of equity, diversity, and inclusion and will assist us to expand our capacity for diversity in the broadest sense. In addition, to amend the conditions of disadvantage in employment in Canada, we encourage applications from members of groups that have been historically disadvantaged and marginalized, including First Nations, Métis and Inuit peoples, Indigenous peoples of North America, Black-identified persons, other racialized persons, persons with disabilities, and those who identify as women and/or 2SLGBTQ+.

All candidates are strongly encouraged to apply and complete the Applicant Diversity Self ID during the application process.

How to Apply

Applicants must submit their application online via the Faculty Recruitment Portal [<https://hr.cf.torontomu.ca/ams/faculty/>] by selecting “Start Application Process”. Applications containing the following components must be received by 11:59pm EST on November 24, 2023.

a cover letter that includes your interest in the position; what you would bring to the Department and Faculty; the impact on the field of Gender and Migration that you foresee for your research (your 3-page research proposal for the CRC can elaborate on this); and what makes you a strong candidate overall as a researcher, educator, and community member;

a current curriculum vitae providing a clear sense of your scholarly and professional development via your education and your research activities and outcomes; your contributions to making Gender and Migration Studies a more equitable and inclusive discipline through committee work, community engagement, social media, and advocacy; a research statement discussing the significance, originality, and potential impacts of your current research program, including your methods, research approaches, and possible enhancements of equity, diversity and inclusion through your research (up to 3 pages), and a research proposal for the first term of your CRC research program, including 5-year research trajectory, funding strategy, and personnel recruitment and management (up to 3 pages);

recent examples of research activities and outcomes, including, but not limited to, peer-reviewed and non-peer reviewed publications, conference presentations, public talks, articles reaching specialist and non-specialist audiences, and effective use of social media for research impact and networking, knowledge dissemination and translation; a teaching statement (up to 3 pages) and a dossier of syllabi and other evidence, if available. These must demonstrate how you engage, encourage, and develop the learning capacity of students entering higher education from a diverse array of backgrounds and experiences, and how you embed practices and principles of equity, diversity and inclusion, including universal design for learning in your classroom, course materials, guest lectures, how you embed practices and principles of equity, diversity and inclusion in your classroom, your assignments, and your classroom style;

the names and email contact information of three academic referees who know you and your research well; and a statement discussing a record of demonstrated commitment to equity, diversity and inclusion, including your record of attracting and mentoring a diverse group of students, trainees, and research personnel, and establishing an equitable and inclusive research environment. This should include a plan for establishing and maintaining a diverse core team (at the student, trainee, personnel and early-career researcher levels), and an environment that is safe and inclusive and allows all team members to reach their full research potential (e.g., through the recruitment and outreach strategy, equitable training opportunities, and professional development and mentoring).

Please note that all qualified candidates are encouraged to apply; however, applications from Canadians and permanent residents will be given priority, in accordance with Canadian immigration regulations. Candidates must therefore indicate in their application if they are a permanent resident or citizen of Canada.

As part of its efforts to amend the conditions of disadvantage in Canada for under-represented groups, and the under-representation of equity seeking groups in faculty and staff, TMU invites all applicants to voluntarily complete an online Diversity Self-ID questionnaire at the time of submitting their application in the recruitment portal.

The information collected will be treated as confidential but will not be anonymous. Applicant Diversity Data containing personal information is accessible by Toronto Metropolitan University staff in the Office of the Vice Provost Faculty Affairs, individuals serving on the Department Hiring Committee, and others involved in recruitment, hiring, retention, training, and evaluative processes.

This information is collected under the authority of Toronto Metropolitan University Act and is needed to establish equity, diversity and inclusion goals and plans, take action to achieve those goals, report on progress, and for other related purposes. ## University of Virginia

Rank: Postdoctoral Fellowship, Karsh Institute of Democracy

The Karsh Institute of Democracy at the University of Virginia (UVA) invites applications for two postdoctoral Gibson Fellowships for scholars doing work that provides a deeper understanding of the era of the American Revolution and its legacies. These will be two-year fellowships, from September 2024 through August 2026. During the first year, the fellowship will entirely support the fellow's research. During the second year, along with their research, the postdoctoral fellows will also work with the Karsh Institute of Democracy to contribute to public programming linked to the 250th anniversary of the American Revolution. This programming work will be supported by our staff and resources, and throughout the fellowship we also offer support for public scholarship of various kinds.

We are particularly interested in scholars working in the fields of History, Literary Studies, and/or Political Theory. In addition to scholarship specifically on the course of the American Revolution, we also welcome applications for work that explores intellectual genealogies, cultural transformations, or economic, political, and social developments during the long eighteenth century. We see the American Revolution as situated within a wide geographical context, and one shaped by multiple sovereignties, and are interested in work that offers new perspectives on the period.

The fellows will be a part of the John L. Nau III Lab of the History & Principles of Democracy at the Karsh Institute of Democracy, and they will have the opportunity to work with core faculty members in the lab. In addition, we will help fellows connect with relevant seminars and workshops across UVA as well as with nearby historical sites according to their interests.

The Karsh Institute of Democracy is dedicated to a future in which democracy's aspirations and reality are aligned. We work tirelessly to understand, defend, and invigorate the institutions, practices, and cultural underpinnings that are the foundations of democracy. Through all our work—robust interdisciplinary scholarship, research and teaching, and vibrant programs and partnerships designed to engage the public and influence policy agendas—we are shaping a thriving democratic future.

The annual salary for each position is $65,000 per year, with an additional $5,000 per year in research funding. Qualified candidates must have their Ph.D. completed by the beginning of the fellowship. Candidates must submit their application materials by Friday, December 1st, 2023, including:

A cover letter outlining their interest in the fellowship

A CV

A writing sample of 30-50 pages, representing work that would be relevant for this position.

A description (not to exceed 2 single-spaced pages) of the scholarly work to be pursued during the fellowship period.

A one paragraph idea for a potential event.

Names and contact information for three referees who can be contacted for letters of reference

For additional information about the position, please contact Laurent Dubois, Academic Director of the Karsh Institute of Democracy and John L. Nau III Bicentennial Professor of the History and Principles of Democracy, at lmd8s@virginia.edu.

For questions about the application process, please contact Ashley Cochran, Senior Recruiter and Academic Recruitment Lead, at alc6dk@virginia.edu.

The University of Virginia, including the UVA Health System which represents the UVA Medical Center, Schools of Medicine and Nursing, UVA Physician's Group and the Claude Moore Health Sciences Library, are fundamentally committed to the diversity of our faculty and staff. We believe diversity is excellence expressing itself through every person's perspectives and lived experiences. We are equal opportunity and affirmative action employers. All qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to age, color, disability, gender identity or expression, marital status, national or ethnic origin, political affiliation, race, religion, sex (including pregnancy), sexual orientation, veteran status, and family medical or genetic information.

NYU Shanghai

Rank: Tenured/Tenure-Track Positions in Political Science-Global China Studies

Position Description

NYU Shanghai is seeking to fill at least two tenured or tenure-track positions (rank open) in the fields of Comparative Politics, Political Economy, and/or International Relations. The substantive field is open, but one of the positions will focus on China.

Terms of employment at NYU Shanghai are comparable to NYU New York and other U.S. institutions with respect to research start-up funds and compensation, and they include housing subsidies and educational subsidies for children. Faculty may in certain cases have the opportunity to spend time at NYU New York and other sites of the NYU Global Network, engaging in both research and teaching.

Qualifications

We seek candidates who have completed or are close to completing a Ph.D. in Political Science or a closely related discipline. We invite applications from candidates in the fields of Comparative Politics, Political Economy, and/or International Relations.

Application Instructions

Applicants should submit a cover letter, curriculum vitae, statement of research, statement of teaching interests, and at least one writing sample via Interfolio. Additionally, applicants will be prompted to enter the names and email addresses of at least three referees. Each referee will be contacted to upload a reference letter through Interfolio.

Review of applications will begin on November 1, 2023 and will continue until the position is filled. To apply, follow this link: <https://apply.interfolio.com/134126>. If you have any questions, please email the NYU Shanghai NY Office of Faculty Recruitment shanghai.faculty.recruitment@nyu.edu.

About NYU Shanghai:

NYU Shanghai is the third degree-granting campus within New York University's Global Network. It is the first higher education joint venture in China authorized to grant degrees that are accredited in the U.S. as well as in China. All teaching is conducted in English. A research university with liberal arts and science at its core, NYU Shanghai resides in one of the world's great cities with a vibrant intellectual community. NYU Shanghai recruits scholars of the highest caliber who are committed to NYU's global vision of transformative teaching and innovative research and who embody the global society in which we live.

NYU's Global Network includes degree-granting campuses in New York, Shanghai, and Abu Dhabi, complemented by twelve additional academic centers across the world. Faculty and students may circulate within the network in pursuit of common research interests and cross-cultural, interdisciplinary endeavors, both local and global.

University of Pittsburgh

Rank: Director of African Studies

Director of Center for African Studies

The University of Pittsburgh seeks an accomplished and dynamic scholar to serve as director of its Center for African Studies (<https://www.ucis.pitt.edu/africa>) beginning August 2024. The mission of CAS is to promote global understanding through support for teaching, learning, and research on Africa. CAS is the most recently established area studies center within the University Center for International Studies (UCIS), which now includes seven area and thematic studies centers, six of which are funded as National Resource Centers by the U.S. Department of Education, including the Center for African Studies. The successful applicant will join the appropriate disciplinary home in one (1) of three (3) schools at the University: the School of Education (Department of Health and Human Development), the School of Computing and Information (Department of Informatics and Networked Systems, Department of Computer Science, and/or Department of Information Culture and Data Stewardship), or the Dietrich School of Arts and Sciences (Department of Africana Studies, Department of History, Department of Political Science, and/or Department of History of Art and Architecture).

Candidates must be leading scholars in their field, holding the tenured rank of associate or full professor or their equivalent in academic systems outside the U.S. and Canada. For the initial six years of their appointment, the individual will serve as director of the CAS and receive a corresponding reduction in teaching and service obligations to their department/school. Unless there is a renewal of that appointment, the successful applicant will resume full-time responsibilities in their home department or school thereafter.

Administrative responsibilities include: developing academic programs; supervision of center staff (all centers have dedicated administrative associate directors); overseeing the implementation of all activities of the center; representing the center and UCIS at activities in various communities (locally, domestically, and abroad); development efforts for the center; guiding strategic grant seeking and application; and supporting the efforts of the Vice-Chancellor for Global Affairs (who also serves as the Director of UCIS). Responsibilities are year-round; it is understood, however, that scholarship and other responsibilities will require the candidate to travel and be absent from campus on occasion.

Successful candidates must hold a Ph.D. or relevant terminal degree with substantial research experience in African Studies. Candidates must also have substantial teaching experience a proven track record of administrative leadership and experience and of managing colleagues in a productive and collaborative manner. They must also have a demonstrated commitment to diversity and inclusion with highly developed skills in building a collaborative culture that values the strength of differing views and experiences.

We strongly prefer candidates whose work intersects with race and the political and social determinants of equity, health, and well-being, as these research issues align with a commitment by the Provost to invest in building expertise across Pitt's campus. Successful candidates will demonstrate evidence of scholarly activities that address pressing social issues related to anti-Black and systemic racism within historical and global contexts; of research and teaching that center on transmission and translation of African knowledge traditions, experiences, agency, and creativity; or that examine responses to global challenges to health and well-being through an African lens. Given the diversity of potential disciplinary homes for this position, we invite applications for scholars whose experience also aligns with at least one of the following areas:

- The visual and material cultures of the African continent;
- The histories of African (including African Diasporic) societies;
- Gender, sexuality, and family;
- Popular culture;
- Community-based, community-driven approaches to health and human development and/or issues surrounding power, equity, and justice;
- Responsible for data science and artificial intelligence;
- Human-computer interaction, learning sciences, and technology;
- Computational social science, and/or social media studies.

The University of Pittsburgh is an urban, state-related institution located in an area with a metropolitan population of approximately 2.3 million. The University is comprised of sixteen schools, four regional campuses outside of Pittsburgh, and four University centers (including UCIS) that serve the entire University community.

Applicants should apply by November 15, 2023. They will be required to upload the following: a comprehensive C.V.; a letter of interest that outlines their teaching, scholarly, and administrative interests and skills; a 1-2 page diversity statement discussing how past, planned, or potential contributions or experiences relating to diversity, equity, and inclusion will advance the University of Pittsburgh's commitment to inclusive excellence; and the names of three references.

The University of Pittsburgh is committed to championing all aspects of diversity, equity, inclusion, and accessibility within our community. This commitment is a fundamental value of the University and is crucial in helping us advance our mission, which includes attracting and retaining diverse workforces. We will continue to create and maintain an environment that allows individuals to discover, belong, contribute, and grow, while honoring the experiences, perspectives, and unique identities of all.

The University of Pittsburgh is an Affirmative Action/Equal Opportunity Employer and values equality of opportunity, human dignity and diversity. EOE, including disability/vets.

Georgetown University

Rank: Assistant Professor and Provost's Distinguished Faculty Fellow

The Edmund A. Walsh School of Foreign Service at Georgetown University invites applications from outstanding candidates for a faculty position at the Assistant Professor level beginning in the Fall of 2024. This position is part of the Provost's Distinguished Faculty Fellows Program, which seeks to hire candidates whose scholarship focuses on issues of diversity, equity, and inclusion. The ideal candidate should have a strong interest in research and teaching related to the Economics of Social Justice, broadly defined. Potential topics of research include, but are not limited to, the economics of race, ethnicity, caste, gender, sexual orientation or identity, migration status, disabilities, decolonization, climate change, or economic inequality. We encourage applications from candidates working on these topics within and across subfields such as applied microeconomics, labor, health, education, environment, development, migration, international trade, political economy, and macroeconomics. We will also consider applications from candidates in related disciplines such as political science, sociology, or demography. Candidates must demonstrate outstanding potential for empirical/quantitative research and have a PhD by the employment start date. The Provost Distinguished Fellows favors recent Ph.D. candidates and exempts them from teaching and service responsibilities in their first year in order to focus full-time on their research. In subsequent years the teaching load would be standard and include a course on social justice topics. Each Fellow is assigned mentors and will interact with a growing cohort of other fellows at Georgetown.

Applications are due by November 27th and should include the following

- Cover letter
- Curriculum vitae
- Job market paper
- Three letters of recommendation
- A statement detailing the candidate's contributions and commitment to diversity and inclusion through mentorship, teaching and service.

All applications and supporting materials must be submitted through the following link: <http://apply.interfolio.com/134386>. Faxed, emailed, or mailed applications will not be accepted.

Questions about the online application should be directed to Lauren Bauschard, Director of Faculty Affairs at lb1230@georgetown.edu. ## University of Pittsburgh

Rank: Teaching Assistant Professor

Teaching Assistant Professor and Academic Advisor

The Department of Political Science at the University of Pittsburgh invites applications for a full-time Teaching Assistant Professor (non-tenure stream). The appointment requires a strong commitment to excellence in teaching and prior teaching experience. The successful candidate is expected to serve as one of three undergraduate major advisors for the department and to teach four undergraduate courses per year, including introductory, upper-level, and capstone (senior) courses. All fields/subfields/areas of focus will be considered, and we are especially interested in candidates who can help us to complement and diversify our existing course offerings. In addition, the successful candidate will be responsible for supporting Departmental curriculum, communications, and programming, including outside-the-classroom learning. The starting date for the position is September 1, 2024. Minimum qualifications for the position are a Ph.D. in Political Science or a related field. Successful candidates are expected to engage in teaching and service that contributes to the department's mission.

Applications should include a cover letter, curriculum vitae, teaching portfolio (statement of philosophy, list of courses, sample syllabi and materials, etc.), writing sample(s), teaching evaluations (if available), a brief description of how your research, teaching or service demonstrates a commitment to diversity and inclusion, and three letters of reference. Experience in, and passion for, advising and mentoring students should be addressed. References can be sent to psjobs@pitt.edu. Please apply online at: <https://join.pitt.edu/>. In order to ensure full consideration, applications must be received by January 8, 2024, and the review of applications will continue until the position is filled. ## University of Texas at Austin

Rank: Dean, School of Civic Leadership

The University of Texas at Austin (UT Austin) invites nominations and applications for the inaugural Dean of the School of Civic Leadership.

The inaugural dean will provide strategic direction in developing a new interdisciplinary school for scholarship, research, and teaching that addresses our society's need for civically-minded leaders who are knowledgeable about America's founding principles, constitutional history, and economic system. Building on UT Austin's existing strengths, the School of Civic Leadership will offer a focused program of study that equips students with knowledge and aptitudes necessary to lead in a free and pluralistic society. Reporting to the University's executive vice president and provost, the dean serves as the chief academic and administrative officer of the school and will set an ambitious course as it develops its trajectory of innovation and impact.

The dean oversees all areas of the school's formation and mission development. The dean is responsible for academic and scholarly leadership and serves as the school's primary representative and liaison to the General Faculty, alumni, local government stakeholders, industry, and other partners. Overseeing an initial annual budget of more than $6 million, the dean is responsible for developing the school's programs and academic credentials in accordance with university procedures, building its faculty and staff, recruiting its first class of students, and securing additional sources of revenue and philanthropic support for the school's research and teaching activities. Specifically, the dean is charged with establishing a culture of excellence and innovation; forging a strong community of scholarship, creativity, collaboration, and learning; and creating the vision, operations, and services of the school.

To ensure the school's academic distinction and excellence, the inaugural dean will address the following key opportunities and challenges:

- Articulate and execute a compelling vision for the development of the School of Civic Leadership
- Build a faculty of distinction that works within the school and across colleges and schools
- Establish a community of staff to support the work of the school
- Serve as the key spokesperson for the work and values of the school across the University and beyond
- Foster collaboration within the school and across campus
- Develop the academic credentials of the new school
- Establish the operational infrastructure of the new school, including its financial and HR systems, development and fund raising, communications, student advising, and other operations
- Shape and help recruit the inaugural class of undergraduates to the school

A detailed leadership profile is available at <https://apptkr.com/4682473>.

The University of Texas at Austin is conducting an international search for this leadership position with the support of the executive search firm, WittKieffer. Melody Rose, Ph.D., Robin Mamlet, and Julia Bradley are supporting the provost's consultative search committee, which is chaired by Jeremi Suri, Ph.D., Mack Brown Distinguished Chair for Leadership in Global Affairs, and Professor of History and Public Affairs. Interested applicants are required to send a current curriculum vitae to UTADeanSCL@wittkieffer.com. Nominations, recommendations, expressions of interest, and inquiries should go to the same addresses.

Review of applications will begin in Fall 2023. Nominations and applications will be accepted until the position is filled. It is anticipated that the dean will be appointed with a start date in spring or summer 2024. UT policy requires that a background check be conducted on the selected candidate. All possible discretion will be exercised to maintain the privacy of applicants through the search committee phase of the process.

The University of Texas at Austin, as an equal opportunity/affirmative action employer, complies with all applicable federal and state laws regarding nondiscrimination and affirmative action. The University is committed to a policy of equal opportunity for all persons and does not discriminate on the basis of race, color, national origin, age, marital status, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, gender expression, disability, religion or veteran status in employment, educational programs and activities and admissions.

The successful candidate will address how AI is integral to their research program. We are also interested in candidates who complement the School's existing research and teaching expertise.

Requirements:

Minimum Qualifications:

- A Ph.D. in social and/or computer science (e.g., criminology, criminal justice, sociology, psychology, political science, computer science) from a college or university accredited by a U.S. Department of Education or internationally recognized accrediting organization by 8/31/2024. Candidates who will not hold the degree by this date will not be considered.
- Applicants must demonstrate evidence of a research program that addresses big questions in one or more areas of AI related to criminal justice, including but not limited to: applications of AI in any field of the discipline; computational social science (e.g., machine learning, natural language processing, data visualization, text analytics); the impact of AI on institutions, justice, and equality; critical or normative approaches to AI, including ethics of AI.
- Record of quality publications in the field of Criminal Justice or a related field
- Record of, or demonstrated potential for, effectively teaching courses that address the big questions in one or more areas of AI related to criminal justice described above.
- Applicants must demonstrate an ability to develop inclusive and equitable relationships within our diverse campus community
- Applicants must demonstrate an ability to support diversity, equity, access, inclusion, and belonging relative to their role.

Preferred Qualifications:

- Record of successfully publishing research that addresses the big questions in one or more areas of AI related to criminal justice described above
- Experience teaching undergraduate and/or graduate courses.
- Record of, or demonstrated potential for, applying for and obtaining external funding.

Colorado School of Mines

Rank: Hennebach Visiting Assistant Professor or Associate Professor of Energy Transition & Society

Position Title: Hennebach Visiting Assistant Professor or Associate Professor of Energy Transition & Society

Location: Colorado

Job No: JR102252

Work Type: Full time

Description:

Engineering a world of possibilities

The Department of Humanities, Arts, and Social Sciences (HASS) at the Colorado School of Mines invites applicants for a two-year (non-tenured, non-tenure-track) Visiting Assistant Professor or Associate Professor position focused on The Energy Transition & Society. We seek a colleague who focuses on the politics and policies of the energy transition, broadly construed. This may include (but is not limited to) topics such as: political participation in the energy transition; how energy governance intersects infrastructure and innovation; how energy transition initiatives interact with places and spaces; the multi-scalar dynamics of climate governance; the challenges and opportunities of a just transition and energy justice; the political economy of the energy transition and climate finance; cultural influences on energy imaginaries and regulations; and/or the political and policy dynamics of climate change adaptation.

We welcome applicants from all fields in the social sciences and humanistic social sciences. The scholar will join a multi-disciplinary Department of Humanities, Arts, and Social Sciences at an applied science and engineering university with an active, hands-on approach to addressing global challenges in Earth, Energy, and Environment. In keeping, we are especially interested in social science scholars who have a track record of, or a clear plan for, interdisciplinary engagement (with humanists and/or applied scientists and engineers) or public engagement (via teaching, research, or outreach). The position provides an opportunity to invigorate creative, interdisciplinary scholarship on the social dimensions of changing energy systems and environments.

Competitive applicants will have training and expertise in a relevant social science discipline or interdisciplinary field (including, but not limited to: anthropology, decolonial studies, environmental studies, ethnic studies, geography, media studies, political science, public policy, science and technology studies, sociology, or urban studies).

The successful candidate will teach a mix of undergraduate and graduate courses. One of these courses will be a graduate-level course focused on the energy transition and society. The scholar must also have a strong research agenda and show success in research during their time on campus.

The successful candidate will join a community of scholars affiliated with degree programs including the interdisciplinary graduate programs in Natural Resources & Energy Policy (HASS), Advanced Energy Systems, Humanitarian Science and Engineering, and Hydrologic Science and Engineering; undergraduate programs such as the University Honors and Scholars Program, the interdisciplinary Energy minor, and HASS minors in Environmental and Sustainability Studies as well as Culture, Creativity and Communication; university consortia including The Payne Institute for Public Policy, the Mines/National Renewable Energy Laboratory Nexus, and the Global Energy Future Initiative; and departmental initiatives including The Critical Environments Lab and the Hennebach Program in the Humanities.

This is a two-year position, with the possibility of an additional one-year contract extension. Expected start date is fall 2024.

Responsibilities:

- Develop/maintain a successful and externally funded research program that will produce scholarly publications.
- Teach undergraduate students from majors across the university and Masters students in the Natural Resources & Energy Policy Program.
- Contribute to HASS, Mines, and professional communities through active service.
- Promote and contribute to an inclusive and diverse Mines community.
- Teach undergraduate and graduate courses.

Minimum Qualifications:

- Demonstrated teaching experience at the university level.
- Ph.D. in hand by the time the appointment begins (fall 2024).
- An active research agenda that pursues compelling questions about the energy transition and society.
- Assistant Professor candidates must demonstrate the potential for excellence and a positive trajectory in university-level teaching, scholarship, and service.
- Associate Professor candidates must demonstrate a proven track record of success in teaching at the undergraduate and graduate levels.
- Associate Professor candidates must have an established and currently funded research program with clear potential for continuance.
- Associate Professor candidates must have a record of publication at top-tier international conferences and/or journals in the search area.
- Demonstrated teaching experience as the sole instructor of university-level courses.
- Commitment to excellence in teaching and curriculum development.
- Demonstrated understanding of diversity, equity, and inclusion issues in higher education and a commitment to addressing these issues through concrete action.
- Strong interpersonal and communication skills.

Preferred Qualifications:

- Demonstrated teaching experience as the sole instructor of university-level courses.
- Commitment to innovation in teaching at the undergraduate and graduate levels.
- Demonstrated ability to develop or maintain an externally funded research program.
- A track record of, or a clear plan for, interdisciplinary engagement (with humanists and/or applied scientists and engineers) or public engagement (via teaching, research, or outreach).

HASS and Mines:

HASS faculty are dedicated to delivering a program of excellence in the arts, humanities and social sciences that is designed to prepare students for the complex challenges of professional, civic, and private life in the 21st century. The HASS Department at Mines is refreshingly multidisciplinary and unique. Whereas other universities have many individual departments, HASS has faculty from across the arts, humanities, and social sciences housed together. Professors in history, political science, literature, music, geography, philosophers, and more constitute a creative amalgam of expertise and a dedication to Mines students. Our interdisciplinary faculty design creative courses, collaborate with departments across campus, and spearhead innovative—and sometimes transdisciplinary—research. HASS is also home for novel initiatives, such as the undergraduate Environmental Leadership Lab, a growing graduate degree in NREP, and 22 full-time faculty with impressive publication records.

About Mines & Golden, CO

When the world looks for answers, the world looks to Mines.

Colorado School of Mines is a top-ranked public university solving the grand challenges facing our society, particularly those related to the Earth, energy and the environment. Founded in 1874 with specialties in mining and metallurgy, Mines' scope and mission have continually expanded to meet the needs of industry and society. Today, we are the No. 38 public university in the nation, recognized for our innovation and undergraduate teaching in science, technology engineering and math (U.S. News and World Report, 2023).

Mines graduates are change makers, boundary breakers and problem solvers. Since our earliest days, a Mines education has been and continues to be a transformational opportunity, with one of the strongest returns on investment out there for talented STEM students of all backgrounds.

At the same time, Mines faculty members are pushing their fields in new directions, whether that's in the humanities, manufacturing, space resources, quantum engineering, carbon capture or more. Mines was recently classified as a R1 "Very High Activity" research institution by Carnegie, a notable feat for any university but particularly one of our size.

Are you looking for an inspiring, mission-driven workplace where you can contribute to solving the world's problems and educating the next generation of change makers? Are you an individual who values a diverse and inclusive community, where our different perspectives, experiences and cultures enrich the educational and work experience?

Look to Mines.

Equal Opportunity

Mines' commitment to nondiscrimination, affirmative action, equal opportunity and equal access is reflected in the administration of its policies, procedures, programs and activities and in its efforts to achieve a diverse student body and workforce.

Through its policies, procedures and resources, Mines complies with federal law, Colorado state law, administrative regulations, executive orders and other legal requirements to prevent discrimination (including harassment or retaliation) within the Mines campus community and to address potential allegations of inequity or concerns for safety.

Annual Rate and Benefits

Associate Professor $72,000 - $79,000

Assistant Professor $67,000 - $74,000

All Mines employees also have access to discount programs through the State of Colorado and free tickets for Mines Athletics home games, as well as access to the on-campus Recreation Center (fitness classes and training, swimming pool and more), equipment rentals through the Outdoor Rec Center, the Colorado State Employee Assistance Program (CSEAP), and backup child and elder care. Coming soon is an on-campus daycare center. For more information about benefits at Mines, go to mines.edu/human-resources/benefits.

How to Apply

Interested applicants should apply online as soon as possible. For full consideration, applications should be received by November 15, 2023.

Applications will continue to be considered until the position is filled.

Applications must include: 1) a cover letter stating area of interest, highlighting accomplishments to date, future directions at Mines and how they will interface with the department.; 2) curriculum vitae; 3) statement of research; 4) statement of teaching; and, 5) a diversity statement

Research Statement: Candidates should describe how their research relates to and complements research activities and expertise at Mines, its expected scholarly and societal impact, its relevance to Mines' goals, and current or future connections to industry and/or opportunities for entrepreneurship. The statement should cover both the candidate's past history of successful research as well as their plans for future research at Mines. Candidates should also be sure to describe any transdisciplinary aspects of their research. (For more information visit <https://www.mines.edu/president/planning/>.)

Teaching Statement: Mines is committed to high-quality, hands-on, and project-based learning. Additionally, Mines is growing its online MS non-thesis degree programs. Candidates should cover their in-person and hands-on teaching pedagogy and be prepared to describe any experience they have in online education.

Contributions to Diversity, Equity, and Inclusion: Candidates should submit a statement on Contributions to Diversity and Inclusion. Mines is committed to access, inclusion, and diversity and is actively developing a strategic plan to advance Diversity, Inclusion, and Access (for more information visit <https://www.mines.edu/about/diversity-and-inclusion/>). The diversity and inclusion statement should describe your past experience and should propose concrete research, teaching, and/or service activities that will advance access, inclusion, and diversity at Mines and beyond.

New York University Arts and Science

Rank: Assistant Professor in Black Cultural Studies

Subfield(s): Comparative Politics, Political Theory, Other

Specializations: African American Politics, Social Movements, Caribbean

Assistant Professor in Black Cultural Studies
Department of Social and Cultural Analysis

New York University Arts & Science

The Department of Social and Cultural Analysis at New York University invites applications for a tenure-track, assistant professor position in Black Cultural Studies. We are particularly interested in applicants whose work focuses on the Caribbean or the African continent and its diasporas, and whose research and teaching take an interdisciplinary and comparative approach.

This position is part of a multi-departmental cluster hire in “Black Diaspora Cultural Studies,” which includes the Arts and Science departments of Art History, History and Music. A primary aim of the cluster is to create a network for scholars at NYU working across a range of disciplines. More information about this cluster can be found here, along with background on NYU’s broader Faculty Cluster Hiring Initiative.

The Department of Social and Cultural Analysis is an interdisciplinary department committed to developing innovative approaches in urbanism, migration, diaspora, critical race, ethnic and indigenous studies, gender and sexuality, art, culture, politics, and economic life. The Department has degree programs in Africana Studies, American Studies, Asian/Pacific/American Studies, Gender and Sexuality Studies, Latinx Studies, Urban Studies, and Social and Cultural Analysis. The department encourages innovative teaching at both the undergraduate and graduate levels.

Candidates should submit the following materials via this Interfolio link <http://apply.interfolio.com/132712>

Letter of application
Curriculum vitae
Writing sample of 20-25 pages
Three confidential letters of recommendation

Your letter of application should focus on the contributions your research makes to the field and to the department. You may also address how your work in the university, such as classroom teaching, has contributed toward equity and inclusion.

The committee will begin reviewing applications on November 10, 2023, and will continue until the position is filled. For questions about the position please consult the NYU Department of Social and Cultural Analysis website: <http://sca.as.nyu.edu>, referring to the homepage link “Employment Opportunities.” For questions not answered here please contact the Assistant to the SCA Department Chair, Marty Correia at mc2828@nyu.edu.

The appointment will begin on September 1, 2024, pending administrative and budgetary approval. Candidates must have Ph.D. in hand by September 1, 2024.

In compliance with NYC’s Pay Transparency Act, the annual base salary range for this position is $85,000 - $135,000. New York University considers factors such as (but not limited to) the scope and responsibilities of the position, the candidate’s work experience, education/training, key skills, internal peer equity, as well as market and organizational considerations when extending an offer.

Equal Employment Opportunity Statement

Arts & Science at NYU is at the heart of a leading research university that spans the globe. We seek scholars of the highest caliber, who embody the diversity of the United States as well as the global society in which we live. We strongly encourage applications from women, racial and ethnic minorities, and other individuals who are underrepresented in the profession, across color, creed, race, ethnic and national origin, physical ability, gender and sexual identity, or any other legally protected basis. NYU is an equal opportunity/affirmative action employer and affirms the value of differing perspectives on the world as we strive to build the strongest possible university with the widest reach. ### University of California, Riverside

Rank: Post-baccalaureate Fellow – Junior Specialist

University of California, Riverside
Department of Political Science / Minority-Serving Institution Research Academy (MSIRA)
Post-baccalaureate Fellow – Junior Specialist

The Political Science Department in the College of Humanities, Arts, and Social Sciences at the University of California, Riverside (Riverside, CA) invites applications for a full-time, 12-month post-baccalaureate fellowship, with the potential to be extended an additional 6 months, to begin in the 2023-24 academic year. The winter quarter starts on January 3, 2024.

Description of Job Responsibilities: The post-baccalaureate fellow will assist political science faculty with the Minority-Serving Institution Research Academy (MSIRA), consisting of advanced undergraduates engaged in research apprenticeships following ten weeks of formal training in research methods. MSIRA is supported by a National Science Foundation award to Marissa Brookes, Kim Yi Dionne, and Jennifer Merolla, and the post-baccalaureate fellow will work closely with these three faculty. The post-baccalaureate fellow will help manage the selection, on-boarding, training, oversight, and mentoring of the MSIRA fellows and will also receive training in social science research methods to facilitate their supervision of the undergraduate fellows. Additionally, this person will be responsible for planning and coordinating events and contributing to a research project in conjunction with the faculty directors.

A furnished, shared office in the political science department will be made available to the post-baccalaureate fellow to be used for data analysis and report writing. The fellow will also have access to UCR’s main and science libraries and a laptop computer outfitted with all software necessary to carry out their work.

Salary: This is an 18-month fixed term position with an annual salary of $51,300 (with the potential of $78,600 salary to be earned if the fellowship is expanded to 18 months).

Qualifications: Applicants must be junior scholars who have earned a BA in political science or a related field within the past five years

(and no later than December 2023). The successful candidate will have strong writing and overall communication skills in addition to being a self-starter with outstanding problem-solving abilities. Preferred qualifications include competency with Excel, Qualtrics, STATA and/or R, conversance with various social media platforms, demonstrated leadership capacity, experience working with diverse populations, and an overall commitment to diversity in scholarship.

All application material must be submitted via the UC AP Recruit system at: <https://aprecruit.ucr.edu/apply/JPF01805>. Complete applications must include: a cover letter of interest, a curriculum vitae or resume, unofficial undergraduate transcripts, a statement of past and/or planned future contributions to advancing diversity, equity and inclusive excellence, and the names and contact information for three references.

Review of applications will begin on October 30, 2023 and may continue until the position is filled. Applications and supporting material received by October 30, 2023 will receive full consideration. Inquiries may be sent to mbrookes@ucr.edu.

UC Riverside has joined the Association of American Universities (AAU), an organization of 71 of the country's leading research universities. The honor and opportunity follow decades of continuous commitment to excellence in research, education, and innovation. UCR is also a member of the Alliance of Hispanic Serving Research Universities (HSRU) and shares the goals of both the AAU and HSRU member organizations.

UCR is a world-class research university with an exceptionally diverse undergraduate student body. Its mission is explicitly linked to providing routes to educational success for underrepresented and first-generation college students. A commitment to this mission is a preferred qualification.

University of California COVID-19 Vaccination Program Policy

Columbia World Projects

Rank: Postdoctoral Research Scholar - Firms and Industrial Policy

About Columbia World Projects

Columbia World Projects (CWP) is a university-wide initiative that aims to forge closer and more useful connections between Columbia University's research capabilities and the needs of the world by mobilizing researchers and scholars in collaboration with governments, organizations, businesses, and communities to tackle critical global challenges.

About the Columbia Center for Political Economy

The newly formed Columbia Center for Political Economy at Columbia World Projects promotes a new political economy with robust philosophical underpinnings and a cross-disciplinary orientation that connects economics to history, law, political science, sociology, public health, engineering, data science, and other fields. At the core of its work, the Center is developing "idea labs." Designed to develop, support, and advance fresh thinking, shape research agendas, affect graduate training, and serve as intellectual and policy incubators, the idea labs will be undergirded by an explicit focus on power, inequality, and uncertainty.

This Postdoctoral Research Scholar will be embedded in the idea lab on "Firms and Industrial Policy," which develops new intellectual frameworks for understanding firm behavior, providing the basis for policies to promote shared prosperity. Industrial policy – government interventions to stimulate innovation, accelerate technological change, and promote selected industries – is back on mainstream policy agendas in the U.S., Europe, and many developing countries. But even as the policy pendulum swings back toward government intervention, the knowledge base to guide industrial policy remains underdeveloped. Work in the Lab will aim to strengthen this knowledge base and provide the groundwork for policy interventions that stimulate growth, promote innovation, and ensure that the gains are shared broadly. The Firms and Industrial Policy Idea Lab will be an interdisciplinary and collaborative space. We are soliciting applicants whose research agendas intersect these themes, and who have the desire and capacity to converse across disciplines.

Position Summary

The Columbia Center for Political Economy is seeking a full-time Postdoctoral Research Scholar. This is a one-year position (one additional year may be possible) with an anticipated start date of July 1, 2024. Under the direction of the Center's faculty co-directors and advisory board, the Scholar will have the opportunity to pursue their own research while supporting the work of the Center. The Center is part of Columbia World Projects at Columbia University.

Funding for the Postdoctoral Research Scholar will cover salary for up to one academic year. The scholar will commit to jointly organize seminars and conferences, public events, and additional programmatic support and outreach.

The salary range for this position is $64,000 to $84,000.

Qualifications

Applicants must have a PhD, JD, JSD, or equivalent from across the social sciences, history, and law.

Key Deadlines:

Applications will be reviewed on a rolling basis. All application materials must be received no later than December 1, 2023 5:00PM EST.

Award announcements are expected to be made in February 2024, with an anticipated start date of July 1, 2024.

Application

Interested applicants should submit the following materials to politicaleconomy@columbia.edu using the subject line structure: First Name_Last Name_CPE Postdoc Application. Incomplete applications will not be considered.

1. Cover Letter;
2. Curriculum Vitae;

3. Writing sample consisting of a single journal article, essay, or book chapter (published or unpublished);
4. A detailed research plan (around two pages single-spaced) for the position stating specific goals to be accomplished during the period it will be held; and
5. Letters of references from three faculty members (including your doctoral supervisor, if applicable).

Northeastern University

Rank: Assistant, Associate, or Full Professor - Democracy and Technology

Assistant, Associate, or Full Professor of Democracy and Technology

Northeastern University, Boston

Northeastern University seeks to fill two open-rank faculty positions at the tenure-track Assistant or Tenured Associate or Full Professor levels at the intersection of Democracy and Technology, with a focus on democratic practice, resilience, and participation, including at the grassroots level. One position will be a joint appointment with the Khoury College of Computer Sciences. The successful candidate for this position will have expertise or knowledge of data-driven computational systems. The second will be in democracy and technology policy, politics, and governance broadly construed. Academic rank at the Associate Professor and Full Professor levels will be commensurate with experience and qualifications reflecting a record of demonstrated teaching and scholarly excellence.

Democratic systems – indeed, the very notion of democratic self-governance – face considerable challenges, many of them exacerbated and accelerated by technologies, including but not limited to information technologies, surveillance technologies, and AI. Individually, and in combination, such technologies in some cases have bolstered authoritarian regimes while leaving democratic political institutions and processes struggling to adapt. However, in other contexts they are essential contributors to democratic organization, participation, and institutional effectiveness. Successful candidates will both understand these challenges and think about paths forward in enabling democratic participation, governance, and efficacy.

We welcome applicants from political science, public policy, international affairs, computational social science, digital humanities, or related fields. Successful candidates will have demonstrated expertise in the intersection of technology and democracy, a robust research agenda, significant experience or commitment to teaching and a dedication to education innovation, and the desire and capacity to support the interdisciplinary mission of the college, university, and the experiential liberal arts. Candidates should have a demonstrated commitment to fostering diverse and inclusive environments.

Applicants will be considered as part of a single pool for both positions.

Qualifications:

- Ph.D. in political science, public policy, international affairs, computational social science, digital humanities, information science or related fields related field in hand by the appointment start date is required.
- Evidence of interdisciplinary expertise and capacity for collaboration across disciplines
- Commitment to enhancing diversity, equity, and inclusion
- A record in teaching, research, scholarship, and service, for level of appointment at higher rank of Associate or Full Professor
- Commitment to faculty development and mentoring, if a senior candidate
- Commitment to engaged and impactful research and innovation
- Commitment to the continued development of Northeastern University's signature experiential learning model

Documents to Submit:

Applicants should submit a cover letter that addresses the applicant's interest in and qualifications for the position, curriculum vitae, a research statement, a diversity statement, and the names and contact information for at least three individuals who can provide a letter of recommendation.

In the diversity statement, please describe how you can support Northeastern's commitment to diversity, equity, inclusion, and belonging. Describe how your teaching, service, research, and/or leadership (as applicable) has supported the success of students and/or colleagues; and/or describe the impact others have had on you as relating to diversity, equity and inclusion.

Additional documents, such as a writing sample, evidence of teaching effectiveness, or sample syllabi may be requested at a later time.

The application deadline for this position is November 1st, 2023.

University of Texas at Austin

Rank: Assistant Professor of Instruction

Specializations: Gender Politics & Policy, Lesbian & Gay Studies, Women & Politics

Position Description

The Department of Women's, Gender, and Sexuality Studies, College of Liberal Arts, The University of Texas at Austin, invites applications for a professional-track Assistant Professor of Instruction. The field of doctoral research is open; we seek a talented teacher/mentor interested in a faculty position that does not carry research obligations. This is a non-tenured appointment subject to regular renewal, contingent on performance, available funding, and programmatic need. Although the initial term of appointment is for one year, this position is designed to be long-term and continuing, with eventual extension to multi-year contracts, themselves expected to be renewed on a continual basis. This is a full-time position with a teaching load of three courses per long semester (six courses per academic year). Job responsibilities will include independently designing approaches to regularly-offered requirements for our degree programs, such as:

- Introduction to Women's and Gender Studies
- Introduction to LGBTQ Studies
- Feminist Theories (undergrad and/or grad)
- Feminist Research Methods (undergrad and/or grad)
- Senior Seminar (topic of instructor's choice)
- Writing Workshop (grad)

Service responsibilities may include serving as Graduate Advisor, Undergraduate Advisor, Honors Program Director, or committee work as needed by the department. Research, publication, creative practice, and other contributions to the University will be acknowledged and evaluated as part of Annual Review if desired, but are not required for this position. Specific teaching, service and other assignments will be negotiated and will vary with departmental needs and faculty interests.

DWGSS is a newly-approved department dedicated to research, teaching and learning about gender and sexuality, committed to intersectional, transnational, queer and feminist teaching and learning. Area of specialization is open, but areas of particular need and interest include:

- Climate and environment
- Science and technology studies
- Indigenous, Black, Asian-American and/or Latinx feminist, queer and trans studies
- Global feminisms, transnationalism, diaspora, migration
- Critical policy analysis, demography, quantitative research
- Popular culture, fine arts, sport, and performance

- Disability studies, health, and medicine, reproductive justice
- Religion, epistemologies, philosophy, critical theory
- Restorative justice, legal and violence studies
- Student and community-engaged research

The College of Liberal Arts also houses several successful departments and programs in related fields, including African and African Diaspora Studies, Mexican-American and Latino Studies, Native American and Indigenous Studies, Asian American Studies, Latin American Studies, the South Asia Institute, Russian and East European Studies, European Studies, Middle Eastern Studies, and East Asian Studies. WGSS works closely with these and other units, especially through the GRIDS (Gender, Race, Indigeneity, Disability, Sexuality) Studies group and RIM (Race, Indigeneity and Migration) undergraduate major. The University of Texas at Austin is one of the top-ranked Research-1 public universities in the country, located in the lively city of Austin, famous for its greenbelts, nightlife, and thriving subcultures.

Professional-track faculty members in the College of Liberal Arts, and especially within the department, are fully integrated members of our faculty, serving alongside research-intensive faculty members in all facets of department life. The Department of Women's, Gender, and Sexuality Studies is committed to mentoring professional-track faculty and advancing their teaching careers by supporting professional development, pathways to promotion, pedagogical innovation, academic leadership, and contributions to the university's broader curriculum.

Qualifications

An earned doctoral degree in Women's, Gender, and Sexuality Studies or related field and teaching experience at the college level is required. Preferred qualification: evidence of teaching excellence.

Application Instructions

Review of applications will start immediately and continue until the position is filled. Appointment start date could be anytime between January 15, 2024 and Sept. 1, 2024.

Please submit the materials below via Interfolio, at <https://apply.interfolio.com/133477>.

- Curriculum Vitae
- a letter of application of 1-2 pages that summarizes your intellectual, scholarly, and pedagogical training and experience, and ability to work effectively with a broadly diverse student population.
- statement of teaching philosophy (1-2 paragraphs), plus separate one-paragraph descriptions of a lower-division and upper-division course you would like to teach
- three letters of recommendation, at least one of which includes a detailed evaluation of your teaching, including a teaching observation

Salary is competitive and commensurate with experience and qualifications. Position funding is subject to budget availability.

Stonehill College

Rank: Assistant Professor of Political Science

Founded by the Congregation of Holy Cross in 1948, Stonehill is a private Catholic college located just 22 miles from downtown Boston on a beautiful 384-acre campus in Easton, Massachusetts. With a student-to-faculty ratio of 13:1, the College engages its 2,500+ students in 80+ rigorous academic programs in the liberal arts, sciences, and pre-professional fields.

Faithful to the Holy Cross tradition in education, Stonehill College is committed to developing the moral, spiritual, intellectual, physical, and social competencies of its students and seeks to build and sustain a campus community that embraces diversity and inclusion in its teaching, learning, living, and working. Stonehill values the diversity of persons, opinions, and cultural and religious perspectives. In fulfillment of its motto, Lux et Spes ("Light and Hope"), the College cultivates in its students the competence to think, act, and lead with courage toward creating a more just and compassionate world.

Equal Employment Opportunity shall be provided for all employees and applicants for employment on the basis of their demonstrated ability and competence without discrimination on the basis of race, color, religion, sex, national origin, age, veteran status, disability, and or ancestry. Stonehill College will adhere to the Federal Requirements of Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, the Civil Rights Act of 1991, the Age Discrimination in Employment Act of 1967, the Rehabilitation Act of 1973, the Americans with Disabilities Act of 1990, and its amendments, the Immigration Reform and Control Act of 1986, the Massachusetts Fair Employment Practice Law, and all other applicable State and Federal laws. The College is committed to providing a work environment that is free of discrimination. All employees and applicants will be treated fairly, equitably, and with courtesy. Stonehill College encourages diversity and welcomes individuals who will enrich the cultural and diverse experiences of the campus. In accordance with Massachusetts law, employees of Stonehill College are considered employees-at-will.

The Department of Political Science & International Studies and the Center for the Study of Race, Ethnicity, and Social Justice at Stonehill College invites applications for a full-time, tenure-track position in the area of race and ethnicity in U.S. politics. This search is part of a multidisciplinary cluster hire for Stonehill College's Center for the Study of Race, Ethnicity, and Social Justice (CRESJ). The cluster hire will foreground race, ethnicity, and social justice in order to address justice broadly. The successful candidates will have a departmental home in Political Science and work with CRESJ to build a major and minor in race, ethnicity, and social justice.

Essential Duties & Responsibilities

The successful candidate for this position will be asked to teach courses in the Department of Political Science & International Studies, produce high-impact scholarship, and contribute to the mission of the Center for the Study of Race, Ethnicity, and Social Justice by mentoring students and expanding the college's curricular offerings. We are interested in candidates whose scholarship addresses topics of race and racism in the US political system. This position entails teaching a 3-3 load. The successful candidate will be prepared to teach an introductory course in American politics and courses on race and ethnic politics in the United States. Preferred but not required is the ability to teach quantitative research methods, institutions, and/or public policy. This is a tenure-track position.

Education and Experience

Candidates should have a record that demonstrates high-quality teaching and research as well as a commitment to excellence in education at the undergraduate level. The successful candidate must have the Ph.D. in hand or have fulfilled all requirements for the degree by the start of the appointment. As Stonehill College is committed to creating an inclusive and equitable environment for students, faculty, and staff, the successful candidate will demonstrate a commitment to enhancing diversity, equity, and inclusion through their scholarship, teaching, and mentoring of students.

Interested applicants should submit a cover letter, Curriculum Vitae, Teaching Philosophy, and Diversity Statement via the URL link:

University of Texas at El Paso

Rank: Assistant Professor

About The University of Texas at El Paso

The University of Texas at El Paso is America's leading Hispanic-serving university. Located at the westernmost tip of Texas, where three states and two countries converge along the Rio Grande, UTEP is a comprehensive public research university that is increasing access to excellent higher education. We advance the discovery of public value and positively impact the health, culture, education, and economy of the community we serve. Eighty-four percent of our students are Hispanic, and half of undergraduates are the first in their families to go to college. Deeply woven into the University's character are the distinctive strengths of the people we serve. At UTEP, our 24,000 students have access to 169 bachelor's, master's, and doctoral degree programs. Located in the second-most educated city in Texas, UTEP is recognized as one of the best research universities in the country for connecting students with the community around them. UTEP is one of only four institutions in Texas to hold both the top research and community engagement designations from the Carnegie Classification of Institutions of Higher Education.

The Department of Communication is one of the largest majors at the university, with faculty and over 700 students in five areas of study: Advertising, Communication Studies, Corporate and Organizational Communication, Digital Media Production, and Multimedia Journalism. The Department also offers a Master Arts in Communication. Our 12 tenured and tenure-track faculty and a diverse pool of non-tenure track faculty, engage in communication research and prepare students for applied communication careers; many faculty members focus on Latina/o communication issues in the United States, and we also have a number of faculty focused on global issues and international contexts.

The Department of Political Science and Public Administration is a growing unit of scholars dedicated to disciplinary and interdisciplinary research. Our current composition of 13 tenured and tenure-track faculty and 6 non-tenure track faculty also dedicate themselves to educate future generations of leaders. The Department offers a Master of Public Administration accredited by the Network of Schools of Public Policy, Affairs and Administration (NASPAA), a Graduate Certificate in Nonprofit Administration, and an undergraduate concentration and minor in Public Administration.

Job Description:

We are seeking a scholar with a focus on human resource management (preferably as it relates to diversity management), organizational communication, communication and organizational culture, and/or stakeholder/community engagement and responsiveness. We are especially interested in scholars that conduct empirical research that examines how public and nonprofits actors engage underserved or traditionally marginalized groups. The position will be a joint appointment between the Department of Communication and the Department of Political Science and Public Administration with a tenure home in one of these two departments.

Requirements

Required Qualifications: Applicants must have a Ph.D. in Public Administration, Communication, or a closely related field from an accredited university. ABD applicants will be considered if a doctorate will be in hand by fall 2024. An active research agenda and published scholarly journal articles are required. The potential to secure external funding is highly valued.

Preferred Areas: Preference will be given to candidates who have teaching and/or research expertise in one or more areas listed in the job description.

Application Instructions

Applicants must electronically submit: (1) letter of interest that specifies teaching areas and research expertise; (2) curriculum vita; (3) one scholarly publication or working paper; (4) evidence of teaching effectiveness; (5) graduate transcript (unofficial is acceptable for application; official one needed at hiring) and (6) names and full contact information of three references that we may contact. If you have questions about the position, please contact the Search Committee Chair, Dr. Eric Boyer at ejboyer@utep.edu

Application Review Date: Review of applications will begin December 1, 2023, and will continue until the position is filled.

To apply, please visit www.utep.edu/employment.

Additional Information

Hiring decisions are based on budget approval.

In keeping with its access, excellence, and impact mission, The University of Texas at El Paso is committed to an open, diverse, and inclusive learning and working environment that honors the talents, respects the differences, and nurtures the growth and development of all. We seek to attract faculty and staff who share our commitment.

The University of Texas at El Paso is an Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action employer. The University does not discriminate on the basis of race, color, national origin, sex, religion, age, disability, genetic information, veteran status, sexual orientation, or gender identity in employment or the provision of services in accordance with state and federal law. ## Northwestern University

Specializations: Gender Politics & Policy, Lesbian & Gay Studies, Women & Politics

The Sexualities Project at Northwestern (SPAN) invites applications for two-year postdoctoral fellowships in Sexuality Studies, to run from September 1, 2024 through August 31, 2026. Applications are welcome from scholars who study sexuality from a social science perspective (broadly construed). Each Fellow's appointment will be a joint one: in the Gender & Sexuality Studies Program and in another department relevant to the Fellow's research interests. We are particularly interested in candidates who could affiliate with one of the following participating departments: Anthropology, Black Studies, Communication Studies, History, Human Development and Social Policy, Linguistics, Performance Studies, Political Science, Religious Studies, or Sociology. That is, the Fellow must have relevant expertise in both Sexuality Studies and one of these other disciplines, and must be prepared to teach courses that reflect that combined expertise.

Fellows will pursue a program of independent scholarship under the guidance of a faculty mentor and will teach two undergraduate courses (typically one seminar and one lecture course) over the course of each year. Northwestern is on the quarter system by which the Fellows' two courses will be distributed across three academic quarters. Fellows will also be expected to be active participants in SPAN's community of faculty and graduate students and, as applicable, in their affiliated department by attending talks and events, and by giving a public talk once each year. Finally, they will assist in the organization of on-campus educational activities such as the annual SPAN workshop.

Fellows will be expected to be in residence for each of the academic years of their appointment, and all teaching will be conducted in person.

Applicants with a PhD (or equivalent doctoral degree) must have completed it after September 1, 2020. Applicants without a PhD (or equivalent doctoral degree) must complete all the requirements for the degree before September 1, 2024. At time of application, the applicant must be available for the full two-year term of the Fellowship. The stipend is $64,000 in the first year of the fellowship. In addition, the Fellow is eligible for $4,000 per year to fund research and conference travel, and up to $2,000 for allowable relocation expenses in the first year. Up to $1,000 is also available for allowable travel expenses for an area visit prior to the start of the postdoc term. This is a full-time, benefits eligible position.

All application materials other than letters of recommendation must be received by 11:59 p.m. on December 1, 2023. The initial letter of recommendation is due no later than December 8, 2023. Given that your references will not receive submission instructions until you submit your completed application, we urge you to submit your application well before the deadline.

Specializations: China, Developing Nations, International Political Economy

Applications are invited for an Assistant Professor in China and Global Development position at the Centre of Development Studies in the Department of Politics and International Studies (POLIS) The start date for this role will be September 2024.

The successful candidate will have a record of research publications commensurate with the international reputation of the University of Cambridge. The candidate should show an outstanding record of publications, which may include published monographs or monographs nearing publication, that demonstrate clear research trajectory and promise. The candidate will be expected to provide at least 40 hours of lectures and seminars annually, supervise MPhil dissertations, conduct small-group undergraduate teaching (supervisions) and perform academic administration and examining.

To compliment the work of the vibrant teaching and research community at the Centre, we invite candidates who critically focus on China's growing role as a global economic and political power from a developmental perspective.

The successful candidate is expected to contribute positively to the teaching-intensive Centre. The Centre has a target of 85 MPhil students and a strong group of 33 PhD students, drawn from all over the world and from a wide range of disciplinary backgrounds. The post-holder will: (i) deliver teaching for the MPhil and the PhD programmes in Development Studies; (ii) take on a range of necessary administrative duties in the Centre and Department; (iii) conduct original research of international standards; (iv) contribute to other teaching in the Department where appropriate.

Candidates must be able to show evidence of research of international standing, demonstrate a willingness and ability to contribute collegially to the life of the Centre and the Department, and possess a flexible approach to teaching and administrative duties.

The Centre of Development Studies sees the diversity of ideas and backgrounds as a source of strength and creativity, especially in the context of global inequality and development. We strongly encourage candidates from BAME backgrounds to apply.

University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill

Rank: Assistant Professor, Associate Professor

Subfield(s): Political Theory, Public Policy, Other

Specializations: Political Philosophy & Theory, Political Theory, Political Economy

The Department of Political Science and the Philosophy, Politics, and Economics Program (PPE) Program in the College of Arts and Sciences at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill invite applications for a tenure-track position at the rank of Assistant or Associate Professor or Associate Professor with tenure in political theory starting July 1, 2024. Required qualifications are ABD or Ph.D or an equivalent degree in Political Science, Philosophy, Public Policy or a related field in the humanities or social sciences. The successful candidate will be a core faculty member in UNC's thriving Philosophy, Politics, and Economics Program and will be expected to take an active role in developing and expanding the PPE Program. The successful candidate must have research and teaching interests that include the intersection of philosophy, politics, and economics, and be committed to the value of PPE as an educational and intellectual endeavor. The successful candidate will be expected to teach the core courses in PPE and thus must have a working knowledge of political economy and game theory. We are primarily seeking candidates trained in political theory who are able to teach normative political theory courses. However, candidates with a strong normative background who primarily teach American or Comparative politics will be considered as will candidates with an expertise in ethics and public policy who have an interest in a primary appointment in the Department of Public Policy. Significant promise of research excellence is a necessary condition for consideration, as is evidence of significant skills in teaching. Salary commensurate with qualifications.

The University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill is an equal opportunity and affirmative action employer. All qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to age, color, disability, gender, gender expression, gender identity, genetic information, national origin, race, religion, sex, sexual orientation, or status as a protected veteran.

Review of applications will begin October 8th 2023, and will continue until the position is filled. To apply for the position, please follow this link <https://unc.peopleadmin.com/postings/265898>. Please include a cover letter, curriculum vitae, research statement, teaching statement (including available teaching evaluations and other evidence of teaching excellence), and a writing sample. Applicants will be required to identify the names, titles and email addresses of professional references at the time of application (please note that four are required). Recommenders identified by the applicant will be contacted via email with instructions for uploading their letters of support. Alternatively, applicants may list Interfolio as a reference and the application system will solicit recommendations directly from Interfolio. Please see <http://>

Georgetown University

Rank: Open-rank professor - Ethics

McDonough School of Business seeks to add to its ethics faculty. We have one opening for a professor of ethics to begin in the 2024-25 academic year. We have permission to hire at the assistant professor or tenured associate professor level, but we have a strong preference for an experienced professor who is ready to teach ethics courses in the MBA and executive curriculum as well as at the undergraduate level. Applications for lateral moves are welcome and will be given priority consideration. McDonough's ethics courses are an amalgam of true normative ethics with social psychology, political science, and economics. All contain an experiential aspect in which the students engage in real time ethical decision making. We seek a dynamic classroom teacher able to publish research that can meet McDonough's rigorous standards for tenure.

ABOUT GEORGETOWN UNIVERSITY'S MCDONOUGH SCHOOL OF BUSINESS

Located in Washington, D.C., Georgetown University's McDonough School of Business offers unparalleled access to the world's business, policy, and thought leaders. The school, which attracts faculty and students from around the world, is committed to building global business knowledge and inspiring ethical leaders to serve the common good. The school's undergraduate, MBA, Executive MBA, and specialized programs provide solid grounding in all the core management disciplines, with an emphasis on the global, ethical, and political environment of business. The McDonough School of Business has an ongoing commitment to diversity, equity, and inclusion as a fundamental aspect of the Georgetown community.

IE University

Rank: Tenure-Track Faculty Position in Political Economy 2024-2025

Tenure-Track Faculty Position in Political Economy 2024-2025

IE University's School of Politics, Economics, and Global Affairs (SPEGA) seeks applicants for a tenure-track faculty position in Political Economy at the rank of Assistant Professor starting September 1, 2024. We seek candidates using quantitative methods and/or formal theory to study substantive questions of broad disciplinary relevance. We are especially but not exclusively interested in candidates whose work addresses the interface between political-economy and new technologies.

Successful candidates will demonstrate capacity to produce publications in top peer-reviewed outlets (both generalist and field journals) in the coming years. More generally, we seek academics with the capacity to engage in policy-relevant work and an overall commitment to institution-building - applying for research grants, participating in affiliated research centers and academic programs, and expanding our current network and partnerships.

Successful candidates will join the Political Science and International Relations group within SPEGA, which consists of 14 tenured and tenure-track scholars studying comparative politics, international relations, political economy, and political behavior. Recent publications from this group appear in APSR, AJPS, JOP, BJPS, and many other top generalist and field outlets.

Candidates should have a PhD from a recognized department of political science, public policy, economics, or a related field, or demonstrate clear evidence that their PhD will be complete by July 2024.

The IE SPEGA is part of IE University, located in Madrid and Segovia, Spain, and is a full member of the Association of Professional Schools in International Affairs (APSIA). We are a fast-growing department of professors committed to world-class academic research and teaching in the social sciences, public policy, and international affairs.

We offer a competitive remuneration package, attractive teaching commitments, and an enriching and cosmopolitan work environment in the heart of Madrid. Our working language is English, and both our faculty and student body are highly diverse and international.

IE University is an Equal Opportunity Employer and strongly encourages applications from individuals who will expand the ethnic and gender diversity of our faculty.

Applications should include a cover letter and vita, a job market paper, and three confidential letters of recommendation.

Candidates may apply via Interfolio by October 20, 2023, using the following link: <http://apply.interfolio.com/132207>

Who We Are

The mission of the Benson Center is to explore the culture, languages and ideas of the Western tradition, ranging from antiquity to modern society. The Center is especially concerned with the values that emerge from that tradition, and their ongoing role in the institutions of the United States. Integral to this mission is the Center's commitment to fostering research, debate and dialogue on the fundamental issues of our time – moral, political and economic. Our aim is to promote a lively and balanced conversation that respects both conservative and liberal ideals, thus fostering the full diversity of political, economic and philosophical perspectives on the CU Boulder campus.

What Your Key Responsibilities Will Be

The Visiting Scholar will continue an open and vigorous dialogue on campus featuring the principles of conservatism in historical and contemporary contexts. Specific duties include teaching undergraduate courses, delivering public lectures, and organizing visiting speakers and events.

What You Should Know

The successful candidate will receive a senior professorial appointment, without tenure, in the College of Arts and Sciences. Faculty with previous University teaching experience will be hired as Visiting (rank) Professor.

What We Can Offer

The hiring salary for this 100% position is $185,000 annually. The compensation package is competitive, including relocation subsidy, dedicated budget, and administrative assistance.

The University of Colorado offers excellent benefits, including medical, dental, retirement, paid time off, tuition benefit and ECO Pass. The University of Colorado Boulder is one of the largest employers in Boulder County and offers an inspiring higher education environment.

What We Require

Candidates are expected to have a Ph.D. at the time of appointment.

Special Instructions

To apply, please submit the following materials:

1. Cover Letter
2. CV/Resume
3. Diversity and Inclusion Statement
3. During the application process you will need to enter contact information for three references who will be contacted to provide letters of recommendation as the search progresses.

Full consideration will be given to applications received by October 2, 2023.

Note: Application materials will not be accepted via email. For consideration, please apply through CU Boulder Jobs.

Princeton University

Rank: Harold T. Shapiro Postdoctoral Research Associate in Bioethics

The Princeton University Center for Human Values invites applications for the Harold T. Shapiro Postdoctoral Fellowship in Bioethics for a possible available position starting in September 2024. The Shapiro Fellowship supports outstanding scholars studying ethical issues arising from developments in medicine, the biological sciences, or population health. We particularly encourage proposals focusing on problems of practical importance that have broader theoretical interest.

The Shapiro Postdoctoral Research Associate will spend from one to three years at Princeton conducting research and teaching the equivalent of one course each year (subject to sufficient enrollments and approval by the Dean of the Faculty). They will participate in the Ira W. DeCamp Seminar in Bioethics and will be invited to participate in other activities of the University Center for Human Values including a year-long research seminar for visiting fellows and Center faculty.

QUALIFICATIONS

Applications welcome from candidates who have or expect to have a Ph.D., M.D., or other equivalent doctoral degree by the start, normally beginning September 1, 2024. Applicants should not have more than two years of postdoctoral experience by the date of appointment. An applicant may have a background in any area of ethical studies, not necessarily in bioethics. However, the proposed research plan should be related to the field of bioethics.

Applications will be evaluated on the basis of the applicant's previous accomplishments and the promise of the proposed research project in bioethics. The capacity to contribute to the University's teaching program will also be considered.

TERM OF APPOINTMENT

The term of the fellowship is one year, normally beginning September 1, 2024, with the possibility of renewal for up to two additional years pending satisfactory performance. Appointment will be made to the rank of Postdoctoral Research Associate; the Shapiro Associate will also carry the title of Lecturer, if teaching. Princeton University offers competitive salary and employee benefits.

HOW TO APPLY

Candidates must submit an online application at <https://www.princeton.edu/acad-positions/position/32066>.

A complete application will include the following supporting materials:

1. A curriculum vitae;
2. A research proposal (not to exceed 1,500 words). Please provide an indicative title in the heading;
3. A scholarly paper (of no more than 12,000 words, not including bibliography) representing the applicant's scholarly achievement or potential;

4. Contact information for two referees, who should be prepared to comment specifically about the applicant's qualifications for the proposed research project. Referees will be contacted directly with instructions for uploading letters of reference.

These materials must be submitted online by the application deadline of Thursday, November 30, 2023, 11:59 p.m. EST. We do not accept application materials by any other method. Letters of reference should be submitted by Thursday, December 7, 2023 11:59 p.m. EST. The selection committee will begin reviewing applications immediately so letters of reference received after the priority deadline may put candidates at a disadvantage.

Decisions will be announced in late March, 2024. This position is subject to the University's background check policy.

Princeton University is an Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action Employer and all qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to age, race, color, religion, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity or expression, national origin, disability status, protected veteran status, or any other characteristic protected by law.

Harvard University

Rank: FELLOWS-IN-RESIDENCE PROGRAM

Subfield(s): Other, Public Administration, Public Policy

The Edmond & Lily Safra Center for Ethics at Harvard University invites applications from a broad range of researchers and practitioners who will work over the course of the year on pressing issues in ethics. Faculty in arts and sciences and professional schools, postdoctoral scholars, practitioners, and researchers from industry, government, and NGOs are eligible to apply. The call for applications for the 2024-25 is completely open: we will consider any topic pertaining to the serious ethical questions of our time. All eligible applicants are encouraged to apply and will be given careful consideration; priority will be given to outstanding early career scholars and practitioners.

As always, our goal will be to craft a cohort in which all fellows will find valuable intellectual partnerships to support and spur their work. The ideal candidates are those who are willing to invest time and energy into building community with the other fellows in their cohort.

Fellows-in-Residence will be expected to devote the majority of their time to their individual projects and to participate in regular work-in-progress seminars. In addition, Fellows are strongly encouraged to participate in—and contribute to—the Center's programming, which includes public lectures, themed seminars and reading groups, conferences, workshops, and lunch discussions.

This Fellowship is intended to be residential. With the exception of travel to conferences and meetings, Fellows are expected to be in residence in the Boston area at least four working days per week during the term.

For the last few years, the Center has offered the possibility of joint fellowship opportunities with several other Centers at Harvard. We continue to offer that possibility, with specific potential affiliations to be worked out on a case-by-case basis:

· Berkman Klein Center for Internet and Society at Harvard University
 · Carr Center for Human Rights at the Harvard Kennedy School
 · Center for Bioethics at the Harvard Medical School
 · Center for Research on Computation and Society at the Harvard John A. Paulson School of Engineering and Applied Sciences
 · Hutchins Center for African & African American Research at Harvard University
 · Petrie-Flom Center for Health Law Policy, Biotechnology and Bioethics at the Harvard Law School

Applicants will be invited to indicate on the application form whether they wish to be considered for a joint fellowship position with one of these Centers. If selected, the joint fellowship will offer access to development opportunities and programming at the Edmond & Lily Safra Center for Ethics and the partnering center.

ELIGIBILITY

Applicants must have a PhD, professional degree, or a minimum of 5 years of equivalent professional experience by the start of the fellowship year. Applicants from any discipline or professional field will be considered. Those who have previously held a yearlong residential Fellowship at the Center are not eligible; this limitation does not apply to former Undergraduate Fellows or former Graduate Fellows. The Fellows-in-Residence Program runs the course of the academic year, typically from the beginning of September through the end of May, and is open to all applicants who meet the above criteria, regardless of citizenship.

STIPEND

Faculty:

We offer a stipend of one-half of your base academic year salary, up to $80,000, and a research allowance of up to $5,000 for approved expenses directly related to your work, such as travel, books, and research assistance.

Post-Doc:

The stipend for post-doctoral fellows will be $70,000 for 2024-25. We also provide a research allowance of up to $5,000 for approved expenses directly related to your work, such as travel, books, and research assistance.

Practitioner:

Practitioner stipends are determined on a case-by-case basis, commensurate with experience, up to a maximum of $80,000. We also provide a research allowance of up to $5,000 for approved expenses directly related to your work, such as travel, books, and research assistance.

APPLICATION REQUIREMENTS

Before beginning the application, you may wish to have the following information available:

- The title of your research proposal
- Names and contact information for 3 references (no letters are accepted at this stage)

To apply, complete our online application form, which will request the information noted above. You will also be asked to upload the following documents:

- Cover letter stating your background and interest in the Fellows-in-Residence Program at the Edmond & Lily Safra Center for Ethics
- Curriculum Vitae
- Research proposal
- Recent writing sample

Please note: Name and contact information for three professional references will be requested, but no letters will be accepted at this stage.

The deadline to submit an application is November 15, 2023, with decisions likely to be announced in February 2024. Please note that the application form will be saved automatically while in progress, but no edits or alterations will be allowed once you have submitted the application. Please direct questions regarding this application process to EJSafraFellowships@fas.harvard.edu.

Salve Regina University

Rank: The David & Carolyn Brodsky Chair in U.S. Constitutional Democracy & Culture

Subfield(s): Other, Other, Other

About Salve Regina University:

Salve Regina University, ranked as one of the most transformative colleges in the United States by Money Magazine, is a comprehensive Catholic University located in the scenic coastal community of Newport, Rhode Island. The University's commitment to academic success and personal discovery extends beyond its historic campus into a dynamic world where the application of higher thinking and skill are most valued. Salve Regina offers bachelor's and master's degree programs, graduate certificates, and doctoral programs in humanities, international relations and nursing. Enrollment includes more than 2,600 undergraduate and graduate students from across the U.S. and around the world.

Job Description:

Salve Regina University invites applications for the David and Carolyn Brodsky Chair in U.S. Constitutional Democracy and Culture.

The newly endowed chair was established to promote teaching and research that examines the potential for civil discourse and civic engagement to deepen public understanding of the legacies of democratic ideals articulated in the Declaration of Independence and the U.S. Constitution, their meaning and limitations, their uneven application during the nation's history, and their potential to unify Americans in the twenty-first century.

This is a tenured position beginning in late August 2024, at the rank of associate or full professor with an appointment in the Department of Political Science. An interdisciplinary approach to teaching and research as well as a profile as a public scholar are encouraged. The Brodsky Chair holder is expected to collaborate across campus to foster opportunities for students and community members to explore the roles of civil discourse and civic engagement in American democracy.

The Brodsky Chair will have the opportunity to work with the University's Pell Center for International Relations and Public Policy to create research and public programming around challenges to American democracy as well as opportunities to strengthen it: <https://salve.edu/pell-center-for-international-relations-and-public-policy>

Dedicated funds are available for forums, conferences, sponsored research, and student engagement.

Like all members of the full-time faculty at Salve Regina, the Brodsky Chair holder is expected to be a visible presence across the institution, teaching and working in-person on the University's beautiful and historic seaside campus in Newport.

Duties include teaching two courses per semester, active research, and service/outreach. Salary will be commensurate with the rank, qualifications, and record of the successful candidate.

Requirements:

The successful candidate will have an established commitment to undergraduate education, a substantial record of research and publications, and evidence of teaching excellence meriting the rank of associate or full professor.

Additional Information:

Salve Regina University offers generous benefits to eligible employees including (waiting periods apply):

health, dental and vision coverage available on the first of the month following date of hire

403(b) retirement plan through TIAA with employee and employer contributions as well as access to advising services long-term disability coverage employer-paid life and AD&D insurance up to 100% free tuition at Salve for eligible employees and qualified dependents robust wellness program and free access to the on-campus Fitness Center

Other available benefits include:

supplemental life insurance for employees and dependents

supplemental insurance coverage through Aflac

Tuition Exchange scholarship program. Application available for qualified dependents of eligible employees working full-time discounted pet insurance through ASPCA student loan forgiveness assistance program (SAVI) discounted auto and home insurance through Liberty Mutual employee Assistance Program through Coastline EAP flexible spending health and dependent care accounts

health savings accounts

529 collegebound saver program

For more detailed information on Salve's benefits, visit <https://salve.edu/human-resources/benefits>.

Salve Regina University strives to cultivate belonging values through diversity, equity inclusion in order to foster a welcoming culture for our staff, faculty and students, as well as the wider community. Salve Regina University embraces all people with grace. No matter the path traveled to get here, the University acknowledges that many identities will intersect. Salve Regina belongs to all in its community.

Application Instructions:

Applicants must apply online via this link: <http://salve.interviewexchange.com/jobofferdetails.jsp?JOBID=167115> by providing a cover letter, curriculum vitae, and the names and contact information for three professional references. Review of applications will begin on October 31, 2023, with the position closing on November 15, 2023. Pre-employment background checks and reference checks are required of successful candidates. Salve Regina University participates in E-verify.

For questions about the position, please contact the Department of African American & African Studies at aaashire@umn.edu.

The Department of African American & African Studies (AA&AS) at the University of Minnesota, Twin Cities, invites applications for a full-time, open rank position (tenure-track advanced assistant, tenured associate, or tenured full professor) in African American & African Studies to begin as soon as August 26, 2024. We seek an interdisciplinary scholar whose research engages with major themes of African American Studies from a national, regional, global and/or transnational perspective.

The appointment will be 100% time over the nine-month academic year (late-August to late-May) at the rank of tenure-track assistant professor, tenured associate professor or tenured professor, depending on qualifications and experience, and consistent with collegiate and University policy.

The preferred candidate would have a distinguished record of interdisciplinary training, accomplishment, and/or engagement in the field of African American Studies. While the areas of expertise are open, we are particularly interested in candidates whose research engages with Black transnational studies; Black digital studies (exploring the connection between digital inequality, technology, race, and data science); Black music; Black disability studies; comparative race, ethnicity, indigeneity, and gender studies; social movements; racial capitalism; carcerality; health and inequality; or law and public policy.

Initial review of applications will begin 01 October 2023, and additional materials will be requested of candidates who advance to the second round. Review of applications will continue until the search is concluded.

Required Qualifications

A Ph.D. in a relevant field in the arts, humanities and/or social sciences is required. To be considered for a tenured position in African American & African Studies, candidates must possess a distinguished record of academic achievement (scholarly research, teaching, service, community engagement) that satisfies the criteria for holding an appointment with indefinite tenure in the Department of African American & African Studies at the University of Minnesota.

Preferred Qualifications

In addition to a strong record of interdisciplinary scholarship and research, the successful applicant will have evidence of teaching excellence in undergraduate and graduate education; experience in curriculum and program building as well as experience in departmental leadership; and demonstrated commitment to collaborative and community-engaged work.

The Latino/a and Latin American Studies (LLAS) major offers an interdisciplinary approach to the study of the societies and cultures of Latin America and the Latino and Chicano experience in the United States. By extending the study of 'Latin America' beyond the geopolitical borders of the region to include the Caribbean and the United States, the major emphasizes the importance of migrations, interethnic interactions, and cultural exchanges of Indigenous, European, African, and Asian peoples throughout the Americas. The LLAS program engages students with a variety of perspectives on the socio-political complexities and cultural traditions of the Americas, and the historical development of unique regional societies and cultures. The transnational perspective of our curriculum distinguishes the LLAS major from more traditional area studies programs.

Occidental College is committed to academic excellence in a diverse community and to supporting interdisciplinary and multicultural academic programs that provide a gifted and diverse group of students with an educational experience that prepares them for leadership in a pluralistic world. We strongly encourage applications from candidates who will further Occidental's mission of excellence and equity in their teaching, scholarship, and service.

Salary is commensurate with experience and qualifications. Moving expense reimbursement (up to $5000, taxable according to current IRS regulations), start-up funds, and a one-course reduction of teaching load in the first year are provided. ### Hoover Institution, Stanford University

Rank: W. Glenn Campbell and Rita Ricardo-Campbell
National Fellow

W. Glenn Campbell and Rita Ricardo-Campbell National Fellows

The Hoover Institution Glenn Campbell and Rita Ricardo-Campbell National Fellows Program allows outstanding scholars from colleges, universities, and institutions around the world to be freed from academic and professional responsibilities to devote one year to unrestricted, creative research and publication. National Fellows Program fellowships provide scholars the opportunity to complete an original significant research project with the expectation of generating a publishable manuscript while in residence at the Hoover Institution at Stanford University, Stanford, California.

Two unique resources frame the Hoover Institution National Fellows program:

- The Hoover Library and Archives affords Fellows access to the richest private archive collections in the United States. With nearly one million volumes and more than six thousand archival collections from 171 countries, the Hoover Library and Archives is a national and international center for primary-source documentation and research on problems of political, economic, and social change.
- National Fellows are able to draw on the experience of outstanding resident scholars at the Hoover Institution and Stanford University. Resident fellows and university faculty are available to discuss research topics, as well as provide insight into policy issues and strategic challenges.

Multiple National Fellows Program fellowships are awarded annually. Participation in the program begins September 1 and ends August 31 of the following year. National Fellows are encouraged to engage in the intellectual life of the Hoover Institution and are expected to make at least one presentation on their research before an appropriate group of scholars during the year in residence.

ADMINISTRATION

The selection committee is made up of Hoover Senior Fellows and distinguished scholars from Stanford University. The committee selects program participants and makes recommendations to the Director of the Hoover Institution regarding each year's participants.

APPLICATION

Application to the program requires the online submission of:

University of Rochester

Rank: Tenure-Track Assistant Professor in Computational Social Science

The University of Rochester seeks applicants for a tenure-track assistant professor in computational social science. This will be a joint appointment between the Goergen Institute for Data Science (GIDS) and a tenure home department in Political Science, Economics, or Linguistics, depending on which best aligns with the applicant's research and teaching. Exceptional candidates in all areas of computational social science are encouraged to apply.

Applicants must have (or be about to receive) a doctorate in computer science, data science, operations research, applied mathematics, statistics, economics, linguistics, political science, or a related discipline. Candidates should have strong skills in computational social science and/or data analytics, as well as a research agenda that uses these methods to analyze substantive issues in political science, economics, or linguistics.

Teaching responsibilities for this position will be split between GIDS and the home department. The successful candidate will have the opportunity to supervise PhD, Master's, and undergraduate students at the home department and at GIDS.

All applications should include a letter of interest, curriculum vitae, research statement, teaching statement, and samples of written work. Candidates without a prior tenure-track appointment should include a graduate transcript. Applicants must also arrange for three letters of recommendation to be submitted online. The University of Rochester is firmly committed to advancing equity and fostering an inclusive and diverse community. We ask candidates to include a statement detailing their past work and future plans for achieving these goals.

Application materials should be submitted online at: www.rochester.edu/faculty-recruiting. We will begin reviewing applications on September 15, 2023. Applications will continue to be reviewed on a rolling basis until a candidate is hired or until February 1, 2024.

The Goergen Institute for Data Science (GIDS) was founded in 2015 as part of the University of Rochester's $100 million commitment to making data science its top research priority. The Institute serves as a hub for interdisciplinary data science research, interdepartmental data science academic programs, and collaborations with industry. GIDS is housed in the newly constructed Wegmans Hall, a brand-new, 58,000-square-foot building completed in 2017. The Institute offers Bachelor of Arts, Bachelor of Science, and Master of Science degrees, as well as an Advanced Graduate Certificate program in data science for professionals. A Doctoral degree in data science is undergoing the formal approval process, with a first cohort of students expected in 2024. Eighty-five faculty members from a variety of disciplines across the campus are affiliated with GIDS. Areas of expertise of these faculty members include foundations of AI and ML; health analytics and digital health; life sciences and biomedical data science; imaging science, visual science, and optics; human-data-system interfaces; AI-augmented learning and work; audio and music engineering; economics and business data analytics; computational social science; materials design; network data science; and robotics. With a unique structure, GIDS fosters industry engagement via the Center of Excellence (CoE) in Data Science. The CoE helps drive regional economic development through basic research, training, and technology development in all areas related to data science. The University of Rochester is a private, Tier I research institution with approximately 6,600 undergraduates and 5,500 graduate students. We are deeply committed to building a more diverse and representative faculty, and strongly encourage applications from groups underrepresented in STEM and in higher education. We are actively working to improve the environment for all underrepresented groups as we strive to weave diversity, equity, and inclusion throughout the University's mission to learn, discover, heal, and create. Anchoring the Finger Lakes region of Western New York State, the greater Rochester area is home to over a million people, and offers unsurpassed quality of life, with a thriving arts scene, excellent public schools, affordable housing, and a huge range of cultural and recreational opportunities.

Brown University

Rank: Professor of Climate Policy and Social Science and International and Public Affairs

The Watson Institute for International and Public Affairs at Brown University invites applications for a faculty position in “climate change and social science” to begin in July 2024. We are seeking applicants whose research is solution-oriented, focusing on the transition to a low-carbon economy (mitigation) and/or adapting to unavoidable climate change. Research of interest includes, but is not limited to, topics such as the politics and political economy of decarbonization; climate-induced migration and displacement; environmental justice as it pertains to creating climate solutions; technology policy and climate change; the social, racial, and political aspects of economic transitions away from fossil fuels in the United States or elsewhere in the world; and international trade and finance in an age of climate change.

This faculty position will involve a joint appointment between the Watson Institute and a relevant tenure-granting disciplinary department at Brown. We welcome applicants with doctoral degrees from all relevant disciplines in the social sciences (e.g., Sociology, Political Science, Economics, Anthropology, History, Africana Studies, Public Policy). The Watson Institute is especially interested in qualified candidates who can contribute through their research, teaching, and service to the diversity and excellence of the academic community. Candidates from historically underrepresented groups in higher education are strongly encouraged to apply.

Candidates at all ranks are welcome. A successful senior candidate must have an outstanding record of scholarly achievement and a demonstrated commitment to undergraduate and graduate teaching and advising. A successful junior candidate must be engaged in a research program with the potential to influence their field, and a strong commitment to undergraduate and graduate teaching and advising.

Review of applications will begin on Sept. 24, 2023, but applications will be accepted until the position is filled. Junior candidates must have completed their PhD by the time of appointment.

All candidates should submit: 1) a cover letter describing research completed and planned, 2) a curriculum vitae, 3) a short writing sample, and 4) a teaching statement. In the teaching statement, the candidate should describe how they foster inclusive learning and diversity.

Senior candidates should include the names of five references whom the search committee can contact at an appropriate time. The list of references can be submitted via the “additional documents” field in Interfolio.

Junior candidates should have three letters of reference and their official graduate transcript uploaded to Interfolio at the time of the application. The confidential recommendation letters should be uploaded to Interfolio by the referee.

Brown University is committed to fostering a diverse and inclusive academic global community; as an EEO/AA employer, Brown considers applicants for employment without regard to, and does not discriminate on the basis of, gender, race, protected veteran status, disability, or any other legally protected status.

The Latino/a and Latin American Studies (LLAS) major offers an interdisciplinary approach to the study of the societies and cultures of Latin America and the Latino and Chicano experience in the United States. By extending the study of 'Latin America' beyond the geopolitical borders of the region to include the Caribbean and the United States, the major emphasizes the importance of migrations, interethnic interactions, and cultural exchanges of Indigenous, European, African, and Asian peoples throughout the Americas. The LLAS program engages students with a variety of perspectives on the socio-political complexities and cultural traditions of the Americas, and the historical development of unique regional societies and cultures. The transnational perspective of our curriculum distinguishes the LLAS major from more traditional area studies programs.

Occidental College is committed to academic excellence in a diverse community and to supporting interdisciplinary and multicultural academic programs that provide a gifted and diverse group of students with an educational experience that prepares them for leadership in a pluralistic world. We strongly encourage applications from candidates who will further Occidental's mission of excellence and equity in their teaching, scholarship, and service. - Advise students, including both program and research/capstone advising

- Provide innovative leadership for curriculum design and new course development to ensure the delivery and growth of a quality program
- Other academic duties normally performed by full-time faculty, such as participating on committees, attending academic events, or contributing to other academic service

Administrative Responsibilities:

- Work with the Program Director and Center Director to hire, mentor, and evaluate adjunct faculty
- Oversee the program's admissions process, including reviewing and approving prospective students' admissions materials
- Provide overall supervision for the Nonprofit Management program
- Schedule courses and set teaching assignments throughout the year
- Host events for current and prospective students

Qualifications:

The Associate Program Director's role is critical to maintaining the overall high quality of this program. The Associate Program Director must have a passion for education and its power to change lives, especially for part-time and non-residential students. A track record of building and managing successful onsite and online education programs, and skills in instructional design, content development, and instructional technologies, are important. Candidates who have experience teaching and engaging students from diverse backgrounds are of particular interest.

Minimum Qualifications:

- PhD in Nonprofit Management, Management, Administration, or a related field
- One to three years of higher education teaching experience online and/or at the graduate level
- One to three years of experience at the Assistant Director level, or equivalent administrative experience
- Ability to teach a variety of courses in the nonprofit management field
- Excellent oral and written communication skills
- Strong organizational

Preferred Qualifications:

- Four or more years of higher education teaching experience online and/or at the graduate level
- Professional work experience in the nonprofit management field
- Demonstrated track record of excellence in teaching and innovation in curriculum design
- The ability to work independently in a fast-paced environment with competing demands and multiple deadlines
- Experience managing a degree or certificate program

Application Instructions:

The position will remain open until it is filled. Candidates must submit the following:

- Cover letter
- Curriculum vitae
- Teaching evaluations for the two most recent semesters taught

The selected candidate will undergo a background check, provide three references, and official transcripts for each credential.

San Diego State University

Rank: Politics of East Asia

Subfield(s): Comparative Politics, International Relations, Other

The Political Science Department at San Diego State University invites applications for a tenure-track position in East Asian Politics at the rank of Assistant Professor, to begin Fall 2024. Applicants should demonstrate a well-developed research agenda, a promise of sustained scholarship, and a record of effective teaching.

Qualifications

The department seeks a scholar with research and teaching expertise in the politics of East Asia, broadly understood to encompass North-east and Southeast Asia. We are open to applications from scholars in both comparative politics and international relations whose research is focused on one or more countries in the region. The successful candidate's research may focus on any of a range of substantive topics – including but not limited to, democratization, political economy, state-society relations, and foreign policy – and should demonstrate a capacity to engage with normative issues underlying critical debates in the field. The candidate would be expected to work closely with the program on International Security and Conflict Resolution and the Center for Asian & Pacific Studies. The department is open to a diversity of theoretical and methodological approaches.

The Political Science Department at San Diego State is dedicated to the ideal of the engaged teacher-scholar. It has over 600 undergraduate majors and provides course offerings for students with a wide variety of backgrounds and interests. At the graduate level, the department maintains an M.A. program of high quality. The members of the faculty share a strong commitment to collegiality, active participation in the governing of the department, innovative scholarship, methodological pluralism, rigorous teaching, and robust intellectual and normative engagement. Candidates are encouraged to consult the department website: <http://politicalscience.sdsu.edu>.

We are seeking applicants with demonstrated experience in and/or commitment to teaching and working effectively with individuals from diverse backgrounds and members of underrepresented groups. Candidates must satisfy two or more of the eight Building on Inclusive Excellence (BIE) criteria. Candidates that meet BIE criteria: (a) are committed to engaging in service with underrepresented populations within the discipline, (b) have demonstrated knowledge of barriers for underrepresented students and faculty within the discipline, (c) have experience or have demonstrated commitment to teaching and mentoring underrepresented students, (d) have experience or have demonstrated commitment to integrating understanding of underrepresented populations and communities into research, (e) have experience in or have demonstrated commitment to extending knowledge of opportunities and challenges in achieving artistic/scholarly success to members of an underrepresented group, (f) have experience in or have demonstrated commitment to research that engages underrepresented communities, (g) have expertise or demonstrated commitment to developing expertise in cross-cultural communication and collaboration, and/or (h) have research interests that contribute to diversity and equal opportunity in higher education. Please indicate in a separate diversity statement how you meet at least two (2) of these criteria. Additional guidance on our BIE program for applicants is here.

SDSU is the oldest institution of higher education in the San Diego region, with a campus in San Diego serving 36,000 undergraduate and graduate students and additional locations in Southern California's Imperial Valley and Tbilisi in the Republic of Georgia. SDSU is included in the Carnegie Foundation's Doctoral Universities: High Research Activity category. Established in 1897, SDSU offers bachelor degrees in 97 areas, masters in 84 and doctorates in 23. See <http://www.sdsu.edu> for more information. SDSU is a large, diverse, urban university, an Asian-Native American-Pacific Islander -Serving Institution and a Hispanic-Serving Institution with a commitment to diversity, equity, and inclusive excellence. Our campus community is diverse in many ways, including race, religion, color, sex, age, disability, marital status, sexual orientation, gender identity and expression, national origin, pregnancy, medical condition, and covered veteran status. We strive to build and sustain a welcoming environment for all.

Application Instructions

Applicants must apply via Interfolio at <http://apply.interfolio.com/127871>. A completed file includes a letter of interest, a curriculum vitae, graduate transcripts, complete teaching evaluations (quantitative evaluations and complete sets of qualitative evaluations of recent courses), sample syllabi, academic writing samples, diversity statement, and three letters of recommendation. To ensure full consideration, submit all materials by September 21st, 2023. Screening of applications will begin then. Applicants who will have completed the Ph.D. by the start of the term of appointment will be given priority. Those without a Ph.D. in-hand should include in their letter of interest a statement of progress on the dissertation and reasons to expect completion in a timely fashion.

Further inquiries should be addressed to Farid Abdel-Nour, Chair of the Department of Political Science, at abdelnou@sdsu.edu.

The minimum salary for this position is based on the current CSU salary schedule for Assistant Professors and may be revised based on contract collective bargaining. The anticipated salary range is from $79,000 to $83,000. Salary placement will be based on the selected candidate's qualifications and experience, and salaries higher than the published maximums may be offered in limited circumstances. San Diego State University offers a rich benefits package that constitutes a major portion of total compensation. For benefits information, click here.

As part of its commitment to a safe and equitable "OneSDSU" community, SDSU requires that individuals seeking faculty employment provide at the time of application authorization to conduct background checks if they become a finalist for the position; applications without this authorization will be considered incomplete and not considered.

A background check (including a criminal records check) must be completed before any candidate can be offered a position with the CSU. Failure to satisfactorily complete the background check may affect the application status of applicants or continued employment of current CSU employees who apply for the position.

The person holding this position is considered a “mandated reporter” under the California Child Abuse and Neglect Reporting Act and is required to comply with the requirements set forth in CSU Executive Order 1083 as a condition of employment.

Equal Employment Opportunity Statement

SDSU is a Title IX, equal opportunity employer and does not discriminate against persons on the basis of race, religion, national origin, sexual orientation, gender, gender identity and expression, marital status, age, disability, pregnancy, medical condition, or covered veteran status.

Johns Hopkins University*Rank: Adjunct Faculty: Intelligence Analysis*Subfield(s): International Relations, American Government and Politics, OtherSpecializations: Intelligence, Defense, International Security

Johns Hopkins University: Zanvyl Krieger School of Arts and Sciences: Advanced Academic Programs

Location:

Washington, DC or Online (Remote)

Open Date:

Feb 01, 2023

POSITION:

Adjunct Faculty, Intelligence Analysis
Krieger School of Arts and Sciences
Advanced Academic Programs

INSTITUTION:

Johns Hopkins University

Institution Description:

The Advanced Academic Programs (AAP) is a division of the Krieger School of Arts and Sciences at the Johns Hopkins University (JHU). As the nation's oldest and one of the most prestigious research universities, Johns Hopkins offers high-quality master's degrees and post-baccalaureate education to students in the mid-Atlantic region and online. In addition to the online programs, AAP also offers master's degrees and graduate certificate programs at its Washington, DC Center and at the Homewood campus in Baltimore, MD. AAP has approximately 18,000 enrollments each academic year. JHU is committed to hiring candidates who, through their teaching and service, will contribute to the diversity and excellence of the academic community.

Position Description:

The Advanced Academic Programs (AAP) division seeks non-tenure track adjunct faculty to teach several courses within the MS in Intelligence Analysis program. The course(s) will be taught fully online beginning in Summer 2023 and beyond. Candidates with online course development and teaching experience and those with experience teaching and engaging students from diverse backgrounds are of particular interest. We are looking for faculty who can teach one or more of the following courses:

473.600 the Art and Practice of Intelligence

This course introduces students to the field of intelligence, particularly as practiced in the United States. After a brief overview of the historical foundations of modern intelligence, it discusses how intelligence is conducted including collection, analysis, counterintelligence, covert action, and oversight. It also discusses intelligence ethics, as well as the disruptive influences of September 11, new technologies, and emerging social trends.

473.602 Intelligence Analysis

Intelligence analysis is fundamentally about understanding and communicating to decision makers what is known, not known, and surmised, as it can best be determined. Students will read seminal texts on intelligence analysis, discuss the complex cognitive, psychological, organizational, ethical, and legal issues surrounding intelligence analysis now and, in the past, and apply analytic methodologies to real-world problems.

473.604 Advanced Critical Thinking and Analysis

Critical thinking involves the methods and principles of correct reasoning and argumentation. Students will apply a combination of logic, critical thinking skills, and structured analytical techniques to identify biases, promote self-reflective reasoning, and improve the quality of intelligence analysis. Using a selection of empirical case studies and operational exemplars, students will conduct a comparative assessment of analytical outcomes based on the application of course learnings versus outcomes derived in their absence.

473.607 Intelligence Ethics

This course will address the ethical dilemmas and issues that challenge intelligence and government decision makers in an increasingly complex operational and technological environment. We will examine basic moral, ethical and privacy considerations at several key points in intelligence operations from collection to covert action. The course will analyze the evolving nature of privacy concerns worldwide, with an emphasis on the balance between individual rights and national security. Students will examine the policy implications inherent in seeking to address these tensions.

473.606 Legal Issues in Intelligence

This class will examine the interplay between the laws and the practices and policies of the United States' Intelligence Community and national security system, both foreign and domestic. While discussion of the history of intelligence activities and laws dating from the origins of our colonial days will necessarily shape the framework of the class, the focus shall particularly be on current debates and challenges faced by the United States in the 21st Century.

473.800 Research Seminar

This course will introduce a variety of research, analytical, and statistical methods intended to provide a basis for designing a research project, including an introduction to quantitative, qualitative, and mixed method research design. Within the context of the course, students will complete foundational work for the capstone project, including identifying and accessing relevant primary and secondary source data, surveying and evaluating the literature, and framing a research question based on the intersection of empirical studies and organizational needs. Attention will be given to the unique restrictions placed on research design and publication within the intelligence community.

473.801 Capstone: Current Issues in Intelligence

In this culminating course, students complete an independent, faculty-approved project that will address a substantive or methodological challenge in intelligence analysis. A successful capstone will include research that provides evidence of the student's mastery of the theoretical knowledge and analytical skills central to the degree's learning outcomes. The capstone provides an opportunity to apply the skills acquired throughout the program to a key challenge facing their organization or community. Students will conduct a literature review, select a research method appropriate to their study, analyze data using qualitative or quantitative methods in their capstone project, and propose and defend their findings.

Minimum Qualifications:

- An advanced degree in any relevant field, with a master's degree at minimum.
- At least five years of professional work experience within the intelligence field.

Preferred Qualifications:

- A terminal degree in international relations, global security studies, political science, history, or in a relevant field related to intelligence.
- A scholar-practitioner background and publications in the field.
- 1-3 years of graduate level teaching experience.
- Leadership experience within the US Intelligence Community.
- Online teaching experience.
- Experience in developing graduate courses.
- The background to teach a wide variety of courses in an intelligence analysis program.
- Strong interest in advising graduate students interested in an intelligence career.

Application Instructions

The position will remain open until filled. For best consideration, please apply by April 1 2023.

Candidates must submit the following:

- Cover letter should indicate the course or courses you're interested in teaching plus your experience with online learning management systems (i.e., Canvas)
- Curriculum vitae
- Teaching evaluations for two most recently taught courses
- Transcript from highest degree earned
- The selected candidate will undergo a background check and provide three references.

America in the World Consortium

Rank: AWC Postdoctoral Fellowship

Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Public Policy, Political Theory

The America in the World Consortium at Duke University, Johns Hopkins SAIS, the University of Texas at Austin, and the University of Florida seeks applications from current Ph.D. students for its Postdoctoral Fellowship Program.

The America in the World Consortium (AWC) is a dynamic partnership of universities seeking to create a more vibrant debate among policy-interested scholars about America's role in the world. We are committed to preparing the next generation to confront geopolitical challenges and advance American national interests abroad. AWC prioritizes an intellectually diverse research community and supports fellows across a variety of disciplines. AWC seeks Postdoctoral Fellows for in-residence positions beginning in August 2024. Applicants will be considered for up to six (6) fellowship positions for up to two (2) years in residence at one of the four partner institutions:

- Duke University, Program in American Grand Strategy (AGS)
- Johns Hopkins University, Henry A. Kissinger Center for Global Affairs at SAIS
- University of Texas at Austin, Clements Center for National Security
- University of Florida, Alexander Hamilton Center for Classical and Civic Education

Applicants from all disciplines whose research bears directly on American grand strategy, broadly defined, are welcome to apply. However, preference will be given to applicants with a doctorate in history, political science, public policy, classics, and political philosophy whose research has a strong connection to policy. Successful applicants will be able to spend the substantial portion of their time working on their own research and writing projects, while taking advantage of the many academic resources available at their institution. Additionally, Fellows will be required to play an active role in the host institution's programs and activities. Additional responsibilities will be by mutual agreement between the Fellow and the AWC directors. For example, in some cases, Fellows will have the opportunity to teach an undergraduate course.

Fellows accepted to the program will be offered a competitive stipend of $72,000, access to benefits and full use of campus facilities, in addition to other university-specific benefits. The fellowship position will provide funding for a minimum of 12 months and up to 24 months. Fellows will also be given a research fund of $7,500 to cover relocation expenses and legitimate research-related expenses, as needed.

Applicants are required to have received a Ph.D. by August 1, 2024, in a relevant field, such as history, political science, public policy, classics, or political philosophy. Applicants who have received a Ph.D. in language studies, area studies, or other related fields may be considered if their research explicitly engages U.S. foreign policy.

Applications are due no later than Friday, January 5, 2024 (11:59 p.m. EST).

Applicants will need to submit a Cover Letter. In the Cover Letter, stipulate which Consortium school or schools the candidate would wish to reside at during the fellowship.

Applicants are required to submit a C.V., graduate school transcript, and the names of 3 referees who would write a letter of recommendation if asked by the review committee.

Applicants are also required to submit an article or writing sample representing an existing contribution to the field of American grand strategy, broadly defined.

Applicants from all disciplines whose research bears directly on American grand strategy, broadly defined, are welcome to apply. However, preference will be given to applicants pursuing a doctorate in history, political science, public policy, classics, and political philosophy whose research has a strong connection to policy.

Fellows will spend the substantial portion of their time working on their own research and writing projects, while taking advantage of the many academic resources available at their institution. Additionally, Fellows will be required to play an active role in the host institution's programs and activities. The fellowship offers a competitive stipend, access to campus facilities, and a wide range of resources on-campus.

Applicants are required to be currently enrolled in a Ph.D. program and to have passed their comprehensives/preliminary/qualifying exams and advanced to doctoral candidacy at the time of application.

Applications are due no later than Friday, January 5, 2024 (11:59 p.m. EST).

Applicants will need to submit a Cover Letter. In the Cover Letter, stipulate which Consortium school or schools the candidate would wish to reside at during the fellowship.

Applicants are required to submit a C.V., graduate school transcript, and the names of 3 referees who would write a letter of recommendation if asked by the review committee.

Applicants are also required to submit an article or writing sample representing an existing contribution to the field of American grand strategy, broadly defined.

The University of Texas at Austin

Rank: Postdoctoral Fellowship

Subfield(s): International Relations, Public Policy, Political Theory

The Clements Center for National Security at the University of Texas at Austin seeks applications from recent PhD recipients for its Postdoctoral Fellowship Program.

Consistent with the Clements Center's emphasis on history, strategy, and statecraft, applicants from all disciplines whose research bears directly on foreign and defense policy, intelligence, or international security are welcome to apply. While our preference tends to be the discipline of history, or research with a strong historical component, we highly encourage applications from PhD recipients in political science, political philosophy, public policy, language studies, area studies, and classics whose research contributes to traditional political and military history. Successful applicants will be able to spend the substantial portion of their time working on their own research and writing projects, while taking advantage of the many academic resources available at the University of Texas-Austin. Additionally, Fellows will be required to play an active role in the Clements Center's programs and activities; any specific responsibilities will be by mutual agreement between the Fellow and the Clements Center leadership. Fellows accepted to the program will be offered a competitive stipend, full use of UT facilities, and office space at the Clements Center. In some cases Fellows will be welcome to teach a course at the University of Texas. Each appointment is for one year, and in exceptional cases may be considered for renewal for a second year.

Applications open on October 16, 2023. Applicants should submit a current c.v., cover letter, graduate school transcripts, a brief (no more than two-page, single-spaced) statement of proposed research, and three letters of recommendation. Applicants whose research addresses the Indo-Pacific region's increasing role in U.S. foreign policy and security should indicate whether they want to be considered for a formal affiliation at the Clements-Strauss Asia-Policy Program. Applications are due no later than January 26, 2024. Note that applicants are required to have received their doctorate by August 2024, the date the Postdoctoral Fellowship will commence. Please direct any questions to Emily Burch, the Clements Center's Administrative Program Coordinator, at emily.burch@austin.utexas.edu.

Applications are due by Friday, 26 January, 2024 at midnight EST.

Applicants will need to submit a C.V., cover letter and a brief statement of proposed research.

Applicants are also required to submit three letters of recommendation and graduate school transcripts.

Subfield(s): International Relations, Public Policy, Political Theory

The Clements Center for National Security at the University of Texas at Austin seeks applications from current PhD candidates for its Predoctoral Fellowship Program.

Consistent with the Clements Center's emphasis on history, strategy, and statecraft, applicants from all disciplines whose research bears directly on foreign and defense policy, intelligence, or international security are welcome to apply. However, strong preference will be given to applicants pursuing a doctorate in history or whose research has a strong historical component of any era, from ancient to modern. This fellowship is designed to help expedite dissertation completion, so applicants should be in the dissertation writing phase and within one year (or in exceptional cases two years) of anticipated dissertation submission. Successful applicants will be able to spend the substantial portion of their time working on their own research and writing projects, while taking advantage of the many academic resources available at the University of Texas-Austin. Additionally, Fellows will be required to play an active role in the Clements Center's programs and activities; any specific responsibilities will be by mutual agreement between the Fellow and the Clements Center leadership. ### University of Virginia

Rank: Postdoctoral Fellowship, Karsh Institute of Democracy

The Karsh Institute of Democracy at the University of Virginia (UVA) invites applications for two postdoctoral Gibson Fellowships for scholars doing work that provides a deeper understanding of the era of the American Revolution and its legacies. These will be two-year fellowships, from September 2024 through August 2026. During the first year, the fellowship will entirely support the fellow's research. During the second year, along with their research, the postdoctoral fellows will also work with the Karsh Institute of Democracy to contribute to public programming linked to the 250th anniversary of the American Revolution. This programming work will be supported by our staff and resources, and throughout the fellowship we also offer support for public scholarship of various kinds.

We are particularly interested in scholars working in the fields of History, Literary Studies, and/or Political Theory. In addition to scholarship specifically on the course of the American Revolution, we also welcome applications for work that explores intellectual genealogies, cultural transformations, or economic, political, and social developments during the long eighteenth century. We see the American Revolution as situated within a wide geographical context, and one shaped by multiple sovereignties, and are interested in work that offers new perspectives on the period.

The fellows will be a part of the John L. Nau III Lab of the History & Principles of Democracy at the Karsh Institute of Democracy, and they will have the opportunity to work with core faculty members in the lab. In addition, we will help fellows connect with relevant seminars and workshops across UVA as well as with nearby historical sites according to their interests.

The Karsh Institute of Democracy is dedicated to a future in which democracy's aspirations and reality are aligned. We work tirelessly to understand, defend, and invigorate the institutions, practices, and cultural underpinnings that are the foundations of democracy. Through all our work—robust interdisciplinary scholarship, research and teaching, and vibrant programs and partnerships designed to engage the public and influence policy agendas—we are shaping a thriving democratic future.

The annual salary for each position is $65,000 per year, with an additional $5,000 per year in research funding. Qualified candidates must have their Ph.D. completed by the beginning of the fellowship. Candidates must submit their application materials by Friday, December 1st, 2023, including:

A cover letter outlining their interest in the fellowship

A CV

A writing sample of 30-50 pages, representing work that would be relevant for this position.

A description (not to exceed 2 single-spaced pages) of the scholarly work to be pursued during the fellowship period.

A one paragraph idea for a potential event.

Names and contact information for three referees who can be contacted for letters of reference

For additional information about the position, please contact Laurent Dubois, Academic Director of the Karsh Institute of Democracy and John L. Nau III Bicentennial Professor of the History and Principles of Democracy, at lmd8s@virginia.edu.

For questions about the application process, please contact Ashley Cochran, Senior Recruiter and Academic Recruitment Lead, at alc6dk@virginia.edu.

The University of Virginia, including the UVA Health System which represents the UVA Medical Center, Schools of Medicine and Nursing, UVA Physician's Group and the Claude Moore Health Sciences Library, are fundamentally committed to the diversity of our faculty and staff. We believe diversity is excellence expressing itself through every person's perspectives and lived experiences. We are equal opportunity and affirmative action employers. All qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to age, color, disability, gender identity or expression, marital status, national or ethnic origin, political affiliation, race, religion, sex (including pregnancy), sexual orientation, veteran status, and family medical or genetic information.

New York University Arts and Science

Rank: Assistant Professor in Black Cultural Studies

Subfield(s): Comparative Politics, Political Theory, Other

Specializations: African American Politics, Social Movements, Caribbean

Assistant Professor in Black Cultural Studies
Department of Social and Cultural Analysis
New York University Arts & Science

The Department of Social and Cultural Analysis at New York University invites applications for a tenure-track, assistant professor position in Black Cultural Studies. We are particularly interested in applicants whose work focuses on the Caribbean or the African continent and its diasporas, and whose research and teaching take an interdisciplinary and comparative approach.

This position is part of a multi-departmental cluster hire in "Black Diaspora Cultural Studies," which includes the Arts and Science departments of Art History, History and Music. A primary aim of the cluster is to create a network for scholars at NYU working across a range of disciplines. More information about this cluster can be found here, along with background on NYU's broader Faculty Cluster Hiring Initiative.

The Department of Social and Cultural Analysis is an interdisciplinary department committed to developing innovative approaches in urbanism, migration, diaspora, critical race, ethnic and indigenous studies, gender and sexuality, art, culture, politics, and economic life. The Department has degree programs in Africana Studies, American Studies, Asian/Pacific/American Studies, Gender and Sexuality Studies, Latinx Studies, Urban Studies, and Social and Cultural Analysis. The department encourages innovative teaching at both the undergraduate and graduate levels.

Candidates should submit the following materials via this Interfolio link <http://apply.interfolio.com/132712>

Letter of application

Curriculum vitae

Writing sample of 20-25 pages

Three confidential letters of recommendation

Your letter of application should focus on the contributions your research makes to the field and to the department. You may also address how your work in the university, such as classroom teaching, has contributed toward equity and inclusion.

The committee will begin reviewing applications on November 10, 2023, and will continue until the position is filled. For questions about the position please consult the NYU Department of Social and Cultural Analysis website: <http://sca.as.nyu.edu>, referring to the homepage link "Employment Opportunities." For questions not answered here please contact the Assistant to the SCA Department Chair, Marty Correia at mc2828@nyu.edu.

The appointment will begin on September 1, 2024, pending administrative and budgetary approval. Candidates must have Ph.D. in hand by September 1, 2024.

In compliance with NYC's Pay Transparency Act, the annual base salary range for this position is $85,000 - $135,000. New York University considers factors such as (but not limited to) the scope and responsibilities of the position, the candidate's work experience, education/training, key skills, internal peer equity, as well as market and organizational considerations when extending an offer.

Tulane University

Rank: CIPR Mid-Level Career Fellow

Subfield(s): Political Theory, International Relations, Comparative Politics

The Center for Inter-American Policy and Research (CIPR) at Tulane University seeks visiting research fellows for the 2024-2025 academic year. The Center supports empirical research in the fields of international relations, international political economy, comparative politics, political sociology, and policy studies. Latin American expertise and Spanish or Portuguese fluency are required. Fellows will be selected based on intellectual merit, experience, and the potential impact of their planned research for CIPR programs.

Fellows will pursue research and contribute to the intellectual life of their disciplinary department, CIPR, and the Stone Center for Latin American Studies. They are expected to participate in weekly CIPR seminars and workshops, as well as lectures, conferences, and other events organized by the Center. Fellows will collaborate with resident faculty and students on projects of mutual interest in addition to developing their independent research agendas on related topics, as well as mentor junior colleagues at the Center when possible.

Fellowships are for one or two semesters depending on applicant preferences; however, the stipend is $37,000 plus benefits regardless of the duration. Applicants are requested to indicate the period of their preference. Fellows may also obtain funding from their own academic institutions, outside foundations or personal resources. Round-trip travel expenses of up to $3,000 are also supported. Foreign applicants will need to obtain separate health insurance coverage.

Applications must be submitted via Interfolio by visiting apply.interfolio.com/133082 and must include (1) a curriculum vitae; (2) a cover letter describing research interests, fit to the program, and intended research plan to be developed at CIPR if selected. Letters of recommendation will be requested only for finalists, so applicants at this stage are asked only to indicate who their recommenders will be. For further information, please contact Ludovico Feoli, Director, Center for Inter-American Policy and Research. Applications will be reviewed starting December 31, 2023.

Clinical Assistant Professor - International Law, Comparative Law, and Global Legal Issues

Liberal Studies
New York University Arts & Science

Liberal Studies at New York University invites applications for a Clinical Assistant Professor position to begin September 1, 2024, pending administrative and budgetary approval. The Liberal Studies Core is a dynamic liberal arts curriculum that provides a global and interdisciplinary foundation for nearly 100 NYU majors. The Global Liberal Studies Bachelor of Arts is an innovative global studies major grounded in the spatial, conceptual, and temporal understandings of a highly interconnected world, with a program of study that is distinguished by experiential learning, study away, and independent research focused in an interdisciplinary concentration. In both the LS Core and the GLS major, small, seminar-style classes and close faculty-student interaction provide students with the benefits of a liberal arts college within a large urban research university. We are especially interested in hiring qualified candidates who can contribute their research, teaching and service to the diversity and excellence of Liberal Studies and NYU.

We seek applicants for the following position:

INTERNATIONAL LAW, COMPARATIVE LAW, AND GLOBAL LEGAL ISSUES

PhD in History, Philosophy, or Politics, with a focus on law and society. A JD is not required in addition to the PhD, but is nonetheless welcome. Candidates must have familiarity with global legal institutions as well as international conventions and treaties and constitutional and statutory regimes in both Western and non-Western settings. Candidates should be prepared to develop upper-division seminars that include introduction to Western and non-Western legal systems in the Law, Ethics, History, and Religion concentration and focus on such global legal issues as racial justice, indigenous rights, earth justice, capital punishment, LGBTQ and women's rights, and disability law. Candidates are also expected to draw on ancient and early modern sources in their teaching with a global, interdisciplinary emphasis in the Global Works and Society sequence of the Core Curriculum. Candidates must embrace interdisciplinary and intersectional approaches from a variety of global perspectives and must have the ability to examine relationships of power and to interrogate the historical roots of current challenges.

In compliance with NYC's Pay Transparency Act, the annual base salary range for this position is $70,000 - $80,000. New York University considers factors such as (but not limited to) the scope and responsibilities of the position, the candidate's work experience, education/training, key skills, internal peer equity, as well as market and organizational considerations when extending an offer.

All Liberal Studies full-time faculty hold renewable term contracts, initially three years, and later six years in duration. Faculty are eligible for promotion within the Clinical faculty ranks (Assistant, Associate, Full). Faculty normally teach three classes per semester, advise undergraduates, and contribute service to Liberal Studies and to the University.

Qualifications

Minimum qualifications: PhD by the date of appointment; three years of college-level teaching experience; and demonstrated excellence in teaching. We are especially interested in qualified candidates who share Liberal Studies' commitment to diversity, equity, and inclusion, and who can contribute to the diversity of intellectual life in LS and NYU. Candidates must present demonstrated experience and commitment to interdisciplinarity, intersectionality, and a teaching approach informed by global perspectives. Publications and evidence of outstanding scholarship and relevant professional activity are strongly encouraged.

Application Instructions

Applications include ONLY (1) a cover letter, (2) a current CV, and (3) a Diversity and Inclusion Statement addressing past and/or potential future contributions to diversity through teaching, professional activity, and/or service. (Additional information can be found here <http://as.nyu.edu/departments/facultydiversity/recruitment/diversity-statements.html>). ## New York University Gallatin School of Individualized Study

Rank: Assistant Professor of Modern Political Theory

The Gallatin School of Individualized Study at New York University (NYU) invites applications for a tenure track, Assistant Professor position in Modern Political Theory. Successful candidates for this position will present strong evidence of excellence in interdisciplinary teaching and research and will have the Ph.D. in hand by the start date of September 1, 2024.

The position is open as to subfield, area of expertise, geographical focus, and theoretical orientation. We are particularly interested in applicants who work in either or both of the following: the study of transnational or creolized political theory (political thought that has been transformed through its engagement with multiple places, traditions, or political histories); and political theory grounded in or emerging from within social movements or collective action.

The teaching load for this position is four courses per year (two in the fall and two in the spring). Additionally, faculty carry an advising load up to 20-25 students. Successful applicants will have evidence of an ongoing research program, teaching effectiveness, and commitment to increasing diversity and fostering inclusion in academia.

Founded in 1972, NYU Gallatin is a liberal arts college of 1,600 undergraduate students and 160 graduate students who are part of New York University. Its innovative B.A. and M.A. Programs in individualized study encourage students to develop an integrated, interdisciplinary program of study that combines courses taken in the various schools of NYU with independent studies, internships, and Gallatin's own interdisciplinary seminars, writing courses, and arts workshops. The School emphasizes excellent teaching, top level faculty research, intensive student advising and mentoring, and a unique combination of program flexibility and academic rigor. To learn more about the Gallatin School, please visit our website at gallatin.nyu.edu.

In compliance with NYC's Pay Transparency Act, the annual base salary range for this position is $70,000 to $110,000.

All application materials must be submitted electronically. To apply, please visit: <http://apply.interfolio.com/133392>

Review of applications will begin on November 3, 2023, and will continue until the position is filled.

For questions, please contact Gallatin Human Resources at gallatin.hr@nyu.edu.

Qualifications

A PhD in hand by the time of appointment is required; demonstrated excellence in teaching at the college or university level; and a strong record of research and writing.

Application Instructions

Please submit a cover letter, C.V., and a list of three references. Cover letters should address both the candidate's teaching interests and experience and the candidate's research interests and scholarly contributions. Applications submitted by November 3 will be guaranteed a full review. We will ask selected candidates for further material including a writing sample, a description of three dream courses, teaching and diversity statements, and reference letters. For questions, please contact Gallatin's Office of Human Resources at gallatin.hr@nyu.edu, or the chair of the search committee, Professor Jacob Remes, at jacob.remes@nyu.edu.

Nuffield College

Rank: Postdoctoral Prize Research Fellowships in Politics
Subfield(s): Political Theory, Comparative Politics, International Relations

Postdoctoral Prize Research Fellowships in Politics (up to three posts)

Nuffield College and the Department of Politics and International Relations, University of Oxford intend to appoint jointly, with effect from 1 September 2024 or as soon as possible thereafter, up to three Postdoctoral Prize Research Fellows (PPRFs) in Politics, broadly construed to include political science, political behaviour, comparative politics, political economy, electoral studies, political theory, international relations, and political history.

The key responsibilities of the Research Fellows are to engage in advanced study and independent scholarly research in politics broadly construed (as above); to disseminate research findings through publication and participation in conferences and workshops; to take part in the intellectual life of the College and the Department by organising workshops, seminars or conferences; and to undertake teaching not expected to exceed 48 stint units per year (the equivalent to teaching an eight-week 2-hour seminar series per year), and to assist in examining for the Department.

To be eligible, candidates should have completed, or be close to completing, a PhD/DPhil in a relevant field. Candidates must be within three years of the defence date (viva voce examination date) of their doctorate at the time of application. Allowances will be made for career breaks (for example, family-related leave) and candidates are asked to provide relevant information. Preference will be given to candidates who have not previously held a research fellowship similar to that advertised for more than one year at the time of taking up the fellowship. Prospective candidates should also have experience of carrying out independent research and a track record of excellent quality papers appropriate for and commensurate with their career level. They should have the ability to provide excellent teaching to high-achieving students; the willingness to contribute to the intellectual life of the College and the Department; and excellent oral and written communication skills. Teaching experience in any area of Political Theory, Comparative Political Economy, or International Relations would be desirable.

The Fellowships are full-time, fixed-term posts and are to be taken up on 1 September 2024 or as soon as possible thereafter. The post end date will normally be 31 August 2027. Candidates who have not yet completed their doctorate at the time of application should note that to take up the Fellowship in September 2024, it may be necessary for them to have submitted their doctoral dissertation for examination by the end of May 2024. The posts will be based at Nuffield College and at the Department of Politics and International Relations. The salary offered is GBP 39,378 per annum. Subject to availability, Research Fellows may apply to rent single accommodation in College. Benefits include a research allowance and free lunch and dinner in College.

SUNY, Oswego State

Rank: Assistant Professor in political theory
Specializations: Ethnic & Feminist Theory, Gender Politics & Policy, Lesbian & Gay Studies

The Department of Political Science at SUNY Oswego is currently seeking to hire a political scientist well-versed in historical, interpretive, and critical scholarship who can teach a range of courses in political theory.

A successful political theory candidate will have a focus in gender, feminist, or queer theory; and we welcome applicants whose work also addresses global and/or comparative political theory. The Political Science Department will be the home department for tenure and promotion purposes; but the successful candidate for this position will be expected to work in close conjunction with Oswego's interdisciplinary Gender and Women's Studies (GWS) program. Specific teaching responsibilities will include introductory courses in political theory and introductory courses in GWS, as well as other courses determined by their research and interests.

SUNY Oswego works continuously to create an inclusive environment which respects, embraces, and promotes cultural safety, belonging, civil discourse, cultural humility, and other values and goals outlined in SUNY Oswego's Strategic Diversity and Inclusion Plan. As such, the incumbent is expected to contribute to these efforts and possess communication and interpersonal skills necessary to engage effectively with an increasingly diverse community of students and colleagues.

Review Date: Review of applications will begin immediately and will continue until the position is filled.

Tulane University

Rank: Post-Doctoral Fellowship
Subfield(s): Comparative Politics, International Relations, Political Theory

The Center for Inter-American Policy and Research (CIPR) invites applications for five (5) research fellowships for the Academic Year of 2024-2025, some with program administration duties and others with light teaching. Applications from the social sciences in the fields of international relations, international political economy, comparative politics, political sociology, and policy studies are preferred. Latin American expertise and Spanish or Portuguese fluency required. Fellows will be selected based on intellectual merit, experience, the potential impact of their planned research for CIPR programs, and teaching needs of the host department.

Fellowships are one-year, residential, full-time appointments starting in July 2024 with a stipend of $48,940 plus benefits. Travel and moving expenses are not supported. In addition to their planned research, applicants must be prepared to carry out either program administration or adjunct teaching responsibilities. In the program administration track, fellows will be expected to work with CIPR's director in one of the Center's ongoing research initiatives, including the Commitment to Equity Project and/or Research Group MEGA: Mobilization, Extractivism, and Government Action, and/or to develop programmatic content and projects in Inter-American relations, comparative political economy, citizenship rights, human development, and others. The other fellowships carry a one course per semester adjunct teaching load in the department of the fellow's primary discipline and in the candidate's major subfields, without administrative responsibilities. In both cases, specific responsibilities will be defined jointly during the initial phase of the appointment. Applicants must plan to complete their Ph.D. no later than May 2024. Recent graduates with no longer than three years since receiving their Ph.D. are especially encouraged to apply.

Application must be submitted via Interfolio by visiting <http://apply.interfolio.com/132695> and must include (1) a curriculum vitae; (2) a cover letter describing research interests and intended research at CIPR if selected, fit to the program and teaching experience; (3) a graduate transcript; (4) a writing sample; and (5) teaching evaluations if available. Letters of recommendation will be requested only for finalists, so applicants at this stage are asked only to indicate who their recommenders will be. For further information, please contact Ludovico Feoli, Director, Center for Inter-American Policy and Research. Applications will be reviewed starting November 1, 2023.

Tulane University is an equal opportunity/affirmative action employer committed to excellence through diversity. All eligible candidates are invited to apply for position vacancies as appropriate.

University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill

Rank: Assistant Professor, Associate Professor

Subfield(s): Political Theory, Public Policy, Other

Specializations: Political Philosophy & Theory, Political Theory, Political Economy

The Department of Political Science and the Philosophy, Politics, and Economics Program (PPE) Program in the College of Arts and Sciences at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill invite applications for a tenure-track position at the rank of Assistant or Associate Professor or Associate Professor with tenure in political theory starting July 1, 2024. Required qualifications are ABD or Ph.D or an equivalent degree in Political Science, Philosophy, Public Policy or a related field in the humanities or social sciences. The successful candidate will be a core faculty member in UNC's thriving Philosophy,

Politics, and Economics Program and will be expected to take an active role in developing and expanding the PPE Program. The successful candidate must have research and teaching interests that include the intersection of philosophy, politics, and economics, and be committed to the value of PPE as an educational and intellectual endeavor. The successful candidate will be expected to teach the core courses in PPE and thus must have a working knowledge of political economy and game theory. We are primarily seeking candidates trained in political theory who are able to teach normative political theory courses. However, candidates with a strong normative background who primarily teach American or Comparative politics will be considered as will candidates with an expertise in ethics and public policy who have an interest in a primary appointment in the Department of Public Policy. Significant promise of research excellence is a necessary condition for consideration, as is evidence of significant skills in teaching. Salary commensurate with qualifications.

The University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill is an equal opportunity and affirmative action employer. All qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to age, color, disability, gender, gender expression, gender identity, genetic information, national origin, race, religion, sex, sexual orientation, or status as a protected veteran.

Review of applications will begin October 8th 2023, and will continue until the position is filled. To apply for the position, please follow this link <https://unc.peopleadmin.com/postings/265898>. Please include a cover letter, curriculum vitae, research statement, teaching statement (including available teaching evaluations and other evidence of teaching excellence), and a writing sample. Applicants will be required to identify the names, titles and email addresses of professional references at the time of application (please note that four are required). Recommenders identified by the applicant will be contacted via email with instructions for uploading their letters of support. Alternatively, applicants may list Interfolio as a reference and the application system will solicit recommendations directly from Interfolio. Please see <http://help.interfolio.com/entries/24062742-Uploading-Letters-to-an-Online-Application-System> for instructions. ### CUNY-John Jay College

Rank: Assistant Professor in Political Theory

ABOUT JOHN JAY COLLEGE

John Jay College of Criminal Justice is a senior college of the City University of New York (CUNY) and an internationally recognized leader in educating for justice. John Jay is laser-focused on fueling the success of our exceptional student scholars pursuing a justice-focused education. Led by President Karol V. Mason, John Jay is a federally designated Hispanic-serving institution, it is ranked third in the nation in Black student success, and it is a top ten institution for promoting student social mobility. John Jay is proud to serve a diverse and dynamic student body of 15,000 students, nearly fifty percent of whom are first in their family to attend college, and many of them are immigrants or children of immigrants.

The College participates in the doctoral programs of the Graduate Center of CUNY and offers bachelor's and master's degrees both in traditional criminal justice-related fields of study as well as in a robust portfolio of liberal arts and sciences programs that highlight themes of justice across the arts, sciences, humanities, and social sciences. The College seeks staff and faculty members who thrive in a multicultural academic environment and are committed to cementing our culture of pride, distinction and excellence.

POSITION OVERVIEW

The Department of Political Science at John Jay College of the City University of New York invites applications for a tenure-track position in Political Theory at the rank of Assistant Professor beginning Fall 2024. We seek candidates whose research and teaching focus on recent and contemporary critical theories of race/racism, coloniality, ethnicity/diaspora, migration, class struggle, gender, sexuality, environmental justice, and/or democracy. The successful candidate will perform teaching, research, and guidance duties in their area(s) of expertise. They will also share responsibility for committee and department assignments including administrative, supervisory, and other functions.

Candidates are expected to bring enthusiasm and demonstrated commitment to teaching and to develop and maintain an active research and publication agenda. Teaching responsibilities would include introductory courses on political theory. The successful candidate would also be encouraged to develop and teach new courses in their area of specialty. They will also advise students. Forty-seven percent of John Jay students are first-generation college students, and John Jay is a recognized Hispanic and Minority-Serving Institution. The successful candidate must be eager and qualified to work with our diverse student body, and have a demonstrated commitment to diversity, equity, and inclusion. As demonstrated in John Jay College's Seven Principles for a Culturally Responsive, Inclusive, and Anti-Racist Curriculum (https://new.jjay.cuny.edu/sites/default/files/2023-08/7\_Princip\_Cultur\_Resp\_Incl\_AntiRacist\_Curric\_Adopt\_4.8.21-brief.pdf), the College seeks a faculty member who thrives in a multicultural, collaborative academic environment and is committed to both access and excellence in higher education.

QUALIFICATIONS

Ph.D. in Political science. Although outstanding ABDs near completion will be considered, degree must be completed by August 2024. Candidates holding only a J.D. will not be considered. Also required are the ability to teach successfully, the potential for scholarly productivity, and ability to cooperate with others for the good of the institution. Candidates are expected to bring enthusiasm and demonstrated commitment to teaching, as well as a demonstrated commitment to diversity, equity, and inclusion.

COMPENSATION

CUNY offers faculty a competitive compensation and benefits package covering health insurance, pension and retirement benefits, paid parental leave, and savings programs. We also provide mentoring and support for research, scholarship, and publication as part of our commitment to ongoing faculty professional development.

Catholic University of America

Rank: Assistant Professor of Politics

Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Public Policy, Political Theory

Assistant Professor of Politics (American Politics)

The Department of Politics at The Catholic University of America invites applications for a tenure-track faculty appointment in American politics, to begin in the fall of 2024. We are interested in a candidate with a range of interests, including but not limited to public opinion, ideology, political parties, elections, and the presidency. The successful candidate could also play an important advisory role for our Washington, D.C. internship programs. The department especially welcomes applicants whose research interests complement its traditional strengths in historical, theoretical, and institutional perspectives. Situated on a large and beautiful campus, Catholic University is only three metro stops from the Capitol. Politics is one of the largest majors on campus, attracting many students who value the community of a Catholic university while pursuing careers related to politics and law in the nation's capital. The department's Ph.D program has a long and distinguished history, and the development of professionally minded M.A. programs is a university priority.

We seek candidates who understand, are enthusiastic about, and will make a significant contribution to the mission of the University, which reads as follows: "As the national university of the Catholic Church in the United States, founded and sponsored by the bishops of the country with the approval of the Holy See, The Catholic University of America is committed to being a comprehensive Catholic and American institution of higher learning, faithful to the teachings of Jesus Christ as handed on by the Church. Dedicated to advancing the dialogue between faith and reason, The Catholic University of America seeks to discover and impart the truth through excellence in teaching and research, all in service to the Church, the nation and the world."

Applicants should submit a cover letter, a curriculum vitae, a statement of current research and future research plans, a statement of teaching philosophy, graduate school transcript, and a sample of written work (including scholarly publications) to pol-search@cua.edu and arrange for the submission of three letters of reference. In addition, applicants are asked to submit a one- to two-page personal statement indicating how their research, teaching, and service will make a distinctive contribution to our University's mission and to the vision of Catholic education outlined in the Apostolic Constitution on Catholic Universities Ex Corde Ecclesiae.

Review of applications will begin November 15 and continue until the position is filled. Questions may be directed to Jakub Grygiel, Department Chair, at grygiel@cua.edu.

The Department of Political Science takes great pride in having one of the most diverse student bodies in higher education. We have more than 600 students in one of our three academic programs: a Bachelor of Arts, a Minor, and a Master of Arts. Our 19 full-time and 15 part-time faculty are passionate about teaching politics in the twenty-first century, offering courses that are directly relevant to the contemporary world. Together we seek to provide our students the foundational knowledge and skills essential to understand and engage issues relevant to our common political life today. Our department offers numerous programs and clubs, including Moot Court, Model United Nations, undergraduate and graduate student associations, a chapter of the Pi Sigma Alpha National Honor Society, internship and research opportunities, a Legal Studies certificate, and much more.

The College of Liberal Arts at CSULB is the largest college on campus, with thirty-one excellent departments and programs, several innovative centers and projects, over 685 outstanding faculty members, and over 74 individual staff members. The college faculty are among the best in the nation and have received a variety of national and international awards. CLA has 9300 undergraduate students pursuing a variety of highly valued degrees through the college's 99 unique majors and minors. Additionally, 575 graduate students are also obtaining advanced degrees and special certificates in the college. With degrees ranging from humanities and foreign languages to social and behavioral sciences, CLA's graduates are well-rounded citizens, effective communicators, and analytical thinkers who live knowledgeably, responsibly, and humanely in a world where complex problems demand informed, creative, and thoughtful solutions. The skills gained through degrees from CLA are invaluable and open up countless career paths for graduates to follow.

CSULB seeks to recruit faculty who enthusiastically support the University's strong commitment to the academic success of all of our students, including students of color, students with disabilities, students who are first generation to college, veterans, students with diverse socio-economic backgrounds, and students of diverse sexual orientations and gender expressions. CSULB seeks to recruit and retain a diverse workforce as a reflection of our commitment to serve the People of California, to maintain the excellence of the University, and to offer our students a rich variety of expertise, perspectives, and ways of knowing and learning.

We are an interdisciplinary department offering majors in political science, pre-law, international studies, sociology, and social inequality and human rights. In addition, we have a Master of Public Administration program. While the area of specialization is open, the successful candidate should be able to teach courses in the fields of Political Theory and American Politics. Ideally, the candidate for this position would also be willing and able to teach graduate-level courses for our growing Master of Public Administration (MPA) program, such as Ethics in Public Administration.

In addition to the above, a successful candidate may be asked to

- * teach online, in-person, and ITV
- * teach at the graduate and undergraduate level
- * teach other courses in the department as needed
- * advise students in the political science program or the department's other programs as needed
- * assist with the recruitment of majors
- * build relationships between the political science program and the community
- * maintain a record excellence in teaching
- * maintain a record of scholarship and publications
- * build and maintain a record of service

Minimum Education and Qualifications:

Ph.D. in Political Science or a related field is required. ABDs with a documented plan of completion by appointment date will be considered. Teaching experience is preferred.

Submit your application through the following link: <https://www.murraystatejobs.com/postings/11057>

For best consideration, please submit a completed application along with all required materials by November 1, 2023. Applications will be accepted until the position is filled.

Murray State blends educational opportunities found at research institutions with collaborative interactions among students, faculty and staff found at smaller universities. Students receive personalized attention from supportive faculty and staff as the University offers a 16:1 student-to-faculty ratio. Murray State University places our highest priority on student learning and excellent teaching, blending the range of educational opportunities often experienced at research institutions with the nurturing student-teacher interactions usually found at smaller universities.

Located in the West Kentucky region, Murray State University is a public, comprehensive University which offers a low cost of living, low property taxes, and a four-season climate. Murray has a friendly, small-town atmosphere with locally-owned specialty shops and restaurants, an acclaimed community theater, art guild and award-winning public schools. The area is home to Kentucky Lake and Land Between the Lakes, a 170,000-acre National Recreation Area, which offers a wide-range of activities and amenities for residents and visitors alike. Located in close proximity to major cities and nearby access to Interstate 24, Murray is just a few hours from Nashville, St. Louis, Louisville and Memphis.

Princeton University

Rank: James Madison Program Visiting Fellow

Subfield(s): Political Theory, American Government and Politics, Public Law

Specializations: Political Philosophy & Theory, Constitutional Law & Theory, American Politics

The James Madison Program in American Ideals and Institutions at Princeton University is dedicated to the pursuit of scholarly excellence in the fields of constitutional law and political thought. Sponsored by Princeton's Department of Politics, the Program seeks to enrich the intellectual life of Princeton students and faculty by exploring American constitutional principles and structures through research and public discussion.

The Program invites college and university professors and other professionals with established records of scholarship to apply for appointments as Visiting Fellows for the academic year running from September 1, 2024 to June 1, 2025. One-semester appointments are possible but not preferred. Depending on the needs of the University, teaching opportunities may be available, subject to sufficient enrollment and approval of the Dean of the Faculty.

All James Madison Program Visiting Fellows will spend an academic year (9-month term) in residence at Princeton University or the local vicinity, or demonstrate to the program's satisfaction the ability to be on campus daily, and on short notice, in order to fulfill responsibilities relating to in-person participation. They enjoy access to Firestone Library and a wide range of other facilities and activities throughout the University.

Visiting Fellows are expected to devote full time to their proposed research. They are encouraged, however, to attend or participate in various activities of the Program, including faculty-student seminars, colloquia, and public lectures.

All James Madison Program Fellows must have a doctorate or equivalent degree. Positions are open to all regardless of citizenship. Fellows normally receive a stipend of one-half their academic-year salary plus a living allowance. The fellows' home institutions are expected to provide at least half of their academic-year salaries.

How to apply: Applicants are required to submit an online application at: <https://www.princeton.edu/acad-positions/position/31661>

A complete application must include the following:

- * a curriculum vitae;
- * a scholarly paper written in the past three years;
- * a statement (no more than 1,500 words) describing the proposed research;
- * contact information for two references

Selected candidates will be asked to either submit a confidential statement indicating salary for the current academic year (September 1, 2023 - June 1, 2024) or provide written authorization for Princeton to confirm their salary.

For priority consideration application materials must be received by 11:59 p.m. EST on December 1, 2023 for appointments beginning in September 2024. Awards will be announced in March 2024 or before.

Princeton University

Rank: Postdoctoral Research Associate, James Madison Program

Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Political Theory, Public Law

Invitation for Postdoctoral Research Associate Applications

The James Madison Program in American Ideals and Institutions at Princeton University is dedicated to the pursuit of scholarly excellence in the fields of constitutional law and political thought. Sponsored by Princeton's Department of Politics, the Program seeks to enrich the intellectual life of Princeton students and faculty by exploring American constitutional principles and structures through research and public discussion.

The Program invites recent Ph.D. recipients to apply for appointments as Postdoctoral Research Associates or more senior researchers for the year from September 1, 2024 to September 1, 2025. Appointments will be through the Department of Politics. All James Madison Program researchers are expected to be in residence in Princeton or the local vicinity, or demonstrate to the program's satisfaction the ability to be on campus daily, and on short notice, to fulfill responsibilities relating to in-person participation, office hours, and the like. They may not be employed by another institution during the term of their Princeton appointment. They enjoy access to Firestone Library and a wide range of other facilities and activities throughout the University. Depending on the needs of the University, teaching opportunities may be available, subject to the approval of the Dean of the Faculty. Researchers appointed in the Madison Program are expected to devote full time to their proposed research. They are, however, encouraged to attend or participate in various activities of the Program, including faculty-student seminars, colloquia, and public lectures.

The position is a fully funded, 12-month postdoctoral research associate appointment with benefits. All James Madison Program Postdoctoral Research Associates are required to have a Ph.D. degree awarded within the last three years (no earlier than September 1, 2021). All requirements for the Ph.D. must be met by June 30, 2024. Applications are evaluated on the basis of (1) the significance of the proposed research; (2) the quality of the applicant's past research; and (3) the future contribution the applicant is likely to make to higher education. Positions are open to all regardless of citizenship. This position is subject to the University's background check policy.

How to apply: Applicants are required to submit an online application at <https://www.princeton.edu/acad-positions/position/31662>

A complete application must include the following:

* a curriculum vitae;

* a scholarly paper written in the past three years;

* a statement (no more than 1,500 words) describing the proposed research;

For priority consideration, application materials must be received by 11:59 p.m. EST on December 1, 2023; applications will continue to be reviewed until positions are filled. Awards will be announced in March 2024 or before.

Washington & Lee University

Rank: Assistant Professor of American Politics

The Department of Politics at Washington and Lee University invites applications for at least one tenure-track position in American politics. Our preference is for a second field in Political Theory. The department has needs in the study of parties and elections, public opinion, and methodology. Opportunities will be available to teach in interdisciplinary programs at the University—including Africana Studies, Latin American and Caribbean Studies, Poverty and Human Capability Studies, and Women's, Gender, and Sexuality Studies—as well as the DeLaney Center for the Study of Southern Race Relations, Culture, and Politics.

In addition to teaching the Department's introductory courses in American politics and political philosophy, the successful candidate will be expected to teach upper-level courses in their areas of interest.

This position requires a strong commitment to undergraduate teaching excellence in a liberal arts environment and welcomes interdisciplinary contributions to the curriculum. The school calendar consists of two 13-week terms, one in the fall and one in the winter, along with our unique 4-week spring term. The regular teaching load is 5 courses per year. New hires teach a 2-2 load in their first year.

Faculty are also expected to have an active research program. To support faculty research agendas, the university has generous travel funding, a summer research grant program, a five-year sabbatical cycle, as well as a pre-tenure research leave program.

Washington and Lee is a top-ranked, highly selective university devoted to the teaching of the liberal arts. We are committed to excellence in teaching and to the research and professional activity that support it. Situated in the Shenandoah Valley, three hours southwest of Washington, DC, the university enrolls approximately 1,860 undergraduates and 380 law students.

Qualifications

A completed Ph.D. is required by the time of appointment, which begins July 1, 2024.

Application Instructions

All application materials must be submitted online through Interfolio: <http://apply.interfolio.com/128336>. Application review will begin immediately with full consideration given to applications that are complete by September 29, 2023.

Your letter of application should explain why you wish to teach in a liberal arts setting and how your training and research/teaching interests align with this position. Include a curriculum vitae, graduate transcript (unofficial is acceptable for initial application), teaching evaluations, and three letters of recommendation that speak to teaching and research abilities. Women and minority candidates are especially encouraged to apply. While preliminary interviews will not be conducted at APSA-Los Angeles, members of the Politics Department will be available to speak with interested candidates. Send inquiries to PoliticsSearch@wlu.edu.

University of Richmond

Rank: Assistant Professor of Leadership Studies

Specializations: Leadership Studies, Political Philosophy & Theory, Political Behavior

The University of Richmond's Jepson School of Leadership Studies (JSLS) invites applications for a full-time tenure-track position at the rank of Assistant Professor to begin in the 2024-25 academic year.

The successful candidate must have completed a Ph.D. in Philosophy or a related field by August 15, 2024. We seek applicants with the potential and desire to develop, from their disciplinary training, an active scholarly agenda on the ethics of leadership. Successful candidates' specific areas of expertise and experience should be in applied or professional ethics, including (but not limited to) political or business ethics.

JSLS is a collaborative, inclusive community of scholars with representation from diverse humanities and social science disciplines. Applicants should have the potential and desire to teach in our interdisciplinary undergraduate liberal arts environment (see <http://jepson.richmond.edu/> for more information). The successful candidate will be expected to teach required courses such as Leadership Ethics, Critical Thinking, and Leadership and the Humanities, as well as elective courses that address leadership from a philosophical perspective. Applicants should also be prepared to share in responsibilities for coaching our "Ethics Bowl" team.

The University of Richmond is a private university located just a short drive from downtown Richmond, Virginia. Through its five schools (including JSLS) and wide array of campus programming, the University combines the best qualities of a small liberal arts college and a large university. With approximately 4,000 students, an 8:1 student-faculty ratio, and more than 90% of traditional undergraduate students living on campus, the University is remarkably student-centered, focused on preparing students "to live lives of purpose, thoughtful inquiry, and responsible leadership in a global and pluralistic society."

The University of Richmond is committed to developing a diverse and inclusive campus community, which values the expression of difference in ways that promote a sense of belonging as well as excellence in teaching, learning, and personal development. The JSLS supports the University's commitment to promoting a diverse and inclusive campus community.

Applicants should apply online at <http://jobs.richmond.edu> and submit a curriculum vitae, cover letter, and teaching statement. In their cover letter, candidates should demonstrate how, given their scholarly and teaching interests, they have the potential to address issues in leadership ethics from a philosophical perspective. In addition, applicants should specify in their cover letters how they are prepared to contribute to the unique, interdisciplinary environment at JSLS and to diversity and inclusion. Candidates for this position may be asked, at a later date, to provide the names and contact information for three references who will be asked to submit letters of recommendation. The teaching statement should articulate the candidate's teaching philosophy and experience, particularly as they relate to the courses the successful candidate is expected to teach.

Review of applications will commence November 1, 2023; the deadline for applications is November 15, 2023. Phone or Zoom interviews will be conducted in December. We anticipate inviting candidates to campus in January.

Loyola University Maryland

Rank: Tenure-track Assistant Professor in Political Philosophy/Political Theory

The Department of Political Science at Loyola University Maryland invites applications for a tenure-track Assistant Professor in Political Philosophy/Political Theory to begin July 2024. The successful applicant will be expected to teach a 3-3 load (reduced to 2-3 in the first year); sustain ongoing scholarship and publication; and engage in service, including advising majors. Specific teaching requirements are that the applicant offer courses in classical and/or modern political theory; an introductory course in "Politics"; and occasional special seminars in the Honors Program and first-year Messina program, or other interdisciplinary programs. The Department values an intentional approach to teaching and welcomes courses that take thematic, question-driven, or problem-based approaches.

Required Qualifications: 1) a Ph.D. or soon-to-be Ph.D. in Political Science; 2) ability to teach a range of political philosophy/political theory courses; 3) a strong commitment to excellence in teaching, including an awareness of and interest in high-impact teaching practices in keeping with the mission of Jesuit higher education; 4) a clear record of promise as a scholar.

To apply, candidates submit:

1. Cover letter
2. Curriculum Vitae,
3. Teaching statement, (Other 1)
4. Teaching evaluations and/or syllabi developed by the candidate,
5. Research statement (Other 2)
6. A sample of scholarship (published or in draft form),
7. Graduate transcripts,
8. Two letters of recommendation.

Completed applications received by October 2, 2023 will receive priority consideration, though we will continue to review additional applications until the position is filled. Questions may be directed to Dr. Diana Schaub (dschaub@loyola.edu).

Loyola University Maryland is a Jesuit, Catholic university committed to the educational and spiritual traditions of the Society of Jesus and to the ideals of liberal education and the development of the whole person. Accordingly, Loyola inspires students to learn, lead, and serve in a diverse and changing world. Loyola's beautiful, historic Evergreen campus is located in Baltimore, and its graduate centers are in Timonium and Columbia. Loyola enrolls 4,000 undergraduate and 2,000 graduate students across the Sellinger School of Business and Management, the School of Education, and Loyola College of Arts and Sciences. Founded in 1852, Loyola is one of 27 Jesuit colleges and universities in the United States and the first to bear the name of Saint Ignatius Loyola, founder of the Society of Jesus.

Successful candidates for any staff, faculty, or administrative position at Loyola University Maryland will be subject to a pre-employment background check. In uploading documents in the online application at <https://careers.loyola.edu/postings/6877>, please use the "Other 1" category for a teaching statement, "Other 2" for a research statement, and "Writing Sample" for the sample of scholarship.

University of Massachusetts, Boston

Rank: Assistant Professor, Critical Security Studies

Subfield(s): International Relations, Political Theory, Comparative Politics

Specializations: Ethnic & Feminist Theory, International Security, Gender Politics & Policy

The Department of Conflict Resolution, Human Security, and Global Governance (CRHSGG) at the University of Massachusetts Boston invites qualified applicants for a tenure-track Assistant Professor position to join our vibrant, interdisciplinary faculty beginning September 1, 2024.

We are seeking a scholar of critical security studies, broadly defined, who can contribute to and strengthen the core curriculum of the graduate programs in Global Governance and Human Security in CRHSGG. We are particularly interested in candidates whose areas of focus include gender, race, and/or decolonial theory. The position is open to scholars from a range of social sciences, including but not limited to political science, geography, sociology, anthropology, and gender studies, who connect questions of global governance with imperatives for human security.

We are open to a variety of areas of topical focus within critical security studies broadly understood, to all research methodological strategies, and to either a regional or global focus that complements existing expertise in the department. Candidates must possess an earned doctorate in a relevant social science discipline by the date of appointment. Candidates should be prepared to teach in the Global Governance and Human Security core. An ability to contribute to other departmental graduate and undergraduate programs, in International Relations, Conflict Resolution, and Global Affairs, is a plus.

UMass Boston is one of the most diverse campuses in the Northeast region of the U.S. and has a well-established commitment to social justice, equity, and inclusion, with an anti-racist and health-promoting mission. We strongly encourage applications from persons with diverse backgrounds and provide equal employment opportunities without regard to race, color, religion, gender, gender identity or expression, age, sexual orientation, national origin, ancestry, disability, military status, or genetic information.

The Department provides a rich environment for interdisciplinary, collaborative research, policy, and practice, and houses multiple degree programs at the graduate and undergraduate levels. The Department also houses two vibrant research Centers (the Center for Peace, Democracy & Development, and the Center for Governance and Sustainability) and has a strong connection with the Center for Women in Public Policy.

To apply, submit through the application portal (<https://employmentopportunities.umb.edu/en-us/job/519911/assistant-professor-conflict-resolution-human-security-and-global-governance>): a cover letter, curriculum vitae, a writing sample, and the names and contact information for three references who may be contacted at later stages of the selection process. Inquiries regarding the position may be directed to the search committee chair, Dr. Jeffrey Pugh, at Jeffrey.Pugh@umb.edu. Review of applications begins on October 1st and will continue until the position is filled. Responses to frequently asked questions and updates on the search will be posted publicly at https://docs.google.com/document/d/1uNGCFC8q4aAo52y\_V4n7ZAS7vQAVEx9pz9-iB8VwNNM/edit?usp=sharing.

UMass Boston is committed to the full inclusion of all qualified individuals. As part of this commitment, we will ensure that persons with disabilities are provided reasonable accommodations for the hiring process. If reasonable accommodation is needed, please contact HRDirect@umb.edu or 617-287-5150.

Princeton University

Rank: Postdoctoral Researcher in Political Theory

The Princeton University Center for Human Values invites applications for a Postdoctoral Researcher in Political Theory for a position starting in September 2024.

The researcher's duties will include making progress on their own research projects, teaching the equivalent of one course each year, and actively participating in the intellectual community of the University Center for Human Values. The teaching will likely involve running a senior thesis seminar rather than teaching a traditional course, subject to approval of Princeton's Dean of the Faculty. The postdoc will be expected to participate in a year-long research seminar for visiting fellows and Center faculty, as well as a year-long seminar for the Center's cohort of Postdoctoral Associates. (Each of these seminars meets roughly every other week.) The postdoc will also be expected to regularly attend some of the talks, panels, and conferences sponsored by the Center.

The University Center for Human Values has a strong record of placing our Postdoctoral Researchers in excellent tenure-track academic jobs. Some recent postdocs can be seen here: <https://uchv.princeton.edu/people/postdoctoral-research-associates>.

Qualifications

Applications are welcome from candidates who have or expect to have a Ph.D. by the start date of their appointment, normally beginning September 1, 2024. Applicants should not have more than two years of postdoctoral experience by the date of appointment. Applicants should have a serious research specialization in Political Theory. We understand Political Theory broadly to include the history of political thought, normative analysis, and intellectual projects involving work jointly with other subfields in political science, related disciplines, or in interdisciplinary areas. While most political theorists are trained in departments of politics and political science, we also welcome applications from candidates with research expertise in political theory who are trained in other disciplines or in interdisciplinary approaches.

Applications will be evaluated on the basis of the applicant's previous accomplishments and the promise of the proposed research project in Political Theory.

Term of Appointment

The term of the fellowship is one year, normally beginning September 1, 2024, with the possibility of renewal for up to one additional year pending satisfactory performance. Appointment will be made to the rank of Postdoctoral Research Associate. Princeton University offers competitive salary and employee benefits.

How to Apply

Candidates must submit an online application at <https://www.princeton.edu/acad-positions/position/31081>.

A complete application will include the following supporting materials:

1. A curriculum vitae;
2. A research proposal (not to exceed 1,500 words) describing the research project(s) the applicant plans to work on during the fellowship. Please provide an indicative title in the heading;
3. A scholarly paper (of no more than 12,000 words, not including bibliography) representing the applicant's scholarly achievement or potential;
4. Contact information for three referees, who should be prepared to comment specifically about the applicant's qualifications for the proposed research project. Referees will be contacted directly with instructions for uploading letters of reference.

Applicant materials must be submitted online by the application deadline of November 1, 2023, 11:59 p.m. EST. We do not accept application materials by any other method. Letters of reference should be submitted by the priority deadline of November 8, 2023, 11:59 p.m. EST. The selection committee will begin reviewing applications immediately, so letters of reference received after the priority deadline may put candidates at a disadvantage.

We expect to announce decisions in late March 2024. This position is subject to the University's background check policy.

PUBLIC ADMINISTRATION

Auburn University

Rank: Assistant Professor (tenure-track), Public Administration/Nonprofit Management

Position Summary: The Auburn University Department of Political Science is seeking a tenure-track Assistant Professor in Public Administration to begin August 16, 2024.

Position Responsibilities: Candidates must be able to offer courses in-person and online at both the undergraduate and graduate levels in public administration and nonprofit management. Candidates should be broadly trained in public administration and/or nonprofit management. We are seeking individuals who can contribute extensively to the MPA Program's Graduate Certificate in Nonprofit Organizations and Community Governance, the Graduate Certificate in Global Public Service, and undergraduate public administration courses. In addition, the individual should be able to teach courses in the core curriculum of our Master of Public Administration Program (NASPAA accredited). The standard teaching load is two courses per semester for at least the first three years of appointment. Candidates who would contribute to the diversity of the Department are especially encouraged to apply.

Required/Minimum Qualifications: Ph.D. in public administration, nonprofit management, public policy, or related field awarded by August 16, 2024. Candidates with professional experience in public administration, public or nonprofit management, experience teaching online and in-person classes, experience teaching public administration and/or nonprofit management courses at the undergraduate and graduate level, evidence of a record of commitment to student success at the college level through substantial and continued effectiveness in teaching, advising, and other student-related responsibilities are highly desired. Candidates who present a strong indication of future research productivity in appropriate academic journals are desired.

The candidate selected for this position must be able to meet eligibility requirements to work in the United States at the time the appointment is scheduled to begin and continue working legally for the proposed term of employment; excellent communication skills are required.

Review of applications will begin on November 30, 2023, and will continue until a suitable candidate has been selected. To apply, visit <https://www.auemployment.com/postings/41074>. Candidates must submit a cover letter outlining their qualifications for the position, a curriculum vitae, an official transcript of all graduate work, contact information for three letters of recommendation, a teaching statement and evidence of teaching ability, a research statement, and a writing sample.

Auburn University is an R1 research institution, enrolling over 33,000 students. The Political Science Department maintains a diverse faculty of 26 tenured and tenure-track members and offers undergraduate degrees in political science, health services administration, and public administration; a Master's degree program in Public Administration (MPA) with graduate certificates in Election Administration, Non-profit Organizations and Community Governance, and Global Public Service; a Master's degree program in Community Planning (MCP), and a Ph.D. program in public administration and public policy.

University of Arizona

Rank: Assistant Professor of Practice

The School of Government & Public Policy (SGPP) at the University of Arizona invites applications for an Assistant Professor of Practice career-track position to teach and provide administrative leadership in our online and in-person Master of Public Administration (MPA) program, beginning July 1, 2024. We are especially interested in individuals who have a breadth of expertise across the MPA program curriculum, with slight preference for individuals who could teach organizational theory. For more information about our MPA program curriculum, please visit (<https://sgpp.arizona.edu/mpa/curriculum>)

Professors of Practice (career track) faculty are members of the core faculty, who may be eligible to serve as graduate faculty. Professors of Practice are central to our instructional and service missions, as well as to the growth of our research and outreach enterprises. Candidates with previous experience exclusively in academia will be considered alongside those with relevant experience in the public sector including public and nonprofit institutions. Candidates should have the ability to work effectively within a broadly diverse community of students, scholars, and stakeholders.

The University of Arizona is an equal opportunity employer, and the department strongly encourages candidates of all backgrounds to apply.

Outstanding UA benefits include health, dental, and vision insurance plans; life insurance and disability programs; paid vacation, sick leave, and holidays; UA/ASU/NAU tuition reduction for the employee and qualified family members; state and optional retirement plans; access to UA recreation and cultural activities; and more!

The University of Arizona has been recognized for our innovative work-life programs. For more information about working at the University of Arizona and relocations services, please click here.

Duties and Responsibilities:

The instructional responsibilities of this fiscal year (12 month) position include teaching 6 courses per academic year and some possible summer instruction. Courses to be taught include core courses in the MPA program. For more information about our MPA program curriculum, please click here. Additional courses will be developed based around the expertise of the successful candidate. Other non-traditional classroom teaching duties may include coordination of online Capstone projects.

Service and Outreach includes providing year-round vision and programmatic leadership for the online MPA's development and growth as well as support for the in person MPA modality. This includes:

- Working with the Director of the MPA program and core faculty to launch an online modality of the MPA.
- Promoting the program on and off campus.
- Innovating the MPA curriculum, keeping it current and in line with trends in public administration and management.
- Providing mentorship and guidance for MPA and other students seeking careers in the public and nonprofit sectors.
- Working with university, college, and departmental efforts to recruit students to the program and promote the opportunities, events, and accomplishments of our students and faculty.
- Working closely with all MPA instructors, including.
- Tenured/Tenure Track faculty, Career Track faculty, and adjunct instructors.
- Working with regional public sector employers to identify opportunities for collaborations such as Capstone placements, service-learning opportunities, and professionalization seminars.
- A commitment to innovative leadership and program growth.
- Excellent communication skills and commitment to working collaboratively and proactively with teams of faculty, staff, graduate, and undergraduate students.
- Mentoring students, including through experiential learning.
- A commitment to the values of diversity, equity, and inclusion.

Minimum Qualifications:

- Ph.D. in public administration, management, policy, political science or closely related discipline, completed by the position start date; or a Master's degree in a relevant field and significant related professional experience.
- Experience with and commitment to contributing to an inclusive, diverse, and collegial community.

Preferred Qualifications:

- Experience teaching at the university level, both in person and online, using a variety of teaching methods and/or curricular perspectives to respond to the needs of a diverse student body.
- Experience providing student support, mentorship, and career counseling.
- Relevant professional experience or research expertise in public and/or nonprofit organizations including organizational theory.

Required Documents for submissions:

- 1) Curriculum vitae
- 2) Cover letter expressing why you are interested in this position
- 3) Teaching Portfolio, including at minimum a Statement on Teaching addressing, as applicable, in person and online teaching experience, and, if available, examples of course syllabi and teaching evaluations
- 4) Statement highlighting areas of research or practitioner experience within public administration and management
- 5) Contact information for three references

Jacksonville University

Rank: Assistant or Associate Professor of Public Policy

Subfield(s): Public Policy, Public Administration, Other

Link to job posting: <https://www.ju.edu/humanresources/faculty/asst-assoc-prof-public-policy-sept2023.php>

About Jacksonville University and The Jacksonville University Public Policy Institute

The Jacksonville University Public Policy Institute (Institute), established in 2012, is the first Institute of its kind in Florida and offers a Master in Public Policy (MPP) degree, Executive Master in Public Policy (EMPP) degree program, and three dual degree programs: MPP-Marine Science, MPP-MBA, and MPP-Juris Doctor. A Minor in Public Policy is also offered to undergraduate students.

Jacksonville University conferred the first MPP degrees in the history of Florida in 2015. In addition, the nonpartisan Institute provides a neutral gathering place for public policy education, discussion, and debate, hosting over 100 events on campus since 2013, and is actively engaged in the community, including training of elected officials, keynote addresses, and television and radio commentary. The Institute has a nonpartisan 25 member Board of Advisors, made up of extraordinary business, community, and civic leaders. It typically has leading policymakers, including the Governor, US Senators, and leading national policymakers as keynote speakers at board meetings. In addition, the Institute has a nine-member MPP Minority Fellowship Board of Advisors, which awards fellowships and scholarships to qualifying minority applicants. Please visit the Institute's website at www.ju.edu/publicpolicy.

Job Summary

The Public Policy Institute at Jacksonville University invites applications for an Assistant or Associate Professor in Public Policy position, beginning in August 2024. Successful candidates must demonstrate a willingness and ability to teach core, elective, and capstone courses in the MPP Program, and in the undergraduate Minor in Public Policy Program. The range of courses can include graduate courses in public policy, political institutions, statistics and research methods, policy analysis, ethics, microeconomics for public policy, and public finance, as well as public policy courses for undergraduate students.

The candidate must also show an ability to engage in public policy and interact with students, faculty, policy practitioners, and community leaders. The successful candidate will work closely with the Institute Executive Director on Institute governance, the MPP academic program, campus programming, and community engagement. The successful candidate must demonstrate a commitment to building a strong research agenda and publication record, as well as playing a leadership role commensurate with experience. The determination of the appropriate rank for the appointment will depend on the successful candidate's qualifications, background, and experience.

Qualifications

Applicants must have earned a PhD in Public Policy, or a closely related social science discipline, such as political science or economics. The candidate must demonstrate a commitment and promise in teaching and scholarly publishing as well as a willingness to contribute to and help lead the growth of the MPP Program and Public Policy Institute.

Diversity and Inclusion

Jacksonville University, an Equal Opportunity Employer, believes students learn best in a diverse, inclusive community and is therefore committed to academic excellence through diversity in its faculty, staff, and students. We seek candidates who are committed to Jacksonville University's efforts to create a climate that fosters the growth and development of a diverse student body, and we actively welcome applications from members of groups who are historically underrepresented in higher education.

Physical Requirements

Manual dexterity to efficiently operate a computer keyboard and other business machines

Adequate hearing to communicate effectively in person and virtually

Near vision sufficient to read written communications and computer display screens

Stamina to teach up to 24 hours weekly

Important Note

This is not an exhaustive list of all responsibilities, duties, and/or skills required for this position. The University reserves the right to amend and change responsibilities to meet organizational needs.

To Apply

The following application materials are required: (1) a letter of interest, (2) curriculum vitae, (3) copy of transcripts for all degrees earned

(unofficial are accepted at this stage—official will be required prior to the start date), (4) a statement regarding teaching philosophy, (5) evidence of effective teaching (syllabi and course evaluations), (6) evidence of scholarly writing, (7) completed JU faculty application, and (8) three letters of recommendation.

Interested applicants may send their application materials, preferably as a PDF packet, to Jacksonville University Public Policy Institute at ppi@ju.edu, with the subject line "Assistant/Associate Professor Search" by November 10, 2023. ### McMaster University

Rank: Wilson College Endowed Chair in Leadership and Civic Studies

Specializations: Leadership Studies, Legislative Studies, Civil Rights & Liberties

Wilson College Endowed Chair in Leadership and Civic Studies
McMaster University

Committed to delivering on its promise of Truth and Reconciliation, McMaster University recognizes and acknowledges that it is located on the traditional territories of the Haudenosaunee and Mississauga Nations, and within the lands protected by the Dish with One Spoon wampum agreement.

McMaster University seeks outstanding candidates for the prestigious Wilson College Endowed Chair in Leadership and Civic Studies.

The Wilson College Endowed Chair in Leadership and Civic Studies (hereafter, "the Chair") will be affiliated with the Wilson College of Leadership and Civic Engagement, a newly formed collaborative academic unit between the Faculty of Humanities and the Faculty of Social Sciences at McMaster University. The Chairholder will be appointed for an initial term of five years, with the possibility of reappointment to a second five-year term. The Chairholder's academic appointment will be a full-time tenured position at the rank of associate or full professor in an appropriate department in McMaster's Faculty of Humanities or Faculty of Social Sciences. The appointment is expected to commence July 1, 2024.

The successful candidate will have an exceptional record of scholarly and educational contributions, and a desire to engage with external stakeholders in the public sector, the private sector, and the community and non-profit sector. We seek someone who can be appointed at the rank of Professor at the time of appointment or can reasonably be expected to achieve the rank of Professor within 1-2 years of appointment; therefore, applicants must have substantial experience at the Associate Professor level (or equivalent). Applicants must have a research program and scholarly contributions that are grounded solidly in the Canadian context, and/or Canada's role internationally. Here research in the Canadian context is understood to include scholarship and knowledge keeping by and about Indigenous peoples of Turtle Island. They will have specialized training in a relevant discipline or field in the Humanities or Social Sciences (Humanities and Social Science departments at McMaster include Anthropology, English and Cultural Studies; Communication Studies and Media Arts; Economics; French; Greek and Roman Studies; Health, Aging & Society; History; Indigenous Studies; Labour Studies; Linguistics; Philosophy; Political Science; Society, Culture and Religion; Sociology; the School of the Arts; and the School of Social Work). A record of interdisciplinary engagement is an asset. The Chair will be expected to contribute significantly to scholarship in the interdisciplinary area of Leadership and Civic Studies, to teach and supervise students from both Wilson College and the Chair's home department, to engage with external audiences, to assist in the development of Wilson College and in building an equitable and diverse community of Wilson College scholars and students, and to contribute more generally to McMaster's reputation for research and teaching excellence.

The Wilson College of Leadership and Civic Engagement under development at McMaster University trains future leaders to foster and sustain a civic culture for Canada that engages all citizens; it emphasizes the importance of collaboration between McMaster's academic community and local, national, regional, and global leaders in building a stronger Canada and sustainable, resilient communities; and it integrates education, research, practice and public engagement to advance our understanding of how to create a civic culture for a flourishing Canada and a sustainable world.

The College's innovative Leadership and Civic Studies undergraduate degree provides students with interdisciplinary theoretical and practical knowledge on leadership and civic engagement. The College nurtures future changemakers who will work across Canada and beyond in public service, the private sector, and civil society – to shape policy and public discourse for the greater good.

Located in the vibrant city of Hamilton, Ontario, McMaster University is dedicated to advancing human and societal health and well-being locally and globally, by promoting inclusive mindsets, collaborative learning, and innovative thinking. ## SUNY, Geneseo

Rank: Assistant Professor of Political Science and International Relations

Subfield(s): Public Administration, Public Policy, American Government and Politics

Specializations: Health Care, Environmental Policy, Women & Politics

The Department of Political Science & International Relations at the State University of New York (SUNY) at Geneseo seeks applications for a tenure-track faculty position in Public Administration and Policy, with a focus in American Politics, to begin August, 2024. We seek applicants from a variety of fields within Public Administration and Public Policy, with possible areas of expertise including, but not limited to, Bureaucratic Politics, Nonprofits, Education, the Environment, Health Care, Income Inequality, or Social Welfare Policy. We seek a candidate that complements but is distinctive from our existing areas of expertise in American politics (American political institutions and campaigns and elections).

We are a highly collegial department of seven full-time faculty members who are committed to excellence in undergraduate teaching, liberal arts education, and diversity, equity, and inclusion. We offer two majors (Political Science and International Relations), contribute to several interdisciplinary programs, and have access to substantial resources to support research. More information about our department is available at https://www.geneseo.edu/political\_science.

Duties of the position include:

- Teaching 3 courses per semester (3-3 load) in public administration and policy, including PLSC 374 – Public Administration and PLSC 414 – American Public Policy, and other courses in American politics and the candidate's area of expertise.

- Coordinating the Public Administration minor and administering Geneseo's joint 5-year BA/MPA program with the University of Albany.

- Supervising student internships and regularly teaching the internship course PLSC 495 – Political Affairs and Legal Affairs Internships as part of the 3-3 course load.

- Pursuing a program of scholarly research leading to publication in peer-reviewed outlets.

- Providing academic advising to political science majors.

- Mentoring and supervising undergraduate research and other projects.

- Contributing to governance and engaging in service to the department, the college, and the discipline.

- There are also opportunities to contribute to other interdisciplinary programs, including Women's and Gender Studies, Black Studies,

Sustainability Studies, Sociomedical Sciences, Legal Studies, and Urban Studies.

Our priorities are teaching excellence and creating a sense of belonging for all students. A commitment to working effectively with students from diverse backgrounds is essential. We also highly value collegiality, experience with integrative learning, and a willingness to contribute to a holistic and broadly-conceived education in political science as a part of a liberal arts curriculum. The department will support the process for a successful candidate to acquire an H1-B visa as needed for international candidates or non-citizens.

To learn more about our department visit: https://www.geneseo.edu/political\_science.

Minimum Qualifications:

- Ph.D. in Political Science or related field by the time of appointment.
- Expertise in Public Policy and Public Administration.
- Prior experience or demonstrated potential in teaching courses in Public Administration and Policy at the undergraduate level.
- Potential to establish a program of research leading to publication.
- Demonstrated commitment to fostering a diverse and inclusive working/teaching environment.

To be guaranteed consideration, applications must be completed by Friday, December 1, 2023.

Applicants should be prepared to provide:

- Cover letter that addresses teaching experience and candidate's research agenda
- CV
- Teaching statement and demonstration of teaching effectiveness
- Diversity statement
- 3 letters of recommendation

University of Texas at El Paso

Rank: Assistant Professor

About The University of Texas at El Paso

The University of Texas at El Paso is America's leading Hispanic-serving university. Located at the westernmost tip of Texas, where three states and two countries converge along the Rio Grande, UTEP is a comprehensive public research university that is increasing access to excellent higher education. We advance the discovery of public value and positively impact the health, culture, education, and economy of the community we serve. Eighty-four percent of our students are Hispanic, and half of undergraduates are the first in their families to go to college. Deeply woven into the University's character are the distinctive strengths of the people we serve. At UTEP, our 24,000 students have access to 169 bachelor's, master's, and doctoral degree programs. Located in the second-most educated city in Texas, UTEP is recognized as one of the best research universities in the country for connecting students with the community around them. UTEP is one of only four institutions in Texas to hold both the top research and community engagement designations from the Carnegie Classification of Institutions of Higher Education.

The Department of Communication is one of the largest majors at the university, with faculty and over 700 students in five areas of study; Advertising, Communication Studies, Corporate and Organizational Communication, Digital Media Production, and Multimedia Journalism. The Department also offers a Master Arts in Communication. Our 12 tenured and tenure-track faculty and a diverse pool of non-tenure track faculty, engage in communication research and prepare students for applied communication careers; many faculty members focus on Latina/o communication issues in the United States, and we also have a number of faculty focused on global issues and international contexts.

The Department of Political Science and Public Administration is a growing unit of scholars dedicated to disciplinary and interdisciplinary research. Our current composition of 13 tenured and tenure-track faculty and 6 non-tenure track faculty also dedicate themselves to educate future generations of leaders. The Department offers a Master of Public Administration accredited by the Network of Schools of Public Policy, Affairs and Administration (NASPAA), a Graduate Certificate in Nonprofit Administration, and an undergraduate concentration and minor in Public Administration.

Job Description:

We are seeking a scholar with a focus on human resource management (preferably as it relates to diversity management), organizational communication, communication and organizational culture, and/or stakeholder/community engagement and responsiveness. We are especially interested in scholars that conduct empirical research that examines how public and nonprofits actors engage underserved or traditionally marginalized groups. The position will be a joint appointment between the Department of Communication and the Department of Political Science and Public Administration with a tenure home in one of these two departments.

Requirements

Required Qualifications: Applicants must have a Ph.D. in Public Administration, Communication, or a closely related field from an accredited university. ABD applicants will be considered if a doctorate will be in hand by fall 2024. An active research agenda and published scholarly journal articles are required. The potential to secure external funding is highly valued.

Preferred Areas: Preference will be given to candidates who have teaching and/or research expertise in one or more areas listed in the job description.

Application Instructions

Applicants must electronically submit: (1) letter of interest that specifies teaching areas and research expertise; (2) curriculum vita; (3) one scholarly publication or working paper; (4) evidence of teaching effectiveness; (5) graduate transcript (unofficial is acceptable for application; official one needed at hiring) and (6) names and full contact information of three references that we may contact. If you have questions about the position, please contact the Search Committee Chair, Dr. Eric Boyer at ejboyer@utep.edu

Application Review Date: Review of applications will begin December 1, 2023, and will continue until the position is filled.

To apply, please visit www.utep.edu/employment.

Additional Information

Hiring decisions are based on budget approval.

Harvard University

Rank: FELLOWS-IN-RESIDENCE PROGRAM

Subfield(s): Other, Public Administration, Public Policy

The Edmond & Lily Safra Center for Ethics at Harvard University invites applications from a broad range of researchers and practitioners who will work over the course of the year on pressing issues in ethics. Faculty in arts and sciences and professional schools, postdoctoral scholars, practitioners, and researchers from industry, government, and NGOs are eligible to apply. The call for applications for the 2024-25 is completely open: we will consider any topic pertaining to the serious ethical questions of our time. All eligible applicants are encouraged to apply and will be given careful consideration; priority will be given to outstanding early career scholars and practitioners.

As always, our goal will be to craft a cohort in which all fellows will find valuable intellectual partnerships to support and spur their work. The ideal candidates are those who are willing to invest time and energy into building community with the other fellows in their cohort.

Fellows-in-Residence will be expected to devote the majority of their time to their individual projects and to participate in regular work-in-progress seminars. In addition, Fellows are strongly encouraged to participate in—and contribute to—the Center’s programming, which includes public lectures, themed seminars and reading groups, conferences, workshops, and lunch discussions.

This Fellowship is intended to be residential. With the exception of travel to conferences and meetings, Fellows are expected to be in residence in the Boston area at least four working days per week during the term.

For the last few years, the Center has offered the possibility of joint fellowship opportunities with several other Centers at Harvard. We continue to offer that possibility, with specific potential affiliations to be worked out on a case-by-case basis:

- Berkman Klein Center for Internet and Society at Harvard University
- Carr Center for Human Rights at the Harvard Kennedy School
- Center for Bioethics at the Harvard Medical School
- Center for Research on Computation and Society at the Harvard John A. Paulson School of Engineering and Applied Sciences
- Hutchins Center for African & African American Research at Harvard University
- Petrie-Flom Center for Health Law Policy, Biotechnology and Bioethics at the Harvard Law School

Applicants will be invited to indicate on the application form whether they wish to be considered for a joint fellowship position with one of these Centers. If selected, the joint fellowship will offer access to development opportunities and programming at the Edmond & Lily Safra Center for Ethics and the partnering center.

ELIGIBILITY

Applicants must have a PhD, professional degree, or a minimum of 5 years of equivalent professional experience by the start of the fellowship year. Applicants from any discipline or professional field will be considered. Those who have previously held a yearlong residential Fellowship at the Center are not eligible; this limitation does not apply to former Undergraduate Fellows or former Graduate Fellows. The Fellows-in-Residence Program runs the course of the academic year, typically from the beginning of September through the end of May, and is open to all applicants who meet the above criteria, regardless of citizenship.

STIPEND

Faculty:

We offer a stipend of one-half of your base academic year salary, up to $80,000, and a research allowance of up to $5,000 for approved expenses directly related to your work, such as travel, books, and research assistance.

Post-Doc:

The stipend for post-doctoral fellows will be $70,000 for 2024-25. We also provide a research allowance of up to $5,000 for approved expenses directly related to your work, such as travel, books, and research assistance.

Practitioner:

Practitioner stipends are determined on a case-by-case basis, commensurate with experience, up to a maximum of $80,000. We also provide a research allowance of up to $5,000 for approved expenses directly related to your work, such as travel, books, and research assistance.

APPLICATION REQUIREMENTS

Before beginning the application, you may wish to have the following information available:

- The title of your research proposal
- Names and contact information for 3 references (no letters are accepted at this stage)

To apply, complete our online application form, which will request the information noted above. You will also be asked to upload the following documents:

- Cover letter stating your background and interest in the Fellows-in-Residence Program at the Edmond & Lily Safra Center for Ethics
- Curriculum Vitae
- Research proposal
- Recent writing sample

Please note: Name and contact information for three professional references will be requested, but no letters will be accepted at this stage.

The deadline to submit an application is November 15, 2023, with decisions likely to be announced in February 2024. Please note that the application form will be saved automatically while in progress, but no edits or alterations will be allowed once you have submitted the application. Please direct questions regarding this application process to EJSafraFellowships@fas.harvard.edu.

Hamilton College

Rank: Assistant Professor of Government

Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Public Policy, Public Administration

The Government Department at Hamilton College invites applications for three tenure-track positions at the rank of Assistant Professor, beginning July 1, 2024. The new hires will collectively cover courses in public policy, American politics, and research methods, allocated based on individual expertise. This coordinated hire is part of a commitment to nourishing a diverse learning community and increasing possibilities for exchange focused on issues related to equality and inequality. We actively encourage applications from candidates whose work investigates the politics and policy of equality and inequality along one or more of the following axes: race and ethnicity; gender; class; sexuality; ability; religion; and migrant, refugee, or citizenship status. We seek candidates trained in either or both quantitative and qualitative methods and with academic backgrounds in American Politics, Public Policy, or Public Administration. Beyond that, there are no restrictions on area focus.

We are seeking candidates who can demonstrate their experience in teaching or working with diverse student populations. Your cover letter should address ways in which you raise issues of diversity and inclusion in your teaching, scholarship, and/or service.

These positions require institutional service including academic advising of undergraduate students after the first year.

The Government Department is responsible for the study of politics and public affairs at Hamilton. The department, which is one of Hamilton's largest, currently includes 17 faculty members, 12 of whom are tenured or pre-tenure. Department faculty include specialists in American politics, comparative politics, international relations, political theory, and public policy, and we teach a wide variety of courses across all these subfields. Each year, we also hire two practitioners, each of whom teaches a single one-semester course. The Department offers three majors: Government, World Politics, and Public Policy. Taken together, these three majors total about 85 students a year.

Candidates with ABD will be considered (and hired at the Instructor level until successful completion of their dissertation), although candidates with a Ph.D. are preferred. The teaching load for these positions is four courses during the first year and five courses thereafter. The expected salary range for these positions is $88,000 to $94,100. Candidates should submit cover letter, c.v., a writing sample, evidence of teaching ability, and a list of references via Interfolio at <https://apply.interfolio.com/129439>. Questions regarding the search may be directed to Peter F. Cannavò, Search Committee Chair, at pcannavo@hamilton.edu. Our review of applications will begin on October 1, 2023.

Job Number: FY2401753

Closing: 1/22/2024 11:59 PM Mountain

Location: 800 W University Parkway, Orem

Division: CHPS College Health/Public Service

Position Announcement

The Criminal Justice Department and Master of Public Administration program at Utah Valley University invite applicants for a teaching-focused, tenure-track Assistant Professor position with a teaching load of 12 credits per semester. Under the supervision of the Department Chair, the candidate will play an integral role in the Criminal Justice Department and the MPA program. The successful candidate will be required to teach two lower- or upper-division courses within the Criminal Justice Department. This would include, but is not limited to, Introduction to Criminal Justice, Criminal Law, Corrections, and Research Methods. The candidate will also be required to teach two courses per semester in the online Master of Public Administration program within the College of Health and Public Service. This would include, but is not limited to, a graduate level seminar in Public Administration and other core courses. Finally, the candidate will be required to seek ways to enhance UVU's dual-integrated mission, focusing on engagement, inclusion, and student success. The Criminal Justice Department currently consists of 13 full-time faculty members and serves almost 900 students majoring in Criminal Justice, Forensic Science, and National Security Studies. Our approach to professional education is student-centered and demands a high level of faculty-student engagement, with substantial institutional support for engaging students in faculty research. The College of Health and Public Service and the institution also support work-life balance. UVU values diverse opinions and perspectives and seeks to be inclusive in all practices. We encourage applications from candidates who identify with historically underrepresented groups in academia.

Summary of Responsibilities

- Instruct, manage, and provide an engaged learning experience through various teaching and learning strategies that may include online, face-to-face, hybrid, and live-stream modalities. Prepares instructional materials (PowerPoint/live-stream presentations, classroom demonstrations, visual aids, Canvas-based assignments, lesson plans, mockups, syllabi, etc.) Identifies learning materials such as texts, supplies, study guides, and equipment necessary for coursework. Documents and maintains accurate reports and records of student accountability, attendance, performance, and follow-up.
- Engages in scholarly activities such as presentations, publications, research, etc. Participates in professional development that leads to improved teaching; advising/mentoring of students/projects as appropriate.
- Provides service to the department, college, university, and community by serving on various committees as assigned. Attends and actively participates in college events, department and division meetings, and Utah System of Higher Education (USHE) committees as appropriate.
- Establishes and maintains office hours and advises students during this time and other times as needed and appropriate. Supports and embodies exceptional care, exceptional accountability, and exceptional results, as well as UVU's Mission. Performs other job duties as assigned.

Minimum Qualifications

Graduating from a regionally accredited university with an earned doctoral degree in Criminal Justice, Political Science, Public Administration, or a Juris Doctorate from an ABA-accredited law school. ABD candidates will be considered if the doctorate is completed (dissertation defended and accepted by the graduating institution) by the start date.

- Evidence of an ability to teach lower- and upper-division courses in Criminal Justice.
- Evidence of an ability to teach master's level courses in Public Administration.
- Ability and desire to participate in scholarly/creative work with undergraduate or graduate students consistent with a teaching university.
- Ability to teach online courses.

Preferred Qualifications

- Evidence of an ability to teach lower- and upper-division courses in Criminal Justice (i.e., Introduction to Criminal Justice, Criminal Law, Corrections, and Research Methods)
- Evidence of an ability to teach master's level elective courses in Criminal Justice.
- Frequent and consistent engagement in teaching-related professional development activities.
- Ability and desire to mentor and conduct research with undergraduate students.

Knowledge, Skill, and Abilities

- Knowledge of and demonstrated use of engaged teaching techniques.
- Knowledge of and openness to multiple approaches to teaching criminal justice.
- Knowledge of and openness to multiple approaches to teaching public administration.
- Knowledge of instructional strategies and techniques, curriculum development, and evaluation and assessment of instruction.
- Skills in developing and presenting educational programs and/or work.

Rank: Doctoral/Post Doctoral Fellowship

Subfield(s): Public Law, American Government and Politics, Comparative Politics

Specializations: Constitutional Law & Theory, International Law & Organizations, Ethnic & Feminist Theory

North Dakota State University invites applications for a 9-month position in judicial politics, to begin on August 16, 2024.

The department of Political Science & Public Policy at NDSU is recruiting for a 9-month doctoral or post-doctoral fellowship, preferred starting Fall 2024. We seek candidates with expertise in judicial politics and constitutional law, broadly construed. Successful applicants should be versed in American public law, but could conduct research in a broad variety of related areas, such as, but not limited to, the role of race, ethnicity, sexualities, and/or gender in justice systems; criminal justice policy; law and society; comparative judicial politics; international courts and legal structures; or American political development. The teaching load is 2-2 for two years with one course release. Successful applicants will be prepared to teach core undergraduate and graduate law-related courses on American judicial politics, such as judicial processes and constitutional law.

Minimum Qualifications:

The minimum qualifications for the position are: 1) ABD or hold a Ph.D. in Political Science, or a related discipline, 2) evidence of research productivity, or potential to publish scholarship in peer reviewed journals, presses, and other outlets appropriate to one's field, 3) competence to teach American judicial processes and constitutional law, and 4) effective written and oral communication skills.

Preferred Qualifications:

We will give priority to candidates who 1) hold a Ph.D. in Political Science, or a related discipline, 2) can provide substantial evidence of (potential) research productivity and quality, 3) have experience teaching American judicial processes and/or constitutional law, 4) can provide substantial evidence of teaching effectiveness, and/or 5) have experience supervising or mentoring undergraduate students.

Applicant Materials Required:

Applicants must submit a cover letter, curriculum vitae, statement of research interests, writing sample, statement of teaching philosophy, evidence of teaching effectiveness (e.g., syllabi, course materials, evidence of participation in teaching professionalization activities, and, if available, evaluations by peers and/or mentors; please do not include student evaluations of teaching), and the names and contact information of 3 references. All application materials must be submitted online at Employment Opportunities | NDSU.

New York University Arts and Science

Rank: Clinical Assistant Professor - International Law, Comparative Law, and Global Legal Issues

Subfield(s): Public Law, Political Theory, Comparative Politics

Specializations: International Law & Organizations, Ethnic & Feminist Theory, Religion & Politics

Clinical Assistant Professor - International Law, Comparative Law, and Global Legal Issues

Liberal Studies
New York University Arts & Science

Liberal Studies at New York University invites applications for a Clinical Assistant Professor position to begin September 1, 2024, pending administrative and budgetary approval. The Liberal Studies Core is a dynamic liberal arts curriculum that provides a global and interdisciplinary foundation for nearly 100 NYU majors. The Global Liberal Studies Bachelor of Arts is an innovative global studies major grounded in the spatial, conceptual, and temporal understandings of a highly interconnected world, with a program of study that is distinguished by experiential learning, study away, and independent research focused in an interdisciplinary concentration. In both the LS Core and the GLS major, small, seminar-style classes and close faculty-student interaction provide students with the benefits of a liberal arts college within a large urban research university. We are especially interested in hiring qualified candidates who can contribute their research, teaching and service to the diversity and excellence of Liberal Studies and NYU.

We seek applicants for the following position:

INTERNATIONAL LAW, COMPARATIVE LAW, AND GLOBAL LEGAL ISSUES

PhD in History, Philosophy, or Politics, with a focus on law and society. A JD is not required in addition to the PhD, but is nonetheless welcome. Candidates must have familiarity with global legal institutions as well as international conventions and treaties and constitutional and statutory regimes in both Western and non-Western settings. Candidates should be prepared to develop upper-division seminars that include introduction to Western and non-Western legal systems in the Law, Ethics, History, and Religion concentration and focus on such global legal issues as racial justice, indigenous rights, earth justice, capital punishment, LGBTQ and women's rights, and disability law. Candidates are also expected to draw on ancient and early modern sources in their teaching with a global, interdisciplinary emphasis in the Global Works and Society sequence of the Core Curriculum. Candidates must embrace interdisciplinary and intersectional approaches from a variety of global perspectives and must have the ability to examine relationships of power and to interrogate the historical roots of current challenges.

In compliance with NYC's Pay Transparency Act, the annual base salary range for this position is $70,000 - $80,000. New York University considers factors such as (but not limited to) the scope and responsibilities of the position, the candidate's work experience, education/training, key skills, internal peer equity, as well as market and organizational considerations when extending an offer.

All Liberal Studies full-time faculty hold renewable term contracts, initially three years, and later six years in duration. Faculty are eligible for promotion within the Clinical faculty ranks (Assistant, Associate, Full). Faculty normally teach three classes per semester, advise undergraduates, and contribute service to Liberal Studies and to the University.

Qualifications

Minimum qualifications: PhD by the date of appointment; three years of college-level teaching experience; and demonstrated excellence in teaching. We are especially interested in qualified candidates who share Liberal Studies' commitment to diversity, equity, and inclusion, and who can contribute to the diversity of intellectual life in LS and NYU. Candidates must present demonstrated experience and commitment to interdisciplinarity, intersectionality, and a teaching approach informed by global perspectives. Publications and evidence of outstanding scholarship and relevant professional activity are strongly encouraged.

Application Instructions

Applications include ONLY (1) a cover letter, (2) a current CV, and (3) a Diversity and Inclusion Statement addressing past and/or potential future contributions to diversity through teaching, professional activity, and/or service. (Additional information can be found here <http://as.nyu.edu/departments/facultydiversity/recruitment/diversity-statements.html>). Complete applications must be recorded by 11:59 p.m. Eastern Standard Time (US), November 1st, 2023. Applications recorded after this deadline will not be considered.

Applicants may apply directly through the following link: apply.interfolio.com/131838

Liberal Studies sees diversity, equity and inclusion and belonging as essential to education and the development of leadership in a globally interconnected world. These values inform LS as a collegial and respectful environment for students, faculty and staff—with particular attention to improving the student experience. Liberal Studies strongly encourages applications from women, racial and ethnic minorities, and other individuals who are under-represented in the profession, across color, creed, race, ethnic and national origin, ability, gender and sexual identity, or any other legally protected basis. Morningside, a private university located in Sioux City, Iowa, is admired for both its rich, connected campus community and exceptional active learning experiences. Established in 1894, the university has been led by its 13th president Dr. Albert Mosley since 2022 and is nestled within a serene 69-acre park-like campus in the heart of Iowa's fourth largest city. Morningside also offers academic environments at its 77-acre learning farm and at the Sioux Gateway Airport for its School of Aviation. The institution serves a community of approximately 2,300 students from almost all 50 states and more than 30 countries.

As a testament to its learning outcomes, more than 80% of undergraduate students have engaged in an internship, externship, student teaching, or preceptorship upon graduation, and for more than a decade 99% of students have gone on to a job or graduate school in their field of study within six months of graduation.

Residential undergraduate students can expect a tranquil and secure campus environment, propelling personal and professional growth. Student life includes around 50 student-led clubs and organizations, a wide array of visual and performing arts opportunities, and 28 varsity sports that regularly receive conference and national recognition. Morningside is also proud to serve as a regional resource for the Siouxland area, offering a variety of on-campus events and activities for students, alumni, and the community at large. Learn more at morningside.edu.

Review of applications for the position will begin immediately and will continue until filled. For fullest consideration, applicant materials should be received by Oct 31, 2023. Candidates for searches must have current authorization to be employed in the U.S. without employer sponsorship. Successful completion of a background check and education verification are required. All qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to age, sex, religion, creed, race, color, gender identity, sexual orientation, disability, genetic information, national origin, or other characteristics protected by state and federal law. Persons needing accommodations or assistance with the accessibility of materials related to this search are encouraged to contact the Director of Human Resources at welp@morningside.edu. Apply on-line only by submitting an email to facultysearch@morningside.edu entering Political Science Search in the subject line and attaching a PDF or Microsoft Word files for the following documents: A cover letter, current curriculum vitae, a statement of teaching philosophy, a brief statement of research interests, and three letters of recommendation. If the letters of recommendation are not included in the application, they must be submitted electronically to the &quot;facultysearch&quot; email address provided above. Questions about the position may be addressed to Dr. Brian McFarland, mcfarlandb@morningside.edu.

Princeton University

Rank: Postdoctoral Research Associate, James Madison Program
Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Political Theory, Public Law

Invitation for Postdoctoral Research Associate Applications

The James Madison Program in American Ideals and Institutions at Princeton University is dedicated to the pursuit of scholarly excellence in the fields of constitutional law and political thought. Sponsored by Princeton's Department of Politics, the Program seeks to enrich the intellectual life of Princeton students and faculty by exploring American constitutional principles and structures through research and public discussion.

The Program invites recent Ph.D. recipients to apply for appointments as Postdoctoral Research Associates or more senior researchers for the year from September 1, 2024 to September 1, 2025. Appointments will be through the Department of Politics. All James Madison Program researchers are expected to be in residence in Princeton or the local vicinity, or demonstrate to the program's satisfaction the ability to be on campus daily, and on short notice, to fulfill responsibilities relating to in-person participation, office hours, and the like. They may not be employed by another institution during the term of their Princeton appointment. They enjoy access to Firestone Library and a wide range of other facilities and activities throughout the University. Depending on the needs of the University, teaching opportunities may be available, subject to the approval of the Dean of the Faculty. Researchers appointed in the Madison Program are expected to devote full time to their proposed research. They are, however, encouraged to attend or participate in various activities of the Program, including faculty-student seminars, colloquia, and public lectures.

The position is a fully funded, 12-month postdoctoral research associate appointment with benefits. All James Madison Program Postdoctoral Research Associates are required to have a Ph.D. degree awarded within the last three years (no earlier than September 1, 2021). All requirements for the Ph.D. must be met by June 30, 2024. Applications are evaluated on the basis of (1) the significance of the proposed research; (2) the quality of the applicant's past research; and (3) the future contribution the applicant is likely to make to higher education. Positions are open to all regardless of citizenship. This position is subject to the University's background check policy.

How to apply: Applicants are required to submit an online application at <https://www.princeton.edu/acad-positions/position/31662>

A complete application must include the following:

- * a curriculum vitae;
- * a scholarly paper written in the past three years;
- * a statement (no more than 1,500 words) describing the proposed research;
- * contact information for two references.

For priority consideration, application materials must be received by 11:59 p.m. EST on December 1, 2023; applications will continue to be reviewed until positions are filled. Awards will be announced in March 2024 or before.

University of Richmond

Rank: Assistant Professor of Leadership Studies
Specializations: Leadership Studies, Political Philosophy & Theory, Political Behavior

The University of Richmond's Jepson School of Leadership Studies (JSLS) invites applications for a full-time tenure-track position at the rank of Assistant Professor to begin in the 2024-25 academic year.

The successful candidate must have completed a Ph.D. in Philosophy or a related field by August 15, 2024. We seek applicants with the potential and desire to develop, from their disciplinary training, an active scholarly agenda on the ethics of leadership. Successful candidates' specific areas of expertise and experience should be in applied or professional ethics, including (but not limited to) political or business ethics.

JSLS is a collaborative, inclusive community of scholars with representation from diverse humanities and social science disciplines. Applicants should have the potential and desire to teach in our interdisciplinary undergraduate liberal arts environment (see <http://jepson.richmond.edu/> for more information). The successful candidate will be expected to teach required courses such as Leadership Ethics, Critical Thinking, and Leadership and the Humanities, as well as elective courses that address leadership from a philosophical perspective. Applicants should also be prepared to share in responsibilities for coaching our "Ethics Bowl" team.

The University of Richmond is a private university located just a short drive from downtown Richmond, Virginia. Through its five schools (including JSLS) and wide array of campus programming, the University combines the best qualities of a small liberal arts college and a large university. With approximately 4,000 students, an 8:1 student-faculty ratio, and more than 90% of traditional undergraduate students living on campus, the University is remarkably student-centered, focused on preparing students "to live lives of purpose, thoughtful inquiry, and responsible leadership in a global and pluralistic society."

The University of Richmond is committed to developing a diverse and inclusive campus community, which values the expression of difference in ways that promote a sense of belonging as well as excellence in teaching, learning, and personal development. The JSLS supports the University's commitment to promoting a diverse and inclusive campus community.

Applicants should apply online at <http://jobs.richmond.edu> and submit a curriculum vitae, cover letter, and teaching statement. In their cover letter, candidates should demonstrate how, given their scholarly and teaching interests, they have the potential to address issues in leadership ethics from a philosophical perspective. In addition, applicants should specify in their cover letters how they are prepared to contribute to the unique, interdisciplinary environment at JSLS and to diversity and inclusion. Candidates for this position may be asked, at a later date, to provide the names and contact information for three references who will be asked to submit letters of recommendation. The teaching statement should articulate the candidate's teaching philosophy and experience, particularly as they relate to the courses the successful candidate is expected to teach.

Review of applications will commence November 1, 2023; the deadline for applications is November 15, 2023. Phone or Zoom interviews will be conducted in December. We anticipate inviting candidates to campus in January.

Start Date: Fall 2024

University of San Diego

Rank: Assistant Professor in Public Law

The Department of Political Science and International Relations at the University of San Diego invites applications for a tenure track position at the Assistant Professor level with expertise in public law.

Successful candidates should be committed to excellent, inclusive teaching at the lower and upper division levels, and to engage in student advising. Candidates will pursue a scholarly agenda and engage in service at the departmental, college, and university levels. The teaching load is three courses per semester. The University of San Diego is a teaching focused liberal arts institution, and all faculty in the department of Political Science and International Relations are committed to offering a range of courses aligned with their interests and in support of the departmental curriculum.

The candidate will offer courses that address the relationships between the law, politics, and structural inequity, with a specific expectation that they will regularly offer upper division courses in Constitutional Law and lower division courses in political theory and/or race and ethnic politics. Within the scope of these parameters, the position is open to teacher-scholars of a variety of sub-disciplinary approaches to public law, including law & society, political theory, judicial politics, legal institutions, critical legal studies, politics of race & ethnicity, feminist legal theory, or comparative law. The successful candidate will also contribute courses in other core areas of departmental curriculum and participate actively in student advising, including especially pre-law advising.

In addition to outlining their own interests in and approaches to teaching and research in a liberal arts environment, candidates should also describe how their research or teaching connects to one or more of the following three cluster themes in the College of Arts and Sciences. (link to cluster hire here: <https://www.sandiego.edu/cas/about/diversity-equity-inclusion/hiring.php>). These clusters will include new faculty from multiple academic disciplines who have research or teaching interests in one of the following substantive themes: Borders and Social Justice, Technology and the Human Experience, and Climate Change and Environmental Justice. The goal of these themed clusters is to facilitate collaborative research, provide opportunities for interdisciplinary teaching, and build community among faculty and students throughout the University. Candidates are encouraged to interpret these themes broadly and creatively to indicate how their teaching and research in political science and public law may be understood to intersect with one or more of the three themes.

Click Apply Now at the following link to apply: <https://jobs.sandiego.edu/cw/en-us/job/496415/assistant-professor-of-political-science-and-international-relations-in-public-law>

Candidates are asked to submit, at the earliest convenience, but no later than August 21, 2023, the following materials:

Letter of application

Curriculum vitae

Letters of application should explain how the candidate's expertise aligns with the job description of this position as described above, including especially teaching interests and reference to the cluster(s) of interest. The department will review these materials, and candidates will be notified of the department's interest on a rolling basis, but no later than September 8.

At that point, we will invite candidates in whom the department is interested to submit the following further materials:

Teaching Statement and a sample syllabus

Research Statement and a sample of scholarly or creative work

Diversity statement, in which you address A) your values with respect to diversity, equity, and inclusion; B) your experience working with minoritized populations and/or on issues that disproportionately affect diverse populations, and C) your plans related to diversity and inclusion in your teaching and research.

Contact information for three references who will be sent a link to upload letters.

Contact: Questions should be directed to the Search Committee Chair, Dr. Timothy Wyman McCarty, tmccarty@sandiego.edu.

If you have any technical questions or difficulties please contact the Employment Services Team at 619-260-6806, or email us at jobs@sandiego.edu

Special Conditions of Employment:

Effective June 1, 2023, based on CDC guidance, the University strongly encourages all campus members to stay up to date with Influenza and COVID-19 vaccination recommendations. For more regarding information USD's COVID-19 protocols, please visit sandiego.edu/onward.

Background check: Successful completion of a pre-employment background check.

Degree Verification Requirement: Persons offered employment in this position will be required to provide official education transcripts for degree verification purposes.

The successful candidates will:

Hold an advanced degree, preferably a doctorate or other terminal degree. ABD candidates will be considered on a case by case basis. Have demonstrated a commitment to teaching and research, mentoring undergraduates, and fostering a climate of inclusion and diversity.

Please note that most positions will be hired at the Assistant Professor level.

PUBLIC POLICY

University of Texas at El Paso

Rank: Assistant Professor

The University of Texas at El Paso (UTEP) is recruiting a cohort of six tenure-track Assistant Professors who will advance knowledge in areas related to Hispanic health disparities. The positions are part of the NIH-funded Faculty Institutional Recruitment for Sustainable Transformation (FIRST) grant (<https://commonfund.nih.gov/FIRST>) awarded to UTEP. The UTEP FIRST program goals are: (1) fostering sustainable institutional culture change; (2) promoting institutional inclusive excellence by hiring a diverse cohort of new faculty; and (3) supporting faculty development, mentoring, sponsorship, and promotion.

Addressing and eventually eliminating disparities within Hispanic communities requires understanding the intersection of numerous variables at multiple levels of integration. UTEP is committed to expanding interdisciplinary research initiatives that include multiple areas of research foci and entail collaborations across campus to study the health of Hispanic communities. The framework of the UTEP FIRST program is to hire a cohort of faculty whose expertise spans a range of domains. Participating UTEP colleges and schools include:

College of Business College of Education
College of Engineering
College of Health Sciences
College of Liberal Arts
College of Nursing
School of Pharmacy
College of Science

FIRST faculty will receive competitive salary and startup packages, as well as 75% protected research time for the duration of the NIH FIRST award. They will also be provided investigative space in the new UTEP interdisciplinary research building (IDRB), which houses open-concept laboratories and state-of-the-art facilities. FIRST faculty will have the opportunity to interact with senior investigators in a highly collaborative interdisciplinary environment. They will benefit from a support system involving multiple mentorship touchpoints and platforms including one-on-one mentoring with sponsors, advocates, and grant writing coaches. FIRST faculty will be guided by institutional and Faculty Development Core leaders and invited to join a community of practice aligned with their interests. Tailored mentoring will ensure that each faculty member builds a network of support to foster their independent research program in a clear, impactful, and competitive manner to address their individual and cohort needs. Notably, FIRST faculty will engage in a series of integrated activities that will propel them from early-stage investigators to established principal investigators and, ultimately, to emergent institutional leaders.

UTEP is a Carnegie R1 research intensive, Hispanic-serving institution with a prominent focus on addressing health disparities and health equity for the predominately Hispanic demographic living on the United States-Mexico border. The UTEP Border Biomedical Research Center, supported by the National Institutes of Health Research Centers in Minority Institutions (NIH RCMI) Program, has for many years been the focal point for biomedical research at UTEP, and provides support through state-of-the-art core facilities to UTEP biomedical researchers. Importantly, UTEP has aggressively expanded biomedical research capacity in recent years through the development of a new building focused on interdisciplinary research, enhanced outreach to hospital systems in the city and surrounding area, building of a new NIH-funded Imaging and Behavioral Neuroscience Laboratory, development of a Center for Integrative and Translational Research that supports health disparities research initiatives, and collaborations with Texas Tech University Health Sciences Center in El Paso and the University of Texas M.D. Anderson Cancer Center in Houston. UTEP is classified as a Carnegie Community Engaged Institution, which demonstrates the university's commitment to forming sustainable partnerships and collaborations to address the expressed needs of the community, facilitating community based participatory research as well as disseminating findings to vested stakeholders.

Requirements:

Required Qualifications

- 1) Holds a PhD, MD/PhD, PharmD, DrPH, or other doctoral degree at the time of appointment.
- 2) Has not held a prior tenure-track position but may have held a non-tenure track Research Assistant Professor position.
- 3) Satisfies the NIH Early-Stage Investigator criteria (<https://grants.nih.gov/policy/early-stage/index.htm>), including completing their terminal degree within the past 10 years and not having already been the Principal Investigator or Program Director on a substantial NIH independent research award. comparable to an R01.
- 4) Conducts research and scholarly work that contributes to knowledge about understanding and reducing Hispanic health disparities.

Preferred Qualifications

- 1) Evidence of a commitment to provide an excellent education for all students.
- 2) Strong publication record in areas related, or with potential relation, to Hispanic health disparities research.
- 3) Research in an area appropriate for NIH funding.

Application Instructions:

Candidates are encouraged to apply by November 30, 2023 to ensure full consideration. Positions will remain open until filled.

- 1) Cover Letter (1-2 pages): Candidates should describe their suitability for the position by addressing their qualifications, experiences and contributions that elucidate their congruence with the UTEP institutional mission and strategic plan (<https://www.utep.edu/strategic-plan/>). In addition, candidates should indicate their preferred home department(s) and provide contact information for three professional references.
- 2) Curriculum Vitae
- 3) Research Statement (3 pages maximum, not including references): Candidates should summarize previous research experience and include short- and long-term research goals. They also should describe how their research plans are tied to potential NIH R01 and other funding opportunities (<https://grants.nih.gov/grants/funding/r01.htm>).

University of Virginia

Rank: Dean's Postdoctoral Research Associate

Subfield(s): Other, American Government and Politics, Public Policy

Specializations: Education Policy, Race & Ethnic Politics, American Politics

The Frank Batten School of Leadership and Public Policy at the University of Virginia invites applications for a position of Dean's postdoctoral research associate. The school seeks a candidate who has research interests related to the core mission of the school – to generate new knowledge to solve the world's toughest public policy challenges and educate ethical and effective leaders prepared to lead in a diverse and divided world

We seek candidates from a range of disciplines with specific interests in American political institutions, the politics of domestic policy issues, the politics of U.S. education, and/or race and ethnic politics. We welcome candidates who conduct research that has synergies with areas of current strength at the Batten School. Candidates should identify in their application 2 to 3 possible faculty within the school to serve as disciplinary mentors with whom they would be matched during the postdoc.

The postdoctoral appointment is renewed annually with a target length of two years and is expected to begin August 2024. A Ph.D. (conferred no later than July 2024) is required. Appointments involve independent research and/or opportunities for research collaboration with faculty and teaching one class per academic year at the Batten School.

A criterion for selection for this position is evidence of scholarly potential that could lead to a tenure track appointment at a research university. Strong quantitative, communication, and project management skills are also required. Applicants with a track record of publication are preferred. Applicants with demonstrated willingness of and ability to contribute to the wellbeing of populations that are historically underserved are encouraged.

This dean's postdoctoral research associate position was launched in 2020 with the intention of creating a mentored professional development opportunity to train the next generation of scholars for future tenure-track positions. Postdoc research associates in this role will have opportunities for mentorship, access to resources and research infrastructure, opportunities to collaborate with faculty at a truly interdisciplinary school, and connections to a robust network of diverse scholars.

The University of Virginia is an equal opportunity/affirmative action employer. Women, minorities, veterans, and persons with disabilities are encouraged to apply.

To Apply

Apply online at <https://jobs.virginia.edu/jobs/R0053913>.

Internal applicants must apply through their UVA Workday profile. Complete the application, and upload the following Required materials:

- 1-page cover letter identifying 2-3 potential Batten faculty mentors
- Curriculum vitae
- Research statement (max. 3 pages), including a broad introduction to your research, both past successes and future plans, as well as how your research agenda could integrate with current areas of study at the Batten School
- Teaching statement, describing prior teaching experience and/or teaching philosophy and courses you would like to teach
- Contact information for three references (references will only be contacted for those who are short listed)
- A separate statement regarding your potential contributions to any aspect of the UVA mission, which includes:
- an enduring commitment to a vibrant and unique residential learning environment marked by the free and collegial exchange of ideas
- an unwavering support of a collaborative, diverse community bound together by distinctive foundational values of honor, integrity, trust, and respect

- universal dedication to excellence and affordable access.
- o In this statement, please focus upon your work skills and experience. In doing so, you may choose to refer to your personal perspective, but the focus of our consideration is on your potential contributions through skills and experience, rather than personal opinions or beliefs.

** Note: Documents should be combined into fewer than five files, as five is the maximum number that can be uploaded in the CV/Resume box. Incomplete applications that are missing required documents may not be given full consideration.

Review of applications begins October 31, 2023. The position will remain open until filled.

The selected candidate will be required to complete a background check at time of offer per University Policy.

About Jacksonville University and The Jacksonville University Public Policy Institute

The Jacksonville University Public Policy Institute (Institute), established in 2012, is the first Institute of its kind in Florida and offers a Master in Public Policy (MPP) degree, Executive Master in Public Policy (EMPP) degree program, and three dual degree programs: MPP-Marine Science, MPP-MBA, and MPP-Juris Doctor. A Minor in Public Policy is also offered to undergraduate students.

Jacksonville University conferred the first MPP degrees in the history of Florida in 2015. In addition, the nonpartisan Institute provides a neutral gathering place for public policy education, discussion, and debate, hosting over 100 events on campus since 2013, and is actively engaged in the community, including training of elected officials, keynote addresses, and television and radio commentary. The Institute has a nonpartisan 25 member Board of Advisors, made up of extraordinary business, community, and civic leaders. It typically has leading policymakers, including the Governor, US Senators, and leading national policymakers as keynote speakers at board meetings. In addition, the Institute has a nine-member MPP Minority Fellowship Board of Advisors, which awards fellowships and scholarships to qualifying minority applicants. Please visit the Institute's website at www.ju.edu/publicpolicy.

Job Summary

The Public Policy Institute at Jacksonville University invites applications for an Assistant or Associate Professor in Public Policy position, beginning in August 2024. Successful candidates must demonstrate a willingness and ability to teach core, elective, and capstone courses in the MPP Program, and in the undergraduate Minor in Public Policy Program. The range of courses can include graduate courses in public policy, political institutions, statistics and research methods, policy analysis, ethics, microeconomics for public policy, and public finance, as well as public policy courses for undergraduate students.

The candidate must also show an ability to engage in public policy and interact with students, faculty, policy practitioners, and community leaders. The successful candidate will work closely with the Institute Executive Director on Institute governance, the MPP academic program, campus programming, and community engagement. The successful candidate must demonstrate a commitment to building a strong research agenda and publication record, as well as playing a leadership role commensurate with experience. The determination of the appropriate rank for the appointment will depend on the successful candidate's qualifications, background, and experience.

Qualifications

Applicants must have earned a PhD in Public Policy, or a closely related social science discipline, such as political science or economics. The candidate must demonstrate a commitment and promise in teaching and scholarly publishing as well as a willingness to contribute to and help lead the growth of the MPP Program and Public Policy Institute.

Diversity and Inclusion

Jacksonville University, an Equal Opportunity Employer, believes students learn best in a diverse, inclusive community and is therefore committed to academic excellence through diversity in its faculty, staff, and students. We seek candidates who are committed to Jacksonville University's efforts to create a climate that fosters the growth and development of a diverse student body, and we actively welcome applications from members of groups who are historically underrepresented in higher education.

Physical Requirements

Manual dexterity to efficiently operate a computer keyboard and other business machines

Adequate hearing to communicate effectively in person and virtually

Near vision sufficient to read written communications and computer display screens

Stamina to teach up to 24 hours weekly

Important Note

This is not an exhaustive list of all responsibilities, duties, and/or skills required for this position. The University reserves the right to amend and change responsibilities to meet organizational needs.

To Apply

The following application materials are required: (1) a letter of interest, (2) curriculum vitae, (3) copy of transcripts for all degrees earned (unofficial are accepted at this stage—official will be required prior to the start date), (4) a statement regarding teaching philosophy, (5) evidence of effective teaching (syllabi and course evaluations), (6) evidence of scholarly writing, (7) completed JU faculty application, and (8) three letters of recommendation.

The School of Engineering and Applied Science (SEAS) at Princeton University invites applicants for an assistant, associate or full professor in the field of technology and its intersection with society. The position is open to individuals with disciplinary backgrounds in the broadly defined area of understanding and improving the relationship between technology and society. Outstanding candidates in all areas within this intersection will be considered. The successful candidate will be appointed in an academic department in SEAS, and will also be affiliated with Princeton's Center for Information Technology Policy (CITP).

Interested candidates should submit a letter of interest, a curriculum vita, a research statement, and a teaching statement. The research statement should summarize research accomplishments and future plans, clearly identifying the public policy and/or societal relevance of the candidate's work. Please provide contact information for three references. For junior candidates, referees will be contacted directly by email with instructions for submitting a confidential recommendation on your behalf. Interested candidates are encouraged to apply by December 1, 2023. Applications will be reviewed on a rolling basis until the position is filled.

We at the School of Engineering and Applied Science, as well as the Center for Information Technology Policy, believe that it is vital to cultivate an environment that embraces and promotes diversity, equity and inclusion - fundamental to the success of our education and research mission. This commitment to diversity and excellence in education and research informs our efforts in recruitment and hiring as we actively seek faculty members of exceptional ability who will create a climate that embraces excellence and diversity, with a strong commitment to teaching, mentoring, and research.

The America in the World Consortium at Duke University, Johns Hopkins SAIS, the University of Texas at Austin, and the University of Florida seeks applications from current Ph.D. students for its Postdoctoral Fellowship Program.

The America in the World Consortium (AWC) is a dynamic partnership of universities seeking to create a more vibrant debate among policy-interested scholars about America's role in the world. We are committed to preparing the next generation to confront geopolitical challenges and advance American national interests abroad. AWC prioritizes an intellectually diverse research community and supports fellows across a variety of disciplines. AWC seeks Postdoctoral Fellows for in-residence positions beginning in August 2024. Applicants will be considered for up to six (6) fellowship positions for up to two (2) years in residence at one of the four partner institutions:

- Duke University, Program in American Grand Strategy (AGS)
- Johns Hopkins University, Henry A. Kissinger Center for Global Affairs at SAIS
- University of Texas at Austin, Clements Center for National Security
- University of Florida, Alexander Hamilton Center for Classical and Civic Education

Applicants from all disciplines whose research bears directly on American grand strategy, broadly defined, are welcome to apply. However, preference will be given to applicants with a doctorate in history, political science, public policy, classics, and political philosophy whose research has a strong connection to policy. Successful applicants will be able to spend the substantial portion of their time working on their own research and writing projects, while taking advantage of the many academic resources available at their institution. Additionally, Fellows will be required to play an active role in the host institution's programs and activities. Additional responsibilities will be by mutual agreement between the Fellow and the AWC directors. For example, in some cases, Fellows will have the opportunity to teach an undergraduate course.

Fellows accepted to the program will be offered a competitive stipend of $72,000, access to benefits and full use of campus facilities, in addition to other university-specific benefits. The fellowship position will provide funding for a minimum of 12 months and up to 24 months. Fellows will also be given a research fund of $7,500 to cover relocation expenses and legitimate research-related expenses, as needed.

Applicants are required to have received a Ph.D. by August 1, 2024, in a relevant field, such as history, political science, public policy, classics, or political philosophy. Applicants who have received a Ph.D. in language studies, area studies, or other related fields may be considered if their research explicitly engages U.S. foreign policy.

Applications are due no later than Friday, January 5, 2024 (11:59 p.m. EST).

Applicants will need to submit a Cover Letter. In the Cover Letter, stipulate which Consortium school or schools the candidate would wish to reside at during the fellowship.

Applicants are required to submit a C.V., graduate school transcript, and the names of 3 referees who would write a letter of recommendation if asked by the review committee.

Applicants are also required to submit an article or writing sample representing an existing contribution to the field of American grand strategy, broadly defined.

New College of Florida

Rank: American Political Institutions, focusing on Legislative Politics & Public Policy (tenure-track)

New College of Florida invites applications for a tenure-track position in American Political Institutions with a substantive focus in Legislative Politics and Public Policy. Candidates should have a Ph.D. in Political Science, teaching experience, career interest in liberal arts teaching, and a vibrant research agenda. In addition to coursework in their area of expertise, the candidate will be expected to join in the rotation(s) of one or more of the following disciplinary service courses: American Government and Civics, Quantitative Political Analysis I, or Research Design (multiple approaches and methods). The ability to teach American Political Development and/or State Politics would be a plus. We expect that the candidate hired would be able to guide both qualitative and quantitative undergraduate research. The candidate must have completed the Ph.D. by the start of employment in August 2024.

New College, the nationally recognized honors college of the State University System of Florida, is a small, highly selective, innovative liberal arts institution. Students, with the help of faculty sponsors, plan their own academic programs through a series of semester contracts, and receive narrative evaluations in lieu of grades. Undergraduate research has a central role in the curriculum, and a senior thesis or project is required of all students. The teaching load is two courses per semester plus sponsoring individual and group tutorials. Faculty members also provide academic advising, supervise independent study projects, sponsor senior theses, and serve on baccalaureate committees. Professors are expected to maintain a program of research or creative work. We are particularly interested in candidates with a commitment to innovative undergraduate liberal arts teaching.

Interested candidates should apply online at <http://www.ncf.edu/employment> and upload the following: a cover letter; c.v.; statements of teaching and research interests; syllabi; teaching evaluations; one writing sample (article or chapter length); and unofficial graduate transcript(s). In addition, please identify three scholars to write letters of recommendation (they will receive a request through the system). According to Florida law, applications and meetings regarding applications are open to the public upon request. For questions about the application process or accommodations, please contact Ms. Kristi Fecteau at kfecteau@ncf.edu.

Review of applications will begin on November 6, 2023 and continue until the position is filled.

New College of Florida, an Equal Opportunity Employer, complies with all federal, state, and Florida Board of Governors regulations. In accordance with state law, all employees are subject to a background check at the time of hiring.

The University of Texas at Austin

Rank: Postdoctoral Fellowship

Subfield(s): International Relations, Public Policy, Political Theory

The Clements Center for National Security at the University of Texas at Austin seeks applications from recent PhD recipients for its Postdoctoral Fellowship Program.

Consistent with the Clements Center's emphasis on history, strategy, and statecraft, applicants from all disciplines whose research bears directly on foreign and defense policy, intelligence, or international security are welcome to apply. While our preference tends to be the discipline of history, or research with a strong historical component, we highly encourage applications from PhD recipients in political science, political philosophy, public policy, language studies, area studies, and classics whose research contributes to traditional political and military history. Successful applicants will be able to spend the substantial portion of their time working on their own research and writing projects, while taking advantage of the many academic resources available at the University of Texas-Austin. Additionally, Fellows will be required to play an active role in the Clements Center's programs and activities; any specific responsibilities will be by mutual agreement between the Fellow and the Clements Center leadership. Fellows accepted to the program will be offered a competitive stipend, full use of UT facilities, and office space at the Clements Center. In some cases Fellows will be welcome to teach a course at the University of Texas. Each appointment is for one year, and in exceptional cases may be considered for renewal for a second year.

Applications open on October 16, 2023. Applicants should submit a current c.v., cover letter, graduate school transcripts, a brief (no more than two-page, single-spaced) statement of proposed research, and three letters of recommendation. Applicants whose research addresses the Indo-Pacific region's increasing role in U.S. foreign policy and security should indicate whether they want to be considered for a formal affiliation at the Clements-Strauss Asia-Policy Program. Applications are due no later than January 26, 2024. Note that applicants are required to have received their doctorate by August 2024, the date the Postdoctoral Fellowship will commence. Please direct any questions to Emily Burch, the Clements Center's Administrative Program Coordinator, at emily.burch@austin.utexas.edu.

Applications are due by Friday, 26 January, 2024 at midnight EST.

through their research, and/or service, to the diversity and excellence of the academic community.

The associate will receive mentorship and training from a faculty sponsor, primarily through an active research apprenticeship and collaboration. In addition, they will be part of the broader AIB community including faculty and students at Brown University, visiting faculty and students, and other postdoctoral research associates.

Qualifications

Candidates should have a PhD in Education, Economics, Sociology, Political Science, Public Policy, or a related field by the beginning of the postdoctoral appointment. Candidates should have strong substantive expertise in PK-16 education policy and strong quantitative and/or mixed methods research skills. Applications with a record of successful publication and with project management skills are preferred, as are those with details about methodological skills and expertise and the substantive domains of a candidate's work.

Application Instructions

Review of applications will begin December 1, 2023. Applications received by December 1, 2023 will be considered preferentially, but the search will remain open until filled.

To be considered for this position please submit a letter of interest, curriculum vitae, two examples of scholarly work, and arrange to have three confidential letters of recommendation submitted via Interfolio. ### Stanford University

Rank: Postdoctoral Fellow

Subfield(s): Comparative Politics, International Relations, Public Policy

The King Center Postdoctoral Fellows Program offers fellowships to outstanding new PhD recipients who have a demonstrated ability to generate high-quality, policy-relevant research on critical issues related to global development.

We invite applications for multidisciplinary postdoctoral fellowships to start summer/fall 2024 for a one- or two-year appointment. The King Center's Postdoctoral Fellows Program is intended for promising new PhD recipients—coming from fields such as computer science, earth systems science, economics, engineering, health policy, political science, and sociology—to pursue policy-relevant research on topics related to international development and poverty alleviation. Postdoctoral Fellows should expect to be active members of the community of development researchers at Stanford University.

The King Center's Postdoctoral Fellows Program particularly encourages applications from women and minority PhD recipients and from scholars from low- and middle-income countries, as well as from others whose backgrounds and experience would contribute to the diversity (broadly defined) of the program.

The King Center provides a competitive fellowship stipend, plus support for travel and research expenses.

For full consideration, candidates should submit all materials by December 3, 2023. For more details and the application, please visit: <https://kingcenter.stanford.edu/opportunities/prospective-postdoctoral-fellows>.

University of South Carolina

Rank: Assistant Professor of Public Administration or Public Policy

The Department of Political Science at the University of South Carolina seeks applications for a nine month, full-time, tenure-track Assistant Professor position in Public Administration or Public Policy, to begin August 16, 2024. We seek candidates with well-conceived, theoretically informed research agendas who have published in or demonstrate the promise of publishing in leading outlets. The position is open with regard to substantive specialization. Successful candidates will be able to teach substantive courses in public administration or public policy, especially in our Master of Public Administration Program. A Ph.D. in political science, public administration, or closely related field of study is required by the start date of appointment.

From the Upstate to the Lowcountry, the University of South Carolina system is transforming the lives of South Carolinians through the impact of our eight institutions and 20 locations throughout the state. More than 50,000 students are enrolled at one of eight institutions, including the research campus in Columbia and comprehensive four-year universities in Aiken, Upstate and Beaufort. In addition, our Palmetto College campuses in Salkehatchie, Union, Lancaster, and Sumter enable students to earn associate or bachelor's degrees through a combination of in-person, online or blended learning. All of our system institutions place strong emphasis on service — helping to build healthier, more educated communities in South Carolina and beyond.

At the University of South Carolina, we strive to cultivate an inclusive environment that is open, welcoming, and supportive of individuals of all backgrounds. We recognize diversity in our workforce is essential to providing academic excellence and critical to our sustainability. The University is committed to eliminating barriers created by institutional discrimination through accountability and continuous process improvement. We celebrate the diverse voices, perspectives, and experiences of our employees.

The University of South Carolina is an affirmative action, equal opportunity employer. Minorities and women are encouraged to apply. The University of South Carolina does not discriminate in educational or employment opportunities on the basis of race, sex, gender, gender identity, transgender status, age, color, religion, national origin, disability, sexual orientation, genetics, protected veteran status, pregnancy, childbirth or related medical conditions.

How to Apply

Applicants must submit a cover letter; curriculum vitae; two writing samples that demonstrate a significant ongoing research agenda; statements of research and teaching interests; graduate transcript; contact information (including telephone number and email address) for three references; and a diversity statement that articulates the candidate's commitment and capacity to contribute to diversity, equity, and inclusion through research, teaching, mentoring, outreach, and engagement. References will be contacted directly for letters of recommendation (which must be submitted on appropriate letterhead). The position will remain open until filled, and the search committee will begin reviewing applications on October 27, 2023. The SNF Agora Institute at Johns Hopkins University invites sociologists and political scientists to apply for its SNF Agora Academy Postdoctoral Fellowship.

To apply go to <https://apply.interfolio.com/134071>

The SNF Agora Institute, an academic and public forum, is dedicated to strengthening global democracy through civic engagement and informed, inclusive dialogue.

The postdoctoral program is a one-year program, with the opportunity for a two-year fellowship, intended to support recent doctoral degree recipients whose scholarship engages with questions and topics directly related to the institute's mission. The SNF Agora Academy seeks two fellows who would engage actively with and benefit from a multidisciplinary scholarly community that enables them to extend their research and public engagement in new directions, with the active mentorship of SNF Agora Institute faculty.

The fellows will contribute actively to the academic mission of institute. They will carry out their own research, participate in seminars, and be full members of the intellectual community. As part of their commitment to the institute, they are expected to participate actively in a research/practice project of the institute, reside in the Baltimore-DC area, and regularly engage in institute activities, including weekly Tuesday and Thursday seminars.

One of the central goals of the SNF Agora Institute is to foster conversations and collaboration that don't happen elsewhere. The fellows must have a strong academic record and be on a trajectory to contribute to key disciplinary conversations, but also be excited about being part of a community that is not simply made up of academics, whether that helps them integrate other perspectives into their scholarship, employs their scholarship to help strengthen democracy in tangible ways, or both. We strongly encourage applicants to think creatively about how their research interacts with scholars in other disciplines and efforts to strengthen democracy in the world and, thus, support the SNF Agora mission. Getting your work into the public domain is not the same as having impact. How do you hope to have impact? Are there civic and political entities, including movements, parties, governmental organizations, media, etc. that you could partner with? Do you have ideas that could contribute to public debates around democracy as well as academic ones? This work should be in addition to and not a replacement for a strong academic trajectory.

Compensation

Fellows will be appointed initially for a one-year term, and will have the opportunity to extend their fellowship for a second academic year. They will receive a stipend of $70,000, health insurance, and a modest moving and research budget.

The fellowship start date is July 01, 2024.

Qualifications

The fellows must have a strong academic record and be on a trajectory to contribute to key disciplinary conversations, but also be excited about being part of a community that is not simply made up of academics, whether that helps them integrate other perspectives into their scholarship, employs their scholarship to help strengthen democracy in tangible ways, or both.

Latin American National Security and Foreign Policy (Assistant Professor or Professor of Practice)

The University of Texas at Austin: LBJ School of Public Affairs

Location: Austin, TX

Open Date: Sep 01, 2023

Description

Latin American National Security and Foreign Policy (Assistant Professor or Professor of Practice)

The Lyndon B. Johnson School of Public Affairs (LBJ School) at the University of Texas at Austin invite applications for a Professor of Practice or a tenure-track Assistant Professor of Latin American National Security and Foreign Policy to begin in Fall of academic year 2024-25 (with an August 2024 start date). This faculty position will be housed at the LBJ School with commitments to cross-list elective courses and collaborate with the Teresa Lozano Long Institute of Latin American Studies (LLILAS).

The appointee's research may focus on:

- Intelligence sharing: analyzing the mechanisms and effectiveness of intelligence sharing between Latin American countries, as well as with external partners, such as the United States and Europe.
- Drug trafficking: studying the dynamics of drug trafficking in the region, including the role of transnational criminal organizations, drug cartels, and local criminal networks.
- Arms trafficking: examining the flow of arms across national borders in Latin America, including the sources of illicit arms, the actors involved in arms trafficking, and the impacts on regional security.
- Cybersecurity: analyzing the emerging threats to cybersecurity in Latin America, including the rise of cybercrime and cyber espionage, and the capacity of states to respond to these threats.
- Transnational organized crime: exploring the broader phenomenon of transnational organized crime in Latin America, including human trafficking, money laundering, and corruption.
- Border security: studying the policies and practices of border security in Latin America, including the construction of physical barriers, the use of surveillance technologies, and the management of migration flows.

Political violence: studying the causes, dynamics, and impacts of political violence, including terrorism, civil wars, and human rights abuses.

- Foreign policy: examining the role of Latin American countries in international relations, including issues such as regional integration, relations with the United States, and South-South cooperation.

The appointee will teach core courses either in the master's program or the new undergraduate program as well as electives in the areas of specialization described above. The appointee's research will have direct relevance to public policy. The appointee may conduct and publish scholarly research and seek grant opportunities in support of their research and/or teaching activities. In the case of a Professor of Practice position, the appointee will be expected to actively engage in policy development and teaching. The appointee will participate in faculty governance in the LBJ School.

One of the nation's top ten programs in public affairs, the LBJ School comprises more than 40 faculty members and approximately 300 graduate students, and offers multi-disciplinary curricula leading to the degrees of Master of Public Affairs, Master of Global Policy Studies, and Ph.D. in Public Policy. In its 75-year history, LLILAS is among the largest Latin American studies centers in the US, with an academic unit with several undergraduate and graduate degrees and an interdisciplinary research and outreach center. LLILAS and the LBJ School have had a longstanding relationship, which includes teaching and research initiatives in areas such as public health, environmental and migratory policy, and security; faculty-led research projects, student opportunities, scholarly programming, and public outreach. LLILAS and the LBJ School offer an MA dual degree. This degree responds to an increased need in both public and private sectors for policy specialists, who have a global perspective on public affairs and related fields, and a desire to specialize on Latin America and US-Latin American relations.

Qualifications:

A master's degree in a related field is required for a Professor of Practice position. For a tenure-track Assistant Professor, a PhD is required. ABD candidates will be considered if the doctoral degree will be complete by the time of employment. Experience in college teaching and evidence of scholarship or scholarly potential is preferred.

Application Instructions:

Interested candidates can submit their cover letter, CV, statement of teaching, three years of teaching evaluations (or fewer if unavailable), three letters of reference, and one article-length writing sample via <https://apptrkr.com/4562245>. ## Purdue University

Rank: Assistant Professor, Field Open - AI

Subfield(s): Open, Public Policy, Public Administration

Specializations: Science & Technology, Regulatory Policy, Research Methods

Assistant Professor of Political Science

Job Summary

Purdue University's Department of Political Science seeks an assistant professor (tenure track), with research interests in artificial intelligence, broadly construed, that connects to any field related to political science, public policy, or public administration.

The scholar holding this position will conduct research, teach undergraduate and graduate courses in their area(s) of interest, and contribute to growing department strengths in technology politics, policy, and governance. The individual holding this position will have the opportunity to participate in departmental, college, and university research and educational initiatives around AI, including the university-level Institute for Physical AI (IPAI), and interdisciplinary and department research labs housed in Political Science and the College of Liberal Arts.

This position will also include teaching in our innovative, nationally recognized Cornerstone Integrated Liberal Arts Program that educates students across the university. This position contributes strength to the cross-college initiative, Advanced Methods at Purdue, a program designed to cultivate methodological expertise and collaborative opportunities.

Qualifications

The candidate must have completed all requirements for a Ph.D. in political science, public policy, or a closely related field prior to the start date of the position. This position requires strong communication skills, the ability to publish high-quality peer-reviewed research, and evidence of preparation for quality instruction. Candidates should demonstrate strong research methods skills, with strengths in quantitative, computational, and/or mixed methods research.

About Purdue University

For the third consecutive year, the College of Liberal Arts at Purdue University is embarking on multiple hires with a focus on artificial intelligence (AI) to begin in Fall 2024. Representing a variety of disciplines in the College, this cohort of scholars will expand our capacity to explore the implications of developing AI across our academic domains and advance and contribute to research and educational initiatives surrounding AI in new and important ways.

Purdue University is a member of the AAU and a land grant university with enrollment of over 52,000 students. The campus is located in West Lafayette, Indiana, an area with a favorable cost of living and a vibrant community. Purdue University offers high-quality research and computing facilities with many opportunities for collaboration in Centers and Institutes across campus and in the broader region. Purdue University is building a world-leading program in AI, including a new Institute for Physical Artificial Intelligence. Political Science offers PhD, MA, and BA degrees, and is home to several interdisciplinary certificates and/or minors. It houses the Computational Social Science Lab, Governance and Responsible AI Lab (GRAIL) and the International Politics and Responsible Tech (iPART) Lab. Faculty in Political Science are actively involved with many interdisciplinary programs and centers on campus, including the JMK Social Science Research Lab, Purdue Policy Research Institute, the Center for C-SPAN Scholarship and Engagement, and Purdue's Applied Research Institute.

Wilson College Endowed Chair in Leadership and Civic Studies
McMaster University

Committed to delivering on its promise of Truth and Reconciliation, McMaster University recognizes and acknowledges that it is located on the traditional territories of the Haudenosaunee and Mississauga Nations, and within the lands protected by the Dish with One Spoon wampum agreement.

McMaster University seeks outstanding candidates for the prestigious Wilson College Endowed Chair in Leadership and Civic Studies.

The Wilson College Endowed Chair in Leadership and Civic Studies (hereafter, “the Chair”) will be affiliated with the Wilson College of Leadership and Civic Engagement, a newly formed collaborative academic unit between the Faculty of Humanities and the Faculty of Social Sciences at McMaster University. The Chairholder will be appointed for an initial term of five years, with the possibility of reappointment to a second five-year term. The Chairholder’s academic appointment will be a full-time tenured position at the rank of associate or full professor in an appropriate department in McMaster’s Faculty of Humanities or Faculty of Social Sciences. The appointment is expected to commence July 1, 2024.

The successful candidate will have an exceptional record of scholarly and educational contributions, and a desire to engage with external stakeholders in the public sector, the private sector, and the community and non-profit sector. We seek someone who can be appointed at the rank of Professor at the time of appointment or can reasonably be expected to achieve the rank of Professor within 1-2 years of appointment; therefore, applicants must have substantial experience at the Associate Professor level (or equivalent). Applicants must have a research program and scholarly contributions that are grounded solidly in the Canadian context, and/or Canada’s role internationally. Here research in the Canadian context is understood to include scholarship and knowledge keeping by and about Indigenous peoples of Turtle Island. They will have specialized training in a relevant discipline or field in the Humanities or Social Sciences (Humanities and Social Science departments at McMaster include Anthropology, English and Cultural Studies; Communication Studies and Media Arts; Economics; French; Greek and Roman Studies; Health, Aging & Society; History; Indigenous Studies; Labour Studies; Linguistics; Philosophy; Political Science; Society, Culture and Religion; Sociology; the School of the Arts; and the School of Social Work). A record of interdisciplinary engagement is an asset. The Chair will be expected to contribute significantly to scholarship in the interdisciplinary area of Leadership and Civic Studies, to teach and supervise students from both Wilson College and the Chair’s home department, to engage with external audiences, to assist in the development of Wilson College and in building an equitable and diverse community of Wilson College scholars and students, and to contribute more generally to McMaster’s reputation for research and teaching excellence.

The Wilson College of Leadership and Civic Engagement under development at McMaster University trains future leaders to foster and sustain a civic culture for Canada that engages all citizens; it emphasizes the importance of collaboration between McMaster’s academic community and local, national, regional, and global leaders in building a stronger Canada and sustainable, resilient communities; and it integrates education, research, practice and public engagement to advance our understanding of how to create a civic culture for a flourishing Canada and a sustainable world.

The College’s innovative Leadership and Civic Studies undergraduate degree provides students with interdisciplinary theoretical and practical knowledge on leadership and civic engagement. The College nurtures future changemakers who will work across Canada and beyond in public service, the private sector, and civil society – to shape policy and public discourse for the greater good.

Located in the vibrant city of Hamilton, Ontario, McMaster University is dedicated to advancing human and societal health and well-being locally and globally, by promoting inclusive mindsets, collaborative learning, and innovative thinking. Ranked among the top 100 universities globally for its cutting-edge research and world-class teaching and learning, McMaster works across disciplines to find creative solutions to complex problems, helping to improve people’s lives and build a brighter future for all.

Princeton University

Rank: Center for Information Technology Policy Fellows Program

The Center for Information Technology Policy (CITP) at Princeton University is a nexus of expertise in technology, engineering, public policy, and the social sciences. Our researchers work to better understand and improve the relationship between technology and society.

The CITP Fellows Program is a competitive in-residence program that supports scholars and practitioners in research and policy work tied to the Center's mission. CITP current research falls into the following three areas: Platforms and Digital Infrastructure; Data Science, AI and Society; and Privacy and Security. Fellows accepted into this program conduct research with members of the Center's community — including faculty, scholars, and other fellows — across disciplines, and engage in our public programs, such as workshops and conferences.

We hire new fellows each year for the following three tracks:

- Postdoctoral track: for people who recently received a Ph.D.
- Visiting professional track: for academics and professionals (e.g., lawyers, journalists, technologists, former government officials, etc.)
- Microsoft Visiting Professor track: for academics

Applicants may apply for more than one track, and applications can be found here on the Princeton University hiring page: <https://puwebp.princeton.edu/AcadHire/apply/index.xhtml>. Click on the drop-down box that says, "Filter By Academic Unit" and click on "Center for Information Technology Policy" for the list of openings.

Completed applications are due by Thursday, December 15, 2022 at 11:59 p.m. EST. This is the date that the CITP committee will begin reviewing applications. Applications that come in after that date will only be considered if a position has not already been filled.

Contact information for three references must be included in the application materials. References will only be contacted if the candidate becomes a finalist.

Saint Lawrence University

Rank: Environmental Public Policy

The Government Department at St. Lawrence University invites applications for a Tenure Track Assistant Professor position in Environmental Public Policy. The successful candidate will be prepared to teach courses in foundations of public policy, introductory courses in American politics, as well as other advanced courses in Environmental politics. Preference will be given to applicants who are able to lead courses with experiential learning components including connections with existing facilities and programs such as the Adirondack semester or the sustainability program.

The position begins August 2024, and the teaching load is three courses per semester. The successful candidate will join a department of 10 full-time faculty members who are passionate about supporting our liberal arts curriculum through diverse and inclusive pedagogies and scholarly agendas. Our supportive department colleagues regularly provide feedback and mentoring for new faculty to foster pedagogical and professional development. We encourage applications from candidates who identify with groups that are historically underrepresented in the academy.

Interested candidates should submit a cover letter indicating teaching and research interests, curriculum vitae, graduate school transcript, writing sample, and evidence of teaching effectiveness. Applicants should also submit a separate document with a statement indicating how they can contribute in tangible ways to St. Lawrence University's commitment to cultivating a diverse and inclusive community and classrooms. These documents can be uploaded in the "Applicant Documents" section of your online application.

Additionally, three confidential references are required [the required information input in the reference contact information section of your application will be utilized to send a system-derived email requesting a recommendation letter from each reference].

Review of applications will begin on October 23, 2023. Applications submitted after this date will be reviewed as needed. Questions about the position may be sent to Dr. Ronnie Olesker, rolesker@stlawu.edu, department and search chair.

University of Texas, Austin

Rank: Cyber Risks and Policy Strategy for National Security (Assistant Professor or Professor of Practice)

Cyber Risks and Policy Strategy for National Security (Assistant Professor or Professor of Practice)

College/School/Unit: LBJ School of Public Affairs

Department:

Posted: Sep 19, 2023

Apply By: Open until filled

Description

The University of Texas at Austin is one of the nation's preeminent academic centers for cybersecurity research and policy engagement, exemplified by relevant course offerings across campus and the work of the Robert Strauss Center for International Security and Law. The Lyndon B. Johnson School of Public Affairs now seeks a dynamic scholar or practitioner to contribute to its curricular offerings on cybersecurity and the policy-relevant activities of the Strauss Center.

The LBJ School invites applications for a Professor of Practice or a tenure-track Assistant Professor of Cyber Risks and Policy Strategy for National Security to begin in Fall of academic year 2024-25 (with an August 2024 start date). This faculty position will be housed at the LBJ School while serving as a faculty affiliate of the Robert Strauss Center for International Security and Law.

The appointee's research on cyber risks and policy strategy for national security may focus on the following areas:

1. Cyber Threat Landscape Analysis:

- Conduct research to analyze the evolving cyber threat landscape, including emerging technologies and tactics used by cyber adversaries.
- Study the motivations and capabilities of state and non-state actors engaged in cyber attacks against national security interests.

2. Critical Infrastructure Protection:

- Research strategies to safeguard critical infrastructure sectors (energy, transportation, healthcare, etc.) from cyber attacks that could have severe national security implications.
- Develop policies to enhance the resilience and redundancy of critical systems against cyber threats.

3. Cybersecurity Policy and Regulation:

- Examine the development and effectiveness of cybersecurity policies, regulations, and frameworks at the national and international levels.
- Explore the challenges of harmonizing cybersecurity practices across different sectors and nations.

4. Cyber Espionage and Information Warfare:

- Study cyber espionage tactics employed by nation-states and their impact on national security.
- Investigate information warfare techniques, including cyber-enabled disinformation campaigns, and their influence on geopolitical dynamics.

5. Attribution and Deterrence:

- Research methods for attributing cyber attacks to specific actors and the challenges associated with accurate attribution.
- Develop strategies for deterring cyber attacks through diplomatic, economic, and technological means.

6. Cybersecurity Strategy and Resilience:

- Explore the development of comprehensive national cybersecurity strategies that integrate government agencies, private sector, and academia.
- Investigate strategies to enhance the resilience of national systems against cyber attacks and rapid recovery post-attack.

7. International Cyber Norms and Agreements:

- Study the negotiation and implementation of international agreements, norms, and treaties related to cyber behavior and conflict in the context of national security.
- Examine challenges in enforcing and verifying compliance with cyber norms.

8. Cybersecurity Education and Workforce Development:

- Contribute to the development of educational programs to train the next generation of cyber professionals with a focus on national security concerns.
- Research effective methods for addressing the shortage of skilled cybersecurity workforce in the national security sector and participate in efforts to address the shortage.

9. Ethical and Legal Implications of Cyber Operations:

- Investigate the ethical considerations surrounding offensive and defensive cyber operations conducted by governments.
- Analyze the legal frameworks governing cyber activities, including issues of sovereignty, jurisdiction, and proportionality.

10. Emerging Technologies and National Security:

- Explore the impact of emerging technologies such as artificial intelligence, quantum computing, semiconductors, and the Internet of Things on national security and cyber risks.

Assess the potential vulnerabilities and opportunities presented by these technologies.

- Analyze the strategic competition for leadership in and access to critical emerging technologies.

Evaluate the range of potential policy responses available to the U.S. government in this competition.

11. Incident Response and Crisis Management:

- Research best practices for incident response and crisis management in the aftermath of significant cyber incidents affecting national security.
- Develop strategies for effective coordination among various stakeholders during a cyber crisis.

Strong candidates will also possess one or more of the following: senior-level experience working in or advising the U.S. government on these issues; knowledge of these issues in the context of one or more regions of importance for U.S. national-security strategy (Russia, Asia or the Middle East); and experience producing policy-relevant research designed to inform policymakers about these challenges.

The appointee will teach core courses either in the master's program or the new undergraduate program as well as electives in the areas of specialization described above. The appointee's research will have direct relevance to public policy. The appointee will conduct and publish scholarly research and seek grant opportunities in support of their research and/or teaching activities. The appointee will participate fully in faculty governance in the LBJ School.

As a faculty affiliate of the Robert Strauss Center for International Security and Law, the appointee will also be expected to mentor students who aspire to careers in these fields; brief and otherwise inform U.S. and allied policymakers; participate in other relevant Strauss Center programs on and off campus; and otherwise participate fully in the intellectual life of the Strauss Center.

One of the nation's top ten programs in public affairs, the LBJ School comprises more than 40 faculty members and approximately 300 graduate students, and offers multi-disciplinary curricula leading to the degrees of Master of Public Affairs, Master of Global Policy Studies, and Ph.D. in Public Policy. The Robert Strauss Center for International Security and Law integrates expertise from across the University of Texas at Austin, as well as from the private and public sectors, in pursuit of practical solutions to emerging national and international challenges. Toward that end, the Strauss Center sponsors a wide array of research programs and educational initiatives. These include nationally recognized programs on National Security Law, Cybersecurity, Technology and Global Affairs, the U.S.-Mexico Border, U.S. policy toward Asia, and Space Policy. The Strauss Center also offers numerous fellowship and scholarship programs for UT-Austin students with an interest in international security.

Qualifications

A master's degree in a related field is required for a Professor of Practice position. For a tenure-track Assistant Professor, a PhD is required. ABD candidates will be considered if the doctoral degree will be complete by the time of employment. Experience in college teaching and evidence of scholarship or scholarly potential is preferred.

Application Instructions

Interested candidates can submit their cover letter, CV, statement of teaching, three years of teaching evaluations (or fewer if unavailable), three letters of reference, and one article-length writing sample via Interfolio. Questions about the position can be directed to David Eaton at eaton@austin.utexas.edu. Questions about the application can be directed to Shannon LaFevers at slafevers@austin.utexas.edu

The search committee will begin considering applications December 15th. The position will remain open until filled.

Equal Employment Opportunity Statement

The University of Texas at Austin, as an equal opportunity/affirmative action employer, complies with all applicable federal and state laws regarding nondiscrimination and affirmative action. The University is committed to a policy of equal opportunity for all persons and does not discriminate on the basis of race, color, national origin, age, marital status, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, gender expression, disability, religion, or veteran status in employment, educational programs and activities, and admissions.

Harvard Kennedy School of Government

Rank: Democracy Postdoctoral Fellow

*About the Fellowship

The Ash Center for Democratic Governance and Innovation invites postdoctoral students who will be completing or will have recently completed a Ph.D. to apply for its Postdoctoral Democracy Fellowship. The Democracy Fellowships aim to support postdoctoral scholars whose research illuminates aspects of democratic governance in ways that are innovative and push the boundaries of their academic disciplines, whether political theory and philosophy, political science, sociology, law, or history. Furthermore, their research should have the potential for normative or practical relevance regarding urgent substantive policy or social problems related to democratic governance.

Postdoctoral Fellows join the Ash Center's academic community and participate in the Democracy Fellows weekly seminar. The fellowship then provides time and space for the fellows to work on preparing either a book manuscript based on their dissertation or related academic publications.

*Eligibility

Preference will be given to postdoctoral scholars whose research interests coincide with the Ash Center's current focus on innovations in public participation and political participation in democracies or non-democracies. Eligible applicants will be completing or will have just recently completed dissertations—within the previous three years—in the fields of political theory, political philosophy, political science, sociology, law, or history. The duration of the fellowship is two academic years.

The Ash Center is a global and values-driven community that believes diverse perspectives are paramount to better understanding and addressing real-world problems. In fostering an environment of rigor, curiosity, and integrity, we value and respect different opinions, lived experiences, and diverse research and policy areas and approaches. We actively seek candidates who share our commitment and values.

*Benefits

Fellows will receive a stipend of $65,000 annually, shared office space at the Ash Center, and access to Harvard's libraries and online library services. The fellowship appointment period is August 1st through July 31st of the second year.

SUNY, Geneseo

Rank: Assistant Professor of Political Science and International Relations

Subfield(s): Public Administration, Public Policy, American Government and Politics

Specializations: Health Care, Environmental Policy, Women & Politics

The Department of Political Science & International Relations at the State University of New York (SUNY) at Geneseo seeks applications for a tenure-track faculty position in Public Administration and Policy, with a focus in American Politics, to begin August, 2024. We seek applicants from a variety of fields within Public Administration and Public Policy, with possible areas of expertise including, but not limited to, Bureaucratic Politics, Nonprofits, Education, the Environment, Health Care, Income Inequality, or Social Welfare Policy. We seek a candidate that complements but is distinctive from our existing areas of expertise in American politics (American political institutions and campaigns and elections).

We are a highly collegial department of seven full-time faculty members who are committed to excellence in undergraduate teaching, liberal arts education, and diversity, equity, and inclusion. We offer two majors (Political Science and International Relations), contribute to several interdisciplinary programs, and have access to substantial resources to support research. More information about our department is available at https://www.geneseo.edu/political\_science.

Duties of the position include:

- Teaching 3 courses per semester (3-3 load) in public administration and policy, including PLSC 374 – Public Administration and PLSC 414 – American Public Policy, and other courses in American politics and the candidate's area of expertise.

- Coordinating the Public Administration minor and administering Geneseo's joint 5-year BA/MPA program with the University of Albany.

- Supervising student internships and regularly teaching the internship course PLSC 495 – Political Affairs and Legal Affairs Internships as part of the 3-3 course load.

- Pursuing a program of scholarly research leading to publication in peer-reviewed outlets.

- Providing academic advising to political science majors.

- Mentoring and supervising undergraduate research and other projects.

- Contributing to governance and engaging in service to the department, the college, and the discipline.

- There are also opportunities to contribute to other interdisciplinary programs, including Women's and Gender Studies, Black Studies, Sustainability Studies, Sociomedical Sciences, Legal Studies, and Urban Studies.

Our priorities are teaching excellence and creating a sense of belonging for all students. A commitment to working effectively with students from diverse backgrounds is essential. We also highly value collegiality, experience with integrative learning, and a willingness to contribute to a holistic and broadly-conceived education in political science as a part of a liberal arts curriculum. The department will support the process for a successful candidate to acquire an H1-B visa as needed for international candidates or non-citizens.

To learn more about our department visit: https://www.geneseo.edu/political\_science.

Minimum Qualifications:

- Ph.D. in Political Science or related field by the time of appointment.
- Expertise in Public Policy and Public Administration.
- Prior experience or demonstrated potential in teaching courses in Public Administration and Policy at the undergraduate level.
- Potential to establish a program of research leading to publication.
- Demonstrated commitment to fostering a diverse and inclusive working/teaching environment.

To be guaranteed consideration, applications must be completed by Friday, December 1, 2023.

Applicants should be prepared to provide:

- Cover letter that addresses teaching experience and candidate's research agenda
- CV
- Teaching statement and demonstration of teaching effectiveness
- Diversity statement
- 3 letters of recommendation

Trinity College

Rank: Assistant/Associate or Full Professor of Public Policy and Law

Subfield(s): Public Law, Public Policy, American Government and Politics

The Trinity College Public Policy and Law Program seeks applications for an open-rank professor position (advanced tenure-track assistant, tenured associate, or tenured full professor) focusing on public policy and/or public law, commencing in Fall 2024. The successful candidate will have the following qualifications:

- (1) A Ph.D. in Public Policy, Political Science, Sociology, or a related field.
- (2) A strong record of published research related to public policy and/or public law.
- (3) Demonstrated excellence in undergraduate teaching related to public policy and/or public law.

We prefer candidates with a record of departmental service and/or leadership and an interest in collaborating with colleagues to strengthen our unique interdisciplinary program. We encourage applicants who share our commitment to diversity, equity, and inclusion.

Trinity College seeks a faculty that reflects the changing demographics of our student body, including candidates from backgrounds historically underrepresented in higher education. Our student body is diverse, representing 41 states and 70 countries, with 21 percent U.S. students of color and 50 percent who identify as women. More than 90 percent of students live on campus. Trinity is a highly selective, independent, nonsectarian liberal arts institution located in the capital city of Hartford, Conn. With more than 2,100 full-time undergraduate students and 91 graduate students, the college maintains a rigorous academic profile complemented by a vibrant and diverse co-curricular program. We consider our location in a culturally and socioeconomically diverse capital city to be among Trinity's most distinctive assets, and we cultivate strong connections with our surrounding neighbors and with institutions and organizations throughout Hartford and the region. As a preeminent liberal arts college in an urban setting, Trinity College prepares students to be bold, independent thinkers who lead transformative lives.

The typical teaching load is 2-3 with a one-semester leave every fourth year. The successful candidate will receive annual research and conference travel funds.

To ensure full consideration please submit the following materials to <https://trincoll.peopleadmin.com> by November 1, 2023: a cover letter (describing research; teaching; and commitment to advancing diversity, equity, and inclusion), CV, sample of scholarly writing, course syllabi, course evaluations, and contact information for at least three individuals who will provide letters of reference.

Duke University

Rank: Assistant Professor of Public Policy

The Sanford School of Public Policy invites applicants for up to three tenure-track Assistant Professor positions across a range of policy areas including Climate, Development, Education, Health, Democratic Governance, Local/State Policy, Migration, Poverty, Social and Economic Inequality/Inequity, Social Safety Nets, and Urban Policy. The focus could be on domestic or global issues. We invite applicants with doctoral-level training in public policy and related disciplines, such as economics, political science, public health, psychology, or sociology. We welcome scholars with expertise in quantitative and qualitative research methods. Successful candidates will be expected to teach courses in Sanford's core curriculum, which includes policy analysis, political analysis, microeconomics, ethics, and statistics.

Duke University and the Sanford School of Public Policy are strongly committed to advancing inclusive excellence throughout our research, teaching, and service activities. A diverse faculty – defined broadly as representing a wide range of identities, lived experiences, and perspectives – is a prerequisite for excellence and is essential to driving innovation within our scholarly community. To achieve these goals, it is essential that all members of the community feel valued and welcome, that the contributions of all individuals are respected, and that all voices are heard. All members of our community are expected to uphold these values, and we seek to hire faculty who are passionate about increasing the participation and success of individuals from all different backgrounds and communities.

Interested candidates should submit the following materials for review: (i) cover letter describing their motivation to be part of a policy school; (ii) curriculum vitae; (iii) a representative research paper; (iv) a one- to two-page research statement that describes current and future research, as well as the ways that lived experience influences their approach to research; (v) a one-page statement describing their teaching philosophy, previous experiences, future plans for teaching, and experience and approach to fostering an inclusive learning and mentoring environment for their students; and (vi) the names of three references or three reference letters. The deadline for priority review is October 31, 2023. Applications will then be reviewed on a rolling basis until April 30, 2024, or until the position has been filled. ## University of Florida

Rank: Assistant Professor in American Politics (Public Policy)

The Department of Political Science at the University of Florida, College of Liberal Arts and Sciences, invites applications for a full-time, nine-month, tenure-track Assistant Professor in American Politics (Public Policy) to begin August 16, 2024. The Department is open to all fields of specialization, including but not limited to criminal justice, health care, the environment, U.S. trade and immigration, digital technologies, social welfare, education, housing, or research addressing federalism or the policy process more generally.

The Department seeks to hire faculty broadly engaged in research that is field-bridging, adding to our Department's long tradition of intellectual diversity and pluralism in keeping with the themes of our recent cluster hires. While we are open to fields of study, we are particularly interested in candidates who combine rigorous and original scholarship and evidence of grant activity.

Successful applicants are expected to teach two courses per fall and two courses per spring semester, with a mix of introductory and advanced undergraduate courses and graduate seminars. The ability to develop experiential learning opportunities for undergraduates and excel in mentoring undergraduate research in the Department's Honors and Junior Fellows programs is a plus.

More information about the Department of Political Science can be found at: <http://www.polisci.ufl.edu>.

UF is the state's oldest, largest, and most comprehensive land grant university with an enrollment of over 50,000 students and was ranked the Number 1 public university in the United States by Wall Street Journal in its "2024 Best Colleges in the U.S." report. UF is located in Gainesville, a city of approximately 150,000 residents in North-Central Florida, 50 miles from the Gulf of Mexico, and 67 miles from the Atlantic Ocean, and within a 2-hour drive to large metropolitan areas (Orlando, Tampa, Jacksonville). The beautiful climate and extensive nearby parks and recreational areas afford year-round outdoor activities, including hiking, biking, and nature photography. UF's large college sports programs, museums, and performing arts center support a range of activities and cultural events for residents to enjoy. Alachua County schools are highly rated and offer a variety of programs including magnet schools and an international baccalaureate program. ### University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill

Rank: Assistant Professor, Associate Professor

Subfield(s): Political Theory, Public Policy, Other

Specializations: Political Philosophy & Theory, Political Theory, Political Economy

The Department of Political Science and the Philosophy, Politics, and Economics Program (PPE) Program in the College of Arts and Sciences at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill invite applications for a tenure-track position at the rank of Assistant or Associate Professor or Associate Professor with tenure in political theory starting July 1, 2024. Required qualifications are ABD or Ph.D or an equivalent degree in Political Science, Philosophy, Public Policy or a related field in the humanities or social sciences. The successful candidate will be a core faculty member in UNC's thriving Philosophy, Politics, and Economics Program and will be expected to take an active role in developing and expanding the PPE Program. The successful candidate must have research and teaching interests that include the intersection of philosophy, politics, and economics, and be committed to the value of PPE as an educational and intellectual endeavor. The successful candidate will be expected to teach the core courses in PPE and thus must have a working knowledge of political economy and game theory. We are primarily seeking candidates trained in political theory who are able to teach normative political theory courses. However, candidates with a strong normative background who primarily teach American or Comparative politics will be considered as will candidates with an expertise in ethics and public policy who have an interest in a primary appointment in the Department of Public Policy. Significant promise of research excellence is a necessary condition for consideration, as is evidence of significant skills in teaching. Salary commensurate with qualifications.

The University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill is an equal opportunity and affirmative action employer. All qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to age, color, disability, gender, gender expression, gender identity, genetic information, national origin, race, religion, sex, sexual orientation, or status as a protected veteran.

Review of applications will begin October 8th 2023, and will continue until the position is filled. To apply for the position, please follow this link <https://unc.peopleadmin.com/postings/265898>. Please include a cover letter, curriculum vitae, research statement, teaching statement (including available teaching evaluations and other evidence of teaching excellence), and a writing sample. Applicants will be required to identify the names, titles and email addresses of professional references at the time of application (please note that four are required). Recommenders identified by the applicant will be contacted via email with instructions for uploading their letters of support. Alternatively, applicants may list Interfolio as a reference and the application system will solicit recommendations directly from Interfolio. Please see <http://help.interfolio.com/entries/24062742-Uploading-Letters-to-an-Online-Application-System> for instructions. ### IE University

Rank: Tenure-Track Faculty Position in Political Economy 2024-2025

Tenure-Track Faculty Position in Political Economy 2024-2025
IE University's School of Politics, Economics, and Global Affairs (SPEGA) seeks applicants for a tenure-track faculty position in Political Economy at the rank of Assistant Professor starting September 1, 2024. We seek candidates using quantitative methods and/or formal theory to study substantive questions of broad disciplinary relevance. We are especially but not exclusively interested in candidates whose work addresses the interface between political-economy and new technologies.

Successful candidates will demonstrate capacity to produce publications in top peer-reviewed outlets (both generalist and field journals) in the coming years. More generally, we seek academics with the capacity to engage in policy-relevant work and an overall commitment to institution-building - applying for research grants, participating in affiliated research centers and academic programs, and expanding our current network and partnerships.

Successful candidates will join the Political Science and International Relations group within SPEGA, which consists of 14 tenured and tenure-track scholars studying comparative politics, international relations, political economy, and political behavior. Recent publications from this group appear in APSR, AJPS, JOP, BJPS, and many other top generalist and field outlets.

Candidates should have a PhD from a recognized department of political science, public policy, economics, or a related field, or demonstrate clear evidence that their PhD will be complete by July 2024.

The IE SPEGA is part of IE University, located in Madrid and Segovia, Spain, and is a full member of the Association of Professional Schools in International Affairs (APSIA). We are a fast-growing department of professors committed to world-class academic research and teaching in the social sciences, public policy, and international affairs.

We offer a competitive remuneration package, attractive teaching commitments, and an enriching and cosmopolitan work environment in the heart of Madrid. Our working language is English, and both our faculty and student body are highly diverse and international.

IE University is an Equal Opportunity Employer and strongly encourages applications from individuals who will expand the ethnic and gender diversity of our faculty.

Applications should include a cover letter and vita, a job market paper, and three confidential letters of recommendation.

Candidates may apply via Interfolio by October 20, 2023, using the following link: <http://apply.interfolio.com/132207>

American Enterprise Institute

Rank: Jeane Kirkpatrick Fellowship Program

Overview

The American Enterprise Institute is inviting candidates to apply for two open scholar positions in the Jeane Kirkpatrick Fellowship Program in Foreign and Defense Policy Studies. The program is open to mid-career academics, government, and civilian professionals in foreign policy and security studies who are looking for an opportunity to deepen their work.

The application period commences on August 14, 2023 and concludes on December 1, 2023. The program begins in January 2024, although the starting date for new Jeane Kirkpatrick scholars is negotiable to accommodate existing personal and professional obligations. The program's duration is one year from the start date, with the possibility of a one-year extension.

Applications are reviewed on a rolling basis.

Fellowship Benefits:

Guided by the belief that American liberties are best preserved by a robust national defense and US global leadership, senior research fellows will conduct in-depth research to produce policy recommendations intended to enhance American security and interests. AEI will assist fellows in developing and disseminating their research by providing the support and training needed to publish serious longer works, place their work in the nation's most-read publications, brief policymakers, and host public and private events at the Institute.

Application Process:

Qualified applicants should apply at www.aei.org/jobs and submit a resume and a 1,000-word statement addressing academic interests, how this fellowship will enhance their professional goals, and which scholars they would like to work with in AEI's foreign and defense policy department.

Pennsylvania State University

Rank: Assistant Professor of American Politics

Assistant Professor, American Politics

The Department of Political Science at The Pennsylvania State University in University Park, Pennsylvania, USA, invites applications for an Assistant Professor of American Politics. This is a tenure-line position to begin in Fall 2024.

Duties for an Assistant Professor will involve a combination of research, teaching, and service. In the role, the selected candidate will be expected to focus their research and teaching on social inequity and/or health or wellbeing widely defined. For example, the department welcomes applications from scholars whose work focuses on race or ethnicity, class, gender, sexual orientation, gender identity, disability, mental health, and/or political voice and representation. Assistant Professor positions at Penn State involve substantial research support and offer significant release time.

This position is co-funded by Penn State's interdisciplinary Social Science Research Institute and is part of an initiative to hire faculty members in different units across Penn State. These faculty members join an existing campus cluster, with the goal to foster collaborations among social and behavioral scientists and others, working at different levels of aggregation on understanding and reducing disparities.

Candidates whose research addresses critical social problems and shows evidence of, or potential for, interdisciplinary collaborations across disciplinary lines are particularly desired. We particularly welcome scholars who build on existing departmental strengths. Scholars whose work speaks to questions or policies that fit well with the cluster focus, are especially encouraged to apply. A description of the Social Science Research Institute's Strategic Foci can be found at <https://ssri.psu.edu/about/ssri-overview>.

Candidates for this position should show demonstrated ability as a researcher and teacher, evidence of scholarly and professional growth, and demonstrate the potential for external funding. Candidates must have completed their Ph.D. in American Politics or related field by the time of appointment.

In addition, successful candidates must either have demonstrated a commitment to building an inclusive, equitable, and diverse campus community, or describe one or more ways they would envision doing so, given the opportunity.

To apply, submit a cover letter outlining your research interests and teaching credentials, a curriculum vitae that provides evidence of qualifications, a sample of scholarly writing, evidence of effectiveness as a teacher (e.g., course evaluations, sample syllabi/assignments, teaching statement), and the names/contact information of three references at Penn State's Job Posting Board.

System limitations allow for a total of 5 documents (5mb per document) as part of your application. Please combine materials to meet the 5-document limit.

Review of applications will begin immediately and continue until the position is filled. To receive full consideration, materials should be received by October 15, 2023.

Penn State is committed to and accountable for advancing diversity, equity, and inclusion in all of its forms. We embrace individual uniqueness, foster a culture of inclusion that supports both broad and specific diversity initiatives, leverage the educational and institutional benefits of diversity, and engage all individuals to help them thrive. We value inclusion as a core strength and an essential element of our public service mission.

Penn State offers competitive benefits to full-time employees, including medical, dental, vision, and retirement plans, in addition to 75% tuition discounts (including for a spouse and dependent children up to the age of 26) and paid holidays. Please visit <https://hr.psu.edu/benefits> for more detailed information.

University of Notre Dame

Rank: Assistant Professor of Irish Policy

The University of Notre Dame’s Keough School of Global Affairs invites applications for a tenure track assistant professor in the area of Irish policy studies, broadly defined. This position will be based in the Keough-Naughton Institute for Irish Studies (<https://irishstudies.nd.edu/>). Areas of interest include, but are not limited to, security studies, contemporary politics, social and economic development, peace and reconciliation. Particular preference will be given to candidates whose research agenda or expertise can support, augment, or extend the work of the Keough-Naughton Institute/Royal Irish Academy project ‘Analyzing and Researching Ireland North and South’ (ARINS).

In addition to holding a doctoral degree, competitive candidates for this tenure track position will demonstrate evidence of strong scholarship and teaching. The search is open with respect to discipline and may include political science, economics, peace studies, history, development studies, sociology, or related fields that touch on public policy.

The successful candidate is expected to contribute across all dimensions of research, teaching, and service, and to participate fully in the academic life of the Keough School, the Keough-Naughton Institute for Irish Studies, and the Clingen Family Center for the Study of Modern Ireland. Responsibilities will include teaching and mentoring students at all levels. The assistant professorship will be based in the Keough School (<https://keough.nd.edu>), which advances integral human development through research, policy and practice, transformative educational programs, and partnerships for global engagement. It promotes interdisciplinary research on critical issues in global affairs.

The Keough School is committed to fostering a culture of diverse views and approaches to Global Affairs. All applicants whose scholarly pursuits will enhance our ability to fulfill that commitment are encouraged to apply. Questions about the position can be directed to Colin Barr, Professor of Modern Irish History, at cbarr2@nd.edu. All applicants are required to submit a cover letter, C.V., research statement summarizing examples of recent or ongoing research in the above areas of interest, and arrange for the submission of three confidential letters of reference. Evidence of teaching effectiveness is also welcomed. All application materials must be submitted through the Interfolio/Notre Dame online application system: <http://apply.interfolio.com/131737>

The position will close on October 31, 2023 and review of applications will begin at that time.

Harvard University

Rank: FELLOWS-IN-RESIDENCE PROGRAM

Subfield(s): Other, Public Administration, Public Policy

The Edmond & Lily Safra Center for Ethics at Harvard University invites applications from a broad range of researchers and practitioners who will work over the course of the year on pressing issues in ethics. Faculty in arts and sciences and professional schools, postdoctoral scholars, practitioners, and researchers from industry, government, and NGOs are eligible to apply. The call for applications for the 2024-25 is completely open: we will consider any topic pertaining to the serious ethical questions of our time. All eligible applicants are encouraged to apply and will be given careful consideration; priority will be given to outstanding early career scholars and practitioners.

As always, our goal will be to craft a cohort in which all fellows will find valuable intellectual partnerships to support and spur their work. The ideal candidates are those who are willing to invest time and energy into building community with the other fellows in their cohort.

Fellows-in-Residence will be expected to devote the majority of their time to their individual projects and to participate in regular work-in-progress seminars. In addition, Fellows are strongly encouraged to participate in—and contribute to—the Center’s programming, which includes public lectures, themed seminars and reading groups, conferences, workshops, and lunch discussions.

This Fellowship is intended to be residential. With the exception of travel to conferences and meetings, Fellows are expected to be in residence in the Boston area at least four working days per week during the term.

For the last few years, the Center has offered the possibility of joint fellowship opportunities with several other Centers at Harvard. We continue to offer that possibility, with specific potential affiliations to be worked out on a case-by-case basis:

- Berkman Klein Center for Internet and Society at Harvard University
- Carr Center for Human Rights at the Harvard Kennedy School
- Center for Bioethics at the Harvard Medical School
- Center for Research on Computation and Society at the Harvard John A. Paulson School of Engineering and Applied Sciences
- Hutchins Center for African & African American Research at Harvard University
- Petrie-Flom Center for Health Law Policy, Biotechnology and Bioethics at the Harvard Law School

Applicants will be invited to indicate on the application form whether they wish to be considered for a joint fellowship position with one of these Centers. If selected, the joint fellowship will offer access to development opportunities and programming at the Edmond & Lily Safra Center for Ethics and the partnering center.

ELIGIBILITY

Applicants must have a PhD, professional degree, or a minimum of 5 years of equivalent professional experience by the start of the fellowship year. Applicants from any discipline or professional field will be considered. Those who have previously held a yearlong residential Fellowship at the Center are not eligible; this limitation does not apply to former Undergraduate Fellows or former Graduate Fellows. The Fellows-in-Residence Program runs the course of the academic year, typically from the beginning of September through the end of May, and is open to all applicants who meet the above criteria, regardless of citizenship.

STIPEND

Faculty:

We offer a stipend of one-half of your base academic year salary, up to $80,000, and a research allowance of up to $5,000 for approved expenses directly related to your work, such as travel, books, and research assistance.

Post-Doc:

The stipend for post-doctoral fellows will be $70,000 for 2024-25. We also provide a research allowance of up to $5,000 for approved expenses directly related to your work, such as travel, books, and research assistance.

Practitioner:

Practitioner stipends are determined on a case-by-case basis, commensurate with experience, up to a maximum of $80,000. We also provide a research allowance of up to $5,000 for approved expenses directly related to your work, such as travel, books, and research assistance.

APPLICATION REQUIREMENTS

Before beginning the application, you may wish to have the following information available:

- The title of your research proposal
- Names and contact information for 3 references (no letters are accepted at this stage)

To apply, complete our online application form, which will request the information noted above. You will also be asked to upload the following documents:

- Cover letter stating your background and interest in the Fellows-in-Residence Program at the Edmond & Lily Safra Center for Ethics
- Curriculum Vitae
- Research proposal
- Recent writing sample

Please note: Name and contact information for three professional references will be requested, but no letters will be accepted at this stage.

The deadline to submit an application is November 15, 2023, with decisions likely to be announced in February 2024. Please note that the application form will be saved automatically while in progress, but no edits or alterations will be allowed once you have submitted the application. Please direct questions regarding this application process to EJSafraFellowships@fas.harvard.edu.

Specializations: East Asia, Southeast Asia, South Asia

Stanford University: 2024–2025 Postdoctoral Fellowship on Contemporary Asia

The Walter H. Shorenstein Asia-Pacific Research Center at Stanford University is pleased to announce its search for up to two 2024-2025 Shorenstein Postdoctoral Fellows on Contemporary Asia-Pacific Studies. Made possible through the generosity of Walter H. Shorenstein, awards will be made to two junior scholars (recent PhDs must have degree conferral and approval by June 30, 2024) for research and writing on Asia.

The primary focus of the fellowship is on contemporary political, economic, or social change in the Asia-Pacific region (including Northeast, Southeast, and South Asia), or topics in international relations and international political economy. The postdoctoral fellowship is a 10-month appointment with salary rate commensurate with Stanford policy, plus up to $3,000 for research expenses. Appointments will begin in the fall quarter of the 2024-2025 academic year.

Applications will be accepted until December 1, 2023.

Boston University

Rank: Professor of International Relations and Director of the Pardee Center for the Study of the Longer-Range Future

Specializations: Environmental Policy, Science & Technology, International Security

The Pardee School of Global Studies at Boston University invites applications for a Director, at the rank of Professor with tenure, of the Pardee Center for the Study of the Longer-Range Future. The appointment is expected to begin July 1, 2024. The search is open to applicants from all disciplines and functional specializations. Successful candidates would be expected to have demonstrated the potential for excellence in any discipline relevant to international affairs, and share a commitment to the Pardee School's institutional values of diversity, equity, inclusion, and social justice. The successful candidate must have a demonstrated record of interdisciplinary research that addresses globally important issues that affect the human condition presently, with increasing global relevance over the next several decades. Scholars and practitioners whose work addresses the challenges of climate change and other forms of environmental degradation, artificial intelligence, cyber security, the future of technologies, governance, or human security are especially encouraged to apply. We are particularly interested in work that has policy relevance.

The Frederick S. Pardee Center for the Study of the Longer-Range Future is an interdisciplinary research center of the Frederick S. Pardee School of Global Studies at Boston University. The Pardee Center was established in 2000 through the generosity of the late Frederick S. Pardee, whose career as a systems analyst and an economic forecaster was imbued with a passion for analyzing trends for the future. Both the Pardee Center and the Pardee School are motivated by Mr. Pardee's lifelong dedication to the creation of a better future for all of humanity. The Center conducts interdisciplinary research on globally important issues that affect the human condition over the course of several decades. Through programs of scholarship, outreach, and education, the Pardee Center works to improve public decision-making and policy and to train future generations of interdisciplinary scholars.

The Center Director oversees the operations and activities of the Center, including research affiliates, research seminars, summer graduate fellows program, and supervises staff. The Director is expected to participate in fundraising activities for the School and the Pardee Center. In addition to leading the work of the Center, the successful candidate will be expected to teach courses in his/her/their area(s) of functional expertise, and will also advise and mentor our undergraduate and graduate students. A distinguished record of publication and research and the capacity for excellence in teaching are essential. The Pardee School of Global Studies is committed to multidisciplinary, policy-relevant research and teaching and to nurturing the next generation of international relations practitioners, and it is expected that candidates will share this commitment. Candidates who have demonstrated policy experience in addition to scholarly qualifications are encouraged to apply.

Boston University is a member of the prestigious Association of American Universities, with a rich tradition of inclusion and social justice. We are proud of our record of inclusiveness, including being the first American university to award a PhD to a woman and the institution from which Martin Luther King, Jr. received his PhD. We are also the home of the BU Center for Antiracist Research. We are dedicated to increasing participation of all talented students and professionals, especially women and underrepresented minorities. We are an equal opportunity employer: all qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to race, color, religion, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, national origin, disability status, protected veteran status, or any other characteristic protected by law. We are a Vietnam Era Veterans' Readjustment Assistance Act federal contractor.

BU conducts a background check on all final candidates for certain faculty and staff positions. The background check includes contacting the final candidate's current and previous employer(s) to ask whether, in the last seven years, there has been a substantiated finding of misconduct violating that employer's applicable sexual misconduct policies. To implement this process, the University requires a final candidate to complete and sign the form entitled "Authorization to Release Information" after execution of an offer letter.

Please submit 1) a letter of application describing your teaching and research interests and professional experience, 2) statement of how you will support the university's commitment to diversity, equity, and inclusion, and 3) curriculum vitae electronically at <https://academicjobsonline.org/ajo/jobs/25543>. Questions about the position or school may be directed to Ms. Elaine Bidianos at elaineb@bu.edu. Applications will be reviewed on a rolling basis, beginning October 1, 2023, but applications will be accepted until the job is filled. The expected starting date for employment is July 1, 2024.

Catholic University of America

Rank: Assistant Professor of Politics

Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Public Policy, Political Theory

Assistant Professor of Politics (American Politics)

The Department of Politics at The Catholic University of America invites applications for a tenure-track faculty appointment in American politics, to begin in the fall of 2024. We are interested in a candidate with a range of interests, including but not limited to public opinion, ideology, political parties, elections, and the presidency. The successful candidate could also play an important advisory role for our Washington, D.C. internship programs. The department especially welcomes applicants whose research interests complement its traditional strengths in historical, theoretical, and institutional perspectives. Situated on a large and beautiful campus, Catholic University is only three metro stops from the Capitol. Politics is one of the largest majors on campus, attracting many students who value the community of a Catholic university while pursuing careers related to politics and law in the nation's capital. The department's Ph.D program has a long and distinguished history, and the development of professionally minded M.A. programs is a university priority.

We seek candidates who understand, are enthusiastic about, and will make a significant contribution to the mission of the University, which reads as follows: "As the national university of the Catholic Church in the United States, founded and sponsored by the bishops of the country with the approval of the Holy See, The Catholic University of America is committed to being a comprehensive Catholic and American institution of higher learning, faithful to the teachings of Jesus Christ as handed on by the Church. Dedicated to advancing the dialogue between faith and reason, The Catholic University of America seeks to discover and impart the truth through excellence in teaching and research, all in service to the Church, the nation and the world."

Applicants should submit a cover letter, a curriculum vitae, a statement of current research and future research plans, a statement of teaching philosophy, graduate school transcript, and a sample of written work (including scholarly publications) to pol-search@cua.edu and arrange for the submission of three letters of reference. In addition, applicants are asked to submit a one- to two-page personal statement indicating how their research, teaching, and service will make a distinctive contribution to our University's mission and to the vision of Catholic education outlined in the Apostolic Constitution on Catholic Universities Ex Corde Ecclesiae.

Review of applications will begin November 15 and continue until the position is filled. Questions may be directed to Jakub Grygiel, Department Chair, at grygiel@cua.edu.

Catholic University of America

Rank: Clinical Assistant Professor of Politics

Subfield(s): Public Policy, Comparative Politics, American Government and Politics

Specializations: American Politics, Latin American, Political Theory

Clinical Assistant Professor of Politics (Public Policy)

The Department of Politics at The Catholic University of America invites applications for a clinical (non-tenure track, two-year renewable contract) faculty appointment, to begin in the fall of 2024. Candidates should have expertise in public policy (American and/or comparative, as well as familiarity with the principles of Catholic social teaching). The department especially welcomes applicants whose research interests complement its traditional strengths in historical, theoretical, ethical and institutional perspectives. The successful candidate will have an opportunity to teach both undergraduates and graduates, including students in a new MA in Public Policy program currently under development.

We seek candidates who understand, are enthusiastic about, and will make a significant contribution to the mission of the University, which reads as follows: "As the national university of the Catholic Church in the United States, founded and sponsored by the bishops of the country with the approval of the Holy See, The Catholic University of America is committed to being a comprehensive Catholic and American institution of higher learning, faithful to the teachings of Jesus Christ as handed on by the Church. ### University of Southern California

Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Public Law, Public Policy

The Department of Political Science and International Relations (POIR) in the Dana and David Dornsife College of Letters, Arts and Sciences at the University of Southern California (USC) in Los Angeles invites applications for a tenure-track or tenured position in American Politics as part of a major hiring initiative.

We seek candidates with a strong substantive research program in any domain of American politics, whose work advances theoretical and empirical research on important questions in their subfield.

Candidates are expected to have strong methodological training, and their methodological skills, ability to advise graduate students on methodological issues and teach graduate classes in the Department's core methods sequence will be a consideration. A strong commitment to undergraduate and graduate education is also expected.

The candidate must have completed a Ph.D. by the appointment date. Review of applications will start September 15, 2023 and will continue until the positions are filled.

In order to be considered for this position, applicants are required to submit an electronic USC application; follow this job link or paste in a browser: <https://usccareers.usc.edu/job/los-angeles/open-rank-faculty-position-in-american-politics/1209/53486590032>. Required materials for upload include a CV, letter of interest, sample research paper(s), statement of research interests, evidence of teaching effectiveness, the names of three individuals who will be contacted by USC for a letter of reference, and official graduate transcripts. Send inquiries to poir@usc.edu. Materials submitted by regular mail will not be accepted.

The annual base salary range for this position is $93,500 - $175,700. When extending an offer of employment, the University of Southern California considers factors such as (but not limited to) the scope and responsibilities of the position, the candidate's work experience, education/training, key skills, internal peer equity, federal, state and local laws, contractual stipulations, grant funding, as well as external market and organizational considerations.

USC is an equal-opportunity educator and employer, proudly pluralistic and firmly committed to providing equal opportunity for outstanding persons of every race, gender, creed and background. The University particularly encourages women, members of underrepresented groups, veterans and individuals with disabilities to apply. USC will make reasonable accommodations for qualified individuals with known disabilities unless doing so would result in an undue hardship. Further information is available by contacting uschr@usc.edu.

Copenhagen Business School

Rank: Postdoc in Business and Government

Subfield(s): Comparative Politics, Methodology, Public Policy

We invite applications for a 2-year postdoc on the project “The Determinants and Consequences of Legislative Capacity” starting August 1st, 2024. The project is led by associate professors Florian M. Hollenbach (CBS) and David Fortunato (UCSD) and funded by the Independent Research Fund Denmark. The postdoc will be based at the Department of International Economics, Government and Business (EGB) at the Copenhagen Business School. It is a 100% research postdoc—there are no teaching requirements. It is our hope that the postdoc will coauthor with the project leaders and develop publications related to the project.

The project

Because policy is written by elected representatives but implemented by unelected bureaucratic agents with their own preferences, the legislature’s capacity for ex-ante policy design and ex-post oversight sets a de facto budget constraint on potential democratic responsiveness. Importantly, parliaments choose their own capacity by allocating resources necessary for legislative work, yet we observe tremendous variation in these endowments. Why? In this project, we investigate the determinants of capacity choices and their broader implications for democratic accountability.

The “Legislative Capacity” project consists of two work packages. Work package I will focus on developing a formal theoretical model of the legislature’s choice over its capacity for policy influence. The model will consider the trade-offs for current majorities to increase capacity to improve its policy making power while also handing more efficient institutions to future governments, should it lose power. Work package II moves on to empirically investigate the relationships predicted by the theoretical model. To do so, we will collect data on legislative capacity in OECD countries over the last 20 years, as well as subnational legislatures.

The postdoc will work on both packages, contributing to development of the central theoretical model, data collection, analysis, and writing. It is essential that applicants have strong research potential in comparative political economy and the ability to work in a team environment, collaborating/co-authoring with other team members.

Non-exhaustive examples of research areas that the postdoc may cover:

- Comparative Political Economy
- Social Data Science
- Quantitative Methods
- Formal Modelling
- Political Institutions

Department

EGB is a multidisciplinary department that conducts high-quality research in the fields of international business and political science with direct relevance to business, policymakers, and the public. Research at the department focuses on two principal focus areas Business & Government and International Business, in relation to societal challenges. To learn more about the research and education of the department, please visit the departmental homepage; www.cbs.dk/egb.

Qualifications

The applicant must have completed – or be close to completing – a PhD in the political science, political economy, or a related field. The applicant must have excellent research skills and proficiency in English (written and spoken). The ideal applicant will have solid skills in formal modelling and advanced quantitative methods.

To fulfill the research requirements of the position, the postdoc is expected to be physically present at the department on a regular basis.

Copenhagen Business School has a broad commitment to the excellence, distinctiveness and relevance of its teaching and research programs. Candidates who wish to join us should demonstrate enthusiasm for working in an organization of this type.

Appointment and salary will be in accordance with the Ministry of Finance’s agreement with the Central Academic Organisation (presently approximately $70,080 USD including pension contribution).

Applications must be sent via the electronic recruitment system, using the link; <https://www.cbs.dk/en/about-cbs/jobs-cbs/vacant-positions/postdoc-in-business-and-government-copenhagen-business-school-2-years>

Applications must include:

- A cover letter outlining the candidate’s main strengths and abilities.
- Transcript(s) and a full CV
- A job market paper
- A complete, numbered list of publications (indicating titles, co-authors, page numbers and year) with an * marking of the academic productions to be considered during the assessment. A maximum of 5 publications for assessment are allowed. Applicants are requested to prioritise their publications in relation to the field of this job advertisement.
- Copies of the publications marked with an *. Only publications written in English (or another specified principal language, according to research tradition) or one of the Scandinavian languages will be taken into consideration)
- A brief (1-page) research statement for the 2-year postdoc period, and possibly beyond.

Recruitment procedure

The Recruitment Committee will shortlist a minimum of two applicants; when possible five or more applicants will be shortlisted. The shortlisted applicants will be assessed by the Assessment Committee. All applicants will be notified of their status in the recruitment process shortly after the application deadline.

The applicants selected for assessment will be notified about the composition of the Assessment Committee and later in the process about the result of the assessment.

Once the recruitment process is completed each applicant will be notified of the outcome of their application.

Closing date: October 30, 2023

Copenhagen Business School must receive all application material, including all appendices (see items above), by the application deadline.

For further information about the project, please contact: Associate Professor Florian M. Hollenbach, e-mail: fho.egb@cbs.dk.

For further information about the department (EGB), please contact: Head of Department Jens Gammelgaard, e-mail jg.egb@cbs.dk.

Salem State University

Rank: Faculty - Public Policy - Full Time, Temporary

Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Methodology, Public Policy

Specializations: Race & Ethnic Politics, Housing, American Politics

The politics, policy and international relations department at Salem State University invites a full-time, temporary faculty position for the 2024-2025 academic year. We are seeking a public policy specialist with familiarity with policies in an urban context such as housing, education, transportation, policing, poverty, and/or immigration. This position is part of a Salem State initiative to help establish and advance our proposed North Shore Policy Lab and may be reappointed for up to two additional years subject to available funding. With continued growth of the program, there may be additional tenure track lines in the department.

Housed in the department's Bates Center for Public and Global Affairs, the North Shore Policy Lab will involve students in research conducted on behalf of local and state government and non-governmental organizations in order to prepare them for jobs in the public, non-profit and/or private sectors.

The candidate should be well-versed in both quantitative and qualitative research methods and be able to teach our current Research Methods course as well as a new, advanced multi-methods class that will serve as the foundation for student work on applied policy research projects as a part of the policy lab. The ideal candidate will have a demonstrated record of community-based research and community partnerships with a focus on equity issues in the context of urban areas like those served by Salem State.

Salem State University is committed to excellence in teaching. We pride ourselves in providing first-rate classroom experiences and supervising intensive learning opportunities such as research and internships. Many of our students are first generation, racial/ethnic minorities, veterans, and adult learners. Salem State University is located in the Greater Boston area in the historic city of Salem, Massachusetts. The Greater Boston region is famous for its world-class education, healthcare, and business enterprises and the area offers numerous opportunities for professional and personal enrichment.

Duties and Responsibilities

Candidates are required to perform duties in accordance with the MSCA contract. Duties include teaching, advising, scholarship and contributions to continuously improve the department and university. The standard teaching load is 12 credit hours per semester. The position is subject to available funding.

Required Qualifications:

Earned PhD in public policy or a related field from an accredited institution (ABD considered if degree will be conferred by September 2024)

Advising and/or mentoring experience

Preferred Qualifications:

Commitment to anti-racist, culturally responsive teaching

Demonstrated expertise in community-based research

Active publication record and/or exemplary scholarly potential (e.g., ABD candidates with strong pipeline of research)

Prior applied experience in non-profit or public sector settings

Demonstrated excellence in teaching

As an emerging Hispanic Serving Institution (HSI), Salem State University seeks to enrich the faculty/librarian ranks by actively encouraging candidates whose lived and scholarly experiences directly address issues regarding the health, welfare, and representation of Latinx populations in the United States. Candidates who meet this strongly desired qualification should present documented activities in Latinx-related teaching, scholarship/research, and service, including community-based endeavors in each of these three areas.

Trinity College

Rank: Director, Greenberg Center for the Study of Religion in Public Life

Trinity College seeks the next Director of the Leonard E. Greenberg Center for the Study of Religion in Public Life, commencing July 2024. Non-sectarian and non-partisan, the Greenberg Center was established at Trinity College in 1996 to advance knowledge and understanding of the varied roles that religious movements, institutions, and ideas play in the contemporary world. The Center sponsors public lectures, organizes conferences and workshops, contributes to the liberal arts curriculum, and supports the publication and dissemination of materials for both academic and general audiences. Its initiatives are designed to foster discussion of religion in public life both within the campus community and among various external publics.

We seek a mid-career or advanced candidate with a Ph.D. and a record of success in program administration, teaching, and scholarship. The Director serves as an 9-month administrative faculty member with joint appointments in Trinity's Public Policy & Law Program and Religious Studies Department. The Director's faculty title will be commensurate with experience.

The Director will shape the Center's goals and activities; enhance the Center's profile on and off campus; and evaluate the Center's impact. The position co-supervises a Program and Communications Assistant and convenes a Center advisory board. As a faculty member, the Director teaches three courses per academic year during the Fall and Spring semesters, cross-listed in Religious Studies and Public Policy & Law. The successful candidate will manage an annual budget of over $65,000, including generous research funds.

We encourage applicants who share our commitment to diversity and inclusion and seek applications from historically underrepresented candidates. Trinity College seeks a faculty that reflects the changing demographics of our student body. Our student body is diverse, representing 41 states and 70 countries, with 21 percent U.S. students of color and 50 percent who identify as women. More than 90 percent of students live on campus. Trinity is a highly selective, independent, nonsectarian liberal arts institution located in the capital city of Hartford, Conn. With more than 2,100 full-time undergraduate students and 91 graduate students, the college maintains a rigorous academic profile complemented by a vibrant and diverse co-curricular program. We consider our location in a culturally and socioeconomically diverse capital city to be among Trinity's most distinctive assets, and we cultivate strong connections with our surrounding neighbors and with institutions and organizations throughout Hartford and the region. As a preeminent liberal arts college in an urban setting, Trinity College prepares students to be bold, independent thinkers who lead transformative lives.

These awards are designed to promote basic research in the broad areas of international and comparative political economy, international organization and global governance, and globalization. Research on the causes and consequences of globalization, the political economy of foreign trade, monetary and regulatory policies, the sources of international cooperation at the global and regional level, the domestic and international politics of economic development, the political economy of human security issues, the evolution and impact of international institutions, and the politics of international law and human rights policies are of relevance. Outstanding scholars anywhere in the world are eligible to apply. The Center invites candidates with a background in political science, economics, modern history, sociology, anthropology, law, business, and other disciplines bearing on the study of globalization to apply. Selected candidates will be required to be in residence in Princeton or the local vicinity, or demonstrate to the program's satisfaction the ability to be on campus on a daily basis and on short notice in order to fulfill responsibilities relating to in-person participation, office hours, and related activities for the duration of the fellowship (August 1, 2024 - July 1, 2025).

Application Deadline - Applicants should apply by Wednesday, November 1, 2023 (11:59 pm EST) for full consideration; however, posting will remain open until filled.

Application Process - All candidates must use the online application process to submit materials at: <https://www.princeton.edu/acad-positions/position/30941>.

Applicants are required to hold a Ph.D. or expect to receive a Ph.D. degree by August 1, 2024, in one of the above-mentioned disciplines. To apply, please provide the following:

*Cover letter explaining the candidate's scholarly career, prospective or actual doctoral defense date, and academic interests;

*Current curriculum vitae, including publications;

*2,000-word description of the proposed research project, including its specific objectives, importance, and research design;

*One writing sample (limit of 50 pages);

*Contact information for three references, who will be asked to comment specifically on the applicant's qualifications for the proposed research project. Referees will be contacted directly by email with instructions for submitting a confidential recommendation on your behalf. Letters of reference are to be submitted by the end of business day on Saturday, November 4, 2023. Complete your application well before the deadline so that references can be submitted on time.

Salary - Rank and salary will be contingent on qualifications. NCGG Fellows will receive applicable Princeton University benefits, a taxable moving allowance, and a $5,000 research fund. This is a one-year appointment.

Successful applicants will be notified of the outcome of their application in February 2024. This position is subject to the University's background check policy.

Hamilton College

Rank: Assistant Professor of Government

Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Public Policy, Public Administration

The Government Department at Hamilton College invites applications for three tenure-track positions at the rank of Assistant Professor, beginning July 1, 2024. The new hires will collectively cover courses in public policy, American politics, and research methods, allocated based on individual expertise. This coordinated hire is part of a commitment to nourishing a diverse learning community and increasing possibilities for exchange focused on issues related to equality and inequality. We actively encourage applications from candidates whose work investigates the politics and policy of equality and inequality along one or more of the following axes: race and ethnicity; gender; class; sexuality; ability; religion; and migrant, refugee, or citizenship status. We seek candidates trained in either or both quantitative and qualitative methods and with academic backgrounds in American Politics, Public Policy, or Public Administration. Beyond that, there are no restrictions on area focus.

We are seeking candidates who can demonstrate their experience in teaching or working with diverse student populations. Your cover letter should address ways in which you raise issues of diversity and inclusion in your teaching, scholarship, and/or service.

These positions require institutional service including academic advising of undergraduate students after the first year.

The Government Department is responsible for the study of politics and public affairs at Hamilton. The department, which is one of Hamilton's largest, currently includes 17 faculty members, 12 of whom are tenured or pre-tenure. Department faculty include specialists in American politics, comparative politics, international relations, political theory, and public policy, and we teach a wide variety of courses across all these subfields. Each year, we also hire two practitioners, each of whom teaches a single one-semester course. The Department offers three majors: Government, World Politics, and Public Policy. Taken together, these three majors total about 85 students a year.

Candidates with ABD will be considered (and hired at the Instructor level until successful completion of their dissertation), although candidates with a Ph.D. are preferred. The teaching load for these positions is four courses during the first year and five courses thereafter. The expected salary range for these positions is $88,000 to $94,100. Candidates should submit cover letter, c.v., a writing sample, evidence of teaching ability, and a list of references via Interfolio at <https://apply.interfolio.com/129439>. Questions regarding the search may be directed to Peter F. Cannavò, Search Committee Chair, at pcannavo@hamilton.edu. Our review of applications will begin on October 1, 2023.

Hamilton College is a residential liberal arts college located in upstate New York. The College has built its reputation on the teaching excellence and leading scholarship of its faculty, and on the academic distinction and intellectual curiosity of its approximately 2000 students who take advantage of Hamilton's open curriculum (<https://www.hamilton.edu/academics/open-curriculum>). Please visit the college website for more information (www.hamilton.edu).

Suffolk University

Rank: Assistant Professor of Political Science

Specializations: Race & Ethnic Politics, American Politics, African American Politics

The Political Science and Legal Studies (PSLS) Department at Suffolk University invites applicants for a full time, tenure-track position in American Politics and Public Policy. The Department is interested in recruiting a teacher scholar with a focus on civil rights and liberties, race and ethnic politics, the role of identity in politics, or the impact of economic, social, or political inequality on marginalized groups.

Candidates should provide evidence of commitment to excellent teaching and scholarly potential including a research agenda and plans for peer-reviewed publication. The successful candidate will teach at the undergraduate and graduate level; previous teaching experience is preferred. The PSLS department offers three undergraduate majors (political science, international relations, and law) and two graduate programs (Master's in Applied Politics and a Master's in Global Public Policy). We are looking for candidates who are excited about developing and teaching courses in American Politics, American Institutions and/or public policy. Research methods is also a need in the department.

The successful candidate will contribute to a rich tradition of community-engaged teaching and experiential education that prepares our diverse, substantially first-generation college students—40% of whom are Pell eligible—for careers and civic engagement. The successful candidate will have a commitment to inclusive pedagogy and curricular diversity, mentoring and advising students—especially first-generation college students—as well as conducting impactful research.

Not sure this is you? Contact us to find out! Research indicates that women and members of under-represented groups tend not to apply to jobs when they think they do not meet every qualification, when, in fact, they often do. Suffolk University is dedicated to a diverse and inclusive academic community. Familiarity with and experience using pedagogical methods that enable students across racial, ethnic, socio-economic, and ability groups to reach their maximum potential is a valuable qualification.

Faculty in the PSLS department are award-winning teachers recognized for innovative pedagogical practices, community leaders civically engaged in advancing social justice, internationally recognized policy and political consultants and active researchers and scholars. Department faculty take advantage of our location in the heart of Boston to design exciting real-world learning opportunities.

Diversity, equity and inclusion are woven into Suffolk University's very fabric. We have been providing access and expanding opportunities for under-represented groups for more than a century. This mission is lived through our decisions at every level. U.S. News ranked Suffolk University among the top 100 universities in the country for social mobility. Suffolk was also listed 14th nationally in percentage of international students. Through student, faculty and staff recruitment and support, community engagement, curriculum development, and research, the University community works to advance equity for every student, every day. Learn more about how we manifest the core values of our mission at Suffolk DEI.

Candidates must hold a PhD by the commencement of the 2024/2025 academic year; ABD candidates in the final stages of completing their degrees will be considered.

Application should be made through the Suffolk University Human Resources' Careers at Suffolk site. A complete submission will include: cover letter (including research agenda); CV; graduate transcripts; research writing sample; statement of teaching philosophy; student course evaluations; and contact information for three professional references. For full consideration, applications should be submitted by September 30. Initial interviews will be via Zoom followed by on-campus interviews. The department will also hold an information session at the 2023 APSA conference in August.

Suffolk University is a private, comprehensive, urban university located in downtown Boston, and is an equal opportunity employer committed to faculty diversity. Candidates from underrepresented groups are encouraged to apply. You can learn more about Suffolk University from our website. To learn more about the Political Science & Legal Studies department, go to our department website.

Inquiries about the position and the APSA information session should be addressed to Dr. Rachael Cobb, Chair of the PSLS Department at rcobb@suffolk.edu.
