Resources and Guidance on

Finding a Job in Political Science

Hundreds of academic positions are advertised each year in political science. Finding the openings is the easy part; knowing how to approach the application and interview process is a little more challenging. At APSA, we have collected resources to assist candidates in the academic job search. We would like to highlight a few of these key resources here. The complete list of job resources is available online at www.apsanet.org/jobs.

eJobs: This online resource contains comprehensive online listing of political science jobs, is updated daily with new job listings and candidate resumes, and is fully searchable by field of interest, name of employer/candidate, region, keyword, position, salary, type of institution, and most recent posts.

Data on Jobs Market: APSA gathers and releases data regarding the placement of political science Ph.Ds. View this information at www.apsanet.org/content\_7623.cfm.

Mentoring: Enroll in the APSA Mentoring Program online at www.apsanet.org/mentoring.

eJobs Placement Interview Services: The eJobs Annual Meeting Placement Interview Service provides space and facilities for employers who have eJobs posted to interview candidates at the APSA meeting. Many other conferences, such as the Northeastern and Western, also use the APSA online service to schedule placement interviews. Check the listings online in eJobs.

Ethics Guide: The APSA Guide to Professional Ethics in Political Science includes specific guidance on hiring and employment practices. Order a print copy or view online at www.apsanet.org/ethics.

Asking the Right Questions: APSA Job Candidate Questions to Ask Program

Asking the right questions provides valuable information for career decisions. As part of the APSA Job Candidate Questions to Ask (JCQ) Program participating political science departments have agreed to answer the following questions from job candidates.

Salary

1. What is the salary structure?
2. How is salary normally negotiated?
3. How are annual increases handled?
4. Is there an automatic escalator to ensure the salaries of future hires will not outpace those of existing department members?

Service Activities

1. What are the expectations of pre-tenure and tenured faculty regarding:
  - departmental and institutional committee work,
  - professional or disciplinary activities, and
  - outreach activities to communities external to institution?

Research Support

1. What departmental or institutional resources are available to support:
  - access to research materials and equipment,
  - the employment of research assistants,
  - research expenses on/off campus, and
  - travel expenses for conferences?

2. What departmental or institutional resources are available to seek external funding and to administer external funding awards?

Teaching Support

1. What departmental or institutional resources are available to support:
  - the development of teaching expertise,
  - innovations in teaching, and
  - the introduction of new courses and new technologies?
2. What are departmental expectations regarding:
  - the average course load,
  - the number of different courses taught by faculty, and
  - advising of graduate and undergraduate students?

Tenure, Renewal, and Annual Review

1. What policies and procedures govern the granting of tenure, renewal of contracts for pre-tenure faculty, and annual reviews of faculty performance?
2. What are the department's expectations for successful performance leading to the granting of tenure or renewal of contracts for pre-tenure faculty?
3. What are the department's expectations for a positive annual review?

Mentoring and Faculty Support Initiatives

1. What attention does the department give to integrating new faculty into the department, the institution, and in the profession?
2. Does the department or institution have programs that address:
  - the employment of dual-career professional couples,
  - family needs of faculty and staff, and
  - issues associated with minority faculty and staff?

Health and Life Insurance

1. What are the plans offered?
2. How are benefits disbursed?
3. What are the out-of-pocket expenses?
4. Are partners and/or children covered, and to what extent?
5. What portion of my paycheck will be deducted for these benefits?

Retirement

1. How many types of retirement plans are offered?
2. What is the matching percentage of the institution?
3. Is contribution required (and how much)?

Political Science Jobs for July

ADMINISTRATION

Simon Fraser University

Rank: Teaching Faculty Lecturer in International Security, Defence & Diplomacy, with support for the NATO Field School

Specializations: International Security, Defence, Intelligence

The Department of Political Science invites applications for a continuing Lecturer position in International Security, Defence and Diplomacy. The candidate will provide teaching and support to the NATO Field School (NFS) and teach introductory courses in Political Science and courses in their areas of expertise. The position will start when filled; preferred starting date is January 2025.

We seek candidates who have a strong background in International Security, Defence, and/or Diplomacy, as well as outstanding teaching skills in a diversity of classroom settings. Relevant experiences in experiential learning (hands-on learning, field exercises, summer schools, simulations, case studies, role-play exercises, peer group learning, etc.) are an asset.

Duties

The successful candidate will collaborate with the NFS Director in preparing and teaching the NFS. The NFS is a growing teaching and engagement endeavour with an emphasis on professional placement of its graduates.

In Political Science, the standard course load for lecturers is eight courses per year. The Collective Agreement stipulates that teaching faculty are to be released from their teaching duties one out every nine terms. This position will likely be paired with an additional role – involving logistical and administrative tasks to support the NFS – that will reduce the overall teaching load based on the level of support.

The NATO Field School and Simulation Program is an intensive political science experience that combines coursework with experiential learning. As one of the lead instructors, you are expected to:

- Act as a liaison between SFU and NATO, working closely with the Director.
- Accompany and guide students during their field school experience
- The NFS is held in Europe every summer. The candidate will be expected to travel for up to eight weeks per year in summer to support the field school.
- Help to set up the logistics and with recruitment and financial reporting for the field school.
- Teach courses and prepare lectures relevant to the topic.
- Set up simulations and other exercises to help students prepare for the field school.

Required Qualifications:

- The chosen candidate must hold a PhD in Political Science or in a related field, with research and/or teaching experience in Defence, Diplomacy, and/or International Security. Candidates with firm defence dates by December 2024 may be considered
- Candidates should have demonstrated teaching experience and potential for teaching excellence

Desirable Qualifications:

The following attributes will be considered as additional assets for the position:

- Academic expertise in at least one of the following areas: NATO; international institutions; interstate conflict, diplomacy and negotiations; North American security and defence; Indo-Pacific security and defence; alliances and multilateral security cooperation; interstate conflict, Canadian foreign policy; cyber information warfare and artificial intelligence

- Teaching experience in experiential and engagement courses, including field schools and security simulations for university students
- Professional experience in defence, diplomacy or international relations
- Related publications
- Teaching experience in large classes introductory classes particularly introductory courses in International Relations and Political Science

Candidates must submit the following documents in a single PDF to pol\_apply@sfu.ca:

- Cover letter
- Curriculum vitae
- Teaching portfolio demonstrating teaching excellence in experiential learning and simulations and discussing candidate's approach to equity, diversity and inclusion
- List of three possible referees, to be contacted if the candidate is short-listed

Full consideration will be given to applications submitted by September 5, 2024, however, we will continue to accept applications until the position is filled. Short-listed candidates will be contacted to have three letters of reference forwarded directly to the department via email at pol\_apply@sfu.ca

Faculty salaries at SFU are based on the salary scales bargained between the University and the SFU Faculty Association. A reasonable estimate of the salary range for this role is $98,340 to $114,241.

Simon Fraser University is an institution whose strength is based on our shared commitment to diversity, equity, and inclusion. Diversity is an underlying principle of our Strategic Vision, which pledges SFU to “foster a culture of inclusion and mutual respect, celebrating the diversity reflected among its students, faculty, staff, and our community.” SFU is committed to ensuring that no individual is denied access to employment opportunities for reasons unrelated to ability or qualifications. Consistent with this principle, SFU will advance the interests of underrepresented members of the work force, including Indigenous peoples, persons with disabilities, racialized persons, and women; embrace gender and sexual diversity; ensure that equal opportunity is afforded to all who seek employment at the University; and treat all employees equitably. Candidates that belong to underrepresented groups are particularly encouraged to apply.

SFU is consistently ranked among the top comprehensive universities in Canada and was recently ranked in the top 50 in the world for engaged research. The Department of Political Science at SFU has a growing number of faculty in diverse fields and is strongly supportive of faculty members' strengths, interests, and career progress. The department strongly believes in methodological pluralism. More information about the department and the university can be found on our website: <http://www.sfu.ca/politics.html>. The campus is located on Burnaby Mountain in Greater Vancouver. Vancouver is a scenic waterfront city located minutes from the mountains and a wide range of outdoor activities. It has a reputation as a clean, safe, multicultural, and ethnically diverse city and is one of the very top cities in the world in which to live and work.

All qualified candidates are encouraged to apply; however, Canadian citizens and permanent residents will be given priority. This position is subject to the availability of funding.

Personal information that forms part of an application is collected under the general authority of the Freedom of Information and Protection of Privacy Act, applicable University Policies, and the SFUFA/SFU Collective Agreement. For further details see the full Collection Notice.

AMERICAN GOVERNMENT AND POLITICS

Loyola University Maryland

Rank: Per course Instructor in American Politics

Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Public Policy, Other

Specializations: Congress, Electoral Behavior, Political Behavior

The Department of Political Science at Loyola University Maryland invites applications to teach undergraduate American Politics courses in-person for the Spring 2025 semester. We seek instructors capable of teaching in their area of expertise, in one or more of nearly any area of American Politics (for example, Political Parties, Campaigns and Elections, Public Policy, Public Opinion, Media and Politics, Political Psychology, Social Movements). The instructor would teach in a part-time, non-tenure track capacity but may be able to teach multiple sections of the same course.

The Political Science Department has a strong teaching culture. We especially value candidates who have a strong interest in teaching undergraduates and who are able to implement thoughtful, intentional pedagogies that support the learning of a wide range of students.

A Ph.D. or A.B.D. in Political Science is required. College/university teaching experience is strongly preferred. Aside from holding office hours with students, no committee assignments or service requirements will be associated with the position.

Loyola University Maryland is a dynamic, highly selective, Jesuit Catholic university in the liberal arts tradition. It is highly ranked among the leading independent, comprehensive universities in the northeastern United States. Committed to intellectual excellence, diversity, and social justice, the University enrolls over 4,000 students in its undergraduate programs and more than 3,000 students in its graduate programs.

Loyola University Maryland strongly values the benefits that diversity brings to the workplace. In accord with its Ignatian values, the University is committed to creating and promoting a community that recognizes the inherent value and dignity of each person. Loyola University Maryland does not discriminate on the basis of race, sex, color, national or ethnic origin, age, religion, disability, marital status, sexual orientation, gender identity, genetic information, military status, or any other legally protected classification. The University recruits, hires, and promotes in accord with this policy and its Core Values.

To begin the application process, please send a curriculum vitae with a statement of interest. Eventually, we will ask for letters of reference, a graduate transcript, teaching evaluations (if available), and a cover letter explaining teaching interests and experience in relation to Loyola's educational mission. Application materials should be submitted to Political Science Department Chair Dr. Carsten Vala at cvala@loyola.edu, who is also available to answer questions. The search committee will begin screening applications immediately and continue until the position is filled.

Salary range: $4,000 - $4,500 per course (without and with PhD)

Rank: Assistant Professor in American Politics

Specializations: American Politics, Race & Ethnic Politics, Gender Politics & Policy

Tenure Track Faculty Position

Assistant Professor in American Politics

Department of Political Science

Cal Poly Pomona

Position description

The faculty member will primarily teach undergraduate classes in American Politics. All areas of specialization within American Politics will be considered. The faculty member will be expected to teach Introduction to American Government, a general education course required for all students at the university, and in addition, contribute to teaching upper-division major courses in both institutions and political behavior. A faculty member could potentially demonstrate a teaching and scholarly interest in gender, identity, intersectionality, and/or race and ethnic politics. The department also welcomes the new faculty member to introduce or teach upper-division major courses based on the lived experiences of racial and ethnic minorities, such as Black Politics and/or Indigenous Politics.

The faculty member will be part of a collegial Political Science Department that grants both B.A. degrees and M.P.A. (Master's in Public Administration) degrees. The position requires excellence in teaching and advising, professional and scholarly achievements, and a commitment to service to the university. Applicants whose work demonstrates a commitment to inclusive excellence and diversity in higher education are particularly encouraged to apply. Cal Poly Pomona is a Hispanic-serving institution, and the faculty member will be an advisor to many under-represented minorities and first-generation college students.

Minimum requirements include:

*Ph.D. in Political Science from an accredited university at the time of appointment (Degree must be conferred by the start date of the position.)

*Demonstrated commitment to inclusivity and equity. Evidence should be provided in a Student Success Statement that responds to the prompt above - "Inclusive Excellence and Student Success"

*Ability to teach courses in the political science curriculum, specifically within the American politics subfield.

*University teaching experience as instructor of record and/or teaching assistant

*Evidence of scholarly potential (conference presentations, publications, grant development, etc.)

*Evidence of demonstrated ability to contribute to the diversity and excellence of the academic community through research, teaching, and/or service and work, as well as experience fostering an inclusive environment

Preferred/Desired Qualifications:

*(Research interests related, but not limited to: social or racial justice, gender inequities, inequality, intersectionality, feminism, political and racial violence, voting rights, social movements and political resistance, tribal politics, and/or the continued impact of colonialism in the US.

*Teaching or scholarly interest in gender, identity, intersectionality, and/or race and ethnic politics.

*The ability to introduce or teach upper-division courses based on the lived experiences of Black Americans and/or Indigenous Americans.

*Preference will be given to candidates who can demonstrate the ability to mentor and advise under-served populations including, but not limited to, Asian American, Pacific Islander, Black, Latino/e, and Indigenous students.

*Preference will be given to candidates with a scholarly expertise in Black politics and/or Indigenous politics.

*Ability to teach a range of courses, such as undergraduate, graduate, and high impact classes

*Experience in curriculum development and assessment

Conditions of Employment:

The person offered this position is required to pass a background check.

Application Process:

A completed application will consist of:

*Cover letter in which you describe your interest in the position, teaching performance, research experience and interests, and how you meet the duties and qualifications articulated in the position description;

*A Student Success Statement (up to 2 pages, single-spaced) that responds to the prompt below - "Inclusive Excellence and Student Success" and addresses at least two of the inclusive excellence criteria listed (please indicate the criteria numbers in your Statement);

*Curriculum vitae;

*The names and contact information for at least three individuals who can serve as references;

*Unofficial transcripts (undergraduate and graduate, official transcripts will be required of finalists).

Finalists for the position will:

*be required to provide official transcripts for highest degree before the on-campus interview;

*be required to provide three letters of reference dated within the last two years;

*be expected to make a presentation of creative work and a teaching demonstration to faculty and interact with students.

The position is open until filled. First consideration will be given to completed applications received no later than Monday, September 16, 2024.

Applications accepted only via PageUp— <https://careers.cpp.edu/en-us/job/540751/political-scienceassistant-professor> —for University hires.

Department of Political Science. The Political Science Department offers a bachelor's degree in Political Science with courses in six subfields: American Politics, Public Administration, Public Law, Political Theory, International Relations, and Comparative Politics. We also offer a master's degree in Public Administration. The undergraduate program values research, with a strong capstone program, offering majors the opportunity to complete a senior project centered around a public-service internship or thesis. We also offer and prioritize several polytechnic, small-group experiences including National Model United Nations, Model Organization of American States, Judicial Internship, and department Study Away/Study Abroad programs (e.g., Sacramento, Iowa Caucuses, Japan, Italy, England). Applicants with a commitment to rigorous academic inquiry, practical experiential learning, and contributions to public service are encouraged to apply. Please visit our department webpage if you are considering applying: <https://www.cpp.edu/class/political-science/>.

Cal Poly Pomona. The university has a student body with diverse socio-economic and cultural backgrounds and learning styles. The Department is looking for faculty who can thrive and contribute meaningfully in this environment. Our majors reflect the diversity of the overall university student population. The department currently has over 400 major students, including over 40 graduate students. Sixty percent of our majors are first generation and 70% identify with a minoritized group. The major enrolls a diverse student body that identifies as 64% Latinx, 14% White, 8% Asian, 5% Black, 3% two or more races, 3% international, 3% unknown, and less than 1% Native Hawaiian or Native Pacific Islander. We value faculty who can inspire students through their teaching, but also, who can inspire students through teaching and mentorship in research.

Cal Poly Pomona is one of three polytechnic universities in the 23-campus California State University system and among 12 such institutions nationwide. Since its founding in 1938, Cal Poly Pomona students participate in an integrative experiential learning education that is inclusive, relevant, and values diverse perspectives and experiences. With a variety of degree programs in the arts, humanities, sciences, engineering, and professional disciplines, the university is well known for its learn- by-doing approach and Teacher Scholar Model.

The university is noted for its scenic and historic 1,400-acre campus, which was once the winter ranch of cereal magnate W.K. Kellogg. We acknowledge that Cal Poly Pomona resides on the territorial and homelands of the Tongva and Tataavium people who are the traditional land caretakers of Tovaangar. The university's nearly 30,000 students are taught and mentored by the campus's more than 1,400 faculty as part of 54 baccalaureate and 29 master's degree programs, 11 credential and certificate programs, and a doctorate in educational leadership.

Highly regarded among its peer institutions, Cal Poly Pomona is No. 2 in the U.S. News and World Report rankings of top public regional universities in the west and was named the No. 28 best value college in the nation by Money Magazine. Cal Poly Pomona, a Hispanic-Serving Institution and an Asian American and Native American Pacific Islander-Serving Institution, stands as a national leader in promoting social mobility, and was placed among the 25 top institutions in the country in awarding bachelor's degrees to minoritized students by Diverse Issues in Higher Education. In 2022, the campus launched the Black Thriving Initiative recognizing that Cal Poly Pomona's future as a university is linked to the success of its Black community. More information about our campus initiatives and our Principles of Community can be found on the Office of Inclusive Excellence's website: <https://www.cpp.edu/inclusive-excellence/>

The Cal Poly Pomona campus is located less than 30 miles east of downtown Los Angeles at the intersection of Los Angeles, Orange, Riverside and San Bernardino counties. It is within an hour's drive of beaches, mountains and deserts. For additional information about the university, please visit www.cpp.edu, and for more about faculty life, please see <https://www.cpp.edu/yourlife/>.

Student Population. Cal Poly Pomona is the number one polytechnic university in the nation for student diversity and economic mobility. Our caring and inclusive campus community is committed to helping anyone who dreams of success achieve it. In Fall 2023, Cal Poly Pomona served more than 24,000 students and close to 2,000 graduate students, mostly residents of California. Over half of Cal Poly Pomona students are first-generation college students, 70% receive financial aid, and 42% are low-income students. The university enrolls 56% percent of historically underrepresented students. Our diverse student body identifies as 53% Hispanic/Latinx, 22% Asian, 13% White, 4% two or more races, 3% unknown, 3% African American/Black, 2% International, less than 1% Native Hawaiian or Pacific Islander, and less than 1% Native American. Forty-three percent of students enroll in our STEM majors and our top five enrolled programs across the university include mechanical engineering, computer science, civil engineering, psychology, as well as finance, real estate, and law.

Inclusive Excellence and Student Success. We aspire to be the model inclusive polytechnic university in the nation. We have a strong commitment to inclusive excellence and to educational experiences that leverage the diverse perspectives and experiences needed to succeed and thrive in a diverse society.

*As a part of the application for faculty positions, all candidates must submit a Student Success Statement that demonstrates their commitment and record of contributions to diversity and equity through their teaching, scholarship, or service by speaking to at least two of the inclusive excellence criteria below.

Candidates should explain how they have engaged in the criteria below in their pedagogy, scholarship, and/or service, as well as the level to which these efforts have been consistently incorporated into their work.

Inclusive Excellence Criteria:

1. Incorporates the contributions and struggles of historic ethnic minority groups or other disadvantaged communities into their teaching, scholarly work, and/or service contributions;
2. Adopts teaching strategies that support the learning and success of students from diverse student populations;
3. Mentors and engages diverse student populations in discovery, scholarship, and creative activities;
4. Engages students in problem-based projects and learning that address the needs of diverse communities;
5. Possesses knowledge of challenges and barriers for underrepresented students and faculty within the discipline and uses it to inform their work in specific ways;
6. Mentors and assists diverse student populations interested in pursuing graduate education;
7. Engages in community-responsive action research or service with diverse student populations and communities;
8. Has experience in or demonstrates a commitment to adopting experiential learning activities and pedagogy with diverse student populations and communities; and

9. Has expertise in or demonstrated commitment to teaching, scholarship and/or service that contributes to access, diversity, and equal opportunity in higher education.

St. Olaf College

Specializations: American Politics, Constitutional Law & Theory, Race & Ethnic Politics

The Department of Political Science at St. Olaf College invites applications for a full-time, tenure track position in American Politics, with a primary focus on institutions and/or law, at the Assistant Professor level, to begin August 2025. Preference will be given to candidates who specialize in race, gender, sexuality, and/or economic inequality, who have a broad background in the discipline, and whose research and teaching interests speak to contemporary public concerns.

The teaching responsibilities, five courses per year, would include Introduction to American Politics as well as upper-level courses depending on the scholar's areas of research and teaching interest, such as courses on Congress, the presidency, the courts, state politics, or constitutional law. We expect that the person who fills this position will contribute to our department as a creative teacher, an engaged scholar, and a collaborative colleague.

Qualifications

A Ph.D. in Political Science or a related field completed by the start of the fall semester is preferred, but ABD candidates will be considered.

About the Department

We are a collegial department, with two faculty members teaching regularly in each of the four subfields. We are committed to supporting our colleagues in their pursuit of creative and thoughtful pedagogy and rigorous scholarship. For more information about the department, visit wp.stolaf.edu/poli-sci/.

How to Apply

Submit application at: <https://tinyurl.com/4zxwjpdt>

A complete application includes the following:

- References: Provide contact information for three professional references who can speak to your abilities in teaching and scholarship.
- Cover letter outlining your qualifications and why you are interested in this particular position
- Curriculum vitae
- Diversity statement (500 word limit): Describe how you would contribute to the development of a diverse and inclusive learning community at our college through your teaching, research, and/or service. Include examples of your contributions when possible.
- Graduate transcripts (unofficial)

Evidence of Teaching Excellence, including a statement of teaching philosophy, focused on pedagogy in and out of the classroom at a liberal arts college

Research Statement focused on your current scholarship and plans for future scholarship

Writing sample

Review of applications will begin on September 20, 2024, and will continue until the position is filled. Applications received by that date will receive fullest consideration. Finalist interviews are expected in November. Questions about the position, department, or College may be directed to Menevis Cilizoglu, Search Committee Chair, at tt2025ps@stolaf.edu.

Williams College

Rank: Assistant Professor of Political Science

The Political Science Department at Williams College seeks an Assistant Professor of Political Science with scholarly expertise in American political institutions and public policy. We seek a colleague who has a record of excellence in research and is committed to inclusive undergraduate education. The typical teaching load is four courses each year (2-2) plus a Winter Study (January term) course every other year; successful candidates will be able to teach Introduction to American Politics as well as a course on Congress and additional courses in their areas of interest. This tenure track appointment will begin in the 2025–2026 academic year. We welcome applications from members of groups traditionally underrepresented in the field. Candidates should have the Ph.D. completed by June 2025.

Application items should include: a cover letter detailing scholarly interests as well as teaching experience; a curriculum vitae; a writing sample of only one article or chapter; and three letters of recommendation. We ask you to write in your cover letter about your ability to work effectively with a student population that is broadly diverse with regard to gender, race, ethnicity, nationality, sexual orientation, and religion. Candidates invited to the first round of (Zoom) interviews will be asked at that time to provide sample syllabi and evidence of teaching effectiveness.

The deadline for the submission of applications is September 10 for full consideration. All application materials should be submitted through Interfolio [<https://apply.interfolio.com/148629>]. Fax and email applications will not be accepted. Inquiries may be sent to Erin Malloy at emb8@williams.edu. All offers of employment are contingent upon completion of a background check. Further information is available here: <https://faculty.williams.edu/prospective-faculty/background-check-policy/>

The Political Science department has a strong commitment to professional development which includes regular opportunities to present work in progress. Williams College offers additional professional development opportunities, including the college's First3 program as well as programming organized by the Rice Center for Teaching and the NCFDD, among other mentoring initiatives.

Williams College is a liberal arts institution located in the Berkshire Hills of western Massachusetts. The college has built its reputation on outstanding teaching and scholarship and on the academic excellence of its approximately 2,000 students. Please visit the Williams College website (<http://www.williams.edu>) to learn more about the College and in particular its professional development resources for faculty. Beyond meeting fully its legal obligations for non-discrimination, Williams College is committed to building a diverse and inclusive community where members from all backgrounds can live, learn, and thrive.

APSA

Rank: Director, Congressional Fellowship Program

POSITION SUMMARY:

The Director oversees and manages the American Political Science Association Congressional Fellowship Program (CFP). CFP is a highly selective, nonpartisan program for mid-career professionals devoted to expanding knowledge and awareness of Congress. Since 1953, it has brought select political scientists, journalists, federal employees, health specialists, and other professionals to Capitol Hill to experience Congress at work through fellowship placements on congressional staffs. The Director is responsible for the full cycle of the program beginning with the recruitment and training of fellows through the creation of seminars and enrichment opportunities for program alumni. The Director is also responsible for relations with the advisory board and partner organizations, as well as the strategic direction of the program.

About The University of Southern Mississippi

Since our founding in 1910, The University of Southern Mississippi has remained dedicated to preparing students for success. We deliver programs to more than 13,000 students in Hattiesburg and Long Beach, at teaching and research sites across the Mississippi Gulf Coast, as well as online. We are a community-engaged Carnegie R1 university, earning distinction as one of the nation's leading research institutions.

Southern Miss is known for pioneering work in polymer science, ocean science, spectator sports safety and security, and bringing language to children with communication disorders. We are also a national leader in a broad range of disciplines, including cybersecurity, hydrography, nutrition, aquaculture, kinesiology, and economic development, among others.

We produce graduates ready to enter fields that are leading the way in emerging technologies through programs such as computer engineering, information technology, and ocean engineering. We're developing the next generation of business leaders, while also responding to critical workforce shortages by producing skilled professionals in education and nursing. With a tradition of excellence in the arts, we are one of only 36 public institutions in the nation accredited in four major areas of the arts. Home to the Golden Eagles, our student-athletes compete in 17 NCAA Division I sports. With a culture marked by passion and persistence, Southern Miss is delivering graduates who are ready for life. For more information, visit www.usm.edu.

USC Sol Price School of Public Policy

Rank: Professor of Public Policy and Management; Bedrosian Chair in Governance and the Public Enterprise

Subfield(s): Public Policy, Public Administration, American Government and Politics

Position Description and Qualifications

The Sol Price School of Public Policy at the University of Southern California seeks a senior faculty member at the rank of professor (tenured) in the Public Policy and Management Department to serve as the Bedrosian Chair in Governance and the Public Enterprise. The individual will have a stellar record of scholarship and leadership in governance and the public enterprise. Of particular interest will be a focus on civic engagement, democratic processes and institutions, collective action, public policy processes and analytics, and public/nonprofit management. We are interested in scholars from all relevant disciplines as well as an interest in a wide array of issue areas that are part of the School's portfolio. Applicants must present evidence of a creative, vibrant and intellectually rigorous research agenda and significant accomplishments in their field. The candidate will also serve as Director of the Bedrosian Center for Governance and the Public Enterprise and is expected to develop and execute public facing programs on Democracy and Governance, including highly visible related policy discussions.

About the Bedrosian Center

The Judith and John Bedrosian Center on Governance and the Public Enterprise was established with a generous gift from Judith and John Bedrosian in 2004. Effective governance is essential to the quality of life of all Americans. The center is dedicated to understanding and improving the nature of democratic governance, policymaking, and management of the public enterprise in the 21st century. The center provides a highly visible focal point for imaginative research, policy analysis, and dialogue across the university. Through public discussion, the center focuses on pressing issues facing society and integrates conversations with civic education, which is at the heart of strong communities.

Public Religion Research Institute (PRRI)

Subfield(s): Public Policy, American Government and Politics, Comparative Politics

Specializations: Religion & Politics, African American Politics, Immigration Policy

Open Call for Fellows

PRRI (Public Religion Research Institute)

The application deadline is Friday, June 28, 2024.

PRRI is announcing an opportunity to join a diverse cohort of 15 non-residential Public Fellows who are engaged in public scholarship at the intersection of religion, culture, and politics: <https://www.ppri.org/about/careers-and-fellowships/>

PRRI Public Fellows will work alongside the organization's research and communications staff during the 2024-2025 academic year (August to July). This 11-month fellowship includes a stipend, support for a course release during the spring semester, and access to microgrants to support collaborative research. The PRRI fellowship will benefit those who want to shape their work for broader public consumption, receive communications support for placing public-facing work in top-tier media outlets, and integrate quantitative data into their research and teaching. Successful fellows will be eligible to apply for a one-time renewal at the end of the program year, but are not guaranteed renewal.

As a part of PRRI's Religion and Renewing Democracy Initiative, the organization is seeking applicants whose research agendas align with one of five principal vectors of PRRI's ongoing work: 1) religious, racial, and ethnic pluralism; 2) racial justice and white supremacy; 3) immigration and migration studies; 4) LGBTQ rights, and, new this year, (5) reproductive health and rights. In each area of scholarship, PRRI will select three Public Fellows.

The ideal candidates are mid-career scholars (three to twelve years since earning a terminal degree) who have an aptitude and track record of socially engaged or public scholarship. PRRI is seeking a diverse cohort in terms of academic disciplines (social sciences, humanistic social sciences, and the humanities), research methods (qualitative, quantitative, and mixed methods), types of institutions (college, university, seminary, or a research institute housed within an academic institution), and geographic location. PRRI encourages applications from women, people of color, and other members of under-represented groups who will contribute to the diversity of the cohort.

Fellowship Benefits:

PRRI Public Fellows in the 2024-2025 cohort will receive the following:

An 11-month fellowship with a cohort of 15 diverse scholars (three from each area of PRRI's core areas of work) engaged in public scholarship;

Fellowship stipend of $5,000;

Course release funds up to $10,000 for the Spring 2025 semester; Access to annual microgrants of $10,000 in each area of PRRI's work for new interdisciplinary scholarly projects within the cohort;

Monthly meetings and quarterly trainings and workshops;

An in-person convening in Washington, D.C., with travel expenses paid by PRRI. During the convening, Fellows will meet with writers from major media outlets, receive media training from PRRI's communications consultants, and dialogue with experts in writing for trade, crossover, and non-academic books;

Advance access to PRRI data and archives;

Collaborative work with PRRI's research and communications teams; For Fellows from non-quantitative backgrounds, PRRI will provide training, support, and advice on how to connect public-opinion survey research to their field of expertise

Application Requirements:

Applicants for the PRRI Public Fellows program must meet the following requirements:

Fellows must have a Ph.D. or comparable terminal degree plus a formal affiliation with an accredited college, university, seminary, or research institute in the United States;

Fellows must have earned their terminal degree at least three years ago and no more than 12 years ago;

Fellows should have demonstrable academic expertise in at least one of the five areas of PRRI's work (religious, racial and ethnic pluralism; racial justice and white supremacy; immigration and migration studies; reproductive health and rights; and LGBTQ rights);

Fellows must be authorized to work in the United States

Application Process:

To apply for a fellowship, please follow this link. The application includes:

Statement of interest: in 800 words or less, please explain your interest in pursuing this fellowship opportunity and your professional development goals in public scholarship.

Current curriculum vitae

Work samples: please provide links to and PDF copies of three articles, op-eds, or blogs published within the last three years, preferably in publications or sites aimed at the general public. These samples should be your best recent work.

The application deadline is Friday, June 28, 2024. For questions, please contact PRRI at public.fellows@publicreligion.org

About PRRI:

Public Religion Research Institute (PRRI), founded in 2009, is a nonprofit, nonpartisan organization dedicated to conducting independent research at the intersection of religion, culture, and politics. PRRI research explores and illuminates America's changing cultural, religious, and political landscape. The organization's mission is to help journalists, scholars, thought leaders, clergy, and the public better understand debates on public policy issues, and the important cultural and religious dynamics shaping American society and politics.

Michigan State University

Rank: Assistant Professor

Specializations: African American Politics, Native American Politics, Race & Ethnic Politics

James Madison College at Michigan State University invites applications for a tenure-track assistant professor position in Political Theory and Constitutional Democracy (PTCD). James Madison College engages undergraduates in a liberal arts education in public affairs in a residential college setting within a broader research-intensive university. The Political Theory and Constitutional Democracy major is an interdisciplinary field of public affairs. It focuses on liberal constitutional democracy (its origins, practice, critics, and defenders) from the perspective of political philosophy.

We seek a teacher-scholar broadly trained in the history of political theory that supports curriculum in Black political thought (American and comparative), as well as radical perspectives on modern constitutional democracy. Areas of research and teaching focus include African-American politics, comparative Black political thought, and radical political theory. In addition to these requirements, preferred areas of interest include: colonialism studies, Native-American studies, Indigenous studies, American constitutional politics, or modern political theory. Preference will be given to candidates who can teach elective courses cross-listed between PTCD and Social Relations and Policy majors.

Successful candidates will have demonstrated ability to teach core courses in the history of political thought combining serious study of canonical texts as well as authors/voices from outside the canon, with a view to the present and future of constitutional democracy. Applicants should also be able to contribute to the broader interdisciplinary curriculum of the major and the college, including the first-year sequence. The successful candidate will be expected to maintain an active scholarly agenda in their respective field(s). The College is especially interested in candidates who can contribute, through their teaching, research and/or service, to the diversity and excellence of the academic community.

For more information, please see the college website: <https://jmc.msu.edu> and the full position description at <https://careers.msu.edu>.

Ph.D. in a related field is required by August 16th, 2025.

Applications must be submitted electronically to the Michigan State University Human Resources web site: <https://careers.msu.edu>. Please see posting number 955409 for complete instructions on how to apply. Review of applications will begin on September 20th, 2024, and will continue until the position is filled. Please contact Katie Dyjach (dyjachk@msu.edu) with any questions.

MSU is an Affirmative Action/Equal opportunity employer. MSU is committed to achieving excellence through cultural diversity. The university actively encourages applications and/or nominations of women, persons of color, veterans, and persons with disabilities.

College of Wooster

Rank: Visiting Assistant Professor U.S. Politics

The Department of Political Science at The College of Wooster invites applications for a two-year position in U.S. Politics at the level of Visiting Assistant Professor or Visiting Instructor beginning August 2024. We are looking for a broadly trained specialist in U.S. Politics. We are especially interested in scholars whose work critically examines campaigns and elections, the U.S. legal system, voting rights, state and local politics, and/or race and ethnicity in U.S. politics. The successful candidate should have a demonstrated ability to teach introductory and upper-level courses in their area of specialty and supervise independent research projects in U.S. Politics as part of the College's Senior Independent Study (I.S.) requirement. In addition, we are interested in candidates whose research and teaching connect with: College curricular initiatives such as Social Justice and/or Power, Privilege, Race, and Ethnicity; and/or interdisciplinary programs or majors at the College, such as our Activism & Social Justice Pathway and/or Women's Gender and Sexuality Studies, Urban Studies, or Africana Studies majors. The teaching load is 6 courses per year, which includes credited mentoring for student I.S. projects.

The department has eight full-time faculty members and graduates approximately 35-40 majors annually, many of whom pursue advanced study or careers in public policy, law, research, political campaigns and public service, or a wide variety of social justice and community organizing initiatives. Current faculty research areas include: administrative processes for disaster, healthcare, nuclear energy, and foreign policy decision-making; environmental policy and public goods provision; gender and politics; political leadership within international organizations; political violence and human rights; and political theory and analysis of political concepts. For more information, please see: <https://wooster.edu/area/political-science/>.

We prefer candidates who have had previous independent teaching experience and will have completed their Ph.D. by the time of appointment, or are advanced graduate students or instructors. Applicants should submit a letter of application (which addresses their teaching and research expertise and ability to teach diverse students at a liberal arts college), curriculum vitae, evidence of effective teaching (including syllabi and summaries of student evaluations) at latest by the posted deadline. Additional materials including unofficial graduate transcripts, and two letters of recommendation will be required if a candidate proceeds to a final round interview and before a hire offer can be made. We will begin reviewing applications on a rolling basis and applications received at <http://apply.interfolio.com/146695> by June 25, 2024, will receive full consideration. Please contact Désirée Weber (dweber@wooster.edu), Chair and Associate Professor of Political Science, with any questions.

The College of Wooster is an independent college of the liberal arts and sciences with a commitment to excellence in undergraduate education. We enroll a racially, socioeconomically, and culturally diverse student population of approximately 2,000 undergraduate students, of which 6% identify as Latinx; 9%, as Black/African American; 4%, as Asian; 4%, as multiracial; and 61%, as white. Fifteen percent (15%) of our students are studying on international visas.

Twenty-five percent (25 %) are Pell-eligible and 11% are first-generation college students. We are interested in hiring faculty who can contribute to the intellectual vibrancy of the community through culturally relevant pedagogy, curricular diversity, intercultural fluency, and a commitment to ensuring equitable outcomes for racially and ethnically minoritized and marginalized student groups.

Texas National Security Review

Rank: Executive Editor for Scholarly Journal on National Security

The Texas National Security Review (TNSR, ) is seeking a motivated, detail-oriented, and energetic executive editor. We are looking for candidates eager to lead what has become one of the world's premier journals on international security. This is a full-time role.

This is not a remote position. We are on a hybrid schedule of three days a week in the office (T, W, Th) in Washington, DC. We will therefore only consider candidates who live in the Washington metro area or who are willing to relocate there. This role also requires travel to major academic conferences relevant to the journal's mission.

The executive editor reports directly to Ryan Evans, the journal's publisher. The executive editor also coordinates closely with editorial board chair, as well as the leadership staff at the Clements Center for National Security and the Strauss Center for International Security and Law -- both at the University of Texas, Austin. The executive editor also supervises our managing editor and production editor, as well as our part-time associate editors, who play a key role in shepherding manuscripts through the editorial process.

The executive editor will be primarily responsible for the following:

- Soliciting excellent manuscripts from both emerging and top scholars and key policymakers, and making timely and constructive decisions on suitability and peer review

- Ensuring and improving TNSR's "best in field" reputation for constructive and timely peer review and time from submission to publication

- Serving as an intellectual spokesperson and evangelizer for TNSR, especially to academic audiences

- Creating day-to-day editorial, production, communication, and management processes to maintain and build upon TNSR's intellectual vision and reputation for excellence

- Tracking submissions, as well as demographic data, and producing regular data-informed reports on performance

This job requires intellectual curiosity as well as stellar management and communication skills. The ideal candidate will be curious to identify and explore the world's biggest questions, enjoy working with the world's best scholars and practitioners, be committed to building TNSR's brand and audience, and have a desire to challenge the stale customs of academic publishing.

About the Publication:

TNSR is a print and online journal is dedicated to publishing accessible, rigorous, peer-reviewed scholarship relevant to international and national security policy from a broad range of disciplinary perspectives, as well as insightful articles from leading policy professionals. TNSR is dedicated to providing an influential, widely read platform for thoughtful decision-makers, national security professionals, and scholars. TNSR is produced by War on the Rocks in partnership with the University of Texas at Austin. War on the Rocks is the flagship publication of , a D.C.-based media company.

A cover letter is required, along with your CV. In your cover letter, please include an amusing story about yourself. If the job website you see this on does not allow you to submit a cover letter, . Before applying, please read &quot;&quot; from our first issue.

Requirements:

Three years of editorial experience. This does not mean you need to have been employed as an editor, but you should be able to demonstrate that a past position has involved serious and sustained word-smithing

Strong background in history, international relations, security studies, and/or strategic studies. This must include familiarity with the relevant academic literature

A Ph.D. in one of these fields, or a closely related one

Exceptional and obsessive attention to detail

Cross-disciplinary credentials and familiarity with historical and ongoing strategic debates in the United States

Exceptional and elegant written English

Patience and rigor

Ability to work collegially with others and flexibly as part of a small team

Right to work in the United States

Preferred:

A record of practitioner experience — in civilian government service, as a Congressional staff member, as a policymaker, in the armed services, or a combination of these

Experience managing non-academic projects, processes, and people

Benefits:

Fully covered medical, dental, and vision insurance premiums

Competitive salary

University of California, Los Angeles

Rank: Postdoc, Impact Data and Evidence Aggregation Library

Description:

The Center for Effective Global Action (CEGA), headquartered at the University of California, Berkeley, seeks an outstanding Postdoctoral Scholar (postdoc) to support the creation of the Impact Data and Evidence Aggregation Library (IDEAL)—a fully open-access library where users can search, compare, and visualize relative effect sizes from randomized controlled trials (RCTs) on a range of outcomes and for many different policy interventions across countries and contexts. The postdoc will report to CEGA's co-Faculty Director Edward Miguel, collaborate closely with CEGA affiliate Graeme Blair, and manage a large team of researchers for pilot data extraction.

Key Responsibilities:

The postdoc will collaborate with Professor Miguel, Professor Graeme Blair (UCLA), and co-investigators in economics and political science from CEGA's academic network to develop IDEAL. The work will begin with a pilot in which the candidate will oversee the extraction of a minimum set of fields for a curated initial set of 1,000 studies, and develop protocols for the library's ongoing growth and maintenance. The postdoc will oversee a team of 5-10 research associates, providing them with regular technical input and managing their workflow. The postdoc will also coordinate with the other engaged research teams at the World Bank, University of Toronto, and Northwestern's Global Poverty Research Lab (GPRL). In addition, the postdoc will help design the platform that researchers and policymakers will use to query the resulting data and support the identification of (and engagement with) potential policy partners. The postdoc would be encouraged to spend 33% of their time on individual research pursuits.

Required Qualification:

A PhD in Political Science, Economics, Statistics, or a related field at the time of starting the position.

Preferred Qualifications:

Existing research agenda, with record of academic publication, related to international development, evidence aggregation, and/or the design of randomized experiments.

1-3 years experience conducting empirical research on development topics, with an in-depth understanding of experimental design and analysis;

1-3 years experience and competency with statistical software packages (Stata, R, and/or Python) and data collection platforms (e.g., SurveyCTO), and ability to render accurate statistical analysis;

1-3 years experience translating complex material/research to broad, non-technical audiences;

1-3 years experience managing large research teams;

Ability to independently investigate solutions to technical problems; Outstanding written and oral communication skills, with the ability to translate complex scientific findings into accessible, non-technical language (via publications or professional presentations);

Ability to work well with teams, and communicate effectively with colleagues and faculty.

Ability to interact with individuals at all levels in a fast-paced environment, sometimes under pressure, while remaining flexible, proactive, tactful, resourceful, and efficient, and with a high level of professionalism and confidentiality.

Salary and Benefits:

This is a two-year full-time position with possibility for extension pending funding. Starting annual salary for this position is set at $90,000 and standard UC Berkeley postdoc benefits will be provided.

Rank: Assistant Professor of Politics

Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Public Policy, Political Theory

Assistant Professor of Politics (American Politics)

The Department of Politics at The Catholic University of America invites applications for a tenure-track faculty appointment in American politics, to begin in the fall of 2024. We are interested in a candidate with a range of interests, including but not limited to public opinion, ideology, political parties, elections, and the presidency. The successful candidate could also play an important advisory role for our Washington, D.C. internship programs. The department especially welcomes applicants whose research interests complement its traditional strengths in historical, theoretical, and institutional perspectives.

Situated on a large and beautiful campus, Catholic University is only three metro stops from the Capitol. Politics is one of the largest majors on campus, attracting many students who value the community of a Catholic university while pursuing careers related to politics and law in the nation's capital. The department's Ph.D program has a long and distinguished history, and the development of professionally minded M.A. programs is a university priority.

We seek candidates who understand, are enthusiastic about, and will make a significant contribution to the mission of the University, which reads as follows: "As the national university of the Catholic Church in the United States, founded and sponsored by the bishops of the country with the approval of the Holy See, The Catholic University of America is committed to being a comprehensive Catholic and American institution of higher learning, faithful to the teachings of Jesus Christ as handed on by the Church. Dedicated to advancing the dialogue between faith and reason, The Catholic University of America seeks to discover and impart the truth through excellence in teaching and research, all in service to the Church, the nation and the world."

Applicants should submit a cover letter, a curriculum vitae, a statement of current research and future research plans, a statement of teaching philosophy, graduate school transcript, and a sample of written work (including scholarly publications) to pol-search@cua.edu and arrange for the submission of three letters of reference. In addition, applicants are asked to submit a one- to two-page personal statement indicating how their research, teaching, and service will make a distinctive contribution to our University's mission and to the vision of Catholic education outlined in the Apostolic Constitution on Catholic Universities Ex Corde Ecclesiae.

Review of applications will begin November 15 and continue until the position is filled. Questions may be directed to Jakub Grygiel, Department Chair, at grygiel@cua.edu.

University of Pittsburgh

Rank: Assistant Professor - American Politics

Assistant Professor – American Politics

The Department of Political Science at the University of Pittsburgh invites applications for a tenure-stream position at the level of Assistant Professor of American Politics, with a focus on partisanship, polarization, representation, and challenges to democracy. We are particularly interested in candidates working in areas including (but not limited to) group identity and bias, media consumption, public-elite interactions, and policy responsiveness. Preferred candidates would also complement the Department's current strengths, which include state politics, identity politics, structural racism, and community-engaged research. In addition, while it is not required for this position, we also value the ability of an applicant to augment the Department's and the University of Pittsburgh's training and reputation in computational social science and methodology. Applicants are required to have or expect to have a Ph.D. in Political Science or a related field before the appointment begins. Applications should include a cover letter, curriculum vitae, statement of research and teaching interests, two or three writing samples, teaching evaluations (if available), a brief description of how your research, teaching or service demonstrates a commitment to diversity, equity, and inclusion, and a minimum of three letters of reference; references will receive email notification with instructions about submitting their letters. In order to ensure full consideration, applications must be received by September 22, 2023, and the review of applications will continue until the position is filled.

Salem State University

Rank: Faculty - Public Policy - Full Time, Temporary

Specializations: Race & Ethnic Politics, Housing, American Politics

The politics, policy and international relations department at Salem State University invites a full-time, temporary faculty position for the 2024-2025 academic year. We are seeking a public policy specialist with familiarity with policies in an urban context such as housing, education, transportation, policing, poverty, and/or immigration. This position is part of a Salem State initiative to help establish and advance our proposed North Shore Policy Lab and may be reappointed for up to two additional years subject to available funding. With continued growth of the program, there may be additional tenure track lines in the department.

Housed in the department's Bates Center for Public and Global Affairs, the North Shore Policy Lab will involve students in research conducted on behalf of local and state government and non-governmental organizations in order to prepare them for jobs in the public, non-profit and/or private sectors.

The candidate should be well-versed in both quantitative and qualitative research methods and be able to teach our current Research Methods course as well as a new, advanced multi-methods class that will serve as the foundation for student work on applied policy research projects as a part of the policy lab. The ideal candidate will have a demonstrated record of community-based research and community partnerships with a focus on equity issues in the context of urban areas like those served by Salem State.

Salem State University is committed to excellence in teaching. We pride ourselves in providing first-rate classroom experiences and supervising intensive learning opportunities such as research and internships. Many of our students are first generation, racial/ethnic minorities, veterans, and adult learners. Salem State University is located in the Greater Boston area in the historic city of Salem, Massachusetts. The Greater Boston region is famous for its world-class education, healthcare, and business enterprises and the area offers numerous opportunities for professional and personal enrichment.

Duties and Responsibilities

Candidates are required to perform duties in accordance with the MSCA contract. Duties include teaching, advising, scholarship and contributions to continuously improve the department and university. The standard teaching load is 12 credit hours per semester. The position is subject to available funding.

Required Qualifications:

Earned PhD in public policy or a related field from an accredited institution (ABD considered if degree will be conferred by September 2024)

Advising and/or mentoring experience

Preferred Qualifications:

Commitment to anti-racist, culturally responsive teaching

Demonstrated expertise in community-based research

Active publication record and/or exemplary scholarly potential (e.g., ABD candidates with strong pipeline of research)

Prior applied experience in non-profit or public sector settings

Demonstrated excellence in teaching

As an emerging Hispanic Serving Institution (HSI), Salem State University seeks to enrich the faculty/librarian ranks by actively encouraging candidates whose lived and scholarly experiences directly address issues regarding the health, welfare, and representation of Latinx populations in the United States. Candidates who meet this strongly desired qualification should present documented activities in Latinx-related teaching, scholarship/research, and service, including community-based endeavors in each of these three areas.

Working Conditions:

This is an on-site, in-person position.

Salem State University complies with the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA) to provide reasonable accommodation to qualified applicants and employees with disabilities. For accommodation information or requests please email eo-hr@salemstate.edu.

Special Instructions to Applicants:

Please apply online and attach curriculum vitae, cover letter, teaching philosophy, and a diversity statement (please read our institutional diversity statement and describe how you would contribute to our mission in your teaching, research, mentoring/advising, and service).

University & Fort Worth Description: ABOUT TCU

Founded in 1873, Texas Christian University sits on 302 acres nestled in a primarily residential part of Fort Worth, just minutes away from downtown. The University includes seven schools and colleges, in addition to the John V. Roach Honors College and the Burnett School of Medicine.

Currently, TCU enrolls more than 10,200 undergraduates and 1,700 graduate students. Twenty-eight percent of students self-identify as a member of a minority group, five percent are international students, and forty-five percent are from out-of-state. Our students are supported by more than 2,200 faculty and staff. The University has more than 700 full-time faculty members and is a top 100 National University as classified by US News and World Report and has a Carnegie Classification of R2: Doctoral Universities – High Research Activity.

At TCU, diversity, equity, and inclusion (DEI) are an educational imperative directly tied to the University mission, vision, and strategic plan. Fulfilling TCU's mission to develop ethical leaders and critical thinkers in a global community depends on the University's ability to attract and retain students, faculty, and staff from diverse backgrounds. A diverse and inclusive campus leads to innovation, broadened perspective, and understanding—values that are foundational aspects of higher education. For the fourth consecutive year, TCU has earned the Higher Education Excellence in Diversity Award, which highlights ongoing commitment to build a comprehensive DEI strategy that aligns with core values and creates a campus culture where everyone is respected and included.

ABOUT FORT WORTH

Like TCU, Fort Worth has the approachable, friendly charm of a smaller town, but offers the amenities, cultural activities, diversity and unique personality of a much larger city. Fort Worth, Texas, is the 13th largest city in the United States with an ever-growing population nearing 1 million. Fort Worth and TCU have grown together in a nearly 150-year relationship. You'll find that many Horned Frogs remain here after graduation, thanks to the region's thriving job market. Fort Worth is part of the Dallas-Fort Worth metropolitan area, the fourth largest metropolitan area in the United States, and the number 1 tourist destination in Texas. In 2018, bizjournals.com ranked Fort Worth the 7th most affordable city to live and work in the United States and U.S. News and World Report named Fort Worth one of the Best Places to Live. Fort Worth, Dallas and Arlington all rank among the top 25 most diverse cities in the country.

Fort Worth is known for its vast array of cultural, educational and entertainment opportunities. The city boasts three world class art museums—the Kimbell Art Museum, the Modern Art Museum of Fort Worth and the Amon Carter Museum of American Art. The Bass Performance Hall is one of the premier performance venues in the country. Concerts, film festivals and other events are held regularly at Sundance Square, Panther Island and Near Southside venues.

George Washington University

Rank: Visiting Assistant Professor of Political Science

The Elizabeth J. Somers Women's Leadership Program (WLP) at the George Washington University in Washington, D.C. invites applications for the position of Visiting Assistant Professor in Political Science position to fill a 1-year vacancy beginning August 12, 2024. WLP is a selective, living-learning program for first year students to build leadership skills within the context of their discipline and as part of a supportive community. Students enroll in one of 4 WLP cohorts: Globalization, Economics, & Business; International Arts & Culture; Science, Health, & Medicine; or International Politics. Students take foundational courses in their field of study in small classes with their cohort faculty members both fall and spring, as well as a year-long, experiential leadership symposium course.

The selected candidate will serve as the primary faculty and Program Coordinator for the International Politics cohort of approximately 20 students in the WLP. They will teach small classes of first-year students for WLP and the University Honors Program. The selected candidate will report to the Associate Provost for Undergraduate Affairs and Special Programs. They will work with the WLP Director and colleagues to integrate co-curricular offerings and activities to enhance the academic experiences of all WLP students. The Program Coordinator serves as instructor, academic mentor, and advisor to students in the International Politics cohort, teaching Introduction to International Politics and Introduction to Comparative Politics, and helping students navigate their college experience from the first year and beyond. They will also participate in WLP orientation, information sessions for prospective students, and other campus events.

Diversity, equity, and inclusion (DEI) are core principles of the WLP, and we are committed to building and sustaining a community that is supportive and inclusive of all individuals. Strong candidates will have experience and vision regarding teaching and mentorship of students of multiple and diverse backgrounds with attention to structural barriers that limit access to educational opportunities. The university has a strong commitment to achieving diversity among faculty and staff, and we are particularly interested in receiving applications from members of historically marginalized groups. Learn more about our commitment via the GW Statement on Diversity and Inclusion.

Minimum Qualifications: Applicants must have excellent teaching skills as demonstrated by student evaluations, a strong desire to teach and mentor students at the undergraduate level, and a demonstrated commitment to equity and inclusion in the classroom. For appointment at the rank of Visiting Assistant Professor, they must hold a doctorate in political science or related field by date of appointment. ABD applicants will be considered for appointment at the rank of Visiting Instructor if they have not completed all requirements for the doctorate by date of appointment.

Specific Duties and Responsibilities: The effort breakdown for the position is 70% teaching, 15% administration/service, and 15% scholarship. The teaching component includes four undergraduate courses during the course of the year and co-teaching a year-long, one-credit leadership symposium. Two courses and the symposium are taught to first-year students in the Women's Leadership Program. The remaining two courses are taught to students in the University Honors Program. Administrative work is related to the Program Coordinator role, and includes planning co-curricular events and symposium structure. Service obligations may be met by serving on a departmental or university-level committee, engaging with prospective students, and attending major campus events. Scholarship for this role is broadly defined and may include activities such as presenting at conferences, creating and disseminating curriculum materials, or publishing political science research.

Application Procedure: To apply please send an application to wlp@gwu.edu. Applicants should submit a cover letter that includes a statement of interest in the Women's Leadership Program and discusses contributions to DEI initiatives in their teaching, mentorship, and/or professional engagement.

Applicants should also submit curriculum vitae; evidence of effective teaching through student evaluations; statement of past and/or potential contributions to DEI; and names of three references.

South Dakota State University

Rank: Assistant Professor of Political Science

Subfield(s): Comparative Politics, Public Administration, Public Policy

Assistant Professor of Political Science
School of American & Global Studies
South Dakota State University

The School of American & Global Studies (AGS) at South Dakota State University (SDSU) invites applications for a tenure-track Assistant Professor of Political Science. The School of AGS seeks a dynamic scholar whose field areas include public administration or public policy. Located on our main campus in Brookings, South Dakota, this position is nine months, full time, benefits eligible, and tenure track, with the possibility of supplemental summer salary. The position is supervised by the Director of the School of American & Global Studies. We anticipate a start date of August 22, 2025.

The School of American & Global Studies is a vibrant, interdisciplinary unit, offering B.A./B.S. degrees in American Indian & Indigenous Studies, Global Studies, History, Modern Languages (French, German, Lakota, Spanish), and Political Science as well as standalone minors in Legal Studies, Philosophy, and Religion. Over 300 students major in AGS programs, with another 400 from programs across campus who pursue AGS minors. The school's current composition of 21 tenured and tenure-track faculty and 6 non-tenure track faculty value interdisciplinary and interprofessional collaboration across its research, teaching, and outreach efforts. In alignment with the university's land-grant mission, the schoolhouses four public-facing research and outreach centers: The Ethics Lab, The PHI | Public Humanities Institute, the South Dakota Polling Project, and the recently launched Mike Huether Public Service Academy.

South Dakota State University promotes access to and opportunities for all to receive the benefit of and participate in education, research, and service and is especially interested in candidates that can contribute to this land-grant mission of access.

KEY RESPONSIBILITIES:

The successful candidate will teach three classes per semester in consultation with the director based on student needs and school/program strategic priorities. This faculty member will mentor students in the Political Science program and the Huether Public Service Academy and contribute to the overall academic environment of the School. The new member of the SDSU faculty will conduct scholarly research consistent with their field. Candidates are expected to be excellent classroom instructors with an active research agenda.

SALARY RANGE:

The salary is commensurate with qualifications. We offer a generous retirement plan that includes 6% matching, 9.34 hours of sick leave each month, and eleven paid holidays. Relocation benefits are available per university's guidelines.

BENEFITS:

We offer a rich academic experience in an environment of inclusions and access. The university is part of a dynamic community for families, students, young professionals, and retirees, which offers an abundance of attractions and activities. South Dakota State University offers a wide range of excellent benefits including medical, dental, and flexible benefits, retirement plans, compensation packages, paid holidays, and leave. Employees also have access to internal and state-sponsored training as well as reduced tuition for state-supported courses at all State of South Dakota academic institutions.

MINIMUM QUALIFICATIONS:

- Hold a Ph.D. in Public Administration, Public Policy, Political Science or closely related field by start date.
- Ability to teach public policy (open specialization) and/or public administration courses as well as state and local government.
- Ability or potential to develop and teach undergraduate elective courses in the candidate's area of specialization.
- Ability or potential to develop and sustain an active research agenda.
- Ability to contribute to program and school initiatives through general service.
- Effective written and verbal communication and interpersonal skills.

THE UNIVERSITY:

South Dakota State University is the state's largest, most comprehensive university with more than 200 academic programs, an enrollment of approximately 12,000 students, and over $60 million annual research expenditures.

South Dakota State University offers a rich academic experience in an environment of inclusion and access through inspired, student-centered education, creative activities and research, innovation and engagement that improve the quality of life in South Dakota, the region, the nation, and the world. Its employees embrace the university's core values of being people-centered, expanding knowledge through creativity, embracing organizational and personal integrity, commitment to diversity of thought, and excellence through continuous improvement.

The College of Arts, Humanities and Social Sciences is the intellectual and cultural heart of SDSU. The college consists of seven interdisciplinary schools—American and Global Studies, Communication and Journalism, Design, English and Interdisciplinary Studies, the Ness School of Management and Economics, and Performing Arts—additionally, the college includes programs in military science (Army ROTC) and Aerospace Studies (Air Force ROTC). The college's unique administrative structure supports and encourages interdisciplinary collaboration among both faculty and students, allowing each unit and discipline to thrive. The college is committed to supporting the Land Grant Mission of SDSU. Our faculty regularly conduct research that directly benefits the people of South Dakota and our region with research that engages our communities, supporting their social, cultural, and economic development.

As the state's 1862 Morrill Act land grant institution, the work of the university is carried out on its main resident campus in Brookings, at sites in Sioux Falls, Pierre, Rapid City, and Aberdeen, and through SDSU Extension offices and Agricultural Experiment Station research sites across South Dakota.

Jackrabbits Athletics competes as an NCAA Division I member with membership in the Missouri Valley Football Conference, the Summit League, and the Big XII.

The university benefits from a robust investor and alumni network actively engaged in classrooms and student ventures. The recent SDSU Bold and Blue comprehensive campaign—the university's largest fundraising effort—raised over $600 million to support the university.

BROOKINGS, SOUTH DAKOTA:

Brookings is home to approximately 24,000 residents and is located 60 miles north of Sioux Falls and 200 miles west of Minneapolis. Brookings is listed as an ideal community for families, students, young professionals, and retirees, and is rated among the safest and most vibrant cities in South Dakota.

The Brookings Public School District educates approximately 3,300 K-12 students and ranks among the state's highest academic achieving school districts. The district includes three elementary schools, an intermediate school for fourth and fifth grade, one middle school, and a high school.

The city also boasts an abundance of attractions and activities, including the Children's Museum of South Dakota, the Dakota Nature Park, the South Dakota Art Museum, McCrory Gardens, the South Dakota Agricultural Heritage Museum, an outdoor adventure center, and the Brookings summer arts festival.

For an ERC-funded project ("TARGETS"), we conduct cross-nationally comparative, experimental research on ethnic discrimination in the labour market. Combining insights from sociology, social and organizational psychology, sociolegal and organizational studies, we study discrimination perceptions from a multi-actor and comparative perspective. Discrimination often manifests itself in subtle ways (e.g., through contact avoidance, backhanded compliments or nonverbal behavior) that leave victims questioning their experiences. This ambiguity can be damaging for the self and for intergroup relations. Victims of discrimination tend to ruminate on the incident for quite some time and often end up blaming themselves. Many do not report discriminatory episodes to managers or legal authorities for fear of not being believed. Unless supported by organizational allies, discrimination claims can easily be dismissed as unfounded or overreactions, which invalidates victims' experiences. Victims, perpetrators and bystanders may vary in how they perceive the same behaviour or situation. Unfortunately, empirical studies have analyzed their perceptions in isolation. In this project, we will design factorial survey experiments/conjoint experiments and study how different actors (e.g. recruiters, victims, bystanders) react to hypothetical scenarios that could be perceived as discriminatory. We will randomly vary features of the event or the actors involved (e.g. subtlety, perceived intentionality, harmful consequences) in the scenarios. We will field the factorial survey experiments in four countries characterized by very different institutional contexts and compare discrimination attributions across actors and contexts. The postdoc will have room to develop part of the survey according to their own research interests.

The research fellow will carry out research work in an independent manner and collaborate on the research work of the project. The research assistant will provide research assistance to the Project Director(s). Main tasks include:

- Carrying out sociological research on discrimination in the labour market, in collaboration with the Project Director.
- Co-designing survey experiments on perceptions of discrimination at the workplace.
- Liaising with survey agencies and monitoring the data collection.
- Analyzing data and disseminating results at conferences and impact events with stakeholders.
- Writing scientific articles on discrimination attributions, based on the newly collected data.

- Assisting the Project Director with project management tasks including attending project meetings;
- Taking part in activities (such as attending seminars) of the Comparative Life Course and Inequality Centre CLIC, at the EUI.

For an ERC-funded project ('TARGETS'), we conduct longitudinal research on the impact of ethnic discrimination on the job search process. Ethnic discrimination in the labour market is persistent and pervasive. The job search experiences of ethnic minorities, in particular, are rife with rejections and second tries. On average, they have to apply more often as the majority group to receive an equal number of positive callbacks and face substantial discrimination at the interview and job offer stages. Previous research, however, has paid little attention to the job search behaviour of members of vulnerable groups, and the strategies they may adopt to avoid discriminatory employers. For example, job seekers may conceal ethnic cues in their resumes or target organizations that signal a commitment to diversity in their recruitment material. In this project, we rely on experience sampling methods (digital daily diaries) to analyze job search behaviour as it unfolds over time. We will track the type of organizations that job seekers apply to, how they react to the information reported in the vacancies and the feedback received from employers and whether they adapt their job search strategies in response to perceived discrimination or expectations of success and failure. Drawing on sociological and socio-psychological research on stigmatization, social identity and discrimination, we will examine the coping strategies of vulnerable groups as they try to find employment (preferably, the research will focus on the Dutch context).

The research fellow will carry out research work in an independent manner and collaborate on the research work of the project. The research assistant will provide research assistance to the Project Director(s).

Main tasks include:

- Carrying out sociological research on discrimination in the labour market, in collaboration with the Project Director;
- Co-designing and fielding a digital daily diary study, in collaboration with the Project Director;
- Monitoring the data collection;
- Analyzing data and disseminating results at conferences and impact events with stakeholders;
- Writing scientific articles on the impact of ethnic discrimination on job search behaviour, based on the newly collected data;
- Assisting the Project Director with project management tasks including attending project meetings;
- Taking part in activities (such as attending seminars) of the Comparative Life Course and Inequality Centre CLIC, at the EUI.

The Department of Political Science and International Relations at Loyola Marymount University invites applications for an assistant professor position beginning in Fall 2025. Loyola Marymount University (LMU) faculty are helping to create the world we want to live in. We are seeking the next generation of mission-driven teacher-scholars. We seek a candidate who is excited to teach undergraduate students.

<https://academics.lmu.edu/joinourfaculty/>

Substantively, the department is interested in candidates with expertise in comparative politics and/or international relations. We are open to field but will prioritize areas that complement our department's curricular needs, including but not limited to:

Environment/climate change

Democracy and authoritarianism

South Asia, Russia, China

International organizations

Security

International Relations Theory

We are open to methodological approach and welcome qualitative, quantitative and mixed methods research.

The regular teaching load for this position includes teaching introductory courses (e.g. comparative politics, international relations) and upper-division courses. LMU has a 2-2/2-3 teaching load, meaning that faculty teach two undergraduate courses per semester, with one 3-course load semester every other year. We are seeking to hire a dedicated teacher and emerging scholar who will embrace the department's mission of helping students become informed, analytically reflective, and engaged global citizens. Successful candidates must demonstrate a commitment to working with diverse student and community populations. Our department welcomes antiracist and inclusive pedagogies, and/or curricula.

Candidates should submit application materials via the LMU Human Resources online application portal (<http://jobs.lmu.edu>). Applicants must include: 1) a cover letter (outlining area of expertise, teaching and research interests, and resonance with LMU's Mission); 2) a curriculum vitae; 3) a writing sample; 4) a statement of teaching philosophy that demonstrates your approach to teaching in the liberal arts tradition, and 5) if available, teaching evaluations and/or sample syllabi as a single PDF.

A minimum of three confidential letters of recommendation should be submitted directly to POLS@lmu.edu.

Only online applications will be accepted.

Please direct questions to POLS@lmu.edu. We will begin our review of applications on September 13, 2024, and will consider applications beyond this date until we conclude our search.

A PhD is required; ABD applicants who anticipate completion of the doctorate by Fall 2025 will be considered.

Universidad Torcuato Di Tella

Rank: Assistant Professor, Associate Professor

Subfield(s): International Relations, Comparative Politics, Methodology

The Department of Political Science and International Studies at Universidad Torcuato Di Tella (UTDT) seeks candidates for two tenure-track assistant professor positions in Comparative Politics and International Relations, with an expected (but negotiable) start date of March 2025. Very strong candidates at the associate level will also be considered. We are open with respect to substantive subfield, theoretical orientation, and methodological approach. Regional expertise in regions other than Latin America (e.g., East, South, or Southeast Asia, Western or Eastern Europe, the Middle East or North America) is a plus, as is the ability to teach courses on research design, data science/statistics, and/or causal inference. Candidates are expected to demonstrate a strong commitment to research and to teaching and mentoring students. The teaching load is three courses per year. Most courses are taught in Spanish, although a growing number are offered in English. The position includes a research fund and a year's sabbatical (at full salary) every six years.

Duties will include teaching assigned courses in Comparative Politics and/or International Relations at both the undergraduate and graduate levels, conducting research, writing for publication in high-quality academic venues, advising students, participating in department governance, and university service.

Qualifications: Ph.D. in Political Science or related disciplines (ABD candidates will also be considered) and a demonstrated record of excellence in research and teaching. Proficiency in both Spanish and English is required. Questions should be directed to Professor Carlos Gervasoni, Chair of the Department of Political Science and International Studies, at cgervasoni@utdt.edu.

National University of Singapore

Subfield(s): Comparative Politics, International Relations, Public Policy

The Department of Political Science at the National University of Singapore invites applications for the tenure-track position of Presidential Young Professor (PYP) at the rank of Assistant Professor, to commence in 2025. Applications are invited from all major subfields of political science including, but not limited to, comparative politics, international relations, and public policy. We are especially interested in candidates with an Asia-focused research programme.

The NUS Presidential Young Professorship and NUS Presidential Fellowship Awards aim to attract, support, and empower the brightest and most promising young academics in the early stage of their careers so that they can develop themselves into world-class scholars. As a young academic at NUS, you will have the opportunity to work alongside a diverse and dynamic community of scholars and students, to pursue excellence and innovation with a positive societal impact. Successful PYP candidates are awarded a start-up grant package of either SGD 250,000 or SGD 750,000, depending on the demands of their research program. Successful PYP candidates are also granted an award of an additional SGD 250,000 for discretionary spending.

The NUS Department of Political Science is one of the leading global programs, with a vibrant research culture and located in a cosmopolitan hub. It is one of 15 departments within the Faculty of Arts and Social Sciences. Southeast and East Asia are geographical areas of departmental strength, but our 20+ faculty members have research interests which range across the subfields of political theory, international relations, comparative politics, and governance and public policy. In addition, the world-renowned Asia Research Institute (ARI) at NUS engages political scientists as part of its interdisciplinary community, as do our many area studies departments. Our department is committed to promoting equity, diversity, and inclusion as integral values in our strategic development. We also offer a competitive remuneration package, including housing and relocation benefits for eligible overseas candidates. The typical teaching load is 2:1 (one or two courses per semester, totaling three per academic year).

Interested applicants are invited to apply directly at our NUS Career Portal <https://careers.nus.edu.sg/job-invite/25147/>. Application dossiers should include:

? A brief cover letter explaining why the position at NUS is of interest and discusses the ambition of your research program

? A comprehensive CV with a complete list of publications, awards, grants, and courses taught

? A research statement with a three year research plan

? Two signature publications with the applicant as the lead author

? Letters from at least three referees. If the applicant is two or more years post-PhD, the referees should not be limited to supervisors. The referees should compare the research performance of the applicant to specific individuals at equivalent and top institutions and/or programs. Please send all referee letters directly to pol-ir@nus.edu.sg.

Review of applications will begin on 29 July 2024 and continue until an appointment is made. We regret that only shortlisted candidates will be notified. If there are any questions, please email the search committee at pol-ir@nus.edu.sg.

Public Religion Research Institute (PRRI)

Open Call for Fellows

PRRI (Public Religion Research Institute)

The application deadline is Friday, June 28, 2024.

PRRI is announcing an opportunity to join a diverse cohort of 15 non-residential Public Fellows who are engaged in public scholarship at the intersection of religion, culture, and politics: <https://www.prii.org/about/careers-and-fellowships/>

PRRI Public Fellows will work alongside the organization's research and communications staff during the 2024-2025 academic year (August to July). This 11-month fellowship includes a stipend, support for a course release during the spring semester, and access to microgrants to support collaborative research. The PRRI fellowship will benefit those who want to shape their work for broader public consumption, receive communications support for placing public-facing work in top-tier media outlets, and integrate quantitative data into their research and teaching. Successful fellows will be eligible to apply for a one-time renewal at the end of the program year, but are not guaranteed renewal.

As a part of PRRI's Religion and Renewing Democracy Initiative, the organization is seeking applicants whose research agendas align with one of five principal vectors of PRRI's ongoing work: 1) religious, racial, and ethnic pluralism; 2) racial justice and white supremacy; 3) immigration and migration studies; 4) LGBTQ rights, and, new this year, (5) reproductive health and rights. In each area of scholarship, PRRI will select three Public Fellows.

The ideal candidates are mid-career scholars (three to twelve years since earning a terminal degree) who have an aptitude and track record of socially engaged or public scholarship. PRRI is seeking a diverse cohort in terms of academic disciplines (social sciences, humanistic social sciences, and the humanities), research methods (qualitative, quantitative, and mixed methods), types of institutions (college, university, seminary, or a research institute housed within an academic institution), and geographic location. PRRI encourages applications from women, people of color, and other members of under-represented groups who will contribute to the diversity of the cohort.

Fellowship Benefits:

PRRI Public Fellows in the 2024-2025 cohort will receive the following:

An 11-month fellowship with a cohort of 15 diverse scholars (three from each area of PRRI's core areas of work) engaged in public scholarship;

Fellowship stipend of $5,000;

Course release funds up to $10,000 for the Spring 2025 semester; Access to annual microgrants of $10,000 in each area of PRRI's work for new interdisciplinary scholarly projects within the cohort;

Monthly meetings and quarterly trainings and workshops;

An in-person convening in Washington, D.C., with travel expenses paid by PRRI. During the convening, Fellows will meet with writers from major media outlets, receive media training from PRRI's communications consultants, and dialogue with experts in writing for trade, crossover, and non-academic books;

Advance access to PRRI data and archives;

Collaborative work with PRRI's research and communications teams; For Fellows from non-quantitative backgrounds, PRRI will provide training, support, and advice on how to connect public-opinion survey research to their field of expertise

Application Requirements:

Applicants for the PRRI Public Fellows program must meet the following requirements:

Fellows must have a Ph.D. or comparable terminal degree plus a formal affiliation with an accredited college, university, seminary, or research institute in the United States;

Fellows must have earned their terminal degree at least three years ago and no more than 12 years ago;

Fellows should have demonstrable academic expertise in at least one of the five areas of PRRI's work (religious, racial and ethnic pluralism; racial justice and white supremacy; immigration and migration studies; reproductive health and rights; and LGBTQ rights);

Fellows must be authorized to work in the United States

Application Process:

To apply for a fellowship, please follow this link. The application includes:

Statement of interest: in 800 words or less, please explain your interest in pursuing this fellowship opportunity and your professional development goals in public scholarship.

Current curriculum vitae

Work samples: please provide links to and PDF copies of three articles, op-eds, or blogs published within the last three years, preferably in publications or sites aimed at the general public. These samples should be your best recent work.

The application deadline is Friday, June 28, 2024. For questions, please contact PRRI at public.fellows@publicreligion.org

About PRRI:

Public Religion Research Institute (PRRI), founded in 2009, is a nonprofit, nonpartisan organization dedicated to conducting independent research at the intersection of religion, culture, and politics. PRRI research explores and illuminates America's changing cultural, religious, and political landscape. The organization's mission is to help journalists, scholars, thought leaders, clergy, and the public better understand debates on public policy issues, and the important cultural and religious dynamics shaping American society and politics.

Fordham University

Rank: Tenure-Track: Comparative Politics/Middle East (Fordham University)

The Department of Political Science at Fordham University invites applications for a tenure-track position in Comparative Politics at the rank of Assistant Professor, beginning Fall 2025. The primary location for this position is at Fordham College-Lincoln Center campus in Manhattan but service may be at any campus of the University.

The area of specialization for this position is comparative politics with a regional focus on the Middle East/North Africa. Within these regional contexts, we are seeking innovative scholars with significant expertise in areas that could include but are not limited to populism, social movements, institutions, political behavior, crime and corruption, political identities, ethnic and racial politics, intersectional approaches to power and marginalization, the effects of climate change, the politics of crisis, and socio-economic inequality. Scholars who are able to contribute to the University's interdisciplinary programs such as, but not limited to: Middle East Studies, Islamic Studies, International Studies, Urban Studies, Humanitarian Studies, Women, Gender, and Sexuality Studies, or Peace and Justice Studies are of particular interest. We encourage applications from candidates who will deepen our engagement with political and social institutions in New York City and contribute to the University and the department's commitment to quality teaching and research.

Consistent with our Jesuit and Catholic mission, we believe that diversity is central to the excellence of our academic program, and we strive to create an academic community and campus culture that attracts and facilitates the development of promising and diverse teacher-scholars. As our student body becomes increasingly diverse, we are especially interested in candidates with substantive experience and commitment to teaching and mentoring students of different races and ethnicities, from a range of socioeconomic and cultural backgrounds.

Review of applications will begin on September 10, 2024. Interested applicants must submit the following documents in electronic format (PDF or Microsoft Word) to Professor José Alemán, Committee Chair, via Interfolio, at <http://apply.interfolio.com/147081>: a cover letter addressing research interests and experience; curriculum vitae; writing sample; three letters of reference; evidence of teaching effectiveness; and a Diversity, Equity, and Inclusion Statement. Evidence of teaching effectiveness should include a teaching statement reflecting the candidate's pedagogical approach and experience and may include past course syllabi, peer observations, and/or student evaluations. The Diversity, Equity, and Inclusion Statement should address how the candidate's teaching, mentoring, scholarship, and/or community service supports Fordham University's commitment to diversity. Ph.D. at the time of appointment is required.

Fordham is an independent, Catholic University in the Jesuit tradition committed to excellence through diversity. Fordham is an equal opportunity employer, and we especially encourage women, people of color, veterans and people with disabilities to apply.

Michigan State University

Rank: Assistant Professor
Specializations: African American Politics, Native American Politics, Race & Ethnic Politics

James Madison College at Michigan State University invites applications for a tenure-track assistant professor position in Political Theory and Constitutional Democracy (PTCD). James Madison College engages undergraduates in a liberal arts education in public affairs in a residential college setting within a broader research-intensive university. The Political Theory and Constitutional Democracy major is an interdisciplinary field of public affairs. It focuses on liberal constitutional democracy (its origins, practice, critics, and defenders) from the perspective of political philosophy.

We seek a teacher-scholar broadly trained in the history of political theory that supports curriculum in Black political thought (American and comparative), as well as radical perspectives on modern constitutional democracy. Areas of research and teaching focus include African-American politics, comparative Black political thought, and radical political theory. In addition to these requirements, preferred areas of interest include: colonialism studies, Native-American studies, Indigenous studies, American constitutional politics, or modern political theory. Preference will be given to candidates who can teach elective courses cross-listed between PTCD and Social Relations and Policy majors.

Successful candidates will have demonstrated ability to teach core courses in the history of political thought combining serious study of canonical texts as well as authors/voices from outside the canon, with a view to the present and future of constitutional democracy.

Applicants should also be able to contribute to the broader interdisciplinary curriculum of the major and the college, including the first-year sequence. The successful candidate will be expected to maintain an active scholarly agenda in their respective field(s). The College is especially interested in candidates who can contribute, through their teaching, research and/or service, to the diversity and excellence of the academic community.

For more information, please see the college website: <https://jmc.msu.edu> and the full position description at <https://careers.msu.edu>.

Ph.D. in a related field is required by August 16th, 2025.

Applications must be submitted electronically to the Michigan State University Human Resources web site: <https://careers.msu.edu>. Please see posting number 955409 for complete instructions on how to apply. Review of applications will begin on September 20th, 2024, and will continue until the position is filled. Please contact Katie Dyjach (dyjachk@msu.edu) with any questions.

MSU is an Affirmative Action/Equal opportunity employer. MSU is committed to achieving excellence through cultural diversity. The university actively encourages applications and/or nominations of women, persons of color, veterans, and persons with disabilities.

George Washington University

Rank: Professor and Director, M.A. Program in International Affairs

The George Washington University's Elliott School of International Affairs invites applications for a full-time, non-tenure-accruing, faculty position to serve as Director of the school's M.A. program in International Affairs. We invite applications from individuals who have substantial academic or professional experience in International Affairs. The successful candidate will be appointed as the John O. Rankin Professor of International Affairs (or Associate Professor) or the John O. Rankin Professor of Practice of International Affairs (or Associate Professor), depending on qualifications. This appointment will begin in academic year 2024-25 for an initial term of three years, and may be renewed thereafter on a term basis. Salary is commensurate with experience, and will reflect a nine-month academic year appointment, leaving summers for individual research. The successful candidate will be expected to carry out occasional duties during the summer months, as needed, to ensure the effectiveness and quality of the MAIA program. There will be a separate stipend for administrative responsibilities.

As a member of the Elliott School's faculty, the Rankin Professor will teach courses, conduct research, and publish in scholarly or policy-related venues on international affairs. As Director of the M.A. program in International Affairs, this person will be responsible for the administration of one of the Elliott School's two largest graduate programs, with an enrollment of approximately 200 students. This will entail working with the deans, departments, and faculty to design and deliver a curriculum that is challenging and current; recruiting and admitting students; advising students; organizing extracurricular events; engaging in outreach (including with program alumni) and fundraising activities; and other aspects of program leadership. The successful candidate will be responsible for the delivery of the program's capstone course.

Minimum qualifications: A graduate degree (such as a Ph.D. or M.A. in a relevant social science or humanities discipline, or a J.D. or M.D. in a relevant field) and broad experience in international affairs and contemporary policy issues as evidenced by a record of college-level teaching, published research, or lengthy professional employment in international affairs.

Application Procedure: Applicants must complete an online faculty application at <https://www.gwu.jobs/postings/108672> and upload a cover letter that explains how their qualifications and experiences satisfy the basic qualifications for this position, a CV, and (where available) a writing sample, a sample course syllabus, and sample teaching evaluations or assessments. Please provide names and contact information for three references. Review of applications will begin on March 18 and will continue until the position is filled. Only completed applications will be considered.

The George Washington University seeks to attract a diverse faculty of the highest caliber; women and people of color are particularly encouraged to apply. The University is an equal opportunity/Affirmative Action employer that does not unlawfully discriminate in any of its programs or activities on the basis of race, color, religion, sex, national origin, age, disability, veteran status, sexual orientation, gender identity or expression, or on any other basis prohibited by applicable law.

Employment offers are contingent on the satisfactory outcome of a standard background screening.

Catholic University of America

Rank: Clinical Assistant Professor of Politics

Subfield(s): Public Policy, Comparative Politics, American Government and Politics

Specializations: American Politics, Latin American, Political Theory

Clinical Assistant Professor of Politics (Public Policy)

The Department of Politics at The Catholic University of America invites applications for a clinical (non-tenure track, two-year renewable contract) faculty appointment, to begin in the fall of 2024. Candidates should have expertise in public policy (American and/or comparative, as well as familiarity with the principles of Catholic social teaching). The department especially welcomes applicants whose research interests complement its traditional strengths in historical, theoretical, ethical and institutional perspectives. The successful candidate will have an opportunity to teach both undergraduates and graduates, including students in a new MA in Public Policy program currently under development.

We seek candidates who understand, are enthusiastic about, and will make a significant contribution to the mission of the University, which reads as follows: "As the national university of the Catholic Church in the United States, founded and sponsored by the bishops of the country with the approval of the Holy See, The Catholic University of America is committed to being a comprehensive Catholic and American institution of higher learning, faithful to the teachings of Jesus Christ as handed on by the Church. Dedicated to advancing the dialogue between faith and reason, The Catholic University of America seeks to discover and impart the truth through excellence in teaching and research, all in service to the Church, the nation and the world."

Applicants should submit a cover letter, a curriculum vitae, a statement of current research and future research plans, a statement of teaching philosophy, graduate school transcript, and a sample of written work (including scholarly publications) to pol-search@cua.edu and arrange for the submission of three letters of reference. In addition, applicants are asked to submit a one- to two-page personal statement indicating how their research, teaching, and service will make a distinctive contribution to our University's mission and to the vision of Catholic education outlined in the Apostolic Constitution on Catholic Universities Ex Corde Ecclesiae.

Review of applications will begin November 15 and continue until the position is filled.

Questions may be directed to Jakub Grygiel, Department Chair, at grygiel@cua.edu.

The Catholic University of America is an Equal Opportunity Employer.

Rhodes College

Rank: Assistant Professor of International Relations/Comparative Politics

The Department of International Studies at Rhodes College invites applications for a tenure-track position at the rank of assistant professor to begin Fall of 2024. Rhodes College believes that diversity and inclusion are critical to our success as an institution, and we seek to recruit, develop, and retain the most talented people from a diverse candidate pool. Furthermore, Rhodes College is committed to supporting the work-life alignment of its faculty. We encourage applications from candidates who have expertise in security, peace, and conflict. The search is open in terms of regional or area studies expertise. This position has a 3:2 teaching load, and applicants should demonstrate a firm commitment to teaching and research in an undergraduate, liberal arts environment. The successful candidate will have classroom experience and is expected to teach introductory and advanced courses in either International Relations or Comparative Politics. Additional courses will be based on the candidate's area of specialization. Preference will be given to candidates who can teach an upper-level course on international conflict or security and those who can contribute to an interdisciplinary atmosphere. The successful candidate is expected to earn their Ph.D. by July 2024.

Rhodes is a nationally ranked residential college committed to the liberal arts and sciences. Our highest priorities are intellectual engagement, service to others, commitment to diversity and inclusion, and honor among ourselves. Our students live and learn on one of the country's most beautiful campuses, located in the heart of Memphis, an economic, medical, and culturally diverse center, making Rhodes one of a handful of prominent liberal arts colleges in a major metropolitan area.

Rhodes College prides itself on being a diverse, inclusive, and welcoming environment. We are an equal opportunity employer committed to diversity and anti-discrimination.

A complete application will include 1) a cover letter that addresses the strengths the candidate will bring as a teacher and scholar to a liberal arts college environment; 2) a curriculum vitae; 3) a separate statement that addresses how the candidate's experiences with teaching, scholarship, and/or service will contribute to a college community that includes a commitment to diversity and inclusion as one of its core values; 4) a writing sample; 5) an unofficial graduate transcript; and 6) evidence of teaching performance (if applicable). Review of completed applications will begin on October 1, 2023, and will continue until the position is filled. Candidates from backgrounds typically underrepresented in higher education are strongly encouraged to apply. Letters of recommendation will only be solicited for short-listed applicants, at which time you will be prompted for the names and contact information for three (3) references. Background checks are required before candidates can be brought to campus for interviews.

For further information, please contact Dr. Chien-Kai Chen, chair of the search committee, at [chenc@rhodes.edu].

Dickinson College

Rank: Assistant Professor of Political Science (Latin American Politics)

The Political Science Department at Dickinson College seeks applications for a tenure-track position in comparative politics at the rank of Assistant Professor. The position is broadly defined, but a successful applicant will have research and teaching interests in Latin American politics. This position has a five-course teaching load. The department expects the successful candidate to be a committed, collaborative, and imaginative scholar with a Ph.D. in hand by September 2024.

Dickinson College values interdisciplinary teaching and learning, and many in the Department teach and research outside traditional disciplinary boundaries. The successful candidate will be expected to support the College's interdisciplinary program in Latin American, Latin & Caribbean Studies. Spanish fluency is highly desirable.

Dickinson College is a highly selective four-year, independent liberal arts college with 2300 students. It is located 20 minutes west of Harrisburg and is a two-hour drive from Baltimore, Washington, D.C., and Philadelphia. Students, faculty, and staff often enjoy the food, art, entertainment, and cultural enrichment of these major hubs and/or New York City.

The ability to create inclusive learning environments for an increasingly diverse student body will be an important characteristic of the successful candidate. Applicants may highlight their ongoing or anticipated contributions to promoting equity and inclusion in their materials.

Candidates should submit via QUEST (online application system) at <https://jobs.dickinson.edu>

Please include a letter of application, a curriculum vitae, a graduate transcript, a writing sample, three letters of recommendation, a statement of teaching philosophy, sample syllabi, and teaching evaluations or other evidence of teaching effectiveness. Review of applications will begin on October 1, 2023. Any job offer will be contingent on available funding. Please address questions to the department chair, David O'Connell, at oonnell@dickinson.edu.

Dickinson College is committed to building a representative and diverse faculty, administrative staff, and student body. We strive to foster an inclusive community where members from all backgrounds can live, learn, and thrive together. Accordingly, we encourage applications from all qualified persons.

INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS

Soka University of America

Rank: Tenure-Track Faculty Position Assistant Professor of Middle East and North African (MENA) Studies

The International Studies Concentration at Soka University of America (SUA) invites applications for a full-time tenure-track faculty position as Assistant Professor of Middle East and North African Studies (MENA), effective August 1st, 2025.

The successful candidate will demonstrate their ability to excite and engage classes of 16 or fewer students, to develop a productive program of research and scholarship, and to engage in service.

Responsibilities:

We seek a broadly trained expert in the MENA region who is capable of teaching students from multiple disciplinary, ideological and national perspectives. The successful candidate will be expected to develop a rotation of lower and upper-division courses in consultation with the Concentration and is expected to teach a course on Peace and Conflict in the Middle East. As part of a five-course annual teaching load, the successful applicant will normally teach three courses in the International Studies Concentration as well as two courses in our interdisciplinary general education program, for example, Core 1, Core 2, Modes of Inquiry, Pacific Basin, American Experience, and/or Learning Cluster (see our Undergraduate Catalog.)

The successful candidate will demonstrate a strong background in teaching and scholarship as well as evidence of ongoing research activity. The successful candidate should describe a plan to maintain an active research program involving undergraduates. SUA provides resources to support faculty research year-round with undergraduates through institutional research funds and student research assistantships. All SUA graduates complete a Capstone (senior thesis), and successful applicants will demonstrate their ability to mentor student Capstones.

Qualifications:

Applicants will hold or be near completing a PhD in peace studies, political science, economics, sociology, anthropology, cultural studies, history, or another scholarly field with an emphasis on the peoples and countries of the Middle East and North Africa.

Candidates should demonstrate responsiveness toward and understanding of diverse student backgrounds, especially regarding socioeconomic status, race, ethnicity, culture, ability/disability, sexual orientation, and gender identity. The successful candidate will demonstrate a commitment to the university's mission to develop global citizens. Having the ability and willingness to work collegially is essential, as is an understanding of an interdisciplinary liberal arts curriculum.

Soka University of America:

Soka University of America (SUA), located in Aliso Viejo, California, is a private liberal arts college founded on the principles of peace, human rights, and the sanctity of life. It offers a unique and globally focused education with a commitment to fostering a learning environment that emphasizes critical thinking, creativity, and intercultural understanding. SUA's small student body, approximately 450 undergraduates, ensures personalized attention and a close-knit academic community. The university's curriculum is rooted in the liberal arts tradition and incorporates a strong international perspective, requiring students to study abroad for a semester. Faculty members at SUA have the opportunity to engage in interdisciplinary teaching and research, supported by state-of-the-art facilities and a strong commitment to faculty development and academic freedom. The campus is known for its beautiful architecture, serene environment, and a culture that values dialogue, diversity, and the holistic development of its students.

Application Instructions:

Applicants should submit the following materials: (1) Letter of application addressing the required qualifications; (2) A Curriculum vitae; (3) A teaching statement that describes their teaching experience in relevant courses, specifically a philosophy that should reflect how the candidate would address teaching needs in a liberal arts environment and address diverse identities and viewpoints (maximum two pages, single-spaced;); (4) Statement of research interests and plan, detailing how undergraduate students will be involved (maximum two pages, single-spaced;); and (5) three letters of reference, uploaded directly via Interfolio.

We welcome all candidates and encourage those from historically disadvantaged communities.

Review of applications will begin on 15 November and will continue until the position is filled.

Employment is contingent on the completion of a successful background check.

Benefits and Salary:

SUA offers an excellent benefits package for full-time faculty that includes medical, dental, vision, retirement, dependent tuition remission, and faculty home loans. The salary range for this position is $87,000 - $97,000 and will be commensurate with qualifications and experience.

George Washington University

Rank: Visiting Assistant Professor of Political Science

The Elizabeth J. Somers Women's Leadership Program (WLP) at the George Washington University in Washington, D.C. invites applications for the position of Visiting Assistant Professor in Political Science position to fill a 1-year vacancy beginning August 12, 2024. WLP is a selective, living-learning program for first year students to build leadership skills within the context of their discipline and as part of a supportive community. Students enroll in one of 4 WLP cohorts: Globalization, Economics, & Business; International Arts & Culture; Science, Health, & Medicine; or International Politics. Students take foundational courses in their field of study in small classes with their cohort faculty members both fall and spring, as well as a year-long, experiential leadership symposium course.

The selected candidate will serve as the primary faculty and Program Coordinator for the International Politics cohort of approximately 20 students in the WLP. They will teach small classes of first-year students for WLP and the University Honors Program. The selected candidate will report to the Associate Provost for Undergraduate Affairs and Special Programs. They will work with the WLP Director and colleagues to integrate co-curricular offerings and activities to enhance the academic experiences of all WLP students. The Program Coordinator serves as instructor, academic mentor, and advisor to students in the International Politics cohort, teaching Introduction to International Politics and Introduction to Comparative Politics, and helping students navigate their college experience from the first year and beyond. They will also participate in WLP orientation, information sessions for prospective students, and other campus events.

Diversity, equity, and inclusion (DEI) are core principles of the WLP, and we are committed to building and sustaining a community that is supportive and inclusive of all individuals. Strong candidates will have experience and vision regarding teaching and mentorship of students of multiple and diverse backgrounds with attention to structural barriers that limit access to educational opportunities. The university has a strong commitment to achieving diversity among faculty and staff, and we are particularly interested in receiving applications from members of historically marginalized groups. Learn more about our commitment via the GW Statement on Diversity and Inclusion.

Minimum Qualifications: Applicants must have excellent teaching skills as demonstrated by student evaluations, a strong desire to teach and mentor students at the undergraduate level, and a demonstrated commitment to equity and inclusion in the classroom. For appointment at the rank of Visiting Assistant Professor, they must hold a doctorate in political science or related field by date of appointment. ABD applicants will be considered for appointment at the rank of Visiting Instructor if they have not completed all requirements for the doctorate by date of appointment.

Specific Duties and Responsibilities: The effort breakdown for the position is 70% teaching, 15% administration/service, and 15% scholarship. The teaching component includes four undergraduate courses during the course of the year and co-teaching a year-long, one-credit leadership symposium. Two courses and the symposium are taught to first-year students in the Women's Leadership Program. The remaining two courses are taught to students in the University Honors Program. Administrative work is related to the Program Coordinator role, and includes planning co-curricular events and symposium structure. Service obligations may be met by serving on a departmental or university-level committee, engaging with prospective students, and attending major campus events. Scholarship for this role is broadly defined and may include activities such as presenting at conferences, creating and disseminating curriculum materials, or publishing political science research.

Application Procedure: To apply please send an application to wlp@gwu.edu. Applicants should submit a cover letter that includes a statement of interest in the Women's Leadership Program and discusses contributions to DEI initiatives in their teaching, mentorship, and/or professional engagement.

Applicants should also submit curriculum vitae; evidence of effective teaching through student evaluations; statement of past and/or potential contributions to DEI; and names of three references.

Advertised Salary: Salary is commensurate with experience

Brandeis University

Rank: Assistant Professor of International Relations

The Department of Politics at Brandeis University invites applications for a tenure-track position in International Relations at the rank of Assistant Professor, beginning in academic year 2025-2026. This position is subject to budget approval. We seek candidates whose research and teaching interests focus on one or more of these areas: international conflict and cooperation; foreign policy; national security; and war and peace. Duties include the teaching of undergraduate courses in International Relations, including Introduction to International Relations, one or more courses on a topic listed above, and more specialized offerings; undergraduate thesis advising; and departmental and university service. The course load is two courses per semester. Candidates should have a Ph.D. in hand by August 2025. Applicants should submit a cover letter; curriculum vitae; a statement of research and teaching interests (including potential course offerings and, where available, syllabi and student evaluations); a statement on diversity, equity, and inclusion; two chapters or article-length writing samples; and names and contact information for three referees. Brandeis University is committed to advancing diversity, equity, and inclusion in all areas of faculty effort, including scholarship, instruction, and service. In the statement on diversity, equity, and inclusion, applicants should address how their experiences, interests, commitments, or future goals could promote and build departmental and institutional pluralism, justice, and unity. Only online applications will be accepted. Application materials may be uploaded here: <https://academicjobsonline.org/ajo/jobs/27783>. First consideration will be given to applications received by 23 September 2024. Questions about the position can be directed to: Kerry Chase, Chair, Search Committee on International Relations (chase@brandeis.edu). At Brandeis, we believe that diversity, equity, and inclusion are essential components of academic excellence. Brandeis University is an affirmative action, equal opportunity employer that is committed to creating equitable access and opportunities for applicants to all employment positions. Because diversity, equity, and inclusion are at the core of Brandeis' history and mission, we value and are seeking candidates with a variety of social identities, including those that have been underrepresented in higher education, who possess skills that spark innovation, and who, through their scholarly pursuits, teaching, and/or service experiences, bring expertise in building, engaging and sustaining a pluralistic, unified, and just campus community.

Simon Fraser University

Rank: Teaching Faculty Lecturer in International Security, Defence & Diplomacy, with support for the NATO Field School Specializations: International Security, Defense, Intelligence

The Department of Political Science invites applications for a continuing Lecturer position in International Security, Defence and Diplomacy. The candidate will provide teaching and support to the NATO Field School (NFS) and teach introductory courses in Political Science and courses in their areas of expertise. The position will start when filled; preferred starting date is January 2025.

We seek candidates who have a strong background in International Security, Defence, and/or Diplomacy, as well as outstanding teaching skills in a diversity of classroom settings. Relevant experiences in experiential learning (hands-on learning, field exercises, summer schools, simulations, case studies, role-play exercises, peer group learning, etc.) are an asset.

Duties

The successful candidate will collaborate with the NFS Director in preparing and teaching the NFS. The NFS is a growing teaching and engagement endeavour with an emphasis on professional placement of its graduates.

In Political Science, the standard course load for lecturers is eight courses per year. The Collective Agreement stipulates that teaching faculty are to be released from their teaching duties one out every nine terms. This position will likely be paired with an additional role – involving logistical and administrative tasks to support the NFS – that will reduce the overall teaching load based on the level of support.

The NATO Field School and Simulation Program is an intensive political science experience that combines coursework with experiential learning. As one of the lead instructors, you are expected to:

- Act as a liaison between SFU and NATO, working closely with the Director.
- Accompany and guide students during their field school experience
- The NFS is held in Europe every summer. The candidate will be expected to travel for up to eight weeks per year in summer to support the field school.
- Help to set up the logistics and with recruitment and financial reporting for the field school.
- Teach courses and prepare lectures relevant to the topic.
- Set up simulations and other exercises to help students prepare for the field school.

Required Qualifications:

- The chosen candidate must hold a PhD in Political Science or in a related field, with research and/or teaching experience in Defence, Diplomacy, and/or International Security. Candidates with firm defence dates by December 2024 may be considered
- Candidates should have demonstrated teaching experience and potential for teaching excellence

Desirable Qualifications:

The following attributes will be considered as additional assets for the position:

- Academic expertise in at least one of the following areas: NATO; international institutions; interstate conflict, diplomacy and negotiations; North American security and defence; Indo-Pacific security and defence; alliances and multilateral security cooperation; interstate conflict, Canadian foreign policy; cyber information warfare and artificial intelligence
- Teaching experience in experiential and engagement courses, including field schools and security simulations for university students
- Professional experience in defence, diplomacy or international relations
- Related publications
- Teaching experience in large classes introductory classes particularly introductory courses in International Relations and Political Science

Candidates must submit the following documents in a single PDF to pol_apply@sfu.ca:

- Cover letter
- Curriculum vitae
- Teaching portfolio demonstrating teaching excellence in experiential learning and simulations and discussing candidate's approach to equity, diversity and inclusion
- List of three possible referees, to be contacted if the candidate is short-listed

Full consideration will be given to applications submitted by September 5, 2024, however, we will continue to accept applications until the position is filled. Short-listed candidates will be contacted to have three letters of reference forwarded directly to the department via email at pol\_apply@sfu.ca

Faculty salaries at SFU are based on the salary scales bargained between the University and the SFU Faculty Association. A reasonable estimate of the salary range for this role is $98,340 to $114,241.

Simon Fraser University is an institution whose strength is based on our shared commitment to diversity, equity, and inclusion. Diversity is an underlying principle of our Strategic Vision, which pledges SFU to “foster a culture of inclusion and mutual respect, celebrating the diversity reflected among its students, faculty, staff, and our community.” SFU is committed to ensuring that no individual is denied access to employment opportunities for reasons unrelated to ability or qualifications. Consistent with this principle, SFU will advance the interests of underrepresented members of the work force, including Indigenous peoples, persons with disabilities, racialized persons, and women; embrace gender and sexual diversity; ensure that equal opportunity is afforded to all who seek employment at the University; and treat all employees equitably. Candidates that belong to underrepresented groups are particularly encouraged to apply.

SFU is consistently ranked among the top comprehensive universities in Canada and was recently ranked in the top 50 in the world for engaged research. The Department of Political Science at SFU has a growing number of faculty in diverse fields and is strongly supportive of faculty members’ strengths, interests, and career progress. The department strongly believes in methodological pluralism. More information about the department and the university can be found on our website: <http://www.sfu.ca/politics.html>. The campus is located on Burnaby Mountain in Greater Vancouver. Vancouver is a scenic waterfront city located minutes from the mountains and a wide range of outdoor activities. It has a reputation as a clean, safe, multicultural, and ethnically diverse city and is one of the very top cities in the world in which to live and work.

All qualified candidates are encouraged to apply; however, Canadian citizens and permanent residents will be given priority. This position is subject to the availability of funding.

Personal information that forms part of an application is collected under the general authority of the Freedom of Information and Protection of Privacy Act, applicable University Policies, and the SFUFA/SFU Collective Agreement. For further details see the full Collection Notice.

National University of Singapore

Subfield(s): Comparative Politics, International Relations, Public Policy

The Department of Political Science at the National University of Singapore invites applications for the tenure-track position of Presidential Young Professor (PYP) at the rank of Assistant Professor, to commence in 2025. Applications are invited from all major subfields of political science including, but not limited to, comparative politics, international relations, and public policy. We are especially interested in candidates with an Asia-focused research programme.

The NUS Presidential Young Professorship and NUS Presidential Fellowship Awards aim to attract, support, and empower the brightest and most promising young academics in the early stage of their careers so that they can develop themselves into world-class scholars. As a young academic at NUS, you will have the opportunity to work alongside a diverse and dynamic community of scholars and students, to pursue excellence and innovation with a positive societal impact. Successful PYP candidates are awarded a start-up grant package of either SGD 250,000 or SGD 750,000, depending on the demands of their research program. Successful PYP candidates are also granted an award of an additional SGD 250,000 for discretionary spending.

The NUS Department of Political Science is one of the leading global programs, with a vibrant research culture and located in a cosmopolitan hub. It is one of 15 departments within the Faculty of Arts and Social Sciences. Southeast and East Asia are geographical areas of departmental strength, but our 20+ faculty members have research interests which range across the subfields of political theory, international relations, comparative politics, and governance and public policy. In addition, the world-renowned Asia Research Institute (ARI) at NUS engages political scientists as part of its interdisciplinary community, as do our many area studies departments. Our department is committed to promoting equity, diversity, and inclusion as integral values in our strategic development. We also offer a competitive remuneration package, including housing and relocation benefits for eligible overseas candidates. The typical teaching load is 2:1 (one or two courses per semester, totaling three per academic year).

Interested applicants are invited to apply directly at our NUS Career Portal <https://careers.nus.edu.sg/job-invite/25147/>. Application dossiers should include:

- ? A brief cover letter explaining why the position at NUS is of interest and discusses the ambition of your research program
- ? A comprehensive CV with a complete list of publications, awards, grants, and courses taught
- ? A research statement with a three year research plan
- ? Two signature publications with the applicant as the lead author
- ? Letters from at least three referees. If the applicant is two or more years post-PhD, the referees should not be limited to supervisors. The referees should compare the research performance of the applicant to specific individuals at equivalent and top institutions and/or programs. Please send all referee letters directly to pol-ir@nus.edu.sg.

Review of applications will begin on 29 July 2024 and continue until an appointment is made. We regret that only shortlisted candidates will be notified. If there are any questions, please email the search committee at pol-ir@nus.edu.sg.

Fordham University

Rank: Tenure-Track: International Politics/Security (Fordham University)

The Department of Political Science at Fordham University invites applications for a tenure track position in International Politics at the Assistant Professor level, beginning Fall 2025. The primary location for this position is at Fordham College-Rose Hill campus in the Bronx but service may be at any campus of the University.

We are particularly interested in candidates in the field of international security. We especially welcome applicants with regional expertise and a perspective from the Global South. Specializations for this position include, but would not be limited to: inter-state conflict; great power politics; national security; foreign policy; transnational terrorism; and the politics of weapons of mass destruction. The successful candidate will be expected to contribute to undergraduate and graduate curricular needs in political science, as well as contribute to Fordham's interdisciplinary International Studies major, the Humanitarian Studies Program, and the Cybersecurity Program. We encourage applications from candidates who will deepen our engagement with institutions within New York City and contribute to our University and department's commitment to quality teaching and research.

Consistent with our Jesuit and Catholic mission, we believe that diversity is central to the excellence of our academic programs, and we strive to create an academic community and campus culture that attracts and facilitates the development of promising and diverse teacher-scholars. As our student body becomes increasingly diverse, we are especially interested in candidates with substantive experience and commitment to teaching and mentoring students of different races and ethnicities, from a range of socioeconomic and cultural backgrounds.

Review of applications will begin on September 15, 2024. Interested applicants must submit the following documents in electronic format (PDF or Microsoft Word) to Professor Anjali Dayal, Committee Chair, via Interfolio, at <http://apply.interfolio.com/147076>: a cover letter addressing research interests and experience; curriculum vitae; writing sample; a diversity, equity, and inclusion statement; three letters of recommendation; and evidence of teaching effectiveness. Evidence of teaching effectiveness should include a teaching statement reflecting the candidate's pedagogical approach and experience and may include past course syllabi, peer observations, and/or student evaluations. The diversity, equity, and inclusion statement should address how the candidate's teaching, mentoring, scholarship, and/or community service supports Fordham University's commitment to diversity. Earned Ph.D. at the time of appointment is required.

Fordham is an independent, Catholic University in the Jesuit tradition committed to excellence through diversity. Fordham is an equal opportunity employer, and we especially encourage women, people of color, veterans, and people with disabilities to apply.

Rank: Tenure Track Position in Global Politics

SCRIPPS COLLEGE

CLAREMONT, CALIFORNIA 91711

TENURE TRACK POSITION IN GLOBAL POLITICS

Scripps College, a women's liberal arts college with a strong interdisciplinary tradition, invites applications for a tenure-track position in Global Politics starting July 1, 2025.

The department seeks scholarly and teaching expertise in global politics broadly defined. We are particularly interested in topics including, but not limited to, the transnational politics of climate, migration, gender, human rights, international development, social movements, and settler colonialism, with a preference for expertise in the Global South. We value interdisciplinary approaches to, and breadth in, teaching and research, and are interested in candidates who show potential for engaging, research-informed teaching in small classroom settings, and who can supervise undergraduate research effectively. Participation in the Core Curriculum in Interdisciplinary Studies [about to be changed from Interdisciplinary Humanities] is expected.

The position entails a 2-2 teaching load, including the introductory survey course in Global Politics, as well as supervision (shared with other department faculty) of required one-semester senior theses. The candidate should have a PhD in hand by July 1, 2025, either in political science or in adjacent fields, such as geography, sociology, and anthropology.

Candidates should submit the following materials online at <http://apply.interfolio.com/145103>: a CV, a cover letter, a statement of teaching philosophy that also discusses how the candidate could contribute to the College's mission of inclusive and equitable education, an article-length writing sample, and names and contact information for three references.

Semi-finalists will be asked to submit evidence of effective and inclusive teaching, three letters of recommendation, and, potentially, additional research materials.

The salary for this position will range from $81,000 to $90,000 and will be set based on a variety of factors, including but not limited to internal equity, experience, education, specialty, and training.

Review of materials will begin on September 16, 2024. For more information, please contact Nancy Neiman, search committee chair at nneiman@scrippscollege.edu.

Scripps College is one of the seven members of The Claremont Colleges consortium located 35 miles east of Los Angeles. In keeping with its ongoing commitment to build and support a diverse and equitable academic community, Scripps College actively encourages applications from women and members of historically underrepresented groups. Preference will be given to applicants committed to improving higher education for underrepresented students.

The George Washington University's Elliott School of International Affairs invites applications for a full-time, non-tenure-accruing, faculty position to serve as Director of the school's M.A. program in International Affairs. We invite applications from individuals who have substantial academic or professional experience in International Affairs. The successful candidate will be appointed as the John O. Rankin Professor of International Affairs (or Associate Professor) or the John O. Rankin Professor of Practice of International Affairs (or Associate Professor), depending on qualifications. This appointment will begin in academic year 2024-25 for an initial term of three years, and may be renewed thereafter on a term basis. Salary is commensurate with experience, and will reflect a nine-month academic year appointment, leaving summers for individual research. The successful candidate will be expected to carry out occasional duties during the summer months, as needed, to ensure the effectiveness and quality of the MAIA program. There will be a separate stipend for administrative responsibilities.

As a member of the Elliott School's faculty, the Rankin Professor will teach courses, conduct research, and publish in scholarly or policy-related venues on international affairs. As Director of the M.A. program in International Affairs, this person will be responsible for the administration of one of the Elliott School's two largest graduate programs, with an enrollment of approximately 200 students. This will entail working with the deans, departments, and faculty to design and deliver a curriculum that is challenging and current; recruiting and admitting students; advising students; organizing extracurricular events; engaging in outreach (including with program alumni) and fundraising activities; and other aspects of program leadership. The successful candidate will be responsible for the delivery of the program's capstone course.

Minimum qualifications: A graduate degree (such as a Ph.D. or M.A. in a relevant social science or humanities discipline, or a J.D. or M.D.

in a relevant field) and broad experience in international affairs and contemporary policy issues as evidenced by a record of college-level teaching, published research, or lengthy professional employment in international affairs.

Application Procedure: Applicants must complete an online faculty application at <https://www.gwu.jobs/postings/108672> and upload a cover letter that explains how their qualifications and experiences satisfy the basic qualifications for this position, a CV, and (where available) a writing sample, a sample course syllabus, and sample teaching evaluations or assessments. Please provide names and contact information for three references. Review of applications will begin on March 18 and will continue until the position is filled. Only completed applications will be considered.

The George Washington University seeks to attract a diverse faculty of the highest caliber; women and people of color are particularly encouraged to apply. The University is an equal opportunity/Affirmative Action employer that does not unlawfully discriminate in any of its programs or activities on the basis of race, color, religion, sex, national origin, age, disability, veteran status, sexual orientation, gender identity or expression, or on any other basis prohibited by applicable law.

Employment offers are contingent on the satisfactory outcome of a standard background screening.

Yale University

Rank: Post-doctoral fellowships with the Identity & Conflict Lab
Specializations: Germany, China, United States

The Identity & Conflict Lab (ICL) at Yale University, led by Professor Nicholas Sambanis, seeks up to two exceptional candidates as Postdoctoral Associates for the 2024-2025 academic year. This opportunity is for a one-year, full-time residential postdoctoral research fellowship, with potential to renew for one year.

Housed in the MacMillan Center for International and Area Studies, the ICL addresses a broad range of critical questions focused on inter-group conflict and identity politics. The ICL analyzes how social identities shape individual behavior, how conflict affects identities, and what interventions are effective in reducing inter-group conflict. Both violent and non-violent forms of conflict are considered, ranging from bias, discrimination, and protest to ethnic violence, secessionism and war. The ICL has several ongoing projects in four thematic areas: (1) native-immigrant conflict and the politics of immigrant integration across countries, with a focus on Greece, Cyprus, Turkey, Germany, Denmark, and Qatar; (2) effects of national identification (patriotism; nationalism) on foreign policy preferences with case applications in Greece, South Korea, China, and the United States; (3) strategies to reduce majority-minority group conflicts in India and Pakistan; and (4) collection and analysis of new data on separatist conflicts worldwide, and prediction of new conflict outbreaks of separatist violence. A variety of methods are used to study these topics, including surveys, survey experiments, field experiments, and quantitative analysis of observational data. The ICL seeks to integrate substantive and methodological knowledge across the social and behavioral sciences to develop new analytical approaches and new insights into these thematic areas with a view to shaping new directions in scholarly literatures as well as influencing policy design.

Postdoctoral associates will split their time between their own research and work with Professor Nicholas Sambanis on one or more of the Lab's ongoing projects. Innovative new project proposals by associates can also be considered for funding by the ICL.

Job responsibilities will vary depending on the strengths and interests of the successful applicant. Associates will be expected to collect and clean data; review reports on ongoing projects; prepare visualizations and reports of quantitative analysis of new data collected in the lab; assist with drafting grant proposals; program surveys; prepare IRB applications; conduct quantitative data analysis to support ongoing Lab projects; and co-author papers and reports with the Lab Director and affiliated faculty. Additionally, associates will be asked to contribute to the ICL Director's engagement with funders, prepare presentations of lab reports/papers, prepare replication files for published studies, help manage the ICL website and seminar series, and provide summaries of ongoing ICL work for public outreach.

There is no formal teaching requirement. Associates will be expected to help organize the ICL's annual conference as well as the workshop, which will hold occasional meetings throughout the year. Associates will give at least one presentation on their research at the workshop or a graduate-level course led by the ICL Director and would be expected to engage with research by graduate students who are affiliated with the ICL.

The salary is competitive and comes with a benefits package. Information regarding benefits associated with the position can be found here: <https://your.yale.edu/work-yale/benefits/benefits-enrollment-2023/postdoctoral-associates-benefits-2023>

Qualifications

Applications are welcome from scholars who have received their Ph.D. or equivalent degrees since June 2022, or who expect to complete their degree by June 2024. Applications will be reviewed on a rolling basis starting on November 10, 2023. To receive full consideration, application material should be received by that date.

Successful applicants will have excellent training in quantitative methods with an emphasis on statistical analysis, survey methods and experimental methods. Programming skills are desirable. Applicants should have outstanding organizational and communication skills and prior experience using large databases. Excellent knowledge of the statistical software Stata and R is required as is extensive experience programming surveys in Qualtrics. Applicants should be intellectually curious, ambitious, energetic, and self-motivated; they should be able to work independently, but also as part of a team and be sensitive to the demands of multiple simultaneously ongoing projects; they should be able to multi-task and be willing to travel for fieldwork if necessary. Training in behavioral economics and/or social psychology is a plus as several of the Lab's projects cross disciplinary boundaries.

Application Instructions

All application materials must be submitted online through Interfolio. Applicants will be asked to upload a cover letter, CV/resume, one-page research statement, writing sample, and unofficial PhD transcript

(only required for current graduate students). We will also ask for the name and email address of two letter writers who can submit a letter of recommendation (only references for short-listed candidates will be requested).

Rhodes College

Rank: Assistant Professor of International Relations/Comparative Politics

The Department of International Studies at Rhodes College invites applications for a tenure-track position at the rank of assistant professor to begin Fall of 2024. Rhodes College believes that diversity and inclusion are critical to our success as an institution, and we seek to recruit, develop, and retain the most talented people from a diverse candidate pool. Furthermore, Rhodes College is committed to supporting the work-life alignment of its faculty. We encourage applications from candidates who have expertise in security, peace, and conflict. The search is open in terms of regional or area studies expertise. This position has a 3:2 teaching load, and applicants should demonstrate a firm commitment to teaching and research in an undergraduate, liberal arts environment. The successful candidate will have classroom experience and is expected to teach introductory and advanced courses in either International Relations or Comparative Politics. Additional courses will be based on the candidate's area of specialization. Preference will be given to candidates who can teach an upper-level course on international conflict or security and those who can contribute to an interdisciplinary atmosphere. The successful candidate is expected to earn their Ph.D. by July 2024.

Rhodes is a nationally ranked residential college committed to the liberal arts and sciences. Our highest priorities are intellectual engagement, service to others, commitment to diversity and inclusion, and honor among ourselves. Our students live and learn on one of the country's most beautiful campuses, located in the heart of Memphis, an economic, medical, and culturally diverse center, making Rhodes one of a handful of prominent liberal arts colleges in a major metropolitan area.

Rhodes College prides itself on being a diverse, inclusive, and welcoming environment. We are an equal opportunity employer committed to diversity and anti-discrimination.

A complete application will include 1) a cover letter that addresses the strengths the candidate will bring as a teacher and scholar to a liberal arts college environment; 2) a curriculum vitae; 3) a separate statement that addresses how the candidate's experiences with teaching, scholarship, and/or service will contribute to a college community that includes a commitment to diversity and inclusion as one of its core values; 4) a writing sample; 5) an unofficial graduate transcript; and 6) evidence of teaching performance (if applicable). Review of completed applications will begin on October 1, 2023, and will continue until the position is filled. Candidates from backgrounds typically underrepresented in higher education are strongly encouraged to apply. Letters of recommendation will only be solicited for short-listed applicants, at which time you will be prompted for the names and contact information for three (3) references. Background checks are required before candidates can be brought to campus for interviews.

Candidates must have experience managing research projects and a record of successful collaboration. Candidates must also have evidence of a research pipeline related to the aims of GRAIL and the CSS Lab.

About Purdue University

In recent years, the College of Liberal Arts at Purdue University has hired a large group of faculty in the area of artificial intelligence (AI), broadly construed. Representing a variety of disciplines in the College, this cohort of scholars expands our capacity to explore the implications of AI development across multiple domains and contribute to disciplinary and interdisciplinary research and educational initiatives surrounding AI in new and important ways.

Political Science is home to 28 faculty and more than 40 PhD students, visiting scholars, and post-docs. Purdue University is a member of the AAU and a land grant university with enrollment of over 52,000 students. The campus is located in West Lafayette, Indiana, an area with a favorable cost of living and a vibrant local community. Purdue University offers high-quality research and computing facilities with many opportunities for collaboration in Centers and Institutes across campus and in the broader region. Purdue University is building world-leading programs in AI, including a new Institute for Physical Artificial Intelligence.

Computational Social Science (CSS) Lab at Purdue University
 Under the direction of Dr. Bryce J. Dietrich, the Computational Social Science Lab (CSS) was established to promote the application and development of computational methods to large, typically complex, human, and behavioral data. CSS has received coverage both on and off campus for its "revolutionary" approach to social science research, especially its novel use of text, audio, and video data. The lab comprises an interdisciplinary team of undergraduate and graduate students, faculty, and postdoctoral fellows.

Dr. Bryce J. Dietrich joined the faculty at Purdue University in the Fall of 2022. His research uses novel quantitative, automated, and machine learning methods to analyze non-traditional data sources such as audio (or speech) data and video data. His work has appeared in prominent journals like the American Political Science Review, Journal of Politics, Nature Human Behavior, Political Analysis, and Political Psychology. In addition to securing external awards from the NIH and NSF, his work has also been covered by prominent media outlets like The Washington Post, The Economist and National Public Radio (NPR). His most recent work using C-SPAN has looked at gender and social dynamics on the floor of the U.S. House of Representatives.

Governance and Responsible AI Lab (GRAIL) at Purdue University
 The Governance and Responsible AI Lab (GRAIL), co-directed by Dr. Daniel S. Schiff and Dr. Kaylyn Jackson Schiff, conducts research on the social, ethical, and governance implications of artificial intelligence and other emerging technologies. GRAIL consists of an interdisciplinary team of faculty, graduate students, and undergraduate students and produces rigorous, policy-relevant work on AI supported by funding from the National Institute of Justice and Google. The lab's research explores topics such as the political impacts of deepfakes, emerging legislation and regulation related to AI, use of AI in government and law enforcement, and public and elite opinion on AI. GRAIL is a member of the National Institute of Standards and Technology's AI Safety Institute Consortium and an affiliate of Purdue's Institute for Physical Artificial Intelligence.

Dr. Daniel S. Schiff studies the formal and informal governance of AI through policy and industry, as well as AI's social and ethical implications in domains like education, manufacturing, finance, and criminal justice. Daniel previously served as the founding Responsible AI Lead at JP Morgan Chase & Co. and as the Secretary of the IEEE 7010-2020 standard, the first AI ethics industry standard. His research has been published in prominent interdisciplinary venues such as Policy Studies Journal, the American Political Science Review, AI & Society, and the International Journal of AI in Education.

Dr. Kaylyn Jackson Schiff conducts research on how technological developments are changing citizen-government contact and explores implications for service provision, misinformation, policing, education, and government use of artificial intelligence. Her research has won the award for best dissertation in the field of public administration from the American Political Science Association and the Journal of Politics best paper award. Her work has been published in top journals such as the American Political Science Review, Public Administration Review, Policy Studies Journal, and Nature Human Behavior.

Application Procedures

University of North Carolina, Pembroke

Rank: Assistant Professor of Public Administration focus on Emergency Management

Subfield(s): Public Administration, Other, Methodology

Assistant Professor of Public Administration with focus on Emergency Management

The Department of Political Science and Public Administration at the University of North Carolina, Pembroke seeks an assistant professor of public administration with the ability to teach in the area of emergency management. This position will be responsible for teaching a mix of courses in emergency management and public administration at the graduate level, methodology courses at the graduate and undergraduate level, and at least one of our general education courses (Introduction to Political Science, American National Government, or State and Local Government and Administration).

The area of teaching and research specialization is open. Preferences will be given to candidates who are focused clearly on the administration side of the discipline, those who have a record of teaching courses in emergency management, and to those who can teach methodology. Preferences will also be given to candidates who show how their research may connect and enhance community resiliency through emergency preparation at all government levels. Successful candidates must show excellence in both online teaching as well as in the traditional classroom since this position will require the candidate to consistently teach in both learning platforms. While the teaching load for the university is 4-4, course release time is provided for those who teach graduate courses. The expected teaching for this position is three to five graduate courses each year and one or more undergraduate course each year, with most courses offered on a predictable rotation.

UNCP is a regional university serving rural North Carolina that emphasizes excellence in teaching. The Department of Political Science and Public Administration serves several programs including a B.A. program with four different concentrations and a Master of Public Administration program with four different concentrations. Additionally, the department actively contributes to a growing B.I.S. program in Public and Non-profit Management and Administration. Courses for the department are offered both on campus and in online formats.

To be considered for this position, candidates must hold a Ph.D. in public administration, emergency management, or a closely related field, or be ABD with a clear date of completion. To apply, applicants must complete the application for employment form found at <https://jobs.uncp.edu> where they will be instructed to submit a CV, a writing sample, and a teaching portfolio that demonstrates competence in online teaching and in person, as well as past course evaluations

(if applicable). Candidates who are selected after the first round of consideration will be asked to submit three letters of recommendation for consideration. For questions, please contact the chair of the department, Dr. Emily Sharum (emily.sharum@uncp.edu).

University of Zurich

Rank: Postdoc Position in Computational Social Science at University of Zurich

The Department of Political Science at the University of Zurich invites applications for a 4-year postdoc position in the research group "Political Behavior and Digital Media" (Prof. Karsten Donnay) starting on October 1, 2024, or later by agreement.

This position is part of a joint research project funded by the Swiss National Science Foundation involving Prof. Karsten Donnay and Prof. Fabrizio Gilardi at the Department of Political Science as well as Prof. Dominik Hangartner at ETH Zurich and Prof. Gloria Genaro at University College London. The postdoc will be based in the team of Prof. Donnay but will work very closely with Prof. Gilardi and his team as well as the other two collaborating research teams.

Your responsibilities

This position is part of a large-scale, collaborative research project that investigates ways in which the quality of online public discourse can be improved. The project will develop computational methods for the semi-automatic detection of both toxic and constructive content and evaluate the effectiveness of interventions against toxicity and for promoting constructive dialogue.

This postdoc position will take the lead on all NLP and machine learning-related aspects of the project, in particular with regard to detection and measurement of toxic/constructive discourse (80%). We expect candidates to have a very strong background in computational social science, in particular in NLP and state-of-the-art machine learning.

Moreover, this position will support the computational infrastructure used in the project, hosted on the Science Cloud of the University of Zurich (20%). This includes server management, database administration, maintaining and running data collection and processing pipelines as well as deploying and maintaining model APIs.

This position is fully funded by a research grant from the Swiss National Science Foundation for a duration of up to four years. The position comes with no teaching obligations but the postdoc will contribute to advising BA/MA/PhD students and to some administrative tasks. A strong collaborative mentality and proven experience working in large research teams is essential for this position.

Your profile

- PhD in political science, computational social science or in a closely related discipline

- Substantive interest in political behavior and the impact of digitalization on politics is an asset
- Strong background in computational social science, NLP/ML in particular
- Proficiency in server management, database administration (PostgreSQL and Elasticsearch), and data collection processes using bash, Python, and R
- Experience with Docker for containerization and deployment of model APIs
- Familiarity with essential Python packages (PyTorch, scikit-learn, pandas, numpy) and R packages (tidyverse, ggplot2, dplyr, tidyr)
- Experience with additional frameworks such as TensorFlow, spaCy, Apache Spark is a plus
- Ability to work both independently and in a team
- Strong command of English
- Creativity, open-mindedness and curiosity

What we offer

- Integration in a leading department with highly motivated and engaged colleagues
- Involvement in a high-profile multi-institutional research collaboration
- Financial and academic support from the research group and department
- Funding is guaranteed for up to four years at 100% employment rate
- Salary is according to cantonal guidelines and approximately 101'844 CHF per year (gross salary)

Place of work: Zurich

Start of employment: October 1, 2024 (or later by agreement)

Closing date for applications: June 30, 2024

Further inquiries can be directed to Karsten Donnay (donnay@ipz.uzh.ch).

The department aims to increase the diversity of its members and thus explicitly invites applications from women and other traditionally underrepresented groups.

Please apply directly through the department's application portal using the following link: <https://www.ipz.uzh.ch/de/ueber-uns/offenstellen/2024-Postdoc-Donnay.html>

In addition to filling out the application form you will be asked to provide a current CV, motivation letter, a writing sample (e.g. paper, PhD thesis), and the contact details of two people willing to serve as a reference.

Application Deadline: 6/30/2024

Princeton University

Rank: Postdoctoral Research Associate

Princeton University's Initiative for Data-Driven Social Science (DDSS) invites applications for a Postdoctoral Research Associate. DDSS supports technical and methodological innovation in quantitative and computational social science, addressing a diverse array of new data and analytic challenges, facilitating impactful multidisciplinary collaboration, scholarly advancement, and the creation of tools and public goods.

Requirements

Applicants must have (or expect to have) a PhD in the social sciences, statistics, computer science, or related fields, and their interests must fall at the technical forefront of quantitative social science. Candidates should offer state-of-the-art technical or methodological skills, applying innovative techniques in the examination of substantive social science research questions. In addition to innovation, candidates will be evaluated on their potential to create public goods and their capacity for interdisciplinary engagement.

Responsibilities

This role's emphasis is on making substantive technical and methodological contributions that either directly or indirectly support DDSS-supported projects or its mission. Candidates will be able to apply and further develop their technical skills in a dynamic research environment. The successful candidate will have the opportunity to work closely with our research software engineers and other research staff. Projects may include software package creation and maintenance, data engineering, development and/or implementation of advanced statistical methodologies, and supporting research on high performance and cloud computing.

The successful candidate will also be expected to offer 2-3 advanced technical or methodological workshops each semester, assist in organizing research-based events (e.g., speaker series, symposia, or reading groups), present their work at research methods and field-specific seminars, and offer consultation to faculty, graduate students, and postdoctoral researchers from the social sciences on topics related to the candidate's area of expertise. One day per week can be dedicated to independent research. Postdoctoral research associates work under the direct supervision of the DDSS Director and Director for Research and Strategy.

Candidates must have experience with software package development and maintenance in R. Additional experience in the following are particularly welcome: record linkage/entity resolution; data privacy techniques; package development and maintenance; large data processing and high performance computing.

Advanced knowledge of R is required. Intermediate knowledge in Python and/or at least one SQL dialect and/or C/C++ is strongly preferred.

Please apply via: <https://www.princeton.edu/acad-positions/position/34521>

Application Requirements

1. Cover letter
2. C.V.
- 3.1-2 research papers
- 4.1-2 page research statement, specifying research interests and example training workshops candidate could offer
5. Names of two persons who can provide letters of reference upon request

Appointments are for one year with the possibility of renewal pending satisfactory performance and continued funding. The appointment will be through the Department of Politics. This position is subject to the University's background check policy. The work location for this position is in-person on campus at Princeton University.

American University of Sharjah

Rank: Postdoctoral Associate

Subfield(s): Methodology, Comparative Politics, Open

Specializations: Quantitative Methods, Political Behavior, Middle East

The Department of International Studies at the American University of Sharjah (AUS), United Arab Emirates, is seeking a highly motivated and enthusiastic Postdoctoral Associate to work with Dr. Bethany Shockley and her US-based collaborator, Dr. Yuree Noh on an experimental study of egalitarianism in the UAE and Tunisia. The anticipated appointment is expected to start on September 1, 2024 and end on May 30, 2025.

The ideal candidate will play an integral role in supporting the collection and analysis of experimental data on the opinions of nationals and non-national residents in the UAE. Specifically, the individual will work with the AUS-based team of graduate and undergraduate assistants to conduct lab and survey experiments under the direction of Dr. Bethany Shockley and Dr. Yuree Noh. It is expected that the postdoctoral scholar will join the team in actively publishing research findings and presenting research.

Qualifications and Skills Required:

The applicant needs to have obtained a PhD in political science or related fields such as economics, psychology, or sociology with research experience. The successful applicant will have excellent quantitative methods skills with an emphasis on lab and/or survey experiments. The position is open to applicants with topical knowledge in areas such as public opinion, populism, migration studies, gender & politics, authoritarianism, and state-society relations. Prior experience in the Arab Gulf region and knowledge of Arabic will also be considered favorably but are not required.

This position is based in Sharjah, UAE, and the selected candidate must be willing to relocate. Sharjah is a diverse and multicultural city, only 25 minutes from Dubai. The terms of employment are competitive. Applications will be reviewed immediately, and candidates will be considered until the position is filled. You are welcome to contact Dr. Bethany Shockley bshockley@aus.edu or Dr. Yuree Noh yuree.noh@gmail.com at with any questions about the position.

Johns Hopkins University

Rank: Assistant Program Director, Data Analytics and Policy

Johns Hopkins University: Zanvyl Krieger School of Arts and Sciences: Advanced Academic Programs

Location: Washington, DC, 20001

Description

Position Description

The Johns Hopkins University invites applications for the position of assistant program director. This position will support the MS in Data Analytics and Policy program in the Center for Data Analytics, Policy, and Government within the Krieger School of Arts and Sciences' Advanced Academic Programs division. Reporting to the director of the Data Analytics and Policy program and associate dean for graduate and professional programs, the assistant program director will contribute to the program's academic excellence and support ongoing innovation in the curriculum. Johns Hopkins University is committed to hiring candidates who, through their teaching and service, will contribute to the diversity and excellence of the academic community.

Advanced Academic Programs

Advanced Academic Programs is a Krieger School of Arts and Sciences division at Johns Hopkins University. As the nation's oldest and one of its most prestigious research universities, JHU offers high-quality master's degrees and post-baccalaureate education to students online in Washington, D.C., and on the Homewood campus in Baltimore, Maryland. AAP enrolls over 6,000 students each academic year in over 30 degree programs.

AAP was launched in 1992 to provide students with the opportunity to obtain a master's degree in a professional and part-time graduate program. Over the course of more than 30 years, AAP has worked diligently to add new degree programs that fit within the academic structure of the Krieger School and satisfy the demands of the marketplace. AAP distinguishes itself through its intensive instructional assistance, selective admissions, and more than 50 dedicated full-time faculty. Tenured Krieger School faculty members serve as program chairs within AAP and work together in the Council of Program Chairs, an academic advisory body to the Krieger School dean.

AAP's website, <http://advanced.jhu.edu/>, provides additional information.

The Position

The Advanced Academic Programs division seeks an assistant program director to teach in and provide administrative support to the Data Analytics and Policy program. The Master of Science in Data Analytics and Policy prepares students to be data-driven leaders and decision-makers, with a curriculum that blends data science training with substantive expertise in politics and policy. The assistant program director has academic and administrative duties supporting the curriculum, students, adjunct faculty, and the program's public presence. The assistant program director will have significant interaction/collaboration with the program director and other faculty within the Center for Data Analytics, Policy, and Government, as well as across other AAP programs.

The assistant program director is a full-time, non-tenure-track, 12-month renewable faculty position with the academic title of lecturer or senior lecturer, commensurate with experience. The assistant program director reports to the director of the data analytics and policy program, who consults with the center director and program chair on academic matters, and to the associate dean for graduate and professional programs, who leads AAP and reports to the Krieger School dean.

The assistant program director will have the following academic and administrative responsibilities:

Academic Responsibilities

- Teach five graduate courses per year, including preparation and time spent in the classroom (both onsite at the Johns Hopkins University Bloomberg Center in Washington, D.C., and online), using best practices for teaching and engaging students from diverse backgrounds
- Develop new courses, both in-person and online
- Coordinate with adjunct faculty in the delivery of multi-section courses
- Advise students, including both program and research advising
- Provide input on the curriculum to ensure the delivery and growth of quality programs
- Other academic duties normally performed by full-time or regular part-time faculty, such as participating on committees, attending academic events, and contributing to other academic service

Administrative Responsibilities

- Assist the program director with program administration, such as reviewing admission materials, developing program materials, and maintaining program communications
- Assist with the management of degree concentrations
- Organize professionally and academically enriching co-curricular programming that engages students and external audiences, such as skills workshops, networking opportunities, and public-facing events
- Participate in adjunct faculty hiring and development
- Other administrative duties as assigned

Qualifications

The assistant program director role is critical to maintaining the overall high quality of this program. The assistant program director must have a passion for education and its power to change lives, especially for part-time and non-residential students. A track record of successful graduate and/or online teaching, as well as skills in instructional design, content development, and instructional technology, are important.

Candidates who have experience teaching and engaging students from diverse backgrounds are of particular interest.

To be considered, candidates should meet a set of minimum qualifications and ideally meet several additional preferred qualifications.

Minimum Qualifications:

- PhD in political science, public policy, statistics, or other relevant field
- One to three years of higher education teaching experience online and/or at the graduate level
- Expertise required to teach a variety of courses at the confluence of data analytics and policy, such as statistics, programming in R and Python, data visualization, research design, and political and public policy analysis
- Interest in leading and engaging with co-curricular programming and public-facing initiatives related to data analytics and public policy
- Strong organizational and problem-solving skills
- Excellent oral and written communication skills
- Ability to work collaboratively, iteratively, and creatively on program development

Preferred Qualifications:

- 4 or more years of higher education teaching experience online and/or at the graduate level?
- 1-3 years of related professional work experience outside of academia, including but not limited to, government service, outside consulting, or collaborative work within fields related to politics, governance, and/or policy
- Professional interests in artificial intelligence, machine learning, and the application of these technologies to political and governmental processes
- Experience managing a degree or certificate program
- Demonstrated track record of excellence in teaching and innovation in curriculum design
- The ability to work independently in a fast-paced environment with competing demands and multiple deadlines in both on-site and online environments

Application Instructions

For consideration interested and qualified candidates should submit the following materials:

- Cover letter that describes the applicant's interest in the position
- CV?
- Teaching evaluations from the two most recent semesters
- Transcripts for every degree awarded

The selected candidate will be expected to undergo a background check, provide three references, and submit proof of educational attainment.

Salem State University

Rank: Faculty - Public Policy - Full Time, Temporary

Specializations: Race & Ethnic Politics, Housing, American Politics

The politics, policy and international relations department at Salem State University invites a full-time, temporary faculty position for the 2024-2025 academic year. We are seeking a public policy specialist with familiarity with policies in an urban context such as housing, education, transportation, policing, poverty, and/or immigration. This position is part of a Salem State initiative to help establish and advance our proposed North Shore Policy Lab and may be reappointed for up to two additional years subject to available funding. With continued growth of the program, there may be additional tenure track lines in the department.

Housed in the department's Bates Center for Public and Global Affairs, the North Shore Policy Lab will involve students in research conducted on behalf of local and state government and non-governmental organizations in order to prepare them for jobs in the public, non-profit and/or private sectors.

The candidate should be well-versed in both quantitative and qualitative research methods and be able to teach our current Research Methods course as well as a new, advanced multi-methods class that will serve as the foundation for student work on applied policy research projects as a part of the policy lab. The ideal candidate will have a demonstrated record of community-based research and community partnerships with a focus on equity issues in the context of urban areas like those served by Salem State.

Salem State University is committed to excellence in teaching. We pride ourselves in providing first-rate classroom experiences and supervising intensive learning opportunities such as research and internships. Many of our students are first generation, racial/ethnic minorities, veterans, and adult learners. Salem State University is located in the Greater Boston area in the historic city of Salem, Massachusetts. The Greater Boston region is famous for its world-class education, healthcare, and business enterprises and the area offers numerous opportunities for professional and personal enrichment.

Duties and Responsibilities

Candidates are required to perform duties in accordance with the MSCA contract. Duties include teaching, advising, scholarship and contributions to continuously improve the department and university.

The standard teaching load is 12 credit hours per semester. The position is subject to available funding.

Required Qualifications:

Earned PhD in public policy or a related field from an accredited institution (ABD considered if degree will be conferred by September 2024)

Advising and/or mentoring experience

Preferred Qualifications:

Commitment to anti-racist, culturally responsive teaching

Demonstrated expertise in community-based research

Active publication record and/or exemplary scholarly potential (e.g., ABD candidates with strong pipeline of research)

Prior applied experience in non-profit or public sector settings

Demonstrated excellence in teaching

As an emerging Hispanic Serving Institution (HSI), Salem State University seeks to enrich the faculty/librarian ranks by actively encouraging candidates whose lived and scholarly experiences directly address issues regarding the health, welfare, and representation of Latinx populations in the United States. Candidates who meet this strongly desired qualification should present documented activities in Latinx-related teaching, scholarship/research, and service, including community-based endeavors in each of these three areas.

Working Conditions:

This is an on-site, in-person position.

Salem State University complies with the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA) to provide reasonable accommodation to qualified applicants and employees with disabilities. For accommodation information or requests please email eo-hr@salemstate.edu.

Special Instructions to Applicants:

Please apply online and attach curriculum vitae, cover letter, teaching philosophy, and a diversity statement (please read our institutional diversity statement and describe how you would contribute to our mission in your teaching, research, mentoring/advising, and service).

The online portal can be found at: <https://internal-salemstate.icims.com/jobs/2894/faculty%2c-political-science-%28public-policy%29%2c-full-time%2c-temporary%2c-fall-2024/job>

Employment is contingent upon a completed background and CORI check satisfactory to the university.

This position is not eligible for H1B visa sponsorship.

Please Note: If there is no application deadline associated with a position, it may be removed at any time and additional applications will not be accepted.

Harvard University

Rank: Academy Scholar

The Academy Scholars Program of The Harvard Academy for International and Area Studies identifies and supports outstanding scholars at the start of their academic careers whose work combines excellence in a social science discipline with a command of the language and knowledge or expertise of countries or regions outside of the United States or Canada. Their scholarship should span traditional disciplinary divisions and elucidate comparative, transnational, or domestic issues, past or present.

The Academy Scholars are a select community of individuals possessed of resourcefulness, initiative, and originality whose work shows promise as a foundation for careers in research universities or international institutions.

Academy Scholars are appointed for a two-year, in-residence, postdoctoral fellowship at The Harvard Academy for International and Area Studies, Harvard University, Cambridge, MA, USA. They receive substantial financial and research assistance which permits them to undertake robust research projects and skills development in their chosen fields and areas. They meet at dinners, seminars, and informal get-togethers in order to pursue innovative interdisciplinary approaches to their work. They are mentored by the Harvard Academy Senior Scholars, a cohort of faculty members who act as a selection committee, participate in Harvard Academy events, and are committed to supporting the Academy Scholars as they work to achieve their potential.

These awards are open to recipients of PhD or comparable doctoral degrees (within two years of the August 1, 2025, start date) and advanced doctoral candidates in the social sciences. Scholars nearing dissertation completion must be able to submit degree conferral documentation issued by their university registrar's office by June 30, 2025, for an August 1, 2025, start date. Individuals who hold or have completed another Harvard postdoctoral fellowship are not eligible to apply.

The Harvard Academy is dedicated to building an inclusive community of scholars with an array of experiences, perspectives, and methods and welcomes a diverse pool of applicants.

Each year, five to six Academy Scholars are named for two-year appointments with an annual stipend of $80,000 (annual research support of $5,000 is also provided, along with funds for hiring research assistants), with the two years to be completed within a three-year window. Year 1 of the fellowship must be taken up no later than the fall immediately following the postdoctoral fellowship offer. Delays or deferrals in the start of Year 1 are not permitted. Between Years 1 and 2, Academy Scholars may apply for a one-time leave (up to 12 months), either to accept or to continue with a tenure-track teaching appointment but for no other professional reason. Academy Scholars may not accept other sources of funding, awards, or obligations during their appointment.

Nanyang Technological University

Rank: Assistant Professor of Political Theory

Public Policy and Global Affairs
School of Social Sciences
Nanyang Technological University, Singapore

Young and research intensive, Nanyang Technological University, Singapore (NTU Singapore) is ranked among the world's top universities.

The School of Social Sciences offers undergraduate and graduate degree programmes in a full range of disciplines and actively promotes interdisciplinary learning and research.

Assistant Professor of Political Theory

The School of Social Sciences at NTU Singapore invites applications for a tenure-track Assistant Professor position in Public Policy and Global Affairs (PPGA), with specialization in political theory.

The Public Policy and Global Affairs Programme is one of the four major programmes in the School of Social Sciences, together with Sociology, Psychology, and Economics. We attract excellent students to our BSocSci and PhD degree programmes and provide them with interdisciplinary training, as well as practical knowledge and skill sets necessary to dissect and address real world problems facing political leaders, policymakers, and the global community.

We seek a dedicated colleague with the necessary skills to collaborate and strengthen PPGA's research programmes and teaching portfolios, as well as commit to relevant administration duties. Personal aptitude will be important for this position.

The successful candidate will have a PhD in political science or in a related field, a strong track record of research commensurate with career stage (e.g., publishing in established peer-reviewed journals in the discipline, securing and managing externally funded research, organising conference panels and workshops) and effective teaching and training of undergraduate and/or graduate students.

Area of specialization within political theory is open, however we particularly welcome candidates who are able to offer courses in non-Western political thought. The willingness to contribute to the university's new major program in Philosophy, Politics, and Economics will also be considered a significant asset.

In addition to developing their own research programme, we expect the successful candidate to contribute to teaching undergraduate and graduate core modules in the PPGA Programme, and modules in their areas of specialisation. The successful candidate will join a dynamic team in administering the PPGA Programme.

Essential selection criteria:

- A PhD in political science or in a related field.
- A strong research and publication track record commensurate with career stage.
- Experience and interest in teaching the PPGA core module in political theory.
- Excellent communication, interpersonal skills, and commitment relevant to teaching, pastoral care, and administering the PPGA Programme.

Desirable selection criteria:

- Ability to offer courses in secondary subfields of political science, or core modules of Philosophy, Politics, and Economics.
- Research and teaching interests that strengthen and expand PPGA's research programmes and teaching portfolios.

For further information about the Public Policy and Global Affairs Programme, School of Social Sciences at NTU Singapore, please see: <https://www.ntu.edu.sg/sss/public-policy-and-global-affairs>.

Emoluments

NTU Singapore offers a competitive salary commensurate with qualifications and experience in addition to a comprehensive fringe benefit package.

Application Procedure

The closing date for applications is 31 July 2024.

Please submit your application through the NTU career portal (<https://ntu.wd3.myworkdayjobs.com/en-US/Careers/details/Assistant-Professor-in-Public-Policy-and-Global-Affairs--PPGA--R00013934>):

- Cover letter: please describe your motivation to join the PPGA Programme and a summary of your planned teaching and research activities.
- Curriculum vitae: please address any career gaps in the cover letter.
- Research statement.
- Writing sample: please include a published journal article or working paper that is representative of your scholarship in political theory.
- Teaching statement: please include student evaluations (if any).
- Citation report.

Postdoctoral Research Associate, Artificial Intelligence, Political Science

Job Summary

The Department of Political Science seeks a two-year postdoctoral researcher to assist with projects, papers, and grant proposals in the Governance and Responsible AI Lab (GRAIL) and the Computational Social Science Lab (CSS). The postdoctoral fellow will be mentored in research and proposal writing by faculty directors of the labs and participate in an active research community in Political Science and the College of Liberal Arts.

For information about the labs, please see the following websites:
GRAIL: <https://cla.purdue.edu/academic/polsci/research/labs/grail/index.html>
CSS: <https://cla.purdue.edu/academic/polsci/research/labs/computational-social-science-lab/index.html>

Qualifications

A PhD in Political Science, Public Policy, or a closely related field is required. ABDs will be considered but the successful candidate must provide evidence of completion of all requirements for the PhD prior to the start date of the position. Qualified candidates must have strong skills in writing, quantitative data analysis, data visualization, and research methods. Candidates must have experience managing research projects and a record of successful collaboration. Candidates must also have evidence of a research pipeline related to the aims of GRAIL and the CSS Lab.

About Purdue University

In recent years, the College of Liberal Arts at Purdue University has hired a large group of faculty in the area of artificial intelligence (AI), broadly construed. Representing a variety of disciplines in the College, this cohort of scholars expands our capacity to explore the implications of AI development across multiple domains and contribute to disciplinary and interdisciplinary research and educational initiatives surrounding AI in new and important ways.

Political Science is home to 28 faculty and more than 40 PhD students, visiting scholars, and post-docs. Purdue University is a member of the AAU and a land grant university with enrollment of over 52,000 students. The campus is located in West Lafayette, Indiana, an area with a favorable cost of living and a vibrant local community. Purdue University offers high-quality research and computing facilities with many opportunities for collaboration in Centers and Institutes across campus and in the broader region. Purdue University is building world-leading programs in AI, including a new Institute for Physical Artificial Intelligence.

Computational Social Science (CSS) Lab at Purdue University
Under the direction of Dr. Bryce J. Dietrich, the Computational Social Science Lab (CSS) was established to promote the application and development of computational methods to large, typically complex, human, and behavioral data. CSS has received coverage both on and off campus for its "revolutionary" approach to social science research, especially its novel use of text, audio, and video data. The lab comprises an interdisciplinary team of undergraduate and graduate students, faculty, and postdoctoral fellows.

Dr. Bryce J. Dietrich joined the faculty at Purdue University in the Fall of 2022. His research uses novel quantitative, automated, and machine learning methods to analyze non-traditional data sources such as audio (or speech) data and video data. His work has appeared in prominent journals like the American Political Science Review, Journal of Politics, Nature Human Behavior, Political Analysis, and Political Psychology. In addition to securing external awards from the NIH and NSF, his work has also been covered by prominent media outlets like The Washington Post, The Economist and National Public Radio (NPR). His most recent work using C-SPAN has looked at gender and social dynamics on the floor of the U.S. House of Representatives.

Governance and Responsible AI Lab (GRAIL) at Purdue University
The Governance and Responsible AI Lab (GRAIL), co-directed by Dr. Daniel S. Schiff and Dr. Kaylyn Jackson Schiff, conducts research on the social, ethical, and governance implications of artificial intelligence and other emerging technologies. GRAIL consists of an interdisciplinary team of faculty, graduate students, and undergraduate students and produces rigorous, policy-relevant work on AI supported by funding from the National Institute of Justice and Google. The lab's research explores topics such as the political impacts of deepfakes, emerging legislation and regulation related to AI, use of AI in government and law enforcement, and public and elite opinion on AI. GRAIL is a member of the National Institute of Standards and Technology's AI Safety Institute Consortium and an affiliate of Purdue's Institute for Physical Artificial Intelligence.

Dr. Daniel S. Schiff studies the formal and informal governance of AI through policy and industry, as well as AI's social and ethical implications in domains like education, manufacturing, finance, and criminal justice. Daniel previously served as the founding Responsible AI Lead at JP Morgan Chase & Co. and as the Secretary of the IEEE 7010-2020 standard, the first AI ethics industry standard. His research has been published in prominent interdisciplinary venues such as Policy Studies Journal, the American Political Science Review, AI & Society, and the International Journal of AI in Education.

Dr. Kaylyn Jackson Schiff conducts research on how technological developments are changing citizen-government contact and explores implications for service provision, misinformation, policing, education, and government use of artificial intelligence. Her research has won the award for best dissertation in the field of public administration from the American Political Science Association and the Journal of Politics best paper award. Her work has been published in top journals such as the American Political Science Review, Public Administration Review, Policy Studies Journal, and Nature Human Behavior.

Application Procedures

Princeton University

Rank: Postdoctoral Fellowship

The Princeton Society of Fellows in the Liberal Arts, an interdisciplinary group of scholars in the humanities and social sciences, invites applications for the 2025-2028 fellowship competition. The following fellowships are to be awarded:

Two or three Open Fellowships in any discipline represented in the Society

One Fellowship in Humanistic Studies

One Fellowship in LGBT Studies

Applicants may be considered for more than one fellowship category pertinent to their research and teaching. Please see the Society's website (sf.princeton.edu) for fellowship details, eligibility, disciplines, and application.

Appointed in the Council of the Humanities and academic departments for three years, fellows pursue their research, attend weekly seminars, and teach half-time as Lecturers. In each of the first two years, fellows teach one course per semester; in their third year, they teach only one course in either semester. The work location for these positions is in-person on campus at Princeton University. The appointment rank and term may be renewed annually.

Applicants holding the Ph.D. at the time of application must have received the degree after January 1, 2023. Applicants not yet holding the Ph.D. must have completed a substantial portion of the dissertation – at least half - at the time of application. Successful candidates must fulfill all requirements for the Ph.D., including filing of the dissertation, by June 15, 2025. Candidates for/recipients of doctoral degrees in Education, Jurisprudence, and from Princeton University are not eligible. Applicants may apply only once to the Princeton Society of Fellows.

Selection is based on exceptional scholarly achievement and evidence of unusual promise, range and quality of teaching experience, and potential contributions to an interdisciplinary community. The Society of Fellows seeks a diverse and international pool of applicants, and especially welcomes those from underrepresented backgrounds.

Applicants are asked to submit an online application by August 6, 2024 (11:59 p.m. ET).

These positions are subject to the University's background check policy.

Applicants can apply at <https://www.princeton.edu/acad-positions/position/34642>. Please remember to carefully review the Society's website (sf.princeton.edu) before applying.

Princeton University is an Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action Employer and all qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to age, race, color, religion, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity or expression, national origin, disability status, protected veteran status, or any other characteristic protected by law. ## Texas A&M University

Rank: Academic Professional Track (Non-Tenure): Instructional - Open Rank

The Department of Political Science within the Bush School of Government and Public Service at Texas A&M University in College Station, Texas invites applications for a full-time Academic Professional Track (Non-tenure) faculty position as an instructional assistant professor, instructional associate professor, or instructional professor. The position would be a 9-month appointment beginning with the fall semester 2024. Successful applicants will teach at the undergraduate level and provide support for the development of the Political Science undergraduate programs and curriculum, participate in all aspects of the department's activities, and serve the profession. Applicants will be responsible for the organization, delivery, evaluation and assessment of Political Science and Bush School courses and student outcomes associated with those courses. The candidate hired will be expected to teach an introductory course required for all undergraduate students entering the Bush School – this course is meant to introduce students to the Bush School, prepare them for success at Texas A&M, and provide coverage of the foundational themes of Democracy, Civic Engagement, and Leadership. Political science courses including, but not limited to, courses on American National Government and/or State and Local Government will also be a part of teaching expectations. Faculty hired with an instructional title will be expected to significantly contribute to service within the Department of Political Science.

The Bush School of Government and Public Service was founded in 1997 under President George H. W. Bush's philosophy that "public service is a noble calling." Since then, the Bush School has continued to reflect that notion in curriculum, research, and student experience and has become a leading international affairs, political science, and public affairs institution.

Qualifications

The successful candidate must have a completed Ph.D. in political science or closely related field. Strong preference will be given to candidates with significant teaching experience related to survey-level political science courses required of all students at Texas A&M University. Experience using classroom and online technology will also be preferred, though not required. Strong written and verbal communication skills are required.

Application Instructions

Georgia State University

Rank: Lecturer in Interdisciplinary Studies

Full-Time Teaching Track Lecturer in the Bachelor of Interdisciplinary Studies (BIS) Concentration in Arts and Sciences degree program (Promotion Eligible)

The Department of Political Science at Georgia State University invites applications for a full-time Lecturer position providing instruction in an interdisciplinary studies degree program to begin Fall 2024. Lecturers at GSU are full-time faculty who are eligible for promotion to Senior Lecturer and Principal Lecturer.

The Department of Political Science hosts the Bachelor of Interdisciplinary Studies (BIS) with a concentration in Arts and Sciences. This new program enables nontraditional students as well as students who must transition out of their major of choice to continue making progress towards a degree and to build connections among related disciplines. Students pick three fields of study in the College of Arts and Sciences in the humanities, social sciences, and/or stem fields. The position will teach interdisciplinary research methods, a capstone seminar, and an internship course. While primary responsibility is to teach these three required courses, the candidate may have the opportunity to teach other courses of interest in Political Science.

Lecturers at GSU have both teaching and service requirements and are full members of the department's intellectual community and leadership team. In addition to helping the university achieve excellence in undergraduate teaching and serving on MA thesis committees, Lecturers meet a broad array of vital service needs, such as coordinating our core courses, directing undergraduate programs, leading study abroad trips, coaching academic teams, and developing innovative experiential learning courses. GSU is an institutional member of the National Center for Faculty Development & Diversity, and the College of Arts & Sciences supports professional success for all faculty through mentoring programs and representation of faculty from all ranks (including Lecturers) in college-level program development.

GSU is an urban research university located in downtown Atlanta. Designated as a minority-serving institution, and the only comprehensive Predominantly Black Institution with a R1 Carnegie Research

Classification in the nation, GSU has one of the most diverse student bodies in the country and is nationally recognized for its record in student success regardless of race, ethnicity, and income level. The Department of Political Science prides itself on serving this student body and advancing innovative teaching and research. More information about the department is available here: <https://politicalscience.gsu.edu>.

Required Qualifications:

- Ability to teach an undergraduate Research Methods course from an interdisciplinary perspective.
- Ability to teach a Capstone Seminar with a focus on career preparation.
- Ability to deliver effective, high-impact instruction across all modalities.
- Interest in teaching and mentoring students from all backgrounds to promote excellence in undergraduate learning.
- A Ph.D. in hand, or evidence that a PhD will be awarded by Summer 2024, in a social sciences field.

Preferred Qualifications:

- Demonstrated interest in pedagogical innovation.
- Ability to contribute to Political Science course offerings.

Applicants should send a letter of application that details how the essential and (if applicable) preferred qualifications are met, a curriculum vitae, a statement of teaching philosophy, sample syllabi, and any additional evidence of teaching effectiveness.

Applicants should also provide a list of at least three professional references (name, title, email address, and telephone number) who are willing to provide letters of reference in the future. Please submit all materials electronically to polsearchbis@gsu.edu

Review of applications will begin on November 27, 2023, and will continue until the position is filled. Application materials submitted by this date will be given full consideration.

All qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to race, color, religion, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, national origin, disability or status as a protected veteran. An offer of employment will be conditional on background verification.

University of Missouri, Columbia

Rank: Open-Rank Tenure-Track/Tenured Professor

Open-Rank Tenure-Track/Tenured Professor
Truman School of Government and Public Affairs, University of Missouri

Job Description:

The University of Missouri has launched an ambitious multi-year hiring initiative, Mizzou Forward, that is intended to attract high profile scholars with a record of significant external funding. The Truman School of Government and Public Affairs is participating in this initiative and tenure-line positions are available for exceptional candidates in the fields of public policy, political science, comparative politics, international relations, and/or public administration. This is an executive style search that is managed centrally by the University; applications may be submitted at any time.

A successful MizzouForward candidate is a research leader with a passion for collaboration and the grit to address our world's most pressing research challenges. The colleagues we're looking to recruit possess:

- A proven track record of active, external research funding, particularly from federal agencies
- A research agenda that complements the goals of MizzouForward
- A robust publication and citation record
- National awards and honors, membership with national academies
- An interdisciplinary scope of work

Although all research areas will be considered, the University of Missouri is particularly interested in recruiting scholars focused on artificial intelligence, economic development, disparities in science, health, and education, as well as energy and technology policy.

To apply go to Mizzou Forward (<https://provost.missouri.edu/mizzou-forward>) and submit materials through the priority area that best matches your expertise. For questions about the Truman School or potential priority areas through which to apply, contact Lael Keiser, Truman School Director, at keiserl@missouri.edu.

The Truman School of Government and Public Affairs: Almost 1,000 students and 10,000 alumni strong, the Truman School of Government and Public Affairs provides an interdisciplinary educational environment for our undergraduate and graduate students. Through our research and teaching, we inform public policy, educate for ethical leadership in public service, and foster democratic discourse among citizens, policymakers, and scholars. We offer degrees in Political Science (BA, PhD), Public Administration and Policy (BA), Public Affairs (MPA, PhD), and Defense and Strategic Studies (MA).

About the University of Missouri: The University of Missouri was founded in 1839 in Columbia, Missouri, as the first public university west of the Mississippi River and the first state university in the Louisiana Purchase territory. MU provides the benefits of two universities in one — it is a major land-grant institution and Missouri's largest public research university.

Considered one of the nation's top-tier institutions, MU has a reputation of excellence in teaching and research and is the flagship campus of the four-campus University of Missouri System. It is one of only 64 public universities, and the only public institution in Missouri, to be selected for membership in the Association of American Universities. Mizzou is the flagship campus of the University of Missouri system, located in Columbia, just 20 minutes to the Columbia Regional Airport, and less than 2 hours to St. Louis or Kansas City.

Columbia, MO., consistently rated as one of the best communities to live, is an ideal college town, combining small-town comforts, community spirit and low cost of living with big-city culture, activities and resources. Home to nationally renowned public schools and other colleges and educational centers, Columbia is packed with restaurants and entertainment venues and hosts more than a dozen annual cultural festivals.

OTHER*Loyola University Maryland*Rank: Per course Instructor in American PoliticsSubfield(s): American Government and Politics, Public Policy, OtherSpecializations: Congress, Electoral Behavior, Political Behavior

The Department of Political Science at Loyola University Maryland invites applications to teach undergraduate American Politics courses in-person for the Spring 2025 semester. We seek instructors capable of teaching in their area of expertise, in one or more of nearly any area of American Politics (for example, Political Parties, Campaigns and Elections, Public Policy, Public Opinion, Media and Politics, Political Psychology, Social Movements). The instructor would teach in a part-time, non-tenure track capacity but may be able to teach multiple sections of the same course.

The Political Science Department has a strong teaching culture. We especially value candidates who have a strong interest in teaching undergraduates and who are able to implement thoughtful, intentional pedagogies that support the learning of a wide range of students.

A Ph.D. or A.B.D. in Political Science is required. College/university teaching experience is strongly preferred. Aside from holding office hours with students, no committee assignments or service requirements will be associated with the position.

Loyola University Maryland is a dynamic, highly selective, Jesuit Catholic university in the liberal arts tradition. It is highly ranked among the leading independent, comprehensive universities in the northeastern United States. Committed to intellectual excellence, diversity, and social justice, the University enrolls over 4,000 students in its undergraduate programs and more than 3,000 students in its graduate programs.

Loyola University Maryland strongly values the benefits that diversity brings to the workplace. In accord with its Ignatian values, the University is committed to creating and promoting a community that recognizes the inherent value and dignity of each person. Loyola University Maryland does not discriminate on the basis of race, sex, color, national or ethnic origin, age, religion, disability, marital status, sexual orientation, gender identity, genetic information, military status, or any other legally protected classification. The University recruits, hires, and promotes in accord with this policy and its Core Values.

To begin the application process, please send a curriculum vitae with a statement of interest. Eventually, we will ask for letters of reference, a graduate transcript, teaching evaluations (if available), and a cover letter explaining teaching interests and experience in relation to Loyola's educational mission. Application materials should be submitted to Political Science Department Chair Dr. Carsten Vala at cvala@loyola.edu, who is also available to answer questions. The search committee will begin screening applications immediately and continue until the position is filled.

Princeton University

Rank: Harold T. Shapiro Postdoctoral Research Associate in Bioethics

The Princeton University Center for Human Values invites applications for the Harold T. Shapiro Postdoctoral Fellowship in Bioethics for a position starting around September 2025. The Shapiro Fellowship supports outstanding scholars studying ethical questions arising from developments in medicine, the biological sciences, or the human population. We particularly encourage proposals focusing on problems of practical importance that have broader theoretical interest.

Appointments are for one year with the possibility of renewal pending satisfactory performance and continued funding. The Shapiro Fellow will spend time at Princeton conducting research and, as needed, teaching up to one semester course each year, pending sufficient course enrollments and with the approval of the Office of the Dean of the Faculty. They will participate in the Ira W. DeCamp Seminar in Bioethics and in a range of other activities in the University Center for Human Values.

Qualifications

Applications welcome from candidates who have or expect to have a Ph.D., M.D., or other equivalent doctoral degree. Applicants should not have more than two years of postdoctoral experience by the start of appointment. An applicant may have a background in any related field, not necessarily in bioethics. However, the proposed research plan should be in the field of bioethics.

Applications will be evaluated on the basis of the applicant's previous accomplishments and the promise of the proposed research project in bioethics. The capacity to contribute to the University's teaching program will also be considered.

Term of Appointment

The term of the fellowship is one year, normally beginning September 1, 2025, with the possibility of renewal for up to two additional years pending satisfactory performance. Appointment will be made to the rank of Postdoctoral Research Associate; the Shapiro Fellow will also carry the title of Lecturer, if teaching. Princeton University offers competitive salary and employee benefits.

How to Apply

Candidates must submit an online application at <https://www.princeton.edu/acad-positions/position/35121> (Link is external).

A complete application will include the following supporting materials:

- A curriculum vitae;
- A research proposal (not to exceed 1,500 words). Please provide an indicative title in the heading;
- A scholarly paper (of no more than 12,000 words, not including bibliography) representing the applicant's scholarly achievement or potential;
- Contact information for two referees, who should be prepared to comment specifically about the applicant's qualifications for the proposed research project. Referees will be contacted directly with instructions for uploading letters of reference.

These materials must be submitted online by the application deadline of Monday, November 25, 2024, 11:59 p.m. EST. We do not accept application materials by any other method. Letters of reference should be submitted by Monday, December 2, 2024, 11:59 p.m. EST. The selection committee will begin reviewing applications immediately, so receipt of letters of reference after December 2nd may put candidates at a disadvantage.

Decisions will be announced in March 2025. This position is subject to the University's background check policy. The work location for this position is in-person on campus at Princeton University.

Princeton University is an Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action Employer and all qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to age, race, color, religion, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity or expression, national origin, disability status, protected veteran status, or any other characteristic protected by law.

Princeton University

Rank: Laurance S Rockefeller Visiting Faculty Fellowships

The University Center for Human Values invites applications for Laurance S. Rockefeller Visiting Faculty Fellowships for the academic year 2025-26. Fellows devote an academic year in residence at Princeton to research and writing about topics involving human values in public and private life. This full-time visiting program is open to scholars in all disciplines across the humanities and social sciences. We welcome applications from scholars from a variety of disciplines.

Fellows are expected to reside in or around Princeton or demonstrate to the program's satisfaction the ability to commute to campus on a daily basis during the 12-week fall and spring semesters. Fellows pursue their own research and are active contributors to the intellectual life of the Center. This includes participating in a weekly seminar attended by fellows and Center faculty to discuss work in progress and in various other seminars, colloquia and lectures sponsored by the Center. Fellows enjoy access to Firestone Library and to a wide range of activities and facilities throughout the University.

Candidates must have a doctorate or equivalent professional degree and a strong record of research publications appropriate to their career stage. Typically, Fellows hold faculty positions at other universities or colleges; in exceptional cases we consider applications from independent scholars when there is a high level of scholarly achievement. This is not a postdoctoral fellowship program and we do not generally consider candidates who will have held the Ph.D. for less than two years at the time of appointment, or who are coming directly from a postdoctoral fellowship.

The fellowship typically extends from September 1 to June 1. Fellows receive a stipend paid in nine equal installments. Ordinarily, home institutions provide a portion of their salaries in addition to benefits, although this is not a requirement. Independent scholars are eligible to apply.

Main considerations in the evaluation of applications are the following:

The significance of the proposed research and its relevance to the purposes of the University Center for Human Values (see <http://uchv.princeton.edu/> (Link is external))

The quality of a candidate's previous research and the contribution the candidate is likely to make in the future through their scholarship
The likelihood that the research would benefit from being conducted in the University Center environment

How to apply

Candidates must submit an online application at <https://www.princeton.edu/acad-positions/position/35003> (Link is external).

Required materials:

- A CV
- One scholarly paper (no more than 12,000 words) written in the past three years
- A statement (no more than 1,500 words) describing the proposed research project, including a brief working title for the project.
- Contact information for three referees, including at least one referee who was not a graduate advisor (note that referees will be asked to send in their letters fairly quickly – by October 26, 2024 for best consideration).

Applicant materials must be submitted by the deadline: October 18, 2024, 11:59 p.m. EST. We aim to announce decisions by late March 2025.

The work location for this position is in-person on campus at Princeton University.

European University Institute

Rank: Research Fellow

Specializations: Labor Politics, Political Psychology, Race & Ethnic Politics

Complete Vacancy Notice: <https://www.eui.eu/Documents/ServicesAdmin/AcademicService/JobOpportunities/2024/SPS-4-2024.pdf>

For an ERC-funded project ("TARGETS"), we conduct cross-nationally comparative, experimental research on ethnic discrimination in the labour market. Combining insights from sociology, social and organizational psychology, sociolegal and organizational studies, we study discrimination perceptions from a multi-actor and comparative perspective. Discrimination often manifests itself in subtle ways (e.g., through contact avoidance, backhanded compliments or nonverbal behavior) that leave victims questioning their experiences. This ambiguity can be damaging for the self and for intergroup relations. Victims of discrimination tend to ruminate on the incident for quite some time and often end up blaming themselves. Many do not report discriminatory episodes to managers or legal authorities for fear of not being believed. Unless supported by organizational allies, discrimination claims can easily be dismissed as unfounded or overreactions, which invalidates victims' experiences. Victims, perpetrators and bystanders may vary in how they perceive the same behaviour or situation. Unfortunately, empirical studies have analyzed their perceptions in isolation. In this project, we will design factorial survey experiments/conjoint experiments and study how different actors (e.g. recruiters, victims, bystanders) react to hypothetical scenarios that could be perceived as discriminatory. We will randomly vary features of the event or the actors involved (e.g. subtlety, perceived intentionality, harmful consequences) in the scenarios. We will field the factorial survey experiments in four countries characterized by very different institutional contexts and compare discrimination attributions across actors and contexts. The postdoc will have room to develop part of the survey according to their own research interests.

The research fellow will carry out research work in an independent manner and collaborate on the research work of the project. The research assistant will provide research assistance to the Project Director(s). Main tasks include:

- Carrying out sociological research on discrimination in the labour market, in collaboration with the Project Director.
- Co-designing survey experiments on perceptions of discrimination at the workplace.
- Liaising with survey agencies and monitoring the data collection.

- Analyzing data and disseminating results at conferences and impact events with stakeholders.
- Writing scientific articles on discrimination attributions, based on the newly collected data.
- Assisting the Project Director with project management tasks including attending project meetings;
- Taking part in activities (such as attending seminars) of the Comparative Life Course and Inequality Centre CLIC, at the EUI.

For an ERC-funded project ("TARGETS"), we conduct longitudinal research on the impact of ethnic discrimination on the job search process. Ethnic discrimination in the labour market is persistent and pervasive. The job search experiences of ethnic minorities, in particular, are rife with rejections and second tries. On average, they have to apply more often as the majority group to receive an equal number of positive callbacks and face substantial discrimination at the interview and job offer stages. Previous research, however, has paid little attention to the job search behaviour of members of vulnerable groups, and the strategies they may adopt to avoid discriminatory employers. For example, job seekers may conceal ethnic cues in their resumes or target organizations that signal a commitment to diversity in their recruitment material. In this project, we rely on experience sampling methods (digital daily diaries) to analyze job search behaviour as it unfolds over time. We will track the type of organizations that job seekers apply to, how they react to the information reported in the vacancies and the feedback received from employers and whether they adapt their job search strategies in response to perceived discrimination or expectations of success and failure. Drawing on sociological and socio-psychological research on stigmatization, social identity and discrimination, we will examine the coping strategies of vulnerable groups as they try to find employment (preferably, the research will focus on the Dutch context).

The research fellow will carry out research work in an independent manner and collaborate on the research work of the project. The research assistant will provide research assistance to the Project Director(s).

Main tasks include:

- Carrying out sociological research on discrimination in the labour market, in collaboration with the Project Director;
- Co-designing and fielding a digital daily diary study, in collaboration with the Project Director;
- Monitoring the data collection;
- Analyzing data and disseminating results at conferences and impact events with stakeholders;
- Writing scientific articles on the impact of ethnic discrimination on job search behaviour, based on the newly collected data;

- Assisting the Project Director with project management tasks including attending project meetings;

Assistant Professor of Public Administration with focus on Emergency Management

The Department of Political Science and Public Administration at the University of North Carolina, Pembroke seeks an assistant professor of public administration with the ability to teach in the area of emergency management. This position will be responsible for teaching a mix of courses in emergency management and public administration at the graduate level, methodology courses at the graduate and undergraduate level, and at least one of our general education courses (Introduction to Political Science, American National Government, or State and Local Government and Administration).

The area of teaching and research specialization is open. Preferences will be given to candidates who are focused clearly on the administration side of the discipline, those who have a record of teaching courses in emergency management, and to those who can teach methodology. Preferences will also be given to candidates who show how their research may connect and enhance community resiliency through emergency preparation at all government levels. Successful candidates must show excellence in both online teaching as well as in the traditional classroom since this position will require the candidate to consistently teach in both learning platforms. While the teaching load for the university is 4-4, course release time is provided for those who teach graduate courses. The expected teaching for this position is three to five graduate courses each year and one or more undergraduate course each year, with most courses offered on a predictable rotation.

UNCP is a regional university serving rural North Carolina that emphasizes excellence in teaching. The Department of Political Science and Public Administration serves several programs including a B.A. program with four different concentrations and a Master of Public Administration program with four different concentrations. Additionally, the department actively contributes to a growing B.I.S. program in Public and Non-profit Management and Administration. Courses for the department are offered both on campus and in online formats.

To be considered for this position, candidates must hold a Ph.D. in public administration, emergency management, or a closely related field, or be ABD with a clear date of completion. To apply, applicants must complete the application for employment form found at <https://jobs.uncp.edu> where they will be instructed to submit a CV, a writing sample, and a teaching portfolio that demonstrates competence in online teaching and in person, as well as past course evaluations (if applicable). Candidates who are selected after the first round of consideration will be asked to submit three letters of recommendation for consideration. For questions, please contact the chair of the department, Dr. Emily Sharum (emily.sharum@uncp.edu).

SUNY, University at Albany

Full-Time Lecturer - Criminal Justice

Established in 1844 and designated a University Center of the State University of New York in 1962, the University at Albany's broad mission of excellence in undergraduate and graduate education, research, and public service engages a diverse student body of approximately 17,000 students in nine schools and colleges across three campuses.

Located in Albany, New York, New York State's capital, the University is convenient to Boston, New York City and the Adirondacks.

Job Description:

The University at Albany, State University of New York, seeks a Full-time Lecturer (non-tenure-track) for the Online CJ Bachelor's Degree Program in the School of Criminal Justice to begin Fall 2024. We seek an outstanding candidate with demonstrated experience preparing and teaching a variety of criminal justice courses in synchronous and asynchronous distance learning formats. We are also interested in a candidate with prior experience with program coordination and/or academic advising.

This is a 12-month appointment, and the course load is 3-3. The lecturer will be responsible for offering required undergraduate Criminology/CJ courses (e.g., Criminology, Intro to CJ, Intro to Constitutional Law & Criminal Justice, Statistics, Research Methods, Senior Writing-intensive Capstone) and substantive upper-division elective courses in an online format. The Lecturer will also be the CJ Online Degree Program Coordinator, including some admissions and advising responsibilities, and serving as a liaison between the SCJ Student Services Coordinator, the Online program academic advisor, and other campus offices.

Requirements:

Minimum Qualifications:

A Ph.D. in criminology, criminal justice, or related discipline (e.g., sociology, psychology, political science), from a college or university accredited by a U.S. Department of Education or internationally recognized accrediting organization by 9/1/2024. Candidates who do not hold the degree by this date will not be considered.

Ability to teach undergraduate courses in criminology, criminal justice, or related disciplines.

Demonstrated experience teaching courses in distance learning formats.

Experience with or potential for program coordination.

Applicants must demonstrate an ability to develop inclusive and equitable relationships within our diverse campus community.

Applicants must demonstrate an ability to support diversity, equity, access, inclusion, and belonging relative to their role.

Preferred Qualifications:

Experience teaching core/required CJ courses (e.g., Criminology, Intro to CJ Process, Intro to Law and Criminal Justice, Intro to Statistics in CJ, Research Design in CJ).

Experience in developing new courses.

Experience building or converting courses into a distance learning format.

Evidence of teaching in both synchronous and asynchronous distance learning formats.

Additional Information:

Professional Rank and Salary Range: Lecturer (12 Month)

Amherst College

Rank: Assistant Professor Race and American Law

Specializations: African American Politics, Civil Rights & Liberties, Race & Ethnic Politics

Amherst College's Department of Law, Jurisprudence and Social Thought invites applications for a tenure-track position at the rank of assistant professor in the area of Race and American Law. The college is committed to cultivating an inclusive and critically engaged educational environment. Nearly one-quarter of Amherst's students are Pell Grant recipients; close to half of our students are domestic students of color. The successful candidate will demonstrate competence and sensitivity in working in a department in which students are broadly diverse in matters of gender, race, ethnicity, nationality, socioeconomic status, sexual identity, political outlook, and religion.

In searching in the field of race and American law, we seek a colleague who sees the domain broadly through the light of theory, practice, and history. We are interested in candidates who conduct research into, for example: the legal construction of race; the moral and legal debates concerning race-based reparative and redistributive practices; the racial dimensions of carceral practices, understood both domestically and trans-nationally; the racial dimensions of the legal construction of space; the role that racial-thinking has played in the construction of immigration policy and the very idea of "Americanness"; how matters of race inform issues of environmental justice; and how the American legal response to the legacy of slavery compares and contrasts with that of other nations with a history of chattel slavery (eg. Brazil).

Teaching responsibilities include two courses per semester and supervision of senior honors projects. We welcome applications from persons trained in the social sciences, the humanities, and/or law. We are particularly interested in candidates whose research and teaching are interdisciplinary. The position requires a Ph.D. (candidates must have the Ph.D. degree in hand or all requirements for the degree fulfilled by the start of the appointment) or a J.D. The start date for the position is July 1, 2025. To apply, candidates are asked to submit electronically (<https://apply.interfolio.com/142507>) a cover letter addressed to Professor Lawrence Douglas, a curriculum vitae, a sample of their scholarship, a teaching statement, and three confidential letters of recommendation. Review of applications will begin on September 15, 2024, and will continue until the position is filled. Amherst College is a private undergraduate liberal arts college with 1,800 students and more than 200 faculty members. Located in the Connecticut River Valley of western Massachusetts, Amherst participates with Hampshire, Mount Holyoke, and Smith Colleges and the University of Massachusetts in the Five-College Consortium.

Yale University

Specializations: Germany, China, United States

The Identity & Conflict Lab (ICL) at Yale University, led by Professor Nicholas Sambanis, seeks up to two exceptional candidates as Postdoctoral Associates for the 2024-2025 academic year. This opportunity is for a one-year, full-time residential postdoctoral research fellowship, with potential to renew for one year.

Housed in the MacMillan Center for International and Area Studies, the ICL addresses a broad range of critical questions focused on inter-group conflict and identity politics. The ICL analyzes how social identities shape individual behavior, how conflict affects identities, and what interventions are effective in reducing inter-group conflict.

Both violent and non-violent forms of conflict are considered, ranging from bias, discrimination, and protest to ethnic violence, secessionism and war. The ICL has several ongoing projects in four thematic areas: (1) native-immigrant conflict and the politics of immigrant integration across countries, with a focus on Greece, Cyprus, Turkey, Germany, Denmark, and Qatar; (2) effects of national identification (patriotism; nationalism) on foreign policy preferences with case applications in Greece, South Korea, China, and the United States; (3) strategies to reduce majority-minority group conflicts in India and Pakistan; and (4) collection and analysis of new data on separatist conflicts worldwide, and prediction of new conflict outbreaks of separatist violence. A variety of methods are used to study these topics, including surveys, survey experiments, field experiments, and quantitative analysis of observational data. The ICL seeks to integrate substantive and methodological knowledge across the social and behavioral sciences to develop new analytical approaches and new insights into these thematic areas with a view to shaping new directions in scholarly literatures as well as influencing policy design.

Postdoctoral associates will split their time between their own research and work with Professor Nicholas Sambanis on one or more of the Lab's ongoing projects. Innovative new project proposals by associates can also be considered for funding by the ICL.

Job responsibilities will vary depending on the strengths and interests of the successful applicant. Associates will be expected to collect and clean data; review reports on ongoing projects; prepare visualizations and reports of quantitative analysis of new data collected in the lab; assist with drafting grant proposals; program surveys; prepare IRB applications; conduct quantitative data analysis to support ongoing Lab projects; and co-author papers and reports with the Lab Director and affiliated faculty. Additionally, associates will be asked to contribute to the ICL Director's engagement with funders, prepare presentations of lab reports/papers, prepare replication files for published studies, help manage the ICL website and seminar series, and provide summaries of ongoing ICL work for public outreach.

There is no formal teaching requirement. Associates will be expected to help organize the ICL's annual conference as well as the workshop, which will hold occasional meetings throughout the year. Associates will give at least one presentation on their research at the workshop or a graduate-level course led by the ICL Director and would be expected to engage with research by graduate students who are affiliated with the ICL.

The salary is competitive and comes with a benefits package. Information regarding benefits associated with the position can be found here: <https://your.yale.edu/work-yale/benefits/benefits-enrollment-2023/postdoctoral-associates-benefits-2023>

Qualifications

Applications are welcome from scholars who have received their Ph.D. or equivalent degrees since June 2022, or who expect to complete their degree by June 2024. Applications will be reviewed on a rolling basis starting on November 10, 2023. To receive full consideration, application material should be received by that date.

Successful applicants will have excellent training in quantitative methods with an emphasis on statistical analysis, survey methods and experimental methods. Programming skills are desirable. Applicants should have outstanding organizational and communication skills and prior experience using large databases. Excellent knowledge of the statistical software Stata and R is required as is extensive experience programming surveys in Qualtrics. Applicants should be intellectually curious, ambitious, energetic, and self-motivated; they should be able to work independently, but also as part of a team and be sensitive to the demands of multiple simultaneously ongoing projects; they should be able to multi-task and be willing to travel for fieldwork if necessary. Training in behavioral economics and/or social psychology is a plus as several of the Lab's projects cross disciplinary boundaries.

Application Instructions

All application materials must be submitted online through Interfolio. Applicants will be asked to upload a cover letter, CV/resume, one-page research statement, writing sample, and unofficial PhD transcript (only required for current graduate students). We will also ask for the name and email address of two letter writers who can submit a letter of recommendation (only references for short-listed candidates will be requested).

The School of Social Sciences at NTU Singapore invites applications for a tenure-track Assistant Professor position in Public Policy and Global Affairs (PPGA), with specialization in political theory.

The Public Policy and Global Affairs Programme is one of the four major programmes in the School of Social Sciences, together with Sociology, Psychology, and Economics. We attract excellent students to our BSocSci and PhD degree programmes and provide them with interdisciplinary training, as well as practical knowledge and skill sets necessary to dissect and address real world problems facing political leaders, policymakers, and the global community.

We seek a dedicated colleague with the necessary skills to collaborate and strengthen PPGA's research programmes and teaching portfolios, as well as commit to relevant administration duties. Personal aptitude will be important for this position.

The successful candidate will have a PhD in political science or in a related field, a strong track record of research commensurate with career stage (e.g., publishing in established peer-reviewed journals in the discipline, securing and managing externally funded research, organising conference panels and workshops) and effective teaching and training of undergraduate and/or graduate students.

Area of specialization within political theory is open, however we particularly welcome candidates who are able to offer courses in non-Western political thought. The willingness to contribute to the university's new major program in Philosophy, Politics, and Economics will also be considered a significant asset.

In addition to developing their own research programme, we expect the successful candidate to contribute to teaching undergraduate and graduate core modules in the PPGA Programme, and modules in their areas of specialisation. The successful candidate will join a dynamic team in administering the PPGA Programme.

Essential selection criteria:

- A PhD in political science or in a related field.
- A strong research and publication track record commensurate with career stage.
- Experience and interest in teaching the PPGA core module in political theory.
- Excellent communication, interpersonal skills, and commitment relevant to teaching, pastoral care, and administering the PPGA Programme.

Desirable selection criteria:

- Ability to offer courses in secondary subfields of political science, or core modules of Philosophy, Politics, and Economics.
- Research and teaching interests that strengthen and expand PPGA's research programmes and teaching portfolios.

Michigan State University

Rank: Assistant Professor

Specializations: African American Politics, Native American Politics, Race & Ethnic Politics

James Madison College at Michigan State University invites applications for a tenure-track assistant professor position in Political Theory and Constitutional Democracy (PTCD). James Madison College engages undergraduates in a liberal arts education in public affairs in a residential college setting within a broader research-intensive university. The Political Theory and Constitutional Democracy major is an interdisciplinary field of public affairs. It focuses on liberal constitutional democracy (its origins, practice, critics, and defenders) from the perspective of political philosophy.

We seek a teacher-scholar broadly trained in the history of political theory that supports curriculum in Black political thought (American and comparative), as well as radical perspectives on modern constitutional democracy. Areas of research and teaching focus include African-American politics, comparative Black political thought, and radical political theory. In addition to these requirements, preferred areas of interest include: colonialism studies, Native-American studies, Indigenous studies, American constitutional politics, or modern political theory. Preference will be given to candidates who can teach elective courses cross-listed between PTCD and Social Relations and Policy majors.

Successful candidates will have demonstrated ability to teach core courses in the history of political thought combining serious study of canonical texts as well as authors/voices from outside the canon, with a view to the present and future of constitutional democracy. Applicants should also be able to contribute to the broader interdisciplinary curriculum of the major and the college, including the first-year sequence. The successful candidate will be expected to maintain an active scholarly agenda in their respective field(s). The College is especially interested in candidates who can contribute, through their teaching, research and/or service, to the diversity and excellence of the academic community.

For more information, please see the college website: <https://jmc.msu.edu> and the full position description at <https://careers.msu.edu>.

Ph.D. in a related field is required by August 16th, 2025.

Applications must be submitted electronically to the Michigan State University Human Resources web site: <https://careers.msu.edu>. Please see posting number 955409 for complete instructions on how to apply. Review of applications will begin on September 20th, 2024, and will continue until the position is filled. Please contact Katie Dyjach (dyjachk@msu.edu) with any questions.

Catholic University of America

Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Public Policy, Political Theory

Assistant Professor of Politics (American Politics)

The Department of Politics at The Catholic University of America invites applications for a tenure-track faculty appointment in American politics, to begin in the fall of 2024. We are interested in a candidate with a range of interests, including but not limited to public opinion, ideology, political parties, elections, and the presidency. The successful candidate could also play an important advisory role for our Washington, D.C. internship programs. The department especially welcomes applicants whose research interests complement its traditional strengths in historical, theoretical, and institutional perspectives. Situated on a large and beautiful campus, Catholic University is only three metro stops from the Capitol. Politics is one of the largest majors on campus, attracting many students who value the community of a Catholic university while pursuing careers related to politics and law in the nation's capital. The department's Ph.D program has a long and distinguished history, and the development of professionally minded M.A. programs is a university priority.

We seek candidates who understand, are enthusiastic about, and will make a significant contribution to the mission of the University, which reads as follows: "As the national university of the Catholic Church in the United States, founded and sponsored by the bishops of the country with the approval of the Holy See, The Catholic University of America is committed to being a comprehensive Catholic and American institution of higher learning, faithful to the teachings of Jesus Christ as handed on by the Church. Dedicated to advancing the dialogue between faith and reason, The Catholic University of America seeks to discover and impart the truth through excellence in teaching and research, all in service to the Church, the nation and the world."

Applicants should submit a cover letter, a curriculum vitae, a statement of current research and future research plans, a statement of teaching philosophy, graduate school transcript, and a sample of written work (including scholarly publications) to pol-search@cua.edu and arrange for the submission of three letters of reference. In addition, applicants are asked to submit a one- to two-page personal statement indicating how their research, teaching, and service will make a distinctive contribution to our University's mission and to the vision of Catholic education outlined in the Apostolic Constitution on Catholic Universities Ex Corde Ecclesiae.

Review of applications will begin November 15 and continue until the position is filled. Questions may be directed to Jakub Grygiel, Department Chair, at grygiel@cua.edu.

PUBLIC ADMINISTRATION

South Dakota State University

Rank: Assistant Professor of Political Science

School of American & Global Studies
South Dakota State University

The School of American & Global Studies (AGS) at South Dakota State University (SDSU) invites applications for a tenure-track Assistant Professor of Political Science. The School of AGS seeks a dynamic scholar whose field areas include public administration or public policy. Located on our main campus in Brookings, South Dakota, this position is nine months, full time, benefits eligible, and tenure track, with the possibility of supplemental summer salary. The position is supervised by the Director of the School of American & Global Studies. We anticipate a start date of August 22, 2025.

The School of American & Global Studies is a vibrant, interdisciplinary unit, offering B.A./B.S. degrees in American Indian & Indigenous Studies, Global Studies, History, Modern Languages (French, German, Lakota, Spanish), and Political Science as well as standalone minors in Legal Studies, Philosophy, and Religion. Over 300 students major in AGS programs, with another 400 from programs across campus who pursue AGS minors. The school's current composition of 21 tenured and tenure-track faculty and 6 non-tenure track faculty value interdisciplinary and interprofessional collaboration across its research, teaching, and outreach efforts. In alignment with the university's land-grant mission, the schoolhouses four public-facing research and outreach centers: The Ethics Lab, The PHI | Public Humanities Institute, the South Dakota Polling Project, and the recently launched Mike Huether Public Service Academy.

South Dakota State University promotes access to and opportunities for all to receive the benefit of and participate in education, research, and service and is especially interested in candidates that can contribute to this land-grant mission of access.

KEY RESPONSIBILITIES:

The successful candidate will teach three classes per semester in consultation with the director based on student needs and school/program strategic priorities. This faculty member will mentor students in the Political Science program and the Huether Public Service Academy and contribute to the overall academic environment of the School. The new member of the SDSU faculty will conduct scholarly research consistent with their field. Candidates are expected to be excellent classroom instructors with an active research agenda.

SALARY RANGE:

The salary is commensurate with qualifications. We offer a generous retirement plan that includes 6% matching, 9.34 hours of sick leave each month, and eleven paid holidays. Relocation benefits are available per university's guidelines.

BENEFITS:

We offer a rich academic experience in an environment of inclusions and access. The university is part of a dynamic community for families, students, young professionals, and retirees, which offers an abundance of attractions and activities. South Dakota State University offers a wide range of excellent benefits including medical, dental, and flexible benefits, retirement plans, compensation packages, paid holidays, and leave. Employees also have access to internal and state-sponsored training as well as reduced tuition for state-supported courses at all State of South Dakota academic institutions.

MINIMUM QUALIFICATIONS:

- Hold a Ph.D. in Public Administration, Public Policy, Political Science or closely related field by start date.
- Ability to teach public policy (open specialization) and/or public administration courses as well as state and local government.
- Ability or potential to develop and teach undergraduate elective courses in the candidate's area of specialization.
- Ability or potential to develop and sustain an active research agenda.
- Ability to contribute to program and school initiatives through general service.
- Effective written and verbal communication and interpersonal skills.

THE UNIVERSITY:

South Dakota State University is the state's largest, most comprehensive university with more than 200 academic programs, an enrollment of approximately 12,000 students, and over $60 million annual research expenditures.

South Dakota State University offers a rich academic experience in an environment of inclusion and access through inspired, student-centered education, creative activities and research, innovation and engagement that improve the quality of life in South Dakota, the region, the nation, and the world. Its employees embrace the university's core values of being people-centered, expanding knowledge through creativity, embracing organizational and personal integrity, commitment to diversity of thought, and excellence through continuous improvement.

The College of Arts, Humanities and Social Sciences is the intellectual and cultural heart of SDSU. The college consists of seven interdisciplinary schools—American and Global Studies, Communication and Journalism, Design, English and Interdisciplinary Studies, the Ness School of Management and Economics, and Performing Arts—additionally, the college includes programs in military science (Army ROTC) and Aerospace Studies (Air Force ROTC). The college's unique administrative structure supports and encourages interdisciplinary collaboration among both faculty and students, allowing each unit and discipline to thrive. The college is committed to supporting the Land Grant Mission of SDSU. Our faculty regularly conduct research that directly benefits the people of South Dakota and our region with research that engages our communities, supporting their social, cultural, and economic development.

As the state's 1862 Morrill Act land grant institution, the work of the university is carried out on its main resident campus in Brookings, at sites in Sioux Falls, Pierre, Rapid City, and Aberdeen, and through SDSU Extension offices and Agricultural Experiment Station research sites across South Dakota.

Jackrabbits Athletics competes as an NCAA Division I member with membership in the Missouri Valley Football Conference, the Summit League, and the Big XII.

The university benefits from a robust investor and alumni network actively engaged in classrooms and student ventures. The recent SDSU Bold and Blue comprehensive campaign—the university's largest fundraising effort—raised over $600 million to support the university.

BROOKINGS, SOUTH DAKOTA:

Brookings is home to approximately 24,000 residents and is located 60 miles north of Sioux Falls and 200 miles west of Minneapolis. Brookings is listed as an ideal community for families, students, young professionals, and retirees, and is rated among the safest and most vibrant cities in South Dakota.

The Brookings Public School District educates approximately 3,300 K-12 students and ranks among the state's highest academic achieving school districts. The district includes three elementary schools, an intermediate school for fourth and fifth grade, one middle school, and a high school.

The city also boasts an abundance of attractions and activities, including the Children's Museum of South Dakota, the Dakota Nature Park, the South Dakota Art Museum, McCrory Gardens, the South Dakota Agricultural Heritage Museum, an outdoor adventure center, and the Brookings summer arts festival.

APPLICATION DEADLINE:

Position is open until filled with full consideration given to applications received by September 20, 2024.

APPLICATION PROCESS:

SDSU accepts applications through an on-line employment site. To apply, visit: <https://yourfuture.sdbor.edu>, search by the position title, view the job announcement, and click on "apply for this job." This system will guide you through the electronic application form. ### USC Sol Price School of Public Policy

Rank: Professor of Public Policy and Management; Bedrosian Chair in Governance and the Public Enterprise

Position Description and Qualifications

The Sol Price School of Public Policy at the University of Southern California seeks a senior faculty member at the rank of professor (tenured) in the Public Policy and Management Department to serve as the Bedrosian Chair in Governance and the Public Enterprise. The individual will have a stellar record of scholarship and leadership in governance and the public enterprise. Of particular interest will be a focus on civic engagement, democratic processes and institutions, collective action, public policy processes and analytics, and public/nonprofit management. We are interested in scholars from all relevant disciplines as well as an interest in a wide array of issue areas that are part of the School's portfolio. Applicants must present evidence of a creative, vibrant and intellectually rigorous research agenda and significant accomplishments in their field. The candidate will also serve as Director of the Bedrosian Center for Governance and the Public Enterprise and is expected to develop and execute public facing programs on Democracy and Governance, including highly visible related policy discussions.

About the Bedrosian Center

The Judith and John Bedrosian Center on Governance and the Public Enterprise was established with a generous gift from Judith and John Bedrosian in 2004. Effective governance is essential to the quality of life of all Americans. The center is dedicated to understanding and improving the nature of democratic governance, policymaking, and management of the public enterprise in the 21st century. The center provides a highly visible focal point for imaginative research, policy analysis, and dialogue across the university. Through public discussion, the center focuses on pressing issues facing society and integrates conversations with civic education, which is at the heart of strong communities.

University of North Carolina, Pembroke

Rank: Assistant Professor of Public Administration focus on Emergency Management

Subfield(s): Public Administration, Other, Methodology

Assistant Professor of Public Administration with focus on Emergency Management

The Department of Political Science and Public Administration at the University of North Carolina, Pembroke seeks an assistant professor of public administration with the ability to teach in the area of emergency management. This position will be responsible for teaching a mix of courses in emergency management and public administration at the graduate level, methodology courses at the graduate and undergraduate level, and at least one of our general education courses (Introduction to Political Science, American National Government, or State and Local Government and Administration).

The area of teaching and research specialization is open. Preferences will be given to candidates who are focused clearly on the administration side of the discipline, those who have a record of teaching courses in emergency management, and to those who can teach methodology. Preferences will also be given to candidates who show how their research may connect and enhance community resiliency through emergency preparation at all government levels. Successful candidates must show excellence in both online teaching as well as in the traditional classroom since this position will require the candidate to consistently teach in both learning platforms. While the teaching load for the university is 4-4, course release time is provided for those who teach graduate courses. The expected teaching for this position is three to five graduate courses each year and one or more undergraduate course each year, with most courses offered on a predictable rotation.

UNCP is a regional university serving rural North Carolina that emphasizes excellence in teaching. The Department of Political Science and Public Administration serves several programs including a B.A. program with four different concentrations and a Master of Public Administration program with four different concentrations. Additionally, the department actively contributes to a growing B.I.S. program in Public and Non-profit Management and Administration. Courses for the department are offered both on campus and in online formats.

To be considered for this position, candidates must hold a Ph.D. in public administration, emergency management, or a closely related field, or be ABD with a clear date of completion. To apply, applicants must complete the application for employment form found at <https://jobs.uncp.edu> where they will be instructed to submit a CV, a writing sample, and a teaching portfolio that demonstrates competence in online teaching and in person, as well as past course evaluations (if applicable). Candidates who are selected after the first round of consideration will be asked to submit three letters of recommendation for consideration. For questions, please contact the chair of the department, Dr. Emily Sharum (emily.sharum@uncp.edu).

Amherst College

Specializations: African American Politics, Civil Rights & Liberties, Race & Ethnic Politics

Amherst College's Department of Law, Jurisprudence and Social Thought invites applications for a tenure-track position at the rank of assistant professor in the area of Race and American Law. The college is committed to cultivating an inclusive and critically engaged educational environment. Nearly one-quarter of Amherst's students are Pell Grant recipients; close to half of our students are domestic students of color. The successful candidate will demonstrate competence and sensitivity in working in a department in which students are broadly diverse in matters of gender, race, ethnicity, nationality, socioeconomic status, sexual identity, political outlook, and religion.

In searching in the field of race and American law, we seek a colleague who sees the domain broadly through the light of theory, practice, and history. We are interested in candidates who conduct research into, for example: the legal construction of race; the moral and legal debates concerning race-based reparative and redistributive practices; the racial dimensions of carceral practices, understood both domestically and trans-nationally; the racial dimensions of the legal construction of space; the role that racial-thinking has played in the construction of immigration policy and the very idea of "Americanness"; how matters of race inform issues of environmental justice; and how the American legal response to the legacy of slavery compares and contrasts with that of other nations with a history of chattel slavery (eg. Brazil).

Teaching responsibilities include two courses per semester and supervision of senior honors projects. We welcome applications from persons trained in the social sciences, the humanities, and/or law. We are particularly interested in candidates whose research and teaching are interdisciplinary. The position requires a Ph.D. (candidates must have the Ph.D. degree in hand or all requirements for the degree fulfilled by the start of the appointment) or a J.D. The start date for the position is July 1, 2025. To apply, candidates are asked to submit electronically (<https://apply.interfolio.com/142507>) a cover letter addressed to Professor Lawrence Douglas, a curriculum vitae, a sample of their scholarship, a teaching statement, and three confidential letters of recommendation. Review of applications will begin on September 15, 2024, and will continue until the position is filled. Amherst College is a private undergraduate liberal arts college with 1,800 students and more than 200 faculty members. Located in the Connecticut River Valley of western Massachusetts, Amherst participates with Hampshire, Mount Holyoke, and Smith Colleges and the University of Massachusetts in the Five-College Consortium.

University of South Carolina

Rank: Fulltime Professional Track Instructor in Public Law or American Politics

Full-Time Instructor in Public Law or American Politics
University of South Carolina
Department of Political Science

The Department of Political Science at the University of South Carolina seeks applications for a full-time instructor position in Public Law or American Politics to begin August 16, 2024. We seek candidates who have experience teaching a wide range of classes including Constitutional Law, Civil Liberties, Judicial Process, American National Government, and other courses focused on the Founding Documents of the United States. A Ph.D. in political science is required by the start date of appointment.

From the Upstate to the Lowcountry, the University of South Carolina system is transforming the lives of South Carolinians through the impact of our eight institutions and 20 locations throughout the state. More than 50,000 students are enrolled at one of eight institutions, including the research campus in Columbia and comprehensive four-year universities in Aiken, Upstate and Beaufort. In addition, our Palmetto College campuses in Salkehatchie, Union, Lancaster, and Sumter enable students to earn associate or bachelor's degrees through a combination of in-person, online or blended learning. All of our system institutions place strong emphasis on service — helping to build healthier, more educated communities in South Carolina and beyond.

At the University of South Carolina, we strive to cultivate an inclusive environment that is open, welcoming, and supportive of individuals of all backgrounds. We recognize diversity in our workforce is essential to providing academic excellence and critical to our sustainability. The University is committed to eliminating barriers created by institutional discrimination through accountability and continuous process improvement. We celebrate the diverse voices, perspectives, and experiences of our employees.

The University of South Carolina is an affirmative action, equal opportunity employer. Minorities and women are encouraged to apply. The University of South Carolina does not discriminate in educational or employment opportunities on the basis of race, sex, gender, gender identity, transgender status, age, color, religion, national origin, disability, sexual orientation, genetics, protected veteran status, pregnancy, childbirth or related medical conditions.

How to Apply

Applicants must submit a cover letter; curriculum vitae; two writing samples that demonstrate a significant ongoing research agenda; statements of research and teaching interests; graduate transcript; and contact information (including telephone number and email address) for three references. References will be contacted directly for letters of recommendation (which must be submitted on appropriate letterhead). The position will remain open until filled, and the search committee will begin reviewing applications on March 15, 2024. ## PUBLIC POLICY

Loyola University Maryland

Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Public Policy, Other

Specializations: Congress, Electoral Behavior, Political Behavior

The Department of Political Science at Loyola University Maryland invites applications to teach undergraduate American Politics courses in-person for the Spring 2025 semester. We seek instructors capable of teaching in their area of expertise, in one or more of nearly any area of American Politics (for example, Political Parties, Campaigns and Elections, Public Policy, Public Opinion, Media and Politics, Political Psychology, Social Movements). The instructor would teach in a part-time, non-tenure track capacity but may be able to teach multiple sections of the same course.

The Political Science Department has a strong teaching culture. We especially value candidates who have a strong interest in teaching undergraduates and who are able to implement thoughtful, intentional pedagogies that support the learning of a wide range of students.

A Ph.D. or A.B.D. in Political Science is required. College/university teaching experience is strongly preferred. Aside from holding office hours with students, no committee assignments or service requirements will be associated with the position.

Loyola University Maryland is a dynamic, highly selective, Jesuit Catholic university in the liberal arts tradition. It is highly ranked among the leading independent, comprehensive universities in the northeastern United States. Committed to intellectual excellence, diversity, and social justice, the University enrolls over 4,000 students in its undergraduate programs and more than 3,000 students in its graduate programs.

Loyola University Maryland strongly values the benefits that diversity brings to the workplace. In accord with its Ignatian values, the University is committed to creating and promoting a community that recognizes the inherent value and dignity of each person. Loyola University Maryland does not discriminate on the basis of race, sex, color, national or ethnic origin, age, religion, disability, marital status, sexual orientation, gender identity, genetic information, military status, or any other legally protected classification. The University recruits, hires, and promotes in accord with this policy and its Core Values.

To begin the application process, please send a curriculum vitae with a statement of interest. Eventually, we will ask for letters of reference, a graduate transcript, teaching evaluations (if available), and a cover letter explaining teaching interests and experience in relation to Loyola's educational mission. Application materials should be submitted to Political Science Department Chair Dr. Carsten Vala at cvala@loyola.edu, who is also available to answer questions. The search committee will begin screening applications immediately and continue until the position is filled.

South Dakota State University

Assistant Professor of Political Science
School of American & Global Studies
South Dakota State University

The School of American & Global Studies (AGS) at South Dakota State University (SDSU) invites applications for a tenure-track Assistant Professor of Political Science. The School of AGS seeks a dynamic scholar whose field areas include public administration or public policy. Located on our main campus in Brookings, South Dakota, this position is nine months, full time, benefits eligible, and tenure track, with the possibility of supplemental summer salary. The position is supervised by the Director of the School of American & Global Studies. We anticipate a start date of August 22, 2025.

The School of American & Global Studies is a vibrant, interdisciplinary unit, offering B.A./B.S. degrees in American Indian & Indigenous Studies, Global Studies, History, Modern Languages (French, German, Lakota, Spanish), and Political Science as well as standalone minors in Legal Studies, Philosophy, and Religion. Over 300 students major in AGS programs, with another 400 from programs across campus who pursue AGS minors. The school's current composition of 21 tenured and tenure-track faculty and 6 non-tenure track faculty value interdisciplinary and interprofessional collaboration across its research, teaching, and outreach efforts. In alignment with the university's land-grant mission, the schoolhouses four public-facing research and outreach centers: The Ethics Lab, The PHI | Public Humanities Institute, the South Dakota Polling Project, and the recently launched Mike Huether Public Service Academy.

South Dakota State University promotes access to and opportunities for all to receive the benefit of and participate in education, research, and service and is especially interested in candidates that can contribute to this land-grant mission of access.

KEY RESPONSIBILITIES:

The successful candidate will teach three classes per semester in consultation with the director based on student needs and school/program strategic priorities. This faculty member will mentor students in the Political Science program and the Huether Public Service Academy and contribute to the overall academic environment of the School. The new member of the SDSU faculty will conduct scholarly research consistent with their field. Candidates are expected to be excellent classroom instructors with an active research agenda.

SALARY RANGE:

The salary is commensurate with qualifications. We offer a generous retirement plan that includes 6% matching, 9.34 hours of sick leave each month, and eleven paid holidays. Relocation benefits are available per university's guidelines.

BENEFITS:

We offer a rich academic experience in an environment of inclusions and access. The university is part of a dynamic community for families, students, young professionals, and retirees, which offers an abundance of attractions and activities. South Dakota State University offers a wide range of excellent benefits including medical, dental, and flexible benefits, retirement plans, compensation packages, paid holidays, and leave. Employees also have access to internal and state-sponsored training as well as reduced tuition for state-supported courses at all State of South Dakota academic institutions.

MINIMUM QUALIFICATIONS:

- Hold a Ph.D. in Public Administration, Public Policy, Political Science or closely related field by start date.
- Ability to teach public policy (open specialization) and/or public administration courses as well as state and local government.
- Ability or potential to develop and teach undergraduate elective courses in the candidate's area of specialization.
- Ability or potential to develop and sustain an active research agenda.
- Ability to contribute to program and school initiatives through general service.
- Effective written and verbal communication and interpersonal skills.

THE UNIVERSITY:

South Dakota State University is the state's largest, most comprehensive university with more than 200 academic programs, an enrollment of approximately 12,000 students, and over $60 million annual research expenditures.

South Dakota State University offers a rich academic experience in an environment of inclusion and access through inspired, student-centered education, creative activities and research, innovation and engagement that improve the quality of life in South Dakota, the region, the nation, and the world. Its employees embrace the university's core values of being people-centered, expanding knowledge through creativity, embracing organizational and personal integrity, commitment to diversity of thought, and excellence through continuous improvement.

The College of Arts, Humanities and Social Sciences is the intellectual and cultural heart of SDSU. The college consists of seven interdisciplinary schools—American and Global Studies, Communication and Journalism, Design, English and Interdisciplinary Studies, the Ness School of Management and Economics, and Performing Arts—additionally, the college includes programs in military science (Army ROTC) and Aerospace Studies (Air Force ROTC). The college's unique administrative structure supports and encourages interdisciplinary collaboration among both faculty and students, allowing each unit and discipline to thrive. The college is committed to supporting the Land Grant Mission of SDSU. Our faculty regularly conduct research that directly benefits the people of South Dakota and our region with research that engages our communities, supporting their social, cultural, and economic development.

As the state's 1862 Morrill Act land grant institution, the work of the university is carried out on its main resident campus in Brookings, at sites in Sioux Falls, Pierre, Rapid City, and Aberdeen, and through SDSU Extension offices and Agricultural Experiment Station research sites across South Dakota.

Jackrabbits Athletics competes as an NCAA Division I member with membership in the Missouri Valley Football Conference, the Summit League, and the Big XII.

The university benefits from a robust investor and alumni network actively engaged in classrooms and student ventures. The recent SDSU Bold and Blue comprehensive campaign—the university's largest fundraising effort—raised over $600 million to support the university.

BROOKINGS, SOUTH DAKOTA:

Brookings is home to approximately 24,000 residents and is located 60 miles north of Sioux Falls and 200 miles west of Minneapolis. Brookings is listed as an ideal community for families, students, young professionals, and retirees, and is rated among the safest and most vibrant cities in South Dakota.

The Brookings Public School District educates approximately 3,300 K-12 students and ranks among the state's highest academic achieving school districts. The district includes three elementary schools, an intermediate school for fourth and fifth grade, one middle school, and a high school.

The city also boasts an abundance of attractions and activities, including the Children's Museum of South Dakota, the Dakota Nature Park, the South Dakota Art Museum, McCrory Gardens, the South Dakota Agricultural Heritage Museum, an outdoor adventure center, and the Brookings summer arts festival.

The postdoctoral fellow will be mentored in research and proposal writing by faculty directors of the labs and participate in an active research community in Political Science and the College of Liberal Arts.

For information about the labs, please see the following websites:
GRAIL: <https://cla.purdue.edu/academic/polsci/research/labs/grail/index.html>

CSS: <https://cla.purdue.edu/academic/polsci/research/labs/computational-social-science-lab/index.html>

Qualifications

A PhD in Political Science, Public Policy, or a closely related field is required. ABDs will be considered but the successful candidate must provide evidence of completion of all requirements for the PhD prior to the start date of the position. Qualified candidates must have strong skills in writing, quantitative data analysis, data visualization, and research methods. Candidates must have experience managing research projects and a record of successful collaboration. Candidates must also have evidence of a research pipeline related to the aims of GRAIL and the CSS Lab.

About Purdue University

In recent years, the College of Liberal Arts at Purdue University has hired a large group of faculty in the area of artificial intelligence (AI), broadly construed. Representing a variety of disciplines in the College, this cohort of scholars expands our capacity to explore the implications of AI development across multiple domains and contribute to disciplinary and interdisciplinary research and educational initiatives surrounding AI in new and important ways.

Political Science is home to 28 faculty and more than 40 PhD students, visiting scholars, and post-docs. Purdue University is a member of the AAU and a land grant university with enrollment of over 52,000 students. The campus is located in West Lafayette, Indiana, an area with a favorable cost of living and a vibrant local community. Purdue University offers high-quality research and computing facilities with many opportunities for collaboration in Centers and Institutes across campus and in the broader region. Purdue University is building world-leading programs in AI, including a new Institute for Physical Artificial Intelligence.

Computational Social Science (CSS) Lab at Purdue University Under the direction of Dr. Bryce J. Dietrich, the Computational Social Science Lab (CSS) was established to promote the application and development of computational methods to large, typically complex, human, and behavioral data. CSS has received coverage both on and off campus for its "revolutionary" approach to social science research, especially its novel use of text, audio, and video data. The lab comprises an interdisciplinary team of undergraduate and graduate students, faculty, and postdoctoral fellows.

Dr. Bryce J. Dietrich joined the faculty at Purdue University in the Fall of 2022. His research uses novel quantitative, automated, and machine learning methods to analyze non-traditional data sources such as audio (or speech) data and video data. His work has appeared in prominent journals like the American Political Science Review, Journal of Politics, Nature Human Behavior, Political Analysis, and Political Psychology. In addition to securing external awards from the NIH and NSF, his work has also been covered by prominent media outlets like The Washington Post, The Economist and National Public Radio (NPR). His most recent work using C-SPAN has looked at gender and social dynamics on the floor of the U.S. House of Representatives.

Governance and Responsible AI Lab (GRAIL) at Purdue University The Governance and Responsible AI Lab (GRAIL), co-directed by Dr. Daniel S. Schiff and Dr. Kaylyn Jackson Schiff, conducts research on the social, ethical, and governance implications of artificial intelligence and other emerging technologies. GRAIL consists of an interdisciplinary team of faculty, graduate students, and undergraduate students and produces rigorous, policy-relevant work on AI supported by funding from the National Institute of Justice and Google. The lab's research explores topics such as the political impacts of deepfakes, emerging legislation and regulation related to AI, use of AI in government and law enforcement, and public and elite opinion on AI. GRAIL is a member of the National Institute of Standards and Technology's AI Safety Institute Consortium and an affiliate of Purdue's Institute for Physical Artificial Intelligence.

Dr. Daniel S. Schiff studies the formal and informal governance of AI through policy and industry, as well as AI's social and ethical implications in domains like education, manufacturing, finance, and criminal justice. Daniel previously served as the founding Responsible AI Lead at JP Morgan Chase & Co. and as the Secretary of the IEEE 7010-2020 standard, the first AI ethics industry standard. His research has been published in prominent interdisciplinary venues such as Policy Studies Journal, the American Political Science Review, AI & Society, and the International Journal of AI in Education.

Dr. Kaylyn Jackson Schiff conducts research on how technological developments are changing citizen-government contact and explores implications for service provision, misinformation, policing, education, and government use of artificial intelligence. Her research has won the award for best dissertation in the field of public administration from the American Political Science Association and the Journal of Politics best paper award. Her work has been published in top journals such as the American Political Science Review, Public Administration Review, Policy Studies Journal, and Nature Human Behavior.

Application Procedures

To apply, please visit <https://careers.purdue.edu/> position number 32237. Applications must be submitted online and include: 1) Cover letter of interest that includes a statement describing how the applicant's research fits the principal duties and qualifications of the position, 2) Curriculum Vitae, and 3) Recent research paper or other writing sample related to the position description. Candidates who advance in the review process may be asked to provide letters of recommendation and transcripts.

Screening of applicants will begin on July 15th, 2024, and will continue until the position is filled. A background check is required for employment in this position. For additional information, contact Dr. Bryce J. Dietrich at bjdietri@purdue.edu.

USC Sol Price School of Public Policy

Rank: Professor of Public Policy and Management; Bedrosian Chair in Governance and the Public Enterprise

Position Description and Qualifications

The Sol Price School of Public Policy at the University of Southern California seeks a senior faculty member at the rank of professor (tenured) in the Public Policy and Management Department to serve as the Bedrosian Chair in Governance and the Public Enterprise. The individual will have a stellar record of scholarship and leadership in governance and the public enterprise. Of particular interest will be a focus on civic engagement, democratic processes and institutions, collective action, public policy processes and analytics, and public/nonprofit management. We are interested in scholars from all relevant disciplines as well as an interest in a wide array of issue areas that are part of the School's portfolio. Applicants must present evidence of a creative, vibrant and intellectually rigorous research agenda and significant accomplishments in their field. The candidate will also serve as Director of the Bedrosian Center for Governance and the Public Enterprise and is expected to develop and execute public facing programs on Democracy and Governance, including highly visible related policy discussions.

About the Bedrosian Center

The Judith and John Bedrosian Center on Governance and the Public Enterprise was established with a generous gift from Judith and John

Bedrosian in 2004. Effective governance is essential to the quality of life of all Americans. The center is dedicated to understanding and improving the nature of democratic governance, policymaking, and management of the public enterprise in the 21st century. The center provides a highly visible focal point for imaginative research, policy analysis, and dialogue across the university. Through public discussion, the center focuses on pressing issues facing society and integrates conversations with civic education, which is at the heart of strong communities.

National University of Singapore

Subfield(s): Comparative Politics, International Relations, Public Policy

The Department of Political Science at the National University of Singapore invites applications for the tenure-track position of Presidential Young Professor (PYP) at the rank of Assistant Professor, to commence in 2025. Applications are invited from all major subfields of political science including, but not limited to, comparative politics, international relations, and public policy. We are especially interested in candidates with an Asia-focused research programme.

The NUS Presidential Young Professorship and NUS Presidential Fellowship Awards aim to attract, support, and empower the brightest and most promising young academics in the early stage of their careers so that they can develop themselves into world-class scholars. As a young academic at NUS, you will have the opportunity to work alongside a diverse and dynamic community of scholars and students, to pursue excellence and innovation with a positive societal impact. Successful PYP candidates are awarded a start-up grant package of either SGD 250,000 or SGD 750,000, depending on the demands of their research program. Successful PYP candidates are also granted an award of an additional SGD 250,000 for discretionary spending.

The NUS Department of Political Science is one of the leading global programs, with a vibrant research culture and located in a cosmopolitan hub. It is one of 15 departments within the Faculty of Arts and Social Sciences. Southeast and East Asia are geographical areas of departmental strength, but our 20+ faculty members have research interests which range across the subfields of political theory, international relations, comparative politics, and governance and public policy. In addition, the world-renowned Asia Research Institute (ARI) at NUS engages political scientists as part of its interdisciplinary community, as do our many area studies departments. Our department is committed to promoting equity, diversity, and inclusion as integral values in our strategic development. We also offer a competitive remuneration package, including housing and relocation benefits for eligible overseas candidates. The typical teaching load is 2:1 (one or two courses per semester, totaling three per academic year).

Interested applicants are invited to apply directly at our NUS Career Portal <https://careers.nus.edu.sg/job-invite/25147/>. Application dossiers should include:

? A brief cover letter explaining why the position at NUS is of interest and discusses the ambition of your research program
 ? A comprehensive CV with a complete list of publications, awards, grants, and courses taught
 ? A research statement with a three year research plan
 ? Two signature publications with the applicant as the lead author
 ? Letters from at least three referees. If the applicant is two or more years post-PhD, the referees should not be limited to supervisors. The referees should compare the research performance of the applicant to specific individuals at equivalent and top institutions and/or programs. Please send all referee letters directly to pol-ir@nus.edu.sg.

Review of applications will begin on 29 July 2024 and continue until an appointment is made. We regret that only shortlisted candidates will be notified. If there are any questions, please email the search committee at pol-ir@nus.edu.sg.

Public Religion Research Institute (PRRI)

Subfield(s): Public Policy, American Government and Politics, Comparative Politics

Open Call for Fellows

PRRI (Public Religion Research Institute)

The application deadline is Friday, June 28, 2024.

PRRI is announcing an opportunity to join a diverse cohort of 15 non-residential Public Fellows who are engaged in public scholarship at the intersection of religion, culture, and politics: <https://www.prri.org/about/careers-and-fellowships/>

PRRI Public Fellows will work alongside the organization's research and communications staff during the 2024-2025 academic year (August to July). This 11-month fellowship includes a stipend, support for a course release during the spring semester, and access to microgrants to support collaborative research. The PRRI fellowship will benefit those who want to shape their work for broader public consumption, receive communications support for placing public-facing work in top-tier media outlets, and integrate quantitative data into their research and teaching. Successful fellows will be eligible to apply for a one-time renewal at the end of the program year, but are not guaranteed renewal.

As a part of PRRI's Religion and Renewing Democracy Initiative, the organization is seeking applicants whose research agendas align with one of five principal vectors of PRRI's ongoing work: 1) religious, racial, and ethnic pluralism; 2) racial justice and white supremacy; 3) immigration and migration studies; 4) LGBTQ rights, and, new this year, (5) reproductive health and rights. In each area of scholarship, PRRI will select three Public Fellows.

The ideal candidates are mid-career scholars (three to twelve years since earning a terminal degree) who have an aptitude and track record of socially engaged or public scholarship. PRRI is seeking a diverse cohort in terms of academic disciplines (social sciences, humanistic social sciences, and the humanities), research methods (qualitative, quantitative, and mixed methods), types of institutions (college, university, seminary, or a research institute housed within an academic institution), and geographic location. PRRI encourages applications from women, people of color, and other members of under-represented groups who will contribute to the diversity of the cohort.

Fellowship Benefits:

PRRI Public Fellows in the 2024-2025 cohort will receive the following:

An 11-month fellowship with a cohort of 15 diverse scholars (three from each area of PRRI's core areas of work) engaged in public scholarship;

Fellowship stipend of $5,000;

Course release funds up to $10,000 for the Spring 2025 semester;

Access to annual microgrants of $10,000 in each area of PRRI's work for new interdisciplinary scholarly projects within the cohort;

Monthly meetings and quarterly trainings and workshops;

An in-person convening in Washington, D.C., with travel expenses paid by PRRI. During the convening, Fellows will meet with writers from major media outlets, receive media training from PRRI's communications consultants, and dialogue with experts in writing for trade, crossover, and non-academic books;

Advance access to PRRI data and archives;

Collaborative work with PRRI's research and communications teams;

For Fellows from non-quantitative backgrounds, PRRI will provide training, support, and advice on how to connect public-opinion survey research to their field of expertise

Application Requirements:

Applicants for the PRRI Public Fellows program must meet the following requirements:

Fellows must have a Ph.D. or comparable terminal degree plus a formal affiliation with an accredited college, university, seminary, or research institute in the United States;

Fellows must have earned their terminal degree at least three years ago and no more than 12 years ago;

Fellows should have demonstrable academic expertise in at least one of the five areas of PRRI's work (religious, racial and ethnic pluralism; racial justice and white supremacy; immigration and migration studies; reproductive health and rights; and LGBTQ rights);

Fellows must be authorized to work in the United States

Application Process:

To apply for a fellowship, please follow this link. The application includes:

Statement of interest: in 800 words or less, please explain your interest in pursuing this fellowship opportunity and your professional development goals in public scholarship.

Current curriculum vitae

Work samples: please provide links to and PDF copies of three articles, op-eds, or blogs published within the last three years, preferably in publications or sites aimed at the general public. These samples should be your best recent work.

The application deadline is Friday, June 28, 2024. For questions, please contact PRRI at public.fellows@publicreligion.org

About PRRI:

Public Religion Research Institute (PRRI), founded in 2009, is a nonprofit, nonpartisan organization dedicated to conducting independent research at the intersection of religion, culture, and politics. PRRI research explores and illuminates America's changing cultural, religious, and political landscape. The organization's mission is to help journalists, scholars, thought leaders, clergy, and the public better understand debates on public policy issues, and the important cultural and religious dynamics shaping American society and politics.

Johns Hopkins University

Rank: Assistant Program Director, Data Analytics and Policy

Johns Hopkins University: Zanvyl Krieger School of Arts and Sciences: Advanced Academic Programs

Description

Position Description

The Johns Hopkins University invites applications for the position of assistant program director. This position will support the MS in Data Analytics and Policy program in the Center for Data Analytics, Policy, and Government within the Krieger School of Arts and Sciences' Advanced Academic Programs division. Reporting to the director of the Data Analytics and Policy program and associate dean for graduate and professional programs, the assistant program director will contribute to the program's academic excellence and support ongoing innovation in the curriculum. Johns Hopkins University is committed to hiring candidates who, through their teaching and service, will contribute to the diversity and excellence of the academic community.

Advanced Academic Programs

Advanced Academic Programs is a Krieger School of Arts and Sciences division at Johns Hopkins University. As the nation's oldest and one of its most prestigious research universities, JHU offers high-quality master's degrees and post-baccalaureate education to students online in Washington, D.C., and on the Homewood campus in Baltimore, Maryland. AAP enrolls over 6,000 students each academic year in over 30 degree programs.

AAP was launched in 1992 to provide students with the opportunity to obtain a master's degree in a professional and part-time graduate program. Over the course of more than 30 years, AAP has worked diligently to add new degree programs that fit within the academic structure of the Krieger School and satisfy the demands of the marketplace. AAP distinguishes itself through its intensive instructional assistance, selective admissions, and more than 50 dedicated full-time faculty. Tenured Krieger School faculty members serve as program chairs within AAP and work together in the Council of Program Chairs, an academic advisory body to the Krieger School dean.

AAP's website, <http://advanced.jhu.edu/>, provides additional information.

The Position

The Advanced Academic Programs division seeks an assistant program director to teach in and provide administrative support to the Data Analytics and Policy program. The Master of Science in Data Analytics and Policy prepares students to be data-driven leaders and decision-makers, with a curriculum that blends data science training with substantive expertise in politics and policy. The assistant program director has academic and administrative duties supporting the curriculum, students, adjunct faculty, and the program's public presence.

The assistant program director will have significant interaction/collaboration with the program director and other faculty within the Center for Data Analytics, Policy, and Government, as well as across other AAP programs.

The assistant program director is a full-time, non-tenure-track, 12-month renewable faculty position with the academic title of lecturer or senior lecturer, commensurate with experience. The assistant program director reports to the director of the data analytics and policy program, who consults with the center director and program chair on academic matters, and to the associate dean for graduate and professional programs, who leads AAP and reports to the Krieger School dean.

The assistant program director will have the following academic and administrative responsibilities:

Academic Responsibilities

- Teach five graduate courses per year, including preparation and time spent in the classroom (both onsite at the Johns Hopkins University Bloomberg Center in Washington, D.C., and online), using best practices for teaching and engaging students from diverse backgrounds
- Develop new courses, both in-person and online
- Coordinate with adjunct faculty in the delivery of multi-section courses
- Advise students, including both program and research advising
- Provide input on the curriculum to ensure the delivery and growth of quality programs
- Other academic duties normally performed by full-time or regular part-time faculty, such as participating on committees, attending academic events, and contributing to other academic service

Administrative Responsibilities

- Assist the program director with program administration, such as reviewing admission materials, developing program materials, and maintaining program communications
- Assist with the management of degree concentrations
- Organize professionally and academically enriching co-curricular programming that engages students and external audiences, such as skills workshops, networking opportunities, and public-facing events
- Participate in adjunct faculty hiring and development
- Other administrative duties as assigned

Qualifications

The assistant program director role is critical to maintaining the overall high quality of this program. The assistant program director must have a passion for education and its power to change lives, especially for part-time and non-residential students. A track record of successful graduate and/or online teaching, as well as skills in instructional design, content development, and instructional technology, are important.

Candidates who have experience teaching and engaging students from diverse backgrounds are of particular interest.

To be considered, candidates should meet a set of minimum qualifications and ideally meet several additional preferred qualifications.

Minimum Qualifications:

- PhD in political science, public policy, statistics, or other relevant field
- One to three years of higher education teaching experience online and/or at the graduate level

- Expertise required to teach a variety of courses at the confluence of data analytics and policy, such as statistics, programming in R and Python, data visualization, research design, and political and public policy analysis
- Interest in leading and engaging with co-curricular programming and public-facing initiatives related to data analytics and public policy
- Strong organizational and problem-solving skills
- Excellent oral and written communication skills
- Ability to work collaboratively, iteratively, and creatively on program development

Preferred Qualifications:

- 4 or more years of higher education teaching experience online and/or at the graduate level?
- 1-3 years of related professional work experience outside of academia, including but not limited to, government service, outside consulting, or collaborative work within fields related to politics, governance, and/or policy
- Professional interests in artificial intelligence, machine learning, and the application of these technologies to political and governmental processes
- Experience managing a degree or certificate program
- Demonstrated track record of excellence in teaching and innovation in curriculum design
- The ability to work independently in a fast-paced environment with competing demands and multiple deadlines in both on-site and online environments

Application Instructions

For consideration interested and qualified candidates should submit the following materials:

- Cover letter that describes the applicant's interest in the position
- CV?
- Teaching evaluations from the two most recent semesters
- Transcripts for every degree awarded

The selected candidate will be expected to undergo a background check, provide three references, and submit proof of educational attainment.

Catholic University of America

Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Public Policy, Political Theory

Assistant Professor of Politics (American Politics)

The Department of Politics at The Catholic University of America invites applications for a tenure-track faculty appointment in American politics, to begin in the fall of 2024. We are interested in a candidate with a range of interests, including but not limited to public opinion, ideology, political parties, elections, and the presidency. The successful candidate could also play an important advisory role for our Washington, D.C. internship programs. The department especially welcomes applicants whose research interests complement its traditional strengths in historical, theoretical, and institutional perspectives. Situated on a large and beautiful campus, Catholic University is only three metro stops from the Capitol. Politics is one of the largest majors on campus, attracting many students who value the community of a Catholic university while pursuing careers related to politics and law in the nation's capital. The department's Ph.D program has a long and distinguished history, and the development of professionally minded M.A. programs is a university priority.

We seek candidates who understand, are enthusiastic about, and will make a significant contribution to the mission of the University, which reads as follows: "As the national university of the Catholic Church in the United States, founded and sponsored by the bishops of the country with the approval of the Holy See, The Catholic University of America is committed to being a comprehensive Catholic and American institution of higher learning, faithful to the teachings of Jesus Christ as handed on by the Church. Dedicated to advancing the dialogue between faith and reason, The Catholic University of America seeks to discover and impart the truth through excellence in teaching and research, all in service to the Church, the nation and the world."

Applicants should submit a cover letter, a curriculum vitae, a statement of current research and future research plans, a statement of teaching philosophy, graduate school transcript, and a sample of written work (including scholarly publications) to pol-search@cua.edu and arrange for the submission of three letters of reference. In addition, applicants are asked to submit a one- to two-page personal statement indicating how their research, teaching, and service will make a distinctive contribution to our University's mission and to the vision of Catholic education outlined in the Apostolic Constitution on Catholic Universities Ex Corde Ecclesiae.

Review of applications will begin November 15 and continue until the position is filled. Questions may be directed to Jakub Grygiel, Department Chair, at grygiel@cua.edu.

Salem State University

Rank: Faculty - Public Policy - Full Time, Temporary

The politics, policy and international relations department at Salem State University invites a full-time, temporary faculty position for the 2024-2025 academic year. We are seeking a public policy specialist with familiarity with policies in an urban context such as housing, education, transportation, policing, poverty, and/or immigration. This position is part of a Salem State initiative to help establish and advance our proposed North Shore Policy Lab and may be reappointed for up to two additional years subject to available funding. With continued growth of the program, there may be additional tenure track lines in the department.

Housed in the department's Bates Center for Public and Global Affairs, the North Shore Policy Lab will involve students in research conducted on behalf of local and state government and non-governmental organizations in order to prepare them for jobs in the public, non-profit and/or private sectors.

The candidate should be well-versed in both quantitative and qualitative research methods and be able to teach our current Research Methods course as well as a new, advanced multi-methods class that will serve as the foundation for student work on applied policy research projects as a part of the policy lab. The ideal candidate will have a demonstrated record of community-based research and community partnerships with a focus on equity issues in the context of urban areas like those served by Salem State.

Salem State University is committed to excellence in teaching. We pride ourselves in providing first-rate classroom experiences and supervising intensive learning opportunities such as research and internships. Many of our students are first generation, racial/ethnic minorities, veterans, and adult learners. Salem State University is located in the Greater Boston area in the historic city of Salem, Massachusetts. The Greater Boston region is famous for its world-class education, healthcare, and business enterprises and the area offers numerous opportunities for professional and personal enrichment.

Duties and Responsibilities

Candidates are required to perform duties in accordance with the MSCA contract. Duties include teaching, advising, scholarship and contributions to continuously improve the department and university. The standard teaching load is 12 credit hours per semester. The position is subject to available funding.

Required Qualifications:

Earned PhD in public policy or a related field from an accredited institution (ABD considered if degree will be conferred by September 2024)

Advising and/or mentoring experience

Preferred Qualifications:

Commitment to anti-racist, culturally responsive teaching

Demonstrated expertise in community-based research

Active publication record and/or exemplary scholarly potential (e.g., ABD candidates with strong pipeline of research)

Prior applied experience in non-profit or public sector settings

Demonstrated excellence in teaching

As an emerging Hispanic Serving Institution (HSI), Salem State University seeks to enrich the faculty/librarian ranks by actively encouraging candidates whose lived and scholarly experiences directly address issues regarding the health, welfare, and representation of Latinx populations in the United States. Candidates who meet this strongly desired qualification should present documented activities in Latinx-related teaching, scholarship/research, and service, including community-based endeavors in each of these three areas.

Working Conditions:

This is an on-site, in-person position.

Salem State University complies with the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA) to provide reasonable accommodation to qualified applicants and employees with disabilities. For accommodation information or requests please email eo-hr@salemstate.edu.

Special Instructions to Applicants:

Please apply online and attach curriculum vitae, cover letter, teaching philosophy, and a diversity statement (please read our institutional diversity statement and describe how you would contribute to our mission in your teaching, research, mentoring/advising, and service).
